President To Ask Congress For 150 Million Tomorrow

Major Part Of Program for Stabilization of Agriculture Becomes Law With Passage of Bill

To Appoint Board

Selection of Eight Men To Compose Federal Farm Board Will Be Made In Next Two Weeks

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON, June 15.—President Hoover signed the farm relief bill today, thus making law the major part of his program intended to stabilize agriculture.

Monday he will ask congress for $150,000,000 of the $500,000,000 revolving fund authorized for loans to assist the farmer owned and controlled stabilization corporations and cooperatives.

Simultaneously he will begin selection of the eight men to compose the federal farm board, which is to administer the fund and have authority in agriculture comparable with that of the federal reserve board and the interstate commerce commission in their spheres.

Secretary Hyde will request farm organizations and others interested to suggest men for board appointments. Mr. Hoover hopes that within two weeks he can select a board from that personnel and that which already has been proposed to him.

Thus far Mr. Hoover has made no definite selections but it is known that two being considered seriously are James C. Stone of Lexington, Ky., president of the Burley Tobacco Growers Cooperative association, and Carl Williams, a farm paper publisher of Oklahoma and formerly a member of the federal board of mediation.

Rather definite information is available that neither Julius Barnes

Jackson Will Defy Zoning Injunction

Decision Here Is Thought Nullified by Action Of Higher Courts; To Build In Residential Section

Expressing an emphatic belief that the injunction to prevent him from erecting buildings at the corner of Avenue Q and Broadway has been nullified by reversal of Judge Clark Mullican's decision in 99th District court and a denial of plaintiff's petition for new hearing by the court of civil appeals at Amarillo, A. W. Jackson announced Saturday that he would order construction Monday or Wednesday of five proposed buildings at the site causing the controversy.

Dr. M. C. Overton, veteran Lubbock physician, entered a suit several weeks ago against Jackson and J. B. Maxey, contractor, charging that the location which is a part of the Overton addition, was originally restricted for residences only. The lots were sold in 1908 to G. A. Rush and were subsequently sold and finally purchased by Mr. Jackson. Judge Mullican rendered an injunction against the defendants, who later won a reversal before the court of civil appeals at Amarillo. The reversal was followed by a petition on the part of the plaintiff for rehearing, and this was denied last Wednesday.

Out Of Court

"The case is no longer in court," Mr. Jackson said Saturday. "They cannot stop me from building. It is my property, and I plan to build business structures, starting Monday or Wednesday.

"If Mr. Jackson begins erection

House Likely To Vote On Robison Charges Monday

Proponents For Impeachment Have Only One More Witness to Testify In Legislature Hearing

(By Associated Press)

AUSTIN, June 15.—The house of representatives will likely vote on the impeachment charges against J. T. Robison, commissioner of the general land office, early next week, it was indicated tonight.

Attorneys for proponents of the charges announced they had only one more witness to offer.

After hearing Governor Moody and Attorney General Claude Pollard, the house recessed until Tuesday. The legislature had accepted an invitation to spend Monday at Mason as guests of the Hill Country Chamber of Commerce.

Governor Moody and General Pollard testified to conferences in which they participated with Mr. Robison, President H. Y. Benedict, of the University of Texas, and R. L. Batts, vice chairman of the University board of regents, relative to proposed postponement of sale of oil and gas leases in University lands advertised for last January.

They also told of events which led to the filing of an injunction suit against Commissioner Robison on January 1, when he was restrained from selling some 50,000 acres of land advertised to be sold on January 2.

Their testimony was much the same as they gave to the joint committee which investigated the land office during the regular session.

Hospitality Of Sooner Capital To Be Returned

Local Committee To Bring Goodwill Evangels Here From Floydada In Cars Early Monday Morning

Luncheon Planned

Visitors Will Be Taken For Tour of Inspection of City Before Starting Homeward Trip After Noon

RETURNING the hospitality received at the hands of the Sooner capital about two months ago, Lubbock business men will leave here early Monday morning to greet about 100 Oklahoma City good will evangels at Floydada and bring them to this city for a reception.

A reception committee appointed by the Board of City Development is composed of G. P. Kuykendall, B. Sherrod, W. W. Royalty, J. B. Maxey and C. E. Maedgen. The commitee, accompanied by others, will leave here Monday morning about 4 o'clock in automobiles and will have breakfast, served by the Floydada Chamber of Commerce, with the visitors at 6:30 o'clock.

To Give Luncheon.

Arriving in this city about 10 o'clock, the visitors will be taken for a ride over the city, and will be honored by the Chamber of Commerce with a luncheon at the Hotel Lubbock.

Immediately after the luncheon, the visitors will be driven back to Floydada, where they will entrain for the homeward trip.

Due to washouts on the rail line in Oklahoma, a scheduled trip of the Sooners was postponed last Monday. The Oklahomans will arrive in Floydada too late to make connection with the Lubbock bound train in the morning, hence the necessity of meeting them with automobiles.

Infatuation For Woman Leads To Double Killing

Wife and Lover Are Slain In Sensational Pistol Battle Lasting More Than Hour at Houston

(By Associated Press)

HOUSTON, June 15.—The infatuation of Howard M. Burnett, 23, for Mrs. Jewell Kelly, 28, the wife of Burnett's "old friend," led to the death of Burnett and Mrs. Kelly here tonight in a pistol fight that lasted almost an hour.

After killing Mrs. Kelly, in a fight with her husband, Burnett forced a policeman to get in his car with him and drive him around the block while he exchanged shots with a posse of officers. Finally he was shot and killed by mounted officer Hope. Police said tonight that Burnett was crazed with drink when he went to the Kelly home.

Former Dallasite.

The Kellys had formerly lived in Dallas and Burnett, an "old friend of the family" lived with them. When the Kellys moved to Houston several months ago Burnett came with them and continued to make their house his home.

L. H. Kelly, the husband, told police that he never suspected that Burnett cared for Mrs. Kelly until last Sunday when the roomer attempted to put his arms around her. An argument followed which ended in Burnett moving to another residence. Since that time, according to the husband, he has heard rumors that Burnett had Fire of undetermined origin, which started last night about 11:15, gutted the interior offices of the Thomas Sand and Graved company, 502 Texas avenue.

Firemen experienced some trouble in getting to the blaze as a stout door, the only entrance, was locked. The tin sides of the building glowed with a red heat as the fire raged inside.

The exact amount of damage could not be determined last night, although it was said that office records of the company perhaps were the greatest loss.

Philadelphia Speed King, Holder of American Auto Speed Records, Is Killed In Four-Cornered Smash

California Racing Veteran May Recover from Serious Injuries Sustained In Accident Saturday

By A. NORMAN GAGE
Associated Press Sports Writer

ALTOONA, Pa., June 15. (AP)—Ray Keech, who flashed from comparative obscurity as a dirt track driver to fame as holder of the American automobile speed record, met death on the Altoona speedway at Tipton late today as he gained his last racing triumph.

Driving a brilliant race as he led the field through three quarters of the 200 mile Flag Day event, the Philadelphia speed king, winner of the Indianapolis grind this year, was killed instantly in a four cornered smash up on the east turn of the mile and a quarter board oval.

Cliff Woodbury, California racing veteran, was injured seriously, while Ernest Triplett of Indianapolis, and Bob Robinson of Los Angeles, the other drivers involved in the accident, escaped uninjured. Woodbury was conscious when taken from his wrecked car, doctors said he had escaped broken bones and that barring unforeseen developments he would recover.

Death Mars Race

Keech's death marred a spectacular race in which he and Woodbury, with Lou Meyer, another Pacific coast driver, had thrilled a crowd of 25,000 spectators. The disaster came with sickening suddenness. Cheers turned to gasps as the speeding machines, travelling at 119 miles an hour, smashed up.

Keech had maintained a three-

MacDonald, Dawes Will Meet Today

LONDON, June 15.—(AP)—Charles Gates Dawes, new American ambassador to Great Britain, left tonight for the Scottish Highlands to meet Premier Ramsay MacDonald in a conference widely hailed as pregnant with great events. He previously had presented credentials to King George at Windsor castle.

The ceremony at Windsor today was strictly according to tradition, but Ambassador Dawes' expeditious journey to Scotland in performance of a special mission is as novel as it is dramatically momentous.

Fired with enthusiastic interest by the brusque mid-west American's "hustle," the British public is watching General Dawes with the keenest interest. Englishmen are firmly convinced he brings from President Hoover to the British Prime Minister an invitation freighted with incalculable possibilities for world peace.

WASHINGTON, June 15. (AP)—Statistical studies of the cost of prohibition enforcement prepared by Commissioner Doran place the total government expenditure in the nine years since the adoption of the Eighteenth Amendment at $141,17,485, with collections from fines and revenues from liquor put at $460,502,792.

Negress Society Will Be Costly

SUFFOLK, Va., June 15. (AP)—A statement that entertainment of the wife of a negro congressman at a recent White House tea would cost the republican party 25,000 votes in Virginia was made today by I. C. Trotman of Suffolk, member of the anti-Smith committee of ten which called the Roanoke convention to be held June 18, in a telegram he had sent to Mrs. Herbert Hoover.

Mr. Trotman said he had sent two telegrams to Mrs. Hoover in connection with the tea and gave the text of the second which follows:

"Your silent contempt for my message of yesterday goes a long way toward healing the wound inflicted in the hearts of six southern states that gave Mr. Hoover such a large majority. Can it be possible that you think southern white people beneath your consideration? Your tea party cost the republican party in Virginia not less than 25,000 votes. An expression from you would do lots of good."

Frenchmen Delay Flight to Paris For Another Day

Trans-Atlantic Fliers To Await Repairs On Yellow Bird Before Resuming Hop; Comillas Celebrates

COMILLAS, Spain, June 15. (AP)—The three flying musketeers of France, Assolant, Lefevre and Lotti, remained tonight for another sleep on Spanish soil before going on to Paris, goal of their flight across the Atlantic ocean from America.

By cutting across a corner of the Bay of Biscay the fliers will be over the soil of France within a little less than an hour after leaving the beach at Oriambre.

Stop For Gas

On their way to Paris they will stop for gasoline at Cazaux flying field near Bordeaux and then continue to Le Bourget field.

Repairs to the Yellow Bird by Spanish mechanics this afternoon were minor but sufficient to delay the departure. One trial flight, at first thought to be the real departure for Paris, was made.

Arthur Schreiber, American stowaway on the big Bernard monoplane, remained with the French aviators and will be taken by them to Paris.

Comillas Celebrates

Comillas could not let the occasion slip by without a celebration and, as there wasn't time to organize a formal one last night, it was decided to have one tonight.

Schreiber was invited along with the three aviators who have reconciled themselves to his presence and

Special Prosecutor From Midland Is Trying To Get Hearing Transfered To District Court Here

POSSIBILITY that the trial of R. H. Hamilton, prominent Amarillo attorney, on a charge of murder in connection with the killing of his son-in-law, Tom Walton, Jr., would be transferred to Lubbock was voiced here last night by local attorneys.

A change of venue has been ordered in the case by the district court at Amarillo but the place where the trial is to be held had not been selected by the attorneys last night.

Sam K. Wasaff, Midland attorney, who is employed as special prosecutor in the case, recently told District Attorney Durwood Bradley, of this city, that he would like to see the case tried in this city and that he planned to make an attempt to bring it here.

C. C. Crenshaw, local attorney, with whom it is understood unsuccessful negotiations were made for employment as a special prosecutor in the case, last night said there was a possibility of the case being brought here for trial, although he thought it unlikely.

University Professor Confesses Intimacy With Pretty College Co-Ed Following Hammer Murder

(By Associated Press)

COLUMBUS, Ohio, June 15.—(AP)—Confronted at the county jail by a woman who told police she had rented a room to him which he had shared at intervals with Miss Theora Hix of Bradentown, Fla., slain Ohio State University co-ed, Dr. James H. Snook admitted to detectives tonight that the woman's story was true.

The woman was Mrs. M. M. Smalley. Detectives questioned her at her rooming house and were told that a man representing himself as Howard Snook of Newark, had rented the room in February for himself and "wife." She said he told her he was a demonstrator for a salt company.

He answered Dr. Snook's description and the woman was taken to the jail and Dr. Snook was called from his cell.

Snook Identified

Mrs. Smalley greeted him with "good evening, Mr. Snook," and Dr. Snook returned her salutation.

Thereupon he told detectives that he rented the room and that Miss Hix was the "wife" who shared it with him part of the time.

Dr. Snook said he had turned the room back to Mrs. Smalley yesterday, explaining that he was transferred to Washington courthouse, Ohio, and that he took his belongings and those of Miss Hix from the place with the exception of a woman's brown felt hat, which was found in the room. He identified the hat as belonging to Miss Hix. He told Mrs. Smalley, according to the story both told police, that his "wife" would remain until Sunday.

Together Often

He said he had been to the room several times with Miss Hix and Mrs. Smalley said she had seen the girl accompany him to the place three or four times. She said Miss Hix might have been there oftener.

Mrs. Smalley explained that the room occupied by the couple was at the rear of the building and that they always came and left by a rear entrance, accounting for the fact that she had no more definite knowledge of how many times the girl had been there.

Some girls occupying another room in the apartment house identified the hat as belonging to the girl who was with Snook.

Detectives said they had uncovered the fact that Miss Hix wore the hat on the night of the killing and expressed the belief that she had been in the room shortly before she met her death. They

Milk And Ice Fund To Be Sponsored For Lubbock

Aid Societies Of City Are To Back Campaign Locally

Avalanche And Journal Are To Help; Many Children Are In Need Of More Ice And Milk, Is Claim

A MILK and ice fund campaign will be inaugurated in Lubbock, and locations of collection bottles and a general headquarters office will be announced within a few days, Mrs. W. T. Milam, 1103 Nineteenth street, chairman of the welfare committee of the federated aid societies of Lubbock churches, announced today.

The campaign is being sponsored by the Federated aid societies, of which Mrs. H. T. Kimbro is president, and the Avalanche-Journal will co-operate with the plan.

"There is a pungent need for the valuable service of a milk and ice fund," said Mrs. Milam. "Approximately 125 families, representing 350 to 400 undernourished children, will be benefited by the milk and ice.

Is Health Measure

"Surely, we will not jeopardize the future of our boys and girls by allowing them to grow to young manhood and young womanhood with the handicap of undernourished bodies. A reasonably fair education and a good mind will accomplish little in life when supported by an unhealthy body.

"When our organization is completed, we will receive names, furnished by churches and individuals, as to needy children and families of the city. An investigation will ascertain the worthines of each case.

"Through cooperation of dairymenand ice companies, deliveries will be made daily to the places whereneeded, and the dealers will probably give reduced prices on the commodities.

"Every person in the city will be asked to contribute to the fund. The campaign will be of such city-wide nature that every one will have the opportunity of giving something."

Mrs. Milam conducted successful milk and ice funds campaigns in Roswell, N. M., in 1923 and 1924.

Interest Is Shown In Section, Local Banker Reports

The South Plains area is in comparatively splendid financial condition, based upon expressions heard at the meeting in Dallas this week of stockholders of the Federal Reserve bank, according to C. F. Drexel, of this city, vice-president and cashier of the Citizens National bank, who returned from the meeting late Friday.

"There was considerable interest in Lubbock and this section, as bankers from various cities of Texas who had knowledge of the building record of this city were eager to know more about "The Hub of the Plains," said Mr. Drexel.

Reserve District Good

"The Federal Reserve bank and all its bank members show to be in the best financial condition since organization of the system," he said.

Mr. Drexel was a member of the reserve requirements committee, of which B. A. McKinney, vice-president of the American Exchange National bank of Dallas, was president, and he was also a member of the resolutions committee, headed by George E. Webb, president of the First National bank of San Angelo.

Of the more than 700 members of the Stockholders Association of the Federal Reserve Bank, Dallas, only 180 attended. This was the third annual meeting of the association.

There was no discussion whatever as to the proposed establishment of a branch of the federal reserve bank at Amarillo, Mr. Drexel said.

Lubbock Girl Reserves Report First Annual Camp Waldemar Session On Guadelupe River Enthusiastically

"Camp Waldemar, near Kerrville, the site of the first annual camp of Girl Reserves' in Texas—is one of the most beautiful spots in the United States, and the highest according to elevation," so said Miss Louise Lawson, president of the Lubbock Girl Reserves, in commenting on the ten-day encampment there May 31 to June 8, and which had in attendance 150 girls representing the four states of Oklahoma, Arkansas, Louisiana and Texas. There were present representatives from 22 Texas cities with 14 of this number Rio Grande Valley towns.

"World Fellowship" was the encampment theme and instructions were given on the subject by Miss Dorris Shelton, of Dallas," according to Miss Lawson, who further added that diversion in sports were classes in horseback riding, tennis, swimming and hiking, picnics.

Lectures Interesting

"The several lectures which we listened to at beautiful Cedar Lodge were both interesting and informative." Service, "was the title of the lecture given by Miss Wakeland, of Breckenridge; Miss Wilson, of New York, talked on the work of the Y. W. C. A. in Texas as Compared to Other States," and also was in charge of the camp's religious educational program. Miss Cox, lectured on, "Dramatic and What Our Program for 1930 Should Be:" Miss Elizabeth Marvin, San Antonio, was in charge of the Nature discussion on "Birds and Flowers," while Miss Erma Schnelle, of Wichita Falls gave the group instruction on, "Arts and Handicrafts."

"Camp Waldemar is located on a beautiful mountainside overlooking the Gaudelupe river. There are woody stretches all around and the grounds look like a gigantic campus dotted by Cedar Lodge, Oakhall assembly building, Rockhall dining room which has an accommodation for 150 persons; and the 21 cabins each of which housed six girls and a woman counellor," declared Miss Lawson.

Many Lectures Given

"In Oakhall assembly, handicrafts and vocational lectures were given by Miss Wilson; the publicity lecture was by Mrs. Lowrey, of Oklahoma City; another vocational lecture was given by Miss Helena of San Antonio, while Miss Ruth Bradford, of Texarkana, spoke on "Discovering Ourselves." Colonel Grimmins, of the U. S. department of medicine at Fort Sam Houston, San Antonio, lectured on "Snakes" and pointed out the most poisonous types and explained the way in which anti-toxin is secured from the venemous rattler, which in turn if administered in time, will save the life of one bitten by the rattlesnake.

"One evening Miss Wilson, formed the girls who were dressed in uniforms of white, and wearing blue ties, about a huge campfire in the symbolic triangle of the order of Girl Reserves—and after addressing us on "Loyalty and Club Spirit," lighted her candle and each councilor from the living groups filed by her and lighted their candles from Miss Wilson's, following which every girl in these groups, lighted her candle from that of her councilor. These candles were encased in gay miniature lanterns, and mounted on branches of cedar. Then the girls again taken their places in the triangle, and the ceremenial was closed by singing, "Follow the Gleam."

Three From Here

Swimming was enjoyed in the blue running waters of the Gaudelupe river and life guards were members of the Girl Reserves' from Dallas. Miss Murre, of San Antonio, was in charge of general arrangements for the camp. There were three representatives from Lubbock, Misses Ethel and Louise Lawson and Margaret Bruckner. The latter was councilor in charge of the Nature study group, while Miss L. Conn, directed the dramtic group study and sponsored the special program on "stunt night" in which all visiting groups had part. All in all, the encampment was a decided success and every minute was filled with something helpful and worthwhile," declared Miss Lawson.

Life Saving Work To Be Given Here

Life saving instruction, sponsored by the local chapter of Red Cross, will start with classes at Tumble-N swimming pool Tuesday morning from 10 till 12 o'clock.

All instruction will be in charge of Eugene Adair of this city, and examinations will be conducted June 27 and 28 by K. N. Clapp.

Classes will be conducted every other morning, beginning Tuesday, until the day of examinations.

Those desiring to receive instructions are requested to apply at the pool on the opening day. All who have had instructions in previous years may review their work, it was said.

According to Mr. Clapp, there are more life savers in Lubbock than in any town of this population in Texas. There are now more than 100 who have already passed the required tests.

TO HOLD SERVICES

SLATON, June 15.—Annual memorial services for Slaton Odd Fellows and Rebekahs will be held Sunday night at the First Baptist church, with the pastor, Rev. B. G. Holloway, delivering the sermon.

Club Organizes

Houston Has New Organization

HOUSTON, June 15. (AP)—An organization modeled upon New York's Tammany Hall has been formed here. The name of the organization is "The Apaches" and its motto is "We protect our own."

A charter recently was granted by the secretary of state and the organization already has more than 400 members.

While the Apaches plan to swing their political tomahawks with deadly effect a holder of a public office will be ineligible for membership and once one of their number is elected to office his connection with the organization is ended.

Whenever one of the Apaches gets sick the organization will give him relief and if he's jobless the Apaches will seek employment for him.

The organization later may be statewide.

Lubbock-Plainview Power Line Begun

Two-Circuit Line Will Be Completed Within Next Sixty Days; Will Offer Double Protection

(Special To The Avalanche-Journal)

PLAINVIEW, June 15.—Construction of an entirely new two-circuit high power line from Plainview to Lubbock will be completed within 60 days, according to J. B. Scott of Plainview, manager of the Texas Utilities company who have their general offices here.

This line is already complete from Lubbock north to Hale Center, and the Plainview-Hale Center section is now under construction.

From a point seven miles west of Plainview the line will continue as a one circuit line into Olton north into Hart, west and north into Dimmitt and thence to Hereford, giving the company another loop for that section of the Plains. If anything happens to the circuit between towns, the towns can then be served from either end of the loop, as there are power houses at Plainview and at Canyon.

As soon as this loop is completed the company will begin a line from Dimmitt across to the high-line at Bovina, forming another loop. There is a power house at Clovis to serve that section of the wide territory.

Some fifty towns in the Texas Panhandle-Plains section are served by the Texas Utilities company besides a number in eastern New Mexico.

IN THE REALM OF SPORT

WITH ALLAN CARNEY
Avalanche Sports Editor

HAIL THE CHAMPION

Clinton Bussey has brought to Lubbock its first state-wide recognition in the golfing field, winning the West Texas crown from a field composed of the outstanding golfers in the state. In carrying off high honors in the Stamford tournament, the local youth displayed the coolness and confidence of a seasoned veteran, although it was his first tournament competition.

Bussey's feat will mean much to golfing interest in Lubbock and the South Plains. The Lubbock delegation was the second largest at the meet and made a lasting impression on the visitors from other cities. Local golfers who made up the Lubbock party made a strong bid for the 1930 tournament. A committee, named to select the site for the event, will visit Lubbock shortly before the tournament to look over the golfing facilities. Brownwood is the other city which is asking for the meet.

HOME TOWN BOY MAKES GOOD

The return of the newly-crowned champion to Lubbock Friday was comparable to the triumphant return of a national hero. With his bronzed face wreathed in smiles, Bussey alighted from the car in which he rode from Stamford, weighted down with a loving cup that Walter Hagen would be proud to own. The beautiful award is fully 36 inches high with the words "Championship West Texas Golf Association, Fifth Annual Tournament" enscribed in gold lettering.

In recounting his drive for the championship, Bussey sung high praises for the performance of the youngsters in the tournament, including himself, showing the same self-confidence that characterized his march to the crown.

"We just shot their eyes out," Bussey exclaimed, as he told of the brilliant play of Richard Snyder, 15-year-old Dublin youth, Russell Crowmover of Abilene, and Dixon White, 16-year-old runner-up from the same city and of himself.

"White was considerably off form during the first 18 holes of your championship match, wasn't he?" Bussey was asked.

"Oops! Why, I was just shooting par golf."

Brownwood is likely to get the 1930 tournament. Bussey believes. The Brown county delegation had bid for the event a great deal sooner than Lubbock. The newly crowned champion is elated over the fact that he will not be required to qualify for the tournament next year. This is the favor afforded the champion.

A GOOD SPECTATOR

Roy McWhorter, captain of the Lubbock delegation to the West Texas tourney, encountered tough luck during the qualifying round, turning in a 100 when 98 was the limit for the fourth flight. Friends back in Lubbock were watching closely the progress of the tournament to see how Ross was faring. Immediately upon the receipt of the news that McWhorter was eliminated, Hal Arnett and "Catfact" Means, close friends of the defeated golfer, sent the following message to him:

Negotiations are under way here to bring Dennis Lavender, Texas amateur champion from Abilene, to Lubbock in the near future to play an exhibition match with Clinton Bussey, the local West Texas champion. Such a match would prove extremely interesting and offer an opportunity for Bussey to match strokes with the youth recently proclaimed the greatest in Texas.

Scottish Veteran Defeated In Grim Battle For Title

John Nelson Smith, Conqueror of John Dawson, Holds English Opponent Even for 18 Holes

By FRANK H. KING,
Associated Press Staff Writer.

SANDWICH, Eng., June 15. (AP)—Cyril James Hastings Tolley, today won the British amateur golf championship and will invade the United States to play in the American amateur championship at Pebble Beach, Cal., next September.

Tolley won his second crown by defeating John Nelson Smith, Scottish carpenter from Fife, four up and three to play in the 6 hole final.

Scotchman Strong

The Scotch artisan opposing the great Tolley today played the same determined sort of game that brought him a sensational victory yesterday over John Dawson, the brilliant young American, and for 18 holes he held his English opponent even. Sturdy shouldered, big boned and with huge hands that made clubs seem like match sticks, Smith never let Tolley get ahead until the 19th.

Consistently outdriven, Smith nevertheless chalked the faces of his wooden clubs with a piece of blue chalk he uses on other days for drawing lines in his carpenter shop and smacked his own shots straight and true.

Tolley Brilliant

At the 22nd hole Tolley hit a fine iron shot to the green and with this seemed to divest himself of the strain that was beginning to tell on both players. He then played great golf to the close. His performance over the next five holes was enough to break the heart of a less courageous man than Smith, but the Scotsman hit back gamely.

Old Timers Today

BY GEORGE STOVAL
FRANK BAKER

Long before Babe Ruth, with his massive shoulders, spindly legs and tremendous wallop wrote big league history with a brutal (to pitchers) hand, there was a thin, short fellow by the name of Frank Baker with the Athletics.

Home Run Baker they called him. Home Run Baker—because he had the four-ply wallop to deliver when it was needed.

Today Baker is a farmer near Trappe, Md., where he has made his home for many years. He hasn't been out of baseball so long, but his deeds, great in their day, are now dimly viewed through the dust kicked up by such slugging behemoths as Ruth, Lou Gehrig, Jimmy Foxx and the rest of that hefty tribe.

Baker first of the home run kings oddly enough was not of the traditional home run build. He hadn't the great shoulders and ponderous weight of today's sluggers. And, remember, Baker hit his homers when there was no talk of a lively, springy ball and pitchers were allowed to use break deliveries, now illegal.

Baker was the third baseman on Connie Mack's "Million Dollar" infield, which had Jack Barry at short, Eddie Collins at second and Stuffy McInnis at first. There, folks, was an infield and when you tossed in Jack Coombs, Chief Bender and five or six others for good measure you can see why Mack's bunch ruled the American league and ruined the hopes of the other clubs.

Baker took a solid cut at the ball and managed to collect 15 or 20 home runs each season at a time when every Tom, Dick and Harry wasn't stepping up to the plate and knocking a lively ball out of the park. Frank was the original "Home Run" king and a prime factor in the success of the Athletics.

