Day celebrates Mize

A wide range of praise was extended to Snyder banker Roger B. Mize Thursday, reaching from the governor of Texas to the Scurry County residents Mize comes into contact with each day.

An estimated 850 well-wishers gathered in the Scurry County Coliseum to hear the initial words of praise, then likely 300 took the time afterward to congratulate Mize in person at a reception in his honor held at Western Texas College.

In the featured address at the Roger Mize Day banquet, Gov. Mark White repeatedly pointed to Mize's "leadership," saying "the way out of the problems we have (in Texas) now is through leadership like that from Roger Mize."

The praise from other state officials echoed the governor.

State Senator Ray Farabee called the event "another great day for Snyder," likening it to the Billionth Barrel of Oil celebration and earlier events held in honor of another county leader, C.T. McLaughlin.

State Rep. Steve Carriker called Mize "one of the state's great citizens," and former Texas Attorney General Edward Clark described his longtime friend as "not a three-minute man," a reference to the time period he had been given to discuss Mize.

The noon banquet was kept on a strict one-hour timetable by emcee Miller Robinson, one of the steering committee members planning the event.

Within the 60-minute time frame, planners fed over 800 diners, orchestrated no less than four presentations to Mize and offered the audiences brief addresses from six speakers in addition to the governor.

Mize himself offered brief comments midway through the program.

"I feel very humble today," he said, thanking those who planned the event, in particular committee chairman Jack Denman.

To the audience, he said, "I thank you all for sharing this great day that I shall never forget."

The presentations to Mize included a proclamation from Mayor Rod Waller declaring Aug. 21 as Roger Mize Day in Snyder.

Local TSTA Chapter President Betsy Griffin also gave Mize a plaque commemorating his service with the Texas State Teachers Retirement System board.

"Snyder teachers are proud of Roger Mize," she said.

Ask Us

Q. — In the lawsuit filed against the Snyder ISD, who will pay the attorney fees for the plaintiffs?

A. — It depends on the outcome of the lawsuit. In such civil rights actions, if the plaintiffs won the case, the defendant–in this case the school district–is normally required to pay these legal fees. The judge hearing the case does have the ability to waive this, however, although this option is considered rare.

Political comment held to 'lone shot'

By DONNY BROWN
SDN Managing Editor

The speech presented by Texas Gov. Mark White at the Roger Mize Day celebration Thursday was billed as "non-political," and White limited references to his current political race to one lone shot at Republican challenger Bill Clements.

Following that, he reminded a crowd in excess of 850 of his work to push through a Texas water plan which paved the way for Stacy Dam and which will additionally "benefit all of West Texas."

He also briefly touched on the oil crisis now facing the state and the ongoing battle underway in the special session of the state legislature to offset a projected shortfall of $3 million in state finances.

Taking the podium, White offered his political comment.

"The governor's job is so difficult, now only two of us want it," he said.

Pausing after the crowd's laughter, he added, "And I'm the only one who needs it."

He then launched into a 20-minute speech concerning the "difficulties" now facing Texas.

White said the refusal of the federal government to pass a "variable oil import fee" has allowed the OPEC nations, in particular Saudi Arabia, to "hold our economic heads under water."

To back up his point, he noted that the U.S. was importing 27,000 barrels of oil per day from Saudi Arabia alone prior to the downward trend in oil price.

Today, he said, this has risen to 700,000 barrels.

"We have weakened ourselves in the world market," he said, "And B-1 bombers and M-1 tanks don't run on cordwood."

Regarding the state's financial problems, White criticized a plan to pull monies from the permanent school fund to help offset the projected deficit.

He also said the answer to the problem should not involve the closing of some state colleges or junior colleges, specifically mentioning the University of Texas at the Permian Basin and Sul Ross.

Regarding the state water plan, which Senator Ray Farabee alluded to also during his introduction of White, the governor called it "well balanced."

"Now folks in East Texas don't

Police are puzzled as funerals begin

EDMOND, Okla. (AP) — A shocked community today began burying 14 victims of a mail carrier's post office rampage, and counselors worked with survivors as police sought to learn why the man killed his coworkers and himself.

The first of a weekend of funerals was scheduled today, as were the counseling sessions for survivors and relatives of those killed when Patrick Henry Sherrill opened fire in the post office Wednesday.

As mail delivery resumed Thursday, stunned residents greeted their letter carriers with newfound appreciation and decorated mailboxes, telephone poles and windows with yellow ribbons.

A search of Sherrill's cluttered home in Oklahoma City found BB guns, bull's-eye targets, military magazines and Russian books, but gave no clues to the ex-Marine's motivation, said police Lt. Mike Wooldridge.

"That's the one thing we were hoping for — a note to let us understand this," Wooldridge said at a news conference Thursday.

Five people remained hospitalized today with gunshot wounds. Three were in fair condition and two were in serious but stable condition.

All but one of the 80 workers who escaped injury returned to work voluntarily Thursday, joined by volunteers from other post offices in Oklahoma and Texas. Officials advised residents that mail delivery would be slow because workers would be attending funerals of friends.

The early morning reunion of surviving workers was laced with emotion.

"People were hugging each other and crying," said mail carrier Joe Sturgil. "I can't describe what was felt there. It was the first time we'd seen each other since it happened. It was a hellish day, a long day."

Handmade knives are hobby

By BILL McCLELLAN
SDN Sports Editor

Ernest Hinson isn't sure how many knives he's made in his small workshop, but he knows the hobby has given him a lot of enjoyment over the past five years.

"I've always liked knives, ever since I was a kid. I always had a pocket knife. I never could see how anybody could do without one. I liked the better knives and it seemed like I never could get one like I wanted it. I guess that's why I started making knives," grinned Hinson, a personable gray-haired man who moved to Snyder about 19 years ago.

Hinson will have a booth at the Canyon Gun Club's annual Gun, Knife and Coin Show which will be held Saturday and Sunday here at Scurry County Coliseum.

The fifth annual show will be from 9 a.m. until 6 p.m. Saturday and from 9 a.m. until 5 p.m. Sunday. Admission is $2 with children under 12 admitted free with their parents.

Hinson's interest in knives grew when he began collecting them, about 15 years ago. He drew up a pattern of his own about 10 years ago, but didn't make his first knife until almost five years later.

"I drew up a different pattern and that was my first knife. I did eventually make a knife from the first pattern I ever drew," he said.

He had no training in the art, and didn't have access to any books on the subject.

"I was a pumper in the oil field for 31 years and you kind of get to be a jack of all trades. I was on isolated leases most of the time and it was my responsibility to see that everything kept working. I guess I just learned how make things work and I think that helped me when I started making knives. I knew I could do it if I wanted to."

Suit settled

BROWNSVILLE, Texas (AP) — A Hereford road construction company has agreed to pay $5.5 million to a family after a fire in 1983 in which a 2-year-old boy died and his two sisters suffered severe burns.

Appian Corp. agreed to pay the Pedro Barraza family on Thursday. The fire occurred Aug. 23, 1983, at the Barraza home in Odessa. The family has since moved to Brownsville.

The suit claimed that roadwork near the Barraza home jarred loose a gas line and a pilot light ignited the gas leak while the family slept, said Steve Hastings, the Barraza's attorney.

Pedro Barraza Jr. died in the fire. His sisters, Gina, then 9, and Corrina, then 8, suffered burns over 65 percent of their bodies.

In February, Rheem Manufacturing, a national air conditioning company, and Energas, a West Texas gas company, agreed upon an approximate $7 million settlement in the case.

Pan Am fined

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Federal Aviation Administration announced today it has penalized Pan American World Airways nearly $2 million for a variety of safety violations found during an in-depth inspection.

The FAA said in a statement that Pan Am, the country's fifth largest airline, has agreed to pay the fine and has reorganized its maintenance operation to correct the problems.

Pan Am officials could not immediately be reached for comment on the FAA action.

Boys Club burglary has charges

Police report clearing an early summer burglary of the Snyder Boy's Club with the arrest of a 17-year-old suspect Thursday night.

Jimmy Guerrero of 1700 28th St. was charged and remained in Scurry County Jail Friday morning in lieu of bond set at $5,000 on one count of burglary.

He is alleged to have entered the Boys Club on June 16. Missing from that break-in was money removed from coin-operated machines in the building.

In addition, police investigated a residential burglary reported Thursday morning.

Evelyn Zook of 3918 Eastridge Dr. called at 10:55 a.m. to report someone had apparently stayed in her house while she was out of town. Items were said stolen

Up in Hereford, there is a on-running community debate about the federal government's proposal to locate a nuclear waste disposal dump there.

In discussions about long-range community growth, there is always a question about dedication and commitment.

O. G. Nieman, publisher of the Hereford Brand, told the story about a pig and a hen who were having an argument about the meaning of commitment.

Finally, the pig explained it this way: "It's like ham and eggs. For you, the eggs are a donation. For me, that's commitment."

Larry Crabtree, in the Vernon Daily Record, noted that close to half of the American adults say they dream in color. Said Crabtree, "That may be a pigment of their imagination."

A friend of Crabtree concluded that a fourth of adults in America don't dream at all...they just sleep on the job.

Ed Scott, in the Fort Worth Star-Telegram, observed that Rock singer Boy George pleaded guilty to possession of heroin. Boy George's attorney credits his client with facing the drug problem like a man.

Said Scott, "That may ruin the drag-dresser's image."

Stephen Henry, in the Levelland News, told about little boy who was being scolded by his grandmother.

"Why did you tell everybody at the reunion I was 75 years old and how did you find out?" she asked.

The youngster said he peeked at Grandma's driver's license.

"And when I looked at it I found out something that must have made Grandpa feel bad."

