On Economic Goals...

Court To Review Market Policy

By RICHARD CARELLI
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) - The Supreme Court agreed today to review lower court rulings the federal government says will impair seriously the way it pursues the nation's economic goals.

The justices said they will study decisions barring the Federal Open Market Committee of the Federal Reserve System from circumventing "prompt" disclosure provisions of the Freedom of Information Act.

A bill that would permit the committee to temporarily withhold information about its activities is now pending in Congress.

In other court action the Supreme Court today left intact police-hiring practices in Rochester, N.Y., that give preference to applicants from racial minorities.

The justices refused to hear an appeal by 16 unsuccessful white applicants for police jobs who claimed the practices are a form of illegal racial discrimination.

The court's action today does not represent any ruling as to the merits of the city's police-hiring policies.

The justices merely left standing a decision of the 2nd U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals that the 16 white applicants had no legal right to challenge the policies because they had waited too long to do so.

The open market committee is made up of members of the Federal Reserve System's board of governors and five representatives of Federal Reserve banks.

The committee, through an investment pool called the System Open Market Account, authorizes and directs Federal Reserve purchases and sales of government securities and some in the domestic securities market.

Enormous amounts of money are involved. In 1974, for example, the committee bought and sold some $19.4 billion worth of government securities.

An account manager in New York is responsible for the day-by-day supervision of the open market operations, but the committee meets once a month to discuss policy objectives and guide the account manager.

The committee guidelines become a matter of public record in what is called a "domestic policy directive" - a statement of general monetary policy.

The public release of each month's directive, required under the Freedom of Information Act passed by Congress in 1966, is deferred until a few days after the following month's meeting.

David R. Merrill, a law student at Washington's Georgetown University, challenged the deferring policy in 1975, charging that it violated the "prompt" disclosure requirements of the 1966 law passed to curtail government secrecy.

Explosion Near JD

WASHINGTON (AP) - A small explosive device blew up today on the sidewalk near the Justice Department's headquarters, causing little damage. No injuries were reported.

District of Columbia police spokesman J.C. Gentile said bomb squad experts were attempting to determine what kind of device was used and who placed it on the ground under a sign reading "Department of Justice."

Hedda Polanski, a public information officer with the department, said the device was a pipebomb.

Police roped off the Constitution Avenue side of the Justice Department and police squads using specially trained dogs searched the area for other bombs.

Filibuster Continues

WASHINGTON (AP) - Senators pick up this week where they left off on Friday, caught up in a filibuster on proposed labor law revision that may drag on for weeks.

House members, meanwhile, are preparing to vote later in the week on a tax proposal President Carter doesn't like.

And key congressmen working on the president's stalled energy plan say this may be the week they win approval in a House-Senate conference committee for a long-sought compromise on natural gas deregulation.

Ecology Costs Too

KNOXVILLE, Tenn. (AP) - President Carter, addressing workers at the government's largest electrical utility, today declared that the price of energy "must cover all legitimate costs of production including environmental protection."

Carter's assertion dovetails with long-held contentions of the privately owned utilities, oil companies and other energy producers that environmental costs should be included in prices ultimately paid by consumers.

In an address prepared for a meeting of Tennessee Valley Authority employees, Carter added that energy prices definitely should not cover waste or "windfall profits at the consumer's expense."

Gromyko To Session

MOSCOW (AP) - Foreign Minister Andrei A. Gromyko left today to attend a special disarmament session of the U.N. General Assembly, where he is expected to press the Kremlin's campaign against the neutron bomb.

Gromyko also is expected to hold parallel talks on a U.S.-Soviet strategic arms limitation agreement with Secretary of State Cyrus R. Vance. The meeting is a follow up to SALT talks here last month at which both sides reported some progress.

Texaco Men Strike

PORT ARTHUR (AP) - About 25 laboratory technicians, complaining that new positions are being filled without regard to seniority, set up picket lines early Monday that kept day shift employees from reporting to work at Texaco Refinery.

They were members of the Oil, Chemical and Atomic Workers, Local 4-23. Members of other unions were honoring the picket lines, which were set up beginning about 5:30 a.m.

Won't Tolerate Leaks

WASHINGTON (AP) - Presidential press secretary Jody Powell says there's no organized White House effort to control news leaks.

But anyone caught "spreading false or misleading information" will not find their career prospects improved, Powell said.

For his part, President Carter has told senior advisers and Cabinet members he will not tolerate their public discussion of inside information after White House policy is set.

Dollar Up In Europe

LONDON (AP) - The U.S. dollar opened strongly higher in Europe today due to anticipation by money dealers that U.S. interests rates will go up soon.

Higher interest rates mean that dollar-investors earn more for their money.

Gold rose in London, where the morning fixing price was $179.35 an ounce, up from $178.85 at the close on Friday.

In Tokyo, where trading ended as European markets were opening, the dollar closed at 228.95 yen, from 227.375 on Friday.

Bell Rate Hike Hearing Begins

By LEE JONES
Associated Press Writer

AUSTIN (AP) - Attorney General John Hill said today that part of Southwestern Bell's $220.3 million rate increase request is a subterfuge that singles out the taxpayer-financed state government CENTREX system.

Hill's statement, read by an aide, came as the Texas Public Utility Commission began what is expected to be a long hearing on the telephone company's latest request for higher rates.

The $220.3 million, if approved, would be collected from Bell customers over a year's time.

Hill said that Bell has a "grossly overstated request" and recalled that the commission's action of Dec. 19, 1976, on a bigger increase is still before the courts on appeal by Bell.

Hill said the proposed increase for CENTREX service to state government alone would be as high as $40,000 a month "or almost $500,000 a year as an additional burden on state government."

He contended that Bell was "saying that we can dump a large part of this rate increase on state government and the people will never know the difference.

"Most people see through this subterfuge as it is only through keeping down the cost of state government that we protect the taxpayers of this state," he said.

Houston City Attorney Bob Collie complained that while residential telephone service in his city does cost about 46 percent more to operate than in the state's smaller cities, Bell was charging 68 percent more. And rather than correct this, he said, Bell now proposes an across-the-board increase in residential rates.

Commission counsel John Bell said the agency's staff "disagrees with Southwestern Bell on all fronts. Just about everywhere we could disagree with them we did disagree with them."

Southwestern Bell's attorney, Jon Dee Lawrence, said Bell's current rate failed to meet the "legal test of reasonableness."

"We come into this case 40th among the 48 states in earnings," Lawrence said.

He said that while the utility commission said in Bell's last rate case that the company should earn a 9½ percent return on its investments, the rates that were placed in effect generated only a 7.74 percent return.

The Texas Municipal League and other consumer groups were on hand to fight the increase.

Market Rebounds

NEW YORK (AP)-The stock market swung upward again today in relatively quiet trading, rebounding from the setback it sustained late last week.

The Dow Jones averages of 30 industrials, which fell 11.52 points last Thursday and Friday, gained back 2.51 to 849.36 by noontime today.

Gainers held a 6-5 advantage over losers among New York Stock Exchange-listed issues.

Ask Us

Q - Why are the school tennis courts closed to the public and why can't they be lighted for public use?

A - Supt. Bill J. Hood says the courts are fenced and locked up while not in use for school activity to curb vandalism. In times past nets and court surfaces have been damaged. The court surfaces are highly susciptible to damage from skateboards and even bicycles, and repairs and or replacements are costly. Also, the schools feel that these courts should be primarily for school activities since they are financed by school tax dollars and the school uses them most of the time anyway.

SUDDEN CHANGE — Water standing in ditches and fields was a sudden and welcome change in Scurry County over the weekend as the best rains since last August fell. This scene is near Hermleigh, where some of the heaviest rains fell. (SDN Staff Photo)

SNYDER TEMPERATURES: High Saturday, 70 degrees; low, 63 degrees; reading at 7 a.m. Sunday, 63 degrees; precipitation, .60. High Sunday, 80 degrees; low, 62 degrees; reading at 7 a.m. today, 63 degrees; precipitation, none; total precipitation for 1978 to date, 6.43.