The Federal league heads wanted to land Baker one year to add strength to the new circuit and they appointed me a committee of one to go down to Trappe in the off season to try to line up Mack's slugger for the Feds. I was managing the St. Louis Federals at that time. Well, I went down to Trappe all right, found Baker on his farm and gave him the Federal league offer. But Frank was tied up tight to an Athletic contract and my errand proved fruitless. He continued to swat his homers for Connie Mack.

Paulino Goes In Heavy Training

Big Heavy Battle Is On But It's Mostly On Paper

By WILLIAM RITT
Central Press Sports Editor

NEW YORK, June 15.—Gene Tunney, the erstwhile marine, may have known a thing or two about this business of waving leathern dukes 'neath pugilistic noses, but as a grammarian and a man of letters he is being rapidly distanced by those two foreign fightsmiths, Senor Paulino Uzcudun and Herr Max Schmeling.

If the June 27 Uzcudun-Schmeling brawl in Yankee stadium to provide milk for New York's milkless infants proves half as interesting as the current literary war between the antagonists, Gotham's fight fans will stagger home at dawn June 28, muttering hoarsely about having seen the battle of the epoch or con.

Paulino and Der Maxie are hard at it in the local sheets printing their literary efforts, and, judging from the lengths of their daily bulletins, are doing most of their training pounding helpless portables and looking up in the big book to see how Webster spells "poltroon."

In one day's issue Paulino roars that superior infighting will take the duke on the fatal day, and that he (confidentially) believes he is aces ahead of the German Demnsey in this department of the knuckle trade.

Schmeling comes back in a 48-point type whisper to say he has discovered Paulino is muscle-bound around the shoulders and that, this being the case, Spain is in for another drubbing of the kind a guy named Dewey gave it some 30 years ago.

Paulino, leaping to the cue, insists he is proud of them there shoulders and the punches he is going to throw from them June 27 will be nobody's business, especially Maxie's.

This, of course, throws the Berlin Bomber into gales of printed guffaws as he points out Paulino may pack a punch but records fail to show that it has done no more damage than a crippled carp trying to gnaw its way into the federal reserve bank of Aching Corn, Neb.

Broadway, having survived the pre-battle ukases of Thomas Heeney, Bill Stribling, Jack Sharkey and other jousting journalists, seems to be standing the strain of the current literary bombast very well and, despite the daily cat-calls, snarls and nose-thumbing flying back and forth between the rival camps, believes that on June 27 there is going to be a fight and a real one, at that.

Windy City Wins American Derby; Victory Is Upset

Game Little Chicago Three-Year-Old Comes Through Before 50,000 Saturday In Chicago

By CHARLES W. DUNKLEY
Associated Press Sports Writer

CHICAGO, June 15.—(AP)—Windy City, game little brown son of Upset, the 50,000 racing fans delirious today by scoring a startling upset in winning the $50,000 American derby at Washington park at 14 to 1.

The triumphant three year old, a Chicago horse owned by Frederick M. Grabner, won the race at one mile and a quarter in 2:10 over a track heavy and slow.

Naishapur, the California horse that always comes from behind, but seldom wins, finished second by a length and a half, just as in the Coffroth handicap last winter and in the Kentucky derby. Third came African, one of three horses coupled as the R. T. Wilson-Walter J. Salmon entry. Dr. Freeland, winner of the preakness, finished fourth.

Clyde Van Dusen, supposedly super-son of a super horse, Man O' War, and winner of the Kentucky derby, struggled across the finish eighth in the field of nine.

The victory was worth $47,550 to Grabner, with $6,000 going to Chaffee Earl, owner of Naishapur. African earned $5,000 for R. T. Wilson and Dr. Freeland won $1,000 for fourth place.

Larry McDermott was astride Windy City and rode a smashing race.

Final Lap Today To Decide First Place In Bunion

BY VICTOR G. SIDLER
Associated Press Sports Writer.

HUNTINGTON PARK, Cal., June 15. (AP)—Muscles hardened by continuous pounding of pavements, crossing of deserts and climbing of mountains; skins bronzed by wind and sun, the survivors of the transcontinental bunion derby today trailed into this Los Angeles suburb—the winner still in doubt.

With only a single lap to be run, and with more than 3,600 miles of country behind, Pete Gavuzzi, 23 year old British-born Italian, held first place in elapsed time by nine minutes and 56 seconds over Johnny Salo, stocky policeman of Passaic, N. J., the 26 mile 385 yard marathon with Wrigley Park, Los Angeles, tomorrow night will decide the derby.

Guisto Umek, of Italy, won today's lap from San Juan Capistrano, but the battle between Gavuzzi and Salo over the 62 mile stretch to finish in a tie for second place overshadowed his effort. Umek captured the run in 18 hours 45 minutes and 50 seconds. Gavuzzi and Salo deadlocked at 9 hours, 54 minutes and 10 seconds.

At the end of today's run Gavuzzi had a total running time of 321 hours 58 minutes and 38 seconds from New York. Salo's elapsed time was 322 hours, 8 minutes and 34 seconds, while that of Umek, holder of third place, was 534:17:28.

Lighting Lamp Of Wisdom Is A College Athlete's Job

By WILLIAM M. BRAUCHER
NEA Service Sports Writer

Why is it, the casual visitor to one of our most advanced skull foundries might ask, that the third assistant to the fifth assistant to the secretary to the librian is a meaty guy in whose hands Webster's International Dictionary looks like a package of cigaret papers?

To become further vulgarly curious, why does a young man have to play four years of star football in high school to become adapted to a position watching the steam gauge on the furnace in old Jeffrey Hall?

Mixed Identities

Waxing violently inquisitive, what is the mysterious process whereby an anemic person with large mourning spectacles must write the college news for the papers over at St. Marysville, while the guy who comes down every Saturday night to collect the check is the 240-pound center on the varsity.

Why? Well, as one would say at Harvard, it's only a quaint old college custom. Don't be preposterous, Gilbert.

The current exposure of mercantile discounts to brawny young bruisers in the Big Ten comes as no great and lasting shock to the folks at Broadwell. Finding American coolleges that subsidize strong spines is about as hard as discovering that there is no little sand and quite a few pebbles on the beaches. You can't miss them.

Methods? Oh, most any old gag will do, nowadays. Let us say, just to be silly, that the football coach from Western Connecticut Normal just happens across Jughead Wilson, star fullback, in the De Luxe poolroom in Bozeman, Mont. Naturally, two men of such stamp would begin talking about Livy and Horace right off the bat.

Pursuit of Wisdom

It always turns out that Jughead is crazy about calculus, but just a little bearish on plasters—stony broke, as they say in Ubbukken. The coach is very optimistic over that difficulty, however. It seems that all around Western Connecticut Normal are literally thousands of restaurants and their crying need is saucer-massagers. Would Jughead care to come down and look the plant over?

Or, the library at old W. C. N. has been falling into a sad state of neglect lately, and what's needed is about a dozen husky young men to keep the old Thesaurus dusted off.

Or, the home of W. C. N. is a city of a million furnaces, in need of the services of young men who have done a little better with their lateral passes than their Latin at Bozeman High.

It isn't always the coach at W. C. N. who converses with Jughead Wilson. Sometimes it's an alumnus who would either die for old Normal or loan a guy a couple of thou to satisfy that craving for intellectual advancement.

Again, it could be some zealous frat man, seeking out brains, brawn and nobility for old Tappa Keg.

The Winning of Jughead

Whoever it is, he quickly assuages Jughead's pecuniary qualms and dear old W. C. N. goes through the next football season without losing a game.

Of course, there are discrepancies. Once it happened that a friend of W. C. N. had almost persuaded "Noneck" Ed Jones that W. C. N. was the place to learn all about Greek verbs, when a friend of Eastern Connecticut Normal, positively an oil can, happened in on the proceedings.

These two had only begun to talk to Ned when a vulgar gent from Southern Connecticut Normal dropped in.

It turned out that the proprietor of the De Luxe poolroom finally had to call Colonel Wilmert away from a sale of fine Percherons to handle the matter. After a couple of hours' spirited bidding, Ned decided to go and die and wash dishes for Northern Connecticut Normal because there were Boston baked beans on the training table there every day and Ned loved his legumes.

Just Traveling Around

Let us suppose Ned really did go to W. C. N. and it turned out that he was a good enough football player, but Xenophon simply wore off all his fingernails and some traitorous prof in an impetuous moment flunked him out. Does Ned abandon the lamp of wisdom?

Be thyself, Vernon! You'll see Next next year at Northern Virginia Normal, or mebbe its Kentucky or Alabama. Maybe the year after that he will study in Illinois, Ned loves study and the college atmosphere, and next year he may be carrying around the dictionary at some prep school in Dakota.

Hath the pursuit of knowledge no end save death?

Farm Life Drafts Amos Rusie, Original Major Strikeout King

Amos Rusie's massive shoulders which enabled him to dish up blinding speed for National league batters back in the '90's are providing the push for his garden plow in one pose above. The other shows Amos when he reigned as ace of boxmen.

SEATTLE, June 15. (AP)—Pitching hay is the only kind of pitching with any current appeal to Amos Rusie, original speed ball hurler of baseball.

Rusie who led the National league in strikeouts fpr six consecutive seasons, beginning in 1890, has moved to a farm near Seattle after resigning as superintendent of the Polo grounds.

So it's back to the soil for Amos. He was the game's greatest strikeout producer but because he served before the era of big salaries and trust funds he has to earn his own keep.

The modern edition of Rusie—Dazzy Vance—is getting $25,000 for one season's work. In Amos' day $2,000 was considered big money. That difference means that the great old hurler, at 60, has to farm for a living while the modern greats in retirement live a life of luxury and ease.

Rusie began his big league career with Indianapolis. When that club surrendered its major circuit franchise about 1890, Rusie went to the New York Giants. After several stirring seasons with the Giants, Rusie was traded to Cincinnati for Christy Mathewson.

Rusie, with more smoke on his fast ball than Walter Johnson and Dazzy Vance ever had, fanned 345 men in 1890. Anything over 200 strikeouts in one season is considered remarkable these days.

Amos attained great fame in 1894 when he helped the Giants take four straight from Baltimore in the Temple cup series, symbolic of the national championship.

Mack's Improve Mark

The Athletics improved their team batting mark by four points to .316. Detroit remained in second place with .298, a point under last week's average, with Yankees third with .286. The Athletics also topped the league in runs scored with 327, and had held all opposition to 182 runs.

Philadelphia assumed the team fielding leadership for the first time, jumping from fourth place to the top with an average of .975. Washington, last week's leader, slipped to a tie for second place with New York at .974. St. Louis, second a week ago, was third with .973.

Robert Moses Grove, the Athletics' southpaw pitching ace, became the league's leading regularly working hurler when George Uhle, Detroit, dropped his second consecutive game. Grove held a record of nine victories and one defeat, while Uhle had the same number of triumphs and three setbacks. Eddie Rommel, Philadelphia veteran, has won four games without a defeat.

. SHIRES' HISTORY

There have been many stories about the cocky Art Shires, the White Sox. He came up as a rookie and was made captain of the team he proceeded to leave the reser- tion in the spring training camp. Lena Blackburne, manager of the ab, fired him as captain and ord- ed him home to Texas. The young an repented and was allowed to turn to the team minus his chev- ns as the field leader.

Then Arthur did another thing. ring his leave of absence his ce at first base had been taken by a fellow named Clancy and Shires couldn't get his job back.

He found that to earn his sal- y he had to field with the sub- titutes and bat when he had the hance. And one day he came out bat with a red flannel hat on is head. The manager bawled him t and they had a battle in the b house. The manager emerged h a shiner and Shires went back Texas.

Race Tightens In City League Play

Hardware Outfit Wins Fifth Successive Game Friday To Grab Leadership From Auto-Barbers

Displacement of the Auto-Barbers from the top rung in the four-cornered City League baseball struggle was the high point of the last week in the twilight loop.

This feat was accomplished by the improved Hardware aggregation, reinforced during the last few days with the addition of several hustling baseballers. A vastly improved defense and timely hitting sent the Hardware outfit to the forefront of the league and tumbled the Auto-Barbers into second place. Three successive wins during the past week brought the Harris crew from the mediocre to the strong contender class. The leaders have won their last five games.

Carpenter-Painters continue to bring up the rear in the city league, closing the week with an average of .300.

By turning back the Hardware threat Monday, the Auto-Barbers can go into a tie for first place.

Hubbers To Meet Snyder Nine Today

Hill and Watkins Will Form Lubbock Battery Against Invaders; Locals Hit Batting Stride

The Lubbock Hubbers, with their recently acquired batting power, tangle up with the Snyder all-stars at Merrill Park this afternoon in an effort to prove to the home fans that a Lubbock club can still win baseball games.

Fresh from a victory over the hard-hitting Loboes of Lamesa, the Snyder outfit is coming prepared to give the locals the same dose handed Gus White's aggregation. Today's game starts at 3:30.

Practically the same lineup will be sent against the Snyder club Sunday that slugged its way to a lop-sided triumph over Hale Center Thursday on the latter's diamond. Only the battery will be changed. Volney (Satch) Hill is slated for mound duty against the invaders and Windy Watkins will be on the receiving end of Hill's slants.

The remainder of the lineup includes: Morgan, 1b; Rigney, 2b Aters; Wooten, 3b; Hensley, lf; Gaither, cf; Wilson, rf.

Ellie Witt, Berkeley, Cal., hurler grabbed by Athletics, has been playing pro ball for only a couple of months.

The Nut Cracker

By Joe Williams

George Simpson, who set a record the other day in the centry at 9 2-5, was a frail child, according to his parents. Maybe he had to learn how to run.

George is a great sprinter, of course, but how did he ever manage to break a record without one of those stripped sport coats that Charley Paddock used to think so necessary to a runner's existence?

At the finish line of that famous sprint, George's face betrayed no more emotion than a farmer reading that the price of wheat had gone down a couple more cents.

Some day Simpson is going to get all excited about something, and run the 100 in six flat.

O'Goofty, who does most of his running in alleys, says one night he made nine flats.

And Andy Mellon can do the 100 in 4 1-2 per cent, with wife and kids deducted.

Simpson, by the way, almost equalled the sprinting record established by Gene Tunney at Chicago.

We went out and bought a gun yesterday. Merely for protection against the guys who keep coming in here with assurances that Jack Dempsey is going to fight again.

Keech Drove Car Faster Than Any Other American

Race Driver Began Career As Truck Man; Sent Big Triplex Special At Rate Of 207.55 Miles An Hour

(By Associated Press)

PHILADELPHIA, June 15.—Ray Keech, killed at Altoona today, had the distinction of having driven an automobile at a greater speed than any other American.

He was 28 and began his motoring activities as a truck driver, piloting huge vans up and down the White Horse pike between Atlantic City and Philadelphia.

Record Beaten

His record performance was made with the Triplex Special, owned by J. M. White of Philadelphia. He drove the car at 207.55 miles an hour at Daytona Beach in 1928. The record was beaten this year by Major H. O. D. Segrave, the British race driver, who pushed the mark up to 231 miles an hour on the same beach three months ago.

Keech won the Memorial day classic at Indianapolis this year, covering the 500 miles in 5:07:25, which brought him about $40,000 prize money. That contest was his record major competitive race, he having finished in fourth place in the Indianapolis grind in 1928.

Before he accepted J. M. White's offer to guide the Triplex Special to the world's record, Keech was known as a dirt track driver and had not attracted much attention.

quarter lap lead over Meyer for 150 miles. Bob Robinson, hiked racer thundering into the east stretch, led the pack to the turn. His car struck a hole in the boards and the machine, out of control, shot to the top of the saucer, hit the guard rail, perched momentarily and then slid backwards into the infield. Undamaged, the car glided out of the way of the oncoming field. Keech veered slightly to avoid hitting the Robinson entry. One of his tires hit an uneven spot and the machine was further deflected by the wreckage of the guard rail. The car overturned and rolled down the bowl, crushing the pilot and bursting into flames. Blazing gasoline spread over the track and fire and smoke added to the menace of six other drivers still in the race.

Triplett's racer crashed into the mass of broken wood and careened to the top of the track, shrouded by a cloud of smoke, but skidded safely to the infield. Triplett was not hurt and the machine was little damaged.

Woodbury's mount buckled against the wrecked rail and toppled to the infield, where he was trapped.

Keech's body was mangled. His skull was fractured, his chest crushed, and his left leg severed at the knee. His machine was destroyed by fire. Keech was the third killed on the speedway which was opened in 1923. In the initial event "Howdy" Wilcox lost his life. In the following year, Joe Boyer was killed.

Race officials announced prizes would be awarded to the drivers in the order of their positions at the time the race ended. This would give Keech first money of $4,500; Meyer, second; Woodbury third and Cliff Bergere, fourth.

Local Air School Enjoying Success; Five Are Enrolled

Airmindedness of Section Increasing As Applications for More Students Are Received by Plain

Airmindedness of Lubbock and the South Plains is evident with the registration of five students, and applications from 11 other persons, at the flying school of the Lubbock Air Service, Inc.

The Lubbock corporation, financed by L. H. Pain and G. F. Terry, has leased one section of the Jones estate, four miles north of Lubbock where the school is conducted under the instructorship of James Dole, former army pilot.

Have Two Planes

A new Curtis-Robin plane was recently added to the flying school. A modern Travelair plane has been in use by the company for several weeks.

"Demand for flying is increasing daily," said Mr. Plain. "We are now making several cross-country flights and it seems that the people of the South Plains have confidence in safety of air travel. Several business men of Lubbock have taken advantage of the opportunity of air travel by chartering planes in making trips."

Students In School

Those who are students of the flying school are Pat Conner, William Fritz, G. L. MacBeth, Dick Slaughter, and Bob Slaughter.

Several applications have been received from this city, Petersburg, Hale Center, Levelland and Sudan.

"Since most of those studying flying are employed during the day and are at the field during leisure hours, we cannot teach more than eight students each day, but provisions will be made later to teach a larger number."

Exchange Club To Hold Convention

(Special To The Avalanche-Journal)

STAMFORD, June 15.—Plans were completed for the Fourth Convention of Texas Affiliated Exchange Clubs which meets in Stamford, June 22-23 here this week when Dr. T. C. Chase, state president, visited Stamford to confer with local club officials relative to the program.

The meeting of all delegates will be called to order in the City Auditorium at 10 o'clock by the state president. After the invocation, delivered by the Rev. James A. Allen, state chaplin, Hon. Warren B. Tayman, mayor of Stamford will welcome the Exchangeites. Dr. Chase is scheduled to respond to the address of welcome, after which he will call for the minutes of the last meeting and other business.

Flag Of Purity To Flutter Over Drama In Chicago As Result Of Censorships

CHICAGO, June 15. (AP)—Chicago has launched upon a definite campaign to clean up legitimate drama for the first time in the city's history.

With "Frankie" and "Johnnie" driven from the boards of a downtown theatre and "Harlmem" subjected to the censorial pencil of a policeman, city officials have unfurled the flag of purity and declared that henceforth it will wave over the drama.

The closing of "Frankie and "Johnnie" marked the first time Chicago police had acted against performances on the stage since six years ago when seven "Hootchie Kootchie" shows were made to decamp from South State street theaters of the 10-20-30 cent class.

Corporation counsel, Samuel Ettelson intimated today police would watch everything from grand opera down and be ready to call the patrol wagon at the first phrase or act that offended.

"We'll show them they can't make Chicago the dumping ground for every foul show," declared Ettelson, who added that the campaign was launched as much for the sake of Chicago's reputation in the rest of the country as it was for the sake of public morals.

"Mind you," said Mr. Ettelson, "we aren't prudes. We don't want to try to make things too pure, but they say that Chicago is a crime center and that its wide open. That isn't true."

Levine reports that a new lease on a different location, has already been secured and a larger floor space will be used. The present store has 28,000 square feet of floor space with stocks arranged on three floors.

Can't Stop Street
Fine Remitted For Violation

SAN ANTONIO, June 15.—Perhaps it was because he lives on Can't Stop street that the fine assessed in corporation court against J. H. Pinner of 117 Can't Stop street was remitted by Mayor C. M. Chambers.

Pinney found his way into corporation court because he didn't or perhaps couldn't, stop at a boulevard stop sign.

Can't Stop street doesn't make a long run in San Antonio; it is only two blocks in length and has eleven houses.

Planes Eliminate Danger Of Fog

(Special To The Avalanche-Journal)

FORT WORTH, June 15.—Fog will hereafter mean no more than sunshine to passengers and pilots on the Southern Air Transport lines.

"Merely to complete the thorough going system of precautions that Southern Air Transport has always taken to safeguard its passengers and personnel," it was explained, radio is being installed on all the passenger lines at once, and will be extended to include the entire Southern Air Transport system from El Paso to Atlanta.

Planes on Dallas-El Paso line are already equipped with radio and will start using it Sunday. Planes on the other passenger lines will be ready to start it in a few days.

Both radio telephony and radio telegraphy are being installed.

The system permits pilots in different planes as far away as El Paso and Atlanta to talk to each other while in the air, as well as those pilots to talk to the various ground stations along the routes and the ground operators in turn to talk to the pilots.

Opening Of Motor Car Concern Will Be Fine Occasion

Scoggin-Dickey, Oakland-Pontiac Distributors, To Be At Home To Lubbock People On Monday

Scoggin-Dickey company, local Oakland Pontiac distributors and successor to Bradley Motor company in Lubbock, will open its doors tomorrow for the formal opening of the new automobile concern located at 1311 Mainstreet.

Coming to Lubbock from Floydada, the new automobile organization has made elaborate preparations for its official bow to the public throughout the day Monday. A varied entertainment, including orchestra music, singing and dancing, will be offered visitors to the show rooms on Main street formerly occupied by the Panhandle Durant company.

Visitors to Register

All visitors to the formal opening will be asked to register, J. E. Dickey, president of the organization, said yesterday. Lady visitors will be presented with white carnations. A specialty contest will furnish further incentive for the large crowds expected.

Backed by years of experience in the automobile business, the new concern, headed by J. E. (Knight) Dickey will be operated on the foundation of dependability, it was announced by the management. Four service departments will be put in operation, including road service, auto repair, auto washing and auto lubrication.

Previous to the time the concern held the Oakland-Pontiac agency in Floydada, the president of the organization was connected with the automobile business in Clinton, Okla., and Sherman, Texas.

"Our latest move, bringing us to the Hub of the Plains, promises to be our best one," Ray Dickey, wholesale sales manager, told the Avalanche-Journal last night. "We have come to Lubbock to stay and intend to render the kind of service that will insure the success of the business. Our first aim will be to secure the confidence of the public and then retain this through proven dependability."

In addition to the Dickey brothers, two members of the firm hold outstanding positions in the organization. A. L. Scoggin, partner in the concern, is floor manager and Bob Camper is service manager.

At the present time a large variety of the new Oakland and Pontiacs are on display and the Scoggin-Dickey officials will demonstrate these at the formal opening tomorrow.

It's All Right—Babies Don't Vote

New Tariff Bill Raises Prices Of Baby Supplies And Dutcher Believes Congress Dislikes Kiddies

BY RODNEY DUTCHER
NEA Service Writer

WASHINGTON, June 15.—Well, anyway, insofar as concerns the possibility of reprisals at the polls, there is one consolation for the promoters of the tariff bill now before the Senate, i. e., as follows, to wit and viz: Babies can't vote.

Some member of the Ways and Means Committee of the House must have been a birth control advocate, for this tariff bill, among other things, is rather discouraging to prospective parents. It need not be at all surprising if a delegation of them come here to squawk before the Senate Finance Committee as it considers the measure.

Anybody can go right down the list and spot innumerable cuffs and kicks administered to young citizens in swaddling clothes.

Baby Food Goes Up

There's dextrime, with a duty raised from 2 1-4 to 3 cents a pound and if it isn't dextrime that's used in that well known baby food called dextri-maltose then it must be dextrose, on which the tariff is raised from 1 1-2 to 2 cents. Possibly the Ways and Means Committee soaked both dextrime and dextrose so as to be sure and get the babies going or coming, not knowing the difference.

And gelatine, which babies are permitted to eat at an early stage, is hiked from 20 per cent and 3 1-2 cents a pound to 20 per cent and 5 cents.

Oh! And did you see what's happening to glass bottles? Everybody knows that lots of babies can't do without glass bottles. The tariff has been raised from 55 to 65 per cent.

The lowly crochet needle, used in fabricating hoods, bootees and whatnot for young America, is also hit a body blow. The old duty of $1.15 a thousand and 40 per cent is now $1.50 a thousand and 50 per cent.

So, likewise, is it with milk. The pauper labor of Europe, it may be exports very little milk to this country—but, regardless, the duty has been shoved up from 2 cents a gallon to 9 cents a gallon.

Shingles, probably, don't come under the heading of necessities for the fond parent, unless the parent is accustomed to use them in administering corporal punishment. Just the same, the shingle has been taken of the free list and gets a duty of 25 per cent.

And sugar, tied in a bit of cloth and sucked by fretful babies since time immemorable? Sugar's duty is hoisted from 2 1-5 cents a pound to 3 cents.

Surgical instruments, likewise, go up. Before this such things could be imported under a duty of 45 per cent. This duty now becomes 70 per cent—and the gadget that takes out junior's tonsils, accordingly, is going to cost more than it did before.

Vegetables also share in the general increase, regardless of the fact that small children thrive on them. Everything from cabbages and radishes and turnips to beans and mushrooms and peas and onions is boosted.

Even malted milk has been singled out and the duty on it raised all the way from 9 to 30 per cent. All sorts of cotton cloth has been made the subject of large hikes, and cotton, if one's meager technical knowledge is correct, is used to make diapers, as they are sometimes called. The same goes for wool, which most babies wear sooner or later.

Even Shoes Go Higher

Before they got through with the bill in the House somebody remembered shoesies. Somebody would! And if shoesies are going to be made more expensive the number of babies abandoned on doorsteps will increase enormously. The duty on pencils and crayons is up 15 cents a gross.

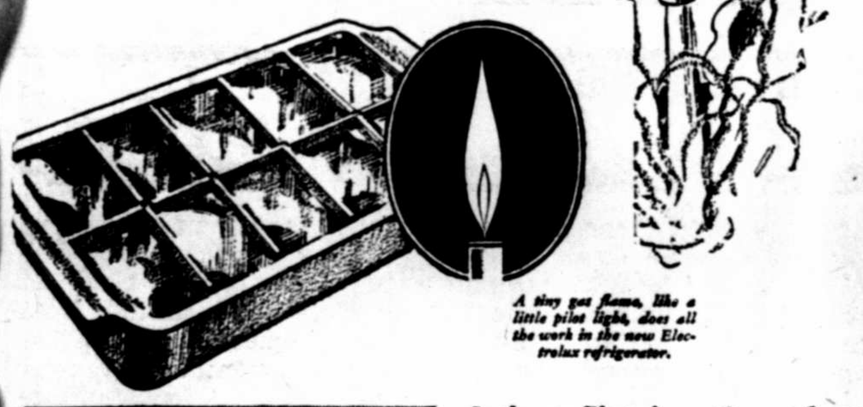

The unkindest cut of all is saved for the last. The tariff on matches is raised from 8 to 11 cents a gross.

