STUDENTS SET NEW RECORD AT REVIVAL

3750 Hear Biederwolf Tell Essentials of True Christian Faith

OVATION FOR SHEPHERD

Dancing And Card Playing Seldom Fit Life Of Christian

Students from Wichita Falls schools composed the greater part of a congregation of 3750 persons at the union revival services Friday night in the tabernacle.

One of the outstanding parts of the revival program was the singing of Mayor R. E. Shepherd. He gave a solo, "I Know He Watches Me," and at its conclusion was given a long ovation by the congregation. Miss Mary Lewis accompanied Mayor Shepherd on the piano.

Christian Defined

Dr. W. E. Biederwolf based his sermon on the text, Book of John, fifth chapter, 40th verse, "And ye will not come to me, that ye may have life."

Being a Christian does not mean that you have to give up dancing, card playing and other entertainments but means giving yourself up to God, Dr. Biederwolf said.

"However, he declared, "after giving yourself up to God it is probable that you will come to the conclusion that dancing and card playing do not fit in with the demands made on a Christian in his work for God."

Record Crowd

Before starting his sermon, Dr. Biederwolf made the announcement that the number of students present was the largest school attendance at a revival he had ever seen in his 32 years of evangelistic work.

If the soul of a man or woman is lost it is their own fault, Dr. Biederwolf declared.

"If a man or woman is 'lost' to the cause of God they have nobody to blame but themselves," said the evangelist. "God will give every opportunity to men and women to become Christians."

Men and women who have too much pride to stand up for the cause of God and Jesus Christ came in for a scorching denunciation by Dr. Biederwolf.

Raps False Pride

"Pride won't let you stand up for Jesus," he exclaimed, "but will let you smoke cigarettes and carouse around the town on the Sabbath day when you ought to be in church. You are afraid that somebody might smile at you if you profess your Christianity. Well, let me tell you something, for every man and woman smiling at you there are 999 cheering you."

People who laugh at men and women professing Christianity are in a class with lunatics, said Dr. Biederwolf.

"Too many people want to

Coincident with the calling of a special meeting for Saturday of the Wichita County Bar association by W. E. Fitzgerald, president, to discuss the new judicial re-districting law, R. E. Special to The Record News.

MONTAGUE, March 18.—Entering two farm houses near Montague Friday morning an unidentified man compelled the occupants at the point of a gun to give him money and other valuables.

The man was driving a large sedan automobile, according to his victims. He first entered the home of Mrs. John Kerr. She was alone in the house. After obtaining a small amount of money he drove a few miles north and in the same manner robbed the home of Mrs. Ross Matthews, who was also alone in the house.

Trace of the man was obtained by the officers at Bowie, where he obtained a quantity of gasoline at a filling station and then drove off without paying for it.

The officers are now searching for the man in Oklahoma. He is thought to have driven into that state Friday afternoon.

There are two women and three children riding in the car with the man, the officers learned. One is an elderly woman and the other young.

A reward of $50 for the capture of the man has been offered by John Kerr, the husband of one of the robber's victims.

$65,000 Damages Sought in Suit Over Alleged Use of Vacuum Pump

Because the alleged use of a vacuum suction pump had depleted the oil reserves on leases in Young county, D. M. Hardy filed suit in district court Friday, for damages totaling $65,612.20, against the Consolidated Oil company.

The plaintiff sets out in his petition that he owns oil leases on 80 acres of land in Young county on which there are two producing wells, and that the defendant owns offset leases to the plaintiff's property.

That the defendant has installed a suction pump in offset wells to his and as a result has taken oil from his producing sands, is the contention of the plaintiff.

Hardy sets the amount of his loss of oil due to the installation of the suction pump at $5,612.20. The petition sets out that the plaintiff has reason to believe that his two wells will be producers for five years and that his loss of oil by the defendant's use of the pump will be $1,000 a year. The plaintiff asks for $50,000 for the figured five-year depletion.

PRICE CUT IN CRUDE BLAMED ON BIG FIRMS

Major Concerns Use Seminole Production as Excuse to Slash Prices

PRIDDY SHOWS WAY

Wichitan Urges Independents To Shut Down as Move To Fight Loss

DALLAS, March 18.(AP)—Major oil companies are using the Seminole field only as an excuse for the startling drop in crude prices, to permit them to stock up cheaply, W. M. Priddy, Wichita Falls refining company head, said while here today. He is seeking to influence independent companies to decrease production and shut down cracking units in an effort to take crude out of the cellar.

Priddy announced that he had already closed down two of his own cracking units and would close the remainder when he returned to Wichita Falls.

Crude Price Slumps

About the time the Seminole field jumped in production from a nominal flow to more than 300,000 barrels a day, the price of crude dropped considerably, 52 gravity, which sold for $2.57 two months ago, slumping to $1.60, a price cut which Priddy held to be "absolutely unjustifiable."

"The major companies own most of the Seminole field and they used the flush production as an excuse for the drop," he said. "As a matter of fact, this flush was used as an excuse while several million barrels of storage were dumped on the market, making all crude drop enormously, which gave the majors a chance to buy at a low price, store millions of barrels, and sell later at a higher price.

Majors Hold Key

"Now that the Oklahoma conservation commission has taken over control of the Seminole situation, it is expected that after May 1, draining on storage will be resumed. Production could be reduced 50 per cent if the majors in Seminole would only shut down. It takes one-third more crude oil to suffice when the cracking plants are not in operation.

"Moreover," Priddy concluded, "there will be no overproduction when the announced 4,000,000 new automobiles are placed on the market this year."

Vernon Man Drowns In Lake Kemp

Burl Cooper, 24, Loses Life in Attempt to Wade Short Distance to Pleasure Boat

While attempting to wade to a boat in Lake Kemp, Burl Cooper, 24, of Vernon, was drowned at 5:30 p. m. Friday.

The boat was occupied by Carl Pitts and Karl Schilican of Vernon, who had accompanied Cooper to Lake Kemp on a pleasure trip.

Just a few minutes after their arrival at the mouth of the north creek entering Lake Kemp, the three men decided to row a boat on the lake. Pitts and Schilican entered the boat and it drifted away from the shore before Cooper could get into it.

Tripped by Undertow

While just a few feet from shore, Cooper entered the water and started wading to the boat, his companions said, but stepped in water over his head. Unable to swim, Cooper sank and before Pitts and Schilican could reach him he was carried by the lake undertow out of his companions' sight.

Pitts and Schilican obtained aid at the Lake Kemp community and a corps of divers started looking for Cooper's body. It was discovered at 8:15 p. m. Friday in 15 feet of water, approximately 40 yards from the point where he disappeared from his companions' sight.

Body Sent to Vernon

The body was returned to Vernon Friday night. He is survived by a sister, Mrs. A. Hampton of Vernon.

Cooper was an employe of Allman's Service station in Vernon. For several years he has been a resident of the city and has worked for various concerns in Vernon.

Funeral arrangements will be announced Saturday.

POSSE GUARDS NEGRO TRIO IN KANSAS PRISON

Blacks Held in Assault On Two White Girls Early Friday

BLOODHOUNDS TRACE

Coffeyville, Kansas, Scene Of Tense Feeling On Brutal Attacks

COFFEYVILLE, Kan., March 19. (AP)—Robert Liggins, negro merchant-policeman, was taken into custody by members of troop L 117th cavalry of the Kansas national guard and is held in the city jail here under the belief that he fired the first shot in the clash here last night.

COFFEYVILLE, Kan., March 18. (AP)—Race war broke out here late tonight when a mob of white persons, who had besieged the city jail in an attempt to seize three negroes arrested in connection with an assault on two white girls, attempted to invade the negro quarter.

The clash came after a group of youths had shattered practically every window in the city hall and failed in several attempts to storm the jail.

The one known injured was Williams Waddle, 17, printer's apprentice, who was taken to a hospital with buckshot in his legs and a revolver wound in his hand. He is not fatally wounded, it is believed. Waddle was in the line of fire and was not accompanying those who had started to the negro section.

Negroes Open Fire.

The negroes were not much in evidence on the streets here tonight but apparently anticipated an invasion of the residential section as they immediately opened fire when the mob started toward their home district.

At least 100 shots were fired.

Troop B, Kansas National Guard unit stationed here, called out a few hours before, arrived shortly after the shooting occurred and for the time being assumed control of the situation. The men are carrying full war equipment and wearing steel helmets.

The crowd soon returned, some bearing shotguns and more trouble was feared before daybreak.

Martial law was inaugurated and guards placed over every hardware store in town and an effort was being made to disarm all citizens.

A guard was also thrown about the negro's quarters as a result of threats that homes would be burned, which were heard following the gun clash.

A fire hose strung through the city hall as an aid in repulsing the attack was cut to shreds and carried away.

Bullets Shatter Windows.

Windows in several downtown business establishments were shattered by the flying bullets.

A complete check of the injured was not available.

The Iola National Guard troop has been called out according to word received here shortly after 11 o'clock tonight.

Tear gas guns fired into the crowd apparently served only to increase the anger and feeling against the negroes which stood at fever heat throughout the day was fumed into a flame.

As the white members of the throng of 1,000 or more made a run to enter the colored section two negroes were encountered in a dark doorway and a fist fight immediately began which resulted in the negroes being severely beaten.

Other negroes appeared on the scene before the two had arose from the street and immediately opened fire.

Pandemonium reigned as screaming women and children pushed by scrambling men sought safety.

Youth Is Wounded

Young Waddle with blood streaming down his arm staggered through the street and into the Coffeyville Journal office where volunteer attendants gave him emergency treatment and rushed him to a hospital.

The sight of the youth's blood brought another outburst of threats and more than 100 men and boys left the downtown district with cries for more guns.

Apparently believing the crest of the trouble had passed, police guards and deputized civilians had been withdrawn from the outside of the city hall and the crowd allowed to enter the building filling the stairway almost to the second floor upon which the jail where the suspect is reported to be held.

Earlier in the night an attempt was made to lead the crowd to believe the suspect had been removed to another jail in a fire truck but this failed to discourage the leaders.

Urged on by older members, boys between 13 and 21 years old let loose a barrage of rocks at the city hall and the crashing glass from the windows was interspersed with cheers from onlookers who encouraged the boys to storm the jail.

Unplayed Hands in Poker Game Give Police Chief Clue in Killing

DETROIT, March 18.(AP)—The setting of a tense poker game, with the hands intact as they were dealt, was reconstructed by detectives today to solve the mysterious slaying of two gangsters with long police records, who were found last night sprawled among the cards and stakes in their apartment.

Finger print records showed the men to be Leroy Grady, alias "Doggy" Snyder, 26, and James E. Ellis, 32, both former inmates of Missouri prisons.

Up Ellis' sleeve was found the queen of spades, pierced through by a bullet which helped cause his death. Police at first concluded that Ellis and Snyder had been killed for cheating. But the later phases of the examination refuted this. The cards show that one of the killers held the winning hand.

Ellis held a "straight." Snyder had a "full house" and the killer, as police assume the third player, did the slaying, held four kings, which would have taken the "pot."

Henry Ford Leans Toward Principle Of Soviet, Editor of Paper Swears

DETROIT, March 18.(AP)—A dream of fees, a nebulous vision whereby he was to draw millions of dollars as legal adviser to farmers organizations throughout the world, was held by Aaron Sapiro, declared Senator James A. Reed of Missouri at the trial of the $1,000,000 libel suit against Henry Ford today.

The white haired senator closed his opening statement for the defense with the assertion that they would prove the good faith of the articles which Sapiro claims are libelous and would show Sapiro was responsible directly or indirectly for numerous failures and the loss of millions of dollars.

A peep into the private views of Henry Ford, was had when W. J. Cameron, editor of Ford's Dearborn Independent, was put on as the first witness. Cameron testified that Ford did not impose his ideas on the editors of the weekly. Although he had a leaning toward Soviet Russia as an experimenter, he did not ask the Independent to reflect that attitude, Cameron said.

laugh," he said, "when there is nothing to laugh at."

The services were opened by the choir, under the direction of Prof. George Dibble. Miss Lewis was the accompanist.

Dr. Biederwolf's sermon in full follows:

"This is one of those verses that makes it very plain that if you are lost in this world or in the world to come it will be nobody's fault but your own. A freckle-faced, towsel-haired, tangle-toed, bow-legged Wichita county kid can lead a horse to the watering trough, but a whole staff of college professors with mortar boards and diplomas galore, and the whole Wichita Falls police force can't make that horse drink water if he doesn't want to do it and has made up his mind he wont.

Though God be good and free be heaven,
No force divine can love compel,
Though song of sins forgiven
Sound to the lowest hell
The sweet persuasion of His voice
Respects they Sacred will,
He giveth day, thou hast thy choice
To walk in darkness still.
Your Fault, If Lost.

"There is one thing God won't do. He won't coerce your will. He can't coerce your will and leave you a responsible moral agent. Our will is supreme. There isn't power enough in hell to send you there if you don't want to go and have made up your mind that you won't go. And there isn't power enough in heaven to drag your soul inside the pearly gates if you have made up your mind to reject Jesus Christ in this world and go to hell when you get through.

"And so it will be your fault if you are lost. If you go out of this tabernacle tonight and go beyond the pale of mercy you will remember how God came to you here and offered to save you and how you spurned his offer and when you have run your earthly career through and gone down into the grave and on into eternity you will think over your life in this world and about the things you allowed to keep you back from Christ, and you will see your mistake and acknowledge them then that you were a fool when you made it.

"There was an insane asylum burned down to the ground some time ago in one of the eastern states. They got all the inmates out and took them off a little piece to the hillside. And all the attendants and a lot of other people made a human barricade around them to keep them from breaking through and running down into the flames, as insane people are wont to do. But in spite of all they could do about 20 of them broke away and ran down to the hill to the burning building. And they jumped and danced and laughed around it and before any one of them could get hold of them the poor demented wretches rushed right into the flames and were burned to ashes.

"And, say, do you know that a type of insanity something like that has got possession of your soul; for what else are some of you doing than those poor insane wretches did, when you fight against every effort of God's brave Son, Jesus Christ, to keep you back from your wilful, obstinate, stubborn, mule-headed determination to rush on into the very flames of hell. God's doing everything He can to save you, and you set your will against Him and do everything you can do to lose your soul and damn it in spite of God and all that heaven and earth can do.

Why People Refuse Christ.

"Now why is it? Why is it that people will not come to Christ and be saved?

"Well, with young people especially, there are three great reasons that keep them away from God.

"1. The first is the Godless and good-for-nothing pleasures of this world.

"A young lady who was a most beautiful waltzer came to Dr. John Hall one day and said, "I want to join the church.

"Well, he said, you know it is one thing to join the church and another thing to give yourself to Jesus Christ, and I could not consent to the one unless I knew the other to be true. But if you become a Christian there are certain things you must give up.

"What do you mean? Do you mean that if I become a Christian I must give up dancing.

"And the doctor replied, if you become a Christian and Jesus Christ asks you to give up dancing, you must be ready to do it.

"And she said, Dr. Hall, if it comes to choosing between Jesus Christ and the dance, I will hold to my dancing and let Jesus Christ go.

"And the poor girl made her choice and went out into the world.

"Listen. To be a Christian does not mean to give up the dance; it does not mean to give up the theater or to give up this or that. But it does mean to give yourself up to God and then do His will when He makes it clear. But I tell you now that any young woman who prefers dance or any other thing to Christ is making the fatal mistake of her life, and the time will come when this and every other form of vain and empty Godless pleasure will become to you as the apples of Sodom, full of ashes and bitterness.

Faust and the Devil.

"Do you remember that awful story about Faust and his contract with the Devil. Faust was a student and a good one and the world was full of promise for him. But he wanted wine and women and the turkey trot and all kind of fleshly indulgence, and the Devil said I'll make a bargain with you: I'll see that you get all this if you'll give me a mortgage on your soul and if when you're done and you've got all you want your soul will go to me. And the contract was made. The Devil kept his part of it and Faust had a high old time; he went the pace and drank deep of every cup, but what a price he paid. He thought he was having a good time, but those things didn't satisfy him and wretched and disappointed in the end the Devil came in and claimed his soul and took it off to hell.

"Oh," you say, "I wouldn't sign a contract like that.' Well, that's what you're doing whether you think so or not, when you give Jesus Christ the cold shoulder for a lot of the things that some of you are doing now and the devil's going to foreclose his mortgage on some of your souls a good deal sooner than some of you think now.

"A woman said to a minister: 'You must have an awfully dull time.'

"'Why?'

"'Oh, there are so many things that you can't do that we can.'

"He said: 'What are the things that you can do that we can't?'

"'You can't dance.'

"'How do you know?'

"She said: 'You don't, and you don't play cards; you don't go to the theater; you must have an awful dull time.'

"He said: 'According to your argument you are happier than I because I deny myself some things that you don't; consequently you are happier than I. You think you are, because you do some things that I don't. According to your argument there is another strain of mankind lower than you are and they gratify desires that you don't. According to your argument these people are happier than you because they gratify their desires, and they don't deny themselves of the things that you deny yourself. So, according to that, they are happier than you because they do some things that you don't. But you know that is not so. The fact is a Christian is the happiest being in the universe, and I want you to understand that it isn't indulgence that makes happiness, but denying oneself. You deny yourself some things that the lower crowd don't and you know you are happier than they are. I deny myself some things that you don't. I am happier than you are.

