Commission Hikes Texas Allowable

Reject Ickes Order, Majors Said At Fault

Sadler Declares Ickes Misinformed On Texas Oil Operating Plans

By The Associated Press
AUSTIN.—Two members of the Texas Railroad Commission agreed Tuesday the state should have a 1,400,000-barrel daily crude oil allowable for the last 15 days of May. Commissioner Jerry Sadler, asserting purchasers had made a 1,400,000-barrel firm nomination at a special statewide hearing Monday, declared he would not sign an order for less oil production.

Commissioner Olin Cuberson said he was in "substantial agreement" with his colleague. Commissioner Ernest O. Thompson was out of the city.

The Office of the Petroleum Coordinator has certified a 960,000 barrel allowable for Texas in May. Sadler Comments.

Reflecting on the special hearing Sadler added: "From all indications it appears that the major companies are trying to close in on the independent operators, and one example came to light to bear this out."

"This company's Washington representative requested that the O.P.C. fix Texas' allowable at 360,000 barrels daily and the same company's representative told this commission that his company's nominations were all firm.

Empty Storage
The commission's records show that on March 1, there were 93,256,000 barrels of oil in storage, and on April 25 storage was 94,323,000 barrels. This means that there are approximately 50,000,000 barrels of empty refinery storage, a good part of which is located at plants operated by independents throughout the state.

Conflicting Information
"Petroleum Coordinator Ickes has a tireless and thankless task, but in all his conscientiousness and sincerity I believe that major purchasers, through their representatives in Washington, are telling Mr. Ickes one thing and then these same purchasers are having their representatives here give this Commission conflicting information. I believe that it is high time to bring these 'planted' irregularities out in the open."

"This is certainly no time to let such differences exist, and I for one member of the Texas Commission, am not going to sit by and let the big boys try to hoodwink the people, choke the life's breath out of the independents and permit the one-sixth of our Texans who are dependent upon the oil business take the rap."

Midland Nears Its Quota Of $2,344 In Whirlwind USO Campaign; More Contributions Are Needed Quickly

Midland was within $308.95 of its USO War Fund campaign quota at noon Tuesday, and workers in the whirlwind drive for $2,344.20, the county's quota, hoped to complete their task in a few hours.

More than $2,035 had been turned over to the Treasurer John P. Butler and many campaign teams were still calling on prospects.

Persons who have not been visited by the workers are requested by Curt Inman, campaign chairman, to leave their contributions at the Midland Chamber of Commerce.

Each Citizen Should Aid
Every possible effort will be made to obtain the quota promptly and to give every resident of the county an opportunity to contribute his part. The USO is anxious to have a contribution from each citizen, regardless of the amount.

Booths will be established later in the week for the convenience of citizens who wish to make donations, but campaigners are anxious to meet the county's quota promptly.

They hope no resident of Midland County will fail to make a contribution. The fun and friendship, deserved by America's fighting men, are provided by the USO which is following the flag to all battlefronts. A contribution to the USO is a pledge to the fighting men that Midland is behind them.

Don't say NO to the USO!

Crude Output Up For Past Week

Magnolia Stakes East Offset To Mascho Well In Southern Andrews

By Frank Gerdner
Oil Editor

Magnolia Petroleum Company has staked an east offset to Mascho Oil Company of Midland No. 1 Sun Oil Company-University, new 4,514-foot discovery well two miles north-west of the Emma pool in Southern Andrews. It is understood the new area will be designated the "Mascho pool."

The Magnolia test will be its No. 1 Texas University Section 26 and it has been staked 660 feet out of the northwest corner of section 26, block 40, University survey. Drilling with rotary to the Mascho pay is scheduled to start Saturday.

Fracture reports Tuesday from Mascho's discovery were that 2-inch tubing had been run, with low packer, and that tests were being made. On last gauge before installing packer the well swabbed eight barrels of oil per hour for 10 hours. It has been shot with 310 quarts of nitro from 4,440 feet to total depth at 4,514.

Atlantic Refining Company No. 1-A Texu, projected 8,700-foot wildcat test west of Andrews, is drilling below 1,566 feet in red beds. Completion of a 5,000-barrel storage tank was expected late Tuesday. At Southwestern Andrews' new Ordovician discovery, Phillips Petroleum Company No. 1-A University-Andrews. On earlier tests of natural production from the 7,855-foot level the well flowed more than 100 barrels of oil per hour through open 2-inch tubing. It is producing from the Ellenburger, lower Ordovician, which was topped at 7,750 feet.

A 7,500-foot test in Northwestern Andrews, Humble Oil & Refining Company No. 1 H. O. Sims et al, is drilling past 4,928 feet in chert and lime.

