Accused Man Faces Quiz in Two Deaths

WHARTON, Texas — (AP) — Charles Warner Tanner was charged yesterday with murdering a woman in Missouri, and officers started questioning him about an earlier slaying in the Davis Mountains of West Texas.

There was no apparent link between the two killings.

The first-degree murder charge, filed in Jackson, Mo., accused Tanner of killing Mrs. Marion S. Ayres, 53, a former proof reader for the Kansas City Star.

Tanner told officers that Mrs. Ayres fell into a creek near Cape Girardeau, Mo., last Monday. This was a switch from his first story. He made it in writing after officers told him that the nude and battered body of a woman who had been found and buried unidentified was determined Friday night to have been that of Mrs. Ayres.

Sheriff T. W. (Buckshot) Lane began questioning Tanner about Mrs. Ayres' whereabouts after he was arrested Wednesday for drunken driving. He had her car and other articles in his possession.

Prosecuting Attorney Raymond Vogel of Jackson said he and a deputy sheriff will fly here Sunday to get the 36-year-old Tanner.

Meanwhile, officers took up with Tanner the case of an unidentified man found beaten to death in the rugged mountains near Fort Davis on June 6.

Lane said the dead man, believed to be about 25 years old, wore a gray sports jacket bearing the laundry mark "Tanner."

The slain man also wore a pair and red-and-yellow striped socks—identical to a pair found in Mrs. Ayres' car when Tanner was arrested in a river-bottom shack near this Southeast Texas town.

Tanner first said Mrs. Ayres had lent him the car in St. Louis Monday.

In his new story, Tanner said Mrs. Ayres fell from a bridge while he and she were en route by automobile from Barnhart, Mo., to Memphis, Tenn.

He made his statement to Lane and Chief of Police Charley Brown in the presence of a reporter.

Tanner said both he and Mrs. Ayres had been drinking all day and taking pills known to police as "yellow jackets." He said both were drunk and doped up.

Lane and Texas Department of Public Safety experts prepared to give him a lie detector test.

Texas Rangers, checking anew on the death of the unidentified man, discovered that a .22 caliber pistol found beside the body had been traced to a hardware store in Houston. Sheriff Tom Gray of Fort Davis said the Rangers notified him today that the pistol was bought and signed for by a man who gave his name as Kenneth Littlejohn and said he was registered at a Houston Hotel, on Feb. 14, 1950.

The Rangers checked the hotel and found that no one had registered under that name or under the name Tanner.

Gray said handwriting on a

Man Critically Wounded in Shooting Here

Claude Vernon, 44-year-old Pampa man, lay in a critical condition at Highland General Hospital Saturday night suffering from a bullet wound through the abdomen inflicted by a .38 calibre pistol late Friday.

The shooting came as a climax to a card game at the home of Vernon's brother-in-law, Clive L. Davenport, 40, 900 East Denver.

Davenport is being held on open charges by Sheriff G. H. Kyle's department.

Officers quoted Davenport as saying that an argument started during a game of cards played by Davenport, Vernon and their wives.

Later, Davenport related to officers, Vernon and his wife left the place, but decided to reenter. Meanwhile, he (Davenport), was barring re-entrance by holding his foot against the door.

Davenport told police that he reached to his right and took a pistol out of the drawer of a dresser, held it out through the door, partially ajar, and fired.

Shortly afterward, Vernon's wife called authorities. Vernon was removed to the hospital in a Blackburn-Shaw-Sims ambulance.

Police Sergeant Shirley Nichols and Patrolman D. L. Day investigated the shooting.

At the hospital, authorities said the bullet entered Vernon's left side, traveled through to his liver, where it was later removed.

Patrolman Ed Lawrence later gave a blood transfusion to the wounded man.

Vernon lives at 745 East Denver.

Two-Year-Old Girl Is Diagnosed as Possible Polio Case

Marianne Mahurin, two-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Herman C. Mahurin, 821 W. Kingsmill, has been diagnosed as a possible polio case by doctors at Highland General Hospital.

The child is reported to be responding to treatment and the hospital reports that she will be held here for a few days until her condition can be determined.

She was admitted to the hospital last Thursday.

A second child whose name was not given was considered a possible polio case, but is now under treatment for another disease. It is believed by hospital authorities that the child is not suffering from polio.

HST's Opponent Wins in Runoff

RALEIGH, N.C. —(AP)— Willis Smith, Raleigh lawyer who campaigned as an opponent of President Truman's "Fair Deal," was nominated in North Carolina's senatorial primary yesterday.

Returns from 1,753 of 1,990 precincts gave: Graham 233,807 and Smith 258,565.

Since Graham did not poll a clear majority in the first primary, Smith called for the runoff. However, he waited 11 days to issue the call and he said that at one time he was close to a decision not to make the runoff.

Former Senator Robert R. Reynolds, who ran a poor third in the first primary, threw his support to Smith in the second.

Senate Panel Given Canadian Dam Plan

WASHINGTON — (AP) — Plans for the proposed $85,000,000 Canadian River project in Texas to suppy water for cities in the Panhandle and High Plains are now before a Senate committee. They were sent over Friday from the Department of the Interior.

The interior committee may take them up Monday.

The Budget Bureau approved them with three "ifs" —

1. If the government is repaid in a 50-year period, with interest, for the total cost of the project.

2. If annual water rates to users are set so that the income will guarantee repayment of construction costs.

3. If construction is deferred until the three states in the Canadian River watershed — Texas, Oklahoma and New Mexico — have entered into a compact for division of the stream's water.

The bill already has been passed by the House.

Only $27,000,000 of the cost would go into the building of a dam. An aqueduct to deliver water to a dozen cities and towns would cost $54,000,000 and the rest would be allocated to fish and wild life, flood control, irrigation and other benefits.

The Budget Bureau said that it agreed with Gov. Allan Shivers of Texas that the citizens of cities involved should be allowed to vote on whether they wish to assume the financial obligations before the project is started.

Meat Prices Lead Two-Year Record Gain in Living Cost

WASHINGTON — (AP) — Led by meat prices, the cost of living between April 15 and May 15 took the highest jump of any month in almost two years, the Bureau of Labor Statistics said yesterday. But it was still below a year ago.

An increase of .8 of one percent was reported by the bureau in its consumers' price index on retail prices of goods and services purchased by moderate-income families in large cities. The new index on May 15 was 168.6 compared to 100 for the base period considered normal 1935 to 1939.

Food prices went up 1.9 percent between April and May, and were responsible for the sudden rise in the cost of living index.

Meats especially rose more than the usual seasonal movement. Meat prices were seven percent higher.

The index was .4 of one percent lower than a year ago, but 26.5 percent higher than in June, 1946, when OPA controls were abandoned, and 71 percent above the level of August, 1939, the month before war broke out in Europe.

There were fractional increases in rents and miscellaneous goods and services. On the other hand, fuel, electricity and refrigeration prices dropped 1.8 percent, house furnishings declined slightly and apparel prices were unchanged during the month.

Favorable Weather Helps Retail Trade

NEW YORK — (AP) — Retail trade stepped forward last week in response to favorable weather and store promotions.

Veterans' Bonds To Be Offered

AUSTIN — (AP) — A ten million dollar issue of veterans land bonds — the last — will be offered for sale July 18.

The sealed bid auction will market the final issue authorized under the 25 million dollar veterans land program. Bids will be accepted by Land Commissioner Bascom Giles to 10 a.m.

Giles said applications already on file would completely exhaust the $25,000,000 voted by the Texas electorate to buy farms for Texas veterans of World War II.

Dallas Department Stores Lead Sales

DALLAS — (AP) — Dallas led Texas' other big cities in department store sales week before last over the similar 1949 week, the Federal Reserve Bank's weekly report shows.

Dallas sales for the week ending June 17 were up 23 percent over the similar 1949 week. San Antonio sales climbed 7 percent, Houston's 6 percent and Fort Worth's fell 7 percent.

For the four-week period ending June 17 Dallas sales were up 12 percent, San Antonio's 10 percent, Fort Worth's 8 percent and Houston's 3 percent.

Recreation Park Expansion Plan To Be Discussed

The Top o' Texas Hereford Breeder's Association will be hosts to representatives of the city, county, chamber of commerce agricultural committee, the Top 'o Texas Rodeo committee and others at a noon luncheon Monday.

The luncheon will be held in the Palm Room of the city hall.

Possibility of making certain improvements at Recreation Park to take care of the Top 'o Texas Hereford Breeder's Show and the Junior Livestock Show and Sale, both held in February, will be the primary object of the meeting.

Cliff Vincent, president of the association, said the show has outgrown the facilities at Recreation Park.

He added that such improvements will not require a bond issue, and that association members have no such thought in mind.

Operation of Social Security Program Assailed by Rogers

The congressional battle leading to the July 22 primary was still in the luke-warm stage the weekend with only Walter E. Rogers taking any major action.

The lanky Pampa lawyer, over the radio, ripped open the social security bubble, charging the social security division was badly in need of more funds to meet its obligations. He declared the program a misnomer in that it was "neither social — nor secure."

He strongly criticized administration of the social security program for attempting to destroy private initiative by cutting off benefits if a person "shows true American individualism and earns more than $15 a month. He said he could name several widows who have felt the sting of these regulations when they were forced to go out and earn additional money to support their children. "They couldn't feed, clothe, and house their children on $45 a month and were penalized when they showed the initiative and individualism to ... ment that by earning more than $15 a month," he said.

Elsewhere on the congressional front things were quiet except for ordinary bush beating and handshaking visits by the candidates. LeRoy Lail ... hopeful; J. Blake Timmons and Altavene Clark, both of Amarillo.

Ben Guill of Pampa, incumbent Republican congressman who will oppose the winner of the Clark-Timmons-Rogers-LaMaster race in November, will make his regular weekly report to the district at 1:30 p.m. Sunday over Radio Station KPDN.

Lake Michigan Area Combed For Airliner

MILWAUKEE, Wis. —(AP) — Fifty-eight persons are believed to have perished in a Northwest Airlines plane which apparently vanished over storm - churned Lake Michigan early Saturday.

Darkness forced searchers to call off much of their far-flung hunt 20 hours after the last word received from the passenger-packed plane. That was a radio report shortly after midnight.

Search efforts in the air, on the surface, and even beneath the waves east and northeast of Milwaukee produced no definite clues. As the hours passed, little hope was held that any of the 58 escaped alive.

Loss of all aboard would be the nation's worst commercial airplane disaster.

The last of 60 search airplanes which scoured the lake and Northern Wisconsin and Michigan were ordered to call off their hunt until daybreak.

Small boats also gave up the search. A number of large Coast Guard vessels continued looking for any survivors or wreckage. But foggy weather made visibility poor and hopes of success forlorn.

Nearly 12 hours after the plane was overdue at Minneapolis, some unidentified wreckage and oil slicks were reported found in the lake near Milwaukee.

However, a diver who descended at one spot found nothing.

Very Little Wheat Received by Local Grain Elevators

A check with four of the five grain elevators in Pampa reveals that very little wheat has been harvested as yet.

According to M. M. Moyer, manager of the Fisher Panhandle Grain Co., the harvest has hardly begun and is just about over.

The E. F. Tubb Grain Co. reports that no wheat has been received by their elevator in Pampa, but a little has been received in Kingsmill. The average test was 57 pounds per bushel.

The elevator of the Gray County Wheat Growers, Inc., reports receipt of a few loads of good wheat testing 55 to 58. A spokesman reported seeing one field where six machines were cutting and said all six together did not harvest enough for one full load.

Moyer reported that the harvest is a little better in Oklahoma. He said elevators of his company have received over 8,000 bushels in Gage and 30,000 bushels in Woodward. He said this week should be the best week of the harvest.

Kimbell Milling Co. reported no wheat received.

Bustling Odessa Vaults Into State's Top 20

(By The Associated Press)

Odessa more than tripled in population the last decade. Midland more than doubled.

Figures for the two fast-growing West Texas cities were released Saturday.

Odessa, center of a sprawling petroleum and livestock industry, vaulted into Texas' top 20 cities with a population of 29,432.

Midland, a Permian Basin oil capital and livestock and crop marketing center, has 21,614.

Odessa's 29,432 is a 200.70 percent increase over 9,573 in 1940. Midland's 21,614 is a 131.12 percent gain over 9,352 in 1940. Odessa gained 19,859 numerically, Midland 12,362.

Figures for the cities' counties also were announced. Ector County (Odessa) grew from 15,051 in 1940 to 41,479, a gain of 26,446. Midland County grew from 11,721 to 25,621, a gain of 13,900, or 118.59 percent.

This completed the count for the 16th congressional district, comprising 19 West Texas counties. The district grew from 230,700 in 1940 to 353,888, a gain of 123,188.

Odessa may rank about 18th among Texas cities. Brownsville, a top contender for the top twenty list, has not been announced. This is a likely lineup of leading Texas cities:

1. Houston, not announced.
2. Dallas 432,805, gain of 138,071 over 294,734 in 1940.
3. San Antonio, not announced.
4. Fort Worth not announced.
5. Austin 131,964, gain of 44,034 over 87,930 in 1940.
6. El Paso 130,003, gain of 33,193 over 96,810.
7. Corpus Christi 108,051, up 50,751 over 57,031.
8. Beaumont 93,875, up 34,814 over 59,061.
9. Waco 83,787, up 27,805 from 55,982.
10. Amarillo 73,737, up 22,051 over 51,686.
11. Lubbock, 71,592, up 39,739 over 31,853.
12. Wichita Falls 67,709, up 22,597 over 45,112.
13. Galveston 65,989, gain of 5,036 over 60,862.
14. Port Arthur 57,374, gain of 11,234 over 56,140.
15. San Angelo 51,837, gain of 26,030 over 25,802.
16. Laredo 51,694, gain of 12,420 over 39,274.
17. Abilene 47,102, gain of 20,490 over 26,612.
18. Tyler 38,864, gain of 10,585 over 28,279.
19. Odessa 29,432, gain of 19,859 over 9,573.
20. Temple of 25,015, gain of 9,671 over 15,334.
21. Texarkana 24,602, gain of 7,583 over 17,019.

