HOOVER IGNORES FARM AID QUERIES

Democratic Leaders Lay Battle Plans In Meeting Today

Faith

Steady Growth—
GOOD Homes Scarce—
Won't Be Long—
Wrong Time—

The number of gas, water and light meters, the number of telephones and the amount of postal receipts and bank deposits have all shown a steady increase in Wichita Falls for the last seven months, the real estate board finds in a report released Tuesday. These are hopeful signs, and point to a steady growth that will be accelerated many times when conditions reach normal here.

Several members of the board at the luncheon Tuesday seemed to view with some disfavor the reports on the number of vacant residences here, although the report subsequently sets out the great majority of these houses are not desirable from one cause or another. Good homes in good locations are hard to find in Wichita Falls, while there is probably an unusual number of places that have become undesirable since the time of their construction in hectic boom days.

Jimmie Maxwell, oil editor of The Daily Times and The Record News, writes hopefully of better prospects in the petroleum industry, and points out "it is only a question of time until a sharp demand will be made on the storage and stocks of the midcontinent." Wichita Falls residents should keep this in mind. "It is only a question of time," and indications point to a comparatively short time until better prices will prevail in this area.

The Republican and Democratic parties have traveled a long way since the day when the tariff was the one and only issue. Now we have Alvin Owsley, candidate for United States senate, declaring for a tariff that will protect the producers, and his statements have found previous expression from other party leaders. And why not? The producer now finds two hands digging into his pockets—one from the higher prices he must pay because of protection given manufacturers, the other from the competition of foreign materials.

News reports from Chicago tell of that city's efforts to gain control of its gangsters, and to return the city to some degree of law and order. They might try out a couple of Texas rangers. There is the old story about only one ranger being required to quell one riot, and while a whole army seems needed in Illinois, at least one or two Texas state officers would bring honesty and fearlessness to the work. Ranger Captain Frank Hamer, well known in this section, would probably make life highly interesting for the gangsters if he had charge of Chicago's cleanup.

Five boys, members of a band of juvenile burglars, are arrested by police for a series of petty thefts. The youngsters used a church for their rendezvous, which might suggest a sentence to the officials disposing of the cases. These boys, who know all about what happens in a church at midnight, should be given an opportunity to find out what happens during the day, especially Sunday morning.

SMITH, REED AND ROBINSON IN NEW YORK

Second Place Nominee And Jesse Jones Arrive In New York

PARTY HAS $200,000

Robinson Favors Serious Campaign in States of Southland

NEW YORK, July 10. (AP)—Radiating a fighting spirit, the chieftains of Democracy headed by Governor Smith assembled here tonight to map out a plan of campaign designed to carry the party to victory in November.

The list of those answering muster tonight included the governor, Senator Joseph T. Robinson of Arkansas, the vice-presidential nominee, and Senator James A. Reed of Missouri.

Reed, now a champion of the cause of party, was invited personally by the New York governor, who desires to discuss prospective plans with the Missourian who for years had been a positive factor in Democratic circles.

Committee on Hand

In addition to Robinson and Reed, those on hand also included virtually all members of the newly elected Democratic national committee which upon meeting tomorrow will be called upon to select a permanent chairman to take charge of the administering of party affairs for the next four years.

While it was not known to what extent Senator Reed will participate in the activities centering around the actual committee work, it is expected that he will confer with a number of its members as to strategic campaign plans.

Campaign In South

The Arkansas Senator issued a statement in which he urged the national committee to consider advisability of establishing a southern headquarters to combat what he saw as an organized effort in several southern states to defeat the Democratic national ticket.

With Senator Robinson was Jesse H. Jones, director of finance of the national committee. Jones issued a statement summarizing the final report he will make tomorrow. This showed that the campaign committee will start its labors with no "inherited" debts and with a bank balance of about $200,000.

Shaver Attends

One of the latest arrivals of those who will attend the council of war was Clem Shaver, selection of whose successor as chairman of the national committee tomorrow will be one of the first acts of the committeemen.

Senator Robinson said he could not speak with any certainty about his campaign activities until after tomorrow's meeting, but he said there was no doubt he would make a number of speeches in the west and middlewest.

He remarked that he could say "in a general way" that the attitude of the party as expressed in the platform and in Governor Smith's telegram yesterday was sympathetic toward farm relief. He declined to outline the sort of legislation he thought would be desirable but predicted that specific suggestions would be presented early in the campaign.

After advocating establishment of a southern headquarters the senator continued in his prepared statement as follows:

Opposition Organized

"An organized effort is in progress in several southern states to defeat the national Democratic ticket and while the force and volume of this movement is not yet known, I am of the opinion that sound policy should prompt our party managers to meet this opposition decisively and promptly.

"The best manner in which to offset the opposition in the South is, of course, largely for determination by the national committee, and it might be that some more effective manner than that herein suggested will be devised. I wish to give emphasis to the advisability of meeting the conditions referred to aggressively."

JOB BARTERING GOES TO COURT

Grand Jury to Scan Graft Charges

ATLANTA, Ga., July 10. (AP)—The senate inquiry into alleged irregularities in Republican patronage gathered momentum today, when with the Georgia hearing two-thirds completed, the subcommittee announced the government planned to ask immediate grand jury investigation of similar charges in Mississippi.

The announcement, coming during a clashing session of the initial inquiry here today, said that Mrs. Mabel Walker Willebrandt, assistant United States attorney general, was en route to Biloxi, Miss., to request grand jury action.

A mass of testimony affirming and denying that the Republican organization in Georgia had dispensed postoffice patronage for financial considerations crowded the docket with sensations at the second day's hearing here.

S. N. Thompson, postmaster at East Point, Ga., a Republican, told the committee that he had contributed 5 per cent of his salary to the party organization and did not think he could hold his office unless he made the payments.

He said many other postmasters felt as he did.

NOBILE GIVES LURID ACCOUNT OF DISASTER

Explorer Reveals Suffering Endured by Men In First Story

DOG FIGHTS BEAR

Details of Stay on Ice Floe Recounted by Feverish Man

The following dramatic story of the wreck of the dirigible Italia, the first full and connected account of the disaster, was told to Dr. Alfred Ingels, United Press special correspondent, by General Umberto Nobile, the dirigible's commander, who is ill aboard his warship, Citta di Milano, in the harbor of Kings Bay.

By ALBERT INGELS

Copyright, 1928, By United Press

KINGS BAY, Spitzbergen, July 10, (UP)—A colorful story of death and disaster, of intense suffering in arctic cold, of sacrifice and days of gnawing hunger—a story lightened only by the accounts of the strange ferocity of a little dog against ravenous ice bears—was told to the United Press correspondent by General Umberto Nobile, commander of the lost airship Italia, who gave the first full, connected account of his fatal homeward voyage May 25 after an exploration journey over the north pole.

The dirigible, her envelope lacerated by a sale and her rigging weighted by ice, was plunging into the wind with her nose toward Spitzbergen when General Nobile found the airship failed to respond to her rudder. He ordered the motors turned off to avoid a fire. The craft descended rapidly, carried backward by the wind. Then it crashed.

Nobile Injured

Nobile was knocked unconscious as he and nine men were thrown to the ice from the shattered gondola. When he awakened, he found Prof. Finn Malgrem, Swedish physicist, and Capt. Adalberto Mariano lying beside him on smooth ice.

Vinceno Pomella, an engine man of the Italia, approached Malgrem and Mariano and bent over to assist them. He fell dead on the ice—the first of the nearly score of lives to be sacrificed by explorers and rescuers following the Italia's crash.

The remaining men on the ice crawled into bed bags, injured and cold, and apparently resigned to death, although later they regained their energy and made shift to fashion implements and a camp which partially relieved their immediate wants. Malgrem erected a radio on the ice hummock, but after two days of almost continuous calling into the void he lost faith in the device and despite Nobile's advice decided to set out on foot for land. Mariano and Capt. Filippo Zappi went with him.

Leave Camp

They left Nobile's camp May 30, short of food supplies, and with no adequate weapons. They have not been heard from since then—nor has any report come from the six men who were carried away in the hulk of the Italia when it crashed.

Malgrem hoped to reach North Cape. Nobile saw him last heading in the direction of Foyn island.

Three days before this the Italians had killed a bear with a revolver at a distance of five meters, firing five shots into it. The flesh was used for food, the hide for bedding being placed between the sleeping bags and the ice.

Another bear approached the camp but Nobile's terrier, Titana, which had been behaving strangely since the crash—it was three days after the wreck before Titana would approach Nobile—suddenly attacked the animal, bit in in the ler and chased it away in great fright and confusion.

Life at the encampment became exceedingly difficult. The explorers made cooking utensils of petrol cans, but were handicapped for

Fear Felt For Officers Conducting Axe Slayer From Pen to West Texas

SAN ANGELO, Texas, July 10. (AP)—Sheriff Bob Hewitt of Tom Green county tonight expressed anxiety for the welfare of two deputies who are conducting Newton Byrnes, confessed slayer of three women, here from the state penitentiary at Huntsville.

After receiving the prisoner, the deputies drove by automobile to a South Texas prison farm where they picked up two other prisoners, a negro and a white man, who also were to be brought here.

Since leaving the farm no reports of the party had been received here at a late hour tonight.

While peace officers said Byrnes had given them no trouble during his stay in jail here, they declared he was a prisoner who had planned escapes and had to be guarded carefully.

OWSLEY TAKES SHOT AT FOES

Points to Mass of Literature Mailed Out

Special to The Record News.

VERNON, July 10—Charging his opponents with sending out campaign literature under their franking privileges, and scoring their records at Washington, Alvin M. Owsley spoke to 300 people this afternoon in a local theater in behalf of his candidacy for the United States senate. The speaker exhibited to his audience several documents which he said were sent out by Mayfield, Blanton and Connally under their franking privileges.

$16,000 Postage

"If they were mailed to the 800,000 Democrats of Texas, they have cost the people of this state over $16,000 per candidate in postage alone," the speaker declared. "In addition thereto, these documents were printed at the government printing shop in Washington, and of course cost the tax payers some more money."

Mr. Owsley was introduced as a "fearless advocate of his convictions," by Rev. J. M. Perry, pastor of the Central Christian church.

"Appeals for economy by other candidates is a joke," the speaker declared, "because the last congress appropriated more money than any peace time congress in history."

Democrat or Else

Paying his respects to the bolter movement, Mr. Owsley said: "There is no such thing as a Hoover Democrat. No man can be a Democrat and vote for Herbert Hoover. I am opposed to the Republican party, and therefore its nominees."

The Vernon Chamber of Commerce band paraded in the business section and gave a brief concert at the theater prior to the candidate's speech.

WOMAN ASKS $600,000 IN ESTATE SUIT

Heirs of Wealthy Rancher Of Henrietta Named In Petition

LIFE STORY IS TOLD

Woman Common Law Wife of Huggins For Nine Years, Claim

Alleging that she was the common-law wife of J. L. Huggins of Henrietta for nine years preceding his death on May 6, 1928, Mrs. Ida L. Turner (Huggins) of Fort Worth, Tuesday filed petition for $600,000 against W. H. Myers, executor, and 24 heirs of Mr. Huggins, who left securities and land valued at approximately $2,000,000.

The suit was filed in Clay county district court at Henrietta by R. E. Taylor, Wichita Falls attorney.

Relatives mentioned in a will prepared by Mr. Huggins about four months prior to his death were two sisters, one sister-in-law, 12 nieces and nine nephews. He had not been married.

Tells of Life

Mrs. Turner sets out in her petition that early in 1919, about a year following the death of her husband, she entered into an agreement with Mr. Huggins whereby they were to live together as man and wife without benefit of clergy.

She had, she alleges, met the man several years prior to the death of her husband, who was a cattleman. She further alleges that she remained with Mr. Huggins in Fort Worth only a few days prior to his death and that she received a letter from him, which is placed on exhibit, seven days before he died.

The millionaire Clay county cattleman, who has extensive holdings in Clay, King, Stonewall and Fisher counties, was wont, when he became lonely, to essay the journey to Fort Worth for a visit to Mrs Turner, the petition claims.

Together they drew up plans for the ranch home which was never built, the petition asserts.