"And what was that?" continued the grandmother.

"It said on your license that you got an F in sex."

Auction set at museum 'birthday'

Tickets will be available at the door and the public is invited Saturday to a Texas Birthday Party sponsored by the Scurry County Museum.

Beside ice cream and cake, the event will feature 13 prizes donated by local merchants which will be mingled with "white elephants" at an auction to benefit the museum.

The auction–with locals asked to bring the "white elephants"–will start at 7 p.m. following the serving of ice cream and cake at the Central Courtyard on the WTC campus.

Snyder's Singing Cowboys will provide musical entertainment.

Tickets are priced at $3 for adults and $1.50 for children.

PUC member gets backing

AUSTIN (AP) — Public Utility Commissioner Jo Campbell has been recommended for Senate confirmation by a committee that included a senator who asked her supporters if she is emotionally stable.

At the end of the Thursday hearing, the Senate Nominations Committee voted 6-0 to back Gov. Mark White's selection of Ms. Campbell for the three-member PUC.

Also Thursday, the committee voted 5-1 to recommend confirmation of seven White appointees to the State Board of Medical Examiners.

During the hearing, Sen. Bob McFarland, R-Arlington, told several pro-Campbell witnesses that he had heard from several sources that Ms. Campbell, at times, showed signs of "a possible emotional instability."

Ms. Campbell, a lawyer who often asks tough questions at commission hearings, has had several heated disputes with PUC Chairwoman Peggy Rosson at those hearings.

McFarland said what he had heard about Ms. Campbell was "hearsay and merely allegations."

Bernard Rappoport of Waco, a longtime Campbell family friend, called the allegation an "unmitigated lie."

Railroad Commissioner Mack Wallace, who testified in support of Ms. Campbell, said, "The lady is not emotionally unstable." Ms. Campbell is a former Railroad Commission hearing examiner.

But an Austin attorney who represents cities in utility rate cases testified that Ms. Campbell's behavior is sometimes inappropriate.

"I think she has indicated kind of a feeling that everybody is out to get her and she better get them first. That's very unhealthy at the commission," said Don Butler, who told senators that he had backed Ms. Campbell when she was picked by White.

"That goes beyond just tough, hard questioning. That kind of stuff is just embarrassing," he added.

Turkeys should be in record numbers

WASHINGTON (AP) — Turkey production, a year-round business, is setting records this year and probably will again in 1987, according to Agriculture Department economists.

Based on preliminary information, turkey output is expected to be about 203.2 million birds in 1986, up 10 percent from 185.3 million last year, the department's Agricultural Statistics Board reported Thursday.

North Carolina, the leader, is expected to produce 38.6 million turkeys, a 21 percent jump from last year, the report said. Minnesota, the No. 2 producer, was listed at 34.5 million birds, a 13 percent increase, and California was third with 22.3 million, up 9 percent.

The three states account for 47 percent of the total U.S. turkey production forecast for 1986.

In an earlier report, the department's Economic Research Service said strong demand and lower production costs are encouraging turkey producers to expand production.

"The stage is set for another surge in turkey production in 1987," the report said. "Producers have had favorable returns for three years. Consumers are finding new ways to use turkey; processed products in particular are providing an alternative to the traditional roasted bird.

"Other turkey forms, especially further-processed products, are replacing other meats. With all of these favorable factors, turkey producers may expand output by 15 percent in 1987. However, more sluggish growth in the general economy could slow the increase."

New York wholesale prices for dressed turkeys this fall may average 88 cents to 92 cents a pound for young hens in the range of 8 pounds to 16 pounds, according to agency projections. That would be comparable to the average of 90.1 cents in the fourth quarter of last year.

Overall, wholesale prices for 1986 may be in the range of 74 cents to 76 cents a pound, compared with 75.5 cents for all of last year.

But in 1987, if production increases as indicated, prices could drop to 57 cents to 63 cents a pound on average in the first quarter, and to an annual average of 65 cents to 71 cents. Larger pork output late next year also would have an effect.

"If feed prices drift lower as expected, while other costs increase slightly, net returns (to producers) would still be very favorable," the report said.

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Agriculture Department is going to let meat processors use some acidic chemicals, including some found in citrus fruit, to dress up pork so it looks more appealing as consumers walk along the meat counter.

Although an interim rule permitting the additives will go into effect on Sept. 22, the department will accept public comments on the action through Dec. 22 and will review those before making a final decision.

"Fresh pork cuts lose their color long before they become unsafe to eat, and some consumers find the off-color less desirable," Donald L. Houston, administrator of USDA's Food Safety and Inspection Service, said Thursday.

Houston added: "We have reviewed data which indicate that certain acidic substances can safely be used to extend the color and appearance of fresh pork. In addition, the prescribed conditions under which the substances are permitted will ensure they do not mask signs of food spoilage."

The chemicals to be allowed in pork are: ascorbic acid, erythorbic acid, citric acid, sodium ascorbate and sodium citrate.

All of the substances have been approved for use in food by the Food and Drug Administration, but under federal regulations additives for use in meat and poultry products must also be approved by the USDA agency.

Houston said his agency has the authority to approve the use of FDA-approved substances without going through the usual rule-making procedures.

"However, because this is a new method of color maintenance, we are allowing the industry to use the substances on an interim basis and are asking for comments. This will enable us to consider public views and information from commercial experience in determining if the approval should be made final."

Comments can be sent by Dec. 22 to: USDA, Food Safety and Inspection Service Regulations Office, Attn: Annie Johnson, Room 3812 South Building, Washington, D.C. 20250.

Victim's sister says death to bring peace

HUNTSVILLE, Texas (AP) — The wife of a man gunned down at a Dallas convenience store says she went to the prison where her husband's killer was to be executed because she wanted to make sure he was put to death.

Marilynn Mason arrived in Huntsville late Thursday, a few hours before Larry Smith was to be executed early this morning for the 1978 slaying of her husband, Mike Mason.

The robbery in which Mason was killed netted two bandits $25.

"I don't know if I should cry, laugh or rejoice," she said. "I feel sorry for him (Smith). I got to love Mike. I'm not sure he (Smith) got to love anybody."

She said she asked prison officials earlier if she could witness the execution but was told rules barred her presence.

"I think I would like to," she said. "But I'm not sure I would. I'd like to have the opportunity. But I honestly don't think I could watch it.

"The one thing Smith can't take away is my love for Mike and the time I spent with Mike. He took Mike but he can't take away those things."

Mrs. Mason said her youngest child, Christopher, 10, suffers from cerebral palsy and "was a baby at the time" of the shooting.

"It's almost like he knows he had a daddy but doesn't know what it's like to have a daddy," she said.

Mike Mason didn't like working the graveyard shift at a Dallas 7-Eleven store, but he did it so he could attend a trade school in air conditioning and heating repair.

The 26-year-old father of three was shot to death in the middle-of-the-night holdup just three days before he was to start school.

"He did not like working nights," Mason's sister, Linda Sargent, said Thursday. "He had asked about the day shift because he had a family, but they would not put him on the day shift."

Mason was one of six children, served four years in the Marines and liked to relax in his spare time by fishing.

"He was a very good guy, very good," Mrs. Sargent said. "He liked to be around people. He was a very people-oriented person. He'd give you the shirt off his back."

Deaf Student's Plea Is For Handicapped to Be Accepted

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1986 by Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: I am a 21-year-old deaf student at the Rochester Institute of Technology. I was born with German measles, which left me deaf, blind in one eye and 50 percent brain damaged, but I feel fortunate to be alive.

All my life I have tried to get people to be a little more patient with handicapped people because I have been discriminated against because of my disabilities, and I hate discrimination.

I wrote a piece for my 12th grade high school public-speaking class presentation. It was "The Handicap Plea." Many people loved it. I have met a few famous people who have visited the National Technical Institute for the Deaf, and I typed up my "plea," framed it and gave it to a few special people I thought deserved it. They are Annie Glenn, Peter Jennings and Jeff Float. I even gave one to my best friend, Tim Sly, who never treated me any different.

I am sending you a copy, hoping you will print it and wake up some people to realize that handicapped people are normal. Thank you for your time and good luck with yourself.

HARRISON F. PARSONS JR.,
ROCHESTER, N.Y.

DEAR HARRISON: I think your "plea" should be shared with my readers, and here it is:

THE HANDICAP PLEA

We the handicapped may look strange. But look around carefully, we all have the same needs. As nature goes, we all have the same form of body. But some part of our body may be missing or deformed. Some parts of us may not function the same way as yours do. We may lose it at birth, or get hurt in an accident or have a disease. But we are lucky to be alive and are willing to sacrifice for that.

Normal people can become handicapped from old age, accident, war or disease. If you look around carefully, you will understand that people who are handicapped are just like people who are not. We are still people, who want the chance to walk the golden road to success. We don't ask you to give us success, just the chance to succeed without put-downs or ridicule. You can give us the courage to succeed.

You look at nature as a thing of beauty, yet no two snowflakes are alike. We would be honored to be treated the same, because we know your needs are the same as ours. The needs we all have are physical (natural), emotional and spiritual. So after all is said and done, please give us the chance and encouragement to prove to all that people who are handicapped are normal people!

DEAR ABBY: In a recent column concerning nursing homes, you said it was not necessary to tolerate thievery. Obviously you have never had much experience with nursing homes. I have.

When a relative of mine was admitted to a very fine nursing home, he was advised to keep nothing of value in his room. Also, he was told that all medication, hair oil, shaving cream, hand lotion, etc. were to be left at the nurses station, and when he wanted to use any of these items, he should ask for them.