West Texas-Partly cloudy and warm today and tonight, becoming mostly fair Tuesday over the entire area. Widely-scattered thunderstorms central and north this afternoon and evening. Highs today lower 80s north and mountains to upper 90s south. Lows tonight upper 50s north and mountains to upper 60s south. Highs Tuesday middle 80s north and mountains to middle 90s south and near 103 along the Rio Grande in the Big Bend.

Area Soaks Up More Rainfall

Snyder and Scurry County soaked up more rainfall over the weekend as the best moisture supply since last August went into the ground.

The official gauge in Snyder logged .60 inch Saturday evening, making a total of 2.60 for the two-day wet spell.

Meanwhile, additional rain in some parts of the county raised unofficial totals to four inches or more. The heaviest was reported in the southeast part of the county and in the Dunn area. Rain measuring 3.50 inches or more was reported at several points in the east part of the county, while 2.25 to 2.50 was reported in the Fluvanna and Dermott areas.

Lake J.B. Thomas still had not picked up any additional water from the rains, which fell slowly and soaked into the ground as rapidly as they fell. The two-day rainfall total at the Lake Thomas dam was 1.60 inches.

More thunderstorm activity was reported in the Texas Panhandle last night and early today. Several counties were under severe thunderstorm warnings. Hail the size of golf balls fell in the Amarillo area around midnight and .98 inch of rain was reported there, flooding streets briefly.

Skies were mostly cloudy over the state with only a few amounts of rain reported. Dalhart reported .21 of an inch and Waco received .08. Some thunderstorms remained after midnight over portions of western and northeastern Texas but decreased rapidly.

Early morning temperatures ranged from the lower 50s in the Panhandle to the lower 70s around Dallas and the upper 70s at Brownsville.

The National Weather Service predicted highs in the 80s and 90s again today for Texas, with most sections of the state being visited by widely scattered thunderstorms this afternoon.

Sentence Delayed...

"Son Of Sam" Goes Berserk

By Richard T. Pienciak
Associated Press Writer

NEW YORK (AP)-David Berkowitz, the Son of Sam killer, was dragged from a Brooklyn courtroom today, kicking, biting and yelling obscenities. A judge postponed the sentencing for six murders until June 12 and ordered another psychiatric examination.

After he was brought briefly into the courtroom in handcuffs, Berkowitz began chanting, "Stacy was a whore!" over and over again. Stacy Moscowitz was the last of Berkowitz's murder victims.

Ten guards wrestled him from the court chamber.

Robert Violante, the slain girl's date who also was shot by Berkowitz, stood up in the courtroom and shouted obscenities as the .44 caliber killer was led away. Members of the Moscowitz family jumped to their feet and shouted curses at him.

As guards tried to bring him into the courtroom the first time about 10 a.m., Berkowitz lunged toward a barred window and had to be subdued. In the struggle, he bit and kicked several of the guards and one of them was taken to a hospital, according to a police source.

The extent of the guard's injuries was not known.

District attorneys from the three boroughs where the killings took place left the courtroom shortly after the proceedings were to have begun at 10 a.m.

Edward McCarthy, aide to Bronx District Attorney Mario Merola, said Berkowitz told court authorities he did not want to be sentenced - "at least not today."

Berkowitz, who faced prison terms totaling up to 175 years in his sentencings, was in the building but was not seen in the courtroom.

County Facility Uses Questioned

Scurry County Commissioners this morning were asked to prohibit the county and district attorney from using county facilities for handling cases in private practice of law.

Tommie Mills, local attorney, said that a new statute provides that county property cannot be used to benefit any private business. He said that, although most counties in the state have in the past permitted county and district attorneys to handle civil cases in private practice from their offices in the courthouse, they are moving away from the practice in compliance with the latest statute. Mills said he had obtained an opinion from the attorney general and that it stated that this practice now is prohibited.

Commissioners said they had followed a statute which gave commissioners considerable discretion in such matters when the private practice was not a major portion of an individual's work.

Mills said that several lawyers had discussed the situation and felt that the commissioners court should take another look at the situation here. He asked for and got assurance that the matter would be on the agenda at the commissioners court's meeting next Monday.

Survivors Cite Rebel Rampage

By ALFRED CHEVAL
Associated Press Writer

BRUSSELS, Belgium (AP)-Rebels went on a rampage of murder and rape during their "hunt for the white man" in the Kolwezi fighting, survivors said on arrival from Zaire's copper-mining capital where 170 whites were reported killed. Some accused Zairean troops of looting.

About 1,700 of the 2,500 Europeans and Americans trapped during the May 13-20 siege had been flown to Europe by this morning as French and Belgian paratroopers mopped up rebel resistance in Shaba Province.

The French Defense Ministry in Paris said rebel forces armed with Soviet made weapons remained concentrated in a six-mile radius around Kolwezi and were still within small-arms range of its airport.

Olivier Stirn, France's Secretary of State for Foreign Affairs, told a radio interviewer in Paris that least 170 whites had been killed in the Kolwezi area. Scores of others, including 50 French citizens, are missing and may be held hostage by the rebels, Stirn said.

Following reports of Belgian-French differences over the combined paratroop operation, the office of French President Valery Giscard d'Estaing said Belgian Prime Minister Leo Tindemans telephoned the president today to express thanks "for French efforts to ensure the security of Belgian citizens in Kolwezi."

A Belgian refugee arriving in Brussels who identified himself only as Dupont, an engineer for Zaire's state-owned Gecamies company, said 120 white deaths were confirmed.

Speculating on what future historians may have to say about current events has little meaning but it is a good way to kill time between elections and World Series baseball or pro football's Super Bowl games. One of its strong points is that nobody now living will be around a hundred years from now to point out possible errors.

It would be fun, however, to see how political pundits and radio-TV news analysts of 2078 size up events of the last fourth of the 20th century in the United States of America. There is no way of arriving at a solid opinion because what happens now will be judged by events immediately following.

For example, if there should be a nuclear war along about 2039 what Jimmy Carter and the 96th Congress finally decide to do about the energy problem, tax reform or the Federal budget would be of no importance. But if something doesn't take place to change the course of history and decide the fate of nations, historians will look at the record for the last quarter of the 20th century and first quarter of the 21st and make some evaluations.

In that case it is a safe bet they won't say of our political leaders in this particular period this was their finest hour.

When Jimmy Carter became President in January, 1977, he called Congress into joint session and told lawmakers and the people of the country that the energy crisis was serious enough to warrant the statement that it is the moral equivalent of war. That was strong language. Only time will tell whether it was accurate. But if national leaders should go about dealing with a war situation with the same degree of indecisiveness that has characterized the debate on the energy problem the cause would be lost before anybody on our side got ready to fight.

Reports from Washington during the last few days indicate the agreement on a compromise energy bill may reach the Oval Office early next month. But, as compromises often are, the result may have little bearing on the problem, and we will bungle along, mixing energy legislation with tax reform and social action until a real crisis develops.

Legend tells us that a Roman Emperor named Nero back in the first century insisted on practicing his violin lessons while an invading army set fire to important buildings in his capital city. Politics as usual has been the principal activity in Washington during the last 15 months.

"Just a salad for old George here — he's supposed to be on a low- inflation diet."

hearst's headlines

Patricia Hearst has taken up permanent residence in the headlines, or so it is beginning to appear.

Her appeal for a reduction in sentence having been denied and the U.S. Supreme Court having declined to review the case, she has been returned to federal prison to resume serving her seven-year sentence for bank robbery.

The correctional facility at Pleasanton, Calif., where she is confined is not your usual prison environment. Fences surround dormitory buildings separated by lawns. Inmates are lodged in rooms without bars. Guards are unarmed for the most part. This is not the place for the criminal considered dangerous to society at large.

Patricia Hearst participated, either willingly or under compulsion, in a bank robbery and shootings in company with members of the Symbionese Liberation Army. She was tried, convicted and sentenced.

