Mrs. W. M. Durfey Dies Thursday in Lubbock

Mrs. W. M. Durfey, a member of a prominent Loco community family and a former teacher there, died in Methodist Hospital at Lubbock at 10:15 a.m. Thursday, March 9. She had been ill since December.

Mrs. Durfey had lived in this area since about 1923.

She was born Mabel Elizabeth Durfey, daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. G. W. Newman, on March 9, 1907 at Dixie, Okla.

Upon moving here, Mr. Newman built and operated the Madge Gin. In 1927, he bought the Loco Gin and he and his family moved to that community.

Mrs. Durfey was graduated from Vinson, Okla., high school and attended West Texas State University.

She and Mr. Durfey were married May 23, 1935 in Wellington. She had taught in the Loco school several years before her marriage, then later resumed teaching—about seven years altogether.

After she retired to devote her full time to her home and family, Mrs. Durfey retained her great interest in the welfare of the children. For a number of years when her own children were growing up, she was a 4-H Club leader and worked with them in the church and the community.

She sought to inspire, not only her own children, but all others, to get as much education as they could.

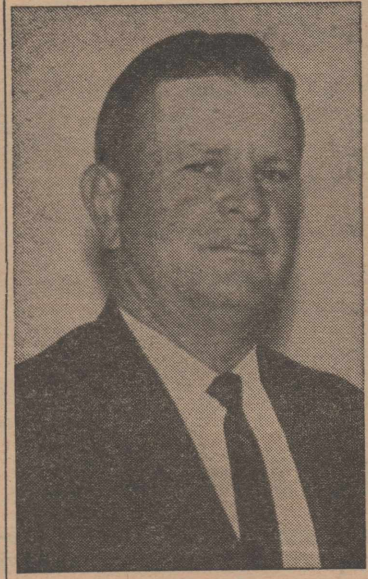

A long-time member of the Methodist Church, she taught a Sunday School class in First Methodist as long as she was able.

Funeral services were conducted at the First Methodist Church Saturday at 2 p.m. with the Rev. Ellis Todd, pastor, officiating. Burial was in North Wellington Cemetery under the direction of Kelson Funeral Home.

Pallbearers were Dan Hendard, Lynn Carter, Jack Davis, A. L. Elliott, J. B. Kilian and Byron Duncan.

Mrs. Durfey is survived by her husband, W. M. Durfey of Loco, a son and two daughters: Bill Durfey of Lubbock; Mrs. Jess Collins of Spurger; and Mrs. Loyal Duffy of Seldon, Kan.

One brother also survives, E. B. Newman of Whittier, Calif.

Children to Present Cantata Palm Sunday

The Youth's and Children's Choirs of First Methodist Church will present an Easter Cantata, "Let Us Follow Him," on Palm Sunday evening, March 19, at 7 p.m.

Mrs. John Holton is director. This is the most elaborate musical presentation of the kind ever attempted by the young people of the church, Mrs. Holton explained, and the first time a program of this scope and kind has been given.

The music tells the Easter Story, but accompanying it will be the reading of the scriptures, most of it from the Books of St. Luke and St. John, to give emphasis.

"Let Us Follow Him" is a cantata for unison and two-part choir, with baritone and soprano solos, Mrs. Holton said. Adults of the church are assisting the children with the solo parts.

The cantata is written in five movements. The first part will feature the selection, "Look! Here Comes the Procession," presented in unison with the two-part choir.

The scene moves then to the outside upper room, with the singing of "Who Sups So Early Tonight?" L. B. Bratten will present this as a baritone solo, with choir accompaniment.

"How Dark It Is," is sung against the background of the Garden of Gethsemane, with Carey Lewis presenting a flute solo. Again the choir forms the accompaniment.

Miss Karen Richardson will be presented in a soprano solo, "Suddenly It Is Spring," with two-part choir accompaniment.

The finale will take the audience to Easter Morning, with the two-part choir singing "As

It Began to Dawn." Miss Richardson will take the solo part.

Mrs. Hiram Cudd will narrate the program and Miss Cherry Lewis will be the organ accompanist.

Members of the children's choir are Luci Sullivan, Connie Lewis, Gwen Lewis, Phyllis Sullivan, Patti McAlister, Juliana Baumgardner, Cheryl Spillman, Steve Marsh, Steve Kane, Shannon Holland, Debbie Long and Tina Nunnelley.

In the youth choir are Leah Nall, Marcia King, Mary Saied, Carole Cochran, Adele Burquist, Sandra McGill, Carey Lewis, Cathy Singley and Linda Orr.

Mrs. Cudd and Mrs. Richardson direct the youth choir and Mrs. Holton and Mrs. Lowell Wells the children's choir.

The public is invited to attend the presentation of this cantata.

Methodist Revival to Open on Palm Sunday

Revival services will open at First Methodist Church on Palm Sunday, March 19, and continue through Easter, March 26, the Rev. Ellis Todd, pastor, announced this week.

The Rev. Duane Bruce, district superintendent of the Childress District, will be the evangelist and the Rev. Marvin James, pastor of First Methodist Church, Chillicothe, will lead the singing.

There will be an early morning service, so that men and women who work down town, as well as others whose days are filled with activities, may attend. Coffee and doughnuts will be served at 6:45 a.m. and the services will start at 7.

The evening services will be at 7:30 p.m.

Rev. Bruce, who lives at Childress, came there from a pastorate at Perryton, where he was for nine years. This length stay is considered unusual for a Methodist pastor in this area, and indicates the high regard with which he was held by both his congregation and the town as a whole.

Rev. Bruce is a graduate of McMurry College and Southern Methodist University.