CASE FINALLY SETTLED

Stephenson estate vs. Levi Barrow et al. The case was filed in 1904 and had been in the supreme court twice and the court of civil appeals three times.

Press Association Convention Closes

Corpus Christi To Be Next Host to Texas Organization of Newspapermen; Schwenker Named Prexy

WICHITA FALLS, June 15. (AP)—The election of officers and the selection of Corpus Christi as the next convention city, ended the golden jubilee gathering of the Texas Press Association here today.

Harry F. Schwenker of Brady was elevated to the presidency. He had served during the pats year as vice president. R. H. Nichols of Vernon was elected to fill Schwenker's old place, and Sam P. Harben of Richardson secretary and Ben F. Harigel of Lagrange treasurer were re-elected.

The convention went on record as favoring two state constitutional amendments increasing the number of supreme court judges and raising the governor's salary to be voted upon soon and urged the press to give the measures the fullest publicity to the end that their fates might not be determined by indifference upon the part of the people.

The Harper Herald was awarded first place in every event of the annual newspaper contest sponsored by the Belo award for the best all-around weekly publication.

A loving cup was presented to Warren Hunter, owner and editor as was the Heard award of two first prizes of $25 for the best set ad of 30 inches or less and the best set ad over 30 inches.

West Texan Owner Arizona Gold Mine

(Special To The Avalanche-Journal)

ALPINE, June 15.—It is not given to many West Texans to have the good fortune of owning a gold mine, but C. E. McCool formerly of Alpine is one West Texan who has that good fortune. He is here this week on business and renewing acquaintances and greeting his old friends all of whom rejoice in his good fortune.

While visiting the Brewster county chamber of commerce, of which Mr. McCool was a former member, he was asked to tell something of his mine which is located in the Old Hat Mining District, about twenty miles north of Tuscon, Arizona.

Mr. McCool told very interestingly of the wonderful mountain scenery surrounding his gold and silver mines. The reports of prominent mineralogists are very interesting as the croppings are most prominent for about a thousand feet and the veins have been opened with many shallow pits, trenches, cuts, tunnels, etc. The veins vary in width and the rich ore, altho practically continuous occurs mainly in large lenses apparently found by magnetic wedging during the disturbances caused by the prophyry intrusions.

Boost Home Cars

ROME, June 15. (AP)—The Italian automobile club today proposed publication of a black list of Italians who purchase foreign made cars as an answer to new American tariff rates.

"This will be an unique means of studying this phenomenon today that while Italy is producing excellent automobiles Italians very largely buy American cars," the club suggested.

"By the time I had finished my first bottle of Orgatone I was eating with a hearty appetite and enjoying my meals for the first time in years," was the statement made by L. C. Shubert, residing at 319 Avenue U, Lubbock, Tex.

"I had suffered from a terrible case of stomach trouble and everything disagreed with me so I had to restrict myself to the very lightest of diet until sometimes it seemed to me I was most starved. I was badly constipated and suffered agonies from gas in my stomach and my heart acted so queerly at times I was afraid it would stop.

"People in my fix are always on the look-out for something to relieve them and when I read the statements in the papers about Orgatone I got me a bottle right away. It just went to the spot and in no time I was eating anything I wanted and had no troubles at all from gas or heart palpitation. My digestion is all O. K., my constipation has been relieved, I feel better and stronger and have more vim and energy than I have had in years. I am telling you if Orgatone cost $10.00 a bottle I would not be without it and I gladly recommend it to anybody for the wonderful work it has done in my case.

refused to reveal the basis of their evidence.

The scene between Dr. Snook, Mrs. Smalley and the detectives occupied but a few minutes and after both had made their statements Snook was taken back to his cell and Mrs. Smalley returned to her home.

Evidence Found

Interpretation of the meaning of several articles of personal property, some with stains to be analyzed for blood, which were found in the possession of Dr. Snook, Professor of veterinary medicine of Ohio State University, was sought by the police in investigating the slaying of pretty Miss Hix.

Dr. Snook who held with Marion T. Myers, graduate student at the university doing corn borer research.

The articles consisted of a man's cap, a pair of woman's gloves, both stained, a round-headed hammer, a woman's umbrella, several hair pins, and several strands of light brown hair like that of Miss Hix, which were found in Dr. Snook's automobile. In his home, detectives found a stained shirt, a man's felt hat, also stained, a jack knife with a smudge on the point, and two suits of men's clothing, which had been freshly cleaned and pressed.

Fire In Furnace

During the search of the Snook home, detectives found a fire in the furnace and prepared for an examination of the ashes.

Miss Hix's battered body was found on a rifle range near here yesterday. Dr. Snook, former holder of the world's record for pistol shooting, was taken into custody at the rifle range. Myers was arrested at a fraternity house after he called at the undertaking establishment where the girl's body lay and had talked to Coroner James Murphy.

COLUMBUS, Ohio, June 15.—(AP)—An Ohio State University professor and a state employee were held for investigation tonight while police continued efforts to clear up the hammer slaying of pretty Theora Hix, Ohio State University co-ed, whose battered body was found on a rifle range near here yesterday.

The men held are Dr. James H. Snook, professor of veterinary medicine at Ohio State, and Marion T. Myers, graduate student at the university doing corn borer research work for the Ohio state department of agriculture.

Stories Checked

Police were checking up stories the men told of their actions last Thursday night when the co-ed was beaten with a blunt instrument, cut several times with a sharp instrument and her body left at the rifle range.

Myers was arrested at a fraternity house after he had called at the undertaking establishment where the girl's body lay and talked to the coroner.

Farm Relief

of New York, former president of the United States Grain Corporation, nor Frank O. Lowden, former governor of Illinois and foremost among the advocates of the equalization fee plan of farm relief, will be offered places.

Successful Men Desired

The president is understood to desire men who have had successful experience in the cooperative field and especially in handling basic commodities such as cotton, grain, livestock and tobacco.

The farm bill is the first important legislation signed by President Hoover and its enactment ended one of the longest and most spectacular legislative and political controversies in recent history.

Consequently far more than the usual formality attended the signing. Grouped around the chief executive were Vice President Curtis and Speaker Longworth, who signed the bill yesterday after the house and senate had adopted the conference report; Secretary Hyde; Senator Watson of Indiana, the republican leader, and all of the house and senate conferees on the bill except Senators Norris, republican, Nebraska, and Smith, democrat, South Carolina.

Senators Insistent

These two senators were insistent upon retention of the export debenture plan even after the house had rejected it and so absented themselves.

The president used two pens in signing, one of which he presented to Senator McNary and the other to Representative Haugen.

Frenchmen Delay

permit him to tag along as they go from one ovation to another.

Lotti said that they would take him on to Paris in the airplane, put him up at the hotel of M. Lotti, senior, let him share in whatever festivities awaited them and when all was over they would send him home.

"When we had reached the coast of Europe after having gone through a most violent tempest I thought by following the shore we would be able to get to Biarritz, refuel there and go on to Paris. But a little while before arriving here I noticed the gasoline was going to run out before we could get to France and happily I found this fine beach below me.

Satisfied With Trip

"I am satisfied with the trip. Naturally we would have been happy to have reached Paris without a stop but believe me it would have been impossible last night in any case for we could have found ourselves in the center of a depression. That would have been fatal. I am content with the trip. I never doubted for a moment that it would bring us into port. In spite of terrible blows of wind and some mighty rough bumps, I never once had the impression that the machine would fall, even in the slightest degree."

Paris Waits On Tiptoe

LE BOURGET, France, June 15. (AP)—Paris, after standing on tiptoe for a second day, was again forced to postpone its welcome to the first Frenchmen to cross the North Atlantic by air.

A large Saturday crowd swarmed to the airfield this afternoon hoping to see the Yellow Bird arrive from Santander as another crowd had waited the previous evening for its arrival from Old Orchard. At six o'clock it was announced the flight had been postponed until tomorrow and in a very few minutes the crowd that had been collecting for hours had dispersed.

Hamilton Trial

fense attorneys had failed to reach an agreement.

Another effort to decide upon a trial site will be made at a conference next Wednesday, they announced. Should an agreement not be reached then it would fall to Judge Henry S. Bishop, who yesterday granted Hamilton a change of venue, to name the place where the case shall be tried.

Attorneys Disagree On Trial Location

Ed. W. Thomerson, district attorney of Potter County, wants the trial held at some point on the Fort Worth and Denver railway between Childress and Fort Worth, while the defense lawyers have suggested Breckenridge and towns between Abilene and Dallas and points south of the latter place.

The change of venue was granted after nearly a score of witnesses had testified that the attorney could not have a fair trial in this county because of prejudice.

Slain In Office

Walton was slain in Hamilton's office where he had gone to tell of his marriage to Theresa Hamilton, a student of the University of Texas, and the attorney's daughter.

During the change of venue hearing the youthful widow sat by her father. It was said that about 70 persons from Austin where both Walton and his widow were well-known as students had been summoned as witnesses.

Woman Is Killed In Abilene Crash

ABILENE, June 15. (AP)—Mrs. M. H. Casey of Belton was killed and Mr. Casey seriously injured in an automobile accident this afternoon, seven miles west of Santa Anna, J. C. Bridges, who was driving the Casey car suffered a fractured shoulder and minor injuries.

The Casey car collided head on with an automobile driven by John Norman of Grosvenor. Norman suffered a broken breast bone, but his 14-year old son and C. H. Hart, a neighbor, only received slight injuries.

Mr. and Mrs. Casey were driving from Belton to Talpa, to visit relatives.

TEMPLE, Texas, June 15. (AP)—Mrs. M. H. Casey, 50, killed in an automobile accident near Abilene, today, and her husband, 54, who was seriously hurt, resided four miles north of Belton and were prominent farm people.

They have seven children living here and in Belton.

Legislature Has Record Session

Solons Settle Down To Straight Business Following Poor Start In Two Different Tries

AUSTIN, June 15.—(AP)—This session of the legislature might be held up as a criterion for future legislatures. After getting off to a poor start in two tries, the 41st legislature seems to have settled down to straight business.

In the first two weeks, both houses passed out the major appropriation bills. They are yet to be worked over in conference, but it is a feat worthy of mention for the cumbersome documents, providing for the expenditure of from $46,000,000 to $57,000,000 in two years, to get this far along on the long road they usually travel in the brief period of a fortnight.

In addition, both houses have explored other fields, the lower house giving considerable time to the Robison case, and the senate spending a whole day in crooking its finger at Texas democrats who voted for Herbert Hoover, republican, for president.

Loyal democrats who stayed by the party's nominee last November evidence could not overlook the opportunity presented by Mrs. Hoover's having received the wife of a negro congressman at her white house, so they expressed the views of southern legislators with reference to social equality between the races.

Robison Trial

sation that took place in the conferences. Governor Moody recalled that Mr. Robison reminded him and others that they should be sure of their ground in deciding they had authority under the law to postpone the sales.

"I remember particularly, Mr. Robison saying: "We do not want the supreme court to spank us; we want to be sure we are right," Governor Moody testified.

Mr. Pollard testified that he had advised Mr. Robison he could postpone the sales and would write him a letter to that effect, but that Mr. Robison said he did not want a letter.

"He told me he wanted a well-considered departmental opinion," Mr. Pollard said.

"Isn't it your knowledge that within the past 15 or 20 years when Jim Robison locked horns with anyone over interpretation of the land laws that the courts upheld him 90 per cent or three fourths of the time?" Lloyd Price, one of the attorneys for M. Robison, asked.

Pollard Replies

"I do noot know that. I know that", Mr. Pollard replied, "but I do want to say this: the statement that was made by an attorney here that I was prejudiced against Mr. Robison is untrue. In my opinion Mr. Robison is a very capable man when it comes to a knowledge of the land law. I have known him for 25 years and always supported him. It is my purpose to throw the ball over the plate. I give the law as I understand it. If the departments care to heed my advice that is a matter for their discretion only. There is no law that directs them to follow my construction of the law."

Testimony had previously been heard on the charges of mismanagement of the reappraisement fund and acceptance by the commissioner of gifts and gratuities.

LAGUNA BEACH, Cal., June 15 u—The body of an unidentified woman apparently strangled to death was found by a workman behind a sign board near the coast highway north of here today. She evidently was between 35 and 40 years old.

threatened to "get him," but thought nothing of it. Kelly said that Burnett came to his home in the middle of the afternoon today and assured him that he bore no ill will.

Burnett returned at 7 o'clock tonight and went to the back of this home where he found Mrs. Kelly, her sister and the two Kelly children, Troy, 11, and Bill, four, on the back porch. Burnett drew his pistol and flourished it, remarking on its beauty, then pointed it at Mrs. Kelly and the others, remarking, "Couldn't I pop you off pretty?"

Kelly came from his store next door as the shooting started and fired three times at Burnett, slipping and falling into a puddle of water. Meantime Burnett shot Mrs. Kelly and then pursued the husband, who gathered up the two children and rushed to his motor car. Although Burnett rained bullets after them none was hit and Kelly escaped in the car in search of officers. Burnett then wandered down the street, stopping when he saw Saw Cessna sitting on the front porch of Simpson Dobb's residence.

The crazed man walked up to Cessna, pointed the pistol and said: "You're my friend, ain't you? All right, if you make a false move I'll kill you. I've just killed the woman I love."

Cessna said the man pushed a bottle of liquor toward him and forced him to drink with the weapon pressed against his breast.

At that juncture, mounted officer R. W. Hope, who was off duty, drove by and Burnett turned the pistol on him and manched Hope back to the car and made him drive down the street.

Burnett got out of the car and started shooting. Officer Hope slipped up behind and pinned Burnett's arms but the giant twisted free and Hope ended the wild hour by killing Burnett.

Jackson Will

of the buildings, we will probably start some action to halt his plans," said G. E. Lockhart of the firm of Lockhart, Garrard & Brown, counsel for Dr. Overton. "Regardless of denial of the petition for hehearing it is my opinion that the injunction is in effect until the mandate is returned from the Supreme Court, before which we are now making application."

Injunction Thought Void.

"The injunction was nullified by the denial for rehearing of the case," J. E. Vickers of the firm of Vickers & Campbell, counsel for Mr. Jackson, said. "The case is no longer in jurisdiction of the court. Mr. Jackson can start erection of the buildings without any authority on the part of the plaintiff for interference."

The application before the Supreme Court could not be heard before next October, as thirty days are required in which to file application and the Supreme Court will adjourn within the next ten days. If Jackson is not prevented by the present status of the case, the buildings will be erected before the next session of the court, it was pointed out.

Mr. Jackson proposes to build the five structures of equal size, 24 feet by 80 feet. Four will face Broadway and one will face Avenue Q, according to plans. Tentatively agreement has been made whereby the M-System will occupy two of the structures, while a drug store will be in the corner building.

Mrs. Ina Lowell, daughter of the slain woman, told the police, McClure had been an admirer of her mother and that Mrs. Wood last was seen en route to McClure's house after having expressed the intention of telling him she would have nothing more to do with him.

McClure, found wandering in a circle on a dry mesa on the Mexican side of the international line, told Tijuana police he had been kidnaped and shot by two men who stopped his motor car at Laguna Beach and robbed him of $65.

PLATTSBURGH, N. Y., June 15. (AP)—Two unidentified men in the uniform of customs border patrolmen who brought the body of Arthur Gordon, 22, of this city, to a local hospital last night and then disappeared were sought tonight by the sheriff and district attorney to Clinton county for questioning.

Gordon, an autopsy showed, was shot down from behind.

District Attorney B. Loyal O'Connell said he learned that Gordon last night piled 27 cases of beer into his car at a loading station about a mile north of the Canadian border and started for the New York side.

Wreck Useful

Hijackin' Tools In Junked Car

Usually an old junked car body is of no earthly use to anyone but police officers Saturday disoovered a new purpose one has been serving in Lubbock.

An old weatherbeaten hulk lay on the lot at 620 Avenue H. An officer, investigating it, discovered the hiding place of a first class and well "heeled" hijacker. A .38 calibre double action pistol, a pair of brass knucks, a bunch of skeleton keys and an old pair of gloves were brought to light. Now some hold-up man will be out money for new tools.

Converts Gained In Cross Plowing

COLLEGE STATION, June 15—Cross plowing cotton instead of hand chopping, said to have been used rather commonly a generation or more ago, is apparently coming into vogue again in parts of Texas according to county agent reports. The practice became wide-spread in Nueces county last year following a year of demonstrations by F. W. Hoepfner, county agent, who states that the cost is about ten cents per acre against a hand chopping cost of sixty cents. Two-row cultivators are used with eight-inch sweeps.

In Newton county J. B. Dorman, county agent, tells of a demonstrator, W. D. Roberts of Lee Mill, who plowed 10 acres instead of chopping at a saving of seven days' labor. A six inch "buzzard wing sweep" was used directly across the rows after which three hands thinned the cotton to a stand in one day.

Twin Record Set
Wills Point Has Four Sets

WILLS POINT, June 15 (AP)—Wills Point schools probably are entitled to a "twin" record. This year three sets of girl twins finished grammar school and twin boys graduated from high school. The girls were Adele and Adine Wright; Doris and Dorothy Harris; Goldie Cella Boshea. The boys were Jack and Henry Gibbard; Henry was valedictorian and Jack was salutatorian of their class.

Aid Cross Country Fliers Is Aim

AUSTIN, June 15. (AP)—Governor Dan Moody has lent his support to a movement by the Daniel Guggenheim foundation to identify Texas towns by marking roofs to direct cross-country fliers.

Only 2,000 towns of 7,500 of intermediate size have failed to participate in the roof-marking move the governor was informed. The remainder either have finished their work or are engaged in erecting markings which may be seen from the sky.

COALITION SEEN

LEXINGTON, Va., June 15 (AP)—The possibility of a republican anti-Smith coalition in the Virginia state elections assumed more tangible form today with the definite announcement that Dr. William Moseley Brown, Washington and Lee university professor, would hear a coalition ticket if nominated by both anti-Smith and republicans.

Dr. Brown, mentioned frequently as a probable nominee for governor at the anti-Smith convention in Roanoke next Tuesday, announced here last night he would become an independent candidate if he should be the choice of anti-Smith democrats and of the republicans.

LUBBOCK WELCOMES DRAUGHON'S COLLEGE
(OPENING MONDAY, JUNE 17)

N. G. PAYNE,
Manager, Lubbock, Texas

Scores of bankers and business leaders and hundreds of young people who recognize the unusual advantages offered by the nationally-famous chain of Draughon Colleges, which now cover the Southland, have combined to accord this newest link at Lubbock an enthusiastic welcome.

Important Advantages

Scholarships issued by the Lubbock Draughon College will be good in more than a score of other Draughon Colleges, so that if the student later finds it necessary to change locations, he can resume his studies without extra cost for tuition.

Free Employment Department

Draughon's Colleges spend thousands of dollars annually in advertising to business concerns, so that a good position will be awaiting for you when you qualify through the world-famous Draughon Training. Membership in one Draughon Colleges entitles the student to free Employment Service at any other Draughon College.

Positions

Records show that the Draughon Colleges under the control of J. D. Miracle receive around 500 calls annually for graduates, and it is anticipated that this demand will be greatly increased with the addition of the Lubbock Draughon College, making good positions sure for those who qualify.

Accredited

The Draughon Colleges at Dallas, Wichita Falls, and Abilene, of which J. D. Miracle is President, are accredited not only by the Southern Accredited Business College Association but also by the Consultanting Accountants' Association, giving diplomas from these schools unusual prestige, and as soon as formalities can be complied with the Lubbock Draughon College will be granted similar recognition.

Extensive Improvements

Not only are extensive improvements being made in the College Building but it is planned to add additional equipment to make the Lubbock Draughon College equal to the best in the South, so that we can more nearly supply the demand for graduates in this rapidly developing territory. With fifty years' reputation, big resources, and a nation-wide organization, the Draughon College can offer advantages no single school can approach.

VISITORS WELCOME

We want you to see the scores of enthusiastic young men and women now preparing for good positions here, to see the improvements that have been made, and how interesting and practical the Draughon Training really is. The hundreds of former Draughon students in this section as well as those of the Lubbock Business College which we absorbed are especially invited to visit the College. Scholarships issued by the Lubbock Business College prior to this change in ownership will be honored by Draughon's College of Lubbock upon original terms and conditions.

Start With New Class

As it is planned to increase rates after initial class is started, you should make reservation at once, and you may enter any time later that is convenient for you. Home study course free in the meantime, enabling you to qualify for good position at big saving in time and expense.

New Poison Here For Prairie Dogs

R. J. Powell, working in co-operation with the United States Department of Agriculture and the A. & M. college of Texas, announced Saturday that all farmers wishing grain poison for rats, prairie dogs, ground squirrels, etc., see him Wednesday at the office of the county agent. Mr. Powell stated that the supply of poison had been exhausted for the past six weeks but that a new shipment would be received on Wednesday of this week.

Mr. Powell also said that for some time farmers have been troubled with rats killing baby chicks. All who have been bothered are asked to call and see him and he will be glad to do everything he can to aid in combatting the menace.

Will Inaugurate Air-Rail Route

NEW YORK, June 15. (AP)—Under the trans-Atlantic airplane Bremen, now hanging from the huge dome of Grand Central terminal, formal goodbyes were said today and a party of travelers started on the journey of inaugurating service on America's first air-rail route to the Pacific coast.

Prominent among the passengers was Mrs. Mabel Walker Willebrandt, former assistant attorney general and now Washington counsel for the aviation corporation, who received from Mayor Walker a bottle of water from the Atlantic ocean to be spilled into the Pacific to signify both coasts being brought nearer each other. The aviation corporation is the holding company for the air division of the service.

The passengers left New York for an overnight journey on the New York Central railroad to Cleveland. There they will board a tri-motor airplane for the day journey of more than 1,000 miles to Garden City, Kansas, and the remaining night and day journey to the coast will be made on the Santa Fe railroad.

On last Sunday, the Sunday school class of Mrs. W. P. Fullingim, an adult class of the Baptist Sunday School was entertained in her hospitable home with a dinner. Two long tables were laid in the spacious dining room for this very enjoyable occasion and and each table had covers for twelve. Market Saturday Follows Line Of Least Resistance

Trend Is Largely Upward In Another Dull Session To End Quietest Week For Past Ten Months

By CLAUDE A. JAGGER
Associated Press Financial Writer

NEW YORK, June 15. (AP)—The stock market continued to follow the lines of the least resistance, which were largely upward, in another dull session today, ending the quietest week in about 10 months.

The prospect of tighter money late next week tended to restrict buying, but there was little disposition to sell, as most traders believed the market had reached bottom and the next major movement would be upward.

Trading Is Smaller

For the first time in New York financial history, trading on the New York stock exchange was in smaller volume than on the curb market. Stock exchange sales totalled but 1,264,420 shares, while 1,287,900 shares changed hands on the curb. About 30 per cent of the curb trading, however, was in commonwealth and southern, traded on a when issued basis.

The better tone in copper shares yesterday prompted dull operators to concentrate on that group, where they had little difficulty in scoring a number of gains of 2 to 5 points in the thin market, and, for the first time in months, coppers displayed the most pronounced strength of any section of the list during the two-hour session. Some of the rails also made notable gains.

Call Money Carries Over

Yesterday's call money rate of 7 per cent carried over the week end, and bankers predicted that the government overdraft in connection with its short term financing would release enough credit to keep money comparatively easy during the first of next week.

Leading manufacturers of small automobiles reported high rates of activity and large unfilled orders, but the industry generally is preparing for a moderate seasonal slack.

Steels were quieter but Michigan again broke into new high ground on announcement that operations were being maintained above rated capacity, despite the recent increase of 75 per cent in plant. Some of the chemicals were also well bought, national distillers once more reaching a new top.

Cotton Prices In Saturday's Mart Decidedly Quiet

NEW ORLEANS, June 15.—(AP)—Cotton was decidedly quiet today and although prices worked slightly lower there did not appear to be much selling pressure, most of the transactions oeing in the way of evening-up for over the week-end. October, after trading up to 18.61, eased off to 18.52 and closed one point above the latter figure for a net loss of 5 points. The general market closed steady at net declines of 5 to 6 points.

July traded off to 18.54, October 18.52 and December 18.65, or 7 to 9 points down. Final prices were at or near the bottom.

Receipts 3,192; for year, 9,202,194; last year, 8,373,324. Exports, 14,110; for year, 7,563,714; last year, 7,102,838. Stocks 947,795; last year, 999,333. Stock on shipboard, 62,516; last year, 101,880. Spot sales, 3,583; last year, 4,501.

Cotton Prices In New York Market Slower Saturday

NEW YORK, June 15.—(AP)—Cotton was quiet today with prices working lower under continued realizing or liquidation which was most generally attributed to disappointment over the failure of recent bullish features to have a more stimulating effect.

October sold off from 18.71 to 18.63 and closed at that figure, with the general market closing barely steady at a net decline of 2 to 9 points.

July declined to 18.41 and december to 18.78, making net losses of about 6 to 10 points on active positions and the close was at about the lowest prices of the day.

Cotton on shipboard in this country at the end of the week was estimated at 81,600 bales against 73,700 last year and 100,000 two years ago.

Daily Markets

MID-WESTERN LIVESTOCK

KANSAS CITY, June 15. (AP)—(U. S. D. A.)—Livestock trade around the 11 market circuit this week was featured by a broad demand for most all killing classes of cattle. Curtailed receipts and further improvements in the dressed beef trade were stimulating influences. Packers were forced to abandon their attempt to widen the price range on beef steers and so far the usual June break on low grade has not materialized. Grass fat she stock in Chicago closed sharply lower, but at most other points this contigent was stronger than last week. Fed steers and yearlings are closing the week unevenly higher, several markets reporting upturns of 50-75c. Replacement stock was on a firm basis but, as usual at this season of the year, supplies were meager and country demand light. Aggregate receipts were around 151,300 as compared with 170,182 last week and 178,561 the corresponding period a year ago.

Fat lambs and yearlings opened the week steady, but this week liberal recopits prompted an uneven decline of 25 to 1.00. Aged stock was mostly steady. A few week spots developing. Chicago had a late top of 15.80 on western lambs w hile best yearlings stopped at 12.00. The supply approximated 242,500 an increase of 16,00 over last week but 9,000 short of a year ago.

Owen Young's Son Marries Saturday

CLEVELAND, June 15. (AP)—Charles C. Young, son of the head of the American delegation to the Paris reparations conference, and Miss Esther Marie Christensen, daughter of the Danish consul here were married late today.

Owen D. Young, father of the bridegroom, came here today in a hurried trip which caused him to rush through New York without planned receptions in recognition of his work at Paris. He left soon after the ceremony.

Mr. and Mrs. Young left for a honeymoon in Honolulu. Later they will make their home at Schenectady, New York.

The elder Mr. Young said he probably would rest at his mother's home near Utica, N. Y., for about a week, and then go on to Washington to confer with President Hoover and possibly issue a statement on the reparations agreements.

Federal Verdict Favors Defendant

The case of J. D. Gambell, et al. vs. Matador Land and Cattle Company, Ltd., which opened for its last day in federal court on Saturday, resulted in a verdict favoring the defendants in the afternoon session. While no definite action was taken toward filing a motion for appeal it is understood that the case may be appealed to the United States Circuit Court of Appeals at New Orleans.