Not to require her to serve that sentence, it might be said, would be according an heiress special consideration which would be denied a penniless unknown.

But it might also be said that had she been just another face in the crowd and not Patricia Hearst, she would not have been abducted and placed in the position of participating, willingly or otherwise, in criminal acts.

Herein lies the essential ambiguity in the Hearst case. Despite the plentitude of headlines, it is still far from clear precisely what occurred during her months as the most celebrated fugitive of recent history, and who was responsible.

These questions may never be answered. And another to consider is precisely what purpose of society is being served by returning Patricia Hearst to prison at this point.

Having previously served 371 days of her sentence, she will be eligible for parole in another 14 months. But there should be further word of her before that. She is expected to testify in the July trial of William and Emily Harris, charged with her kidnapping.

More headlines for Patricia Hearst.

at wits end

by erma bombeck

When I am recycled and come back into this world, I want to come as one of those people who are ahead of their time before it's fashionable.

You know the ones I'm talking about. The ones who are the first to deplore a war... who played tennis before it was "in"... who predicted their U.S. Senator would end up serving time before he won... who bought property along the beach when it was $1 an acre... who predicted 20 years ago that New York would go broke.

Some people are just meant to be pacesetters. Me? All I ever see is the rear end of a trend going out.

I never got to the "Islands" before they were open to "anyone."

I was the last to discover white wine.

The last to wear my sunglasses on top of my head.

The last to read "Roots."

The last to "get in touch with my feelings."

In fact, I don't know how I'm going to feel about anything until a bumper sticker comes out on it.

At a cocktail party the other night, I engaged in conversation with a physical fitness freak.

"Pound this stomach," he instructed, his entire body constricted.

I hesitated.

"Go ahead. Punch it with your fist! Is that a solid wall of muscle?"

I had to agree.

"I hope you're keeping your body in shape," he admonished.

"Oh, I am. I have this thing that hooks over the doorknob that I limber up on."

"You're kidding. That's passe."

"Actually, it belongs to one of the kids. I personally have a book on Air Force exercises."

"Air Force! What do they know about fitness?"

"Which is exactly why I threw the book away. I'm into bicycling now and..."

"Bicycling was good in its time."

"I couldn't agree more. That's why I changed to tennis."

"Which is on its way out," he said. "Nothing does it as far as I'm concerned like jogging. It gets the old juices going. I want to see you out there tomorrow morning as if your health depended on it."

The next morning I wheezed and panted my way down the street in front of my house. At the turn I could see about 50 bodies kicking up the dust as they took a lead on me. I wondered if I was seeing the rear end of another trend... or was that just wishful thinking?

WASHINGTON (NEA) - Conventional economists shudder at the mention of his name, but Rep. Jack Kemp, R-N.Y., is onto something.

At a time when most practitioners of the "dismal science" are fretting about the federal deficit and the inflationary potential of President Carter's modest tax cut, the former Buffalo Bill quarterback is going for the long bomb.

Jack Kemp wants to cut taxes. Not just a smidgen, as Jimmy Carter has proposed, but a whole lot. With Sen. William Roth, R-Del., he is pushing for a 30 percent slash in personal income tax rates over the next three years.

Although it hasn't a prayer of passing, the Kemp-Roth tax bill is driving congressional Democrats up the wall-not because they are sure it's ridiculous but because it just might work.

As Kemp reminds them at every opportunity, his plan is patterned after the enormously successful tax cuts that President John F. Kennedy initiated in 1963.

Those across-the-board cuts, which reduced personal income tax rates nearly 20 percent, produced the highest real investment growth in modern history, the fastest growth of real disposable income, the biggest spurt in real industrial output-and the lowest inflation rate of recent times.

The Treasury Department expected the Kennedy tax cuts to mean a revenue loss of $89 billion for the years 1963-68. Instead, they produced a $54 billion increase in revenue for that period as a result of accelerated economic activity.

Economists can and do argue incessantly about the applicability of the Kennedy tax cut experience to today's conditions. But what is compelling about Kemp's approach is not the fiscal impact so much as the psychology involved.

"I am not an economist," the four-term congressman says, "but I understand human behavior and I'm an expert on incentives."

Ah yes-incentives. There lies the crux of the matter. Jack Kemp believes the existing tax structure insidiously penalizes traditional virtues of thrift, hard work and investment while rewarding consumption, debt and leisure.

Why work harder to gain more nominal income when you merely wind up in a higher tax bracket and the government gobbles up a larger share of your hard-earned salary? Why put money into a savings account at 5.3 percent interest when inflation of 7 percent leaves you with a net loss of purchasing power?

Why buy stocks and bonds when you can invest in real estate on borrowed money, deducting the mortgage interest? "People don't work for pre-tax income, they work for take-home pay. Investors don't look for pre-tax profit, they worry about the net," Kemp says.

Unless tax rates are slashed significantly, inflation will continue to push wage-earners into even-higher tax brackets, he argues. "Even if nominal income keeps pace with inflation, the government gets more than its share of the extra dollars.

Most audiences Kemp addresses have no trouble at all understanding his point, even if they find his arithmetic difficult to follow. Even workers who have received steady pay increases over the past few years, increases at least commensurate with the inflation rate, are discovering they have less money in terms of actual purchasing power than they started with.

That is why the Kemp-Roth bill is not likely to go away. Republicans have already embraced it warmly, and it is gaining Democratic adherents as well. Economists may argue forever about its fiscal feasibility, but it is the only tax plan on the table that addresses the incentive issue.

NEW YORK (AP) - If you believe, as some do, that the United States has lost some of its attractiveness as a place to invest, you should consider these recent items:

From the Conference Board, a non-profit educational and research organization supported mainly by business:

"The United States was the site of nearly half the 214 worldwide manufacturing investments in the first quarter of this year.

"While the latest count is down from the 235 investments announced in the fourth quarter of 1977, this was more than offset by the generally larger size of first-quarter projects."

From Salomon Brothers, the securities firm:

"Foreign investors' purchases of U.S. Treasury securities accelerated in the first quarter of this year.

"In the first three months of 1978 alone, foreign holdings in custodial accounts at the New York Federal Reserve Bank swelled to $88.3 billion, an unprecedented increase of $12.5 billion for just three months.

"Foreign investors, mostly official institutions, are now the largest single factor in the U.S. Government securities market.

"These holdings, which totalled $107.8 billion on Dec. 31, 1977, exceed both the holdings of all U.S. commercial banks and those of the Federal Reserve."

From the head of North American operations for an Italian manufacturing company:

"There is only one country in which to invest today. Because of political and social problems, it is too risky to put money into some developed countries. The United States is the only safe investment."

From the National Association of Realtors:

"Just how extensive are foreign investments in U.S. farmlands? The answer is elusive.

"As of the end of 1974, according to the survey by the Commerce and Treasury Departments for the Foreign Investment Study Act of 1974, foreign interests owned just over 1 million acres of agricultural land in the United States."

Part of what makes the United States attractive to foreigners is the lower value of the dollar in relation to foreign currencies, which makes American goods and services that much less expensive to buy.

But such an explanation is simple to the point of not being one at all. A better explanation is that foreigners are simply acting like all prudent investors:

They are concerned foremost with the security and high yield of their investment, and they feel that relative to many other countries the United States still offers the best deal available.

Hearty Apples

COLLEGE STATION--Apples--with only 70 calories--supply needed vitamins and minerals plus fiber, an important contribution for its cleansing effect on teeth and gums.

In addition, it's hard to beat the firmness and natural sweetness of a fresh apple, says Marilyn Haggard, foods and nutrition specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, The Texas A&M University System.

For quick and easy dessert, peel and core one apple for each serving, she suggests.

Or, slice the apples into about 10 pieces each and place in a saucepan with enough water to cover the bottom of the pan.

Next, sprinkle with one tablespoon brown sugar and one tablespoon raisins for each apple.

Then, add a sprinkle of cinnamon and simmer for 15 to 20 minutes.