Some senile patients who were ambulatory would walk into the rooms of fellow residents and pick up whatever wasn't locked up. They'd drink after-shave, hair oil, etc., and take medication without realizing that they are doing anything wrong.

There is not enough personnel to watch each patient 24 hours a day to see that they don't get into trouble. It takes a lot of patience to work in a nursing home. And those who do deserve a lot of credit.

MRS. R.L.C.,
EL CENTRO, CALIF.

DEAR MRS. R.L.C.: Watch this space for more on nursing homes. I was blitzed with letters, pro and con — mostly con.

LTV says it may not be able to pay pensions

DALLAS (AP) — Dallas-based LTV Corp. may not be able to pay pension benefits to about 4,000 former salaried employees of Republic Steel Corp. and is seeking waivers of payments to pension plans of two of its subsidiaries, company officials said.

The Pension Benefit Guaranty Corp., the federal agency that insures the nation's pension system, will pay the benefits to the Republic Steel employees, an LTV spokesman said Thursday.

But retirees may receive a slightly lower payment from the agency because not all of their benefits are insured and the agency reduces payments to early retirees.

Republic's salaried employee pension program, which covers almost 9,000 active and retired employees, is underfunded by $400 million, the pension agency estimates.

"We've said from the beginning that we expect the Republic salaried plan to be terminated and that we have no plans to terminate other plans," LTV spokesman Charles Palmer told The Dallas Morning News. "Other pension plans will be dealt with in reorganization."

The firm, which filed July 17 for protection under Chapter 11 of the federal bankruptcy code, may ask for payment waivers on the plans for LTV Steel Co. and LTV Energy Products Co. The payments, totaling $260 million, are due in mid-September.

Those plans, which cover about 5,900 retirees, are not underfunded and have money to pay benefits.

LTV and Republic Steel merged in 1984 to form the second-largest steel company in the United States.

Part of Dever's testimony supported

WASHINGTON (AP) — A congressional staff report that concluded former White House aide Michael K. Deaver lied to a House subcommittee investigating his lobbying activities may have been partly in error, the subcommittee's chairman says.

In a letter made public Thursday by Deaver's attorney, Rep. John Dingell, D-Mich., acknowledged the possible error to independent counsel Whitney North Seymour Jr., named by a federal court to investigate Deaver.

The controversial section of the subcommittee report concluded Deaver falsely testified that he informed officials of Rockwell International Corp., a client, that he planned to meet with a top federal official about Rockwell's B-1 bomber.

Dingell informed Seymour that he has learned from company officials that Deaver may indeed have informed them in advance of his meeting with James C. Miller III, director of the Office of Management and Budget.

By a vote of 17-0 on Aug. 12, Dingell's House Energy and Commerce investigations subcommittee adopted staff findings concluding Deaver "knowingly and willfully" lied to the panel in testimony earlier this year.

The subcommittee sent its report to Seymour, with a request to investigate whether perjury and other laws were violated by Deaver — the former deputy White House chief of staff and a close friend of President and Mrs. Reagan.

Seymour, as well as the subcommittee, already had been investigating whether Deaver violated conflict-of-interest statutes by lobbying government officials soon after he left the White House.

While Dingell released the report at a news conference, he did not make public the letter about the possible error, written two days later. It was made available Thursday by Randall J. Turk, an attorney for Deaver.

Social Security tax is said 'increasingly burdensome'

WASHINGTON (AP) — The tax overhaul bill will accelerate a trend that has made the Social Security payroll tax a bigger burden for most low- and moderate-income Americans than the income tax.

Indeed, while many citizens are wondering whether their income tax bill will rise or fall in the next few years under the system of lower rates and fewer deductions, they can be certain of one thing: their Social Security taxes will keep going up.

Sen. George Mitchell, D-Maine, who lost a battle on the Senate floor in June to add a third tax rate for the wealthy to provide more breaks for the middle class, said in a telephone interview from Portland, "There is a very unhealthy and unfair trend now occurring to reduce the income tax, which is based on ability to pay, while increasing all other federal taxes, which are not related to ability to pay."

The payroll tax, which pays for Medicare as well as Social Security's old age, survivors and disability insurance, is now levied at a 7.15 percent rate on income up to $42,000 a year. It is headed for 7.51 percent in January 1988 and 7.65 percent in January 1990. The ceiling on wages subject to the tax also usually rises each year.

That means workers will pay 5 percent more Social Security taxes on the same wages in 1988, and a total of 7 percent more in 1990. Currently, 125 million Americans — 95 percent of all U.S. workers — pay an average of $1,090 a year in Social Security taxes. Employers pay a matching tax; the self-employed have even steeper rates, now 12.3 percent and headed for 15.3 percent in 1990.

The tax bill awaiting passage by Congress will remove 6 million low-income Americans from the income tax rolls by sharply raising the standard deduction and personal exemptions.

Some parents will also be helped by an expansion of the Earned Income Tax Credit, a tax refund that Congress enacted in 1975 to help cushion the working poor from the payroll tax. The credit, now a maximum of $550, will be boosted to $800, and it will help families with incomes up to $17,000 instead of $11,000.

John Bickerman, research director for the private Center on Budget Policies and Priorities, said the tax bill "is perhaps the most important piece of anti-poverty legislation in a decade." But he added, "The middle-income person isn't going to benefit a great deal. Some are going to lose under this system."

Joseph Pechman, senior fellow at the Brookings Institution and its former director of economic studies, said most Americans now pay more in Social Security taxes than income taxes.

Candidate for player of the year

By James Jacoby

Those of us in the profession of playing this game and writing about it hope that more large companies will sponsor bridge competitions. One such company, Royal Viking Lines, in addition to placing expert bridge directors on their cruises (my wife and I recently completed such a trip to Norway), is now sponsoring a Player of the Year contest.

Tomasz Przybora of Poland is a candidate this year on the basis of a clever defensive play made against today's two-spade contract. South opened a thin weak-two bid, but his partner had enough high cards to keep the opponents out.

West cashed the king and ace of hearts and switched to a diamond. East, Przybora, won the ace and returned the 10. When a spade was led, East casually played the jack. South won the spade king. Who of us as declarer would not now cater to what appears to be East's original spade holding of the A-J alone? We would certainly continue with a low spade. When that happened, West won the eight and played a heart, which East ruffed with the ace. A diamond back enabled West to take the setting trick with the spade 10.

What happens if East plays low on the first spade and next wins the jack? Declarer would now be able to ruff the diamond return with the spade queen and lead a third spade, clearing the suit as both defenders follow.

Cocaine seized

MATAMOROS, Mexico (AP) — Mexican police seized more than 800 pounds of cocaine and arrested 23 people who stole the cocaine from Colombian drug smugglers at a false checkpoint, authorities said.

Federal Judicial Police Commander Joaquin Salvador Galvan said Wednesday that federal agents seized 803 pounds of cocaine and arrrested the 23 people at a ranch near the town of China, Nuevo Leon, on Aug. 15.

Gov. White sees some progress

AUSTIN (AP) — It's too early to talk about a deadlock between the House and Senate in this special budget-balancing session of the Legislature, Gov. Mark White says.

"We're going to keep working and let the system work. I think it's moving well," White said.

However, House leaders continued to insist they aren't interested in any plan to raise taxes now to help solve the $3.5 billion state budget deficit.

White is urging lawmakers to approve a 1⅛-cent increase in the state sales tax, boosting the levy from 1⅛ percent to 5¼ percent for one year, beginning Sept. 13.

The chairman of the tax-writing House Ways and Means Committee, Rep. Stan Schlueter, on Wednesday said such a bill probably wouldn't even get a hearing if introduced.

"We know all about taxes," said Schlueter, D-Killeen.

But White said he isn't discouraged by such talk. He said he continues to press for his temporary tax hike plan because he doesn't believe enough money can be pared from the budget to balance the books.

"I'm trying to make certain that they respond responsibly to the deficit ... I am going to continue to ask for responsible action from the Legislature," White said.

The Senate, led by Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby, has indicated support for a tax increase. But under the Texas Constitution, all tax bills must start in the House, and leaders there insist the opposition is overwhelming.

White refused to answer repeated questions about which House member would sponsor his tax increase.

"We don't need one until they're ready to act and we'll have one when that times comes if it is necessary," he said.

House Speaker Gib Lewis, D-Fort Worth, also raised the spectre of another special session when the current one ends on Sept. 4. He said he cancelled a planned September vacation.

White said that doesn't worry him, because he believes there is plenty of time to overcome the apparent legislative stalemate.

"That's premature, I think, to even discuss (a deadlock) because they are making great progress, and we have almost two full weeks left in this session, and I would hope they they would continue to make progress," the governor said.

As soon as White opened the legislative session to consideration of a tax bill, Lewis said he would interpret that to mean other measures designed to raise revenue — including horse racing and a lottery.

White refused Thursday to say whether he would veto either measure if approved by the House and Senate.

American claims he was abducted

EDINBURG, Texas (AP) — A real estate broker, claiming he was held at gunpoint for three days in Mexico City, says he promised his abductors "the moon" to gain his freedom.

Joe Ramon, 51, of Edinburg, said he was lured to Mexico City last weekend to present a real estate proposal to potential investors. Instead, he said, he was abducted, threatened at gunpoint, handcuffed and told to have family members come up with $60,000 or he would be killed.

He said he escaped after convincing the four men that he would send them money from the United States.

"I convinced them ... I was worth more alive than dead," Ramon told a news conference Thursday. "I did everything they wanted me to do. I promised them the moon to get over here."

Ramon said Mexican clients made up about 30 percent of his business and that his pledge to avoid Mexico will hurt.