Meanwhile the two lived together at the woman's home in Fort Worth, and at the time of the agreement, the petition sets out, Mrs. Turner was owner of a hotel in Fort Worth.

Now Will Claimed

"I don't want to stay with you in this hotel," Mr. Huggins is alleged to have told her. "Dispose of it and move out to your home."

She did so, it is claimed.

While he was still spending the evening of his life in companionship with Mrs. Turner, the Clay county millionaire, feeling that the end was near, unknown to friends drew up his will without aid of attorney, the suit sets forth.

The will, a copy of which is retained by attorneys for Mrs. Tur-

MRS. WILMANS VISITOR HERE

Woman Candidate Plans To Invalidate Votes

Mrs. Edith E. Wilmans, candidate for governor of Texas, stopped in Wichita Falls for a short time Tuesday afternoon on her way to the Panhandle and talked with representatives of the local newspapers.

If her name is not placed on the ballot in Cameron and Val Verde counties she will invalidate the tickets, she told reporters when asked concerning the proposed elimination in those counties of her name from the gubernatorial race. The woman candidate for governor hopes to gain votes by having tickets invalidated in those counties in which her name is not placed on the tickets.

Mrs. Wilmans is confident of election, she said as she enumerated counties in which she would receive the majority of votes and those in which her opponents will probably receive the preponderance. Mrs. Wilmans travels without a "cheering crew" and delivers from three to five speeches daily in towns visited. She has toured most of the southern part of the state.

She will stress the following planks in her platform: Prohibition and law enforcement, education, agricultural interests and tenant farming, tax reduction and repeal of automobile tax. G. O. P. LEADER TO KEEP QUIET ON QUESTIONS

Letter From Indiana Farm Head Unanswered By Secretary

LEAVES FOR CHICAGO

Nominee Begins Trip To California Home For Acceptance

WASHINGTON, July 10. (UR)—Herbert Hoover turned "thumbs down" on the appeals of W. H. Settle, president of the Indiana Farm Bureau federation, for an expression on how he plans to remedy the farmers' economic plight.

The Republican presidential nominee will pay no attention to letters asking for his views on issues in the campaign, until after he has made his speech at Palo Alto, Calif., accepting the presidential nomination, it was announced officially.

In that address Secretary Hoover will give his views on farm relief as well as other major issues in the campaign. Though Gov. Alfred E. Smith saw fit to answer Settle with a pledge to do something for agriculture, Secretary Hoover prefers to answer the question in his acceptance speech and subsequent statements.

Associates of Secretary Hoover did not appear to be agitated by Settle's demand for views. It was said that Settle has been a lifelong Democrat and that it was to be expected he would praise the Democratic national platform.

Secretary Hoover's plan is to leave here about 7 p. m., Saturday, reaching Chicago about 2 p. m. Sunday. He will go to a hotel there for conferences with James W. Good, western Hoover campaign manager, and other G. O. P. chieftains. It was not indicated which railroad the nominee will use, nor the hotel at which he will stop in Chicago.

SETTLE DISPLEASED WITH PLATFORM

INDIANAPOLIS, July 10. (AP)—William H. Settle, president of the Indiana farm bureau federation, declared today that failure of Herbert Hoover, Republican presidential nominee, to answer a telegram asking his personal stand on the farm relief question will be taken to mean that Hoover is going to stand by the platform as adopted at the Kansas City convention. The telegram sent to Hoover by Settle declared that "the agricultural plank of the Republican platform is very unsatisfactory to the farmers."

THIRD PARTY PLANS LAID

Farm-Labor and Prohi Groups Gather

CHICAGO, July 10. (UP)—Convinced that the voters of the west and south are displeased with the two major party presidential candidates, a definite move to form a coalition third party composed of the prohibition and farmer-labor parties, both in convention here, was in the making tonight.

The two convention groups, meeting separately, decided today that a strong third party ticket was needed in the November election and committees were appointed by each party to meet tonight to discuss the possibilities of a coalition.

The two committees which went into conference tonight are:

Prohibition—H. R. Garver, Pittsburgh; Phillip Bennett, Oklahoma City and Lucius C. Dale, Los Angeles.

Farmer-Labor—James Edwin Sparr, El Reno, Okla.; Bert Martin, Denver, Colo., and William V. Mahoney, Washington, D. C.

The prohibition party made the first coalition move and sent word to the Farmer-Labor convention that it had appointed a committee of three to meet with a similar committee of the Farmer-Laborites should one be appointed.

The latter group took up the question immediately and it found instant favor with the delegates who came to Chicago determined to air their grievances of the treatment being given the agricultural and working classes, and, if possible, name candidates for president and vice president.

Auction Girl Renews Quest For Mate

Two Months' Trial Eliminates First

MILWAUKEE, July 10. (AP)—Beatrice Albert, the 19-year-old "auction girl" of Siren, Wis., has renewed her quest for the man who will provide for her parents in return for her hand in marriage.

Miss Albert confessed that the plan did not satisfy her, but that it was the only one she has been able to think of by which the future comfort of her father, mother and brother could be assured.

"I wouldn't mind working if I could get anywhere by doing it," she explained, "but under the circumstances I think the only solution is for me to marry some man who will take care of my parents."

When she first made this offer six months ago she received numerous proposals. Eventually she accepted the offer of W. W. Goynes, 48, postmaster of the soldiers' home here, to provide a home for her parents on a six months' trial basis. At the end of the half year she was to decide whether she would marry him.

With the trial four months to run, Miss Albert has decided she cannot go through with it. Goynes' attitude toward her "having a good time" during the six months' period was the reason she gave today for cancelling the arrangement.

"He told me when we first came down here that he wanted me to meet some young fellows and have a good time," she said. "When I did, he objected. He accused me of being rude to him, although I always treated him as nicely as I could.

"I know I can never marry him. Under the circumstances, I can no longer live in his house."

Goynes, who lost a leg in an accident following the Spanish-American war, agreed that the bargain was off.

"I did what I could for the girl," he said, "because I didn't want her to hurry into a marriage which she might regret afterward. I never talked of marriage to her, because I am much older than she and handicapped in my physical condition. I was almost afraid that through gratitude for what I had done for her, or something of that sort, she might fall in love with me."

During the two months' trial period the Albert family lived in one of the houses Goynes owns here.

Miss Albert said she would return to Duluth, Minn., where she was working before moving here. She said she would go over the numerous proposals she received when her first offer was made.

"If I ever marry, I want to marry for love," she said, "but on the other hand, my parents' future must be my first consideration. I couldn't bear to see them cared for by the county or the state. Even though I dread marriage as a loveless proposition, I see no other way."

Italian Fliers Seek Permission To Retrace Course of Record Flight

RIO DE JANEIRO, Brazil, July 10. (US)—Permission to fly back from South America to Europe has been sought by Capt. Arturo Ferrarin and Maj. Carlo del Prete, according to a dispatch tonight from Natal, where the two Italian airmen ended a non-stop flight from Rome five days ago.

The fliers suggested two courses in their message to the Italian government, the Natal dispatch said. One was a flight from Rio de Janeiro to Rome, and the other from Buenos Aires, Argentina, to the nearest point on the European continent. Either would out-distance the non-stop record of 4325 miles established on the Rome-Natal flight.

The Marchetti monoplane which the fliers flew from Rome was damaged in the forced landing on the beach at Touros, 50 miles north of Natal, and Major del Prete and Captain Ferrarin said they were anxious to start as soon as the landing gear can be repaired.

So far no reply has been received from Rome. In a statement at Natal after the end of the flight Captain Ferrarin said that fog brought the flight to a close and that with better luck in weather they could have continued on here, adding more than a thousand miles to their record.

$600,000 Asked Of Ranch Heirs

ner, they declared to be unimpeachable. Not the name of one of his 24 heirs is mentioned. The will is so drawn that a contest by any heir would result in the person losing approximately $80,000, his portion of the inheritance.

At the time of his death the Clay county rancher had almost $600,000 in bonds, the petition sets out. He had, also, 14,000 acres of land in King, Stonewall and Fisher counties, and a 16,000-acre ranch in Clay county.

Mr. Huggins ordered in his will that the Clay county ranch should be maintained for 10 years before it was disposed of and the property divided among his heirs. The other property was ordered sold as soon as possible after his death.

Wealthy In Cattle

Since the February night in 1918 when the aged couple made their agreement of companionship, the petition states, Mr. Huggins banked more than $500,000 and branded more than 5,000 head of cattle.

Living with Mr. Huggins at the time of his death on his Clay county ranch was a niece who often sent lists of groceries and supplies in to Mrs. Turner that a woman's judgment might have charge of her purchases, the petition says.

Mrs. Turner also tells of going to the leading stores of Fort Worth, where it is claimed she was introduced by the rancher as his wife, and where clerks and owners were instructed to "let her have anything she wants."

Mr. Huggins was 79 years old at the time of his death. Mrs. Turner is in the sixties.

Mrs. Turner is represented by the firm of Taylor, Muse and Taylor of Wichita Falls and Henrietta, and by McLean, Scott and Sayers of Fort Worth.

Mr. Huggins lived about 12 miles north of Henrietta.

NEW CALENDAR PLAN RUSHED

Proponents Point Out Strong Points of System

WASHINGTON, July 10. (UP)—Thorough investigations into the feasibility of adopting a new 13-month calendar will be made by the sub-committees named by the national committee of calendar simplification, it was announced today. Every angle of the new system, which calls for 13 months of 28 days each, will be carefully gone into before universal adoption of the system, which was tentatively set for 1933.

The committee, headed by George Eastman, kodak millionaire of Rochester, N. Y., is unofficial, but was created by Secretary of State Kellogg at the suggestion of the league of nations.

The recommendation of the American committee will be considered with others by the league, a treaty drafted and the leading powers of the world asked to sign

Five Years to Adopt

Ten sub-committees were named by Eastman to investigate the attitude of industry, commerce, finance, transportation, science, labor, agriculture, journalism, social and educational organizations toward world-wide acceptance of the 28-day, 13-month calendar.

Eastman said as far as he had studied the situation no objections have been registered against the reform movement. He expressed the belief that it would take at least five years to put it into effect.

The 13-month calendar was originated by Moses Cotsworth. The 13 months would account for 364 days in the year. The 36th day would follow after December 28 and would be called year day.

Leap Day in June

Leap day, February 29, would be inserted as June 29 every fourth year. Under the new calendar all national holidays would be celebrated on Monday.

The advantages of the new calendar, as pointed out by the national committee, are:

1. All months would be equal.
2. The day of the week would always indicate the monthly date and both day and date could be recorded on clock and watch dials.
3. The 28-day month would exactly quarter all months and harmonize weekly wages and expenses with monthly accounts, rents, etc.
4. Every month-end would coincide with the week-end.
5. Thirteen monthly settlements during the year would cause a faster turnover of money.

Beck, Viroqua, Wis., wife of Representative Beck. The will, filed today provided, however, that if Mrs. Beck does not care to serve as custodian for the pet, the feline shall go to Miss Alice D. Hebbard of La Crosse, Wis., a niece. In addition to getting the income from the $1,500 trust fund during the life of the cat, Miss Hebbard would receive $750 of the amount when it died.

What Dr. Caldwell Learned in 47 Years Practice

W. B. Caldwell, M.D.

Dr. Caldwell watched the results of constipation for 47 years, and believed that no matter how careful people are of their health, diet and exercise, constipation will occur from time to time regardless of how much one tries to avoid it. Of next importance, then, is how to treat it when it comes. Dr. Caldwell always was in favor of getting as close to nature as possible, hence his remedy for constipation, known as Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, is a mild vegetable compound. It can not harm the most delicate system and is not a habit forming preparation. Syrup Pepsin is pleasant-tasting, and youngsters love it. It does not gripe. Thousands of mothers have written us to that effect.

Dr. Caldwell did not approve of drastic physics and purges. He did not believe they were good for human beings to put into their system. In a practice of 47 years he never saw any reason for their use when a medicine like Syrup Pepsin will empty the bowels just as promptly, more cleanly and gently, without griping and harm to the system.

