Student Talent Show Is Set For Tomorrow

The students of Pampa High School will put on their talent show entitled "Youth For The Youth Center," tomorrow evening in the Fieldhouse of the High School.

The affair will start at 8 p.m. and all proceeds will be contributed to the Pampa Youth Center.

The students have been working overtime for the past few weeks in preparation for this show and there will be a series of presentations including pantomimes, vocals, instrumentals and dances.

Bill Atkinson will act as master of ceremonies and the show was produced under the direction of Miss Judy Neslage.

Group singers taking part in the production are "The Milliron Trio," "the Four Specks," and the "Stardettes."

Orchestral arrangements will be played by "The Stardusters," "The Rebels," and a band headed by Judy Neslage which will accompany all vocals and dance numbers.

Following the program, there will be a presentation of a check in the amount of all proceeds to Fred Neslage, representing the Pampa Youth Center, by Earl Cooper, student body president.

San Francisco Rocked By Quake

SAN FRANCISCO (UP) — A slight earthquake rocked the southwestern part of San Francisco again Wednesday.

The University of California seismograph recorded the quake at 12:37 p.m. e.d.t. It had a magnitude of 2.5 to 3 on the Richter Scale of 10 and lasted 45 seconds.

Seismologists said it was an aftershock of the March 22 quake that caused considerable damage in San Francisco.

General Mobilization Is Ordered For Nicaraguans

MANAUGA, Nicaragua (UP)—President Luis Somoza ordered a general mobilization of the army today "for the legal defense of our northern frontier" in Nicaragua's 50-year-old border dispute with Honduras.

In a statement issued at 5 a. m., Somoza said Nicaraguans would take up arms to repel Honduran aggression. Nicaragua charged that 35 of its soldiers were killed in a Honduran attack Wednesday on the frontier town of Mocoron.

Somoza asked for patriotic cooperation from the people in a time of trial, and prayed for "those who died in the fulfillment of their duties when they were massacred by highly superior planes and forces."

Thousands gathered Wednesday night at the National Stadium in Managua to join the reserve forces which will supplement the national guard, Nicaragua's army. Reports reaching here from Leon, Granada and other cities said many persons were joining the reserve forces there.

Somoza met with his cabinet and the army's general staff from 10 o'clock Wednesday night until early this morning, discussing the situation before he made his mobilization announcement.

Beck, Senator Duff Go Separate Ways

By JOHN A. GOLDSMITH
United Press Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON (UP) — Teamsters President Dave Beck and his "eminent counsel," former Sen. James H. Duff (R-Pa.), have split up.

Beck said in a statement issued by his office late Wednesday night that he has disassociated with Duff and his law firm.

The statement also said Beck would appear before the Senate Rackets Committee next Wednesday. Committee Chairman John L. McClellan (D - Ark.) Wednesday ordered Beck to appear before the group.

McClellan also defied Beck to "blow the lid right off the Senate," as the Teamster leader once promised to do if called for further testimony. Beck has repudiated the statement.

"Theft" Questions Planned

The committee has indicated it wants to question Beck about relations between his union and companies in which he had an interest. The group questioned Beck last month about some $320,000 which committee counsel Robert F. Kennedy said recently Beck "stole" from the union.

Beck cited the Fifth Amendment 117 times during the hearings, often saying he did it upon the advice of his "eminent counsel, Senator Duff."

Duff Never There

Duff—who is associated with the law firm of Davis, Richberg, Tydings, Beebe Landa—did not accompany Beck to the hearings. Beck was represented in the hearing room by Arthur D. Condon, another member of the firm.

Beck earlier in the day had notified the AFL-CIO he would also appear at a hearing next Monday to answer corruption charges against the Teamsters stemming from the Senate hearings. His date with the senators is two days later.

McClellan said Beck had been notified that the committee has received new information "regarding Mr. Beck's activities and the use of the power of the union to further his own financial interests." He said 8 or 10 witnesses would be heard.

Raton, N. M., Group In Visit To Pampa

A good-will delegation from Raton, N.M., arrived in Pampa this morning to the patter of rain on the roofs of their bus.

The group stopped in Pampa as part of their tour through Panhandle cities in the promotion of the racing season which is scheduled to get underway in Raton on May 25.

The group brought with them a band of 15 pieces which played selections in front of the LaNora Theatre before having lunch as guests of the noon Lions Club.

There were 32 visitors in all, and after taking leave of Pampa the group proceeded to Borger where the band was scheduled to play a few selections before going to Dumas.

The group started in Amarillo where they arrived yesterday morning and appeared on television last night. This morning they left Amarillo for Pampa, making stops in Panhandle and White Deer along the way.

The group was given an official escort from the outskirts of the city, and that reception was worked out by members of the public relations committee of the Pampa Chamber of Commerce, under the chairmanship of Coy Palmer.

Man Fined On Driving Charge

G. L. Denton of Lefors was fined $100 plus costs in County Court this morning after pleading guilty to a charge of driving while intoxicated.

Denton was arrested by city police last night on the 300 block of W. Foster.

U.S. Fleet's Presence In The Mid-East May Help Anti-Reds

By WALTER LOGAN
United Press Staff Correspondent

Israeli sources said today in Jerusalem that presence of the U.S. 6th Fleet in the Middle East will encourage moderate elements in Syria in their struggle to overcome the pro-Communist groups now controlling the country.

Reports received in Jerusalem said Syria already is withdrawing its 3,000 or more troops from Jordan, chiefly because of the strong moral support the United States gave King Hussein by sending the fleet to the eastern Mediterranean.

Israeli Foreign Ministry sources said events during the next two weeks may show the U.S. move was intended not only to give encouragement to Hussein but also to the anti-Communist elements in Syria who would like to halt that country's swing toward the left.

In recent weeks there have been reports from Syria that President Shukri el Kuwatli tried to oust Lt. Col. Abdul Hamid Serraj from his post as chief of the army's intelligence section but failed. Serraj, a "mystery man," is generally considered to be the leader of the pro-Soviet clique in Syria.

Although it was Kuwatli who was reported to have tried to send Serraj to Cairo as military attache, the anti-Communist group is believed headed by Gen. Tewfik Nizameddin, the Syrian army chief of staff.

Syria holds important parliamentary by-elections May 4 which may give an indication of the future trend in that country.

A United Press Washington dispatch Wednesday predicting a Syrian troop withdrawal said American officials would interpret such a move as a sign Syria's dependence on Russia was lessening.

The presence of the fleet somewhere off the coast of Lebanon also was having important repercussions in Cairo. There was no official Egyptian reaction, but Egyptian political circles said the move had "fired a fatal blow" for the Eisenhower Doctrine in the Middle East.

British Paper Approves

The move won full editorial approval today in the Liverpool, England, Daily Post, but it said Britons were puzzled over how American intervention could be more moral than Britain's intervention last fall.

In Jordan the three-day feast of Id el Fitr, bringing an end to the Moslem holy month of Ramadan, brought calm. Even the Bedouin guards in front of the U.S. Embassy were removed as tension died out.

A Cairo dispatch reported that the American flag ships Flying Trader and Exchange would arrive at opposite ends of the Suez Canal Friday to move through the canal.

Gray Vetoes More Right-Of-Way Cash

The Gray County Commissioners Court met yesterday and voted aganst further committing county funds for the procurement of right-of-way for the construction of the Hobart Street underpass in excess of $135,000.

The County had last year volunteered $100,000 of county funds as their part in the obtaining of easements for the construction of the underpass. They were later approached by city officials for additional help, and agreed to appropriate $35,000 more for the obtaining of additional rights-of-way.

At yesterday's meeting of the group, three of the commissioners voted against the allowing of additional county funds with one, Nat Lunsford, of precinct 2 in Pampa, voting for it.

Those commissioners voting against the additional appropriations were Arlie Carpenter of precinct 1, Lefors; Jim McCracken of precinct 3, Grandview; and Oscar Tibbets of precinct 4, McLean.

The commissioners also approved the payment of $8000 to Odessa Fitch for a right-of-way on Alcock in connection with the construction of the Hobart Street Underpass.

In other business taken up at yesterday's meeting, the commissioners authorized the placing of a telephone in the office of the Highway Patrol and drivers license examiner. The officers use the same office and have been without a telephone.

The approval stiuplated that there would be a restriction against long distance calls.

Sabine River's Biggest Crest In 12 Years Rolls South

DALLAS (UP)—Dallas bailed out of another flood today and the biggest crest on the Sabine River in 12 years rolled slowly southward, flooding out miles of East Texas and western Louisiana.

The death toll from 13 days of tornadoes, cloudbursts and floods in Texas rose to 20. Three hundred persons were flooded out of their homes in East Texas.

A thousand oil wells, whose combined output is worth millions of dollars a week, were under water in East Texas and most of them were out of commission until the flood subsides.

An Air Force RB-47 plane, caught in air turbulence near Pittsburg, Tex., Wednesday night blew up in flight. Three crewmen parachuted to safety, but the fourth member of the crew was still missing.

Cloudburst Hit Dallas

A 3.02-inch cloudburst, of the type that caused a $6,500,000 flood along the Trinity River a week ago, hit Dallas Wednesday night. It rained all night and was still drizzling today.

Police in boats and squad cars rescued 75 to 100 persons from their flooded homes and others fled on their own. Forty-three streets in Dallas and 10 roads in Dallas county were cut by the floods.

The new floods in Dallas were caused by the downpour suddenly overpowering the drainage system and not by the Trinity River, as were the worst of the floods last week.

Assistant Police Chief Jesse Curry said most Dallas streets were passable today and that the flood was rapidly draining away. Most of those driven out of their homes returned to mop their sodden floors and dry their furniture.

Showers Predicted

"It all depends on whether we get too much rain too fast," Curry said. "If it doesn't rain too hard, the flood will run down today."

Showers were predicted over East, West and north central Texas through Friday. The weather bureaus at both Dallas and Shreveport, La., said the outcome of the floods depends on how hard the rains are.

At Longview and Gladewater, Tex., in the heart of the Sabine flood in East Texas, the river reached its crest and subsided a few inches. Rains in the headwaters of the Sabine could send a new crest past those cities. The crest at Gladewater was 40.3 feet, about three feet under the record flood of 1945.

At Logansport, the first Louisiana city in major danger of flooding from the Sabine, the gauge read 34.5 feet. Deweyville, Tex., near the mouth of the Sabine, went under a state of emergency to prepare for wholesale evacuation, if it is endangered.

Some Rivers Fall

The levels of the Red, Little, Sulphur and Cypress rivers in northwest Louisiana registered falls at some points and rises at others, depending upon the size of rains along their tributaries. All were bankful or nearly so.

Still More Rain For Pampa

Heavy, dark clouds continued to hang over Pampa and the Top o' Texas again today and since noon yesterday had added a total of .61 of an inch of moisture to the already muddy ground.

The amount was recorded by The News rain gauge in a 24-hour period with a light sprinkle still falling at noon today.

The latest moisture brings the total amount received in Pampa during the past six days to 4.28 inches and brings the total since the first of the year to 11.52 inches. This total does not include the moisture received during the blizzard when the snow was blown out of rain gauges.

The weather outlook according to the weather bureau calls for cloudy to partly cloudy skies with scattered showers through tomorrow. Little change in temperatures is forecast.

Roads in Gray County that were already muddy have become practically impassable with vehicles with either chains or mud-graip tires the only ones able to travel some roads.

Late yesterday afternoon water was standing in fields around Pampa and the amount of water was increasing as the rain continued to fall. All low places in the county are filling with water as the rains continue and the excess water is running from surrounding fields.

Reports indicate that the moisture falling slowly over the lengthy period has allowed most of the moisture to soak into the ground and that very little water has run down gulleys. As a result no reports have been received from the surrounding area of any roads or residential areas becoming flooded.

A report from a well servicing crew indicated that the moisture had penetrated the soil several feet. This crew reported that in digging a pit Monday afternoon muddy soil was encountered until rock was encountered in the digging.

Students Elect Head Cheerleader

Over 550 Pampa High School students went to the polls again this morning and voted Pat Gorman head cheerleader to head the school's pep squads throughout next year.

Miss Gorman was elected from among two others who had been nominated for this honor. The two others were Betty Lou Smith and Billy Hassell.

Only yesterday the students had elected class officers for the coming school year. The elections were run by the student council.

Broken Glass Hits Man In Face

Local officers are trying to determine how pieces of a broken soft drink bottle entered the open window of a car yesterday afternoon on E. Browning and caused several cuts on the face of the driver.

Jim Conner, chief of police, reported this morning that while John David Meek, an employee of Culberson Chevrolet, was delivering a car yesterday afternoon the glass pieces came through the window and struck him in the face. Meek received only minor scratches as a result of the glass striking him.

Conner reported that he checked the location of the incident and was unable to find any glass on the road and it appears that the glass was thrown from a passing car.

Filibuster Against Segregation Measure Rages

By O. B. LLOYD JR.
United Press Staff Correspondent

AUSTIN (UP) — Sen. Abraham Kazen Jr., of Laredo looking fresh and in strong voice after two hours sleep, returned to the Senate today to spark a lusty around-the-clock filibuster against a House-approved pro-segregation measure.

Technically, Sen. Henry B. Gonzalez of San Antonio held the floor after relieving Kazen at 5 a.m. But Kazen strode briskly into the chamber at 9:07 a.m. and launched a series of lengthy questions to which he limited Gonzalez to "yes-or-no" answers.