"The only mistake that I made was I went over there without knowing who it was I was supposed to see," Ramon said. "I don't ever want to go back to Mexico. I will not go back to Mexico."

Ramon said he waited until Thursday to tell his story so as not to hamper law enforcement investigations.

Ramon, a real estate broker for 15 years, said he continues to receive telephone calls from the man who wants the $10,000 Ramon promised him.

"I feel that everyone should be aware of the abuses that are happening across the border and take all necessary and reasonable precautions to insure that they do not experience the pain, frustration, harassment and overall tragedy I experienced these last few days," Ramon said.

Contra aid squabble begins

TEGUCIGALPA, Honduras (AP) — The U.S. aid hasn't even begun to flow, but already Honduras is awash in charges that its military is squabbling over the $100 million approved by Congress for Nicaraguan rebels.

Some Honduran and foreign analysts contend top officers are simply fighting among themselves for a possible share of the bonanza earmarked for the anti-Sandinista Contras.

Others say deeper issues divide the army, including U.S. policy in Central America and eventual leadership of the Honduran armed forces.

But Gen. Humberto Regalado, commander of the army, says such talk is absurd, insisting the officer corps is neither divided philosophically nor trying to muscle in on rebel aid money.

A bill calling for $70 million in U.S. military assistance and $30 million in non-lethal aid has already passed the House and Senate, but awaits action by a conference committee and final approval from both chambers before it is sent to President Reagan for signing.

Touching off the controversy in Honduras was an Aug. 8 army raid on the home of Rodolfo Zelaya, an alternate delegate to the national legislature and a businessman with close ties to the Contras, most of whom are based in Honduras.

Zelaya said the raid was orchestrated by Col. Roberto Nunez, chief of army intelligence, and carried out by soldiers under Col. Wilfredo Sanchez, the head of Honduras' public security force.

Their motive, Zelaya said, was to pressure him into relinquishing control of his business, which in the past year has supplied the Contras with millions of dollars in food, clothing and medicines, and turning it over to them and their friends in the army.

Both officers were temporarily dismissed pending a military investigation, a rare occurence in Honduras where graduation from the national military academy usually guarantees a lifetime job.

In the meantime, Zelaya's house on the outskirts of Tegucigalpa was put under guard by soldiers from an armored cavalry unit. Some observers suggest Zelaya may enjoy the protection of rival elements in the army.

The incident so embarrassed the government that Foreign Minister Carlos Lopez Contreras announced Wednesday that none of the $100 million would be permitted to be channeled through Honduras.

"The government has always been clear on this point: North American aid for the Nicaraguan counterrevolution will not pass through here," Lopez Contreras said.

Most analysts, however, saw that as an idle threat.

"The Honduran government has been pretending for years that the rebels are not even here," said one Western diplomat. "They have said before that they wouldn't permit U.S. aid to pass through their country, but it always has."

Enrique Ortez Colindres, a leader of the Liberal Party, suggested some high-ranking army officers were fighting among themselves for a share, legal or not, of the Contra aid.

"The armed forces are split by truly childish and shameful interests," said Colindres, an announced presidential hopeful in 1988.

Victor Meza, a political analyst who heads a private research center in Tegucigalpa, agreed, quoting Prussia's 19th-century military theorist Karl von Clausewitz.

"Von Clausewitz said that warfare is the continuation of politics by other means," Meza said. "In Honduras, warfare has become the continuation of business by other means."

Mood is somber at post office

EDMOND, Okla. (AP) — Black crepe paper hangs from the counter where patriotic stamps are sold, and customers murmur condolences to shaken clerks who survived the bloodbath.

"It's spooky," said a woman hurrying out of the Edmond Post Office after scooping mail from her rented box.

Outside, flowers from grieving residents and sympathetic strangers turned a patch of the post office's tidy lawn into a memorial garden. Four white daisies from someone's yard; a giant wreath with a ribbon reading Fort Worth, Texas. Delicate silk flowers in clay pots; plastic roses in dimestore vases. A warm morning rain smeared the ink on tiny sympathy cards tucked amid the blossoms.

"People really do care," a counter clerk with bloodshot eyes said to no one in particular as he watched a deliveryman squeeze through the door with a 6-foot-tall rubber plant.

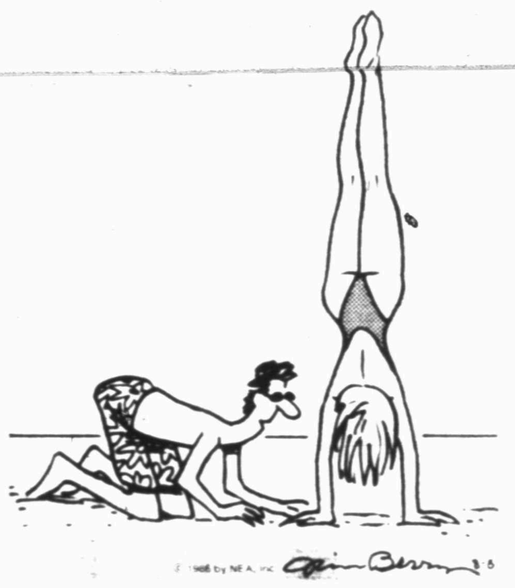

The faint odor of disinfectant still lingered in the air when the post office reopened Thursday, barely 25 hours after mail carrier Patrick Sherrill slaughtered 14 co-workers, then killed himself.

Cleaning crews had scrubbed and scoured the work room until midnight, removing all traces of the carnage.

Although employees weren't required to return to work so soon, only one stayed away the day after the massacre, said Earl Artis, the postal service's regional communications administrator.

"Everyone is going about their job dutifully, methodically," Artis said. "We're family here ... There's been quite a bit of hugging on the workroom floor."

Chemical items said being used

JAMBA, Angola (AP) — Angolan guerrillas charge that Soviet-aided government troops have begun to use chemical weapons in the country's 10-year-old civil war.

The weapons have killed three rebel fighters, blinded several others and turned leaves on trees "totally dark," Brig. Isidro Peregrino Chindondo, intelligence chief of the National Union for the Total Independence of Angola, or UNITA, said Thursday.

He said government air and ground units used a "toxic agent" in battles at Bie in June, at Lucusse in July and at Cuito Cuanavale in August.

The chemical bombs and grenades emit a yellow and green vapor, Chindondo said.

UNITA fighters learned to combat the effects of the weapons by placing wet cloth over their faces, he said.

UNITA has fought a civil war from the bush in southeastern Angola since losing a power struggle in 1975-76 to the rival Popular Movement for the Independence of Angola, or MPLA, following independence from Portugal.

Cuban troops moved into the southwestern African nation in late 1975 to back the Marxist MPLA against UNITA, which is supported by South Africa and the United States. The Cubans now number about 30,000.

There was no immediate reaction from Angola's government to the UNITA charges, made to journalists who flew from Pretoria, South Africa, to the guerrilla group's headquarters at Jamba in southeastern Angola on Thursday.

World Series of Golf...

Floyd opens strong; shares three-way lead

AKRON, Ohio (AP) - U.S. Open champion Ray Floyd likes his chances after an opening-round 66 gave him a share of the lead in the $700,000 NEC World Series of Golf.

However, he was less enthusiastic about some of the changes that have been made on the Firestone Country Club course, which features 18 rebuilt greens.

Floyd took exception to the maintainence of some of the new spectator mounds that have been built near the greens.

"These mounds are something new, in the last 10 or 12 years. Players of my age, we don't recall seeing them until recently," Floyd, who joined the PGA Tour in 1963, said.

"Now, it's fine to have the mounds for spectators. We should do things for the spectators. But cut the grass on those mounds.

"You get up on one of those in grass this deep" - he leveled a hand two feet off the ground - "and you're playing down to a fast green that slopes away from you, it just takes a player's skill away. I don't know that shot. I don't know anybody that knows that shot.

"If you've got the grass on the mounds cut back, say like the first cut of rough, then a player can use his skill, his feel, his touch."

Floyd got tangled up behind one of those mounds on the fifth hole Thursday and took a double bogey. But he got it back to par at the turn, very nearly made a hole in one on No. 12 and finished with three consecutive birdies.

That put him in a tie for the lead with Mark Wiebe and Donnie Hammond, who got around without a bogey.

Bernhard Langer of West Germany and David Ishii were at 67, three under par.

British Open champion Greg Norman led a group at 68 that also included Ben Crenshaw, Lanny Wadkins, Massy Kuramoto of Japan and Ken Green, the winner of last week's $1 million International tournament.

Ladies tourney set to begin next week

The annual Ladies' Golf Association Club Championship Tournament at Snyder Country Club will begin Tuesday, Aug. 26.

Entry fee is $15.

Format will be match play, with three flights, if enough entries are taken. The first matches will be played with tee times to be designated. The following matches may be played at the mutual convenience of the pair, with all matches to be finished by Sept. 3.

Awards will be presented at the Sept. 3 meeting. Awards include closest to the pin and closest to the line for Tuesday's play. A handicapped lame duck tournament will be played on Sept. 3 for all losers.

Deadline to register for the tournament is Monday, Sept. 1 at 6 p.m.

Entries may be made at the pro shop or by calling Jo Sterling at 573-0604.

Owen crosses plate 6 times as Bo-Sox blister Cleveland

by The Associated Press

Scoring runs, Spike Owen said, can be contagious.

Owen, Boston's newly acquired shortstop, started an epidemic Thursday night by scoring a record-tying six runs in a 24-5 victory over the Cleveland Indians. The Red Sox scored the most runs in an American League game since 1979 and had the biggest inning in the majors in three years with a 12-run sixth.