Serve hot as is, or add a small spoonful of sour cream.

Or, serve cold with vanilla ice cream.

For a more elegant dessert, core apples and fill each with raisins and brown sugar. Bake in a shallow pan containing about one-fourth inch of water for one hour at 375 degrees F.

Pork chops are a natural mate for the apple, the specialist points out.

Place one-inch apple slices topped with brown sugar and a dot of butter on thickly sliced pork chops.

Bake at 325 degrees F. for about one hour.

Alan: "Some bands can only be made by creating an illusion for the defenders. It is improper to create this illusion by means of remarks, gestures, slow play when there is no problem or anything except the actual cards you play."

Oswald: "When South looked over dummy he realized that his seven bid was silly indeed. There were twelve easy tricks staring him in the face. There was no legitimate way to get a thirteenth."

Alan: "This didn't keep South from working out a nice swindle. He simply ran off his whole trump suit. East held four clubs. So did West. Because each one felt that his partner would hold just three, each threw everything else away to keep clubs and eventually South cashed all his diamonds."

Oswald: "This shouldn't have worked. East should have jettisoned his diamonds in the order 6-8-Q. This would give West a count on the diamond suit. He would know that South held seven spades and five diamonds. The bidding showed that his other card was the ace of hearts and West would chuck all his clubs."

Alan: "He should have, but he didn't."

Ask the Experts

A self-styled beginner asks what is meant by the expression, "Double dummy play." This refers to play based on seeing all 52 cards. Obviously, it is easier to make the best play under those conditions.

Girl Scout Crafts Eligible For Fair

Now is the time for pre-camp thinking and long range plans for Girl Scouts, age 6-17. The Day Camps at Abilene, Haskell, Snyder, Lamesa, Hamlin and resident camp at Boothe Oaks will offer opportunities the girls can cash in on at the West Texas Fair, Sept. 9-16, in Abilene. Its a good time to share arts and crafts made during the summer months as well as in the troop meetings.

Polly Sands, Girl Scout Fair Chairman announces four categories for Girl Scouts from all over the West Texas Council. All levels may enter the first three categories: Collections, Creative Paintings, and miscellaneous (puppets, macrame, prints, etc.) The fourth category includes specialities: Nature Toys for Brownies, Clay for Juniors, Stitchery for Cadettes and Seniors.

Many troops in the council plan to enter their work of the past months from leatherwork to weaving projects. Both Mrs. Sands and her craft judge, Beth Hennigan have worked with the Girl Scout Division of the Woman's Department for four years. They stress originality and creativity and urge girls to start experimenting in the World of Arts.

The entry date is Sept. 6, 9 a.m. - 6 p.m.

National Piano Guild Auditions Held Here

Snyder Piano pupils from the classes of Mrs. Billy G. Tune, 3212-40th, Mrs. Wayne Bethel 3300-48th, Mrs. Kenny Kornegay, 3102-42nd, Mrs. Randy Perkins, 2509-31st, Mrs. Jerry Neill 2211-41st and Mrs. Bessie L. Miers, Rt. 2 Rotan have enrolled in the National Piano Playing Auditions sponsored by the National Guild of Piano Teachers, teacher division of the American College of Musicians.

Auditions will be held May 22-27 with Mrs. A.C. Elliott of Sonora as adjudicator. The biggest piano judge event in the world is conducted in over 700 Audition Centers from coast to coast with more than 96,000 piano teachers and students participating. Every entrant will be certified, given a gold, silver or bronze embossed pin, a year's membership in the National Fraternity of Student Musicians and Piano Hobbyists of the World.

Awards for students participating in the auditions include certificates, pins, plaques, diplomas, and scholarships. Incentives and awards helps increase the skills and knowledge of students due to the effort put forth getting ready for the auditions. Whether a student receives all C's, or C's and A's (attention to), nothing could deprive a student from the added progress of having learned the program of music. There is not any way a student or teacher will lose from having put forth the effort of learning music for the private auditions held annually by the National Guild.

Mrs. Clarence Moore is monitor for the auditions. Auditions will be conducted in the church parlor of First Baptist Church.

VOLUNTEERS TIME — Gary Huddleston, pictured at right, music and educational associate at First United Methodist Church volunteered his time to entertain residents at Leisure Lodge during Texas Nursing Home Week. He sang a number of Barry Manalow songs. On hand to enjoy the program was Larry Genuchi, KSNY announcer, center and Mrs. Juanita Land, administrator at Leisure Lodge, on the left.

Fatties Bounced From University

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1978 by Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd. Inc.

DEAR ABBY: Now I've heard everything! My niece, who happens to be a very good student, claims that she was suspended from Oral Roberts University in Tulsa, Okla., because she is overweight. Can you believe that? She said that she and three others were kicked out of the university because they failed to lose at least one pound a week, in accordance with a pledge they signed when they entered the university.

I can't for the life of me understand what a person's weight has to do with his scholastic record, and I find it hard to believe that a school with the fine reputation enjoyed by Oral Roberts University would ever make such a rule.

My niece has always been a fairly good student, but it's possible that she flunked out and just made up that story to save face.

Will you please look into this and let me know if this kid is putting me on or if such a rule really exist?

STEAMED IN OKLAHOMA

DEAR STEAMED: It's true. It seems that your niece ate herself out of the university. But I'm told that every student at O.R.U. pledges that he (or she) will make every effort to keep physically fit, and the university provides a diet and exercise program to help. Furthermore, I have it orally from Oral himself that this rule includes the faculty, too!

DEAR ABBY: Our 28-year-old daughter has been self-supporting since she graduated from college, and we have always been very proud of her. (She's in fashion.)

Yesterday she came over for dinner and her father and I nearly fainted when we saw her. She looked as though she had given herself a cheap home perm and didn't bother to set it!

It looked terrible and we told her so. She said we would get used to it because it is the latest thing.

Abby, her beautiful blond head was just a frizzy mop, with no shape or style. I can't for the life of me understand why any fashion-conscious young woman would want to go around looking that way.

I am 47—not exactly a relic—and I appreciate up-to-date fashions and hairstyles, but I can't understand this new hideous hairstyle. Can you?

HORRIFIED IN HOUSTON

DEAR HORRIFIED: No. But cheer up. This too shall pass.

DEAR ABBY: When my son was living at home he was so fussy about his shirts that if there was a little wrinkle in the collar, he'd throw the shirt back in the hamper for me to do over.

Well, he's married now, and you should see what he's putting up with. His wife never washes anything unless everything is dirty and they need something clean. I've seen her wash one shirt out in the kitchen sink, and then press it on the kitchen table, right over eggshells and bread crumbs!

Believe me, my son wasn't raised that way, and it kills me to see it. He never complains, and you never hear a cross word between them.

Can a man forget his early training so soon? How can I teach this sloppy girl to keep house properly?

PERTURBED IN PUEBLO

DEAR PERTURBED: If she asks you to teach her, teach her. But don't volunteer. As long as your son is happy, close your eyes and let your mouth follow suit.

If you put off writing letters because you don't know what to say, get Abby's booklet, "How to Write Letters For All Occasions." Send $1 and a long, stamped (24 cents) envelope to Abby: 132 Lasky Drive, Beverly Hills, Calif. 90212.

Garland Church Roof Collapses

GARLAND (AP) - Services at the Walnut Village Church of Christ had barely begun. Worshippers had their heads bowed in prayer when disaster struck.

"If just had a feeling something was going to happen," Mike Cain, 18, said Sunday. "I looked toward the ceiling. Then there was this explosion and the ceiling fell. It was like being under a waterfall."

The pinewood roof and heavy beams crashed into the sanctuary under the weight of water collected from an overnight rain of almost 2 inches.

Some 200 members of the congregation screamed. Nine-year-old Shannon Smith was killed. Fifty-seven other people were injured, five critically.

Gene Griffin, a church elder who was leading the prayer, said: "It had rained a lot, but apparently the flat roof was not strong enough to support the weight. The drain apparently wasn't working properly."