How to Get Happiness

"Happiness don't come from dancing and wine drinking and wearing decolette dresses. You've got a mighty little, infinitesimal, measley, mediocre makeup to your soul if you can be satisfied with things like these strong, sweet, uplifting influence on her friends and be a godsend to the world, but she'd rather gad about and run the streets and flirt with every new young sport that comes along and go to a cheap show and see a lot of half-dressed chorus girls whirl around on one toe and dance with some spider-legged dude than to be the strong, sweet, pure womanly girl she might be.

"But if you had a soul of any size. If you had a heart of any worth, you never could be satisfied with anything but a Christian life with all that good-for-nothing moral cut out.

My Friend Clarence Strouse

"My, but you ought to see my friend, Clarence Strouse. He's one of the slickest dressers in the United States. I always look like a farmer along side of him. He always looks like he just came out of a band box. He gave me this cross I wear on my chain. We met each other just a few years ago and fell in love. I learned to love him because of his sterling worth and his jovial wholesouled good nature. And he learned to love me, I guess, because of my big hands and awkward feet. He's the happiest, funniest fellow you ever met. He has more fun than you can whistle at. He made up his mind that he was going to be worth living for him. He began with the theaters in a certain city. The most expensive box in the finest theater was always filled with Clarence Strouse and his party. He led the applause and had the funniest bouquets that reached the stage were always his; but when the curtain went down and the evening was over and he was back in his own room, he turned the light low down, dropped his head in his hands and his heart was empty.

"And the devil said: 'Clarence, the theater will never do for you; you must have the ball and the german and grand march; with your splendid figure and elegant dress, you can become the leader of southern society.' And Clarence followed his advice. He was easily a leader and it was not long until it was heralded in all the papers that the grand march at the great annual ball at Richmond would be led by the young Virginian from Salem. He has told me about it and said it was like a dream of its beauty and fascination. The beautiful women were there with their handsome gowns, the perfume, the flowers and the music. And the grand march came with Clarence and his partner in the lead and thousands of eyes were rivieted upon him. Did he do it handsomely? Of course he did. My, but the applause; how it pleased him. And the papers said that for elegance and magnificence nothing in that part of the country had ever equaled the march led the night before by the stately young Mr. Strouse of Salem. But that night when the ball was over and the lights were turned out and Clarence found himself back in his room at the hotel between 2 and 3 o'clock in the morning, he turned the lights low down, dropped his head in his hand and his heart was empty and he said: 'Is this all there is to it?'

"And the devil said: 'Clarence, you'll never be satisfied with the ball; you want fast horses and the race course.' And Clarence took a fortune, for he had plenty of money, and went throughout the south and bought four of the finest and fastest horses of the southland. Among them he had one, a blazed-face sorrel, whose name was Walter, that he loved more than the rest. He would go down to the stables and spend a lot of time with him in the stall. He'd feed him a little sugar and rub noses with him. He said he loved that horse better than any man he ever knew (until he met me.) He said the trouble with the races was not in the races, but in the company the horses had to keep. And I'll tell you boys, many of you would better yourselves a good deal if you'd get rid of some of your trifling companions and buy yourself a good horse.

"Well, the day for the races came and Walter was entered with four other horses. He got a poor start and was the last one off, but in one minute and a four seconds, he passed the fourth horse and then the third, and then he comes up with the first two and they are so close you could almost throw a blanket over them. And now the second horse falls back. They've been once around and are coming in on the home-stretch. Clarence is standing in a high fence beside a lot of bookmakers, dressed up in his patent leather shoes, well-creased pants, handsome light spring overcoat and a fortune in either hand. Something told him that Walter was going to win. 'Watch that big blazed-face sorrel,' he yelled. 'Why, it's like finding money.' 'Go on, Walter,' he cried, and the horse seemed to recognize his voice, his ears laid back and his tail was like the tail of a fox running against the wind, and down the home-stretch they came. Walter was about a nose's length behind, but they shot under the wire together and Clarence—well, he fell off the fence, rolled over in the dust, sprained his ankle a little, but was up and towards the judges' stand when one of his friends cried, 'Walter wins, Walter wins.' Tears rolled down the cheeks of my friend and when they brought the horses to the stable he put his arms around Walter's neck and hugged him like a child. Bystanders applauded. And then the rest of the afternoon and especially the night the dissipation, the revelry! The wine flowed and the money with it. Beautiful girls were there with be-witching eyes and low-cut dresses and Clarence was king of the night.

His Heart Was Empty.

"But when it was over and he was back in his room, he turned the light down low, dropped his head in his hands and his heart was empty. Poor, hungry heart; it was still and sad disappointed. It was not going to be satisfied with things like that. And the next morning he loaded his horses and took them back to Salem, where his father had built him a magnificent track. That night he walked down the streets of his native town with a heart that was yet unsatisfied and he came to a tent where John B. Culpepper was preaching the gospel and he heard the preacher say that if a man would forsake the world and do the will of Christ he would have a peace that passeth understanding and a joy that would be abiding. And as Clarence stood in the door of the tent he said, 'God knows that's what I want,' and when the preacher gave the invitation he walked down the aisle and my what a stir it made, for everybody knew Clarence Strouse—and he fell upon his knees in the straw, and the tears ran down his cheeks again the first day when Walter won the race, but they were different tears; and he said, 'O God, if you will do for me what the preacher said, I will never play another card; I'll never darken another theater door; I'll never be found on another ball room floor'—and then the struggle came—he fought as though he would die—but he said, 'Lord, if you will only do what the preacher says you will do I will soon tell 'Walter.'

"God filled Clarence's heart full of joy, where it had been empty before. From then on he became a great evangelist and toured the world preaching the Word of God.

"Before he went to his Maker, Clarence was responsible for thousands of men and women joining the cause of God and Jesus Christ."

SPELLS OF CONSTIPATION

Black-Draught Taken at The First Danger Signal, Is Found to Prevent Headaches, Gas Accumulations, Etc.

London, Ky.—Mrs. Elizabeth Spivey, who lives near here, makes the following statement:

"I have found Black-Draught an excellent medicine to use for constipation. Relief is quickly obtained and no bad after-effects follow its use. I have used Black-Draught in my home for thirty years, and have thoroughly tested its merits.

"Frequently I am troubled with spells of constipation which probably come from lack of exercise. A bad headache quickly follows and sometimes pain from gas accumulated in the intestines, bad breath and general discomfort.

"I have learned to prevent such troubles by taking Black-Draught at the first danger signal. Often my diet is such that the digestive tract does not function properly, thus causing constipation.

"Black-Draught has proved so effective, at such times, that I always keep it on hand in the family medicine chest.

"It is a regular medicine with us. We have often recommended it to neighbors and friends, because we believe in passing helpful knowledge along to others."

SHORT CHANGED?

Cafe Cashier Loses $5 in This Whirl of Bill Passing.

With the two women of a party of four working one of the smoothest "short change" games played here in some time, the Mistletoe cafe at 900 Ninth street lost $5 about 5:30 o'clock Friday afternoon.

According to Mrs. Bessie Ascue who was in charge of the cafe at the time, the two women and two men dined at a table and each of the four checks amounted to $1. When the party started to leave the women stepped to the cash register to pay the bills, one of them presenting a $10 bill and received correct change. The other woman presented a $5 bill and also received correct change.

And then the "game," which left officers dubious as to whether it was really a scheme to short change the cafe, was played. The woman who had presented the $10 bill asked to be given the $5 bill for small change and Mrs. Ascue complied with the request, she said. The woman then asked for the $10 bill, handing Mrs. Ascue the five for it as the four passed out the door.

A few moments later a customer told Mrs. Ascue that she had been short changed. So that's that.

GOLD HUNTERS BRING PROFIT

Industry Hums at Scene Of Nevada Find

TONAPAH, Nev., March 18. (AP)—The world having been told that the sage covered hills of Weepah hold perhaps some of the richest gold deposits in the United States, promoters, astute students of practical psychology, turned their efforts today toward cashing in on the alluring reputation the region has acquired.

Reminiscent of the old Goldfield boom when the presses of the surrounding towns were operated 24 hours daily to keep pace with the demand for "literature," the printing offices here in this town nearest to the scene of the gold strike have been swamped with orders.

Three presses have been given over entirely to turning out only air mail envelopes.

Air mail stamps also have leaped into great demand. One firm of brokers who bought $1000 worth of ordinary stamps protested loudly when it learned that air mail stamps had been made available.

Negotiations for the purchase of the claims of Frank Horton, Jr., and Leonard Traynor, youthful discoverers of the gold field, were reported to be nearing consummation for the largest price yet paid.

It was stated that should the deal go through it will be followed by one of the greatest mining publicity campaigns ever staged and later by intensive development.

Desert rats of 10 days standing and without a penny rub elbows with the real veterans of the hills.

The veterans, although without funds, have but one word when it comes to trading and that is a "million." The seasoned buyer laughs and the claim holder ultimately come back to earth. Ten thousand dollars will buy a promising group of claims and shrewd traders have gotten in for as low as $500 and a promise of a share of the stock.

Tonopah continues to be engulfed with newcomers. In addition to the long string of motor traffic two Pullman loads of adventurers arrived yesterday and four Pullman cars are due today.

NEW LICENSES

161 New Auto Plates Issued Here After Heavy Thefts

The automobile license bureau is doing a good, but unwelcome business in selling new license plates to car owners who have lost or had stolen their 1927 license tags, Guy C. Raley, county tax collector, said Friday.

There have 161 license plates for 1927 replaced since Jan. 1, Raley said.

"Some of these plates have been lost," he said, "but the majority stolen. The license bureau is always glad to replace the plates at a nominal cost of $1 but it entails a whole lot of work on the part of the clerks in checking the ownership of the cars."

BAPTIST REVIVAL

25 New Members Added to Highland Heights Church

A large crowd attended the morning services at the Highland Heights Baptist revival which is being conducted by Dr. Perry F. Evans. Friday morning Dr. Evans spoke on, "How May I Know That I Am a Christian?"

There will be no services Saturday morning, but there will be Saturday evening. Twenty-five new members have be neadded to the church since the revival, and the largest crowd that ever assembled in the building was reported Sunday night. Revival closes Sunday evening, according to an announcement Friday.

Some supposedly suppressed New York night clubs are said still to be doing business. Maybe because of tips that pass in the night.

Boy Who Admits Robbery of Train Proven Just Plain Liar by Officials

NEW YORK, March 18. (AP)—Little Frederick Buhl, Jr., a clerk, who padded out his undersized stature with clothes that gained him the sobriquet of "the millionaire kid," and who held a group of full sized politicians in a ring of spellbound attention last night with his dramatic tale of train robbery in Alton, Ills., was today in the peculiar situation of being able to tell a good "crime story" with no one to believe him.

Indication were, Brooklyn police said, that in spite of his thrilling confession of tear gas bombs, aliases, five accomplices, shots, mail bags, and $300,000 loot buried in a grave yard in Bismarck, N. D., little Freddie Buhl would be a free man tonight. No record of any train robbery near Alton, Ills., on August 23, was found after detailed search, postal inspectors said today.

The truth of the matter is, according to Dr. A. A. Brill, psychologist and translator of Freud, who was called into the case, the boy is a "pathological liar."

"There are many cases like this," he added, "due to emotional representation on the part of an individual. The confession to a mythical crime arises from a feeling of guilt. In the present case a crime with many dramatic elements in it was invented to satisfy an otherwise unimportant, ignored ego. It is what we call pseudologia fantastica."

Buhl was arrested last night in a Brooklyn rooming house on information given the police by a neighbor to whom the youth had been telling his story of the "big train robbery of 1923."

KEMP TO HELP BOOST TEXAS

Texas Resource Society To Advertise State

DALLAS, March 18. (AP)—Texas railroads are to co-operate in furthering the aims of the Texas Resource society, John M. Spellman, president of the society said here Friday upon his return from St. Louis.

He conferred with railroad officials in St. Louis about the work of the organization which has been founded to develop scientific information on the state's resources.

"Texas railroads are tremendously interested in the development of the natural resources of Texas, which is the principal object of the society," said Mr. Spellman. "They assured me that they would co-operate in the furtherance of the program and would lead their moral and financial support to the movement."

The society is to publish a magazine entitled "Texas" the first issue of which will appear in May. Its purpose, Mr. Spellman said, will be to present accurate information about Texas and its resources in an interesting readable form, its scope will be broad enough to include in its columns genuinely interesting facts about Texas. But its leading articles will tell of specific resources of the state, giving to the word "resources" the most liberal interpretation.

The magazine also will contain from time to time articles designed to stimulate interest in the work of full sized policemen in a ring carried on by various agencies in the state, such as the University of Texas, A. & M. college and other educational institutions.

A finance committee has been appointed composed of J. A. Kemp, Wichita Falls, chairman; Dave C. Reed, Austin; Lee Bivins, Amarillo; Nathan Adams, Dallas, treasurer; and Judge Spellman.

TIME TO TAKE ON REAL DRINK

But Moody in Chihuahua Sips Only Lemonade

EL PASO, March 18. (AP)—Said the governor of Chihuahua, Mexico, to the governor of Texas:

"Don't you think it's time to take a drink?"

In the land where Volstead laws and prohibition is unknown—Juarez, just across the Rio Grande from El Paso said the governor of Texas to the governor of Chihuahua:

"I'll take lemonade."

And that is all the governor of Texas did take. Congressman Claude Hudspeth of El Paso is author for the statement.

Barry Miller was governor of Texas for a short time Thursday for when Dan Moody was sipping his lemonade he was out of the state and the United States. Miller may not have known he was governor but he was until 6:30 p. m. Thursday.

Congressman Hudspeth said a young woman asked the governor to dance in Jaurez during his visit to the border city, but declared the former attorney general said he had promised Mrs. Moody to be back in El Paso at 6:30.

Governor Moody was back in the United States at 6:30 and Miller's reign as governor ended. Moody was honor guest at a banquet given by the chamber of commerce last night.

FLIER THROWN FROM HIS SHIP

But He Saves His Life After 2000-Ft. Drop

NORFOLK, Va., March 18.(AP) The story of how a naval aviator, thrown from his seat in doing a loop, clung to the braces of his machine while the plane plunged 2500 feet earthward, then managed to crawl back in, right the craft and bring it to a safe landing was told today at the Hampton Roads naval air station.

Lieutenant Commander Isaac Schlossback in a recent flight over Norfolk attempted a loop at an altitude of 4000 feet when the loop was half completed he slipped from his holding belt and was left clutching the brace bars while the plane roared upside down.

With fate as the pilot for a time the plane suddenly righted itself after dropping 2500 feet and the aviator climbed back into his seat, settling down and made a safe landing.

"The experience wasn't any fun," was all he said today when asked about the story.

Missouri Bans Texas Concern

Sale of Stock Prohibited By Commission

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo., March 18. (AP)—Orders to cease selling stock in Missouri were issued today by Fenton Stockard, blue sky commissioner, against the Idaho Gold & Platinum Extension Mines company, Reno, Nev., and C. E. Simmons and company of Fort Worth, Texas.

The Simmons order supplements a demand made by Stockard last December for the concern to stop attempts to sell shares of stock in the state. A person in St. Louis notified the commission here that five or six circular letters of the Simmons company for promotion of stock sales had been received since January 1 despite the cease and desist order.

Neither concern had applied for permission to sell securities in Missouri, Stockard said.

ARTIST GETS FORTUNE

MAMARONECK, N. Y., March 18. (AP)—Demand for autographs of signers of the Declaration of Independence means independence for John Cecil Clay, a shut-in artist, who was in straitened circumstances till he found in his barn a letter of Button Gwynnett which brought $51,000 at auction. Clay will receive 80 per cent.

"MYSTERY BOX" FLOATS IN AIR

San Angelo Reports Queer Phenomenon

SAN ANGELO, March 18 (AP) The mystery of a moving mortar box at central school here when some weird force that raised the heavy wooden trough four feet into the air when first it was discovered Sunday night by a watchman—was believed today to be solved. After proving by stakes driven around the box, which requires four men to lift when empty, that it actually shifted, E. L. Grimes, supervising architect, learned from M. B. Pulliam, pioneer school trustee that over 40 years ago a cess pool was dug near the spot where the first school was built with stone from Tom Green county's first court house at Ben Ficklin and soon was abandoned.

It is Grimes' theory that water leaking from the mortar box to the pool has created gasses that raised the box in escaping through a small depression over which the box rests.

GOOD SAMARITAN

Auto Tourist Picks Up Stranger and Loses His Wife

DALLAS, March 18. (AP)—Good samaritans who give strangers automobile rides should heed the words of a young man from Baltimore. He told Mrs. Albert Walker, welfare director, here Friday that a man whom he had given a lift on the road had stolen his wife.

According to the story which Mrs. Walker repeated, the young man with his wife and two little children started from Baltimore to drive to Los Angeles. In a Carolina town, they met a youth who said he was on his way to Dallas. They gave him a lift, but before reaching Dallas the young husband said he sensed an infatuation between his 18-year-old wife and the stranger. He ordered the traveler out of the automobile. He went.

"But my wife went with him," said the man from Baltimore, "and left me with the two little girls."

The girls are three and two years old respectively.

PLAN TO REVIVE ART

NEW YORK, March 18. (AP)—In an effort to revive the moribund spoken drama, Mrs. Fiske and Margaret Anglin will tour the country next season together and try to present the best plays in the best manner with art and good taste and without being highbrow or lowbrow.