Keep free from constipation! It robs your strength, hardens your arteries and brings on premature old age. Do not let a day go by without a bowel movement. Do not sit and hope, but go to a druggist and get one of the generous bottles of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin. Take the proper dose that night and by morning you will feel like a different person. Use Syrup Pepsin for yourself and members of the family in constipation, biliousness, sour and cramp stomach, bad breath, no appetite, headaches, and to break up fevers and colds. Always have a bottle in the house, and observe these three rules of health: Keep the head cool, the feet warm, the bowels open.

We would be glad to have you prove at our expense how much Dr. to you and yours. Just write "Syrup Pepsin," Monticello, Illinois, rup Pepsin," Monticello, Illinois, and we will send you prepaid a FREE SAMPLE BOTTLE.—Adv.

Women of City to Compliment Mrs. Cunningham With Dinner

The women of the city have made plans for a dinner at the Womans Forum to compliment Mrs. Minnie Fisher Cunningham, candidate for the Democratic nomination for United States senator, who will address guests at 6 o'clock, Wednesday evening. This will probably be the last such social event of the forum year as the dining room of the clubhouse will be closed Sunday, July 15, to be opened for the new season, Sept. first.

Mrs. Cunningham was one of the principal speakers at the biennial of Women's Federated clubs which met in San Antonio in June and July. A group of delegates from Wichita Falls heard Mrs. Cunningham at that time. A good attendance is expected at the dinner as a large group has signified intention to hear the speaker. Her address at the dinner will be nonpolitical, according to announcements.

Hosts and hostesses for the dinner will be as follows: Mayor and Mrs. J. W. Akin, Dr. and Mrs. J. C. A. GGuest, Mr. and Mrs. James C. Berney, Mr. and Mrs. Fred C. Barron, Mr. and Mrs. Ben G. Oneal, Mr. and Mrs. J. Truman Stevens and Mrs. M. M. Addicks. Mrs. Stevens will take reservations provided they are made before 9 o'clock, Wednesday morning. The dinner will be open to all who decide to hear the speaker.

Ramblin'

Marie Theresa

AFTER all is said, women will help women. I have been impressed by the enthusiasm of the women of Wichita Falls in advertising Mrs. Minnie Fisher Cunningham who will make two addresses in the city Wednesday.

No sooner was announcement made that the only woman candidate for senatorial office was to arrive Wednesday, than presto, we have, a dinner all planned and read to entertain the lady, as well as her many admirers. The dinner will be open to all who desire to hear Mrs. Cunningham, and will probably be the closing social event of the Woman's Forum this year, as the season drawn to an end Sunday, July 15 to be closed until Steptember 1.

A large group have already made reservations for the dinner, and more reservations are coming in steadily to Mrs. J. Truman Stevens, who is becoming almost professional in this art of taking reservations. Men seem to be interested in hearing Mrs. Cunningham, or do you suppose they will look rather than listen? Pictures show the woman senatorial candidate as an unusually attractive woman and those in the city who know her personally, say the likeness is both close and correct.

The specaker for Wednesday was born on a farm in Walker county which is the birth place of several residents of Wichita Falls. The parents of Mrs. Cunningham were pioneers and the Fisher family have lived there for more than 100 years, according to residents of the city who have known the family over a period of many years.

AND NOW a Chicago woman seeks legal separation from her spouse because he takes the flappers up in his airplane—that's what he bought the thing for, she says. A nice flapper who would not accept a ride in an automobile, would think nothing of taking a little air with the gentleman in his plane. Wife says he takes this opportunity to further his affairs of the heart and that she is getting tired of such treatment.

How times do change! In my day there was little attention paid to car rides. It was the parked car that was on the rack. How Mr. Husband is going to park that plane for said promotion, I can't figure out.

Probably that is a 1928 excuse for divorce, for I just can't see the other idea.

COTTON has attained its rightful place for a while at least. One of the downtown shops is displaying an entire room filled with cotton street and house dresses of all colors and descriptions. Formerly, if one sought the lowly cotton garment, she had to chase to the far corners of the store and make her purchase, if any, from a box set somewhere where it would not hinder the display of the popular silk garments shown flauntingly on racks.

Girls' Vanity Sign of Sense

But Dorothy Dix Says They Always Knew That

According to Science, Women Are Rational and Sane Who Take A Lively Interest in Beauty Parlors—It Is Only When a Woman No Longer Cares About Her Personal Appearance That She Is Hopelessly Abnormal.

It is funny how every now and then science comes along and finds out something that women have known and have been doing for about a million years, and pathizes them in it. The latest illustration of this is the discovery recently made by a famous alienist that vanity is an indication of sanity in women and that the first sign of the recovery of her mental health that a female lunatic gives is when she begins to take an interest in her looks.

Following out this theory, Dr. Hershfield, chief alienist in Illinois state institutions for the insane, has caused beauty parlors to be installed in them, and he says:

"We find that the woman who takes an interest in the beauty parlor and who patronizes it is on the road to recovery. The woman who is totally indifferent to the appeals of vanity is in a bad way mentally, for it is only the hopelessly abnormal woman who is not interested in improving her natural beauty. The basis of our experiments is founded on woman's natural desire to be beautiful and to make herself as attractive as possible. It is an occupation in which she has been engaged for many centuries, so we lead a patient into the beauty parlor and the inherited habit of ages asserts itself."

So there you are. Science has spoken, and husbands will please pause, look and listen, and be warned in time. It is not an indication that Mary or Jane or Susan has gone completely dotty when she buys her eleventh hat in a season or a new pair of futuristic pumps when she already has enough footwear to shoe a centipede, or when she cuts off her skirts to her knees, or bobs her grizzled head, or puts an orange calcimine on her face.

On the contrary, according to the highest authority, it is indisputable proof that her brain is functioning rationally and normally, and that her faculties are in good working order.

There is nothing for Friend Husband to be alarmed about while she continues to take a fervent heart interest in the fashions and counting her calories and maintaining a boyish figure. It is only when the dressmaker and millinery bills shrink to nothing, when she is apparently unaware that her skirts are two inches too long and her waist in the wrong place, and when she does not recognize a new French cloche from last year's bird's nest, that her husband is justified in wondering if all is well with the bean of his dear Maria.

Undoubtedly it will take a bit of doing, as our English friends say, for men to adjust themselves to this new viewpoint of feminine vanity, and to see in it a manifestation of intelligence instead of an exhibition of utter idiocy. "Crazy" is the very word they have been fondest of applying to women's fashions and women's efforts to circumvent nature and be beautiful though ugly.

"You must be crazy to pay $50 for a hat no bigger than a peanut." "You must be crazy to buy fool shoes with three-inch heels the size of a lead pencil, that make every step a torture worse than anything the inquisition ever thought about." "You are crazy to sit down to a good dinner and starve yourself because you are afraid you will gain an ounce."

"You are crazy to be scalped to get a permanent wave put into your hair." "You are crazy to paint yourself up like an Indian starting out on the warpath, trying to look like a flapper at your age." "Nobody but a raving lunatic would do the fool things that women do for the sake of their looks."

Probably there isn't a married women who hasn't heard these things hundreds and hundreds of times, and heretofore she has had to suffer them in silence, although she was following some instinct wiser than she was.

In her secret heart, perhaps, she didn't know but what her husband was right. Perhaps it was some sort of a mental aberration that made her camouflage her age and her weight and substitute a syn-

BIGGEST RUSH FOR PASSPORTS

111,764 Issued During Rush Months

WASHINGTON, July 10, (UP)—It must be the traveling American school ma'm who keeps the state department's passport section in such a rush up to the Fourth of July each year.

Between 40 and 50 temporary state department employes have just lost their jobs because the passport section has finished its annual busy season and settled down to normalcy for the remainder of this year. Teachers, students and preachers are responsible to a large extent for this annual rush of business, the department figures, since it always ends just as the long summer vacation begins.

This year was the biggest in history. Passports issued totaled around 100 more each day than in 1927. The grand total for the four rush months—March, April, May and June—was 111,764.

In 1927 the total for the four rush months was 105,376. The usual slump followed after the Fourth of July, and July had only 14,881. By September the monthly total had slumped to only a little more than half that number, 8500 which was about the average for each month until March, 1928.

This passport business means a big income to the government, as the fee for each passport is $10. Uncle Sam collects approximately $85,000 for passports each month during eight months of the year, and from $5000 to $15,000 each working day during the remaining four months.

The Day Book of a New Yorker

By CLARK KINNAIRD.

NEW YORK, July 10.—New York's Battery park at the lower end of Manhattan island is famous for two things in the summer season. Probably the best known is that its sea wall is hot to the picnic parties that assemble for a day on the water, for this is the wharfage for the craft in which families of the greater city take their one-day outing.

This is where the family for a day's outing embarks. The business there does not start early, for, unlike the fishing parties, tides do not have to be reckoned with.

Battery park's other outstanding feature is that it is a haven for idlers seven days in the week so long as the weather permits. This being one of the few green spots left downtown, it is daily visited by all sorts and types. The largest part of the visitors perhaps is drawn from the workers in the nearby office buildings. The monotony of the office routine is relieved with a stroll or a walk about the sea wall. The boys bring along their baseball outfits and a "catch" helps to add to the zest of the invigorating air that blows in from the harbor. Many of the girls are satisfied with a book and then a brisk walk back to the toil of the job.

As a pleasure port the Battery had no equal in the city. Outside the excursion business which originates there, there are thousands of sightseers who never think of a boat ride unless it is to the Statue of Liberty or a trip about the city in a sightseeing yact. At the Battery is the aquarium. To this place the sightseeing buses bring thousands. Those who do not come by this mode of transportation usually go by other methods to the "Fish Theater," as it has been called, after which they take a stroll around the park. There are some statues and plaques that are interesting.

The negro was old, a relic of the past, but he was very fond of horses and, although the few hours' work that he was able to get at rough labor was hardly sufficient to keep him alive, he, nevertheless, kept a trotter.

"That horse," he said, "is the best two-year-old in the district. That horse can do—"

The commuter interrupted him.

"That horse," he said, "looks to me to be nearer 10 years old."

"Well, why not," retorted the darkie. "I've had him eight years and he was two years old when I got him. But he's as good a two-year-old as he was the day I bought him."

"It only goes to show," said the Sage of Fifth Avenue, "that New Yorkers have the true sense of values.

"I was taking my usual bus ride up the avenue this afternoon. It costs 10 cents and a millionaire couldn't better it. In the seat in front of me were two middle-aged men. Badges in their lapels showed they were visitors here, delegates to some convention or other. Evidently they were seeing New York for the first time.

"All up the avenue they craned their necks at the tall buildings and speculated on how much money they cost. Whether those wonderful towers were beautiful and awe-inspiring didn't enter into their conversation. When the bus ran along Central park they began to act bored. No tall buildings up there, and they hadn't come to New York to see trees.

"The bus stopped opposite the Metropolitan. 'There's the art museum,' one of the visitors said to his companion. 'I heard they paid $1000 the other day for an antique tapestry.' The other man sniffed. I could hear his sniff above the roar of traffic. 'Imagine,' he said, 'anybody paying $1000 for piece of old carpet.'

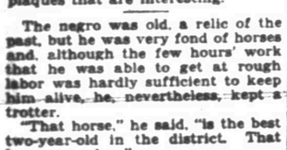

"Well, I got off the bus right away. Somehow my ride had spoiled. I walked on up to the lake, where for two-bits an hour you can rent a nice rowboat."

Modern History

An American history class in one of the high schools had been having an interesting discussion of Civil war songs.

"Now," continued the teacher, "who can name a song inspired by John Brown's experience?"

"'John Brown's Body Lies Over the Ocean,'" exclaimed one member of the class, enthusiastically.

Health Officers Fight Fatal Throat Disease

LEE, Mass., July 10. (UP)—With four more deaths reported today and close to 700 cases treated in recent weeks, state commissioner of public health George H. Bigelow today assumed charge of work of stamping out Lee's septic throat epidemic which has taken 12 lives. State officials said the epidemic was spread by milk handlers.

One-Minute Sermon

Hide not thy face far from me; put not they servant away in anger: thou hast been my help; leave me not, neither forsake me, O God of my salvation.