The plaintiffs in the suit were charging that they leased 300,000 acres of land near Matador to an oil company at $1 per acre, and were seeking a commission for the transaction.

Opportunities For Tech Chemists Said By Read To Be Great In North And East

BY RAY CULP
Avalanche-Journal Staff

"There are wonderful opportunities in the north for graduate students of Texas Technological college in chemistry and the fields of engineering to do graduate work in the universities and to take positions in the laboratories of the large manufacturing concerns as research chemists," says Dr. W. T. Read, head of the department of chemistry at Texas Technological college and who has just returned from the meetings of the American Chemical Society, and the Chemical Industries Exposition, both held in New York.

Dr. Read holds a very important place among leading chemists of the north as a research and industrial chemist. Having received his Doctor of Philosophy degree at Yale University and having taught there seven years before coming to Texas Technological college, he has done much valuable research work in the interests of industrial chemistry as well as being a noted teacher. He is notably interested in helping the graduate students of the college in these fields and he has done much in placing them with fellowships in the larger universities to do graduate and research work.

Was In Charge of Course

At the Chemical Industries Exposition, held in the Grand Central Palace, New York, Dr. Read was in charge of the student's course which is offered the week of the exposition. As a result of his interest in his students, Dr. Read started the course for his students of chemistry at Yale in 1923, and since that time the course has been extended to all students of chemistry and chemical engineering who wish to attend. The exposition presents a cross-section of the chemical industry and the vast amount of progress that has been made in methods and materials in recent years. The exhibits consist of products and equipment and some thirty-five or forty thousand people attend each week at the invitation of the many exhibitors.

Work Is Interesting

In reporting the work carried on at the school, Dr. Read says, "The work now being carried on in use of high resistance allows such as those of tungsten carbide and cromium for the edges of cutting tools, is very interesting and has proven very valuable to the chemical industry. The work being carried on in the field of automatic control is also very important and it looks as if automatic control by machinery will soon supersede the now used methods of analytical control."

Dr. Read says that the cooperation of the large industrial institutions was splendid and that the advance in the work carried on has advanced remarkably since its foundation a few years ago.

Talkies Are Used

"The method of presentation of lectures has in itself made a great step forward in the teaching of chemistry. The principal lecture at the American Chemical society meeting was given by Dr. Irving Langmir, president of the organization, who only appeared on the stage for a few minutes, his lecture being given by talking movies. This method enabled thousands to hear and see the lecture illustrated, whereas, if Dr. Langmir had delivered the address in person upon the stage only a few would have been able to see the demonstrations. This method is very advantageous for two reasons. It enables thousands to get the full benefit of the lectures at the same time. Then in the many colleges where leaders in the different fields of chemistry are not available as well as in other branches of instruction, students may have fully illustrated and highly efficient lectures by the world's foremost leaders in each field." Dr. Read thinks that it twill not be long before the talking movie system will be used in all institutions of learning where leaders are not available.

Is Well Impressed

At the Bureau of Standards, Washington, where Dr. Read visited, he was very much impressed by the experiments being carried on there in collaboration with experimental plants in Alabama, for the making of xylose-sugar from cotton seed hulls. He says it is altogether probable that within the next two years there will be considerable experimentation done in Texas to utilize the vast amount of plant waste in our industries, particularly the burrs and stalks of cotton.

While in New York, Dr. Read completed arrangements for the publication of a special edition of his text on industrial Chemistry that he used in Yale with his classes. He also visited several former Texas men who are engaged in chemical work in the north. One of these was E. B. Brown, who is assistant director of research in the laboratories of the Fleischman Yeast company and who, it is interesting to note, attended the West Texas State Teachers college at Canyon and taught school for a time at Littlefield.

Tech Grads Busy

Paul Laflorge, of Amarillo, and Jerome Sanders of Haskell, who received their B. S. degrees in engineering at Texas Technological college this spring, accompanied Dr. Read to New York and attended the students' course. They have been admitted to the graduate school at Yale and will enter there this fall and work towards their Doctor of Philosophy degrees. In the meantime they are employed in the laboratories of the Standard Oil company of New Jersey. The larger corporations pay thousands of dollars yearly to chemical students and experts to do research work in their laboratories, thus affording wonderful opportunities to all graduate students in the fields chemistry and engineering from Texas Technological college, as well as those from all other colleges.

Poultry Judging Tryouts Are Held

Five 4-H club boys and girls met with country home demonstration agent Louise Baird Saturday and preliminary tryouts were held in poultry judging at the stock judging pavilion of Texas Technological college.

The final tryouts will be held on June 29 and at that time a team will be picked to represent Lubbock county at College Station during the Farmers Annual Short Course. Two cups were won by the Lubbock county team last year and Miss Baird is very anxious that the representatives this year give a good account of themselves and bring the awards back for a second season.

Those who judged Saturday were: Hovel Smalley, Florence Hudson, Aubrey Pounds, Milton Davis, and Bessie Moores.

BABE RECOVERING

ANNAPOLIS, Md., June 15. (AP)—"Babe" Ruth, New York Yankee home run king, has improved so much in health in his four-day fishing vacation on Chesapeake Bay that he hopes to get into the Athletic Yankee series starting next Friday, he told newspapermen today.

Miss Eulala Burrus, of Floydada, is visiting in Lubbock with Miss Pauline Meredith, 1614 Broadway.

Contestants Meet For Judging Team

Eight contestants in grain judging and five in stock judging met with County Agent D. F. Eaton Saturday afternoon in his office for preliminary trials preparatory to the selection of teams on June 29 to represent Lubbock county in the state contests at Texas A. & M. college. According to reports from Mr. Eaton, the boys and girls, engaged in 4-H club work in this county are progressing rapidly and it is thought that strong and accurate teams will be selected.

Grain contestants present Saturday were: O. B. Haught, Pustina Woodruff, Dayton McWhorter, E. C. Pounds, Hovel Smalley, Truett Sides, George Railsback and Wayland Potts.

Entered for dairy cattle judging were: James Potts, Jack Stalcup, Fred Elliott, Lawrence Sides and Hovel Smalley.

Miss Elaine Hale who has been spending the week with her brother, Walton Hale, and Mrs. Hale, at 1905 Dixie Drive, will return today to her home in Thorpe Springs, accompanied by Mr. and Mrs. Hale, who will also visit in Corpus Christi, Dallas and Fort Worth before returning to Lubbock.

Summer Clothes Make An Art of Looking Cool; Sleeves, Collars Are Important To Mode

BY BETSY SCHUYLER
NEA Service Writer

NEW YORK, June 15—Smart Social Registrites contributed a veritable lion's share of the chic at the milk fund benefit fair and tea that Mrs. Payne Whitney gave on her beautiful Manhasset, Long Island, estate.

The day was balmy and gorgeous, just a day to be capitalized by sweet, summery clothes, especially since this year's weather has paraphrased a famous line so it is quoted this way: "What is so rare as a WARM day in June?"

Hot weather clothes emphasize the are of looking cool. Now modes crystalize the importance of details. Collars, waistlines and the way sleeves flare are tremendously important. Mrs. Harry Payne Whitney, for instance, wore a sweet printed frock of colorful little flowers against a little background, that had its three graduated tiers all scalloped in points, its ruffled cuffs pointed in like manner and its shawl collar of suntan georgette coming to a point over a wisp of fine lace.

Dame Fashion No Longer Unruffled

Ruffles, ever very feminine, are increasing their scope. Mrs. Charles Amory's moderinistic printed silk frock had a ruffled collar not unlike the bertha of yesteryear, save that it rounded lower in front over a lovely lace vestee.

Sleeveless frocks were divided fifty-fifty betweent one-piece types and two-piece ones. Mrs. Charles S. Payson, the former Joan Whitney, wore a charming little French two-piece of pastel green flat crepe, with intricate hand-seaming. French box pleated skirt and finished at the neck with a simple little double white organdie collar and tie. Her little son, Master Dan, was most correctly clad in shorts and linen blouse.

For youthful chic, I really believe nothing surpasses the properly cut cardigan suit. At least, that is what I thought when I saw Mrs. Earl T. Smith in as neat a yellow outfit as this capucine season has produced. It was a clear, soft yellow jersey de laine suit—its skirt quite full with four inverted triple box pleats. A flat crepe blouse, long sleeved, exactly matched, and her yellow mushroom straw hat had darker tones facing it. She wore polka dotted T-strap sandals and carried a sports envelope purse. Little Iris, clinging to her Mamma, wore a delectable little outfit with hand-worked flowers in dainty array.

Mrs. Earl T. Smith and daughter Iris

Mrs. Lewis C. Ledyard (left) and Mrs. William deRahm

Mrs. Charles S. Payson and son Dan

White hats increase their numbers and, in some instances, their size. Mrs. William deRahm wore quite a large one, of silky transparent straw, wired to considerable width all around. It had velvet bandings and two streamers, quite in keeping with the modernistic incrustations of color decorating the jumper of her two-piece sports frock.

Pleats have increased their prestige until they have gone to Milady's head. I noted several hats pleated on one or both sides to give jaunty originality. Betty Bliss's checked Paris meme hat flared off her face in front and was pleated down the back of the brim, giving the impression of a lot of smart looking hat. It had a jeweled pin holding up its front crown and a little banding that tied in a pert rear bow. Incidently, she wore a lovely printed jacket and frock, with double tiered skirt. White shoes seem to make use of novelty fabric when they austerely remain all-white; otherwise they use anything from crepe de chine to buck, combined with color. Mrs. G. Macculloch Miller, the former Flora Whitney, wore a stunning pair of oxfords, in novelty basket weave silky fabric. Her white frock had the only cap sleeves seen at the affair. Mrs. C. Oliver Iselin's white shoes had black pipings: Mrs. Charles Swartz's were tipped and heeled smartly in purple to match the bandings on her sweater suit.

The sartorial and social ranking of the lowly polka dot continues to surprise me. Yet it shouldn't There's universal appeal in the simplicity of dots as a design. Mrs. Lewis C. Ledyard wore a very feminine and sweet little blue and white dotted frock, with sash and kerchief of dots, too.

Hortense Ragland To Make Debut In Large Production

Former Lubbock Girl Will Sing In Hammerstein's New Show In New York City Soon

A former Lubbock girl, Hortense Ragland, is to make her debut in Hammerstein's operetta soon in New York city, and has signed a five-year contract with this producer, according to word received by her friends here.

Miss Ragland's mother, Mrs. W. N. Woods, is spending a few days in Lubbock now and will sail from Galveston the last of this week to be present at her daughter's debut.

Miss Ragland was a popular singer here as a girl and she has been in New York studying for several years. Upon her return to Lubbock three years ago she sang in a benefit program in this city.

The Woman's Day

By Allene Sumner

Allene Sumner

Our national anthem has never been above criticism. Music students criticize bad metre matched to bad rhythm, and there has been considerable agitation for a long time for a national anthem "that people could really sing." But the Rev. George W. Hilton of St. Paul's Episcopal church, Huntington, Conn., has a different reason for proposing its banishment. He asked his congregation to eliminate the second verse at Memorial day exercises. He objected to the "bombs bursting in air" as bad war propaganda.

Seriously, if we want no more war, the way to begin is to oust everything bedecked with the gorkid's ears to eyes. The minister has the right idea.

WOMEN PUFFERS

Women are not allowed to puff cigarets on the billboards of Sioux Falls, N. D. The city council, meeting in solemn session, voted to oppose the erection of any cigaret billboards showing women smoking or looking as if they might about to. Other towns are getting agitated about the cigaret makers' propaganda to women, too.

TOO LATE

But it's a little late in the day. The cigaret people themselves never created the woman smoker! They lost millions of dollars by not exhorting her to smoke. It was the woman smoker who bombed the cigaret maker and demanded attention by telling him row many hundreds of thousands of dollars a year she was spending for smokes. The damage was done long before the billboards went up.

NO BEAUTY CONTESTS

Beauty contests have been prohibited in Italy and prefects have been ordered to especially watch bathing beach resorts for any attempt to put on bathing beauty contests. The order says that beauty contests "result in grave inconvenience to public morality."

To which one opines that if the "public morality" is so fragile a thing, something more serious is needed to bolster it up than the abolition of beauty contests.

THEY'LL LET HER

Mrs. Rose Simon, 17, has a baby, takes care of an apartment, cooks for five people, and attends college.

Which is just a mild sample of what the modern young woman is letting herself in for, only to learn that the more she will, the more she may. If Mrs. Simon took a wage earning job in addition she'd probably discover that nobody objected very much, and that if she ever dared quit then she'd be accused of being lazy.

RIGHT IDEA

A few wage earning wives are bringing their families up in the way they should go, and are no more expected to get dinner and wash dishes, too, than are their husbands. But not enough of them are putting this idea over. Too many women have six irons in the fire, and find nobody the least bit agitated about their keeping them there.

FOR MOTHERS

Little 7-year-old Ruane Howe of Atlantic, Iowa, went out to pick violets for his mother on Mother's day. He fell into a creek and was drowned.

It's seldom that a child gives his or her life for a parent. Parents do it every day—not accidentally, either, but often deliberately. The parental insinct is too fierce a thing. It needs leavening with selfishness. The offspring themselves would be better off.

How I Improved My Living Room

Mrs. Ed Schroeder, of Wolffarth, Tells History Of Her Work In Improving Living Room of Home

(EDITOR'S NOTE—The author of this article, Mrs. Ed Schroeder, of Wolffarth, after winning first prize in the Lubbock county living room contest, has been awarded first prize of district number two, in the contest sponsored by Texas Agricultural and Mechanical College. And, according to Miss Louise Baird, Lubbock county home demonstration agent, she will be a very strong contender for first place in the state. Mrs. Schroeder's story of how she improved her living room is printed below, through the courtesy of Miss Baird).

Well, I am to write a story, the hardest part of my activity. My room is finished and now I am ready to sit and enjoy my accomplishments.

What wonders a determination and a little paint can accomplish. When I lit my new lamp I realized that we had been living in the dark, here in the twentieth century. What pleasures these little discoveries can bring!

My living room was too dark. The walls had never been finished, and the brown boards, darkened with age, did not present a very cheerful appearance. Besides this, I had accumulated a number of things in this room that did not belong in a living room. I began my work by removing these things. Several pictures of family groups, calendars, ice box, medicine cabinet, chiffe-robe, bed and a cloth rug which was too hard to keep clean. Then the fun began.

Walls Are Refinished

First, I began on the walls. I pasted strips of paper over all the cracks so that my paper would not be torn off. For canvas, I used old sheets which I had on hand. It happened that I had some building paper left over from building the chicken house, so I used that to paper the room. I calsomimed over this paper and was able to get a very smooth effect. The color I used was buff, with a lighter shade for the ceiling.

The woodwork was enameled in ivory and the floor stained brown. I then repaired and varnished four straight chairs, book shelves and remodelled two picture frames. Two pieces of furniture I had to refinish from the beginning. I brought a table up from the cellar, where it had been for a number of years. The finish was so bad that I had never realized before it was a valuable table, although it had been in the family for years. I took off all the old finish and varnished over the natural wood. I put on several coats of varnish, rubbing it down with pumice stone each time. When it was finished I had a table that I was proud of. I finished the desk in the same way and began looking for a way to revive some old wicker chairs I had on hand. The back was out of one, so I had to replace this with cane, which came from the mattress factory. When it was woven to match the other wicker, and painted, it looked very much as it did at first. Another chair I had to pad the arms and cover with material left from my draperies. Cushions for two of the chairs were made from automobile seat covering material. The ends of the shades were pretty badly worn, so I changed ends and painted them cream. They look like new shades now.

Adds New Things

After refinishing these things that I had on hand, I began to add new things. I selected a blue-patterned congoleum rug, which nearly covers the floor, and four small rugs, which are used at the doors and windows. Other additions were a potted geranium, a magazine rack (used to be a feed hopper) which was painted blue and put on casters from a discarded table, an aladdin lamp, book ends, flower vase, four pictures. One of these pictures was made from a wall rack and one from the back of a magazine. The other two were light and colorful, one a gift and the other I bought. I used an oval picture over the table to break the monotony of the square frames. I found an old waste basket, which my son had made in the primary grade at school, and after painting it buff on the outside, and blue on the inside it makes a very attractive feature of my room.

The table runner was made from a piece of green Indianhead, to harmonize with the other furnishings. The problem of storage space, for wood and coal in winter, bothered me for a while, but a covered wood box on casters was the solution. I am using it to hold magazines now that my stove is down. I used an old chair, covered with marble, from an old table, for the victrola stand.

My draperies were made of heavy cretonne, (patterned), and the glass curtains were of a good grade of cotton French marquesette. I made several pillows, to use in the chairs, from material on hand. Some of it was black silk lining of an old coat suit, which I quilted in harmonizing colors, and the other was cretonne left from making an old mattress.

I exchanged my stove for a better one and repainted the pipes. After this I began arranging my different centers and found that I did not have a rest center. My son was sleeping on a cot at the time, so I moved it into my living room and dyed an old bedspread to use as a cover. As I had used so much blue, I dyed this a very dark red. It is soft and does not soil from constant use, which the cot has to bear.

My color scheme is blue and buff with touches of red, green and black. The value of things bought was $40.59, and the value of gifts was $3.55. This makes a total for my room of $49.03.

I hope every living room contestant is as happy over her room as I am over mine. I hope, also, that my work will be useful and inspirational to my sister club members.

How to Achieve Beauty

BY MME. HELENA RUBINSTEIN

After you have organized a health program including proper diet, plenty of drinking water, exercise and sleep in your corrective treatment for acne (pimples and blackheads), you come to the important matter of what to do directly for your skin.

MME. RUBINSTEIN

Naturally the acne afflicted skin needs very different care from that given to a youthful skin that is normal. Cleanliness is, of course, a first law in the treating of this condition, even more so than for the normal skin, but the means of attaining it are slightly different.

The acne skin must be washed frequently. But do not wash with ordinary soap and water. Instead use an especially prepared washing preparation, a creamy paste, free from alkali and so medicated as to correct blackheads and open pores. This kind of a washing preparation is more penetrative than soap and is without the fatty content, acids and harsh alkalies that makes most soaps unsuited for the acne skin. Such a preparation makes a soft, deeply cleansing lather which soothes and invigorates the skin while it cleanses. Use it with warm water night and morning to completely cleanse the acne area.

Once a day, either night or morning after the washing, or whenever convenient, smooth on an essentially pure face cream, prefarably a pesteurized one, and remove with cleansing tissues. After this, as after an cleansing treatment for acne, pat on a refining lotion, or mild astringent skin tonic to close the pores and to freshen the skin. Be very careful in choosing your preparations, to get those which are suited to acne. Buy only the very purest and best. A pasteurized face cream, unlike almost any other cream, is a corrective for acne because it contains antiseptic properties and because it counteracts the excessive oiliness which is most often a characteristic of acne. Besides this, it is unusually mild and soothing.

The skin tonic for an acne skin must be both soothing and stimulating, and it must be astringent. One of the milky skin-toning lotions is best for mild cases of acne. For the more severe cases a clear, antiseptic refining lotion is better, as its action is stronger. Compresses wet in this tonic may be left on the affected areas for several minutes. After this treatment you may dust on your powder and rouge and other make-up provided they are of the very purest quality, as this is most important in cases of acne.

At night, to complete your treatment, spread on every part of the acne afflicted area a generous application of medicated, acne cream. Leave it on all night to purify and heal the eruptions.

Always avoid touching your face with your fingers except when you are treating the skin. Infection with acne spreads rapidly, consequently you must be careful to sterilize each pimple as it is opened. If your acne is the kind that manifests itself in "blind pimples" you must try to bring them to the surface of the skin where they can be treated and cured. There are certain creams and liquids which do this effectively. Certain active liquid stiumlants are good for this purpose. Once the pimple has been brought to a head, the pimple may be pricked with a sterilized needle and then disinfected, either with an antiseptic liquid distinfactant or with dry boracic acid.

One fact that is not generally known about acne is taht the discharge from an open pimple often continues for as long as 15 or 20 minutes after the pimple has been lanced. This substance is highly infectious, and it is through the careless "letting" of pimples that nine-tenths of all the infection carries. The pimple that is opened and not sterilized can infect almost the entire surface of your face.

Skim Milk Very Much Important

COLLEGE STATION, June 15 "You section may not have a condensery, milk plant, creamery or cheese factory and yet have a fairly satisfactory market for dairy products," declares J. L. Thomas, dairy specialist in the Extension Service of A. and M. College.

"Average Texas milk runs about 4.8 per cent butterfat and is worth at current prices, counting the feeding value of the skim milk, $2.26 per hundred pounds sold as sour cream. Data compiled by the Bureau of Dairy Industry, United States Department of Agriculture, for 1922-27 show that the same milk sold as Grade B market milk would be worth about $3.15; as whole and as milk to cheese factories, counting the feeding value of the whey, $2.58. These figures are for the United States as a whole and may vary from local prices.

"Skim milk for feeding purposes is worth 40 cents per hundred," Mr. Thomas says, "and whey is worth about 20 cents per hundred. The dairy by-products of skim milk, whey and manure are an important part of the dairy business, often representing the difference between a profit and a loss."

Camp Outfit Rejects Spirit Except For Dress

BY LUCY CLAIRE
Fashion Expert for Central Press

Skirts are almost entirely eliminated from the camp outfit in these days of greater femininity, but more practical clothing for sports. The girl going to camp will require one simple little frock for dress-up occasions, and perhaps a tennis frock with a bright colored jacket for wear on trips away from camp, and these with the traveling frock she arrives in, will really be all in the way of skirts she requires.

For the dress-up occasions, the little frock sketched is practical. It may be of figured silk or voile of the wash variety. Her tennis frock will naturally be white, also of the wash variety, and one pair of white kid shoes will answer for both.

But it is of the camping clothes those designed for active sports, that we want to talk. There is a change in these, particularly in the bloomers and knickers worn a few seasons ago. All fullness is now eliminated from the garments except where it is necessary for greater freedom of action. English shorts replace the knickers, and the bloomers are snugly fitted around the hips, with just enough fullness to give them the appearance of shorts when the elastic band is pushed up well above the knee. Serge, satine or poplin is the favored fabric. Those sketched at the lower left are so cut that the fullness is thrown to the legs, while the hips are snugly fitted.

The shirt that goes with these bloomers is cut like a man's shirt, with tails that tuck in and stay down. The shirt is sleeveless, or has sleeves ending above the elbow, like that sketched at the lower right. The shorts shown with this shirt feature an inner cuff that prevents their riding up, and a mechanical side closing. The regulation belted English shorts are shown at the upper right with a sleeveless shirt with convertible collar.

Fatigue Coat Convenient

The English fatigue coat, as sketched at the upper left, while not absolutely necessary, is convenient for an extra wrap with the shorts. It comes with monogram pocket and is especially attractive for the very young girl. Where there is horseback riding, a pair of riding breeches should be added to the outfit. They may be of white linen, whipcord or gabardine. Those shown in the sketch are of linen, and button on both sides of the hip to secure a snug fit.

The whole idea of the camping outfit is to eliminate superfluous clothing. The general endorsement of the suntan vogue is taken into consideration, not as the freak of fashion, but as a health measure, and clothing is eliminated wherever possible. Underwear is reduced to the minimum. Shirts for outer wear are combined with shorts for inner wear, thus with the knicker-bloomers or the English shorts, reducing the costume to two garments, and eliminating the unnecessary layers in underwear. Beret and gob hats, which expose the face to the sun, are adopted, and stockings are replaced by short socks. The bathing costume is invariably the one-piece swimming suit, with very short skirt, or no skirt at all.

The lace to toe sneaker, built on boys' lasts, with crepe soles and reinforced ankle, is considered the most practical footwear for camp life. For the dancing class work, which is part of the routine in many camps, the barefoot sandals are preferred to ballet slippers, and the rehearsal romper is adopted for this part of the program.

Recipes For Canning Farm Products Will Be Distributed By Miss Baird

Recipes which are described as especially useful for one who contemplates canning home products for market, have been received by the home demonstration agent, Miss Louise Baird, for distribution. These recipes were sent out by the home industry specialist, Miss Mamie Lee Hayden, and they include Strawberry preserves, grape juice, grape marmalade, beans and peas, gumbo, pickles, bermuda onion pickles.

Copies of the recipes are available in Miss Baird's office and they will be published at intervals in the Avalanche-Journal.

Must Be Standard

Special directions for canning peas and beans for market have been sent out by the home industry specialist, according to Miss Baird, who says that a number of Lubbock County home demonstration club women have been planting cream lady peas expecting to can the surplus for winter use and for marketing.

Those canned for market must be in a standard container and must all be alike, both in quality and appearance, according to the local agent, who has the following directions sent out by the home industry specialist:

Only fresh beans and peas should be used for canning.

Bacon for seasoning beans and peas should be firm and of good quality. A good proportion of lean and fat should be selected for this purpose. Remove the rind before cutting pork for each can.

Only No. 1 and No. 2 cans should be used for canning peas.

Canned String Beans

Pick over carefully string, wash thoroughly, and cut into one-inch lenghts; cut diagonally, add enough boiling water to cover and boil for 5 minutes in an uncovered vessel. Remove and immediately pack firmly in No. 2 and No. 3 cans. Add bacon to each can the size depending on the size of the can. A cube of bacon 1 by 1 by 1 1-2 inches is sufficient for a No. 2 can with a little larger piece for larger can. Cover with boiling water to within one-inch of of the top, add 3-4 teaspoon of salt to each No. 2 can and 1 teaspoon of salt to each No. 3 can. Seal. Process immediately at 19 pounds pressure for 45 minutes for No. 2 cans and 55 minutes for No. 3 cans. Wash and label cans before storing.

Canned Peas
(Black-eyed, Crowder and Cream Lady Peas)

The same method may be used in canning peas as for string beans, except for the time of processing.

The black-eyed and cream peas may be shelled and included with the snapped peas. If snapped peas are used with the shelled peas, about 12 snapped pods are sufficient for each No. 2 can and 18 are sufficient for each No. 3 can. Bacon may be added in the same proportion as that for the string beans. The can should be packed while the peas are hot.

Times for processing peas are as follows:

No. 1 cans, 10 pounds for 40 minutes.

No. 2 cans, 10 pounds pressure for 60 minutes.

No. 3 cans, 10 pounds for 1 hour and 15 minutes.

Lubbock Boy Holds Class In Shooting

P. Knox, formerly Boy Scout Executive at Lubbock.

All the boys have not arrived at Camp Arrow Head, according to Director Knox, but the full quota is expected by the end of the week. Instructors have been secured and are now in camp to give work in swimming and life saving, fencing, horsemanship, rope and whip work, and various handicrafts.

Mr. King, the rifle instructor, was a student at Texas Tech this past year, and is a distinguished pistol and rifle shot, having competed in international contests with excellent records.

Weather Record On Plains Basis Of Good Prospects

Extremes Of Cold Winter Aided The Killing Of Pests

June Not Too Hot And Rain During May Seen As Indication That Ample Rainfall Will Follow

AGRICULTURAL conditions throughout the South Plains, as a whole, are very good, due to the unusually perfect weather of the year. Winter temperatures over this section were uniformly cold. January was depicted as the warmest winter month with nights somewhat colder, while February marked itself down as the coldest month in the history of the state agricultural experiment station. While January days were considered very warm for mid-winter there were very few nights that the thermometer did not touch 32 degrees.