Gonzalez took over the relay-style filibuster at 5 a.m., after Kazen had held the Senate floor for 15 hours and 44 minutes in a filibustering onslaught on the first of a package of five House-approved school segregation bills.

The filibuster, aimed at drowning the pro-segregation measures beneath a torrent of words, stalled all other action in the Senate. No end was in sight at mid-morning.

Gonzalez told his colleagues that they were "representatives of all the people—including Negroes."

Three Senators at Desks

At 8 a.m., as Gonzalez spoke, three senators were at their desks. Sens. Wardlow Lane of Center, sponsor of the bill under debate, and Carlos Ashley of Llano, thumbed their morning newspaper.

The third senator was Gonzalez.

A sprinkling of spectators, many of them state employes who stopped by for a quick look before going to their jobs, sat in the gallery.

Gonzalez was bitter in his denunciation of the segregation proposals.

"Who speaks for the Negro?" he asked.

"Are not we the duly elected representatives of all the people—including the Negroes, who pay their taxes and have fought so heroically for their country?" he continued.

He charged that Texas is "abdicating miserably to the traditions of less favored states" by endorsing school segregation.

Gonzalez, his voice booming through the Senate chamber, reminded his listeners that he came from San Antonio, the home of the Alamo.

He called it the "cradle of Texas liberty," urged that the Senate remember the ideals of freedom for which men died there and beseeched his colleagues to "heed the protests of the inarticulate."

Earlier, Gonzalez charged that both he and Kazen had been warned that if they fought the pro-segregation measures bills they were sponsoring would be killed.

"And I say to that, here is my answer: What do you think they have been doing to my bills since Jan. 9?" Gonzales shouted.

The 55th session opened Jan. 8.

Stocking Feet

Kazen, who finished his stint standing on the Senate floor in his stocking feet, said he expected to return by 9 a.m. Gonzalez was scheduled to talk at least that long, probably longer.

Departure of the 38-year-old Laredo lawmaker for a quick sleep, left three Senators still at work—Sen. Dorsey Hardeman of San Angelo, who moved into Lt. Gov. Ben Ramsey's chair as the presiding officer shortly after midnight; Sen. Wardlow Lane of Center, sponsor of the key segregation bill under fire, and Gonzalez.

Other Senators were asleep. Both Kazen and Gonzalez come from cities where schools are already integrated. Helping with the filibuster were four other Senators — Frank Owen III of El Paso; Charles Herring of Austin —who carried the questioning for most of the time from midnight until 5 a.m.; Bruce Reagan of Corpus Christi, and Hubert Hudson of Brownsville.

Major support for the segregation measures in the Senate stemmed from East Texas, the same area whose representatives successfully marshalled backing for the bills in the house.

The filibuster was aimed specifically at legislation sponsored in the house by Rep. Virginia Duff of Ferris. The bill would allow local school districts to assign students to schools on the basis of 17 factors.

"The only reason this bill was introduced was to circumvent the Supreme Court ruling" banning segregation in public schools, Kazen said.

The Laredo lawmaker, his voice still strong when he yielded the floor to Gonzalez, had talked for 15 hours — from 2 p.m. Wednesday to 5 a.m. today. Technically, he had held the floor for 44 minutes prior to that time from 11:16 a.m. until the Senate recessed at 12 noon until 2 p.m.

The time fell far short of the 28 hour, 15 minute filibuster record set in May, 1955, by former Sen. Kilmer Corbin.

Kazen complained of only one thing. He said his feet were swelling. And he corrected that by removing his shoes.

Shortly after midnight, he loosened his maroon colored tie, and unbuttoned the collar of his shirt. Under Senate rules, he had to keep on his coat.

He sucked lemons, munched raisins and chewed on cough drops. He gave a chocolate bar to a newsman and kept on talking.

Passed Word

At 4:15 a.m. Kazen passed the word to Herring that he was about ready to yield the floor to Gonzalez. However, Gonzalez was still asleep in his room in a downtown hotel. A quick telephone call routed him out.

Kazen continued reading from a book entitled, "Schools in Transition." He recommended it to bleary-eyed newsmen who sat through the night in the Senate chamber.

"It's a fine book — spells this

Lions Members At Lubbock Convention

Representatives of the two local Lions clubs are attending the three-day bi-district convention of Lions clubs in Lubbock which began this morning.

The convention includes clubs from Districts 2T-1 and 2T-2 and has headquarters at the Caprock Hotel where the governor's banquet and ball will be held tomorrow evening.

A reception for the talent queen contest members was to be held at 4:30 this afternoon with the talent contest to begin at 7 p.m. in the Municipal Coliseum. Following the talent contest the queen's contest is to be held and will be followed by the queen's ball.

Miss Thera Warner, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Eben D. Warner Jr., 1221 Christine, is representing the Pampa Lions Club in the queen contest. No representative was sent by the Evening Lions Club.

A joint key member breakfast, for all key members of the two districts, will be held at 6:30 tomorrow morning and a joint business session will begin at 8 a.m. Joe E. Childers of Abilene, a director of Lions International, will give the principal address at this meeting.

Separate business meetings will be held at 12:30 p.m. and a necrology service in memory of Lions who have died during the past year will be held at the First Methodist Church from 4 until 5 p.m.

Saturday's activities will begin with a joint breakfast at 7 a.m. and will be followed by separate business meetings at 9:15 a.m. Balloting for new district governors will start at 10:30 a.m. and the convention will end with separate luncheons for members from each of the districts.

A brunch will be held tomorrow at the Lubbock Country Club, for members' wives attending the convention, and will honor the wives of the two district governors. A tour of outstanding Lubbock homes will begin at 1:30 p.m. tomorrow.

Training Meet Set By Scouts

Leadership training courses will be staged Saturday afternoon at 1:30 in the Parish House of St. Matthew's Episcopal Church, according to James Hart, leadership training chairman of the Santa Fe District of the Boy Scouts of America.

Hart said that training subjects will be: "What Cub Scouting Is," "The Achievement Plan," and "Den and Pack Activities."

Jack Reeves, Cub training chairman, will be in charge of conducting the sessions and has urged all cubmasters, den mothers, pack committtemen and assistants to attend and participate in this program.

Mrs. J. P. Cleveland Services Tomorrow

Funeral services for Mrs. Hattie H. Cleveland, who died at her home Tuesday afternoon, will be held at 2 p.m. tomorrow in the Duenkel-Carmichael Chapel with Rev. Sparks of Immanuel Temple officiating.

Mrs. Cleveland and her husband, J. P., owned and operated the Panhandle Rooms at 527 S. Cuyler.

Burial will be in Texola, Okla., under the direction of Duenkel-Carmichael Funeral Home.

Soviet Armed Forces Threat To NATO

BONN, Germany (UP)—NATO warned its 15 member nations today that increasing Soviet military strength is threatening the Western Alliance both in Europe and the Middle East.

NATO officials gave the warning in twin reports to the NATO Council composed of the foreign ministers of the member nations. The council began a three-day session this morning in nearby Bad-Goesberg.

The reports dealt with:

—Russian policy, particularly in Europe. This report warned that the Soviets' military strength and potential is constantly on the increase. It cautioned, too, that the Kremlin will continue to alternate threats with smiles with the single aim of disrupting the Western Alliance.

—The Middle East. The report put the blame for heightened tension in this explosive area solely on Russia.

The council opened with U.S. Secretary of State John Foster Dulles and other Western leaders firmly agreed to forge a solid NATO front to resist Russia's drive to split the Western Alliance with threats of atomic destruction.

Dulles arrived Wednesday afternoon from Washington to attend the first NATO Council meeting ever held in West Germany, NATO's newest member.

In a swift succession of conferences immediately after he landed, Dulles met with Chancellor Konrad Adenauer, British Foreign Secretary Selwyn Lloyd and Italian Foreign Minister Gaetano Martino, who is chairman of the council session.

News' Sister Publication Hit By Strike

LIMA, Ohio (UP) — The Lima newspaper guild went on strike Wednesday against the Lima News, owned by Freedom Newspapers, Inc., and a sister publication of The Pampa News.

Frank H. Cooey, editor of the Lima News, said the newspaper planned to continue publishing during the strike. He said plans were to publish a 24-page edition Wednesday afternoon.

Both management and the guild said that agreement had been reached on wages and hours of employment.

Cooey said negotiations continued until Tuesday night "when guild representatives presented an ultimatum in the bargaining demanding a closed shop, union dues collection, and other union controls in the operation of the paper. Agreement had been reached in negotiations insofar as wages and hours were concerned," he said.

Jim Dean, former managing editor of The Pampa News, is presently holding that position with the Lima News.

Freedom Newspapers purchased the Lima paper in February, 1956. The company also publishes newspapers in California, Colorado, New Mexico and Texas.

Admiral Warns Of Atomic Destruction

WASHINGTON (UP)—The United States and Russia would destroy each other in an atomic war, Adm. Arleigh A. Burke, chief of naval operations, has warned.

The United States now has the nuclear weapons for "complete destruction" of Russia and the Soviet Union either now has or will soon have the "capability of doing the same thing to us," Burke said.

With "mutual destruction" in prospect from nuclear war, Burke said "there is apt to be some sort of stalemate where neither side dares to start a war because it will result in destroying the whole northern hemisphere."

Gen. Nathan F. Twining, soon to become chairman of the joint chiefs of staff, warned that this situation increases the danger of "limited war" because "the Soviets have acquired a greater capability to wage general war and can, therefore, undertake limited aggression with less fear of total retaliation."

The comments by Burke and Twining, outgoing Air Force chief of staff, were contained in a heavily censored 1331-page transcript of testimony by defense officials on President Eisenhower's $38,500,000,000 defense budget for the new fiscal year.

A House appropriations subcommittee heard the testimony behind closed doors recently and made public the transcript today.

Defense Secretary Charles E. Wilson said he believes the Communist threat has reached its peak. But he warned that Russia still is a world menace and the United States will have to maintain its armed might for years to come.

2 Mishaps Reported

Two collisions within the city limits were reported to the police department last night.

The first of the collisions occurred at 8:37 p.m. at the intersection of Cuyler and Foster. Ruth Hooley, 730 E. Murphy, driving a '50 Pontiac, and Bobby J. Barnett, 1032 S. Wells, driving a '55 Studebaker, were in collision. Damages to the Studebaker were estimated at $275 and the investigating officers reported that the Pontiac was demolished.

The other collision occurred at 10:05 p.m. on Cuyler, 81 feet north of Tuke. Larry S. Porter, 833 W. Kingsmill, driving a '52 Buick, was in collision with a '55 Ford, owned by Charles O. Slavens of Skellytown, and a '53 Chevrolet, owned by Robert E. McAlester of White Deer. Botn of the vehicles were parked at the curb.

Damages to the Buick were estimated at $175, the Ford encountered damages estimated at $200 and the Chevrolet met with damages estimated at $75.

The Trinity, at Dallas, which receded Wednesday to 29.88 feet, went on a swift rise. The crest from Wednesday night's downpour, however, was not expected to get above 34 feet, which would be six feet less than last week's crest.

The 20th victim was Ronny Wyatt, 17, who was in a boat that capsized with him and two other boys. The two other boys were rescued; Wyatt was given up for dead.

Rotarians Hear Dr. Harlan Harris

Pampa Rotarians yesterday heard Dr. Harlan Harris, pastor of the First Baptist Church in Plainview, give a challenge to begin thinking about the more spiritual things in life. Joe Whitten, music director of the First Baptist Church, sang a solo as a prelude to the talk.

It was announced by president Fred Brook that an inter-city meeting with the Borger and Dumas clubs would be held May 14 in the Phillips Junior College cafeteria at 6:45 p.m. Present plans call for a bus caravan to leave from Pampa around 6 p.m.

Red Anger Over Mid-East Indicates US Policy Right

Foreign News Commentary
By CHARES M. MCCANN
United Press Staff Correspondent

Soviet Russia's anger over developments in the Middle East indicates clearly that American policy is paying off.

Pravda, the newspaper organ of the Russian Communist Party, complained on Sunday that the United States is using "the law of the fist" in its dealings with Arab countries.

The Soviet Foreign Office followed up on Monday by accusing the United States of "aggravating" the Middle Eastern situation by "gross interference." In its special statement, the Foreign Ministry said that the United States will be responsible for "grave consequences" that may develop.

What all this means is that young King Hussein of Jordan has overcome his pro-Russian, pro-Egyptian, anti-Western political enemies who threatened to oust him from his throne.

Nobody can blame the Soviet leaders for being extremely displeased.

Leftists Meet Challenge

It had become evident several weeks ago that the leftists in Jordan were being challenged by the pro-Western king and political leaders loyal to him.

The fight broke into the open when pro-Soviet Premier Suleiman Nabulsi tried to enter into diplomatic relations with Russia. A crisis developed.

Hussein dismissed Nabulsi. Nabulsi organized riots in Amman, the capital, and other cities. The pro-Russian Egyptian and Syrian governments encouraged Nabulsi. Russia egged on Egypt and Syria.

At a critical time, President Eisenhower and Secretary of State John Foster Dulles announced that they regarded the independence and integrity of Jordan as vital.

Next day the President sent the United States 6th Fleet, based on the Mediterranean, to the Middle East. This action was taken, in the first application of the new Eisenhower Doctrine, on the ground that Jordan was threatened by the forces of the international Communism.