U. S. WILL GET CUT IN TAXES

Coolidge Sees Chance For Big Reduction

WASHINGTON, March 18.(AP) Reports on tax collections presented to President Coolidge have convinced him that unless a business recession occurs in the present year congress at its next session will be justified in cutting the income and other revenue rates.

Determination of a tax reduction program, it was said at the White House today, is out of the question, however, until all returns have been made.

While the present flow of revenue into the treasury is satisfactory, the president has been told by tax experts that a recession of general business activity amounting to as much as 10 per cent would wipe out entirely the anticipated surplus for the fiscal year.

There are no signs of such a recession, the president has been told, and when the size of the actual surplus has been fully disclosed he believes it will be possible for congress to determine how much of a cut can be made.

$60,000 Mystery Jewelry Robbery In Chicago Hotel Puzzles Officials

CHICAGO, March 18. (AP)—A $60,000 jewel robbery, duplicating in its method of execution a hotel robbery of less than a year ago, today engaged attention of police and private detectives, despite the assertion by a house detective at the Congress hotel that there had been no robbery. Arthur S. Bower of Grand Rapids, Mich., western representative of Adolph Luthy and company, New York importers, reported to police that diamond-set jewelry belonging to his firm had disappeared from the vaults of the Congress hotel where, he said, he checked it Sunday.

Such secrecy has surrounded the investigation that the disappearance of the jewels did not become known until last night. Detectives were told that shortly after Bower said he checked the package of jewelry, another man, who said he was a jewelry salesman, checked a similar parcel. Confirmation of this was lacking from the hotel, but the police report was that this man returned later, presented a check to the vault keeper and was given the package the check called for—which was the one Bower is said to have deposited. Officers said they had not learned how the checks were switched.

Last June thieves, using a similar method, obtained $65,000 worth of jewelry brought to Chicago by George W. Beardsley of Newark, N. J.

100 U. S. Warships, 40,000 Sailors Pass In Review In Gulf Maneuver

UNITED STATES FLEET OFF GONAIVES, HAITA, March 18. (AP)—President Bordea of Haiti today reviewed the United States fleet of more than 100 warships. The 40,000 sailors manned the rails under a tropical sun as the Haitian president, accompanied by Assistant Secretary of the Navy Robinson, passed before the anchored fleet on board the cruiser Trenton.

An impressive national salute of 21 guns was fired from the biggest vessels. Fifteen admirals took part in the review.

The greatest force of American sailors ever assembled was disappointed when Admiral Hughes, commanding the fleet, prohibited shore leave at Gonaives. No statement was made as to the cause of the order.

Admiral Hughes, lecturing the division commanders on the lessons of last week's maneuvers, told them that the strength of the modern navy is in its power to dodge, shoot and steam. The official findings in the problems carried out in the manoeuvers have not been made public, although both the opposing sides claimed victory.

MODISH MITZI

Sweaters Have Infinite Variety

By JAY V. JAY

"Don't you wish something would happen, Dad?" asks Mitzi evidently fed up with the day. Came a ring at the door bell. "Boxes for Miss Mitzi," says the maid. Before she opens them notice the straight shoulder-to-shoulder neckline of her dress and the odd slanting collar.

Her sweaters arrived. She bought a number because she'll need lots to keep up with sweater fashions. She wears a square neck bow sweater with narrow stripes forming a border at the top and bottom. The matelot sweater with the round neck and stripes is popular and the sweater with the straight neckline worn under the spring suit is another good bet.

The collarless sweater worn with the pleated crepe de chine skirt is smart. The neck is bound with grosgrain ribbon. Grosgrain ribbon is also used at the sides to give a sort of bolero effect. This is worn with the classic tailleur. There are others, others with porous weaves, dropstitch stripes, ombre and zig-zag stripes. Other necklines, other stripes.

Mitzi pauses for a moment to let Dad regard this sweater. Dad however does not notice that it has an unusual neckline with a set-in piece at the shoulder. No. Nor does he see that it is silk and wool striped. All he says is: "For you, Mitzi, variety certainly is the spice of life." Dad has a lot of circumstantial evidence backing his statement!

Nagging Wife Bound to Lose Out To the Smiling Business Woman

Words of Wisdom Written by a Married Man, Showing Contrast Between Smiling Business Woman and the Nagging Wife—Why Do Older Men Like This Stenographer, While Young Men Pass Her By?

Dear Miss Dix—You published a letter the other day written by a mother of three children who asks why married men are so dumb at home and who says that her husband doesn't engage her in conversation as he did before they were married.

The reason married men don't chatter at home is because they don't dare to take the chance.

Every married man, with some exceptions to prove the rule, knows that the slightest attempt at conversation on the other side of his doorsill will lead to acrimonious debate, if not open fight.

Every man is born with an instinctive desire for peace with the other sex—a peace which he can not enforce by mandate or violence, as can the magistrates and nations of the earth. Neither can he obtain it by prayerful suit. So he approximates it by keeping his mouth shut around the house, which, if a slavish proceeding, at least avoids the alternative.

The whole trouble proceeds from a substitution in the form of legal marriage, for the natural selection which arises through sexual attraction. So long as a boy and a girl are trying to please each other with the objective of social possession everything is lovely. They each act to the part of a congenial companion. After the honeymoon, which I once defined as "that period of human experience which lies between the last agreement and the first fight," marriage does its stunts in the usual way, with mighty little variation.

When her trousseau wears out and she needs new clothes, when the baby comes, when relatives-in-law on either side begin their inevitable encroachment, when the purchase of furniture proves to have been in excess of reasonable expectations financially, when a neighboring bride has a radio set and she has not, when he uses their little automobile for business and she isn't in it all the time, when any one of a thousand things begins to happen, then for the first time they realize that "life is real, life is earnest."

Gone is the glamour of expectancy! Present is the stern fact of realization! And staring them in the face is the sneering truth that, as Sherman said something or other is hell. But it isn't war—it's married life!

At this critical juncture two things happen. One. She forgets to make a haven of rest. Two. He stops wondering why, and seeks most of his recreation somewhere else.

The details would make a book. Every incident would be interesting, but you couldn't print it in your space. Skipping all of the contributing circumstances, they arrive at the stage where every home coming on his part is the beginning of a rehearsal of yesterday's serio-comic drama of domesticity.

It's the same today, tomorrow and evermore. Complaint, nagging, suspicion, distrust, whining, and on his part first a pleading resistance, alibis, denials, explanations and finally a sullen subsidence into the last remaining refuge which is silence.

Here begins the terrific but inevitable tragedy. And believe me, Lady of the Lovelorn, it is tragedy—a tragedy greater than the World War, for the loss of 23,000,000 victims dead in that war is not as great to them as the daily personal suffering and gradual estrangement proceeding logically and resistlessly from a progressive series of events.

Dismissing all others as of minor relative importance, the big fact is that the Woman forces the Man to find his recreation other than at Home.

Protected by a Law which has taken the place of Love, she proceeds to assert her marital rights, if not in words, then in actions and general attitude, until she has him thoroughly broken to the despairing fact that he has lost every vestage of manly independence and of individuality and that he is no longer a Man, but is only a Married Man, which is vastly different.

He is precisely in the position of a man locked in jail, who, given the opportunity and the tools, will break out to freedom. That is not an exaggerated comparison, it is the stern truth.

At home he meets a woman who is his Mandatory Mate—she is the living presence of a Necessity, a Compulsion, a Penalty. Downtown he meets women who have no legal hold on him. If he does not employ them, they are pleasant acquaintances, because they have no nagging reason for being unpleasant. If he does employ them, they are pleasant, because he will fire them if they are not.

No man with a grain of sense will keep a woman in his employ who nags him, finds fault with his personal appearance, jumps into him about where he was last night, with whom and why, or does any of the other things that a complaining wife does regularly and habitually.

The Nagging Wife and the Smiling Woman in the office are established institutions, and the Nagging Wife may as well realize first as last that she is in competition with the Woman Downtown.

This interest in the Woman Downtown may be impersonal, and usually is, but it is mighty easy for any man to shift his eager desire for sex association; and the woman in the home, if she doesn't know that, simply doesn't know her business of being a wife.

I assert confidently that every man who lives would rather have a happy conversation with the woman who married man than with any other woman on earth. But you know and I know that if he doesn't it's because he doesn't dare, knowing a fight may break out at any moment and on the slightest most unintelligent basis. And you and I know that the Woman Downtown is not going to let any conversation lead to unpleasantness if she wants to keep her job. And that's that.

If a married man doesn't chat with his wife at home it's because he wants peace more than he wants anything else on earth. More, even, than he wants that kind of a wife. THIRTY.

Answer—These are words of wisdom, wives, written by a married man from a married man's standpoint, and I commend them to your prayerful consideration.

Read this over and cut it out and put it between the leaves of your Bible or paste it on your mirror or wherever you will see it oftenest. It may keep you from having one of those husbands who is enduring matrimony instead of enjoying it. DOROTHY DIX.

Dear Dorothy Dix—My trouble is that I seem to attract married men and older men, while single young men care nothing for me. I am a stenographer and meet many men in business, so I don't understand why I make a hit with the men who can't marry me, while I never have a date with men that could marry me if they wanted to. The difference in my attitude to married men and single men is that with married men I discuss business intelligently and with single men I try to be entertaining. I don't get on with either. Why do older men like men and young men [illegible] me by. B. B.

Answer—Just because you act naturally and nobly and independently and like a rational human being with the men you are not trying to attract, while with the men you do want to attract you are artificial and silly. Many girls make this same mistake. They are so anxious to please men that they overplay the part and disgust them.

I have seen really intelligent girls who acted like simpering fools every time a man was around because they had an idea that men liked artless maidens. I have seen girls who giggled incessantly and who screamed hysterically over every trifle and who hopped about like jumping jacks because they thought men admired vivacious girls. I have seen girls who thought they had pretty eyes roll them like dying calves and other girls who always posed languidly like some movie star they admired.

And men hated them all, whereas they would have liked them if they had been simple and natural and common sensical.

"Be yourself, kid," is the best advice that anybody can give a girl who wants to be popular with men. DOROTHY DIX.

Pineapple Pudding.

Slice fruit and fill a pan half full. Sprinkle with one-fourth cup of sugar and pour in one-fourth cup of water. Make a batter of one-half cup of sugar, one-fourth cup of butter, half a cup of sweet milk, one cup of flour with one heaping teaspoon of baking powder sifted in. Stir all together and spread over the fruit. Bake or steam until done, about 30 minutes. Serve with whipped cream.

Your Own Sweets.

If you wish to have chocolate-covered nuts or fruits, and have none in the house, sweet-eating chocolate may be melted and dates, figs and raisins covered with it. Two tablespoons of water should be added to each pound of chocolate, which should be melted over hot water. Dip quickly.

How to Achieve Beauty by Mme. Helena Rubenstein

EXERCISE FOR BEAUTY

Stretching Is Chief Feature of Newer Exercises

Stretching is one of the first requisites of aesthetic dancing, and the A. B. C.'s of aesthetic dancing form the basis of this newer type of exercises which I think are so beneficial.

I have always been enthusiastic about stretching, which is a favorite exercise of mine, and years ago I can remember a series of stretching movements to retain litheness and suppleness of figure. Stretching is particularly good for limbering up muscles which do not come into play very often, in overcoming jerkiness of motion, and for attaining the elasticity which gives rhythm and grace to movement.

And it is so easy to stretch. It really requires much less effort than to go through a hard and fast regime of setting-up exercises and it really does one much more good.

So remember to stretch often. Begin in the morning in bed, when you first wake up. Rise on one hip and elbow and stretch the other arm out as far as you possibly can. Slowly raise it from your side upward until it almost touches the back of your head and you will begin to feel a pull in your shoulder joint. Then roll over and rest on the other hip and elbow and repeat the exercise.

Another good stretching exercise you can do while in bed is to lie and stretch first one leg and then the other out as far as possible, pointing the toe and trying to touch a mark that is just beyond reach.

Or sit up in bed and stretch the arms to their fullest length on either side and imagine you are being pulled tenaciously from first one side and then the other, or from both sides at once by an invisible but powerful force. While you have your arms stretched out in this position, take this opportunity to prescribe eight or 10 circles with them, revolving arm in arm sockets.

Repeat this arm stretching exercise until you feel tired, the sort of tiredness that produces a yawn. Because if you stretch so as to produce a yawn you know you are really stretching and relaxing and not simply going through a series of muscle tightening exercises.

Whole Wheat Pancakes.

Mix together three cups of whole wheat flour, one teaspoon of salt and two teaspoons of baking powder. Mix one and one-half cups of milk and one tablespoon of molasses. Stir in the dry ingredients. Lastly, add one tablespoon of melted butter. Beat until well mixed. Bake on a slightly greased griddle and serve hot with maple syrup.

PARENTS GUIDE CHILD'S TASTE

Expert Tells Why Tots Often Become "Finicky"

"'Bobby will not take a drop of milk.' This and similar statements are uttered by many mothers who are finding Bobby's ideas a problem," says Miss Ada Lockhart, nutrition specialist of the National Dairy Council's Ohio unit. "Bobby sits with a wise look on his face, even firmer than before in his co-called 'dislike' for a wholesome food."

Miss Lockhart does not find Bobby really has a distaste for milk, in her observations in two cities, recently. "In practically ninety-nine cases out of a hundred," she explains, "he refuses to take it because of some remark he has heard his mother or father make, such as 'He won't drink milk, but I guess it's natural, as his father before him did not like it.'"

Lifelong tastes and distastes are formed when a child is two to five years of age. Here is a time when parents may guide their child to take the necessary quart of milk a day as a matter of course; to enjoy carrots and spinach; and to be eager for his morning dish of cereal and milk.

"If fathers could conceal their dislikes for various wholesome foods before their children and if mothers did not need to explain their failure to eat the proper foods because they 'are afraid of becoming fat,' it might never occur to the child to dislike a certain food," concludes Miss Lockheart's survey.

Opinions make an indelible impression on the young mind. To prevent the child from becoming a 'finicky' eater and finally an undernourishment problem, she urges parents to set an example to their children by being enthusiastic advocates of wholesome foods.

ONE-DISH MEAL

Salads For This Purpose Should Be of Protein Foods

Salads which are most appropriate for the main dish are those composed of protein foods. Such foods are chicken, meat, fish or cheese have protein sufficiently good quality so that if accompanied by bread, rolls or sandwiches, a relish if desired complete. A light dessert may be served, or a hot soup quickly made from canned soup may give the stimulation of a hot food which is often desired. This dessert may be of fruit in any form, fresh, cooked or as frozen juices, with or without wafers, cookies or cake.

At one time we looked upon salads as a luxury in the meal. Now it is a necessity in the dinner and is usually served at the luncheon, elaborate afternoon tea and late evening supper. Practically every food which we have lends itself to the salad and our only concern seems to be the occasion on which to serve the various salads.

The ingredients of the salad must always be carefully prepared. The greens must be clean, crisp and cold. The meat, fruit or vegetables must be cut carefully and also kept cool. Vegetables and meat should be marinated to make them tasty and juicy before combining in the salad. To marinate is to allow them to stand in a French dressing. This process brings out the flavor.

If you like the taste of garlic or onion, try rubbing the insides of the bowl in which you intend to mix your salad with a small piece of garlic, and you will be delighted with the results. Rubbing with garlic, only gives a slight flavor to the food.

PRIZE JELLY

Yes, that's my apple jelly,
And that's the currant there.
They took first prizes, both of them,
Up at the County Fair.

Why, no, I don't mind telling
What makes them sparkle so—
Nothing on earth but sunshine,
Before they "jell," you know.

Make them the same as always,
Then put them in the sun.
They drink it in and hold it.
Sun won't fail anyone.

You know, I think some folks need
The selfsame thing as well—
A long, deep draught of sunshine
To make their spirits tell.

Wise Cook Gives Careful Thought To Appearance of All Dishes

DENTON, March 18.—There is no doubt that appearances have muh to do with the attractiveness of foods. There are those that are bright colored and those that are white that are the most popular. The rich brown probably ranks next in favor. A prominent food chemist ridiculed the popularity of tomatoes as only a color flavor appeal. Later he learned that they are one of our best sources of vitamines. Another of our mineral and vitamin-containing foods is pot-herb group, to which spinach, mustard and turnip greens belong. These are not so well favored as to color. Cooking changes the delicate green of the fresh vegetable to one less pleasing. This may be overcome by adding mashed potatoes, shaping into croquettes, and frying in deep fat, suggested experts in the home economics department of the College of Industrial Arts. This gives the brown color and delicious flavor that is so popular.

Breakfast
Sliced Oranges, Oatmeal with Cream, Poached Eggs on Toast Bacon, Jelly, Coffee, Milk for Children

Luncheon
Cottage Cheese, Buttered Beets, Bread and Butter, Mashed Potatoes, Cookies.

Dinner
Veal Cutlets, Bread, Butter, Potato and Spinich Croquettes, Tomato Aspic, String Beans, Apple Pie Hot Tea, Mashed Potatoes

Select small potatoes; if potatoes are large, cut them up in other small pieces in order to shorten the time of cooking. Steam boil until thoroughly cooked. Drain and shake in pan over fire to dry them out. Mash thoroughly, making sure there are no lumps. Season with salt and butter. To one quart of potatoes use one teaspoon of salt and one tablespoon of butter; add one-half cup of milk or cream. Beat thoroughly, to make potatoes creamy, smooth and fluffy.