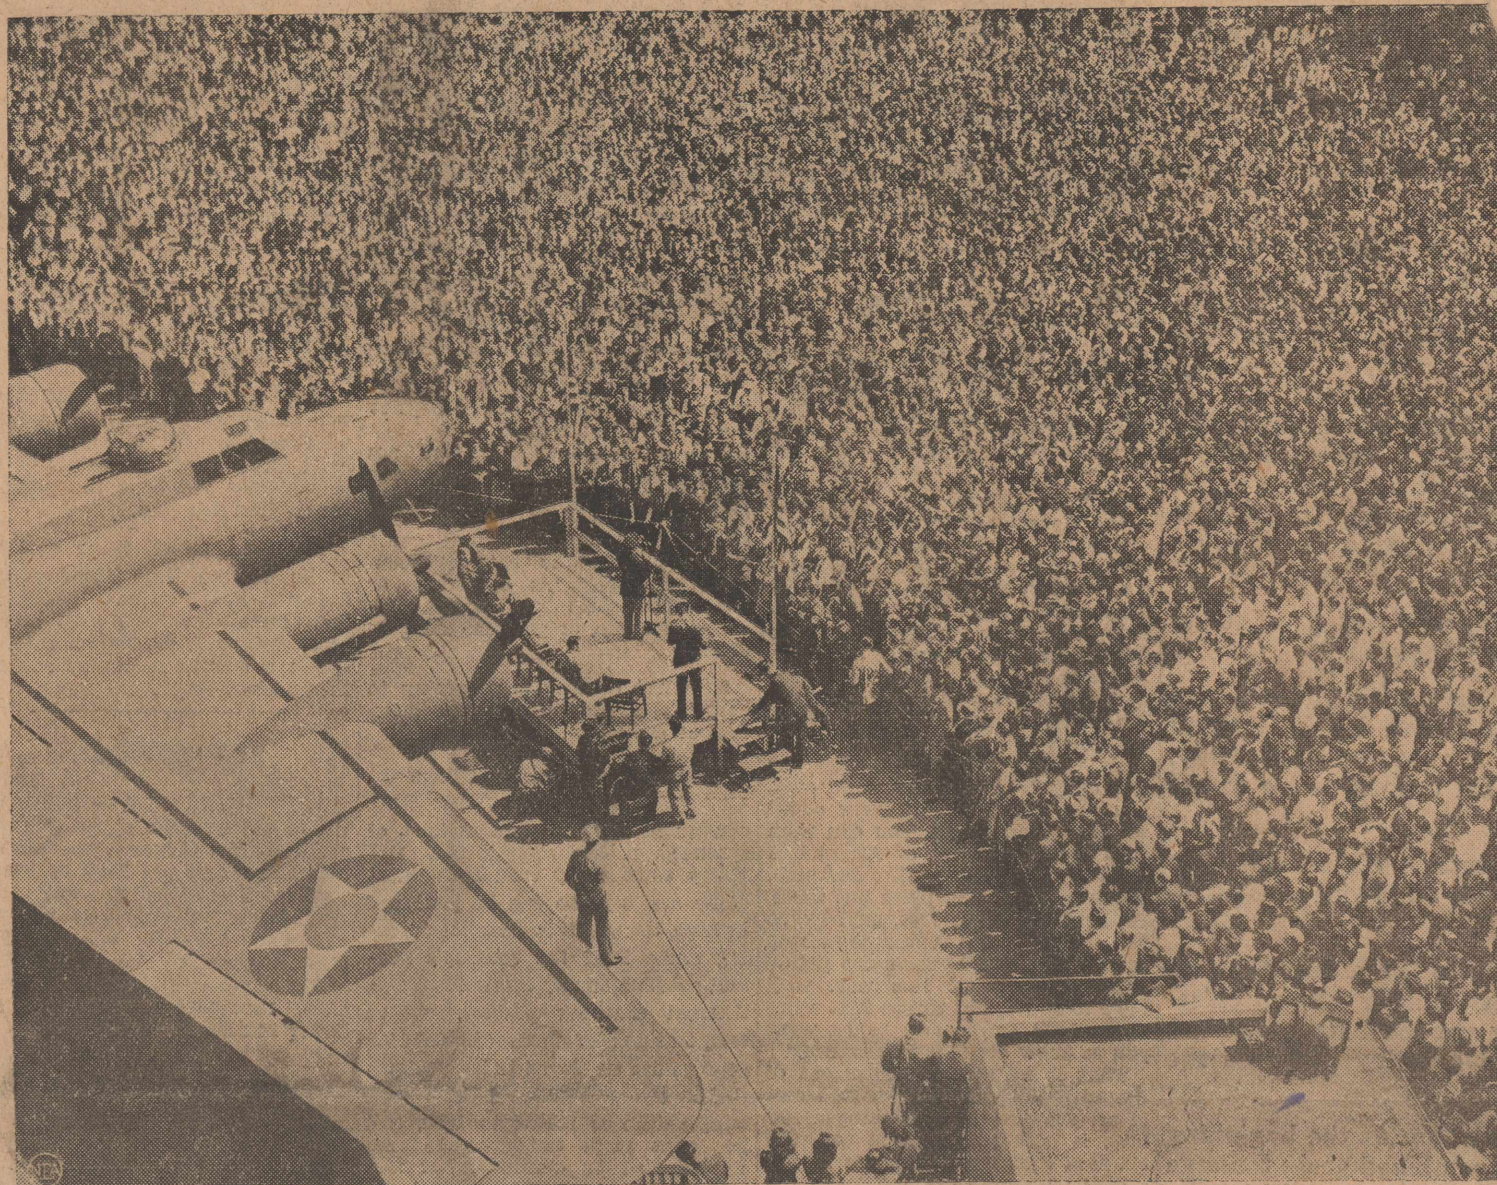

Sealy-Smith Shut In
Northwestern Ward County's Ellenburger deep strike, Shell Oil Company, Inc., No. 1 Sealy-Smith Foundation, is shut in while storage is being cleared. On last tests it flowed from 64 to 80 barrels of 47-gravity oil hourly in response to 5,000-gallon acidization of Ellenburger pay from 10,082 to 10,111 feet, total depth. Decision as to deepen or complete at present depth has not been announced. The well probably will be classed the opener of the "Monahans pool." It is only three and one-half miles northeast of Monahans.

Amend Petroleum Corporation No. 1-RE University, one and one-quarter miles southeast of the Barnhart Ellenburger pool in Southeastern Reagan County, the last 24 hours flowed 112 barrels of oil and eight barrels of sediment and water through 24 64-inch choke on 2-inch tubing. Total depth is 9,361 feet in dolomite. Gas volume is 27,000 cubic feet a day, making gas-oil ratio 2,470.

Anderson-Prichard Oil Corporation No. 1 Charlotte Gregg Ogilvie et al, Northern Pecos County Ordovician attempt, is drilling at 5,530

When Captain Wheelless Talked To Men Who Made Plane He Flew

Captain Hewitt T. Wheelless of the United States Army Air Corps, a small-town Texas boy, was cited by President Roosevelt April 28 for his outstanding feat in piloting a giant bomber against the Japs. Here, Captain Wheelless is talking to the men who made that bomber, and to whom he said "If it were not for you men and the fine equipment you make for us, we of the combat force would be helpless." Captain Wheelless, now on a speaking tour of the nation at the request of President Roosevelt, will be the house guest this week-end of Lieutenant and Mrs. James T. Smith, of Midland, at their residence in California, where Lieutenant Smith is stationed. Captain Wheelless has repeatedly visited Smith in Midland before the war, it has been recalled by Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Smith, parents of the lieutenant.

