New Football Coach Outlines Plans For 1964

The 1964 edition of the Pirate football team will be the product of a new head football coach, John Outlaw Baker III, who has been connected with Aransas County schools during the past two years as assistant football coach and teacher of history.

Prior to teaching here, Baker was first assistant football coach at Pepperdine College in Los Angeles, Calif., for two years.

A native of Taylor, Texas, Baker earned four high school varsity football letters there, and was named captain of the Taylor team in his senior year. He was named to the All-district football team for three years during his playing years, and was All-state selection in his senior year.

He also lettered in basketball, track, tennis, and baseball.

After gaining a freshman letter at Southern Methodist University, Baker transferred to Southwest Texas State College, where he lettered for three years and received All-conference honors in his senior year.

Baker, his wife Judy, and their two children, John, 4, and Jeannene, 2, live in West Terrace Addition. He is an Episcopalian, while his wife and children are members of the Methodist Church. Mrs. Baker is the former Judy Appleby of Clifton, Texas.

Baker is a member of the Texas State Teachers' Association, the National Educators Association and the Texas Coaches Association.

When quizzed about his plans for the coming season, Baker said: "Any time you make a personnel change, it automatically means some changes in your program. Coaches coach according to their own methods and we definitely will do some things differently from the past."

Baker said he hopes to teach his players a simple philosophy of respect, loyalty and sincerity.

He said the football program will get under way around Aug. 16, with the first game at Ingleside on Sept. 4, 1964.

He was elevated to the post of head coach last week, succeeding Dave Segler, who moved up to director of athletics and physical education.

Oregon Continues Investigations Off Texas Coast

The U. S. Fish and Wildlife Service vessel Oregon returned to Pascagoula, Miss. this month after 24 days spent in testing the offshore fisheries along the Texas coast, according to Harvey R. Bullis, Jr., director of research for the South Atlantic and Gulf fisheries.

The principal objectives of the cruise were to obtain additional information on the abundance of brown shrimp, pink shrimp, white shrimp and royal red shrimp, and to investigate the off-season menhaden resources in the northwestern Gulf.

Inshore shrimp catches of shrimp were light, with 30 drags in water of four to 50 fathoms producing 86 pounds of brownies, seven and one-half pounds of pinks, and 35½ pounds of white shrimp. Brown shrimp were common in depths of 17 to 32 fathoms, pinks in depths of 12 fathoms, and whites at nine fathoms.

Bullis said red shrimp were also caught in small quantities between 200 and 300 fathoms, where the bottom temperature ranged from 46.1° to 51.3°. Thirty drags produced 87 pounds of this species.

Three-Way Wreck Occurs Sunday At End of Causeway

In an accident about 2:45 Sunday afternoon at the north end of Copano Causeway, three cars were damaged and seven people injured, though none seriously.

According to investigating officers, a 1963 Chevrolet driven by Alfred Stainton, 72, of Amherstburg, Ontario, Canada, collided with a 1960 Falcon driven by Guy Meenan Lipscomb, 55, of Galveston, and, in turn, Lipscomb's car was struck from behind by a 1961 Ford driven by Billy Guy Cantrell, 37, of Corpus Christi.

Cantrell was by himself, but Stainton had his wife Doris and Mr. and Mrs. Merton Hoffman, of Nashville, Mich., as passengers when he left the fishing grounds below the end of the bridge and pulled on to Highway 35 in front of the car driven by Lipscomb, who, unable to avert the collision, struck the Stainton car almost broadside on.

Stainton's passengers and Stainton were shook up and suffered minor injuries but after being treated at Memorial Hospital in Corpus Christi were released.

Worst injury of the afternoon was suffered by Miss Maureen Hall, also of Galveston, who was riding with Lipscomb. Thrown forward against the windshield she suffered bruises, lacerations and cuts, luckily none of them being serious.

Lipscomb and Cantrell also suffered minor injuries.

Highway patrolman Don Carr and Ray Brown investigated the accident along with the chief deputy Bob Hewes and deputy sheriff Joe Earl Hunt, of the Aransas County sheriff's department.