Rev. James, one of the younger pastors of the Childress District, also was graduated from McMurry.

Rev. Todd, in announcing the revival plans, extended an invitation to the public to be present at any or all of the services.

Soybeans Become Important Crop For Texans

COLLEGE STATION. — Soybeans of soybeans were harvested in A&M University. Production was estimated at 2.3 million bushels; up 30 percent from 1964. The average yield per acre in Texas is 28 bushels, beans are rapidly becoming an important cash crop in Texas.

Last year some 80,000 acres one of the higher in the U.S. Production of soybeans in Texas was formerly centered in the South Plains, according to Mearns. But today the acreage is rapidly expanding to other parts of the state, he said.

The Gulf Coast area, the Red River Valley and the area along the Brazos River are some of the new sites for soybeans.

Mearns said soybeans are grown principally for their seed which is used to produce soybean oil and meal. Most of the meal is used in livestock feed while the oil is used in shortening, margarine and salad oil. Some oil is also used for industrial purposes.

Soybeans can be grown successfully in most irrigated sections of Texas, says Mearns. They are adapted to the same general soil and climatic conditions in Texas as corn and cotton and require about the same cultural practices.

They do best on well-drained mellow, fertile loams and sandy loams, but good yields can be obtained on most Texas soils that are properly drained and have water available for supplemental irrigation. In the past, yields over a period of years have been too low or inconsistent for profitable production under dryland conditions.

Moisture requirement is the number one concern with soybeans. The most critical time for moisture is during the flowering stage of growth, says Mearns.

Temperature and day length are other important factors affecting the growth and development of the soybean plant. Soybeans should be planted after the minimum soil temperature has reached 65 degrees and after the effective daylight period reaches or exceeds 14½ hours.

Strong Color Theme Popular

Plum, eggplant, camel, olive, red, gold, and all shades of brown are strong colors for teen shoes. Black and white is still a kooky combination. Blue-green, black, winter pastels, plum and dark brown are popular for dressy occasions.

The Dominican Order was founded in 1215.

HIGHER, HIGHER go the hemlines, and more ornate the dresses. Actress Elga Andersen sported this one by designer Paco Rabanne at the opening of the 'Pourquoi Pas' in Paris.

YOUR INCOME TAX

This column of questions and answers on federal tax matters is provided by the local office of the U.S. Internal Revenue Service and is published as a public service to taxpayers. The column answers questions most frequently asked by taxpayers.

Q.—I think I'm liable for self-employment tax. Which form do I use?

A.—Use Schedule C-3 to report this tax. Any tax due should be entered on your Form 1040, line 15, page 1, and paid with your income tax.

Copies of Schedule C-3 may be obtained from local IRS offices as well as some post offices and banks.

Q.—I got married this January. Can I file a joint return with my wife for 1966?

A.—For tax purposes, your marital status is determined by whether you were married or single on the last day of the taxable year for which the return is filed. From the information you provide, you must file a separate return since you were not married until after the close of the 1966 tax year.

Q.—I heard a lot about changes in educational deductions last year. Can I still deduct courses required by an employer?

A.—Yes, you can if the course is required by your employer to maintain your present job. The cost of educational courses may also be deducted if they are taken primarily to maintain or improve the skills required on your present job.

Q.—Our baby had a bad skin rash last year and the doctor advised us to use a diaper service instead of doing them ourselves. Is the cost of the service a medical expense?

A.—No, this is not a deductible medical expense.

Q.—I've heard that you should identify your payments of tax to IRS to make sure they are credited to your account. How do you do this?

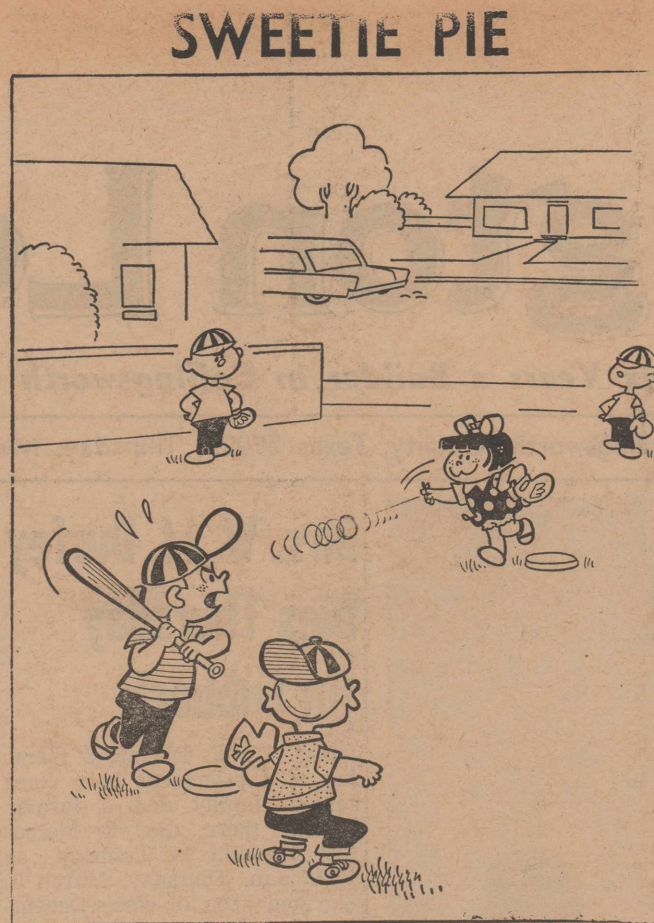

A.—To identify your tax payment, put your Social Security number on the check or money order. If the payment is in response to a notice of payment due, please enclose the notice with your payment.

Q.—I have some income from the sale of a home to report. Where should I do this on my 1040?