When my father and my mother forsake me, then the Lord will take me up.

Teach me thy way, O Lord, and lead me in a plain path, because of mine enemies.—Psalms, xxvii, 10-12.

Terrible Thought

AN OBSCURE paragraph in a daily newspaper gave us, the other day, a great idea—or, rather, it put into our head the fear that someone else would get the great idea, and act on it.

This paragraph said that a bride in the Polish village of Tecsoc, obeying the ancient tradition which requires male guests at a wedding to kiss the bride, kissed some 7000 guests within four hours after the marriage. The dispatch added that this was a world's record.

Undoubtedly. And now that the marathon dances and flag-pole sittings have ended, is there not a great danger that some promoter will see that item and try to find a new champion in our own United States? The imagination reels at the thought.

What's a Belt Line Steak?

GOVERNOR SMITH lost little time in letting the country know how he stands on prohibition. In the next few days, it is said, he will make his position similarly clear on other outstanding issues. But there is one little matter that he cannot elaborate on too soon for us.

The other day, in Albany, reporters asked him what was his favorite dish. The governor remarked that he liked a "belt line steak" about as well as anything.

Now a belt line steak is a mystery to us. Whether it is allied to the tenderloin or to the lowly hamburger is a puzzle. We cannot know just how we stand on this campaign until the matter is cleared up. The candidate must declare himself. What, Governor Smith, is a belt line steak?

A Highway Investment

THERE are investments and investments. Some things that hardly look like investments turn out, on examination, to be excellent money-back proposition.

Just now a great super-highway, connecting Canada and the United States with all the countries of South America, is being proposed. It would enable motorists to travel the entire length of the two continents. At first glance it looks like a good idea, but expensive—something that would cost more than it would be worth.

But maybe it would be a mighty good investment. At present there are only 1,000,000 autos in all South America. With such a highway in existence can it be doubted that that number would double, treble, almost overnight? And where would the new cars come from if not from the United States, purveyor of autos to all the world?

It might be that American business men would be very wise to get behind that proposed highway and make it a reality.

The Beauty of Today

THE city of Rheims has been largely rebuilt. The great cathedral that was shattered by German shells is now something like its former self. The surrounding houses of the old French town have been restored to their old appearance. The scars of war are being removed.

The beauty of Rheims once made the place a magnet for travelers from all over the world. When newspapers, during the war, announced that that beauty was being obliterated by high explosives, the world felt a pained astonishment. It was hard to realize that the loveliness which men had spent long centuries in perfecting could vanish overnight, ripped apart by snub-nosed little cylinders of lyddite and TNT.

Yet that is the way things are, and, all too often, the lost beauty cannot be repaired afterward as Rheims is being repaired. The world is a rough place, and men are careless. Beauty is fragile, easily destroyed. Sooner or later all beautiful things—buildings, poems, actions, melodies—disappear. Only the memory and the inspiration of them remain.

But, perhaps, things could not well be ordered any other way. We need to make our own beauty. If we could bask all our lives in the aura of the fine things other men did and made we might not bestir ourselves. If the music of Orpheus had been preserved, what need would Beethoven and Wagner have had for self-expression? If the glory of heroic lives like Paul, Spinoza, Joan of Arc and Washington did not grow dim, might we not forget to be brave and virtuous and altruistic ourselves?

Also there is this to think of. The brutal ruthlessness of the world compels us, to our own lasting benefit, to take advantage of beauty while we have it instead of living too much in the future. Do you have, in your own life, something extremely precious and lovely—some such thing, for example, as love, creative work, a quiet home? Then cherish it with all your soul; some day, for all your watchfulness, the world may take it away from you. Do not look much to the future. You get your happiness here and now.

The finer a thing is the more perishable it must be. To face that fact frankly is to feel the essential tragedy of life, but it also is to be self-sufficient and prepared.

POLITICAL HALOS DEFLATED

Apparently the halo which formerly surrounded every public official, even congressmen and legislators, has disappeared, as far as the general public is concerned. Even the prestige of senators and higher officials of the government is not as commanding as it once was, and now it seems that the vice president of the United States cannot command a crowd, at least in his own home town.

Charles G. Dawes was slated to be one of the Independence day speakers at Evanston, Ill., a suburb of Chicago. He officiated in an Independence day parade which ended at a park where a platform had been erected to accommodate the speaker. Dawes arrived at the head of the procession, but somewhere along the line the marchers had dropped off, and a bare 200 people were at the park to hear the address. The vice president, next in line for the presidency, should an accident befall the president, and one of the outstanding financiers of the nation, had failed to draw a crowd, so he did not make his scheduled talk. Neither did Mayor Bartlett, also on the program.

Yet, should the speech have been carried over radio, it is likely that thousands upon thousands would have listened. There is little comparison between hearing a Fourth of July address in the broiling sun and hearing the same talk in your own home with plenty of shade and ice water and the privilege of shutting off the speaker with a push of a button.

Forlorn Figures

Secret "Beauty Derby" Is Pastime For Exiled Russian Noblewomen

BERLIN, July 9. (US)—"Beauty derbys," foot races between lovely Russian princesses and noblewomen conducted along the lines of horse-racing with pari-mutuel betting, have become the fantastic summer week-end sport of aristocratic Russian circles here.

The wistful nostalgia of the Russian exile for the bizarre and extravagant entertainment and luxury of aristocratic days in Moscow, has led to many strange methods of "self-forgetfulness" in foreign lands. But none so strange and picturesque as these human derbys held every Sunday in secluded wooded sections near Berlin.

Prince Golitsin, once court master of ceremonies to the last czar and formerly one of the richest men in Russia, who is now leader of a gypsy chorus, has started this fad.

Women dressed in bathing suits, wearing colored armlets with numbers and jockey caps, take part in these races. Six races are held each week-end, each race at varying distance up to a half mile, and two of the races having hurdles to clear.

Husbands, friends and admirers bet on the results, a real totalisator being used. The betting is of a serious nature, no seasoned race-goer ever watched his favorite horse come down the stretch with such intense anxiety as does this strange, aristocratic gathering watch the lovely, running beauties head for the tape.

This gathering is made up of individuals once the rulers of society, today chauffeurs, waiters, actors, workers at odd jobs.

The women still retain their beauty, enhanced in the one-piece bathing suits.

No stranger or outsiders are permitted to attend and for the purposes of secrecy and privacy, the racing "grounds" are changed each week.

CANDIDATES IN FACIAL QUIZ

Herb and Al Have Faces Studied By Prof

PHILADELPHIA, July 10. (UP) Dr. Thaddeus L. Bolton, head of the department of psychology of Temple university, today analyzed the characters of Herbert Hoover and Gov. Alfred E. Smith from their facial expressions.

"The Hoover face is an extraordinarily strong one," Doctor Bolton said.

"First of all, it is intellectual rather than emotional. Intelligence is indicated generally by the development of the forehead, nose, chin and then the eyes. The forehead is reasonably full and high, the nose rises well above the face level and projects forward farther than the eyelids when the eyes are open. The eyes are clear, fairly open and filled with slight movements.

"Hoover's mouth is only just in harmony with the face. It shows no special character of its own nor any development in the line which mouths take. It falls easily into a smile."

The professor said Governor Smith's face combines idealism and a kind of practical common sense in a blend that psychologists have not known before.

"Forehead, eyes, nose and mouth stand out," he said. "The projecting forehead betokens intelligence and ideal strivings. His nose belongs with the great noses of the great peoples of the world, the Greeks, Romans and Jews. It rises well above the face, showing strength and intellect.

"In the eye and mouth, the face of Governor Smith shows its greatest features. His eyes are so kindly, so persuasive and reassuring one might be misled into thinking they alone could have wrought the career the governor has lived. A look at his mouth and lips sets speculation going as to whether these may not have been the only important factor in his rise."

When A Girl Loves

© 1928 by NEA Service by RUTH DEWEY GROVES

Her mind was calmer now than at any time since she had left the Deans.

THIS HAS HAPPENED

Virginia Brewster, upon the sudden death of her father, goes to live with a friend, Clarissa Dean, and her father. Her fiance, Nathaniel Dann, objects to this for he mistrusts Dean's motives. Upon phoning Niel's studio late one night, Virginia is surprised when his model, Chiri, answers. This causes a quarrel which is later mended.

Hoping to get Niel away, Dean arranges to have him offered a position in San Francisco. Niel begs Virginia to marry him and go west, but she refuses to let him sacrifice his art study.

Clarissa becomes jealous of Virginia, and the latter resolves to leave but Dean opposes her departure and asks her to marry him. When she refuses, he threatens to reveal the fact that her father cheated him out of $100,000. Recklessly, Virginia promises to earn the money to pay him in one year or marry him if she fails. Then she leaves his house and pawns one of her rings before seeking a cheap hotel.

Now Go On With the Story

CHAPTER XVIII

There was a rush of feet, a crash and a grunt, followed by a scream. Virginia was petrified with a new kind of terror. Physical violence of any kind had never touched her life and she felt sickened.

For a few horrible moments a silence fraught with dreadful speculation replaced the quickly-ended sounds of struggle. A door slammed, and then came the sound of low sobs.

Without a thought of danger to herself Virginia turned her key and threw open the door. As she stepped into the hall she almost ran into a rat-faced man on his way to the elevator.

"Hello, baby," he greeted her, and smiled.

Virginia brushed past him without answering or even deigning a second glance. His eyes glinted at her from under the drooping brim of his soiled gray hat and he half turned as if to follow her, but seemed to change his mind and went on down the hall and around the turn to the elevator.

Virginia ran back to the door she had passed to deceive him. It was his door, or rather the door of the room adjoining hers. She could still hear those convulsive sobs that had drawn her to offer aid. Softly at first and then louder as no one answered, she rapped on the mahogany-painted panel. The sobs continued without abating, as if the occupant of the room had not heard the knocking. Virginia hesitated a moment and then tried the knob. The latch turned and she pushed open the door reluctantly, hating to intrude, but urged on by the thought that here was someone who might be in need of help and was unable to summon it except by loud shrieking.

She experienced a strong desire to withdraw when she saw the figure on the bed. Over the edge dangled a pair of well-shaped legs in the sheerest of silk stockings, but the rest of the body was sprawled across the white cotton spread in an attitude of complete abandonment to a spell of weeping. It was the face that repelled and shocked Virginia. Under stiff, bleached curls she saw a highly colored group of features that were both hard and weakly feminine. The face was partly buried in a pillow but Virginia saw, on the exposed cheek, a dark red spot that appeared purple against the orange rouge.

The owner lifted the unprepossessing head and glared at Virginia from swollen, mascara-smudged eyes. "What do you want?" she asked fiercely.

"Nothing, unless I can be of some service to you," Virginia answered quickly, stifling an impulse to lenge without bothering further with the troubles of such a person.

"I ain't askin' nobody to butt into my business, see!" the other girl told her snappishly. "I've had girls help me before and they was never after nuthin' but a chance to grab off my John."

"Oh, you're perfectly horrid," Virginia cried out before she could stop herself.

"Well, if you don't like it, get out; I ain't no welcomin' committee."

"I'm sorry I said that," Virginia told her. "I know you're hurt. Isn't there something I can do for you? And you needn't worry about your friend. I saw him in the hall and I don't think we would care for each other."

The girl on the bed sat up and drew her flimsy black dressing gown close about her. "Say, how did you get in here? Off your own playground, ain't you?" she said slowly and looked Virginia up and down with a new interest.

"I'm leaving immediately," Virginia replied. "Shall I tell them downstairs to send up a doctor?"

The girl laughed harshly. "A couple of drinks would be better."

Virginia did not answer until she reached the door. There she looked back and said quietly, "Would you mind telling me what kind of place this hotel is?"

"So that's what you're after! Think I'm a snitch, eh? Well, say, listen buttinski, I'm a clam, see? Me and the management are friends."

"I only wished to know for my own information," Virginia declared, "but I'm quite convinced I shouldn't care to stop here, so it doesn't matter whether you tell me anything or not."