Add milk gradually because it is not possible to state the exact amount which will give the proper consistency. Too much milk makes the potatoes too soft and mushy. Good mashed potatoes are rather difficult to secure; so one must use judgment and care in their preparation.

Tomato Jelly or Aspic

1 quart tomatoes stewed and strained, one teaspoon salt, one teaspoon sugar gelatin.

Measure juice after straining. Allow two teaspoons gelatin to each cup. Soak gelatin in cold water 10 minutes, add to juice, bring to boiling point, pour into molds and chill. Serve with mayonnaise or boiled dressing.

Potatoes and Spinach Croquettes

2 c boiled Irish potatoes, 1 egg, salt and pepper, 2 teaspoons butter, 1-4 c spinach. Bread crumbs, 2 eggs, 2 quarts fat for frying.

Mash hot boiled potatoes. Add butter, egg slightly beaten and spinach finely chopped. Season with salt and pepper; shape, dip in crumbs, in eggs, and in crumbs again; fry in deep fat and drain, on brown paper.

MAKING MODERN MENUS

A fruit salad may be merely a conglomeration of fruits to some housekeepers, but there are others who realize that in its preparation it may take on the semblance of something quite different. The frozen fruit salad has been most popular for the last year os so and there is another sort which is being used at luncheon parties at the present time.

Special Fruit Salad.

Beat the yolks of six eggs until thick and lemon colored. Add one cup of confectioner's sugar and stir until sugar is dissolved. Add the juice of two lemons and one-half teaspoon of salt. Line a salad bowl with lettuce leaves, and place on them the sections of two oranges and one grapefruit, two or three kumquats slivery very thin and three bananas cut across and then lengthwise into 12 pieces. Pour over one-half the dressing and repeat the layers of fruit. Pour over the remainder of the dressing and place on ice. Serve very cold.

Another pleasing desert is this one:

Apple Sauce Cakes.

Beat together one-half cup of cream with one-fourth cup of melted butter until the two are mixed, then add two beaten eggs and one teaspoonful of ground nutmeg. Line six saucers with a light biscuit dough and fill with Delicious or any other soft-fleshed apples which have been pared, cored and cut up into small pieces. About 12 apples will be needed. Pour a little of the batter over each saucer and build up edges with strips of biscuit dough. Sprinkle generously with chopped nuts and bake for 30 minutes. Serve with whipped cream.

Cheese Monkey.

Soak one cup of stale bread crumbs in one-half pint can of tomato soup. Melt one tablespoon of butter and add one cup of cheese cut in fine pieces. Stir until the cheese melts, add crumbs and seasonings and cook and stir until mixture boils. Add egg beaten slightly, stir and cook one minute and serve on small crisp crackers or toast.

HER DAY of WORK and PLAY

by AMY ABBOTT ©ers

Where It All Goes.

What is responsible in these days of scanty clothing, for the high cost of woman's dress? Of course woman has a great many more gowns than she used to have, but she has eliminated cumbersome and lacy underwear, and whereas, eight yards used to be required to make a dress, three yards now does very well! In a recent investigation of the subject the interesting fact came to light that it takes all the money which is saved on dress to keep thin enough to wear the modern frocks. Experts on dress say that the revealing styles demand slenderness; and, of course, exercise, massage and dieting under a doctor's care cost money. They more than make up the difference.

Silk stockings more than balance the extensive lingeries of former days which is now nearly lacking. Cigarette bills, accessories and the cost of bobbing and shingling all outweigh in cost the more comprehensive garments of former days.

The Youth's Country.

It is always a sign of the extreme youth of a country when it worships extreme youth. America is the land where the flapper has her innings—and her outings.

Nicholas de Vadasz, Hungary's celebrated painter, says that a woman is not really beautiful until early autumn has tinted her and she has acquired those little kindly expressions that come from the sorrow of an affair of the heart. He says that the beauty of the flapper is the beauty of a child, which could not possibly hold the interest of a mature man.

The men of the Old World pay homage to the charm of the woman of years and experience.

Pushes Poetry for Youths.

"Girls should be encouraged to write more poetry," says Miss Helen Ferris, editor of the American Girl. "Their inward love of this type of expression is revealed in the great amount of poetry which they produce at the ages of 10, 11 and 12. From the 35,000 girls who are subscribers to the American Girl, we get more poetry than anything else. Girls who write poetry at this age and write it well may not become fine poets, but they broaden their appreciation of the subject."

Miss Ferris believes that we have made a mistake in extending artistic recognition to musicians and painters of youthful years and denying the same possibilities to youthful poets. She believes that it is possible for much fine poetry to be produced during the adolescent period even when the talent dies out with maturity.

Women Study Real Estate

One of the newest courses for women at the Y. W. C. A. centers is one in "real estate." It is essentially a practical course designed to revolutionize house-building from the feminine point of view.

Students begin by picking out a site for a home, the choice of the site being determined by its nearness to schools, railway stations and markets.

The best type of house for the grounds and locality is next determined with special thought being given to lighting, heating, plumbing and the installation of all modern conveniences. The course has its business side as well, for lectures on selling real estate are included.

A GREAT GOVERNOR AND HIS SONS

JAMES STEPHEN HOGG passed on to his reward years ago. He was the first native called to the office of governor. In his youth he was a printer. Then he became a lawyer and a leader of the democratic party. He overturned or smashed the mightiest machine that had been created in Texas from the close of the Civil war until the coming of the printer boy as the leader of the people. He had a program of legislation. He put that program over.

He became attorney general to do it; he became governor to do it; he retired to the ranks to complete the job and he never abandoned the trail until he had completed it. Then the men who followed his flag asked him to take a seat in the United States senate. He swept the offer aside. He said he knew his limitations. He did not care to be an American senator. Those who had backed him in his battles regretted his decision. They felt that in the senate he would have been a great tribute to the plain people not alone of Texas but of America.

Now his boys are back. Will C. Hogg was a university ex when James E. Ferguson vetoed its appropriation bill. That veto led to the ousting of Ferguson from the office of governor. Years roll on. The klan issue came uppermost. Will Hogg backed Mrs. Ferguson in the great contest where Judge Felix Robertson was the leader of the opposition.

Then the star of Dan Moody flashed and Hogg became one of the most active supporters of the young attorney general. He never rested until Moody was nominated and elected and inaugurated. Now he is a regent of the University. Now Mike Hogg is a member of the lower house of the Texas legislature. Judge Norman Kittrell died. This made a vacancy. In a field of five Mike won hands down.

It is well that the sons of great fathers should be active in the affairs of a state. There is constructive work to be done in Texas. A vast deal of constructive legislation must be enacted. This first native governor in the long ago paved the way for the coming of the bright men of the future, the men who believed in a government of the people along the lines laid down by Jefferson and carried on by the fathers of the Texas republic and then the commonwealth of Texas

Men of wealth should shoulder their responsibilities as citizens. Qualified men should not be barred because of their wealth. They have the time to devote to the science of government, to the affairs of government and they should give some of that time to the state that the fathers made and pass on to be guided by those who come after them. This isn't a eulogy of the Hogg family. It is a plain statement of fact.

This is the age of young men. All the old guard leaders have pased away. No, not all. There are a few survivors. Youth is glorious and is not a coward. Youth is willing to carve a new road if a new road happens to be necessary for the people.

SO THIS IS TEXAS

WILLIAM THOMAS WAGGONER is a ranchman and oil king. He has a ranch of more than 800,000 acres in the Wilbarger section. He has vast herds of blooded cattle. He sold 8000 steers for spring delivery to J. H. Huddleston of Kansas, and received $600,000 from the Kansas feeder. To ship the cattle to Kansas will require 266 cattle cars, and they will be fattened in the Sunflower state for the market.

This is said to be the largest cattle deal made in Texas in many years by an individual and represents only a part of the cattle that run on the Waggoner ranches. William Thomas Waggoner is a ranchman who bored for water on his ranch near Electra and brought in an oil gusher. This was less than a quarter of a century ago.

He is the owner of thousands of acres of oil producing land. He has his own refineries and tank cars. He is among the last of the cattle barons that lorded it over the west when the range was free. He clings to his acres. He sells leases on oil lands and there is no telling the size of his golden pile if all his holdings could be turned into cash.

He is not a high roller. He is not a free liver. His daily personal expense account is less than the most extravagant of his salaried employes. William Thomas never tells his left hand what his right hand is going to spend. Simplicity of an ancient vintage is his rule of living, and he doesn't care who knows it or who likes it.

ATTENDING TO THEIR OWN BUSINESS

EFFORTS to have the 40th legislature condemn the policies of the United States in Latin-America failed in the Texas senate when that body tabled a resolution by Senator Thomas B. Love indorsing the resolution on the subject introduced in the last federal congress by the democratic side of the house.

The Coolidge administration directs the foreign policy of this government. There will be an election take place in 1928. If a majority of the qualified voters of America wish to change the foreign policy of the government, it will be their American privilege to vote out the republican administration and vote in a democratic administration.

Texas has two senators and 18 representatives. These democratic lawmakers should be able to take care of the business of Texas in the capital of the republic.

BORAH NOT TO BE BLUFFED

SPEAKING of Mexico and Nicaraugua, Senator Borah of Idaho says he knows what he wants to do and he knows that no amount of criticism will prevent his doing it. This is the slogan of Blanton of Texas. Borah of Idaho should invent a new one

"THE SOB-SISTER"

A STORY OF MYSTERY, SUSPENSE AND LOVE

WHAT HAS HAPPENED:

DIANA BROOKS, beautiful daughter of ROGER BROOKS, owner and publisher of the Catawba City Times, and nine other newspapers, was kidnaped, and in a few days released, unharmed. Her father redoubles his scathing attacks on politicians of the Ring and leaders of the Underworld. A few days later Brooks himself disappears. DONALD KEENE, literary editor of the TIMES, learns that Brooks newspaper stock is being manipulated. He suspects JOHN W. WALDEN, prominent lawyer, of being involved in a plot to wreck the Brooks organization. TEDDY FARRELL, reporter and Sob Sister, accompanies Don in a search for Brooks. Don is wounded and forced to remain entombed for 50 hours in a sub-cellar, Teddy with him. The Sob Sister effects their rescue and they are taken to a hospital, where Teddy soon recovers, but Don remains ill with pneumonia. BILL CANFIELD, city editor, and DINNY MORRISON, young reporter in love with Teddy, meet at Diana's home and as they prepare to visit the hospital, Roger Brooks suddenly reappears. On the way to the hospital he tells the story of his abduction.

NOW GO ON.

CHAPTER XII.

Don had been in the hospital six days. At dawn of the seventh day his nurse left his bedside with a cheerful face. Her patient had smiled squarely into her eyes when she had come to attend to him a moment before. His eyes were clear and bright, his breathing easy.

To her professional pleasant greeting he had even attempted to respond with a "good morning." His voice was pitifully weak.

It was not until the eighth day, however, that Bill Canfield and Dinny, visiting him, felt that Don could with safety be told the story of his rescue. But even then, when Don heard it, his pulse went up alarmingly and a great wonderment contorted his face.

Teddy visited him later on that eighth day. Dinny and Bill had told her there was no doubt now about Don's recovery.

She approached his bedside almost shyly. It was unnecessary for her to speak and she couldn't have done so had she tried. Not right then. Her heart and soul were too full of gratefulness for his recovery—too full of the infinite love for this man which the brave little spirit still believed she had kept secret.

The old smile, sweetly womanlike, lighted the sick man's face upon her entrance. And there was a new, a deeper shade of tenderness in his voice when he spoke to her.

"Bill and Dinny told me about it, Teddy girl. I hardly know what to say. It's difficult to thank you in words for what you did. I have th' same feeling I imagine must grip th' hearts of a vast audience in a theater reviewing a wonderful drama, a thousand spectators too deeply touched by the performance to applaud. So I must give your brave act the 'silent tribute'."

Don's voice broke. He took his protege's tremulous hands in his own and carried them to his lips. There was nothing theatrical nor affected in the action. It was just the spilling over of his pent-up emotions. His eyes were blurred with unshed tears.

Both were too overcome with feeling to speak for many seconds. The scene in the sub-cellar spun about chaotically in the girl's brain. Now, in aftermath, the episode came back to her with a vividness that was startling. She comforted herself with the thought that Don had been unconscious when she had made her wild declarations of love. . . .

Don, too, was revolving in his mind recollections of those hours of horror. But some inexplicable power made them both hesitate for a time to speak of it. Each felt separately that a new bond had been created between them. . . . At the same time each was unconscious of the other's feelings.

Teddy attributed this feeling to her own hopeless love. Don to his secret knowledge of her revelation of that love. He had been sick and half crazed down there in the damp cellar of Bino's fruit store, unconscious of his surroundings. Just once he had rallied to a fleeting consciousness. That fragmentary lucidity had been just enough to convey to him a realization that shocked and pained and at the same time thrilled him. His little protege loved him. He revered her. He owed her his life. But, in all honesty he could not say that he cared for her in the way, evidently, that she cared. Perhaps some day he might. He didn't know. . . .

"Poor Charley!"

He spoke softly after a long silence. "He didn't deserve to die like that—and for me!"

The eyes of the girl looking down at him were wells of tears.

"Don, I must retract my promise. I cannot marry you."

"It was a beautiful thing to do," she said in subdued tones as if speaking of the dead gangster in his death chamber. The toughened but loyal soul of Charley Costello seemed to pervade the hospital room.

"Come closer, Teddy."

She complied, taking Don's hands in her own.

"I have something to ask you." The girl waited.

"Will you marry me, Teddy?" he asked finally.

She could not bring herself to lift her eyes. A blinding tumult surged up and through her brain and body.

He barely heard her low-spoken reply, "Yes, Don," as she bowed her head and sunk her hot face in his pillow. Then because she was ashamed of her tears and blushes she kissed him swiftly full on the lips and rushed from the room. . . .

Later, out in the street, her tempestuousness abated. . . . He had asked her, Teddy, to marry him! Him—her Don—oh! . . . She pressed her hand against her breast in an effort to lull the too sharp ecstasy that ached there. And yet by the time she had ridden the swaying, jerking trolley car back to the office her face was markedly pale. Franny Blake, passing her desk, noted this and commented on it.

"Don't you feel well, Teddy?" she asked with friendly concern.

She was startled at the unusual pallor in the little reporter's face. Teddy's brown eyes lifted from her typewriter and they were like luminous embers against a snowy background.

"Oh, yes, I feel all right," she answered, but her voice was hoarse.

"Well, as leng as you do," said Franny, kindly, "but if you don't you must go home and get some more rest. Bill Canfield would be very sorry to have you working when you're not fit. You're th' special pet of th' office now, you know, Teddy," she concluded with a smile.

It was a rather wan little smile with which Teddy expressed her acknowledgment of the other girl's consideration and compliment. Franny went back to her own desk and Teddy inserted a sheet of copy paper in her typewriter.

"He didn't tell you he loved you."

She had by slow degrees arrived at this thought, and it kept repeating itself over and over again in the recesses of her brain like the words of an old song.

"He doesn't love you. He would have said so if he did."

It was hammering away in her brain. The keys of her typewriter ran together and then grew distinct intermittently. She heard voices—Bill Canfield's, Franny's and Mabel Gibson's—as if from afar off.

Don—Lola—Charley Costello — names, names, names! They rang in a confused jumble in her ears. She typed mechanically. As if in a dream she saw boys running back and forth with long sheets of copy paper. . . .

"Make that for th' first edition!" That was the voice of the city editor. . . . "That's th' third alarm on that State street fire." . . . One of the men on the telegraph desk was talking. . . . She tried to concentrate on commonplace affairs—those of her regular workaday world. Why weren't they thrilling her today? She wasn't responding to the speed and tension of the big newspaper plant. . . .

Teddy could remember but one thing. Donald Keene had asked her to marry him. . . . Out of—was it gratitude? Yes, she told herself sadly. Or perhaps it was pity. But he had NOT said he loved her.

Somehow she wrote the story the data of which she had secured early in the day. Somehow she managed to smile when she handed it to Canfield and he, after a rapid perusal, exclaimed: "Great stuff, Teddy! Peach of a yarn!"

The day seemed endless. At 7 o'clock she was going back to the hospital to see Don again. The prospect was both sweet and bitter.

It was natural that Don should try to express his gratitude in the only way at his disposal. Teddy, of course, did not know that his proposal of marriage had been prompted by something more than just gratitude—his knowledge of her feelings toward him.

Her eyes were unnaturally bright when she entered his room. He noticed, when she smiled, that her lips were bloodless and drawn at the corners.

"You've had a hard day, haven't you, Teddy?" he asked kindly.

"Yes, very," she answered simply and glanced restlessly away. Her fingers were clasping and unclasping as was their habit when she was unduly nervous. Then she seemed to gather herself—to get a clutch on her courage. It was as if she were waiving aside any preliminaries.

"Don, I must retract my promise. I can not marry you!"

He looked at her, studying her face intently for a long time.

"Why, Teddy?" he asked finally.

She waited to rather control. Then:

"Because, Don, you do not love me. At least you did not mention that you did. And marriage with the love all on one side—"

The voice broke in a choking sob.

He made no response, offered no encouragement, no explanations. He appeared instead to be wrapped in thought. Teddy waited, daring to hope that he might protest that he did care for her, that it was not all one-sided. But she did not ask him. . . .

(To Be Continued.)