Among major cities at least, none could compare percentagewise with Odessa's growth. Among smaller cities Dumas, in Moore County, has had a comparative growth from 2,117 to 6,105, but that's less than 200 percent.

Get-Out-of-Town Movement in U.S. Hits Larger Cities

WASHINGTON — (AP) — Early returns from the 1950 population census are showing a strong movement from big city centers to the suburbs.

Officials said yesterday the get-out-of-town movement, which has sped up recently with the housing boom, is going to drop the population totals for many big cities below estimates produced by sampling surveys in past years.

Although no figures have yet been announced for New York or Washington, both are now expected by population experts here to fall in the "smaller-than-expected" class, as did Los Angeles and Cleveland, where totals have been announced.

Washington's in-limits population, for instance, had been calculated at 863,000 on the basis of a sampling survey taken two years ago. But the preliminary 1950 census total proved so low — much closer to 800,000 that announcement has been held up to take a recheck on the census takers' work.

Explanations for the new American exodus from cities to suburbs include:

Popular desire for more living space, "fresh air," and ground; shortages of city parking spaces; the boom in homebuildng in outlying areas, where land and taxes are cheaper; plentful funds for home buying; and, in some cases, a feeling that suburban life provides "social distinction."

Census Director Roy V. Peel said the bureau is "gratifed" by "general acceptance of the census results which are now being announced provisionally throughout the country," just as it is over "the cooperation of the public in responsing to census enumerators."

Of the 229,962 enumeration districts mapped out for the census, all but 730 have now had a complete initial count — with some of the complete ones still subject to rechecks.

Parade to Open Kid Pony Show At Rodeo Event

A colorful downtown parade will herald the Kid Pony Show slated for Tuesday night, August 8.

All entries will participate in the procession, which rodeo and horse show officials say will give the riders a chance to show their ability and their ponies' training.

Contestants will parade their animals in a figure eight around barrels placed in the arenas at the show.

Entries will be judged in four groups: three through seven years; eight through 10; 11 through 13, and 14 through 16.

Contestants may register by mail or in person at the chamber of commerce office in the city hall. The mailing address is Box 1942.

Deadline for entry is noon, August 8.

Johnson May Request Help For Formosa

By JOHN M. HIGHTOWER

WASHINGTON — (AP) — Secretary of Defense Johnson came back from a 13-day tour of Pacific defenses yesterday reportedly determined to reopen the administration battle over Formosa and upset the present no-aid policy.

In addition, some top officials said the return of Johnson and Gen. Omar Bradley, the chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, probably will lead to an early decision by the president to go ahead with a Japanese peace settlement.

General Douglas MacArthur is reported to feel that a Japanese treaty should be so drawn that it will last unchanged for 25 years, as a means of creating stability in the Far East.

The process of policy development will be speeded up here late next week when the State Department's Republican advisor, John Foster Dulles, gets back from his own conferences in Tokyo with Gen. MacArthur.

Meanwhile, from Tokyo, which Johnson and Bradley left Friday on a one-stop flight home, came a report that Johnson had privately expressed support there for United States retention of the important Yokosuka naval base after any peace settlement with Japan.

Johnson said Bradley and he had examined the Pacific situation "solely from the standpoint of American security." Bradley said that he had obtained some "fresh information."

At the Capitol Chairman Connally (D-Tex) of the Senate foreign relations committee said he thought Johnson and Bradley should now be able to clarify the Far Eastern picture. He declared that the Far East appears to be at present the most dangerous sector in the conflict with communism. But he said that overall

No-Confidence Vote Forces Resignation Of French Cabinet

PARIS — (AP) — The National Assembly refused a vote of confidence yesterday and Premier Georges Bidault and his cabinet resigned. It was at the moment France was engaged in delicate negotiations over Indochina and the Schuman plan.

The vote was 352 to 230 against the government on a question of increased salaries for government employes.

The dapper little prime minister had been in office eight months.

Hurt, Bidault reminded the assembly that the franc has grown stronger and that prices have become stabilized under his middle - of - the - road government. He asked bitterly:

"Now, where is the government's reward?"

President Vincent Auriol may ask Bidault to attempt to form a new government. The most prominently mentioned candidate, however, was Bidault's interior minister, Henri Queuille, premier for 13 months at one time.

Four hours after Bidault quit, the six-nation conference on the Shuman plan recessed.

Bidault has threatened that his Catholic party the Popular Republican Movement, would not cooperate in a new government if his cabinet were overthrown. If the threat sticks, new elections would have to come soon.

Bidault's disappointment was increased by the appearance of instability France gave to the world just at the moment she has taken the limelight with Foreign Minister Robert Schuman's plan to consolidate Euro-

Secret Sessions Slated by Probers

WASHINGTON — (AP) — The Senate crime investigating committee lined up witnesses yesterday for secret hearings on alleged links between big - time gamblers in Florida, New York and New Jersey.

These closed-door inquiries are expected to be the prelude to public hearings designed to expose the operations of the overlords of the East Coast gambling world.

Witnesses will be called in the basis of evidence already assembled by committee investigators. One of the biggest information hauls was made in a secret inquiry in Miami, Chairman Kefauver (D-Tenn) has told reporters.

jack of clubs, and South won with the ace. He took the ace and king of trumps and got the king of spades out of the way. Then he led a low diamond from his hand. When he put up dummy's queen, East won with the king. East returned a diamond, and South finessed the ten. That lost to West's jack, and the slam was defeated then and there.

"I said he should have played the hand to make somebody lead diamonds to him. For example, after cashing the king of spades, he could cash the king of clubs and lead his remaining club. The winner of that trick must lead a diamond, since a spade return from either opponent is clearly fatal.

"As the cards lie, a diamond return from either opponent gives him the slam. My partner said that if the king and jack of diamonds were exchanged, his play would work and mine wouldn't.

"What do you think about it?"

The bidding was excellent. At match-point duplicate, a contract of six no trump would be preferred. At rubber bridge a contract of six hearts is better — partly for the greater safety of a suit contract and partly because of the honors. You shouldn't play a hand at an unnatural contract because of honors, but it's foolish to disregard honors when the choice is between two equally sound contracts.

It's very hard to choose between the two lines of play suggested by my correspondent. Both are fairly good, but neither one of them is the best. South can play the hand so as to be absolutely sure of making the slam!

After drawing two rounds of trumps, South should not cash the king of spades so as to get it out of the way. He should overtake his king of spades with dummy's ace!

Then he should return the jack of spades from dummy, discarding his losing club on the trick. No matter who took it, South could get back to dummy with a trump to discard his two losing diamonds on the ten and nine of spades.

station said it had received a report of a raft being sighted about 10 miles east of the Milwaukee breakwater light "with people aboard" and had sent boats to investigate.

However, a Navy patrol plane buzzed the object and determined it was a yellow balloon.

Northwest Airlines, owners of the missing DC-4 "Air Coach," said its planes do not carry life rafts on domestic flights. The big plane, enroute from New York to the West Coast, was last reported over the lake at 11:15 p.m. (CST) Friday.

A Navy destroyer-escort engaged in the widespread air and surface search yesterday found oil, gasoline and air bubbles rising to the lake's surface. The spot was some six and a quarter miles east of South Milwaukee.

The craft's Navy reserve captain, George Parkinson, said dragging of the bottom, 66 feet below the waves, located what was "unmistakable" wreckage.

Later the Racine, Wis., Coast Guard station reported a diver found nothing on his first descent at the spot.

The capacity-laden plane, with 55 passengers and three crew members, headed into an area of thunderstorm over Lake Michigan at 11:15 p. m. (CST) Friday. The pilot, Robert Lind, 35, asked permission to fly at 2,500 feet altitude, 1,000 feet lower than his flight plan specified. The CAA operator at Minneapolis said he told Lind not to reduce his altitude because air traffic at the lower level would be a hazard.

The CAA said Lind did not mention storm conditions. That was the last word from the plane.

Most passengers were residents of the East and West coast areas.

3 Guill Appointees Pass Examinations For U.S. Academy

WASHINGTON — Congressman Ben Guill of Pampa announced yesterday that three boys from the Panhandle have successfully passed their entrance examinations at West Point and will be admitted to the U.S. Military Academy for the autumn term.

The three successful candidates are Bruce Richardson, Canyon; Herbert E. Williams, Canadian, and Jack Wofford Davis, Amarillo.

Williams and Richardson are both students at West Texas State College in Canyon and Davis is a 1950 graduate of Amarillo High School. All three have been outstanding both in leadership and in scholarship during their academic careers. Davis was voted the outstanding "Maverick" in Amarillo in 1949.

Guill said the three successful boys were the only candidates out of the twelve nominations from the Panhandle to pass all the severe requirements for admission to the Military Academy. "The qualifications are higher than ever," he said. "The Panhandle was represented by a first class group of boys and they all did themselves proud. I'm glad we were able to fill the quota expected of us."

Guill added that Earl Le Roy Smith, the graduate of Boy's Ranch at Amarillo, was disqualified because of an academic technicality. "Earl's a fine boy and he should get his chance," he said. "I hope to give him a direct appointment again as soon as the academic problems are ironed out."

Guill also announced that James E. Howard, Pampa, turned in a fine scholastic performance in the examinations but was disqualifed for a slight physical defect which can be rectified, "As soon as Jimmy gets ready to pass the physical examination I'm going to see if I can't give him another chance to make good. He made an almost perfect score in the academic and mental aptitude tests and he deserves another crack at West Point as a result of his good work this time."

British Royal House Entered by Thief Who Stabs Women

LONDON — (AP) — A burglar slipped into Queen Mother Mary's London mansion yesterday and used his fists and a pen-knife on two women housekeepers who raised an alarm. He was caught.

The 83-year-old dowager, mother of King George VI, slept through the screaming and excitement that took place below her bed chamber in 200 - room Marlborough House, a Christopher Wren structure filled with art objects.

Scotland Yard officials called a meeting to see if the royal households, including King George's Buckingham Palace nearby, are adequately guarded. Red-coated guardsmen normally have only ceremonial routines.

Two hours after the pre-dawn attack, a man was found cringing in a cellar of the house.

He is Gerald O'Brien, 26, Irish gardener. He was charged with assault and attempted burglary.

Police said the burglar entered unnoticed by rifle-carrying, red-coated sentries who maintain a front door guard around the clock. He apparently clambered over a vine-covered garden wall and slipped in through a window. The women, awakened, gave the alarm. The intruder apparently had no time to steal.

$100,000 City Improvement Bond Vote Set in White Deer

WHITE DEER —(Special)— A $100,000 bond election for the installation of a sewer system and a city-owned gas system and possible water improvements will be put to a vote July 1. It is reported that much work has been done in the past few months toward planning for these improvements, and if the bonds are approved, work can begin at once.

Three provisions have been proposed for voters' consideration. First is the issuance of $5,000 in bonds for water improvement. Second, the report stated, is for $50,000 to be used in a sewer system. And the third provision is for $45,000 of bonds for purchase, construction and improvement of a gas system. All of the bonds would be revenue bonds to be paid off out of the revenue of the three systms.

A consulting engineer has estimated that a sewer system can be built for $45,000 and a gas system for $38,000. The extra $17,000 would be use as a reserve to meet future needs in the water system.

It was revealed that no more tax bonds can be issued in the city and after revenue bonds are issued on the three systems, no more of that type can be issued. Thus, it was stated, if the city should find it necessary to drill another well in the next few years, it would have no way of obtaining the necessary funds. There is considerable anxiety as to whether the present wells will furnish enough water in a prolonged summer drought. The extra bonds above the costs of the two systems are to be placed in reserve for such an emergency. Should no emergency arise the mony will not be used, it was stated.

If anticipated revenues are realized, it was stated that revenue from the systems will furnish more than twice enough to pay the annual bond costs. After ten years the remaining bonds may be called in and paid off if sufficient money has accumulated in the sinking fund, or any part of the remaining bonds may be retired at anytime sufficient money is on hand.

America Buys Less Liquor, Report Claims

WASHINGTON — (AP) — Americans spent less on liquor in 1949 than in any year since 1944, the Commerce Department has reported. It was the second straight year in which they cut down.

The total 1949 outlay was estimated by the department at $8,550,000,000, a drop of $250,000,000 from 1948 and $1,090,000,000 below the postwar peak of $9,640,000,000 set in 1947.

It averaged out to about $57.50 for each man, woman and child in the population — or nearly $90 for each person over 21 years old. In 1948, the general average was $60, the over-21 average $93.

The "hard liquor" class, distilled spirits, accounted for the cutback in spending last year. Outlays fell to $3,650,000,000 in 1949 from $3,900,000,000 in 1948.

Beer outlays dipped $10,000,000 for the second consecutive year to a $4,435,00,000 total in 1949, but spending on wine rose an offsetting $10,000,000 to a $465,000,000 total.

More than a third of the total amount spent on alcoholic beverages went for taxes. The federal, state and local governments picked up almost $3,000,000,000 revenue from this source. The federal government alone took in more than $2,200,000,000.

Some of the other money classed as spent on alcoholic beverages actually covered entertainment and other services in bars, restaurants and other establishments which do not make separate charges for those items.

