The motion brought the delegates to their feet. There was a pause and then the war memorial auditorium became a bedlam. Shouts and cheers mingled with the roar of drums, and throughout the din the Arkansas delegation carried the new commander on their shoulders to the platform.

children, ranging in age from 3 to 7 years, four girls and a small boy, huddled together in the court room crying for the drunken mother who cursed her eldest son as he took upon his youthful shoulders the burden of humiliation.

Over Two Billion Dollars In Stock Market Wiped Out

Panic-Stricken Speculators Throw Holdings Away In Most Drastic Decline In Recent Exchange History

BY STANLEY W. PRENOSIL
Associated Press Financial Editor
NEW YORK, Oct. 3.—A sudden wave of liquidation, striking with terrific force in the last hour of trading, today brought the most drastic decline in recent stock market history. Scores of active issue broke $5 to $25 a share, and one inactive stock tumbled $70 a share, as panic-stricken speculators, alarmed at the rapidly mounting total of brokers' losses, threw holdings overboard.

More than two billion dollars in quoted values was washed away on the New York stock exchange alone, five of the most active issues accounting for more than half a billion dollars. Sympathetic declines took place on the New York curb, where losses ran from $5 to $24 a share, and in all of the other leading security exchanges of the country.

Despite the severity of the decline, total sales on the New York stock exchange were 4,547,230 shares but nearly one third of the total changed hands in the last hour, the ticker was 40 minutes late in recording the last quotation.

The case will be held over for the next term of the 99th district court before Judge Clark M. Mullican.

Going into the hands of the jury late Wednesday afternoon, a verdict had not been reached at a late hour the same night. With the opening of court Thursday morning jury again reported no verdict. An all-day deliberation yesterday with no decision and dismissal followed.

Attorneys for the defendant were Schenck and Triplett, while the state was represented by District Attorney Durwood Bradley and Burton Burks, assistant district attorney.

Daniels, Shea said, then turned to Marvin Duncan, another captive guard, and said: "Prepare yourself to be the next to die."

Colorado National Guard Begins Mobilization At Gate Of Penitentiary; Guns Ready For Action

(By Associated Press)
CANON CITY, Colo., Oct. 3.—War, stark and vicious, opened on the Canon City convicts tonight when Colorado national guardsmen laid down a machine gun barrage to cover an advance to the "felons' stronghold" to lay a dynamite charge.

Sixty-three men, manning two machine guns and dozens of rifles poured bullets at the windows, doors and opening of cell house No. 3, where 175 convicts tonight had barricaded themselves and had slain at least four guards, tossing their bodies out of a window as a grim reminder they were a desperate lot and they were taking every means to gain their freedom.

Business Interests Favor Proposed Rail Line Of Abilene And Southern R. To San Angelo

(By Associated Press)
SAN ANTONIO, Oct. 3.—North Texas business interests favor the proposed extension of the Abilene and Southern railroad to San Angelo, it was declared at Thursday's hearing before Interstate Commerce Commission Examiner H. C. Davis.

Both H. B. Lockett, chairman of the transportation committee of the Dallas chamber of commerce, and Ed. P. Byers, traffic manager of the Fort Worth transportation bureau, testified that Dallas and Fort Worth would be benefited if the line is extended from Ballinger, present southern terminus, to San Angelo in that it is expected to provide a one-day freight service.

R. G. Waggoner, assistant engineer of the Texas and Pacific at Dallas, followed Lockett and Byers on the stand. Grady B. Ross, general attorney for the Santa Fe, of Galveston, attempted to shake Waggoner's direct testimony of Wednesday.

The forenoon session was taken up with hearing Ralph H. Harris, wealthy ranchman of San Angelo, Floyd Dodson, consulting geologist, and W. R. Marshall, agricultural agent of Tom Green county, all of whom favored the application of the Abilene and Southern.

Little Credence Placed In Anonymous Letter From New York About Martial Law Action In Borger

AUSTIN, Oct. 3. (AP)—A death threat against Governor Moody in the form of an anonymous letter directed to Chief of Police R. D. Thorpe of Austin tonight had injected another angle in efforts of authorities to clean up Borger, Texas boom town, which last week was placed under martial law by order of the chief executive.

Mailed from New York by air, the letter advised that the Governor would be slain unless he abandoned the attempt to rid the oil town of its lawless element. Police were undetermined whether the sending of the epistle was the work of a fanatic or an eastern underworld chieftain who had his trade in the rough southwestern town.

Little Credence Placed
Governor Moody was away from the capital, but Pat Daugherty, his confidential secretary, placed little credence in the threat.

The governor received many similar letters from cranks. Daugherty said, and anonymous threats are common.

A club address on the back of the letter was the only indication of its sender.

Officers planned to confer with Governor Moody about the letter on his return here tomorrow.

Crisis May Echo Stresemann Death

Possibility of Faltering in German Government Is Set Aside By Prompt Action of Handenberg

BERLIN, Oct. 3. (AP)—Possibility of a crisis within the German government resulting from the death of Foreign Minister Stresemann has been set aside by prompt action of President Von Hindenburg and by maintenance of the former "Weimar" coalition which controls a majority vote in the Reichstag, enough to adopt the Young plan law.

On news of Stresemann's death President Von Hindenburg decided to take the active leadership in the nation to avoid a crisis. The President announced he would preside personally at a special cabinet meeting called for Friday to deal with the emergency.

Meeting Held

Today's cabinet meeting under Chancellor Mueller will only be a preliminary meeting at which it will be announced the Chancellor will hold the foreign portfolio provisionally.

Either Rudolf Breitscheid, socialist member of the Reichstag, or former Chancellor Wirth, now cabinet minister of the occupied area is expected to step into Dr. Stresemann's shoes and to continue direction of German foreign policy through the period of the Young plan settlement.

Floods Fight Is Thought Victory

AUGUSTA, Ga., Oct. 3. (AP)—Striving to hold back the wall of water that has pounded at the city levee since Monday, citizens of Augusta today believed their fight against the floods of Savannah river had been won.

Although the river had reached a stage of 44.8 feet, the weather bureau officials said they expected a recession. Except for the three crevasses below the city, the levee stood intact. Some 1,500 men strengthened it with sandbags.

Span Washes Away
A span of a railroad bridge across the Savannah was washed away, along with several freight cars placed on the bridge as ballast. Several power dams in Horse Valley, across the Savannah river, were washed out, and one was dynamited to protect the little town of Graniteville, S. C.

(AP)—Two men are missing from the Seaboard Oil company barge "Tolene," which with the barge "Lubwell," was found early today 12 miles southwest of Cedar Keys, by the coast guard cutters "Ponchartraine" and "Nausituck" according to wireless messages received by George M. Bestall, superintendent of the company docks at Port Tampa, shortly before noon. Names of the missing men were not available here. Remainder of the crew, five men on the "Tolene" and seven on the "Lubwell," was in good condition. Port Arthur, Texas is home port of the barges, which became separated from the tug "Babe" during the recent hurricane. The "Babe's" engines were crippled, and the barges were cut loose. The "Babe" later was found with all her crew uninjured.