BO BROADWAY ..... By Joseph Van Raalte

NEW YORK, March 18. (EFS.) H. W. Fowler, the grammarian and editor of the Oxford Concise Dictionary, has discovered that most dramatic critics are afflicted with zeugma. Why dramatic critics should be especially liable to this disease, he does not explain. Zeugma (I have just discovered by looking into the dictionary) is a grammatical ailment which leads writers to use sentences in which a verb is made to govern two nouns, with only one of which it is grammatically or logically connected, as "the control and support which a father exercises over his family." The verb "exercises" is applied only to "control" and not to "support."

Henry Blackman Sell, editor of the Dilineator, has announced that his magazine will no longer read and consider unsolicited manuscripts submitted by individuals. He will buy only through authors' agents or from authors he will directly approach with commission to write stories or articles.

This announcement has caused considerable consternation in the Authors' league. But, though Mr. Sell is the first to announce this plan as an editorial policy, it is a plan that is, in effect, already in operation in many magazine editorial offices.

A board of readers is maintained in every magazine office to pass upon manuscripts submitted by individuals. In a popular magazine an average of about 500 unsolicit-manuscripts are received every week. Except for the ones that are obviously impossible from the very first page, these manuscripts are usually conscientiously read. Probably five per cent are found worthy of a written report by the first reader, and passed on to the editor or the associate editor for second reading. But out of this five per cent, not one manuscript in a hundred is finally accepted and paid for.

This puts a heavy burden of editorial expense upon a magazine and is fruitful only rarely of a genuine discovery in the way of a short story or article. It is very fruitful, however, of enemies; for every author who has a manuscript rejected feels more or less offended by the editor.

Most manuscripts published by New York magazines are bought from agents. Mr. Sell speaks with some justice and logic when he says that if an agent refuses to handle a writer's stuff, there is little likelihood that that author's work will be acceptable to any magazine. Almost every author of any consequence employs an agent.

Booth Tarkington, who receives I believe, the highest word rate of any writer living, could sell in advance his entire literary output for the next 10 years, without paying the agent the regular 10 per cent commission. But Mr. Tarkington employs an agent because he finds it worth the commission he must pay an agent to take the financial details off his shoulders and to prevent his time from being taken up by correspondence and interviews with editors.

Agents do not handle poems, however, and the poetry used by magazines is selected from unsolicited manuscripts. No one who has ever examined the manuscripts received weekly by magazines would believe the number of people in this country who write or attempt to write poetry. During the last 10 years the New York Times alone has published poems by 1500 different poets. It is estimated that the number of poets who have actually sold poems to newspapers and magazines in this country is about 20,000. The number that write poetry, of course, is many times that figure.

The Man Nobody Knows

INSTALLMENT XLII.

The Last High Moment.

Even at that hour it was not too late for him to have saved his live.

Suppose he had said to himself: "I have delivered my mesage faithfully, and it is no use. Judas has gone already to bring the soldiers; they will be here in half an hour. Why should I stay and die? It is only eighteen miles to Jericho, bright moonlight and down hill all the way. Our friend Zacchaeus will be glad to see us. We can reach his house by daylight, rest tomorrow, cross the Jordan and do useful work the rest of our lives. The disciples can finish; I can open a carpenter shop, and teach in a quiet way. I have done everything that could be expected of me. Why not?

It is all perfectly possible. The rulers of Jerusalem would have been glad to be rid of him on such terms. He might so easily have continued on down the hill to peace and a comfortable old age—and oblivion. It was the last great temptation and decisively he dismissed it. He walked a little ahead in silence, followed by the eleven—for Judas was with them no longer—and coming to a quiet place, left them while he went away for his last hour of high communion with his Father, God.

A few minutes later he returned to find them sleeping. Even so short a vigil had proved too heavy for their feebleness. In the hour of his greatest need there was no help from them. Again he went away, his spirit torn with agony. He was young, thirty-three; he did not want to die. He cried out to God that the cup might pass from his lips; that he might have time to sweep away the charges to build up the fragile stuff of his little band on whom the whole future of his message must depend; time to round out the full measure of his years and influence. So he prayed, and coming back, found them again asleep.

This time he did not disturb them. The high tide of his revolt had subsided; the courage which had never deserted him throughout the three years cleared his soul, steadied his muscles.

"If it be not thy will that this cup pass from me," he prayed again, "then, Father, thy will be done."

It was the victory chant after the battle. With the calm peace of the conquor he could make ready for the end. He had not long to wait. The soldiers were already at the entrance of the garden. From his vantage point on the side of the hill he could mark the progress of their torches across the brook and up the path. The clang of their arms rang jarringly through the trees; rough exclamations smote the evening air like profanity in a temple. He waited until the armed men stumbled into his presence and then, rising, stood before them.

"Whom seek ye?" he demanded.

Startled, awed, they could only mumble his name.

"Jesus of Nazareth."

"I am he," he answered proudly.

They had expected angry denunciation, perhaps resistance; these they understood and could cope with. But such calm, such dignity were beyond the boundaries of their experience. Involuntarily they gave way, and, rough veterans as they were, some of them "fell to the ground." It was a tribute silent but magnificent.

"I told you," he repeated calmly, "that I am he." And then, his thought rebounding at once to those who had shared his triumphs and his sacrifices through the years. "If therefore ye seek me let others go their way." But he had no need to think of the disciples' safety. Already they had made their swift escape—the last of the deserters—

—first his home town
—then his best friend
—then his relatives
—then the crowd
—finally the eleven.

All who had stood at his side had gone and left him to face his fate alone.

On a barren hill beyond the city walls they nailed his perfect body to the cross. Two robbers were crucified with him. It was over. The rabble had sickened quickly of its revenge and scattered, his friends were hiding; the soldiers were busy casting lots for his garments. There was nothing left of the external influences which fire men's imaginations or grip their loyalty. Surely the victory of his enemies was complete; he could do no miracle there, hanging on a cross.

And yet—

"Jesus." It was the voice of one of the robbers. "Jesus," he says painfully, "remember me, when thou comest into thy kingdom!"

Read that, oh man, and bow your heads. You who have let yourself picture him as weak, as a man of sorrows, uninspiring, glad to die. There have been leaders who could call forth enthusiasm when their fortunes ran high. But he, when his enemies had done their worst, so bore himself that a crucified felon looked into his dying eyes and saluted him as a king.

THE END.

Every one that is proud in heart is an abomination to the Lord: though hand join in hand, he shall not be unpunished.

By mercy and truth inquity is purged: and by the fear of the Lord men depart from evil.

When a man's ways please the Lord, he maketh even his enemies to be at peace with him.

Better is a little with righteousness than great revenues without right.—Proverbs, 16:5-8.

"It takes more than legs to draw a crowd nowadays," declared a theater manager. "That's because you can't get a soda clerk excited about sodas."

A husband shooter may have the courage of her convictions, but she'd rather have the courage of her acquittals.

Fellowship of Prayer

Daily Lenten Devotion

Topic for the Week

"CHRIST IS A SPIRIT"

Saturday

"It Means We Shall Be With Him"

SCRIPTURE: Read — John 14:1-24.

"I go to prepare a place for you. And if I go and prepare a place for you, I will come again, and receive you unto myself" (Jn. 14:2, 3). "Beloved, now are we the sons of God, and it doth not yet appear what we shall be: but we know that when he shall appear, we shall be like him: for we shall see him as he is" (I Jn. 2:2). "When Christ, who is our life, shall be manifested, then shall ye also with him be manifested in glory" (Col. 3:4). "If we endure, we shall also reign with him" (II Tim. 2:12).

See—Matthew 25:21; John 12:26; 14:28; Acts 1:11.

MEDITATION: God, Christ and man, all being spiritual, unite naturally in a common spiritual society. To be with them in a world that is not material will mean a vast change. We are accustomed for the most part to physical intercourse; we have little longing to give up this mode of conversation. When, however, the change comes from the largely physical to the wholly spiritual relation, we may expect the necessary adaptation that will make us at home. How vivid will be our purely spiritual experience at first may depend upon our spiritual development here; but even those with feeble spiritual life can grow "from glory unto glory." This is the home which in the "Fellowship of Prayer" we are nourishing.

"Thou canst not rise too high for the source; thou shalt go to God because thou hast come from God."

HYMN:

Immortal Love, forever full,
Forever flowing free,
Forever shared, forever whole,
A never ebbing sea!

We may not climb the heavenly steeps
To bring the Lord Christ down:
In vain we search the lowest deeps
For Him no depths can drown.

But warm, sweet, tender, even yet
A present help is He;
And faith has still its Olivet,
And love its Galilee.

—John G. Whittier, 1866.

PRAYER: Thanksgiving for health of body and soul.

Pray for—the spirit of holy adventure; the aged.

Collect—O Lord our God, Father of our Lord and Saviour Jesus Christ, Thy love is unsullied, full and free. Thou art conquering the hearts of men by the surrender of Thyself. Thou art showing high trust in us, can we not trust Thee. We praise Thee for the life, death and resurrection of Thy Son in whom we see the Father. Give us to know the fellowship of His suffering and the power of His resurrection with its pledge of our ongoing life. We beseech Thee to be our ally in the conflict with evil. Give us the love that triumphs. Use us for the transformation of the world into the kingdom of Christ. Seal within us our purpose to live for eternity and to Thee be all the praise. Amen.

Local Police On Watch For Suspect

word from Montague county authorities that the party had hijacked a woman in Bowie and had headed this way. No details of the robbery were given to local police.

TWO HOMES HERE LOOTED BY BURGLARS; YOUTH HELD.

Cutting the window screen to gain entrance to a house which had both the front and back doors unlocked, burglars entered the home of J. S. Walker, 1206 Denver street, between 9:30 and 10:30 o'clock Friday night and took a cluster diamond ring and a 17-jewel wrist watch.

The burglary occurred while the Walker family was away from home, it was reported to Officers Perdue and Deaton who investigated. When the family returned the house was found to have been ransacked. All of the window shades had been drawn by the robbers and all of the inside doors opened.

Three hours earlier the home of J. E. Elams, 1104 1-2 Bluff street, was entered through a window and about $5 in cash a small amount of fruit taken.

Police hope to connect with recent burglaries a young man who was arrested on Taylor street Friday night after a resident on that street reported that some one was prowling in the neighborhood and peering in windows.

plied that he would not sign the bill until the investigation could be made.

Relief Not Secured

Judge Huff in stating that the new bill would not give the needed relief to this section of Northwest Texas pointed out that the second court of civil appeals in Fort Worth, of which Wichita county is a part, according to the new bill, had 199 cases appealed in 1926 and that the new bill includes counties in the jurisidction of this court that appealed 177 cases in 1926.

The entire state in 1926 had 1497 civil cases appealed; With 11 appellate courts the average for each court should be 136.

Figures Cited

As the second court of civil appeals, based on 1926 figures, will have 177 cases filed in 1927 the court docket will still be overcrowded due to the fact that the average number of cases for each court is 136.

For this reason, Huff asserted, Wichita county and adjacent counties placed within the second court of civil appeals jurisdiction by the new bill will not receive the needed relief.

War Scare In East Europe

By Universal Service.

BERLIN, March 18.—Under the scare heads "War Threatens East Europe," the German press is featuring sensational reports that the Poles are planning to invade Lithuania tomorrow, occupy Kovno and present the country to Pilsudski as a birthday present.

The reports were started by semi-official Russian charges that Poland, instigated by England, has prepared an ultimatum to Lithuania and that England has approved armed Polish action.

Diplomatic sources here assert that the Poles are concentrating several cavalry regiments and armored trains and flying squadrons on the Lithuanian border.

A Reval dispatch at the same time reports the discovery of a plot by a Lithuanian regiment to mutiny and overthrow the government.

The Poles deny any hostile intentions, denounce the Russian reports as propaganda and point out that the Pilsudski cabinet is scheduled to attend the festivities at Kattowitz on Sunday.

There have been several border clashes on the Vilna front lately but an invasion is held unlikely at this time. The reports, nevertheless, are indicative of the nervousness caused by the British-Russian conflict and the continued rumblings of the Baltic volcano.

Bribe Traps Pen Official

NEW ORLEANS, March 18. (AP)—Charles M. Thompson, former assistant superintendent of the shoe factory at Leavenworth prison, tonight was convinced that $3000 a year in cash was better than $68,000 in words.

Held by federal authorities after a chase which had led them through several states on the trail of Thompson and John P. Carroll, former prisoner at the penitentiary, he admitted that he had aided Carroll to escape after the latter had offered him $68,000 to do so.

"I have never received a penny of the money," Thompson added.

He believes Carroll honest, however, he said, and thinks he intended giving him the money at the first opportunity.

They trailed the pair through several states and said they were close upon the fugitives' heels several weeks ago in Kentucky when Carroll and Thompson arranged to meet again in New Orleans.

Thompson, conversing with a newspaper reporter in the presence of deputies, said that Carroll had offered him $68,000 to get him out of prison. As assistant superintendent of the shoe factory, he said, he was getting $3000 a year and the offer "went to my head."

He expressed regret that he had been unable to resist the temptation.

of firing the city hall in an effort to force an entrance to the jail. All filling stations were closed, however, and this was abandoned. The boys returned to the municipal building with a replenished supply of stones and the assault on the building was resumed with vigor.

No efforts was made by the guards inside the building to halt this and an American flag waved from a front window of the hall met only jeers.

Five young men were arrested at 11:30 o'clock charged with breaking into hardware stores and looting the stocks of guns and ammunition. Several others were disarmed and their guns confiscated.

Another crowd began collecting in front of the city hall at 11:50 p. m. There was no outward show of violence, however.

OFFICERS TELL MOB PRISONERS ARE GONE

COFFEYVILLE, Kan., March 18. (AP)—Tear gas was used to repulse an attempt by members of a mob to storm the city jail here tonight in search of three negroes arrested in connection with an assault early today on two white girls.

The attempt to force an entrance came after officers had announced that two of the negroes had been released from custody and that the third had been smuggled out of the jail.

While more than 1,000 persons were milling around the building, a group of about 100 men climbed to the roof of an adjoining building and placed a ladder across to a window of the city hall in which the jail is located. When two of the leaders started across the ladder officers fired tear gas guns and the men retreated.

Prior to the sortie by the mob, members of the crowd had been permitted to enter the jail and search it. Officers assured them that the negroes were not there, and the prisoners were not found.

MILITIA CALLED OUT TO THWART RIOTERS.

TOPEKA, Kan., March 18. (AP) Troop B., 140th Cavalry, Kansas National Guard, stationed at Coffeyville, tonight was called out to render assistance to the civil authorities in handling the riot there, Adjutant General Milton R. McLean announced.

BLOODHOUNDS PUT ON CHASE OF ASSAILANTS

COFFEYVILLE, Kan., March 18. (AP)—An enraged mob of several hundred white persons gathered outside the city jail here tonight following the arrest of three negro men in connection with an assault early today on two white high school girls by three negroes.

The mob surged about the building muttering threats, while armed deputy sheriffs and policemen augumented by 20 deputized civilians held the three entrances to the jail.

A fire hose, attached to a pumper, was placed at the main door ready to be turned loose should the crowd attempt to rush the entrance.

Feeling was tense throughout the day and motor cars carrying armed men made frequent trips through the negro district following the assault on the two high school girls last night.

The two girls were alone in the house when the negroes entered through a bathroom window. One carried a club and another a pistol. The negroes demanded money, dragged the girls from the room, beat them and assaulted them, according to information given the police.

Screams of the girls attracted a neighbor woman who notified the police and the negroes fled. Sheriff W. D. McCrabb and deputies expressed confidence today in their ability to handle the situation. It was indicated the negroes would be taken out of the county to avoid violence should they be captured.

Officers In Charge

Sheriff W. D. McCrabb and C. P. Cathers, chief of police, were in joint command of the situation. Both expressed determination to hold their prisoners from the mob at all costs.

Ten armed men were stationed at each entrance to the jail with orders to repulse any attack by the mob.

The mob formed late in the afternoon when word spread rapidly through the town that bloodhounds from Kansas City had arrived and had been given the scent of the attackers.

As the hounds led the way through the main thoroughfare of the city into the front entrance of a negro barber shop opposite the city jail and through the rear door to the negro section of the city, the crowd grew and excitement became intense. The town had been seething since the news of the outrages became known this morning.

When the dogs led the way to a negro shanty, the crowd surrounded the building. Within, the officers found three negroes, who were placed under arrest. Fearing violence from the mob, the officers left their prisoners under guard, and attempted to disperse the gathering by saying that they had found the house empty.

The ruse failed and after a two-hour seige, the officers made a break for the jail with their prisoners.

Two Brothers Held

The negroes held were Curtis Smith, a barber, who has lived here 20 years, and Vanges Harden, 20, and his brother Garvin, 22.