It was then made known to King Hussein that the United States was ready to give him 10 million dollars in financial aid.

All this constituted notice to Russia that it would be smart to watch its step in its determined program of meddling in Middle Eastern affairs. It also constituted a warning to Egypt, Syria — and Israel—not to try to carve up Jordan.

Saud Supports Hussein

In addition to these dramatic developments, there was another one of great importance. This was that King Saud of Saudi Arabia came to the support of King Hussein, with whom his relations were long bad, against Jordan's internal and external enemies.

There can be little doubt that Saud's firm stand marked another payoff for American Middle Eastern policy.

There was considerable opposition in the United States to President Eisenhower's invitation to Saud to visit the United States in January.

But the result of Saud's visit was that the President and Dulles convinced him that the Eisenhower Doctrine against Communist aggression in the Middle East was a good thing.

It may well be asked whether, had Saud not been invited to Washington, Russia would now be so unhappy over the Middle Eastern outlook.

The University of South Dakota now has 17 third generation students and 163 second generation students.

A Lesson From A French Chef

By DOC QUIGG
United Press Staff Correspondent

PARIS (UP)—I flipped at the Cordon Bleu. In a chief's high-fluffed cap (la toque), white apron (tablier), and vest (veste de chef), I stepped up to the smoking-hot crepes suzette pan and dolloped in enough batter for a kingsize pancake.

The gallery, where during the last 60 years men destined to become some of the greatest chefs of France have sat as students, was something less than breathless. Matter of fact, it wasn't even looking, for I was only an American reporter getting a token lesson from the boss pastry chief at the famous cooking school.

"Take it easy," said Claude Thilmont, the professor of pastry speaking through an interpreter. "Keep your wrist loose. Don't watch the gallery. Keep your eye on the batter. Dip the brush (it looked like an ordinary paint brush) into the melted butter and smear it around the edges of the cake. Wait a little longer. You only turn crepes suzette once. Now—go."

I flipped the pan up. It was beginner's luck, really. The flaky pancake rose above the stove, turned lazily onto its back, and flopped into the pan. Chef Thilmont warmed some cognac, poured it onto my finished crepe suzette, slammed on some powdered sugar, and set the whole mess ablaze. When the fire was out, it tasted fine.

Auto Industry Seeks Brakes To Match Big Horsepower Boosts

By DOUGLAS LARSEN
NEA Staff Correspondent

DETROIT (NEA) — The automobile industry is seeking new brakes for its horsepower race.

This does not mean less powerful engines. It's a vast research program to get new and improved brakes for safe control of all the new power.

Next year will probably find the biggest jump yet in horsepower, to challenge the brake developers as never before.

The power jump will come from the widespread offering of fuel-injection engines as optional equipment. Fuel injection means shooting liquid gas directly into the piston chamber, shortcutting the conventional carburetor system of first vaporing the fuel.

This reporter has just driven an experimental Pontiac with a fuel-injection system, planned to be offered to the public next year. It's like being behind the wheel of a souped-up sports car. The acceleration, from any speed, is astonishing.

It's this startling boost in engine performance which the new fuel - injection systems and other improvements will offer next year that now has the brake researchers working overtime.

During the past 10 years almost everyone in the car design business has been working at odds with the brake boys.

Cars have been built heavier, making them harder to stop. Automatic transmissions have eliminated the braking effect of engines. Styling has covered the wheels and made them smaller, increasing the vital heat dissipation problem.

New roads have increased the average highway speed, putting a greater strain on brakes. Congested city traffic has also put an added burden on brake systems.

Up until now the brake experts have kept pace by improving the basic components of the conventional drum system. This involves the principle of applying friction to the inside rim of the cake-tin-shaped drum.

The metal parts of the brake assembly have been constantly improved to take greater heat and wear. Brake systems have been stabilized so that stopping does not pull a car to one side. Brake linings have also been improved to take greater wear and heat.

So-called power brakes are not considered a fundamental improvement. Actually, power brakes only make it easier for the driver to push the pedal down. They do not add any inherent stopping qualities to the brake system.

Today, however, brake research is taking some basic new approaches to the problem of keeping high - powered cars under control. This includes improving the traction of tires.

The friction between tires and road has always been the basic limiting factor in brake development. When a brake locks a wheel, the maximum action it can take in stopping a car quickly, only the friction of the skidding tire is left to bring the vehicle to a halt.

Now this problem has been successfully attacked by the Penetred Corp. of Marshfield, Wis., with the help of the University of Wisconsin. It's a method of introducing special steel coils in the tread without adding driving noise but providing emergency traction and non-skid properties.

During normal driving the steel ends remain embedded in the tire. But when the brake is suddenly applied, the tire tends to flatten on the road, and the steel emerges like a cat's claws. Goodyear is rushing experiments with this tread and is already producing some tires with it on a limited basis.

Most brake research is now exploring the disc principle. This is the equivalent of stopping a spinning cymbal by clamping another cymbal to it.

This system is noisy. "Another drawback is that dirt, water, salt and slush cannot be sealed out," explains a General Motors expert.

Ford, Chrysler and GM all have elaborate disc brake research programs. The experts believe the noise and sealing problems can be licked.

At the same time work is still being done to improve drum system. Chrysler has a new brake which applies more uniform friction to the drum. Studebaker-Packard is adding fins to the drum to speed cooling. Oldsmobile is attacking the ever - present heat dissipation problem with a flange on the drum.

The Bendix company, which makes about one - quarter of all the brakes for the industry, is working with a revolutionary lining material that includes a ceramic substance.

Most industry experts believe that the 1958 models will come up with the first major improvements in braking systems which have appeared since the war, as a result of these efforts.

PUTTING ON THE BRAKES — What looks like a phantom car here is the complete mockup of a brake system being tested by General Motors researchers in search for better brakes.

NATO To Hit Back In War Of Nerves

BONN, Germany (UP)—The NATO countries probably will hit back with a joint counterblast at Moscow's atomic war of nerves, Bonn government sources said today.

The subject was expected to come up today when U.S. Secretary of State John Foster Dulles meets West German Chancellor Konrad Adenauer. Adenauer already has sent his individual answer to the Kremlin threats.

Dulles flies in from Washington D.C. this afternoon for a meeting of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization Council which opens here Thursday.

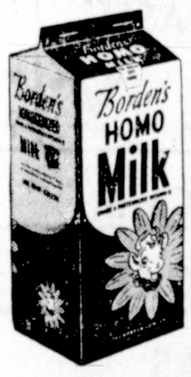

Government sources said the joint reply most likely will be contained in the council's closing communique and that it will tell the Russians:

—The 15 free nations of NATO reject the Soviet threats and will not let themselves be intimidated.

—NATO is and always has been a purely defensive alliance and will not use its atomic "sword" except in self defense.

M-M-M-MINK! — Four-year-old Camilia Neilson obviously isn't too young to get that feeling that only mink can give a girl. On hand to meet her aunt at San Francisco's International Airport, Camilia just had to try on auntie's mink coat.

Jacoby On Bridge

By OSWALD JACOBY
Written for NEA Service

The recent Life Master's Individual championship was won by Edgar Kaplan of New York.

One of the hands that contributed to this fine young player's victory is shown today. He was on lead against the four-heart contract and while many players would have opened the tempting club suit, Edgar decided in favor of a trump lead. He reasoned that since hearts had been the only suit bid there was no hurry about establishing a club trick and that declarer might need a cross ruff to collect 10 tricks.

In spite of the opening trump lead South went after the cross ruff. It was his only chance. He won the first trick, played the ace of clubs, ruffed a club, played dummy's ace of diamonds, ruffed a diamond, ruffed the last club and led a spade. West won the trick and led a fourth club. South had to ruff and was down to two trumps, the same as West. South played another spade. West won this and played his last club. This left West with the long trump as the setting trick.

At other tables the king of clubs was opened. Declarer would win the ace, ruff a club and play a spade. From that point, the defense took several lines but declarer always found time to ruff out his other losing club, establish his fourth spade and thereby make his contract.

SUPERSONIC GREYHOUND—The cloud of water thrown up by this 5,000-pound pusher sled gives it the appearance of a ghostly greyhound at Edwards Air Force Flight Center. The needle-nosed sled ended an 8,000-foot run by striking a water brake. A liquid propellent rocket engine, made by Rocketdyne, division of North American Aviation, Inc., accelerates such test vehicles to 900 miles an hour in 4.2 seconds. Rocketdyne engineers said the engine produces 120,000 horsepower—enough to move 600 automobiles at 90 miles an hour.

Easy Carpet Cleaning Discovery Hailed

What is said to be the easiest and "cleaningest" rug cleaner, known as Blue Lustre, is available after years of research.

Blue Lustre leaves no foreign residue to cause rapid resoiling. The pile is left open and fluffy as the colors spring out like magic. So easy to apply with a long handle brush (like playing shuffleboard) and is safe for all types of carpets.

Use Blue Lustre to clean the entire carpet or remove spots and traffic lanes. It's economical as ½ gallon of cencentrate cleans three 9 x 12 rugs.

ODDS AGAINST YOU—The chances are three out of four that you would sustain injuries or be killed in an injury-producing crash such as the staged accident pictured above. According to the Cornell Automotive Crash Injury Research center in New York City, 20 per cent of injuries occur after occupants are thrown out; 56 per cent are caused by striking objects inside car; and more than half of the cars in which injuries occur are going less than 40 miles an hour. In the photo series the passenger's door was removed on the white car to give a clear view of the reaction of a dummy (arrow). The white car was traveling 37 m.p.h.

Old Sale Bills

F. H. Broadbent of 224 Tignor has brought three old-time sale bills in to The News.

Because of their marked contrast to sales of today, they should prove interesting to News readers.

One concerned a sale by J. L. Moss in Kentucky on March 1, 1849 all of my personal property, towit:

"All ox teams except 2 teams, Buck and Ben, Tom and Jerry, 2 milk cows, 1 gray mare and colt, 1 pair oxen and yoke; 1 baby yoke; 2 ox carts; 1 iron foot of poplar weatherboards; plow with wood mole boards; 800 to 1000 3-foot clapboards; 1500 10-foot fence rails; 60 gallon soap kettle; 85 troughs made of white ash timber; 10 gallons of maple syrup; 2 spinning wheels; 30 pounds of mutton tallow; 1 large loom made by Jerry Wilson; 100 split hoops; 100 empty barrels; 1 32-gallon barrel of Johnson Milder whiskey, 8 years old; 20 gallons of apple brandy; 1 40-gallon copper still; 1 dozen real books; 2 handle hooks; 2 scythes and cradles; 1 dozen wooden pitchforks; 1 half interest in tan yard; 1 32-caliber rifle, bullet mold and powder horn; rifle, made by Ben Miller; 50 gallons of molasses; 7 head of fox hounds all soft mouth.

"At the same time I will sell my six Negro slaves, 2 men, 35 and 50 years old; 2 boys, 12 and 18 years old; 3 mulatto wenches, 30 and 40 years old; will sell all together to same party as will not separate them.

"Terms of sale, cash in hand or to draw a 4 per cent interest with Bob McConnell as surety.

"My home is two miles south of Versailles, Ky., on the McCouns Ferry pike. Sale begins at eight o'clock a.m. Plenty to eat and drink. J. L. Moss."

Another was to take place Tuesday, September 29, 1846, "to sell at public outcry, for cash on premises where Coon creek crosses on Missouri road, the following chattels to wit: 9 yoke of oxen with yoke and chain, 2 wagons with beds, 3 nigger wenches, 4 buck niggers, 3 nigger boys, 2 prairie plows, 25 steel traps, 1 barrel pickled cabbage, 1 hogshead of tobacco, one lot nigger hoes, 1 spinning wheel loom, 3 fox hounds, a lot of coon, mink and skunk skins, and a lot of other articles. Am goin' to California. John Doe Richard Row, Cryer. Free head cheese, apples and hard cider at noon."

The last was one billed as a "Humdinger." It was to take place Thursday, October 26, 1911 at 1 p.m. at the "Valley Park Farm, 3½ miles west of Butler," (?)

For sale were to be "two sets harness, wagon, lister, cultivator, mower and rake; all good as new. 800 shocks of corn and kaffir and 20 tons of alfalfa hay. 100 head of hogs; some fine registered brood sows and 2 thoroughbred boars. 17 head of cattle. Good'ns. See 'em. 14 head of horses; 5 of them brood mares. As fine as there is in the county. Buy 'em.

Terms of sale were to be "On 12 months time with 10 per cent interest from date, or 5 per cent discount for cash. No property to be removed till terms of sale are complied with."

DR HARLAN HARRIS

Pastor of the First Baptist Church Plainview, will continue speaking each morning at 10:00 and each evening at 8:00 at the First Baptist Church, located on the corner of Kingsmill and West Streets. Tuesday evening has been set aside as YOUTH NIGHT and the newly elected Youth Council is sponsoring the attendance. Dr. Harris will speak on the subject "Three reasons why young people are separated from Christ?" Wednesday morning at 7:00 the Youth will sponsor a pancake breakfast for the revival emphasis.

Props Man Toils Heavily For Television Kiddie Show

By WILLIAM EWALD
United Press Staff Correspondent

NEW YORK (UP) — Gus Allegretti is a Moose. He is also a coconut, a grandfather clock, a dog, a flower, a ridde-a-diddle box and several unidentifiable geometric shapes.