Owen, in his third game since being acquired by Boston from Seattle, tied the modern major-league record with his six runs. The last time it happened was 1957 by Frank Torre of the Milwaukee Braves.

"I can't score unless the guys behind me pick me up," said Owen, who had a solo homer among his four hits. "My feet are a little sore. I did a whole lot of running, but it was well worth it."

Other offensive stars for the Red Sox included Bill Buckner, with five hits, and Tony Armas, with six RBI on two homers - including a grand slam in the 12-run inning.

Elsewhere in the AL, Chicago edged Toronto 4-3, California defeated Detroit 6-1 and Kansas City tripped Texas 4-3. New York, which fell six games behind the Red Sox in the East, was rained out against Seattle and Oakland had a doubleheader rained out at Baltimore.

The Red Sox scored the most runs by an AL team since the Angels scored 24 times against the Toronto Blue Jays on Aug. 25, 1979. It was the most runs by one team in a major-league game since Philadelphia beat the New York Mets 26-7 on June 11, 1985.

Boston had 24 hits, three more than the highest total in the majors this year, and Cleveland pitchers issued nine walks.

The only American Leaguer to score six runs in a game was Boston's Johnny Pesky in 1946. Pesky now is a special assistant to Red Sox General Manager Lou Gorman.

Almost lost in the torrent of runs was the first victory since July 8 by Dennis "Oil Can" Boyd, 12-9, who allowed eight hits and two runs in seven innings. Boyd had lost three straight after returning from a suspension on Aug. 1.

Angels 6, Tigers 1

Mike Witt allowed only five hits in eight innings and got batting support from Bob Boone, Dick Schofield and Wally Joyner as California beat Detroit to extend its AL West lead to five games over Texas.

Royals 4, Rangers 3

Charlie Leibrandt shut out Texas over the last four innings for his 10th victory and first complete game since June 6, and Kansas City got homers from Frank White and Steve Balboni.

Balboni gave the Royals a 2-0 lead in the third inning, but the Rangers tied it in the fourth with the help of an error by Leibrandt, 10-10, who missed a tag that allowed Pete Incaviglia to reach first, then gave up an inside-the-park homer to Larry Parrish.

Center fielder Willie Wilson leaped for Parrish's drive in front of the 410-foot sign, but the ball hit him in the face and he lay stunned as Parrish circled the bases for a 2-2 tie.

White Sox 4, Blue Jays 3

Ozzie Guillen's run-scoring single broke a 3-3 tie in the top of the ninth inning as Chicago snapped Toronto's five-game winning streak.

Ailing Davis swats 2 homers to lead Reds past Cardinals

by The Associated Press

His body had done him wrong, so Eric Davis did the best he could.

His best turned out to be a two-homer, four-RBI performance that led the Cincinnati Reds to a 9-4 victory Thursday night and a sweep of their three-game series with the St. Louis Cardinals.

"My whole right side hasn't been doing me any justice," said Davis, who has suffered from pulled muscles in that side. "No matter which way I swing, I'm going to aggravate it, so I've got to block it out of my mind."

Davis now has 19 homers, including three in the last three days. The Reds also got homers from Buddy Bell, who has seven in eight games, and Nick Esasky, who homered two nights earlier to break a longball drought that dated back to July 26.

In the rest of the National League, San Francisco defeated Philadelphia 7-6, Atlanta downed Chicago 5-2 and San Diego beat Montreal 6-0.

Left-hander Chris Welsh, 5-4, did not give up a hit until Jose Oquendo led off the sixth with a single. The Cards got two in the sixth and two more in the seventh, on Terry Pendleton's two-run single, to chase Welsh.

Bell's recent home run binge has given him 16 for the season, the most since he hit 17 in 1980 for the Texas Rangers.

"I don't know how to act," Bell said. "I've never done this before. I even checked my bat once."

Giants 7, Phillies 6

San Francisco rallied for five runs in the eighth inning to snap a four-game losing streak and beat Philadelphia, which had won four in a row. The loss dropped the Phillies 19 games behind the New York Mets in the NL East.

Dan Gladden drew a bases-loaded walk, Luis Quinones hit a two-run single and Candy Maldonado drove in the tying and winning runs with a two-run double, pinning the loss on Kent Tekulve, 6-2. Mark Davis, 4-4, was the winner.

Phillies right-hander Kevin Gross took a four-hitter into the inning before loading the bases on singles by Chris Brown and Robbie Thompson and a walk to Mike Aldrete.

Rick Schu hit a two-run homer for Philadelphia.

Braves 5, Cubs 2

Atlanta won its fourth in a row, getting a two-run homer from Dale Murphy to break an eighth-inning tie. Braves right-hander Jim Acker allowed just six hits through 7 1-3 innings.

Murphy's 23rd homer came off Ed Lynch and broke a 4-4 tie. The Cubs contested the homer, saying it didn't clear the fence in left field, but second-base umpire Fred Brocklander said it had gone into the screen basket atop the wall and thus was a homer.

Acker was relieved by Paul Assemacher in the eighth, and Gene Garber pitched the final 1 1-3 innings for his 19th save.

Padres 6, Expos 0

Steve Garvey hit his 18th home run, a three-run shot in the third inning, to help pitchers Dave Dravecky and Gene Walter hand the Montreal Expos their fifth straight loss with a five-hit shutout. Terry Kennedy also homered for the Padres.

Dravecky, 9-10, gave up three hits in five innings before leaving with a stiff back. Walter finished up, allowing the other two Montreal hits.

Kevin McReynolds singled in a first-inning run against Dennis Martinez, 2-5, for his fourth game-winning RBI in six games. McReynolds had nine RBI in the three-game series and batted .455.

Players express anger over new Padre policy

SAN DIEGO (AP) - The latest tact in an anti-drug crusade by the management of the San Diego Padres has alienated members of the team and could possibly ruin the future of the franchise, according to some of the players.

Padres President Ballard Smith and owner Joan Kroc announced this week they will no longer offer multiyear contracts because they don't want to take the chance of getting stuck paying off players who get involved in drugs.

The decision was in response to a July 30 ruling that drug-testing clauses in the contracts of major league players were unenforceable.

But some players say they would rather leave San Diego than remain on a year-to-year basis and point out that the Padres will remove themselves from the free agent market by denying players longterm contracts.

"They (free agents) have families they have to go home to and feed," Tim Flannery, the Padres' player representative, said Thursday. "If they can get security somewhere else, they're going to take advantage of it. Someone will give it to them. Those other clubs will lock them in."

Outfielder Tony Gwynn, who has three years left on his contract plus an option year, said he doesn't expect to remain in San Diego once his contract is up.

"When my contract runs out and I'm offered a one-year contract, I'd have to go somewhere else," Gwynn said. "I've got to think of my family and their security."

Smith called a team meeting for this afternoon, presumably to discuss the latest turmoil to hit the National League West's last-place team.

Management's intolerance of drug and alcohol abuse among its ranks is nothing new.

In 1982, Smith warned Padres second baseman Alan Wiggins after his arrest for cocaine possession that he would be finished with the team if he was involved with drugs again. Smith followed through on the threat after Wiggins' 1985 relapse and traded the base-stealing leadoff hitter to Baltimore.

In June, Smith announced a ban on alcohol in the Padres clubhouse at San Diego Jack Murphy Stadium or anywhere else in the stadium where employees of the organization might gather.

Smith said the move was due solely to liability risks in case a team employee should get in an alcohol-related accident after leaving the stadium. The consensus among players, however, is that it was aimed at controlling their lives off the field.

Compounding the latest issue is Smith's declaration that the Padres won't try to acquire Montreal's Tim Raines because of the outfielder's 1982 bout with cocaine.

In scrimmage at Stamford...

Tigers test Vernon tonight

Snyder's Ragin' Tigers were making preparations this morning for tonight's scrimmage with Vernon.

The Tigers are scheduled to face the Lions at 6 p.m. in Stamford. A junior varsity scrimmage is slated for 5 p.m.

"We're looking for people to take charge of the positions we've given them," said Coach Dennis Tomlin. "We have several places that are real close in workouts. We tell our kids this is their opportunity to make a move. We go by what we see in scrimmage and on film."

The schools plan on running 20 plays (on offense and defense) with the first team units, then 20 with the second teams, another 20 with the first teams again, and another 20 with the second units. Coach Tomlin said the coaches plan to look at every Tiger player.

"We also want to know what kind of quality do we have in depth behind the starters. Can we count on them to fill a position if we need them too? Then, we try to evaluate how well they are doing what we ask them to do. If we trying to get them to do certain things running the sweep, are they doing that?

"And we're looking for hitters," said Tomlin. "We want to find out who our really aggressive football players are."

The coach stressed that players who are considered first-team now, might not be after the scrimmage.

"Last year we found some starters in the scrimmage that were not starters when we went into it," he pointed out. "The first scrimmage is always exciting. You always find a few players who suprise you."

Tomlin said the staff will also keep a close watch on the players' stamina.

"The scrimmage should give us a real good indication of where we are in our physical condition. It should let us know whether we need to be working harder or whether we're on about the right time schedule."

Snyder could be without two all-district performers. Dwayne Murdock, senior tackle, is still suffering a groin injury. Trey Tippens, defensive end, has a fractured bone in his right hand. Both are considered doubtful.

The Tigers are also scheduled to scrimmage Colorado City sometime next weekend, although the date has not been firmed up yet.

Snyder opens its season Sept. 5 at Tulia.

The first home game is a district contest with Fort Stockton on Sept. 19.

Higgins star agrees to play for Dusters

Bonnie Detrixhe, a four-time all-district selection from Higgins, has elected to play basketball for Coach Kelly Chadwick's WTC Dusters this season.

