Soviets call joke 'unprecedently hostile'

MOSCOW (AP) — The Soviet Union today issued a formal statement condemning President Reagan's joke about bombing Russia, calling the remark "unprecedentedly hostile toward the U.S.S.R."

The statement, issued through the official Tass news agency, was an unusually strong method of reacting to Reagan's comment. Such Soviet statements are issued to make public the policy or opinions of the highest echelons of the government and usually are reserved for proclamations of new arms control proposals or other similar weighty issues.

Reagan, said, in a microphone test before taping a radio address Saturday: "My fellow Americans, I'm pleased to tell you today that I've signed legislation that will outlaw Russia forever. We begin bombing in five minutes."

"Tass is authorized to state that the Soviet Union deplores the U.S. president's invective, unprecedentedly hostile toward the U.S.S.R. and dangerous to the course of peace," the Soviet statement said today.

■ Reagans attend daughter's wedding — Page 2A

"This conduct is incompatible with the high responsibility borne by leaders of states, particularly nuclear powers, for the destinies of their own people and for the destinies of mankind...The peoples expect that the leaders of the United States (will) at long last start acting with awareness of their responsibility."

The Soviet statement noted Reagan's remark was not intended to be made public, adding:

"In the White House, they are now trying to make it appear that the head of the U.S. administration just indulged in 'cracking a joke.'

"Reagan indeed has not signed any such legislation and no orders to bomb have been given this time either. But it is not fortuitous that the president's words have been received with serious concern both in the United States and elsewhere."

Tass said the comments are "a manifestation of the self-same frames of mind which have already been formulated officially before in calls for a 'crusade,' the doctrines of limited and proctracted nuclear wars and the military-political plans of securing world dominance to the United States.

"In the U.S. administration, they now prefer to keep silent about all this," Tass continued, "but its practical actions are speaking for themselves."

Reagan's comment was the target of writer Yuri Zhukov in an article today in the Communist Party newspaper Pravda. The remark was also criticized Tuesday in a Soviet television commentary by Genrikh Borovik.

Mondale beset by questions on Ferraro, Jackson

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP) — Walter F. Mondale, trying to focus an abbreviated Southern campaign swing on his plan to revamp the nation's defense policy, is being plagued by potshots from the Rev. Jesse Jackson and persistent questions about the finances of his running mate.

The Democratic presidential nominee was closing a two-day trip today with an appearance at the Kentucky State Fair in Louisville. He was returning to his Minnesota home later in the day.

He canceled a campaign appearance planned for today in Macon, Ga. Aides said they had been unable to arrange for former President Jimmy Carter, Sen. Sam Nunn, state party chairman Bert Lance and other Georgia Democrats to appear with him and wanted to reschedule the trip later when they could be there. Lance resigned as Mondale's general campaign chairman two weeks ago.

Mondale had wanted to use the trip to showcase a plan to update the military by emphasizing conventional military readiness over nuclear weaponry and streamlining the top command of the armed services.

But questions about party unity, Jackson and vice presidential nominee Geraldine Ferraro have taken equal billing.

■ Ferraro finds she had better control her tongue — Page 2A

Mondale, responding to reporters' questions, said in Memphis on Tuesday that he would welcome Jackson's full backing but would not negotiate to win anyone's allegiance.

He had been asked about an interview, published Tuesday in the Los Angeles Times, in which Jackson, one of Mondale's former rivals for the presidential nomination, said the Mondale campaign has no strategy to attract black voters.

The questions arose on a flight from Little Rock, Ark., to Memphis, after David Hess, a reporter for Knight-Ridder newspapers, told colleagues he overheard Mondale indicating to his staff that the appointment of a Jackson adviser, Ernie Green, as a deputy director in the Mondale campaign still was not bringing forth Jackson's all-out support.

"I gave them Ernie Green and that isn't enough," he quoted Mondale as saying. "I can win this thing on my own."

Special interests included in Republican platform

By LANA CUNNINGHAM
Assistant City Editor

DALLAS — The document was about half an inch thick and could have squashed a tomato if tossed on top. But the Republicans felt it was a juicy enough piece of writing to edit it line by line, comma by comma. They took all day Tuesday to do it.

The lengthy report described in detail each plank of the platform, still in roughly hewn form. The polishing will be done today.

Under the leadership of Sen. Bob Kasten of Wisconsin, the Economic Progress subcommittee inched through their segment of the document in the morning hours but whizzed through in the afternoon session. With committee members coming from all areas of the country, attempts were made to include special interests. There were the West Virginia coal miners, the Michigan auto industry workers and the Ohio steel mill employees.

For Midland and its oil-based economy, there was Rep. Tom Loeffler adding amendments to eliminate the Windfall Profits Tax and abolish the Department of Energy. He stood concrete in his belief to not raise taxes or impose any new tariffs as the foundation of the platform.

Also, Midlander Ed Thompson, executive vice president of Permian Basin Petroleum Association, addressed the platform committee on oil and gas matters.

In the section on energy, Loeffler submitted the following amendment: "We are committed to the repeal of the confiscatory Windfall Profit Tax, which has forced the American consumer to pay more for less and left us vulnerable to the energy and economic stranglehold of foreign producers." In recommending approval by the subcommittee Loeffler added, "We need to regain our position on energy self-sufficiency."

The amendment was accepted unanimously by the subcommittee as was the written proposal to decontrol natural gas "as rapidly as possible."

But the members disagreed over what to do with the Department of Energy's functions once the agency had been eliminated.

Margaret Miller of West Virginia wanted to shift those duties into the agencies which once had handled them. "If you do that," argued Loeffler, "you're not eliminating the Department of Energy. All that it does is still alive."

Loeffler won his argument with the subcommittee adopting the amendment to "abolish the Department of Energy."

Quotas on imported automobiles and steel were discussed as a means to help those industries in this country. But the requests for mandatory quotas were eased to voluntary requests and that lessened the concerns expressed by other committee members who support a philosophy of "leave the business industry alone."

DALLAS — Balloons cover the door facing and more are taped to the wall inside the office; "inane memos," as they are called, decorate another wall. And Trisha Angelo sits with a bandaged foot propped on a chair beside her desk in the bowels of Dallas Convention Center.

She came here three weeks ago to do volunteer work, but never considered she would end up as an assistant in the page office, spending more time there than on a full-time job. By the time she gets back to Midland, Ms. Angelo will have been gone five weeks.

Effort under way to clear mines from Red Sea

CAIRO, Egypt (AP) — A multinational effort to clear Red Sea waterways of explosives got under way today with four British mine-hunters and a support ship sweeping the Gulf of Suez for mysterious mines that have damaged at least 16 ships in five weeks.

Harbor officials at Suez, at the northern end of the Red Sea, said the five ships began operations at 7 a.m. in the gulf, the northwest fork of the Red Sea bordered by the Egyptian mainland to the west and the Sinai peninsula to the east.

A U.S. Embassy spokesman said the American transport ship Shreveport, carrying four Sea Stallion minesweeping helicopters, was due today at Port Said, the northern terminus of the 100-mile-long Suez Canal, which connects the Red Sea and the Mediterranean.

In Washington, Pentagon spokesman Michael Burch said Tuesday the U.S. Navy research ship Harkness' sonar had detected a "lot of suspicious objects" in the Gulf of Suez, but no evidence of mines.

The United States also has dispatched three of the helicopters to Saudi Arabian waters, and there were indications in Washington that another American vessel might be dispatched to the Red Sea, possibly the supply ship LaSalle, which is in the Indian Ocean.

France also has announced it is moving two minesweepers to Saudi waters.

A French mine-hunter, the Cantho, which entered the canal with the five British ships, was delayed because of an unspecified mechanical problem, according to officials at Suez and Port Said.

Egypt's defense minister, Field Marshall Abdel-Halim Abu-Ghazala, said two Italian minesweepers were expected in Egypt within the next two days.

The captain of one of the British ships, Lt. Cmdr. Bernie Bruen, told AP photographer Don Meli on board the vessel that the minesweeping operation could take between "two weeks and two months."

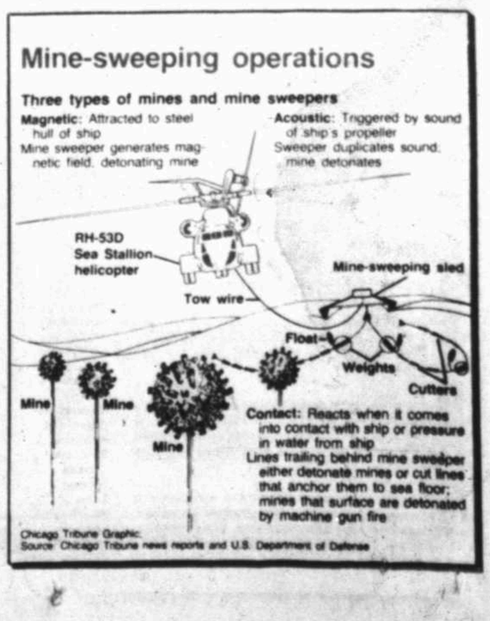

Who is behind the explosions remains a mystery. An anonymous caller claiming to represent the extremist group Islamic Jihad (holy war) has said 200 mines have been planted in the Red Sea. A similar caller told a news agency in Beirut on Monday that the group would prove its strength "once more."

Islamic Jihad is believed to be a pro-Iranian fundamentalist group. It claimed responsibility for suicide truck-bombings of the U.S. Embassy, and the headquarters of the U.S. Marines and French paratroopers in Beirut last year. But some analysts believe more than one group may be using the name.

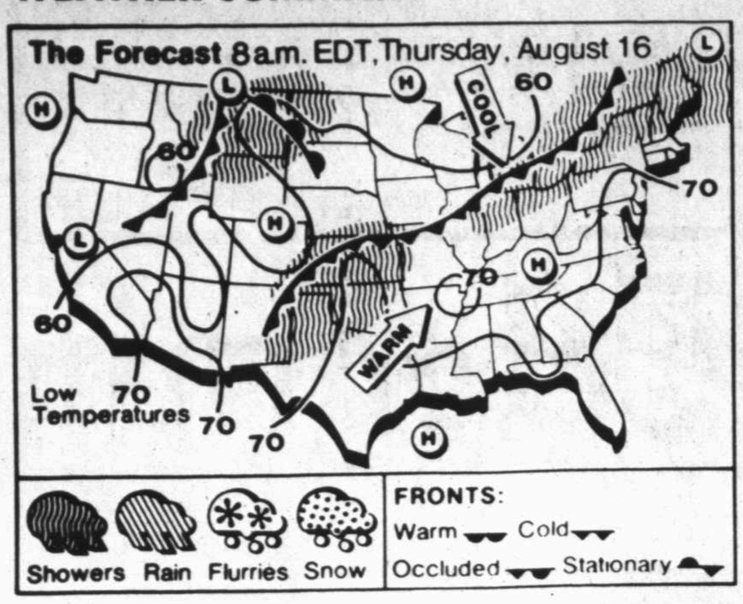

There was no way of verifying the call's authenticity but remarks by Egypt's defense minister appeared to indicate Egypt was taking it seriously.

"We do not want any further deterioration and we do not want those who succeeded in planting these mines to persist in doing so," Abu-Ghazala said in remarks reported by the state-run Middle East News Agency.

Abu-Ghazala said there are "no mine fields as such in the Red Sea. But there are those who are trying to disrupt international shipping by dumping certain devices onto the seabed. These devices explode as a result of pressure when ships pass overhead."

WEATHER SUMMARY

AP Laserphoto Map

The National Weather Service forecasts showers for Thursday for the northern Plains, parts of the Southwest and southern Plains and from the Midwest to New England.

There's only slight chance Midland area will get rain

The Midland area is once again facing the possibility of rain, according to National Weather Service forecasters at Midland Regional Airport.

There is a less than 20 percent chance of isolated thundershowers tonight and Thursday afternoon. Otherwise, partly cloudy skies are forecast today and tonight, clearing to fair on Thursday. Highs in the middle 90s are expected, along with a low in the mid-60s.

Southerly 5- to 15-mph winds today should become light and variable by tonight. Thursday winds from the south at 5 to 10 mph are predicted.

Tuesday's high was a pleasant 90, 14 degrees below the record high for that date set in 1946. Another 65-degree low was five marks above the 60 degrees recorded on this date in 1940.

STATE

A cool air pocket produced showers and thunderstorms today that helped alleviate drought conditions in South Central Texas, and forecasters predicted more scattered rainfall statewide through Thursday.

Showers and thunderstorms were scattered from northwest of Amarillo through western Oklahoma into western North Texas, and southward into the Hill Country. Rainfall fell north of Cotulla and San Saba and near Llano, the National Weather Service said.

Low temperatures were mostly in the 60s and 70s, with the cooler readings over the High Plains and mountainous areas of the Trans-Pecos. Extremes were 52 degrees at Marfa and 82 at the Corpus Christi Naval Air Station.

The weather service said .75 inch of rain fell in San Antonio, where just 11.24 inches has been recorded this year.

Middle- and high-level cloudiness stretched from the High Plains through North, Central and South Texas. A weak high-pressure mass covered East and Southeast Texas, producing some dense fog. Authorities said visibility was near zero near Lufkin and was down to three miles at Port Arthur.

The weather service said a travelers advisory remained in effect for the Lufkin area until mid-morning.

Scattered thunderstorms were expected statewide, with the heaviest and most numerous in the south. highs should range from the middle 80s in the Panhandle to near 100 along the Rio Grande plains and in the Big Bend valleys.

NATION

Western Utah and parts of Nevada remained under flash flood watches today to ward off danger from heavy summer rains that have plagued the area.

Rainfall was 1½ inches Tuesday at Boulder, Colo., and power was knocked out for more than half of the desert city's residents.

Forecasters said Las Vegas, Nev., may be in for another drenching today.

A flood warning also extended over a portion of western New York state because of the threat of locally heavy rain.

Today's forecast showed thunderstorms scattered over the Atlantic and Gulf of Mexico coastal states. Thunderstorms were expected over the intermountain region.

Generally sunny skies were expected over the remainder of the nation.

San Diego, Calif., has been experiencing one of its hottest summers in memory, weather forecasters say, because shifting winds blew warm, moist air into Southern California from the Gulf of Mexico region, the opposite direction of the normal prevailing winds.

Reagans see daughter marry

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Nancy Reagan cried and the president said he hoped the newlyweds would always have "beautiful memories from this day."

President and Mrs. Reagan both were emotional Tuesday at the wedding of their daughter Patti Davis to Paul Grilley, said Mrs. Reagan's press secretary Sheila Tate.

Mrs. Tate relayed details of the wedding to reporters who were not allowed near the secluded Beverly Hills hotel where the private ceremony and reception were held.

In his toast at the banquet following the ceremony, Reagan recalled that when the newlyweds were but small children "they could only grip one of our fingers with their whole hand, but they gripped so tightly that we can still feel it."

When asked if she cried at the wedding, Mrs. Reagan replied, "That's like asking me if I breathe," Mrs. Tate said.

The newlyweds exchanged gold bands in the ceremony presided over by the Rev. Donn Moomaw, of the Bel-Air Presbyterian Church, who has known the Reagan family for years. Ms. Davis' band contained five small diamonds.

The bride, who did not want a White House wedding, wore a long off-the-shoulder gown of white silk lace and charmeuse with a jeweled bodice. She was attended by Doria Reagan, the wife of her brother Ron, and Lanetta Wahlgren, described as her best friend from Santa Monica. The attendants wore draped, coral charmeuse gowns.

The groom and the president wore business suits. Mrs. Reagan wore a pale yellow chiffon dress.

The service, described as traditional, included a "personal homily" from the minister. The Reagans and other guests, who totaled 134, applauded warmly when Moomaw turned the couple toward the guests after their vows had been completed and said, "May I be the first to present Mr. and Mrs. Paul and Patti Grilley."

At the reception that followed, the bride and groom began dancing and after a few minutes the president cut in to dance with his daughter, a traditional wedding gesture. Mrs. Reagan danced with the groom.

The president and Mrs. Reagan then danced together, and later the president danced with the groom's mother, Donna Grilley, while the first lady danced with the groom's father, Terrance Grilley. The groom's parents are from Columbia Falls, Mont. Until the wedding rehearsal Monday evening, the Reagans had not met the bridegroom's parents. The groom's father is a building contractor.

Also attending the ceremony were the Reagans' son, Ron, and Reagan's daughter from his first marriage, Maureen Reagan. His adopted son, Michael, was invited but did not attend, Mrs. Tate said.

Patti, 31, an actress, has used her mother's maiden name and will retain it for professional purposes. Grilley, 25, is a yoga instructor.

The menu at the wedding banquet included grilled chicken with rosemary, California green salad, baby vegetables and potatoes. The four-tiered wedding cake with lemon cream filling was topped with the traditional miniature bride and groom figures. The base was decorated with stephanotis, lilies and gardenias.

After honeymooning at an undisclosed location, the couple will make their home in Santa Monica, Calif.

The president and first lady planned to return to Washington today, ending an 18-day West Coast stay, which included a two-week vacation. They were scheduled to arrive at Andrews Air Force Base about 6:30 p.m. EDT from Los Angeles.

SOVIETS

"Reagan blabbed out what is permanently on his mind, but what he was recently forced to keep silent on in the context of his election campaign," said Zhukov, one of the most prominent Soviet commentators. He said the remark showed Washington was not serious about disarmament.

"People aren't blind," he said. "They can see who declares for peace and who dreams of military solutions. Reagan's prank before a microphone for American radio on Aug. 11 is fresh evidence of the dangerous designs hatched by the United States administration."

Zhukov said that "a political scandal of enormous scale broke out," despite efforts by the White House staff to prevent "the pronouncement, incautiously made by their boss, from being made public."

The radio incident, Zhukov said, "serves as yet another affirmation of the necessity to maintain vigilance in the face of the aggressive plans of the United States and NATO," the North Atlantic Treaty Organization.

The Soviet news agency Tass carried an article from its reporters in Washington recounting the criticism of American public figures and European leaders.

Reagan's press aides have refused to confirm or deny that he made the comment before the radio broadcast, but it has been aired by two U.S. television networks. A presidential staffer who declined to be identified confirmed Reagan's remark.

Borovik said the words of Reagan's radio address were "written by experts, and his purpose is to pronounce them."

But he added Reagan made the joke in casual remarks before the address, and commented: "Nobody writes such words for him. An uncontrolled level of his personal conscience is flowing at that moment."

He said the president made the remarks during a voice-level test for technicians, during which "sometimes he counts 'one, two, three, four, five.' Sometimes he recites a poem, which he learned by heart in childhood — 'Mary had a little lamb whose fleece was white as snow' — and so on." But on Saturday, he said, Reagan "took the microphone and made a striking statement."

Reagan's remark was read in full in Russian, then a video tape of an American technician listening to a microphone test was shown, with Reagan's actual words in English.

"People say a man's level of humor corresponds with the level of his thinking," Borovik said. "If this is so, then isn't this too base for the president of a great country?"

"This is a sacred dream which popped up on the surface," Borovik said. "Of course, those in the world understand that between the dream of the president and its implementation there are many obstacles."

Ferraro finds she had better watch her remarks

PORTLAND, Ore. (AP) — Geraldine Ferraro says she's learned a tough lesson in her campaign for the vice presidency: that she'd better start controlling her tongue.

"I guess I've learned that what may seem very funny and off-the-cuff in my district in Queens is not received that way in all places in the nation," the New York congresswoman said Tuesday.

"And Gerry Ferraro is going to have to keep that in mind," she added.

Then Ms. Ferraro, the Democratic vice presidential nominee who has a tendency to make flip, quick comments, grinned and said, "But I'll still be me."

Ms. Ferraro was attending church services today before taking a tugboat ride on the Willamette River and attending a rally at Tom McCall Waterfront Park.

Looking tense and subdued through most of a press conference in San Jose, Calif., on Tuesday before arriving here on a five-day swing up the West coast, Ms. Ferraro found herself again peppered with questions about her family finances, her announcement that she would not release her husband's tax returns, and a remark earlier in the week about Italian men.

Her first campaign swing to California, Oregon and Washington was intended to focus on the problems of senior citizens, crime control, jobs and the environment.

And it clearly bothered her that the issues were overshadowed by her political problems.

"I'd like to spend a lot more time talking about the issues of this campaign," she said. "I'd like to spend more time talking about the $200 billion deficit...(and) the fact that we're not moving towards arms control, but I have difficulty in doing it in this press conference."

She also said that she'd made a mistake when she remarked Sunday that those married to Italian men would understand her husband's refusal to agree to her request to release his tax return.

"What I was saying is that he is a patient, independent and private person," she said. "And no one in the world thinks more highly of Italian men than I do."

She was clearly buoyed by the huge crowd that greeted her Tuesday night when she arrived in Portland. Some 1,500 supporters jammed the street outside the stately Westin Benson Hotel, chanting, cheering and waving blue and white Mondale-Ferraro posters.

Anti-abortion demonstrators also dotted the streets, but they were not as noticeable as they have been at previous stops. Ms. Ferraro says she personally opposes abortion, but does not believe it is right to impose that view on others.

Earlier in the day, Ms. Ferraro toured Priam Electronics, a high-technology plant in the Silicon Valley. She donned plastic gloves and took an assembly-line lesson in making computer discs.

PLATFORM

Ms. Miller had asked for the quotas first, saying, "Our steel industry is in a very sorry state. And it would help our coal mining industry. We have 16 percent unemployment."

U.S. Rep. Delbert Latta of Ohio said the United States "makes the best automobiles in the world. But you get outside the United States and you don't find them because of import quotas. There are restrictions on American-made automobiles."

Arguing against quotas was W. Clark Durant of Michigan who viewed mandatory restricted sales as a "grave mistake" for any industry. "What international competition does for us is make us be more efficient, makes us modernize. You don't realize how many jobs in this country are dependent on international trade."

During a break in the meeting, Loeffler explained the problems of some industries such as steel are "exacerbated by foreign subsidies of steel dumped on the U.S. I have sympathy for them from the standpoint of foreign competition, but not from the standpoint of not modernizing."

The Texas congressman pointed to Lone Star Steel, a major steel producer in the state, as an example of how one industry's problems affected another one — oil. Lone Star, he said, supplied tubular goods to the oil and gas industry.

As to the revenues that had been generated by the Windfall Profits Tax, Loeffler said the amount had been less than the government had anticipated. "You'd have greater revenues through ordinary income tax," he argued.

During discussion on taxes for next year, the subcommittee nixed any idea of a tax. Loeffler recommended the comma in the following plank: "We therefore oppose any attempts to increase taxes, which would harm the recovery and reverse the trend to restoring control of the economy to individual Americans." The reason, he said, was to differentiate the Democrats from the Republicans.

But the proposed tax cuts by this Republican subcommittee was a source of humor for one congressional aide.

"The Democrats want to bring in $100 billion in taxes and the Republicans are going to cut $100 billion in revenues," he said with a short laugh.

TRISHA

She is only one of Ernest Angelo Jr.'s family members working as a volunteer for the Republican National Convention. Angelo is convention arrangements chairman. Ms. Angelo started out coloring maps in the office of volunteers. Her mother, Penny, suggested she meet Kim Bolt, who runs the page program. And within minutes, Ms. Angelo was recruited.

"I needed help," yelped Ms. Bolt. She's halfway between Dallas (moving to Houston from Denver) and four months pregnant. "There's never a dull moment with Trisha."

Together, the two have come up with a page system that was called the most organized program at the convention, the two women related. They had to start from scratch, but they've done the job with a mixture of efficiency, joking and laughter. And the office reflects that relaxed attitude.

"My desk gets so piled up, people walk in here and ask, 'Where's Trisha?'" she joked.

When she started, the office had the names of 250 youths between 16 and 21 who had been recommended as pages from delegates of the 50 states. Included in that list are four from Midland: Pat Monaghan, Brad Hughes, Jeff Norwood and Garrett Marshal.

From that point, they sent out questionnaires and organized the housing arrangements. More than half will be staying in one hotel, said Ms. Angelo.

The culmination of their organization will begin Saturday when the pages arrive and begin their orientation sessions.

"They'll be running errands for all the delegates and delivering any messages we get in from the outside to the delegates. They'll be blowing up balloons — using their hot air," she said with a laugh.

In addition to the pages, Ms. Angelo and Ms. Bolt have found five to serve as assistants, each in charge of 50 pages.

Come Monday, the pages will be attired in shirts designed in red, white and blue with an elephant motif surrounded by a triangle.

The rest of the week pages will be wearing white cowboy hats and red bandanas along with their white dress shirts.

"I'm excited about it," she said in a more serious tone. "I'm going to be relieved that it worked."

Her Midland friends keep asking when she's coming home, Ms. Angelo said. The answer is a definite "Aug. 25." But it won't be for long because she returns to school at South Plains Junior College.

As to the bandaged foot, Ms. Angelo likes to joke that she stumbled into Ms. Bolt when they first met. But it's the result of surgery earlier this summer and too much walking in the maze known as Dallas Convention Center.

MONDALE

Jackson has said blacks should use their voting power to negotiate exchanges in political power positions. As an example, the state chairman of Jackson's New York campaign, Albert Vann, said Tuesday he has advised Jackson supporters by letter to hold off working for Mondale "unless the agenda of the black and Rainbow community is guaranteed."

Jackson also has criticized Mondale and Ms. Ferraro for not appointing enough blacks to their campaign staffs.

Asked at the Memphis news conference whether the remarks aboard the plane indicated anger with Jackson, Mondale said: "I certainly did not intend it that way. I don't remember the exact words I used."

However, Mondale made clear he will not negotiate to win Jackson's support.

"I'm not in any bargaining process at all. I don't intend to be. I am what I am for because I believe in it," Mondale said.

"I'm putting together the best possible campaign structure to serve my campaign so that I can get elected president of the United States. I'm asking everyone to join in that campaign and help me get elected. But I'm making the decisions based on what I think is best for my campaign and for my presidency and that's the basis on which I'm asking people to join me.

"There's no negotiating, no question of upping (the ante or) anything. That's the approach I'm taking with everyone, including Rev. Jackson."

He said such questions are "minor matters and not troublesome."

"I want to focus on the need to get sound military advice and to establish clear lines of command authority," Mondale said in reference to the military reform theme he has been following all week.

"Streamlining the Joint Chiefs of Staff with a strong chief is essential to better management of the defense buildup, to a clear definition of strategy and for more effective military operations," he said.

He did not say how he would revise the structure of the Joint Chiefs or make the chairmanship stronger.

Earlier in Little Rock, Mondale promised to forge a "defense program that gives us our money's worth" by emphasizing conventional over nuclear forces.

David L. Aaron, deputy director of the National Security Council under President Jimmy Carter and a Mondale military adviser, said the idea is, "It would reduce people's concerns about the risk of nuclear war" by increasing the emphasis on conventional forces. Thus, nuclear arms control agreements also would be easier to negotiate.

Mondale said in Little Rock that President Reagan's defense policies are "tilted towards nuclear weapons and away from conventional preparedness."

"We could not face a major challenge in Europe without soon having to face the possibility of resorting to nuclear weapons," he said.

Asked again about Ms. Ferraro's announcement that she will not disclose husband John Zaccaro's income tax returns, Mondale said, "This is a judgment he can make and I am not in a position to do anything about it."

He said, however, that Ms. Ferraro, whose husband is a New York real estate investor, would disclose "such part of Mr. Zaccaro's information as is required by law."

GOP platform may force moderates to 'hold their noses'

DALLAS (AP) — Republican platform writers, defying the White House and slapping down moderates at every turn, are fashioning a conservative campaign document that one dissident said would force many party loyalists to "hold their noses" while voting with the GOP in November.

The conservatives toughened language opposing tax increases, snubbed the Equal Rights Amendment, and included a pledge to "do everything necessary so that, in case of conflict (with the Soviet Union), the United States would clearly prevail."

"The delegates will write the platform, not the president," said Rep. Trent Lott of Mississippi, chairman of the 106-member platform committee that begins its work on the platform today.

It was a draft worked up by Lott and White House aides that seven subcommittees reworked extensively Tuesday before passing it on to the full committee.

STATE

With five days left before the Republican National Convention convenes in the city personally chosen by President Reagan, party officials also were meeting today to deal with housekeeping issues and hear a "state of the party" talk from national committee chairman Frank Fahrenkopf Jr.

Drew Lewis, the former transportation secretary who is Reagan's representative to the platform committee, was scrambling to undo some of what was done in the subcommittees. That included a plank calling for replacement of the entire U.S. tax code with a simple flat-rate tax and another that would urge repeal of the windfall profits tax on oil revenues.

Lewis said the administration would prefer offering the flat tax as one possibility for reforming the tax code — not as the only solution. And he said administration officials were reviewing the impact of repeal of the oil profits tax.

The platform writers approved and then dropped a plank Tuesday that called for elimination of all taxes on savings income, a proposal Lewis said would cost $7 billion in lost revenue and would be "a bonanza for the rich."

GOP platform may be further to right than Reagan

DALLAS (AP) — On two big social issues, equal rights for women and abortion, writers of the Republicans' 1984 platform are proving to be more conservative than ever — and possibly more conservative than Ronald Reagan.

A motion to endorse the proposed Equal Rights Amendment to the Constitution died for lack of a second in a platform subcommittee Tuesday.

The panel then voted to adopt a position on abortion identical to the one advocated by the Rev. Jerry Falwell of the Moral Majority instead of a milder version that had the White House's clearance.

At issue was whether the 1984 platform should repeat a pledge made by the party in 1980 to support the appointment of judges who respect "the sanctity of innocent human life."

Falwell wanted that language repeated. On Monday, he appeared before the Republicans' subcommittee on human resources and opportunities to warn against "a mushy, compromising statement" that would be seen as "a Republican sellout" and would "demoralize President Reagan's friends and destroy a large percentage of the Democrat cross-over vote."

But the draft platform presented by Platform Chairman Trent Lott, and sanctioned by the White House, did not commit the president to name anti-abortion judges. It merely applauded his record for having done so.

By an 11-3 vote, the subcommittee opted for the language Falwell favored at the urging of Rep. Vin Weber of Minnesota. Weber said it is possible that Supreme Court justices named by Reagan could reverse the high court's decision legalizing abortions in most circumstances.

The same panel went along with a request by Mary Jane Hollyday of Asheville, N.C., an ally of Sen. Jesse Helms of North Carolina, to strike these words: "To the battered children and spouses who need protection, we gladly offer it."

"I don't think the government needs to get into that," said Mrs. Hollyday. "That should go back to the community, church, neighborhood people who care."

On the abortion question, delegate Bill Hughes of Denver argued against such a "single-issue orientation toward the most important appointment a president can make." He called the change "repulsive."

Miriam Hellreich of Kailua, Hawaii, co-chairman of the Reagan-Bush committee in her state, argued it would be dificult for Republicans to win election on a platform which seeks to outlaw abortions.

The panel also voted one-sidedly to endorse a "human life" anti-abortion amendment to the Constitution. Reagan favors that.

There wasn't a word of debate when Hughes offered the motion to write a plank in the platform supporting ERA. His motion died.

Officer who staged bomb hoax wanted to be hero

LOS ANGELES (AP) — An officer who staged an Olympic bomb hoax had saved lives, solved a murder and been cited by a president, but still felt he needed to be seen as a hero because he was having trouble with his superiors, authorities said.

While newspaper headlines heralded Officer Jimmy Pearson for his courageous act, the nine-year veteran of the force was being booked Tuesday for investigation of possessing an explosive device and was being held in lieu of $60,000 bail.

"This is particularly sad. He had a remarkable record," said Police Chief Daryl Gates as he announced Pearson's confession to planting a pipe bomb on a Turkish Olympic team bus. Gates, who had gone through Pearson's file, characterized him as "a fine officer."