"Wait a minute," the frowsy-headed girl cried as Virginia put her hand on the doorknob. "There's something phony about you," she added threateningly, "and I'm gonna tip the office so you won't get away with anything; but if you're on the level and want a decent joint, what'd yuh come here for anyway?"

"Because I didn't know anything about it, and I'm not interested in anything you may say to the manager," Virginia retorted with warmth, and fled precipitately.

The pseudo-blond jumped up and followed her into the hall, saw her enter the room next door and boldly walked in.

"Repayin' your call," she said mockingly when Virginia wheeled upon her.

"I'm leaving," Virginia said shortly and reached for her traveling bag.

"Well, take my hunch and get the real low-down on a joint before you register," the other girl remarked with a touch of conciliation. "I ain't sure yet that you're not after some kind of dirty info for some bull, but if you honestly want a respectable hotel, you're in the wrong place."

"Thank you," Virginia returned stiffly. "I shall make careful inquiries a second time." She gathered up her gloves and handbag in one hand and, taking the traveling bag in the other, walked hurriedly out of the room, leaving her guest holding the door open.

The elevator boy carried the heavier bag to the desk and put it down at her feet. "I wish to pay for my room," she said icily to the clerk when he came to her.

"Why, is there anything wrong?" he asked in astonishment.

"Nothing that you can rectify," Virginia answered with a positive emphasis. The clerk looked at her a moment and then turned away with perfect comprehension, to get her bill.

"Try the Ritz or the Biltmore," he suggested and summoned a bellboy to carry her bag. Virginia directed him to show her to a telephone and in a few minutes she was talking with Mr. Gardiner. She had thought of calling Nathaniel but she didn't want to tell him by telephone that she was no longer at the Deans.

Gardiner gave her the name of a respectable but obscure hotel, and very soon Virginia was being shown to another room. It was not a more pretentious hotel than the first, but the atmosphere was inexpressibly different. Virginia felt she would be reasonably safe here from contact with scrdidness.

She unpacked her traveling bag and hung up her peach silk pajamas and negligee. Their fresh loveliness made her wish she had a lighter, cooler dress to change to and she remembered that she had told Colette she would send for her things that morning.

She called the office and gave Mr. Dean's address. They promised they would have the things that afternoon.

It was after one o'clock when Virginia decided to wait in for them before going to Mr. Gardiner's office with the pearls. She was tired and hot and thought gratefully of a bath.

From her bag she got her bath salts and soap and went in to prepare the tub. The water was tepid and lukewarm. Virginia shuddered fastidiously and turned it off. Gingerly taking a cloth by one corner, she forced the last drop of it down the drain pipe and then turned on the cold water to rinse the tub. She tried hard not to regret the spacious, sunken tub she had been accustomed to, with a shower of perfumed water, and thick, fleecy towels, each as large as four of these that hung in this bathroom. It wouldn't have been such a miserable contrast if there'd been a shower of any sort, she thought. She wouldn't plunge her immaculate body into that rusty stuff and Virginia liked a hot bath even in summer, and the tingle of rosy skin after the clear cold shower to follow.

She went back to the bedroom and took off her clothes. A moment later she was standing in the tub pouring cold water over herself from the drinking glass. The inadequacy of her makeshift arrangement drew a smile even as she forced back the tears of offended taste, a taste that had been carefully cultivated to appreciate exquisite perfection in every detail of her surroundings.

But even if the bath outraged her fastidiousness, the cold water refreshed her and stirred a pang of hunger. And the gay chiffon negligee soothed her with its sheer daintiness.

She sat in the faint breeze that blew in through her open window and ate the melon and chicken sandwich she ordered sent up, and drank two cups of orange pekoe.

Her mind was calmer now than at any time since she had left the Deans. The priceless gift of youth—buoyancy—helped her to break the numbing grip of fear and to concentrate on the problems before her, while adaptability saved her from succumbing to despair. Dainty and delicate as one of the dew-covered cobwebs outspread on country lawns in early summer mornings, she was like them in other ways as well. There was in her the strength and resilience of those masterpieces of nature.

"I'll find a way," she vowed courageously. "Other people, my own ancestors, have made fortunes, why not I?"

Her self-communing was interrupted by a call from the office.

MODERN WOMAN

Full well I know that woman's place
Is running, in the human race.
She's trying to express herself
By coming off the dusty shelf
Whereupon she's rested, yeas on year;
She climbs right down, nor shows a fear
Of taking knockings the men have borne—
She's viewing work and care with scorn.

There may be women who, by chance,
Still crave submission and romance;
whose greatest, biggest, truest plan
Is slaving for some Master Man.
But look around; it's plain to see,
That such are in minority.

I hope that woman will be blessed
With freedom, fame, and all the rest.
And may she work to power and pelf,
And be the master of herself.
I hope she jumps the prison bar,
And finds whate'er she's looking for.
Oh, while I sadly stroll and pace,
I see that home is not her place.

HUGE ZEPPELIN IS CHRISTENED

Giant Ship Named After Inventor

FRIEDRICHSHAFEN, July 10. (US)—"In memory of my father, shall this great airship that transforms his thought into the deed, bear his name. Good luck to you, Count Zeppelin."

With these words, Countess Brandenstein, daughter of Count Zeppelin, inventor of rigid airships of the type that bears his name, christened at high noon the new super-airliner which will carry Germany's blue pennant into the air as the world's largest, fastest airship.

As the countess spoke, she tipped over a large gilded, slender necked bottle, and liquid air, symbolic of the element which the "Count Zeppelin" will conquer, streamed out against the bow of the dirigible's cabin.

At the same time, two strips of canvas, like two gigantic feathers, fell from each side of the colossal, cigar-shaped hull and revealed the German name, "Graf-Zeppelin," in large block red letters against the beautiful silver gray of the ship.

First Christened

Although the new craft is the 117th Zeppelin built and launched at Friedrichshafen, it is the first time that one has been christened. The ceremonies were intensely impressive in their extreme simplicity, coupled with almost the solemnity of a high mass.

The program opened with a large band playing Beethoven's impressive "All Honor to the Highest." Several hundred invited guests, including representatives of the national and Wuertemberg state governments were gathered under the great silver gray hull 736 feet long and 102 feet high.

Dr. Hugo Eckener, veteran airship commander and expert, spoke briefly, concluding:

"May this great airship, the crystallization and embodiment of the thought of Count Zeppelin, be another bridge between Germany and the other nations."

To Fly Atlantic

Countess Brandenstein took her place at the bow on the commander's bridge, which was garlanded in evergreen. The pilot room in front was decorated with a large red "Z" set in a green laurel wreath.

As the liquid air streamed against the airship's side, the band played very slowly the deeply touching Netherland's "Thanksgiving Prayer." The officers and crew who will sail Germany's new air conqueror across the Atlantic to the United States, and their wives and children, as well as the guests, stood with heads bowed as if in prayer.

NICARAGUA IN ELECTION TIFF

Neither Candidate Recognized By Board

WASHINGTON, July 10. (US)—An added difficulty has confronted General Frank R. McCoy and his national electoral board in their efforts to conduct a quiet, fair, and impartial election in turbulent Nicaragua, it was learned at the state department today.

The difficulty arose with the failure of either side of the split conservative party to nominate a man for the presidency who might be recognized by the electoral board as a real representative of the historic conservative group.

The party split over an internal question and held two conventions in the city of Managua, May 20. The one group led by President Adolfo Fasco, a member of the Diaz cabinet, and recent representative at the pan-American congress in Havana. The other, headed by Don Emiliano Chamorro, nominated Vicente Pappacioli. Gen. Chamorro, ban by his own revolutionary activities made himself ineligible for choice by his party.

In clarifying his position, General McCoy issued a statement, received at the state department, in which he said that neither of the factions in question had duly established its right to be recognized as representing the old party.

He added, however, that both elements would be recognized as parties de facto for the purpose of treating with them regarding means of settling their differences.

"WHAT OF IT?... What does that mean to my car?"

Simply this: The 26 million Dunlops now running are your guarantee that Dunlops will pay you on your car.

With 45,000 craftsmen . . . 40 years' experience . . . $195,000,000 resources . . . vast rubber plantations . . and great spinning mills, Dunlop should make the world's best tires.

The longer Dunlops have run, the more popular they have become. In Australia, 75% of all tires are Dunlops . . . In Japan, 65% . . . In England, 70%.

The ninth and greatest of all Dunlop plants was built at Buffalo, U. S. A. five years ago. Since then, Dunlop has climbed from 89th place to an undisputed position among America's leading tire-manufacturers. In 1927, American dealers sold 41% more Dunlop tires than in 1926.

Yes . . . the 26 million Dunlops now in service are your guarantee that Dunlops will pay you on your car.

"DUNLOP CITY"

Throughout the world, the productive Dunlop Properties cover so vast an area that—if combined into one place—they would form a "Dunlop City" of over 100,000 acres.

Dunlop challenges the world for the title, "THE WORLD'S GREATEST TIRE." Buy one for your car, run it against any tire; keep track of the cost per mile, and then buy your future tires as the test shows you should. FOR ECONOMY'S SAKE YOU OWE YOURSELF THIS TEST.

Favorite Jokes of Famous People

As Told by Them to
FRANK ERNEST NICHOLSON

By DOLORES DEL RIO

DOLORES DEL RIO

Dolores Del Rio, the screen star, was all aflutter the other day when some one told her that the Pullman company had named two cars for her.

Two shiny new coaches actually had come from their factory, one with "Del Rio" painted on it and the other bearing the name "Dolores." But—

When Miss Del Rio heard that Pullmans weren't named for people unless they were dead (with the exception of the car named "Lindbergh") she didn't know whether to register anger, pain, regret or amusement.

By her intimate friends Miss Del Rio is affectionately called "Chili," though no one seems to know the origin of this nickname. It has nothing to do with South America, and, of course, it certainly has no connection with being cold.

On the other hand, chills are the hottest things in peppers. Here's one that Miss Del Rio laughs over:

"Mr. Goldstein said to Mr. McGregor: 'Wherever you go in the world you'll always find us Jews there.'

"Mr. McGregor said to Mr. Goldstein: 'Ach, mon, how aboot the North Pole?'

"To which Mr. Goldstein replied: 'Vell, Iceberg ain't no Scotch name!'"

HEALTH and DIET ADVICE

Author of "The Fast Way to Health"

Questions in regard to health and diet will be answered by Mr. McCoy who can be addressed in care of this paper.

Many Uses for Lemons

The lemon is a member of the citrus family and a true relative of the orange. The lemon tree is formed and grown very much like an orange, and the fruit has very much the same chemical properties except that it does not have as large an amount of sugar. The citrus fruits are so closely related that, through budding, oranges, lemons, grapefruit, limes and tangerines may all be grown on the same tree.

Lemon trees are astoundingly prolific, some trees having as high as three thousand fruits per year. This large amount is partly due to the fact that the tree is ever-bearing, with buds, blossoms, and fruits on the tree the year round.

The blossom resembles that of the orange except that the backs of the white petals are slightly tinged with purple. Many people consider the odor of the lemon blossom equally as attractive as the orange. The trees are always hung with green fruit since the fruit requires so long to mature—about nine months.

The Spaniards are credited with first planting the lemon tree in America, but though extensively grown, it was only slowly developed commercially. Undoubtedly it will become even more popular when its healthful values become better known.

In this era of beautiful women, lemons are becoming very popular as cosmetics for the hands, face and hair. There seems to be some kind of belief that a highly decorated jar with a pretty ribbon helps the beautifier, but lemons are probably the most inexpensive as well as one of the most effective cosmetics obtainable.

Every beauty shop uses lemons in some of its preparations, and many housewives make it a rule to use the juice of a lemon on their hands after washing the dishes, or on their hair after a shampoo. The mild citric acid removes the soap curd that attaches itself to the hair after washing. You have probably experienced the difficulty in making your hair behave or look right after the shampoo. Just use a lemon rinse and see the difference!

Probably one of the finest skin lotions that can be devised is composed of equal parts of lemon juice and glycerine. This will remove many stains and blotches and leave the skin smooth and satin like.

There is another good use for the lemon. It makes an excellent dentrifice to use on sore and bleeding gums. Used night and morning it will make a remarkable change in tightening up loose gums and improving the circulation and cleanliness of the mouth.