Weakened demand for luxury items seemed to some government analysts the chief explanation for the continued decline in spending on alcoholic drinks, although "some decline in price" — notably for bottled in bond whiskies — helped tip the total downward.

Howard T. Jones, executive secretary of the Distilled Spirits Institute, told a reporter that the American people individually consume less distilled spirits today than they did before national prohibition — and "possibly during prohibition."

But he said the trend over the years was not so much to reduce consumption of alcohol as to switch from distilled spirits to beer and wines, which are relatively cheaper — largely because of the $9 a gallon federal tax on distilled spirits.

The U. S. Department of Agriculture is experimenting with "snowcatchers" of planted trees or fences to hold irrigation water in mountain areas until midsummer.

YELLOWSTONE OR BUST—Kenneth Williams, left, and Robert Dixon study the route they will follow on their trip to Yellowstone National Park. The youths left late Friday on the trip in Isabell, the Model A Ford in the background. Piled around the travelers is practically all the equipment they planned to take on the trip. Note the three oil cans in the foreground. (News Photo and Engraving)

* * * * * * * * *

Pray for Dick and Ken; They're Going to Yellowstone in Model A

(Editor's Note: The following is the first of a series of articles about a trip that all of us would like to take, but perhaps not by the same conveyance (?). Two Pampa High School boys are making the trip. But let them tell you about it.)

By KENNETH WILLIAMS and ROBERT DIXON
THROUGH IZZY'S WINDSHIELD

Yellowstone or bust! With a pair of pliers, a roll of bailing wire, and Isabel, we hope it won't be the bust part.

By "we," we mean Robert Dixon and Kenneth Williams. Isabel is a 1930 Model A Ford, so you see what we mean by Yellowstone or bust.

Robert, 17, is the son of Mr. E. A. Dixon, 730 Reid. Robert is a senior in Pampa High School and is employed at The Pampa Daily News in the job printing department (a free plug).

Kenneth, also 17, is the son of Mr. and Mrs. O. O. Williams, 1344 Garland. Kenneth follows Robert from there on as he is also a senior and employed in The News job printing department. (another free plug).

In case you would like to know, this is going to be a series of articles describing our adventures on this three - week trip to Yellowstone National Park. We plan to go by way of Raton, New Mexico; Colorado Springs; Leadville, Colo., Glenwood Springs, Colo.; Grand Junction, Colo.; Greenriver, Utah; and Price, Utah. From Price we will go on up into Yellowstone.

On our way home we will pass through Salt Lake City. In one of our stories we will try to give you some details and highlights of that historic city and its famous lake. From Salt Lake City we will go to Zion National Park and then on to Grand Canyon.

During our stay in Grand Canyon we plan to take a trip to the bottom of the canyon on the backs of a couple of desert canaries (mules to you Easterners).

From the canyon on home it will be according to the time we have. We hope to return by way of Phoenix, Albuquerque, and Santa Fe. But more than likely we will be hunting the shortest route home about that time.

This may not seem so far to go in three weks but look what we are traveling in and consider the speed we'll have to travel. The top speed we will travel will be around thirty miles an hour, providing Izzy will go that fast.

Perhaps we had better introduce Isabel. Isabel is the one and only "Wonder Car" (Wonder how much farther she'll run?) Ken is the owner of Izzy. Don't condemn him on that account.

Isabel is a nice, smooth running car that has a motor that purrs like a baby kitten that is about twenty years old. For Isabel's description we submit the following: red wheels, red sunshield, red sunshades, red-rimmed lights, red bumper, red box on the back and the rest of the body black. She runs as quietly as she looks.

Izzy has been worked on constantly for the past four weeks, but all that work has not stopped her love for oil, which drains the oil out as fast as it is put in. We are taking along five gallons of oil to quench her thirst for this important liquid. Among the mechanics that worked on Izzy were Clayton Stokes, who gave the car a general going over, a guy named Glen at J. C. Daniels who balanced the front wheels and made Izzy ster easier. (We're full of these free plugs). Also doing a share of work on the car (?) was Ken's Dad.

To save as much money as possible we will sleep along the roadside and also do our own cooking. Ken is the cook, while Dick will furnish the dinner music on a mandolin that he has not yet learned to play. But that is not going to stop him, much to Ken's woe. On the flip of a coin Dick was appointed treasurer of this excursion. (Sure hope he's honest.)

Well, that's the details of the trip, so we hope you people can bear with us for the next three weeks of seeing things through Izzy's windshild. So from our leaving time, until we get back you may read the mile by mile, flat tire by flat tire, breakdown by breakdown, and quart of oil by quart of oil account of our trip to Yellowstone National Park.

$900 Granted In Court Case

The Acme Lumber Co. won a $900 plus interest judgement from W. T. Harris last week in 31st District Court on a default by the defendant.

Harris, the lumber company claimed, purchased a large quantity of building materials in 1948 of which only $305 was paid.

The defendant failed to appear before the Court and a default judgement was granted the company.

The Court also denied a motion for plea of privilege filed by the Texas Employers Insurance Corp. of Dallas, defendants in a suit filed against them by Pat Shelton, Pampa.

Shelton filed suit to set aside a compensation compromise settlement agreement on grounds of "fraud, accident or mistake" on the part of the insurance company's agent. The insurance company filed a plea of privilege to have the case tried in Dallas, location of its home office. The Court decreed that sufficient evidence showed the offense was perpetrated in Gray County and denied the plea.

Attorneys for the insurance company indicated they would appeal the decision to the Court of Appeals at Amarillo.

Transcontinental Line Approved

WASHINGTON —(AP)— A new southern transcontinental route touching points in Texas has been recommended by Examiner J. Earl Cox of the Civil Aeronautics Board.

The route would be operated by Eastern Air Lines between San Francisco, Oakland, Los Angeles, San Diego, Phoenix, Tucson, El Paso, San Antonio, Austin, Houston, Beaumont, Port Arthur, Lake Charles, LaFayette-New Iberia, Baton Rouge, New Orleans, and leading cities in Alabama, Florida, Georgia, South Carolina, North Carolina, Virginia and Puerto Rico.

Cox said this "far reaching development in the history of aviation" would meet "a long-standing need for a transcontinental air service to and from the Gulf Coast, the South and the Southeast."

The radio amateur must have a general knowledge of radio principles to pass an examination for a federal license.

14th Annual XIT Reunion Set July 28-29 in Dalhart

DALHART — (AP) — The 14th annual XIT Reunion — which will bring together men who once worked for the Panhandle's 3,000,000-acre ranch — will be held July 28-29.

The men's families, and other pioneers who rode the range a half century or more ago, also will be on hand.

Frank B. Farwell, Sr., chairman of the General XIT Committee which masterminds the show, is himself an old XIT cowhand, also a grand nephew of the original owners, U.S. Senator Chas. B. Farwell and his brother, John V. Farrell, Chicago financiers.

The Farwell brothers acquired the acreage in the 1880s from the State of Texas in payment of building the $3,000,000 state capitol, still in use in Austin. They developed it into a great ranch with seven division headquarters, running 150,000 cattle and working scores of hard-riding, straight-shooting men.

The entertainment already scheduled includes a big parade; two professional rodeo performances; carnival rides for children; the Hardin-Simmons University Cowboy band of Abilene which will be here Thursday, Friday and Sataurday; the Lane Trio Trampoline Act, an aerial trapeze drama of Vancouver, Wash.; the sheep dog act that has won acclaim at Denver, Houston, San Antonio and other cities; Tommy Duncan and his dance band from the West Coast, Rodeo Clown Buddy Reser of Woodward, Okla. More will be scheduled, Farwell said.

RIDES "LIKE A MILLION"— delivers for less than some sixes

POWER? Sure! Here's a whole bonnetful of Fireball straight-eight power.

Room? Plenty—in big, sofa-wide seats and generous room for elbows and shoulders.

Style? Well take a look—see anything on the road today that is so smart, so sleek, so quickly spotted?

But that's just a start in this beauty. Here you're going to meet the "ride of a lifetime"—smooth, level-going comfort in the quite matchless Buick manner.

Just see why this is so:

Most cars have coil springs in front. Buick has them all around.

Most cars now ride on low-pressure tires. Buick adds to them Safety-Ride rims to cut heel-over and sway.

Most cars drive through the rear springs, which means they have to be stiff. Buick drives through a firm torque-tube that takes up driving thrust and roughness.

And no other car—no, not a single one—has all these comfort extras plus husky frames plus Hi-Poised engine mountings plus middle-of-the-car seating plus the extra silkiness of Dynaflow Drive.*

Worth something? You bet it is. But it's riding luxury that doesn't show up in the price tags. Figures start at levels lower than on many sixes—yet every Buick has this matchless array of ride features.

Better come learn about them—by first-hand trial. Can you see your Buick dealer today?

*Standard on ROADMASTER, optional at extra cost on BUICKS and SUPER models.

Oilers Even Series With 13 to 10 Victory

Majors Feature 18 Homers; Westrum Leads Giant Attack

By RALPH RODEN

NEW YORK — (AP) — Major league baseballs behaved like rockets again Saturday as five day games produced 18 home runs.

The latest outbreak of "homeritis" followed Friday night's record shattering harvest of 30 home runs in an eight game card.

Saturday's sizeable crop of four baggers may swell before dawn as two night games were scheduled in the National League, St. Louis at Boston and Pittsburgh at Brooklyn.

Catcher Wes Westrum and the New York Giants were the ringleaders of Saturday's assault against the pitching craft.

Westrum poled three home runs and a triple as the Giants pounded out seven fourbaggers in crushing the Cincinnati Reds, 12-2. The seven homers fell one shy of matching the major league record of most homers in one game.

Hank Thompson, Alvin Dark, Whitey Lockman and Monte Irvin socked the others [illegible]

The Chicago Cubs bowed, 5-4, to the Philadelphia Phils.

Home runs by Gran Hammer and Andy Seminick featured the Philadelphia victory. Hank Sauer hit a homer for the Cubs.

The Detroit Tigers and the New York Yankees, who set a record by smashing 11 homers Friday night, accounted for only one Saturday by Yogi Berra of the Yanks. The Tigers won 4-1, to increase their American League lead.

Boston's powerful Red Sox, who failed to hit a home run in their 12-9 triumph over St. Louis Friday night, belted four out of the lot Saturday as they breezed to a 12-3 victory over the Browns.

The Cleveland Indians banged out three home runs in edging the Washington Senators, 6-5.

A game between the Philadelphia Athletics and the Chicago White Sox was postponed because of rain.

Let's Talk Things Over
With Gabby Garrison

Who administered the shot in the arm that has skyrocketed the Pampa Oilers?

That's the question other West Texas-New Mexico League members are asking themselves as the Oilers continue to be the hottest thing since the Chicago fire.

The Pampa outfit had a ten game winning streak snapped Friday night at Borger, after sweeping three straight games from the Gassers the previous weekend. But even at that, the Oilers still maintained their second place standing.

Exactly a month ago today, the Pampans had won 11 games and lost 20, and were in last place in the league standings. But, beginning on Saturday night, a month ago, some flame evidently ignited them, and sent them on one of the most phenomenal climbs in league history. Since then they've won twenty-seven and lost five.

Manager Grover Seitz has always been famous for his stretch drive, and this year apparently has given his club the go-ahead sign earlier than usual. He now has eight men hitting above .300, one over 400 and the leading home run hitting team in the circuit.

Two weeks ago, his team was fifth in club batting and last in team fielding. Today they're second in batting and fifth in fielding.

An overall average shows, that in 58 games the team as a whole, is hitting .322. These figures cover all games through June 19, and are released through the official league statistician.

Oiler batsmen have been at bat 1978 times, and have pounded 636 hits, including 59 home runs, Borger, Amarillo and Lubbock have all smashed 66 homers each and are tied for second in the four-base department.

Fielding, the heads have committed 136 errors and have maintained a .957 average. They've played only five games all year without a miscue, although the average number of errors per game has dropped considerably recently. Borger also leads the circuit in defensive work with a .954 average. They have bobbled only 106 times.

In individual batting, Joltin' Joe Fortin has also gained in the loop standings until he is now leading the circuit's regular hitters. Only player to surpass Fortin's average is Harry Bright of Clovis, who has played in only 34 games. Joe has played in 58. On June 19, Bright was hitting .456, while the Oiler "Jolter" was clubbing at a .419 clip. Since that time, our unofficial averages show Fortin with an increase to .425.

The Oiler batting averages, according to our unofficial records, are:

	AB	R	H	HR	AV.
[illegible]

Since the time of the official release, six days ago, the Oilers have added 11 home runs to their total and have now smacked 96 four-masters over various fences.

But, there are other things just as much responsible for the Oiler success as their hitting. Namely, their pitching staff.

Up until Friday night, the last Oiler hurler to call for relief was on June 18, and the Oilers won that one, 11-9, over the Gold Sox.

Last year's "winningest" hurler, Roy Parker, has once again returned to the lead, posting his 12th victory with a 15-10 win over Albuquerque last Wednesday. He has lost five games, but the last time he lost was over a month ago, on May 23. He was defeated then by one run, 11-12, by the Amarillo Gold Sox. He holds victories over every team in the league and two over Albuquerque, Borger, Clovis, and Lamesa. He has beaten the Abilene Blue Sox three times.

The Oiler pitching records are:

	W	L	CG	Pct.
[illegible]

The ability of the Oiler hurlers to go the route has been invaluable. Pampa tossers have turned in 38 complete games this far, including three shutouts. George Payte has tossed two whitewashings, having blanked Abilene 3-0 on June 1, and Amarillo 20-0, on June 19. Earl Doud chunked the other, also shutting out the Blue Sox from Abilene, 3-0, on June 9.