Pearson, 40, had saved several lives, solved a murder single-handedly, received the Presidential Citation from President Gerald Ford, and was assigned to an elite force sworn to protect competitors at the Summer Games.

"He indicated he was having trouble with his supervisors," Gates said at a news conference Tuesday, without elaborating. "He wanted to do something to cause them to take notice. We have all noticed him at this point."

In the wake of the hoax, the Los Angeles Olympic Organizing Committee issued a statement offering "our heartfelt thanks to Chief Daryl Gates and the Los Angeles Police Department not only for the superb job they did during the Olympic Games but for their continued vigilance afterwards."

The bomb never exploded Monday night. Reports of its discovery were followed by numerous telephoned bomb threats to the airport. In all, about 6,000 people were evacuated from three terminals during the scare.

The Turkish Olympic team was considered one of the prime targets of terrorists, and Turkish athletes weren't allowed to leave the Olympic Village during their stay in Los Angeles.

Word of Pearson's arrest came just hours after a telephone caller to the Paris bureau of The Associated Press had claimed the Armenian Secret Army for the Liberation of Armenia was responsible for planting the bomb.

IRA supporter hints he may defy British ban again

BELFAST, Northern Ireland (AP) — American IRA supporter Martin Galvin hinted he may again defy a British ban on his presence in Northern Ireland, and rioting broke out in advance of today's funeral of a man killed when police tried to arrest Galvin.

Police and Roman Catholic youths clashed Tuesday night at a soccer match. A spokesman at Belfast police headquarters said 35 officers and 10 civilians were hurt and 10 people were arrested, heightening tension before the funeral.

A statement attributed to Galvin was issued by Sinn Fein, the legal political wing of the outlawed Irish Republican Army, after Britain's Northern Ireland Secretary James Prior admitted the ban on Galvin, publicity director of the New York-based Irish Northern Aid Committee, was a serious mistake.

The statement said: "Since Jim Prior himself has now admitted that the ban against me was an error, may I now consider the ban to be withdrawn or must I take further action to use their ban to further expose the indefensible realities of British rule in Ireland?"

WORLD

Galvin has been in hiding since he turned up at a Sinn Fein rally in Belfast Sunday in defiance of the ban. Sean Downs, 22, was killed and 20 others were hurt when riot police firing plastic bullets plunged into 2,000 people at the rally in a bid to arrest Galvin. The 34-year-old lawyer escaped in the chaos.

There was no indication if Galvin planned to be at Downs' funeral at St. Agnes Roman Catholic Church in the staunchly Catholic Andersonstown quarter of West Belfast.

Galvin was expected in Dublin, capital of the Irish Republic, Tuesday for a Sinn Fein rally. But supporters apparently failed to smuggle him out of West Belfast where he was believed to be hiding.

Rich Lawlor of Hartford, Conn., a member of Galvin's Noraid delegation, told The Associated Press that attempts were being made to get Galvin out of Belfast.

Sinn Fein did not indicate what was planned for Downs' funeral. A crowd of several hundred followed the coffin containing his body as it was carried through West Belfast late Tuesday.

'City loser in fight against tower'

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — A developer who offered to expand a Chinatown park in return for permission to build a 22-story office tower says the city is the loser for invoking a measure designed to stop buildings which block sunlight.

Citing a proposition which voters passed by a 3-2 margin in June, City Attorney George Agnost told the Planning Commission on Monday to reject the request by Walter Shorenstein. The proposition bans new buildings of more than four stories which would reduce sunlight to the city's 200 parks, squares and playgrounds.

Shorenstein had offered to increase the park's size by 40 percent and provide public parking in the tower.

Ex-mayor says he'll be acquitted

BOSTON (AP) — A former mayor of Somerville says he's confident he will be acquitted of attempted extortion charges involving his former job as regional administrator of the General Services Administration.

A federal grand jury indicted Lawrence F. Bretta, 56, on Tuesday, alleging he tried to extort $19,700 between 1981 and 1983 from a development company seeking a GSA lease of office space in Chelsea.

State ends pay phone monopoly

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — Minnesota became the first state to end the pay phone monopoly by local phone companies in June, and now a pay phone at Gary Quam's restaurant may be the first one owned by a competitor of Northwestern Bell Telephone Co.

The phone that American Pay Telephone Inc. installed Tuesday at Good Food & Co. won't make much difference to callers, except that they'll have to reach their party before depositing coins, Quam said.

Minnesota is expected to become a test market for privately owned pay telephones. Northwestern Bell spokesman John Walker said the phone in Quam's restaurant was believed to be the first.

Release of FAA report 'premature'

ATLANTA (AP) — The release of the Federal Aviation Administration's preliminary report on the near collision of an airliner and a military plane was "premature" and "inappropriate," said National Transportation Safety Board investigator Mike O'Rourke.

The near miss on July 16 was not necessarily the result of a poor radio signal from the military craft, as the FAA suggests, O'Rourke said Tuesday.

Chamber made

As the theme for its membership drive, which is currently in progress, Midland Chamber of Commerce adopted the theme "Midland is Chamber Made." That's not merely a catchy slogan; the more one thinks about it, the more obvious it becomes.

Since the drive kicked off Friday — and continuing through this week — more and more Midlanders will be exposed to the chamber's beneficial influence on the city and the people who call it home. Obviously the chamber hopes some of the information it's spreading around will encourage a number of Midlanders to join the organization; its goal is to sign up 400 new members by Thursday.

We hope the chamber's drive is successful because the organization's efforts affect every Midlander via the business strength and vitality of the community. That's simple and blunt, but it's honest. Don't take only our word for it, though; look at the evidence.

Last week chamber officials, along with officials from both Midland and Odessa and the Greater Odessa Area Chamber of Commerce, proudly announced that KES Systems & Service, an electronics service operation that will test integrated circuits used in military products, has opened a facility at Midland Industrial Park.

Maybe that announcement didn't appear to mean much to you personally, but if that's the case you're overlooking the importance of industrial diversification to this area's economy. And what does that diversification mean to you? Only that with continued diversification the effect of the abrupt shifts in the heavily oil-based economy this area is known for may be minimized somewhat. And what that means, of course, is that your financial future may be a little more stable.

There are plenty of business people in Midland who gladly would relate their opinions about the importance of the chamber's work for the community. One of them is Louis Hochman, owner of Luigi's, an Italian restaurant. The chamber, Hochman said in a recent news story, brings in new businesses, promotes sports, keeps local businessmen informed about the economic situation and much more. All that activity keeps the business of the community viable and the community healthy in general.

Said Hochman, "The larger our membership, the stronger we are."

That's just another way of saying Midland is "Chamber Made."

Music with a message

Music crosses boundaries. Hatred doesn't.

The New York Philharmonic Orchestra wanted to play a piece by a Jewish composer, Ernest Bloch, on its Asian tour. But the government of Malaysia, a Moslem country, protested the scheduled playing of "Schelomo, A Hebrew Rhapsody for Cello and Orchestra" in Kuala Lumpur next month. According to United Press International, the government cited a policy prohibiting "screening, portrayal or musical presentation of works of Jewish origin." The U.S. government and the sponsor of the concert, Citibank, passed on the protest. The New York Philharmonic took the piece off the program. Then, after protests, the symphony canceled its concert.

Boo for the Malaysian government and its anti-Semitic policy. A small cheer for the Philharmonic for recognizing its mistake and correcting it.

The purpose of an international symphony tour is to bridge cultural differences with the universal human message of music. By allowing its program to be censored, the orchestra would have betrayed that high purpose.

Better that the symphony not play in Kuala Lumpur than to bow to anti-Semitism.

Lead ban justified

There is overwhelming evidence that lead from gasoline is poison to humans — and young children and pregnant women are especially vulnerable.

Lead poisoning in sufficient concentrations causes brain damage. Without leaded fuels fouling the air, the Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) estimates the IQs of as many as 4 million children would be raised an average of 2.2 points.

The EPA says that 97,000 children now require medical attention because of high lead content in their bloodstreams — lead that they get from paint and from gasoline. Their medical care costs $1.8 billion a year.

This poisoning of our youth is intolerable. The EPA has pushed to have leaded fuels phased out in eight years. Now it says that is not quick enough. It wants to reduce the use of leaded fuels 91 percent by Jan. 1, 1986, and ban them totally by 1995.

Tetraethyl lead is placed in gasoline because it is a cheap way of boosting the octane rating. It also serves as a valve lubricant and is a required fuel for some cars with high-compression engines built before 1971.

Most cars produced since 1975 are equipped with catalytic converters and are required to use unleaded fuel. It is illegal to run them on leaded gasoline. Nevertheless, about 17 percent of American motorists with post-1975 cars use leaded fuel illegally because it is cheaper.

Most cars built before 1971 run better and have fewer mechanical problems if leaded fuel is used, but those who own these older cars must not stand in the way of getting leaded fuels off the market as quickly as possible. They produce 80 percent of all lead emissions into the air.

The EPA will be conducting hearings on its proposal to phase out leaded fuels Aug. 30 and 31. The lead ban must have public support.

JACK ANDERSON

CIA bankrolled election

WASHINGTON — Scarcely 14 years after the CIA meddled in Chile's national election and was properly scolded by Congress for its bizarre plottings, the CIA again has intervened in the politics of a sovereign nation.

Jack Anderson

The story behind the CIA's machinations in El Salvador have been hushed up. But here are the details, which my associate Dale Van Atta has pieced together from intelligence sources:

— In 1981, President Reagan approved a covert action "finding" — the secret routine that authorizes the dispensing of CIA funds for clandestine operations. This allowed the CIA to finance non-communist candidates in Latin American elections. The intent was to block communist sympathizers from coming to power, not to discriminate between rival anti-communist candidates.

— Without further White House authorization, the CIA slipped a reported $960,000 under the table to El Salvador's Christian Democratic Party, whose candidate, Jose Napoleon Duarte, won the presidential runoff on May 6, 1984. Another $437,000 was delivered to the moderate National Conciliation Party. The purpose was to defeat Roberto d'Aubuisson, the right-wing candidate, who allegedly is linked to the notorious death squads.

— President Reagan didn't learn about the CIA's meddling in the Salvadoran election until after the Senate Intelligence Committee was briefed on May 3 about the secret payments. Five days later, Sen. Jesse Helms, R-N.C., went public with the charge that the CIA had "bought the election" for Duarte.

Press accounts reported that the president summoned Helms to the White House for a reprimand. Our sources say that Reagan was furious, not at Helms but at the CIA. He thanked Helms for saving him from the embarrassment of hailing the election in his May 9 television address as an example of democracy in action — words he would have had to eat when the CIA's involvement became known.

— After the election, the Reagan administration changed its attitude toward d'Aubuisson. The policy makers decided that a leader who had won 46 percent of the vote — regardless of his alleged bloody background — could not be ignored and that it would be wise to start a dialogue with him. President Reagan wrote a personal letter to d'Aubuisson, congratulating him on his strong showing. Secretary of State George Shultz, who previously had denied D'Aubuisson a visa, asked Helms privately to invite the right-wing leader to Washington.

Footnote: There have been other occasions when Helms has used his right-wing channels. He won a stunning concession from the Argentines at the beginning of the Falkland's War because the military junta trusted him. The Argentines told Helms they would withdraw their troops from the islands if the British would halt their fleet before it reached the Falklands. Unfortunately, this secret concession, which could have prevented the war, got lost in the rush of events.

Helms was also behind the negotiations that saved the life of Korean dissident Kim Dae Jung. The senator's erstwhile assistant, John Carbaugh, helped persuade Korean leaders in late 1980 to exile rather than execute Kim.

HYPE AND HYPOCRISY: With much fanfare, Vermont's Republican governor, Richard Snelling, recently launched a national, bipartisan, $10 million crusade called Proposition One, intended to force a reduction in the federal budget deficit.

The goal, Snelling said, is to "organized the people of this country into a broad interest group that will tell the Congress and the president that we understand, and reject, the consequences of continuing to operate hundreds of billions of dollars in the red each year."

The press packet that accompanied Snelling's kickoff of Proposition One included a large photo of himself. But there was one bit of relevant information missing from the hoopla: During Snelling's eight years as governor, Vermont has been awash in deficits, including an all-time record $30.8 million pool of red ink in 1983. According to the National Governors' Association, Vermont may be the only state with a deficit in 1985.

DIPLOMATIC DIGEST: The State Department's efforts to discourage our allies from selling military goods to Iran (while permitting some questionable sales by U.S. firms) have evidently had some effect. The ayatollah's arms buyers have been spotted in munitions markets around the world trying to rustle up new weapons, used weapons and spare parts for the U.S. hardware they inherited from the shah. In addition to Soviet bloc suppliers, the Iranians have approached South American right-wing regimes, with reportedly mixed results.

— The Kremlin, meanwhile, appears to have learned a lesson in the arms-supplying business. The flood of Soviet arms and military advisers sent to Egypt under the late President Gamel Nasser was so overpowering that Anwar Sadat unceremoniously booted the Russians out in 1972. Now, intelligence sources tell me, the Soviets are taking no chances that this kind of overkill will cause similar disenchantment with their current Arab protege, Syria. They're supplying weapons and Russian personnel, but trying to keep a much lower profile.

ANTHONY HARRIGAN

Union test brewing in Britain

The continuing labor violence in Britain, involving a dispute over the planned closure of a number of coal mines, reflects the degree to which hard-core leftism persists in a country which has a conservative government.

Anthony Harrigan

Prime Minister Thatcher and her ministers have rightly said that the labor violence threatens parliamentary democracy in the United Kingdom. The militant coal miners are striving to achieve by street violence what they cannot achieve at the ballot box or in orderly, lawful negotiations with the National Coal Board.

The stormtrooper tactics employed by the miners raise fears that Britain could become a kind of Orwellian East Bloc country under the domination of Marxist labor leaders. Fortunately, not all labor leaders in Britain support the miners' strike. Many are outspoken in opposition to the methods employed by Arthur Scargill, the radical boss of the miners.

I have received a letter from a well-informed British writer who is deeply concerned about the spread of violence in a society where police go unarmed. He wrote: "Violence on the picket lines is growing and we have now what amounts to mob rule in certain areas of the North, intimidation on a huge scale of those who want to work and their families. There is a hard core of militant Marxists and Trotskyites who are mainly inciting the violence. They are sometimes called a 'tiny minority' but in fact they are made up of perhaps as many as 25,000 rabid militants.

"Many of the people on the picket lines are not coal miners at all, but students from universities some hundreds of miles away. Others are unemployed men who turn up for 'picket duty,' as they are paid by the union to do this. But they are not themselves miners and have no personal interest in the matter. Then there are the professional thugs who will go anywhere to a punch-up, and if they are paid for it they like it all the better."

The existence of this mob rule threat in Great Britain testifies to a political failure during the Thatcher years. While Mrs. Thatcher's government has worked hard to achieve economic reforms, it has been unable to deal directly with the union power in Britain which exists as a virtual state within a state. The country is plagued with strikes of all types and in all sorts of industries and in the public sector. The Thatcher government has not dared to engage in the type of confrontation which President Reagan had early in his term with the striking air controllers, and which he won.

Now, the Conservative government is fearful of major confrontations and the ultimate one, a general strike. Large scale strikes brought down the Conservative Heath government in the 1970s. However, it must be established that the lawful government in Parliament is the real government of Great Britain.

The boss of the coal miners cannot be allowed to sabotage the economy of the British nation. Establishing this point will be the ultimate test of Mrs. Thatcher's leadership.

Security check turns tables!

The Senate Internal Security Subcommittee recently released classified material involving the security clearance of eight distinguished American citizens. It was unevaluated material gathered by Otto F. Otepka, and many people protested that this kind of thing harked back to the McCarthy era.

Art Buchwald

I didn't realize how dangerous something like this could be until I was interviewed by a security specialist from one of the government agencies, who was checking up on a good friend of mine who was being considered for an important job.

We shall call my friend Bill Hoganblatt, and I knew him from my days in Paris.

The security man was very friendly. "How long have you known Hoganblatt?" he asked me.

"About 18 years," I replied. "I want to say he's one of the finest men I've ever had the pleasure to be associated with. He's a good father, a kind husband, a loyal friend and a great American."

"What kind of peopole did he associate with during the years in Paris?"

"All kinds. Writers, artists, businesssmen. Bill was a very democratic guy."

"Were there any left-wingers among these friends?"

"Come to think of it, I think there were. At least some of them had strong political convictions, but I don't believe Bill – then again he never did say much about politics."

"Didn't you find this strange?" the investigator asked as he took notes.

"I didn't at that time, but now that you mention it, there was something funny about Bill's not wanting to discuss politics."

"You said it; I didn't. What about his drinking habits?"

"As far as I know, he never touched the stuff at all."

"Then you'd call him a secret drinker?"

"Come to think of it, he probably was. I never trusted a guy who wouldn't drink in public."

"What else can you remember about him?"

"He used to go to the museums in Paris a lot."

"Did you ever see him go to a museum?"

"No, he just said he did."

"Then he could have gone anywhere during those times. Even to the Soviet Embassy."

"By golly, he could have. I wouldn't have put it past him."

"One more question. As an American citizen, would you want Hoganblatt to work for your government?"

"I should say not! I didn't realize what a contemptible rat he was until I talked to you. For all I know, he's another Alger Hiss, and I hope he gets what's coming to him real soon."

TODAY IN HISTORY

Today's highlight in history:

Seventy years ago, on Aug. 15, 1914, the Panama Canal was opened to traffic.

On this date:

In 1057, Macbeth, the King of Scotland and the inspiration for a play by William Shakespeare, was murdered by the son of King Duncan.

In 1769, Napoleon Bonaparte was born on the island of Corsica.

In 1918, the United States and Russia severed diplomatic ties.

In 1935, humorist Will Rogers and aviator Wiley Post were killed when their airplane crashed near Point Barrow, Alaska.

In 1948, the Republic of Korea was proclaimed.

In 1961, East German workers began building the Berlin Wall.

Ten years ago: South Korean President Park Chung Hee escaped unhurt when a man shot at him during national holiday ceremonies in Seoul. Park's wife, however, was killed.

Five years ago: United Nations Ambassador Andrew Young resigned his post in the wake of controversy generated by an unauthorized meeting he had held with a Palestine Liberation Organization representative.

One year ago: In a speech to senior Communist Party officials, Soviet President Yuri V. Andropov urged them to support measures aimed at spurring the Soviet economy.

Today's birthdays: Actress Wendy Hiller and cooking expert Julia Child are 72. Playwright Robert Bolt and Eagle Forum president Phyllis Schlafly are 60. Actor Mike Connors and comedian Rose Marie are 59. Actress Janice Rule is 53. Actor Jim Dale and civil rights activist Vernon Jordan are 49. Britain's Princess Anne is 34.

Thought for today: "A comedian can only last till he either takes himself serious or his audience takes him serious." — Will Rogers (1879-1935).

Sinatras have lunch in Genoa, Italy

GENOA, Italy (AP) — Singer Frank Sinatra and his wife Barbara avoided traffic and swooped into Genoa by helicopter from Monaco for lunch Tuesday.

Photographers and reporters rushed to the downtown restaurant where Sinatra went, but strong-willed waiters kept the crowd away.

Sinatra, 68, landed at the airport of this Ligurian coast city from Monaco, where he had been attending a gala benefit for the Red Cross, then was driven to Zeffirino's restaurant in the center of the city.

Many of the other patrons were unaware of Sinatra's presence until the pack of photographers and reporters tried to get inside.

Sinatra, son of an Italian immigrant fireman, spoke to the waiters in Italian and left a $100 tip, waiters told reporters.

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Clara Peller, the gravel-voiced woman whose demand for beef brought advertising acclaim to the Wendy's restaurant chain, returns to the nation's television screens later this month.

A series of new ads featuring Mrs. Peller are to begin the week of Sept. 17, said Dennis Lynch, a spokesman for Wendy's in nearby Dublin, Ohio.

Wendy's introduced the "Where's the Beef?" commercials, touting the size of Wendy's burgers.

Lynch said one of the new ads features Mrs. Peller at a news conference, with reporters asking if she's found the beef.

"And she responds by saying something to the effect of 'I know where it is, and I know where it isn't,'" he said.

Jury still deliberating in De Lorean drug trial

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The jury in the cocaine-trafficking trial of John De Lorean has completed five days of deliberations without sending any messages or requests that might indicate its progress.

The six men and six women left the courthouse Tuesday after a total of 22 hours of talks since they received the case a week ago. They were to resume their task today.

The 59-year-old De Lorean is charged with conspiring to distribute $24 million worth of cocaine to save his failing sports car company in Northern Ireland.

U.S. District Judge Robert Takasugi said he believed the jury was "working hard," but said he had heard no word from the unusually quiet jury on how it was doing.

The jurors have with them in the jury room hundreds of pages of transcripts of video and audio tapes which are the key evidence against De Lorean. They also have a copy of the 68 legal instructions delivered by the judge before they began talking.

If they wanted a rerun of any tapes, they would have to return to open court to have them played. But there have been no such requests, nor have they sought to hear any testimony again.

De Lorean's attorney, Howard Weitzman, said the former automaker spent Tuesday with his defense team at their law offices "reading books" and waiting for word of a verdict.

The jury's decision will also determine whether De Lorean spends more days in court in the future. If the verdict is innocent, the automaker would walk out of the federal courthouse a free man.

But if the jury finds him guilty of a cocaine conspiracy, more court sessions would be ahead.

Takasugi has promised to hold a post-verdict hearing, in the event of a conviction, on defense allegations of government misconduct.

Defense lawyers have filed repeated motions alleging that the government prosecutors and agents violated the law and De Lorean's rights during the "sting" operation in which agents masqueraded as drug dealers.

The videotapes of their meetings with De Lorean formed the basis of the government's case.

White House defends president's comment

WASHINGTON (AP) — The White House is defending President Reagan's charge that a Soviet military official described leftist-ruled Nicaragua as a "base," even though the Soviets never used that word.

"The president was calling it as he sees it," said White House spokesman Robert Sims about Reagan's interpretation of a remark by Marshal Nikolai V. Ogarkov, Soviet Army chief of general staff. "Ogarkov's words are euphemistic. The president read them as code."

At a July 24 news conference, Reagan cited a quote from a captured Grenadian document, in which the president said Ogarkov "openly stated that after all the years of only having a base in the Western Hemisphere in Cuba, that now they (the Soviets) had bases here in Nicaragua and in Grenada.

"Well, they don't have one in Grenada anymore. And I think that it is the responsibility of this government to assist the people of Nicaragua in seeing that they don't have one in Nicaragua."

Last weekend, Nicaraguan leader Daniel Ortega noted Reagan's remark as support for Nicaragua's fears that the United States is plotting an invasion modeled after the U.S. ouster of the Marxist government in Grenada last October.

But a review of the captured Grenadian document, from which the Ogarkov quote was taken, contains no reference to "bases." The Soviet marshal was apparently referring to countries in the Western Hemisphere making "progressive changes."

The minutes of the March 10, 1983 conversation between Ogarkov and the Grenadian chief of staff, Einstein Louison, state:

"About the situation in the world, Marshal Ogarkov pointed out that the United States would try now and in the future to make things difficult for progressive changes in all regions and continents. The Marshal said that over two decades ago, there was only Cuba in Latin America, today there are Nicaragua, Grenada and a serious battle is going on in El Salvador.

"The Marshal of the Soviet Union then stressed that United States imperialism would try to prevent progress but that there were no prospects for imperialism to turn back history."

Asked about the "base" comment, White House spokesman Sims said Reagan did not mean that the Soviets have a military base in Nicaragua, but was using the word in the sense of the Soviets having "friends, clients and allies in Cuba, Nicaragua and Grenada."

Life after Olympics dull, say psychologists

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Post-Olympics life will be Dullsville for a while, according to psychologists. Traffic will seem worse, a common ground for conversation will be gone and we'll no longer be able to forget our troubles by watching athletes go for the gold.

And for the athletes, there's a real world waiting out there now that the cheering has stopped.

"We worked ourselves into a real fever — and every day it became more and more intense," Scott Fraser, an assistant professor of psychology at the University of Southern California, said Tuesday of the 16-day Summer Games.

"Everything was going positive," he said, as Americans piled up medals, freeway traffic eased and even the smog took a hike.

"The two weeks set us up so it seems worse now than we thought it was before. It's not going back to normal," Fraser said.

Albert Mehrabian, a psychology professor at UCLA, said the end of the Games will hit some people harder than others.

"For people who are mentally depressed, the Olympics gave them a kind of temporary uplift," Mehrabian said. "Or people who have a lifestyle that is monotonous and boring and who rely on television entertainment for excitement, the Olympics gave them a good bit of that."

Fraser and Mehrabian said the sense of loss would be particularly great for those who organized the Games.

Rich Perelman, press chief for the Los Angeles Olympic Organizing Committee, said the enormity of the loss had not yet hit most workers.

"But we'll come crashing down one of these days," Perelman said Tuesday during dismantling of the LAOOC's Convention Center press offices.

"I think everyone right now is just quietly proud," he said.

"For most of us the challenge is going to be to find something that was as interesting as the Games," said Perelman, who has worked on the Olympics for 3½ years and will stay on the job for another six months.

And the competitors are going to find life duller — although filled with new challenges — as they trade cleats for careers.

"For some of them it's going to be a sense that, 'It's over, and what can I possibly do with myself now?'" Fraser said of athletes who made many sacrifices for physical training. "It's going to be a rude day's awakening for many of them."

"No matter how good an engineer or stockbroker I am, I may not make it to the top," Fraser said some of the athletes will tell themselves.

Reagan has trouble staying awake

LOS ANGELES (AP) — President Reagan sometimes has trouble staying awake during meetings with his Cabinet, says White House chief of staff Michael K. Deaver.

Deaver made the comment during an interview broadcast by NBC News, in which he said he had seen Reagan "when he had difficulty staying awake (in cabinet meetings), but he wasn't the only one in the room that was."

Asked whether the problem were worse in the afternoon than in the morning, Deaver told NBC: "I think it has more to do with what's going on in the meeting than what time of day it is."

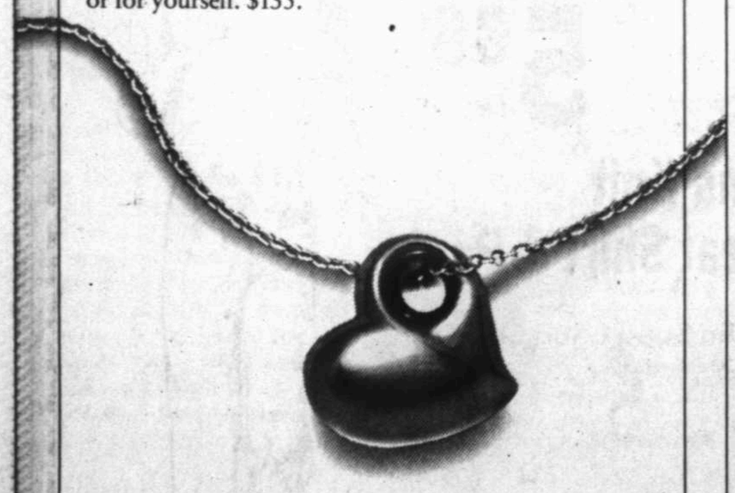

On Tuesday in California, White House spokesman Larry Speakes he had nothing to say about Monday's NBC report.

Asked if reports of Reagan's sleeping might hurt his campaign for re-election, Speakes said, "I can't make a judgment on that."

Deaver was unavailable for comment Tuesday on the interview.

Hot Jays stay cool despite sweep

Associated Press

At this rate, the Toronto Blue Jays will finish 36 games ahead of the Detroit Tigers.

Maybe the Blue Jays won't win their final 45 games. Maybe the Tigers won't lose their remaining 42. Maybe a 7½-game difference isn't a red-hot pennant race. But Tuesday was still the best night the Toronto Blue Jays have had in some time.

They swept a double-header from the Cleveland Indians, 8-1 and 9-5, while the team that has overshadowed their fine play all season, the Detroit Tigers, were crushed by the California Angels, 6-4 and 12-1.

"They're losing two?" said an unsympathetic Toronto Manager Bobby Cox when advised of the Tigers' plight. "Maybe they'll go through a bunch of pitchers. But we just need to keep on winning."

Toronto has won five of seven and 10 of 14. Earlier in the season, that would have put them farther behind the Tigers. Over the past two weeks, it's moved them up from 12½ back on the battle-weary leaders.

In the first game, the Blue Jays took a 5-0 lead in the third inning.In the nightcap, they overcame an early 5-0 deficit with 13 hits and all of their runs in the last four innings.

George Bell homered in the first game long after the suspense was gone, but his pinch-homer in the eighth inning of the nightcap was high drama.

Damaso Garcia picked everybody up again, following Bell's tie-breaker with a two-run shot.

Doyle Alexander, 11-5, and the winner of six of his last seven games, gave up just three hits in eight innings of the first game. Jim Gott and Dennis Lamp finished up. Lamp also pitched three innings for the second-game decision.

"He (Lamp) sure gave us a lift," Cox said. "Roy Lee Jackson and Jim Gott are going to be our short guys, so he's the guy in the middle. But tonight he stopped both games."

Lloyd Moseby tied the second game with a two-run home run — his first homer since July 18 and his 16th this year.

Back in Detroit, Lance Parrish added, "It wasn't the best day for the Tigers' staff. But it's nice to get these doubleheaders out of the way. This should give everybody a chance to regroup. I'm not worried."

The Tigers aren't exactly staring a 36-game deficit in the face. Their lead has been smaller than 7½ games — as recently as mid-July. But they don't need more nights like Tuesday.

American League

Angels 6-12, Tigers 4-1

Doug DeCinces wanted retribution."It's been a long time coming, that's for sure," he said. "The last time we saw Detroit, I went into a long dry spell where my average dropped from over .300 down to around .270."

DeCinces drove in four runs with a single and a three-run homer in the second game.The homer keyed a seven-run third inning. DeCinces' bases-loaded single broke up a ninth-inning tie in the first. On the night, he was 4-for-8 with six RBI.

Four Tigers — Lou Whitaker, Alan Trammell, Lance Parrish and Howard Johnson — hit solo homers in the first game to account for Detroit's runs. Whitaker's and Trammell's were hit consecutively.

Twins 3, Brewers 2

Tom Brunansky hit a solo homer and Tim Laudner added a two-run double in Minnesota's three-run second inning. Ed Hodge, 4-2, went the first 5 1-3 innings and got relief help from Rick Lysander, Len Whitehouse and Ron Davis, who picked up his 23rd save. The victory put the first-place Twins seven games over .500 for the first time since Sept. 22, 1979.

Gary Gaetti had three hits to extend his hitting streak to 10 games.

Red Sox 8, Royals 2

Wade Boggs had two doubles and Bill Buckner four hits, including a homer, driving in two runs apiece.

Al Nipper's seven-hit pitching evened his record at 5-5.

Rangers 9, White Sox 3

Gary Ward drilled four hits, including a homer and a triple, and scored four runs. George Wright added a three-run homer.

Ward hit his 12th homer in the first inning, tripled to drive in a run and scored another in the third, singled and scored in the fifth and singled to trigger a four-run seventh.

Frank Tanana, 12-11, scattered 10 hits as he boosted his career record to 17-10 over the White Sox. The victory snapped a three-game losing streak for the Rangers. The struggling White Sox suffered their fifth loss in the last six games.

A's 4, Orioles 3

Bruce Bochte's pinch-single scored Donnie Hill with the winning run in the ninth inning.

Rickey Henderson hit his 12th homer for the A's. Mike Young swatted his 10th for Baltimore.

Mariners 2, Yankees 1

Al Cowens doubled and scored on centerfielder Vic Mata's throwing error to snap a seventh-inning tie.