French May Refuse United States Demands For Martinique Mandate

BERN, Switzerland (AP)—With French-German negotiations reaching a state of urgency, Reichsmarschal Hermann Goering may meet Wednesday with Chief of State Petain and Chief of Government Laval to reach final decisions, it was reported Tuesday in foreign diplomatic quarters.

These quarters predicted that the French would refuse to accept the Martinique negotiations as one of great decisions, with a resultant break of relations with the United States.

Laval was said to have brought France to the brink of three big decisions—rejection of the American proposals for clarifying the status of Martinique, the degree of military collaboration with the Axis, and at least a preliminary settlement of disputed points with Italy.

The biggest point is the French fleet, which, with French troops in Africa, would represent considerable reinforcements for the Germans, who are seeking new sources of power in every possible section.

There still was no official word of the reaction in Martinique to the American proposal laid before Admiral Georges Robert, French high commissioner there, by the

Paid $500 For One Quick Little Kiss

DALLAS (AP)—A $37,222 contribution to the Army Emergency and Navy Relief funds was made Monday night by the thousands who turned out to see an array of movie stars, starlets and supporting players touring the country in the Hollywood Caravan.

The box office counted $35,222, and the difference was made up by expensive concessions at the show sold by Dallas career girls, bonds sold by some of the actors at a downtown department store, and two programs autographed by all the members of the Caravan which sold for a total of $800.

J. G. Parker of Fort Worth was high bidder at $500 for one program. Each bidder received a kiss from Merle Oberon as a bonus.

All Must Work Or Fight, Says Page

AUSTIN.—"Everyone must be either working or fighting to win this war," said General J. Watt Page, State Selective Service director, and many selective service registrants who have been deferred from military service solely because they have dependents will eventually be inducted unless in the meantime they become engaged in activities essential to the war effort."

He stated that all registrants with dependency deferments are being reconsidered, first to eliminate from this class all men who cannot prove that their dependents need their earned income for support in a reasonable manner, and all who cannot prove that they did not acquire dependents to avoid military service; and, second, to distinguish between men who have dependents but are not engaged in activities aiding the war effort and those who are contributing for victory by work as civilians.

However, General Page stated, men engaged in non-essential work should stay with that work until they are placed in strictly defense work. It is desirable, he pointed out, to see that there is an orderly transfer to that work, so that there will be no interruption of any work.

Directors of the Midland Chamber of Commerce, meeting at Hotel Scharbauer Monday night, agreed that the efforts to obtain Federal meat inspection for the A. and M. Packing Company here should be made a major project of the organization, and authorized the filing of a brief on the subject with the Bureau of Animal Industry in Washington and with other government agencies and individuals.

The brief, prepared by the chamber of commerce and supporting the application of the Midland packing concern for Federal inspection, contains factual data on Midland, market, inter-state business, location, availability of livestock, feed, transportation, equipment, and plant, and other important items. It points out that eleven Army posts soon will be operating in the area and shows the need of Federal meat inspection here so the A. and M. Packing Company can supply all or a part of the increased meat demand at less cost and with less transportation congestion.

President Ralph M. Barron and various directors voiced the opinion that with Federal meat inspection the packing business here soon will develop into one of the leading industries of the city. The benefit to farmers and ranchers of the area also was pointed out.

To Sponsor Clean-Up Campaign
Sponsorship of a "Clean-Up, Paint-Up, Fix-Up, Fire Prevention and Salvage Campaign" was voted by the directors. All civic and service organizations of the city will be asked to assist. The date for the campaign will be announced soon.

Purchase of 1,000 copies of a booklet, "Manual for Civilian Defense," for free distribution to civilian defense workers was authorized by the directors.

They also voted to accept an offer of officials of the State Fair of Texas to designate a "Midland Day" at this year's state fair. The date will be selected later.

Manager Bill Collins was authorized to attend the annual convention of Texas Chamber of Commerce Managers in Austin in June, and the Southwestern Chamber of Commerce Institute in Dallas in July.

A report on the USO campaign here was presented and announcement was made regarding the OPA Clinic to be held in Big Spring Tuesday evening.

Bombers Hit More Ships; Chinese Win

Bombardiers Run Down Stragglers; Chinese Cut Down Invasion Armies

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS Australia.—(AP)—Japan apparently still was paying a disastrous price Tuesday for her defeat in the Coral Sea as General MacArthur's headquarters announced that Allied fliers tracking down the scattered, hiding remnants of the great enemy invasion armada and other units had damaged two, and probably three, more ships.

This raised the count of Japanese losses in the six-day battle in the sea gateway northeast of Australia and in its sequel, a ceaseless search of island hideaways, to 23 or 24 ships in the eight days from the start of the Coral Sea battle through Monday.

Nevertheless, Japan's plans have only been delayed and the threat still hangs over Australia that she will try again to smash southward. Air Minister Arthur S. Drakeford warned.

Two more enemy transports—casualties numbers 22 and 23—were hit Monday in the Solomon Islands, which enclose the Coral Sea on the north, a communique from General MacArthur's headquarters announced.

The possible 24th Japanese casualty was a large tanker on which, the communique said, air raiders registered two hits or near misses in the Deboyne Islands of the Louisiade group, a cluster of tiny islets in the Coral Sea off the southeast tip of New Guinea.

An Army spokesman said the Louisiades definitely were not occupied by the Japanese, explaining the enemy had landed a few stores and supplies from boats and planes but apparently no ground forces.