The roof fell at 10:35 a.m. Ten minutes earlier the sanctuary was empty.

"Thank God my parents were late getting here," said Cain, who was narrowly missed by a falling beam.

The roof of the sanctuary looked like it had been bombed. Debris was piled high on church pews.

Bill Allen, who was sitting just four rows from the back, was knocked into the aisle.

"I tried to crawl back to my pew to find my wife, but the trash was so deep I couldn't find her," Allen said.

He waited for almost three hours as fire department rescuers tried to find his wife. She was discovered later in a hospital. He broke down and wept after a policeman told him she was safe.

Nine ambulances made at least two trips each to six area hospitals.

Residents of the middle-class suburb east of Dallas stood around the church in stunned silence, asking quietly about friends.

Bacteria Developing Resistance To Drugs

By ROBERT FURLOW
Associated Press Writer

ATLANTA (AP) - Forty years of using "wonder drugs" has convinced Americans many deadly diseases are dead themselves. But they are only sleeping, and sometimes waking up stronger, say federal scientists.

Bacteria that cause pneumonia, meningitis, tuberculosis and gonorrhea show increasing signs of resistance to antibiotics, says Dr. Joel Ward of the national Center for Disease Control. The same problem is showing up in less-dangerous diseases.

That does not mean a killer germ with no cure is right around the corner, "but at the rate bacteria are developing resistance, I'm not sure our technology can keep up," Ward said.

Americans have grown accustomed to low incidence of such diseases as tuberculosis, "but the bacteria are not gone; they've just been under control," Ward said.

Keeping them under control "is a worsening problem," he said. "You can conjure up all sorts of nightmares, even a throwback to the pre-antibiotic era" before the 1930s.

Overuse, underuse and just plain careless use of antibiotics are probable culprits, he said. Strict control and common sense are the solution.

Ward got a close up look at the problem last year when he represented the Atlanta-based center in working with the South African government on a particularly scary case in that nation.

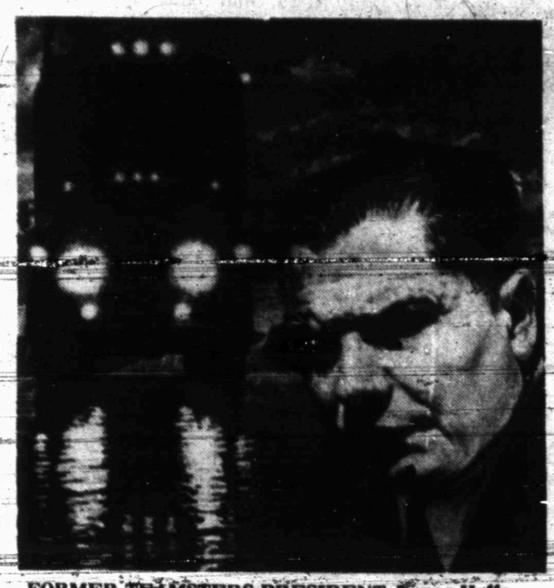

"Children began coming down with serious ailments - meningitis, blood infections - and they'd treat them with the usual antibiotics and it didn't do any good; the children were dying," Ward said.

A South African strain of pneumococcus bacteria somehow "had become resistant to all the usual antibiotics," he said.

That was a discovery of global importance, he said, because those particular bacteria are the most common cause of baeterial pneumonia and the second most common cause of meningitis in children.

South African officials threw money and manpower into a fight to stop the bacteria from spreading, tracking down carriers through thousands of blood tests and treating them with a barrage of unusual antibiotics in unusual combinations.

It worked, apparently. This time.

FORMER TEAMSTERS PRESIDENT James Hoffa — this portrait of him made Time's cover in 1959 — remains on the public's mind nearly three years after his mysterious disappearance. Even moviegoers are being exposed to a fictionalized version of the Hoffa story in Sylvester Stallone's new film, "F.I.S.T." This portrait is part of a collection of Time covers now on display in Washington's National Portrait Gallery.

Theft Case Under Probe

A theft and two minor traffic accidents were reported to police during the weekend.

Clifton Cole told officers he was missing a $200 shotgun from his 2105 O'Neil home. The theft was reported to officers Sunday afternoon.

The 700 block of 25th St. was the site of a one car collision Sunday afternoon reports show. A 1972 Chevrolet driven by Donald Lee Lawler was in collision with a state highway sign.

A hit and run was reported Sunday at 4:45 p.m. at Snyder High School. A 1978 Ford owned by Linda Proctor was struck by a vehicle which left the scene, according to reports.

Henderson Endorses Sadler

AUSTIN (AP) John Henderson, defeated candidate for the railroad commission, today endorsed Jerry Sadler for the commission in his runoff against John Poerner.

Henderson, 71, received 514,603 votes in losing by slightly over 300,000 votes to commissioner Mack Wallace in the May 6 Democratic primary.

Sadler, 70, led commissioner Poerner 656,069 to 408,283 in a separate four-man race but was forced into a runoff.

Henderson said in a statement that Poerner "has been rude and disrespectful in questioning Sadler's ability to serve because he is 70 years of age."

"Poerner might well check the performance records of members of the Supreme Court, the Senate, Congress and men in other important positions who are in the same age bracket as Jerry Sadler," Henderson said.

Flynt's Wife Is Offering $100,000 Award

ATLANTA (AP) - Full-page ads offering a $100,000 reward for information leading to the conviction of the gunman who wounded Hustler magazine owner Larry Flynt ran in the Atlanta Journal-Constitution and the Gwinnett Daily News of Lawrenceville.

The Sunday ads, which said Flynt's wife Althea is offering the reward, directed responses to the Gwinnett County Police Department.

Flynt was shot in March during a break in his trial in Lawrenceville on charges of distributing obscene materials. A mistrial was declared. Flynt, paralyzed from the hips down since the shooting, is being treated at University Hospital in Columbus, Ohio.

Women Filling Higher Jobs

NEW YORK (AP) - The nation's better-paying, higher-status jobs are slowly, but increasingly being filled by women, says the Conference Board, a non-profit business research group.

A study released Sunday by the organization showed that women - more than 40 percent of the labor force - made slow but steady progress toward management, professional and some craft jobs from 1970 to 1975. The study said that due to stringent federal laws and regulations mandating non-discrimination in employment, the gains signal "the start of a major trend."

Vacation Programs At Many Colleges

By LOUISE COOK
Associated Press Writer

A growing number of U.S. colleges and universities are offering summer programs designed to combine learning and leisure for the entire family and to offer a relatively low cost alternative to traditional vacations.

Most of the programs are sponsored by alumni associations, but are open to non-alumni as well, sometimes at a slightly higher cost. Participants generally spend the morning in classes. Afternoons are devoted to cultural events, sports and travel. Separate programs for youngsters are geared to age and offer a mix of activities. Families eat and live on campus, usually in dormitories.

The setting of the vacation college can provide a free bonus: families attending American University in Washington, D.C., for example, can sightsee in the nation's capital; participants in the summer Alumni College at Dartmouth College at Hanover, N.H., get a chance to enjoy the New England scenery.

One of the oldest programs in the country is Cornell University's vocation college, now in its 11th year. There will be four one-week sessions at the Ithaca, N.Y., campus this summer, starting July 9. The price is $215 per person for adults, with an extra charge for a private bath. The fee for pre-kindergarteners is $100 each and there is a charge of $125 each for older youngsters.

Further information is available from the Cornell Alumni University, 626B Thurston Ave., Cornell University, Ithaca, N.Y., 14853.

Another well-established program is at the University of Oregon which began a vacation college for adults 15 years ago and expanded the sessions to include children last year.

This year's vacation college for families will run from July 16 to 21 and will offer lectures and discussions on "An Overview of the Former, Familiar and Future Family." The charge is $145 per person for adults; $55 each for youngsters 5 to 18; and $25 each for those under 5.