Rookie Mark Langston, 11-9, gave up six hits, struck out five and walked five before giving way to Ed Vande Berg, who got the last three outs for his sixth save. New York rookie Dennis Rasmussen suffered his first loss since June 22 despite allowing only five hits and striking out nine in his first major league complete game.

Ali company charged in deceiving investors

NEW YORK (AP) — A company formed by three-time heavyweight boxing champion Muhammad Ali to train and manage professional boxers has been charged with deceiving investors with a stock offering, although the former titlist was not accused of wrongdoing.

The suit filed Tuesday by the Securities and Exchange Commission against Champion Sports Management Inc. charges the company with misleading investors by disguising a $600,000 loss as a loan that might be collected, said SEC attorney Anne C. Flannery.

Ali, chairman of the Virginia Beach, Va., company, was not named in the suit filed in U.S. District Court in Manhattan. But the suit did name company president Richard Hirschfeld, a 36-year-old attorney, saying he was barred twice before from breaking stock fraud laws.

The suit seeks a court order stopping Hirschfeld and Champion from violating stock fraud laws. It also requests a temporary freeze on funds collected through the stock offering, estimated by the SEC at $1 million, until it can be reviewed further.

During a Tuesday hearing before U.S. District Judge Robert J. Ward, the defendants agreed to return the money they have collected thus far from investors. The defendants admitted no wrongdoing and the judge said the SEC's arguments were "not persuasive."

Defense lawyer Jerome M. Selvers said the suit was "premature" and that the money was being returned because the SEC suit had "killed the offering."

Stanley Sacks, Hirschfeld's attorney said, "We're prepared to go forward with substantial evidence that there wasn't any misconduct."

Olympians get astronaut reception in Apple

NEW YORK (AP) — A flurry of ticker tape, a shower of paper gold medals and a line of yellow balloons and flags lined Wall Street's concrete and steel "Canyon of Heroes," marking a path of honor for the nation's Olympic medal winners.

"I thought you had to be an astronaut to be in a ticker tape parade," said Steve Lundquist of Jonesboro, Ga., who captured a gold medal in swimming.

Mayor Edward Koch promised the 206 Olympians that today's ticker tape parade would be the city's "biggest and best." The most recent parade was in 1981, when the American hostages returned from Iran.

Today's parade route ran from Battery Park in lower Manhattan to City Hall, about 10 blocks uptown. Unlike most of their heroic predecessors, the 1984 Olympians — who spent the last two weeks running, cycling, swimming, jumping and diving — were walking instead of riding in cars.

The parade leaders were Koch and several other Olympians, including 4-foot-9 gold medal gymnast Mary Lou Retton and 6-foot-6 basketball star Chris Mullin.

Also marching were runner Joan Benoit, wrestler Jeff Blatnick, swimmers Tracy Caulkins and Rick Carey, gymnast Julianne McNamara, boxers Tyrell Biggs, Henry Tillman and Mark Breland and most of the men's gymnastics team.

Carl Lewis, the Games' top gold medal winner with four, was flying to Europe for a track meet, according to his manager.

At the parade, "everyone will have a gold medal," Donna Henes, an artist hired by the city, said Tuesday. "The theme is 'good as gold' — trying your best is as good as winning."

The athletes taking part in the parade arrived in the city Tuesday night and were put up at the posh Plaza Hotel.

Prior to a dinner-dance in their honor, Miss Retton, of Fairmont, W. Va., predicted the parade was going to be "wild." Told the athletes would be walking rather than riding in the parade, the diminutive gymnast said, "That's going to be something."

Nelson Vails, a native New Yorker from Harlem who won a silver in sprint cycling, joked with reporters, beginning his interview with "So, what are we going to talk about?"

Vails seemed less excited about the prospect of his stroll up Broadway: "I hate to walk. I wish we were in a car." But he looked forward to "walking with Mayor Koch in the parade."

TED BATTLES

Super powers in battle for first place

When super powers are battling for first place, one can't let the other guy get the upper hand without prompt retaliation.

A couple of weeks ago, WGN had baseball tongues wagging over the beanball war between the National League East contending Cubs and Mets. Emotions erupted and players from both teams spilled out on the field to create a general melee.

The unruly behavior had everybody talking, but, despite official reprimands from the league office, the incident was excused by most as just one of those things that happen in the heat of a pennant race.

For the Mets, it was reaction to frustration. They had blown something like eight games in two weeks, going from four or five up to four behind in the standings. For the Cubs, well, a team that hasn't won a pennant since 1945 can be pardoned for getting carried away.

WTBS topped it Sunday when the Atlanta Braves and San Diego Padres met at Atlanta in a, pardon the expression, crucial West Division series.

The Padres are nine games out in front, but the way they responded to a first inning Hit Batsman (Alan Wiggins was plunked by a pitch from Pascual Perez, not the world's most lovable person), you'd have thought it was more like a half game. San Diego declared war on Pascual.

Every time Perez came to bat, someone took a pot shot at him. And after each dustoff, both benches emptied. Perez came up four times before former Midland Cub pitcher Craig Lefferts finally hit him.

Even the fans got into it when Donnie Moore, another former Midland Cub, retaliated for the Braves in the ninth, by hitting San Diego's Graig Nettles with his first pitch after starting the inning in relief.

ALTHOUGH trouble broke out like uncontrolled forest fires throughout the game, it was amazing. No one lost his temper. All of the mob brawls were typical baseball fights. No one threw an uncalculated fist in uncontrolled anger.

It was a classic illustration of why baseball players are smarter than players in other sports.

In hockey, a fight means broken sticks, bruised knuckles and blood on the ice.

Football battles are exhibitions of Neandrathals in their most primitive state. How many times have you seen a hulking lineman uncork a devastating right at the face mask or headgear of an opponent? Talk about mad. You've gotta be mad to take a chance like that, but then these guys move pianos, they don't play them.

In some of those basketball fights, players are seriously hurt. When you start swinging elbows, forearms and bringing knees up real quick, that will happen.

But Sunday, did you notice, never once was a fist thrown.

Even players who charged the mound, usually stopped short of delivering a clean, crisp blow with those fragile hands at bony face.

When Nettles took off after Moore, they met at the mound. Nettles ducked and went for a bear hug around Donnie's waist. Donnie, in turn, sidestepped the impetuous lunge and delivered what appeared to be a slap at Nettles' head. Donnie is no dope. He's having a great year and wasn't about to waste the rest of the season on Nettles' hard head.

Later, as brawls erupted around first base, second base, the pitcher's mound, near the Braves dugout, Goose Gossage darted for the Braves' dugout to "get at Moore". Bob Horner, who had suited up for the fights, stepped in front of the charging Goose. Didn't raise a hostile hand to stop the charge, but Goose stopped as though he had been tackled.

Chances are Horner simply said, "That Moore's got a hard head. Watch your hands." Suddenly sanity was restored.

AFTER LEFFERTS finally nailed Perez with a pitch, something three other pitchers failed to do, although they took dead aim. Craig didn't stick around for the pushing and shoving. The camera followed him from the mound and the look on Craig's face seemed to say, "I did what I was told, now I'm getting out here." He stopped long enough to admire the pile of humanity on the mound, probably thinking, "Last time I went fishing, I had a can of worms that looked like that."

I guess the most critcial time of all came after Ed Whitson almost hit Perez as Pascual tried to bunt. Perez squared away, bat in hand, as though he planned to pick off the first one to come at him.

That was scary for anyone who remembered San Francisco Giant pitcher Juan Marichal turning on Dodger catcher John Roseboro without warning and skulling him with his bat. Fortunately, Roseboro pulled through.

Sure, there will be fines from the league office, but they should, after watching the hostilities, be for the lack of casualties from a long afternoon of squabbling. Despite all the alarums and excursions, all it proved was that baseball players just aren't fighters.

Jury still deliberating in De Lorean drug trial

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The jury in the cocaine-trafficking trial of John De Lorean has completed five days of deliberations without sending any messages or requests that might indicate its progress.

The six men and six women left the courthouse Tuesday after a total of 22 hours of talks since they received the case a week ago. They were to resume their task today.

The 59-year-old De Lorean is charged with conspiring to distribute $24 million worth of cocaine to save his failing sports car company in Northern Ireland.

U.S. District Judge Robert Takasugi said he believed the jury was "working hard," but said he had heard no word from the unusually quiet jury on how it was doing.

The jurors have with them in the jury room hundreds of pages of transcripts of video and audio tapes which are the key evidence against De Lorean. They also have a copy of the 68 legal instructions delivered by the judge before they began talking.

If they wanted a rerun of any tapes, they would have to return to open court to have them played. But there have been no such requests, nor have they sought to hear any testimony again.

De Lorean's attorney, Howard Weitzman, said the former automaker spent Tuesday with his defense team at their law offices "reading books" and waiting for word of a verdict.

The jury's decision will also determine whether De Lorean spends more days in court in the future. If the verdict is innocent, the automaker would walk out of the federal courthouse a free man.

But if the jury finds him guilty of a cocaine conspiracy, more court sessions would be ahead.

Takasugi has promised to hold a post-verdict hearing, in the event of a conviction, on defense allegations of government misconduct.

Defense lawyers have filed repeated motions alleging that the government prosecutors and agents violated the law and De Lorean's rights during the "sting" operation in which agents masqueraded as drug dealers.

The videotapes of their meetings with De Lorean formed the basis of the government's case.

White House defends president's comment

WASHINGTON (AP) — The White House is defending President Reagan's charge that a Soviet military official described leftist-ruled Nicaragua as a "base," even though the Soviets never used that word.

"The president was calling it as he sees it," said White House spokesman Robert Sims about Reagan's interpretation of a remark by Marshal Nikolai V. Ogarkov, Soviet Army chief of general staff. "Ogarkov's words are euphemistic. The president read them as code."

At a July 24 news conference, Reagan cited a quote from a captured Grenadian document, in which the president said Ogarkov "openly stated that after all the years of only having a base in the Western Hemisphere in Cuba, that now they (the Soviets) had bases here in Nicaragua and in Grenada.

"Well, they don't have one in Grenada anymore. And I think that it is the responsibility of this government to assist the people of Nicaragua in seeing that they don't have one in Nicaragua."

Last weekend, Nicaraguan leader Daniel Ortega noted Reagan's remark as support for Nicaragua's fears that the United States is plotting an invasion modeled after the U.S. ouster of the Marxist government in Grenada last October.

But a review of the captured Grenadian document, from which the Ogarkov quote was taken, contains no reference to "bases." The Soviet marshal was apparently referring to countries in the Western Hemisphere making "progressive changes."

The minutes of the March 10, 1983 conversation between Ogarkov and the Grenadian chief of staff, Einstein Louison, state:

"About the situation in the world, Marshal Ogarkov pointed out that the United States would try now and in the future to make things difficult for progressive changes in all regions and continents. The Marshal said that over two decades ago, there was only Cuba in Latin America, today there are Nicaragua, Grenada and a serious battle is going on in El Salvador.

"The Marshal of the Soviet Union then stressed that United States imperialism would try to prevent progress but that there were no prospects for imperialism to turn back history."

Asked about the "base" comment, White House spokesman Sims said Reagan did not mean that the Soviets have a military base in Nicaragua, but was using the word in the sense of the Soviets having "friends, clients and allies in Cuba, Nicaragua and Grenada."

Life after Olympics dull, say psychologists

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Post-Olympics life will be Dullsville for a while, according to psychologists. Traffic will seem worse, a common ground for conversation will be gone and we'll no longer be able to forget our troubles by watching athletes go for the gold.

And for the athletes, there's a real world waiting out there now that the cheering has stopped.

"We worked ourselves into a real fever — and every day it became more and more intense," Scott Fraser, an assistant professor of psychology at the University of Southern California, said Tuesday of the 16-day Summer Games.

"Everything was going positive," he said, as Americans piled up medals, freeway traffic eased and even the smog took a hike.

"The two weeks set us up so it seems worse now than we thought it was before. It's not going back to normal," Fraser said.

Albert Mehrabian, a psychology professor at UCLA, said the end of the Games will hit some people harder than others.

"For people who are mentally depressed, the Olympics gave them a kind of temporary uplift," Mehrabian said. "Or people who have a lifestyle that is monotonous and boring and who rely on television entertainment for excitement, the Olympics gave them a good bit of that."

Fraser and Mehrabian said the sense of loss would be particularly great for those who organized the Games.

Rich Perelman, press chief for the Los Angeles Olympic Organizing Committee, said the enormity of the loss had not yet hit most workers.

"But we'll come crashing down one of these days," Perelman said Tuesday during dismantling of the LAOOC's Convention Center press offices.

"I think everyone right now is just quietly proud," he said.

"For most of us the challenge is going to be to find something that was as interesting as the Games," said Perelman, who has worked on the Olympics for 3½ years and will stay on the job for another six months.

And the competitors are going to find life duller — although filled with new challenges — as they trade cleats for careers.

"For some of them it's going to be a sense that, 'It's over, and what can I possibly do with myself now?'" Fraser said of athletes who made many sacrifices for physical training. "It's going to be a rude day's awakening for many of them."

"No matter how good an engineer or stockbroker I am, I may not make it to the top," Fraser said some of the athletes will tell themselves.

Olympians get astronaut reception in Apple

NEW YORK (AP) — A flurry of ticker tape, a shower of paper gold medals and a line of yellow balloons and flags lined Wall Street's concrete and steel "Canyon of Heroes," marking a path of honor for the nation's Olympic medal winners.

"I thought you had to be an astronaut to be in a ticker tape parade," said Steve Lundquist of Jonesboro, Ga., who captured a gold medal in swimming.

Mayor Edward Koch promised the 206 Olympians that today's ticker tape parade would be the city's "biggest and best." The most recent parade was in 1981, when the American hostages returned from Iran.

Today's parade route ran from Battery Park in lower Manhattan to City Hall, about 10 blocks uptown. Unlike most of their heroic predecessors, the 1984 Olympians — who spent the last two weeks running, cycling, swimming, jumping and diving — were walking instead of riding in cars.

The parade leaders were Koch and several other Olympians, including 4-foot-9 gold medal gymnast Mary Lou Retton and 6-foot-6 basketball star Chris Mullin.

Also marching were runner Joan Benoit, wrestler Jeff Blatnick, swimmers Tracy Caulkins and Rick Carey, gymnast Julianne McNamara, boxers Tyrell Biggs, Henry Tillman and Mark Breland and most of the men's gymnastics team.

Carl Lewis, the Games' top gold medal winner with four, was flying to Europe for a track meet, according to his manager.

At the parade, "everyone will have a gold medal," Donna Henes, an artist hired by the city, said Tuesday. "The theme is 'good as gold' — trying your best is as good as winning."

The athletes taking part in the parade arrived in the city Tuesday night and were put up at the posh Plaza Hotel.

Prior to a dinner-dance in their honor, Miss Retton, of Fairmont, W. Va., predicted the parade was going to be "wild." Told the athletes would be walking rather than riding in the parade, the diminutive gymnast said, "That's going to be something."

Nelson Vails, a native New Yorker from Harlem who won a silver in sprint cycling, joked with reporters, beginning his interview with "So, what are we going to talk about?"

Vails seemed less excited about the prospect of his stroll up Broadway: "I hate to walk. I wish we were in a car." But he looked forward to "walking with Mayor Koch in the parade."

TED BATTLES

Super powers in battle for first place

When super powers are battling for first place, one can't let the other guy get the upper hand without prompt retaliation.

A couple of weeks ago, WGN had baseball tongues wagging over the beanball war between the National League East contending Cubs and Mets. Emotions erupted and players from both teams spilled out on the field to create a general melee.

The unruly behavior had everybody talking, but, despite official reprimands from the league office, the incident was excused by most as just one of those things that happen in the heat of a pennant race.

For the Mets, it was reaction to frustration. They had blown something like eight games in two weeks, going from four or five up to four behind in the standings. For the Cubs, well, a team that hasn't won a pennant since 1945 can be pardoned for getting carried away.

WTBS topped it Sunday when the Atlanta Braves and San Diego Padres met at Atlanta in a, pardon the expression, crucial West Division series.

The Padres are nine games out in front, but the way they responded to a first inning Hit Batsman (Alan Wiggins was plunked by a pitch from Pascual Perez, not the world's most lovable person), you'd have thought it was more like a half game. San Diego declared war on Pascual.

Every time Perez came to bat, someone took a pot shot at him. And after each dustoff, both benches emptied. Perez came up four times before former Midland Cub pitcher Craig Lefferts finally hit him.

Even the fans got into it when Donnie Moore, another former Midland Cub, retaliated for the Braves in the ninth, by hitting San Diego's Graig Nettles with his first pitch after starting the inning in relief.

ALTHOUGH trouble broke out like uncontrolled forest fires throughout the game, it was amazing. No one lost his temper. All of the mob brawls were typical baseball fights. No one threw an uncalculated fist in uncontrolled anger.

It was a classic illustration of why baseball players are smarter than players in other sports.

In hockey, a fight means broken sticks, bruised knuckles and blood on the ice.

Football battles are exhibitions of Neandrathals in their most primitive state. How many times have you seen a hulking lineman uncork a devastating right at the face mask or headgear of an opponent? Talk about mad. You've gotta be mad to take a chance like that, but then these guys move pianos, they don't play them.

In some of those basketball fights, players are seriously hurt. When you start swinging elbows, forearms and bringing knees up real quick, that will happen.

But Sunday, did you notice, never once was a fist thrown.

Even players who charged the mound, usually stopped short of delivering a clean, crisp blow with those fragile hands at bony face.

When Nettles took off after Moore, they met at the mound. Nettles ducked and went for a bear hug around Donnie's waist. Donnie, in turn, sidestepped the impetuous lunge and delivered what appeared to be a slap at Nettles' head. Donnie is no dope. He's having a great year and wasn't about to waste the rest of the season on Nettles' hard head.

Later, as brawls erupted around first base, second base, the pitcher's mound, near the Braves dugout, Goose Gossage darted for the Braves' dugout to "get at Moore". Bob Horner, who had suited up for the fights, stepped in front of the charging Goose. Didn't raise a hostile hand to stop the charge, but Goose stopped as though he had been tackled.

Chances are Horner simply said, "That Moore's got a hard head. Watch your hands." Suddenly sanity was restored.

AFTER LEFFERTS finally nailed Perez with a pitch, something three other pitchers failed to do, although they took dead aim. Craig didn't stick around for the pushing and shoving. The camera followed him from the mound and the look on Craig's face seemed to say, "I did what I was told, now I'm getting out here." He stopped long enough to admire the pile of humanity on the mound, probably thinking, "Last time I went fishing, I had a can of worms that looked like that."

I guess the most critcial time of all came after Ed Whitson almost hit Perez as Pascual tried to bunt. Perez squared away, bat in hand, as though he planned to pick off the first one to come at him.

That was scary for anyone who remembered San Francisco Giant pitcher Juan Marichal turning on Dodger catcher John Roseboro without warning and skulling him with his bat. Fortunately, Roseboro pulled through.

Sure, there will be fines from the league office, but they should, after watching the hostilities, be for the lack of casualties from a long afternoon of squabbling. Despite all the alarums and excursions, all it proved was that baseball players just aren't fighters.

Dove hunters get rare treat in '84

By TODD WOODARD
Outdoors Writer

Texas dove hunters will be allowed to harvest white-tipped doves during the upcoming hunting season.

But what is a white-tipped dove?

White-tipped, formerly known as white-fronted doves, are fairly numerous in South Texas, generally overlapping the range of the popular white-winged dove. Their populations have expanded during the past decade, according to biologists of Texas Parks and Wildlife.

Whitetips have remained relatively obscure because they generally are less gregarious than either mourning or white-winged doves. They are usually seen as singles or pairs, and they prefer to fly only short distances.

Whitetips generally have the same body shape as whitewings, although a fraction larger. They have a rounded tail like witewings rather than the pointed tail of the mourning dove. The most prominent features in flight are the white-tipped tail, a white belly and white forehead. Instead of white wing patches as seen on whitewings, whitetips' wings are gray-brown above and cinnamon-colored on the underside.

TP&W biologist Gary Homerstad says the birds feed on a variety of native berries and seeds, citrus seeds, and several agricultural crops such as corn, sorghum and sunflowers.

The White-tipped seasons, along with mourning doves, are broken into three areas: the North Zone runs Sept. 1-Nov. 9, 1984; the Central Zone runs in a split season, from Sept. 1-Oct. 30, 1984, and Jan. 5-14, 1985; the South Zone is split also, from Sept. 20-Nov. 12, 1984, and Jan. 5-20, 1985.

Early teal season set

A special early teal season will run Sept. 15-23 across the state.

The state game and fish agency kept last year's bag and possession limits: four teal ducks (blue-winged, green-winged and cinnamon) in the daily aggregate and eight in possession.

Shooting hours are sunrise to sunset.

Bass stocking increases

Texas reached an all-time high in production and stocking of striped bass for Texas reservoirs.

Jaime Geiger, assistant hatcheries chief for Texas Parks and Wildlife, said about 3.5 million striped bass and 2.6 million striped/hybrid bass fingerlings were produced in three hatcheries this year. That's a 352 percent increase in stripers and a 128 percent increase for hybrids over the base 1982 totals.

Geiger said the brood fish for the stockings came from the area immediately below the Lake Livingston Dam. Ninety-one female and 70 male fish collected there made up the bulk of the 1984 brood stock.

LStriped bass are spawned by hand-stripping eggs and milt from the brood fish and keeping the fertilized eggs in special containers until they develop mouths. At the proper time, the fry are released in rearing ponds to grow to fingerling size.

Striped bass are stocked in major reservoirs, especially those in which river channels might trigger spawning. Hybrid stripers are stocked mainly in smaller reservoirs, including power plant cooling ponds. Their greater tolerance for warm water and rapid growth make them an effective predator and sport fish.

The West Texas lakes which received stockings are: Spence, 119,500 stripers; Amistad, 667,289 stripers; Fort Phantom Hill, 100,575 hybrids; Red Bluff, 56,057 hybrids.

Lake atlas available

An atlas showing more than 160 public lakes in Texas is available in hunting and fishing outlets across the state.

Published by Marlake, Inc., the 224-page book will be updated annually. It will sell for $19.95 over the counter. It contains maps of all major reservoirs, most city supply lakes, many small impoundments and four maps of Texas coastal waters.

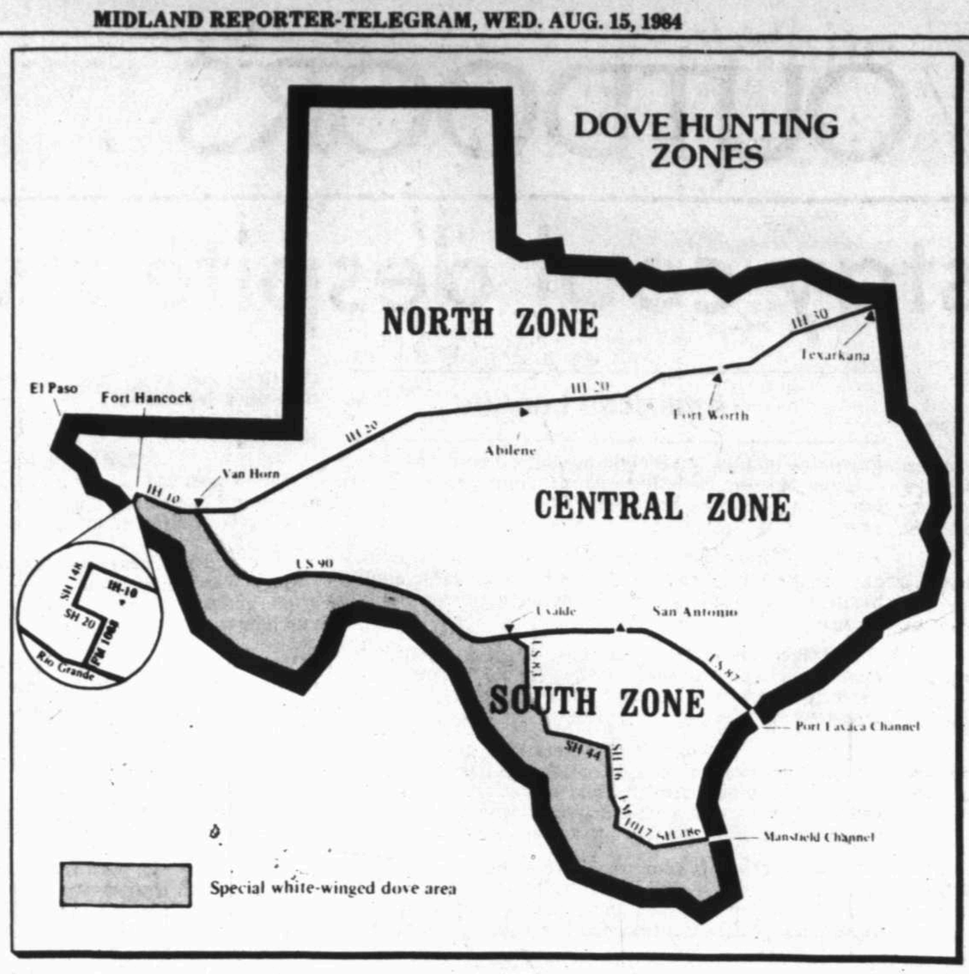

The atlases are also available by mail. To obtain one send $21.50 to Marlake, Inc., 1201 N. Watson Rd., Suite 238, Arlington, Texas 76011.

Sandhills sets fishing date

The Sandhills Bass Club of Crane has set its annual invitational tournament date.

The club will hold its second open tournament, with up to a $500 first prize, at Lake Brownwood Sept. 29-30. It will be a three-fish-per-day maximum stringer, 12-inch minimum length.

Contact Diana Earp at P.O. Box 121, Crane, Texas 79731 for entry blanks.

Benefit bass tourney slated

The Texas Bass Association and 7-Eleven are co-sponsoring a bass fishing tournament to be held on Cedar Creek Lake southeast of Dallas Aug. 25. All proceeds will benefit the Muscular Dystrophy Association.

Entry fee is $75; cash prizes of $30,650 will be awarded in the heavy stringer and big bass categories through fifteenth place. All prizes are guaranteed. Write 7-Eleven, North Texas Division, 12200 Park Central Drive, Suite 500, Dallas, Texas 75251 for more information or call Van McGuffey at (214) 270-7665.

Fowler takes fourth place

Midlander Jef Fowler wasn't able to regain his benchrest shooting championship form at Kelbly's Range July 23-28 July.

He went to Ohio to try for his fourth national benchrest shooting crown, but due to a rifle problem in the sporter category (in which a gun must weigh less than 10 pounds be larger than .22 caliber) he finished 46th, which dropped him to an overall finish of fourth in the four-gun aggregate.

In the other three categories, he finished second in unlimited, third in light varmint and ninth in heavy varmint.

Louisianan Don Geraci won, Allie Euber of Vermont was second and Ron Hoehn of Missouri was third.

TPWD study sheds new light on striped bass

When striped bass were first introduced into freshwater reservoirs almost two decades ago, the first biological phrase to describe them was "open water predator."

Since then, fishery biologists and striper fishermen have learned that such a handy phrase is accurate only part of the time.

A current Texas Parks and Wildlife study of striped bass at 23,500-acre Lake Whitney near Hillsboro already has shed new light on habits and seasonal movements of the mobile species.

Biologist Chuck Mulford traced the patterns of 36 adult stripers with ultrasonic transmitters and found their movements were dictated by the spawning urge, water termperature and the availability of forage fish.

He said that although volumes could be written about the fishes' movements, they generally sought out cool, deep water in the summer. Then in the fall they follow bait fish into shallower areas to feed, tending toward the upper areas of lakes. They concentrate even more in the shallow water in winter.

With the exception of the midsummer period when stripers head for deep water, their location during the rest of the year is dictated by available food. Since bait fish congregate around brushy coves, submerged shoals and ledges, and the mouth of coves, stripes will often hang around those points.

The spawning urge plays a role in the upstream movements of stripers during late winter and early spring, and this migration may be accelerated by water currents from rainfall or upstream dam releases. Stripers require constantly flowing, salty water to spawn, and the releases attract them. But most Texas fisheries require periodic restocking because the stripers won't spawn in fresh water.

BASS Masters cast for $100,000

PINE BLUFF, Ark. (AP) — The top bass fishermen in the country cast their lines today in the Arkansas River hoping to hook a piece of the $100,000 at the Bass Anglers Sportsmen Society's 14th annual BASS Masters Classic.

Vice President George Bush is to be on hand Saturday for the final weigh-in, when the fisherman with the largest total catch for the three-day tournament wins the $40,000 first prize.

Three Arkansans are in the field of 40 anglers qualified for the Classic — Ricky Green of Arkadelphia, Rob Kilby of Royal and George Cochran of North Little Rock. Also in the field are six former Classic champions, including defending champ Larry Nixon of Hemphill, Texas.

The top 35 finishers in the year-long series of BASS Masters tournaments, and five top amateurs, make up the tournament field.

The anglers, competing in identically outfitted bass boats, launch each morning at 6:30 from the Ste. Marie Recreation Area in the Pine Bluff Slackwater Harbor. The weigh-ins are at 2:30 p.m. each day at the Pine Bluff Convention Center. Fishing is permitted in the area bounded by the David T. Terry Lock and Dam 37 miles upstream of the entry point and Lock and Dam 3, 57 miles downstream.

The contestants have been banned from fishing within a 75-mile radius of Pine Bluff for two weeks since July 31, although several of the entries visited Pine Bluff before the restriction began.

This year's tournament was scheduled for Niagra Falls, but New York organizers couldn't raise the $200,000 required to host the Classic.

Forrest Wood of Flippin, who supplies the BASS Masters Classic with boats made by his company, began in April trying to get the event moved to Arkansas.

Wood, at a May 9 news conference announcing the Pine Bluff site, said Gov. Bill Clinton helped.

Baines gains Player laurels

From Wire Reports

BASEBALL—Harold Baines, Chicago White Sox, with four homers and nine RBI, has been named American League Player of the Week for the period ending Aug. 12. Baines hit .448 and also had three doubles and a triple...

Outfielder Mike Hamilton of Austin McCallum signed a letter of intent to play at Texas-Austin, but coach Cliff Gustafson says he could lose Hamilton to the pros. Eight other Longhorns recruits this year already have decided to turn pro rather than accept a scholarship. Hamilton, the son of former Longhorn pitcher A.J. Hamilton, blossomed as a prospect this summer, hitting over .500 for the Austin Lanier American Legion team, which won the state championship Sunday. Hamilton, who hit .357 for McCallum, can't be approached by the pros until his summer season ends. Gustafson said he's "closing up shop" on recruiting and hopes to keep his seven remaining signees — pitchers Curt Krippner of Cypress Creek, Kevin Garner of Brazoswood and Mark Potkovsek of Beaumont Kelley; catcher Jon Prather of Lanier; shortstop Scott Coolbaugh of San Antonio Roosevelt; outfielder Richard Leigh of DeSoto; and first baseman Dodd Johnson, an Austin Westlake product who is transferring from McLennan Community College in Waco...

Americans risk enslavement unless they become involved with the word of God, San Diego Padres pitcher Eric Show said at an "Anti-Sin" rally sponsored by two churches. "God defines morality. He's the author of morality and we're subject to it," said Show, one of three Padres players who acknowledged earlier this summer that they are members of the ultra-conservative John Birch Society. The other two, pitchers Dave Dravecky and Mark Thurmond, were among the 1,500 people who attended the "Stop America's Leaning Toward Sin" rally Monday. "The problem of sin is the main problem in America and it's taking its form legislatively," said Show, who denounced abortion during the forum, which was also sponsored by the Bible Missionary Fellowship Church...