A.—Gains and losses from property sales should be reported on Schedule D and then entered on Page 2 of the Form 1040 on Line 5, Part II. Copies of Schedule D may be obtained from local IRS offices as well as some banks and post offices.

Q.—My husband is stationed in South Viet Nam with the Marines. What do we do about our 1966 tax return?

A.—Military personnel on active duty in a Combat Zone do not have to file tax returns while stationed there. You may

"When you're through warming up with that yo-yo, can we get on with the ball game?"

therefore wait to file a joint 1966 return until 180 days after your husband leaves Viet Nam.

This postponement does not apply to the filing of a separate return by the wife if she chooses to file one.

If you want to file your return for 1966 early because you have a refund coming, indicate in the space provided for your husband's signature that he is on military duty in Viet Nam.

Q.—Do I have to report the interest on savings bonds I bought for my son?

A.—It depends on how the bonds were registered. If the child is listed as co-owner on the bond, the purchaser is liable for tax on the interest. If the child is sole owner with the parent as beneficiary, the child assumes the tax liability.

Q.—The statement the bank sent me on interest paid on my savings account last year is wrong. If the bank sends IRS the same information it could mess up my return. Is there anything I can do about it when I file?

A.—Enter the correct amount on your return. You should consider the possibility that the bank is including interest that is paid automatically by adding it to your account at the proper time—often at the end of the year. It will not appear on your pass book until the bank has brought it up to date. If you are sure of the bank's error, you should notify them. An explanation of the error should be attached to the return.

Q.—We are moving out of the state next month. Should I mail my return to the district office at my new address?

A.—No, mail your return to the IRS office indicated on the 1040 return based on your address at the time you file the return. However, if you move be certain to leave a forwarding address. One reason many refunds are delayed is that the post office is unable to locate the taxpayer.

Q.—Is my wife's social security number required on a joint return? Practically all of our income comes from my salary.

A.—In some cases your wife's social security number would not be required on your joint return. Her number would be required, however, if any of the following conditions are met:—She had separate income.

Q.—When I itemize deductions can I list what I've paid in taxes on wine and liquor?

A.—No, there is no deduction for these taxes on individual income tax returns.

Q.—I was in an auto accident last year and had to pay part of the cost of having the other fellow's car fixed. Is that deductible?

A.—The deduction for a casualty loss is allowed only to the person who owns the property.

Q.—My wife and I have always filed joint returns. Can we switch to separate returns this year if it is to our advantage?

A.—Yes, you can.

Q.—I have to use my car in business. Can I deduct anything for this?

A.—Check your 1040 instruction booklet to see whether the use you make of the car qualifies as an allowable business deduction. If it does, you may either deduct your actual ex-

No-Iron Sheets

Would you believe they are here at last? The new no-iron sheets and pillow cases. They have been thoroughly investigated by several institutes. They report that the new durable-press sheets have met all tests required.

Are they really no-iron? Results show when properly laundered the sheets require not even a touch of ironing. Even when line-dried the wrinkles are at a minimum.

Can these sheets be safely bleached? Tests prove that chlorine and all purpose bleaches do not discolor the sheets when used properly and in recommended proportions. Also tests proved that bleach does not weaken the fabric to any appreciable degree.

Do the sheets wear as well as regular sheets? The life of the sheets depends on how often they are laundered and how they are laundered. Durable-press sheets are stronger than comparable all-cotton ones. Abrasion tests showed that true no-iron sheets will take more abrasive wear than all-cotton sheets.

Which are the better no-iron sheets? Those with at least 50 percent polyester fiber blended with cotton. When you shop, check labels for this important percentage factor.

→If you are going to be out of the kitchen while using a double boiler, here's an ingenious alarm system that tells you when the water is boiling. Borrow two or three of your youngsters' marbles and place them in the bottom of the double boiler before turning on the flame. If the water would boil away to a dangerously low level, the marbles will begin a clatter that will get you back in time to add water and save the pot from burning.

History Repeated

Today's fashionable young woman would be mistaken for a boy back in 1490.

James Laver, curator of the Victoria and Albert Museum, says fashion is undergoing a transition period. Laver has analyzed fashions since "the beginning of history" and concludes that women's clothing appears to have gone full cycle.

"Today's short skirts, long hose and flat shoes are almost exactly what young boys wore in 1490," he said. He also observed that today if one were to walk the street in back of a young couple, their clothing—and hair length—might be enough alike to really confuse which was which.

Right now, he states, men's and women's clothing tends to look alike because history is at a meeting point—a patriarchy and a matriarchy.