Joe Coleman Says Not Interested in New Coaching Job

ODESSA — (AP) — Joe Coleman, football coach of Odessa High School, says he is not even interested in the head coaching job at Texas Western College.

Noting news reports that he was a major candidate, Coleman said yesterday he had been interested in the position at one time, but since he was not contacted, "the case is closed."

Jack Curtice resigned at Texas Western last week to go to Utah as coach.

Bright is Leading Hitter; Joe Fortin Ranking Second

The Clovis Pioneers had only two batsmen with averages high enough to place them in the top thirty in the West Texas - New Mexico League, but one of them compiled a healthy .456 showing to take first place among the circuit swatters.

Harry Bright, who has played in only 14 games, collected 26 hits in 57 tries to shade Pampa's Joe Fortin by 37 percentage points for the top spot. Fortin, playing in all but five of the Oilers' 63 games this year, socked 96 hits in 229 tries for an official average of .419, on June 19.

Joltin' Joe drove in 79 teammates, to rank second in the league in runs batted in, behind Manager Jodie Beeler of Lamesa, who drove 85 of his boys home. Fortin and Lyle Palmer of Albuquerque, the league's leading hitter two weeks ago, each have smacked 27 doubles to pace the circuit in that department, and each has garnered 96 total hits, good enough for second place honors. Fortin has smashed 12 home runs to join with Beeler in a fourth spot deadlock for home run honors.

Fred "Pappy" Williams is still pacing the circuit long-ball hitters, having driven out 19 homers. He is followed by Don Ricketson and Virgil Richardson, both of Pampa, with 16 circuit clouts.

The official top ten batters through June 19 are; league are:

	AB	R	H	HR	Av.
Bright, Clovis	57	17	26	3	.456
Fortin, Pampa	229	61	96	12	.419

Santiago, Lam.	192	55	76	0	.396
Wolmer, Abi.	244	61	96	6	.393

John Fetzer of Lamesa and Bob Cluley of Borger have both amassed perfect pitching records. Fetzer has won 5 while losing none, and Cluley has earned a 4-0 record. Both were, however, unsuccessful in their attempts against the Oilers, and neither were able to finish the game. Fetzer was knocked out on May 30; Cluley on May 19.

But, the outstanding winner in the league has been Pampa southpaw Roy Parker, winner of more games last season that any other WT-NM League pitcher. The stocky lefty is off to a fast start this year and is already ahead of the pack with 13 wins and five losses. He is far ahead of the rest of the league in strikeouts, having fanned 109 batters, as compared to George Payte, another Pampa hurler, who has whiffed 87. The nearest hurler to this Pampa pair is Eulis Rosson of Lamesa with 64 strike-outs to his credit.

The top ten pitchers in the through June 19 are:

Borger Bees Blast Pampa Ladies 25-0

The TAAF League defending champions, the Borger Bees, are well on their way to retaining their circuit crown.

They won their fourth straight game, as compared with no losses, Friday night by blasting the Pampa Lady All-Stars, 25-0, on the Lions Club diamond in Pampa.

Pampa errors, plus eleven Borger hits, were too much for the locals to overcome as they succumbed for the second straight time. Barbara Padgett, Borger hurler, who was an All-State girls selection last year, received credit for the victory, allowing only two hits.

The Pampa hurler, Avis "Candy" Kelly, pitched creditable ball, but the leaky fielding proved costly time and time again and was the major factor in the Borger triumph.

Tomorrow night the locals play Panhandle, a team which they defeated, 31-11, earlier and then go to Borger Tuesday night for a return engagement with the Bees.

Garland Gains Sixth Win; Teams to End Series Today

The power laden Pampa Oilers pulled back to within one-half game of the league-leading Lubbock Hubbers last night when they outslugged the Borger Gassers, 13-10, in the second of a three-game series. The Pampa triumph evened the series, and the issue is slated to be settled this afternoon at 2:30 when the two clubs clash in the finale of the series.

Bill Garland, Nemesis of the Gasser line-up, which is packed with southpaws, elbowed all the way for his sixth victory of the year. The Pampa portsider was in frequent trouble but finished strong, whiffing Jimmy Littlejohn with three fastballs to end the game. As the Oilers were in their victory process, the Amarillo Gold Sox downed the Lubbock Hubbers, 12-10.

Bob Cluley started on the mound for the Gassers, but left in the second inning when the Oilers greeted him with a big eight-run splurge. The visitors were never headed after that.

The contest was typical of Pampa-Borger action with five home runs being blasted. Deck Woldt and Dick Dawson authored four masters for the Oilers while Fred Williams, Jimmy Littlejohn and Ted Clawitter hit for the circuit for the Gassers.

Today's contest will end the series and send the Oilers to Amarillo for a two-day stand. They will then go to Lamesa for three games, and then back to Abilene for two before returning home on July 3. Either Earl Doud or Roy Parker will hurl for the Oilers today against probably Hugh King.

Gassers Take Opener, 13-6, From Pampans

The Borger Gassers, engared by three consecutive defeats at the hands of the Pampa Oilers on the previous weekend, bounced back Friday night to steal the opener of another three-game stand from the Oilers, 13-6, Friday night in Borger to end a ten-game Pampa winning streak.

It was another battle of base hits, although Borger starter, Fred Parker, managed to weather the Oiler attack while Oiler hurler George Payte had to call for help in the bottom of the sixth inning. Parker was also ineffective against the Borgans and relinquished five more runs in the five innings.

Don Ricketson smashed his 17th round tripper of the year for the Oilers in the third inning to put the Pampans out in front, 3-2, but the visitors couldn't hold their advantage and fell behind, 6-3, in the bottom of the same frame. The Gassers were never headed after that.

Earl Perry smashed a four-master for the Gassers in eighth with Fred Williams on base to conclude the evening's scoring.

Sox Boss Resigns

BOSTON — (AP) — Jovial Steve O'Neill, called into the Boston Red Sox organization as an afterthought has formally taken over the American League's slumping pre-season favorites.

He took command after general manager Joe Cronin announced in St. Louis that Joe McCarthy had resigned his $50,000 a year job with the Sox. McCarthy left the Red Sox Thursday in Chicago and flew back to his Buffalo home to be treated for pleuresy and influenza.

He indicated then that he intended to rejoing the club next Tuesday in Philadelphia.

But Saturday the 63-year-old pilot said he was through. He told Boston sports writers by telephone that he was "physically exhausted." Asked if he expected to return to baseball, McCarthy replied, with no show of indecision: "No, this is final."

The resignation of the top pilot caused as much surprise as a similar move in May, 1946, when he left the Yankees. He had led them to eight pennants and seven world titles.

He quit the Sox while they were in one of their worst slumps. They were 8 1-2 games off the pace when his resignation was announced. "I received fair treatment in Boston," McCarthy said, "but didn't accomplish what I set out to do."

The Sox have lost 11 of their last 14 games. McCarthy said that he thought it was "best for the team" that he get out.

O'Neill piloted the club to a win yesterday in his first game at the helm.

McCarthy's wife said he resigned on advice of his personal physician, Dr. Arthur Burckel.

"He had to retire," she said. "His health won't permit him to continue as manager."

McCarthy became manager of the Sox shortly after the 1947 World Series. His 1948 club lost out for the American League title in a play-off game with the Cleveland Indians. His 1949 club was beaten out by the Yankees for the league championship in the last game of the season.

Eugene Cooper Trains Again For Middleweight Comeback

The champ is training again! From out of the lusty Texas Panhandle has come an almost legendary figure of amateur boxing, called by many as the greatest amateur boxer in the annals of Texas ring history. Eugene Cooper, cited in 1948 as the greatest fighter, pound for pound, in the state tournament at Fort Worth, has notified the pugilistic world that he is back in training.

The Pampa athlete has established training headquarters at 1303 Williston, and is working daily with sparring partners, rope skipping, bag punching and road work. He has worked himself to 163 pounds now, and hopes to trim down to 160, which is 13 pounds heavier than he ever fought before.

Gene started his fight career in 1940 in Lefors. He trained for weeks under the supervision of Toby Waggoner. Entering the ring at 70 pounds, he dropped his first bout to LeRoy Sargeant of Stinnett. Since then, he has won 131 bouts, and lost six. Included in those victories were twenty-four tournament championships.

Only Pampa boxer to ever gain the nod over Cooper was Johnny Campbell who outpointed the wily southpaw in 1940 in a 75-pound bout. After losing to Campbell, Cooper started a victory string that carried him to ninety straight victories. He battled his way through the Amarillo Golden Gloves six times, advanced through the state tourannment, and then lost in the national tournament in Chicago in a quarter-final bout to Dick Guerro, twice national champ.

Six years in a row, Cooper was crowned Amarillo Regional Champion. He annexed his first Amarillo title in 1944, when he won the crown at 112 pounds in the Golden Gloves division. There was no high school division in the tournament, and Gene, who was only 14 years old, was too young to make the trip to the Fort Worth state tournament. He came back in 1945 as the high school division was added, weighing in at 135 pounds, and won his second title, this time in the HS division. From 1946 to 1949 he reigned as welterweight champ, and brought the state title home in 1948 with his knockout victory over defending champ Jack Woodruff. In 1949 he lost in the second round of the tournament to Jack Lawrence.

Gene has won tournaments in Wellington, Amarillo, Pampa, Clarendon, Follett, Plainview, and Fort Worth. In 1948, after losing to Guerro, Cooper made another try at national laurels when he slugged his way through the AAU Tournament in Amarillo and earned a chance at the National AAU tournament championship in Kansas City. But after training for the bout, he couldn't make the weight and was not eligible to enter in a heavier bracket.

Several pro offers have been made to the lethal slugger, but Cooper stated that he never intends to fight professionally. He is now working for the General Supply and stated that his fighting was merely for the love of the sport.

Gene will be 21 next Wednesday, and the occasion will mark over a year that he has not trained. But at his quarters yesterday, he and training partners Buddy Sawyer and Leon Kelly went through a strenuous two-hour workout of sparring and road work.

Gene has a younger brother, Billy Ed, who resembles him a great deal. The two are working together and opinions are that another champ may be in the making.

"What hurt me," said Gene, "is that for about four years I didn't have a coach and fought on my own. Well, at least Billy Ed will have me around to watch him." What more could a fellow want than a champ for a coach.

Gene hopes to make his first comeback try at the TAAF tournament in August. The alternating meet has not been definitely set yet, but it is expected to be held either in Lubbock or Amarillo.

The success of Communist forces in China meances the whole of that over-populated, turbulent area.
—Secretary of State Dean Acheson.

THEN AND NOW — Eugene Cooper lost his first fight when he weighed only 70 pounds (above left) then battled his way to 131 victories, while losing only five more. He has won twenty-four tournaments, including the state championship tournament in Fort Worth in 1948, before retiring in 1949. He announced last week that he would be back in action next year though, as a middleweight, and began a strenuous training campaign. The picture at the right was taken at his training headquarters, 1303 Williston.

Flam Smashes Balbiers for College Title

By BO BYERS

AUSTIN — (AP) — Herb Flam of UCLA smashed valiant Ricardo Balbiers of Rollins College, 6-3, 6-1, 9-7 to win the National College tennis crown today.

The burr-haired golden boy of college tennis, a veteran of the courts at 21, out - maneuvered Chile's curly-haired Davis Cup player. Balbiers was unseeded in the tournament. Flam rated no. 2.

A burning sun beat down as Flam and Balbiers tried to run the other into the ground during the 2-hour battle.

Great passing shots and a superior net game carried the slightly built but well-muscled Flam to the championship that had eluded him three years. He stayed at the baseline, lofting blooper shots that bounded high on Balbiers' backhand, until he received a short return. Then he went in with forcing shots that usually put him in position for a placement.

Pioneers Slam Out 20-2 Victory Over Lamesa Lobo Nine

CLOVIS — (AP) — The Clovis Pioneers scord in every inning but the second and third here Friday night to wallop Lamesa's Lobos 20-2 in the first of a three-game series.

The Pioneers battered a quartet of Lobo hurlers to run up their largest tally of the season. Johnny Waselchuk, staging a comeback after being drubbed soundly by Lubbock Thursday night, coasted to his seventh victory, holding the Lamesans to nine scattering hits.

Eulis Rosson opened for Lamesa and was pounded hard during his four inning stint. Rosson was followed by Ralph McDonald and Hill Hart who also found the going rugged. Manager Jodie Beeler took over pitching duties when Hart failed to retire a man in the seventh and finished for the Lobos.

Harry Bright clouted a two-run homer for the Pioneers in the first inning.

Gold Sox Pitching Flops; Hubs Take Wild 21-14 Victory

AMARILLO — (AP) — Amarillo pitching wobbled and floundered again here Friday night and the Lubbock Hubbers beat down the Gold Sox 21-14 in a woolly, ragged WT-NM League baseball game.

The Hubbers bunched their blows against four Gold Sox flingers, Andy Adams, Joel Calloway, Bob Zollicoffer, and Bob Welfield, all of whom were hit hard and hurt by poor support as well as the league leaders took the first of a three-game series.

The Gold Sox erred four times down the middle of the infield during the night and made Lubbock a big present of seven unearned runs, for instance, in a big sixth-inning uprising which proved the decisive factor of a swat-crazy contest.

British Launch 2-Weeks Sports Show Monday

LONDON — (AP) — Britain's biggest fortnight of international sports opens Monday on the famed center court of the all-England lawn tennis club at Wimbledon.

In the next 14 days the sports menu will include the British Open Golf Championship at Troon, Scotland; the Royal Regatta at Henley, England, and the Wimbledon Championships.