Subnormal precipitations were recorded in February. A mean temperature was seen of 8 degrees below the average. This is the coldest weather that has ever been seen in this section and probably was the means of having killed a large number of insects which may have been wintering over. Reports, however, state that there was a good emergence with spring. The severe cold held back the development of fruit buds and flower blooms so that when the warmer weather appeared in March and April, with no disastrous frosts, the early flowers and shrubs came out with luxuriant growth.

Weed Crop Destroyed

Rounding out the winter months into the spring the farmers of this section got their seed into the ground at the ideal planting time from May 5 to 20, assuring them a very good stand. They were aided by ideal subsoil moistures coming from the winter rains. Because of these heavy rains and the small amount of early planting done one week crop was destroyed with the first planting, giving the producing and paying crops a chance to make a stand.

May was recorded as a month of exceedingly heavy rainfalls, the precipitation for the 31 days being 6.91 with much cooler weather than ever before experienced. Records show that only 2.17 inches of rain were due for this month, making a surplus of 4.74 inches. It is understood that with heavy rains the ground is cooled and the temperature greatly affected. Evaporation also is affected with the temperature. This accounts for the excellent seasoning now in the ground.

It's Not So Hot

Several expressions have been heard as to the unusually hot days that have come during the first of the present month, but records at the station show that the month of June 1929 has not experienced weather as hot as in the same month of 1928. The thermometer this year has not reached 100 degrees, while during June of 1928 there was one day in the first fifteen that the mercury touched the century mark. Beginning with June 16, 1928, however, eleven days were recorded out of the 15, when the heat was registered over the 100 mark.

On June 7, last year, the reading was 98 degrees, June 8, it was 104 degrees and June 9, 99 degrees.

Reports from all sections of the country to date say that good progress of growing crops is being made. Recent hails have affected the yields in some parts but have not been enough to seriously hamper the ultimate year's crop. From past records it is seen that good rains in March and May predict a good fall throughout the season. This being the case the South Plains should be assured ample moisture as precipitations in these two months of this year were greatly above the average.

Roosevelts Bag Strange Animal

The first specimen of the rare giant panda ever shot by a white man was recently obtained by Col. Theodore Roosevelt and his brother, Kermit, in Tibet, according to word just received from the Roosevelt party. The beast is a zoological enigma—it looks like a bear and is a bear in size yet has all the characteristics of the raccoon. This picture is a sketch of a specimen on exhibition in the Paris Museum of Natural History, which was obtained 60 years ago from natives through a French missionary.

Lubbock County Farmer Makes $150 Clear From Chickens Last Month

One Lubbock county farmer reports a net profit of $149.45 during the month of May, from a flock of 500 chickens, County Agricultural Agent D. P. Eaton announces.

Mr. Eaton states that a decided increase in sizes of flocks and in number of farmers who raise poultry as a means of adding to their year's cash farm receipts, is noticeable throughout Lubbock county.

Month's Best Record

"The best record turned in to me during the month of May," declares Eaton, "is that of a farmer whose flock numbers 500. On top of the loss of seven hens, which died, a total income of $207.20 was made. Total eggs produced numbered 8,264, showing an average of 16 1-2 eggs per hen, which is half an egg under the standard egg production generally. And May is considered an off month in production.

"The farmer's sales from fowls totaled $28.70, his eggs bringing $178.20. Deducting his cost, which was $5.75, his net income for the month was, therefore $149.45."

Other Records Mentioned

The county agent announces that the farmer operates an average-sized farm in addition to caring for his poultry.

Out of four other reports for May, the next highest flock was that of 350. Egg production of this flock was 3,167, egg sales totalling $52.80 and net profit, $24.63. Contrasting this was that of a flock of 260 hens, which produced 4,169 eggs. Fowls sold from this latter flock brought $46.64, with eggs sold amounting to $55.80. Feed cost was $71.65 and net profit was $80.79.

American capital in railways, oil, power and gas companies of Argentina is said to be increasing.

Keep Chinch Bugs Out of Feed Crops

COLLEGE STATION, June 15—With the approach of harvest chinch bugs usually migrate from heavily infested small grain fields into adjacent corn and feed crops, and where these insects are seriously present farmers should take measures to prevent this migration. Although the chinch bug has wings, explains R. R. Reppert, entomologist of the Extension Service, it does not use them in flying into new feeding territory. A furrow plowed in advance of their line of march is an effective barrier. By dragging a log back and forth in this furrow a fine dust is created on the sides and in the bottom and this serves as a trap where they may be regularly killed by use of a blow torch or otherwise. Some farmers plow out two furrows side by side as a double precaution.

Another good protective measure is to spread a thin line of coal tar across the line of march of the chinch bug, applying the tar from the sprout of a common watering pan. This may be run along a zone cleared of grass and weeds by scraping. The method may also be used effectively in combination with a double dust barrier. Two boards nailed together lengthwise and at right angles like a common hog watering trough, with a carpenter's quarter round nailed into the angle is inverted and dragged back and forth lengthwise over the ridge separating the two furrows. This reduces the sloping sides to a line dust and at the same time forms a shallow depression at the apex of ridge into which the coal tar is poured. By throwing the two furrows together the coal tar barrier may be used alone as well as in combination.

Mr. Reppert points out that there is no practical method of destroying chinch bugs over a wide area of growing crops after they have gained access, and that control must be effected before they enter.

Guernsey Sires Building Carson County Herds Up

Program Of Past Two Years By Breeders Witnesses An Exceptional Record; U. S. Contributes

By ARCHER FULLINGIM
Editor, Panhandle Herald
Panhandle, Texas

PANHANDLE, June 15.—Carson county breeders have been acquiring extra pure-bred Guernsey sires in every section of the United States for the past two years, but the climax of gathering the best Guernsey blood available came last week when the purchase of Shuttlewick Strongheart, a son of Itchen King, greatest living sire of the brood, was announced.

Shuttlewick Strongheart was bought by Dr. Geo. P. Grout, of Panhandle, June 6, at the annual Ohio Guernsey sale, Wooster, Ohio. He was the first proved sire ever offered for sale by the Ohio Guernsey Breeders Association, although this organization has held 14 annual sales. Shuttlewick Strongheart, the feature animal of the sale, is nowon his way from Ohio to Panhandle. His dam is Raider's Heartsease of Shuttlewick, a 625 lb. daughter of the splendid Imported Border Raider that has 35 advanced registerdaughters.

Young, But Proven

He is a young bull but already has two advanced register daughters (register of Merit Daughters as they are called in Texas). Another two-year old daughter of this splendid bull is making over 50 pounds butter-fat a month on two milkings a day. It is seldom that an advanced register bull is offered for sale since those who have proven them out wish to keep them in their own hands.

He is the second son of the great Itchen King to be acquired by Carson county breeders. Last fall, King's Reliance, out of Mary Jane Gerar 2nd with a record of 790 lbs. fat, another son of Itchen King, was purchased. These bulls are only two of the 20 splendid Guernsey bulls that are used in five bull circles in this community.

Chief among these sires are four outstanding bulls.

Of Champion Class

Coronet's Golden Noble, a grandson of Golden Coronet of John Du Luth, world's champion cow with a record of 968 pounds butterfat; his first three dams averaged 843 pounds of fat in a year. Hillfisher of Unkamii's dam has a record of 670 pounds butterfat. Gayose Columbia's Actor is half-brother to two world's champion cows. Confident May Day has 12 advanced register daughters, one of whom has just gone through with 809 pounds of fat and sold at auction last month for $2,800.

Other sires include Glen Rose Royalist, a line-bred Coronet bull with a record of 963 pounds fat on his sire's side and 952 on his dam's side; a Langwater-bred bull out of an officially tested granddaughter of Itchen King; a grandson of Langwater Steadfast out of an officially tested Nella Jay cow that had a record of over 1,000 pounds of fat; three descendants of No Fine Ultra; a grandson of Rose Prevoms of Cheaney Farms; two grand-sons of Langwater Foremost, J. C. Penny's $30,000 bull. These bulls are good enough to be used in any herd, according to Dr. Grant, one of the leading dairy cattle judges of the nation.

No Breeding Circuit Equal

It is his belief that never have bulls as great as Shuttlewick Strongheart, King's Reliance, Confident May Day, Coronet's Golden Noble, been brought into any breeding circuit as foundation stock. Dr. Grout, also a leading pedigree expert, says that Golden Noble of the Inkes sire of the former world's champion cow, Golden Coronet of Jean Du Luth, bred by Dr. Grout.

Although the breeders here are getting together and are gathering a group of finely-bred May Rose bulls, there is bound to be one bull whose blood will feature later on, Grout says.

"In having a definite goal and by mapping out a definite program, we have gotten together four bulls which we hope will be the basis of the Guernsey breed in Texas. They are all of one family; all gild-edge aristocrats. Of course, the other bulls are so good their blood will be used in the general breeding scheme. But bull calves from these four bulls out of cows by other bulls here are good enough to raise the standard of the Guernsey breed wherever used, that is to say, good enough to raise a world's champion cow. In fact, after two years, many cows here could be put on championship tests," he said.

The program for dairy development is centered around the better sire idea. The circles are built on a scientific plan. That is the selection of the truly great sire through the progeny test and then forming a bull circle using sons and the progeny of a great bull together in a circle.

The United States Dairy Situation

A Brief Summary Of Economic Conditions As Published By The U. S. Department Of Agriculture

The continued heavy butter production in leading midwestern dairy sections, as compared with last year, stands out again this month as perhaps the most important feature of the current dairy situation. Theestimate of total production in April shows 126,600,000 pounds, which, if correct, establishes a new high record for that month, exceeding slightly the previous high record for April reached in 1927. Weekly trade reports since May 1 indicate that this month is also running heavy, and the apparent rate over last year suggests that previous high records for May are likely to be exceeded.

It is important, of course, in comparing production this year with last, to recognize that during the spring of 1928 production was not up to what might normally have been expected. That season was backward throughout, production running les than the previous year through all of the heavy producing months and until August. Larger production this year, therefore, has just about brought the total for the calendar year to date back to what it was in 1927, plus a very modest normal increase. It is interesting to note in the detailed April estimate just referred to that in Minnesota and Iowa there were again large increases and that Wisconsin, which in March was below last year, showed a 7 per cent increase in April. The increases for Minnesota and Iowa were 17 and 9 per cent, respectively. The significance of these changes is suggested by the fact that these three states alone produce more than 40 per cent of the total for the Unted States.

Another fact of importance revealed by this April report was the lighter butter production in all three of the Pacific coast states. This may have been partly seasonal, although with such a condition extending generally over many months, there is some indication of a shift from butter production.

Trade movements and stocks are other factors of importance in connection with the current butter situation, and both are generally regarded as satisfactory by those in the industry. Some evidences of uneasiness have occasionally appeared in the wholesale markets, particularly at Chicago, but operators have for the most part had sufficient condifence in future development to store butter if there was not ready sale, and as a result thenew season's into-storage movement has started in a small way. In comparison witha year ago, present holdings may appear heavy, but last year's movement did not get under way until later. Quantities of butter in storage are just about the same as two years ago.

Butter prices will average 1 to 1 1-2 cents lower this month than in May, 1928, but here again a comparisonwith 1927 shows rather marked similarity sinc the first of the month with the May, 1927, price trend, except that this year prices have been more steady. It will be recalled that butter prices have been remarkably free from unusual and irregular fluctuations now for several months, and that, during the past two months, the range between top and lower grades was very narrow. The trend continues, but there is an increasing tendency for the differential between fancy butter and less desirable qualities to widen as supplies on the markets become more plentiful.

That part of the year has arrived when, under usual conditions, relatively little change in prices is expected during the next few weeks. Should prices hold within the usual variation from now until August, this year will not be unlike 1928 in one other respect, namely that the so-called "spring slump" and irregularity of prices which featured several previous years will lnot have materialized. Since the peak reached by this year's prices early in March, the tendency has been slowly downward, but there has been an utter absence of erratic changes from day to day, and even from week to week.

Cheese production continues to drop, the total for the first four months of the year being nearly 12 per cent less than in 1928, and some 6 per cent less than in 1927. Storage stocks on May 1 were 42,000,000 pounds, compared with stocks last year, as well as a 5-year average, of 30,000,000 pounds. This carry-over from the 1928-29 season was by far the heaviest on record and naturally has been somewhat of a depressing factor. Offsetting this, however, is the lighter production trend just mentioned. It would seem that a very material increase in consumption is necessary in order to keep this surplus from becoming a real burden. It may be mentioned, incidentally, that stocks of cheese in England were more than double those of last year, according to the last reports available. Cheese prices have remained practically stationary since early in April. Another month ought to show whether prices will hold under the supply and demand conditions referred to.

Some merry competition has been going on in canned-milk markets between advertised and lesser-known brands, with various inducements offered to buyers in order to influence their purchases, some of which may not be fully reflected in price changes themselves. Production of condensed and evaporated milk in April was 9 per cent heavier than last year, making the January to April, inclusive, total a slight increase over the same period of 1928 instead of the slight decrease which was the case a month ago. Stocks of this class of goods in manufacturers' hands May 1 amounted to 150,000,000 pounds, an increase over last year and the 5-year average for May 1 of 25,000,000 pounds, but these stocks seem to be no cause of concern.

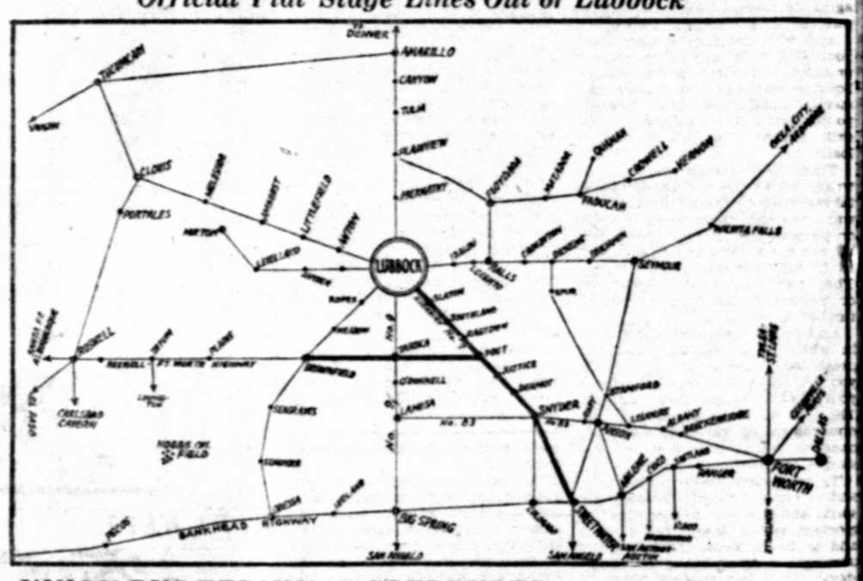

The last survey of wholesale grocers' stocks (as of March 31) indicates that amounts held by this class of distributors were about one sixth lighter this year than last, also that, during the first three months of 1929, there was a 14 per cent reduction of stocks, compared with a 9 per cent increase during the same priod of 1928.

On the whole, dairy markets are steady to firm. Cheese can hardly besaid to occupy as favorable a position as the other products, although the general sentiment in the trade is not what it might be assumed to be from a statistical analysis of the situation.

New German Work Is Hailed As Finest Document Of Late War; Realism Given

ERICH REMARQUE'S long anticipated work, "All Quiet on the Western Front," is not a book to epitomize in a phrase, nor to read in an evening.

It is, in purpose, the grim, honest, human record of a common soldier. As such it is the finest and most important document to come out of the late war. And as such it already has sold half a million copies in Germany, where it was written, and is likely to do almost as well here. I hope so.

For the story of a common soldier is the story of war—not only our own particular war, but all wars. Hence its epic quality. To tell this story, in all its aspects of misery and hazard, the author has simply set down chapters from his personal notebook, fragments of what happened to a single platoon in some four years of battle.

To capture for you just a fragmentary commentary on the irony to be found in these pages, Remar-

And who, pray, were these "iron youths?" A hungry, skinny apprentice locksmith; a few schoolboys; a peat digger; a peasant farmer lad—and so on. Just ordinary youngsters under a bullying, brutal non-com sergeant they all learned to

Book News Notes For This Week

WHEN a tribesman in prehistoric days had a headache his fellow tribesmen first called upon the evil spirits to depart and then held the sufferer down while one of them carefully drilled a hole in his skull with a well-pointed drill of flint. They beleived that thus the evil spirit who possessed the malingerer would depart. These were the first trepannings, (and they rarely succeeded!) according to Dr. Richard H. Hoffmann's The Struggle for Health, just published by Horace Liveright, in which Dr. Hoffmann tells the romantic story of man's fight to win physical well-being from earliest times to the present.

Amazing and blood-chilling things can happen in the course of a single night, as William Garrett's "From Dusk Till Dawn" clearly shows. In the space of a few hours, the handsome young American, Max Winter, on a holiday in London becomes involved in a race for a hidden fortune. Confusion reigns increased by an important letter in cipher, mysterious messages, mistaken identities, crooks, and detectives doubling on one another's trail, a kidnapping, two murders—baffling and bewildering activities on every hand. As in his previous murder adventure tales, such as "Dr. Ricardo," Mr. Garrett shows his flair for concocting a suave and swift-paced story that literally takes place "From Dusk Till Dawn." W. H. Burnett, whose "Little Caesar" (Dial Press) will gain wide distribution, thanks to the Literary Guild, is himself so conscious of this that he puts a foreward in his book begging readers to believe that all his characters are fictional. Insofar as the names go, they probably are—but Chicago has just about run the gamut of possible plots and characters. Any invented scene or person would be almost certain to have a counterpart. As a tense and sorid melodrama of gunplay this book rates perhaps a bit higher than most of the fiction which to date has come out of Chicago.

Burnett can write, but he does not bite deep. His "Little Caesar" is just another killer who goes through his round of racketeerings, frame-ups, quick money, blonde molls and all the rest. We are all perhaps too close to the scene to see it in ironic relationship to the general social life of the times.

A great and important job awaits some maturer mind—something for instance, which would catch the satiric quality of a Scarface Al Capone, retiring in regal luxury in a fashionable Florida resore; lavishing kindly entertainment upon some of our best people who chance to be vacationing in his neighborhood; who can ride about the streets of a summer resort in an armored car, carrying his retinue of gunmen on either side and winning the right of way.

ONE MINUTE PULPIT

He that trusteth in his riches shall fall: but the righteous shall flourish as a branch.

He that troubleth his own house shall inherit the wind; and the fool shall be servant to the wise of heart.—Proverbs, xi, 28, 29.

DEAR OLD DAD

SO this is Father's Day.

Not given much to sentiment, when it concerns him. Father kept them from naming a day in his honor for a number of centuries.

Some day the world may awaken to his true worth. Angel wings then, in the pictures of angels, will not be the appearances of only the female species.

Somehow or other the truth seems to trickle into the world's consciousness that the Men are just as good as the Women, and that the Women are about as bad as the Men. In any event, Fathers really are about the same weight on the scales of worthiness as are Mothers.

Oh, yes. 'Tis true that poems and songs about Mother touch our sob-buckets quicker than any hundred songs about Father could.

Father isn't a figure to be sung about. His has been the battling life of the bread-winner—his has been the task of bringing home the bacon. Just a matter of course. Who could work up a sob story over bacon?

Today is Father's Day.

It isn't timely, necessarily, to fumble an assortment of presents onto him. He will appreciate these, naturally. But, there's something far greater, he will appreciate fuller.

Give Father a shower. Shower him plenty of kind words, encouragement, peacefulness and loving kindness.

Addenda:

Father is as susceptible to a little petting and cooing as is Mother. Try it today, with no thought of "cashing in" on the event with the usual question:

"Can I have a new somethingorother?"

HOPE IS JUSTIFIED

It is understood that the slogan of Britain's new Labor government will be "Peace and Employment." If Ramsay MacDonald, with his 288 votes in the house of commons, is able to translate these broad ideals into actualities, not only England but the world at large will have good cause to rejoice.

Particularly promising is the outlook for real reduction of armaments, a cause which enjoys the hearty endorsement of President Hoover, speaking for the United States. British labor cannot afford to hesitate in connection with a pacific program. There is no reason, therefore, why the two English-speaking peoples should be unable to force action along lines projected at the recent Geneva conference.

Of course, the Labor party may find itself opposed by a Conservative-Liberal Coalition. It is likely, however, that on the peace issue the MacDonald regime will have the backing of public opinion, always a vital consideration in British politics.

In any event, the chances for progress toward peace are appreciably brighter with Labor at the helm. This new party is largely free from the prejudices of European diplomacy and capable of launching forth on uncharted seas imbued with the spirit of hopeful discovery.

UNCLE SAM PENALIZED

In this rich country, which is engaged in financing Europe and Wall Street, money is expensive—so expensive that even the government, the strongest and soundest institution on earth, finds that it must pay heavily for a short-time loan.

A little more than a year ago the government was issuing treasury certificates at 3 1-4 per cent, and they were heavily oversubscribed. Today Secretary Mellon finds that to get some advance cash on which to run national business he must offer an interest rate of 5 1-8 per cent. The government wants $400,000,000 for nine months—that is, until the income tax payments of March, 1930. For this sum it must pay $5,625,000 more than it would have paid in March, 1928.

Thus the government is penalized by stock gambling. The government can borrow money at a lower interest rate than can business. Imagine how business loans, running into the billions, are being affected by the rush of money to Wall Street. Our prosperity must indeed be great to stand such a strain.

STAMPS THAT BOUNCE OFF

Postmaster General Brown evidently has a sense of humor or he could not survive the complaints which continue to come to him concerning the non-sticking qualities of postage stamps. Many are of a satirical character. One man suggests that the government revenues might be enhanced if postmasters would sell thumbtacks with which to fasten the stamps on letters. Another intimates that rubber must have been included in the glue if we are to judge by the manner in which they curl and sometimes bounce off stationery.

This stamp problem is not new. Some years ago former Senator John Sharp Williams said the great need was something to improve the taste of the stickum on the stamps, and he proposed flavors to correspond with their color, strawberry for the red two-cent ones and chocolate for the brown ones. In the meantime we realize that it is the small things which cause most of the bother in this world. Here is a big opportunity for some clever inventor.

NEW RECORD FOR HUMAN SPEED

The new 100-yard dash champion, George Simpson of Ohio State University, gives added distinction to an event about which has centered the greatest controversy in track athletic circles. Forty years ago the amateur mark was ten seconds flat. Then for a time it was regarded as 9 1-2, which was later declared not to be authenticated. At the end of the century seven claimants to performances in 9 4-5th seconds were tied for honors until some of them were ruled out as having been professionals at the time of their victories. Paddock's oft-repeated achievement in 9 3-5th was duplicated, before or after, by at least three other runners. But Simpson enjoys his present laurels free of feeling that he has to share them with anybody else in the world.

To run the century in 9 2-5th seconds requires a speed which, if it could be sustained, would negotiate a mile in 2 3-4 minutes.

TARIFF NOT A POPULAR SUBJECT FOR FEW KNOW MUCH ABOUT IT

By CHARLES P. STEWART
Central Press Staff Writer

WASHINGTON, June 15.—The tariff is not a popular subject, doubtless because so few people know much about it. A lot of talk concerning something one does not understand naturally is tiresome.

It is no reflection on the public's intelligence to say that the tariff is a mystery to it. It is a mystery to everybody but a small group of specialists.

The very reason why the folk who run governments always have been so fond of the tariff method of raising cash is that no one except an expert can see through it. It enables the tax collector to get away with murder unsuspected.

At least that was the way it started—as a means of supplying the treasury with more money than the average man probably would consider necessary if he realized that he was putting it up.

It works like this:

A foreigner, exporting goods to America, has to pay a duty to land them here. Of course he adds it onto the price of his wares; so ris American customers pay it back to him in the end. However, the version fed to the American public was that, 'The foreigner pays the tax." Strange to relate, it was a yarn which a large part of this country believed for years. My impression is that it is pretty well punctured now.

Such was the revenue tariff—originally.

PRESENTLY certain shrewd Americans began to see how they could turn it to their account in another way.

Firstly, it was a very nicely camouflaged kind of tax.

Secondly, it gave a great advantage to American producers of everything that American consumers have to buy. That is, it enabled the former to boost prices to the latter—while still slightly underselling their foreign competitors, because of the foreigners' custom house handicap.

Thus the revenue tariff became a protective tariff too.

THE difficulty is:

Inflated prices act and react in a fashion to make protection's beneficiaries everlastingly need more and more protection—like a dope fiend, constantly forced to increase doses of his drug or it loses its kick.

American tariffs have crept higher and higher until today they are much the highest in the world's history.

The present tariff bill looks like elevating them to a point where virtually they will prohibit imports—because nobody but American millionaires can afford the prices foreigners will have to charge here. If so, America's protective tariff beneficiaries will have practically an absolute monopoly.

THERE are two objections to such a situation.

1. As soon as our protective tariff becomes prohibitory, it will cease to be a revenue producer, and the government needs the money.

2. If we prohibit other countries from selling goods to us, they will prohibit us from selling goods to them. Our export trade will stop. Then what will we do with our surplus products?—which are quite a problem to us already.

THE rest of the world's threat against our export trade is no idle dream.

The state department actually is receiving hints at reprisals by foreign governments—to date including England, Canada, France, Spain, Argentina and several smaller countries—and the list lengthens every day.

Economists recognize a difference between a tariff "policy" and tariff "reprisals." Tariff reprisals amount to economic war. To be sure, the United States may not be afraid of war—but war is no joke either—especially the United States against all the rest of the world.

HEIGHT AND ACTIVITY DECIDE CALORIE NEED WHEN ON REDUCING DIET

Loses 91 Pounds

DEAR FRIEND: Last summer I sent for your pamphlet on reducing because I weighed 255 pounds and am only 5 feet 4 inches tall, so you can imagine how I looked. I did not go on the liquid diet, but started right in on my regular dieting, and in eight months I lost 91 pounds and am now down to 164. I know I went too fast, but I had lots of fun! How many calories shall I take to reduce one and one-half pounds a week now until I am normal? I must also mention that I didn't have my monthly period for four years, and went to all sorts of doctors, and they all doctored me for change of life, although I am only 29 years old. So I took the job on my own shoulders, with your help, and after a reduction of 38 pounds I started to have my periods every month and feel like a new person. My husband is certainly pleased over the way I look. (Imagine what an eyesore I must have been to him before.) When I buy clothes now I am not ashamed of my figure. I also have people telephoning me to find out how I lost my weight. Thank you for what you have done for me.

MRS. W."

I am running your letter to enlighten others who feel that their irregular periods are the cause of their overweight, instead—as you have demonstrated — of the result. Deranged glands (generative, thyroid and pituitary) too long have been considered causes of overweight, when in reality they are the victims. You lost approximately three pounds a week, but it didn't hurt you so it was all right for you.

The number of calories on which to reduce depends upon your height and physical activities. The taller and more active you are, the more you can have. (I am five feet six inches tall in stocking feet, and get at least two miles of brisk walking each day and 15 to 20 minutes of setting-up exercises; I find I can reduce one pound a week on 1,600 calories. But I don't cheat myself in counting, always giving a dish a good high count if I am in doubt.)