Texas tailback Edwin Simmons had arthroscopic surgery on his left knee Monday, a move that could force him to miss the opener against Auburn on Sept. 15. However, doctors found no major damage to the knee which had been swelling since surgery in February to the 6-foot-4, 235-pound sophomore running back. Simmons underwent operations on both knees last winter. His left knee was operated on Feb. 23, a month after the right one, and the surgery involved trimming torn medial cartilage and a lateral release, which consisted of an inch-long incision to cut tissue so that the kneecap would track properly.

Simmons' rehabilitation went well until June when the left knee started swelling. Continued irritation of the knee led doctors to suspect either cartilage problems, debris behind the kneecap or a low-grade infection that hadn't been remedied by medication...

Harvey Martin, former Dallas Cowboys defensive end, will join NBC Sports as a commentator for the 1984 NFL season...

Greg Dageforde, Kansas State's leading rusher in 1983, has been ruled academically ineligible. The 6-foot 202-pound junior had been expected to return as a starting tailback for the Wildcats. Dageforde, of Clay Center, Kan., rushed for a total of 677 yards in 1983, including a 175-yard three-touchdown performance against Wyoming...

White Sox retire No.11 of Aparicio

By JOE MOOSHIL
AP Sports Writer

CHICAGO — Luis Aparicio, a member of baseball's Hall of Fame and considered by many the greatest shortstop to play the game, has had his No. 11 retired by the Chicago White Sox.

"I worked hard to do my best," Aparicio said Tuesday night at ceremonies conducted in Comiskey Park and at the very spot where he thrilled fans for years with his brilliant fielding, running and hitting.

"I thank my teammates and the White Sox for giving me the chance to play the game I love. I thank God, I thank America and I thank all of you.

"What can I say?" said Aparicio. "I don't have any words for it. I can't believe the last two days."

Aparicio was inducted into baseball's Hall of Fame on Sunday and one of the big surprises the White Sox staged for him was bringing Chico Carrasquel to Chicago for the ceremonies.

The two, who hold different political views in their native Venezuela, hugged each other.

"He was the greatest," said Carrasquel, who was instrumental in getting Aparicio to sign with the White Sox. "The first time I saw him he was 10 years old and I knew he was going to be a major leaguer."

It was Carrasquel who called White Sox General Manager Frank Lane and told him about Aparicio.

"I called Lane and told him about Luis and Lane told me to sign him," recalled Carrasquel, whom the White Sox later traded to make room for Aparicio when they brought him up in 1956, the year he won American League Rookie of the Year honors.

"He wanted to go to the major leagues right away but it took him two years," said Carrasquel, who is unique in that he was the White Sox shortstop between two players who made the Hall of Fame.

Carrasquel replaced Luke Appling and Aparicio replaced Carrasquel after he was traded to Cleveland.

Aparicio's number is only the fourth to be retired by the White Sox. The others were Appling's No. 4, Minnie Minoso's No. 9 and the late Nellie Fox' No. 2. Minoso and Fox were teammates of Aparicio.

Minoso, Pierce and Jim Rivera were among Aparicio's White Sox teammates who attended the ceremonies, as did Moe Drabowsky who pitched for Baltimore when Aparicio played for the Orioles.

Rivera said "If anybody deserves the Hall of Fame, it's Looie. He played every day and he had fallen arches. Without him and Nellie we would never have won in 1959."

The ever-popular Minoso, who was not with the White Sox when they won their last pennant, said "I believe when you talk about the best, you have to put him with all the great shortstops who ever played this game."

Drabowsky called Aparicio "A delight to be around. Not only was he an outstanding player but he was a charming guy."

Harmon fans at mike

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — Harmon Killebrew, who was inducted into the Baseball Hall of Fame on Sunday, had a harder time at the microphone than he ever had at the plate when he was honored Tuesday night by his old team, the Minnesota Twins.

Killebrew, whose 573 career home runs included 475 for the Twins, received three standing ovations from a Metrodome crowd of about 40,000 prior to the Twins' game with the Milwaukee Brewers.

Killebrew, the first Twin to be named to the Hall of Fame, had barely uttered the words, "What a beautiful sight," when he was treated to his second standing ovation.

"I think it is almost impossible to express my feelings," Killebrew said. "I told (Twins public relations director) Tom Mee I wasn't going to cry tonight, but this is almost more than I can take."

Among those honoring Killebrew were U.S. Sen. Rudy Boschwitz, St. Paul Mayor George Latimer and former Twins scout Ossie Bluege, who signed Killebrew to his first professional contract in 1954.

Killebrew, who is now in private business in Ontario, Ore., and does Twins color commentary for cable television, hit 30 or more home runs 10 times during his 14 seasons in Minnesota. He holds the American League record for home runs by a right-handed hitter.

Mee told Killebrew during the ceremony that a bullseye target placed on the facing of the second deck in left field, 522 feet from home plate, was the same distance as Killebrew's longest home run, which he hit in Metropolitan Stadium in Bloomington, Minn., on June 3, 1967.

No player has come close to hitting a home run into the upper left-field deck of the Metrodome.

Lynn McGlothen dies in mobile home fire

DUBACH, La. (AP) — Lynn McGlothen, whose 11-year major league pitching career ended two seasons ago, died Tuesday in a mobile home fire that also took the life of a friend he was visiting, said Joey Davidson of the Lincoln Parish Sheriff's Office.

Davidson said the fire apparently started in the living room of the mobile home of Gloria Reed Smith at about 2 a.m. Tuesday morning. Smith rescued her daughters, ages 13 and 7, then went back to help McGlothen, Davidson said.

"They were together when we found them, right at the entrance to the bedroom," Davidson said.

McGlothen, 34, was a four-sport letterman at Grambling High School, and a star at Grambling State University.

He was drafted in 1968 by the Boston Red Sox, spent two years in the minor leagues, then moved up in 1972 to Boston.

His lifetime major league record was 86-93.

Turnovers, defense key to Cougar SWC grid hopes

By MICHAEL A. LUTZ

HOUSTON (AP) —It's not surprising that University of Houston Coach Bill Yeoman lists defense and turnovers as key facors in the Cougars' bid to return to a contending role in the 1984 Southwest Conference football race.

The same subjects have been on Yeoman's mind the past two seasons, when the Cougars compiled a 9-12-1 record, committed 78 turnovers and allowed an average of 336.3 yards per game.

An immobile defense had to share the blame for last year's 4-7 record, the Cougars' first losing season since 1975 and only the fourth in Yeoman's 21 years at Houston.

"It's a good thing we played a lot of games on Astroturf because we would have killed a lot of grass by standing around," Yeoman said. "We just didn't have a lot of movement."

Houston's defensive line is achored by tackle T.J. Turner and nose guard Eddie Gilmore, and a veteran secondary crew led by former quarterback Audrey McMillian at free safety and Robert Jones at strong safety.

UH Outlook

THE COUGARS open their season Sept. 15 in the Astrodome against Miami of Ohio.

Yeoman said he was pleased with his team's defensive intensity during spring drills and thinks it will carry over into the fall.

"If they can sustain themselves for longer than 10 seconds, we have a chance," Yeoman said. "They've got to realize that there are 59:50 minutes left in the game."

Houston's turnover rate actually has increased over the past two seasons, from an average of three to four per game.

Yeoman says sophomore quarterback Gerald Landry's increased familiarity with the Cougar offense will help Houston's fumble and interception problems.

"He's an excellent thrower and he's getting more instinctive," Yeoman said. "He just needs to be in the fire a little longer. Fumbles are a frame of mind and when Landry knows where all the offensive movements are, those things will take care of themselves."

Landry already has been firetested. Last season, he became the first freshman in Houston history to start at quarterback.

He responded with a school-record 340 passing yards against Texas Tech and accounted for 1,203 yards of total offense in four games as a starter.

The Cougars will be operating with a potentially talented set of running backs, but they are Yeoman's youngest group ever with no returning lettermen.

THE HOUSTON backfield depth chart is dotted with freshmen and sophomores, with third-string quarterback Quince Harris the lone junior.

Yeoman traditionally is hesitant to praise young players, so 1984 could be a silent year for the coach, who counts 46 freshmen among the 93-man squad.

Landry will be complemented by the receiving skills of tight end Carl Hilton, split ends Bernard Giddings and Kevin Johnson and flankers Larry Shepherd and Anthony Ketchum.

Houston's offensive line is anchored by returning starters Todd Schoppe at center and Ray Rogers at right guard.

Foreign flavor strong in PGA

By BOB GREEN
AP Golf Writer

BIRMINGHAM, Al. (AP) — The list of foreign contenders for the title in the 66th PGA national championship this week is as strong as ever, but it may not include the man who is playing the best golf in the world right now.

Seve Ballesteros of Spain, Greg Norman and David Graham of Australia, Nick Price of South Africa, Nick Faldo of England and Isao Aoki of Japan all are in the field, and all have the credentials. They not only are capable of winning the title, but they deserve a place high on the list of those most likely to succeed in the last of the season's four major tests of golfing greatness.

The notable omission from the field of 150 that begins play Thursday at Shoal Creek is Bernhard Langer of West Germany. Langer was caught in an administrative squeeze and failed to qualify. Under the rules, he simply isn't eligible to compete.

"He's played well, but it came too late. Kind of like Willie Wood (a rookie from America). He's played well, too, but it was too late," said Ken Anderson, the PGA's Tournament administrator.

Langer, despite erratic putting, tied Tom Watson for second in the British Open, won the Dutch Open the following week and made it two in a row with still another victory in the important Irish Open a week ago. He also won the French Open earlier in the season.

In the past month, no one has played with greater success.

The recent burst placed Langer atop the European Order of Merit and gave him well over $100,000 in European earnings for the season.

The leaders of certain foreign Orders of Merit are invited. But Langer's performance came too late, after the July 1 deadline, for consideration for inclusion in the PGA field.

While he could have made it in a different fashion, the fine print caught him again.

The top 70 moneywinners from the American PGA Tour, for a certain period of time, gain automatic entry to the PGA.

In a brief swing around the American Tour early in the year, Langer missed a playoff for the Bay Hill Classic by one shot, was fifth at Hawaii and sixth at New Orleans and won a total of $82,465 — more than enough to meet the qualifying standards for the PGA.

But Langer is not a member of the the PGA Tour, and his winnings did not count.

"If he joins the PGA Tour, his money-winnings in this country will count for next year," Anderson said.

"And, of course, his performances in Europe this year will count toward his eligibility for inclusion as the leader of a foreign Order of Merit for next year, assuming our rules stay the same."

Skins eye third in row

By IRA ROSENFELD
AP Sports Writer

NFC East

WASHINGTON — There will be plenty of jockeying for position in the NFC East this season but not at the top where the defending National Conference champion Washington Redskins appear headed for a third straight trip to the Super Bowl.

"Winning three in a row will be very tough, dynasties are a thing of the past in the National Football League," insists Redskins Coach Joe Gibbs, who worries that his team could be destroyed as much from within as from across the field.

"The underlying, psychological factors can kill you as quickly as any touchdown. You never know how complacent you have become until the final gun," concluded Gibbs, who was named NFL Coach-of-the-Year for the second straight year.

A combination of time and talent, meanwhile, has seen the Dallas Cowboys fall from their familiar position as division favorite. Dallas Coach Tom Landry, who will complete a quarter of a century at the helm of the Cowboys this year, is convinced the Redskins are the class of the division.

"There's no question the Redskins are the team to beat," said Landry, whose team will face a second-place challenge from the fast charging St.Louis Cardinals. "But that could help us. We just seemed to float by the last couple of seasons, this year we will have to work hard."

The New York Giants and Philadelphia Eagles, meanwhile, round out the division that has seen one of its members advance to the Super Bowl five times in the last seven years, a record unmatched in either conference.

Two years of near-perfect football came to a screeching halt in the Super Bowl in January when the Los Angeles Raiders humbled the Redskins 38-9.

The loss overshadowed a banner season by the Redskins which included an NFL record 541 points, a record 14 regular season wins and the league leaders in both rushing defense and interceptions.

Quarterback Joe Theismann, the league's MVP, returns after completing over 60 percent of his passes for 3,714 yards and 29 touchdowns. The Redskins pick up added strength at quarterback with veteran Jim Hart, released by St.Louis in the off-season, joining the team after 18 years in a Cardinal uniform.

John Riggins, 35, in what may be his swan song from pro football, enters the last year of his current contract after rushing for an all-time league record 24 TDs last year.

While the Redskins seem solid from top to bottom, the Cowboys are a team in transition, having traded Butch Johnson to Houston and watching long-time regulars Drew Pearson, Harvey Martin, Billy Joe DuPree, Robert Newhouse and Pat Donovan, retire in the off-season.

"We are in a different situation, not rebuilding but reshaping," Landry noted. "No one seems to know how well we will play. We could be pretty good or we could be pretty mediocre."

Other problems abound for Landry, who has yet to settle on a starting quarterback and who has been forced to juggle his defense awaiting Randy White to end his holdout.

Landry has elected to give both incumbent Danny White and Gary Hogeboom an equal chance to prove who is the No.1 quarterback before the season opener.

The Cowboys were 12-5 with White at the helm last year but many of the players point to him as the culprit in the team's dismal finish, which included three straight lossess.

Defensively, the Cowboys are hurting. White's pre-season absence has slowed the development of a defense that is groping with the retirment of Martin and a secondary which was rated No.27 against the pass last year.

A happier note is being sounded in St.Louis where Cardinal fans are hoping the team can carry the momentum of seven wins and a tie in the team's last 10 games over into the new season.

Coach Jim Hanifan, who has a new, two-year extension on his contract, has built the Cardinals around Neil Lomax and Ottis Anderson on offense and a young, aggressive defense that ranked third overall in the conference, including a league leading 59 quarterback sacks.

When Lomax, who finished fourth in the NFC in passing, does throw the chances are that Roy Green, the NFC's leading receiver with 78 catches, will haul it in.

What's tough about golfing, asks secretary?

GROTON, Conn. (AP) — It was Karen DiSabella's first shot in her first outing on a golf course — and she made the most of it.

The 23-year-old secretary hit her drive on the 107-yard par-3 first hole at the Trumbull Golf Course and Driving Range and stared in disbelief with her husband, Carl, as it rolled slightly to the left and into the cup.

Until then, she had hit a few dozen balls at driving ranges in the past few days and casually hit a few with her father's clubs when she was a child.

"I think I was worried about the people behind me getting mad because we would play so slow," the Stonington woman said.

"Well, the shot went pretty straight, I guess. I just kept watching it roll. I thought it had stopped rolling, but then I saw it keep going until it went in the hole."

Then there was bedlam.

"Unbelievable!" said DiSabella's husband. "We just looked at each other and said, 'I don't believe it!' Even after you've been playing for years you can't believe it."

Mondo Baldelli Jr., who was in the clubhouse when the excitement broke out, said no first-time player has ever scored a hole-in-one on the first hole in the par-3 course's 21-year history.

Purdue begins testing athletes for drug use

WEST LAFAYETTE, Ind. (AP) — Purdue University began testing its athletes for drug use as fall practice for the football season began Tuesday, university officials said.

Each athlete — male and female — in the Purdue athletic program will be tested, primarily for marijuana, said Purdue football coach Leon Burtnett and team physician Dr. Bill Combs.

In order to avoid legal problems, primarily the constitutional right to privacy, the tests must be voluntary and undiscriminatory, officials said.

Participants in all sports will be tested, including cheerleaders and coaches. The results will be confidential, officials told the Indianapolis News.

"Naturally you'd like to think everybody is immune to this but that's not the case," said Burtnett. "When the student body does things you have to assume there might be some of that going on with the football team ... the athletic department. We just want to be sure we get a hand on it before it gets out of hand.

"We have explained to our kids about what we are trying to do," said Burtnett."We are not trying to make it a punishment type thing."

PUBLIC NOTICE
MIDLAND COUNTY
HOUSING AND COMMUNITY DEVELOPMENT PROGRAM

Midland County is holding a public hearing to assess the County's performance in carrying out its 1982 Community Development Block Grant (CDBG) program. Within the next 90 days, the County expects to submit a final Performance Assessment Report on this project to the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD).

The hearing will be at the Midland County Commissioners Court meeting at 10 A.M., Monday, August 27, 1984, in the Midland County Courthouse, 200 W. Wall Street. Citizens will be given the opportunity to comment on the County's efforts in implementing housing and public facilities improvements projects under the 1982 CDBG program.

Interested citizens and groups are encouraged to attend this important public hearing and present their views and comments on the County's CDBG program. Written comments will be accepted and considered by the County up until the hour of the public hearing. Questionaires to be completed by citizens are available in the office of the County Judge and the County Housing Programs Coordinator.

Handicapped individuals who may have difficulty in attending this public hearing should contact the Midland County Courthouse to arrange for special assistance.

For further information, contact William B. Ahders, County Judge, at 682-9481.

Padres' Wiggins plunked by Phils, turns other cheek

Associated Press

The last time Alan Wiggins was hit by a pitch, it triggered an epic beanball war. This time, Wiggins decided to ignore it, after running off his steam on the basepaths.

"Yeah, he did it on purpose," said Wiggins after being hit by a Jerry Koosman pitch in the midst of Tuesday night's 3-2 victory over Philadelphia. "I'd stolen two bases and scored two runs, but I just let it slide."

Wiggins was hit by Atlanta Braves pitcher Pascaul Perez on the first pitch of last Sunday's game, triggering a beanball fight which resulted in the ejection of 16 players.

"I can't understand why I have a baseball magnet inside of me," Wiggins said. "But you've got to go with the punches — I take that back — you've got to go with the flow. Nobody thought about retaliation."

Phillies catcher Ozzie Virgil, who was brushed back by an Eric Show pitch in the fourth after homering in the second, dismissed the Wiggins incident.

"They are overreacting," Virgil said. "Koosman pitches in tight. It's no biggie."

A two-run single by Terry Kennedy following a key two-base error by left fielder Jeff Stone in the first inning triggered the San Diego victory.

Show 12-7, pitched six innings to earn the victory with relief help from Craig Lefferts, who finished up for his eighth save.

Wiggins opened the first with a single and stole second before Stone dropped Steve Garvey's routine fly ball in left field with one out to put runners at second and third. Koosman, 12-10, walked Kevin McReynolds intentionally before Kennedy singled to put the Padres up 2-0.

Ozzie Virgil hit his 16th homer in the Philadelphia second to make it 2-1. But in the Padre second, Wiggins walked, stole his 51st base of the year and scored the eventual winning run on a single by Tony Gwynn.

National League

Braves 3, Pirates 1

Rick Camp and Donnie Moore combined on a five-hitter and Glenn Hubbard keyed two rallies to lead Atlanta over Pittsburgh.

Camp, 6-4, yielded two hits in the first inning, then held the Pirates hitless until Dale Berra homered with two out in the eighth. He gave up four hits, struck out one and didn't walk a batter in eight innings before Moore pitched the ninth for his 15th save.

Pittsburgh starter John Candelaria, 10-9, had allowed only one hit when Hubbard tripled with one out in the fifth. Hubbard scored when a grounder by Randy Johnson got through Pirate second baseman Johnny Ray for an error.

Cardinals 8, Reds 2

Darrell Porter hit a two-run single and David Green followed with a two-run homer, capping a five-run first inning that powered St. Louis over Cincinnati.

Both Porter's single and the homer by Green, his 10th of the year, came off Cincinnati rookie Jeff Russell, 5-13. The barrage, including three runs off Reds reliever Frank Pastore, enabled left-hander Dave LaPoint, 9-9, to coast to the victory. LaPoint scattered 10 hits before needing one-out help in the ninth from Jeff Lahti.

Astros 7, Cubs 6

Terry Puhl belted two hits, including a triple, and drove in two runs and Jose Cruz collected three hits and scored twice to lead Houston over Chicago.

Julio Solano, 1-2, notched his first major league victory with one inning of relief. Frank Dipino, who entered the game in the seventh inning with the bases loaded and none out and then retired the next three batters, picked up his 10th save.

Mets 4, Dodgers 0

Bruce Berenyi and Jesse Orosco combined on a four-hitter, leading the Mets over the Dodgers. The win enabled the Mets to move within 3½ games of front-running Chicago in the East.

Berenyi, 8-12, won for the first time since July 14, stopping a three-game losing streak. The right-hander struck out five and walked two.

The Mets got all the runs they needed with one each in the third and fourth, on RBI singles by Darryl Strawberry and Ron Hodges.

Berenyi held the Dodgers to two hits in the first seven innings. When Mike Scioscia opened the eighth with a single and Greg Brock walked, Orosco came out of the bullpen for his 24th save.

Expos 7, Giants 6

Max Venable, traded away by San Francisco in spring training, drove in three runs including the game-winner as Montreal downed the Giants.

The Expos tied the score 5-5 when Derrel Thomas and Doug Flynn opened the fourth with doubles off Mark Davis, 3-14. Flynn went to third on a sacrifice by pitcher Bill Gullickson and scored on Venable's sacrifice fly.

Venable's RBI single in the ninth provided the Expos with a 7-5 lead and enough of a cushion to withstand an RBI single by Manny Trillo in the bottom of the inning.

Diablos sweep Midland Cubs

From Staff Reports

EL PASO—Mike Felder snatched victory from the jaws of defeat to give El Paso a 3-2 victory over Midland in the opener of a doubleheader at Dudley Field Tuesday and then Bobby Clatterbuck took care of the Cubs 5-0 in the nightcap.

Heavy rains and flooding conditions forced the roping off of the outfield from right to centerfield, reducing the playing area by 30 feet to the fence. Balls hit over or under the rope or off the right field wall were automatic singles.

However, no ground rules covered Felder's seventh homer, a drive that came with one out in the seventh and Al Cartwright on base to give the Diablos a last gasp 3-2 win.

Ron Kaufman, 5-3, who had just arrived in relief of Scott Johnson, was the victim.

Midland tied it at one in the fifth when Mike Brumley walked, Darrin Jackson singled and Tony Woods plated the run with a single.

Midland went in front 2-1 in the sixth when Danny Norman singled, moved to second on a sacrifice, took third on a wild pitch and scored on Joe Henderson's base hit.

Dave Klipstein was the big gun in El Paso's nightcap win with a double, single and three rbi. Doug Potestio went the distance for Midland and suffered his seventh loss in 12 decisions.

Elsewhere in the Texas League, San Antonio catcher Gilberto Reyes batted two homers to account for five runs that helped the Dodgers to an 8-1 win over Beaumont.

Reyes hit a three-run shot in the third and a two-run homer in the fifth, his fifth and sixth of the season. He also drove in a run with a single in the sixth. He was 3-4 with six RBI.

Reyes' homers came off Beaumont starter Ed Vosberg, 11-11.

San Antonio starter Brian Piper, 6-4, was credited with the win. Piper went six innings, allowing all four Beaumont hits and striking out six. He got relief help from Bill Scudder, who pitched two innings, and Terry Felton, who pitched the last two.

Tulsa defeated Shreveport 8-6 and Jackson squeezed by Arkansas 9-8.

Bob Brower hit a three-run homer in the bottom of the eighth to cap a four-run inning against the Captains.

Shreveport's C.L. Penigar tripled and scored on a fielder's choice in the top of the first. Tulsa responded in the bottom of the second with solo home runs by Oscar Mejia and Bob Gergen.

The Captains scored twice in the fifth, an RBI double by Kelvin Torve driving in Penigar who singled earlier. Torve scored on another double by Bob Cummings.

Shreveport scored three runs in the top of seventh to take a 6-3 lead.

Winning pitcher was Barry Bass, 4-6. John Buckley took his seventh save. Bobby Moore, 6-4, was the loser.

Third baseman Dave Cochrane's 20th home run of the year in the eighth put the Mets ahead of Arkansas. Right fielder Billy Beane also scored on Cochrane's homer.

Rebels, Dogs pick up shoes

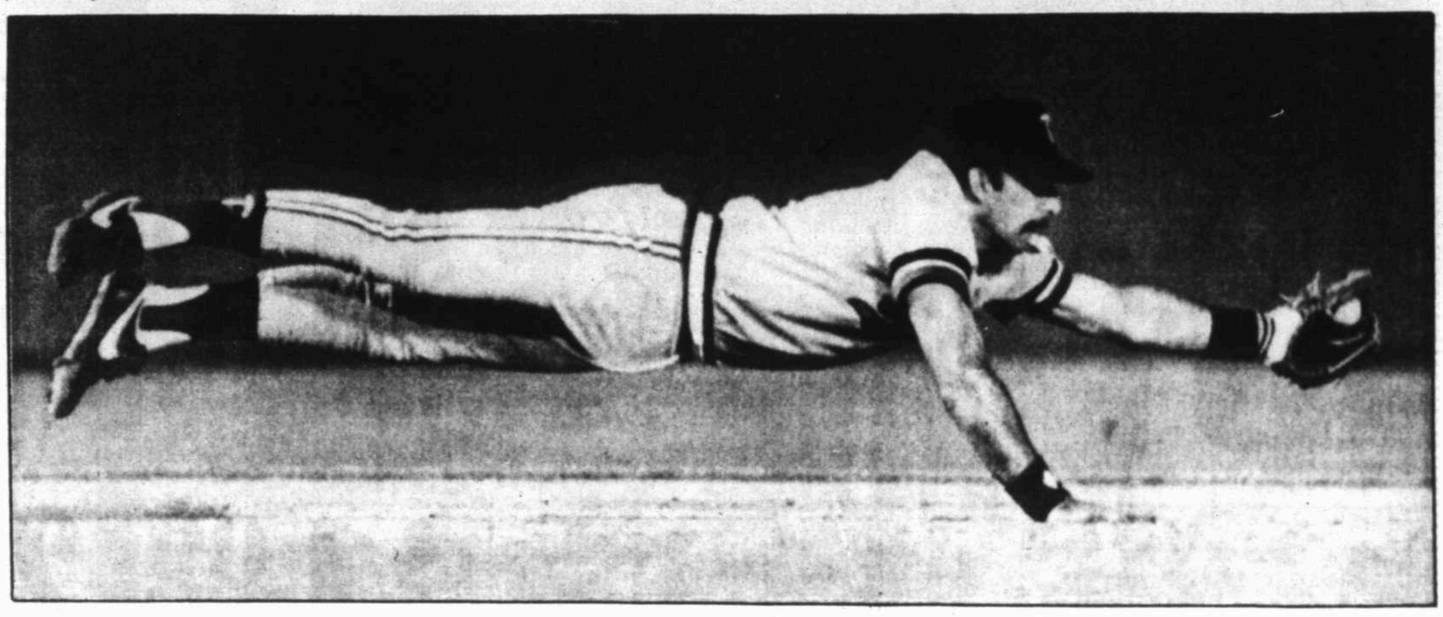

Football drills for Midland High and Midland Lee football players begin Mondsy, but players began picking up their shoes today in preparation for the long awaited day.

MHS Coach Doug McCutcheon advised his Bulldogs to pick up tickets 4 p.m. today at the Midland High fieldhouse at Memorial Stadium.

Coach Jack Tayrien said his Rebels could pick up their shoes today, Thursday and Friday at the Lee High fieldhouse.

After two weeks of drills, both Lee and Midland will tuneup for their openers with inter-squad scrimmages Labor Day weekend. The season will open the following week.

For McCutcheon, this will be his first season in District 4-5A football since his days as an assistant at San Angelo. Tayrien will be in his first season as head coach at Lee after serving as an assistant to Spike Dykes, who resigned to join the Texas Tech staff.

Turner Gill flees for life under CFL pressure

MONTREAL (AP) - Turner Gill's having fewer and fewer problems adapting to the Canadian Football League. It's Montreal Concordes' offensive line he can't get used to.

Gill, the swift, strong-armed quarterback out of Nebraska, has only been sacked 15 times in six regular-season CFL games, the lowest total in the league. But he's been under pressure constantly and has had to run out of danger frequently.

Part of the problem, says Gill, is a lack of coordination between himself and his linemen.

"I think the offensive line has been doing the job," Gill said. "But it's part of playing sports that you're going to make mistakes.

"We're all looking for more consistency. I have to become more comfortable with the linemen and I have to learn to be in the right spot.

"Sometimes they think that I'm going to pull up and I end up rolling out. In most passing situations, I'm supposed to be behind the offensive tackle, and sometimes I'm not in that specific spot. But sometimes I feel the pressure and feel that I have to roll out."

Gill added that it was a matter of synchronizing the timing between the linemen and himself.

"Turner is always under pressure, but it's not always because of the offensive line," said Concordes Coach Joe Galat. "The backs and receivers have blocking assignments, too.

Foul Play

New York Yankee third baseman Toby Harrah reaches into the stands to grab foul pop up.

Christensen holds firm in demands

LOS ANGELES (AP) — With the start of the 1984 National Football League season less than three weeks away, All-Pro tight end Todd Christensen of the Los Angeles Raiders remains at home with no indication when he'll report to the training camp of the Super Bowl champions.

Randy Hendricks, Christensen's agent, said Tuesday that the Raiders promised to rewrite his holdout client's contract several months ago, but still haven't come up with a firm offer.

Christensen led the NFL in receiving last season with 92 catches — the fourth-highest single-season total in league history and the most by an NFL player since the league merged with the American Football League in 1967.

"Todd signed a three-year contract in the spring of 1983 with the express understanding that if he made the Pro Bowl or was All-Pro, that the remaining years would be adjusted," Hendricks said by telephone from his office in Houston.

"The Raiders have not denied that commitment to re-do the contract. I raised the question of their commitment this spring and they acknowledged, both verbally and in writing, their intention to adjust his contract, renegotiate, whatever. They've never denied that, to this day.

"There were discussions concerning a new contract; there was never an offer made by the Raiders prior to training camp. I made the Raiders a proposal in early July. They said they were working on a counter-proposal, but it never was forthcoming prior to training camp, and Todd decided he wasn't going to training camp until that counter-proposal was received.

"Of course, then the Raiders said, 'No Todd Christensen, no counter-proposal.'"

Christensen is a 6-foot-3, 230-pounder who joined the Raiders as a free agent in 1979 after being released by the Dallas Cowboys and New York Giants in the span of less than a month.

He blossomed in the strike-shortened 1982 season, making 42 receptions. He caught only eight passes in 1981.

Steve Ortmayer, the Raiders' special teams coach and a contract negotiator for the club, said by telephone from the team's Santa Rosa, Calif., training camp that negotiations were going on prior to the start of training camp but "nothing's gone on since."

"Where we are on this thing is we had began discussions with Todd," Ortmayer said. "We felt the negotiations would take their course and we would get things worked out. We are very much of the stance that Todd has a two-year contract with us which we feel is his duty to honor.

"He should be in training camp. We were working on a negotiation prior to training camp. The ball is in Todd Christensen's court. We would much rather play the season with Todd Christensen, that's fair to say, but life goes on."

Might Christensen be traded?

"That's not a possibility," Ortmayer said. "We won't discuss anything until Todd reports to camp."

Hendricks would not comment on the amount of his client's contract proposal, nor would he comment on whether there have been talks with the Raiders since training camp started nearly a month ago.

Coach Tom Flores announced that Christensen would be fined $1,000 a day for all days he wasn't in camp, starting July 19 when veterans were required to report.

"The problem is this," Hendricks said. "Todd feels that they had the whole offseason to respond with an offer to us. If they didn't do it then, when would they do it?

"The potential problem is ultimately where Todd Christensen fits in with current salary levels. Probably Todd's perspective is what top flight receivers are getting in 1984, including people like Steve Watson, James Lofton and Steve Largent."

Watson, Lofton and Largent are among the players who have signed rich, long-term contracts with NFL teams.

Christensen, who recently turned 28, played out his option in 1982 before signing the three-year contract in the spring of 1983. According to terms of the existing contract, he would earn a total of about $500,000 in the upcoming two years.

Meanwhile, the Raiders announced Tuesday that they have placed Christensen on the reserve-did not report list.