Preparation Made For Rate Hearing

Shippers And Carriers Are Collecting Statistics On Differentials Rates To Be Presented

EL PASO, Oct. 3. (AP)—Shippers and carriers, at loggerheads over freight rates in the "differential area" of west and south Texas prepared today to move their voluminous piles of tariffs, freight loading, population and production statistics to San Antonio where hearings on the petition to abolish differentials will be resumed Monday.

When railroads first ventured into the then thinly settled and little developed territory, which extends irregularly from the Panhandle of Texas to the Gulf, they were granted differential rates designed to keep them afloat while the territory was developing, according to the argument which the Texas Industrial Traffic league has made in seeking abolition of the differentials.

The league argued, in the hearing here, that the territory has improved in agriculture, industry and population until the differential no longer is necessary. Only two witnesses were heard in the final session.

Items, keeping three research experts and linguists working at fever pitch trying like mad to read his thousands of fan letters and verify every item with painstaking precision. "Believe It or Not!" becomes a general round-up of suspicious characters was started by police today in the search for the slayers of P. R. Austin, wealthy Texas cattleman, found strangled to death in his hotel room here last week. The only clue left by the slayers were fingerprints.

Spanish Prof. At Tech Back On Job

Charles B. Qualla, head of the Spanish department at Texas Technological college, has returned to this city after a year spent in Europe.

Mr. Qualla told of several of his experiences while in Madrid. At various times student riots were held protesting interference of the government in running the universities. As a result of the riots the university was closed, but the matter was settled and the university opened again in July for examinations.

It is understood that the song is of a more or less informal nature and capable of arousing the spirit of the student body when sung. Student officials are anxious that a song shall be adopted in the near future as the absence of one at games and other informal occasions has been recently felt.

Entries of Tom Cooper's Farm, Ardmore, Okla., were awarded a total of $770, highest prize figures in the Guernsey cattle division at conclusion of dairy judging Thursday afternoon at the Panhandle South Plains fair.

Greatest interest of the dairy show was concentrated upon the Guerneys, said Roy B. Davis, of Brownfield, superintendent of the dairy cattle division of the fair. CHICAGO, Oct. 3. (AP)—James Vlastnik, 20, asks of his parents only one simple boon—that they keep their hands out of his pay envelope.

The young man has taken the matter to court, explaining he earns $65 a week but that his parents allow him only $8 of it. The other $57, he said, goes for an automobile and other luxuries for their enjoyment. He complained he hadn't had a new suit in 18 months and he was obliged to go barefoot, having no funds to buy shoes.

He asks the court to compel the mater and pater to leave him and his $65 alone.

They Braved Blizzards For Gold--Found Poorhouse

Aged Klondike Vets Look Back On Days Of '98

By NEA Service.

SEATTLE, Wash., Oct. 3.—Here in the King county poor farm are 16 tired old men whose eyes still reflect the shine of a lost dream as they live on Seattle's charity—paupers waiting for the end.

Thirty years ago they went to the Klondike in the great Alaskan gold rush of '98, when any man who was lucky could make himself a millionaire by following a gleam through the long, frost-bitten valleys.

They went north for gold—went north to make themselves rich—and now, 30 years after, they are in the poorhouse!

Sixteen of them there are; 16 old men, stooped and weary, not at all like the 16 hardy fortune hunters who were so sure, so very sure, once upon a time, that they were going to stumble right across the rainbow's end.

They went after gold, and they found gold. Some of them found just a little and some of them found a good deal. But all of them lost what they had found. Here they are, the 16 gold-seekers who stormed the Klondike in the day when Dawson and Skagway and the Yukon were words like sunset calls—here they are, inmates of the county farm, with nothing left to do but talk over old times and figure up the chances they missed.

He Missed Fortune

By Merest Chance
One old chap, the dean of the lot, can remember even before the days of '98. He lived in Alaska before any one knew there was gold there. As he sits here with his cronies, penulise, he has the consolation of knowing that 10 years before gold was discovered, he pitched his camp in the Klondike on the very spot where George Carmack was to make the gold discovery that set the world mad.

"Furs and trading with the natives, was our job then," he explains. "Mebbe the Indians always knew there was gold there. I don't know. I never seen an Indian yet excited about prospectin'. Sensible, ain't they?"

Then there is another one, named F. Martin, whose Indian partner, in '96, tipped him off to a good location near Cook's Inlet, where hundreds of thousands of dollars worth of the yellow metal was fairly crying to be taken out of the ground. He located there with the Indian. Then the Indian, needing whiskey, sold out to a stranger for $10—and the stranger froze Martin out.

"Every man has one break in life," says Martin. "Every man has one real chance. That was mine. It never came again. I tried my hand at Porcupine, up above Kluckwan, and later in Ruby and Iditarod. But I never dug up was the other broke—Best Clings To Gold Stickpin"

Bob McDonald is the Beau Brummel of the place. He still has a visible memento of the gold he used to own—a gold nugget stickpin which he wears in his spotted tie every day, refusing to part with it even though he is in a poor farm. It was the first nugget he and his partner "panned" on Bonanza creek.

"Sort of a keep-sake," he says. "When I finger it, sometimes, it helps me to remember I wasn't always like this."

These 16 Klondikers can remember the wild days of the boom town; the wild days of Skagway and Dawson City, when there were a dozen poker games in every saloon, and the players made their bets in pure gold dust, staking incredible sums on a single draw, shoving the gold they'd risked their lives for out on the bare tables to back their luck. They've played in such games, these 16, and they still play.

Play Poker Now

For Burnt Matches
The Klondikers play it often—with burnt matches for stakes!

"There was one player here, a few months ago, though, who was different. He came to the farm as a 'Kid' Brown, erstwhile dance hall proprietor at Valdez, and a spectacular gambler when the Klondike was in its heyday. He was broke, old and sick when he got here—but he still loved poker, and he used to play gaily with the other burnt match gamblers.

"Kid Brown's down, but he won't be out until the doctor counts 10," he used to tell them. Then he'd explain that he still had an interest in fabulous Wyoming oil properties. Some day, he'd say, he would be rich. They liked to hear him. He kept their spirits up, even if it was sort of absurd.

Then, one day, a lawyer called to see him. Brown signed certain papers and went away with the lawyer. A little later it was learned that his Wyoming oil properties had begun to pay. Now he is in Wyoming, worth a quarter of a million.

But he was the exception. The rest of us haven't any hope.

Two Women Are Among Veterans

There are two Klondike women here, too.

One is Mrs. Harriet Duran, graduate of a famous Boston music school. Her husband is still in Alaska, sending her, from time to time, what money he can, and writing hopefully of "getting a stake" and coming back to rescue her.

The other is Mrs. Annie Duran. Her memories of Alaska are bitter. Her husband, a Wisconsin railroader, took the gold fever in '98. They sold their comfortable home and went to Alaska together. Their two children are buried up there. Her husband failed to find gold, they came back to the states broke, then he died. Now she is in the poor farm with the others.

"Lost my family in a fire up Hunker Creek was Hunker's near Dawson. Cashing gold away with nobody you love to spend it on ain't what the poets say," he remarks.