You'll have to work your reducing number out for yourself, Mrs. W. Keep track of your daily number of calories for three or four weeks; average them, and also your losses, and be guided by your findings. You'll have to make this average over three or four weeks, because you cannot judge by one week's figures alone on account of the water balance factor; some weeks you retain more water than others.

Thank you for letting us know your good results. Let us know when you get down to normal?

Those who want the instructions on how to reduce (or gain) may have our pamphlet on the subject by observing column rules.

Miss A.—No, the removal of the cysts in your ovaries would not affect the one in your breast. That must also be removed, judging from your description. Cancer is not so very usual among the young. However, you had better have yourself attended to, for cystic conditions are liable to degenerate to cancer, even among the younger, if they are neglected too long.

Mrs. J. G. T., Nashville—Loss of weight, fatigue way beyond the cause, indefinite stomach disorders and night sweats, show a profound toxemia from some cause. (Toxemia means poison in the blood.) The first thing you would think of in this case is tuberculosis, and you should have your husband examined by a lung specialist immediately.

We have an article on Tuberculosis which gives a list of books written for the layman.

THIS HAS HAPPENED

JOHN CURTIS MORGAN, successful lawyer, is deeply in love with his beautiful wife, IRIS, and does not suspect that NAN CARROLL, his secretary, is in love with him. Nan, having a fine sense of honor, decides to resign but postpones her resignation because she feels Morgan will have particular need of her in his defense of a supposed friend, BERT CRAWFORD, indicted for embezzlement. On the last day of the trial, Morgan's little son, CURTIS, innocently places in Nan's hands a note apparently taken from his mother's handbag. It is from Crawford and reveals his guilt and his and Iris' plans to elope when the trial is over. Crawford leaves town immediately and Iris departs for a supposed pleasure trip.

Iris announces her destination in a letter which cleverly omits mention of Crawford's name and begs Morgan not to seek her. Morgan is broken-hearted. Nan convinces him that he should not place his child, Curtis, in a boarding school. While Morgan is at the capital on business, Nan stays with the child and organizes the housekeeping situation so father and son can carry on.

She places Curtis in public school and at once plans menus which will restore health to the child whom Iris has made delicate by overindulgence. For six months Nan, in capacity of a long-distance housekeeper, provides happiness and comfort for a man whom she loves but who ironically loves another. Morgan's attitude is one of gratitude and deep friendship and he does not suspect that Nan loves him. When Nan returns from a short trip to the capital, she is met with the terrifying news that little Curt has been in an accident.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER XXV

Nan's heart stood still. Her eyes, black with fear, asked Willis Todd the question which she could not make her lips form.

"No, he isn't dead—not even badly hurt," Willis reassured her gently.

"Oh!" Nan drew a shuddering breath of relief. "Thank God!" She relaxed against the cushions of the car for a minute, trembling violently. Then, "What are you waiting for, Willis Todd? Start the car! Get me there as quick as you can! Tell me what happened. Willis, but drive—drive!"

"So that's how you feel!" the young man who loved her said grimly. "Goodby, Hope! . . . All right, honey-girl! Don't worry about me. I'd rather have your friendship than any other girl's love. . . . It seems that the two youngsters, Pat O'Brien and Curtis, were playing with the police dog on the lawn this morning, teaching him to retrieve sticks. Curtis flung a stick too far, so that it landed in the middle of the street and of course the dog dashed after it, and Curtis after the dog. Little Pat, it seems, shouted to Curtis to come back, then tore out after him. Curtis was stooping over to take the stick from Cop's mouth when a taxi swerved around the corner, too fast to stop in time."

"Oh!" Nan gasped, and clung sickly to Willis' arm.

"It seems that your faith in Little Pat as the kid's bodyguard was amply justified, for Pat flung Curtis out of the way of the taxi and took both wheels across his own legs. Both broken. Little Pat's in the hospital, poor tad—"

"And Curtis?" Nan whispered, a shaking hand over her eyes to shut out the horrible picture that Willis had described.

"Little Pat must have flung him pretty hard, for the kid has a broken arm. He struck the curb, I believe," Willis continued, as he maneuvered his car out of downtown traffic into a side street. "The paper says it's a clean break, between the elbow and the wrist, and that the boy won't be in bed more than a day or two. It's the hero of the story that's out of luck. Poor Little Pat will be in the hospital for weeks. Morgan will pay the bills, of course, and the afternoon paper says he's going to give the youngster a college and medical school education.

"Mr. Morgan was going to do that anyway," Nan interrupted. "Oh, Willis, are you sure Curtis isn't hurt badly? You're not keeping something from me?"

"I knew you'd be like this, so I called up the Morgan home just before I went to the station. Talked with Morgan himself. Told him I was going to meet you at the train. He said that the arm had been set and that outside of howling for you the kid's all right."

"Oh, Willis, you are a darling!" Nan ducked her head swiftly and laid her lips against the tanned hand that was gripping the steering wheel.

"Don't do that!" Willis commanded sharply. They did not speak again until his car swept up to the curb before the Morgan home. Then, "I'll wait out here for you, honey," Willis said. She understood that it was intolerable to him to see her—whom he loved so devotedly—with the man whom she loved evermore devotedly and hopelessly.

Estelle opened the door. "Good evening, Miss Nan. Dr. Black and Mr. Morgan are up in Curtis' room now. Curtis has been crying for you ever since he got hurt."

Nan hurried upstairs, then hesitated for a moment, unnoticed, in the doorway of the room which she had transformed from an overdecorated nursery into a "regular boy's" room. A uniformed trained nurse bent over the bed in which Curtis lay, his splintered and bandaged left arm propped upon pillows. Dr. Black and John Curtis Morgan, both with their backs toward the door, stood at the front of the bed, joking for the benefit of the petulant little patient.

"I won't have a nurse, either!" Curtis shrilled slapping at a white linen sleeve with his uninjured hand. "Nana said I didn't have to have a nurse any more. I'm too big to have a nurse. I want Nana to stay with me!"

"Hello, Man-child!" Nan sang out gaily from the doorway. "So this is the way you behave when I go to the capital to take my bar examinations!"

"It's Nana!" Curtis shouted, sitting bolt upright in bed and looking heartbreakingly pale and dizzy from the effort. "Father, you and Dr. Back go off and tell your old jokes somewhere else. I want to tell Nana all about my accident. Nobody's going to tell her but me!"

"Hello, junior partner!" Morgan put his arm about her shoulders and drew the girl close to him with frank affection, as he turned to Dr. Black. "Doctor, isn't she a ridiculous mite to a lawyer? All our finest young men will be committing murder for the pleasure of having the prettiest little lawyer in the state to defend them. You ought to be disbarred for that reason alone, Nan Carroll!"

"Aw, Nana, make 'em go away so I can tell you about my accident!" Curtis implored disgustedly.

"Maybe," the nurse contributed, in the professionally arch tone that so many nurses use toward small patients, "this bad little boy will go to sleep if he can tell his sweetheart all about his accident."

Curtis let out a howl of indignation. "Nana ain't my sweetheart! She's she's my 'parent pro tem,'

Reminiscences Of An Old Timer

A Series Of Articles, Anonymously Written By An Old Timer In The South Plains Section

AS ROME sat on the seven hills and ruled the world, so sat Mount Blanco on the edge of the Plains and ruled the Llano Estacado. One of the finest pieces of masonery to be found anywhere, surrounded by trees, near a hill on which the last Indian took his stand in defiance of the pale face, stands today, a monument to its builders, a spacious old stone house. The rock from which it was built was quarried in the canyon nearby—stone was burned to make the lime used in its construction and the lumber used was freighted from Ft. Worth, over three hundred miles away.

Many, many years ago, in far away Scotland, a blue eyed lassie made a home happy with her sunny smile and cheerful disposition. The master builder looked upon his handicraft and said: "She is perfect," the pattern by which she was molded was broken and its pieces scattered—there has never been another like her—.

In distant German—a stalwart boy learned the lesons of patience and perseverance.

They Meet In America

The lassie from Scotland and the youth from Germany came to America—to meet at Fort Griffin—the two who had crossed the ocean alone in search of adventure—decided to sail the sea of matrimony hand in hand. It was necessary to go to Palo Pinto to secure a marriage license—but it was obtained and a home was established at Fort Griffin.

Feeling the urg of "frontier life" too strong to be denied, Henry C. Smith, left the little family now increased by a girl named Lena and a Boy, George, "and a-prospecting went." Finding what he considered an ideal location, workmen were brought from Fort Worth and the home was established in Blanco Canyon, about 12 miles from the present town of Crosbyton.

Royalty Works On House

Among the workmen who came to build the house, was a man named Jamison, an English Lord who was a remittance man. Another laborer was Charles Tasker.

Crosby county at this time was just about all of the East Plains. The county was created in 1874 by an act of legislature. The Smith's nearest neighbor was a family named Pepper in Dickens county, about fifty miles distant and the nearest point of supply was Port Griffin. Mrs. Smith was the first white woman on the Plains and she soon became affectionately called "Aunt Hank."

Noble motherhood has ever played a part in the history of frontier life, but no country anywhere ever was called home by a more noble character than "Aunt Hank" Smith. She was "Mother" to the inhabitants of the entire Plains country.

One Room Reserved

One room on the second floor of this spacious house was always reserved for the chance sick or injured fellow being, far from home, and many a weary discouraged youngster, was nursed back to health and ambition by this good woman. I recall several days spent in this same room myself—and even yet—in fancy I recall her gentle voice.

Mrs. Smith made application for a postoffice for Mount Blanco, and she was appointed postmistress, serving for 39 years, a record unparalled in the United States. Mail was delivered here to the J. A. Ranch, Quitaque, Matador, the Slaughter Ranch and the Nunn's—a radius of over 150 miles across. The mail was brought from Ft. Griffin, once a week. Oh, I tell you, mail was eagerly looked for too, by us fellows so far from home.

Settlement Formed

"Uncle Charley" Hawes, Henry Jacob and a number of other old friends soon followed the Smiths and it was not long before there was quite a little settlement in the canyon. A school was established and church services were conducted regularly. "Aunt Hank" was a member of the Scotch Covenant Presbyterian church and maintained her faith throughout her life.

"Uncle Hank" went on long freighting trips, hauling supplies from Kansas City to Arizona points. He was paid $28 per hundred and no one complained about the high cost of living then either. His wagons pulled by ten husky mules would be loaded with from 4,000 to 6,000 pounds each and he had a chan of wagons n his train.

"Uncle Hank" passed on to his eternal reward in 1912, followed a few years later by "Aunt Hank." They are no longer here but their memory will never die. Close to the highway, well supplied with shade and water, near the house where they lived and served fellow mankind for so many years, is a park of twenty-two acres, dedicated to their memory by their son, Bob Smith. Here each year, will gather the "Old Settlers" in their annual reunions. As the rank thins and faces are no longer seen, they will be replaced by sons and daughters of pioneers. In fancy I can imagine the kindly faces of "Uncle Hank" and "Aunt Hank" side by side, hovering over the assemblage, smiling in their pleasure of the enjoyment of this park so lovingly dedicated to their memory.

(The End)

We've Got Bathing Beauties, Too!

Miss Zella Riegel, Tech Physical Education Teacher, Helps Summer Co-Eds In Efforts To Swim

"Gangway!" "Hey, stand back and let a feller take a look."

This might be heard from a clamoring crowd that might be gathered to watch Lubbock's summer pageant of pulchritude that passes in review three days a week.

"Oh, boy, here comes my girl," might be heard from some adoring jellybean as a damsel with a slender, boyish figure of about 200 pounds, trips gracefully by.

"Well, you ain't got nothing on me, big boy," proudly asserts another, as a tall extremely slender miss, with knees which knock musically, passes.

And there is beauty of every type in this review of about 35 fair lassies.

Some Follies Types

As the show starts we hear, "Ladies and gentul-men, we have here a fair lady who has all the requirements for a Follies girl. It is true that she is slightly freckled but beauty goes deeper than the surface. And just look at that exquisite figure!

"Next we have Miss So-and-So, who, permit me to say ladies and gentlemen, is my choice. Just notice her beautifully crossed eyes, that freckled, turned up nose, the perfect 52 figure."

And so it goes, until they are lined around the edge of the pool ready to begin the lesson in swimming. Some are very timid and get into the cold water by degrees. Others are more bold and plunge in while still others are given a friendly shove. One who weighs slightly under the 250 mark attempts a graceful swan dive. And when she hits, Oh, boy!

But Miss Zella Riegel, who is attempting to teach these Tech summer school maidens to swim, is quite proud of her class.

Some Are Afraid

"Most of them are beginners and several of them are afraid of the water. I have been teaching them to breathe under water and the simple strokes until most of them no longer feel afraid. I have already taught them surface diving and the side stroke. Next we will learn the back stroke and the plain dive, and later the single over-on stroke.

"I have noticed quite an improvement in the class as a whole. Some of the girls already knew how to swim but their methods were wrong and learning over is almost as hard as learning how to swim," asserted Miss Riegel when asked how her class was progressing.

"I am not sure that all of the girls will learn in this six weeks. Some of them seem to have a mortal terror of the water and are afraid to get their heads under for fear they won't come up again."

According to Miss Riegel this class won't be taught next term of summer school so those who really want to learn had better "whoop it up."

DALLAS MAN CITED

DALLAS, June 15 (AP).—An indictment charging C. D. Neff, Dallas oil man, with criminal libel was returned today by the Dallas county grand jury. Neff was said to have written a letter to Representative George Purl declaring that those in charge of administering the blue sky law at Austin were corrupt in their official conduct. An investigation was made and the accused officials cleared. Several of the officials testified before the jury.

'cause I heard my teacher, Miss Anderson, say so to the principal. She said, "Better take that up with Miss Nan Carroll. She's Curtis' parent pro tem.' What's a parent pro tem, Nan?"

Nan could have kissed the nurse for the delicate diplomacy which made her engage both the father and the doctor in conversation while Curtis was still shouting his explanation. Her face was flaming as she drew up a chair to the injured boy's bedside, but when the door closed upon the three whom Curtis had ordered out of the royal presence she bent and kissed him with the passionate love of a mother, rather than like a "parent pro tem."

"Little Pat's a hero, Nana," Curtis began eagerly, holding fast to her hand, "like 'The boy stood on the burning deck,' but he ain't dead. Both his legs got broke, and only just one of my arms, and Cop wasn't hurt at all. In the story books the dog always gets killed saving his little master, but I'm glad Cop didn't get killed."

Nan let him talk on, telling her the whole story, "hind part before," but sometimes her attention wandered, so that Curtis scolded her petulantly. She was reliving, over and over, that precious minute when Morgan had drawn her close, his arm about her shoulders; then with sickening embarrassment, that other minute when Curtis' amazing designation of her had been hurled like a bomb into the room. What was he thinking?"

"You're not listening again, Nana," Curtis complained, but his voice was dragging with drowsiness. "Can I go to the hospital to see Little Pat? And take Cop? Can I, Nana? Can I?"

"Yes, yes," Nan promised rashly. Then, because his hand was dragging at her shyly, she knelt down beside his bed and laid her hot cheek against his pale cheek until he was sound asleep.

Nan slipped out of the house without saying good-night to her employer. From the hall she heard the masculine rumble of what seemed to be a very earnest conversation which she had no inclination at all to interrupt. She found Willis Todd patiently waiting for her, and the glow of his cigaret was strangely comforting to the overwrought girl.

"The kid all right, honey" Willis asked gently as she climbed into the seat beside him.

"Yes. . . . Oh, Willis, what an awful fool I've been!" She slumped into a forlorn little huddle and began to sob gaspingly against his coat sleeve.

"Who says so?" Willis challenged. "I do!" Nan sobbed. 'Oh, Willis, Willis! Why didn't you take me when I said I'd marry you?"

"I've often wondered myself," Willis Todd answered gruffly. "Just selfish, I suppose. I wanted you to be as crazy in love with me as I am with you. It never happens that way, I suppose. One always loves more than the other. Morgan and his Iris—sorry, honey!—you and I—you and Morgan! Heigh-ho, darling! It's a great life—if you don't weaken. And I've weakened—so have you!

"Will you try it with me now, Nan? I'm licked. I'll take what I can get and be thankful for that. Maybe it's better to be privileged to devote your life to the person you love than to be a hog about romance, which doesn't wear any too well, if the cynical young poets are to be believed, as well as the evidence of your own eyes—."

Nan gigled through a sob. "That sentence is becoming terribly involved, dear, and so is the sentiment! But—I know what you mean. You are a darling Willis!"

"Then—will you?"

"I want to, Willis." Nan confessed miserably. 'I want to—with all my common sense and all my weak feminine yearnings to be protected and pampered. But—it's too late now, Willis, dear. All my heart's gone clear out of my body to—another man and—his child. They do need me so and I'm not unhappy—all the time. In fact," and she sat up determinedly and dabbed away her tears, "I'm so happy most of the time that I'm in mortal terror that something will happen to take what I have away from me."

The next morning, after more sleep than she had hoped to get, Nan Carroll took up her temporarily neglected duties in Morgan's offices. It was good to have to work like a whirlwind, nice to be teased by Evans and Blake about her prospective status as a "flapper lawyer."

"You'll have to grow a new crop of hair and straddle that babyish nose of yours with a black ribboned pince nez," Blake told her. Even grumpy old Evans had his jokes, addressing her ponderously as "Attorney Carroll."

It was into this genial atmosphere of work and jest that John Curtis Morgan stepped at 10 o'clock, accompanied by old Judge Jennifer, retired, from the bench these 20 years but still practicing law. Morgan, who was only 36, in spite of his eminence in the profession, had begun his career as a very humble clerk in Judge Jennifer's offices 15 years before, and the two were more like father and son than anything else.

It was not often, however, that the old man honored the younger with a visit to his offices, and somehow Nan received the impression, after a quick glance at her employer's face, that this was not a visit at all, but a professional consultation. And yet—there was no case in Morgan's office at the time that seemed to call for Judge Jennifer's well-seasoned advice. In fact, the old man, grown weary of criminal law, had been devoting himself almost exclusively for several years to the less objectionable types of divorce suits.

The conference—if such it was—lasted until almost noon. Oddly enough, Morgan did not accompany his old friend to the door, did not, in fact, emerge from his private office. Judge Jennifer came out alone and stopped before Nan's desk.

"Well, well, Nan, my child," he rumbled, with grandfatherly affection, "John tells me you're going to be a lawyer. Been up to the capital to take your bar examinations. You're a smart girl, Nan, and we're proud of you, but—" and he lowered the rumble to a gusty, strangely significant whisper—"take an old man's advice and leave these dirty criminal cases to the men. Marry a lawyer, raise up a boy to be a lawyer, if you've got to meddle with the law, but—leave the courtroom fights to the men, my dear.

"You find me a nice young lawyer for a husband, Judge Jennifer, and maybe I'll take your advice," Nan retorted flippantly, but she had an uneasy suspicion that Judge Jennifer knew exactly what her hot blush meant.

"That's a bargain—remember!" the old lawyer chuckled from the doorway.

For nearly an hour there was no sound from the private office of John Curtis Morgan. Nan forced herself to go on working at high pressure, but three times she made typographical errors in letters she was writing—an inefficiency record-she has never sunk to before.

Something was afoot. . . . Judge Jennifer—divorce. . . . Light poured in, Iris of course! She had written to Judge Jennifer, as her attorney, had asked him to approach her husband on the subject of a divorce. Of course! Oh, poor man! Yesterday Curtis' accident, which might so easily have been fatal; today this new blow, killing the last stubborn hope the deserted husband had clung to. . . . For six months she had fought to give him peace and to help him banish the devils of despair which had taken possession of him when Iris had left him. Now the battle would have to be fought all over again.

The buzzer at last. Nan caught up notebook and pencil and hastened into the private office, but those tools of her trade were not needed after all.

"Have you lunched yet, Nan? . . . Then I wonder if you'd go with me? I—want to talk with you," Morgn said not looking up, as he was unable to meet her eyes.

They had never lunched together "socially" before, not even since Nan had worked herself into the curious post of long-distance housekeeper of his home, and as she walked beside Morgan into the big, rather magnificent dining room of the Traylor Hotel, Nan felt ridiculously self-conscious.

Morgan tried, rather awkwardly, to make an occasion of their lunch in the matter of food, but Nan chose a single dish and firmly refused everything else.

Nan knew that he expected his news to be upsetting for he conscientiously gave her plenty of time to eat before plunging into whatever it was that he had to tell her.

When he did begin it was abruptly, even harshly: "I'm going to apply for a divorce, Nan." As badly as that!

Nan felt for a moment as if she were on the deck of a tossing ship. Her hand groped for her water glass, found it, brought it so jerkily to her lips that a little of the water spilled on the cloth. Thoughts hurtled and clashed through her mind. . . . Not Iris who wanted a divorce! It was he! Why? What did it mean? . . . She could not speak.

"Judge Jennifer assures me that it can be—done very quietly, very easily," Morgan went on in a strained, harsh monotone. "The—letter, you know." He still could not bring himself to utter Iris' name. "And—desertion. It has been six months—all that our divorce laws require under the circumstances. The letter makes it—easy. I never thought—" His voice broke, then he cleared his throat sternly and went on: "But the petition can be heard 'in chambers'—no publicity at all, of course. My—she will be served by publication, since I don't know where she is. It should all be over in a month, Judge Jennifer says. Over . . ." he repeated.

At the pain in his voice Nan's love for him rose to its greatest height. She would have been a fool not to have suspected why he was divorcing Iris, whom he still loved, whom he probably would always love. But she loved him too much to realize the joy of the first hope she had ever had any real right to feel. She leaned toward him and her brown eyes were indescribably tender.

"Mr. Morgan, don't let anyone talk you into this if you don't really want to do it."

Morgan's lips jerked into a sort of smile. "But until—that's done, Nan, I can do something else that I really want to do and that Curtis very much wants me to do. It isn't fair to you, Nan, and I've sworn to myself a dozen times I wouldn't let you do it even if you were willing, but—I'm afraid you've encouraged me to be selfish, Nan, dear! Before I go ahead with—with Judge Jennifer's plans I'd like to know if you—Otherwise I won't do it, Nan—no real reason—"

"Mr. Morgan," Nan interrupted his floundering speech, her voice low but steady, "we don't have to put it into words, do we? But—whenever you want me—for anything—" And she smiled at him through tears that she hadn't in the least expected, for she was so very happy.

Local Theaters Offering Better Summer Plays

Bookings For Week Show Much For Movie Fans

AS THE zephyrs grow warmer and warmer and the yawns become harder to stifle, the problem for the managers of Lubbock theaters is to offer better pictures so as to overcome one's yearning to chuck it all and leave for the "wide open spaces." Glances over the bookings at local play houses reveal that efforts toward this end are being rewarded.

As the summer makes itself more impressive, programs in the theaters are becoming more interesting each week.

Week Offers Much

Headlining the attractions is "Strange Cargo" which shows at the Lindsey during the first four days of the week.

Then there's the famed Pulitzer prize winning novel, "The Bridge of San Luis Rey," which is scheduled for the Palace for the first three days.

Wright's Book Shown

"The Winning of Barbara Worth," Harold Bell Wright's novel is brought to the Lyric on Wednesday and Thursday. Ronald Coleman and Vilma Banky play the lead parts.

"Strange Cargo" Is Mystery Film

"STRANGE Cargo" is a story of that type on the high seas that will keep the audience guessing until the final scene. Every person aboard a palatial yacht is suspected of murder and when the final denouement is finally reached, amazement is certain.

Fourteen players of wide reputation and popularity take part in the film which offers all the elements of sheed drama, mystery, pathos and appeal. They are Lee Patrick, June Nash, George Barroud, Kyrle Bellew, Russell Gleason, Frank Reicher, Claud King, Ned Sparks, Josephine Brown, Charles Hamilton, Andre Beranger, Otto Matieson, Harry Allen and Warner Richmond.

Lyric Books Three Features In Week

Leading Stars To Appear In Plays During Week

THRILLING adventure and exotic romance feature the picture, "White Shadows in the South Seas", which shows at the Lyric today and Monday.

The plot is built on the regeneration of a white man, who, after having sunk to the level of a beachcomber, pulls himself together to avenge a wronged child and as a result of his chivalry is lured on board a plague ship, lashed to the mast and set adrift. The ship wrecks on an island and the series of thrilling and romantic adventures that follow form the plot of the film.

Wright's Novel To Be Shown

Tense dramatic incidents, an incomparable love story, unusual scenic effects, together with an underlying strain of comedy and the graphic portrayal of desert development join to make "The Winning of Barbara Worth", booked for the Lyric on Wednesday and Thursday, one of the screen's outstanding plays.

"Black Waters" Gives Mystery And Suspense

Old Waterfront Is Presented In Lindsey Show

MIDNIGHT and the waterfront of old San Francisco.

Faces in the fog answering a mysterious summons, and looking for the ship of "Tiger" Larrabee.

Out of the night comes a girl and her rival lovers; a ragged derelict following the path of revenge; a wronged man seeking the one who stole his wife and then—grizzly midnight fog and a black man launching unseen death darts—weird drum beats—a hand cutting the cables of a mystery ship, and the hissing, black waters carrying the boat down the bay.

From this thrilling opening, "Black Waters," an all-talking picture, carries on to a sensational climax in one of the most intriguing dialogue photoplays that has been shown on the screen this year. It will be on at the Lindsey Thursday, Friday and Saturday.

The cast includes such international favorites as James Kirkwood, Mary Brian, Captain John Loder, Lloyd Hamilton, Frank Reicher, Robert Ames and Hallam Cooley, who are all appearing in their first talking photoplay.

Tense Moment In "Strange Cargo"

"Who Killed Sir Richard" seems a pertinent question to George Barraud, left, since he is accused of the crime. Josephine Brown, June Nash and Lee Patrick are in the group. They are part of the fourteen players who carry "Strange Cargo" through a mystery plot.

Lupe Velez And Gary Cooper In Film At Palace

"Wolf Song" Has Romance In Outdoors

"Wolf Song," a romantic drama, starring Lupe Velez, Gary Cooper and Louis Wolheim, with Constantine Romanoff, Michael Vavitch, Ann Brody, Russell Colombo, Augustina Lopez and George Rigas supporting. A Paramount picture. Directed by Victor Fleming. At the Palace four days starting Wednesday.

This splendid story from the novel of the same name by Harvey Ferguson, is a gorgeous portrayal of the lives and loves of big outdoorsmen and large-eyed senoritas in the days when a beaver-pelt was the people's currency.

Lupe Velez, vivacious, exotic, and a spit-fire all in one, plays the leading feminine role as a daughter of the Mexican Dons. She is wooed and won by Gary Cooper, a rangy Kentuckian who has come to seek adventure in the Southwest territory. But the story doesn't end with the wedding and there are numerous thrills before the final scene which brings the romantic pair together again. Wolheim and Romanoff as two trappers of the mountains give excellent support, and others of the cast acquit themselves in an equally adequate fashion.