Four American professionals and three amateurs headed by British amateur champ Frank Stranahan have entered the open golf meet starting July 3.

Eight American entries, including full crews from Harvard, Dartmouth and Yale, will chase the rowing crowns on the Thames River above London starting July 5.

But the tennis at Wimbledon will be the big show.

PMGA Meets Here Today

The monthly meeting of the Panhandle Mens' Golfing Association has been slated for the Pampa Country Club today with golfing representatives attending from all four member cities.

The association, in its second year of organization, has been deemed a huge success, and seems destined for greater heights, according to Johnny Austin, Pampa professional linkster.

As the meetings rotate, golfers assemble and play, with each team taking its lowest five scores as team points. The total is then added each month, and at the end of play, the lowest team receives a large trophy. The trophy is to be kept for one year, unless the winner repeats the next season. Last year, Phillips won the trophy, and they are currently tied with Pampa for the lead this year.

The total points thus far are:
Pampa—335
Phillips—335
Ross Rogers—337
Huber—341

Last month, the group assembled at Phillips. Posting the five low scores for the Pampans were Mickey Prigmore, 67; Ronnie Samples, 64; Tommie Cox, 67; George Thompson, 68; and Cletus Mitchell, 69, for a total 335. All five scores were net scores, being compiled with handicaps.

The next meeting is scheduled to be held at the Huber course in late July, and then the organization will end the campaign with its final meeting at Ross Rogers in Amarillo.

Dukes Win Slugfest From Abilene 26-8; Snap Hitting Slump

ALBUQUERQUE — (AP) — In one of the best marathons ever witnessed at Tingley Field, the Albuquerque Dukes made 24 hits go the distance with miles to spare as they mopped up the Abilene Blue Sox 26-8 Friday night before 859 tired but contented fans to shake all evidences of a hitting slump.

Rookie first basemen Jim Marshall shambled the Blue Sox pitching for two tremendous blasts over the right centerfield fence both in the nine-run sixth frame — and added a wicked three-bagger to his evening's work in accounting for five RBIs. Art Cuitti duplicated Marshall's RBI while Stan Surma was runner-up with four.

Professional Golfers Head For Quarter-Finals in PGA

By FRITZ HOWELL

COLUMBUS, Ohio — (AP) — The touring professionals and the stay-at-home pros broke even Saturday as eight stalwarts stalked into the quarter finals of the $40,000 mid-century PGA Championship with third round 36-hole victories.

The tourney-tested tourists advancing into today's 36-hole-man-to-man conflict over Scioto Country Club's rain-swept acres were Jimmy Demaret, the fashion plate from Ojai, Calif., Lloyd Mangrum of Niles, Ill., 1946 National Open king who has piled up $8,100 in tournament golf this month; Johnny Palmer of Badin, N.C., who went to the finals last year against Sam Snead; and Dave Douglas, the elongated lad from Newark, Del.

Upholding the honor of the club professionals in the play-for-pay classic are Ray Gafford, 36-year-old, six foot two, 160-pound Texan from Dallas; Chandler Harper of Portsmouth, Va., another 36-year-old, Henry Williams, Jr., of Secane, Pa., 33-year-old father of three; and 42-yearold Henry Picard of Cleveland, the 1939 champion who has just about foresaken the tournament wars but who said he's playing as well as he did in his gadabout days.

Four of the octet — Mangrum, Palmer, Williams and Demaret — reached the quarter finals of last year's classic at Richmond, Va. The battle lines will be clearly defined in today's quarter finals, for each of the four matches over Scioto's treacherous 7,032 - yard course will pit a home pro against a traveler.

The schedule calls for Gafford to meet Demaret, a fellow but transplanted Texan, Mangrum to battle Harper; Williams to tangle with Douglas, and Picard to joust with Palmer.

Lean and hungry looking Gafford took the measure of Eddie Burke, "the man who beat the man" by 4 and 3. In Friday's second round Burke dethroned defending champion Sam Snead and was king for a day.

Demaret, the laughing boy of the links, staged one of golf-dom's great comebacks in triumphing over Denny Shute of Akron, the 1936-37 champ, 4 and 3. Jimmy, as colorful as his wardrobe, never was better than even until the 29th hole, and twice he was three down. One down at the end of 27 holes, Jimmy started burning up the course despite the rain, won five holes in a row — three with birdies —and ousted his 45-year-old foe.

Hurdles Mark Set By Dick Attlesey IN AAU Track Meet

COLLEGE PARK, Md. — (AP) — Big, raw-boned Dick Attlesey broke the world's record for the 110-yard high hurdles Saturday at the national A.A.U. track championships.

Attlesey negotiated the event in 13.6 seconds at the University of Maryland, shaving one-tenth of a second from the accepted world mark held jointly by Forest Towns and Fred Wolcott.

A 21-year-old senior at the University of Southern California, Dick came like a shot at the seventh hurdle after a relatively bad start. He had to overtake Jim Gehrdes of Penn State, no slow poke.

Gehrdes got in second, about three yards in arrears of the champion.

But Attlesey wasn't the entire show. Sam Felton and Jim Fuchs, a couple of New York Athletic club's "whales" did all right, too. Felton broke the meet record for the hammer throw — a mark that had been standing since 1914 — and Fuchs tied his own standard for the shot put.

Felton got off a heave of 187 feet 3 3-4 inches to beat by four feet the 183 feet 3 3-4 inches record set by A. J. Ryan back before the first world war.

Greens Gossip

Qualifying rounds for the City Golf Tournament got underway yesterday afternoon and will continue until 6 next Saturday afternoon. All players who will be unable to fire their qualifying rounds are asked to contact Johnny Austin at the Pampa Country Club in order that he may post their scores for them.

Hays Harper, titlist last year, will not be on hand to defend his crown this year, so the Championship Flight will be flung wide open for such players as C. F. McGinnis, Mark Heath, Marvin Harris, Grover Austin, Jr., R. M. Samples, Harry Wilbur, and many more. . .and from all indications, the tournament play is going to be as hot as the weather, all the way through. Shorty Heiskell, Sam Sloan and Curtis Douglass have already issued warnings to all who should happen to fall into their flights. Yessir, this one should be a dandy!

Most of the fellows will "kill two birds with one shot" today, when they shoot their qualifying rounds and play host to about 100 players of the Panhandle Men's Golf Association. Member clubs are Amarillo, Huber, Phillips, and Pampa. Phillips and Pampa are tied for first place with 335 points. Johnny Austin is very hopeful that his boys will pick up six or eight points in today's matches, which should give the locals enough lead to take the beautiful trophy from the Phillips players, who won it last year. The next meet will be held at Huber the last week of July, with the final round being played at the Ross Rogers, Amarillo, course in August. Hope to see all you players out there today and hitting your Sunday shots.

Grover Austin, Jr., is leaving tomorrow for New York where he will represent this section of the Cities Service Oil Company in its annual Employes' Golf Tornament. Lotsa good luck and good wishes go with the Pampa linkster.

Well, this heat is about to get me down. . .so, 'til his afternoon. . .so long.

Meet The Oilers

DICK DAWSON
OUTFIELDER

DICK DAWSON, Oiler outfielder, was obtained from the Albuquerque Dukes after the season had started. The change has, evidently, helped the youthful slugger. It was Dawson's first change from Albuquerque since he broke into organized baseball in 1948. He was sent to the Dukes from his home in Berkeley, Calif., and stayed there until coming to the Oilers this year. Dick is 23 years old, stands 5' 11" and weighs 153 pounds. He is single and works for Cutter's Laboratory in Berkeley during the winter months. He is currently batting in lead-off position and sports a .306 batting average, 31 points better than he was hitting for Albuquerque. In 46 games he has not made an error.

Major Strikes Plague Country

Five major strikes are in progress at this writing — and each of them demonstrates a particular feature of unionism in action.

Take, as a starter, the milk drivers' strikes in Washington, D. C., and in Pennsylvania.

Any union czar who pulls a strike against kids and invalids must be a doll. Gov. James Duff of Pennsylvaania has ordered his state police to treat pickets dumping milk as "criminals," which indeed they are. If your youngster needed milk, and if that milk were being dumped by a gang of hoodlums, you'd be inclined to classify the gang as criminal too.

They are criminals in that they are destroying food, in that they are forcing men to quit their jobs, in that they are initiating force.

That is one method of unionism: If necessary, take milk from infants to win your strike.

Nice people!

Another major strike is that of the American Newspaper Guild (CIO) against the New York World-Telegram and Sun.

The World-Telegram recently acquired the Sun when the latter went under because of increasing labor costs. The Guild apparently is trying to make the World-Telegram go the way of the newspaper it absorbed only a few months ago.

The Guild is asking, among other things, $120 for a 35-hour week, paid holidays and a nine-tenths union shop.

The Guild strike illustrates another fine trait of unionism. To back up the Guild, the mechanical workers of the newspaper have refused to cross picket lines. The result has been to shut down the newspaper.

The Guildsmen have forced the mechanical workers out of their jobs. It illustrates the point that unions will sacrifice anyone or anything in the name of expediency. It demonstrates that no union man can call his soul his own. He's no more the master of his fate and the captain of his soul than the denizens of monkey island in the zoo.

A third strike is that of CBS technicians in New York.

The technicians are striking over "working conditions," whatever that means. The New Yorkers walked off the job yesterday, and their fellow-unionists in Los Angeles quit their jobs in "sympathy."

The Los Angeles union was not engaged in negotiations with CBS nor was there any apparent dispute in progress.

But New York had a strike, so the Los Angeles unionists walked out in sympathy.

The point illustrated here is that local management is completely incapable of running its business except at the command of union headquarters in New York.

Any unionist in Los Angeles or San Francisco or Chicago can be pulled off the job to back up the union czars in New York. The worker is no more than a puppet; and management is a nominal manager whose perogatives gradually are being compromised away under the tutelage of an administration-backed gang of labor leaders.

The fifth strike is against the Enka Rayon Co. in Tennessee. It illustrates another point: The union actually loses control over the emotional movements it begins. Eventually a union is no more able to control the machinery it sets in motion than the leaders of the French revolution were able to control the mass executions and the assassinations.

Enka has been struck for two months. The strikers have taken to sprinkling tacks along the road to the plant. The union has ordered the strikers to stop. But the union is unable to control the strikers.

Finally the state troopers have been called out to enforce a no-picketing order. The union is unable to check the violence it initiated. It is the old story of Frankenstein's monster on the loose.

The moral is obvious: The man who initiates force is unable to circumscribe, curtail, estimate or control that force any more than an atom bomb can be kept from exploding once man has detonated the cap and started the chain reaction in operation.

These five points are matters of stark reality to all Americans. Never were they better illustrated than in the five strikes which now plague the nation — and you.

Fair Enough - Pegler

By WESTBROOK PEGLER

NEW YORK — President Truman recently pinned on Vice President Alben Barkley a gold medal for which Congress appropriated $2,500. Except in the most technical legal sense this appropriation was an embezzlement of money by trustees and the medal therefore is a tainted honor. Barkley should return it in conformity with his own speech of acceptance in which he said he could think of no reason why Congress should have thought he deserved the medal. He was not overly modest in this. No honest person can pretend to, for no such reason exists. His services to the republic have been undistinguished and routine and the total net result to the people who have now been gypped of $2,500 of their earnings by faithless fiduciaries has been grievous impairment of their liberties, their fortunes and the integrity and safety of their republic.

Barkley has been either actively implicated in the most destructive betrayals of popular trust in elected officials which distinguished the Roosevelt-Truman pluto-Democratic regime, or a knowing and acquiescent stooge. At best he has been at all times an accomplice of the wreckers in their nefarious program of plunder, exploitation, and the corruption and debauchery of civic morals and the legitimate political ideals of the republic.

The very origin, history and presentation of this legalized booty are a dramatic and horrifying demonstration of the process of rot which began with the use of WPA to corrupt the ballot in Barkley's own state, and continues through the European Recovery Program.

In presenting the trinket to his old reliable accomplice in evil designs against the constitutional government and the interests of the citizens, Truman said he entertained some doubt of Barkley's worthiness. He appeared to be facetious, but many a true word is spoken in jest. Truman's further remark that he had given away more medals than all the other presidents put together, but took more pleasure in this presentation than he ever had in any other, was a sidelong appraisal of the awards for valor which had been latched onto twitching martyrs or widows or mothers of the fallen. The medal of honor costs about 60 cents at the present inflated exchange.

Chief Justice Vinson, who seems not to be guilty of active vulgarity in his social activities but not to know any better, appeared in the line-up to honor his old friend. These two woolhats have been comrades for many years and Vinson managed Barkley's 1926 campaign. This was not the year that Barkley's victory was tainted by fraud through the manipulation of WPA moneys. The chief justice of the United States remarked in the old, familiar clam-bake and testimonial idiom that the occasion was "a sweet recognition of a great man's work." That comment is a capsule appraisal of the standards of greatness which prevail now in the Supreme Court.

To a man of Vinson's morals, qualified as they are by the politics he plays and the company he keeps, it would not occur that Barkley's title to this valuable bauble was subject to the slightest question. The power of the purse was entrusted to the Congress in the founding days on a stern assumption that they would not impose on their trust to misappropriate public money to gratify their friends. A jurist of stricter honor might have noted that this misappropriation of $2,500 of the people's money could accomplish no conceivable public benefit and was a waste, not to say a worse abuse of trust. Yet it would have been equally honorable and consistent with the morals of the Democrats to vote Barkley a million dollars, cash, exempt from the income tax, as Truman's $50,000 annual bonus is.