Library Receives Books From Baptist Congregation Here

Nineteen hundred and sixty-four is a year of Jubilee for the Baptists of North America. To commemorate this event the First Baptist Church of Rockport is placing in the Aransas County Library the two volume, "Encyclopedia of Southern Baptists."

The Encyclopedia is a summary of knowledge usually arranged alphabetically. In 4,349 articles 899 writers have presented in these two volumes a summary of knowledge of Southern Baptists. History, biography, statistics, and interpretation show who they believe, where they came from, and where they are going. The work is comprehensive, factual, and objective.

On May 22-24, 1964 twenty-two million Baptists will celebrate the 150th Anniversary of the first National organization of Baptists at a convention at Atlantic City, N. J. About 40,000 representatives of seven major Baptist conventions and their churches will convene for this three day celebration.

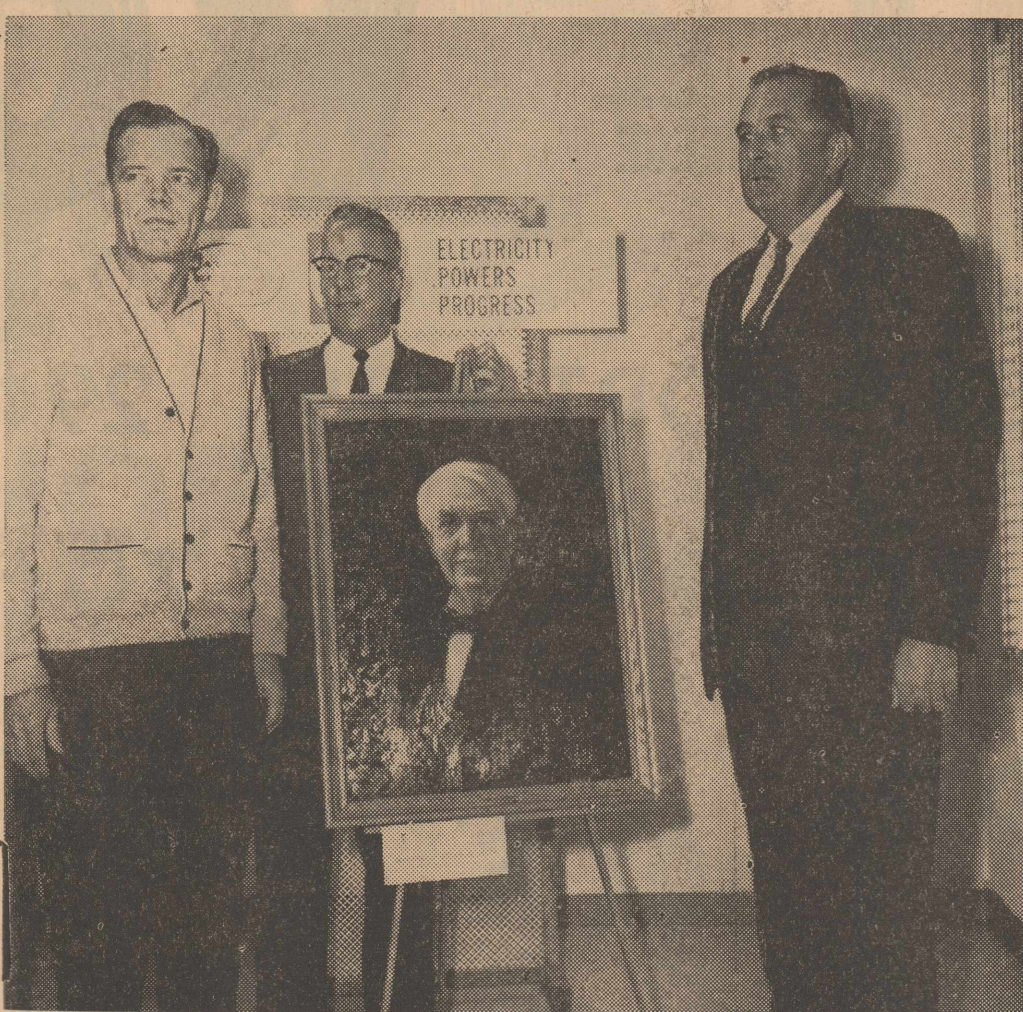

Odoniram Judson, his wife, and Luther Rice became the first missionaries from the New World to the Far East in 1812. Luther Rice returned from India and called the churches together in Philadelphia in 1814 to form the first national organization among Baptists in America, "The General Missionary Convention of the Baptist Denomination in the United States of America for Foreign Missions." This organization was to support missionaries and to act as a responsible national church body.