An all-around athlete, Detrixhe was a regional triple jump qualifer as a freshman, junior and senior. She participated in track and basketball for four years, and earned MVP honors in both sports as a senior.

BONNIE DETRIXHE

The 5-8 athlete averaged 19 points and 7 rebounds during her high school career.

She was also a cheerleader for four years, a member of the National Honor Society for three, and was football homecoming queen as a senior.

She was a class valedictorian all four years at Higgins High School.

"Bonnie can play either point guard or as our second guard," said Coach Chadwick. "She is an outstanding shooter. She has tremendous range and is accurate up to 20 feet. She is very quick and has great hands. We'd like for her ballhandling skills to get better. She played the post and the perimeter in high school. She's very strong and exceptionally intelligent."

Detrixhe plans to major in business.

Walker not expected to play as Pokes try Steelers tonight

IRVING, Texas (AP) - Herschel Walker may be the new star attraction of the Dallas Cowboys, but fans at Texas Stadium and a national television audience probably will have to settle for Tony Dorsett tonight.

Walker, who was one of the USFL's bright spots, began practicing with the Cowboys this week but is likely to remain on the sidelines, leaving the tailback duties to Dorsett.

The kickoff is scheduled for 7 p.m. CDT. The game will be telecast by ABC.

Dorsett, who asked to be traded and then apologized after Walker signed a $5 million contract with the Cowboys, reversed himself this week and asked again to be traded. Dorsett makes $450,000 a year.

"Obviously, you're investing money for the future," Coach Tom Landry said in explaining Walker's salary and the Cowboys' refusal to trade Dorsett. "Herschel could become the Dorsett of the future. That's the only way you can think about this."

The Cowboys and the Steelers are both winless during the NFL preseason - Dallas is 0-3 and Pittsburgh 0-2. But neither Landry nor Pittsburh counterpart Chuck Noll seems overly concerned.

"I think our players still think they can win even though we haven't won anything this year. Obviously, it would help if we could win a game here pretty soon," said Landry.

The Cowboys have suffered through an offensive drought, and finally scored their first touchdown in a 24-19 loss to the Raiders last week after just two field goals in its two previous losses.

The Steelers, 0-2, opened the exhibition season with a loss to the Bears before falling to Washington 27-24 last Friday. But Noll said he was "happy with the progress we made" in the Washington game.

The contest could be the first real test for the Steelers No. 1 pick, 280-pound offensive guard John Rienstra, who saw only limited action against the Redskins after a 26-game holdout.

Noll said he would once again use three quarterbacks against the Cowboys, starting with veteran Mark Malone. Scott Campbell and rookie Bubba Brister also will see some time, Noll said.

The Steelers had a five-game regular and post-season winning streak against Dallas snapped last Oct. 13 when the Cowboys won 27-13 for their first victory over Pittsburgh since 1972. The Steelers defeated the Cowboys twice in Super Bowls - in 1975 and 1979, but neither team has been to a Super Bowl in the '80s.

Flores thinks schedule can work for McCallum

LONG BEACH, Calif. (AP) - Napoleon McCallum has been cleared to moonlight as a professional football player with the Los Angeles Raiders.

Now, it will be up to the Raiders to find a way to implement the running back's talents into their game plan - without interfering with the demands of the Navy.

"I'm optimistic it can be done," Raiders Coach Tom Flores said Thursday.

Having two jobs, McCallum suggested, isn't all that unique. "It's just that my second employment is far more visible than most people's second job," he said.

McCallum was not selected until the fourth round of last spring's college draft because it was expected that he would not be able to play in the NFL until his five-year military tour of duty was completed.

Almost overnight, his schedule suddenly appears to be convenient for his NFL career to begin immediately.

"I'm going to be able to practice with the team every day and be able to attend games ... I won't be able to come to the morning meetings," McCallum said at a news conference. "But if they allow it, I can do that after practice."

As an ensign, McCallum will work from 5 a.m. to 2 p.m. Monday through Friday while his ship, the USS Peleliu, remains at Long Beach, although he will also be required to stand 24-hour watches every fifth day.

Those watches, he said, can be traded with other junior officers.

McCallum, who is undergoing orientation as a supply officer aboard the Peleliu, received permission Wednesday from the Navy to spend his off-duty hours at that second job - playing for the Raiders.

Meeting the media at the Long Beach Naval Station, McCallum said he was "happy" about the decision by Secretary of the Navy John F. Lehman.

But the 23-year-old former U.S. Naval Academy running back also tried to downplay the significance of the decision.

"It's really nothing that big," said McCallum, who graduated from Annapolis last January.

when, after pitching in 13 straight games, he got the night off Thursday as the Rangers dropped a 4-3 decision to Kansas City. He holds the American League record.

Both Mohorcic and Marshall made 13 straight relief appearances. Marshall did it from June 18 to July 3, 1974.

"Yeah, it's kind of disappointing," said Mohorcic, nicknamed "Horse" by his teammates. "But this is a team game. Worrying about individual records is not good at all."

Mohorcic began his streak Aug. 6 in Baltimore. He pitched 14 innings during the streak, going 0-1 with two saves and a 3.95 earned run average.

Raiders sparked by thoughts of semifinal loss to Patriots

by The Associated Press

Thanks to what happened last Jan. 5, the Los Angeles Raiders consider it more than just another exhibition game when they meet the New England Patriots.

The two teams play tonight at the Los Angeles Coliseum for the first time since the Patriots beat the Raiders 27-20 in that AFC semifinal playoff game last January. Two games later, New England was in the Super Bowl and the Raiders were harboring bitter memories of what happened on and off the field.

The memories include two things - six turnovers that led to the defeat and the post-game melee involving Matt Millen and Howie Long of the Raiders and Patriots general manager Pat Sullivan over Sullivan's taunting of Long from the sidelines during the game.

"It was a game we thought we should have won," Los Angeles cornerback Mike Haynes said. "The way we lost, of course it stuck in our craw. We thought we were a much better team."

"It's a great disappointment anytime you lose a game you shouldn't have lost," Long said. "We just didn't get it done."

There are two other exhibition games tonight - Pittsburgh at Dallas and Minnesota at Seattle.

Then the third weekend continues Saturday with Washington at Tampa Bay; Green Bay at Cincinnati; Miami at Philadelphia; Cleveland at Atlanta; the New York Jets at the New York Giants; Detroit at Indianapolis; Buffalo at Kansas City; New Orleans at Houston; St. Louis at Chicago; San Francisco at Denver and San Diego at the Los Angeles Rams.

The Raiders are 1-1 so far this year after going 1-3 in each of the last three preseasons. The Patriots are 3-0 and Coach Raymond Berry says he'll go all the way with starting quarterback Tony Eason.

"I just feel like he needs the work," Berry said of Eason. "You've got to get your No. 1 ready to play."

Marc Wilson, who missed practice earlier this week with a sprained right wrist, will be the starter for the Raiders.

Fans probably won't get to see the Cowboys' Herschel Walker - except standing on the sidelines in civilian clothes.

Neither team has won a game yet - the Cowboys are 0-3 and Steelers 0-2 - but neither Coach Tom Landry of Dallas nor Coach Chuck Noll of Pittsburgh says he's worried.

"I think our players still think they can win even though we haven't won anything this year," said Landry, whose team finally scored its first touchdown in a 24-19 loss to the Raiders last week after just two field goals in its two previous losses.

Tommy Kramer will start at quarterback for Minnesota, 2-0, despite a sore elbow. The Vikings will also revamp the offensive line, including giving ex-USFL star Gary Zimmerman his first start, at left tackle.

The Seahawks, 1-1, also have offensive line problems. Right tackle Bob Cryder is still a holdout and left tackle Ron Essink has an injured elbow.

With Essink's return uncertain, the Seahawks have switched guard Alvin Powell, a former USFL player to left tackle, where he has no experience.

Oilers close training camp but haven't signed Everett

SAN ANGELO, Texas (AP) - The Houston Oilers closed down their training camp on the Angelo State University campus and are back in Houston where they will face the New Orleans Saints in the Astrodome Saturday night.

But the Oilers are returning without a contract for their No. 1 draft pick Jim Everett.

Houston Oilers General Manager Ladd Herzeg and Marv Demoff, Everett's agent, will meet in Houston next week but neither party is confident of reaching an agreement quickly.

Demoff is seeking a $3.7 million, four-year contract for Everett, a Purdue quarterback who was the third player selected in the April 30 NFL draft.

The Oilers are offering less than the $2.35 million contract signed by Atlanta rookie Tony Casillas, the second player chosen in the draft.

"The meeting is important, but I don't feel either Ladd or myself is very confident that we'll reach a joyful resolution," Demoff said.

Herzeg and Demoff have not met since July.

"Marvin feels the Chuck Long contract has no bearing on the Everett situation," Herzeg said. "We feel it does. It clearly establishes the market."

Long, a quarterback first round selection of the Detroit Lions, signed a four-year, $1.65 million contract. Long was the 12th player selected in the first round.

Meanwhile, Oilers' thoughts are on their date with the Saints.

New Orleans is 1-1 under new coach Jim Mora. Houston is 2-0 under first year coach Jerry Glanville.

Glanville said rookie wide receiver Ernest Givins of Louisville, the team's second-round draft pick, would start ahead of veteran Tim Smith against the Saints.

"Nobody's being benched," Glanville said. "We just want to see how far Givins has come. When you're on the second team, you're not working with the starting quarterback. We want him working with Warren (Moon) out of the box."

The Oilers close out their exhibition schedule Aug. 30 against the Dallas Cowboys and open the regular season Sept. 7 at Green Bay.

Side effects of gold shots

By Peter H. Gott, M.D.