The difference between $2,500 thus arbitrarily lifted from a bankrupt national damper and a million or a billion is only mathematical, not moral. It might have occurred to Vinson that the bums who thus flattered their old friend at public expense could have paid for it themselves by a private subscription of about $4 a head. However, as a veteran member of the lodge himself he also knew the absurdity of expecting these parasites to bear any portion of an expense which they could shove onto the shoulders of that contemptible monstrosity, the Common Man. While they were at their sentimental chore of giving Truman largess, immune alike from taxes and accounting, they hopped their own graft with a fraudulent allowance of $2,500 a year falsely described as an expense appropriation but subject to no check beyond their own smirking affirmations that it is spent in the public interest.

Barkley served in or, better say, attended Congress for about 35 years. He was paid in full for his time and the score was all even when, to his own amazement, he was elected vice president in 1948. The people of the United States owed him nothing. The laborious attempts of the banal claque of Washington reporters to endear him by calling him the Veep and sentimentalizing his senile antics in throes have slightly confused but not altered the facts in this respect.

This $2,500 was wrung from the earnings and savings of scores of worried, needy Americans They may now understand more clearly that they are not the masters but are the subjects of Congress. They cannot challenge this appropriation. Barkley cannot be made to pay it back except by some highly unlikely process of embarrassment and shame.

Barkley said he valued the sentiment more than the gold in the medal. That sentiment could have been as well expressed in lead or tin by any manufacturer of Coney Island souvenirs, and either of these metals would have been more appropriaate.

As long as I am President, we are not going to put dollars above world peace.

—President Truman.

My Grandson's College Economic Textbook Propagandizes for Collectivism

Since most of the textbooks on economics that have come to my attention in colleges and high schools are teaching the youth of the land beliefs that make it more and more difficult for them to get good jobs at ever increasing wage, I believe there is nothing more useful than to further comment on these textbooks that are corrupting and confusing the youth of the land. As the readers of this column know, I have been commenting for several days on a textbook called "Applied Economics", which my grandson is studying at the University of Southern California. In the last issue I was reporting some of the things that this textbook listed as being obstacles to full employment. I continue the discussion:

Here is another false claim that they list as being an obstacle to full employment:

"Extreme inequality of income, tending to restrict the purchasing power of the mass of consumers while stimulating a surplus of savings on the part of the rich."

This is not an obstacle of employment. If people want to produce for those who have not produced their equivalent for exchange of had it voluntarily given to them that is the error that causes unemployment. Had they produced for those who had production with which to buy therere would be no unemployment because of differences in amount of wealth held by persons. In fact one person could employ all the people all the time if the workers consumed only air and water if they would produce what this one person wanted. For example, if this man wanted to travel around the world in a very short period of time, he could set a lot of people to work on that. If he wanted to beautify things, he could get a lot of people to work on beautifying this or that. If he did not like noise, he could set a lot of people to developing a means of silencing objectionable noise. In a million ways he could keep them all employed—not wisely of course, but he could keep them fully employed.

Here is one statement they make in listing obstacles to employment that is true:

"A very bad system of money and banking which lends itself to alternating waves of inflation and deflation."

That is true, but their remedy is to give the government more control over money and banking, which is the primary cause of inflation and deflation and unemployment. They, throughout the book advocate more centralization of control over money and banking.

Here is another item they list that is a real obstacle to full employment:

"The stubborn resistance of organized labor to any downward pressure on wages, and the adoption of legislation and of governmenal policies to the same effect."

They certainly do cause unemployment. Yet these two authors advocate minimum wages that prevent some people from working at a wage equivalent to what they produce. They don't seem to recognize a contradiction in their own book.

They list another item as an obstacle to full employment as being:

"Disruptions of world economy occasioned by war, and the breakdown of international trade caused by nationalistic tariff and monetary policies."

War does not cause unemployment. In fact it makes men work harder to satisfy a given want. Neither do tariffs cause unemployment. They also simply make men work harder to satisfy a given want. Men of couse have to adjust themselves to different jobs in case of war and tariffs. Monetary policies established by a centralized government do cause unemployment. These monetary policies adopted during the war are the cause of unemployment, not the war.

One primary obstacle to full employment at a decent wage they do not mention. That is the graduated income and inheritance tax that retards the accumulation of capital. In fact the authors contend that the graduated income tax that reduces usable incomes is economic and promotes higher wage levels. To so contend is to show how inexperienced and what day dreamers the authors of this book really are.

news behind the news

By RAY TUCKER

WASHINGTON — "In view of the swift and vast extension of public and private old age and pensions systems within the last few years," writes A. S. of Sacramento, Calif., "why didn't Congress pass the Townsend Plan when it was first proposed many years ago? It seems to me that the boys at Washington have walked all around the barn on this question."

Answer: The thought had not struck me so vividly until I received this and similar letters, but the fact is that we have now, or will have a virtual Townsend Plan in operation in this country.

Except for differences in financing payments by industry and government, the present and prospective program for taking care of people past sixty-five is somewhat similar to the good gray doctor's ancient proposal.

BENEFITS — As I recall the basic features of his scheme, everybody over 65 or 70 was to receive $200 a month, to be financed by a tax on commercial transactions. But they had to spend that $200 within thirty days to keep business activity and production at a high level.

Under the House version of the 1950 Social Security Bill, the monthly benefits for two people will amount to approximately $110. If inflation continues, that figure will probably be increased in future years. Under the recent General Motors contract, some employees will collect as much as $117.50 a month.

Now, if you add to those amounts the additional benefits now available or proposed, the total that Uncle Sam will pay out to the aged will not be far below Dr. Townsend's $200 figure.

FINANCING — Nor is the method of financing so different, when you come to think of it. Under the present system, the money is raised by a tax on earnings as against Dr. Townsend's plan to levy on commercial transactions.

But it makes a real difference whether the beneficiary sacrifices part of his salary or supports the system by paying higher prices for goods as a result of a special tax. He will, as a matter of fact, pay that tax anyway, for the money poured out in the form of pensions is bound to have a great inflationary effect.

The fact is that Dr. Truman has stolen Dr. Townsend's stuff.

ACCEPTANCE — As evidence of the general acceptance of the Truman-Townsend doctrine, the Senate recently staged a remarkable debate. In my opinion, it did not receive the public notice it deserved.

Three of our most conservative senators — George of Georgia, Taft of Ohio and Millikin of Colorado — declared themselves in favor of pensions for everybody beyond sixty-five. In fact, they suggested that the system should be broadened and the monthly payments increased beyond the amounts in the current measure.

They did, however, advocate pay-as-you-go financing. They presented no specific method of underwriting but they leaned toward annual appropriations, perhaps in addition to a pay roll tax. Their idea seemed to be that, by forcing Congress to set aside so many billions for Social Security each year, people would come to realize that they "weren't getting something for nothing."

DIPLOMATIC — "Why all this talk at Washington about our keeping and fortifying Japan?" explodes T. R. of Berkeley, Calif. "Don't the diplomatic and military expert know that Japan, Okinawa and the Philippines would fall to Russia almost overnight in the event of a shooting war, just as the Japs could have taken Hawaii in 1901, if they had known how weak we were there?"

Answer: I think that diplomatic rather than military consideration lie behind official discussions of our future role in Japan. For us to suggest complete abandonment now, in view of our debacle on the China mainland, would give Russia a great psychological victory in the battle for Asia.

LINE — T. R. is correct. We could not hold the territory he mentions in an all-out struggle with Moscow. Even an attempt to do so would extend our defense line too far to te East, and exhaust our resources.

Many top military men believe that our fighting frontier in the Pacific area should follow, roughly, an arc drawn from Alaska, through Hawaii and to Australia.

No matter what the Truman-Acheson-Johnson faction says now, that interior line will be where we will make our stand in case of war. We can no more defend Japan, the Philippines and Okinawa than we can make the Elbe River our frontier in Germany.

The Educational Policies Commission in Washington reports that "more than half of the nation's most talented youths are being wasted instead of encouraged and aided to higher education."

That's so true and so terribly shortsighted — as proof, take just two of my talented relatives. My Nephew Sidney, for instance: he could wiggle his ears and scalp, and croak like a frog, and by the time he was 16 he could dislocate his right knee! And my brother, Willie — he was so fast he could drop a rock from a tenth-floor window, run down stairs, and be out in front in time for the rock to fracture his skull!

But, did these deserving boys get encouragement at school? They did not! They wanted 20 years of their lives trying to learn how to read and write and do trigonometry!

Success Secrets

By ELMER WHEELER

For the past 18 years I've delivered a speech on "word magic" almost 5000 times. It frequently happens that some member of the audience comes up after the talk and says "words are all right— but action is what counts. Do you believe that 'word magic' can be as powerful as you make out?"

Sam Houston could certainly be called a man of action.

Yet few people know what a powerful influence a single "magic word" had on this famous hero.

When he left home to volunteer for the War of 1812 his mother give him a gold ring with a single word engraved inside. She told him to make that word his talisman.

Houston wore the ring all through the war. He wore it when he helped free Texas, and he was wearing it when he led the fight to get Texas in the Union. He wore it all the time he was President of the Republic of Texas. And more than once he told friends that the secret of all his successes was the one word engraved in the ring he wore.

Yet his own family did not know the magic word inside the ring. For 50 years his magic ring led him to victory after victory on the battle field, in politics and in personal relationships.

When he died his wife took off the ring.

Inside was carved the one word—"Honor."

CHIRPS

By ROBIN TIBBETS

If you happen to see me on the street and wonder at the bandages around my hands and on my head, let me explain their presence. Last week I worked on my car. And believe me, I proved to myself and to my attending physician that newspaper recrno psdrotk-'mgt om dcheoaaen porters don't make good mechanics. At least, this one doesn't.

It was a lovely evening and I had just gotten off work and decided to do something that had needed to be done for quite some time.

For some unnknown reason, my car wouldn't run. Now if you knew my car, you'd know the whys and wherefores of this case. My auto is one of those 1940-41-39-47-42-49 models. What I mean is, it has a 1940 body chassis and wheels; a 1941 motor; a 1939 generator a 1947 fuel pump; a 1942 carburetor; and a 1949 knob on the gearshift. Oh, it's a honey, and if it were not for the smashed fenders, caved-in grille, and sprung doors, it would look almost like an automobile. If I had it fixed up, I could probably sell it for $50.

Well, like I said, the old hoopey wasn't running, so Robin proceeds to fix it. I got my wrenches out of the trunk — pliers, screwdriver, and crescent — raised the hood, and went to work.

Being a comparative greenhorn, I had a little trouble. The first thing that caught my eye when I raised the hood was a funny looking gadget shaped like a flying saucer and sitting right flat dab on a smokestack which rose majestically up in the middle of what I presumed was the motor. It was.

Taking my handy-dandy pliers in my right hand and holding them firmly with the four fingers and thumb, like the directions said, I removed a butterfly-looking thing from the top of said flying saucer that wouldn't fly. Then, I pulled. Nothing happened. I looked around and finally found a little bolt (I know it was a bolt because I saw one once in a book) that came loose easily. Again I pulled — hard.

After I put a bandage on my knuckles, I looked down in the smokestack. It looked complicated, so I just left it alone, except to screw in a couple of screws on the bottom of the thing. I don't know why they put those silly springs on the screws. It sure made them hard to turn.

Well, I looked around a little and finally came upon a queer-looking gadget that looked like a miniature water tank — you know, peaked at the top with lines running in two directions. One ran to the smokestack, which I later discovered was the carburetor, and the other disappeared beneath the car. Where it went I have no idea.

In the side of this water tank was a whingding with a spring on it. Another spring! I tightened it up, too. In fact, I tightened up everything in sight that looked loose.

In the process of investigating just what lay under my hood, I had to crawl right up on the works, and by chance I had my head resting on the lower half of the hood, the part that didn't raise. I was lying there tightening merrily away when a gust of wind suddenly hit and not so gently removed the stick which was to keep the hood from falling.

I woke up fifteen minutes later with a knot on my head and anger in my heart. I managed to push the hood up and crawled out. Mucho angry, I slammed the hood down, but raised it up again to remove my fingers. Well, no broken bones, When I raised the hood, it went back too far and stayed there, sticking straight up in the air.

Let me tell you, it took no little amount of work to get the hood back down and fastened — minus the presence of my digits.

Now I was ready for the big event — starting my car! My heart swelled in pride and my fingers swelled too, but not in pride, as I pressed the starter button with a badly damaged thumb. It (the starter) made that silly noise it had been making for days. Nothing happened. My pride shrunk. Then I blew my top.

After a short visit to the doctor for a lot of clean, white bandages, and a longer visit to a psychiatrist, I went home.

Yesterday, I bought the new windshield to replace the one I accidentally broke when I threw the hammer at it — and tomorrow I guess I'll buy two new headlights. Incidentally, my right foot is getting well. Those headlights are dangerous to kick, take it from me.

The Nation's Press

THE ATTACK ON G. E.

(Chicago Daily Tribune)

Lawyers from the attorney general's office have gone into federal court and asked that the General Electric company be required to halve its output of electric lamps and parts. The court further is asked to order that G. E. divest itself of plants, equipment, machinery, and auxiliary facilities representing 50 per cent of its productive capacity.

For a period of five years, the government demands, any competitor should be permitted the right of unrestricted inspection of G. E.'s processes. Still another demand is that G. E. dedicate all existing lamp patents to the public.

The company and six associated concerns were held in violation of the anti-trust act last year. Since then the government and the companies have been unable to agree on the form of an order to desist from continuing practices held to be illegal. The government's attempt to destroy half of the G. E. electric light bulb business represents its formula for breaking the deadlock.