Gus, who otherwise is shaped pretty normally, toils for the "Captain Kangaroo" show, a CBS—TV romp aimed at the kiddie trade. Gus, 30, is the puppeteer and animator of the show.

"Sometimes it gets pretty frantic," observed Gus today. "I take on all these roles, but I have to kind of duck-waddle around the set so the camera won't catch me. Over a few minutes, I may have to do a bit inside our grandfather clock, then crouch my way over to our moose head, then jump back in the clock, then head for our dog, or rabbit, or maybe, back to the moose.

"I tell you, you not only need a lot of voices for this kind of work, you've also got to be in excellent physical shape."

Gus has bivouacked with "Captain Kangaroo" since the show pitched camp at CBS about a year and a half ago. Before enlisting with "Kangaroo," Gus served as a writer and puppeteer for "Rootie Kazootie," another TV epic slanted at the yo-yo set.

Although Gus usually isn't seen on-camera (unless he mistakenly waddles too high), his charges carry a large burden of the show. He may be the only performer in the history of TV to pass his working hours inside a clock.

"It's called 'Grandfather Clock' and the clock is one of the main characters on the show," explained Gus. "I stand inside and work his eyes with my hand and his mouth with my foot. I speak for him, too—he kind of sounds like a horse.

"Now, 'Mr. Moose' is a little different. He's a puppet made out of my wife's false eyelashes with old socks in his lining and ping pong balls for eyes—in fact, his left eyeball still says 'made in Japan. He kind of speaks in a falsetto voice.

"But they're only part of my job. I do a dog character, a rabbit, Mr. Monkey, Mr. Teddy Bear, Miss Pussy Cat, Mr. Tiger and something we call Mr. Radio announcer— he speaks through an old-fashioned radio.

"So far," said Gus, I've managed to make out all right. But let me tell you, when you're dashing around the studio like I am, it's quite a trick to keep the clock from talking like the dog and the dog from talking like the moose."

Biela's comet broke in two and disappeared in 1846.

H-Bomb Tests To Kill 1,000 Chemist Says

CHICAGO, (UP)—At least 1,000 persons will be killed if Britain goes through with its proposed Christmas Island H-bomb tests, Nobel Prize-winning chemist Dr. Linus Pauling has predicted.

Pauling, in a plea for an immediate halt to hydrogen weapons tests, said radioactive fallout from the British explosion would cause some 1,000 fatal cases of leukemia around the world.

And if a ban is not placed on all hydrogen weapons tests, Pauling continued, the coming generation can expect to give birth to an additional 200,000 feeble-minded children.

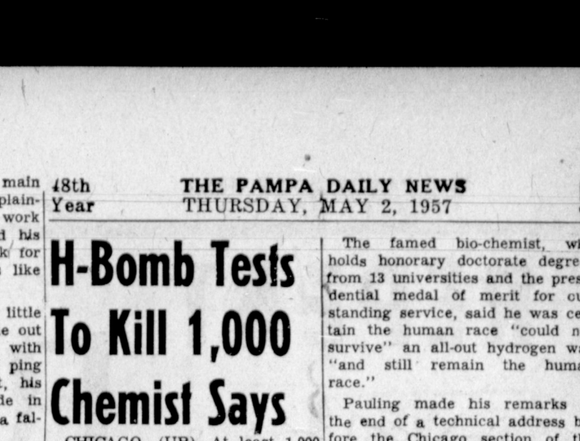

The famed bio-chemist, who holds honorary doctorate degrees from 13 universities and the presidential medal of merit for outstanding service, said he was certain the human race "could not survive" an all-out hydrogen war "and still remain the human race."

Pauling made his remarks at the end of a technical address before the Chicago section of the American Chemical Society.

Pauling later told United Press that in addition to his leukemia estimate, he had been told British scientists themselves predicted the Christmas Island tests would cause about 20,000 cases of bone cancer around the world.

Is Time For A Porch Picnic On mewhere Avenue, Our Town, USA

being cooped-up indoors nter - long, what would be fun than a picnic right on ery own front porch on your wn street in your own town, And what smells better chicken being fried to a goodness and corn sticks in n? With Chocolate Fluff Pie sert, you're ready for some style eating.

Country-style Fried Chicken
Potato Salad Mold with Relishes
Easy Honey Corn Stix
Chocolate Fluff Pie
Iced Soft Drinks

COUNTRY-STYLE FRIED CHICKEN

2 frying chickens
1½ cups Aunt Jemima Pancake Mix
1 teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon pepper
¼ teaspoon garlic salt

Clean chicken thoroughly; cut into pieces. Combine pancake mix, salt, pepper and garlic salt. Roll chicken in dry mix; shake off excess coating. Melt enough shortening to cover bottom of pan to ½-inch depth. Fry chicken in hot shortening, turning until golden brown on all sides. Cover tightly; place in moderate oven (350 degrees F.) for 45 to 50 minutes or until tender. Remove cover last 10 minutes to recrisp. Makes 6 servings.

EASY HONEY CORN STIX

1 package Aunt Jemima Corn Bread Easy Mix
½ cup milk
1 egg

Topping:
2 tablespoons butter
2 tablespoons honey

Mix batter according to directions on package; pour into greased corn stick pans. Bake in hot oven (425 degrees F.) about 15 minutes. Spread honey - butter mixture (made by combining honey and butter) over corn sticks before removing from pans. Makes 14.

CHOCOLATE FLUFF PIE

Pastry:
1½ cups sifted enriched flour
1 teaspoon salt
2-3 cup shortening
½ cup Quaker or Mother's Oats (quick or old fashioned, uncooked)
4 to 6 tablespoons cold water

Filling:
1 envelope unflavored gelatine
½ cup sugar
¼ teaspoon salt
2 squares (2 ounces) unsweetened chocolate, shaved
1¼ cups water
3 egg yolks, beaten
3 egg whites
½ cup sugar
¼ teaspoon cinnamon
1 teaspoon vanilla

For pastry, sift together flour and salt. Cut in shortening until mixture resembles coarse crumbs; add rolled oats; mix lightly. Add water a little at a time, stirring lightly until pastry can be formed in ball. Turn out on lightly floured board; knead gently a few seconds. Let rest 5 minutes.

Roll dough to form 12-inch circle; fit loosely into 9 or 10-inch pie plate. Fold under edges; flute. Prick bottom and sides well. Bake in hot oven (425 degrees F.) 12 to 15 minutes.

For the filling, combine gelatine, sugar and salt in saucepan; add chocolate, water and egg yolks. Cook over very low heat about 10 minutes, stirring frequently. Cool. Beat egg whites until stiff, gradually adding sugar, cinnamon, vanilla; fold into chocolate mixture. Pour into pie shell. Chill several hours. Garnish with whipped cream.

on-Sauced Veal gers Appetites ly wonderful and wonderfulmple is the key phrase befitthis recipe, Veal Steaks in Onuce.

se veal comes from a animal, it does not have a overing, and bacon or salt often placed over veal such a delicate flavored meat it is wise not to serve it accompanied by strong flavored vegetables, according to Reba Staggs, well known home economist in the meat industry.

Veal requires long, slow cooking. As cooking progresses, the light pink of the fresh veal becomes lighter.

VEAL STEAKS IN ONION SAUCE

nds veal round steak, cut ch thick
p enriched flour
poon salt
poon pepper
lard
kage dried onion soup
boiling water

Mix flour, salt and pepper. Dredge veal steaks in seasoned flour and save remaining flour for gravy. Brown steaks in lard in frying pan. Pour off drippings. Dissolve onion soup in boiling water and add ½ cup to steaks. Cover tightly and simmer 1½ hours, or until tender. Remove steaks from frying-pan. Stir in flour. Add remaining soup, stirring constantly, until thickened. Serve with steaks. Yield: 6 servings.

AT IN THE REDUCING DIET

Lean meat is important in the reducing diet. It's a fact . . . meat is a rich source of excellent quality protein which is essential for keeping the body in proper balance, especially when calories are greatly decreased.

Dixie-Special Veal Has New Attire

Jambalaya is regionally renowned for integral ingredients, rice, tomatoes, seasonings and cooked meat. , in this case, veal.

A characteristic which has helped this dish maintain its popularity through the years is its ability to provide a blend of pleasing flavors in a budget favorite.

According to Reba Staggs, well known home economist, any leftover meats can be used in preparing this delectable dish. Seasonings, of course, are added depdning on the whims of the individual homemaker.

JAMBALAYA

1½ cups diced cooked veal
1 cup cooked rice
1 cup diced celery
½ green pepper chopped
1 can (16 ounces) tomatoes
1 teaspoon salt
1 cup soft bread crumbs, toasted
2 tablespoons melted butter or margarine

Combine veal, rice, celery, green pepper, tomatoes and salt. Mix well. Pour into a greased 1½-quart casserole. Mix toasted bread crumbs and butter or margarine. Arrange crumbs around edge of meat mixture. Bake in a moderate oven (375 degrees F.) for 45 minutes. Yield: 4 to 6 servings.

The Gang Is All There When Mom's Busy In Kitchen Making Pancakes

Junior shouts "the gang's all here" and Mom knows that's her cue to get busy in the kitchen. She knows, too, that where there are youngsters there are hearty appetites, so nothing short of good substantial food will do.

What could be more prefect, then, than a six-layer pancake pie? Never heard of it? Well, now's the time to get acquainted. As soon as the pancakes come off the griddle, (be sure to make the giant size ones) spread with tangy red currant jelly and stack them high. Cut the unusual "stack of wheats" in pie shaped wedges, and serve with plenty of mellow maple-blended syrup.

Sounds good enough for the whole family to eat, and it is. Come next special dessert time, try this pie. You'll have fun making it, fun serving it, and more fun receiving praise while your sweet-tooth gang is eating it.

JAM FILLED GRIDDLE CAKES

2 cup sifted flour
2½ teaspoons double-acting baking powder
¾ teaspoon salt
1 tablespoon sugar
1 egg, well beaten
1¼ cups milk
3 tablespoons melted shortening
1 cup 40 per cent bran flakes, slightly crushed
maple-blended syrup

Sift flour once, measure, add baking powder, salt, and sugar, and sift again. Combine egg and milk; add gradually to flour, mixing only until smooth. Stir in shortening and cereal. Bake on hot griddle. Make double-size griddle cakes, using generous 1-3 cup batter for each. Stack in pile, spreading fruit jam between cakes. Cut in pie-shaped wedges and serve with maple-blended syrup.

A soiled powder puff is a disgusting sight. It can also spread infection. Puffs are inexpensive enough that they can be renewed often.

BACON SPECIALTY

A recipe with seasonal appeal is Canadian-style bacon with spiced applesauce. Combine 1 cup unseasoned applesauce, ¼ cup brown sugar and ¼ teaspoon cloves. Mix well. Place 8 slices Canadian-style bacon, cut ¼ to ⅜ inch thick in a baking dish. Top each slice with 2 tablespoons applesauce mixture. Bake in a moderate oven (350 degrees F.) 20 to 30 minutes. 4 servings.

IT'S PARTY TIME!

Summer's waiting in the wings and that means parties—parties for happy graduates, parties for blushing brides-to-be, parties for youngsters on their way to camp and parties for—well, do you really need a reason?

And what's a summer party without honest-to-goodness lemonade? From tiny tots to stately seniors, everyone's an "elbow-bender" when those tempting, frosty glasses of lemon delight make their appearance.

Helping you turn out the best lemonade ever with no "strain" are the ReaLemon folks, bottlers of reconstituted lemon juice that is uniform in strength and flavor, requires no squeezing or straining. You just pour it!

Here, from ReaLemon, is a recipe for lemonade you can whip up in a jiffy — for junior's gang . . . or your own. To add a party flavor, how about a dash of grenadine for "pink lemonade"? Or creme de menthe for a cool green tint?

15-SECOND LEMONADE

8 ounces ReaLemon
1 cup sugar
Ice water
Maraschino cherries

Pour 8 ounces of ReaLemon into a 2-quart pitcher. Add sugar according to taste; stir until dissolved. (If you are using ReaLemon with sugar added, simply add 5 parts water.) Fill pitcher with water, stir again. Serve in tall glasses with ice cubes. Enhance with Maraschino cherries.

Walter Rogers Reports:

The Threat Of Communism Delaying Hawaiian Statehood

TO THE PEOPLE OF THE 18TH DISTRICT:

Alaska-Hawaii Statehood

The perennial scrap about statehood for Alaska and Hawaii has been progressing in due order during the first three months of this session. As a Member of the Interior Committee which has jurisdiction in this measure, this is my third time to hear these arguments.

Much of the testimony is repetition, but the fine people of both Alaska and Hawaii are leaving no stone unturned in their persevering efforts to obtain the passage of legislation granting statehood to both territories. Each year they come forward with new approaches and additional information. However, the opponents of statehood are equally as alert and overlook nothing in bringing forward new information and in answering the new and additional claims of the proponents.

The Committee had before it at its last session on Hawaiian statehood Dr. Fred Schwarz, who was born in Brisbane, Queensland, Australia, in 1913. He is a graduate of the University of Queensland where he subsequently lectured in mathematics and science and completed a medical course, graduating in medicine and surgery.

He presently maintains a general practice in Sydney, Australia, but devotes most of his time to the war against international communism. As a Christian lay preacher, Dr. Schwarz is particularly and ably equipped to battle world communism.