DEAR DR. GOTT — I have gotten gold shots once a month for about three years for my rheumatoid arthritis. This has done the job, but will this treatment damage my liver or cause other problems?

DEAR READER — Gold often gives considerable relief to patients with rheumatoid arthritis. However, the drug — in either injection or pill form — does present some dangers. And, in my experience, these dangers are relatively common.

Gold can be toxic to the kidneys; it can cause a form of hepatitis (liver inflammation), generalized weakness, intestinal upset, lung injury, eye damage and severe ulcers in the mouth. Gold can depress the blood-forming cells of the bone marrow, causing various blood disorders. It frequently causes marked skin reactions, consisting of diffuse redness, itching and inflammation, sometimes followed by exfoliation (shedding) of skin, hair and nails.

If your doctor checks your urine before each injection, obtains blood tests at periodic intervals and alerts you to the early danger signs of rash and mouth ulcers, you can continue to take the medicine. I advise you to learn as much as you can about the drug. Ask your pharmacist or doctor for the package insert describing the potential complications of gold therapy.

DEAR DR. GOTT — I have had a persistent infection on the upper part of the glans of the penis for about a year and a half. The doctors says it is nothing and will go away. I have been found negative for syphilis and gonorrhea. I am bisexual. The doctors assure me that I do not have herpes or any of the symptoms of AIDS. What should I do next?

DEAR READER — Any bisexual male with a genital sore has a sexually transmitted disease (STD) until proved otherwise. I think you should take this symptom very seriously. I don't agree with any doctor who tells you to ignore the condition, especially since you have had it for 18 months. Got to an STD or venereal-disease clinic for examination. Most state public-health departments — and many private hospitals — offer free services in these clinics, and the facilities are staffed by experts who should be able to diagnose your condition or refer you to a specialist if necessary.

DEAR DR. GOTT — Can a lot of tension in the neck cause nerve damage? I have so much tension there that I get headaches and dizziness, and this affects my eyes.

DEAR READER — Neck tension is a ubiquitous human ailment. It is caused by muscle contraction and will not affect any nerves. However, in the event that your neck tension may be caused by a treatable physical condition — such as arthritis or poor circulation — I advise you to see a doctor. If everything checks out all right, you might want to consider specific ways to reduce muscle tension, including massage, trigger-point therapy, hypnosis, counseling, behavioral alteration or biofeedback.

DIVERTICULAR DISEASE is a common problem, and Dr. Gott's new Health Report tells how it can be treated and managed. For your copy, send $1 and your name and address to P.O. Box 2597, Cincinnati, OH 45201. Be sure to mention the title.

Danbury bank ordered closed

DANBURY, Texas (AP) — Liberal lending practices contributed to the failure of the Danbury Bank, the 15th bank in Texas to shut down this year, the state banking commissioner said.

The bank was shut down Thursday afternoon and the Federal Deposit Insurance Corp. was named receiver, FDIC spokesman Alan Whitney said. Its deposits will be assumed by Danbury State Bank, which was scheduled to open today, he said.

Depositors of the failed bank automatically will become depositors with Danbury State Bank, a newly chartered subsidiary of PJD Bancshares Inc. in Louise, Texas, Whitney said.

The old bank, which had assets of $9.6 million, was closed at 2 p.m. Thursday by Texas Banking Commissioner James L. Sexton.

According to a statement released from Sexton's office in Austin, liberal lending practices coupled with inadequate loan administration resulted in losses exceeding the institution's capital funds.

The bank sustained significant loan losses on speculative real estate investments outside the bank's trade area and insider-related credits, the statement said.

2nd convicted killer is executed in Texas

HUNTSVILLE, Texas (AP) — Larry Smith, convicted of killing a Dallas convenience store co-manager during a $25 holdup, was put to death by injection early today, the second condemned man to be executed in Texas in 48 hours.

"All I want to do is tell my mother that I love her," Smith said in his final statement. "I also want to tell the other guys on death row to continue their struggle to get off death row."

He was pronounced dead at 12:24 a.m., Attorney General Jim Mattox said.

Smith, 30, from Dawson County in West Texas, was executed for the 1978 robbery-slaying of Mike Mason, who was shot in the back of the head after he said he could not open a store safe.

Smith's brother, Gloster, 28, is serving a life prison term for his participation in the same robbery.

Mason's widow, Marilynn, was across the street from the prison as the execution took place.

"I'm relieved," she said. "But I did cry."

She said she earlier had asked to watch Smith die, but was told corrections department rules barred her presence in the death chamber.

"There's no logical reason why Mike should be dead," she said of her husband. "The one thing he can't take away is my love for Mike and the time I spent with Mike. He took Mike but can't take away those things."

She said she sat through two trials and three execution dates.

"Every time something comes up, it opens up my husband's grave," she said. "I want to make sure it's closed forever."

Attorneys for the former laborer argued his execution date was set improperly because Smith was informed of it by mail and not in an open court hearing.

The U.S. Supreme Court, however, rejected the last-day plea. Smith's attorney, Craig Washington, decided not to seek a 30-day reprieve from Gov. Mark White, who has never granted such requests in previous capital cases.

The condemned man selected a final meal of steak smothered in gravy, french fries, lemon pie and a Coke.

Smith, who had refused requests for interviews in the weeks before his execution, became the seventh Texas inmate to die this year and the 17th since the state resumed the death penalty in 1982. The 17 made Texas the leader — one ahead of Florida — among states which have carried out capital punishment since the Supreme Court allowed executions to resume in 1976.

Smith's execution came just 48 hours after Randy Lynn Woolls was put to death early Wednesday for the 1979 robbery-slaying of a drive-in movie cashier in Kerrville.

Another death row inmate, Chester Lee Wicker, faces execution early Tuesday for the 1980 death of a woman who was abducted from Beaumont and buried alive on a beach near Galveston.

Mattox said it was likely Wicker also would die.

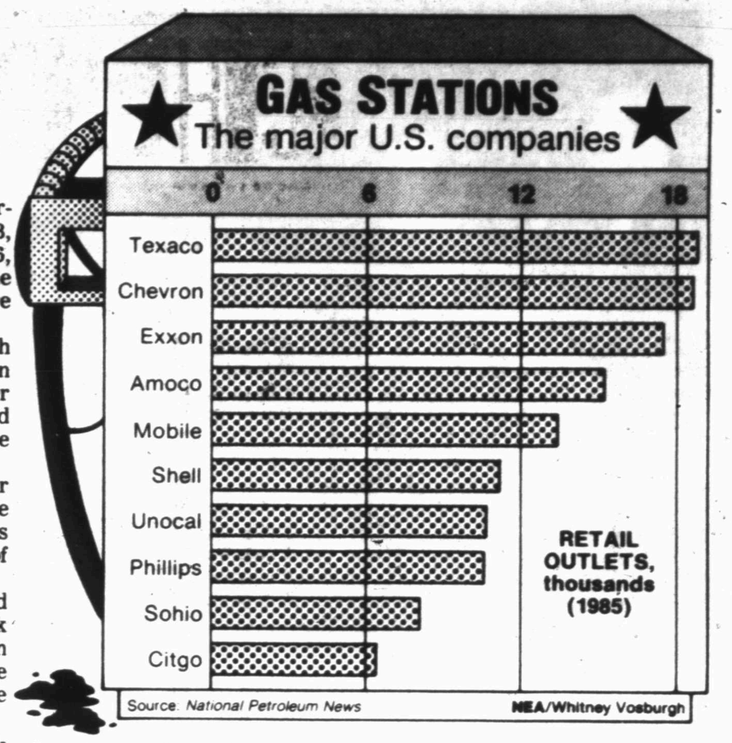

Smith was 22 when he was arrested for the Feb. 2, 1978, robbery-slaying of Mason, 26, who was gunned down during the 3 a.m. holdup of a 7-Eleven store he co-managed.

According to testimony, Smith and his brother demanded Mason turn over money in a cash drawer and a safe. Mason surrendered the $25 in the register but said he could not open the safe.

As the clerk lay on the floor face down, he was shot in the back of the head. Smith also was identified by Fred Norris, one of Mason's co-workers.

"The man is a cold-blooded killer," State District Judge Jack Hampton, who set the execution date, said. "We could try the case 10 times and we'd get the same result."

Smith was a parolee from Colorado prison where he served three years of a 20- to 30-year sentence.

Pumping gasoline at the most stations throughout America is Texaco. Next are Chevron and Exxon. Many gas stations of all kinds responded to the drop in oil prices by adding on convenience stores, fast-food outlets and other new retail ventures.

Critics responding to Libyan remarks

AUSTIN (AP) — Former President Gerald Ford says he was surprised and shocked when the Texas Democratic Party chairman sought to link former Gov. Bill Clements' stock holdings with Libya and terrorism.

Calling it a "desperate political attack" on Clements, Ford said Thursday, "I feel so strongly about this that I have offered, and Bill has accepted, to campaign in Texas on his behalf. I'm clearing my calendar and I'm coming to Texas."

But Democratic Chairman Bob Slagle stood by his remarks, saying neither Clements, the GOP gubernatorial candidate, nor his defenders is answering the key question.

"Why don't they answer the simple question? Why doesn't he (Clements) sell all his Schlumberger stock or, as a principal stockholder, get his company out of Libya?" asked Slagle.

Slagle, a Sherman lawyer, told a news conference Wednesday that Clements should rid himself of $25.7 million worth of stock in Schlumberger Ltd., a multinational oil well services company he said does business in Libya.

"All I asked him to do was what the president asked all Americans to do — quit doing business with the Libyans. They don't have money to buy weapons from the Soviets or export terrorism if they don't have that oil revenue," Slagle said in a phone interview Thursday.