Huskers experience quarterback drop-off

LINCOLN, Neb. (AP) — The experts say the Nebraska Cornhuskers will experience a drop-off in talent at quarterback this fall, where senior Craig Sundberg must fill the talented shoes of Turner Gill.

One of those experts is Craig Sundberg.

"I'm obviously not a Mike Rozier or Turner Gill, so if I perform up to my abilities, that's all I can expect," Sundberg says. Rozier and Gill made up one-half of an $8 million backfield that helped the Cornhuskers average 52 points per game and win 11 of their 12 outings last year.

Rozier, Gill, wingback Irving Fryar and fullback Mark Schellen then signed professional contracts worth a total of about $8 million.

"It's a different year and the team is different people," says Sundberg, who can find a silver lining in the departure of Gill et al.

"Teamwise maybe we'll be a little closer-knit," he says. "There are not as many superstars, quote, unquote. There's always that air when two or three or four guys are getting most of the press."

Nebraska Coach Tom Osborne the play of Sundberg, who has thrown 14 passes in his collegiate career, won't make or break the Cornhuskers' season.

"How well a quarterback plays often depends on how good the people are around him," says Osborne, whose teams have lost only 25 games in 11 seasons.

"Consistency on offense will be even more critical than last year. Last year we could make a few mistakes and then somebody would go 60 yards for a touchdown. This year, I think we'll still be able to score on a few long runs. But I expect we'll have more of a 4-or 5-yard-per-play team."

That could mean a lot of carries for senior Jeff Smith, a 5-foot-9, 190-pound speedster who will take Rozier's place. Smith rushed 78 times for 439 yards and five touchdowns last year. He also was fourth nationally in punt returns with a 13.9-yard average.

In the line, Osborne has a stable of horses headed by 6-6, 260-pound senior Mark Traynowicz. Osborne says he's potentially the best lineman in the nation.

Carson quits Giants

PLEASANTVILLE, N.Y. (AP) — New York Giants defensive signal-caller Harry Carson walked out of the National Football League training camp here without comment to his coach or other officials, the team announced Tuesday.

Coach Bill Parcells told reporters he had not spoken with Carson before the veteran linebacker left the Pace University camp Monday night.

Parcells said he was shocked and disappointed by Carson, who he had counted on to be the team leader this season.

"I hope that if Harry is near a library, he will walk in and look up the meaning of the word leadership," Parcells said.

Giants General Manager George Young also was miffed.

"I don't know anything about it," Young said.

Team officials said they did not believe Carson's action was prompted by a personal problem or a contract dispute. Carson was in the second year of a four-year contract.

"He missed the team meeting last night and then the curfew and then the morning practice. And at that point the coach decided that maybe he wouldn't be around," Giants spokesman Ed Croke said.

Accusing fingers being pointed at Dick Williams

By BARRY BLOOM
Copley News Service

SAN DIEGO — Two years ago on a Sunday in Los Angeles, the Dodgers' Tom Niedenfuer hit then-Padre Joe Lefebvre in the head with a ninth-inning pitch, climaxing a weekend of hostilities.

As Lefebvre collapsed, Kurt Bevacqua charged out of the Padre dugout in anger only to discover that no one was behind him. It was an embarrassing moment for both the Padres and Bevacqua during the first year of Dick Williams' stewardship.

From then on, Williams began to clean house. The bottom line? He made it known he didn't want anybody on his team without any "guts."

Last year, Williams banished pitcher Chris Welsh from the roster for disobeying an order. Welsh had refused to throw over to first base on a designated pickoff play. The message there was clear. Williams didn't want anyone on the team with the guts to disobey orders.

He was fully supported by president Ballard Smith in his decision to dump Welsh.

Now it is 1984 amid the Padres' drive for their first division title. And one has to wonder if winning is really worth what happened in Atlanta Stadium Sunday. Yes, Pascual Perez hit Alan Wiggins with the first pitch of the game, probably in an attempt to get his slumping Braves team started.

What followed was unconscionable — four attempts to nail Perez, which precipitated two bench-clearing brawls.

There's no doubt that Williams, who directed the debacle, must take responsibility.

"He didn't throw the ball," said Braves manager Joe Torre about Williams. "But he gave the orders. To me, that's a Hitler-type action."

"The guy who lost control was in their dugout," said umpire John McSherry. "It was the most irresponsible thing I've ever seen."

The question is, will Williams be admonished. The National League office undoubtedly will view the films and read the reports before handing down its verdict later in the week. That verdict could involve further fines and suspensions for the 13 people who eventually it was determined were ejected.

But shouldn't the Padres, via Smith, do something as well? In two years, they've allowed Williams to build a team of talanted robots, who are either too frightened or too dumb to disobey an order that might cause a riot. What order? Like throwing at Perez for the fourth time Sunday.

If Smith stands by in silence, it only indicates that the Padres condone Sunday's actions.

Games showing depresses Campbell

PALO ALTO, Calif. (AP) — Olympic runner Robin Campbell says she was so unhappy to return home from the Los Angeles Games without a medal that she tried to keep the Olympic ring emblem on her luggage out of sight at the airport.

"I wanted to hide," she said Tuesday in her apartment. "I really had to struggle with myself to say I'm an OK person without winning a medal."

The 25-year-old track star was a favorite to win the 800-meter race, but she failed to advance past the semifinals in the Los Angeles Coliseum Aug. 4. She has been competing in national and international track events since she was 9 years old.

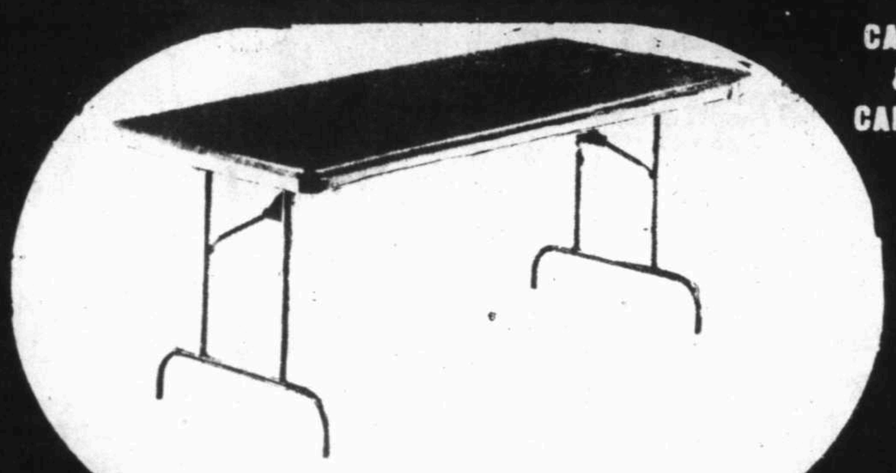

Ms. Campbell said her ankles swelled up the day of her final Olympic challenge. She said her foot doctor diagnosed it as extremely tight heel cords which rendered her ankles virtually inflexible.

"I felt like I was running on stumps," she said. "I was finished, done, no medal."

Ms. Campbell said when she flew into San Jose Airport Monday morning "I let my luggage go round and round on the conveyor belt until everyone else had gone, and then I turned my bags to the wall to hide the Olympic patches."

Midland City Council allots federal funds

By MARK LEWIS
Staff Writer

While Ronald Reagan and Walter Mondale argue over how much tax money the federal government should take in, the Midland City Council met Tuesday to dole some of it out.

At issue was $866,000 in Community Block Development Grant funds which the city is requesting from the Department of Housing and Urban Development. Most of the funds had already been designated to such projects as housing rehabilitation ($100,000), demolition and code enforcement ($100,000), drainage improvements along Scharbauer Draw ($200,000), park improvements ($100,000), the Washington Park Neighborhood Committee ($90,000), and administration of the grants ($100,000).

But that left $176,000 to distribute, and supporters of a number of community service groups packed the council chambers to lay claim to a piece of the federal fund pie.

"As always, the shopping list totals up to more than the funds available, which makes it difficult for us to do justice" to each request, said Mayor G. Thane Akins.

After hearing each group make its case, the council decided to allot $20,000 to the Taylor Park Child Development Center; $30,000 to the Freewill Foster Home Group; $20,000 to the Midland Fire Department (to install smoke detectors in the homes of the elderly, poor and handicapped); $25,000 to Clean Midland; and $75,000 to the YMCA for its proposed new facility in northeast Midland.

Barbara Harris suggested the Council consider allotting some funds for a facility honoring Dr. Martin Luther King Jr.

"I think it would serve as an enhancement to that segment of the community which has been forgotten," she said.

At the suggestion of Mayor Pro Tem David Godfrey, the Council allotted $6,000 to study the proposal for possible inclusion in the city's next CD fund application.

"The concept is very positive as far as I'm concerned," Godfrey said.

Final action on the CD grant applications will be taken at the next city council meeting Aug. 28, according to CD Coordinator Susan Howell.

In other action, the Council:

— Held a public hearing on the Revenue Sharing Budget at which no one spoke, and then allocated the $901,000 to data-processing hardware and software ($400,000); a Computer Aid Dispatch System for the police ($220,000); Doug Russell Pool ($180,000); new cart paths for Hogan Park ($86,000); and new microcomputers ($15,000).

— Approved on second reading the animal control law passed last month prohibiting Midland residents from owning wild animals.

— Denied a request from area limousine companies for an exemption from the city ordinance prohibiting the drinking of alcohol from open containers in moving vehicles.

— Held a hearing on the proposed Energas rate hike at which the only speaker was an Energas representative, then deferred action until a committee of West Texas cities (including Midland) makes its recommendation on the issue.

— Raised penalties for public health violations (to $5,000) and fire and zoning violations (to $1,000).

— Approved the purchase of new dress jackets and ties for the police department, after Chief Wayne Gideon and Deputy City Manager Fred Poe modeled the jacket for the council. When buttoned, the jackets are a rather tight fit, which prompted Councilman Jesse Hatfield to express some concern about the purchase.

"That's my only problem," said Hatfield with a smile. "We've got some people with bay windows who'll never get into it."

Child care center gets gift, CD funds

By RICHARD ORR
Staff Writer

Tuesday was a good day for the Taylor Park Child Care Center. In the morning, center officials received a $2,000 corporate donation. And later in the day the city council granted them $20,000 in Community Development funds.

The corporate donation came from First City National Bank and Sun Oil Co. According to center Director Debora Phillips, the money will be used to build a playground at the center, which is located at 1321 S. Goode.

The grant money will be used for playground improvements and educational materials.

The center has 15 employees and has served about 450 children since it went into operation 1½ years ago, said Ms. Phillips. Families are charged according to size and income.

"We have about 65 children now," she added. "That will double during the school year. Prices range from $61 a week to $5."

The center provides food, recreation and "a strong emphasis on educational programs" for infants through 10-year-olds, Ms. Phillips noted. "That includes language, math and science."

The county owns the building, while the city helps equip it. About 55 percent of the children are Anglo, 15 percent are Hispanic and 30 percent are black.

In addition, 20 percent are from high income families, 20 percent are from moderate income families and 60 percent are from low income families.

Jerry King of First City National Bank and Robert F. Schaeffer presented the $2,000 corporate check to Ms. Phillips. "We try to funnel money back into the community to improve the quality of life in the community we serve," said King.

MISD trustees tighten rules for transfers

By RHONDA RIGENHAGEN
Staff Writer

In addition to approving the budget and tax rate, Midland school trustees Tuesday outlined a proposal for "repair" work. They considered a policy revision designed to patch the cracks some children were slipping through in an effort to be transferred to another school.

Although they asked for a change of wording, trustees passed the first reading redefining a student's attendance area. The clarification voids transfers granted to students who temporarily move to another address in order to attend a particular school.

"We have had at least a couple of instances where this ploy was used to try to beat our policies," Superintendent Dr. Joe Baressi pointed out. "Where I own a piece of property or I'll rent an apartment for a month (in another attendance area) and then I can change from one high school to the other."

Legitimate moves will still be honored, he said. The revision would apply only to temporary moves for the sole purpose of changing schools.

The 1984-85 budget was approved. Totaling $53,964,257, it is a 6.33 percent increase over last year's budget.

A tax rate of 71 cents per $100 valuation was also approved. It represents a 6-cent decrease from last year's rate, but a 7.59 percent increase in the effective tax rate.

The second, and final, reading of a proposal to change primary school hours was passed. This year Midland children in kindergarten through third grade will attend school from 8:15 a.m. to 2:30 p.m.

That is 25 minutes earlier than last year. The main reasons for the change are to accommodate rural students, who are on campus by 8 a.m., and children of working parents who drop off the students on the way to work.

One parent complained of insufficient notification and said the change will make it more difficult for her to have her children ready on time.

Trustee Joe Golding said the earlier hours should benefit more people than it inconveniences and vowed to change the times again if they didn't work out.

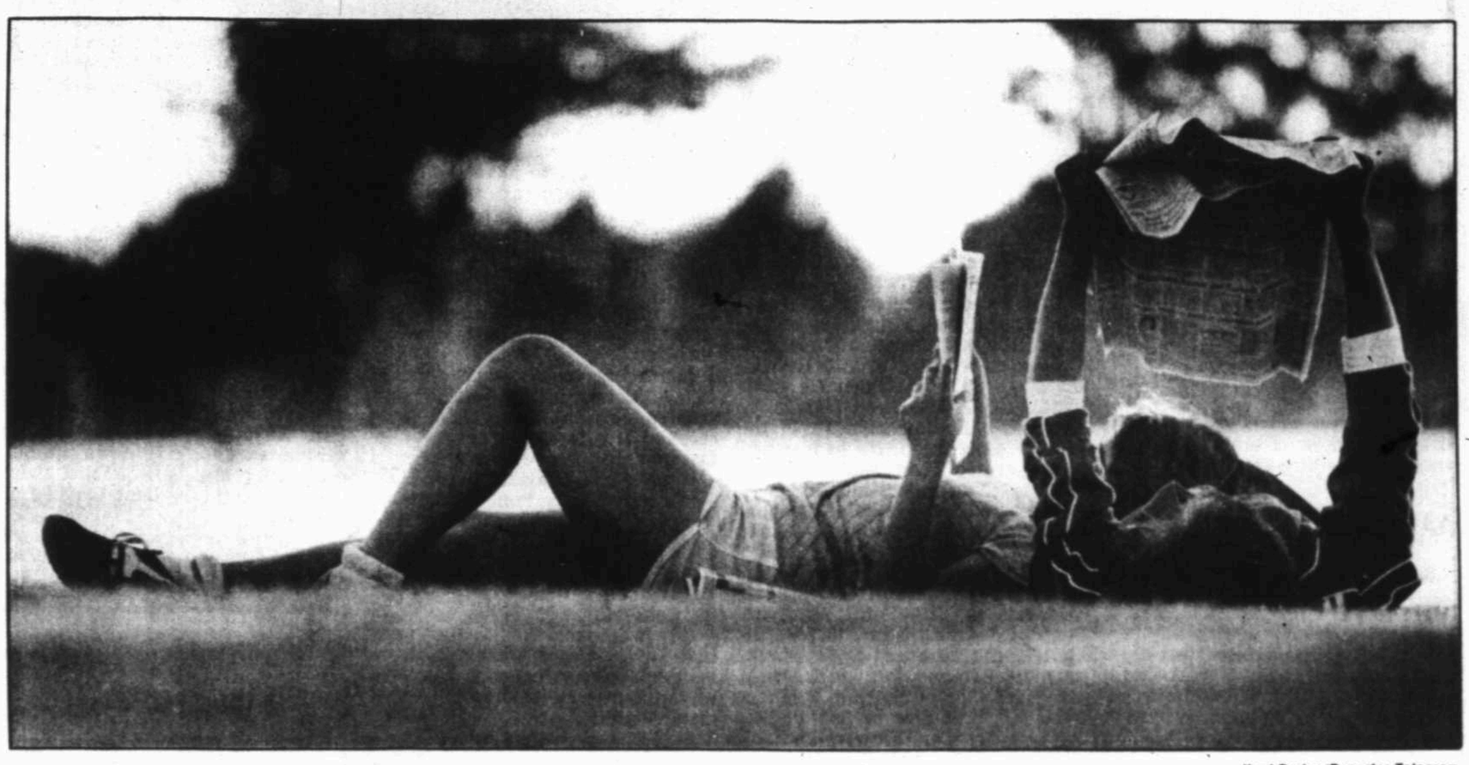

Two-year administrative intern Toby Ward was made new principal of Burnet Elementary School. She is the first intern to be made a prinicipal, although one was named assistant principal last year.

In its third year, the administrative intern program was intended to train Midland teachers for administrative positions and encourage in-house promotions. Four interns were named for the coming year.

The board also:

— Approved a career education program for students in kindergarten through grade six. Midland was one of 10 school districts in the state to receive funds for the pilot project.

— Announced its intention to support Midlander Ted Kerr as the regional appointment to the new State Board of Education. Trustee Ron Brittain and former trustee Ann Page have also been named as possible nominees.

Jurors hear tapes in Odessa trial

By LAWRENCE BUDD
Staff Writer

ODESSA — Jurors listened to taped conversations Tuesday in the "murder for hire" trial of a 74-year-old Odessan charged with arranging the murder of a Midland man as revenge for his slaying of another local man.

O.B. King, 74, Odessa, is charged with solicitation to commit capital murder. He allegedly made an oral agreement with an undercover Ector County sheriff's deputy Dec. 12, 1982 to kill Midlander Booker T. "Billy" Green, who shot Midland businessman R.J. Morris to death in a dice game dispute in November 1981.

Prosecutor Ken Cowling told jurors during his opening argument that evidence would show King acted as middleman for Morris' 33-year-old daughter, Carol, who wanted Green dead. Green admits to shooting her father in the Morris' liquor store, but was found innocent of any criminal charges after two trials in Midland County district court.

Any conspiracy to murder Green, who sat in on the first day's testimony in Ector County district court, was never carried out. King was arrested in January, after the plans were broken off when the middleman became suspicious, according to Cowling.

King was indicted in March 1983. Ms. Morris, who has never been indicted in connection with this incident, is being held in the Midland County jail awaiting the result of her appeals of forgery and theft convictions for which she faces prison time after violating probation.

Stanley Matkin, the Odessa man King allegedly originally approached to do the murder in November 1982, told jurors how the defendant suggested to Matkin and another unemployed friend "he knew where we could make some quick money."

Matkin recalled a visit to the Midland liquor store where he discussed with Ms. Morris and King terms for the job, for which he was originally to receive $8,000. Matkin's improper testimony ended the first proceedings Dec. 1, 1983, in a mistrial.

Matkin testified Ms. Morris told him, "I want him dead around Christmas time. I want to hurt his family the way he hurt mine."

Defense attorney Tony Chavez questioned why Matkin decided to go to the sheriff rather than try to talk King, whom he said he'd known for more than one year, out of the plot. Matkin is facing check fraud charges in Ector County and had burglary charges dropped after meeting with the deputy, but testifed no deal had been made in exchange for his testimony.

The key evidence presented Tuesday afternoon was taped conversations recorded through the use of a body microphone the undercover deputy and Matkin alternately wore during the meetings.

Jurors were allowed to read from transcripts of parts of the conversations. The tapes were played, but were very difficult to understand due to interference and other noises during the recording.

The jury will decide on the guilt or innocence of King. Should he be found guilty, District Judge Joe Connally would decide on sentencing in the 244th District Court.

MC board approves budget, tax rate

From Staff Reports

Midland Junior College District Board of Trustees Tuesday approved a $10 million budget and a 1984 tax rate of 8.72 cents per $100 valuation.

Although that is nearly 1½ cents lower than last year's rate of 10.2 cents, the figure represents a 3 percent increase in the effective tax rate. (The effective tax rate is that amount which will generate the same revenues this year as last year.)

Nearly $3 million is expected to be raised in local property taxes. Other income is obtained through state and federal funds, tuition and fees. Trustees were not required to call a public hearing for comment on the increase because it was not more than 3 percent.

Kid's College, a two-week program for children ages 9 to 12, was a tremendous success, MC President Dr. Jess Parrish told the board. About 400 students attended the some 20 classes offered. Plans are under way to expand the program "as long as we feel we can control it and keep quality," he said.

The board also:

— Discussed repair of Chaparral Center. The soil beneath the seating section has sunk several inches and no longer supports the floor. The concrete is cracking and needs to be reinforced, Parrish explained.

— Accepted the resignation of Dr. Richard Jolly, division chairman for technical studies.

Students no longer just absent from class

By RHONDA RIGENHAGEN
Staff Writer

Gone are the days when Johnny was just absent from school. Today, Johnny is classified as S, A, U, T or E.

New state regulations limit the number of days a student can miss for extracurricular activities or unexcused absence. This has caused Midland schools to develop a computerized method of recording and classifying absences. Depending on the reason for missing class, Johnny's absence may be excused or unexcused, school-related or not, he may have been suspended or just tardy.

Inmate wants out of 'solitary confinement'

By ED TODD
Staff Writer

Carol Morris, held in "solitary confinement" in the Midland County Jail for the past seven months, wants to be returned to the cellblock with other women prisoners.

"I want you to do what is fair," she told U.S. District Judge Lucius D. Bunton in a civil rights trial before the judge on Tuesday.

Ms. Morris, a 33-year-old black woman, claims she was discriminated against because of her race and sexuality and that she was placed in solitary confinement last Jan. 12 "because of my attitude."

She is suing sheriff's Lt. G.W. Thompson and Chief Deputy Bennie Cureton.

The judge asked her if his finding the defendants guilty of discrimination and then returning her to "the general population" in the jail would suit her.

"Would that be fair?" he asked.

"Yes."

Ms. Morris is being held in jail while she appeals her convictions in Midland's 142nd State District Court for theft and forgery. She had been placed on probation for five years for theft and for eight years for forgery, but 142nd State District Court Judge Pat Baskin revoked those probations after Ms. Morris had been accused of forgery. He subsequently denied her an appeals bonds. And while her convictions are on appeal, Ms. Morris elected to remain in jail rather than be transferred to the Texas Department of Corrections to begin her prison sentence.

MS. MORRIS also complained that while she has been held in solitary confinement, she has gained weight (from about 150 to 177 pounds), has not had proper exercise and has been denied sunlight.

Further, she said she was disappointed in the performance of her appeals attorney, Odessa lawyer Dennis Cadra, whom her mother had retained.

"Well, I'm not mad at her," she said, but said she wished her mother would "use better judgment" in selecting an attorney.

Dr. Patrick Leung, the county jail physician, testified that he had recommended Ms. Morris be segregated from the other prisoners for her own well-being and that of the other female prisoners.

Leung testified that Ms. Morris had been addicted to heroin for approximately 12 years and that she was undergoing withdrawal from her addiction when he first examined her in January.

Leung said Ms. Morris was "resentful" and was "not cooperative" with him when he initially examined her and said she "started yelling names and cursing me."

"THE MORE I talked to you," Leung told Ms. Morris, who acted as her own attorney in the trial, "the more irrational you became."

On the witness stand, Ms. Morris admitted that she and Leung did have personality conflicts, as he was questioning the "competency of my personal physician, Dr. Viola Coleman.

"I did call him a 'quack,'" she said of Leung. "It was at that time I was placed in solitary confinement."

Ms. Morris said Dr. Coleman had placed her on the synthetic narcotic Methadone, while she was undergoing withdrawal from heroin.

Thompson, former chief deputy and grievance officer, testified that his investigation into Ms. Morris indicated that she had created disciplinary problems while she was serving time in the federal penitentiary in the 1970s for distribution of heroin.

FURTHER, Thompson said he learned from his investigation and from "street talk" that Ms. Morris had homosexual tendencies. In earlier testimony, Thompson testified Ms. Morris was transferred from a federal corrections institution in Fort Worth to another in Alderson, W.Va., due to disciplinary problems and that Ms. Morris had engaged in homosexual activities while she was a federal inmate.

Further, Thompson said Ms. Morris was "trying to take over the tank" while she was in the cellblock in the Midland County Jail.

"They (other female inmates) were afraid of her...on the street as well as in jail," he said. Ms. Morris put on evidence to show otherwise.

Thompson said inmates are placed in "administrative segregation" in single cells if they have medical problems, are state witnesses, are former law-enforcement officers, are homosexual or bisexual, are government witnesses or are extremely handicapped.

Ms. Morris' mother testified that she was given the runaround in trying to determine why her daughter was in solitary confinement. Dr. Morris said "some of my visits (with the sheriff) were sort of cordial" and some were rude, such as when the sheriff, she said, slammed the telephone down on her.

SHE SAID Sheriff Dallas Smith had told her he did not want Carol Morris' "feet" in his jail earlier when she was working for her mother in the bailbond business. Dr. Morris owns M&M Bailbonding Service.

The sheriff had testified that he did not want Ms. Morris handling bailbonds in jail due to her prior conviction.

Dr. Morris said she has written letters to the federal and state grand juries and to the NAACP in asking for a probe into the bailbond business in Midland. She suggested that there was an effort afoot to discourage her bailbonding operation and that "known convicts — ex-convicts — are getting people out" of jail.

In his testimony, the sheriff said that the Midland County Jail does not have any cells that are classified as "solitary confinement" but are single cells. A single cell contains a bunk, shower, shelf, toilet, wash basin and drinking fountain.

Services were to be at 2 p.m. today in the Davis-Morris Funeral Home chapel in Brownwood with Dr. Henry Chisholm officiating.

March was born Aug. 9, 1926, in Moore, Okla. He was a chemical engineer and a veteran of World War II. He was a member of the Parks Heights Christian Church in Odessa. He married Yvonne Herring March 18, 1960, in Mexico. He was a graduate of Oklahoma University and was a lifetime member of the alumni association. He had owned and operated Tiger Mud Co. for a number of years in Midland, where he lived for 30 years before moving to Brownwood two-and-a-half months ago.

Survivors include his wife, Yvonne; five daughters, Megan Voorhies of Wills Point, Marilynn Pugh of Newport News, Va., Marthann Cunningham and Dana March, both of Brownwood, and Jenna March of College Station; a sister, June May Chartier of San Pedro, Calif.; a brother, Floyd March of Midland; and five grandchildren.

The family suggests memorials be made to the American Cancer Society in lieu of flowers.

Protesters, city end current fencing match

DALLAS (AP) — The fencing match is over, at least for now.

City officials and a coalition of anti-Reagan protest groups appear to have resolved their differences over whether protest signs can be mounted on a controversial security fence around the Dallas Convention Center.

On Monday, Dallas police and the protesters had their first run-in when a large banner saying "Dump Reagan!" was draped on the fence.

Police asked protesters to take the sign down until officials could decide whether it was legal. But the Dallas March and Rally Committee ignored that request and only took it down at 5 p.m. rather than leave it unattended for the night.

On Tuesday, police officials decided not to interfere with protesters who hang signs on the 1.5-mile long chain-link fence, spokesmen for the city and the American Civil Liberties Union said.

So when a smaller sign was placed on the fence Tuesday morning, police simply smiled and waved as they drove slowly past.

Les Ledbetter, speaking for Freeze Reagan-Bush, said the latest sign was hung to "establish the principal" of free speech in light of Monday's spat with police.

"The issue is that the fence keeps people away from the convention," Ledbetter said.

Police said the 6-foot fence around the convention center was necessary for security reasons. Protesters sued in federal court to have the fence removed, claiming it was an infringement on rights of free speech.

U.S. District Judge Barefoot Sanders allowed the fence to remain, but moved the edge of an official demonstration area closer to the center's entrance.

James Harrington, legal director of the Texas arm of the ACLU, said the agreement over signs was reached at a meeting Tuesday with assistant city attorney Joe Werner.

Werner was unavailable for comment, but Deputy Police Chief Bill Newman confirmed the agreement.

As Ledbetter stood by his banner saying "Stop 1984 in 1984 — Come to Dallas," convention security was visibly tightening.

City workers were welding manhole covers closed outside the convention center as police prepared to unveil a new $44,000 mobile command center.

Although protesters and the city reached an accord on signs, a dispute over the scheduling of events at the officially designated demonstration site continued to simmer.

Now's the time to control white grub worms in lawn

By EARNEST C. KIKER

White grub control in lawns is important during the summer season. White grub worms are hatching and will soon be feeding on roots of Bermuda grass and St. Augustine grass in home lawns. Once grubs begin feeding, control measures should be taken.

Treatment time varies with the particular area of the state and ranges from early July in South Texas to mid-August in the Panhandle. The first of August is the opportune time for homeowners in Midland County to treat, so if you have grubs and have not treated, now is the time to do it. Timing of application is critical for adequate control.

White grubs in excessive numbers can heavily damage lawns. Check for white grubs by cutting a square foot section of sod with a shovel and examining the roots and soil to a depth of four inches. Examine at least one square foot of sod for 1,000 square feet of lawn area. Chemical treatment is needed if there are more than four grubs per square foot of sod.

Diazinon, Dursban or Dylox provide adequate control and should be used at recommended rates given on the chemical container label. The granular form is easier to apply and to wash into the soil than liquid or spray formulations. After using granules drag the grass with a tow sack or water hose to knock them down to the soil. Then apply enough water to soak the granules into the soil.

Apply diazinon sprays at the rate of 25 gallons of water, including the insecticide, per 1,000 square feet to wash the insecticide into the soil. Wetting the lawn before spraying also helps. Always keep children and pets off the treated lawn until the grass is dry.

The key to white grub control in home lawns is proper timing of chemical applications and getting the insecticide through the grass to the root zone where grubs are feeding.

Midland County cotton producers, as well as others in the cotton industry, will be able to learn more about the trading of cotton commodity options at an upcoming seminar. The seminar on Agricultural Commodity Options for the Southwestern Cotton Industry is slated for Sept. 7-8 at the Fairmont Hotel in Dallas. The purpose of the seminar is to acquaint cotton growers, merchants and agricultural lenders with agricultural commodity options, in particular cotton options.

An option is a contract that gives the buyer the right, but not the obligation, to buy or sell a particular commodity at a specified price for a specified period of time. It gives farmers another pricing tool to assist in price risk management — a type of insurance against sudden price drops.

Among seminar speakers will be officials with the Commodity Futures Trading Commission, New York Cotton Exchange, Merrill Lynch Futures, RepublicBank Corporation, Toyo Cotton Co. and Easterwood Farms.

U.S. Representative Charles Stenholm of Stamford wll give an update of agricultural issues in Congress at a noon luncheon.

The seminar is a joint effort of the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, the Extension Service of the U.S. Department of Agriculture, Texas Cotton Association, New York Cotton Exchage and the Commodity Futures Trading Commission.

Persons planning to attend should make room reservations at the Fairmont Hotel by Thursday.

Earnest C. Kiker is Midland County Extension Agent for Agriculture.

Baker: Deficits on steadily declining path

HOUSTON (AP) — A study on federal spending under the Reagan administration will show on Wednesday that the U.S. budget deficits will be "on a steadily declining path," the White House chief of staff said Tuesday.

James A. Baker III, in his hometown for a family reunion and a fund-raising Republican luncheon, said at a news conference that President Reagan remains opposed to raising taxes to force down the federal deficit and believes that there is more federal spending that can be trimmed.

An administration estimate of spending that will be released on Wednesday will show that the federal deficit "is on a steadily declining path through fiscal year 1989," Baker said.

Baker said there will be some difference between the administration's numbers and those of the Congressional Budget Office because the White House forecasts greater growth through the period.

But Baker claimed that in the last 18 months the administration's predictions of growth have been the most accurate.

He said Reagan's "antipathy toward raising taxes is well known," and he contrasted the president's position on taxes with that of Democratic presidential candidate Walter Mondale.

"The clear choice in this election is between a candidate on one hand who has promised to raise taxes on the American people, for whom raising taxes is the first resort, and the president for whom, indeed, it is a last resort," said Baker.