CHUNGKING (AP)—The main force of a Japanese invasion column which struck deep into China's Yunnan Province has been driven back to the Burma frontier at Wanting, but heavy fighting continues with remnants of the shattered enemy in the Chefang-Mengshih area, a military spokesman said Tuesday.

Chefang is 25 miles inside China on the Burma Road. Other Chinese forces which had been by-passed in Central Burma, continued their advance in which they captured Maymyo and drove to the outskirts of ruined Mandalay, moving northeastward in an effort to block the Japanese retreat.

Still another Chinese force in Central Burma continued an advance northwest from Mandalay and reached Malewa, the spokesman said.

On the Salween River front in the Shan states of Eastern Burma, another force of Chinese which struck out from near Lolei were facing the Japanese across the river. All these central Burma forces are commanded by Lieut. Gen. Joseph W. Stilwell, U. S. A.

Over The Hump

If Admiral Stark's optimistic statement proves correct, and we actually are bringing the submarine menace under control in the Atlantic, then the tide of this war has turned.

No layman is in position either to confirm or to deny the admiral's disclosure. We don't know how many ships were being sunk in the past, nor do we know how many are being sent to the bottom today.

For military reasons, which we are obliged to accept even though we sometimes question their soundness, the public has been kept completely in the dark both as to our losses and as to the retaliatory vengeance we have exacted.

We do know, from a long series of official statements on both sides of the Atlantic, that shipping is our worst headache. When we were attacked, we had inadequate facilities for supplying our allies, bringing raw material into this country, transporting expeditionary forces to the fighting fronts and servicing them while there.

Sinkings have exceeded launchings, so that as of today we are worse off than we were last December.

Experts say that one may speculate intelligently that we have averaged a loss of at least two ships a day. By the end of this month we expect to be turning out two ships a day, ready to go to sea with cargoes. On that basis we would be just holding our own.

But two ships a day is only an intermediate point. Our goal is to produce 750 vessels this year and twice as many—an average of four a day—in 1943.

If Admiral Stark is correct, even to the extent that we can count upon holding the U-boats to their present effectiveness, then by Decoration Day we shall have climbed over the shipping hump and start coasting down on the sunny side.

Nobody knows what the total will be. At the beginning of 1941 we had 1150 ships with a combined gross tonnage of 7,078,000. Last year we built less than we lost. This year and next we are adding 2300 craft with a gross tonnage of roughly 12,000,000.

So by the end of next year we shall have something fewer than 3500 vessels with a gross tonnage of less than 19,000,000. At the beginning of 1941 the British possessed 2664 ships of 16,806,000 tons. Japan, third maritime power, had only 898 vessels grossing 4,754,000 tons.

Knock off what you will for sinkings. Your guess is better than any figure that has come through the censorship. It still will be safe to say that—if Admiral Stark is right and we have brought the submarines under control—from the middle of this year henceforward we shall have begun to break the bottleneck which is handicapping war production and preventing us from taking the offensive against Hitler and Japan.

Exploits Of Cousin Of Dr. James Chapple Of Midland Related In Current Magazine Story

The story of the heroism of Lieut. Wreford Goss Chapple of Billings, Montana, which won him the award of the Navy Cross is told in a trio of articles in the May 16 issue of Collier's entitled, "Take 'er Down!", "How Cecil Brown Got the Story", and "Lieutenant Chapple Writes About Himself."

Special interest attaches to the articles for Midland readers since Lieut. Chapple is a first cousin of Dr. James H. Chapple of Midland. The story is taken from the young officer's diary and from a series of questions which he answered by letter for Cecil Brown, CBS correspondent, when there was not time for a formal interview.

Lieut. Chapple took a submarine over dangerous reefs into a Jap-held gulf on the west coast of Luzon. He sank one ship and then, despite a dangerous pursuit by enemy ships which set off repeated depth charges, finally brought the crippled submarine and his crew safely out of the enemy-infested waters.

TERRAIN NO BARRIER TO ARMY RAILMEN

CAMP CLAIBORNE, La. (P)—When the United States Army invades in this war, soldiers will be ready to build railroads in a hurry. The 711th Engineers Battalion, railway operating, is nearing completion of a 45-mile railroad line between this camp and Camp Polk, home of armored troops.

The road is being constructed over a rough terrain, hills and crosses several streams including the Calcasieu river.

Army officers explained that the route taken for the railroad was picked in accordance with actual war conditions—it is wrapped around the hills to follow the easiest and quickest course.

Yes, That Book Is Closed

Oil Executive Gets Top Trust Busters Told

By Peter Edson
The Reporter-Telegram
Washington Correspondent.

First act on arrival in Washington for one of the many oil company executives now holding important war jobs in government was to call up the Department of Justice. "I want to give notice," he is reported to have said in effect, "that I'm going to have to break every anti-trust law in the books, and I want you to lay off till after the war ends. The day the war's over, you can indict me on every count and I'll plead guilty. You can then send me to Alcatraz or Atlanta. I don't want to go to Leavenworth, that's too hot. Any place but there I'll be needing the rest, anyhow, so you can make the sentences as long as you like. But to solve the petroleum problems of this war, we'll have to do a lot of things that we've never done before and I just want you to know about it in advance."

That is a dramatic statement of the case, but probably is not much of an exaggeration. Breaking a few laws is perhaps the least of the changes that must be made in the gigantic oil industry, for as Secretary of Interior and Petroleum Coordinator Harold I. Ickes told a congressional committee recently, the problem is to shift the economic base of the industry and to do it in weeks instead of years.

You are familiar with the main events of the background—the tanker shortage, Eastern Seaboard fuel oil shortages, gasoline rationing, for a third of the nation's motorists, the rubber shortage reducing the need for gasoline, increased haulage by railroad tank car and tank truck. These are the points where the petroleum industry touches the public at the consumer level. But above this consumer level is where revolutionary things are happening.

As consumption declines, as transportation becomes tighter, the stocks of gasoline are increasing at many Southern Seaboard refineries. This is happening despite the fact that crude oil production has been curtailed from the 1941 daily average of 4.1 million barrels to around 3.5 million barrels.