He has a standing challenge to debate any communist on any platform in any part of the world. He was brought to our Committee to testify relative to the communist threat in the Hawaiian Islands. His testimony was most informative and most interesting. He was quick to point out that it was not his intention to convey the thought that the Hawaiian Islands were harboring a large number of communists, but that the communists who were in Hawaii had gained control of the International Longshoremen's and Warehousemen's Union and were able to influence the civil life of the Hawaiian Islands and to be in virtual control of the economy of the Islands.

I was especially interested in his views on this particular phase of the problem, because when these bills were before a prior session of Congress, I had argued that one of the greatest dangers with relation to the Hawaiian Islands was the fact that Harry Bridges, who heads the ILWU could, by the issuance of a directive of his own choosing, virtually throttle the entire economy of the Hawaiian Islands.

Dr. Schwarz pointed out that the ratio of communists in New York or California, to the total population of those states, is probably much greater than the ratio in the Hawaiian Islands; but, that the difference in the danger lies in the fact that communists in New York and in California are ineffective because they do not have control of any organization.

On the other hand, the smaller percentage of communists in Hawaii poses a greater threat because of their control of the ILWU, the organization in Hawaii to which a great many of the inhabitants belong. To substantiate this he pointed out that there are 30 members in the lower House of the Hawaiian Legislature and at least 18 of those were openly and notoriously endorsed by the ILWU in their elections. Whether or not such as Jack Hall, who has been such endorsement influences the members of the Legislature is, of course, a debatable question.

Dr. Schwarz emphasized that the Hawaiian Islands are the only place where testimonial dinners have been given by civic groups in honor of leaders of the ILWU, repeatedly accused of present day communistic leanings, as well as a general communistic background.

He called the attention of the Committee to one particular dinner that was attended by the then Attorney General of Hawaii. This Attorney General was dismissed by the Governor of the Hawaiian Islands, allegedly for attending the dinner in honor of Jack Hall. Incidentally, Jack Hall is second in command to the notorious Harry Bridges.

I wish I had the space in this newsletter to give you more detail of Dr. Schwarz's testimony, because it confirmed in my mind many fears that I have had in the past concerning the power of Harry Bridges and the ILWU to control indirectly the destinies of the Hawaiian Islands. It is my feeling that this strangle - hold on the economy of these islands must be shaken loose before further consideration can be given to the application for statehood.

Alaska

I had a most interesting visit with Governor Gruening, the former Governor of Alaska. Governor Gruening is one of the most devoted, the most dedicated, the most patriotic, and certainly one of the most patient men I have ever known. He has fought the battle for Alaskan statehood with great skill and with great earnestness. His call to my office concerned my opposition to the statehood bills. Although he did not convince me to change my position, his presentation was most appealing.

I told him at the conclusion of our conference that one of my colleagues was heard to remark: "If the present trend of this government toward centralization and concentration of power in Washington is not halted, it will soon become necessary for all of the states to file applications to be granted statehood."

I quite agree with that conclusion, because unless the present pace of the federal government in usurping and encroaching upon the rights of the states is not arrested, there will be no need for state lines. The entire country, including all of the insular possessions, will be in a territorial status.

O'Connor Defends Switch From Dancing To Drama

Aline Mosby is on vacation. Today's guest columnist, Donald O'Connor, defends his switch from comedy-dancing to drama.

By DONALD O'CONNOR
Written for United Press

HOLLYWOOD (UP)—I probably raised a few eyebrows recently by announcing that my tap shoes may gather dust on occasion because I intend to vary my movie assignments with straight drama and comedy such as my present film, "The Buster Keaton Story."

"I'm optimistic enough to think I might be around a little longer because of that decision. There are only so many basic dance steps and no matter how you disguise them with fancy production, all dance and no play can make for a very dangerous career problem.

I can best cite Frank Sinatra as an example of someone who has done an expert job of pacing the music — with enough off-beat dramatic roles to insure his success as a versatile performer. After "Man with the Golden Arm" and "Johnny Concho," his fans were eager to see Sinatra in a musical again, such as "High Society."

The public has only seen me in one type of role—a nice fun-loving guy whose problems could never be taken seriously. There are other dimensions to even a comedian's character.

Life itself is a projection of our personal life and problems, and I want to play more mature roles; to express more of what I know about life in terms of my own personal problems.

I want to do musicals, comedy without music, an occasional night club appearance, and straight dramatic roles.

"I think "The Buster Keaton Story" affords me such an opportunity. Buster never did a "Shuffle off to Buffalo," so there's no dancing in the picture, but the story provides a rare opportunity to combine comedy and drama in one film. I have tried not to submerge myself in Buster's personality. My idea was to do a direct impersonation in the comedy sequences and express my own personality in the story."

Restaurant Famine: Not Enough Chefs

NEW YORK — (NEA) There is a famine in the U. S. restaurant industry.

According to a national hotelmen's association, there are not enough chefs to fill all the jobs.

According to an administrator in a food trades school, neither enough people nor the right kind are enrolling.

According to a European - trained chef, it is no longer possible to lure qualified people from abroad.

Even the Hotel and Restaurant Workers Union, jealous of its position, tells employers, "Give us 24 hours to find somebody. After that, you're on your own."

Meanwhile, jobs that pay no less than $10,000 - a - year go begging. Jobs that carry extra benefits of travel and executive prestige. Jobs that give men a passport to almost every place in the world.

"We're battling a social stigma," according to Robert Herz, administrative assistant at New York's Food Trades Vocational High School. "Even if we point out the great rewards in this field, we still have to fight the lack of glamor that has become attached to being a chef."

Young people, he said, think of a short - order cook when they think of food work. They are wrong, he said, but they have good reasons.

"In my father's time," he said, "a man would spend an evening at dining. Eating was an art that went hand in hand with the art of cooking. Today, we're diet conscious. We do everything faster. We are tempted with packaged dinners, with quick cooking and a fast bite-to-eat."

It has all contributed to taking the glamor out of cooking.

As much of a paradox as famine in the restaurants, however, is our well - traveled and culinary-educated nation that is at home with pizza, with chop suey or with gefulte fish.

"Our people know good food and good restaurants," Herz said, and they demand good cooking. But our food trades schools have empty seats. And those who enroll are often below normal intelligence. If we require an entrance examination, we'll have even fewer students."

One executive chef, Albert Stockli, added testimony to the unhappy dossier. He is a graduate of the kitchens in Europe's finest restaurants — where an apprentice had to pay for the privilege of learning. Several years ago, when he assumed responsibility for New York's Hawaiian Room, he was sent to Hawaii to learn recipes.

"Do you think this impresses anybody here?" he asked. "I cannot get people to understand that this is a good way to work and earn a living. I remember the old days when a chef was treated like royalty because he deserved it. Today he still deserves it, but nobody cares."

In Stockli's experience, we can no longer count on Europe's supplying us with chefs. Too many years of war have thinned the ranks and now that their restaurant business is picking up again, they need all the chefs they can train.

DALLAS (UP)—Recent floods have made it necessary for most Texans to adapt themselves to changed conditions. This includes thieves. Tuesday, a gunman escaped from a Dallas supermarket with $1,300 in cash. He drove away in a yellow truck, pulling a boat and trailer.

One of Texas' Five Most Consistent Newspapers

We believe that one truth is always consistent with another truth. We endeavor to be consistent with truths expressed in such great moral guides as the Golden Rule, the Ten Commandments and the Declaration of Independence.

Should we at any time, be inconsistent with these truths, we would appreciate anyone pointing out to us how we are inconsistent with these moral guides.

Fund Raising

Imagine this situation.

Let us suppose that the local high school needed a new gym. Can you imagine what would happen in Pampa if the city fathers turned a deaf ear to school board opportunities and instead a local drive was conducted on a voluntary basis to raise the funds?

Or let us suppose that in a new sub-division a requirement for pavement, curbs and sidewalks appears. Imagine this city with the council refusing to take action and instead having a committee of volunteers raise all necessary funds.

Impossible, you say? Impractical? It could never work?

According to the Wall Street Journal it is working right now in precisely this manner in the city of Columbus, Indiana.

Columbus has 22,000 persons according to latest figures. Yet this community raised $1 million for a high school gym, thereby removing any call for a bond issue which otherwise would have been made.

In another area of the city some $314,500 was voluntarily submitted for walks, driveways and curbs.,

Says A. D. Silva Jr., vice president of Columbus Process Company,-"We have adopted the philosophy of substituting contributions from industry and individuals for tax money where it might be difficult to raise the tax money. When something needs to be done we don't sit and argue until the tax money is forthcoming. We start a drive for the money and we get it."

Perhaps Mr. Silva doesn't know it, but the philosophy he has adopted is the original American philosophy. Long before our school system grew to its present gargantuan proportions, whenever a new school building seemed desirable, the people themselves pitched in to provide it.

There is something clean, fine and honest about persons providing for themselves, rather than saddling others with the burden. It was that spirit which made America great. The taxing proclivities of our various governments is reducing that greatness to penury.

The article in the Journal notes that there are some who complain that there is always some kind of a fund drive going on in Columbus. Fred E. Daniel, vice president of Arvin Industries, comments on this fact. "Most such complaints about there being too many drives come from people who don't give much anyway."

One of the most remarkable areas in which volunteer giving has replaced the compulsion of tax banditry is in respect to schools. Columbus hasn't yet abandoned government schools. But it has raised hundreds of thousands of dollars with which to increase teachers' salaries, improve existing buildings and provide new ones. In the past six years it has raised $1,746,500 for school building purposes alone. And the growing population of Columbus—the last 16 years have seen an increase of 87 per cent—is adequately handling the supply of new classrooms, more teachers and the other devices for which communities usually are taxed and taxed again.

One of the factors in the success noted by most of the fund raising efforts in Columbus, is that the city long ago abandoned the idea of a "united" fund drive. Responsible citizens felt that it was better to conduct drives for individual objectives. Thus the person giving knew exactly where his money was going and why.

Another important factor is this. The town's leading citizens, instead of backing the city government, assume individual responsibility toward raising the money in the voluntary manner. Thus what in other places might have developed into pressure groups for higher taxes, has developed into local committees each one dedicated to accomplishing some particular civic objective.

The results have paid big dividends.

What Columbus, Indiana, has done and is doing, could well be emulated by other cities. And we, for one, would be happy to see the effort put into practice here.

We congratulate the people of Columbus, Indiana, for remembering that there is a better way of getting things done.

THE NATION'S PRESS

STATESMEN, TAKE NOTE!
(California Feature ... 26)

While the statesmen struggle in the UN's skyscraper goldfish bowl to solve everybody's problems—internal and external—the ordinary people of the world are going about their business of getting better acquainted and are achieving encouraging new heights of cooperative understanding.

In Europe, six nations have signed a "common market" pact in which they will forego the luxury of restrictive tariffs and cast their lot together in providing for the economic needs of 160,000,000 people. This agreement, of course, has its political aspects, but basically it is on the market level, the level of the individual.

European jazz aficionados are crowing their delight over America's leading exponents of popular music. Physicians the world over are surmounting political, geographic, lingual and racial barriers in their pursuit of their common goal — the medical well-being of their fellow men. Business men, educators, artists, writers, dramatists, missionaries explorers, reporters, tourists, aviators, movie makers — hundreds and hundreds of thousands of individuals are constantly knitting the world's people closer and closer together. Not all of them do it well. Some do harm. But gregarious man is gradually finding his way into his neighbor's home, and heart.

Perhaps some day we'll learn that the way to get along in the world with a minimum of misunderstanding is not solely in the frosty realm of summit statesmanship, but first in the warm meadows of human relationships and mutual understanding.

POOR FARMERS, IS IT?
(N. Y. Daily News)

In case you're worried about the plight of the American farmer, help yourself to some statistics just issued by the Department of Agriculture, which never gives the farmers the worst of it.

The value of U. S. farm lands, says the department, jumped 2 per cent in the four months ended last Nov. 1. And since 1947-49, the national index of farm land values has gone up 143 per cent.

It seems to us that anyone who has been weeping for the farmers can now safely dry those tears or take to shedding them for somebody else. The farmers don't need 'em.

Are Labor Unions Per Se Evil?

I have a letter from Oscar W. Cooley, manager of Economic Education Service, that takes me to task for an article I wrote on "Why Investigate Labor Unions?" He points out that he has had a background in the Farmers' Co-operative Movement, which he contends is a voluntary movement.

I cannot see how anybody can object to any voluntary movement so long as that organization does not use a means of promoting the members' well-being by hindering or interfering with other people being free to get the full product of their labor by having all people, not just some people, help establish true values of what is produced. Nor do such organizations seek any legislation that gives them a special privilege.

As I understand it, the Farmers' Co-operative Movement is voluntary as far as the members are concerned, but it has a tax advantage over other individuals. And I know of no effort of these voluntary co-operatives making an effort to have this tax advantage stopped.

In my article Mr. Cooley takes exception to my contention there was no need for an investigation of labor unions. And when I use the words "labor unions" I mean labor unions that attempt to practice collective bargaining that aims at taking away from an individual his right to make an individual bargain. I know of no other kind of labor unions, and that kind of a labor union in my mind is evil in itself. It is evil per se.

It is evil and harmful because it violates the Declaration of Independence that all men, not just some men, are endowed by the Creator with certain inalienable rights, among these life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness. It is evil also because it violates the Coveting Commandment and the Golden Rule as interpreted by the Coveting Commandment. And any group, whether it be a farm group, a business group or a group of laborers, that conspires together to interfere and handicap any other person in his right to choose and plan his own life and no one else's without their consent, is, in itself, evil, wicked, harmful, unethical immoral unjust and un-American.