Then there is Mike Hasset. For seven years he was the prosperous bossman of the rich Alaska-Juneau mining properties. He came back to the states well-to-do. Then he hit bad luck, lost his health, slid into the county hospital, and finally landed here in the poor farm.

"Teeth That Don't Fit"
Free Worry-Now
Mike Scanlon, perhaps expressed the spirit of the 16. He said: "Ain't good for old folks to be hatching round together always. Whomever thought, tramp! in the snow over Chilkoot Pass, that we'd be sittin on iron bunks in a place like this, complainin of cheap grub that don't fit, and so broke that hagin a paper is as serious as havin it in a ticket round the world!"

"Well, boys we had our fling. Got me out of it then the fellows that stayed at home nursin their bank account. I've no regrets. And if I had a good sure grubstake next spring I'd be hittin it up for a little old creek in back of Haines. Maybe I kerna darned well there'd hold there."

That's Mike Scanlon's attitude. Mike doesn't care much about poetry, but perhaps the poet who wrote the following had someone like him in mind:

They sit at home and they dream and daily
Baking the embers of long dead years.
But you go down to the Haunted Valley
Light-hearted pioneers
They hear your songs as an un-known tongue
But the Flame of God through your spirit stirs

How to Achieve Beauty

BY MISS HELENA RUBINSTEIN

I cannot over-emphasize the importance of the morning bath as a builder of health and beauty. For the best results, it should follow your morning exercises. While your body is all a-tingle, smooth over the face and neck with a little cleansing cream, or better still, a stimulating skin food, and then you are ready for the bath. It may be either a tub or a shower, warm or cold; but whatever your choice, the morning bath should be a brisk affair—a quick plunge into the tub, or a few minutes under the shower. If you can possibly stand it, do at least finish with a cold shower. Words simply cannot describe the exhilaration of a cold shower! The shock of cold water on your warm body—the quick rush of blood through every vein—it's as good as a tonic any day! Follow with a brisk rub-down with a rough towel, and your whole body will glow with vitality and tingle with life and well-being.

Brush the teeth and gums with a small tooth brush, using a downward stroke for the upper jaw, an upward stroke for the lower jaw.

men you might see on any city street at the lunch hour—probably few of them ever really mopped floors. Certainly in that arbitrary division of what was man's work, and what was woman's that must have occurred shortly after the stone age, women drew the mopping along with the baking and brewing.

Of the women passing by there must have been many moppers, or if not, there were many who had gone to work outside their homes in order to pass this drudgery on to others.

But the women walked by. If they were interested in scrubbing, they were interested in their own particular lincolns and their particular floors. The subject, abstractly, had no interest for them. I could vision them stopping a little further on to view a rather marvelous collection of off-the-face hats a little further up the street.

DIFFERENT METHODS
It is my observation that women are much less interested in labor savers and inventions than men are, even though it is their time that is saved. I know a man who could never resist a new can opener—he was completely fascinated by the mechanics of them and bought dozens, who never could tell his wife to use anything but an old broken one she got when she started housekeeping.

His new contributions were always pegged to the storehouse as soon as his interest in them was over. And it occurs to me that the great difference in men and women workers is not the mutual way they do the work, but the way they attack it.

Most women want to get let and done—and to stay that way. The woman who is interested in her job, however, and who is not content with merely getting it done, is the woman who is interested in the details of her work. She is the woman who is interested in the details of her work. She is the woman who is interested in the details of her work.

MEN'S CURIOSITY
Then, coming back to reality, I became aware that there was not one woman, except myself and my sister, who was interested in the details of her work. The other women in that group of spectators, although the sidewalk beyond was crowded with them, were interested in the details of their work. They were the typical group of

Rio Grande Corporation Is Named As Defendant For Alleged Breach Of Contract In Upton County

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 3. (AP)—A suit against the Rio Grande Oil company and Rudeolph Grossenbacher, charging breach of contract and asking $750,000 was on file here today. The action was instituted by Ralph H. Moore.

In his complaint Moore states he purchased a one-sixth interest in an Upton county, Texas, oil lease in October, 1926, entering into an agreement with the Rio Grande company to drill five wells to a depth of at least 2,500 feet. Moore charged the Rio Grande company abandoned the property after preliminary drilling.

but is now producing oil from its own wells less than half a mile away. The complaint contends that, due to the topography of the land, the Rio Grande wells are draining the land in which he is interested, damaging him to the extent of $750,000. He explains he named Grossenbacher a defendant because the latter declined to join him in the suit.