Refinery technique must be changed to cut down the production of regular gasoline, while the output is increased for 100 octane aviation gas, fuel oils and heating oils. These changes involve a major industrial revolution, but they are only a beginning.

Also to be considered is the increased production of petroleum products from which synthetic rubber can be made—butadiene and styrene, which in ratios of 80 per cent and 20 per cent respectively, go to make the Bena S rubber which the government is financing to be produced at the rate of 700,000 tons a year by the end of 1943. To do this it will be necessary to use less than 150,000 barrels of crude a day. Fortunately, the oil is there, though the equipment to do it with is not.

One phase of this conversion which has not been pushed as much as it might be is the emergency temporary use of existing refinery equipment for the production of synthetic rubber components. Refinery experts say that both butadiene and styrene can be produced in high temperature thermal cracking units. Half the country's normal gasoline supply comes from this thermal cracking process, where temperatures of from 800 to 1100 degrees are employed to break down the crude petroleum. When the temperature is raised to 1300, a 4 per cent yield of butadiene and styrene can be obtained, but this can be done only in the best refinery equipment that will stand this extra high temperature. Costs may be higher, yields lower, but this makeshift production, but immediate production can be obtained.

Calls For Plan

Here is where a demand comes in for national program planning on a vast scale. Refineries which can make only gasoline would have to be given that job. Other refineries would have to be allocated to 100 octane gas production, and those that can produce the materials for synthetic rubber would be given that assignment.

If you please, this is socialization of the petroleum industry, though another name for it is drafting the industry for war. Whatever you call it, it goes beyond the competitive fields of the oil companies. The oil companies, themselves, or the Petroleum Co-ordinator's office, or the War Production Board, or someone so far has seemed reluctant to force the petroleum industry into this step, putting it in competition with the chemical industries. But it may have to be done.

Hitler Has Lots Of Power Left, So May Spring Offensive On New Front

By DeWitt MacKenzie
Wide World War Analyst

The heavy German attack in the Crimea probably represents an effort to drive an entering wedge to enable Herr Hitler to embark on his delayed spring offensive through the gateway to the Caucasus where lie the seas of oil on which he yearns to float to glory.

The four-day-old battle is still under way, but the business-like manner in which the Reds reportedly have flung the enemy back in the early stages is a further demonstration that the Muscovites are swinging into this critical year with great striking power. This is the third time within recent days that the Bolsheviks have displayed their readiness to deal with emergencies, projected German attacks in the Ukraine and Leningrad sectors having been upset at least temporarily by lightning Russian thrusts.

Tough Going For Nazis

The Reds' persistent attack against the uneasy German line throughout the winter, and their ever-ready counter blows at Nazi insurgency, certainly are making the going tough for Herr Hitler's spring drive. The Fuehrer is ready for the race (well, he says he is, anyway) but the Russians just won't give him time to dig in his spikes and get a good start.

This is the third spring for which the Nazi chief has prepared offensives, and always before this he has got into action with the first flowers and the earliest birds. He hurled Germany's massive weight onto Norway and Denmark on April 9 two years ago. Last year he struck on April 6 at Yugoslavia and Greece. This year here we are at May 12, with summer already trying to crowd out spring, and the Fuehrer hasn't yet fired a big gun in anger, so to speak.

Reds Beat Nazi Game

These Red tactics of beating the German offensive by not letting it get started may have a decisive effect on the trend of the spring and summer fighting, and that is to say on the outcome of the war. If the Muscovites can continue to prevent another blitzkrieg from getting under way, they will have gone far towards beating the man who would rule the world.

Despite the terrific lacing which he took from the Russians last winter, Hitler has managed at heavy cost of life and material to hang onto his main strategic positions along the general defensive line which he fixed as the limit of his retirement.

Hitler Still Powerful

However, while Hitler hasn't yet got fully under way we mustn't be foolish enough to think that he is finished. He still is powerful and when he finally gets his strength into play—which he might do in his present drive—we likely shall see some of the force of four springs. Whether he will persist in trying to break the Red line, though is problematical.

If the Reds continue to hold him at bay he may lash out in some other direction while doing a defensive holding operation along the Russian front. He might, for instance, try to break into the Middle East by means of by-passing Turkey and striking through Syria. This would involve that great air force which he has been getting ready for many months past.

Approximately six hundred fifty persons witnessed a colorful May Festival, "Immigrants All", presented by the pupils of the grade school music department under the direction of Miss Rena McQuary Friday night in the grade school gymnasium.

Petition Will Ask Fireproof Structure For School System

Petitions were being circulated in Midland Tuesday asking Senator Tom Connally to do all within his power to have the federal government change its plans for a 13-room elementary school in West Midland to provide for fireproof construction rather than lumber.

More than a score of citizens signed the petition soon after it was drafted.

Bids for the new school will be opened Friday in Fort Worth and information received here indicated that they would contain proposals for both fireproof and frame construction.

The government has allotted $66,000 for the construction which it will build and supervise.

Texas Tin Smelter Now In Production

WASHINGTON (AP)—The first sample of tin produced at the new government-financed tin smelter at Texas City, was displayed Tuesday by Representative Mansfield (D-Tex.) who told the House Monday it came from one shipped from Bolivia and the Dutch East Indies. Located on the mainland just 8 miles from Galveston, the "Longhorn smelter" produced tin for the first time on Easter. The project was erected by Tin Processing Corporation as the agent of the Defense Plant Corporation, a unit of the Federal Loan Agency.

Mansfield inserted into the Congressional Record a letter he received from J. Van Den Berg, vice president of Tin Processing Corporation, who presented him the tin sample.

"The more we have watched the development of the plant and all the factors relating to its economic use, the more we are convinced that Texas was by far the best place to build the smelter," wrote Van Den Berg.

"There are now on hand in Texas as City ores from Bolivia and the Netherlands Indies which will be smelted for the benefit of the United war effort. The process being used is that developed at the Arnhem smelter in Holland by the Billiton Co., which was, until the invasion, the largest private tin producer in the Netherlands East Indies."