There are a number of household uses of lemon juice for removing rust, ink or fruit stains, polishing aluminum ware and piano keys.

The lemon is chiefly valuable for its anti-scorbutic vitamine.

Bottled lemon juice, sterilized at low temperature, may be kept for a long time and should be carried by those who are compelled to make long trips into regions that will be deficient in fresh fruit and vegetables.

Lemons may be preserved from drying out by immersing in fresh cold water.

Questions and Answers

Question: E. O. L. writes: "For some time I have been troubled with infected fingernails. Have tried several remedies but got only temporary relief. Two of the nails have come off. What do you advise?

Answer: You are starving for bone and nail building salts. The acidosis from which you suffer can be cured if you will use a liberal amount of green vegetables, in proper combination with protein, whole grains, and other food containing vitamins. Leave out all denatured foods, such as those made from white flour. Some local antiseptic treatment is usually indicated after your diet has been corrected.

Question: S. J. writes: "There frequently comes a tense condition so that I cannot relax while reading, lying down or sitting, and this also prevents my going to sleep. What is the cause and remedy? What you do think of orange peel? I eat the peeling of one daily with other food. My age is 71."

Answer: Something is preventing the proper coordination of your muscles. Try taking calesthenic exercise twice daily. If you will do this I am sure you will be able to relax when you wish to do so. I would not advocate your using orange peel with a meal, but orange juice, including some of the peel if you wish, may be taken by you to advantage early in the morning or just before retiring.

Question: Mrs. D. F. writes: "I have terrible pains all over me about 20 minutes after eating even the smallest meal, such as one slice of wholewheat bread, cooked or raw fruit, and perhaps one cup of Postum or milk. Pains are from lower abdomen right up under the arms, especially around left breast. Puts me in a fever while they last, sometimes for half an hour."

Answer: The combination of food you mention is not a good one and produces excessive stomach gas which is probably the principal cause of the pains you feel after meals. Try using wholewheat bread with one or two of the non-starchy vegetables such as spinach, celery, string beans, etc. If this agrees with you, you can be sure that your trouble is nothing worse than that caused by poor food combinations.

STEERS BAT TIMELY AND AIDED BY SPUD ERRORS WIN FINAL

FITZ, MILLER CLOUT HOMERS

Robertson Victor, 7 to 4; Buffs Here Today

By LARRY DAILEY
Record News Sports Editor

Hack Miller plays batter on the Dallas ball club. In moments of necessity he plants his brogans in the outfield. Hack, son of Sebastian, the strong man, played batter for the Steers yesterday. And with such direful effect that it led to the downfall of our Spudders and enabled Bert Ellison's men to even the two-game series.

Two comrades were on bases in the seventh inning, the score 2-all, when Hack crashed one of Tom Estell's spitters over the left-center wall. That started a rally that resulted in two more runs for the Steers in that round, to eventually give them the ball game, 7 to 4.

Charley Robertson, of major league no-hit fame, and George Payne were the starting hurlers. Charley went the route and pitched very good ball, though he was unsteady in late innings. Payne also chucked a creditable game until he was removed in the sixth inning to permit Cvengros to bat for him, after yielding two runs and six hits.

Estell Loses Game

Estell gave up the three runs caused by Hack's homer and another hit in the seventh and was relieved in favor of Steengrafe. Milt allowed two tallies, one of which was put on by Estell, and a brace of blows and Herb Cobb, who won the previous day, finished the last two innings. Herbie held the Steers runless and to a hit a round. Estell is charged with the defeat.

Three timely Spudder errors—timely for the Steers—figured in the scoring. Neither of the Dallas misplays hetoed the Spudders.

It wasn't the fault of Howard Fitzgerald that our nine took the short end of the count. Howard smacked a home run in the sixth round with a teammate on the base paths and turned in the fielding feature of the day. Howard's glittering defensive work was the starting of a double play when he came in fast for Robertson's drive in the sixth and threw out Mann at home with a perfect throw.

Robertson held the Spudders impotent for the first five innings, allowing only one hit, that a single by Turgeon in the first round. Only 17 men faced Charley in those five frames. The Spudders made two hits and as many runs in the sixth and one tally with three blows in the seventh. They were stopped in the eighth but staged a rally in the ninth that counted one run. But Johnny Mann, who formerly pastimed in livery of the Spudders, was the villain then. Johnny started a double play with a scintillating stop and throw with none out, and the next batter grounded out.

Hack Miller, with his home run, a double and base on balls and Hap Morse, with two hits, one for two bases and a pair of sacrifices, were the batting leaders. None of the Spudders maced more than one hit.

Spuds Gain on Buffs

Despite the defeat, Jim Galloway's men gained on the leading Houston Buffs, who open a two-day series here today. The Buffs lost a double header to Beaumont yesterday and are only one game ahead of Wichita Falls. San Antonio won yesterday and is half a game behind the runnerup Spudders. Thus there is the possibility we will tie for the lead today or slip to third place.

The Steers scored first in the sixth inning. Robertson singled to left but was forced by O'Brien on a tap to Payne. O'Brien stole second and continued to third when Roetz covered the bag slowly and allowed the ball to roll to center field. O'Brien scored on Morse's lift to Jenkins.

Dallas counted again in the sixth. Miller walked and went to second on Ellison's bunt to Payne, unassisted. Mann and Tate strolled. Pierce batted for Mealey and a roller down the third base line scored Miller.

Galloways Tie in Sixth

The Spudders tied it in the sixth. Turgeon walked after two were out and scored ahead of Fitzgerald on Howard's smash over the left-center wall.

Ellison's men counted five in the seventh. Estell went to the hill. O'Brien singled. Lapan fumbled Morse's bunt and both runners were safe. Rosenthal lifted to Roetz. Miller hit over the center field fence, O'Brien and Morse scoring ahead of him. Ellison singled to center. Steengrafe relieved Estell. Mann bunted to Stanton and Roetz muffed Buck's throw to retire Ellison. Tate singled to center, Ellison tallying and Mann stopping at second. Selmer singled to left, Mann scoring.

The Spudders scored in the seventh. Swenson doubled to left. Rosenthal took Stanton's fly. Lapan singled to right, Swenson scoring.

Their last run was counted by the homelings in the ninth. Swenson walked. Stanton singled to center, Swenson going to third. Mann went to his right for Lapan's harsh grounder, Johnny, Morse and Ellison completing a double play and Swenson scoring.

DAILY DOPE

By Larry Dailey

THERE WOULD BE little if any regret among the majority of sports writers who know him well, if the unexpected should occur and Gene Tunney lose his crown to Tom Heeney. This though Heeney is a "foreigner" and the loss of the heavyweight championship for the United States is something to be viewed as a near calamity. Tunney, it seems, couldn't stand prosperity. They built him up as a super-man, a pugilist who had the brain of a Shaw and the morality of a Monk—and he finally came to believe them.

SO GENE TUNNEY wears the high hat. Friends of the days when he was a struggling fighter are ignored. Sports writers, who have made possible his huge earnings, are only a nuisance, to be avoided if possible, or tolerated at the best. Others of his profession are hanged. He mingles with the elite, or what he chooses to regard as the elite, and condescends to practice his profession—only that he may enrich himself.

Tunney is a clean young man. There is admiration for him on that score. He is a brainy man; that is accorded him. But there are countless clean young men and countless brainy young men, who have accomplished much more than Gene Tunney in this world—though they never will be a champion fighter and amass a bankroll of a million dollars. Where Tunney has committed the unpardonable mistake, in the eyes of sporting men, is his ingratitude for old friends and his profession. Sporting men are big hearted. They will not tolerate the high hatter. Sports writers, to whom a champion is merely a person to write about as part of the day's work, view Tunney with annoyance and amusement. They are annoyed because he sets himself upon a pedestal which they know he doesn't occupy. And they are amused because they contemplate his downfall—as all men in his position will fall.

TUNNEY HAS BEEN ungrateful to friends of his early days. He has been ungrateful to those who helped make him champion and a millionaire. He has sought to arrogate unto himself the privacy and privileges of a ruler of a nation. He has ignored the public that has made his wealth. Tunney could have been one of our most popular champions, though he will be recorded in pugilistic history as a fighter of little more than average ability. And he will be recorded in history as one of our most unpopular champions.

TUNNEY, THE KING, his camp retinue is trained to refer to him, Damon Runyon says. Well, there have been many kings. But most of them fell, victims of their own inflated self-importance and the righteous wrath of their subjects. When Gene Tunney's days as champion are ended, it will be welcome to the majority of sports enthusiasts. Humpty Dumpty sat on a wall, Humpty Dumpty had a great fall—

Fred McJunkin, Sol Dreyfuss Among New Owners

DALLAS, Texas, July 10. (AP)—Control of the Dallas baseball club passed today from the hands of President Tavener C. Lupton and his brother, Charles Lupton, to Fred McJunkin, vice-president, Sol Dreyfus and associates, according to announcement by McJunkin.

McJunkin said new officials would be elected at a meeting of stockholders tomorrow. "Every effort of the new owners will be bent toward giving Dallas a winner," McJunkin declared.

Today's deal was the fourth major change of ownership in the history of the local club. Prior to the 1925 season, the franchise was sold to the Luptons and their associates, one of the purchasers being J. Walter Morris, who recently disposed of his interest in the club.

Notes of the Game

The Spudders are all set for the Buffs. Mike Cvengros, who has had a rest of four days, will pitch today. Bill Shores will oppose Snyder's men tomorrow.

Payne pitched out of a couple of holes yesterday. In the first inning with two on and one out he struck out Miller and caused Ellison to roll to Turgeon and in the fourth, confronted with a like situation, he caused Tate to fly to Jenkins and fanned Mealey.

Stanton's snatch of Swenson's high and wide throw on Ellison's grounder in the fourth with Miller on second helped George escape unscathed that inning.

Johnny Mann played corking good ball the two games on the stand concluded yesterday, both at bat and afield.

Gene Buys Huge Block Of Tickets For Fight

NEW YORK, July 10. (UP)—Gene Tunney has purchased more than 400 tickets at a cost of $16,040 to the heavyweight championship bout at Yankee stadium July 26 between himself and Tom Heeney.

Tex Rickard reported today that the sale of tickets to date exceeds by $82,000 the sale of tickets at a corresponding date to the second Tunney-Dempsey bout at Chicago last fall.

KNIGHT-WHIPPETS WIN

Knight-Whippets scored a 10-to-1 victory over Swift and company team yesterday on the Ray Massie field.

Pirates Release Miljus To Indians on Waivers

PITTSBURGH, July 10. (UP)—John Miljus, pitcher for the Pirates, was released by the waiver route today to the Cleveland American league club.

Miljus was purchased by the Pirates last season from the Seattle club of the Pacific Coast league.

Ritt's Ritticisms

A circus has discovered a 700-pound boy in the wilds of Alabama. The surprise is that Tex Rickard hasn't grabbed him for a match with Tunney.

The boy might have been bigger if he hadn't been born in Alabama. He was built along the lines of Texas.

The kid's home town was proud of him. He was the nearest thing to a mountain that it had.

One look at him made evolutionists change their ideas. They began to think Adam must have been a whale.

But now the kid has landed a swell job. All he has to do it eat and let people look at him.

He never loafs on the job; in fact, he has been known to out in some overtime on the first part of it.

Loughran-Latzo Battle May Draw Over $100,000

WILKES-BARRE, Pa., July 10. (UP)—Promoter Morgan Bird announced today he expected the gate receipts of the Tommy Loughran-Pete Latzo light heavyweight bout here July 16 to exceed $100,000.

Departing from his usual custom of training at Philadelphia, Loughran has moved his camp to Harvey's lake near here to complete his conditioning.

American Olympic Team Sails Today

NEW YORK, July 10. (AP)—To the accompaniment of farewell cheers, band-playing and flag-waving, the American Olympic team will set forth tomorrow on its quest for world athletic honors. If the optimistic hopes and expectations of its followers are fulfilled, the array of talent will come back two months hence with most of the laurel wreaths from Amsterdam.

This expeditionary force, in many respects the greatest assemblage of athletic ability any nation ever has assembled, departs on the President Roosevelt.