It seems rather foolish to try to defend something that does not exist. I know of no labor union that doesn't try to get a better wage by interfering with other people's liberty by using collective bargaining with the aim of taking way from an individual his right to make an individual bargain.

Would any advocate of labor unions contend that it is not evil and wicked for employers or school teachers or preachers or doctors or any group to go together with the idea of improving their own lot by reducing competition and making it difficult for an individual to sell his services to the world's highest bidder?

Does anyone know of any labor union that ever attempted to have repealed the Clayton Amendment to the Sherman Anti-Trust Law which permits labor unions to conspire against other workers and not violate the Sherman Anti-Trust Law?

Does anyone ever know of a labor union that made any effort to get repealed the Norris-Laguardia Act that makes it a crime for an employer to require his employes to agree that they will not join a labor union that practices collective bargaining that attemps to take away from an individual his right to make an individual bargain?

Does anyone know of a labor union that advocates the repeal of the Wagner Act, that advocates the repeal of the law that requires time and one-half for over 40 hours' work in interstate industry?

And if no one knows of any labor unions that oppose these forms of exploitation and plunder, why talk about a labor union that does not exist? No rational person, of course, would object to workers going together with the idea of trying to educate each other and trying to find better jobs for their employees, so long as they did not practice strikes and collective bargaining.

And when I use the words "collective bargaining," I mean the kind in use that attempts to take away from an individual his right to make an individual bargain. That is the evil of any group, whether it be employers or laborers.

Right-To-Work Laws

This column has repeatedly said that all laws that interfere with individuals or groups making bargains for the individual or the group alone should be repealed. Then there would be no need for a right-to-work law. But a right-to-work law is just as legitimate and necessary as a law against stealing or murdering, so long as it makes it a crime only to join a labor union that attempts to take away from an individual his right to make an individual bargain by strikes and collective bargaining.

If anybody knows of any organized labor group that doesn't advocate strikes and collective bargaining, I would like to know of such a group. Certainly it is not a national organization.

Let's be careful about the meaning of the terms we use.

Taxing Of Charities Would Bring Forth 'True' Charity

By WESTBROOK PEGLER

The worst fault of the administration of the federal income tax is the system of "exemptions" and "deductions." These are political tricks strung onto the original evil of the 16th Amendment. They are appeasements of sectarian religious elements, mighty concentrations of wealth such as the Ford fortune, and alien political forces, oincluding Communism. All "exemptions" and "deductions" should be abolished absolutely and all incomes should be taxed straight across the board in the appropriate brackets. In that case each one of us would support his own dependents and his own church out of his own resources. All donations to all "charities" would be taxable as part of each donor's income.

If a man has dependent children there is a theological and social if not a political and practical presumption that when he is too old to support himself, they will chip in and tide him over the rest of the way. The fact that in many cases, if not most, this is not true does not impair the proposition that parenthood is a private concern.

The taxpayer has not performed a public service in marrying and able presumption, suported by literature and theological and social material, that matrimony has spiritual and domestic compensations which the bachelor and spinster do not enjoy. It is outrageous to tax the bachelor and spinster, and we do tax them as such, to help support the spouses and children of married persons.

If a taxpayer supports aged parents, he is doing no more than his duty. That may be either his delight or his hard luck and burden. But however he views it, this is no concern of the taxpayer next door who may be an orphan. The fellow next door may yearn for the sounds of stilled voices.

When we approach the "deduction" of contributions to churches we court a hellish fury. We are bigots and Godless infidels. Nevertheless, if I belong to no formal religious group and therefore claim no benefit for contributions to support my pastor and paint the belfry, I am automatically forced to pay toward such expenses of the church which my neighbor goes to and thus to propagate heresy or church power. I don't agree with his religion, but I don't object to his faith and activity. They are just no-dice in my life until Congress says I have to make up the shortage of tax caused by the deduction from his taxable income of the money which he drops in the basket on Sundays.

That ain't fair. Maybe I like to fish or get drunk on Sundays. Let Congress tax him to help pay for that. We have a constitutional provision in the First Amerndment popularly called "religious freedom," but it provides only that Congress shall not try to establish an official federal church. It was intended to permit atheists to abstain from religious exercise or commitment, but the present deductions of religious donations by some taxpayers to be compensated by higher taxes from infidels is discrimination in a country which rolls its eyes in holy horror over discrimination on racial grounds or against members of any particular faith.

All church organizations and all charities, such as the Red Cross, should pay taxes on their incomes exactly as persons and corporations do. This may not harm them at all in the long run, although I think they would be. If they should be harmed, that would only prove that some of the church members and donors to charity are, as we all strongly suspect, chiselers. They gauge their gifts with a shrewd, business eye to the ultimate cost to them in money, after deductions.

In a typical case, a taxpayer gave $1,500 to a friend in terrible financial distress caused in part by the tax confiscations of his earnings for "foreign aid." At his rate of income, the donor had to earn $2,550 that year to "clear" this $1,500. If he had given the same $1,500 to the Red Cross or to the "educational" works of the nonsectarian Anti-Nazi League, which maintains professional spies to snoop on loyal Americans, his "deductions" would have brought the actual cost of his bigness down to $450. The discrimination against true charity is a dirty business which degrades Congress, not, however, that many members of the National Legislature ever feel any guilt. They are so horribly cynical, forever courting and placating pressure groups and raising their own salaries and perquisites, that decency seldom enters their deliberations on Revenue Acts, except in terms of derision.

The 16th says an income tax may be levied on incomes from whatever source derived. That means all incomes, but the exceptions set in at once. Actually, churches, charities, universities, foundations, unions and a thousand varieties of unworthy institutions pay no taxes and make no returns. Much of their revenue is graft. None of them, even the noblest, deserves exemption and exception.

We can't discriminate between one religion and another; between one charity and another; between "educational" rackets most of which are frauds. Tax them all, equally, on their own income and make the donors pay taxes on their donations. Then we will begin to realize that true religion, true charity, and true solicitude for the "education" and "uplift" of society are very much unlike the concept which is maintained in the hypocritical sordid Revenue Acts.

The CRACKER BARREL

This item is for really gone hep cats. The latest word from Eugene Loring, Hollywood choreographer, is that they soon may be abandoning "Rock 'n' Roll" for "Way Out" (or Progressive Jazz, if you want to be formal about it.) "Way Out" is like "Rock 'n Roll" only more so and, to perform it, it helps if you have been an acrobat, a contortionist and a student of ballet. Its epitome is achieved by Audrey Hepburn in the cafe scene of "Funny Face". Audrey rehearsed four weeks with Loring before she danced in front of the cameras with a couple of Hollywood hoofers, Bruce Hay and Don Powell. Directors Stanley Donen is so sure "Way Out" will start a new craze that he took four days to shoot it. And Dick Avendon, with loving care, gave it some amazing trick lighting effects. New York, Loring tells me, is declaring "Way Out" to be "the most."

Election And Lobby Laws Have No Chance Of Passing

By RAY TUCKER

WASHINGTON — Pure election and anti-lobbying laws have no chance of passage on Capitol Hill because of partisan excesses in denouncing violations by the very advocates of these safeguards — namely, the Democrats. Dave Beck also shares responsibility for inaction.

The famous Gore report on 1956 political contributions has now been exposed as a deliberate and calculated catalogue of Republican sins. It depicted with some justice the GOP as the Party of wealth and as the beneficiary of certain interests giving—the bankers, utilities, investment houses, railroads, munitions makers, etc.

It headlined, industry by industry, amounts which they had contributed to Republican candidates on national tickets. Contrariwise, although many corporation officials and members of wealthy dynasties kicked in to the Democrats, they were listed as individual donors, their names scattered throughout the document in such a way that only scientific research revealed their generosity.

But the Gore report's most one-sided feature was its utter failure to show the tremendous contributions to the Democrats by the labor unions, which may yet be disclosed in questioning of Dave Beck. The committee's Democratic majority accepted the theory that these ballot-box efforts were only "educational," although the Supreme Court has evidenced its doubt with regard to "Professor" Beck's and "Professor" Reuther's activities.

Gore investigators disregarded the speeches, the literature, meetings, the enforced collections of extra dues and the door-to-door solicitation of votes by Beck's teamsters in Oregon, Washington and California, by Walter P Reuther's auto workers in Michigan and neighboring states, and by David McDonald's steel operators in Pennsylvania and elsewhere.

Beck may yet be forced by the McClellan Committee to tell of his union's costly campaigning for prominent Democratic Senators in the Far West. It has not escaped their colleagues' notice that a number of professed purists and progressives have not raised their voice in condemnation of Beck's operations, which Senator McClellan characterizes as "theft of union funds"

These silent men include such Senators as Warren G. Magnuson of Washington, Wayne L. Morse and Richard L. Neuberger of Oregon, and a score of House Members from Western states where Beck is labor dictator in industry and politics.

As a matter of fact, since Beck began to assume control, he has helped to transform Washington and Oregon into Democratic strongholds in Senate races. And Oregon used to be as solidly Republican as Maine and Vermont.

Reuther's political influence in heavily populated automobile centers has had the same effect in Michigan. Indeed, he is believed to be grooming Governor G. Mennen Williams for Democratic Presidential nomination in 1960. And if Williams cannot land on the ticket, Reuther himself would not decline the secondary spot.

Further, to emphasize union labor's growing political power, and such eminence cannot be attained without spending vast sums in direct or indirect action, McDonald's steelworkers and allied trades have made Pennsylvania, once a GOP Gibraltar, into a doubtful commonwealth. It now has a Democratic Governor and a Democratic Senator.

None of these results of union operations in these great states—and there are many others — were reflected in the Gore report that is supposed to furnish the evidence of need for election law reform.

The whole Congressional membership, Democrats and Republicans, have no passion for lobby curbs. In fact, they frequently rely on these "legislative engineers as they prefer to identify themselves, for advice, specialized information on complex problems and even for drafting bills. And here again, the only lobbyists under fire have been Republicans including several members of Ike's official family.

In view of Republican resentment against this exhibition of partisanship and Southern Conservatives' notable hostility toward Federal controls, these political and legislative operations will remain free of Congressional crackdowns.

Hyde Park Reminds One 'The Show's The Thing'

By HENRY McLEMORE

LONDON — London's best show continues to be the double - talk Demostheneses of Hyde Park.

On fair days and foul, from morning until lighting-up time, they stand on their boxes or step-ladders and harangue anyone who will pause to listen.

These open air forums have been going on for centures, and are just as popular today as they were when the Tudors and the Stuarts were on the throne.

I spent all of yesterday afternoon under a balmy sun, wandering from speaker to speaker, each of whom, with his knot of listeners, formed a little oasis on the greenery of the Park. There must have been a score of lecturers working at the same time within a radius of 200 yards. There were brown men, black men and white men holding forth.

Some wore battered top hats and the remains of formal clothes. Some were in shirtsleeves and working pants, and others were dressed in a motley array of sports clothes — turtleneck sweaters, basque shirts, shabby flannels, and caps.

Around some speakers there would be as many as 200 people, while others would expound their views to five, ten, or twenty listeners. Nearly every speaker was guaranteed an audience of at least one — a bobby. Sir Robert Peel's boys stood by bored to death, but ready to shake a stick when the frequent heckling threatened to develop into a free-for-all.

For the most part, the listeners were good natured, willing to let the speaker have his say without thrusting back. But there was one good melee, which required the services of three bobbies to break up.

The speaker was a hawk-faced man in his middle forties, who operated from atop a kitchen ladder. His platform was decorated with an oilcloth placard that read "How the War Office Cheats Poor Inventors." Why this placard, I never found out, for he never once mentioned the War Office or inventors, poor or rich.

When I moved within hearing he was making an impassioned attack on the large sums of money spent on sending the Queen and the Duke to France.

The crowd didn't rise to this bait very enthusiastically, although one listener did call out, "Oh, come, now, Jock! None of us minded giving a bob to send 'Er Majesty to France for an 'oliday. Don't be a cheap 'un."

The trouble started when he launched into a tirade against Germany's General Speidel being in charge of British troops.

"Who you want put in charge?" a heckler called. "A Russian? One of them Hungarian murderers?"

The speaker charged Spidel with every crime under the sun, including "trying to kill us British soldiers at Dunkirk."

Someone in the audience wanted to know how he know about Dunkirk — through the newspapers?

"The German generals weren't caring for the likes of you," another shouted. "You were a ruddy conscientious objector."

A little man who must have been in his seventies, wearing a monocle, and sporting sidewhiskers, charged the speaker's ladder. Down it came, and down came the speaker, placard and all.

In a second half a hundred people were in a wild tangle, shoving and shouting. It was all over as quickly as it started. The cops moved in, quickly and quietly. Names were written down. The crowd moved back.

Up went the ladder. Up the ladder went the speaker.

"As I was saying. . . . . ."

And he was off again, only this time Prime Minister MacMillan was the target.

Pep Squad Names New Cheerleaders At 'April Showers' Tea For Mothers

(Special to The News)
By MRS. CHARLES ROBERTS
Pampa News Correspondent

LEFORS —"April Showers" was the theme for the semi-formal tea given for the mothers of the Pep Squad under the sponsorship of Mrs. Edward Lehnick on April 27 in Civic Center.