CARIBBEAN CRISIS

BY EATON K. GOLDTHWAITE

COPYRIGHT, 1942.
NEA SERVICE, INC.

Illustrated by Carol Johnson

Bill Talcott had no difficulty in spotting the new man, Halsey, and he guessed the little fellow would be the company auditor. But the other two, a mustached character and a slender blond girl in plum-colored slacks, were entirely out of place.

CHAPTER I

IT was a little past noon when the mailboat reached Abasco Island and Bill Talcott, who had been up since dawn, noticed with amazement the arrival of four visitors. He had no difficulty in spotting the new man Halsey, a rangy, lantern-jawed individual in his forties, and he guessed that the skinny little fellow with the voluminous briefcase would be the company auditor.

But the other two, a mustached character much the worse for the ride across Anegada Passage, and a slender blond girl in plum-colored slacks, were entirely out of place. It was only because the girl was so positive in ordering the transfer of her luggage that Bill Talcott decided she must be a relative of Halsey's who had come along to see him settled in his new home.

"I'm your successor," the rangy man admitted after he had gotten the dock under his feet. "Not surprised you didn't meet us in Saint Thomas. Had no idea it was such a long trip. This is Struthers, the auditor, and Mr. MacDowell."

The girl in the plum-colored slacks was fresh as a zephyr, as coolly unconcerned as a scudding cloud. "I'm June Paterson," she announced, wrinkling her pert nose. "Lowell Byrd's cousin. He cabled that you were expecting to return to the Continent. I've been spending a month with friends in Charlotte Amalie and Lowell's afraid I'll go native. You're to look after me."

"Wh-what?" Bill Talcott gasped. "Aren't you thrilled?" she murmured, lowering her lashes in exaggerated coquetry. And then she swept away to organize the confused scampering of houseboys for luggage.

BILL TALCOTT gaped, wracking his brain to recall Lowell Byrd's cousin. Could this be the kid he'd danced with after the water polo meets at Cornell? Dimly he remembered a lot of arms and legs all wrapped in yards of green silk. It had been a dozen years since he had shared a room with Lowell Byrd in engineering school. Suddenly, because you don't go in for the social niceties after six years on a place like Abasco, he became conscious that he had neither shaved nor changed his clothes. "I suppose you received Winters' cable?" Halsey was saying. "I presume your accounts are in shape for the customary audit?" The new man's critical eye scanned the rocky, barren contour of the island. Already he was fretting in the closeness of the brass, stifling heat; flaring his nostrils at the smell.

"I'm all set," Talcott said. "We'll go up to the house for a drink. You'll be able to get in a swim before lunch if you like."

Halsey hesitated, a half-smile on his lips, and the sweating little auditor cut in. "Thanks for the invitation, Talcott," Struthers said in a thin voice. "But if you don't mind, Halsey and I will get directly to work. If you'll just show us to the office."

Bill Talcott nodded in mild surprise. Such eagerness to buckle down didn't seem just right, not after a 1600-mile steamship ride topped off with a night and a morning on the jolting mailboat. Still, auditors were creatures of habit more than whim and Struthers seemed set on living up to his role. Shrugging, Talcott pointed to a cluster of galvanized buildings on the ridge and, taking June Paterson and the wobbly MacDowell in hand, he set off along the path to his bungalow.

TALL, frosted glasses appeared, luggage melted from sight, and Talcott relaxed with his guests on the terrace. From comfortable chairs they watched the rustling fronds of royal palms against the trade-wind sky, eyed the antics of a tiny lizard perched on the swaying bough of a flamboyant tree.

June Paterson fidgeted and her eyes glinted hostilely. She sniffed. "From what Lowell told me I expected to find you living in a cave. So you're leaving all this to go in the army?"

"I have to take up my commission," he said, and decided that she was horribly spoiled. He didn't think it necessary to tell her that "all this" included operation of a fertilizer plant. Her uptilted nose must have told her that. He didn't tell her, either, that the population of Abasco consisted of tough blacks; that she was the first white woman who had set foot there in more than a year.

The recovering MacDowell filled his mouth with ice and grunted. "Say, it's kinda nice here. This one o' the Virgin Islands?"

Talcott smiled. "No. You're now in the Netherlands, or what's left of them. It's quite a job to keep track of the minor pawns in the strategy of international chess."

"Holland! Gosh!"

Talcott would have liked to ask him his connection with Halsey and Struthers; there hadn't been any MacDowells mentioned in the hectic correspondence with Old Man Winters. But he kept his peace. After six years of sameness a new face, even a close-mouthed one, was welcome. June Paterson supplied the lack with an endless round of questions about the extraction of nitrates, and they were on a fresh round of drinks when Halsey came up the path.

The new man's jaw was grim and his eyes were both puzzled and appraising. "Struthers wants to see you," Halsey said abruptly. "So soon?" Talcott flushed. "Aren't you fellows in a bit of a rush?"

"I think you'd better go," Halsey said. Again his eyes held swift appraisal, mirroring perhaps incredulous disappointment.

Baffled, Talcott got to his feet. Turning to June Paterson he said, "I trust you will excuse me. The boy will get you anything you need."

The ash-blond girl regarded him with a quizzical smile. "Trouble in paradise," she laughed. "Do we dress for dinner?"

"If you wish," he said coldly.

Whatever concern he held at the strangeness of Halsey's manner was stifled when he entered the office. In its hot interior, Struthers had surrounded himself with books. The auditor's coat was off and his wet shirt clung to his skinny ribs. His eyes were enormous behind thick-lensed glasses, and he sniffed and said, "Talcott, you appear to be short in your accounts by $158,000. I suppose you've got some explanation?"

Juniors-Seniors In Annual Grid Tilt Here This Evening

Both Squads Set For Rowdy Clash At Lackey Field

The annual Junior-Senior football game will be unrelenting at Lackey Field in Midland Tuesday evening, starting time set for 5 p. m. Midland will get a chance to see next year's grid team in action against rough competition. The Seniors, boys who played on last season's squad but will not be back next season, are plenty good.