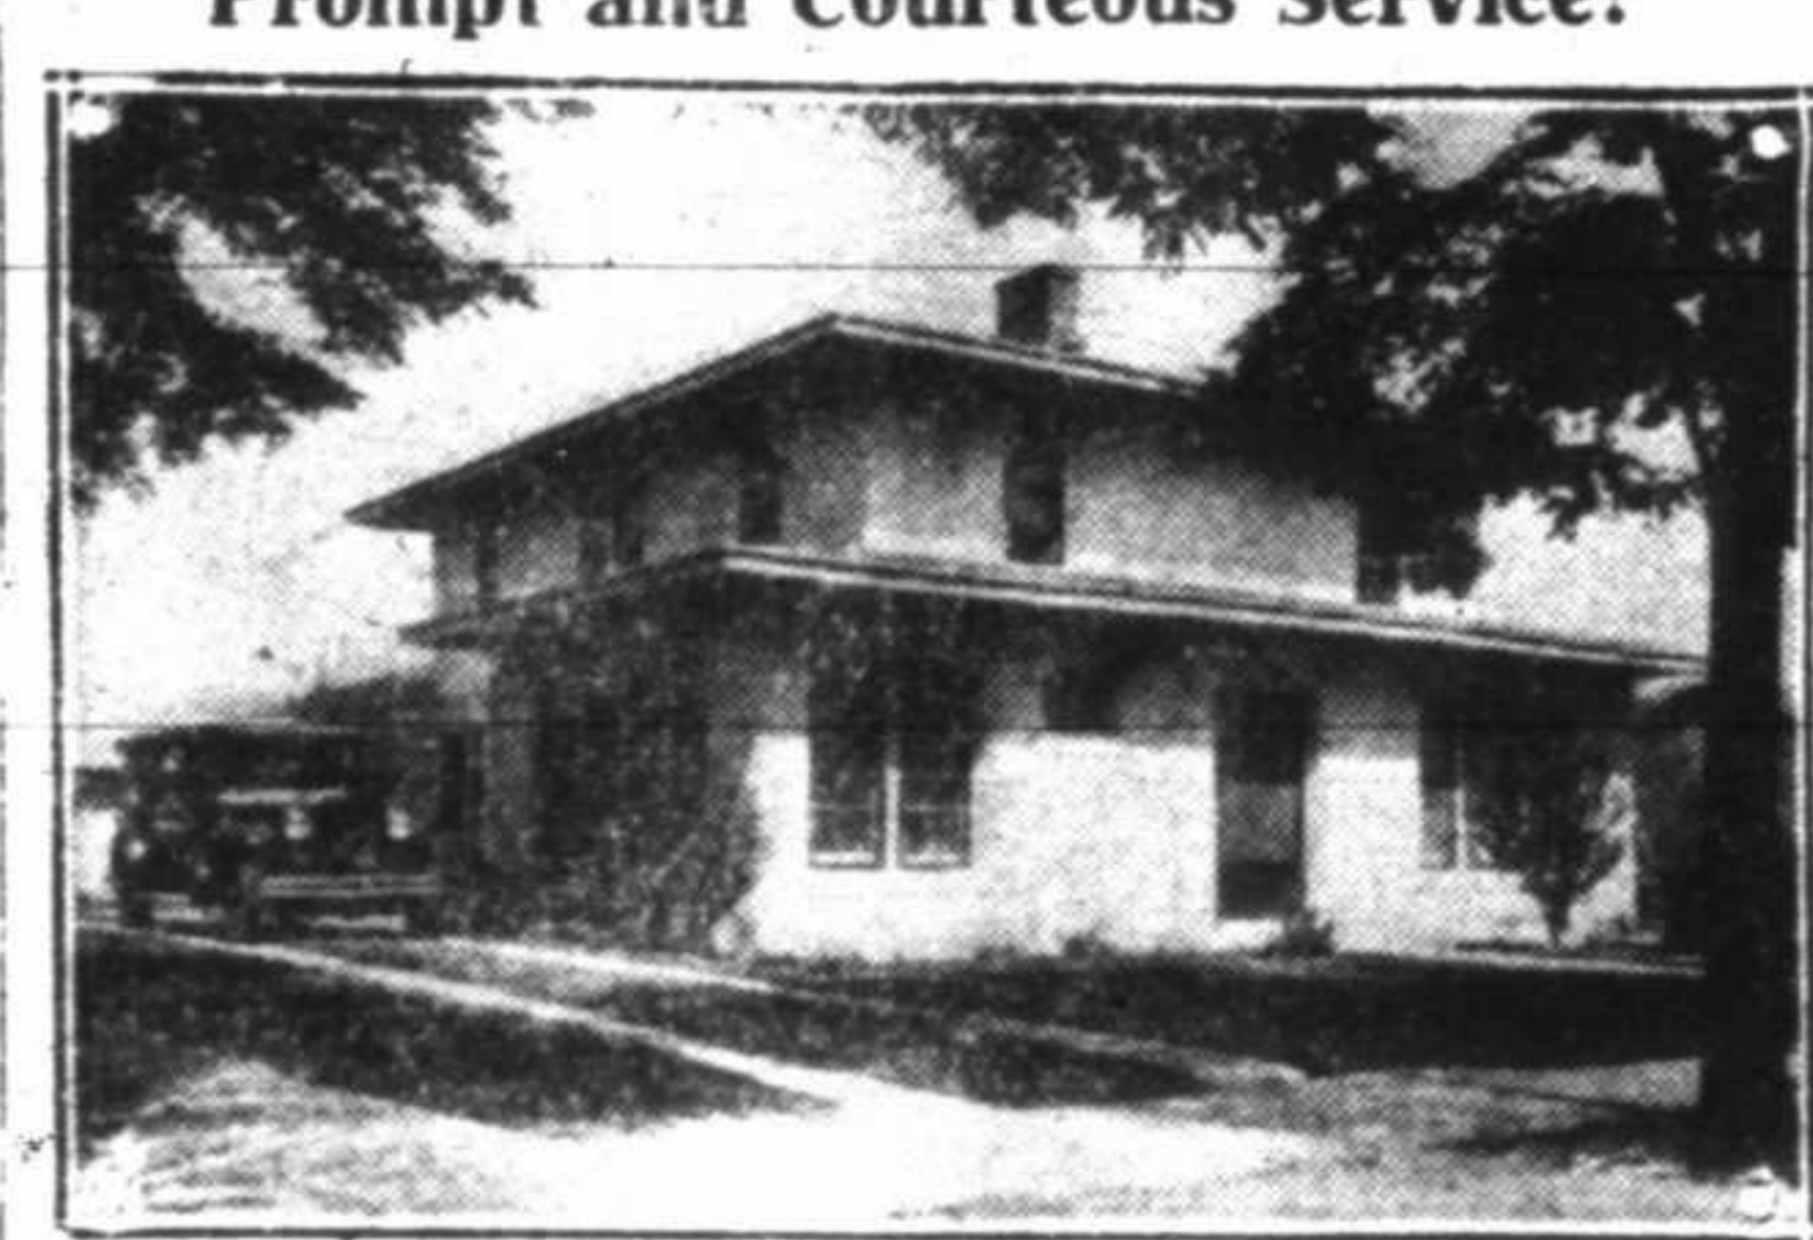

The Rio Grande company recently successfully defended suits directed against its holding in the Elwood field, west of Santa Barbara, Calif.

Plains Dairying Shows Big Growth

Survey Made By Plainview Chamber Of Commerce Is Proof Of Rapid Strides Made In Industry

(Special To The Avalanche) PLAINVIEW, Oct. 3. — A recent survey made by the Plainview Chamber of Commerce and agriculture in Hale county definitely shows the growth of dairy farming on the South Plains.

In 1924 the federal census showed that there were 4,226 milk cows over two years old in Hale county. The recent survey shows there are 5,372 such animals at the present time or an increase of over 100 per cent in a five-year period.

The number of heifers over one year old and under two has increased from 384 in 1924 to 2,066 in 1929, indicating that the future development of dairying is to be even greater than during the past five years.

The survey disclosed the following very interesting information about Hale county: There are 1,471 farmers living on farms in Hale county who own cows. Of this number 559 own their farms and 915 rent. One hundred and seventy-seven did not report. There are 431,408 acres in the 1,471 farms, of an average sized farm of 293 acres. Hale county has a total tillable area of 660,000.

Number of dairy cows over two years old, 5,372; number of cows in milk, 7,091; number heifers one to two years, 2,666; number of heifers under one year, 2,810; total number of dairy cows and heifers, 14,058; number of bulls, 771; number of farmers having access to registered males, 652; number of farmers wanting more cows, 740; number registered cows in Hale county, 338; number of farmers want more registered cows, 619.

Assuming that the territory within a 20-mile radius of Plainview is practically like Hale county, the number of cows in the area is estimated in the survey. The area within a 20-mile radius of Plainview takes in Hale county, western part of Floyd county including Floydada, southern part of Swiss county, including Tulsa, the eastern part of Lamb county, and parts of Briscoe and Castro counties. The survey estimates there to be 22,594 dairy cows over two years old in the area, or a total of 32,940 cows and heifers in the area.

Letters Of Minister To Mother Of Aimee Will Be Introduced In Trial

SEATTLE, Oct. 3. (AP) — Letters and documents written by the Rev. H. H. Clark to Mrs. Minnie E. Kennedy were ready for introduction by the defense at the resumption of his $50,000 breach of promise suit against the mother of Aimee Semple McPherson, evangelist, here today.

John S. Robinson, attorney for Mrs. Kennedy, forced the Rev. Clark to admit authorship of two documents which the former Seattle minister said were intended to have cleared the tangle in which he said he and Mrs. Kennedy had become involved. He claimed Mrs. Kennedy's alleged refusal to marry him had wrecked his religious career and damaged his reputation.