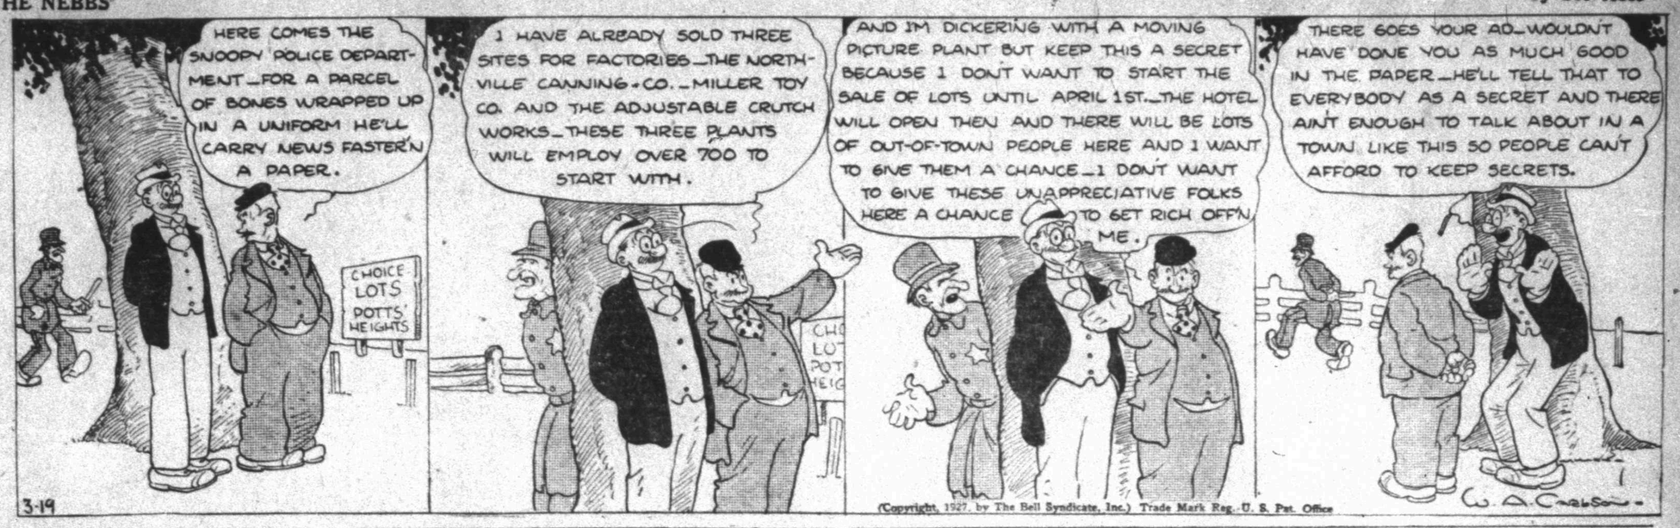

The attack occurred in an unlighted room and police said positive identification of the assailants might prove difficult. The girls reported that they had scratched one of their assailants on face and neck, and one of the girls said she bit the finger of another. Police tonight refused to disclose whether the prisoners bore any marks of the struggle. The girls were alone in the house when the negroes entered through a window.

JUST LIKE A GOOSE.

RALEIGH, N. C.—Rural labor shortage holds no horror for W. S. Kinrey. He puts his geese to work. It is being told in Albermarle that last fall he harvested nine 500-pound bales of cotton from 10 acres, "hoed" by three geese and 13 goslings. Up until then his neighbors laughed at him but now they are seeking his "system." Kinrey waits until the cotton plants are big enough to be too tough to tempt appetites of geese. Then he turns his "hoers" into the field to feast on grass and weeds.

MOSCOW, March 18(AP)—"We are ready to abandon the production and use of poison gas if other countries will do likewise," says the official Izvestia, today, speaking in behalf of the soviet government.

KID DUGAN By Dick Dorgan

Friend Al,

Now all I need is the jumping toothache and a nail in my foot because Mack has bawled me out, my wife has all the money, and this double crossing Dugan has taken Sampson back as his manager after I found him when his name was Anthony Blue. But there was a fellow around here the other day telling me about real estate and how a smart man could make money so don't be surprised if I stay here and get to be a millionaire. If Mack wouldn't get sore, I would take a sock at this Kid Dugan, myself. What a sucker Tunney will make out of him! Bet the family jewels.

Your friend,

Jack Keefe.

SPORTING NEWS

THE RECORD NEWS

FIRST ACCURATE COMPLETE

TAKE IT OR LEAVE IT—

Fascinating Chess—
That Brutal Game—
Smoke Screen Barred—
Mustn't Stamp Either—

BY GENE FOWLER

NEW YORK, March 18.—Claims of "foul," raised by contemplative chess masters, are distrubing sportsmen no little. When it became known that I actually had attended one of the sessions of the Six Grand International Masters during their New York marathon, I was asked the following questions:

"Did Capablanca get hit a low blow?"

"Is it more brutal than six-day-bike racing?"

"Do the masters wear boxing gloves or just safe-and-sane brass knuckles?"

"Is it true that they play with such blinding speed that it looks as though they are not moving at all?"

It is high time such insiduous gossip be stilled. Chess is played with the mind, which, of course, bars pugilists. And without pugilists, how can there be low blows struck? The cry may be raised that I am replying to question No. 1 by asking another. Still, that system was followed by Socrates, and I hope I am big enough and broad enough to admit that Sinclair Lewis and myself are not a great improvement on the highly-touted Athenian—or, was he a Long Islander? Of course we live in a more advanced age. We have a boxing commission.

As to the other questions, I shall pass them by entirely. That is what Schopenhauer did with women. Am I—and Lewis, too, for that matter—more clever than Schop? You can just bet your red and green traffic signals we are!

The "foul" trouble, it seems, originated when M. L. Lederer razzed Dr. Emanuel Lasker, German chess champ. Other elements entered the controversy, Capablanca joining in some remarks that seemed unchessy. Lederer claimed that Dr. Lasker was unfair in his chess table manners. It was alleged by Lederer that the German Doctor—Say, are all these chess players doctors, physicians, surgeons or what?—that the German doctor smoked such strong cigars that an opponent was overcome. This cigar, or cigars, it is thought by inquisitive scientists, inspired the chess term "stalemate."

Did Lederer stop there? Was his accusing finger lowered after this ghastly accusation? No, a thousand times no! He added that Dr. Lasker aided and abetted his noxious smoke screen by yelling unduly at attendants. At times, it is inferred, an opponent would be led to believe that it wasn't Dr. Lasker at all but was Announcer Joe Humphries exercising the larnyx at the New Garden.

Smoke of Pittsburgh proportion is bad enough, in the opinion of chess players. But noise is positively fatal. It was a chess master who once yelled at his cat, when the latter was crossing a Chinese rug:

"Hey, you'll have to cut out that darned stamping!"

Chess players never picture the bad place of the next world as a region of fire and brimstone. They believe that it contains a boiler factory and a flock of riveting outfits. One Grand Master was asked where he got his cauliflower ear. He confided:

"We were playing, Dr. Lasker and I, in Copenhagen, when, suddenly, some ruthless spectator winked his eye!"

Dr. Lasker, commenting from Trondjhem, Norway, said that Lederer was in error all the way from first base to home plate. He declared his smoking style was such as made the fumes curl away from an opponent. Lederer had suggested that the opponent curled, and rapidly, too, away from the fumes. Dr. Lasker went on:

"I have servants who have been with me a long time. This should indicate that I know how to treat attendants with consideration."

Dr. Lasker, thoroughly aroused, continued that when he played Jose Capablanca, world's champion grand master, something funny happened to the clock that records the moves. He intimated that somebody had given the clock the same treatment the boys used to award scales when a prize-fighter was overweight but had to appear at the correct poundage or fork over a forfeit. This was done by adjusting a piece of innocent gum in the works.

Both sides in this terrible conflict of chess minds have arguments that appeal to the imagination. But what we would like to do is to mollify all concerned so that chess can be saved fer the fans. If those who are so bitter over cigar smoking would stop to consider, it would be apparent at once that matters could be far worse than they are. Just suppose Dr. Lasker began chewing tobacco?

FORT WORTH, March 18.(AP) The Chicago White Sox, with Hunnefield and Barrett hitting home runs with a man on each time, defeated the Fort Worth Texas league club Friday, 6 to 1. Barnabee and Thomas worked for the winners, Bird and Hubbell for the losers.

It was a snappy exhibition. Bick Kerr, hero of the Black Sox series of 1919, when he wore a Chicago uniform, will go to the mound Saturday for Fort Worth against his old team. Score:

Chicago	6	8	0
Fort Worth	1	9	0

SAINTS WIN IN 12TH, 10 TO 8

LaFayette and Mann Show Way With Willow

Just a sprinkling of ball bugs trekked to the Spud orchard Friday and witnessed a bludgeon battle which, all except the pitching, was worthy of mid-season.

St. Paul of the American association took an up-and-down affair from the home guard but was forced into 12 innings of play before nosing the wire by a 10-8 margin.

Wichita Falls pummeled Heimach and Betts with artistic rudeness and touched up Zahniser and McQuade in addition sufficiently to tag the score card with 16 safeties. The Saints picked on Lester White, Jack Reir and John Buvid to the extent of 16 wallops.

White curled a few and looked pretty fair during the five cantos he worked. Had not Long Beach been a little wild, walking 'em and hitting 'em at the wrong time, the Williams whammers may have copped the victor's share. Lester by his performance gave notice somebody is going to have to hustle to beat him out of a job on the Spudder staff this summer. Reid took it easy and was pinked for three tallies in the first round he worked. Buvid flogged 'em across at a dirty clip through the tenth and eleventh stanzas but bumped disaster in the twelfth when cracks by McQuade, Scarritt and Stuvengen scored a couple. The examine looked like a sack of gold and with a little tempering down may prove one of the Spudder's best bets.

Bloody Bludgeons.

George LaFayette and Johnny Mann came to camp with their batting orbs sharpened. For each of 'em poked out a trio. LaFayette drove the first pitch over the fence, connected for a double and a single. From Mann's bat sprang a brace of two-cushioners and a bingle.

Swenson, Jenkins and Fitzgerald each punched a pair.

The power was there. With the hurlers rounding into trim and naturally more improvement expected in the artillery department, she's a rosy outlook.

Second game of the series is carded Saturday afternoon at 3 o'clock. Williams more than likely will use John Roberts and Vernon Glass on the pitching slab.

Rough at Start.

St. Paul got nasty right at the start. Anderson and Robertson touching Whitey for bingles but sharp work by LaFayette and Tobin on Scarritt's foul out right field way doubled Anderson at the plate. Stuvengen popped out to Mann at short. Then the Spudders smashed into Heimach with gusto and tabluated three runs before anybody knew what was what. LaFayette kissed Heimach's initial offering for a joy ride over the port palings. Tally one for the Spudders. Then Mann dug up the dirt at the base of the left field boards with a full bloom double. Fitz burned a bounder to second and was chunked out. Mann drew up at third. He was tagged off the bag when Robertson came up with Lamb's lusty larrup to the hot sector. Jenkins and Turgeon doubled in succession, checking two more runs.

The Wichita Falls advantage was not for long because the Allen outfit balanced accounts in the second on base blows by Haas and Heimach teamed with a base on balls, a hit batsman and an infield bobble. The Spudders menaced but mildly when LaFayette poked a two-bagger to right with White on by virtue of a walk. Quick work on the infield halted the advance.

Saints Take Lead.

St. Paul forged a run to the fore in the third while our nine was held scoreless. Whitey walked one, hit another with a forceout and a one-sack shunt by Durocher put the tally in the bag. Swenson then came up with a double killing at third, taking Gaston's skidder, tagging the base for a force and lining the pill to LaFayette before the hitter arrived.

Two stanzas went scoreless although Mann paired a double with a base on balls to LaFayette in the fourth after there were two away.

The American association crowd got to Jackie Reid in the sixth after there were two down, chasing over three markers. A hit batsman, misjudgment triple tapped to center by Anderson along with a jungle heave by Jack, a walk and bingles by Robertson and Stuvengen shot 'em into the slot.

Gang Gets Rosy, Too.

The domestics got rosy themselves in the seventh and eighth to the chargin of one Huck Betts, the former Cat chunker. LaFayette, Mann and Fitzgerald biffed a bevy of bingles in the seventh for a couple of counters. Singles by the great Lapan and Reid, free transportation to LaFayette, Mann's bounder and a money punch down the first base line by Fitzgerald tabbed the clock for three more.

Our old friend Deeble Foss got into the game for the Saints at second in the seventh. He took a chance at the plate in the eighth and didn't do anything else but line the leather over the left field barrier fair and true. Wasn't anybody on at the time. The run and the Spudder three that followed knotted her up at 8-8.

Everything thereafted until the twelfth was slick, snappy and scoreless.

PHILLIES NEED HURLERS

Scarcity of pitchers is hampering the Philadelphia Nationals. So handicapped are they in this respect that the Columbus American association team has been asked to cancel an exhibition game scheduled for Plant City on Monday. There are 11 pitchers in the Phillies' camp at Bradenton. Four are on the sick or injured list and several others are not far enough advanced to work in a regular contest.

Sport Slants

NEW YORK, March 18. (AP)—The payroll of the New York Yankees this season not only sets a new high mark for any club in major league history, but eclipses the amount that Colonel Jacob Ruppert and his former partner, Colonel T. L. Hutson, paid for the entire outfit a dozen years ago.

With Babe Ruth topping the list at a fancy $70,000 the colonel's check book stubs likely will show total disbursements to his athletes of about $250,000 for the 1927 campaign.

This would mean an average of around $10,000 a player, but it isn't the whole story. Manager Miller Huggins is understood to be drawing down $25,000 per annum, while the coaches, various assistants, bat boys and business staff help boost the total.

By contrast, it cost the "battling colonels" only about $265,000 in 1915 for the club, franchise and all. Ruth alone would be worth at least that much on the open market now.

Tex Rickard would be better satisfied with his heavyweight tournament survivors if there was more "socking" ability among them.

"Nowadays it isn't the scientific boxing exhibition that packs 'em in," asserted the promoter, "but the expectation of seeing 'em fall."

"The fans understand the knockout, but not the skillful footwork and jab," says Rickard. "That's why Jack Dempsey was the greatest drawing card of all heavyweight champions. Mike McTigue became a box office sensation by developing sudden knockout power."

For this reason Jack Delaney and his "rapier right" may get back into the heavyweight tournament, especially if Jack Demrsey changes his mind about trying a comeback.

"Watch Germany!" declared Lawson Robertson, 1924 American Olympic head coach, on his return from a trip to Europe. The word that 400 athletes will represent the country in 12 Olympic sports seems to bear out Robertson's view.

The Teutons have revived athletic interest and ability with customary thoroughness. They already have turned out one world's champion in the young engineer, Dr. Otto Peltzer, who holds the world's half mile record and showed his heels last season to Paavo Nurmi and Edwin Wide at 1500 meters.

Phone Athletes Hold Exhibition

Boxing Card Leads Bill For Weekly Meet

The Plant Employes Athletic association of the Southwestern Bell Telephone Co., held their weekly exhibition last night in the basement of the Telephone company building.

The first number on the card was a 30 minute time limit wrestling bout between Shorty Wilson and Jesse Lowrance, light weights, going the full limit to a draw.

The second event was a two best out of three falls to a finish between two colored boys, welters, Richard Boyd and Henry Riley. Boyd took the first fall with a body scissor in seven minutes, Riley took the second fall in 17 minutes with a body scissor; also copping the winning fall in nine minutes with an arm scissor and hammer lock. The bout was fast and interesting from start to finish.

The final event was a scheduled four-round boxing exhibition between Robert Abnot and Olen Hearn, welters. The boys clipped off two fast rounds in professional style with points about even until Abnot hurt his hand and was forced to retire after the end of the second round, the bout going to Hearn on a technical knockout. These boys put on a first class exhibition and would have been a cridit to a professional event.

The district association will meet in Fort Worth Monday. C. W. Sims, chairman from Wichita Falls office will attend this meeting.

CUB PILOT PEEVED

Manager McCarthy is a bit peevish over the epidemic of charley horses and lame arms that still prevails among the Chicago Cubs, who have been at work almost three weeks. He said that in the old days players did road work in the winter time to toughen up their legs and that pitchers worked out in cellars, if necessary, in order to report in condition.

Rube Marquard In Giant's Garb

Southpaw Shows in Box For Gotham Nine

ATLANTA, March 18. (AP)—A 40-year-old southpaw, who has spit upon the glove and thrown a fast one over for several major league clubs in the long gone past has returned to his old love, the New York Giants. John McGraw in announcing Rube Marquard today as his pitching choice against the Washington Senators, partly set at ease the rumors that have flown thick and fast in Florida for the last 24 hours that he was angling for both Adolpho Luque of the Cincinnati Reds, and Marquard.

In the first three innings of the exhibition contest at Tampa this afternoon, the "Rube" showed that he had lost little, if any, of his cunning. His cat-like motions in the box caught both Manager Harris of the Senators, and Buddy Myer napping at first. The Nats made a run in the three frames Marquard was on the hill.

As for Luque, the talk of trade continued, but official comment was still lacking. Jack Hendricks of the Reds, said several days ago that the Cuban might be sold. The Boston Braves are known to be seeking his services.

The reason assigned for McGraw wanting him is said to be the lack of form shown by Jack Bentley, who is understood to be slated for sub-first base duty and the pinch hitting role.

While the undertone of deals go on, the shifting of the scene from the west coast of the peninsula state to the east is under way. The Giants have transferred their base from Sarasota, Fla., to St. Augustine and the Reds are marching that way for exhibition games. They are to be in West Palm Beach for a series next week.

Ferris Comes Back To Defeat Wallace

By ED FRAYNE

Universal Service Staff Correspondent

NEW YORK, March 18—Knocked down twice in the first round and once in the third, Sid Terris, the New York lightweight, made a plucky comeback and won a 10-round decision over Billy Wallace of California at the Garden tonight.

While Terris deserved great credit for his uphill battle, he did not deserve the verdict. The judges disagreed, one voting for Terris and one for Wallace, Referee Louie Magnolia settled the matter by voting for the home town boy.

Five rounds went to Wallace, and five to Terris.