There will be no admission charge for the game, and everyone is invited to attend.

Juniors and Seniors have been holding daily scrimmage sessions under the direction of coaches for the past month, and both teams are in good physical condition for the clash.

Offensive threat of the Seniors will be Wilford Lester, an end on last season's eleven, who is piling yards through the center of the line. Helping Lester in the back field for the Seniors will be E. G. Foster, a Bulldog of credit in past seasons. Keith Graham and Buddy Davidson, Dick Lee, or Bill Chancellor will complete the Senior backfield.

In the line to the Seniors will probably be Tony Watson and Charlie Kelly, ends, Ben Sevier and Gene Estes, tackles, J. B. Harris and Leonard Leftwich at guards, and Jack Noyes at center.

The high school team of Juniors will have Ivan Hall and Robert Wheeler as its mighty offensive power against the Seniors. Hall can sweep ends or go off tackle with the best of 'em, and Wheeler is hard to stop. Bill Richards will be slinging passes and Marshall Whitmire or Bill Stickney will complete the backfield.

Probable starters in the line for the Juniors will be Jimmy Watson and Junior Bird, ends; J. T. Robinson and Pete Lee, tackles; John Guy McMillan and Red Roy at guards; and Jack Taylor at center.

Interest is high over the game, and the boys on both squads have been doing some talking. It shapes up like one of the best Junior-Senior games ever to be played here.

The Mackey Motor bowling team of Midland won the West Texas Traveling League Sunday as the schedule was completed in San Angelo. The team, composed of Jim Payne, E. B. Dwyer, Carroll Mitchell, R. Hoeckendorf and Harry Hoeckendorf, won 5 out of 9 games in ending the schedule, and tied with San Angelo for high series honor at a nice average of 2907.

Harry Hoeckendorf took high individual game average with a mark of 190, while the Abilene team won individual team honors with an average of 1049.

This Mackey Motor team is a bowling bunch—known throughout the state. They are among Midland's best, and there are some mighty good bowlers here.

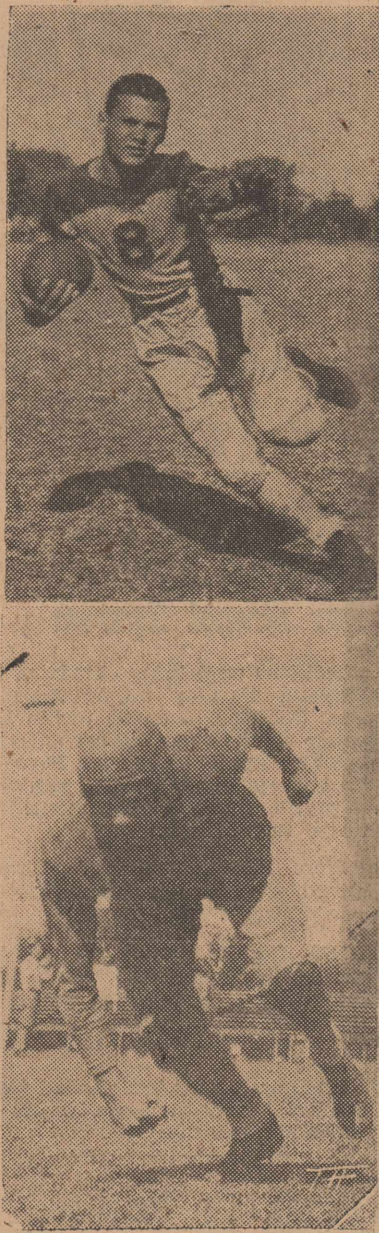

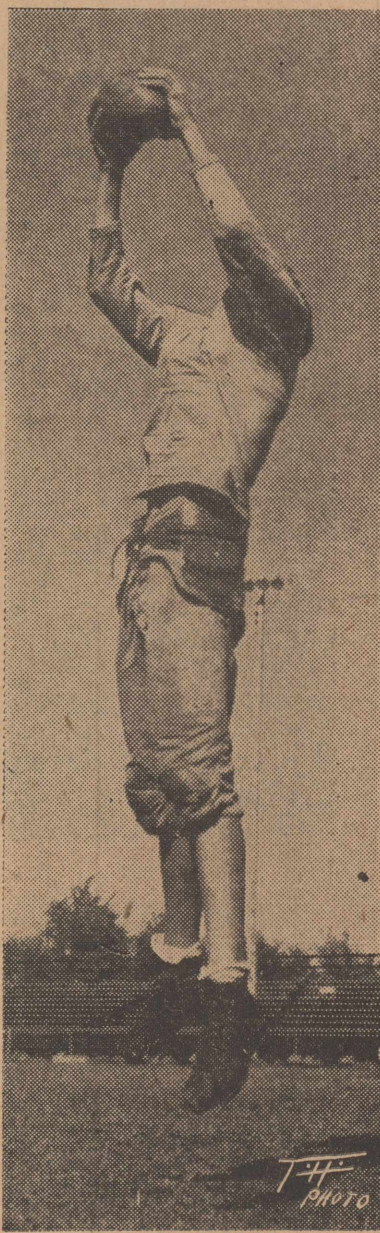

Brother Against Brother
It'll be brother against brother in the annual Junior-Senior grid clash at Lackey Field Tuesday evening. Tony Watson, Bulldog of past seasons, and his younger brother, Jimmy Watson, will be opposite each other. Jimmy is one of the best athletes in these parts. He is a basket ball ace, a track man, and a top flight end on the football team. He'll be playing left end for the Juniors and Tony will be playing right end for the Seniors. . . . Better look out, because someone's in a good position to get hurt when brother is fighting brother.