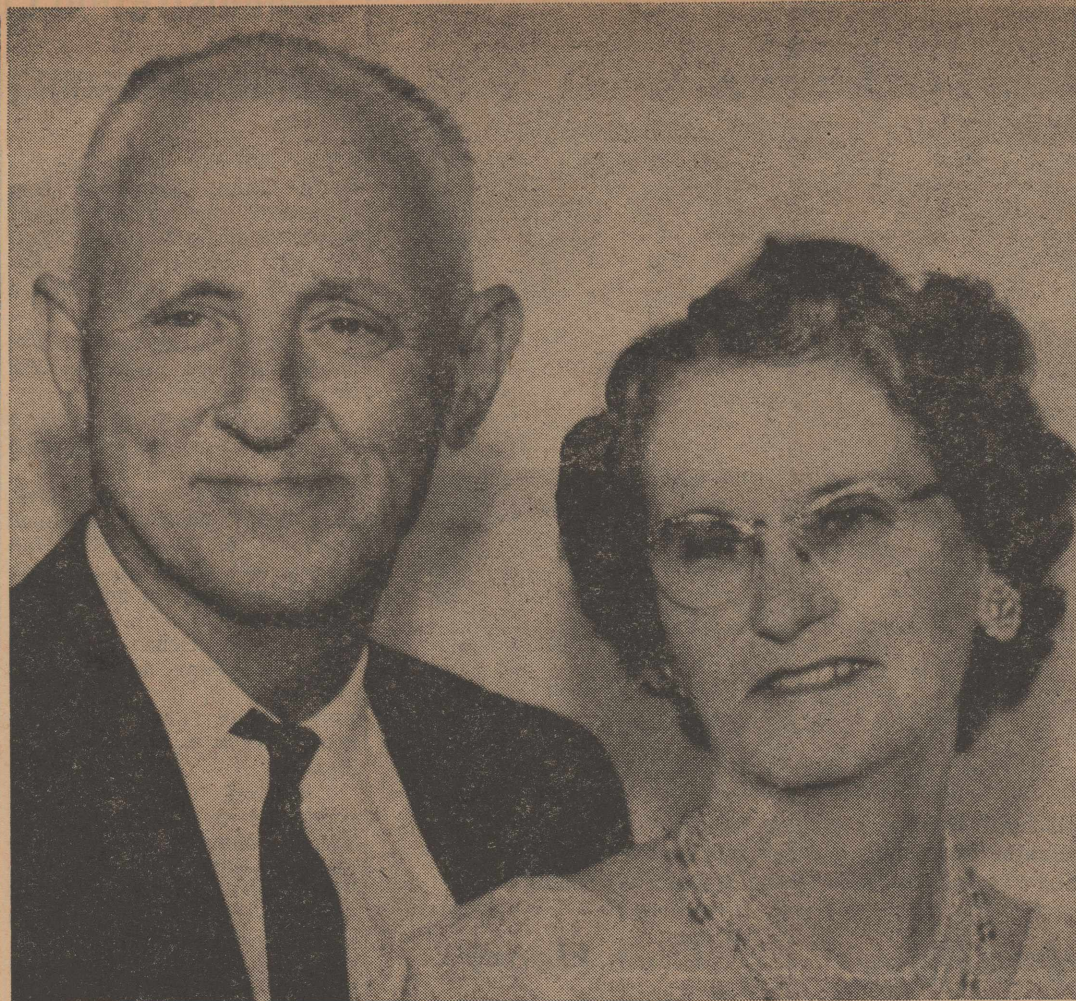

When matriarchy becomes an established fact, women will be less interested in fashions and men's fashions will become more prominent, says Laver. The beginning signs of this are the new fashions for men—with more color, high style, more attention to details, accessories, and the "Total Look."

Open House Honors Mr., Mrs. Goforth on Their Golden Wedding Sunday

The children of Mr. and Mrs. Horace Frank Goforth honored their parents with a tea and open house Sunday, March 12 in their home at 4235 Camp Lane, Amarillo, to celebrate their golden wedding anniversary.

They were also honored with a dinner served by the women of the Tascosa Baptist Church to members of the family in the home of Mrs. E. R. Goforth, 4233 Camp Lane.

Approximately 175 friends attended the open house, which was held from 2 to 5 p.m.

The fireplace was banked with gold flowers and the mantel displayed the many cards of congratulations the couple received.

The tea table was laid with a floor-length gold net cloth, draped with gold taffeta. At the center was a three-tiered wedding cake and appointments were crystal and gold. The couple's granddaughters served, Mrs. Jerry Thomas (Diana), Sharon Goforth and Kimberly Goforth.

All immediate members of the family attended except two grandsons, Denny C. Goforth and Gary Goforth, both of California. Children attending were Mr. and Mrs. Leroy Goforth and daughters, Mrs. Thomas and Sharon Goforth, and Mr. and Mrs. Denzil Goforth, all of Whittier, Calif.; and Mr. and Mrs. Bob Goforth, Kimberly and Karen of Wellington.

Other relatives present were Mr. and Mrs. Frank Alexander of El Monte, Calif., Mr. and Mrs. Victor Smith of Clarendon and their children, Mr. and Mrs. Basil Smith and Mr. and Mrs. Burt Smith; Mrs. W. H. Goforth, Mrs. E. R. Goforth, Mr. and Mrs. Don Goforth, Lance and Lynn; Mr. and Mrs. Joe Billy Goforth, Mr. and Mrs. L. C. Robinson and Mr. and Mrs. Hubert Bowen.

and here he met Verna Grace Smith. They were married on March 11, 1917.

Mrs. Goforth was born April 26, 1899 at Eastland and later moved here with her family. Mr. and Mrs. Goforth had four sons, three of whom survive. There are six grandchildren.

Mr. Goforth was a building contractor with his brother, the late E. R. Goforth, and during the period of 1917 to 1931 constructed many Wellington buildings, most of which remain. He was known for his ability as a bricklayer.

Mr. and Mrs. Goforth moved to Lynnwood, Calif., in 1931 and remained until 1950, when they returned to Amarillo to re-enter the construction business.

Again the brothers formed the Goforth Brothers Construction Company and contracted in many parts of Texas and New Mexico.

Washington Report

From Congressman
BOB PRICE 18TH DISTRICT, TEXAS
1223 LONGWORTH OFFICE BUILDING, WASHINGTON, D.C. • 225-3706

Since my election I have received many letters in regard to postmaster and rural carrier appointments in the district.

However, these appointments are made by the President with the advise and consent of the Senate. This is a holdover from days when all government jobs went to the friends of politicians.

On March 9 I introduced a bill to take these jobs out of politics. The legislation would provide that appointments to these positions be given to qualified career employees in the postal service.