The members of the First Baptist Church are being asked to donate additional books that they have in their homes that would be suitable books for the library.

SHERIFF'S OFFICE WARNS AGAINST CARELESS FIRES

Chief Deputy Bob Hewes of the Aransas County sheriff's office, warned against carelessness with fires. Several bad grass fires have been set this way recently, and unless people are more careful, he said, some punitive action will be necessary.

New Scholarship Established By Central Power

A new $1,000 scholarship in electrical power technology has been established by Central Power and Light Company at Del Mar Technical Institute in Corpus Christi, it was announced today by Everett Williams, dean of the institute.

The new scholarship will be available for the first time this fall. Applications are now being accepted for the fall term.

The CPL scholarship is payable at $250 a semester and may be continued throughout the normal two-year course if satisfactory standards are maintained.

To be considered for the scholarship, Williams said an applicant must meet all the entrance requirements of the Del Mar Technical Institute, have been a resident of the general area served by Central Power and Light Company for not less than three years, and be a graduate of a high school or junior college in that area.

All applicants must be of high moral character, maintain a scholastic record satisfactory to the Del Mar scholarship committee and follow the course prescribed by the institute for a major in electrical power technology.

The scholarship winner will be chosen by a committee selected by the Del Mar Technical Institute.

Application blanks for the new scholarship may be secured from high school principals in the area or by writing the Director of Engineering Technology, Del Mar Technical Institute, 101 Baldwin Boulevard, Corpus Christi, Texas. Applications for the fall semester must be received by June 1.

CPL also awards electrical engineering scholarships and one home economics scholarship annually at Texas A&I College, Kingsville.

Mr. Hissong says he has machinery in the Junior High schools of Seadrift, Port Lavaca, and Edna, where the Lapidary art is being taught.

Mr. and Mrs. Willie Wilson of Corpus Christi spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. J. H. May.

Hewes New Police Chief

Robert Hewes, now chief deputy under Sheriff Virginia Shivers of Aransas County, has resigned effective Feb. 29, and begins a new job, that of Rockport chief of police on March 1.

Hewes first came to Rockport as a member of the 813th AC&W Squadron when that organization was active and the radar station was operational at Aransas County Airport. He served as a member of the base police while with the air force.

Later, upon discharge, he entered law enforcement work in this area, and has served with the Aransas Police Department, with the Aransas County sheriff's force and with the San Patricio County sheriff's force.

He had served here under the late Sheriff A. C. Shivers, and returned last November to become Chief Deputy under the present sheriff, Mrs. Virginia Shivers, who won the post after her husband's untimely death.

The post of chief of police was left vacant by resignation of E. A. Stautzenberger, who resigned to run for sheriff, subject to the May 2 Democratic primaries.

Hewes had also filed for this race, but was ruled ineligible by the Democratic executive committee because he could not qualify as a resident of the county in time to enter the contest.

Hearing Held On Netting In Local Bays

In a hearing before Robert G. Mauermann, director of Region 5 for the Parks and Wildlife Commission, approximately 250 people crowded into the Aransas County District Courtroom Monday night, to express themselves about netting in Copano, Port and Aransas bays.

Opinions were plentiful, although hard facts were scarce, but the consensus among business men, real estate dealers, taxi operators, service station owners, subdivision developers and retired people was that fishing was bad in these bays and that netting had caused it.

In a show of hands asked for by Carl Krueger, Jr., head of a group of San Antonio subdivision developers, 212 of those present voted for no nets whatever, while only 28 asked that netting be continued.

Man after man, and woman after woman objected to what they termed multiplicity of nets in these bays, which impeded the operation of their boats and caught the fish that they wanted to catch themselves.