The voyage is expected to consume 10 days so the team will have nearly a week to get in shape for the main Olympic action, starting Sunday, July 29, with track and field sports.

BROAD STREET WINS

The Broad Street Spudders won their second consecutive game yesterday by beating Saul's nine, 5 to 4, on the Jalonic street diamond.

NEW YORK COTTON

NEW YORK, July 10. (AP)—The cotton market recovered today a good part of yesterday's decline. Further liquidation was readily absorbed, prices advancing to 21.94 for October contracts in late trading on covering or rebuying of recent sellers. October closed at 21.91, the general market closing very steady at net advances of 26 to 32 points.

The opening was firm at an advance of 7 to 16 points in response to the relatively firm showing of Liverpool and reports of further rains in the eastern belt. Initial buying was quickly supplied by further liquidation inspired by the unexpectedly large government acreage figures yesterday, but the market seemed to attract an additional demand on comparatively moderate setbacks. Offerings tapered off in a manner which some local traders regarded as indicating that the bulk of the long cotton disturbed by yesterday's developments had been liquidated, and this view of the technical position, no doubt, contributed to the advance which followed.

The detailed weather reports showing considerable precipitation in eastern belt sections, together with the outlook for further showers in that part of the south, encouraged the rally, while there may have been some buying on private figures estimating the world's consumption of American lint cotton for May at 1,263,000 bales compared with 1,167,000 for April and 1,428,000 for May last year.

A private crop report from Memphis placing the condition at 68.9 and indicating a yield for 13,312,000 bales based on the government's acreage figures was also considered a factor on the afternoon advance, which carried July up to 21.71 and December to 21.77. Closing prices were within 2 or 3 points of the best.

July notices estimated at about 9400 bales caused some near month liquidation in early trading, but it was reported they were stopped by trade interests. Houses with continental connections were moderate buyers in the Liverpool market.

Exports today 21,743, making 7,584,364 so far this season.

Port receipts 4286, U. S. port stocks 787,713.

NEW ORLEANS COTTON

NEW ORLEANS, July 10. (AP)—The cotton market partially recovered from yesterday's sharp break today when trade buying and covering induced by unfavorable crop and weather reports carried prices up $1.50 a bale over the previous close.

October contracts advanced 14 points in early trading to 21.14, but eased off later to 21.04. The subsequent rally kept the market on the upgrade for practically the remainder of the session, October eventually trading to 21.36, or 36 points net up. The option closed 3 points under the top and 33 points above the previous close. The general market closed steady at net advances of 30 to 34 points.

Liverpool cables were 13 to 16 points higher than due, but first trades here showed gains of only 5 to 7 points, the market still feeling the bearish influence of the government's acreage report. After the start prices advanced slightly to 21.14 for October and 21.08 for December, or 14 points net up. At these levels execution of overnight selling orders developed, but were absorbed at set-backs of 6 to 8 points.

In the second hour the demand increased, under the impetus of official reports of rain in the eastern belt where it is not needed and continued drouth in the west. A bullish consumption report and crop estimate making the indicated yield 13,312,000 bales, based on a condition average of 68.8 as applied to the government's acreage estimate was a contributing factor to the advance which ultimately carried October to 21.36, and December to 21.31, or 36 to 37 points above the close. Some realizing developed in final trading and the market closed a few points under the top.

Tax Notices Bring Rush To City Cash Register

More than 1,000 inquiries have been received at the office of W. F. Hyer, city assessor and collector, as the result of cards sent out several days ago notifying several thousand tax payers that their property had been placed on the delinquent lists for 1927.

Mr. Hyer pointed out Tuesday that the cards are notices of delinquency on both the school and city taxes and that every day they are not paid, the interest charge grows. Many people have come to the tax office in the past few days to pay these taxes, he said.

Stock Market Irregular After Banks Call in Accommodations

By BROADAN WALL
Universal Service Financial Expert

NEW YORK, July 10.—Calling of loans resulted in a quiet irregular stock market today. Although the money rate remained at the renewal of 6 per cent there were fears of a 6½ or even a 7 per cent rate as the banks called in $15,000,000 accommodations, but whenever a rise was threatened sufficient funds made their appearance to hold the charge unchanged.

General Motors was jumped 4 points and Can gained fractionally but most of the other standard industrials were ragged, with Steel losing all of its gain of the previous session. Profit taking put Montgomery Ward and most other pool favorites lower. Sinclair also dropped most of its gain of Monday as the rest of the oil list turned very dull, while comparatively light offerings put the rails slightly lower on the average.

Foreign exchange remained irregular with fractional recessions the rule. Wheat rallied on favorable crop news and led other grains higher while the cotton options recovered somewhat also.

Fear of an advance in the rediscount rate hangs over the market and works against the efforts of Cutten, Durant et al to attract the public back into dealings. There is some doubt that the reserve bank of New York will raise its rate at Thursday's meeting for it is felt that, like when the last advance was made, the initiative will be taken by Chicago and followed by other districts. If some of the directors of the Chicago bank had their way a 5 per cent rediscount rate would be effective there now and the increase may be taken at any time. Insofar as the condition of the Chicago, New York, Boston and most of the other banks, as revealed in last week's statements, is concerned the increase to 5 per cent in their rediscount rates would be warranted.

Just as this is written the word is flashed from Chicago that the rediscount rate there has been raised to 5 per cent.

Grain

By THOMAS TEMPLE HOYNE
Universal Service

CHICAGO, July 10.—The July government report on crops issued at 3 o'clock today was on the whole bullish, being considered by the trade extremely so on corn. A forecast of a corn crop close to 3,000,000,000 bushels was looked for; the government estimate was 2,736,000,000.

It should be remembered, however, that this is the first estimate of the year. The crop harvested last year was more than 500,000,000 bushels larger than the July estimate.

In the session preceding the posting of the government figures all the grains developed strength. Most of the futures hit bottoms for the day at or immediately after the opening. Thereafter they were on the way up most of the time.

At the close wheat was up 1⅛c to 2⅛c; corn was 1c to 1⅝c higher; oats were ⅛c to 1⅝c better; rye was up 2c to 2¼c.

The wheat market showed a little early strength and then sagged back toward the bottom and looked weak for a time. However, good buying developed to take the short selling pressure.

Girls' Vanity Sign of Sense

thetic complexion for the one of which time had robbed her.

But now she knows that when she is doing her best to make herself balm to the eyes she is not acting cuckoo. She is just showing that she is a perfectly normal woman, with her mental engine hitting on all eight cylinders and running sweetly. Now when her husband accuses her of being crazy for spending too much time and money and thought on her personal appearance, science has provided her with a snappy comeback: "Oh, no, dear. Not crazy. Just perfectly poised and utterly sane."

Moreover, although it may be news to men that feminine vanity is an indication of a normal mind in women, it is no startling new discovery to write home to mother about women. They have always known it. They have always considered the woman queer who took no interest in the styles and who never learned how to comb her hair or what to wear and who bought clothes for comfort and wear instead of looks. Sometimes they attribute it to genius or to piety, but even then they recognize that she isn't well balanced, and they have that uncomfortable feeling with her that we have with those who are a little normally off.

And women could tell you that a woman's regard for her personal appearance indicates a lot of other things besides her sanity. Any woman can look at a married woman and give a shrewd guess as to how much she cares for her husband. If she is still in love with him and wants to hold him, she keeps herself primped up and tries to look young and attractive.

But if she is tired of him and only regards him in the light of a meal ticket, she goes slouchy and slovenly around home and doesn't bother to rub off the cold cream and put on the lipstick, because she is going to turn the back of her ear anyway if he offers to kiss her, and she doesn't care whether she looks good to him or not.

Any women can tell just the psychological moment when another woman throws up her hands and quits, when she gives up hope and ambition dies within her and she has no more pep. It is when she suddenly lets herself look her age; when she slumps in her appearance and bids farewell to the curling iron and pitches her cosmetics out of the window.

And women know that care for their personal appearance not only indicates their sanity but keeps them sane. The beauty shop is the safety valve where they blow off steam when they get unduly heated up over husband's attitude toward that blond flapper. And the dress shop is where they take their revenge for husband's neglect. Where a man would get drunk in a domestic crisis, a woman buys a new dress and has a facial, and she comes out of it all looking 10 years younger and soothed and comforted and restored to normal.

And perhaps science will discover that, too, some day.

In Washington the Wichitans report that Senator Sheppard secured them permits to see most of the government buildings as well as to go in and shake hands with President Coolidge.

Nobile Gives Lurid Story

fuel. They even burned their expensive cameras.

The food of the castaways consisted chiefly of bear meat and pemmican, with occasional small rations of chocolate.

During the bitter nights Nobile and his men often were awakened by bears sniffing at their sleeping bags but the Berserker terrier, Titana, invariably drove them off in fright.

Nobile was eager to establish radio connection with the outer world and when Giuseppe Biagi, the Italia's radio man, succeeded in communicating with a Russian station—the first connection with civilization—the commander of the Italia gave him an extra slab of chocolate.

Plane Sighted

When the Italians sighted the first rescue airplane, that of Capt. H. Riiser-Larsen, Norwegian flier, the men set up petrol cans to reflect the sun, hoping the aviators would be attracted to their position.

When Major Umberto Maddalena, Italian aviator, flew over the encampment, Natal Ceccioni, chief engineer of the Italia—who later died of injuries—lay on his back in the brilliant sun with a petrol can on his abdomen and moved it about to reflect the sun. Maddalena saw the men, and later dropped them food.

As time hung increasingly heavy over the forlorn encampment, the men began daily oceanographic researches and also constructed a sled from the wreckage of the Italia's cabin.

Although Nobile had objected to the departure of Malgrem, he embraced each of the three men and wished them luck.

Nobile Feverish

Lieut. Alfredo Viglieri, who assumed charge of the camp after Nobile had been taken off the ice by Capt. Einar-Paal Lundborg, was chiefly responsible for keeping the men in high morale. He was always in fine spirits and cheered his companions when they were depressed.

General Nobile, when the United Press correspondent visited him aboard the Citta di Milano, was obviously feverish and weak. He frequently winced with pain.

His right forearm was swollen and deformed, bent in an unnatural position. One leg was twisted sidewise by a fracture which made it impossible for him to stand erect. The leg showed indications of withering.

Nobile said he set his leg himself, making splints from the wooden parts of his wrecked gondola. Afterwards his necessarily slow and awkward movements about the camp disarranged the splints and caused the leg to assume an ugly position into which it grew fixed as the days passed.

Purest Sand Found In Coleman Oil Test

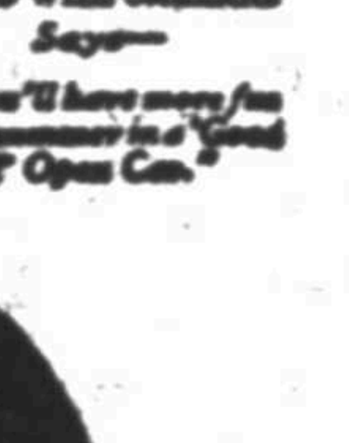

COLEMAN, July 10.—By far the best well in the Santa Anna pool and initially one of the best producers yet developed in Coleman county's high gravity oil fields, topped the regular sand at 1847 feet, drilled by E. J. Cunningham and the Charter Oil company on the Crump property in the Jonathan Scott survey No. 665.

Geologists characterized the sand as the most pure oil sand yet disclosed in the county and the well was flowing at the rate of 600 barrels daily nine feet in the pay. Cunningham and the Charter Oil company formerly completed a small pumper on the Crump property.

Realty Report Shows City in Good Condition in First Half of 1928

Telephone, Gas, Electric and Water Meters and Postal Receipts Gain; Vacancies Due to Poor Buildings

The number of telephones, gas, electric and water meters and postal receipts showed a substantial increase in Wichita Falls during the seven months period ending June 1, according to a summary of the survey of local conditions prepared by a committee of the real estate board and released for publication Tuesday afternoon.

Members of the committee compiling the report were Homer Karrenbrock, Fred Cone and C. R. Seals. The report was adopted by the board Tuesday noon and later reviewed by the executive committee of the board.