A resolution approving additional United States food aid to India was debated in the House on March 2. During the discussion I pointed out that the American farmer should not be asked to subsidize this nation's foreign policy, of using American food to aid and stabilize needy areas, unless he is getting a fair price for his products.

The actual purpose for considering the resolution was to take the blame from the President's shoulders for sending more grain abroad for which the American farmer received prices well below parity. Just last month the Department of Agriculture reported the market price for wheat was only 58% of parity and for grain sorghum, 76% of parity.

While taking all these things into consideration I decided to vote for the resolution anyway. There are starving people in India who need this food. It is a market for the farmer's product and will keep our surpluses down. I will be doing everything possible in the future to see that American farmers receive a better price for their grain in transactions with India and other countries.

Parks Get Brisk Biz in Winter

AUSTIN—Year-around adaptability of state parks has never been demonstrated better than last fall, according to the Texas Parks and Wildlife Department.

The unseasonably warm weather that continued deep into December produced unusually large crowds to practically all parks.

The Department observed that when city residents took advantage of the open fall they thronged to the parks, many of them to revisit happy summertime scenes.

At Martin Dies (Dam B) State Park near Jasper, one week end alone drew 20,000 visitors.

Bastrop State Park, in the famed Lost Pines near Bastrop, reserves its spacious buildings for larger gatherings. One week end an international dancing society reserved the group camp buildings. Scores of guests lived in the cottages or in their own trailer homes.

Likewise, the group camp at Cleburne State Park, in demand. Manager M. F. Horton reported the building was reserved by four different gatherings in advance to assure its use until Jan. 1.

Parks on fishing waters or near hunting areas got a heavy play also in December, reports the Department.

Garner, long a popular year-around place for varied types, reported a substantial fireplace trade. The management said the older set seeking peace and quiet rallied as usual during the fall.

Even the fresh air set is still around and screened shelters were in good demand. Of course, by December the deep South Texas parks are just reaching their peak trade. They are Bentsen Rio Grande near Mission and Falcon near Zapata. And Lake Corpus Christi State Park reports it had very steady late Fall patronage.

TOWER NEWS LETTER

By. SEN. JOHN TOWER

THE DRAFT

We have been reading and hearing a good deal in recent days about the Draft Law—the Selective Service System by which we choose the men needed to maintain our nation's defense forces.

There have been suggestions that our Draft Law is not as fair as it might be. There has been considerable hue and cry that it is not "equal." It is said to impose too much uncertainty and anxiety upon our youth, their parents, their schools and their employers or prospective employers.

I think there is room for improvement in Draft regulations and procedures. But, I hope Texans will not lose sight of one important thing

What we must remember is why we have a Selective Service system at all.

And the reason we have one, is a matter of national defense. We select men today—as we have for years—so that our nation always will have the very best possible defense forces in time of need. It is not the responsibility of the Draft to improve youthful morality, to increase education, to upgrade physical capabilities, or to see that everybody has equal service. On the contrary, it is the responsibility of the Draft to select, in orderly fashion, the best young men available when their country needs them.

In the case of the Draft there never can be equality of risk among all young Americans, because: first, there are more young men today than our military forces need; and second, some of them are not mentally or physically able to do the jobs our defense requires.

Each year our weapons, vehicles and communications become more complex and more sophisticated, needing more technical operation. Thus, our defense forces today must be ever more carefully selected for mental capacity, maturity and aptitude.

And, because of the recurring, unexpected, unpredictable crises forced on us by aggressive Communism, we must have great flexibility to expand our defense forces on short notice. Much of the uncertainty associated with the Draft is uncertainty caused by the international moves of the Communists.

In addition, today's Draft operates—as it has traditionally—to preserve and to reinforce the American concept of the citizen-soldier who accepts an obligation to serve in the defense of freedom and national security when needed. Americans have long understood that sometimes military service must be borne by a few free men so the freedom of all can be safeguarded.

So, while there are some technical tinkering we can undertake to improve the draft, we must constantly keep in mind this fact: the Selective Service system has passed the most important test of all—the test of battle. The Selective Service system has provided our nation today in Vietnam the very best soldiers this world has ever known.

This Draft System is not new—it has been evolved through years of trial and error in war and peace. It is basically sound and must be preserved so long as tyranny threatens in this world, but we can decrease some of the uncertainties about who will serve and when.

I believe we can improve our deferment provisions as the President has suggested, maintaining undergraduate college deferments but ending graduate deferments—with those deferred liable for Draft vulnerability later upon their graduation.

And, I tend to support the President's call for primary Draft vulnerability at ages 19 and 20, rather than throughout the period from 19 to 26. With fewer years of prime vulnerability, our young men will be better able to plan for the future—much of their current uncertainty will be alleviated.

There has been a lot of talk, too, about some sort of lottery selection system. I think much of this so-called dispute is semantic. It would not make sense to substitute total chance for rational selection of these key defense personnel. But, I don't think anybody really envisions that kind of national lottery.

I expect that after Armed Services Committee hearings next month we will find the President and Congress agreeing on minor revisions in deferment and age; but within the framework of the existing, locally-responsive Draft Board system whereby state quotas equitably distribute the responsibility and a fair system of random selection—by date of birth or by numerical lottery—chooses from the 1-A eligibility group.

The Draft should not be subverted for civilian social goals. We should not draft men less able to meet military demands. We should continue to allow education deferments so our military services can choose highly-trained and able men when they are needed.

National Defense is the key-stone. When we need Draftees we need them quickly; we need them badly; and we need the best.

It will never be equal for one man to die while another lives. But America lives today because, throughout of history, men—called to service by their peers—have fought for freedom and have saved it.