R. L. Eckman, of the Rockport Sportsmen's Conservation Association pointed out that 41 motels, 20 bait stands, 16 service stations, three grocery stores and five sporting goods stores all depend to a large extent on visitors here, and he gave unsupported figures declaring that 90 per cent of the people who come here do so to fish, and that 85 per cent of the area income comes from other people.

Jack McCready, of Western Auto, said he felt that it was economic suicide not to favor the tourists, and Krueger, who said the people he represented had spent over $2,000,000, stated that the fall off in fishing had definitely hurt their business.

WEEKLY WINNERS NAMED IN WINTER FISHING CONTEST

Winners were named in two divisions of the Winter Visitor's Fishing Contest this week, with one of the biggest fish of the entire winter entered.

Robert L. Livingston, fishing in the Key Allegro channel, weighed in with a trout that tipped the scales at eight pounds and one ounce. Livingston lives at 1318 Van Loan, Corpus Christi.

Clifford Olsen, of Chetka, Wis., who won a week or two ago, was winner again in the drum division, with a monster that weighed 38 pounds. He caught it at the south end of Copano Causeway.

Some nice fish have been caught recently in the Sea Gun Marina Basin, and a few on the Estes Flats south of town. However, fishing is still slow, despite the fact that the Parks and Wildlife Commission has again outlawed netting in the bays around Rockport.

Local anglers look for it to pick up, however, with the advent of spring.

GULF STATION TO RE-OPEN

R. H. Hibdon, formerly of San Antonio, is re-opening the Gulf station at the corner of Austin Street and Highway 35. He invites everyone to come by and get acquainted. See his ad on page 5

State Library Consultant Is Here This Week

Miss Elizabeth Karle, field consultant of the Texas State Library, conferred with Aransas County Judge John D. Wendell and Library Board Chairman J. L. Baughman this week, making arrangements for an evening meeting on May 11, at which time an attempt will be made to form a "Friends of the Library" group, and discussing the new Aransas County Public Library.

At the same time, Miss Karle discussed the possibility of sending Miss Dorthula Wilcox, field consultant and technical services advisor to Rockport for several days to train local librarian Mrs. Val Jean Eaton in book cataloging and other library services.

While here, Miss Karle, formerly with La Retama Library in Corpus Christi, also spent considerable time with Mrs. Eaton and aided her in ironing out some of her immediate problems.

During the course of the conversation with Judge Wendell, Miss Karle compared the status of the Aransas County Public Library with five others where the population is about the same as it is here.

Aransas County, she said, has a population of around 7,000, with county tax valuations a little above $21,000,000 and appropriates $1500 annually for the librarian's salary and purchase of books.

Water Board Calls Election For April 7

Members of the Board of the Aransas County Conservation and Reclamation District at their regular meeting, called an election for April 7, at which time the terms of two of the original commissioners, Grady West and Glen Ellis expire.

Provisions of the act by which the district was formed named them as two members of the six-man Board. Terms of J. L. Baughman and Robert Fleming expire in 1966, while those of Harold Picton and Matthew W. Scott expire in 1968.

Replacements for West and Ellis will be elected for a term of six years each.

In additional business, the commissioners named election judges, appointed the times for the election, named the polling places, and discussed briefly the status of the water supply investigation in which the district's engineers are now engaged.

Election judge for Precinct 1A at Aransas Pass, is Mrs. Glen Ellis; for Precinct 1, at the Rockport Fire Station, the judge is Mrs. Faye Brundrett; for Precinct 2, at the Aransas County Courthouse, the election judge is Mrs. Elbert Mundine; in Precinct 3, the judge is Mrs. Harry McDow, and in Precinct 4, where the polling place is at the concession hall in Goose Island State Park, the judge will be Mrs. Harry Mills.

The procedure for filing is as follows:

"Any candidate for director, desiring to have his name printed on the ballot may do by a petition so requesting, signed by not less than ten (10) residents of the district who are qualified to vote at the election. Such petition shall be presented to the secretary of the Board of Directors (in this case, Jack Baughman), not less than 10 full days prior to the election."