Asked about the controversy over the release of income tax records by the family of Democratic Vice Presidential candidate Geraldine Ferraro, Baker said the tradition established in the past few presidential elections is for such records to be made public.

Vice President George Bush routinely released all tax records for himself and for his wife prior to the 1980 election campaign, Baker said.

ABSENCES

If a student misses more than 10 days of class for extracurricular activities or has more than five unexcused absences he will not get credit for the class. And a student with more than three unexcused absences per grading period will have his grade lowered one letter.

The new system is intended to inform students of their status and make coaches and parents aware of how many more days the child may be allowed to miss.

The complicated procedure will create more work for the 11 attendance clerks at the secondary schools, who will have to record absences each period rather than once a day. Elementary schools will still take attendance once a day.

"It's going to be time consuming," admitted Larry Lusby, director of computer services for Midland schools.

"It will be some more work, but I don't feel like it's going to be a burden," said Mary Jo Crowder, attendance clerk at Lee High School. It will be very similar to what has been done in past years, she said. The main differences will be recording school-related absences, which had not been done before, and recording absences each period. "We have always tried to account for all the students who were absent anyway."

The records will be tied into a central computer, and lists of students with excessive absences will be printed frequently. "Administrators will get periodic reports on students who are near the maximum number of absences," explained Assistant Superintendent Dr. Duane Moore. "There will be an early-warning system."

Absences are recorded on report cards, but are not classified.

Excused absences are those due to illness, death in the family, court appearances, religious holidays, bad weather and other extenuating circumstances. There is virtually no limit to the number of excused absences a student is allowed.

School-related absences are generally those due to participation in extracurricular activities. Competition beyond district level, as well as field trips, are not counted as an absence.

Truancy and absences for reasons not deemed valid are considered unexcused. Absences cannot be made up.

School-related absences and some excused absences need to be approved three days in advance. If a student is ill, his parents should call the office that morning. If schools have not heard from parents by third period, then an attempt is made to reach them. An absence is considered unexcused until verified.

Stereo reported stolen from car

From Staff Reports

In a burglary complaint, Michael Olgin of 1308 Lynn told city police a $1,200 custom stereo unit was taken from his car Tuesday night. Damage to the vehicle was estimated at $1,500.

AT&T proposes reduction in rates

AUSTIN (AP) — AT&T Communications today proposed a reduction of more than 14 percent in the price of direct dialed, basic intrastate long distance service in Texas.

AT&T Communications of the Southwest, Inc., also announced it is withdrawing its rate case, including a request for $115.4 million of interim rate relief.

"We have discovered a viable means of reducing our cost, and we intend to pass that savigs along to our customers in the form of a long distance price reduction," AT&T vice president Tom Jones told a news conference.

Long distance customers in Texas with an intrastate bill of about $25 per month should see an immediate savings of $3.50, Jones said. WATS and private line services, however, will experience a 30 percent increase in monthly rates.

Odessan still in critical condition

From Staff Reports

ODESSA — A 28-year-old Odessan remained in critical condition this morning in Medical Center Hospital following a shooting Tuesday night in south Odessa.

Pablo Martino Stuart, 28, Odessa, was in the intensive care unit recovering from surgery to treat a single gunshot wound to the right side of his abdomen. Police were called to the 800 block of Fitch St. in the southeast part of the city to find Stuart in the street.

Witnesses told police they heard a loud gunshot, then saw Stuart walking from 705 Fitch St. into the street, calling for help. Police continue to investigate the shooting, allegedly committed by another Cuban man. No charges have been filed.

Account set up for injured man

An account has been established at United Bank, N.A., for Clint D. Caskey, who was seriously injured in a traffic accident and is in the intensive care unit at Ochsner Medical Foundation Hospital in New Orleans.

He married Sheila Hoover, daughter of Wendell and Dell Hoover, February 25.

Contributions to defray medical costs may be sent to: Donations f/b/o Clint D. Caskey, United Bank, N.A., c/o Karen Evans, P.O. Box 11347, Midland, TX 79702.

Tribesmen say ancestral village threatened

BUGNAY, Philippines (AP) — Four years ago it was a government dam project that Bugnay's 800 Igorot tribal people feared would wipe out their ancestral homes. Today it is the war between the Philippine army and communist guerrillas in the nearby hills.

Igorot leaders say their fight against the dam still isn't over; their involvement in the guerrilla war has just begun.

Eight bullet holes in the door of the home where Macli-ing Dulag lived have been left untouched by his family members — a reminder of the night in 1980 when men they claim were army soldiers shot and killed him.

He was the pangat, or leader, of the village of 100 straw huts and had led Igorot opposition to the government's plan to build a dam on the Chico River, amid the spectacular 2,000-year-old rice terraces of northern Luzon.

Mario Yag-ao, the 64-year-old successor to Mcali-ing Dulag as the pangat, and other village leaders contend the army has brought the war to the area not only to combat the guerrillas but also to force the Igorots to leave so the dam can be built.

"If we go, that is when we will die," Yag-ao told visitors whom he welcomed to his house with a potful of rice and a bowl of coffee.

The military says it suspects the village in the Cordilleras Mountains of being a "Red Zone," or an area controlled by the Communist New People's Army (NPA).

Since June, when the government 185 miles to the south in Manila began an air-and-ground offensive against the rebels, an army detachment has kept watch on Bugnay from a hill overlooking it.

The Cordilleras are the ancestral home of 700,000 Igorots, the Philippines' colorful mountain people whose love for tradition is as fierce as their love for the land.

The area is rich in timber and contains gold. It also is a major tourist attraction because of the rice terraces rising up the mountainside in the mists.

Until a few decades ago, headhunters roamed the area. But the custom of taking enemy heads, rooted in pagan belief in fertility rites, died as Christianity advanced into the mountains.

Yag-ao pointed to a mountain beyond his ricefield where government planes dropped bombs on suspected NPA camps.

"Even if they bomb our people, we will stay," he said.

The military says the aim is to force the rebels out of their hideouts, then trap them as they flee. But villagers say they suspect the government of playing a double game of trying to get the guerrillas while breaking Igorot resistance to the dam project.

Economists say the dam would produce the power that industries need to develop the region. Tribesmen say the dam would flood their villages, drive them from their homes, and destroy ancestral burial grounds.

LIFE ENRICHMENT MINISTRY INC.

What is Life Enrichment Ministry Inc.?

It is Perry and Polly Cowin...a couple who left a comfortable life in Texas after God called them to a special ministry which they call Life Enrichment Ministry.

They teach Biblical principles for building a rich and lasting marriage and family unit. They don't teach gimmicks.

They teach financial principles laid down thousands of years ago by men of God——principles that still work in today's complex financial structures. They don't teach get-rich-quick formulas.

They stress that a healthy self-image, plays a critical part in our success in life.

Pastor Raymond Schaeffer invites the public to take advantage of this special life changing seminar. Admission is free!

Youth changes wood into birds

READING, Pa. (AP) — Gary Fehr has found a way to make birds lay golden eggs. The 17-year-old Wilson High School senior carves birds out of wood, and his hobby has not only won him national honors, it has also paid off as an enjoyable way to make money.

Four years ago, Fehr became interested in bird carving through the example of his neighbor, Fred Cutts, a carver who won first and second place in the Ward Foundation World Championship Wildfowl Carving Competition in 1976.

Fehr works in a neat, well-lit workshop in a corner of the basement of his parents' Whitfield home. He is surrounded by various woodworking tools and source books for bird photos and paintings, such as the Audubon Society's field guides.

To make each bird, Fehr draws a pattern on paper, then carbons it onto the wood, using a band saw and belt sander to make the rough cuts and smooth them.

"I use basswood, which comes from the linden tree, because it has little grain, and it works well," Fehr said. "It's soft but not too soft — you don't lose the effect you want."

For the fine, detailed work such as the feathers, intricately reproduced down to the individual barbs on each feather, Fehr uses a variety of grinding, burring and woodburning tools.

Depending on the coloration of the bird, Fehr either burns the color into the wood, or paints it with acrylic paint.

"I use acrylic because of the quick drying time," he said.

Fehr even makes remarkably natural-looking settings for his birds. It is nearly impossible to tell, even at close range, that the tuft of grass on one of his models is made out of aluminum.

DASH-OFF DINNERS

Not for Working Women Only!

Most of us, at one time or another, are pressed to get a nutritious dinner on the table quickly. And, we generally strive to make sure the meal is also tasty, eye-appealing and inexpensive. Too big an order? No, not when you break out the eggs!

Nutritious, economical and versatile eggs are nature's own convenience food. Perhaps that's why they're popular the world over. Start with eggs, then borrow from the cuisines and cooking methods of numerous nations to form menus just right for today.

EGGS AND PASTA VÉRDE

4 servings

Vérde, Italian for green, refers to the noodles which serve as a dramatic contrast to pristine poached eggs. The egg yolks, when broken, make a marvelously rich sauce. Crusty Italian or French bread and a tossed salad would be good go-alongs. Set them out while you're bringing the water for the eggs and noodles to a boil.

8 eggs
1 package (8 oz.) spinach noodles, cooked and well drained
1/2 cup grated Parmesan cheese
2 tablespoons cooking oil
1 teaspoon garlic salt
1 teaspoon Italian seasoning, crushed
2 medium tomatoes,* coarsely chopped
Paprika, optional

In 10- to 12-inch omelet pan or skillet or 3-quart saucepan, heat 2 to 3 inches of water to boiling. Reduce heat to keep water simmering. Break eggs into medium bowl. Then slip eggs into water, holding bowl close to water's surface. Cook 3 to 5 minutes, depending on desired doneness.
Meanwhile, gently toss hot noodles with cheese, oil and seasonings until noodles are evenly coated. Add tomatoes. Toss again. Divide evenly among 4 warmed dinner plates.
With slotted spoon, lift 2 eggs onto each serving of noodles. Sprinkle with paprika, if desired. Serve while hot.

DELI DELIGHT SCRAMBLE

4 servings

Though there are French, German, Hungarian and kosher varieties, salami originated in Italy. And, scrambled eggs—nature's original skillet supper—are universally popular. Put them together and you have a dish that appeals to both modern tastes and timetables.

1 tablespoon butter
1 cup (8 oz.) sliced fresh mushrooms
4 ounces salami, diced
1/4 cup chopped onion
8 eggs
1/4 cup milk
1/2 to 1 teaspoon dry mustard
Parsley sprigs, optional

In large omelet pan or skillet over medium heat, cook mushrooms, salami and onion in butter until vegetables are tender but not brown, about 5 minutes.
Mix eggs, milk and mustard until blended. Pour over vegetable-salami mixture. As mixture begins to set, gently draw an inverted pancake turner completely across the bottom and sides of pan, forming large soft curds. Continue until eggs are thickened but still moist.* Do not stir constantly. Garnish with parsley, if desired.
*It is better to remove scrambled eggs from pan when they are slightly underdone. Heat retained in eggs completes the cooking.

2-PAN MACARONI MEDLEY

3 servings

While the macaroni cooks in a pan, all the vegetable and protein foods you need to round out a meal cook in a skillet. Though only the bacon is actually fried, the method of cooking ingredients step by step, one or a few at a time, is borrowed from the Oriental stir-fry technique. And, the result is a delightfully different combination of Italian and all-American foods.

3 slices bacon, diced
1 package (10 oz.) frozen chopped broccoli
1/4 cup water
6 eggs
1/2 cup dairy sour cream
1/4 cup grated Parmesan cheese
2 tablespoons instant minced onion
1/2 teaspoon salt
1/2 teaspoon garlic powder
1 can (4 oz.) sliced mushrooms, drained
2 cups (6 oz.) macaroni shells, cooked and drained

In 10- to 12-inch omelet pan or skillet over medium heat, cook bacon until crisp. Remove from pan, drain and set aside. Pour off drippings and set aside 2 tablespoons of the drippings. In same pan, cook broccoli with water, covered, over medium heat until completely thawed and broken apart, 7 to 8 minutes. Drain.
Beat together eggs, sour cream, cheese and seasonings. Pour reserved drippings into pan. Add drained broccoli, reserved bacon, mushrooms and drained macaroni. Pour in egg mixture. Cook over medium heat until egg mixture begins to set on bottom. With pancake turner or large spoon, gently lift and turn mixture until eggs are set but still moist.

OMELETS CREOLE

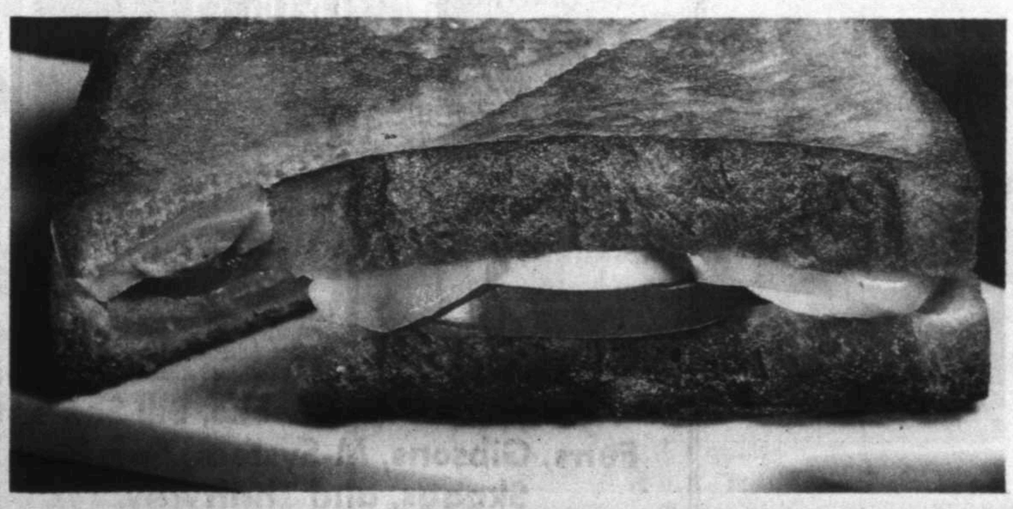

4 servings

In Latin, Creole means "creative person" and creative is an apt description of Creole cuisine. French and Spanish settlers brought with them the best of their old world cooking and added the foods they found plentiful along the Mississippi River and Gulf Coast. If you like, for complete authenticity, add a pinch of filé for texture and a few drops of hot pepper sauce for more nip. Round out the menu with okra, cooked separately or in the sauce, and rice.

6 tablespoons butter, divided
1/2 cup chopped onion
1/2 cup chopped green pepper
1/2 cup finely chopped celery
1 can (16 oz.) tomatoes
1 bay leaf
3/4 teaspoon garlic salt
1/4 teaspoon ground thyme
8 eggs
1/2 cup water
1 package (4 oz.) tiny frozen cooked shrimp

In medium saucepan over medium heat, cook onion, pepper and celery in 2 tablespoons of the butter, stirring occasionally, until tender but not brown, about 5 minutes. Stir in tomatoes, breaking apart with spoon, if necessary. Stir in seasonings. Increase heat to high. Cook, stirring occasionally, until tomato mixture thickens, about 8 to 10 minutes.
Meanwhile, mix eggs and water until blended. Set aside. Stir shrimp into tomato mixture. Reduce heat to low and simmer just until heated through, about 2 to 3 minutes. Keep warm while preparing omelets. Remove bay leaf before filling omelets.
For each omelet, in 7- to 10-inch omelet pan or skillet over medium-high heat, heat 1 tablespoon of the remaining butter until just hot enough to sizzle a drop of water. Pour in 1/2 cup of the egg mixture. (Mixture should set immediately at edges.) With an inverted pancake turner, carefully push cooked portions at edges toward center so uncooked portions can reach hot pan surface, tilting pan and moving cooked portions as necessary.
While top is still moist and creamy-looking,* fill with 1/2 cup of the shrimp mixture. With pancake turner, fold omelet in half or roll, and invert onto plate with a quick flip of the wrist or slide from pan onto plate. Top with an additional 2 tablespoons of the shrimp mixture. Repeat with remaining omelets.
*It is better to fill omelet when it is slightly underdone. Heat retained in eggs completes the cooking.

FRENCH-TOASTED HAM 'N' EGG STACKS

4 servings

These savory sandwiches are a hearty version of the French Croque-Monsieur or Monte Cristo. Easy to assemble and quick to cook, they're a snap to make if you keep hard-cooked eggs on hand.

3 tablespoons mayonnaise
1 tablespoon sweet pickle relish, well-drained
2 teaspoons prepared mustard
8 slices bread
4 slices (1 oz. each) Swiss cheese
4 hard-cooked eggs,* sliced
4 thin slices tomato
4 thin slices (1 oz. each) ham
4 eggs
2 tablespoons milk
2 to 3 tablespoons butter

In small bowl, blend together mayonnaise, relish and mustard. On each of 4 of the bread slices, place 1 slice of the cheese, 1 of the sliced eggs and 1 each of the tomato and ham slices. Spread with 1 tablespoon of the mayonnaise mixture. Cover with remaining bread slices. Secure each sandwich with 4 wooden picks, if necessary, and trim crusts, if desired.
In shallow pan or dish, beat together 4 eggs and milk until blended. Dip sandwiches in egg-milk mixture, turning to coat evenly. In large omelet pan or skillet over medium heat, cook sandwiches in butter until golden brown on both sides, turning once. Remove picks, if necessary. To serve, cut in half or into quarters.
*To hard-cook, put eggs in single layer in saucepan. Add enough tap water to come at least 1 inch above eggs. Cover and quickly bring just to boiling. Turn off heat. If necessary, remove pan from burner to prevent further boiling. Let eggs stand, covered, in the hot water 15 to 17 minutes for large eggs. (Adjust time up or down by 3 minutes for each size larger or smaller.) Immediately run cold water over eggs or put them in ice water until completely cooled. To remove shell, crackle it by tapping gently all over. Roll egg between hands to loosen shell, then peel, starting at large end. Hold egg under running cold water or dip in bowl of water to help ease off shell.

Stir in tomatoes, breaking apart with spoon, if necessary. Stir in seasonings. Increase heat to high. Cook, stirring occasionally, until tomato mixture thickens, about 8 to 10 minutes.
Meanwhile, mix eggs and water until blended. Set aside. Stir shrimp into tomato mixture. Reduce heat to low and simmer just until heated through, about 2 to 3 minutes. Keep warm while preparing omelets. Remove bay leaf before filling omelets.
For each omelet, in 7- to 10-inch omelet pan or skillet over medium-high heat, heat 1 tablespoon of the remaining butter until just hot enough to sizzle a drop of water. Pour in 1/2 cup of the egg mixture. (Mixture should set immediately at edges.) With an inverted pancake turner, carefully push cooked portions at edges toward center so uncooked portions can reach hot pan surface, tilting pan and moving cooked portions as necessary.
While top is still moist and creamy-looking,* fill with 1/2 cup of the shrimp mixture. With pancake turner, fold omelet in half or roll, and invert onto plate with a quick flip of the wrist or slide from pan onto plate. Top with an additional 2 tablespoons of the shrimp mixture. Repeat with remaining omelets.
*It is better to fill omelet when it is slightly underdone. Heat retained in eggs completes the cooking.

FRENCH-TOASTED HAM 'N' EGG STACKS

4 servings

These savory sandwiches are a hearty version of the French Croque-Monsieur or Monte Cristo. Easy to assemble and quick to cook, they're a snap to make if you keep hard-cooked eggs on hand.

3 tablespoons mayonnaise
1 tablespoon sweet pickle relish, well-drained
2 teaspoons prepared mustard
8 slices bread
4 slices (1 oz. each) Swiss cheese
4 hard-cooked eggs,* sliced
4 thin slices tomato
4 thin slices (1 oz. each) ham
4 eggs
2 tablespoons milk
2 to 3 tablespoons butter

In small bowl, blend together mayonnaise, relish and mustard. On each of 4 of the bread slices, place 1 slice of the cheese, 1 of the sliced eggs and 1 each of the tomato and ham slices. Spread with 1 tablespoon of the mayonnaise mixture. Cover with remaining bread slices. Secure each sandwich with 4 wooden picks, if necessary, and trim crusts, if desired.
In shallow pan or dish, beat together 4 eggs and milk until blended. Dip sandwiches in egg-milk mixture, turning to coat evenly. In large omelet pan or skillet over medium heat, cook sandwiches in butter until golden brown on both sides, turning once. Remove picks, if necessary. To serve, cut in half or into quarters.
*To hard-cook, put eggs in single layer in saucepan. Add enough tap water to come at least 1 inch above eggs. Cover and quickly bring just to boiling. Turn off heat. If necessary, remove pan from burner to prevent further boiling. Let eggs stand, covered, in the hot water 15 to 17 minutes for large eggs. (Adjust time up or down by 3 minutes for each size larger or smaller.) Immediately run cold water over eggs or put them in ice water until completely cooled. To remove shell, crackle it by tapping gently all over. Roll egg between hands to loosen shell, then peel, starting at large end. Hold egg under running cold water or dip in bowl of water to help ease off shell.

Popcorn has popped up throughout history

LANCASTER, Pa. (AP) — Popcorn lovers know the snack is perfect with movies, family reunions and ball games.

They believe it to be as American as the flag, apple pie and Uncle Millie.

But according to John and Kay Delagrange, popcorn lovers themselves and owners of The Buttercorn Overland Stage Co. at Lancaster Outlet City, there are probably a few kernels of knowledge that even the passionate connoisseur has yet to learn.

For example, the popular snack food is believed to have been discovered by primitive people when a wild grain of corn was exposed to heat. Indians popped the corn on heated rocks and hot sand. Later, archeology expeditions uncovered pottery utensils for popping corn in Mexico, Central America, Peru, New Mexico, the West Indies and the Great Lakes region.

Indian tribes throughout the Americas were introduced to popcorn by the time the white man arrived in the New World. Once in Mexico, Cortes reported seeing a "strange flower that grew on the end of a stalk" which popped when cooked in fire. He found that it was used not only as food but as decoration for necklaces, ceremonial headdresses and statues to the gods.

Columbus saw the corn worn in corsages by the West Indians, and early French explorers in the Great Lakes region found that the Indians used popcorn in soup.

A brother of an Iroquois chief took a deerskin bag filled with popped corn to the first Thanksgiving feast at Plymouth. Later, colonial housewives served popcorn with milk and honey, creating the first puffed grain breakfast cereal.

History provides the evidence, said John, that popcorn is the "original snack food."

There's more to the Delagranges' popcorn business than one might think — 31 flavors more, to be exact. At the Buttercorn Overland Stage Co., customers can buy chocolate fudge, barbecue, taco and root beer-flavored popcorn. There are other flavors, too — banana, grape, watermelon, peanut butter, pina colada and pistachio.

And for those with adventurous palates, the Delagranges boast bubble gum, apple cinnamon, praline and shrimp cocktail-flavored popcorn.

The couple have been in the popcorn business for five years, selling popcorn at local fairs and festivals. They had talked about locating the business in a permanent place, and decided this would be the year to do it.

Kay Delagrange manages the business and John, art director at Packing Corporation of America, designed and built the popcorn "shop" and the two-thirds-scale model of a Concord coach which houses the popcorn popper.

The Wells Fargo wagon replica has become as much a conversation piece as the 31 flavors of popcorn.

DEAR ABBY

Lay down the law to two-timing cop

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: What a mess I am in! I just found out that the rat I've been living with for nine years (we have a 6-month-old baby) has been having quickie affairs all along. I bought the story that he couldn't marry because we're living in my house, which is located out of his district (he's a Detroit police officer), and he would say, "If I married you and we lived in your house, I would lose my job because of residency."

One of his girlfriends wrote him a letter addressed to my house. In this letter she described some love scenes she has had with him that are exactly like the ones I have had with him. She used the very same endearing words he used to whisper in my ear at night.

I am so burned I want to throw the rat out. Can you give me some advice? He lies so much I can't believe a word he says. — BURNED IN MICHIGAN

DEAR BURNED: The "rat" has a legal responsibility to the child he fathered. I don't blame you for wanting to throw him out. Too bad you didn't write to me nine years ago. I would have suggested that you sell your house and move into his district.

DEAR ABBY: You recently gave your readers some valuable advice when you warned them against vigorously shaking an infant or small child. I am a retired pediatric nursing instructor who has always stressed that very point.

Few people are aware that shaking an infant or small child vigorously can cause a whiplash kind of brain injury that can result in eventual mental retardation!

How often we see well-intentioned adults playfully "tossing a baby high into the air." This innocent little game that seems to delight the baby can also result in permanent brain damage.

Brain cells are easily destroyed in infants, and as I told my students, every child needs all the brain cells it can maintain in order to cope in our complex world. — JOYCE B. JARVIS, R.N., FULLERTON, CALIF.

DEAR NURSE JARVIS: Even though you are officially retired, you're still teaching. Thanks for the refresher course.

DEAR ABBY: This is for the woman who claimed that her immediate friendliness to strangers while waiting in lines "puts everybody in a good mood":

I've met you many times. Once when I was in the checkout line at the market, you asked me a question regarding the weather, the length of the line or whatever, while I was mentally tabulating the amount of money I was spending or wondering if I had forgotten an important item. I tried to get by with a nod and a smile, but you kept right on talking, so I finally had to feign deafness in order to be left alone with my thoughts.

I encountered you again while standing in a long line at the bank. You tapped me on the shoulder to comment on how crowded the bank was during the lunch hour. When I turned around to acknowledge your remark, the teller closed her window to go to lunch, forcing us helpless customers to get into an even longer line.

Another time I was in line to have a prescription filled when you went into a detailed account of your recent illnesses. I considered fainting at your feet to shut you up, but I was afraid I'd lose my place in line.

Your children were correct when they told you you were too friendly, and they feared that one day you may be murdered by a stranger. — N.A. IN PASADENA CONFIDENTIAL TO VIRGO ON THE CUSP: People who live in glass houses shouldn't get stoned.

(Do you hate to write letters because you don't know what to say? Thank-you notes, sympathy letters, congratulations, how to decline and accept invitations and how to write an interesting letter are included in Abby's booklet, "How to Write Letters for All Occasions." Send your name and address clearly printed with a check or money order for $2.50 (this includes postage) to: Dear Abby, Letter Booklet, P.O. Box 38923, Hollywood, Calif. 90038.)

SNACKTIME FARE
Peanut Cups & Beverage

PEANUT CUPS
½ cup sugar-chunk peanut butter
¼ cup dark corn syrup
½ teaspoon vanilla
1 cup sifted confectioners' sugar
12-ounce package semisweet chocolate pieces, melted

Line 1¾ by 1-inch muffin-pan cups with fluted paper cups. Stir together peanut butter, corn syrup and vanilla; gradually stir in sugar. On a smooth surface knead until smooth; press to make ⅛-inch thick. Cut into 1-inch rounds. Spoon about ½ teaspoon of chocolate into each paper cup so bottom is generously covered. Immediately place a peanut butter round over chocolate in each cup; gently push down to coat sides with chocolate. Spread another ½ teaspoon chocolate over top. Chill until firm. Store in refrigerator.

Red plums do double duty

By CECILY BROWNSTONE
AP Food Editor

Fresh plums are in peak supply right now and there are various varieties to choose from. But when you plan to poach them, red plums are a good choice. Their lovely color deepens during cooking and they look so attractive.

This season we cooked some red plums in a syrup sweetened with sugar, thickened with cornstarch and flavored with lime rind, lime juice and brandy; then we flambeed them. We tried serving them two ways: once as an accompaniment for baked custard, once as a topping for ice cream.

The plums stayed in attractive quarters because their skins were not removed during the poaching. I noticed some tasters particularly enjoyed the skin's tart flavor; others carefully set the skins aside. Everyone was satisfied.

FRESH PLUMS FLAMBE
1 teaspoon cornstarch
¾ cup sugar
2 strips lime rind
2 tablespoons lime juice
¼ cup brandy
1½ pounds red plums, quartered and pitted (8 to 10 medium)
Vanilla ice cream or cup custards

In a chafing dish or a 10-inch skillet, stir together cornstarch and sugar. Stir in lime rind, lime juice, 2 tablespoons of the brandy and plums. Stirring constantly, slowly bring to a boil. Simmer uncovered only until plums are tender when pierced with fork — 6 to 8 minutes. Warm remaining brandy, pour over simmering plums and ignite with a long match. When flames die down, spoon over ice cream or cup custards.

Makes 8 servings.

Outdoor cooking instructions traditional, universal

By MERLE ELLIS

There are several places in this world where the first instruction you would be given when cooking for a crowd outdoors would very likely be: "First, you diga pit."

In Hawaii, the traditional outdoor luau feast is cooked in a hole in the ground calledan (ital) imu. (unital) First, you dig a pit, then lay in a big pile of kiawe wood and build a roaring fire. Toss on a dozen or so porous lava rocks. When the kiawe has burned to coals and the rocks are hot, the pit is lined with banana stalks and leaves. A whole dressed pig — with a few hot rocks tucked inside — is wrapped in ti leaves held in place with chicken wire. The pig is lowered into the pit and covered with more banana and ti leaves. Damp burlap sacks go over the leaves and the pit is covered over with earth so that no steam escapes. In six or eight hours, out comes Kalua Pig.

In Mexico, instructions for (ital) La Barbacoa Mexicana (unital) begin: "Dig a hole in the ground 4 feet deep by 2 feet in diameter." There, they plaster mud along the walls to keep them from collapsing. Tecontle stones are placed at the bottom of the pit. Like the lava rocks used in Hawaii, these are porous stones that will retain the heat without cracking. The wrong kind of rocks will shatter almost like glass when heated. Enough wood to fill the pit is piled overthe stones. In Mexico the wood probably is mesquite, which, like the kiawe of Hawaii, grows everywhere. When the wood has burned to smokeless coals and the rocks are hot, the pit is lined with the fleshy leaves of the maguey plant.

The meat in a Mexican (ital) barbacoa (unital) is most apt to be lamb cut into sections — back, legs, shoulders, ribs and head — and arranged in the pit in that order atop an earthenware casserole containing rice, chickpeas, potatoes, carrots and, of course, chiles. More leaves are piled on top and the pit is sealed with mud. Over this a fire is built and kept burning for 5 or 6 hours, depending on the age of the animal (mutton takes longer than lamb). After the appropriate length of time, the pit is opened, the meat carved and served along with the vegetables from the casserole.

In Nebraska, when I was growing up, we did something similar for town picnics, family reunions and such – whenever there was a crowd to feed. We didn't use lamb in Nebraska in those days. Fact is (unfortunately), they still don't. That's cattle country. We used beef. We called it simply pit barbecue.

It's something of an undertaking, I'll admit, and it requires lots of cooperation from aunts, uncles, friends and neighbors. But a pit barbecue is a great way to cook for a hungry crowd of 30, 300 or 3000 people.

First you dig a pit about 3 feet wide, 3 feet deep and as long as you need. Allow about 6 feet for every 200 pounds of beef. It's best not to make the pits more than about 10 or 12 feet long, so if you're feeding a really big crowd, dig several smaller pits 12 feet apart. That way you can open one pit at a time and the rest will stay hot.

It's important that the sides of the pit be dug straight down and the dirt piled just to one side so there's work space around the pit.

Have plenty of good hardwood cut and stacked close at hand. You will need enough to fill the pits about three times to build up a bed of coals 2 to 2-1/2 feet thick. Start the fire going about 18 hours before you plan to serve — if dinner is planned for 6 p.m., the fire shouldget started about midnight.

Use paper and kindling (we used to use corn cobs) to start a fire in the bottom of the pit. Then add the hardwood slowly and loosely so that it burns down to hot glowing coals. Keep adding wood until the pit is filled with a bed of coals to within about 1 to 1-1/2 feet from its top. Level the coals with a rake and then spread on about 3/4 inch of dry gravel.