Further information is available from Effie Fairchild, 1978 Vacation College, Summer Session, University of Oregon, Eugene, Ore., 97403.

A newer program is "The Berkeley Experience," run by the California Alumni Association. The program, now in its fourth year, is informal with lectures on topics including energy, stress and the brain. Two elective courses, "Stages in the Life Cycle" and "New Games, Adventure Games" are available for an extra charge.

The basic fee for the Aug. 5 to 12 general session ranges from $40 for children under 2 to $225 for adults in a single-occupancy room. Non-members of the alumni group must pay $20 per person extra.

Further information is available from "The Berkeley Experience," California Alumni Association, Alumni House, Berkeley, Calif., 94720.

Herefords On Sale

Members of four Hereford Associations had cattle in Snyder this morning in preparation for a sale of registered and commercial females.

Consigned to the sale were some 121 animals. The sale was to begin at 1 p.m. in the livestock-agriculture building adjacent to the Scurry County coliseum.

Col. Walter S. Britten and Dick Britten were to be the auctioneers for the sale.

The sale is sponsored by the West Texas Hereford Association, the Sweetwater Area Hereford Association, the Anxiety 4th Hereford Association and the Howard County Hereford Association.

Ranches with animals in the sale include Belle Atkinson of Throckmorton, B-Bar Herefords of Roby, Buchanan Herefords of Big Spring, Weldon Davis of Coleman, Henderson and Stoker of Big Spring, Jack Horne of Coleman, Jackson Bros. and Son of Abilene, Dalton Johnson of Abilene, Patterson Bros. of Big Spring, Pied Piper Farms of Hamlin, Straley and Straley of Clyde, Howard Swanson of Breckenridge, C.A. Thomas of Haskell and Youngblood Bros. of Lamesa.

Rotan Band To Elect New Officers

ROTAN-The parents of band members will meet tonight at 7:30 at the high school to elect officers for the next school year.

In action last week, the student body elected cheerleaders for the 1978-79 school year. They are Tammy Whitefield, DeLane Sparks, (head cheerleader), Cindy Weathersbee, Lydia Mendoza and Cindy Williams.

Class favorites were also named last week. They are Brian Goodwin and Patricia Posey for the senior class and Robert Posey and Charee Smith for the junior class. Representing the sophomore class as favorites are Mark Nowlin and Julie Posey.

Rotan High School will adjourn for summer vacation with graduation ceremonies Friday.

Grayson Tax Battle Continues

SHERMAN (AP)-A lawsuit filed in the early 1970s has spawned another legal action by taxpayers in this North Texas city that could have wide-ranging implications for the state's property taxes.

A group of Grayson County property owners say the county commissioners should be taxing other forms of property including bank assets and they are seeking an injunction in state district court this week against the use of new property tax valuations. The taxpayer group feels a broader tax base would reduce their property tax rates. And they say their position is supported by previous Texas Supreme Court rulings.

The Grayson County tax battle began in the early 1970's, when Jimmy Newman, angry over the tax he would have to pay on a new building, filed the original lawsuit. His building was valued on the tax rolls based on its selling price, while other Grayson County property was on the books at values set in the 1930s or earlier.

Newman got State District Judge Dee Brown Walker to order the county commissioners to re-evaluate each piece of land.

Battle lines began to form last year when the first valuations were sent out by a Florida firm that had been hired by the county.

"The notice they sent me indicated my taxes would be nine times as much as they had been," said Mrs. Charlie Case, 63, who farms 180 acres west of here. "My husband and I have worked 17 long and hard years paying off our land, but a tax hike like this could just squeeze us right off our land."

The Cases contacted the state comptroller's office after receiving word of the proposed new taxes. There they learned their best course would be to band together with other disgruntled landowners and fight the increases.

With that Mrs. Case rented the Sherman Muncipal Building, got on the CB to announce a meeting and waited.

The first meeting drew 1,500 persons.

The association then visited other communities and towns in the county. Finally $25,000 was pledged to pay legal fees for the fight.

The group hired State Rep. Bill Sullivant of Gainesville and Austin tax attorney Adrian Overstreet Jr. to take their case.

Sullivant hired an appraiser of his own to get a second opinion on the counties new property values. Mrs. Case says the second evaluation reflected values that were, in some cases, half those the county was given by the Florida company.

Overstreet says that if other tangible property were added to the tax roles, "the land owners wouldn't have to pay as much in taxes, there would be so much money coming in from other sources."

Overstreet and Sullivant are seeking injunctions in state district court to restrain in county commissioners from using the new valuations until "all taxable property" is included.

Teacher Assumes Power In Kidgate

MILL VALLEY, Calif. (AP) - An experiment in self-government by a seventh-grade class has ended in scandal with the teacher assuming dictatorial powers over a make-believe government riddled with real corruption.

"I thought, my God, we've got another Watergate," said teacher George Muldoon after he took power over the "Amasudatamalie" government in his Mill Valley Middle School class.

Muldoon seized power after a meeting Friday when all but four of the 27 students confessed to "crimes" under laws they established when their country was formed in January.

Back then, Muldoon recalled, "they thought I was too strict. I said, 'OK, fine, you set up some rules and live by them.'"

The students set up a capitalist democracy.

They printed money, with a picture of a baby on $1 bills, a hippie on tens and a skull on hundreds. Class members had to pay in Amasudatamalie dollars to use the pencil sharpener, books, wastebasket or door. Top bidders won the right to operate the "concessions" and reap the revenues from them.

But within weeks the system began to crumble.

The Department of Beautification, the Orwellian name chosen for the police force, issued a rash of citations for such crimes as sitting on desks and messing up the room.

"Some people never got arrested, though," one student observed. "People with money had more power than the president."

Muldoon said class police eventually fingerprinted the whole class, kept dossiers on them "and me" and began accepting payoffs not to issue tickets.

The bank was also knee-deep in scandal, with the president using bank funds to pay other students to do her work. They, in turn, stole from the coffers.

But the crime that eventually brought Amasudatamalie's downfall was counterfeiting, Muldoon said. The chief culprit admitted Friday that he used a duplicating machine to reproduce more than $300,000.

The racket became so good that he soon "retired" from his job as head of the health department and enticed six other students to join the ring.

HEALTH

Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

Don't ignore M.D.'s advice

Lawrence Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I am a 55-year-old male and weigh 200 pounds. Physically I never felt better in my life. But my triglycerides are 582 and my cholesterol is 379. My doctor has put me on a diet comparable to that of a diabetic although I do not have diabetes. The diet is 1200 calories a day. I just can't get by on that for when I get hungry I simply must eat.

Lately I have been having excruciating pains in the stomach. Three times it has sent me to the emergency room. I am now taking Atromid-S, 500 mg. If I eat only the foods my doctor recommends, but eat as much as I want, or near that amount, would that in itself be detrimental? Would I still reduce my triglycerides and cholesterol? I have started walking for exercise.

DEAR READER — Education and the doctor's advice are the two things people pay for and then try to avoid getting their money's worth.

No, if you eat as much as you want and don't lose weight you are not likely to help yourself very much. You say you must eat — I say you must lose weight, and I mean fat deposits. Most of the changes in the diet to help prevent heart disease do not help much — if you don't lose excess body fat.

I do not know what your stomach pains are but heart pain can be referred to the pit of the stomach. I am sending you The Health Letter number 1-3, Diet, Preventing Atherosclerosis, to give you a general concept of how the diet must be altered to help people with problems such as yours.

Others who want this information can send 50 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it to me in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019. These principles do eliminate a lot of the sources of calories in your diet and that could help you lose weight.

The main source of calories in the diet are fat, sugars, or sweets and concentrated starch — flour or products containing these. Fresh fruits, vegetables and lean meats do not contain a lot of calories unless the calories are added in the form of rich salad dressings, butter, sour cream or other sources of fat, sweets and concentrated starches.

I am glad to hear that you have started walking. Doing that regularly within your level of tolerance will help you a lot to get rid of obesity.