If G. E. and its associates possess something approaching a monopoly, as the government contends, how did it come about? Thomas A. Edison invented the incandescent lamp. The Edison Electric Light company, which he founded in 1878, was transformed after a merger into General Electric in 1892. Naturally, the company, with the benefit of the inventor's head start, was first in the field. Research and the manufacture of a sound product have kept it there.

There probably would eventually have been an electric light even if there had been no Edison, but he achieved the discovery and deserved the reward for providing the world with something immeasurably useful. It is natural enough that the advantages should lie with the company he founded.

The government had nothing to do with conferring this great invention upon the public. Where there was government interference with the development of the invention as in England, the people were long deprived of its benefit. A biographer of Edison relates:

"The country which lagged longest behind in a general adoption of the electric light was England, due, no doubt, to the fact that in 1880 parliament passed a law whereby it was enacted that at the expiration of 20 years electric light plants were to be bought by the government. The result can be imagined. Private enterprise was strangled, and gas as an illuminant remained triumphant. Eight years later, however, the law was repealed, and soon the electric light began to glow in every village and hamlet thruout the country."

Government, as this episode shows, can only withhold or retard the extension of new benefits to the public. The New Deal acts in a different way from the British parliament, but the result it would attain is similar. By destroying everything socially useful, it would cripple the incentive necessary to achieve any progress whatsoever.

The economic health of the nation depends largely upon the ability of small businesses to realize their full earnings potential and thereby make their full contribution to high level employment.

Washington.....by Peter Edson

By PETER EDSON

NEA Service Correspondent

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind. — (NEA) —Hassil Schenck is president of the Indiana Farm Bureau Federation. He owns and operates a 320-acre grain and stock farm near Lebanon, Ind., northwest of Indianapolis. But an awful lot of his time is spent on Farm Bureau business — at his Indianapolis office, around the state, testifying in Washington or at AFBF headquarters in Chicago.

Indiana doesn't have the system of Farm Bureau control over county agents and government agricultural extension programs found in other Midwestern states. Hassil Schenck says he is just as happy to operate under the Indiana system. He therefore has no interest in the big Washington fight over legislation designed to divorce the Department of Agriculture from partial Farm Bureau direction. Schenck says he is a believer in states' rights, however, and if other states want to operate that way, it's up to them.

On other major Farm Bureau programs, Schenck goes along. He has opposed the Brannan plan, and built up a pretty good support from Indiana Republicans and the Democrats who hold the same view.

Schenck says, however, that he believes there has been too much emphasis on this discussion of price supports. His contention is that price supports alone do not make a farm program.

He reaches in his coat pocket and pulls out a card. It has a few typewritten lines on it. Hopefully, you wonder if here is a man who has done the undoable and written a farm program on a postcard. He has. But wait a minute.

There are 20 things that make up a complete farm program, he explains. He has listed them on his card. "I can," says he, "give you anything from a 15-minute to a full hour's speech on each of the 20 points."

There just wasn't time for the full course. But Mr. Schenck did furnish a copy of the card. And the mere listing of his 20 points was something of a major feat in itself. If memory serves aright, never has even the most dreamy-eyed planner in Washington dared to set down in one place all the things he would like to have in the way of a farm program, of which price supports and-or the Brannan plan would be only 5 percent of the total.

Not all of Mr. Schenck's 20 points are what might be called exclusively farm policies. Some of them affect the whole economy, non-farm as well as farm. Yet he considers them essential to maintaining a sound agricultural situation.

HEALTHY WHOLE

For instance, he believes that there must be sound monetary and fiscal policies for the whole government and private business structure. For without them, there could be no basis for exchange of farm products on the market place and no incentive to produce them.

Similarly, Mr. Schenck lists good federal debt management as essential to farm prosperity. He believes, nevertheless, that the Congress should enlarge Commodity Credit's lending authority by another $2,000,000,000. And he wants farm credit policies liberalized.

Mr. Schenck endorses the reciprocal trade agreements program as necessary to aid the export of American farm surpluses. And he favors negotiation of further international commodity agreements, like the wheat agreement now in operation.

Farm Bureau co-ops are strong in Indiana and they compete with private business. The State Chamber of Commerce battles the Farm Bureau on the so-called tax exemptions for co-ops, yet Mr. Schenck fights back. He is particularly strong for continued and extended Rural Electrification Administration programs.

He favors extension of marketing agreement systems and production adjustment systems — marketing quotas — to stabilize agriculture. Crop insurance is still in the experimental stage but he lists it as necessary or at least desirable development.

The established agricultural extension and soil conservation programs are on the Schenck list.

He lists as necessary for further study and control the subjects of distribution of farm products and transportation of farm products. The farmer gets only a few cents out of the cost of a loaf of bread or a bottle of milk, and the other, non-farm costs need bringing down. Inter - city heavy duty trucks should pay a higher share of highway costs because they are ruining farm roads. The use of airplanes for transport of farm products is just beginning and needs encouragement.

Also on the list are three research programs on the production, marketing and utilization of farm products. And he wants a sound nutritional program developed because that determines what the farmer raises. Finally, Mr. Schenck believes full employment must be maintained to provide a cash market for farm products.

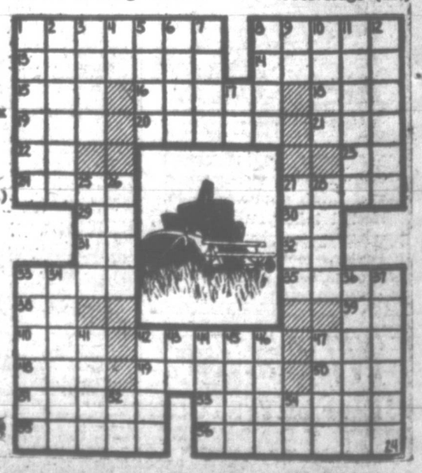
Answer to Previous Puzzle



No Wetbacks To Be Okayed For U.S. Work

AUSTIN —(AP)— The Texas Employment Commission announced that it has been advised there will be no "wetbacks" legalized for work in the valley.

Discontinuance of last year's practice was the decision of the immigration and naturalization service, TEC said. Notification came in a telegram to TEC from the U.S. Employment Service.

Henry LeBlanc, TEC farm placement chief, said the action would contribute to raising the shortage of valley workers to an expected 22,000 by July 10 and to 56,000 by Aug. 1.

The USES telegram to TEC said:

"Immigration and naturalization service in Washington feels that they cannot go along with legalizing wetbacks on this side of the border. USES will naturally be guided by this decision."

Discussion and plans to use sufficient Mexican nationals to meet valley labor needs until this announcement.

Coupled with recent reports that the Mexican government intends to use its army to prevent nationals of Mexico from crossing the Rio Grande River, this development crystallized the valley's shortage to the critical stage, LeBlanc said.

If INS and USES adhere to this decision, the valley shortage can be met only by securing workers from other parts of Texas and the United States, he said.

He urged valley farmers to place orders for workers immediately to expedite locating and moving laborers to the valley.

Advertising Pays, Graduate Finds

CHICAGO — (AP) — The big sign Arthur H. Miller, 24, a recent Michigan State College graduate, had put up along a highway near Lansing, Mich., has landed him a job.

It advertised him to motorists as a mechanical engineer "trained in better methods."

It worked. His mother, Mrs. Harry A. Miller, of Chicago, said he has accepted one with a consulting engineering firm in Lansing.

Wheelchair Gardener Expects Good Crop; Jurist Fines JP

Texas Doings: Lewis P. Fore, 68, who lost a leg two years ago, gardens from a wheelchair at his Beaumont home. "I've been growing mustard, turnips, carrots, onions and beets, okra, tomatoes, snap beans, lima beans, sweet corn, blackeyed peas, squash and butter beans," he said. There's also a 100-foot run of zinnias. "You can't take the country out of the boy," Fore chuckled. . . warm weather note: 900 cases of beer spilled on Highway 90, west of Nome, Texas, when a truck trailer unit overturned. . .at Emhouse, Navarro County, a 15-year-old boy ran away from home, riding a white horse and leading a brown colt and heading for New Mexico. The young cowboy traveled only 17 miles before he was caught — victim of one of those newfangled police radio broadcasts.

A justice of the peace rates no special favors with Corporation Court Judge T. W. Kelly, especially when the JP is T. W. Kelly. At McAllen, Kelly holds both jobs. Last week Corporation Judge Kelly fined Justice of the Peace Kelly $5 for running a red light. This in spite of Justice Kelly's brisk argument to himself that he had a right to run the red light since he was heading for the scene of what seemed to be a fatal accident. Corporation Judge Kelly took the matter up with Police Chief Clint Mussey who said, coldly, that neithough Justice Kelly ought to be fined. So Justice Kelly paid the fine and said: "if anybody thinks I don't hate to part with $5 as much as the next man, he is missing the significance of this historic occasion."

Out at Lubbock, Texas Technological College student W. J. Neal took a poll and found that 67 percent of persons interviewed were against having elaborate funerals (for themselves) and that 33 percent said they wanted an expensive funeral rite. Of 106 persons interviewed, 80 percent said they didn't mind being buried in a "non-exclusive" section of a cemetery, but the rest declared they positively didn't want to be.

"This is a funny state," E. J. Headlee says in the Denton Record Chronicle. "In East Texas a dugout is a ravine while in West Texas it is a hole in the ground which might be used as a shelter from a tornado, which, by-the-way is usually improperly called a cyclone in East Texas. In East Texas most folks would not know what you were talking about if you said you crossed a 'draw.' In West Texas, that is a big ditch, a gulch or a small creek. In East Texas a pond is a 'tank.' Oh, well, we do not speak English in Texas but we get by surprisingly well when we travel."

Bottles Handy in Stalling Thieves

BOSTON — (AP) — Driving holdupmen from his liquor store empty-handed is becoming a habit with Arthur D. Bloom.

Police said Bloom has carried off all honors in four raids by holdupmen in the past five years.

In the latest last night he cracked a bottle over the knuckles of a gunman. His unexpected reaction knocked a pistol from the hand of the holdupman who fled without funds.

Once before Bloom bounced a bottle off the head of a gunman and on two occasions he exchanged gunfire with holdupmen. Contents of the cash register remained intact each time.

Most UT Graduates Secure Employment

AUSTIN — (AP) — Nearly all this year's 3,000 University of Texas graduates have found jobs, campus placement centers have reported.

All education, pharmacy, journalism, physics and home economics graduates have been placed. Seventy percent of those finishing law school have found work in their field, considered one of the hardest to enter now, the report said.

Greatest demand was for teachers and pharmacists, officials said.

'Throw the Rascals Out,' Of Filmland, Producer Says

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD — (AP) — Bill Pine and Bill Thomas, the two money-making producers who are never at a standstill, were discussing the problem of film stars who get in serious trouble. They came up with this solution:

Throw the rascals out!

"Heaven knows I'm no moralist," claimed Thomas. "I'm a businessman. And when I see business being hurt by stars who get in trouble, I think something should be done about it.

"I think when a star gets in trouble with the police and is convicted of an offense that is odious to society, he should be fired from the industry. Then it would serve as an example to other stars who might think they can get cut of line and get away with it.

"Look what happened after the Fatty Arbuckle case. He was thrown out of the industry (after being tried in a rape-murder case). The result may have been tough on Arbuckle, but it created a better atmosphere in Hollywood.

"The same thing happened when the 'unfriendly 10' were fired by the industry. The day after it happened I went to a steam bath where a lot of Hollywood pinkos hang out.

"I asked them, 'What have you got to say now, boys? They didn't say a word and I see they haven't been noticeably active in political matters since."

Pine emphasized that Hollywood scandals have a definitely bad effect on movie business. "Every bad story makes the box-office drop some more," he remarked.

Shrimpers Cancel Meet With Shivers

BROWNSVILLE —(AP)— Representatives of Brownsville shrimpers have called off their schedule meeting with Gov. Allan Shivers in Austin Monday.

The shrimpers want the number of commercial fishing licenses increased so that they can obtain the permits. Some fishermen unable to obtain the licenses, have run into trouble with the law.

Dwight D. Taylor, chairman of the committee backing the shrimpers, said the conference with Shivers was called off in view of a pending session of the state game, fish and oyster commission.

"In view of the fact that a meeting of the state game commission is called for July 7, we felt it only fair to give the commission opportunity to assert its policy first," said Taylor.

Taylor added that his committee also took into consideration the fact the governor has been out of the state and has had no opportunity to study the many resolutions and briefs which have been sent to this office on the matter.

LONDON — (AP) — The British Admiralty is on the hunt for saboteurs after finding sand in the in the works of its submarine Tally-Ho.

The Tally-Ho, undergoing a refit at Devonport dockyards, is a 1,900-ton patrol type submarine. It is believed to carry a new underwater breathing apparatus which allows long submersions.

There have been a number of unconfirmed reports of sabotage aboard British naval vessels since the war.

Red-Supported Japs Punished

TOKYO — (AP) — A U.S. Army court today sentenced four Japanese to two years in prison each for spreading a Communist-inspired open letter to General MacArthur which attacked the occupation.

The four were arrested by Japanese police June 4 while making speeches in front of a large placard which criticized the conviction of eight Japanese for attacking U.S. soldiers Memorial Day.

The four Japanese admitted carrying the placard and making speeches but denied they attacked the occupation. They also asserted they did not know what was on the placard, which displayed the open letter.

National rural police said 33 other Japanese have been picked up on similar charges elsewhere in Japan. It was not known whether any would be tried by occupation provost courts.

New Rent Control Measure Has Only 2 Minor Changes

WASHINGTON — (AP) — Congress has passed a new rent control bill. President Truman is expected to sign it into law.

This is an ABC on what that new bill will do as law.

It will keep the present law unchanged, except for a couple of minor points, until Dec. 31, 1950.