The reaction from Republicans was heated.

Henry Kissinger, secretary of state while Clements was deputy defense secretary for Ford, said Clements was a tough opponent of terrorism.

"Gov. Clements was, while in the Defense Department, an implacable foe of terrorism in general and (Libyan leader Moammar) Gadhafi in particular. He remains so today," Kissinger said.

Clements said Slagle's charge was designed to help Gov. Mark White's re-election effort against Clements, who was ousted by the Democrat in 1982.

"My opponent's desperate strategy of trying to link me with Gadhafi, Libya and terrorism does not surprise me. It does, however, disappoint me," Clements said.

Added U.S. Sen. Phil Gramm, R-Texas, "To question Bill Clements' patriotism ... is patently absurd. Bob Slagle and Mark White are on the verge of losing an election, and this incredible attack simply highlights their desperate situation."

White had little to say about the charges Slagle made.

"I haven't any remarks to make about that. I am unaware of any of his investments and don't have any comment to make about that," White said.

Reggie Bashur, Clements' press secretary, called the move "a sleazy thing to do," and said Clements' business interests shouldn't be an issue in the gubernatorial race.

While acknowledging Schlumberger does "a small amount of business there (Libya)," Bashur said, "It's my understanding Schlumberger is not an American company, it's multi-national. They do business in some 100 countries around the world.

"If President Reagan thought it was in the best interest of the United States to flatten Libya, Bill Clements would be the first to stand and cheer," Bashur said.

Schlumberger spokesman Jim Smith in Houston said he didn't know how much business the company did in Libya, but confirmed it does have activity in the Arab nation.

"They have a Schlumberger subsidiary that works in Libya. We have been working in Libya ever since they started looking for oil there," Smith said.

Tax shelters' plans, motivations changed

NEW YORK (AP) — People accustomed to finding ways to shrink their taxable income should start changing their habits.

The landmark tax legislation expected to become law this year marks a retreat from using the federal tax code for social and economic engineering. So it offers few credits and deductions aimed at enticing taxpayers to pay for goals deemed appropriate for the public good.

Methods some taxpayers have used to create losses and thereby shield income would be abolished. Congressional reformers targeted the abusive type of tax shelter that the Internal Revenue Service has been battling for years.

"Master recordings of films, or books, exotic nut plantations, gold mines in New Jersey and orange groves in Alaska. Those things are dead and gone and good riddance," said David A. Berenson, adjunct professor of taxation at New York University.

But less exotic, more productive ways of writing off income also would be wiped out or sharply curtailed.

"Everyone will have to rethink their whole investment strategy," said John L. Norman Jr., national director of the Pannell Kerr Forster accounting firm in Washington. "A lot of traditional tax shelters no longer make sense."

Tax sheltering would be radically transformed because losses from most "passive" pursuits could not be deducted from other income, including salaries, stock dividends and bond interest payments.

The bill defines passive shelters as limited or general partnerships in which the investor does not actively participate in management.

The passive loss provision would go into effect gradually and would be fully phased in by 1991. Starting in 1987, the legislation would permit taxpayers to use 65 percent of the losses they could deduct under current law.

"Shelters, as we've come to know them, will be gone," said James Godbout, a tax partner with the Ernst & Whinney accounting firm in Washington.

What he means is that protecting part of one's salary, or most other income, from Uncle Sam's tax bite would be much more difficult, but perhaps unnecessary, for many people because of a lower tax rate.

The purchase of tax-free municipal bonds would be one of the few shelters left largely unchanged. The ability to tuck dollars into Individual Retirement Accounts to defer taxation would be curbed.

David J. Kautter, director of the national group of the Arthur Young & Co. accounting firm, said a new strategy would be to offset losing passive investments with ones that generate income to neutralize tax liability.

As a consequence of such a strategy, investors might become less willing to put their money in riskier ventures that do not guarantee a cash return.

"I don't think that anybody is going to be going into loss-oriented deals," said Barry Salzberg, a partner in New York with the Deloitte Haskins & Sells national accounting firm.

Ask The Preacher

"Questions from a Layman on Baptism" (part 2)

The third question on our list asks, "Did you know there were 8 souls saved in the ark and water didn't touch them? The ark didn't immerse but sure was sprinkled?"

I think this question refers to 1st Pet. 3:20,21 which says,

> "...God waited patiently in the days of Noah while the ark was being built. In it, only a few people, eight in all, were saved through water, and this water symbolizes baptism, that now saves you also..."

Peter says plainly, here, that Noah and his kinfolks were saved "through water" and that represents baptism, which also saves "through water." The discussion of the ark is incidental. The form of baptism (which in the New Testament is ALWAYS immersion) is not discussed in this analogy.

The fourth question asks, "Did you know Paul said, 'I thank God that I baptized none of you'?"

This refers to Paul's statement in 1st Cor. 1:14. It's interesting that the questionner stopped short of quoting the very next phrase Paul wrote, for that verse answers this question. Paul says, in verse 15, that the reason he was thankful that he had baptized none of them, was "so no-one can say that you were baptized into MY name." You see, Paul was upset that the Corinthians were becoming followers of Paul, rather than followers of Christ. A careful reading of this passage will show that it says nothing of baptism being unimportant or unnecessary.

Hinson crafts handmade knives

to his oldest son. Others went to friends and family. Eventually, he began selling knives, and though he still welcomes the chance to sell a knife or to expand his collection, he has no plans to make a full time business out of it.

"I'm not a big knife maker and I never intend to be. I'm retired and I don't like to be rushed. If I run out of something to do, I make a knife," he said.

What makes Hinson unique is that most of the knives he crafts are folding ones. His first two knives were fixed-blade, but his third was a folding knife.

"I like to make them because to me there are so many things you have to do, and do just right, to make a folding knife. It all has to fit together just right or it won't work. If it doesn't fit right, all you have is a bunch of parts," he laughed.

"It gives you a feeling you have accomplished something. I can work eight hours straight and I don't feel like I've done a thing. I get in my little workshop there and the first thing I know, I've missed dinner time."

He admits that there aren't that many knife makers who build folding knives, but he downplays it, saying, "Well, a lot of these guys who make fixed-blade knives do all this etching and things on their blades. I don't do that. Every knife maker does things a little differently."

He says there is no comparison between even a good-quality manufactured knife and a custom one crafted by a competent knife maker.

"It's a stronger knife by far than what you can buy. My knives are 100 percent handmade."

His knives have a starting price range of around $85 for a folding "Texas Toothpick".

It takes Hinson 2 to 2½ days to make a knife, not including the tempering, though it sometimes takes longer. Ironically, the smallest knives he has made--three-quarters of an inch with the blade folded in--have taken the longest.

"These knives," he said, holding up a one-incher, "are just like my bigger knives. They are nickle-silver including the liner and the bolsters. The handle on this one is abalone pearl. They've got all the pins in them that a regular knife has and believe me, it's difficult when they are this small."

His latest knife is a gut-hook folder, and he's understandably proud of it.

"I think that's as good a hunting knife as I've seen. This may be the last design I make, I don't know. I've got about 12 or so designs I work with and that's enough for me," he said.

Hinson does custom make knives to order, however. But he doesn't advertise.

"No, that would be treating it like a business and I don't want that. I might be working like I was before. I just rely on mouth to mouth advertisement," he said.

Hinson's wife, Charlsie, doesn't participate in the hobby, but he does rely on her opinion.

"She's my critic. I show every knife I make to her and she can tell be if it looks okay. She helps me a lot. She looks for flaws I might overlook."

Theft report involves tapes

Missing tapes and a stereo prompted a misdemeanor theft report filed with police at midnight Thursday.

Eva Martinez of 1918 Coleman Ave. called to report the stereo and cassette tapes had apparently been taken from her apartment earlier in the evening.

No value was estimated for the missing merchandise.

In other action, officers arrested two female juveniles for assault and disorderly conduct around 4 p.m. Thursday.

Police were answering a disturbance call to the 600 Block of North Ave. T when they found the two girls — one age 12 and the other 16 — fighting.

Both were later released to the custody of their parents.

The Welland Canal was opened for navigation in 1887.

The Pacific cable between the United States and China was completed in 1906.

think (West Texas) is trying to steal their water," he said, "And that hasn't always been the case."

He also commented regarding the endangered specie status of the Concho River Snake, the most recent hurdle in the construction of Stacy Dam near Ballinger.

White suggested a "roundup" similar to the one held in Sweetwater as a possible answer to the river snake problem.

Following the prepared speech, White also told reporters he feels his proposed temporary increase to the state sales tax has a good chance of passage during the legislature's current special session.

The proposal is to boost the user tax from its current rate of 4⅛ to 5¼ for one year. If approved, this would begin Sept. 13.

Other state leaders have indicated stiff opposition to the proposal.

from the residence also.

A bed had apparently been slept in and evidence in the kitchen suggested cooking had been done. Items missing from the residence included an HBO converter box, a lawnmower and food taken from the freezer.

Pool closing slated Sunday

Sunday is the last day of operation this summer for the Towle Park swimming pool, county officials note.

Regular hours of operation will be observed Saturday and Sunday.

Co. E of the Texas Rangers, also presented Mize with a certificate proclaiming him as an "honorary ranger."

Powell noted it was only the fourth such certificate given in the history of the company.

Farabee also offered to Mize proclamations passed by both the state senate and house acknowledging his civic work for both his home county and the state.

The tributes to the longtime resident and businessman were summed up by Gov. White, who said in reference to Mize, "Personal leadership makes the difference."

King Henry VIII was recognized in 1531 as supreme head of the church in England.