One document, intended for Mr. Clark's signature, read in part that "in more sober moments" he had decided Mrs. Kennedy had been done "a deep wrong" and pledged himself to "defend her character and reputation at all times."

(Special To The Avalanche) TAHOKA, Oct. 3—Profits in raising high grade beef cattle have been found by W. H. May, one of Lynn county's largest and most prosperous farmers, and who is an old time cowman of this section. He has recently bought a straight line Anxiety fourth heifer Hereford from Tom Ivey herd at Hereford for $1,000 to add to his herd of 275 head.

Owns Big Farm Mr. May owns several thousand acres of farm and ranch land northeast of Tahoka and usually plants one thousand or more acres of cotton in addition to large fields of feed. He came to this section before the railroad, when supplies had to be brought in by freight wagon from Colorado and Big Spring. Mr. May is a believer in raising the best grade of everything and is looked upon as one of the most successful diversifiers in this section.

Nearly 675,000 pounds of cotton and fancy soap were shipped from the United States to British India in the first six months of this year.

UNFINISHED MONUMENTS Clouds of dissension and dispute have for some time obscured the splendid vision of a Confederate memorial...

It is possible that no chisel will be lifted again against the sheer rock where Lee looks down on the land for which he fought so gallantly...

FOR LESS WILL POWER It is becoming more difficult as time goes on to read the text of a periodical without meeting the self-improvement salesman...

This may be entirely true, and a strong will may be capable of ceasing any height. But much depends on the task set the will to do.

Lincoln did not repeat the "I will" formula periodically. Historians seem to agree that he groped along in a consciousness that he was an instrument of God.

The picture of the downy sphonore-cleoning face before the mirror and perceiving the mystic of the beginning is substituted faith for gymnastics in will power.

On the Firing Line at the Nation's Capital

By CHARLES F. STEWART Central Press Staff Writer

WASHINGTON, Oct. 3.—"America owes its prosperity to free trade," Ex-Congressman David J. Lewis, of Maryland, is known as one of the world's foremost tariff experts.

He seemed like the last man on earth to have made any mistake in referring to this as a free trade country.

Nevertheless, his remarks—"America owes its prosperity to free trade"—certainly did sound pretty queer—considering that Mr. Lewis' own office in Washington is not far from the highest set of tariffs in history, to higher levels yet.

"I mean free trade between the states," explained the ex-congressman. "Isn't it perfectly clear?" he continued, "that American mass production would be impossible but for interstate free trade?"

"Mass production is impossible in Europe. People talk of it as an industrial development of which European countries cannot be tricked. Poo! It would be as simple a trick for them as it is for us, if their countries were not so small and their continent so cut up by tariff barriers."

And world free trade would spread prosperity over the whole face of the globe—without scaling down America's prosperity?

"Of course," nodded the former tariff commissioner. "That is to say," he added, "the disorganization here would be only temporary—and largely psychological."

"You can set this down for a fact—our protective tariff system has practically nothing to do with the high wages paid to American workers. We have almost 15,000,000 of them. Out of that number, some 400,000 receive, in their various particular industries, more than they would receive if those industries were unprotected from foreign competition."

"The reason," said the Marylander, "that our wage earners are better paid than others is that they produce more. Take our coal miners. They receive from two to three times the pay of European miners. But they produce four times as much coal. American labor gives all the way from two and one-half to six times the results of any other labor in the world."

"If America were to change over night from the present high tariff system to free trade, the attendant shock," admitted the former congressman, "would be violent. I recognize."

"However, Canadian shingles have been competing with America's on our side of the border. How could they do it? Why, the Canadian producers are satisfied with a fair profit. Ours want them excluded, to insure themselves, not against cut-throat competition, but against any competition at all."

"I mention this case because it is a matter of record—but it is not a rare exception. It is a characteristic case."

EARLY STUDY OF CHILD'S MENTAL CAPACITY IS IMPORTANT

By DR. MORRIS FISHER Editor Journal of the American Medical Association and of Hygiene, the Health Magazine

The most rapid period of growth of the child is in its early years. In the very early period of growth days count greatly; after middle life, days mean little in the changes that go on in the human organism.

The psychologists who have studied the mental development of the child consider it of the greatest importance to determine as soon as possible whether or not the child is likely to be mentally defective. The quicker important force can be brought to bear, the better it is for the future life of the individual.

Anniversary Notes

BATTLE OF GERMANTOWN

Today is the 152nd anniversary of the famous Battle of Germantown which took place Oct. 4, 1777, between the Americans under Washington and the British and Hessians under Howe.

Washington opened the engagement early in the morning of the 4th and at first his army forced back the British and victory seemed almost certain.

The accident, coupled with the continual firing in the rear, threw the American troops into confusion, but Washington succeeded in restoring order and led them from the field.

The British lost 573 men and the Americans 673. Germantown, a former suburb of Philadelphia, since 1854 has been included within the municipal limits and now forms the 22nd ward of the city.

Today's Poem

THE ARGUMENT OF HIS BOOK

I sing of brooks, of blossoms, birds, and bowers. Of April, May, of June and July flowers. I sing of May-poles, hock-carts, wassails, wakes. Of bringsgrooms, brides and of their bridal cakes.

I write of Youth, of love and have access. By these, to sing of cleanly wantonness; I sing of dew, or rains and piece by piece. Of balms of oil, of spice and ambergris.

I sing of times trans-shifting; and how roses first come red, and lilies white; I write of groves, of twilights, and I sing The court of Mab, and of the Fairy King.

I write of Hell; I sing, and ever shall. Of Heaven, and hope to have it after all. —Robert Herrick (1591-1633)

COMPANIES CHARGED

American Corporations In Mexico Are Charged

MEXICO CITY, Oct. 3 (AP)—American oil companies operating in Mexico were charged in a statement by the Mexican department of industry and commerce today with letting operations in Mexico lag so as to conserve a supply near the United States for an emergency.

The statement was in answer to figures recently put before the Mexican chamber of deputies by the oil men in connection with discussion of the proposed new labor laws. In these figures the oil men pointed out an enormous drop in production in Mexico since 1921.

The department said that while production in Mexico had been allowed to lag the same big companies were exploiting fields in South America because they were more distant from the United States.

Innocent Cheat

By Ruth Deway Groves AUTHOR OF "RICH GIRL—POOR GIRL," ETC.

THIS HAS HAPPENED HELEN PAGE feels unhappy when her classmates accuse her of being a lying beggar.

Brent changes all his plans for Helen's future after a chance meeting with a young beggar, CHARLES OWENS NELLIN, who is able to corroborate to some extent by a visit to Yonkers.

On graduating, Helen reminds her guardian of his promise to reveal her parentage and is amazed when he informs her that she is the daughter of a millionaire, CYRIL K. CUNNINGHAM, and that he promised her parents to take her to him when she was 18.

Helen remains at Bramblewood while the lawyer investigates the story. Cunningham presents her with a new car which she drives everywhere. One day she accidentally hits a girl, EVA ENNIS, who has to be taken to the hospital.