As the election will be held on Tuesday, April 7 this means that such petitions should be in Baughman's hands not later than March 25, he said.

The act setting up the district says that "only qualified electors residing in the district shall be entitled to vote at the said election. The candidates receiving the highest number of votes shall be declared elected."

Glen Ellis has filed for reelection; West will not run he said Wednesday.

Fred Bracht has one of the oldest pictures of Rockport that has come to the Pilot's attention in a long time, show-chair prominently displayed as a sign that furniture was sold there.

Flanking it to the south was another two story building, a grocery store, and to the north it has a single story annex.

In front there are a couple of men on horseback; an

HEARING HELD —

echoed these views, and a number of tourists and retired persons stated that they came here to fish and that if there was no fishing they would go elsewhere.

C. D. Bohannon, formerly of Arcadia, Okla., said that he and his wife had settled here only after an extensive survey of the east, west and Gulf coasts had convinced them that fishing in this area was second to none, but that they considered that netting, allowed under a Parks and Wildlife proclamation of Oct. 7, last year, had damaged it almost irreparably. Bohannon stated that he had heard many people say that if the fishing didn't improve, they wouldn't be back next year.

Operators of service establishments that spoke included N. C. Vandagriff, of Vandagriff Cleaners, Hugh Trahan, taxicab and tourist court operator, and a number of others catering to the needs of the public. All of them stated their business had been hurt, and attributed this to the fact that nets in Copano, Port and St. Charles bays had hurt the fishing, with the result that tourists and anglers were going elsewhere.

A number of commercial fishermen answered the complaints of the first group, whose expression of opinion occupied the full hour and a half allotted to them.

The commercial operators said they had not been catching many fish either, but almost without exception they attributed this to a shortage of fish food in the bays, and said until nature remedied this condition, there wouldn't be many fish.

James B. Johnson, of Aransas Pass, reviewed the inception of House Bill 1021, under which the Parks and Wildlife Commission had opened the bays to netting, and said that before the bill had organization had agreed on its content, and it was introduced as a local bill.

He asked for the commercial men and local group to sit down once more in an effort to arrive at some compromise.

He pointed out that the number of people who had raised their hands in support of outlawing all nets had nothing to do with the justice of their cause; that the fish belonged to all the people of the state, and that merely because a majority had raised their hands this didn't make them right. In a democracy, he said, even the minority has some rights.

Zeph Rouquette, who has fished these bays or operated a fish house here for a great number of years, reviewed the old days, and stated that the main trouble at this time was the fact that long continued lack of rain had cut down the food in the bays, and this was echoed by practically every commercial fisherman at the meeting, in one form or another.

To support the fish shortage thesis, Jim Thorne of Aransas Pass said that in two weeks, using nets, his income had been less than $20 and that he had not caught the thousands of pounds that some sportsmen believed.

Almost without exception the commercial men said there were fish in the bays, although they weren't always in the place that sports anglers sought them, and a number of the commercial fishermen stated that to catch fish, you needed to have some knowledge of the fish and the bays. That, they said, was the reason they caught fish while many sports anglers didn't.

Copano has lots of nets, one of them said, "but it also has lots of fish for the man who knows how to fish for them."

Monte Rouquette, president of the Commercial Fishermen's Association at the time, House 1021 had its inception, refuted the statement of Dr. J. E. Bauer, made, earlier, that the commercial fishermen had instigated it in hope that they would be allowed to use nets in the back bays. In sharp distinction from Bauer's statement, Rouquette said, the bill had been developed by the Rockport Sportsmen's Conservation Association.

"If people would leave the Parks and Wildlife Commission alone," Rouquette said, "and let them run things, they would be run right."

Burke Williams, Fulton, said in the preliminary skirmishing before accord had been reached on the bill in question "we traded them (the sportsmen) the beaches in front of Rockport and Fulton for Copano. Now they want to back out."

Norton H. Freeze pointed out that bays were briny, that there had been few shrimp, practically no pin perch and only a few mullet in the bays for the past month and a half, and all these, he said, furnish food for the fish the sportsmen and commercial fishermen want.