The serving table was laid with a pink cloth centered with an arrangement of white-lace horns aplenty filled with spring blossoms. Miss Mary Hogan, president, served the pink and green decorated cake, while Miss Marilyn Pafford presided at the crystal punch bowl service.

A welcome to the mothers was given by Miss Hogan, who also recognized the seniors, who will be leaving and the freshmen, who are just entering the pep squad. The response was given by Mrs. Earl Atkinson, after which each girl introduced her mother.

A poem, "Cheerleader," written by Miss Janis Dunnam was presented by the author. "Walking In the Rain," was offered by Miss Pat Winegart, playing her own accompaniment.

The highlight of the tea was the naming of cheerleaders for the coming year, which were chosen by secret ballot. Mrs. Lehnick gave a short address and presented each candidate with a certificate.

After the presentation, 15 "rahs" were given for the "Pirates," and the school song was sung.

A gift was presented by the group to Mrs. Lehnick in appreciation of her work with them.

Those present were Mmes. R. L. Clemons, A. E. Dunnam, M. J. Moxon, T. V. Northcott, H. L. McCarley, D. S. McDowell, W. T. Cole, D. D. Lewis, O. Lewis, Claude Nichols, Earl Atkinson, John Carpenter, George Delver, J. D. Halley, David Robison, Floyd Hines, G. B. Hogan, and Misses Ardelle Griggs, Gain Henson, Jerrie Barber, Jan Dunnam, Rachel Hill, Beneva Holl, Becky Burress, Anny Paton, Betty Lewis, Janie Parks, Loretta Moxon, Glynda Northcott, Peggy McCarley, Pat McDowell, Marilyn Delver, Mary Cole, Margie Nichols, Judy Atkinson, Paula Cumberledge, Betty Carpenter, Barbara Halley, Carolyn Bogle, Lynda Robison, Sharon Hines, and Mary Hogan.

Make Friends Manners

There is really no excuse for not writing a thank-you note to the person who sends you a gift or does you a favor. You weren't too busy to accept the gift or the favor.

Then don't be too busy to take a few minutes to express your appreciation.

Miss Cumberledge Feted On Birthday

(Special to The News)

LEFORS — Mr. and Mrs. Bud Cumberledge honored their daughter, Paula, on her fifteenth birthday, April 26, with a hayride.

The group assembled at the Cumberledge home and rode to Pampa City Park, where they had a wiener roast and birthday cake.

A session of games was played after the wiener roast.

Mrs. Spence Has Hobby Club Meet

(Special to The News)

LEFORS — The Hobby Club met with Mrs. L. R. Spence recently and completed two planters and three copper pictures during the day.

A covered dish luncheon was served at noon.

Those present were Mmes. Jack Dolan, H. B. Neill, Jeff Davis, Tom Florence, D. S. McDowell, Lester Berryman, L. R. Spence, A. T. Cobb, E. R. Auldridge, and Jennie White.

The next meeting will be May 10 in the home of Mrs. Alben Shores.

Church Women To Have May Lunch

The United Church Women will have their annual Fellowship Luncheon May 3 at 1 p.m. in the Harrah Methodist Church. The theme for the program is, "Free Schools In A Free America."

United church women throughout the United States will gather for fellowship and to relate the theme of the day to the schools in their own communities; to examine them; to determine their needs; and to join with their neighbors to help solve their local problems.

The opening devotional will be given by Mrs. Ocie Stewart.

Miss Marilyn Wells and Bill Atkinson of the Pampa High School debate team will present the program, using the theme for the day.

All church women are urged to attend.

A nursery will be provided.

Blouse Hangers Solve Teen-Age Closet Problem

By ALICIA HART
NEA Beauty Editor

Teen-agers live in a flurry of comings and goings, telephone conversations, study dates, weekend visits and soda fountain dates.

Knowing which scarf goes with your new sweater is a help. Being able to put your hands on a clean blouse when you want it is another help. If the only thing you can haul out of your closet at a moment's notice is a pair of blue jeans, you're not likely to be the girl in most demand at your school.

So take time out to arrange your clothes. Keep a special drawer for that collection of sweaters, another for lingerie, a special spot for socks and nylons. Have one of those decorative new hampers in your room and pop your soiled lingerie into it the moment you take it off. It's not fair to make your mother slide under your bed to collect clothes for the laundry.

The teeners are few and far between who can step out of a messy room looking radiant. Best solution to the whole problem lies in some inexpensive closet fittings that keep everything in place.

There are blouse hangers that hold four or five blouses at a time, keeping them fresh and neat. A belt hanger holds any number of belts and has them ready for you at a moment's notice. Transparent plastic hat boxes show you just where the hat you want is.

And remember, dirt can literally eat up fabric. So never put anything away soiled. Clean out that hamper daily and pop everything into the suds for a thorough cleansing.

Exceptional Children

The Parent Education Club's Beautiful Homes Tour, which will be conducted on May 4, has been planned for the purpose of acquiring funds to purchase special equipment for the use of all exceptional children in Pampa.

Mrs. Kay Veale, R.N., who is the school nurse, contributes this statement concerning the project:

"Exceptional children, like other children, are entitled to the best educational facilities available. As so often happens, their needs go unnoticed by the public. And unintentionally, they are not given all of the opportunities to help them find their place in our society."

"The Parent Education Club is to be commended on the work they are planning in behalf of the exceptional children."

LAMB THRIFTIES

Economy - minded homemakers will find Lamb Thrifties a hearty addition to budget menus. Simply combine 1 pound ground lamb, 1 cup grated raw carrots, 1 egg, 1 teaspoon salt, ⅛ teaspoon pepper and 2 teaspoons grated onion. Shape into patties. Put on broiler rack and place in broiler so that the top of the meat is 2 to 3 inches from the heat. Broil 8 to 10 minutes on each side. 6 servings.

Sugar Ray Stops Fullmer In Fifth, Looks To Basilio Fight

By JACK CUDDY
United Press Sports Writer

CHICAGO (UP)—Veteran Sugar Ray Robinson, the ring's revivified superman whose devastating left hook made him world middleweight champion for an unprecedented fourth time, indicated today he will defend against welter ruler Carmen Basilio in a mid-July million-dollar fight.

Fresh from his spectacular fifth-round knockout over Gene Fullmer — the most glorious victory of his 17-year career—Sugar Ray said, "I'll be ready to match my new matador-bull style against Basilio any time the money is right."

The 36-year-old "matador" blasted the bull-necked, bull-shouldered Fullmer to the canvas for a knockout at 1:27 of the fifth round in Chicago Stadium before 14,753 Wednesday night.

Fullmer, who had taken the title from Robinson on a unanimous decision last January, was hit so hard that he said, "I never knew what happened to me until they were telling me in the corner I was counted out."

Sugar 3-1 Underdog

Sugar Ray, the 3-1 underdog who still packed enough dynamite to kayo Fullmer for the first time in his career of 44 fights, is such an attraction now that promoter Jim Norris believes a defense against rugged Basilio, another who never was stopped, should draw close to a million dollars at New York's Yankee Stadium, probably July 16 or 23.

Robinson, who was carefully schooled by ex-champion Joe Louis while training for Fullmer, changed the pattern of his fighting completely Wednesday night—when compared to his January strategy. And the changes — coupled with his explosive left hook—won for him.

He shuffled persistently toward Fullmer, but refrained from leading at him with left jabs or straight rights. Instead, he feinted Fullmer into leading with his own charging, swarming attack. And then Ray countered him. In January, Robinson made the mistake of leading at Fullmer and letting Fullmer counter with his charges.

Fullmer, who landed more punches but less effective ones during Wednesday night's brief encounter, was leading slightly on all three official score cards by the identical score, 19-18. And that coincided with the United Press sheet.

Ray Hit With Lien

Gene and Ray earned purses of $67,480 each from the $158,643 gross gate and $100,000 TV-radio fee. However, Uncle Sam has slapped a tax lien of $23,000 on Robinson's loot.

Fullmer, the muscular mauler from West Jordan, Utah, said, "Naturally I'd like to get a rubber match with him for the title, but I guess we'll have to wait and see what happens to Robinson's negotiations with Basilio."

Utah Gene, at 159½ pounds, weighed two pounds more than in January and was expected to be stronger at the new weight. Robinson scaled 159½ this time, just a half pound less than at New York.

Redlegs Climbing To Top

Braves, White Sox Hold To League Leads

By FRED DOWN
United Press Sports Writer

The Cincinnati Redlegs, who won games the easy way via 221 homers last season, seem determined to do it the hard way this year.

Off to a near - disastrous start when they lost six straight games to the Milwaukee Braves, the Redlegs climbed into a tie for fourth place and within striking distance of the National League leaders Wednesday night with an 8-6 victory over the Philadelphia Phillies. But it took four hours and 36 minutes, 16 innings and about 10 years off manager Birdie Tebbetts' career to accomplish the job.

Wally Post finally broke up the longest game of the current major league season when he singled home two runs in the top of the 16th. That gave Warren Hacker, fifth of six Cincinnati pitchers, his first win and the Redlegs their second straight triumph over a team that held them even at 11-11 in 1956.

The Milwaukee Braves held their one-game lead in the N.L. when they beat the New York Giants, 5-1, in 10 innings, the Brooklyn Dodgers routed the Chicago Cubs, 7-2, and the St. Louis Cardinals pummelled the Pittsburgh Pirates, 9-2, in the other N.L. games.

In the American League, the Chicago White Sox beat the Baltimore Orioles, 9-3, the New York Yankees downed the Detroit Tigers, 7-4, the Cleveland Indians rallied to shade the Washington Senators, 7-6, and the Kansas City Athletics scored a 7-5 triumph over the Boston Red Sox.

Warren Spahn, brilliant 36-year-old southpaw, turned in his fourth consecutive win with an eight-hitter against the Giants. The Giants tied the score in the ninth on Ossie Virgil's triple and Ray Jablonski's single but the Braves snapped the deadlock when Hank Aaron singled home Danny O'Connell in the 10th and Frank Torre and Bobby Thomson followed with clinching homers.

Don Drysdale scattered seven hits as the Dodgers ran their modest winning skein to three straight. It was the sixth defeat in a row for the Cubs.

Stan Musial smashed two doubles and 42-year-old Walker Cooper homered to lead the Cardinals' 12-hit assault on four Pittsburgh pitchers. Willard Schmidt gained his first win while Bob Purkey suffered his first loss.

Minnie Minoso knocked in four runs with three-for-three and rookie Jim Landis walloped three doubles to lead the White Sox to their ninth victory in 11 games. Ex-Giant Jack Harshman won his third straight for the Sox although Dixie Howell finished up. George Kell had four hits for Baltimore.

"The Lord And Joe Louis Made Me Champ," Says Ray

By RAY ROBINSON
Written for the United Press

CHICAGO (UP)—The Lord and Joe Louis — they joined hands in making me the middleweight champion of the world again.

To the millions of people who prayed for my success I owe my everlasting thanks. I know that in answer to these prayers God sent two people to help me regain the title — Father Lang to give me spiritual guidance and Joe Louis to give me the benefit of his boxing experience. (Rev. Fr. Jovian Lang of St. Joseph's Seminary, Westmont, Ill.).

When a boxer gets older he's bound to lose some of his sharpness but it's impossible for him to recognize what's gone. Joe did that for me like the true friend he is. More than anything else, he retaught me how to step back and punch as Fullmer came pressing in on me. That's what I just couldn't seem to do in the first fight and it proved to be the difference this time.

I'm not kidding myself a bit. I needed all the help I could get. This Fullmer is one rough cookie and I feel mighty fortunate that I won as I did. He's strong as a bull and takes a punch like few boys around these days. I drove home several good shots and all he did was blink and come back swinging.

He was a fairly easy target and I felt rather confident that one of those shots would have just a little extra something on it and he'd have to fall rather than blink.

I think I weakened him with a couple of sharp rights earlier in the fifth, which certainly helped when the opening presented itself as he charged in and I swung home the left hook that put him on the canvas.

Don't kid yourself, I was mighty glad he didn't get up—he gave me all the fight I wanted for an evening's entertainment.

Colonial Invitational Opens Today With Demaret Favored

FORT WORTH, Tex. (UP) — Jaunty Jimmy Demaret, who plays some of his best golf in the wind and rain, "figgers" he has a good a chance as anybody" to win the $25,000 Colonial National Invitation golf tournament which started a 72-hole run today.

This year's edition of the Colonial may get by without any rain, or much wind, but there's been an excess of moisture over the past two weeks and the 7,021-yard par 70 Colonial layout was slow and soft and the air was comparatively cool—all to Demaret's liking.

"I never scored well here when the tournament was played in late May or early June," Demaret said, "because the hot weather affected me too much. Last year when it was played in early May I tied for sixth at 287, seven strokes behind (Mike) Souchak, the winner.

"Too, I'm playing better than at any time in recent years and I 'figger' I've got as good a chance as anybody to win."

National Open champion Cary Middlecoff said he thought such long players as himself, Ben Hogan, Arnold Palmer and defending champion Souchak stood the best chances of winning in the 48-man field.

Almost everyone agreed that the weather-toughened course, a nerve-wracker at its best, would certainly be an assist to the long-ball hitters.

The fairway grass was deep enough to lose drives in and the vegetation in the roughs, which were too wet to permit mowing, is even thicker and higher.

Ed Furgol said he liked the chances of National Amateur Champion Harvie Ward and newcomer Ken Venturi because they were used to "this sort of weather and playing conditions" around San Francisco. Ward, Venturi and Byron Nelson got off in the first three-some at 11:30 a.m.