In addition to giving data on postal receipts, gas, electric and water meters, the report gives information on building permits, bank deposits and number of vacant business houses, apartments and residences.

Postal receipts during the first five months of 1928 totaled $138,167.88, which was an increase of $1,923.60 over the aggregate for the first five months of 1927, which was $136,244.38.

More Meters Used

On Nov. 1, 1927, there were 10,686 telephones in the city and on June 1 the total was 10,853, an increase of 167.

Electric light meters totaled 9,998 on last Nov. 1 and on June 1, 1928, the total was 10,280, or an increase of 282.

Gas meters increased 407 over the seven months period. The total number of meters in the city on Nov. 1, 1927, was 10,351, and on June 1 of this year the total was 10,758.

There was a total of 10,060 water meters in Wichita Falls on Nov. 1, 1927, as compared with a total of 10,760 on last June 1, or an increase of 700, the report states.

The report shows the following facts:

Building permits during the first five months of 1928 showed a decrease of $951,216 from the total for the same period in 1927. The total the first five months of 1927 was $1,801,067 and for the same period this year the aggregate was $849,851. Building permits issued by the city the first five months of 1928 totaled $849,851 and for the same period in 1927 the total was $1,041,002.20, or a decrease of $191,751.20.

Bank deposits on Nov. 1, 1928, totaled $23,419,437.85 and on June 1, 1928, the end of the seven months period, the aggregate was $24,067,462.61, or a gain of $648,024.76.

City valuations for the year 1928 show an increase of approximately $2,000,000, the report states.

Vacant Residences

In compiling the data on number of residences and apartments vacant the committee divided the vacant places into five localities and classified them according to the condition they were in at the time of the survey.

The report says the following:

"Of the residences vacant there are only 23, or 3.9 per cent of the total vacancies in first class locality; 76, or 13 per cent of the vacancies are in second class locality; 175, or 30.8 per cent are in third class locality; 189, or 32.4 per cent of the vacancies are in fourth class locality; 219, or 22.1 per cent of the vacancies are in fifth class locality. In classifying the vacancies to state of repair or condition we find there are 107 in good repair; 180 in fair repair, and 300 in very poor repair. And in classifying each vacant house as to type and construction we find there are 22 in class A; 81 in class 8; 184 in class C; 199 in class D, and 90 in class E. So according to this survey and report, we find there are only a small number of vacant houses that are in good condition and in desirable locality."

The report continues:

"Upon compilation of the various territories we find there are a total of 958 stores, brick and frame, and that of this amount 95 are vacant or a percentage of 9.9 per cent. This includes the suburban section, small frame and brick buildings and also a number of newly constructed buildings erected for particular purposes which will soon be occupied.

Good Residences Scarce

"The fact that building permits show a decline over last year and taking into consideration the number of class A vacancies and others in good repair, indicates that building activity can be started out any time conditions change for the better without danger of an over-supply of houses of the single type construction for some time to follow.

"There is an under-supply of good residences for rent. Many of the houses vacant, including all classes, are not for rent, but built for sale, but are included in the vacancy count. There is a greater percentage of duplex and apartments vacant than single houses. The report shows there are a great majority of the vacant houses not in condition for occupancy. Five per cent is normal vacancy for cities from 50,000 to 100,000 population."

Archer County To Maintain New Bridge

Commissioners of Archer county will maintain the bridge serving the state fish hatchery and park at Diversion lake dam, according to an announcement made Tuesday by Hubert Harrison, manager of the chamber of commerce. The bridge, which was erected by donations of citizens of Wichita Falls, Vernon and Electra, lies entirely in Archer county.

TEXTILE PLANT NEARLY READY

Tuf Nut Machinery to Arrive Here Soon

The Tuf Nut Manufacturing company building is practically completed, and is ready for the installation of machinery as soon as the machines arrive, according to an announcement made Tuesday by P. E. McLain, manager.

"The machines probably will be here in a few days," Mr. McLain explained.

"As soon as they get here, we can start placing them while the workmen are completing the first floor. There will be no machines on the first floor as that will be devoted primarily to stock.

"At the present rate of speed of construction and finishing of the new factory building, I expect it to be turned over to us about July 26."

Tickets to Flying Circus on Sale Today

Ticket sales for the "Flying Circus" which shows in Wichita Falls on Labor day, Sept. 3, go on sale Wednesday morning. The circus, which is sponsored in its appearance here by the local American Legion as a benefit, includes some of the best known pilots in the flying game and many flying acts never witnessed before in this vicinity.

A stunt event, in which each pilot is given 15 minutes to demonstrate his ability, draws some keen competition in upside down flying. Other popular acts include changing planes in the air, looping the loop with acrobats standing upright on the top wings, and leaving a speeding plane for the ground without a parachute. There are also several thrilling races and an old-fashioned balloon ascension included on the program.

'Bird Boy' Added To Thursday Vaudeville

Marion Reesby, the boy whistler who imitates the calls of the birds, is the latest number to be announced for the free vaudville program in Bellevue park, Thursday evening.

Other numbers already announced include Miss Marjorie F. Hoenscheidt who will sing and dance and Miss Eleanor Pittman and her mother, Mrs. J. S. Pitman who will play and sing. Miss Hoenscheidt is a Pitman pupil.

The Lions club boys' band under the direction of Leo Underwood; vocal numbers by Miss Jean Fisk, Miss Frances Phillips, and Miss Lorene Tucker; a harmonica solo by Guy Rogers, Jr., and music by the I. B. Thompson string quartet are other numbers on the program.

Barnes Addresses Vernon Graduates

Special to The Record News.

VERNON, Texas, July 10.—Rev. S. A. Barnes, pastor of the Floral Heights Methodist church of Wichita Falls, addressed the summer graduating class of Vernon High school Sunday morning in the baccalaureate sermon on "The Average Man." The class of 10 will be graduated at commencement here Friday night.

"Every outstanding man in history was a positive character," declared the Rev. Mr. Barnes. "The average man earns an average salary, he lives an average life, and takes an average interest in religion, politics, business and society," he said. "He is the indifferent type, but will never accomplish anything in life. If we accomplish anything we must climb from the commonplace to a positive life."

State Deaths

E. W. HARRISON

Special to The Record News.

HEREFORD, Texas, July 10.—E. W. Harrison, 52, pioneer citizen and elevator man of this city, died early Saturday morning following an emergency operation for appendicitis last Monday evening. He had been in the coal and grain business here since 1906.

Mr. Harrison was a leader in civic and church affairs. At his own expense he built and maintained the 50-mile "Harrison highway" between Hereford and Bellview, N. M. He donated the $10,000 lot at the corner of Fifth and Main streets on which local Baptists are now building a large modern church.

He is survived by his widow, a son, a daughter and other near relatives. Funeral services were held here Sunday afternoon.

Today { At the Theaters

MISSION: George O'Brien in "Honor Bound." Mermaid comedy.
OLYMPIC: Thomas Meighan and Marie Prevost in "The Racket." Comedy. Fox News.
MAJESTIC: "The Street of Sin." Inkwell Imp cartoons. Novelty. Paramount news.
STRAND: Lionel Barrymore, William Collier Jr., May McAvoy in "The Lion and the Mouse," a vitaphone feature. Two vitaphone short features. Pathe newsreel.
GARDEN: "Two Arabian Knights." Comedy.
GEM: "The Painted Trail." Serial. Comedy.

Over at the Majestic they run a novel little cartoon called the Inkwell Imp cartoon. When that imp crawls out of the inkwell and spreads ink around the film, the animated fun starts in good shape. Felix cat and Aesop's Fables are other short comics that hit a popular spot.

The political situation has reached that stage of talk now where the pest who is immersed in politics will insist on talking to you all the time about the latest "move" his candidate has made.

"The Lion and the Mouse" has been enjoying a good run at the Strand despite the hot weather. May McAvoy is supposed to be the star, but the comments of the public seem to be that young William Collier is stealing the show. Lionel also is coming in for his share of the glory and praise. Thursday is the last day this picture will be presented. It is vitaphone's latest big effort, and has more actual conversation than any talkie to date.

The extreme pleasure of blowing out a tire on the street car track at Seventh and Indiana was enjoyed two days ago. Tires for Essex coaches don't come free, and bad spots at heavy traffic points like that certainly start the dramatic writer off to a glorious flow of unkingly English.

Mary Astor is due in town Thursday in "The Chinese Parrot" at the Mission theater.

Charles Murray in "Lost at the Front" is coming to the Olympic theater Thursday.

COUNTY HEARS TAX PROTESTS

Ten Per Cent Being Sliced From Assessments

The county board of equalization handled about 100 complaints Tuesday, its first day of a series of hearings, according to Judge E. W. Nicholson.

Few of the complaints, Judge Nicholson said, resulted in a charge in the assessment. Most of the complanants were satisfied when the method of levying the assessment, on a basis of last year's rendition with 10 per cent to be deducted, was explained to them, Judge Nicholson said.

Wednesday the board will continue the hearing of complaints on real estate assessments and Thursday will take up consideration of complaints of banks, corporations and oil companies.

Time Changed For Free Swim Lessons

The time for free swimming lessons for girls under 18 years of age has been changed to start at 3:30 o'clock on Monday, Wednesday and Friday afternoons, it was announced at the offices of the city park department Tuesday.

The lessons, which are being given free, are under the direction of the park department at Cedar park, Haven park, Westmoreland and Lake Wichita.

MAKES FEDERAL BOND

Claude Williams, of Wilbarger county, made bond of $500 granted him by J. A. Lantz, United States commissioner, on charge of possession of property designed for the purpose of manufacturing beer, following a hearing by Lantz Tuesday. Complaint was filed against Williams by the sheriff's department of Wilbarger county.

CAGE FOR TIGER

Heavy Iron Bars To Guard Bengal In City Zoo

Strong bars, each of 5-8-inch iron, line the new cage of the royal Bengal tiger at the zoo, according to C. C. Bunnenberg, superintendent of parks.

This animal, one of the most spectacular and vicious in captivity, is harder to cage than any of the others now at the zoo. It is heavier and quicker in its actions than the two African lions which live in peace and contentment together in a nearby cage.

In addition to the heavy bars, the Bengal's cage is surrounded by a heavy wire netting to keep other animals and human beings from coming close to his claws.

Mr. Hyer explained that the increases made this year by the board are in reality not increases, "The values simply hold to the value set on property last year where the owners returned lower values this year than they did last year," he said.

Members of the board of equalization include J. M. Baber, J. N. Prothro and Roscoe Staton.

SUFFERED WITH PIMPLES A YEAR

Itched and Burned Badly, Healed by Cuticura.

"I began using Cuticura Soap and Ointment and after using three cakes of Cuticura Soap and four boxes of Cuticura Ointment I was healed." (Signed) Mrs. Annie Ellis, R. 1, Box 27, Lovejoy, Ga.

Now! meal time is a happy event

"IT is all so wonderful, I can hardly believe my eyes. When I think how badly you used to feel—didn't want anything to eat—perhaps sometimes a little grouchy and miserable, and just driving yourself by main force, I almost shudder. I know it worried you, too. You seemed to feel as though you were slipping. Then one day you brought home a bottle of S.S.S. and told me you were going to give it a trial. That was only a few weeks ago. Today you look like a new person. Your appetite is keen, your flesh is firm, and your whole being seems to radiate happiness and I am happy too, because you are well and strong again."

Loss of appetite only a symptom

It is a known fact that when one's system gets "run-down," they haven't the resistance to ward off diseases. Loss of appetite is only a symptom. General weakness pervades the entire body. There is no desire to work or play.

Rich, red, blood builds and sustains

Your physician will tell you that lowered vitality is the result of an insufficient supply of red blood cells—those vitalizing elements in the blood that build and sustain the body.

Without plenty of rich, red blood, there can be no strong, sturdy, powerful men, or beautiful, healthy women.

When you get your blood cells back up to normal, that sluggish, let-down feeling, loss of appetite, rheumatism, boils, pimples, and skin troubles disappear. You get hungry again; sleep soundly; solid flesh takes the place of that which was once flabby. You feel strong; and your nerves become steady.