2-IN-1 BLESSING

First Impressions Do Selling Jobs for Towns Seeking Industry

The first appearance a town gives may well determine whether an industrial prospect decides to consider it further, and all the advantages a town may have to offer cannot erase that first impression.

This was stressed by almost every speaker at the area development conference held in Childress Thursday, March 9.

There are other things industrial prospects consider, but how a town looks, whether it reveals pride of its citizens and an eagerness to step out with progress tells a prospect much of what he wants to know.

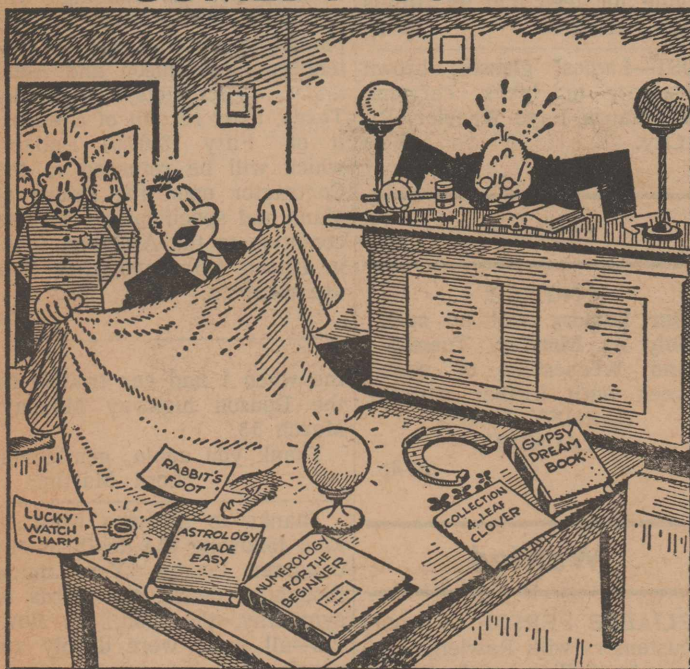

It behooves Wellington and its neighbors to take a good look at themselves.

OTHER EDITORS SAY . . .

"Struggling to keep up with inflation, the nation's colleges have been channeling an increasing amount of their endowment funds into common stocks. Some institutions, with trustees wise in the world of finance, have been pleased with the results of such ventures. There could be no more powerful persuasion for the nation's colleges to uphold the philosophy of free enterprise than this obvious dependency upon it. That some of them at times seem less than loyal toward that system is inexplicable."

THE BUDGET: WE MUST MASTER IT

WASHINGTON—On the morning of Tuesday, Jan. 24, one hundred Senators and 432 Representatives (three House seats are vacant) found on their desks in the House and Senate office buildings which ring our beautiful national capitol, four printed volumes sent by the President of the United States. The four volumes, one as thick as the Manhattan telephone directory, and containing 1,316 pages, presented the explanation by the President to the Congress of the biggest spending request in the nation's history — in war or peace.

The four volumes presented The Budget of the United States for the fiscal year July 1, 1967 to June 30, 1968. Altogether they contained 2,055 pages of graphs, charts and tables, together with an estimated 500,000 words of explanation.

One of the volumes contained the 32-page Budget Message of the President which was to be read by clerks to the assembled Senate and House.

It Masters Congressmen

On that Tuesday morning when Congressional offices got the big "gift of books" from the White House, a visitor stood viewing the four volumes on the desk of one of the "best authorities in Congress on fiscal and taxation matters." The visitor lifted the volumes with an exaggerated groan. He rifled through the pages of the thickest. Then he turned to the "authority's" legislative aide. "Do you," asked the visitor, "actually understand all this maze of charts and graphs and data — and these requests for authorization to spend $170 billion on a hundred-and-one programs?"

The aide shook his head: "No not very much of it. We're particularly interested in two projects which we hope are covered in requests for appropriations. But we'll have to telephone contacts in the Federal agencies involved and ask if the requested appropriations are in there. The Budget books are so awesome not many people in Congress really tackle them. We rely on our trusted friends in the various agencies and programs to fill us in on the things that attract our interest. We do the best we can on the rest."

Few Have Mastered It

Later, down on Connecticut Avenue in one of the new 10-story black-slate office buildings (there are lots of them), a man widely recognized as the "best Budget authority" in the country outside the Government was told about the frank admission by the legislative aide.

"You can count on the fingers of one hand the number of Senators plus Representatives who can make intelligent judgments on more than half the programs, and projects and expenditure requests covered in the Budget.

"Most of them," he said, "are lost when they open the big Budget book or its still bigger Appendix. They usually rely on what they hear in hearings or on the floor or from staff people in the various agencies and bureaus. The worst thing is that they act so often on what pressure groups here in Washington tell them. They do the best they can. The Budget ramifications are just too much for most Congressmen and most everybody else to comprehend."

Let's Become Budgeteers

This man, who has been stationed in Washington for 25 years representing a nationwide "public service" organization, said that another fact which taxpayers should ponder, as they contemplate Federal spending (of tax money) totaling more than $170 billion for the coming fiscal year, is that "at least one-third" of the spending authorizations being requested by the President never were requested by any sizeable percentage of the taxpaying public, but were "foisted" on Congress by comparatively small pressure groups "who can perform miracles" in Washington because the projects they conceive and push are often passed without the public generally having had any voice in the whole affair.

Is there a solution to this situation and its mounting burden upon the American public? An awakening of a generally apathetic public and more attention to political and governmental affairs would help.

Good Habits Favor Heart

Although no single factor will prevent heart disease, says a pamphlet of the American Medical Association, good health habits are as favorable to the heart and circulatory system as they are to all body functions.