And I should mention the bad effects of alcohol. Every gram of alcohol contains seven calories. The only food that contains more calories are the fats. A large part of the nation's obesity problem is because of the excess use of alcohol.

Many individuals get over a fourth of their calories from alcohol each day. That's shameful because of what it does to the body. It doesn't contain any vitamins, minerals or useful nutrients other than just plain calories. It is toxic to the cells.

If you are on a diet you certainly don't need to use the small calorie allowance you get each day for alcohol. I have seldom seen anyone successfully eliminate body fat if he continued to drink. Cirrhosis of the liver is the fourth most common cause of death in American men between the ages of 35 and 54, and 60 percent of these are caused by alcohol. Women are not far behind either.

Rig Count In Basin Down

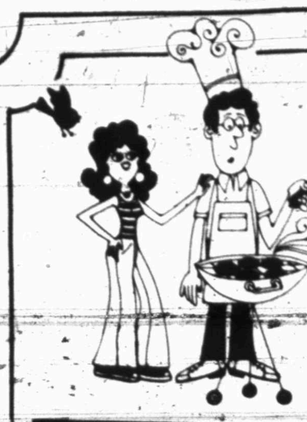

There were 276 rotary drilling rigs operating last week in Permian Basin oilfields, a decline of 10 from the week before and 15 less than the corresponding week last year, according to Reed Drilling Equipment's weekly survey.

Eddy County, N.M., was the Basin's leader with 31 rigs running. Andrews County was the leader on the Texas side of the Basin, with 13.

Scurry County had two rotary rigs making holes last week, the same as the week before. Figures for other area counties, with last week and the week before, in order: Borden 6 and 4; Dawson 5 and 3; Fisher 5 and 3; Garza 3 and 4; Kent 2 and 1; Mitchell 2 and 2; Nolan 3 and 2; Stonewall 1 and 0.

Simons Wins Memorial

By The Associated Press

DUBLIN, Ohio - Jim Simons rolled in an 18-foot putt to save par on the final hole and defeated Bill Kratzert by 1 stroke in the Memorial Golf Tournament.

Simons finished with a 72-hole total of 284, 4-under par.

Simons and Kratzert each shot 74 in the final round.

Lopez Outlasts Carner

JAMESBURG, N.J. - Nancy Lopez parred the first hole of a sudden death playoff to defeat JoAnne Carner and win a $100,000 women's golf tour event.

Lopez shot a final round 1-under-par 70 for a three-round total of 210, to tie Carner, who entered the round with a 3-stroke lead after a course record 66 in the second round. Carner shot a final round 2-over-par 73.

Vilas Cops German Open

HAMBURG, West Germany - Argentina's Guillermo Vilas whipped Poland's Wojtek Fibak 6-2, 6-4, 6-2 to capture the $24,000 first prize of the German Open tennis tournament.

Mima Jausovec of Yugoslavia upset top-seeded Romanian Virginia Ruzici 6-2, 6-3 for the women's singles title.

Rangers Keep Winning; 3½ Out

SEATTLE (AP)-Texas Manager Billy Hunter said his Rangers were lucky to get out with a split after they rallied to beat the Seattle Mariners 5-4 Sunday and earn two victories in the teams' four-game series.

"How can they be 0-7 against Oakland?" Hunter said of the Mariners.

Hunter turned to pinch runners twice in the final two innings. First, Bobby Thompson was on the front end of a double steal with John Lowenstein to tie the game 4-4. Then Toby Harrah stole second and wound up scoring the game winner in the ninth on Al Oliver's two-out bloop double.

The Mariners had taken a 4-3 lead on a pair of home runs by catcher Bob Stinson. Stinson ripped a three-run shot in the second and added a solo homer, his third of the season, in the fifth.

Texas right-hander Doyle Alexander, 4-2, scattered six hits and got the victory with ninth-inning relief help from Reggie Cleveland.

"Cleveland's been super," Hunter said. "That's four saves and a victory."

The Rangers purchased Cleveland for $150,000 from the Boston Red Sox two weeks into the season.

Thompson ran for Richie Zisk after Zisk walked with two outs in the eighth. He scooted to third on Lowenstein's single. He raced home when Lowenstein took off for second, drawing the throw from Stinson.

"At that stage, we were playing for the tie," Hunter said. "Thompson was stationary and yet he had a good lead."

"As soon as the ball went by the catcher's ear, I was gone," said Thompson. He slid easily under the return throw from Seattle shortstop Craig Reynolds.

Harrah replaced Mike Hargrove after the latter also walked with two outs in the ninth. Seattle left-hander Shane Rawley appeared to have Harrah picked off first, but Seattle first baseman Juan Bernhardt beat the throw. Harrah easily scored on Oliver's looping double to short left. Enrique Romo, 3-1, was the loser.

Orioles 3-2, Indians 0-3

David Clyde scattered seven hits in 6 1-3 innings and got relief help from Jim Kern and Dennis Kinney to give the Indians their second-game victory and pick up his second triumph. "This proved the first one wasn't fluke," he said.

Scott McGregor's first-game victory was no fluke, either. He did it with his second straight four-hitter for his first major league shutout.

White Sox 6-0, A's 2-8

Mitchell Page's five RBI on a homer and two doubles and John Johnson's three-hitter for his-and Oakland's-third complete game turned the tables on the White Sox. Chicago ripped the A's in the opener on eighth-inning RBI singles by Junior Moore and Eric Soderholm and Lamar Johnson's two-run homer in the ninth.

Sonics Shackle Bullets With Last-Minute Surge

SEATTLE (AP)-Dick Motta knew it was going to happen, but there was nothing he could do to stop it.

"We figured Freddie would do some of that. He was getting his shots," said Motta, the Washington Bullets coach.

"He's probably the purest shooter in the league."

The subject of Motta's praise was Seattle's veteran guard, Fred Brown. Brown victimized the Bullets for 16 of his game-high 30 points in the final 9½ minutes Sunday, and the Super-Sonics fashioned a hair-raising comeback to beat Washington 106-102 in the opening game of the National Basketball Association championship series.

Game 2 of the best-of-seven series will be Thursday night at Landover, Md.

"He (Brown) can miss his first 20 shots and still win the game for you. He doesn't get discouraged. His shots are going to be in the hole from an unlimited range," said Motta of the 6-foot-3 Brown, who took 30 shots Sunday and made just 13.

But Brown's baskets came when the Sonics needed them most.

"We got us in a wonderful, fine mess," said Brown of the Sonics, who trailed by 19 points late in the third period. "I told them (his teammates) we had made our bed and we had to get out of it."

Brown, the Sonics' No. 1 draft pick from Iowa seven seasons ago, ignited the comeback with a short jumper that began a run of 12 consecutive points and brought Seattle back into the game.

"I got rhythm from them (teammates)," said Brown, who gave Seattle its first lead of the game, 93-91, on a breakaway with 5:07 to go.

"We're not going to die. This ball club isn't going to quit. We've done this all year," said Brown.

Open Bi-District Series Today...

Tigers Host Bulldogs

With ticket in hand, Coach Albert Lewis' Snyder High School baseball team looks for its third consecutive bi-district victory over Burkburnett here today. But a win today won't sew up any championships. Those two victories were last year, when Snyder swept the opponent in straight games.

"It will be a good series," confirmed Lewis last week. "They look like a better hitting team than last year and that could be trouble for us."

Burkburnett will come into today's 5 p.m. game with a 18-8 record. Snyder boasts a mark of 23-7, better on the outside, but there's a hitch.

"Burkburnett has won 10 of its last 11 games," pointed out Lewis. "They've got seasoned pitchers in Kevin Burk (11-2) and David Nix (5-5)."

It was Ricky Beard who chalked his 12 and 13 victories from the Bulldogs, taking them down 2-0 in the first game and 5-4 in the second last year (21 strikeouts for the two). But Snyder doesn't have Beard this time out.