Vacation-Time Beckons To Work-Weary West Texas

Many Playgrounds Are To Be Found Near Lubbock, Offering All Kinds Of Diversion For Pleasure-Seeker

New Mexico And Colorado Among Most Famous; A Few Sites For Short Outings Are Near City

By BLANCHE E. BEAN
Avalanche-Journal Staff

AGAIN, it is that time of year when the great American public punches the time clock each morning with a lethargic and sleep-laden thumb and dreams through the day on the bosses' time—building enchanting castles of speckled trout, of snow-topped peaks and long hours with nothing to do except to lie beneath the scented pines and wonder what the office force is doing back home.

It is that time of year when the working half of the world juggles two precious weeks about as the family pores over captivating pages of vacation folders, entranced again by those delicious phrases describing the numberless "playgrounds of America."

The family hoard is threatened; resorts, the mountains, the sea are considered; the family hack is oiled and greased.

Vacation time is at hand.

Places Near Here

Because of their proximity and the ideal climatic conditions during hot months, New Mexico and Colorado draw the majority of Lubbock people who seek their vacations during the summer.

A drive of two hundred miles brings one into the foothills of the mighty Rocky mountains with their tumbling streams, pines, august cascades and wild canyons. Cabins are available by the day, week or month.

For a shorter holiday, there are nearer attractions. Buffalo Springs and Johnston's recreational park in Yellowhouse canyon offer ideal sites for an evening's picnic. Grass covered hills surround the lakes for swimming and boating and cast cool shadows across the wide valley which lies only a few miles below the city.

Lakes Are Popular

Silver Falls lake and Blanco canyon near Crosbyton and Two Draw lake near Post are popular resorts for week-end fishing, swimming and camping. Each of these parks is within fifty miles of this city.

Probably the most popular mecca of local people during holidays for the last three or four years has been the famous Carlsbad cavern, which lies 251 miles southwest of the city in the Guadalupe mountains of New Mexico.

Only a part of the day is consumed in visiting the cavern, which is 30 miles from the city of Carlsbad.

As in other portions of New Mexico, the Carlsbad region offers historic places which are of interest to the traveler. Traces of irrigation practiced by the Pueblo Indians on the banks of the Pecos river where the government irrigation project is now under way, ruins of ancient Indian habitations and historic trails are among these features.

Is Wonder Land

New Mexico is a land of national monuments; of virgin forests; of desert, mountain and plain, of history concerning the original inhabitants of America; it is the seat of paleolithic exploitation of the lowly Mexican, and the mecca for the one seeking surcease from the worries of a harried world.

In addition to the Carlsbad cavern, there are other monuments of interest. El Capulin, which is located 30 miles from Raton, is said to be the finest specimen of extinct volcano in the western hemisphere.

Taos, a valley in which the Taos Indians live in primitive state, holds a colony of artists and writers of world fame. Historic pueblos, rising story upon story; narrow winding streets, walled gardens and mysterious adobe structures, are assembled in a picturesque colony in the northern part of the state.

Santa Fe Beckons

Santa Fe, one of the oldest settlements in the United States, where stand houses and churches built of huge oak columns brought from the nearby mountains by oxen in the days when Spanish explorers were roaming the west, is a place visited annually by thousands.

Throughout New Mexico and Colorado are dude ranches where one may live in the atmosphere of the storied west.

Ruidoso and Cloudcroft, which may be reached in a day by automobile, are located in the mountains southwest of Roswell. Horseback riding, trout fishing, swimming, tennis, golf, dancing and other recreations give variety to a vacation in these places which are in the beautiful Lincoln National forest.

Many Interesting Things

Altitudes for camping in this section range from 7,000 to 9,000 feet. The resorts are near the Mescalero-Apache Indian reservation, the famed White Sands between Alamogordo and Las Cruses, lava beds, Gila cliffs dwellings, pueblos and other interesting points.

The country near Las Vegas and the Cimarron canyon in northern Mexico is another popular place for camping and fishing throughout the summer as it lies so near to this part of Texas.

Colorado, with its parks, Pikes peak, health resorts, mining camps, rugged and beautiful scenery and cool climate during the summer, offers much to the pleasure seeker that is found in New Mexico, with other features which are peculiar to that state.

Each of these states is a gateway to the Grand Canyon, to Yellowstone National Park, to California, Utah and other interesting places in the West, any of which may be visited by motor or train from here during the average vacation.

Devil's River Popular

Devil's river, near the Mexican border; Kerrville and the Guadalupe river, the Davis mountains and other points in southwest Texas are sought annually by many during their vacations.

El Paso and old Juarez in Mexico are also the goal of many treks during the summer months.

Tom Howard, stage vet, has gone Hollywood, only he is staying in New York to make shorts at a Long Island studio.

The old silent picture, "The Sin Flood," will be reproduced as a talkie.

Intense Drama Is Presented Upon Screen Here

THE rise of an American Anatol France, as Thornton Wilder has been proclaimed by literary critics of America, is signalized in the latest and one of the most striking dramas of the screen, "The Bridge of San Luis Rey," based on his Pulitzer prize-winning novel, and filmed with dialogue and talking sequences, which starts at the Palace today for a three-day run.

The picture, with its impressive and spectacular settings and intense dramatic theme, is one of the most talked-of pictures of the screen and brings to the screen some of the strangest expedients, dramatic methods and new forms of story telling ever seen in films. Perhaps no picture in history has had the problems that occurred in the filming of this sensational literary work, and never before has a novel been so closely translated to the silver sheet.

Has Star Cast

Directed by Charles Brabin, it is played by a large cast that fairly bristles with famous names, Raquel Torres, Ernest Torrence, Lily Damita, Jane Winton, Henry B. Walthall, Emily Fitzroy, Tully Marshall, Mitchell Lewis, Mikhail Vavitch and many others of note are in the cast.

The vivid scene in which the great bridge breaks, done with a structure two hundred feet long across a deep chasm, the impressive and awe-inspiring cathedral scene, and other vivid details fill the elaborate romance.

Lyric

Rock desert, the story unfolds a world of entertainment and educational features before Ronald Colman, as Willard Holmes, begins to feel sure that he has finally won the fair Barbara, played by Vilma Banky.

The picture is taken from Harold Bell Wright's book by the same name.

Bill Cody Plays Gangland Role

"Eyes of the Underworld" is the attraction for Tuesday at the Lyric. William Cody and Sally Blane play the featured lead.

The picture deals with a gang of racketeers who murder a newspaper publisher because of his threat of printing all the facts regarding their operations. The story is packed with tense situations.

Officials Graded Employes Reminded of School Days

HOUSTON, June 15 (AP).—Houston city employes are reminded, weekly, of school days. Each week a report card is made out on them, giving them merits or demerits for their work.

The system was put into operation by F. A. Kessler, director of the civil service commission. Under it employes may receive demerits for tardiness, slouchiness, absence without leave, neglect of rules, incivility, inebriety, lack of personal neatness, smoking while on duty, unnecessary conversation while in uniform, (the latter two apply to policemen and firemen), lack of interest in work and failure to read orders.

McLARTY SENTENCED

DALLAS, June 15 (AP).—F. E. McLarty, convicted in federal court here Wednesday on a charge of concealing assets in bankruptcy, was sentenced to three years in the penitentiary at Leavenworth by Judge William H. Atwell today.

McLarty was convicted in connection with the failure of the Nash McLarty Motor Co., of which he was president, in 1927.

Elsie Janis is recuperating from her illness in Hollywood.

Kathryn Perry will have the lead in "Side Street."

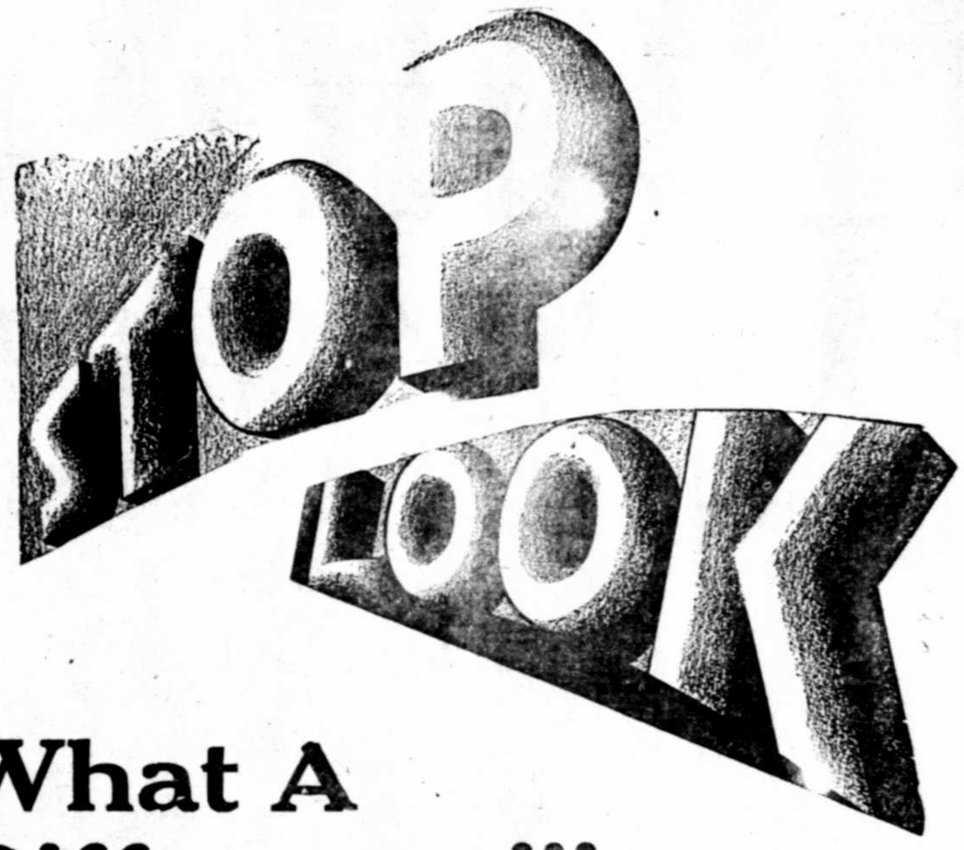

John Boles will sing leading roles in "Song of Pastsion" and "Moonlight Madness."

New Era Of Automobile Perfection Is Sure To Come

Progress Seen In Past Few Seasons To Be Continued

Last Year One Of Best In History Of Auto Industry Figures Show; Constant Improvement Expected

THOMAS Edison is credited with saying that "mechanism is yet only 10 per cent perfection," and if the predictions of the majority of automobile dealers in Lubbock can be taken as a basis, motorists may expect even more astounding improvements within the next few years than have taken place in the past five.

Although Lubbock automobile authorities do not agree with Mr. Edison, it is generally accepted that the automobile of 1929, representing the very latest in engineering and designing, is not more than 60 per cent perfect.

Models Improve

Even a casual look backward recalls the car of 1920, with its piston slap, body rattle, excessive vibration and conservative lines. The most expensive automobile of a few years ago can not compare in performance with the medium-priced machine of today.

Constant study and research in the major automobile laboratories of the country has resulted in mechanical improvements of far-reaching importance. Imperfections that had worried manufactures and mechanics for years were worked out. Body lines were changed along with the color schemes to suit the taste of the most radical.

But with all this remarkable progress in the automobile industry, there yet remain hundreds of improvements to be made before the cars begin to approach perfection. Those in close touch with the manufacturing end of the industry believe that it will not be many years hence until this near-perfect machine will be produced. To say that the present-day car is little better than 50 per cent perfect means that added improvement will make the motor-driven machines absolutely perfect, so far as the human eye and ear can detect. Yet it is extremely difficult for a driver of an 8-cylinder automobile of today to realize that the smoothness of his machine has not reach perfection.

1928 Outstanding

Automobile manufacturers have showed more improvement in the building of cars in the past three years than in the decade previous to 1926. The year 1928 was the outstanding year of progress, the majority of dealers believe. It was during this year that Henry Ford came out with his Model A and General Motors made outstanding discoveries for the betterment of their products.

Constant improvement in the automobile world has put auto dealers in a fairly safe channel, with little danger of outside competition, namely, air transportation for the individual. Although there is no denying the fact the public is becoming more "air minded", it will be many years before air transportation will replace automobile transportation to any noticeable degree.

Is Rich Man's Game

At the present time, air transportation can only be afforded by the well-to-do business man whose time is usually more valuable than money. A big business enterprise, whose representative must hop from New York to Chicago, Chicago to Dallas and from Dallas to San Francisco, can well afford the expense of air transportation. But for the average citizen, air accessibility is yet far in the future.

Large-scale production, which is going hand in hand with the constant improvements in the automobile industry, assures the buying public of better values as time goes on. Undreamed-of possibilities are in the offing and the ultimate result is too great to estimate.

Cars Once Built To Last 20 Years

DETROIT, June 15.—Twenty years ago automobile motors were built to last. Several recent instances received by manufacturers here prove that.

One concern received an order for a new valve and valve stem for a motor which had been in use for the past 20 years. Another order for a crankcase was for an engine 23 years old which was in use as a power plant for a circular saw. Still another instance is shown in the receipt of an order for a new crankshaft for an 18-year-old motor used to furnish power for farm machinery in Minnesota.

Traffic Heavy

Lubbock Drivers Keeping Busy

Fords, Dodges, Studebakers, Chevrolets! Cars of every kind and every speed mix, mingle, bump and crash down where the Texas steers formerly locked horns. Bang! Two cars crash at the intersection of Main and Avenue M. A wreck! But what of it? The bells continue to ring and the lights continue to change. Motorists speed on without notice. Stop! Amid creaking brakes and impatient drivers the red light rings out its demand. Some venturesome, person not contemplating the sudden change, crosses on a "caution" light and then "steps on it" to out-run the cop.

"Watch me make it!" boasts the collegian as he dashes down Broadway between changing signals. "You crank", mutters the busy business man as he speedily backs onto the street and barely misses a passing car. "Make it snappy," calls the driver as he stops his car in the one minute zone and an occupant hurries into the postoffice. "You'll find me somewhere up street if a cop comes along", explains the double parked person as a companion runs in to see that certain party "for jus' a secon'." The careless person laughs "watch it flop!" as he hits the rubber "Stop" warnings.

And where? What? and When? 'Tis Lubbock and her traffic at any time of any day.

Fleet of Oaklands Delivered To Army

PONTIAC Mich. June 15.—Delivery of a fleet of 112 new Oakland All-American Sixes to the United States army for use at various army posts throughout the country was made this week, W. L. Shaffner, manager of the Fleet Sales department of the Oakland Motor Car company announced here recently.

The Oaklands purchased by the army are all 4-door sedan types and are standard models except that the regular Duco color combinations have been replaced by the standard Olive Drap coloring of the army. This coloring is solid except for the customary army serial numbers and the lettering to identify the cars for official use.

The 112 cars are for use at headquarters of regiments, brigades and higher units, battalions, headquarters and a limited number of staff officers at posts, camps and stations. The cars will be placed in use in twenty-six different states in the United States and Hawaii, the Philippine Islands and the Panama Canal zone.

Public band concerts in Scotland are to be broadcast.

Pertinent Facts About Automobiles By Israel Klein, Science Editor For NEA Service

BY ISRAEL KLEIN
Science Editor NEA Service

With the use of anti-knock chemicals in gasoline have come higher compression motors with their higher power and greater efficiency. The motors have become smaller and lighter and they have permitted greater economy in motoring.

The anti-knock chemicals that have brought this about, however, have also aroused a general misapprehension on the part of motorists as to its uses. With the knowledge of their value has also gone the fear of their supposed dangers and drawbacks. There is the fear that one of these chemicals especially is highly poisonous, and that every one of them causes the valves to warp from excessive heat, that it clogs the carburetor strainer and jets, that it deteriorates the motor faster than ordinary gasoline, that certain deposits from it are harmful to the motor, and so on.

All of these fears come from a lack of knowledge of exactly how these anti-knock compounds work. Explanation of the composition and operation of one, "ethyl," which happens to be the most widely used in this country, might help clear up these misconceptions.

"Ethyl" is the trade name for an anti-knock compound consisting of tetraethyl lead, ethylene dibromide, halowax oil (which is chemically known as monochlornapthalene) and red aniline dye. It is the product of long research by chemists in which more than 33,000 chemicals were tested.

The tetraethyl lead in this compound is made from alcohol and lead and is the substance that virtually "knocks out the knock" in motors. It does this by keeping the gasoline in the combustion chamber from burning too quickly when the carbon deposits, and in some parts of the country lime deposits, tend to increase the temperature of the cylinders. It, in effect, overcomes the harmful effect of carbon or lime in the cylinders.

The ethylene dibromide in the anti-knock mixture is used to prevent the tetraethyl lead from forming lead oxide, during combustion and depositing on spark plugs, valve seats and valve stems.

The halowax oil is a lubricant which keeps the exhaust valve stems from getting dry. This prevents sticking and burning of valves. It is said that if halowax oil were put into ordinary gasoline, it would minimize valve trouble.

The red aniline dye in the chemical is merely to distinguish it from other gasolines and is harmless.

There is only about one teaspoonful of anti-knock fluid whether "ethyl" or some other, in a gallon of gasoline—about one part in 1300. This is so little that it is quite harmless, yet its producers take the extremely safe attitude of warning everyone against using this compound in any other way but in gasoline. As for the exhaust from such gasoline, it is no more dangerous than that from ordinary automotive fuel—and that's deadly enough.

Knock of the kind for which such compounds are used to prevent comes from too rapid combustion of gasoline in the cylinders. It is caused by the accumulaton of carbon in the cylinder head and on the pistons. Carbon, and in some cases, lime, tends to increase the temperature of the motor beyond its point of efficiency and thus reduces the efficiency and power of the engine. There is also increased vibration from carbon knock and resultant wear and tear on the motor.

In the presence of the anti-knock fluid the gasoline is kept from burning too quickly, despite the increased temperature of the carbonized chambers, and the knock is thus avoided.

Of course these compounds do not eliminate carbon, nor do they even prevent it. Carbon will continue to form in the combustion chambers, therefore it is essential that this be scraped out at regular intervals and that the valves be ground to fit properly.

Marmon Business Shows Increase

So rapid has been the increase in the business of the Marmon Motor Car company so far this year that the company, by the end of May, was on the verge of equalling its entire sales total for 1928, the best year in Marmon history, it is announced by T. E. Jarrard, general sales director of the company.

The close of the first quarter of the Marmon fiscal year, embracing the months of March, April and May, revealed that total factory shipments of Marmon and Roosevelt cars during the period were the greatest of any previous quarterly total in the company's twenty-seven years in the automobile business, Mr. Jarrard said.

Lubbock's Praise Is Sung By South Plains Shoppers

Visitors United In Belief That Plains Hub Is "Big Sister" Of Area; Jaunts To City Are Pleasant

In a recent edition of the Avalanche-Journal several local business men and women who were quoted regarding Lubbock's position as a logical trading center for the entire South Plains—and expressed an optimistic pride because of the position and the friendly spirit manifested for and reciprocated by these neighboring towns in this trade territory.

Now come the women from several of these neighboring cities representing the South Plains trade territory, in miniature interviews, telling how they have come to look upon Lubbock as the "big sister of the South Plains cities."

Welcome Appreciated

"Lubbock appeals to us as being a mighty fine place," so said Mrs. Aubrey Cates of Ropesville. "We feel that she stands at the head of the South Plains cities, and we all like to come to Lubbock. We feel your cordial welcome when we come either to shop or to visit. Lubbock is quite a nice town and is still growing fast."

Mrs. O. M. Jennings of Muleshoe, in speaking of the "Hub" city, said, "We folks think Lubbock a fine town in which to shop, and has the finest doctors of any city on the South Plains. We feel that Lubbock is one of the outstanding cities of the Plains and is a friendly place in which to visit and shop."

Said Mrs. V. C. Snodgrass of Acuff, "We think Lubbock a fine place to trade and to visit. We also think that the Lubbock sales people and merchants are a friendly lot and we always like to come to Lubbock." According to Mrs. A. E. Todd of Shallowater, "Lubbock has built up a friendly atmosphere and has won a place in the heart of the South Plains as the "hub" city. Shallowater people come to Lubbock often to trade, and we are all mighty proud of Lubbock and its growth."

Spur Folks Come Here

Mrs. R. T. Gibson of Spur, declared, "We have a lot of our people come to Lubbock to trade. Your merchants and salespeople all treat us so nicely. We all feel that Lubbock is our 'big sister' city, and we also take much pride in watching her growth."

"We always feel at home and enjoy coming to Lubbock," said Mrs. Fred Bell, of Floydada, adding "We like to shop as well as attend your shows. The Lubbock people are so friendly they make us feel we want to come back again. And we have been coming here since moving to the Plains four years ago. Lubbock has grown so much in this time and Tech college, your hotels and other buildings are so pretty. We regard Lubbock as the leader of the South Plains citis—and, have our 'Eye on Tech' for our son who is growing up, and hope he may receive his degree from Tech some day."

Mrs. A. L. Brannon of Slaton says: "We Slaton folks like to come to Lubbock to visit, however, we do most of our shopping at home. We feel Lubbock is deserving of the "big sister" title as her people are so friendly and nice." Mrs. J. S. Carter of the New Hope community said, "We like to visit and to shop in Lubbock; we don't feel now that we could do without it. We have heard any number of people remark, that Lubbock will some day be the "Dallas" of the South Plains cities."

California Enacts Law In Effort To Curb Reckless Driving; Pay Damages

By NEA Service.

SAN FRANCISCO, June 15.—The enactment of a law under which reckless drivers will be held financially responsible for damage to life and property is a big step just taken by the state legislature in protecting the lives of motorists and pedestrians.

Supported by the California State Automobile Association and other state organiztaions, the law was passed after a two-year investigation of state-wide traffic problems.

The bill provides that a negligent driver when a damage judgment has been returned against him, must pay the bill or have his license revoked. He could then recover the license only by paying the damage judgment up to $5,000 for one death or injury, or $10,000 for more than one death or injury in a given accident or $1,000 for property damage. He would also have to give official semotor vehicles by taking out insurcurity as to his future operation of ance or posting a bond.

In case of failure to pay damages after 15 days, the revocation of the license goes into effect and should the driver operate a car during the time his license is void, he is subject to one year imprisonment, $1,000 fine, or both.

Another enactment approved by state legislature is the establishment of centralized state control of traffic. Some of ts provisions are:

Motorists must stop in obedience to flagmen or visible signal at railroad crossing.

Driving in so negligent a manner as to indicate wilful disregard of the safety of persons or property shall constitute reckless driving.

Stickers on windshields are prohibited except on lower right hand corner.

Offense of failing to stop and render aid after an accident is a misdemeanor when property is damaged and a felony when a person is injured.

Dodge Trucks Are Shipped To China

A special train, loaded with 250 Dodge Brothers trucks, left Detroit last week consigned to the Chinese government at Shanghai. The order is said to be the largest single shipment ever to leave Detroit, the Dodge truck factories working on overtime schedules to insure shipments in time to catch the S. S. President Taft, sailing from Seattle on June 15.

All trucks are one-ton capacities, and were crated and loaded on gondola cars on the special train. Bodies are now being built in Shanghai where the trucks are to be assembled. The trucks will be used in military service, being convertable to transport soldiers or supplies.

"China will be one of the most attractive export markets to American automotive manufacturers within a few years," said Mrs. T. B. Belsjoe, Dodge Brothers representative in the Orient, who has returned to the United States for a brief stay. "Military activities in China have been responsible for a great deal of road building, and when peace comes the country will have the start of a highway system.

May Is Biggest Chevrolet Month

Production Totals More Than 160,000 To Break All Previous Records For Company

DETROIT, June 15.—May was the biggest month in the history of the Chevrolet Motor company. Production for the month totalled 161,214 cars and trucks, breaking all records

Under pressure of the greatest demand in Chevrolet history, its 16 giant factories in May experienced the busiest period the company has ever enjoyed. Factory wheels turned with all the speed consistent with Chevrolet's precision manufacturing methods to accommodate the demand for cars that poured in from Maine to California and from Washington to Florida.

May was the third consecutive month to set a new all-time monthly production mark. It far surpassed the March record of 147,273 units and topped the April achievement of 157,522 units.

To accomplish this record performance Chevrolet plants averaged 7,000 cars and trucks daily; and average of 777 cars and trucks were built every hour; an average of 13 were built every minute.—and one was built every 4.6 seconds.

From present indications the same relatively high level of production will be maintained in June to keep pace with the demand, which officials report, continues unabated. Dealer stocks are still below normal due to the necessity of filling orders as fast as cars are received. Unfilled orders are over 30 per cent ahead of this same period last year. It was announced definitely that June production would break all records for the month.

Reaching here recently, Muller said he undertook the trip so that he might gain funds to wed Miss Gavinski. The German society of Miami is trying to arrange things so that Miss Gavinski will be in New York when Muller gets there in his small craft from Miami.

Muller made stops in England, France, Spain, Portugal, Morocco and the Canary islands, and says he was treated kindly everywhere, but that in many places he was feted hospitably but given no money. Hence many hungry days at sea since he set out July 6, 1928.

CHEVROLET

STYLE

The new Fisher bodies on the Chevrolet Six are unusually smart and attractive. Concave front pillars lengthen the profile—the effect of the side paneling extends well up over the roof line—and all rear quarters are artistically molded.

COMFORT

In comfort, too, these new Fisher bodies represent a marked advance. The seats are deeply cushioned. Upholstery is "built-up" for added luxuriousness. And the driver's seat is easily adjustable, forward and back.

STRENGTH

Another outstanding feature of these new Fisher bodies is their sturdy construction. Built of selected hardwood and steel, they provide a measure of strength, endurance and safety that is unapproached in any other low-priced car.

QUIETNESS

As a result of their composite wood and steel construction, Chevrolet's new Fisher bodies are exceptionally quiet. The roof is padded to prevent rumble. And wherever wood and metal contact, a layer of insulation prevents noise.

APPOINTMENTS

All hardware fittings on Chevrolet enclosed bodies are designed and built by Ternstedt. Door handles are of the remote control type—window lifts are smart and convenient—and all exterior bright metal parts are chromium-plated.

FINISH

No single feature of Chevrolet bodies has created more widespread comment than their beautiful finish—made possible by the superlatively smooth surface of the steel body panels. Applied against this silken surface, Chevrolet finishes are uniform, lustrous and permanent.

don't let your "economy" come too high

The man who feels that he cannot afford to buy the Chrysler-built De Soto Six is perhaps the very man who cannot afford not to buy it.

Obviously, if he buys a cheaper six he will do so entirely on the strength of its purchase price.

But purchase price is only one of the three major items entering into the expense of owning a car. There are also the costs of upkeep and of maintenance to be considered. The sum of these three actually represents what it costs you to drive any motor car.

De Soto Six is economical of fuel and oil. It will keep on running almost indefinitely with a negligible maintenance expense—records of De Sotos that have gone over 40,000 miles prove this. Consequently, in the course of a few months, your De Soto Six will easily save the difference between its price and that of a car inferior in engineering, design and materials.

This purely dollars-and-cents reason for preferring De Soto Six can be supplemented by the self-evident fact that all the time you are getting more comfort, pleasure, safety and pride of ownership from this Chrysler-built six than a cheaper car could possibly give you.

It will cost you nothing to take a demonstration—and no obligations implied.