The hearing was concluded in time to give Parks and Wildlife personnel a chance to correlate their votes with a tape recording made of the proceedings in order for them to leave Tuesday morning to be presented at the regular quarterly meeting of the Parks and Wildlife Commission in Austin Tuesday afternoon.

No department personnel took any part in the discussion except to preside over the meeting and to record the opinions.

STATE LIBRARY—

In Live Oak County, with a population of 7846 and an assessed valuation of $23,168,690, the annual appropriation is $5309.76.

Llano County, with 5240 people and a valuation of $11,097,171, devotes $2910 to its library; Carson County, with 7781 and an assessed valuation of $28,694,897, spends $18,995.70 per year; Yoakum County with 8032 people and an assessed valuation of $58,508,114, allocates $17,929, Miss Karle said, and in Collingsworth County, with $10,543,211, the allocation is $2300 annually.

Judge Wendell, during the course of the conservation, told Miss Karle that the Aransas County Public Library had grown into a valuable tourist asset, and ventured the opinion that there were more adult tourists using the library than there were residents. However, as both he and Baughman pointed out, use of the facility by the children of the community is growing by leaps and bounds.

Miss Karle also inspected the new library building which is approaching completion rapidly. The contractors hope to be through by the first of March, although it will probably be another 45 to 60 days after that before all equipment is installed and the books are moved from their present location in the courthouse.

While here, Miss Karle extended an invitation to the county judge and to members of the library board and auxiliary to attend an all-day meeting to be held in Alice at the Chamber of Commerce on March 18.

The day's program will include several speakers, general round table discussions, a question box and other items designed to aid librarians, board members and other interested people in solving library problems in their own communities.

A considerable portion of the program will be devoted to ways in which library boards and friends of the library can work together to give better library service in their own areas, Miss Karle said.

This is the the only workshop of the type to be sponsored in cooperation with the Texas State Library in District IV this year, Miss Karle stated, and she hopes that each library in the area will be represented at the meeting, which is open to everyone interested in libraries.

OREGON CONTINUES—with the most productive, in which 12 pounds were caught, being made in 240 fathoms off Brownsville.

Deep water transects were conducted from 50 to 500 fathoms, Bullis said, with rattail fishes predominating in the catch. Bottom trawling on the 400 fathom curve or the variety of fish and shrimp were in the least comparable to that found at similar depths off the Tortugas, Bullis said.

Investigations of off-season menhaden abundance were continued with 16 grill net sets made at different portions of the Gulf. These were equally divided between bottom and surface sets in depths of five to 50 fathoms. Approximately 89 adult menhaden were caught in the surface nets, and of these, 52 were caught in 20 fathoms in spawning condition. In addition to the grill net catches, 125 juvenile menhaden were caught in a 65-foot trawl fished in five fathoms of water.

St. Joseph's Island

In 1780 Governor Cabello wrote of this as Yala de los Copanes. Later it was referred to as Isla de San Jose and Isla de Aranzazu. The American settlers called it St. Joseph, St. Jo, and Aransas Island. It was seldom mentioned by the Spaniards and certainly many of their references to Matagorda Island (under various names) were intended to apply to St. Joseph. Cedar Bayou, the pass between, was more frequently closed than open, frequently making the islands one.

The island is 21 miles long and five miles wide at the north end. The white sand beach and rolling dunes fit Cebaza de Vaca's description of the island on which he was cast ashore, and some historians believe that it is; the majority, however, say this was Galveston Island, and that de Vaca only reached St. Joseph's on his long trek southward.

It has also been identified as the one called Culebra (Rattlesnake) Island by Diego Ortiz Parrillo, who explored the Gulf Coast area in 1766. In 1834, two vessels bringing Irish colonists to the Power and Hewetson Colony went ashore on the island. While waiting transportation to the mainland, 250 of them died in a cholera epidemic.

Immediately after the Texas Revolution families established homes on the island, and the Village of Aransas or Aransas Wharf was a prosperous port at the south end of the island until its destruction during the Civil War.

Vessels of the U. S. Navy, under J. W. Kitteridge used St. Joseph's to store captured cotton after Camp Semmes, the Confederate post on the South end of the island was captured.