Venturi Close

Venturi has been playing close to par in practice, while Hogan, who calls Colonial his home course, has recorded a 68 and a 69 in tuneup rounds after honing his game for two solid weeks.

Kentucky Derby Has 11 Entries

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (UP)—Eleven horses were expected to be entered today in the $125,000 added Kentucky Derby as the entry box closed 8 hours before for the first of the Triple Crown classics Saturday.

Even though he turned up lame with a bad bruise, Wednesday Calumet Farm's Gen. Duke, along with stablemate Iron Liege, was expected to be named for the mile and one-quarter spectacle.

The others for whom owners were expected to pay the $250 to pass through the entry box were Wheatley Stable's Bold Ruler, Ralph Lowe's Gallant Man, Kerr Stable's Round Table, Clifford Lansky's Federal Hill, T. Alie Grissom's Shan Pac, William S. Miller's Better Bee, Ada L. Rice's Indian Creek, John L. Appelbaum's Mister Jive and Cain Hoy Stable's One-Eyed King.

One-eyed King and Mister Jive joined the field late Wednesday when news of Gen. Duke's injury spread.

Riding assignments were completed Wednesday after a last minute scramble by Johnny Nerud, trainer of Gallant Man. He had planned to have John Choquette ride the horse but Choquette was given a 10 - day suspension by the stewards at Jamaica. Nerud then signed up Willie Shoemaker, who will fly in from California.

Eddie Arcaro, riding his 18th Kentucky Derby and seeking a sixth win, rides Bold Ruler, who now looms as favorite for the race.

Bill Hartack rides Gen. Duke and Dave Erb rides Iron Liege, the entry which fell from the favorite spot when Gen. Duke turned up lame.

Oilers And Texans Rained Out Again

Rain and wet grounds again forced postponement of Pampa's home opener in the Southwestern League last night and is expected to do the same tonight.

The Oilers have been idle for seven days because of the rain. Their last game was played last Thursday night at Ballinger. Games with Ballinger, Midland, Carlsbad and El Paso have been postponed.

The El Paso Texans were scheduled to open here last night against the Oilers. The two teams have games slated here for tonight and Friday night but the Oilers will probably be forced to wait until next Tuesday to play their first home game.

Pampa goes to Carlsbad and El Paso for four games starting Saturday. They come back here Tuesday, May 11, to meet Ballinger.

Hobbs Rolling On In Southwestern

By UNITED PRESS

Hobbs, in last place two games ago, had a toehold in the Southwestern League first division today.

Hobbs edged Midland, which dropped into the cellar, 3-1 last night. In the only other game played, Clovis tripped Ballinger, 4-3.

Hobbs scored two runs in the sixth on a combination of Dick Hogan's double, a single by John Spicuzza and Midland shortstop Arvie Alvarez' error. Hobbs added an insurance run in the seventh.

Vallie Eaves relieved George Payte in the ninth to quell a Midland uprising and preserve the victory.

Pete Carillo threw a four-hitter as Ballinger as Clovis moved into a virtual tie for the lead with Carlsbad. Gene Lippold nearly matched him, giving up six hits for Ballinger.

He balked in the ninth, sending Joe Padilla home with the final Clovis run.

All other games were postponed.

Bowling Banquet Slated Tonight

The annual banquet for the men's leagues of the Pampa Bowling Association will be held tonight at 7:30 in the recreation room of St. Paul Methodist Church.

Members of the leagues, their wives, the sponsors and guests are expected to be present. Tickets are $1.50 each and barbecued chicken will be served.

Presentation of trophies and prize money won at the city tournament will be made.

Tag Team Match Scheduled Monday

A tag team match will headline the Pampa Shrine Club's weekly wrestling program at the Top o' Texas Sportsman Club Monday night.

The Great Bolo will team up with Iron Mike DeBiase to go against Sonny Myers and Don Curtis. The tag bout is scheduled for the best of three falls with a one-hour time limit.

The semifinal bout, slated for 45 minutes and the best of three falls, will have Ivan Koia going against Rocky Columbo. DeBiase meets Don Curtis in the first fall, a 20-minute match.

Jerry Woods will be the referee. Starting time for the matches has been changed to 8:30 p.m. Tickets are on sale at Modern Pharmacy.

FIGHT RESULTS

By UNITED PRESS

CHICAGO — Sugar Ray Robinson, 159½, New York, knocked out Gene Fullmer, 159½, West Jordan, Utah (5)—won world middleweight title.

ESSEN, Germany — Archie Moore, 206½, Toledo Ohio outpointed Hans Kalbfell 212½, Germany, (10)—non-title.

ALBUQUERQUE, N.M. — Neal Rivers, 160, Los Angeles, stopped Rocky Caballero, 160, Austin Tex. (4).

Harvesters Take On Sandies Here Friday, Dons Saturday

Weather permitting, the Pampa Harvesters will meet the league-leading Amarillo Sandies here tomorrow afternoon at 3:30 in Oiler Park.

The Harvesters, idle since last Saturday, are trying to get back into the District 3-AAAA chase. They have won four of seven district games this season.

Coach Sam Pecchia's Sandies hold the lead over the six other 3-AAAA teams with a 5-1 record. Their only loss has been to second-place Palo Duro.

A victory over the Sandies, which would be the first in almost eight years, would put the Harvesters to within one-half game of the leaders and could toss them into a tie for second with Palo Duro should the Dons lose to Monterey at Amarillo.

In other district games slated tomorrow, Borger plays at Lubbock and Plainview has an open date. Saturday's schedule will find the Oilers playing host to the Palo Duro Dons in Oiler Park at 2 p.m., Borger playing at Plainview and Lubbock playing host to Monterey. Amarillo has an open date.

Both Amarillo and Pampa will have their top pitchers ready for the Friday game. Both have been idle for several days because of rain and wet grounds. Amarillo was scheduled to play Monterey Tuesday and Pampa had a twin bill with Childress.

Coach Deck Wood will probably start either Ray Stephenson or David James on the mound for the Harvesters. Ronnie Burlingame will also be ready and will probably see mound duty either Friday or Saturday.

The Sandies will probably counter with Jimmy Davis, who has a 2-0 record, or Bill Curry, 3-1. The Sandies edged the Harvesters in their last meeting this season at Amarillo.

PERFECT RECORD

Ronnie Burlingame has a 1-0 pitching record in district play for the Harvesters after his fine hurling against Monterey last week. Burlingame will probably see action this week end against Amarillo or Palo Duro.

Softball League's Entry Deadline Set For May 7

Deadline for entering the Industrial Softball League is May 7, according to league chairman Charlie Wilkerson. Six teams have entered the league and more teams are needed.

Teams already entered and their managers are Magnolia, Kay Lewis; Frontier Perforating, John Knight; Phillips Petroleum, James Shew; Sinclair, Ben Hamilton; Schlumberger, Ray E. Wilson; and Celanese, R. G. Howell.

Entry fee for a team is $15 and the maximum number of players on a roster is 18, including the manager. Deadline for filing entries is midnight, May 7. League play in Byers City Park and Lions Club Park starts May 14.

Wilkerson has been named rules interpreter for the West Texas district and he has been given authority to sanction teams to play in the state softball tournament this summer. He has also been named temporary regional softball commissioner until a permanent commissioner is named. The region extends from Sherman to New Mexico.

Wilkerson requests that any team wishing to enter the league contact him before May 7.

WASHINGTON (UP)—Fullback Tom Crowl, a 207-pound fullback who was not a standout at Purdue, has been signed by the Washington Redskins because Coach Joe Kuharich said he was impressed by his "hustle." Crowl was signed as a free agent.

NEW YORK (UP) — Tony Dibiase and Jimmy Archer, both of New York, have signed to meet in a 10-round bout at St. Nicholas Arena, May 13. Sugar Hart of Philadelphia and Sugar Wilson of Englewood, N.J., who meet at St. Nick's on May 6, were pronounced in excellent shape Wednesday by Commissioner Dr. Alexander Schiff.

Southwestern Farmers, Experts Agree Drouth Is Finally Broken

EDITOR'S NOTE: United Press interviewed officials of three government agencies in Washington who expressed cautious hope the eight-year western and southwestern drought had been broken. Today, United Press reports on the reaction of farmers and agricultural experts to that view.

By W. LEE BOND
United Press Staff Correspondent

Southwestern farmers and agricultural experts have agreed that spring rains have broken the eight-year drought in the southwestern plains and western states. But they said moisture conditions would have to return to normal to prevent another.

Those interviewed said the best proof that the drought had been broken would come at harvest time — later in the summer and fall.

The greatest need today, especially in water-logged Texas, is for sunshine and comparatively cool weather to allow planting.

Wheat will suffer, said Williams Wells, a Plano, Tex., farmer, if it turns hot and allows rust, an enemy of wheat, to form on grain.

Cautious Optimism

A United Press survey of officials of three government agencies Tuesday in Washington expressed cautious hope that the eight-year drought had been broken.

The topsoil loss has been exceptionally high in some sections of Central Texas where rains up to 10 inches fell in a week's time.

"We were able to save a lot of our soil because of terracing methods employed during the lean years," said Wells, who with his brother, John, farm in north central Texas.

"The drought is certainly broken around here. We had some washing, a lot of terraces were broken, but we feel confident things will come out all right if we can get some clear, cool weather," Wells said.

Texas Agriculture Commissioner John White has estimated crop damage at between 25 and 30 million dollars. The rains are keeping farmers out of the fields and in some cases, he said, will delay them so long as to run into planting deadlines set by law. It is expected that the deadlines will be extended.

A. B. Jolly, former Dallas county agricultural agent and now the farm editor for a Dallas radio station, said he had just returned from a swing through north central Texas.

"I found farmers very optimistic," Jolly said. "They are impatient to get into the fields and mighty glad of the rains. The ground moisture is down six to eight feet. That is good."

West Texans Pleased

"It's wet enough to plant on some of our dryland farms now," J. K. Adams, county agent at Muleshoe in West Texas observed.

West Texas farmers and businessmen in general were pleased over soil conditions. "Most encouraging," said one farmer, "is that the rain generally fell slow enough in our area for the moisture to soak into the soil."

In the South Plains area around Lubbock, the rains built up the underground moisture in dryland fields to the point where farmers will be able to plant in moist loam instead of "dusting in" their seed, then praying for showers to make a crop.

The traditional planting month of May is here. Agricultural experts said cotton, grain, sorghums and vegetables will be planted in the South Plains as quickly as fields dry out.

Drying Needed

County Agent Neil Tibbetts at Gainesville, in north central Texas, said general surface drying is needed to facilitate spring planting, particularly of cotton.

Wheat has suffered most from excessive moisture, he said. He predicted a good crop but not a bumper crop. Corn acreage will be cut considerably because the rains have delayed planting.

Farmer Aubrey Thompson, who farms five miles west of Troy, in Central Texas, said his farm had received 10.50 inches of rain in a seven-day period.

Thompson was most pleased with his conservation program which he said "really paid off."

Russ Leigh, another farmer in the same general area, also was happy over his conservation plan. It saved a lot of land washing, he said. "It looks as if we have the drought whipped for a while."

2 Names Crop Up In GOP Troubles

By RAYMOND LAHR
United Press Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON (UP)—When Republican critics of the administration look around for scapegoats to blame for their internal party troubles, two names are apt to be heard.

They are Arthur Larson, director of the U.S. Information Agency, and Percival F. Brundage, director of the Bureau of the Budget.

Larson is regarded as the inventor of "modern" or "new" Republicanism, which has caused a backlash from GOP conservatives. These critics and some that are not so conservative want to be identified as just Republicans, with no descriptions attached.

Brundage Key Adviser

Brundage's job makes him President Eisenhower's chief adviser in dealing with the federal budget, which the administration has set at a peacetime record of nearly 72 billion dollars for the next fiscal year.

To many people modern Republicanism and a big budget are the same thing. Hence Larson and Brundage have become prime whipping boys of Republicans who are unhappy at the way things are going.

Larson was undersecretary of labor when he wrote the book, "A Republican Looks At His Party," which helped make him the philosopher of modern Republicanism and a favorite of President Eisenhower. He was a law school professor and dean before he entered government.

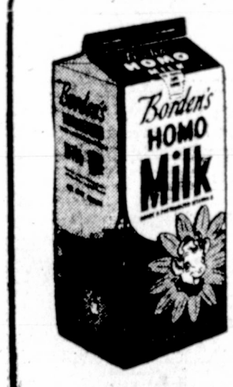

The President has talked freely about keeping the GOP up to date, but Larson has become the symbol of what his critics regard as a party - splitting movement. Yet in a recent speech he described "new Republicanism" as "simply Republicanism as it has adapted itself under President Eisenhower's leadership to mid-20th Century responsibilities."

Budget Director's Background

Brundage became budget director 13 months ago after two years as deputy director under the late Rowland Hughes. He previously had been associated with a large accounting firm.

The Budget Bureau asked Congress last year for increased funds to hire more Budget Bureau employes to hold down the size of the budget. House Appropriations Committee members recently reminded Brundage of this request and berated him because the budget was going up instead of down.

Toughness is supposed to be a basic requirement for a budget director. Government bureaus ask for more money than their department heads will allow and the department heads ask for more than the Budget Bureau will allow. Brundage's critics believe he wasn't tough enough this year.