A crowd of nearly 10,000 fans greeted the decision with mingled boos and jeers. Terris received as many catcalls as he did cheers when he left the ring. Wallace was given a whole-hearted ovation.

Nebraska Racer Shines As Star

Lloyd Hahn, Greeted As Great Runner

NEW YORK, March 18. (AP)—For the first time since Paavlo Nurmi crossed the Atlantic two years ago to scorch board tracks with his blazing speed America today boasted a mile runner capable of defeating the finest of foreign opposition.

To Lloyd Hahn, sturdy Nebraskan, now representing the Boston A. A. went the honor of re-establishing American supremacy when he conquered Edvin Wide, Swedish master of Nurmi, at the Knights of Columbus games in Madison Square garden Thursday night. Hahn won by four yards in four minutes, 12 1-5 seconds.

The time was one-fifth of a second slower than the world indoor mark held jointly by Nurmi and Jole Ray. The race teemed with thrills from start to finish; it lifted 12,000 spectators screaming from their seats.

Modern Engines Replaced Famed Volga Boatmen

By Universal Service.

WASHINGTON, March 18.—The Volga Boatmen, famed for their plaintive song, have quit towing boats, the national geographic society announced today. The Volga has become modernized.

For years, under the despotic rule of the Tsars, they tramped the shores of the river, hitched like dray animals to huge barges which they pulled with painful labor up and down the stream. Now modern oil-burning tug boats do the work.

BLACK SMACKS CARDINAL CLUB

Coyote Gridmen Stage Brisk Intra-Squad Tilt

Coach Coyal Francis' Black warriors of the divided Coyote squad emerged a 6 to 0 victory over Coach B. D. "Red" Ewing's Cardinal team Friday afternoon on the Junior college grid.

All who witnessed the game went away well pleased with the showing of both teams and many glowing compliments were spoken for them. They fought hard and all during the game they kept the fans in an uproar.

Three men in the Black's backfield carried the offense of the winners through the Cardinal line and around the ends. They also uncovered a great passing attack that went a long way toward winning the game. One pass went for a touchdown.

In the first quarter the Blacks shoved over a touchdown and were then held until the last quarter when they scored a touchdown and a safety. Ray George, Lefty Watson and Chick Chewning were the three star offensive men with the Blacks. These men divided running with the ball about even and all three did some good work.

Turner and Habern Star

Big Jim Turner and Red Habern were the outstanding defensive men with the winners. Time after time this pair broke through the opposing line and spilled plays before they could be started.

George and Watson led the second line defense by a wide margin. Watson's intercepting of passes with one hand was one of the features of the game. Several times Watson snared an opponent's pass and ran it back down the field for neat gains.

Shifty footwork and sidestepping by these three backfield men made possible many gains that meant much toward the scoring of their two touchdowns. One of the feature runs of this trio was Chewning's long return of a punt. This little speed merchant sidestepped his way through the Cardinal team and ran 40 yards before he was downed.

Hicks, Perkins and Dickey were the leaders of the Cardinal eleven on the offense. They played some great ball but they were unable to puncture the Black's forward wall when they were close to the goal line.

Perkins Gets Loose

Perkins' return for 35 yards on a boot down the field was the feature run of the Cardinal eleven.

Buster Padgett was by far the outstanding player on the line for the Cardinals. He was given some great help by Eggleston, Ramey and Joe Barnhart. Time after time Padgett broke through the line to break up plays and on several occasions he gave the kicker and passer much trouble in getting off the ball.

There were many spectacular tackles pulled and several other kinds of sparkling football and the game was a great success from the fans standpoint.

Bell Covers Block

The first touchdown came on a blocked punt which Edwin Bell covered behind the line for a touchdown. Watson then kicked the goal. The two teams followed with a punting battle which persisted until the last quarter when another score was added to the list.

The ball was about at the 20-yard line when Watson fell back for a pass. He saw no men open at the time and after sidestepping four would-be tacklers in a nice manner he heaved a long toss to Dale Dubblin, who stepped over the goal line for a touchdown.

The last two points of the game were added on a safety. With the ball almost on their goal line the Cardinals attempted a long end run. Ray George broke through the line and with a flying tackle he downed Olin Dickey behind the goal line for a safety.

Line-ups:

BLACKS	Pos.	CARDINALS
Kaufman	Right End	Long
Beaty	Right Tackle	Darnhart
Habern	Right Guard	Ramey
Turner	Center	Barton

PIRATES START TRIP

Manager Donie Bush plans to take the Pittsburgh Pirates from their training camp at Paso Robles to San Francisco Friday for a series of exhibition games beginning Saturday. The regulars Thursday trounced the yannigans, 3 to 2, when a single by Yde, pitcher, playing in the outfield, scored Johnny Gooch with the winning run in the seventh inning.

SPORTS VS. SYRACUSE

SHREVEPORT, La., March 18. (AP)—A squad of 16 players will entrain Saturday for Monroe, La., where the Shreveport Sports will meet Syracuse of the International league in a two-game series.

Outfielder Joe Grenade and Pitcher H. E. Wilkins joined the Sports Friday, leaving Pitcher Grady Adkins the only absentee.

Shooting 'Em Over In Texas Camps

By Universal Service.

FORT WORTH, March 18.—The third base job on the Cats is a toss up between Tex McDonald and Richardson, a youngster who compiled an enviable record with Evansville, in the Three-Eye league last year. There is no doubt but that both McDonald and Richardson will be carried on the payroll. McDonald is hitting the ball hard in practice but appears to be a little slow on the paths. Richardson, on the other hand, is one of the speediest infielders ever seen in action on the Cat diamond. At Georgia University he was a dash man and that may account for his almost lightning like speed in the base lanes. He is a sensational fielder and meets the ball just as squarely as Jakie Atz' famed outfield.

WOEHERS BACK.

SHREVEPORT, La., March 18. Andy Woehers will be seen cavorting about the dizzy corner for the Sports this year. Andy is fielding well in the practice sessions and Manager Phelan is confident he will better his .283 mark of last season.

DEEMS UNCERTAIN.

BEAUMONT, March 18.—Jim Galloway is uncertain about his third baseman. He has Del Capes, a former Eastern leaguer, in camp and Willie Andrus, a Beaumont boy, whom the Exporters have a contract squabble on with the Decatur club, is another aspirant who must be reckoned with. In addition to these two youngsters, Galloway has Fred Dorman, Spudder shortstop last year who sustained a broken leg during the last half of the pennant grind, trying out for third.

TAYLOR AT HOUSTON.

HOUSTON, March 18.—A former Southern association star will cover third for the Buffs this year. He is Tommy Taylor, once voted the most valuable player in the Southern association. He is a sure hitter, has a strong whip, plenty of pepper and scoops 'em up out of the dirt with ease. With Tommy a sure fixture at third, Joe Mathes is wondering what to do with Lauzon, a youngster from the Cotton States league, who has showed enough stuff in the spring training season to warrant his name being kept on the payroll.

GLASS AT WACO.

WACO, March 18.—There is little doubt in the minds of Waco fandom who will get the assignment at third this year. It is almost a cinch that Clyde Glass, who hit .350 in 34 games with the Cubs last year, will be back at his "ball burning" station.

FATE WITH STEERS.

DALLAS, March 18.—It is practically certain that Joe Tate, the diminutive chap who swings an "eight by eight" at the plate, will tend third for the champion Steers this year. Last year Tate hit .273 and fielded .943 in 118 games which isn't bad for a third sacker in the Texas league. Taking his early season work as a criterion it looks as if the little fellow is on the verge of his greatest season.

MITZE PICKS PHILBIN.

SAN ANTONIO, March 18.—Philbin appears to be Honus Mitze's choice for third base. With Karl Segrist on his way to Yeakum where he will join the Omaha club of the Western league, Philbin has only Weedman as an opponent for the berth. Philbin besides fielding his position well has been a consistent hitter in the spring exhibition games with the Detroit Tigers.

Bullfighter To Seek High Post

Mexican Athlete in Race For Governorship

By GEORGE W. HINMAN, JR.
Universal Service Staff Correspondent.

MEXICO CITY, March 18.—The foremost bullfighter in Mexico's national life today faced the prospect of entering what, in American parlance, might be called a new kind of bull-ring—politics.

The toreador is Rodolfo Goana, one of the most spectacular of the world's bullfighters; and his friends are now putting him forward for the post of state governor of Zacatecas.

After establishing a world-wide reputation, Senor Gaona retired from active fighting a few years ago, and invested his savings in a Zacatecas farm. He insisted that he was through with spectacular performances, and that he was going to spend the rest of his days as a simple, but—he hoped—successful farmer.

Last December, Senor Gaona received a personal visit from President Calles, in whose honor he returned to bullfighting for an afternoon. His fellow-bullfighter of the afternoon was Secretary of Agriculture Luis Leon.

Now, the politicians of Zacatecas would get the bullfighter into their ring. The distinction of having entertained the president, they say, will count heavily in his favor with the people of Zacatecas, and they express confidence in their ability to make him governor of the state.

Tigers' Pilot Has Big Chance

Moriarty May Elevate Detroit to Flag

SAN ANTONIO, March 18. (AP) Manager George Moriarty of the Detroit Tigers is in a position this year to emulate Hughie Jennings' feat of 20 years ago in lifting the team out of the sloughs to a pennant.

Jennings took hold of the Detroit managerial reigns in 1907 after the club had gone pennantless for 20 years and piloted it to three league championships in a row.

Moriarty faces the same situation. He faces a team with abundant ability. The players for the most part have finished regularly around the top in the individual standings and yet the team has continued in a slump for the past several years.

Baseball fans are speculating as to whether Moriarty can succeed in leading the squad to height by his system of applying velvet where Cobb failed with sand paper.

STEERS VERSUS INDIANS

DALLAS, March 18. (AP)—The Dallas Steers will make their first appearance in the full panoply of spring here Saturday in the first of a two-game series with the Oklahoma City Indians of the Western league. Slim Love, Gene Walker and Russ Pence probably will occupy the mound for the Steers Saturday, Lyons, Schroeder, Ellis and Darrough being probable hurlers for the abrogines. The regular Steer lineup will start.

NOTED ATHLETE DIES

With George Moriarty

Frank Laporte was a member of the New York Highlanders in 1908, and was one of the real sluggers of his day. He was a very dangerous batsman at all times, and was a source of much anxiety to opposing infielders on account of his terrific driving power.

* * *

Charlie Schmidt and Eddie Siever, a Detroit battery of the old days, once reveled in a bit of "strategy" they had engineered on Laporte, but Herman Schaefer, second baseman of the Tigers at the time, failed utterly to appreciate their efforts, and frankly told them so.

* * *

Laporte had already made two hits, and was at the plate for the third time on this particular afternoon. Three men were on bases for the Highlanders, and a safe clout by Laporte augured defeat for Detroit. There was a 2 and 2 count on Laporte. Realizing the importance of the moment, Schmidt and Siever met near the pitcher's box for consultation.

* * *

"Let's put one over on this fellow," said Schmidt. To which proposition Siever agreed. A whispered conversation ended, and they went back to their positions. Following the outlined plan of action, Siever, wound up and shot his fast one over the outside corner of the plate. There was a terrific smack, and the next fraction of a second found Herman Schaefer throwing up both hands in front of his face, as a matter of self-protection because of the rifle-shot that came on one bound from Laporte's bat. Schaefer, with a mingled expression of fear and surprise, found the ball sticking in his gloved hand, and recovered in time to retire Laporte at first base. Thunderous applause pealed from the crowd.

* * *

The Detroit players were winding their way to the bench, and Schaefer was smiling at the good fortune which allowed him to escape without injury from Laporte's terrific smash. As the players neared the bench, Schmidt approached Siever and said, "Nice work, old kid: we certainly crossed up Laporte that time." But the surprised Schaefer wanted an explanation. "You crossed him up?" cried Schaefer. "How do you get that way?" "Well, you see," said Schmidt, "we knew he was looking for a curve ball, and we slipped him a fast one." "I nearly got killed, and you call that strategy," said Schaefer, as he went to the bucket for a drink of water.

HOLCOMB QUITS C-C POSITION

Clarendon Secretary to Move To Dalhart Soon

CLARENDON, March 18.—G. Lester Boykin, for the past three years vocational agriculture instructor of Clarendon high school, has been employed by the board of directors of the chamber of commerce as the new secretary to succeed A. T. Holcomb, recently resigned to become secretary of the Dalhart Chamber of Commerce.

Boykin is a graduate of Texas A. and M. college of the 1922 class and spent eight months immediately afterward as a chemist in Cuba for a corporation who had a sugar plantation there. Special work in the Fort Collins A. and M. college of Colorado was taken last summer.

Boykin's work as vocational agriculture man in the county has fitted him especially to carry on the large farm program that has been outlined by the directors in aiding the farmers of Donley county to improve their livestock and in the importation of pure bred seed for the small grain and cotton crops of the county. Boykin will assume his duties about June 1. An office assistant will care for the work until the close of high school here in May.

True Life Story of Western Pioneer Beggars Imagination

By E. B. DOUGLAS,
Exclusive Dispatch, Copyright, 1927.

HOT SPRINGS, S. D., Mar. 19. (EFS)—By comparison with the life story of Jesse Alberto Rocal Forbes of Hot Springs, the fictions of Richard Harding Davis and O. Henry are insipid—as packed with adventure as a stroll on a village green on Sunday afternoon.

After nearly 60 years of life, during which he has had enough experiences to have furnished both Davis and Henry with better material for a dozen novels, Forbes has just traced his parentage and has learned that his parents were slain by red-Indians in Texas.

Forbes' parents arrived in Texas from Castile, Spain, before their son was born. Six weeks after they had settled down, Alberto was born. And 18 months later the parents were killed by the red-Indians during a redskin raid. But the child survived.

Adopted by a couple named Forbes, the names Jesse and Forbes were added, fore and aft, to his own name, Alberto Rocal. When he was eight years old he ran away from his foster parents.

Life on a Texas ranch made the boy an expert roper and marksman. He drifted into Mexico and Arizona and at 18 joined a posse hunting cattle thieves. The rustlers were found, but in the battle Jesse was shot and spent a year in a hospital.

There followed a kaleidoscopic career for him. He teamed, painted, printed, clerked, tended bar, became a sailor and wandered much around the globe.

He took part in revolutions in Argentina, Brazil and Paraguay, and in the latter country was captured and spent time in a native prison.

He had $4, or its equivalent, and it induced a guard to provide him with a gun so that he and another Yankee adventurer might walk to freedom through their guards.

When the Spanish-American war broke out, "Tex," as he is nicknamed, enlisted and served throughout. His exposure in that war brought on total deafness, so that when he volunteered for the World war he was rejected. Finally he came to this region and settled in Wyoming, where he had a narrow escape from death in a forest fire. He lost all his personal effects in that fire.

Recently Tex got in touch with relatives of his former parents, who told him something about his boyhood and informed him of the fate of his own parents.

Tex has never had his hair cut—not once—in his life, and says he never will. That explains his remarkable head of hair, which ordinarily he wears done up in a tight knot, like a woman, or like women used to wear their hair. He only lets his long, snow-white locks down and combs them out on special occasions, such as celebrations.

Mrs. A. L. Thompson was hostess to the Wednesday Afternoon club with four tables of "42." St. Patrick decorations were used and at a late hour tempting refreshments were served to Messrs. and Mesdames C. E. Jenkins, A. L. Mallick, Albert Thompson, T. K. Jones, H. H. Satterfield, A. C. Craig, J. A. Kosarke, Elvet A. J. Lanham and Miss Jewel Cunningham.

Harold Jenkins entertained a number of his friends Wednesday afternoon celebrating his 12th birthday. Games were played on the lawn, after which the guests were invited into the living room where they were requested to make a wish for the young host. Naomi Kinnibrough was awarded the prize for making the best wish.

In the dining room the birthday cake was cut and lovely refreshments were served by Mrs. C. E. Jenkins, Mrs. E. A. Sadler and Miss Norene Sadler.

Bouquets of violets were used as plate favors. The guests were Randall Sadler, John Mark, Milner James Schwend, Lloyd Biggerstaff, Ray Moore, Billie Elkins, Harland Tounley, Weldon Garrison, Mary Ruth Elkins, Fay Moore, Naomi Kinbrough, Mildred Sadler and Pauline McConnell.

Misses Dorris and Dorothy McDonald, twin daughters of Mr. and Mrs. C. B. McDonald of Henrietta, have recently been elected to Mu Phi Epsilon, national sorority at Brenau college, Gainesville, Ga.

Membership in the sorority is conferred only on those who have a high scholastic standing as well as advanced standing in music.

The Misses McDonald are two out of 11 students so honored.

A contest was held last Friday to select the winners for the Interscholastic league meet to be held here on March 24, 25 and 26, with the following results: Rose Mary Hurn and Mandell Gentry did not miss a single word out of the 100 given. Betty Lou Liles only missed one word and Maurine Hill ran a close second with a grade of 98.

SPECIALTY LIST ON TOBOGGAN

Profit-Taking Couples With Short Selling

BY BROADAN WALL.
Universal Service Financial Expert.

NE WYORK, March 18.—Profit taking and short selling developed on the stock exchange in the specialty list today and new low prices for the year were registered. Buying of the seasoned dividend-paying stocks, however, offset the weakness in the specialty shares. The greater part of the activity in the stock market is now centered in the issues of the "blue chip" type.