Now you're ready to put on the beef. Ten- to 15-pound boneless rolled shoulder roasts, chuck eye rolls or sirloin tips work best. They don't have to be the most tender cuts – they're going to steam in the pit so even tough meat gets tender. The roasts should be seasoned with salt and pepper, then double-wrapped first in aluminum foil, then in either burlap or heavy muslin and tied with binder twine or bailing wire.

Lay the roasts on the gravel, leaving space between them so the heat can circulate. Once all the beef is in the pit, cover it as quickly as possible so the heat won't escape. First lay metal pipes across the pit to support a cover of galvanized roofing or wide boards. Cover that with a large canvas tarp and shovel a mound of dirt over the tarp so that no steam escapes.

Americans like hot foods, hot cold foods, cold

By MARIAN BURROS
New York Times News Service

NEW YORK — We Americans like our hot foods steaming, our cold foods icy. It is one of many cultural differences between us and most if not all of the rest of the world. We have such a fetish about these extremes in temperature that it is a point of pride to advertise frosty drinks on a muggy summ er's day and a bubbling pot of beef stew on a bone-chilling winter's evening.

Because of our preoccupation with hot and cold food we are missing much of the natural flavors found in dishes served at more moderate temperatures, temperatures that do not numb our taste receptors. This is not to suggest that all dishes taste better at room temperature; but what food can you think of whose flavor is not improved if it is allowed to stand long enough to cool down or warm up a little?

Some scientific evidence backs these empirical observations. According to Dr. Gary Beauchamp, a member of the Monell Chemical Senses Center in Philadelphia, we are "most sensitive to tastes that are around body temperature." He explained that "most of the subtleties of taste have to do with smell, and when a cold food warms up, the odorous molecules come off the material at a greater rate."

That being the case, boiling-hot food should taste best of all, but other factors may be working against that theory . "There has not been much research done in this area," Beauchamp said. He added, however, that common sense would indicate that very hot food might deaden some taste receptors and that it cannot be kept in the mouth long enough to savor it.

Two considerations may account for the American interest in extremely hot and overly chilled food. Because of advanced technology in the 1920s and 30s, Americans had better refrigeration and cooking equipment than others around the world. And because of the American obsession with food safety, made possible by refrigeration and efficient stoves, we have come to believe that to prevent gastrointestinal disorders food should be kept either above 140 degrees or below 40 degrees. For prolonged periods this is true, but not for the hour or two it takes to eat a meal.

Indeed, many foods are no more or less safe to eat if they sit at room temperature, fruit being a perfect example. Cherries that have been on the kitchen counter taste much better than those that have been in the refrigerator. What is better than a peach or a tomato eaten directly from the garden? It isn't just their freshness, although that has a lot to do with it. It isn't just the romantic notion of picking your own fruit, though that has some psychic value. It is that at room temperature fruit has more aroma and, consequently, more taste.

Some of the more conscientious ice-cream manufacturers advise consumers to allow their products to sit at room temperature for a few minutes before serving, not because it will be easier to scoop the ice cream but because more of the flavor will come through.

Have you ever eaten a cookie as it came from the oven?. Or stolen a sliver of roast beef fresh from the roasting pan? Not until the cookie is cool enough to handle and the roast beef has been sitting for about 15 minutes do either have any flavor. And if you are willing to wait an hour or two the roast beef will be even more flavorful. Just like the Thanksgiving turkey about two hours after dinner.

It is difficult to convince Americans to have an open mind about eating food at more moderate temperatures because much of how we react to food has to do with what we expect from it.

So far, my idea that lamb roasted with garlic puree and served at room temperature is better than lamb just half an hour from the oven has been greeted with skepticism. And when I served pastichio, a Greek dish made of layers of macaroni, meat and tomato sauce, topped with a cheese-flavored cream sauce at room temperature, I met with the same resistance. In Greece pasatichio is served that way, but here, I was told, the otherwise delicious dish would have been better if it had been hotter.

Americans walk dietary tightrope

Hearst News Service

Americans are walking a dietary tightrope these days, trying to balance nutrients and count calories while being bombarded with seemingly contradictory eating advice.

To take the mystery out of healthy eating, Redbook magazine asked leading nutritionists for the 10 most common mistakes people make in their diets, and the results appear in the September issue.

The experts agreed the most common — and deadliest — dietary sin was eating too much fat. Most dangerous are the saturated fats found in animal and dairy products that raise the cholesterol level and are culprits in heart disease and stroke.

A diet high in any fat also may increase the risk of cancer of the breast, endometrium, ovaries, colon, rectum and possibly pancreas.

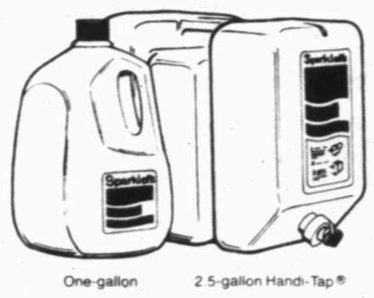

Fat also has twice the calories per gram of other nutrients — which means overindulgence can lead to obesity.

Next on the list of dietary mistakes was overloading on protein. About 12 to 15 percent of a person's daily caloric intake should be made up of protein. But most Americans eat twice that much, and a large proportion comes from such high cholesterol foods as beef and eggs.

"For your heart's sake, have burgers or steak no more than two or three times a week," advised Gail Levey, spokesperson for the American Dietetic Association of Chicago.

Don't assume starches are fattening. Such complex carbohydrates as pasta, potatoes, rice and bread are top sources of B-complex vitamins and are no more fattening than protein. It's the butter and oil that are the culprits.

Dieters tell little 'light' lies

By CANDY SAGON
Los Angeles Times-
Washington Post News Service

DALLAS — Dieting for Americans is like a religion: lots of sermonizing, lots of books about it, lots of falling from grace.

Not too many of us want to confess our dieting sins. We make excuses for our lapses instead of coming out and admitting, "mea gulpa."

Compiled here is a list of the most common rationalizations dieters tell themselves as they stuff yet another handful of calories into their pudgy little faces.

If you have told yourself any of these little "light lies," you're not alone. Unfortunately, most of us often eat more calories through nibbling than if we just ate that one piece of cake or a couple of cookies and then went on about our business.

The best advice is to set yourself a once-a-day treat limit (say, 10 chips for 100 calories), enjoy it and then go back to your diet with a clear conscience.

In the meantime, here are our dieters' fondest fibs:

— Food eaten standing up at the refrigerator doesn't count.

— If you only eat the broken chips, it's not as many calories.

— Food that no one sees you eat has no calories.

— The even-it-off syndrome: I won't eat a whole piece of cheesecake, I'll just even off this side; or I won't eat any of this ice cream, I'll just even off the top. (This continues until only a sliver remains, and that certainly can't contain very many calories, so you eat that, too.)

— Eating off someone else's plate doesn't add calories. ("You go ahead and order dessert, and I'll just have a little of yours.")

— The broken pieces at the bottom of the cookie jar have no calories.

— I'm under a lot of stress, so I'll burn off this candy bar in aggravation.

— A whole piece of birthday cake has too many calories. I'll just eat the frosting.

— I just finished exercise class, so this triple scoop of ice cream can't make me fat.

— Anything eaten at Mom's house isn't fattening.

— If you don't put the food on a plate, it has no calories.

— If it's dough, it doesn't have calories (as in cookie dough).

Pineapple cut fresh

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — A new machine now available to supermarkets enables shoppers to purchase fresh pineapple that is ready-to-eat.

The pineapple cutter from Del Monte Corp. removes the tough outer shell and core from fresh pineapple, leaving behind the heart of the fruit. The pineapple is then sold in plastic bags or cartons.

Torte made with pound cake

By CECILY BROWNSTONE
AP Food Editor

POUND CAKE TORTE

10¾-ounce frozen all-butter pound cake
½ cup confectioners' sugar
¼ cup cocoa
1 cup heavy cream
2 tablespoons coffee liqueur

Slice pound cake, while still frozen, into 4 lengthwise layers of even thickness. In a medium-size deep bowl stir together sugar and cocoa. Add cream and beat until almost stiff; add liqueur and beat until stiff. Spread bottom layer of cake with some of the cream mixture; stack with remaining layers and spread each with cream mixture; cover top and sides with remaining cream mixture. Chill.

Oatmeal cookies crispy

By CECILY BROWNSTONE

OATMEAL COOKIES

A crispy old favorite.

½ teaspoon salt
¾ cup butter
1½ cups packed dark brown sugar
1 teaspoon vanilla
⅓ cup buttermilk
3 cups quick-cooking oats

On wax paper stir together flour, baking soda and salt. In a medium saucepan melt butter; off heat stir in brown sugar, vanilla, buttermilk and oats; mix well. Stir in flour mixture until blended. Drop by level tablespoonsful onto buttered cookie sheets; press flat and thin with wet palm, rounding edges with fingers.

Bake in a preheated 375-degree oven until lightly browned — 6 to 8 minutes. Remove with a wide spatula to wire rack to cool. Store in a tightly covered container. Makes about 4½ dozen.

Plain old bacon and eggs have great new taste appeal in these Bacon and Egg Breakfast Tarts. Tender pastry shells are filled with Canadian bacon, Cheddar cheese and soft-cooked eggs for a breakfast fancy enough for company and easy enough for family.

Bacon, eggs have new look

Bacon and eggs take on a new look and taste appeal when served in a flaky tart shell. These Bacon and Egg Breakfast Tarts are a perfect selection for brunch, yet convenient enough to serve the family on weekdays.

BACON AND EGG BREAKFAST TARTS

1 package pie crust mix or sticks
1 package (6 oz.) Canadian-style bacon slices or 1/2 cup diced fully cooked smoked ham or crumbled cooked bacon
1 cup shredded Cheddar cheese (4 oz.)
4 eggs
1/4 cup milk or whipping cream
1/4 teaspoon ground nutmeg
1/4 teaspoon pepper

Heat oven to 425-F. Prepare pastry for one-crust pie as directed on package except divide pastry into four equal parts. Roll each part into 6-inch circle on well-floured cloth-covered board with floured cloth-covered rolling pin. Fit circles over backs of large muffin cups, 3x1-1/2-inches, or 6-oz. custard cups, making pleats so pastry will fit closely. (If using individual pie pans or tart pans cut circles one inch larger than inverted pans; fit into pans.) Prick tops. Place on ungreased cookie sheet. Bake until light brown, eight to 10 minutes. Cool five minutes; carefully remove from cups. Reduce oven temperaure to 350-F.

Place two Canadian-style bacon slices or two tablespoons ham or bacon in botom of each pastry cup. Sprinkle cheese over top, making slight well in centers. Break one egg into each; add one tablespoon milk. Sprinkle with nutmeg and pepper. Place on ungreased cookie sheet. Bake until eggs are soft cooked, 15-20 minutes. Makes four servings.

Do-ahead tip: After baking, tart shells can be covered tightly and frozen. Let stand covered at room temperature 10 minutes before continuing.

Alaska promises wide assortment of fish, game

By TOM HOGE
AP Wine and Food Writer

Alaska, our largest state, may be a frozen tundra in its far northern sector. But much of the country is a thing of beauty, with a fantastic variety of fish and game.

The adventurous eater can try mooseburger, reindeer steak and bear chops — or even sea lion and caribou there.

But most visitors are attracted by more familiar items such as the huge Alaska king crab, or the lordly salmon. These, along with the local halibut and rockfish, are shipped all over the mainland.

There are other delicacies you don't often see that I sampled on a recent visit to Anchorage, where my daughter lives. Razor clams fried in butter are a memorable treat. So are the giant berries and vegetables grown in the Matanuska Valley. Fiddlehead ferns are a delight, as are the raw rose hips and cranberry ketchup.

One culinary specialty is the ptarmigan, or snow grouse, one sees wheeling over the fields. It is often served roasted or smoked.

For a dinner that's not too high in calories, try Alaska's low-fat halibut saute.

HALIBUT SAUTE

1 pound halibut
3 tbsps. oil, divided
1 cup each thinly sliced carrots, chopped celery, sliced green onions and broccoli flowerets
¼ tsp. grated ginger root
¼ cup chicken stock or water
2 tsps. cornstarch
1 tsp. grated lemon peel
Salt and pepper to taste
Red pepper strips and toasted sesame seeds for garnish

Remove bones and skin from halibut. Cut fish into 1-inch cubes. Saute in two tablespoons oil, until barely cooked, and remove halibut from skillet. Saute vegetables in remaining oil until crisp and tender. Return fish to skillet. Add ginger. Combine stock, cornstarch and lemon peel and add to fish mixture. Cook and stir until thickened and halibut flakes easily when fork-tested. Season with salt and pepper. Garnish with pepper and sesame seeds. Serves 4. Good with a chilled white wine.

Potato electronic

EDINBURGH, Scotland (AP) — An electronic "potato" developed here is going to be used to save real potatoes, according to the Scottish Development Agency.

Developed by the Scottish Institute of Agricultural Engineering, the electronic potatoes will accompany real ones as they travel from farm to market. As much as 10 percent of Scotland's potato crop is damaged each year on the trip to the marketplace, and the electronic devices will try to find out why.

The devices will plot the real potatoes' journey and the obstacles they encounter on the way as well as identify where the damage usually occurs.

1983 Beaujolais perfect for summer

By NATHAN CHROMAN
Los Angeles Times-
Washington Post News Service

Summer is the time to drink the fruity charm of light-bodied, zesty wines that are found in 1983 Beaujolais. The vintage reflects superior quality and fruit intensity that are best enjoyed now.

The 1983 vintage turned out to be fortunate for grower and consumer. A rainy deluge combined with cold weather deterred the development of Beaujolais vines and created a risky, tardy flowering.

July and August heat not only spared crop disaster, it precipitated a marvelous vintage recovery to make '83 one of Beaujolais' best, comparing favorably with the acclaimed 1981. Little chaptalization (the addition of sugar before fermentation) was necessary with wines that sustained good sugar concentrations, more alcohol than in 1982, and most important, flavorful juice. Some wines enjoyed more tannin, but do not expect longer bottle life since the key pleasure to any fine Beaujolais is youthful freshness.

A major consumer concern is to determine which Beaujolais district to buy. In a higher quality, bigger wine vintage like 1983, selective buying may be better directed to well-known crus, or growths, like Brouilly, Moulin-a-Vent, Julienas, Chenas, Chiroubles, Morgon, Cote-de-Brouilly, St. Amour and Fleurie. It is difficult, if not impossible, to assess specific taste distinctions of these prime growths, especially in an assertively fruity wine year like 1983.

While the district of Beaujolais is entitled to the French label-appellation of Burgundy, the wine is made traditionally from the Gamay grape rather than the Pinot Noir, Burgundy's premier grape. In the hands of Beaujolais wine makers, the Gamay makes a delightfully stylish, straightforward, fruity, cherry-like wine. Elsewhere in the wine world, and in the hands of others, Gamay wines are often ordinary, listless and without zest.

Pork glazed with marmalade

By CECILY BROWNSTONE
AP Food Editor

SUPPER FARE
Glazed Orange Pork
Rice & Green Pea Salad
Chocolate Cake

GLAZED ORANGE PORK
2-pound smoked boneless pork shoulder butt
Whole cloves
½ cup orange marmalade
¼ cup dry vermouth
Sliced oranges & parsley

Cook butt according to wrapper directions; drain; insert whole cloves, a few inches apart, over entire surface. Place in a small shallow pan lined with foil.

In a small saucepan over moderately low heat, stir together marmalade and vermouth until marmalade melts; with a slotted spoon place the orange shreds from the marmalade over the top of the butt; pour the remaining liquid over the pork.

Bake in a preheated 325-degree oven until syrup begins to bubble — 20 to 30 minutes. Let stand 5 minutes or so before slicing. Garnish with the oranges and parsley.

Join in the merriment!
Disney on Parade
August 14-18

Some very important mice are visiting Midland Park Mall. Join Walt Disney's Mickey and Minnie Mouse and their friend, Goofy, as they bring their special kind of fun to town with three great shows each day in Center Court. There's singing, dancing, and lots of mouse merriment. "C" you real soon!

Show times: 11:00 a.m., 5:30 & 7:30 p.m., Tuesday through Friday 11:00 a.m., 1:30 & 3:30 p.m., Saturday

Bank failures continue to increase

WASHINGTON (AP) — With the year barely half finished, the number of failed banks has reached 49 to eclipse the total in all of 1983, federal regulators say.

The 48 failures last year had been the most since the 60 in 1939.

In addition to the failures, the Federal Deposit Insurance Corp. has placed a record 721 banks on its problem list, up from 642 at the end of last year, according to spokesman Alan Whitney. Those banks are experiencing a range of problems, requiring closer government monitoring.

The bank failure rate picked up sharply in 1982, reflecting, regulators say, the economic turmoil of recent years.

Meanwhile, the Federal Home Loan Bank Board said that so far this year, it has put together nine mergers of weak savings and loans with stronger partners, down sharply from the 46 in all of last year and 65 in 1982. The bank board is the chief federal regulator of thrifts.

Despite the pickup in bank failures, William Isaac, who heads the FDIC, expresses little worry about the ability of the $16 billion insurance fund to handle such problems.

He also notes, as recently as in a July interview, that the failures represent just a fraction of the 14,800 banks with deposits insured up to $100,000 by the FDIC.

Isaac, who expects the failure rate to slow in the second half of this year, points to the ups and downs of the economy in explaining the reason for the greater number of collapsed banks.

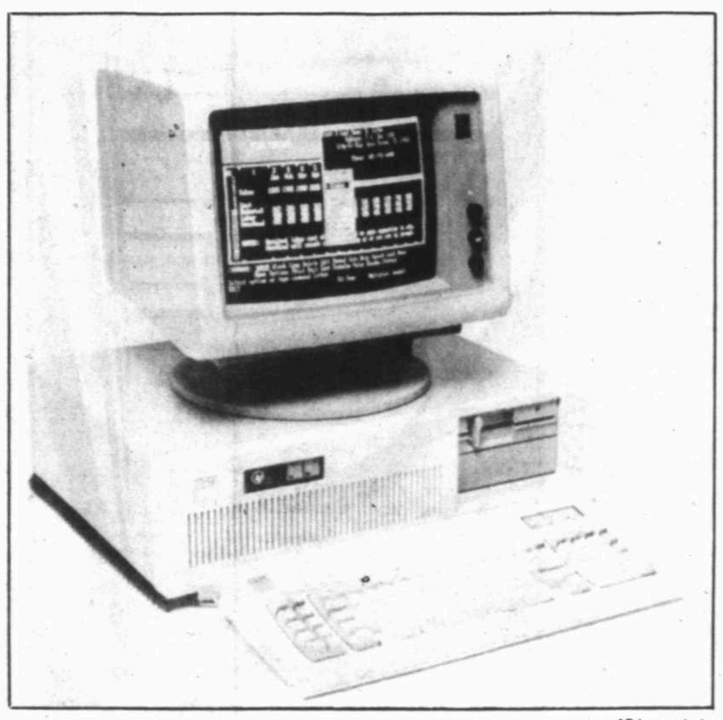

He said banks have had to shift their decision-making to meet the problems posed not only by high inflation but also by the 1981-82 downturn.

In 1981, 10 banks failed; 42 collapsed in the following year.

In general, he said, failed banks have suffered from poor management, taken part in fraudulent banking practices and held large amounts of brokered deposits on their books.

Brokered money is drawn from savers and investors nationwide and placed in institutions offering high interest rates. Isaac and other regulators argue that weak institutions offer those rates to try to bring in money and strengthen their financial condition. To meet the high rates, the institutions sometimes turn to risky investments, which can add to their woes.

No depositor has ever lost money in an account at a bank or savings and loan that was guaranteed by one of the federal insurance agencies.

Economy slows as retail sales sag, auto sales dip

Associated Press

The rapid growth of the nation's economy slowed as retail sales sagged, auto sales dipped slightly and installment debt taken on by consumers declined by 24 percent.

Retail sales slumped 0.9 percent in July, the Commerce Department said Tuesday, providing another sign of an economic slowdown which analysts believe could ease inflationary pressures spurred by fast growth.

The department said the July decline, to a seasonally adjusted $107.8 billion in sales, stemmed from a fall-off in a broad range of consumer categories, from automobiles to clothing.

The 0.9 percent July from June decline in retail sales followed a 0.5 percent June increase from May. The pace set from May through July translates into an annual rate of 1.1 percent, far below the 11 percent rate recorded during the first 17 months of recovery from the 1981-82 recession.

The July drop was the first since a 1.5 percent March decline.

Michael Evans, head of a Washington consulting firm, said he believed the retail sales numbers showed "the economy is slowing down but not that much."

"What we are seeing is moderation and not in any way a collapse," said Sandra Shaber of Chase Econometrics, a private forecasting firm. "Gains in income and household purchasing power have been too strong for any kind of serious collapse in consumer spending."

But the six major U.S. carmakers said Tuesday their sales in early August were off 0.8 percent compared with a year ago.

General Motors Corp. said sales were down 6.1 percent and Chrysler said its sales fell 7.6 percent from the year-ago period. Ford Motor Co. posted a 9 percent sales gain.

The carmakers said they sold a combined 177,182 cars in the first 10 days in August, down from 178,686 sold in the comparable 1983 span.

Auto analyst David Healy with the investment firm of Drexel, Burnham, Lambert Inc., called the 10-day period the "weakest sales period since early October of last year," when annual sales were about 6.7 million. But he blamed low inventories for the decline.

Flare Inc. reports net loss

Staff reports

Flare Inc. (OTC) and its principal operating subsidiary, Seismic Reflections Inc., have reported a net loss from continuing operations of $190,099 ($.03 per share) for the year ended June 30, 1984 on revenues of $7,969,083 as compared to net earnings from continuing operations of $1,573,874 ($.20 per share) for 1983 on revenues of $9,026,917.

J.D. Faircloth, president, attributed the net loss to a $1,057,834 decrease in operating revenues and a $1,092,381 increase in noncash charges, including a $453,565 economic writedown of certain proprietary seismic data programs. He noted, however, that the firm's cash outlay for general and administrative expenses actually decreased $420,129 or 14 percent during 1984 and was primarily due to the half-year cost savings associated with the firm's December 1983 management changes.

For 1984, net cash flow from proprietary seismic data operations (proprietary revenue less cost of data acquired) was $3,154,144 as compared to $329,457 for 1983 and $1,157,037 for 1982. Overall, cash flow sources from continuing operations was $4,735,952 as compared to $5,499,594 for 1983.

Losses from discontinued operations were $169,255 and $2,163,000 for 1984 and 1983, respectively, and resulted from the writedown and ultimate discharge of certain notes received in connection with the company's 1982 sale of its drilling subsidiary.

The net loss from all operations for 1984 totalled $359,354 ($.05 per share) versus $589,126 ($.07 per share) for 1983.

Frost belt taxpayers likely to get tax relief

By LEE MITGANG
Associated Press Writer

Whether or not a federal tax hike is inevitable, as presidential candidate Walter F. Mondale insists, Frost Belt taxpayers are likely to get some relief as the economic recovery feeds bulging state treasuries from New York to Minnesota.

Eight states where the last recession hit hardest — and taxes went up the most — have either slashed taxes already or are considering cuts, an Associated Press survey found. For these states, a booming economy has paid off in budget surpluses.

Delaware, with a record surplus of nearly $47 million, Michigan with more than $200 million, and Pennsylvania with $76 million, each enacted personal income tax cuts last month. Ohio, running $150-million surplus thanks to a 90 percent increase in its personal income tax last year, will begin refunding $55 million to taxpayers next month, an average of $7 per refund.

Four other states with sizable surpluses are actively considering tax relief. New York has a current-year surplus estimated at $124 million or more, Wisconsin projects a $200-million surplus, Minnesota's surplus is expected to hit $33 million this year, and New Jersey anticipates a $319-million surplus.

However, few states outside the Frost Belt have tax cuts on the horizon. To the contrary, a number in the South and West have raised taxes or are planning tax hikes.

Meanwhile, citizens in at least three states may force cuts in taxes or spending through initiatives being considered on November ballots.

Some state finance experts, like Bob Reinshuttle, director of finance and taxation at the Council of State Governments, chalk up the tax cutting to election-year politics. Others believe that state politicians, wondering what to do about a sudden embarrassment of riches in their treasuries, would rather pass a tax cut than face tax-revolt measures on November ballots.

Still, at least some governors in states with large surpluses have resisted tax cuts, arguing instead that their states should be replenishing reserve budget funds in case the economy turns sour.

Connecticut's Gov. William O'Neill said no tax cuts are planned despite a $160 million surplus. "I'll be happy if I don't have to increase any taxes, and I don't see that I'm going to, certainly not in 1985, and hopefully not in 1986, as long as the economy stays solid," O'Neill said.

Massachusetts Gov. Michael Dukakis has likewise resisted tax cuts. He denies the state has a surplus, and in July he vetoed a tax-cut measure that he said would have cost the state $200 million by 1987.

He branded the cut "politics in an election year."

Dollar mixed; Gold up $5

LONDON (AP) — The dollar turned in a mixed performance on foreign exchange markets early today. The value of gold bullion rose more than $5 in Hong Kong, but changed little in Europe.

After falling sharply late Tuesday, the dollar eased further this morning against the West German, Swiss and Japanese currencies, but rose against the French, British, Dutch and Canadian units.

Trading was quiet and trendless, with markets closed in some European countries for Assumption Day.

The dollar's decline Tuesday was linked to a report of a 0.9 percent drop in U.S. retail sales in July, which indicated U.S. economic expansion is slowing.

Texas American Bank president resigns

Robert D. Southerland, chairman of the board and chief executive officer of Texas American Bank/Midland, has announced his intention to leave the bank to pursue personal business interests in financial planning and bank consulting effective September 1.

Don Flatt, president of TAB/Midland, will be acting chief executive officer upon Southerland's departure.

Southerland joined TAB/Midland (then Commmercial Bank & Trust Co.) in 1968 as assistant cashier. He was promoted to assistant vice president in 1971, vice president in 1972, senior vice president and trust officer in 1976 and president and chief executive officer in 1979.

He is a graduate of Texas Tech University with a BBA degree in finance and of the Southwestern Graduate School of Banking at Southern Methodist University.

Currently, Southerland is serving as a board member of the Presbyterian Pan American School — Kingsville, District Legislative Liaison — Texas Bankers Association, the Advisory Committee of Young Life of Midland, the board of the Salvation Army, the Midland Chamber of Commerce Board.

Texas American Bank/Midland is the third largest bank in Midland and is a member of Texas American Bancshares Inc. with total assets of $5.4 billion and 32 member banks across the state. As of Jun 30, 1984, Texas American Bank/Midland recorded total assets of $156 million and total deposits of $145 million.

BUSINESS BRIEFS

U.S. sees increase in iron and steel scrap

WASHINGTON — The United States has a record amount of iron and steel scrap — almost 744 million tons — available for recycling, according to a new study made for the scrap processing industry. The level represents an increase of about 60 million tons, or more than 8.7 percent over the 684 million tons measured two years ago.

Texas, along with three other states in the west-south central census region, accounted for 124 million tons of the record scrap amount, or 16.7 percent of the national supply.

Revenue passenger miles up for Muse Air

DALLAS — Muse Air Corp. has announced that the company's 1984 year-to-date revenue passenger miles (RPMs) increased 57 percent over the same period last year. July's monthly load factor was 51.6 percent.

The airline also announced that it was introducing a new mileage-based fare structure on its short-haul routes, and the expanded use of capacity-controlled fares on its long-haul routes, effective September 15.

Radio Shack offers PC Maker program free

FORT WORTH — In response to the growing interest in software compatibility, Radio Shack is now offering the PC Maker program free of charge to owners of the MS-DOS based Tandy TRS-80 Model 2000 computer. PC Maker is a utility which facilitates the exchange of data files between the Tandy 2000 and other MS-DOS or PC-DOS based systems such as IBM PC, TI Professional, or COMPAQ computers.

Southwest Airlines flies 438.7 million RPM's

DALLAS — Southwest Airlines flew 438.7 million revenue passenger miles (RPM's) during July, an increase of 23 percent over July, 1983 and a record for the company. Passengers boarded in July increased 14.9 percent to 978,171, while the average length of a passenger trip increased by 6.9 percent to 448 miles, both also company records. Load factor for the month was 60.6 percent compared to the 67.3 percent recorded in July of 1983.

Investment firms busy after record trading

IRVING — Investor enthusiasm over last Thursday's and Friday's record breaking volumes on Wall Street created floods of activity this week for the nation's major investment houses. During July, Fidelity Texas Co., a leading southwestern mutual fund company, averaged 5,000 investor phone calls daily. That number jumped to 12,000 last Friday and 18,000 by close of business on Monday, as investors responded to the market upswing. Fidelity Texas Co. is the southwestern subsidiary of the nation's largest privately held investment services company, $22 billion Fidelity Investments.

Home builders call for consistant tax policy

WASHINGTON — The United States needs a "consistent tax policy which reaffirms national commitment to affordable, quality housing — both for homeownership and for rental housing," according to the National Association of Home Builders.

Pete Herder, president of NAHB and a home builder from Tucson, Arizona, told the Senate Finance Committee considering tax reforms that changes in tax incentives related to housing and housing finance will impact millions of renters and potential homebuyers so "tax revision should not be viewed in isolation from its implications for housing."

World trade in steel industry sees increase

WASHINGTON — Almost all of the 50 countries which shipped steel to the United States in the first half of this year increased their exports substantially over the same period of 1983, the American Iron and Steel Institute reported.

The result of these increases was that U.S. imports in the half-year were 12.5 million net tons, the largest six month total on record.

Imports from Japan were up 84 percent, from the EEC up 50 percent, from Canada up 52 percent, and from all other countries (principally the "developing nations") up 91 percent. The total for all countries was up 73 percent over the first half of 1983.

Former cabinet member appointed to chair

AUSTIN — G. William Miller, former Federal Reserve Board chairman and Secretary of the Treasury in the Carter Administration, has been appointed to hold the Lloyd M. Bentsen Jr. chair in government/business relations for the fall semester at The University of Texas.

As the initial holder of the Bentsen chair, Miller will teach a course on political economy dealing with current issues in international economics and financial policy.

Florists approach half-billion dollar mark

MONTREAL — Florists' Transworld Delivery Association (FTD), the 21,000-member florist delivery cooperative, has reported that its annual sales are approaching the half-billion dollar mark and should pass that milestone in 1985, when the organization celebrates its 75th anniversary.

Rouse Company sells stock for $50 million

NEW YORK — The Rouse Company and PaineWebber Group Inc., have jointly announced that the two companies have executed a stock purchase agreement whereby PaineWebber will acquire all the stock of Rouse Real Estate Finance Inc. (RREF), a unit of The Rouse Company, for $50.5 million. The transaction is subject to approval by regulating agencies. The acquisition is expected to be completed by September 30, 1984. RREF is the mortgage banking subsidiary of the The Rouse Company and services a loan portfolio in excess of $2.2 billion.

RepublicBank economist sees inflation fears

DALLAS — Even though inflation has virtually ground to a halt in the United States, many Americans apparently are not confident it will stay that way, says RepublicBank Corporation's chief economist, William E. Gibson, Ph.D.

However, their fears are not well grounded, he says, and this anticipated inflation is hurting some sectors of the economy.

Inflation rates may drift into the 5-6 percent range later this year, but upcoming rates will not be high enough to distort the economy or to produce a policy response that would end the recovery next year.