Next day Brent arrives and when he hears about her meeting with Robert asks her to go to New York for dinner and the theater. Coming home she is kissed by Helen for the first time and tells her that he loves her.

When Brent hears of Robert, he becomes alarmed and begins to monopolize all her spare time. He also avows his love for the first time. One day she gives an old-fashioned party in honor of Helen's 19th birthday, and Brent finds a locket on the floor which proves to be similar to Helen's.

A few days later Eva and Helen overtake a case on the lake and Robert rescues them. While changing clothes, Eva reveals to Helen that she had lost an old-fashioned locket the night of her party.

"Losing her locket!" Helen repeated. "Here at Bramblewood?" "It must have been on the way home," Eva replied. "I didn't miss it until I was undressing."

"But my dear, why didn't you tell me so we could make a search for it?" "Oh, I did look for it the next day. Ashie helped me and he searched everywhere. I'm sure I didn't lose it here."

"Well, of course, if one of the guests had found it it would have been restored to you," Helen admitted. "But you might have lost it on the lawn."

"I thought of that and we went over every foot of it. The grass was very short. It wouldn't have been hard to find it there. Anyway, Ashie said if I overlooked it the gardener would find it when he cut the grass again."

"Yes, he promised to look out for it. I told him I'd give him a reward." "Is it a valuable locket?"

"Well, it has a stone that mother says is only a brilliant, but she prized it very highly. I don't know why." "I'm awfully sorry," Helen declared, "because I have you to wear old-fashioned things."

"Don't be silly," Eva rejoined. "I shouldn't have worn it if I'd known how much mother thought of it." "I wish you had told me about it. I could have questioned the servants."

"Ashie did that. I forgot all about it before I saw you again after the party." "Just the same I'll inquire again," Helen told her.

They were at the western veranda now and just before running up the steps Helen turned and saw Brent close behind them. She waited for him to join them before going into the house. "Please go up and tell my grandfather that I'll be there in 10 minutes," she asked him. "He'd be shocked if I walked in with these wet things on."

She went on without stopping to give him one of her customary smiles. Brent understood. Her mind was filled with Bob Ennis. It could not have been an easy feat to extricate her from her submerged position. Such an act would command the admiration of any girl. And Brent had to admit that Bob had played the role of hero with becoming modesty.

"A damned handsome young brute, too," he conceded. He was wise enough to face any fact or possibility. He made his way up to Mr. Cunningham's room deep in thought. "The girls had a little trouble," he explained to the highly nervous man who awaited him there. "Canoe upset. Helen is changing her clothes now."

"She wasn't hurt?" the voter in which Mr. Cunningham put his question shook with alarm and Brent saw that his face was dead white. Apparently he could but poorly withstand excitement and suspense, Brent reflected.

with a thought that held no place for Eva Ennis. The danger that Helen might awaken to knowledge of her birthright—the love of youth for youth—was greatly disturbed. And when Brent was disturbed he immediately began planning some way in which to rid himself of the cause of his disturbance.

He foresaw that he must win Helen soon or lose her. She would not forever turn back to him from something that in time must prove stronger than her infatuation for him. Not many times more would he be able to hold her with his romantic love making.

Almost unconsciously he was staring at Mr. Cunningham, who had summoned his man Marks from an adjoining room to help him to bed with an witty contemplative thought in his mind.

"If the old fool would get out of his dying," he remarked to himself, "I'd have no trouble." "If!" Brent narrowed his eyelids and into his eyes came a calculating gleam.

He turned away and lit a cigarette, which he allowed to go out after a puff or two. He was absorbed in his thoughts when Helen came into the room. "I'll wait for you downstairs," he said to her in an undertone as she stood by while Marks bent over her, Cunningham holding a glass to his lips. "Don't be long. I must return to New York shortly."

If he expected Helen to protest his going he was disappointed. "Do you have to go?" she said more dreamily than wistfully. "Yes, please come down. I must see you." Helen nodded and left him to go to her grandfather's side. Brent walked out with thinly compressed lips.

Several times while he waited in the library on the first floor he glanced impatiently at his watch. He would have to leave soon or have a scene when he reached New York. He thought of the possibility with extreme distaste. But Carmel had insisted upon the engagement. Brent was aware that things had not been going well with her.

"And she's going to try to fashion herself upon me," he told himself with perfect insight into her character. Helen put an end to his cogitations by coming in to tell him that she was worried about her grandfather.

"He seems to be much worse," she said. "You know he can't stand the least bit of excitement any more. The doctor has warned us against it."

"Don't worry," Brent told her, forcing himself to speak gently. Suddenly Helen pressed a hand to her quivering lip to suppress a sob. "He didn't want to let me go just to come down here," she said when she had recovered herself sufficiently to speak. "I think he really loves me."

"Of course he does." "He's even begged me to stay off the lawn." "That's childish, but you must humor him, dear. I'm afraid it won't be far long."

"I'm afraid not," Helen agreed, "and he seems to be clinging to me." Brent thought little of the words at the time, but on the drive back to New York he gave them a great deal of consideration. They held a significance that obliterated all thought of Carmel. She was from his mind until he reached his hotel.

She was waiting there to dine with him. And Brent saw at once that she had got herself up to decide him. "Nothing doing my fair charmer," he smiled to himself. But he dared not be blunt. Carmel held too much of his past in her memory.

Carmel weighed his attitude with characteristic accuracy. And immediately she decided not to make a fuss about his tardiness. She was much too clever to irritate when she held the whip hand, knowing that men as well as women will turn.

All she wanted of Brent was money. That, she felt, would be difficult to obtain. With this consideration in her mind she set herself to make the evening enjoyable. But Brent was not in a mood to enjoy himself. Carmel grew weary of trying to entertain him and told him flatly that she wanted a check. "How much?" Brent asked innocently.

"A thousand will do, darling." "It will," Brent said tartly, "and so will five hundred." Carmel shrugged. "Will you dine with me next Sunday?" she smiled. "I'll never have a level look. You never have a decent dress, you're laying an egg. Carmel, he said quietly. "Be yourself, old girl."

"Myself bows to your superior wisdom," Carmel returned. "But don't be stingy, dear. I know just what kind of goose you are, remember." Brent signaled for the waiter and asked for his bill. While he waited for it he took out his check book and wrote a check for Carmel. She accepted it with a gracious smile.

"You may take me directly home," she pleaded him by saying when they got into his car. He had been afraid she would suggest a drive, and he wanted to be let alone to give his attention to his own affairs. Long into the night he thought of Helen and the millions he had schemed for her to inherit. He did not mean to lose them now. But they were slipping away from him. How it would be recalled that scene beside the lake. At that moment he had been an interloper between Helen and Bob Ennis.

"There's only one answer," he said to himself at last, "just one thing to do." In the darkness his face was ugly in its reflection of his terrible decision, but up in the old room of the Cunninghams a girl was remembering him as ideally tender. (To Be Continued.)

Coast Recovering From Rain Storms

Area From Maine To Delaware Capes Battered By Heavy Winds And Rains; Traffic Is Disrupted

NEW YORK, Oct. 3. (AP)—The North Atlantic coast was recovering today from effects of a wind and rain storm which battered it from Maine to the Delaware capes.