Selling occurred in the Baking stocks on the belief that conditions in the industry were not good. Collapse of Continental Baking following the cutting of the dividend has had an adverse effect in kindred shares and some traders and investors have taken big losses. Entrance of National Biscuit into the bread-making line is not helping the other companies.

Money again loaned at 4 per cent. Wheat went lower but rebounded in the late trading. Cotton remained steady. The Canadian dollar and Spanish pesetas were higher, while the rest of the market was quiet and steady.

Sulphur stocks were in demand following the increase in the dividend by Freeport Texas. Freeport Texas has an annual production of 600,000 tons of sulphur, which, selling at $18 per ton at the time, should show $4.76 per share. Due to economies resulting from the recent use of gas, it should earn $1 per share additional or $5.76 in all. The belief has prevailed that the company could readily increase its dividend and this was done yesterday.

Montgomery Ward was lower on profit taking. Rumors prevail in Wall Street that the plan for a merger of the company with Sears Roebuck calls for an exchange of two shares of Montgomery Ward for three of Sears Roebuck. In others quarters the view prevails that Montgomery Ward will go into the deal on the basis of $50 a share.

Oils suffered another wave of selling. Buying, however, has been going on in Lago Petroleum. The property, it is said, is worth more than the present price of the shares. The Pan-American company, it is said, is desirous of obtaining the balance of the stock now held by the Public. In order to do this, it is said, the company will have to pay higher than the current market price.

High grade rails were stronger than the industrials. Banking interests were reported picking up Western Maryland second preferred and Union Pacific. Union Pacific with approximately $10 a share shown from railroad operation is expected to show an additional $6 a share from its investment holdings.

Among the specialties buying developed in Columbia Carbon. Selling on the other hand, however, developed in Loew on the belief that the pool had stopped constructive operations in the stock. Baldwin closed lower although the syndicate in this stock was reported to have plans to push it across $200 a share. National Lead receded on profit taking following its sharp rise of the previous day. Announcement of the 50 per cent dividend in new common stock and 50 per cent in new 6 per cent preferred induced realizing sales. Selling also occurred in American Telephone.

General Motors reached a new high for the year but Steel common closed lower. Pressed Steel Car again sold at 58. One of the leading tobacco interests and associates are said to control the common stock of this company. Interest in the concern is due to the belief that the railroads will continue prosperous and should order new cars in the next two years.

United Cigar stores was slightly lower. The company earned a net profit last year of $9,854,869, compared with $8,813,228 in 1925. This is after interest charges and federal taxes. Net earnings on the common were equal to $5.02 a share. This figure is equivalent to $6.68 a share on the amount of stock outstanding at the end of 1925, and compares with $.94 a share for the year. The balance sheet shows an increase in total assets for 1926 of nearly $20,000,000.

MARKET GOSSIP

J. H. Baldwin and Co., brokers, basement Bob Waggoner building, today received the following from New York, New Orleans and Chicago connections:

Wheat: There was quite a large volume of trade today with market moving within a narrow range. Commission houses were liberal sellers early with offerings being absorbed on resting orders in addition to which there was buying by local traders on the belief that the market was entitled to rally after such a sharp decline. New low level was reached on the May futures for the season. Some of the selling had the appearance of being general liquidation. Argentine shipments for the week 6,722,000, Australia 4½ million. Estimates are for world shipments to show better than 19,000,000. Receipts still continue fairly liberal reports indicated very little export business had been done, but late advices were to the effect that sales in all positions amounted to 300,000 to 400,000 bushels. Very little was heard about transportation at the gulf. New crop advices continue generally favorable with weather conditions excellent. We still feel that until there is a more urgent cash demand, either domestic or export that prices will gradually work to lower levels, but we feel that caution should be exercised in not making sales on the sharp breaks.

Corn: Was weak during most of the season and showed a heavy undertone. Some scattered liquidation was in evidence. Some buying by local traders and taking of profits against bids was responsible for a moderate upturn at the close. Cash situation shows very little change. Discounts as compared to the futures are better due to the light arrivals but very little improved shipping demand is noticeable. We continue to feel that lower prices will result until there is some evidence of the largest stocks being materially reduced.

Oats: Market held relatively firm early but on the weakness in corn some scattered selling in the way of liquidation developed which carried prices to lower levels. A fair shipping demand prevails while receipts are moderate. Seeding of the new crop is under way in central Illinois.

Rye: Market held fairly firm. Further export sales were reported. Should demand continue and be reflected by decreasing stocks, market might do better.

Cotton: The market was inactive today with a small price change. Weather news averaged fairly good over the belt. A more active market should develop next week.

Stocks: The market has again given evidence today of the highly speculative conditions prevailing, strong in the morning followed by a distinct reaction in the afternoon. General Motors were again leaders but were obliged to show reactions along with the rest of list. Freeport has been a feature with a sharp advance when the expected increase in the dividend was realized. The Sulphur company have an excellent trade condition and are prospering in consequence. There were no developments of importance today to affect prices but advances of late have been so marked as to produce waves of profit taking. Reiter Foster opened 9⅝; high 9⅞, low 9¼, closed 9½, sales 900.

NEW YORK COTTON.

NEW YORK, March 18.(AP)—The cotton market was steadier today, recovering part of yesterday's losses on trade buying and week-end covering. May contracts sold up to 13.85 in late trading, or six points net higher and closed at 13.84. The general market closed steady at net advances of five to seven points.

The opening was steady at a decline of two to six points in response to relatively easy cables and overnight selling orders which seemed to come partly from the south. Comparatively light offerings were absorbed by trade buying, and prices rallied later on a continuation of this demand and covering. March advanced from 13.61 to 13.74, July from 13.91 to 14.04, and October from 14.09 to 14.20 in late trading and the close was at about the best prices of the day.

Very little southern selling was in evidence here after the opening and offerings were so light that it did not require much buying to advance prices.

Private cables said the decline in Liverpool was due to hedge selling, combined with local and continental liquidation in the absence of any active demand but reported a slight improvement in inquiry for cotton goods from India.

The week-end statistics came in for very little comment, and were evidently considered about in line with expectations showing a decrase of 134,650 bales in the world's visible supply of American for the week, compared with a loss of 125,594 bales for the same week last year. Exports today 14,259, making 8,288,455 so far this season. Port receipts 41,121; U. S. port stocks 2,614,167 bales.

NEW ORLEANS COTTON.

NEW ORLEANS, March 18.(AP)—The impending census report of final ginnings for the season threw a damper over the cotton market today and the session was quiet with trading confined to evening up. Short covering in the last hour carried prices to new highs and the close was eight to 11 points above yesterday's close.

The opening was two points up despite poor cables but under the influence of the New York market prices eased off four points to rally again on reports of delays in crop preparations which carried May up to 13.82, July 13.97 and October 14.08, seven to nine points above the previous close.

The late trading rally set new highs with May trading for 13.88, July for 14.01 and October for 14.11, 13 to 14 points above the lows. The close was at the top.

Exports for the day totalled 10,289 bales, for the week 290,080 bales.

FRESH SPRING CORN.

By Universal Service.

HARLINGEN, Texas, March 18—Roasting ears, which are reported to be in excellent condition, are due to move on the market the first week in April.

There is a total planting of 3300 acres in the lower Rio Grande section of roasting ears, according to a recent survey.

That April is due to be the big month for Texas shippers of vegetables is seen by Y. J. Austen Hunter, in charge of the market news bureau at the San Antonio Chamber of Commerce who recently made an extensive survey of valley crops.

Plantings of Irish potatoes amount to 12,465 acres, string beans to 5000 acres, cantaloupe plantings to 185 acres and tomato plantings to 6500 acres.

CHICAGO GRAIN REVIEW.

CHICAGO, March 18.(AP)—Extensive selling out on the part of holders tumbled wheat and corn down together today to lowest prices yet this season. Superb crop conditions for domestic winter wheat were largely responsible, but wheat rallied after showing about 7 cents break from last week's top figures.

Wheat closed irregular at ⅝c net decline to ¼c gain, with corn ⅜ to 1⅛c down, oats ⅜ to ⅝c off, and provisions varying from 15c drop to a rise of 10c.

Corn was bearishly affected by continued slowness of shipping call from the east. Oats responded to the action of corn and toward that seeding of oats is under way in central Illinois.

Some buying of provision resulted from signs that downturns of hog values would shut off supplies.

TEXAS VEGETABLES.

SAN ANTONIO, March 18.(Texas Market News Service.)—The string bean movement is now under way in volume, and onion shipments went to three cars yesterday, while rollings of cabbage and mixed vegetables were generous and spinach loadings were lighter with the southern Texas deals on a clean-up. The day's shipments from Texas consisted of 78 cars of cabbage, 39 of spinach, three of string beans, one of strawberries, two of sweet potatoes, three of onions, one of lettuce, four of potatoes and 61 of mixed vegetables.

In the shipping point trade there was some slight evidence of firmness in spinach around 70@85c a bushel basket on wire orders and 50@65c cash track. While the south Texas deals are running light, all Austin sheds were in full operation for the day, and movement from that point is expected to be brisk. Cabbage was steady at lower valley points around $15 per ton, and in the Corpus Christi section for $15@17. Beets and carrots were little changed at 90c to $1.00 for the former and $1.00@1.15 for the latter while string beans were firm at $4.00@4.25 per bushel hamper.

N. Y. Stocks

NEW YORK, March 18.(AP)—Selling squalls swept through today's stock market reaching sufficient intensity at times to give the market a decidedly ruffled appearance. Final quotations disclosed a long list of net declines ranging from one to nearly eight points. Interspersed with a small number of gains running as high as 6¼ points, trading showed a marked expansion in volume, total sales running above two and one-quarter million shares for the first time in more than a fortnight.

While there were no actual news developments to account for the selling movement, bearish gossip was rampant. Wall Street heard rumors, which found credence in many quarters, that recent strength of the high priced industrials had been used as a screen to hide distribution elsewhere, and that certain banks were calling for a "sweetening" of loans and the elimination of a few stocks from the loan envelopes.

The weekly mercantile reviews reported some irregularities in spring business, but with the favorable factors outweighing those of an adverse character, operations for the rise professed to derive encouragement from the federal reserve board statement showing gold holdings in this country to be at the highest level since 1924. Banks called over $10,000,000 in loans, but new money was freely supplied, and the call money rate held steady at 4 per cent. Time money and commercial paper rates were unchanged.

Bear traders continued their relentless search for weak spots and succeeded in uncovering several before the day was over. Southern Dairies A and B, touched new low records at 25 to 8¼, respectively. Renewed pressure against the Continental Baking issues sent the A stock down to 43⅝ and the B stock to 6, also new lows.

General Motors, after touching a new high record at 180⅞ for the present stock, was called upon to absorb considerable profit taking and sold down 3⅛ points from the top, but it later rallied to 178⅝ for a small fractional net gain on the day. U. S. Steel common did not fare so well, closing 1½ points lower at 162⅝, after having sold nearly two points above that figure.

Rails yielded with the industrials with the sharpest declines in Delaware and Hudson, Norfolk and Western and Norfolk and Southern.

Establishment of a new high by Spanish pesetas above 17½ cents and the firmness of sterling around the year's high level, featured the foreign exchange market. Demand bills on London were quoted around $4.85¼ and French francs around 3.91.

TEXAS WOOL PRICES.

Boston, March 18.(AP)—The Commercial Bulletin tomorrow will say:

Business on the local wool market during the week has been extremely slow. Some trading disposition on the less attractive wools is reported, but the really choice wools are held with a reasonable degree of firmness. The mill situation is still disappointing to the trade.

In the west some odd clips here and there are reported contracted and in Arizona some of the early shorn wools are being taken with the poorer wools around 30 to 33 cents and the best in the Phoenix section at 35 to 36½ cents.

Foreign markets are strong.

Mohair is a little more active, but buyers have had their way and good fall Texas hair has been sold at 58 cents. Wool quotations:

Scoured basis. Texas fine 12 months (selected) $1.05@1.10; fine 8 months 95c@$1.00.

WHEAT DROPS TO NEW LOWS

Belated Liquidation Puts Prices Down

BY CHARLES J. LEYDEN.
Universal Service Staff Correspondent.

CHICAGO, March 18.—Belated liquidation carried wheat to new lows for the season early today, but libertion on the break, much of which was short covering, effected a recovery to an irregular close. Long selling was more pronounced in corn, this grain also hitting new bottom for the year but recovered half of its loss at the bell. The persistently brilliant new crop winter wheat prospect has apparently led to the undoing of holders the last few days.

May wheat opened at $1.35⅝@1.36⅛, sold off to $1.35½, recovered to $1.35⅞ and closed at $1.36@1.36¼. July opened at $1.30⅝@1.31, sagged to $1.30⅜, firmed to $1.31⅛ and closed at $1.30⅞@1.31. Active local shorts were credited with taking profits in wheat on the slump. Eastern houses also bought.

The seaboard confirmed export sales at 400,000 bushels of wheat and fair amounts of rye. Liverpool closed ⅜ to 1⅛ pence lower.

Locally wheat finished ⅛c lower to 1¼c higher, corn ⅜ to 1⅛c lower, oats ⅜ to ⅝c lower and rye ⅜ to 1¼c off.

Corn was distinctly weak for a time, but recovered 1c of its loss easily enough. The character of the selling suggested to the trade that some of the big lones unloaded. News developments pertaining to corn were of the encouraging sort. The commercial demand on spot was more active with the basis on off grades improved as much as 2c. Country offerings of corn were reported as moderate. Primary receipts totalled 451,000 bushels compared with 675,000 bushels last week and 742,000 bushels last year.

Oats sagged with other grains. Commission house buying orders were uncovered in fair amounts on the decline.

Rye trailed wheat down, and then steadied.

Operations in North Texas Show Continued Decline, Says Oil Weekly

Operations in the North Texas district of the Mid-Continent area are continuing to decline, the Oil Weekly says. For the week just ended a total of 1864 operations were reported as compared with 1884 for the previous week. This further falling off in field work comes about as the result of additional cuts in the market price of crude oil.

Operations in Oklahoma also decreased during the past week, the reduction reported being from 1686 for the previous week to 1652 for the past seven-day period. One company alone operating in North Texas and Oklahoma reports that it has shut down the operation of 77 drilling wells following the reductions in the crude market. Other companies are taking the same action.

The only state field in the Mid-Continent to report a material increase in operations was Kansas which increased from 483 to 500 during the past seven-day period.

The Wichita Falls district of Texas had a total of 224 operations during the past week. Of this number 28 were shutdown wells and 104 were drilling wells. Nineteen wells were completed during the seven-day period.

Following is the table prepared by the Oil Weekly:

NANKING DOOMED

Fall of Chinese City Foreseen In Few Days.

SHANGHAI, March 18. (AP)—The fall of Nanking to the Cantonese now is considered as almost certain within the next few days, although news of the operations in the vicinity of that strategic city is still indefinite, and there have been many conflicting reports, it is evident the fighting has been heavy in the Taipingfu region and the Shantungese no longer are able to offer serious resistance to the advance of the southern forces who have captured Wukiang, Lishui, Ishang, Hyang and other places.

Unless the Bowlegs pool proves to be exceptionally big it now appears doubtful if the pool will ever go to 350,000 barrels.

This Law Governs Price

The law of supply and demand rules price with an iron hand. Real Estate prices respond directly to it.

Some years ago new houses were built faster than the existing ones became obsolete. Supply exceeds demand and the prices were low. Now the conditions are reversed. An ever-increasing population has created a tremendous demand. That will take years.

There are not enough homes in Wichita Falls. Years of inactivity must be overcome before supply can begin to meet demand. Real Estate prices have thus been stabilized by law of supply and demand—a law which admits of no exception. Hence, now is a good time to buy a home. Your investment is protected against depreciation.

When you buy, sell or lease property, consult a Realtor. His experience will help you.

Works Together.

Judge Barwise sai dthat at no time had the railroad hestiated in calling upon the citizens of Wichita Falls when some project sponsored by the railroad for the benefit of West Texas had needed the help of the citizens.

"And this assitance from the citizens," he said, "has always been forthcoming."

There are 600 employes of the Fort Worth and Denver railroad living in Wichita Falls, said Judge Barwise. The annual payroll is approximately $1,200,000.

Following Judge Barwise's address, L. M. Hoggsett, general freight agent, and J. A. Hulen, traffic manager, made short talks. The members of the railroad party were introduced to those attending the luncheon by Clarity.

There is no such a thing as an "old maid" these days!

Colleen Moore, petite star of "Orchids and Ermine," at the Majestic theater, says the modern educational and business perspective of America has eliminated the woes of the woman who reaches middle age husbandless.

Miss Moore sums up her reasons this way:

1. The world is too busy to worry about the supply of eligible husband prospects.

2. It is no crime in these days for women to earn an honest living without depending upon men.

3. Transportation problems have been so simplified through the automobile that women travel unescorted without causing comment or embarrassment.

4. Educational facilities are so great that it is not considered irregular for middle-aged persons to attend school if they desire.

5. The short skirts and bobbed hair fads have had a tendency to keep women youthful mentally as well as in appearance.

6. So many new cosmetics flood the market and are so highly advertised that women pay more attention to their looks than they ever did in recent generations.

7. Where 30 was the "jumping-off place" for women some years ago, modern novelists nowadays frequently place 40 as the fascinating age of the feminine sex.

"Orchids and Ermine," with Colleen Moore co-starred by Jack Mulhall showing at the Majestic theater through Wednesday starting today.