Tales Of Mexican Revolution Is Told

Sales Manager For Hupp Motor Company Has Exciting Experiences In Revolution In Mexico

DETROIT, Mich., June 15.—Echoes of the recent revolution in Mexico—destruction of bridges, churches and public buildings, and sales of marauding rebel bands who terrorized and robbed villagers and travelers—are disclosed in an interesting interview given in Detroit last week.

The thrilling account of how a train was blown up, the engineer and several others killed and how he escaped through a queer quirk of fate, is told by Roberto Diaz, an eye-witness and passenger.

It was an evening early in January that Diaz, a district sales manager for the Hupp Motor Car corporation in Mexico and Central America, was a soundly-sleeping passenger on the crack overnight train between Guadalajara and Mexico City. Diaz's mission was an important one. He must meet in the morning a high official of his company.

Without warning there came a tremendous explosion, he relates. The proud flyer came to a crashing stop. The bridge immediately ahead had been dynamited and several coaches shattered and derailed. "I awoke to hear a curious mixture of prayer and profanity," Diaz said. "Women passengers screamed, children cried and men shouted as they tumbled from their berths. A half hundred bullets came crashing through the Pullman, and I sought safety on the aisle floor of the car. Other passengers followed suit as spurts of lead spasmodically punctured the car."

Hudson Outruns Motorcycle Cop

Delayed three hours by storms in Virginia, Glenn H. Curtiss, wired ahead to Washington, D. C., asking for a police escort through the city to enable him to make up some of the time lost on the Miami to New York test run of the famed aviator's newly designed Aerocar. The escort was provided but, arriving after dark and traveling at high speed the Greater Hudson powered touring unit flashed by the waiting motorcycle men before they were aware of its approach. By the time the officers had their machines in motion the Curtiss car, towed by the Hudson, was two blocks ahead and, although they put out their best speed, the police were unable to overtake it before it passed the city limits and the carefully planned escort became a laughable pursuit by two amazed officers.

At least 900,000 Londoners live more than two in a room.

ON AUTO ROW

FARMERS STAY HOME

A week of real "cotton weather" has had its effect upon the automobile business in Lubbock. The sort of weather that gives farmers of the section a chance to finish planting and to watch the young plants come to the surface has made the rural element unusually scarce on auto row. Nevertheless, there is no room for complaint, local dealers say, since the prosperity of the farmers has a great deal to do with the number of cars sold in the Fall of the year.

PROSPERITY AHEAD

Reports from the rural communities of the section indicate that the prospects are the best in years for a record-breaking cotton production —which means prosperity to auto dealers and everyone else.

OPENING STAGE SET

Final arrangements for the formal opening of the Scoggin-Dickey Motor company tomorrow were completed Saturday and the new Oakland-Pontiac dealers will throw back their doors early Monday for the inspection of their new models. Two weeks of preparation have preceeded the opening of the concern which succeeds Bradley Motor company in Lubbock automobile circles. Considerable equipment has been transferred here from Floydada where the present managers operated with the same line of cars.

ENTERTAINMENT PLANNED

Special entertainment will be offered visitors to the show rooms of the Oakland-Pontiac concern Monday night. A college orchestra will likely furnish music along with extra specialties. Valuable prizes are to be given as further inducement. All visitors will be asked to register, Mr. Dickey said yesterday.

NEW MECHANICS ADDED

Two new Chevrolet mechanics have been added to the shop force of the Kuykendall Chevrolet Company during the past week. W. F. Dunn comes to the local house from the Levelland Chevrolet company and W. L. Sublett, formerly with a Dallas Chevrolet concern, is the other. The latter arrived Friday to take up his new duties. Both mechanics are specially trained Chevrolet mechanics and holders of diplomas.

TIPS IS LEADING

Ted Tipps, sales manager of the Joe Hilton company, is leading Chrysler salesman over this district in the "On To Detroit" contest being staged by the Chrysler manufacturers. At the end of the fourth week, Tipps had sold 15 new cars as compared to 11 for the runner-up. Twenty-two districts including five agencies make up the district of which Lubbock is headquarters. The contest will close on July 1.

TWO SALES MADE

Hub Jones, manager of the Hub Motor company, local Hudson-Essex distributors, announced yesterday the sale of two new automobiles within the last few days. Joe Coursey of Lubbock is the owner of a new Hudson coach and J. C. Deckleman of this city has purchased a new Essex sedan.

EXPENSES ARE PAID

The winner of the "On To Detroit' contest will be given five days in Detroit, including three days on Lake Erie and two in the Chrysler factory. Expenses for the trip are to be paid by the Chrysler house.

Chrysler Driven Without Mishaps

An ever increasing popularity of Chrysler cars with women is reported from all over the world. Women driving Chrysler cars are recording achievements of which even the best men drivers need not be ashamed. The manner in which these cars respond to control, according to wmen who have spent hundreds of hours behind the wheel, makes these achievements possible.

An unusual tribute to the stamina and ease of operation of Chrysler c arswas paid by Mrs. Vivian W. Adams, wife of Major John Quincy Adams, United States Marine Corps, in a communication recently received by the Chrysler Sales Corporation, in which she vividly describes a 10,000 mile trip in a Chrysler "72" coupe through southern Europe, accompained only by her friend, Mrs. Gertrude T. Baskin.

Desiring to visit parts of southern Europe unfrequented by the average tourist, Mrs. Adams and Mrs. Baskin, against the advice of friends, left New York with a Chrysler coupe which had already covered 30,000 miles, with the intention of driving from Cadiz, Spain, to Turkey.

Plymouth Climbs 76 Per Cent Hill

A motorist seldom has occasion to climb a 76 per cent grade, but is none the less gratified to know his automobile can if necessary.

In order to determine for himself whether the Plymouth motor car has sufficient power to conquer such a grade, W. F. Hubbard, Plymouth dealer at Bakersfield, Cal., recently staged a hill-climbing trail on Tice Hill, near that city known to automobile drivers as one of the "meanest" hills in the country.

Tice Hill is 840 feet long, has an average grade of 54 per cent, and assumes a pitch of 76 per cent at its steepest point, near the summit. To appreciate the angle to such a grade turn the hands of your watch until they register six minutes after twelve o'clock. The angle between the hour hand and the minute hand will be approximately seventh-five per cent, an angle sufficient to intimidate even the most courageous motorist, and one which many have claimed only a specially geared car could "make."

SPECIAL DELIVERY

Electric Refrigerator Is Delivered By Airplane

The most dramatic event of the National Electric Light association convention, recently in session at the new fifteen million dollar auditorium on the Boardwalk at Atlantic City, occurred when a huge Stinson-Detroiter airplane, piloted by Eddit Stinson, famous aviator, made delivery of a new model Kelvinator via a two thousand foot drop into the Atlantic ocean.

The unique demonstration took place about four hundred yards at ea from the new auditorium before a throng of N. E. L. A. members and visitors from all over the world, as well as a number of the people of Atlantic City. It was a clear demonstration to the assembled electrical men of the possibilities of the use of airplanes for the transportation of emergency supplies. Particularly interested in its smooth success were power men who witnessed a new and speedier way to make surevys of territory and to get materials and repair crews on the ground when emergencies arise.

BIG RAIL BUSINESS

Automotive freight in 1928 totalled 3,500,750 carloads, according to the National Automobile Chamber of Commerce. Gasoline, with 1,170,000 carloads, was the commodity using the largest number of cars.

AUTOS BIG CONSUMER

The automotive industry in 1928 consumed 85 per cent of the total consumption or rubber, 74 per cent of plate glass, 60 per cent of leather, 28 per cent of nickel, 80 per cent of gasoline and 18 per cent of finished rolled steel.

Tech Climbs Into Van As Leader Of Southern Schools

Present Summer Term Indicates Popularity Of The Youngest Institution In State As Students Enroll

Texas Tech is at last coming into its own—after four hard years of struggling in an uphill climb that faces every new institution of higher education. The confidence of the educational world had to be fought for—a reputation had to be established—one that could be pointed to with a pride in its achievements. This has been done. The institutions of higher education of the south, slow in their recognition, have at last turned their eyes on Texas Tech and in them a light of favor glows for the young school which has broken all enrollment records in its four short years of life.

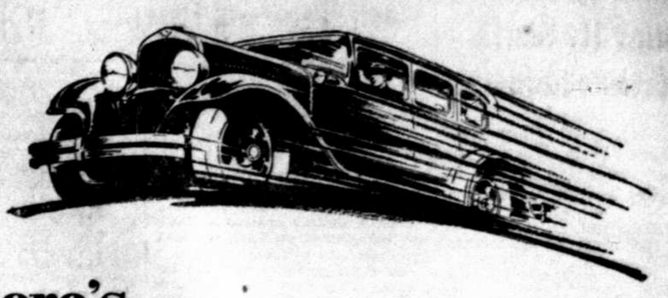

The session of 1928-29 was one of which the officers of the institution might well be proud. Students from every section of the country were represented in its personnel, and the year, from a scholastic viewpoint, was one of successful endeavor.

New Record In Sight

According to officials, the summer session which just recently began, has every indication of being a record breaker. Day after day registrations have been noted until now the total enrollment has reached 1,100 with divisions of 765 women and 335 men.

Dean J. M. Gordon, chairman of the summer school faculty, recently stated that this period should go down in history because it is the first time that every section of the South Plains has been represented. Not alone by young boys men and young women but by those who have already reached and passed that point in life when a decision must be made as to their life work. "Some of the most prominent school men and women of this section of the state are now enrolled as students," said Dean Gordon. "Many superintendents of South Plains high schools are here doing graduate work toward their masters degree.

"This is indeed exceptional. It means that the people of our own part of the state have gained confidence in us and with this confidence there will come an expansion on the part of the institution which will be heralded all over the country. The enrollment this summer is highly gratifying."

45,000,000 Are To Join Caravan Of Summer Tourists

More Motorists Than Ever Before Will Visit Principal Vacation Areas Of Nation In Warm Months

WASHINGTON, D. C., June 15.—The 1929 motor tourist caravan, 45,000,000 strong, will encounter better touring conditions this year than ever before, according to the annual pre-season survey issued today by the National Touring Bureau o fthe American Automobile Association.

The highlights of the survey of the national motoring body are:

First, the trunk line highways over which the motorists wil ltravel toward the principal summer vacation areas are on the whole in better condition this year than they have been in any previous season.

New Mileage Added

Second, a considerable amount of new mileage has been added and new important gaps filled in since the close of the last touring season, thus offering a greater diversity of routes and, in some instances, more direct connections between the centers of population and the vacation objectives.

Third, motoring services available along practically all main trunk highways have reached a higher standard of perfection.

Fourth, the agencies catering to motor tourist travel have improved their accommodations and recreational facilities.

Uniform Regulations Seen

Fifth, the movement toward uniform motor vehicle regulations has made some progress and the motorist is likely to encounter less annoyance at the hands of petty officials than heretofore.

The A. A. A. survey is based on reports from more than 1,000 affiliated A. A. A. motor clubs in the United States and Canada, as well as on reports from state highway officials throughout the country.

"Almost without exception," says the survey, "the car owner will find good roads leading to his chosen vacation spot, whether it be East, West, North or South, or in nearby Canada.

Many Erskine Six Taxis In Calcutta

Should you "call a taxi" in Calcutta, the chances are that an Erskine six will answer your summons. Furthermore, you will probably be riding in an Erskine operated by Radha Kishna Jaidka, the largest taxi operator in India.

Why Jaidka uses Studebaker's Erskine six is an interesting story. Before any make of automobile can be sold in any number for taxi use in India, the government requires that the cars shall have proved their reliability and safety by tests of one's year's duration. Two Erskine sixes were tested for one year, and at the end of the time government officials pronounced them in exceptionally good condition ad gave permission for their use in taxi service.

Automobile Industry Enters Field Of Aviation; Ford's Work Followed

General Motors Is New Company To Start Work

BY ISRAEL KLEIN
Science Editor, NEA Service

General Motors has finally made the automotive industry a major participant in aviation.

Leading automotive men are beginning to grace the tables of boards of directors for the great aviation corporations, alongside bankers and pioneers of the air. Corporations that used to be identified entirely with automotive production now have their hands in the new business that is expected to show even greater results than its predecessor in transportation.

General Motors, the leader of these points the way.

Until only a year or so ago, General Motors showed not the slightest signs of entering this venture. At that time everything in aviation seemed still in a speculative state.

Today, backed by substantial financial support and encouraged by greatly increased popular interest and partonage, aviation has become a more dependable source of worldly income. It has fostered the backing of the automotive wizards.

Ford Is the Pioneer

Ford was the only outsider who dared venture into the realms of aviation before last year. Taking control of the Stout all-metal airplane airplane business, he has developed this into a formidable enterprise.

Ford's success and that of many independents encouraged the bankers of New York and the automobile men of Detroit. Now, with General Motors in the game, aviation may be on the high road to industrial leadership even surpassing the automobile.

General Motors first stepped into aviation, rather cautiously, with the formation of the Delco Aviation Corporation last year at the triple division of the old Delco-Remy Corporation. The aviation part of the Delco business included the manufacture of ignition systems for airplanes.

At the same time, however, various General Motors divisions and subsidiaries had in them material for aviation possibilities. Now with General Motors definitely in the air, these will most probably participate in keeping their parent up.

Many Irons in the Fire

Among these General Motors "parts" may be included the Fisher Body division with its tremendous facilities for body building and its great forest tracts in Michigan and the south; the AC Spark Plug company, which has been manufacturing plugs for airplane use for some time; the National Plate Glass company with its glass products; the Ternstedt Manufacturing company with its body hardware; the Guide Lamp Corporation with its lighting facilities; the Hyatt eBarings division and the Ned Departure Manufacturing company with their bearing products; the Jaxon Steel Products division with its wheels and rims, and finally the General Motors Acceptance Corporation with its retail financing advantages.

Of course, General Motors holds minority stock in the two most important ventures it has entered—Bendix and Fokker—but it may be expected to "use its influence" at least toward turning much of their aviation business over to these subsidiarics.

The first big step into aviation taken by General Motors was made in April 1929, when the corporation took 25 per cent of the stock of the newly formed Bendix Aviation Corporation. Its contribution in payment for this stock consists of the Delco Aviation Corporation with its aviation ignition patents and facilities, and other rights the corporation has been holding in the aviation field.

Has Substantial "Partners"

Representatives of the Wright and Curtiss companies, both leading aviation firms, are on the board with those of General Motors, showing at least to this extent the united interest of the leaders in aviation and motors. This is true also of General Motors' next big step into aviation, with its acquisition of 40 per cent of the shares of the Fokker Aircraft Corporation.

Lately General Motors has acquired the Allison Engineering company which has been working on the development of a Diesel engine for airplanes as well as other mechanical features. Thus General Motors places itself in aviation almost to the hilt, awaiting only its ownership of majority stock in one of its new "partners", or in some other "independent" to be completely enwrapped in the industry.

Besides General Motors and Ford, such automotive firms as Continental Motors and Lycoming, owned by Auburn, have entered aviation. Each has built an engine for airplanes and is already in production.

We may be surprised soon with the announcement of the entry of another auto company in aviation and further introduction of even others. For the automotive industry has from the first considered itself the most logical candidate for development of aviation.

Car Tags Remind General of War

BOSTON, June 15 (AP).—It is easy for Judge Edward L. Logan of the South Boston municipal court to remember the registration number of his automobile. He can recite it without a moment's hesitation, 26101, just like that.

Judge Logan also is General Logan and during the world war was commander of the 101st regiment, 26th division. As a reminder of his wartime activities his automobile registration plates carry the number 26 for the divisicn and 101 for the regiment.

De Soto Popular College Number

The sloganized, ram shackle, collegiate automobile with its grotesque mottoes and exhibitions of art on every available inch of space from radiator to gas tank is fast disappearing, according to reports from university campuses and automobile companies the country over. Instead, the spirit of youth in motor car demand is turning to cars embodying characteristics of youthful ubeafuty and performance.

"It is true, students from this vicinity have shown a decided change in attitude toward the automobile they want to drive now compared with a year ago or more," declared Joe Hilton, local dealer for the De Soto Six, a car which is proving to be one of the most popular among members of the younger generation.

"Rumor says the same fair co-eds who refused to accompany hatless students through the streets of college towns also issued an ultimatum against the freak automobile mode of personal transportation which swept the campuses.

"The open type of automobile is in high standing now, according to a national survey made not long ago by a well-known collegiate magazine.

Jamaica sent more than 17,000,000 stems of bananas to this country in the last 12 months.

Scotland has a salmon-poaching war.

Heating System Is Important Feature

Heating a room to suit the various temperature preferences of a mixed group consisting of Eskimos, Arabs, Icelanders and Fiji Islanders would seem an easy task compared to maintaining the temperatures of different parts of an automobile engine at the most efficient point. Yet this is what automotive engineers are called upon to accomplish.

The greatest heat is generated around the combustion chamber, valves, piston head and top cylinder where the gasoline vapor burns at a high temperature. The cooling system at this point must be so designed that the engine can be warmed up quickly, yet kept from getting too hot regardless of how fast it is operated. The same cooling system must be so designed that the lower portions of the cylinder, where there is no such action to generate heat, will be kept moderately hot.

Oldsmobile engineers who designed the new Viking, the 90 degree, V-type, eight cylinder companion car to the Oldsmobile Six, devoted much thought to the cooling system.

Graham-Paige Is High In Exports

DETROIT, June 15. — In little more than twelve months, Graham-Paige has become one of the leaders in the export of American motor cars, having risen to eighth place in the number of units sent to foreign countries (Canadian shipments not included).

Overseas shipments in May were 1233, bringing the total for the first five months of the year to 6262, more than three times the figure for the same period last year, and even exceeding the total of 6239 for the entire twelve months of 1928.

When the Graham-Paige was introduced att the beginning of last year, the company had only the nucleus of an overseas selling organization. Rapid expansion of the overseas selling organization. Rapid expansion of the overseas dealer list was promoted by two main factors—the established reputation of the three Graham Brothers, whose motor trucks had been sold everywhere and the new cars themselves, the the Graham-Paige four speed driveproving an especially attractive feature in Europe because of its great advance over the four speeds spurgear transmissions commonly used there.

Because it is causing traffic congestion, a building at Pitochru, Scotland, in which Prince Charlie rested on his march to the South, may be razed.

"Chrysler came into a seemingly crowded motor car market and almost immediately swept its way into unprecedented acceptance as a quality product. That which ordinarily takes years to achieve was won almost overnight. + + Why? Because Chrysler brushed aside outworn traditions in engineering, in design, and in performance. CHRYSLER'S PLACE IN THE SUN

Prior to five years ago there were no Chrysler motor cars. In five years, Chrysler, from a standing start, has overtaken leading cars of three, four and five times its age.

The spectacle of a newcomer so swiftly becoming a leader can bring the logical mind to but one conclusion: There must be something remarkable, something altogether different and superior, in the cars that Chrysler builds.

There is a definite superiority in Chrysler cars. Hundreds of thousands of motorists the world over have learned it.

There is in Chrysler performance, a thrilling sense of endless power, a swift eagerness of life and spirit, a restful feeling of perfect balance and positive safety that cannot be experienced except in a Chrysler. There is in Chrysler design artistic freshness and modern charm. There is in Chrysler riding qualities a smoothness, a cradled restfulness quite without counterpart.

Drive a Chrysler car today and realize, better than words could ever tell you, why Chrysler has won so glittering a place in the sun—and why Chrysler goes on and on to an ever-increasing popularity and prestige.

'Sun Tan' Craze Gets Full Rein At Tech As Girls Take Their Exercise

"Oh, don't you touch my back!" is the flapper's wail at Tech this summer.

Those who are taking physical training offered the Sophomores are going in for suntan. They have cut the sleeves from their blouses and are taking their exercises sans stockings. Some are cutting the necks of their blouses low in front and back and are "doing the job up right."

"One of the girls in my tennis class and myself are running a race to see which can get the brownest," declared Miss Zella Riegel, instructor of the women's physical training classes at the Tech.

Saddles Pinch Legs

"Those who are taking horseback riding meet at 2:30 in the afternoon and ride just any place they want to go. Most of them wear the sleeveless and backless blouses but few go without hose, as the saddles pinch their legs."

Tennis, swimming, horseback riding and archery are offered the Sophomore students and each offers an excellent chance to acquire the coveted suntan.

"I had to divide my swimming class, it was so large. I had about 35 or 40 girls in one class. They meet three afternoons a week, one at four o'clock and one at five," Miss Riegel reports.

Most of the girls who are taking swimming are taking archery, too. According to Miss Riegel the swimming does not give credit and they take the archery for the credit. Most of them are taking swimming because they really want to learn and some are taking it just for the fun of it.

Miss Riegel also teaches a course in freshman physical education for the young woman of the freshman who are taking their first year of physical training. This includes marching, games, folk dances and calisthenics.

Must Follow Diet

According to Miss Riegel there are a few who are taking physical training with the idea of reducing. "But," she says, "these exercises won't reduce them unless they follow it up in their diet. I have advised them not to eat until the effects of the exercises wear off a little bit so that they won't give way to their appetite and eat too much."

Her tennis classes are large enough to fill three courts at one time. In these classes also they play in sleeveless and backless blouses and without their hose. Her tennis classes are held at ten o'clock in the morning.

She also conducts a class in education. This deals with the practice of the theory of plays and games and is offered for those who intend to teach.

Miss Riegel has quite a busy day. Starting at seven o'clock in the morning and lasting until about 11:30, and from about 2:30 in the afternoon until six o'clock. And she says, "Believe me, I surely get plenty of exercise and suntan," and which is easily borne out by her brown skin and trim figure.

LOCAL MEN HONORED

Two members of the sales force of the Kuykendall Chevrolet company have received honorable mention from the Fisher Body company on papers prepared on "Outstanding Features of Fisher Bodies." These were J. V. Spikes, sales manager, and W. L. Price.

A total of 2,000 Chevrolet employes throughout the country were entered in the contest. Of this number 15 received prizes and 85 were given honorable mention. The local men were in the latter class.

That two boys of Brigg, England, were drowned by being blown by a gust of wind face downwards into the water, was the recent verdict of the coroner.

Because of the success in Europe of the Irish Floating Exhibition showing products made in the country, it may be brought to the United States.

College Students Return Home For Summer But To Whose? Magazines Offer Trade For Aspiring Youths

BY SUTTON CHRISTIAN
Avalanche-Journal Staff

Each summer college students return home, while those of the ranks who sell magazines go to millions of homes.

Every housewife in Lubbock is familiar with him. Scantily clad in shirt sleeves, oxford bags, without tie or hat, he greets you at the door with a smile and expression of interest which causes you to think he is the neighbor's son who has been away to college and is just calling to say "hello" and borrow the lawn mower.

All But Shouts

"Why, howdedo, Mrs. Prospect, how are you this morning," he all but shouts. The housewife, embarrassed, removes perspiration from her forehead, and smiles a greeting. She puzzles over the familiarity and identity of the engaging youngster. (Here's the secret: he was told her name next door.)

"My name is Harold Suggs, of Applesauce University," he informs her, demonstrating colossal enthusiasm. "You perhaps remember me: I was around to see you last year." Of course, the kind prospect remembers that a magazine boy called last year, so she acknowledges meeting him the previous summer.

Last Year In School

"Mrs. Prospect, this is my last year in school, and I just dropped around to tell you of the scholarship campaign I'm in," he proceeds. "When I secure 18 million votes I will have earned by entire expenses for one year and your name counts me ten thousand votes."

"Just my name," she interrupts, ushering him into the reception room.

"Yes, Ma'am. Then after you've given me your name you will be interested in receiving "Duncanheimer's Bazoo," America's greatest publication devoted to women. You will have the privilege of getting it at the extremely low price of 8 cents per month."

"Do I pay each month?"

Receives July Copy

"I'll explain that later. Just put your name on this line, and you'll receive the July copy in about ten days."

"But I'm getting too many magazines now, I simply should not subscribe for another." Too many women make the mistake of offering that trite objection. It will not work. The collegian does not even flinch before the logic of your point. Instead, he smiles with renewed energy, takes two or three leaps in the air and exclaims, "certainly you're taking lost of magazines. Every cultured home does. Your beautiful little home reflects refinement and I'd be greatly surprised if you're not subscribing to at least twenty publications. Place your name here, Mrs. Prospect, you'll get the first copy immediately."

"If you're going to college I'd like to subscribe to help you, but how do I know you're attending college," she advances.

Family Honor Shines

"Surely you do not doubt the authenticity of my representations. The honor of my family shines with undiminished effulgence through the gathering mists of accumulating years, and were I to prove unworthy of the noble heritage conscience would tenaciously torment me."

If the vocabulary does not seem quite convincing, he answers the argument by pulling up his trouser leg, and remarks, "I wear rolled socks, Mrs. Prospect. Then he sings a few college songs, gives several yells, and speaks a little campus slang. Sometimes it is effective for the lad to show a picture of the campus.

"Well, if I want to help any one I will help the Tech boys," she tries evasively.

Mother Helped Boys

"Why Mrs. Prospect, aren't you ashamed. Five Tech boys called at my mother's home over in Bingtown the other day, and now mother has an electric washing machine, 24 pairs of silk hose, fifty volumes of Parker's Elucidator,an adding machine and three gold fish. She says she wishes she could do more for the boys."

The situation becomes pathetic. Mrs. Prospect wipes a tear of huge proportion from a sympathetic eyy. She is stirred to unnecessary grief. Since she is desirous of having the interesting magazine, she should never have mentioned the word "help."

"But I can't afford it," she offers, confident of victory.

"Can't Afford It?"

"Can't afford it," he retorts with a voice that causes Mrs. Jones across the street to wake at 10 o'clock in the morning, thus enabling her to get up in time to prepare lunch for husband. "You can't afford to be without it. Surely you would not have your club know you're not a subscriber to this exclusive magazine. And it's only 8 cents a month, let me remind you. Place your name here," he pleads again, feigning politeness.

"We are leaving town: we will not live here much longer."

"Mrs. Prospect, when you leave you will drop your friends a card. Then why not send this magazine company a card to let them know where you are when you arrive at your new home? "

Resistance Breaks

The tissue threads of resistance are weakening. She sinks in a chair, almost exhausted. He advances a pad. Presently, the husband arrives for the noon day meal, angered by the absence of prepared food.

Mrs. Housewife, awed by the expressive silence of the husband, introduces Harold Suggs of Applesauce University, who in turn tells Mr. Prospect the purpose of his visit.

"Shall I subscribe" the defeated wife asks with a furtive glance at the domineering ruler of the house.

"Yes," he replies, impressively. He goes into the kitchen.

The formality of signature and address being over, she inquires, "How much d I owe you?" He rapidly calculates on a slip of paper—8 cents per month—three years —36 time 8—two dollars and eighty-eight cents.

The deal is closed and another boy will go to college next year.

FATHER'S DAY

To him whose leadership has provided the material necessities for the world's greatest institution, the home, and whose love and comradeship have linked daughter and son into closer relationship with parental ties, we honor today with expressions of devotion.

Father exemplifies the highest ideals of American manhood in business and social relationships, and his share of parental responsibility touches the finest chords of the human heart. He must measure up to the standards which the mother teaches the son, and he must be the man possessing the fine characteristics which daughter hopes to find in the man she would marry.

Let us thank our fathers for the splendid traditions, the noble spirit of comradeship, and for the path he has beaten in the progress of a nation.