Traffic Disrupted

The wind, rain and high tides combined to disrupt coastwise and harbor traffic, hamper urban transportation and damage exposed resort property.

The wind reached 56 miles an hour along the New Jersey coast where high tides and heavy seas inundated beaches, washed away a section of board walk and undermined six cottages at Point Pleasant.

Damage was also caused at Barnegat City, where the sea broke through the jetties endangering the famous Barnegat lighthouse.

Yachts Are Held

Yachts were held in port along the Maine coast which was pounded by heavy seas lashed into fury by all day wind. Two schooners went aground in Boston harbor and a number of small craft were torn from their moorings. The schooners were floated at high tide.

The storm sweeping across Pennsylvania brought streams near flood stage and resulted in the death of an unidentified farm hand killed when a building in which he took refuge was blown down near Clinton, Pa.

Cotton Advance Lost; Stocks Break

Southern Hedging And Realizing Is Feature Of Mart

After Selling Up To High Level, Prices Ease Off In Late Trading Session To Close Steady

NEW YORK, Oct. 3. (AP)—Moderate early advances were checked by southern hedging and realizing in cotton today. After selling up to 18.95, December eased off to 18.80, in late trading. It closed at that figure, with the general market closing barely steady at net declines of 4 to 9 points.

The market opened steady at an advance of 5 points to a decline of 3 points.

October sold up to 18.81 and March to 19.25 making net advances of about 2 to 10 points.

October declined to 18.73 and March to 19.11 or about 9 to 10 points from the high level of the favorable weather in the west at the lowest of the day.

Two private crop reports placed the condition of the crop at 84.8 and the indicated yield at 14,333,000 bales, and the condition 82.8 and the indicated yield 14,922,000 bales.

Liverpool cables said hedging and liquidation had been absorbed by trade calling in the market there.

Port receipts today 53,464. U. S. port stocks, 1,214,736. Exports 90,988, making 1,109,663 so far this season.

Moderate Advances Are Not Maintained

NEW ORLEANS, Oct. 3. (AP)—Moderate advances were not maintained in cotton today due to hedge selling and offerings induced by the favorable weather in the belt. Two private estimates promoted enough demand to rally prices 9 to 11 points from early lows but late weakness carried December contracts off from 18.77 to 18.83 and the option closed one point above the latter figure for a net gain of 5 to 6 points. Under pressure January traded down to 18.75, or 7 to 8 points down from opening.

With Liverpool cables relatively higher the market opened steady at an advance of 5 to 6 points. Under pressure January traded down to 18.75, or 7 to 8 points down from opening.

Two private reports with indicated yields of 14, 922,000 and 14,333,000 bales, respectively, were construed as moderately bullish. January rose to 18.85, or 9 to 11 points above the previous close.

Blowing Pockets

Overshadowing this, however, by far this welcome will be that moment when the prime minister of Great Britain and the president of the United States shake hands and sit down to talk over the problems of the two great English-speaking nations.

Formality is expected to be cast aside for this and other meetings.

Never before in the history of American diplomatic relations has such an enterprise in international intercourse been contemplated.

Hog Prices Are Unevenly Higher In Livestock Market Circuits Thursday

KANSAS CITY, Oct. 3. (AP)—Hog prices around the 11 market circuit were unevenly 19 to 40c higher, closing trade however, at some markets was slow with a portion of the early advance erased. The day's top of $10.55 was realized in St. Louis. Total offerings were around $7,000, a shortage of 20,500 from a week ago and 4,500 less than the corresponding day last year.

Killing classes of sheep were little changed except for a slight strengthening in prices on fat lambs. Choice native lambs in Chicago reached $12.85@12.90 was obtained for best rangers. The supply was $1,800 as compared with 1,987 last Thursday and 85,529 a year ago.

Prices Steady. Choice quality native fed steers and yearlings were on a fully steady price basis, but a weak undertone prevailed on other killing classes. Supplies, however, were insufficient for packers to obtain any further concessions. Chicago received $15.25 for choice heavy steers and obtained $16.00 for choice South Dakota yearlings. Counting buyers displayed moderate interest in stocker and feeder steers at the week's decline. Aggregate receipts were estimated at 23,500, a decrease of 9,100 from a week ago and 6,800 less than a year ago.

Wheat Values In Tumble Thursday

Prices Decline Result Of Break In Stock Market Quotations; Deliveries Of Future Close Heavy

By JOHN F. BOUGHAN Associated Press Market Editor

CHICAGO, Oct. 3. (AP)—Shaken by breaks in stock market quotations, wheat values tumbled today, especially in the late dealings. Low prices at which wheat is selling in Europe have been further to disturb confidence. There were reports that construction of grain handling facilities at Canadian ports has become unparallelled.

Chicago wheat futures deliveries closed heavy, 1-4 to 3-4 a bushel below yesterday's finish. Corn closed 4-8 to 1-1-4 down, oats 1-4 to 3-4 to 7-8 off, and provisions unchanged to a rise of 3 to 3 1/2.

Shipments Shipped. Wheat shipments from Argentina for the current week amounted to nearly 5,000,000 bushels, a total much larger than during the week previous or a year ago.

Large figures on export business today in World American wheat totaled 1,000,000 bushels, mostly wheat from Canada, but including 200,000 bushels of number 1 hard wheat from the United States.

were crowded during judging, the interest in livestock being apparent while the poultry, agricultural, industrial and woman's buildings drew their share of attention.

Order continued to prevail among the fair visitors, said Chief of Police John Leonard. "I have never seen vast crowds as orderly as those attending the exposition," he commented. "We are doing everything possible to handle the heavy automobile and pedestrian traffic in a manner to assure safety."

Youth Takes Stand Against Mrs. Long

KINGSVILLE, Oct. 3. (AP)—A 14-year-old boy, her alleged lover, testified against Mrs. J. E. Long at her examining trial here today on charges that she poisoned her husband, Jim Long, causing his death here September 7. She was released tonight on $5,000 bond.

Pat Smith, the boy, told of an illicit love affair with Mrs. Long and said that he had gone to Austin at her suggestion to wait there for her until she could get rid of Jim Long.

J. D. Rhodes, a Corpus Christi drug store employee testified that Mrs. Long, under a fictitious name, had purchased one-eighth of an ounce of a violent and quick-acting poison three days before Long's death. Pathological laboratory reports from Austin were introduced today, but this name, type of poison was found in Long's body.

Predicted Break Sweeps Suddenly In Mart Session

Heavy Flood Of Liquidation Carries Scores Of Issues Down From Five To 25 Points Thursday

By CLAUDE A. JACQUE Associated Press Financial Writer

NEW YORK, Oct. 3. (AP)—The wide open break, which many traders have been predicting since stock prices began to hit the toboggan nearly a month ago, came with startling suddenness in the last hour of trading today when nearly 1,800,000 shares changed hands, the day's total being 4,747,330 shares.

The record-breaking increase of nearly $70,000,000 in stock exchange member loans last month, announced today, was a sign of the day's market, was generally believed to be responsible for the selling movement. The federal reserve figures, announced after the close of today's market, furnished surprise with a gain of $43,000,000 bringing that total to a new high record at $6,804,000,000.