St. Mary's Once Gambling Hangout For Gunmen

St. Mary's of Texas, once the metropolis of Refugio County, was also the gambling hangout of gunmen like Ben Thompson of Austin and Sallie Skull, the two-gun woman horse trader who, according to the famous Ranger "Old Rip" Ford, was a rough character.

The townsite on Copano Bay, just above where present Bay-side stands, flourished from about 1850 to 1886. It was the leading lumber mart of West Texas and also shipped hides, tallow, cattle and cotton. Regular lines of wagon trains and carts operated between the port and Refugio, Goliad, Beeville, San Antonio, Uvalde and other points west.

The rise of Rockport and the loss of its eminence as a county seat to the growing town of Refugio marked the beginning of the end for St. Mary's. The San Antonio and Aransas Pass Railroad, which in the early '80's had planned to build a line to St. Mary's, laid tracks to Rockport instead.

St. Mary's wharves were destroyed by a storm in 1886, and before the damage was completely repaired another storm in 1887 was even more destructive. The town faded steadily into a small village which finally faded out of existence with closure of the post office and general store in 1907.

The old post office still stands and is used by Mrs. Earp, whose husband was a cousin of the famous marshal of Tombstone.

MINK RANCHER IS WINTER VISITOR HERE

Harry Saxton, who is spending part of the winter in Rockport, is a New York rancher, but his ranch is not like any known in this part of the world, for he raises mink.

"I'm one of the oldest mink breeders in the world that started with the industry," he said. He began, 38 years ago, by capturing wild mink, and, through years of experimentation and trial and error, has established a ranch where he raises 7,000 or more yearly, which are skinned to form the basis of ladies' furs.

"The whole business was one of trial and error," Saxton said, as well as selective breeding, and taking advantage of mutations as they occurred. I was never lucky enough not to have any mutations among my stock, but had to purchase breeding animals of the various colors as they occurred and fashion veered in their direction."

Saxton says that about 6,000,000 mink are raised yearly in the United States, and another 6,000,000 a year in Norway, Sweden, Denmark, Finland, Russia and Japan, all of which the American market absorbs to the detriment of U. S. raisers.

"Our quality is superb," he said, "and commands top prices, but there are a lot of women that can't pay the $1,000 or so that a really top notch stole commands. But these foreign-raised mink make it possible to produce cheaper quality furs in great quantity, because it costs less to raise mink in those countries than it does here."

"In the United States it costs about $14 to produce a pelt that sells for $18, although some of the mutations have been tremendously expensive when first occurred. For instance, I remember that a bundle of 25, the first of the Morning Light skins to be produced, brought $420 a skin, and other desirable mutations, when first produced brought as much as $200 a skin for the top bundle."

Mink are pelted at the ranch where they are raised. The parents breed in March; the kits, about an inch long and the size of a lead pencil, are born in May, and are fully grown and ready for pelting by the first week in November. After they are killed and the pelts removed, the skins are scraped to remove the fat, and then they are shipped to New York, the greatest fur market in the world. After dressing (or tanning) skins from a rancher are separated into bundles varying from a few hundred or more matched skins, and sold at auction.

Auctioneers are the ancient Hudson's Bay Company, still in the fur business after hundreds of years, and the New York Auction Company. From the auction rooms the pelts go to furriers all over the world, to be made into fur pieces and coats for women.

It takes approximately 100 pounds of food to produce a mink pelt, Saxton said, and as mink are strictly carnivorous they must be fed a diet of meat and fish, with a little cooked cereal added for roughage. And, Saxton said, unless this food is strictly fresh, they do not do well.

"I visited the Japanese farms a couple of years ago," the mink rancher said, "and don't believe they'll ever produce as good pelts as we do. They are no immediate threat to the market. Fish appeared to be the only diet supplied Japanese mink, and in my opinion, this is not inductive to well-formed animals."

In general European and Asiatic mink cannot compete with American and Canadian mink in either size or fur quality, Saxton said.

"By selective breeding, we have increased the size of those we breed to as much as seven pounds, starting years ago with a wild mink weighing two and one-half pounds. And because of the attention we pay to their diet, our mink pelts are the finest in the world."