I've talked recently to many concerned members of Congress and to American citizen leaders in Washington. They say that the public needs to get better acquainted with The Budget and its ramifications if we are to halt the present swift growth of the Federal government.

Our National Education Program is making this need one of its foremost nation-wide educational projects for 1967. The columns and other material which we shall develop on The Budget will need an ever-widening audience. Help us in the project.

If you already have some form of heart disease, suitable medical management and good living habits will prolong life and make it more enjoyable.

Here are some suggestions from the American Medical Association for healthful living:

—Understand heart disease. Don't fear it.

—Learn your health status by periodic medical examination. —Reduce weight if obese: Eat less in the hope you will live longer to eat more.

—Don't experiment with special diets. If your physician thinks you need one, he will prescribe it.

—Exercise regularly. If you have heart trouble your physician will set your activity limits.

—Prevent infectious disease. If one should occur, seek treatment promptly.

—Accept life's challenges, come to terms with the inevitable and live as though you will live forever.

BURKBURNETT, 1919 — North Texas ranchlands had been producing oil since 1905 and early Burkburnett production started around 1912 but by 1919, when this picture was made, it was one of the state's leading oil boom centers.

Healthy Economy Seen in 1967

COLLEGE STATION. — The national economy is expected to remain healthy during 1967 but growth potential may be closer to the long-term average, says John McHaney, Extension economist at Texas A&M University.

He emphasizes that the rate of increase in economic activity during the year ahead will depend a great deal upon the turn of events in Vietnam and their impact on other government programs and on business investments.

If defense spending is accelerated, further restrictive fiscal action may be necessary to combat inflationary measures, he says. If developments result in a reduction in defense spending, it is expected that certain government programs will be increased to ease the resulting economic adjustments, he adds.

The economist sees no let-up in spending by state and local governments. The increase in 1967 is expected to equal or even exceed the growth rate of the past five years.

Residential construction and capital investment have been slowed by the tight monetary situation of 1966 which resulted as demand for credit rose in response to a sharp increase for goods and services. Future developments in residential construction will depend, in part, on the success of government action to provide more funds for mortgage markets, points out McHaney. Mortgage money should become somewhat easier to obtain later in 1967, if as expected, consumer and business demand for credit should ease. An upturn in the housing market is expected late in 1967, the economist says.

McHaney sees a slight lessening of consumer demand for durable goods but a continuing increasing demand for non-durable goods and services. Several factors are cited which may prevent auto sales from matching the total for 1966.

These include a slowing down in the rate of increase in consumer income; higher cost of cars, higher interest rates for financing, draft calls, and relatively large proportion of young cars in the auto population.

Total purchases of furniture and household equipment are not expected to equal the increase of 1966 over 1965 in view of higher price tags and housing market prospects. Expenditures for non-durables, such as food, clothing, drugs, gas and oil, are expected to continue upward during 1967.

Consumers' after-tax incomes — assuming no change in present tax rates, are expected to register another gain in 1967, but it will not be as large as the past year, says the economist.

Business activity is expected to continue upward during 1967. The momentum of the current boom is expected to carry through the first half of the year but the activity gain in

Modern Pewter Doesn't Tarnish

Pewter is being shown again this year in accessories for the home. Pewter has changed. Antique pewter darkened because it contained lead, but modern pewter is made without lead. Therefore, it is tarnish-resistant and never needs to be polished. Whether its finish is bright, a soft satin sheen, or somewhere between these extremes, pewter requires only washing with hot soap suds and hot rinse water, followed by drying with a soft cloth.

the last half will likely be at a slower rate, says McHaney.

In conclusion, the economist points out that many uncertainties come into the 1967 picture and make difficult the problem of assessing the overall economic outlook.

Evaluation of Beef Carcass Now Stressed

COLLEGE STATION. — Carcass traits are an additional tool that can be used in beef cattle selection along with production and other traits, according to Frank A. Orts, Extension meat specialist at Texas A&M University.

Beef carcass evaluation is not really a new procedure, as some breeders have been involved in some type of carcass evaluation for about 10 years. It involves a critical study of those attributes of the beef carcass which increases its retail value. These attributes are also genetically linked and therefore can be used as selection and breeding criteria, says the specialist.

The carcass characteristics which are normally studied are ribeye area and ribeye area per hundredweight, fat thickness and fat thickness per hundredweight, quality grade, percent kidney fat, chilled carcass weight per day of age and yield of closely trimmed boneless chuck, loin, rib, and round. The last attribute can either be actual cutout or estimated cutout using one of several formulas.

Orts says that in order to be considered desirable from a retail standpoint, a carcass should have at least 2.0 square inches of ribeye per hundredweight of carcass if 18 months old or younger, have no more than .11 inches of fat covering over the ribeye per hundredweight of carcass, grade at least minimum choice, and yield at least 49 percent of the carcass weight in boneless closely trimmed chuck, loin, rib and round. From a production standpoint, a carcass should have a chilled carcass weight per day of age of at least 1.25 pounds for steer carcasses.

Purebred breeders are encouraged to cooperate with the breed associations in their carcass evaluation programs. If this does not apply, the Extension Service will assist any producer, whether purebred or commercial, in obtaining carcass information.

Orts advises that one should never make a decision about an individual sire without having data from at least ten of

CROSSROADS REPORT

Dear Editor:

My solon-shook neighbor notes that 317 Members of Congress decided Adam Clayton Powell is not fitten to associate with them.

Which could be. But Congress has passed a right smart of laws lately to keep common folks from being finicky about who they neighbor with, or work with, or do business with. And it may be real entertaining TV to watch those 317 Congressmen stand at bay before the House door while Adam demands admission, with a court order in his hand and backed up by U.S. marshals and paratroopers.