Protestant Head Claimed By Death

Bishop John Gardner Murray Dies At Atlantic City While Presiding In Church Sessions

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., Oct. 3. (AP)—Bishop John Gardner Murray, 72, of Baltimore, head of the Protestant Episcopal Church of America, died here today while presiding over a meeting of the house of bishops. He suffered a stroke of apoplexy in the pulpit of the St. James Church and died before his wife, who was at a hotel only a few blocks away, could be summoned.

Mrs. Murray was the only member of the family in Atlantic City. She hurried to the church, but reached there only after her husband died.

Examination Made. The ambulance was returned from the hospital and an interne made a new examination which brought a repetition of his previous pronouncement.

The question of revoking yesterday's action in accepting the resignation of Bishop Vincent of Southern Ohio was under discussion and Bishop Murray was consulting the canons of the church when he collapsed. A special session will be held in Washington November 12 to name Bishop Murray's successor.

The business session was adjourned on motion of Dr. Paul Matthews, bishop of the diocese of New Jersey.

Mrs. Garner Says It's Worth More Than $1000 To Her

Had Suffered With Liver And Nervous Trouble For Nine Years Until She Took Orgatone

"I wouldn't take a thousand dollars cash for the good Orgatone has done me," said Mrs. D. F. Garner, who resides at 412 1/2 Pierce St. and is the owner of the well known apartments known as the Garner Place, Amarillo, Texas.

"It may sound strange, but I had suffered with stomach trouble, unassessed liver and nervousness until I got to the place where I felt like nothing on earth would ever do me any good. Everything I ate soured on my stomach and made trouble for me, and in addition to the nervousness at times I would have a hard lump in my side that felt like a rock and pained me terribly. I just lived in misery all the time and couldn't get any relief."

"I am just finishing my second bottle of Orgatone, and it's surprising the way I have improved, considering that I haven't been entirely well before for nine years. The nervousness and hard lump is gone from my side, my stomach is all right and I can eat anything I want and digest it. I have gained extra in weight and am able to do my work and feel good all the time. I want everybody to know what Orgatone did for me."

Genuine Orgatone may be bought in Lubbock at Bowen's Drug Store.

Captive Guards, Held By Convicts As Hostages, Are Shot Down One By One

out in bold relief in the night as hundreds of eyes peered down rifle barrels from protected places with men ready to shoot to kill.

Delay in the attack as planned resulted when a small battery failed to explode a 60-pound charge of dynamite placed by Father Patrick O'Neil of the Holy Cross Academy. "I can stand this no longer," he pleaded. "Let me go in and place the charge."

The explosive was put in the entrance of the buildings by Father O'Neil. A delay occurred at its awaiting a large battery which was being rushed to the grounds.

Estimates Very. Estimates of the lives lost varied from 11 to 18. The variance was due to inability to determine the number of convicts that fell under fire of the guards before they were overpowered. Three guards were killed in the afternoon. Four more lost their lives between 7 and 10 o'clock at night. After each demand of the convicts for unrestricted and free departure from the prison was denied by the warden, another guard's life was taken by a "rifle squad" and the body tossed into the yard. Two guards were released, one with a note demanding freedom and one with the body of a fellow guard—with the warning that if freedom was not obtained by 10 o'clock six remaining guards would suffer the fate of the four others.

At the demand for freedom were refused, with the final death threat, plans were completed for the attack on the stronghold.

The last guard released reported the men had only three rifles and two pistols, but that their pockets were bulging with ammunition.

Church Welcomes An Investigation

General Secretary Of Federal Council Of Churches Of Christ Wires Legion To Conduct Probe

NEW YORK, Oct. 3. (AP)—Dr. Charles E. Macfarland, general secretary of the federal council of the Churches of Christ in America, telegraphed the commander of the American legion today welcoming an investigation of the church body and suggesting that it be conducted by the legion itself.

During its convention at Louisville, Ky., the legion passed a resolution demanding that the United States senate investigate the alleged lobbying activities of the federal council and nine other national organizations reputed in the resolution to be urging a policy "resulting in national weakness."

Makes Statement. Officers of leagues for industrial democracy, another of the organizations named in the legion resolution, issued a statement in which amusement was expressed at being included in a list which, "with beautiful impartiality, embraces the federal council of churches and the athletes." The statement said the organization maintained no lobby.

The organizations named in the legion resolution, with the suggestion that they be considered in the order listed, were national council for the prevention of war; Federal Council of Churches of Christ; Women's International League for Peace and Freedom; American Civil Liberties Union; League for Industrial Democracy; National Students Forum; War Resisters League; Young Workers League; The Young Pioneers and the American Association for the Advancement of Albinism.

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 3. (AP)—Frustrated by a series of sensational state charges and defense counter claims, the introduction of evidence in the trial of Alexander Panigaris, theatrical magnate, on a statutory charge, began before Superior Judge Charles Fricke today.

Mrs. Lou Irene Fringle, mother of 17-year-old Bunice Fringle, college student and dancer who accused the 54-year-old vaudeville chain owner of attacking her, was the first witness summoned by District Attorney Byron Pitts.

Mrs. Fringle's testimony was given in the absence of all other witnesses, the prosecution having won a motion to exclude them. Mrs. Fringle said her daughter was born March 5, 1912, supporting the state's contention that the girl was a minor, and added that Miss Fringle was graduated from high school in 1928 and during the past year had been a student at the University of Southern California.

Borger Arrests

MacCombs will be charged in state and federal courts as soon as the charges can be prepared, officers said. One of the quietest hold rangers she and her husband had been selling liquor for six years. They are thought to have been members of the ring which state rangers charge operated with official protection.

Many of those arrested were released within a few hours without having seen the inside of the jail. As they were hauled in from dives in all parts of the town they were questioned thoroughly as to their business. Some were released without comment, others were warned to leave town at once and a great many more were held in workhouses or for further questioning. Those who were released were caught in subsequent raids they usually were charged as varanados. The fine for this offense, today, was $100, and other penalties were equally severe in an effort to discourage men without valid reasons of support from remaining in town.

Included among those arrested today was Justice of the peace, Walter Broomhall, who according to the blotter at headquarters was held "for investigation." He was released late this afternoon, however, on the order of the provost marshal.

None of those directing the investigation here would comment on a threatening letter, postmarked in New York, which reached Governor Dan Moody's office in Austin today. One ranger, however, said that he knew that "a couple of tough bums" from Borger were in New York. No one took the threat of violence to the governor very seriously.

Lon Smith Named

AUSTIN, Oct. 3. (AP)—Lon A. Smith, member of the railroad commission of Texas today received notice of his appointment as a member of the valuation committee of the National Association of Railroad and Utilities Commissioners.

Irish Free State bookkeepers have been warned against circulating a book on health, this being the first prohibition under the new censorship law.

Stresemann Death Gets Condolences

BERLIN, Oct. 4. (AP)—Berlin today received from governments in all parts of the world condolences on the death of Gustav Stresemann, a well known statesman.

The message, however, said that he knew that "a couple of tough bums" from Borger were in New York. No one took the threat of violence to the governor very seriously.