Just the same, Lewis' company has been doing well for itself with a pair of juniors, Mitch Mackey and Sid Everton. Mackey, a left-hander, carries a 10-win, two-loss, two-save mark into today's game. Everton packs a record of 5-2-2. Coach Lewis has yet to decide which of the two will start today, but may lean toward Everton because "they bombed Weatherford's left-hander the other day".

Waiting in the wings will be Tony Degrate, checked and cleared by a physician, and Mike Hicks. Degrate, only a freshman, was thought to be out for the season earlier, but doctor's have given the go-ahead now. He is 6-2 for the year. Hicks, who has only hurled 10 innings, has a 1-0 mark.

Despite today's outcome, the team will head for Burkburnett for the finale. A double header, if needed, has been scheduled beginning at 1 p.m. Thursday.

'Raggedy' Tourney Held Here Today

Johnny and LaNell Guelker of Andrews locked up the Championship Flight of the 2nd annual Raggedy Ann and Andy Couples Golf Tournament held here Sunday.

The Guelkers drilled a 128 - via a point system - to grab a four-point win over second-place Bob and Bobbie Hargrove of Snyder.

The annual tournament suffered pre-tee time rains and cancelled Saturday's round, forcing officials to schedule three nine-hole rounds Sunday instead.

Winning the First Flight with a mark of 114 were Sam and Inez Ferguson of Hamlin. Second was Coyle and Sue Winborn of Pampa with a 113.

Second Flight winners were Don and Wilma Dillard of Snyder with a 109. Mrs. Dillard is president of the Snyder Women's Golf Association, sponsor of the tournament. Taking second were Gene and Joyce Barrett of Pampa with a 105.

Third Flight winners were Boots and Thelma Johnston of Midland, who slapped a 91. Tommie and Billie Mills of Snyder fired an 88 for second place in that flight.

Next action for Snyder Country Club will be the Earl Fish Invitational Partnership held July 8-9.

Church Hires Weiss To Push Disarmament

NEW YORK (AP) - The Rev. William Sloane Coffin Jr. says his Riverside Church is hiring his old anti-war colleague, Cora Weiss, to organize a series of conferences promoting worldwide disarmament.

"The arms race must not be stabilized, it must be reversed," Coffin said from the pulpit Sunday. He claimed that current efforts at arms control cannot guarantee nuclear weapons will not be used.

Mrs. Weiss, whom Coffin called "one of the best organizers in the country," was in Vietnam Sunday to help deliver American wheat donated by a campaign she organized for Church World Services.

In 1972 Mrs. Weiss, Coffin and several other peace movement figures went to Hanoi to escort home three American prisoners of war whom the North Vietnamese had released to the anti-war movement.

Coffin campaigned against the Vietnam War while chaplain of Yale University in the 1960s. In 1968 he was convicted with Dr. Benjamin Spock and others of conspiring to counsel draft evasion, but an appeals court threw out Spock's conviction and ordered Coffin retired. The government then dropped the charges.

Taxpayers Expect Return Grads Told

PRINCESS ANNE, Md. (AP) - United Nations Ambassador Andrew Young told graduates of the University of Maryland-Eastern Shore that taxpayers have invested in them and "we expect a return."

"All education in the nation, public and private, is half subsidized by taxes and endowment," he said at commencement exercises Sunday. "So, in a sense, society has made an investment in you and we expect a return on that investment."

Young suggested that the graduates take time to travel or perhaps join the Peace Corps.

Clean up for the maid

By Karen Blaker, Ph.D.

DEAR DR. BLAKER — I only work part time, but I need the help of a housekeeper once a week.

It bothers me that I'm not organized enough to get everything done by myself, but I have two active teenagers. They keep me busy driving them to all their activities.

I have enough trouble accepting an outsider's help with the house. But my kids make it even harder.

They know I don't like anyone to see the house when it's messy. When I start organizing things for the housekeeper's day, they accuse me of cleaning up for the maid.

That makes me mad because it just isn't true. How can I get them off my back?

DEAR READER — You sound like a person who would like to have the house clean for the housekeeper. That in itself makes you vulnerable to your children's accusations.

Stop equating your need for household help with a personal feeling of failure. Accept the limitations that result from being only human.

Your teen-agers have merely picked up effectively on your psychological Achilles heel.

Is there a specific reason for this teasing beyond the normal teen-ager's urge to criticize his or her parents? Are they angry with you about some issue that has not been aired and adequately discussed?

Pass the following message along to your children.

DEAR TEENAGERS — Most teen-agers are thrilled when their parents hire a housekeeper; it means less work for them.

But if you are not used to having a stranger in the house, it might be an unsettling experience.

Does it bother you that she can go through your things while you are at school? If so, you may be trying to make your mother feel guilty so she will resume all the cleaning responsibilities.

There must be a better way to solve the problem. Teasing your mother only upsets her. In the long run, it probably makes life more difficult for you.

A family meeting might be the best place to talk about your feelings. If you really dislike having a housekeeper around, offer to help your mother clean. Then she might be able to let the housekeeper go. You could use the meeting to divide up the chores.

If you are sincerely bothered because you think your mother cleans up for the maid, why not ask what she needs to do to prepare for the housekeeper? You may be surprised to learn how much time and energy it takes to organize work for others to do. Businessmen often spend several hours a day just deciding how to keep their secretaries busy.

There is one sure way to stop your mother's annoying behavior: Offer to take over preparations for the housekeeper yourselves. But remember to check the cleaning supplies, leave food for the maid's lunch, put her cash in an envelope and write a note with a list of the jobs for the day plus last week's problems.

I'm certain your mother will gladly help you learn the ropes. She probably needs a vacation from the job — and from your teasing.

Write to Dr. Blaker in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 489, Radio City Station, New York, N.Y. 10019. Volume of mail prohibits personal replies, but questions of general interest will be discussed in future columns.

Dallas Scuba Divers Rescued

PORT O'CONNER (AP) - A scuba diving expedition by three Dallas men turned into a survival-at-sea lesson over the weekend when they were pulled away from their boat by strong currents and forced to spend more than a day in the water waiting for help.

Harold Sauls, Joe Marshall and Norman Gin headed into Matagorda Bay aboard Sauls' boat, the Linda Lou.

They were diving 23 miles offshore around a sunken Liberty ship, sent to the bottom years ago to create an artificial reef.

Strong currents pulled them away from a tag line strung from the sunken vessel to the Linda Lou.

"Gin was the first to realize we couldn't make it back to our boat," Sauls said. He said they surfaced some 150 yards behind their boat.

Fortunately, crewmen of the fishing boat Trophy I were watching the men dive and alerted the Coast Guard when the men failed to appear after three hours.

Crewmen of the tanker Euros spotted Sauls, and a Coast Guard cutter was dispatched to rescue him. After 26 hours in the water, he was in remarkably good shape and was allowed to pilot the Linda Lou back to harbor.

"I'm tired, fatigued and sore," Sauls said Sunday night. "It's all you can do to maintain your cool."

He said the three men separated by choice.

Gin was the second to be spotted. People aboard a passing sailboat saw him and alerted the Coast Guard, which dispatched a helicopter to pluck him from the sea. Gin was taken to a Palacios hospital and was reported in stable condition suffering from dehydration and exposure.

"I saw a shark Saturday about 20 to 25 feet away," Gin said. "I hope somebody learns something from this."

The Coast Guard cutter Point Baker found Marshall Sunday afternoon, about 20 miles from the men's marker buoy. He was airlifted to the same hospital as Gin and was also in stable condition.

Sauls reported the only harrowing experience. He said a 10-foot hammerhead shark brushed against his foot Friday night, but displayed little interest and went on its way.

"Next time, I'm going to take a flare gun," Gin said from his hospital bed. "I yelled and whistled at passing boats, but they couldn't hear me because of their engine noise, I guess. I thought it was all over the first night, but the second night was better. I made up my mind I would stay alive as long as humanly possible."

Sauls said, "I don't believe I'd like to do it again." Gin was a little more philosophical: "The diving was wonderful," he said. "Except for extenuating circumstances."