You Can't Stop Him
He just can't be stopped. That's J. M. White, former Midland High ace athlete, now enrolled at Kemper Military School, Booneville, Mo. White led Kemper to its eighth Missouri Junior College track and field championship at Trenton last Friday. White had a total of 18 1/2 points for individual honors in the meet. . . . That's the kind of college material Midland turns out. When Midland turns 'em out, they are stand outs!

Year 'Round Sports Event
Racing takes no holidays. It goes on all year . . . as far as I can see. Kentucky Derby, Pre-Kness, both come so now it's the Belmont Stakes. All the good horses will be there, too. Come back Alsab will be there, but at this early date I have no dope available as to his chance to repeat. Hang around, though, I'll have a slant for you before the week is out.

Exporters Down Fort Worth And Hold League Lead

By The Associated Press
The tenure of the Beaumont Exporters as Texas League leaders was extended Monday night when they clipped the Fort Worth Cats for a 3-1 decision, while the Tulsa Oilers, who had been blowing down the necks of the Shippers, lost 6-8 to the Houston Buffs.

Beaumont was at the head of the pack by a two-game margin largely to the one-game margin turned in by Earl Cook, who permitted only two runners to reach base. Toren Bain pitched well for the Cats, who were playing at home, but he wasn't in Cook's class Monday night.

The San Antonio Missions fell 4 to 5 before the Dallas Rebels, making a home stand, finally managed to win a game, beating Shreveport 7-6 in a ten-inning affray.

Houston unleashed a savage attack against the Oilers at Tulsa, scoring seven runs in the fourth and fifth innings for Byron Humphries. Frank Marino took Humphries' place, succeeding in blunting the Buff offensive. Tulsa put on a three run rally in the seventh and knocked Eldred Kierly out of the box, but George Bleyer, sent in for Byrly, stemmed the rush.

Oklahoma City came from behind with a two-run rally in the eighth to whip San Antonio. A one-one Mission lead was overcome when the Indians put together doubles by Hershel Martin and Alex Hooks, a single by Danny Doyle, a walk by John Stamper and a long fly by Manager Homer Peel which bases after the announcement of the rule Saturday, the Naval Base had a game scheduled with Southern Methodist University for the night of October 24. . . . There's All-America players at the Base including Purdue's Dave Rankin and Notre Dame's Bob Saggau.

Billy Conn Clips Father-In-Law And Breaks Hand; No Louis Bout

NEW YORK (AP)—The punch Billy Conn landed on his father-in-law's head, in a fight that started out as a "kiss-and-make-up" feast, may cost the Pittsburgh pretty boy a cool $125,000 or more.

That's what he could have expected as his share from his planned late June or early July fight with Joe Louis, which veteran fight men figured would have drawn at least three-quarters of a million dollars. This tussle is off now, because the punch broke Billy's hand and put him out of action for ten weeks or more.

Of course, Promoter Mike Jacobs says Billy'll get a return shot at the Bomber in September, but no one knows whether it'll be as "hot" an attraction then or whether con-

Southern Keepers Good In Majors, Keeps Mates Around The Top Rung

By The Associated Press
Ordinarily anyone who can bat .414 in a Class A-1 minor league can expect to have flags flying and bugles blowing for a ceremonial cross-over of the major leagues' threshold.

Les Fleming hit .414 for Nashville in the Southern Association last year and was averaging for a league record with an average of .421 until he was blanked in a doubleheader on the final day of the season. He batted .678 in the playoffs and .470 in the Dixie Series, too.

But Fleming was greeted with ridicule when he undertook to become the regular first baseman of the Cleveland Indians this spring. Observers said he was too short and clumsy to field his position and recalled occasions such as a game last fall when Fleming lost his mitt juggling a teammate's throw and barely managed to hold the ball in his bare hand.

His stratospheric average, and his 29 home runs, didn't count, they said, because Nashville has a notoriously short rightfield fence and a lot of hits down there would be merely long flies in the major leagues.

Well, the season is a month old now and Fleming not only still is holding forth at first base for the Tribe, but is a vital reason for the Indians being in second place today. A game and a half behind the New York Yankees.

Some of those drives the squat, powerful Fleming tears off are better than long flies even in the American League and one of them Monday was a home run over the rightfield wall at League Park in Cleveland. It came with the score tied, two mates on base and two out in the ninth inning and it beat the Detroit Tigers 8-5.

It was his third roundtripper of the season, enhancing a .333 batting average.

Most of the major league clubs were traveling Monday, preparing to inaugurate another inter-sectional series Tuesday and only one other contest was scheduled.

In this the Boston Braves scored out the Philadelphia Phils 3-2. Tom Earley hurled seven-hit ball for the Braves and big Ernie (Schnozzle) Lombardi nailed down the triumph with a two-run homer in the sixth inning, breaking a tie score. Albie Gossop hit a home run in the fourth for the Phils.

Dorazio Spoils Title Chance For Harry Bobo

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—Gus Dorazio's latest job of spoiling a young heavyweight's title hopes—a stunning upset over Pittsburgh's Harry Bobo—so elated the battle-scarred veteran he's clamoring for another shot at Joe Louis.

The squat little Italian crouched and clouded his way to a split decision over the towering negro in 10 furious rounds Monday night at the arena and probably knocked Bobo out of three juicy fights he had lined up this summer with Melio Bettina, Bob Pastor and either Buddy Baer or Lou Nova.

"I want those fights, now," puffed Dorazio. "I deserve 'em. And then I want Louis. I could beat him the same way I beat Bobo."

Outweighed 191 to 205 1/2 and on the short end of 3 to 1 odds, Gus befuddled Bobo by weaving and bobbing and crashing in with powerful body blows.

"Give me a check, Doc," Rose suggested. "The Doc did and found Sam okay. . . . That's because I've never trained in a life," Rose explained.

Van Patrick, who used to block for Sammy Baugh at Texas Christian, now is putting a daily baseball review on the air from Rock Island, Ill. . . . The day after Bob Bowman of the Cubs had a violent nightmare, a notice appeared in the clubhouse: "Passee asks waivers on his roommate."