Supersenator Bobby K. has proclaimed from the wisdom pinnacle that the answer to the Orts suggests a visit with the local county agent for information on carcass evaluation.

THE WELLINGTON (TEXAS) LEADER
Thursday, March 16, 1967

Viet Nam mess is for the U.S. to quit bombing and Negotiate. He probably knows that negotiation is a game which takes two or more players, and heretofore when bombing was stopped for a spell, Hanoi didn't want to play, so the Senator must aim for our ground troops to do the negotiating man-to-man with the Viet Cong.

This same masterful strategy worked at the Bay of Pigs. We didn't use any aircraft and the fighting ended in a couple of days.

My pill-prone neighbor is pretty well sold on Scientists, because they are all the time inventing stuff to fill needs, or inventing needs for something they have invented.

He notes that one of these fellows recently developed a Memory Pill, which may be handy, but likely will have the unpleasant side effect of making a man remember more often than usual how much he owes.

So the scientists rose to the occasion. Along with the Memory Pill, they have brought out a Smart Pill, so that when one reminds you of a debt, the other will help you make the money to pay same, and to pay for both pills.

My figuresome neighbor the other day added up his total income tax for the last 20 years and it came to $20,600.

And while contemplating this figure, he noticed a news story about a $20,600 federal grant for research on the activities of German cockroaches.

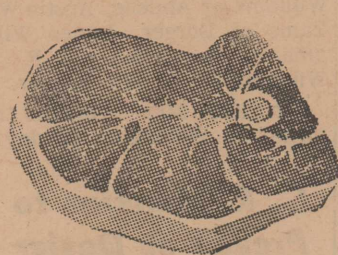

He says this proves that he has not lived in vain, and when he petitions St. Peter for Heavenly Security, it had ought to help his case for it to be on record that the cream of his earthly labors for 20 years went for a couple of weeks' care and feeding of some cockroach hunters.

from the People

Dear Deck:

An old apprentice of The Leaders sent regards by me to you and Virginia Robey.

I was in Abilene last week for a workshop in pastoral care and a Ministers-Doctors dinner when I talked to Dr. Roy Willingham. I had known Dr. Willingham before while we were serving in the city, but in last Monday evening's conversation I discovered that he was reared at Quail and in 1940 he had worked as the apprentice at The Leader. He asked that I remember him to you and Virginia, so I wanted to pass that word along to you.

Dr. Willingham is a part-time faculty member at Abilene Christian College and is a successful and highly respected member of the Taylor-Jones Medical Society. During our three years in a Methodist Church there, we came to appreciate this native of Collingsworth County but really didn't know this tidbit of information until last Monday evening.

He did recall with affection his days at Quail. He asked about Mr. Crabtree of the Quail Mercantile.

I wanted to share this information with you Wednesday noon as I was preparing to leave Abilene. I accidentally met in one of Abilene's largest department stores Bobby Jack and Dorothy Watson. Ours was a brief conversation but in a sense when one goes for one purpose to a city there is always the underflow of other days that feed on that "one day's purpose" with even unexpected joy.

I see Ansel McDowell often. You have a fine son-in-law, Deck, and a most respected physician in Perryton.

Please remember me to the other members of your family.

Sincerely yours,
James A. Glasscock,
Pastor First Methodist Church Booker, Texas.

Flying Queen Tryouts Set

PLAINVIEW. — The second tryout for high school senior girls for the Wayland College basketball team is scheduled April 8 at 2 p.m. in the Plainview High School gymnasium.

The first tryout was March 11 and was arranged by Harley Redin, coach of the Wayland College Flying Queens who a few years ago set one of the most fabulous records in amateur sports with 131 consecutive victories under the hoops.

Redin said that if a player is going to enroll in Wayland anyway, there is no need to participate in a tryout, as scholarships are not awarded on basis of tryouts.

Men in Service

A Wellington soldier in Viet Nam, Kenneth McClendon, has been promoted to Specialist Fourth Class, he has written his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Leon McClendon.

McClendon is a tank gunner with the 34th Armored Division now participating in Operation Junction City. He previously was in Operation Cedar Falls, which fought in the Iron Triangle.

The young soldier, in a letter his parents received a few days ago, commented on how much hotter the area where he is now fighting is compared to where he previously was stationed. The jungle is more dense.

Sp/4 McClendon began his Army enlistment Feb. 1, 1966 and has been in Viet Nam about six months.

Veterans Farm, Home Loans Deadline Near

Less than five months remain for veterans of World War II to use their guarantee privileges for a loan to purchase a home, farm or for business purposes.

This warning came from Jack Coker, manager of the Veterans Administration regional office in Waco.

Present statutes provide that the absolute cutoff date for the World War II veterans will be on July 25, 1967. This deadline is the result of Congressional action which has delayed the final date of eligibility several times.

The cutoff date will not affect veterans of the Korean conflict or veterans who have served since Jan. 31, 1955, Coker pointed out, as these veterans are covered by different legislation.

Almost seven million loans have been guaranteed by the Veterans Administration to veterans since the beginning of the program following World War II. One out of every five homes constructed in the United States following World War II was with VA guarantee.

The Veterans Administration will guarantee up to 60% of the purchase price of a home for a veteran with limitations as to the total purchase price.

Coker urged veterans planning to purchase a home to make their selection as soon as possible, avoiding the last minute rush for certification.

alry Division's 5th Cavalry, and his unit were engaged in dragging the Viet Cong from their vast network of tunnels and bunkers. The VC had been driven underground by constant U.S. artillery and air strikes.

The operation accounted for the capture of several VC and the confiscation of vast stores of food and arms from the enemy.