Sheraton opens new hotel in San Angelo

SAN ANGELO — The Sheraton San Angelo, located at 441 Rio Concho Drive in San Angelo, has opened, it was announced by Joseph A. McInerney, president of Sheraton Inns Inc., international franchise division of The Sheraton Corporation, and William E. Schulte, managing director of Shermatex Partners Limited, owners of the hotel. GSF Management Corp. operates the new hotel along with the Sheraton Inn Sherman (TX) and will also operate two other Sheraton hotels under construction in Texas in Denton and Arlington. Situated on 5.6 acres in downtown San Angelo, the modern, six-story Sheraton San Angelo is adjacent to the convention center.

Billion dollar pact cuts fuel costs

HOUSTON (AP) — Houston Lighting & Power reached a $1.3 billion agreement to buy excess power from Diamond Shamrock in a move that HL&P claims will stabilize consumers' fuel costs, company officials said.

The 10-year co-generation pact will provide the first guarantee on the amount of power the HL&P will receive, HL&P chairman Don Jordan said in a news conference Wednesday.

Under the agreement, effective immediately, the utility will buy 225 megawatts of electricity generated at a Diamond Shamrock chemcial plant in Deer Park, a Houston suburb, Jordon said.

Jordan said the pact will save HL&P money by allowing the utility to buy power at prices far cheaper than building and fueling a new plant.

The cost will be even lower because the charge is based on the cost of generating electricity at lignite-burning plants, a cheaper and more stable rate than that based on natural gas, Jordan said.

"This low-cost energy supply will help stabilize future costs for our customers," Jordan said. "Our company will realize a savings of $75 million over the next decade."

Jordan said the agreement will help supply the utility's 1984 energy needs, providing enough power for 25,000 homes.

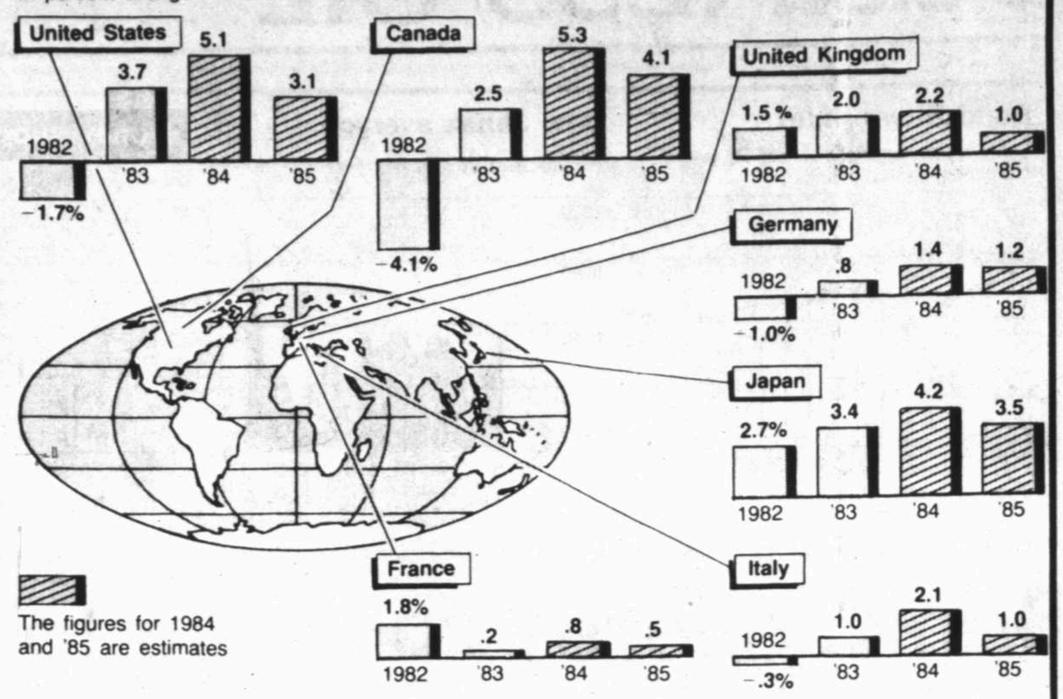

Phil Ricketts, chairman of the newly elected Public Utility Commission, said the contract "represents a significant breakthrough in the area of co-generation in Texas."

"Several years ago we learned that reliability on natural gas alone is not not desirable," Ricketts said.

Don Sykora, president and chief operating officer for the utility, said the Diamond Shamrock plant uses high-pressure steam that eventually is channeled through a turbine to generate electricity.

ODESSA — Employees of Getty Oil Company's Headlee, Texas, production area have completed one million hours of work without a lost-time injury.

W.L. Tinslar, Headlee area superintendent, said the area's 88 employees have not experienced a disabling injury since December 14, 1978. "Getty employees in the Headlee area are proud of this accomplishment," Tinslar said. "The safety record at Headlee reflects the concern and conscious effort on the part of all employees in getting the job done safely."

Headlee area personnel were recognized for their achievement at a recent luncheon ceremony held in Odessa. Walter A. Frnka, district production manager, Larry Hall, operations superintendent, and other officials from Getty's Midland district office attended the meeting.

Chandelier incident sheds light on use of tax credits

By JIM LUTHER Tax Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — A debate over whether the chandeliers in Shoney's restaurants throughout the South are permanent fixtures is another example of how giving a special benefit makes the tax code more complicated.

The law allows a tax credit of up to 10 percent for machinery and equipment — but not buildings — bought for use in business. Shoney's bought lanterns and chandeliers that cost up to $3,500 apiece and claimed the credit, saying the lights were used more for enhancing the atmosphere than for giving light. The IRS denied the credit, viewing the lights as integral parts of the buildings' lighting systems and, therefore, structural components of the buildings.

When Shoney's appealed to Tax Court, the IRS sent a civil engineer to the restaurants; he concluded the chandeliers were structural components on grounds they provided about half the available light in the dining rooms.

The Tax Court had the final word last week, siding with Shoney's. The court found the lights were accessories to the business, rather than components, and that since they were designed to be disassembled and moved if necessary, they were property qualifying for the tax credit.

Navy stops F-18 orders over metal defects

By RALPH VARTABEDIAN

Washington Post News Service

LOS ANGELES — The Navy told McDonnell Douglas Corp. Monday that it has stopped accepting deliveries of the company's F-18 jets because of metal cracks in portions of the jet that are manufactured by Northrop Corp.

Inspections by the Navy of about 100 F-18 aircraft in recent weeks found that cracks have developed in about one-half of F-18 tail assemblies, prompting the Navy to undertake a quick program to modify the F-18 air frame.

St. Louis-based McDonnell Douglas and Los Angeles-based Northrop both declined to discuss how much liability they may have for repairs and modifications of F-18s, but the Navy is expected to seek payment for the work from the contractors.

"The Navy position is that the (repairs) are part of the aircraft warranty and that they should be handled within the warranty," a Navy spokesman said.

A McDonnell Douglas spokesman acknowledged that the F-18 airframe is warranted by the company. It also is believed that Northrop has a similar warranty on its portion of the aircraft.

"We are making whatever changes need to be made on the airplanes," a Northrop spokesman said. "Everything else is secondary and will be addressed in later discussions."

High interest rates slow home building

WASHINGTON — Despite slight increases in housing activity over the past month, housing indicators published by the National Association of Home Builders continued to edge downward, largely in response to rising interest rates.

"We can be fairly optimistic about housing this year, although we would not be surprised to see a drop-off in activity this fall," said NAHB President Pete Herder. "But over the longer-term, high interest rates are devastating to the American home builder and the American home buyer."

Herder said that mortgage revenue bonds restored by Congress this summer would help to offset higher rates for moderate-income home buyers, funding as many as 100,000 new single-family homes this year.

NAHB's Builder composite index of leading housing indicators declined in June for the fourth consecutive month, reaching its lowest point since January, 1983, when the current housing recovery was just getting underway.

The Builder index, created for Builder Magazine by NAHB's Economics Division, is a monthly composite of seven major housing variables.

The index dropped from 77 in Ma to 74.8 in June, down from 83.38 percent last August. The index bottomed out at 40.92 in December, 1981, and reached a peak of 102.33 in May, 1978.

A substantial increase in mortgage rates and a decline in builder expectations and traffic through new subdivisions were the principal causes of a further index decline. The average commitment rate on fixed-rate Ginnie Mae mortgages climbed from 13.8 percent in Ma to 14.4 percent in June.

NAHB also recorded a drop in its Housing Affordability Index, from 81.9 in this year's first quarter to 79.6 in the second quarter, despite gains in family income. Chiefly to blame were higher mortgage rates and rising home prices. The median price of a new home climbed from $78,100 in the first quarter to $79,600 in the second quarter.

Although new home sales rose slightly in June to a seasonally adjusted rate of 620,000, the unsold inventory of homes rose from a 6.6 month to a 6.8 month supply. This was the highest unsold inventory since August, 1982.

Seat belt defect leads to recall

DETROIT (AP) — Ford Motor Co says it will recall 361,900 1981-84 model cars with non-reclining front seats because of the potential for seat-belt damage during front-end crashes.

The recall involves 360,000 1981-83 Escort and Lynx four-door sedans and station wagons and 1,900 1984 Tempo and Topaz four-door sedans, Ford said Monday in a statement.

Seat belt webbing in cars with non-reclining front seats could come in contact with plastic trim covers on the sides of the front seats during high-speed, front-end accidents, the statement said.

Texas A&M tech students offered jobs with bonuses

COLLEGE STATION, Texas (AP) — Employers are offering bonuses to senior industrial distribution students at Texas A&M University in an effort to attract high quality graduates into the field, a professor says.

But students who accept jobs with bonuses are thinking about more than just money, said Mike Workman, an assistant professor of engineering technology at Texas A&M.

"Most said the cash was nice," Workman said, "but that they based their decisions on where they'd be in five to 10 years."

Workman said employers in small, independent firms offer the bonuses to ensure that their companies get the best graduates available.

"Last December's class was the first to receive such offers," Workman said. "We think it is probably unique."

The Texas A&M industrial distribution program, which recently celebrated its 25th anniversary, is the largest of its kind in the nation, university officials say. About 140 students graduate from the program each year, more than most of other such programs combined.

About 30 percent of the graduates go to work for distributors nationwide, selling everything from oil field equipment to computer components and automated manufacturing systems, Workman said.

About 30 percent more go to work for manufacturers who sell through distributors and another 13 percent go to work for manufacturers' representatives, he said.

"There have probably been 40 other companies who have contacted us since May graduation just to see if anybody was left," Workman said.

During the recent recession, job offers stayed high, and all May graduates were placed into jobs, Workman said.

"Several years ago, our graduates were getting seven to eight job offers each," Workman said, but now they get three to five offers each from companies that recruit at the university.

"We think that's still pretty tremendous," he said.

Blalock Lake well completes for 504 bopd

By JOHN PAUL PITTS
Business-Oil Editor

The Blalock Lake SE (Wolfcamp) field has given up yet another "sweet" spot with completion of the TEXACO INC. No.1 Glasscock "N".

The well pumped 504 bopd of 42.3 API crude with 593 Mcfd of gas and 308 bwpd with a gas/oil ratio of 1177:1.

Drilled to a TD of 8,370 ft. and plugged back to 8,353 ft. the strong producer was completed in perforations from 8,283 ft. to 8,828 ft. following stimulation with 500 gal. 15 percent acid.

The field well is located 1,477 ft. from south line and 488 ft. from west line of Section 37, Block 35, T-3-S, T&P survey, 6 miles west of Garden City.

Strong well finaled

NEW EXPLORATION, Midland, has completed a significant Spraberry producer in Midland County.

The firm's No.1 Mario potentialed pumping 122 bopd of 43 API gravity crude with 156 Mcfd gas and 76.8 bwpd.

Drilled to a total depth of 9,210 ft. and plugged back to 9,151 ft., it was completed in perforations from 7,221 to 9,072, following stimulatin with 6,000 gal. 15 percent HCl and fracturing with 130,000 gal. fluid.

On a ground elevation of 2,686 ft., formation tops were set at 3,749 ft. for the Grayburg; 4,052 ft. on the San Andres; 7,215 for the upper Spraberry top and 7,860 for the lower; 8,564 on top of the Dean and 8,738 at the Wolfcamp.

Location is 698 ft. from north and 660 ft. from east line of Section 14, Block 37, T-2-S, T&P survey, 9 miles east of Midland.

Firms unaware of plight of service industry

HOUSTON — Oil company drilling managers are unaware of the financial difficulties directional drilling and survey service companies now face, according to a survey conducted by Warlick & Associates Inc., the Houston-based oilfield marketing research firm.

While oil company earnings since 1982 have shown steady improvement, five major service companies who are leaders in directional and survey services posted a 151 percent drop in drilling — related 1983 earnings.

Although directional and survey services are being sold at discounts of 20-50 percent off 1981 prices, most drilling managers think that service companies are profitable, the survey showed.

To determine oil company perceptions of the financial health of the directional and survey services industry, Warlick & Associates interviewed 124 land-based and offshore operators, including drilling superintendents, drilling managers, operations managers, drilling engineers, and operations vice presidents.

Stock market loses

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market gave ground today, continuing the sluggish trend that set in at the start of the week.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials slipped 3.86 to 1,210.25 by noontime on Wall Street.

Losers outnumbered gainers by about 7 to 5 among New York Stock Exchange-listed issues.

Analysts said investors' enthusiasm for stocks had cooled a bit in recent days after the dramatic rally that took place early this month.

Cotton

NEW YORK (AP) — Cotton futures No. 2 were mixed at mid-day dealings today.

The average price for strict low mid- dling 1 & 1-16 inch spot cotton advanced 20 points to 62.50 cents a pound Tuesday for the eight markets, according to the New York Cotton Exchange.

Midday prices were 10 cents a bale higher to $1.65 lower than previous close. Oct 65.45, Dec 66.25, Mar 67.92, May 69.00, Jul b69.70, Oct b69.70, Dec b70.40.

INVESTOR'S GUIDE

'Bucketing' rare today

By BILL DOYLE

Q. Something has been bothering me about some stock I sold. I telephoned a broker, who sold the stock for me at 40 ⅜ and charged a commission. The stock is listed on the New York Stock Exchange and newspaper stock tables showed it closed at 42½ on both the day before I sold it and the day I sold it.

I couldn't understand why I got only 40 ⅜ when the stock was at 42½. When I asked the broker, he said, "We sell or buy at the price at the time of sale or purchase — not what the stock closes at."

Did he pocket the difference between 40 ⅜ and 42½?

A. What you are suggesting is called "bucketing" — a thoroughly illegal practice and one virtually wiped out because brokerage firms are audited by the stock exchanges of which they are members, the National Association of Securities Dealers and the Securities and Exchange Commission.

Of course, it would be naive to believe no "bucket shops" exist. However, any broker caught bucketing would be in big trouble

Playwright remembers 'dark' life

Los Angeles Times- Washington Post News Service

NEW YORK — Michelle Morris remained silent, her emotions kept close to herself. The only clues showed in her eyes: pained, peculiarly calm, seeming to see and remember too much.

The playwright wanted to confront the terrifying memories in private. It would be three more days before her play would begin previewing at the small off-Broadway Perry Street Theater, but she wanted to see the set without actors, without audiences. Near the wood scaffolding that resembled a gallows, past the catwalks that flanked the set, she stopped to stare at the main props for her play, "Carla's Song" — a red rose on a bench, a dinner table set for two, an overstuffed chair where the father in the play would sit fondling his teenage daughter just before he took her upstairs to his bed.

A little later, in a Greenwich Village cafe a few blocks away, Morris was a different woman — the picture of open vivacity and sociological detachment, talking rapidly, at times with the awe of someone who has made it to New York with her very first play.

"No one wants to talk about incest and sexual abuse," she said. "They don't dare face the truth; the truth is too horrendous and closer to home than they want to believe. The taboo is not that it's happening. Yes, even in the best of homes. The taboo is that the victims aren't supposed to talk about it."

Her play, of course, is Morris' attempt to help break that "silence of incest." She's not the first author to use the stage as a platform for both societal indictment and personal exorcism. "Of course, this play is a form of catharsis for me — for a lot of other people."

Morris, now 42, was sexually abused as a teen-aged girl. Unlike the Carla Hughes of the play (based on her 1982 first novel), Morris wasn't a victim of incest, but she said she had suffered a similar pattern of self-destructiveness and sexual servitude and from feelings that abusive attitudes by men were the norm of society.

"I didn't want to go public about my own experience. I figured, 'Why risk the public exposure?' My life has been calm now for years." Divorced in her 20s, she has been married for 10 years to businessman Larry Kerin. "No one but my family and Larry knew, not even my therapists." A touch of anger showed.

"But that is the problem — the terrible secrecy. How could I tell others to speak out? How could I hide any longer? No matter what the pain, no matter the risks."

Incest is still considered by most people as unfit for discussion in polite company, let alone as a theme for the commercial stage. "But here we are, doing this play, this subject," said Morris, her eyes in mock disbelief. "Tell me, are we crazy?"

Her producers, John Glines and Lawrence Lane, are best known for showcasing gay-oriented works — they presented the original off-Broadway production of Harvey Fierstein's Tony Award-winning "Torch Song Trilogy."

A year ago, they had not heard of Morris or her play.

Friends referred the Morris work to Glines and Lane. "We felt it could be made stageworthy for New York," Glines explained. "The original play was too rudimentary; we felt we should go back to the book. It's strong drama, but, frankly, a subject that's not exactly in theatrical vogue."

After 3 1-2 weeks of previews, "Carla's Song" opened July 25 to less than rave reviews.

For now, the play is scheduled to run at least three more weeks at the Perry Street, possibly extending into mid-September. "This weekend is crucial for us — whether the (general) public is going to buy this kind of play," said Glines. "Our aim is still Broadway. But no one can predict these things. I expect people will either love our play or hate it."

The morning after the first preview performance, sitting in a sunlit den in her Brooklyn Heights apartment, Morris reflected, "It's not as bad for me anymore. I'm older, I've had the chance to cope with it longer. But the feelings never really go away."

Her childhood in Los Angeles, she said, was an emotionally tumultuous one — a period she still talks little about publicly. "Let's just say I was real incorrigible at school, my self-esteem just didn't exist, I had a lot of self-destructiveness in me then."

The awareness of sexual abuse came later.

A memory. Still numbing, no matter how Morris tried to tell it with clinical detachment: "I got this job to sit for four little kids in the same working-class neighborhood. I was 15 then.

"Their father — I had never met him — came by to drive me over. He started to pay me weird compliments. Then in the house he undressed himself, telling me all sorts of kinky things to do to him.

"I couldn't move, I couldn't talk, I was like a statue. And I wouldn't do what he asked. He got mad, then he tried to sweet-talk me. He brought down his 4-year-old son, and right in front of me, he molested that kid. He was sick; he thought doing that would turn me on.

"I didn't try to run away. He was a big, heavy man. He stood there swearing at me, telling me what he'd do to me if I didn't comply. It was like having a gun pointed at you.

Midler will 'hop, slither' on HBO

By FRED ROTHENBERG
Television Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Delores de Lago and her back-up group, all decked out in the latest in flippered mermaid costumes, belt out "We Are Family" and "I Will Survive" while zipping around in unison in motorized wheelchairs.

This unique choreography is interrupted only when Miss de Lago and her troupe disembark to hop, slither — and even sing — on the stage. But the music, which includes "Hold That Tiger" on the accordion, is incidental to the act.

Miss de Lago is really the divine Bette Midler, never ever to be confused with Frank Sinatra crooning at the local supper club, who brings her stylized and studied outrageousness to Home Box Office this Saturday night and four other times this month in "Bette Midler: Art or Bust!"

Filmed at two performances at the University of Minnesota on Miss Midler's 1982-83 nationwide De Tour, this hour-long program is more an elongated music video than a concert.

According to the credits, this extravagant entertainment was "dreamed up and written down" by Miss Midler, among others. Clearly it has her imprint: bizarre costumes, unusual dance sequences and an anti-technology theme that may get by most viewers.

The only reason it was picked up here was that Miss Midler explained her intentions at a recent press conference. "The synthesizer has put some musicians out of business, and I see this frustration," she said. "People talk about floppy disks, and I can't even plug in the toaster.

"This (program) is a reaction to that, kind of showing how we're overwhelmed by that. People have forgotten about the important thing — the song, the humanity."

Sadly, Miss Midler has also forgotten about the song in "Art or Bust!" The visuals, including clever animations and shockingly freakish get-ups, can be entertaining and amusing. The mermaids in wheelchairs are especially inspired.

But there's hardly anything in the hour worth humming.

"Art or Bust!" succeeds as visual art; Miss Midler's creativity can be saluted. But it fails as music, almost appearing as if Miss Midler's songs aren't good enough, so every number requires an elaborate visual track that, at times, is fun but, other times, is excessive and distracting.

Only at the very end, when Miss Midler is singing "The Rose" from her hit movie, does she perform without an outlandish prop or costume. And even in this number she's obscured most of the time by the closing credits.

At the beginning of the hour, it's immediately evident this is not a conventional concert. Miss Midler comes sashaying out in a red triangular cape with space-age angled shoulders. Backed by the Harlettes in red, yellow and blue wigs, she looks as if she's been sewn into an enormous throw pillow.

The Mick Jagger of female entertainers, Miss Midler enjoys strutting and posturing on stage, and she ends her first number, "Pink Cadillac," by sliding on her backside in a split. "There's nothing I won't do for my art," she says with a huge smile. She certainly seems to be enjoying herself.

"With all the drag queens coming up," she said at the press conference, an apparent reference to pop singer Boy George, "it's harder to be outrageous."

Early on, there's the usual assortment of Miss Midler's self-deprecating anatomical remarks. While she sings "Pretty Legs and Big Knockers," huge breast-shaped balloons descend to the stage.

Those might go over big at a party, as would some of her Halloween outfits, including one that resembles Darth Vader from "Star Wars" and another straight from a Mardi Gras parade.

She'd also cause a stir on the dance floor. When she does "My Eye On You," her movements resemble the kind of signals a cop might make at a busy intersection in rush hour.

The last 20 minutes has what Miss Midler calls "a serious section," and it offers the only emotion-tinged music. While sweetly singing "Everyone's Gone to the Moon," she's twirling what appears to be a hula hoop.

"Art or Bust" makes for fine viewing, but not fine listening. Maybe audiences should watch Miss Midler's eccentric antics with the volume turned down.

If you think that deciding whether or not to finesse, or indeed which finesse to take, is a relatively simple matter, here's an easy way to disabuse yourself of that notion: buy H.W. Kelsey's "Test Your Finessing" (Gollancz, paperback, 80 pp. Available from The Bridge World, 39 W. 94th St., New York, N.Y. 10025, $6 postpaid). There are 36 problems involving the many aspects of finessing. Regardless of any prior conceptions, this little book will convince you that finessing is an art.

To view this problem as it appears in the book, cover the East-West hands with your thumbs and decide how you would pay three no trump after West's lead of the 10 of spades, covered by dummy's jack and East's queen. Don't let the bidding disturb you—it is based on English methods that include a weak no trump opening bid. But, by and large, the bidding plays little part in the problems.

First, don't duck the spade—a club shift might prove embarrassing. You have five tricks outside diamonds, so you need four tricks from that suit. If it divides 3-2, you always make four tricks so long as West has one of the missing honors. But what if it splits 4-1? Do you take a first-round finesse of the 10? Of the queen? Or do you cash the ace and return to your hand to lead up to the queen-10?

If East has a low singleton, either finesse wins (if the queen holds, you return to hand and lead another diamond, ducking if West produces an honor). If East has a singleton king, West's spot cards will force you to lose two diamond tricks no matter which finesse you take. But if East has the singleton jack, the finesse of the queen allows you make four tricks in the suit. That play is better than cashing the ace because, if diamonds break 3-2, you won't know what to do on the second diamond lead if West produces a low card.

Rubber bridge clubs throughout the country use the four-deal bridge format. Do they know something you don't? Charles Goren's "Four-Deal Bridge" will teach you the strategies and tactics of this fast-paced action game that provides the cure for unending rubbers. THE BETTER HALF "Of course Phil Donahue is more sensitive and open-minde than I am! HE'S getting paid for it!"

Your horoscope

By JEANE DIXON

Thursday, August 16, 1984

YOUR BIRTHDAY TODAY: Phillies ace reliever Al Holland, actress Lesley Ann Warren, Israel's Menachem Begin, Atlanta Braves' Mike Jorgeson, singer Eydie Gorme and actor Robert Culp celebrate birthdays today. Also born on this date: legendary football coach Amos Alonzo Stagg and labor chief George Meany. Temper your powerful ambition with tact and there will be no mountain too high for you to climb. Your personal relationships are less tense now. Confide in those closest to your heart. Look for new outlets for your artistic talents. You are much more gifted than you realize.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Work on your own today to avert or minimize a clash. Do not share secrets with someone who tries to pry. A budget revision relieves a financial strain. Perform more services for yourself.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Recent trends make this an excellent time for you to move ahead with your financial plans. A newcomer adds glamor to our social life. Keep any diet or exercise resolutions.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): A creative or artistic project could sent profits soaring. Excercise greater patience with a difficult member of the opposite sex. Diplomacy works wonders! An unexpected check buoys your spirits.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Postpone taking any action involving jointly held funds. Mate or partner's attitude could confuse you until you learn his/her reasons. Concentrate on routine tasks. Self-improvement projects enjoy favorable influences.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Clear away routine tasks before starting a new project. People at a distance could be difficult to handle. Telephone signing contracts and documents. Socializing is enjoyable late in the day.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): An excellent day for taking care of work and business matters. Be alert to a friend's ulterior motives. Your relations with a member of the opposite sex may be sensitive. Use more tact.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Get contracts signed today. Your writing skills help you land an important client. A special hobby brings you great pleasure and satisfaction. Pay more attention to loved one's needs.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): A happy day for affairs of the heart. Exercise more caution where your finances are concerned. Keep your valuables under lock and key. An afternoon or evening social outing proves stimulating.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Protect your resources. A legal matter is likely to be settled in your favor. Ignore any rumors circulating among your co-workers. A recent gamble could bear fruit. Relax at home this evening.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): People at a distance can be helpful to your artistic pursuits. To reduce costly travel, make better use of the phone and mail. Employ more tact when dealing with your loved ones.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Pull out all stops on a creative project. A new agent could help you find greater success. A phone call or letter you receive in late afternoon sends your spirits soaring.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Take care of routine tasks early in the day. A secret wish has an excellent chance of coming true. A great day for writers and artists. Influential person helps cement a lucrative alliance.

WORLD IN BRIEF

U.S. combating pirates in Gulf

BANGKOK, Thailand (AP) — A U.S. State Department official flew to southern Thailand today to discuss measures to combat pirates in the Gulf of Thailand, a U.S. Embassy spokesman said.

The spokesman said John Monjo, U.S. deputy assistant secretary of state for east Asia and Pacific affairs, flew to the coastal city of Songkhla, the headquarters for Thailand's anti-pirate patrols.

The United States is one of 12 countries helping to fund the Thai effort in the gulf, where sea marauders have in recent years preyed on fisherman and Vietnamese "boat people" refugees.

Britain resuming Salvadoran aid

LONDON (AP) — Britain says it is resuming civilian aid to El Salvador after a five-year break.

The government's Overseas Development Administration also said in a statement Tuesday that Salvadorans were likely to come to Britain under a technical cooperation program.

Britain's offer of 100,000 pounds ($130,000) to buy supplies came a month after Salvadoran President Jose Napoleon Duarte visited Britain, West Germany, France, Belgium and Portugal. He met with Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher during the trip.

Britain halted aid to El Salvador in 1979 after a wave of unrest that included the kidnappings of two British bank executives.

Troops, equipment to aid Siberia

MOSCOW (AP) — Troops and heavy equipment reportedly have been assigned to evacuate people and strengthen dams and earthworks in parts of southeast Siberia flooded by weeks of heavy rain.

The government newspaper Izvestia did not give the number of people evacuated, but said in article Tuesday there had been no deaths from flooding on the Zeya and Amur rivers. Butit was apparent from some passages of the newspaper report that populated areas are downstream from the threatened dams.

Izvestia said sections of the two rivers were 10 feet above flood stage after six weeks of torrential rains.

It said 60,000 head of cattle, 20,000 pigs and more than 20,000 cubic yards of timber had been salvaged by the troops.

Peasant leader's death probed

LIMA, Peru (AP) — The government and military have opened an investigation into the case of a peasant leader found slain several days after being arrested.

Interior Minister Luis Percovich called the mutilation death of Jesus Oropesa "lamentable" and said seven civil guards had been arrested in the case.

The joint command of the armed forces in Lima said Tuesday that an investigation of Oropesa's arrest and death would be coordinated with the Interior Ministry.

The announcement was the first acknowledgment by the government and military of possible human rights abuses in south central Peru's guerrilla warfare area. The attorney general's office has received more than 800 complaints by relatives of people who have disappeared during the war against the Maoist guerrilla group Shining Path.

Oropesa's family said he was arrested in Puquio, 360 miles southeast of Lima, on July 27 when he voluntarily went to the police station to deny reports that he was associated with the guerrillas.Oropesa's burned and mutilated body was found Aug. 10.

Trawler catches submarine in net

LONDON (AP) — A British trawler was dragged backwards and in circles for three hours after it caught a submarine in its net in international waters 10 miles off England's southwest coast.

The 50-foot, 34-ton trawler Joanne C finally cut itself free Tuesday, ending up two miles from the point where the trouble began.

There was speculation the sub was from a Soviet bloc navy, but a British spokesman said it might be a NATO vessel.

The domestic news agency Press Association quoted a naval observer, whom it did not identify, as saying "the only logical conclusion" was that the submarine belonged to a Communist country.

Nations want fairer trade system

BUENOS AIRES, Argentina (AP) — Latin and Caribbean nations are drafting a declaration that accuses the industrialized world of recovering from recession at the expense of poor countries.

The measure was being worked on Tuesday by delegates attending a regional conference of the U.N. Food and Agricultural Organization.

The Associated Press obtained a copy of a draft document, which says: "This economic recuperation of the industrialized nations has been successful at the expense of the interest of developing nations."It calls for a fairer world trade system to give Third World nations a better chance at competing in the international market.

Agricultural ministers from 33 countries are attending the conference. They and FAO officials have denounced what they call protectionist policies of industrialized nations and the insistence of foreign banks that Latin countries dedicate vast portions of their income to meeting huge debt payments.

Latin America's total foreign debt is estimated at $350 billion, and U.N. officials say 53 percent of its export income goes toward debt payments.

Japan marks anniversary of end of World War II

TOKYO (AP) — Emperor Hirohito, the last surviving national leader from World War II, mourned Japan's 3 million war dead and prayed for peace in ceremonies today marking the 39th anniversary of the end of the war.

"My heart is filled with pain even today when I think of many of those who fell in the ranks of the last great war and their survivors," he said. Now 83, Hirohito was frail and walked hesitantly, but spoke in firm voice.

About 6,500 people, many in their 70s, who lost family members in the war and 1,000 dignitaries gathered in the annual ceremonies to mourn the war dead at Tokyo's Nippon Budokan Hall.

At the same time, opponents of the government's defense buildup and close military ties with the United States, Japan's former enemy, sounded warnings that Japan may forget the mistakes of the past.

At the stroke of noon Hirohito, once worshipped as a deity and embraced by Japan's militarists, led the assembly in one minute of silent prayer for the war dead.

Exactly 39 years before, Hirohito had spoken directly to the nation for the first time in a radio broadcast, calling on the war-shattered nation to lay down its arms and surrender. The date — Aug. 15 — became Victory-over-Japan Day in the United States.

The moment of silence was observed at rail stations, city halls and other public facilities around the country, and at the nationally televised high school baseball championships in Osaka.

Speaking for the bereaved families; Sadako Nanba, 73, year-old widow of an Imperial Army master sergeant, said "Our sorrow will never end...but overcoming any hardships, we vow to make utmost efforts to maintain peace and freedom in our country and contribute to peace in the world."