After that date all government rent controls will cease everywhere in the United States except — and this is the only exception — where the people or officials of a city or town vote to keep them longer.

Even though a town or city votes to retain the controls beyond Dec. 31, they can keep them only six months beyond that date for, automatically, government controls will then end June 30, 1951.

To put it another way: the new law continues controls until June 30, 1951, but only for a town or city — a state can't vote to keep them — which votes to retain them until June 30, 1951. Otherwise they end Dec. 31, 1950.

The present five main provisions of the law — for knocking off controls — remain in effect until Dec. 31, 1950. So between now and Dec. 31 controls can be knocked off this way:

1. The government's housing expediter can remove the controls anywhere he thinks it's all right to do so.

2. Local rent control advisory boards, able to show their locality no longer needs the controls, can recommend to the housing expediter that he remove them from that one locality.

3. State legislatures can vote to wipe out government rent controls in any individual state.

4. State legislatures can pass a law setting up their own rent controls, and this automatically wipes out government controls.

5. The local governing body—like a town or city council—can vote to end government controls. And this will be done if the governor of the state approves.

6. (This is new) An unincorporated county — such as one adjoining a large city — can wipe out the government controls if the officials of that county vote to do so.

(The law says this: even though government rent controls should end everywhere on Dec. 31, 1950, World War II veterans still keep their "veterans preference," as provided in present law, until June 30, 1951.

(Which means: no matter what happens to rent control between now and June 30, 1951, veterans must be given 30 days' first crack, or preference, at any new building, whether it's a house or apartment.)

Here are other parts of the present law which the new law will keep unchanged until Dec. 31, 1950.

(As explained, after that date —and only until June 30, 1951 —they will be kept unchanged only in a town or city which votes to keep rent controls beyond Dec. 31.)

Tighe Woods, called the housing expediter, is rent control boss for the country. His office is here in Washington.

Under him — in the places which still have government rent control — are so-called area offices around the country with staffs to handle problems in their areas.

They'll advise Woods whether they think rents should be raised or wiped out in their areas.

If Woods doesn't do what the boards recommend, they can appeal to a special emergency court of appeals made up of federal judges.

Family's Life Tied To Lucky Number 24

GREENSBORO, N.C. — (AP) — The number 24, and particularly June 24, means a lot to the Lynn Hunt family of Greensboro.

Hunt was born June 24. Both he and Mrs. Hunt finished college in 1924 and became engaged the same year. They were married June 24, 1926, and Mary Charlotte (Chachie, she's called) was born Sept. 24, 1928. Mrs. Hunt was 24 years old when Chachie was born.

Hunt is the 24th grandchild on his mother's side of the family, and one of 24 grandchildren on his father's side. He was installed on June 24, 1946, as the 24th president of the Greensboro Lions Club.

And yesterday — June 24, 1950 — Chachie married Marvin L. Kornegay, who's 24, on her parents' 24th wedding anniversary.

U.S.-Mexican Trade Treaty Will End After Seven Years

WASHINGTON — (AP) — The United States and Mexico will toss out a seven-year-old trade agreement next year, bringing to Americans the prospect of price boosts on many products from all over the world.

The State Department and Mexico's Foreign Office announced jointly that the 1943 reciprocal trade agreement had been cancelled, effective Dec. 31, 1950.

The action not only raises American import duties on goods from Mexico, but also on products from Venezuela, Canada, Peru, Australia and other countries which have "most-favored-nation" trade agreements with the United States.

Under that policy, those countries received the benefits of the Mexican treaty through an American promise to give them treatment equal to that accorded "the most favored nation."

Imports from Cuba and the Philippines will not be affected the State Department said.

The U.S.-Mexican break was blamed by some American congressmen on what they said was Mexico's failure to live up to its part of the agreement. Mexico denied this.

Major repercussions are expected to be felt in the oil and lead industries. Tariffs on much of these imports will be doubled. Other items on which duties will be boosted include:

Turpentine; napthenic acid; sheep and lambs; matches; tampico siber; some types of bottles; baskets; packing boxes; tiles, fluorspar; zinc sulphate; tomatoes and some other vegetables; earthenware and some furniture; cattle and certain other livestock; tuna, vegetable oils; grain spirits; blankets, hats; toys; photographic negatives, and others.

While the effect will be great here, it will be even greater in Mexico, since almost four-fifths of that country's exports are to the United States.

Although Mexican wholesalers and retailers opposed ending the treaty, the action was favored by manufacturers in the hope that their industries might better develop with less U.S. competition.

Within the United States, most interest centered on the new move's effect on oil.

Certain independent oil and coal producers in this country have been seeking a higher import duty to protect domestic industry. The tariff hike resulting from Friday's action is likely to please them, although they have argued for a sharper boost.

The tariff on about one-half of the oil now imported will be doubled — from 10 1-2 cents a barrel to 21 cents. This includes oil from Venezuela, the Middle East, the Netherlands, Colombia and other countries.

The joint ending of a trade agreement under similar conditions has occurred only once before, a State Department spokesman said. That was late last year when the U.S. - Colombia agreement was terminated.

The effect of Friday's action on U.S. exports to Mexico will depend on what action Mexico takes. It already has boosted tariffs on many items — a step that some say led to the break — but it may boost them even more.

Mexico's ambassador to the U. S., Rafael de la Colina, denying that his country violated the pact, predicted that trade between the two countries will continue to grow, and even hinted that a new agreement may be reached. Informed U. S. sources said the chances of that are slim.

The State Department said representatives of the two governments tried for months to find a "basis for achieving a mutually satisfactory revision" of the old agreement.

"This has unfortunately proved to be impossible," it added.

S. F. Chinaman Is Close to Smallest

SAN FRANCISCO —(NEA)— San Francisco's National Invitation basketball champions went to extremes in their one - two punch with six-foot six-inch Don Lofgran and five-foot nine-inch Rene Herrerias.

Now the Dons come up with sophomore Willie Wong, who undoubtedly is close to the smallest in basketball today. Woo Woo Wong, at five feet four and 125 pounds, is one of the few newcomers to earn playing time on Pete Newell's veteran outfit.

Wong first attracted attention by leading St. Mary's Chinese Mission to the National Oriental-American Tournament championship in 1946. Since that time the 24-year-old Army veteran has been rated by the renowned Hank Luisetti as one of the best set shots in basketball.

Video System Given Okay by Federal Body

WASHINGTON — (AP) — The Federal Communications Commission today has given the go-ahead signal for the construction of the last links in a cross-country television network system.

Permits were issued to the American Telephone and Telegraph Co. to bridge the final gaps by Jan. 1, 1952, with a chain of microwave relay stations between Chicago and Omaha, and between Omaha and San Francisco.

A similar microways system between New York and Chicago is nearing completion.

The microwave relay consists of spaced radio stations which pick up and amplify the video signal and "bounce" it on to the next station.

A. T. and T. will build 55 stations on the Omaha-San Francisco line to carry TV across the Rocky Mountains. They will cost about $17,900,000.

Construction on the Chicago-Omaha system will run about $2,500,000. In all, the transcontinental system will cost around $37,590,000.

In addition to the coast-to-coast microwave relay the A.T. and T. also has underground coaxial cable chains carrying TV in many parts of the country. These can be connected with the microwave relays.

Plow Horse Derby Is Now Old Stuff

RED BANK, N.J. — There are some who feel that the Plow Horse Derby at Rockingham Park lowers the dignity of a course over which thoroughbreds race.

But such races long have been a feature of meetings sponsored by Hunt Clubs which are the epitome of formality.

Open to legitimate farm horses the Plow Horse Derby at Rockingham proved a popular feature. The Farmers' Race at such Hunt meetings as the Monmouth County Hunt Club race day at Amory Haskell's Red Bank farm is also restricted to horses which work on farms, but sometimes a legitimate ringer appears in the form of a castoff thoroughbred which proceeds to give a convincing demonstration that blood will tell.

SUMMER BEGAN OFFICIALLY last Wednesday, but as far as I am concerned, summer began when baseball season got underway —when everybody took to straw headgear—when air-conditioners began whirring—and when the kids started going barefoot. Remember not long ago when youngsters had tender feet (from nine months of wearing shoes) and how they sorta crept along, pushing one foot ahead of the other, slowly, but surely, avoiding sticker patches? Now by the first day of summer these barefoot kids race across vacant lots like Indian scouts—there's not a tenderfoot among 'em!

SPEAKING OF SCOUTS, there's excitement in more than one family—that trip to Canada is not just a dream anymore— there are several local Boy Scouts actually preparing for the trip. Come the second week of July they'll be off and Jackie Weatherred (the Red Weatherreds' son) will be among the group. They're getting their physical exams and they're also getting pretty excited about the whole thing!

WISH this was my quote, but I stole it from a certain Mundy Smith, "When the doctor prescribes light exercises, he doesn't mean jumping at conclusions and running up bills." There's one consolation. Friend husband says that I could have well been the inspiration behind the quote! heh!

WONDER IF my little gals will grow up as poised and polished as Patsy Miller? She's the L. R. Millers' daughter and one of my favorites among the young set. Tiny Hobart is another one of my pets; however, I haven't seen her much since she arrived home from school. She was here and then gone again for a visit before I knew it. Tiny's folks are the Fred Hobarts, and maybe she takes after her mother—isn't there a saying, "like mother, like daughter," or something? Anyway, they're both nice.

PAMPA PANORAMA: Saw H. C. Wilson relaxing on the glider of his front porch ... he looked real nice and cool ... course these nightly rains have helped to keep our nights pleasant, but haven't you always been proud that in Pampa there's nearly always a breeze at night ... Was that Mr. and Mrs. Lee Cady sitting on their porch Wednesday evening? ... it was just about dusk and you know that's the most difficult time of day to see ... wrong time for me to do my snooping, but it's a good time to take a drive ... people are rushing home from work, preparing for an evening out or getting dinner over with so they can work in the yard ... you see a lot of people that time of day ... Saw Mrs. R. G. Candler "jumping" in her car ... rushing on an errand before the grocery store closed, 'betcha ... I really like her ... Mrs. Russell Lindsay is another nice person to know ... Paul "Grandpapa-to-be" Carmichael is popping buttons these days ... Here's some other Pampans who are real happy about the grandbabies they're anxiously awaiting: the Grundy Morrisons and C. W. Lawrences ... Jo McMurtry has the proper hairdo for driving "with the top down" ... she pulls her hair straight back and leaves just a few wisps of hair curling about her ears ... kinda like the "spit-curl" we useta wear back in the '30's ... (Keerful now, or you'll guess my age) ... Aren't the M. C. Stapletons friendly folks? ...The C. E. Wards are getting a nice new driveway ... 1441 Charles is getting a thorough going-over ... don't the Ernest Areys still live there? ... anybody know the new color scheme? ... Incidentally, I wonder who is doing the interior of those nice new apartment buildings out by Highland General? ... When Abe and Bobby Udashen leave I surely will miss them ... guess Bobby will set the pace in fashions at Lubbock just as she has here ... she's always ultra-smart looking ... Dr. and Mrs. Julian Key are vacationing in Colorado ... took the kiddoes, of course ... ISN'T THIS National Swim for Your Health Week or some such? Noticed the wading pool set ganging up down at the City Park. They were really having a splashing good time. Those little backyard "blown up" wading ponds are nice to have, too. Speaking of ponds, we don't see too many fish ponds in yards anymore, and I wonder why, because if your yard space isn't limited, there's nothing prettier. The D. E. Holts have a little pond surrounded by rocks — it brightens up an isolated spot in their yard. Don't the Buzz Hoovers live there on the corner of Russell where the little pond is? That used to be their home and I've always liked the cluster of cactus plants that grows in one corner of the garden. They also have appropriate groupings of shrubs and lawn benches scattered about.

DID YOU KNOW that if you start out at 15 MPH on a green light down at the underpass you can sail right up main street and get past Floyd Walker's Grocery without even shifting gears or slowing down! That's how effective our new traffic lights are, and they really work that way. We tried it.

VACATION TIME IS camera time! Moving picture cameras are really becoming popular, and there's so many people we know who have them—Doug and Nona Mills, the Charlie Beards, the Jess Clays (who probably have some shots of their All-American son on the gridiron) and the Leslie Harts. I can's pass this up, and I hope by now that the wound has healed sufficiently, but remember a couple of years ago when the Harts took that wonderful vacation through the Northwest? They recorded the trip on film, only to discover too late that the camera was out of whack and all the film came home blank! I do hope on their trip to Havana last month that the camera worked okay (or have they sold it after that other experience). We can laugh. It didn't happen to us. Anyway, better double check your camera.

STATISTICS MAY SHOW that Borger is larger than we are, but they won't be long as we have folks around like the E. C. Fultons, the C. J. Eskridges and the Charles McCampbells. They've increased our population by three just this week. Congratulations on those new sons and daughters!

I DON'T KNOW WHY anyone cares whether or not we are larger than Borger. Why even if we aren't, I don't care. I'm still mighty glad, mighty proud that I'm

Knox-Isbell Ceremony Read in Ponder Church of Christ

MR. AND MRS. BERT ISBELL

Miss Eloise Knox, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Mark Knox of Ponder, and Bert Isbell, son of Mr. and Mrs. A. B. Isbell of Pampa, were married last Sunday afternoon in the Ponder Church of Christ. Charlie Bailey, minister of the church, read the double-ring ceremony before the altar, which was decorated with candelabra, palms and baskets of pink gladioli, dahlias and fern.

Mrs. Joseph Sexton, sister of the bride, sang "Oh Promise Me" and "Ah, Sweet Mystery of Life" accompanied by Neal Davis at the organ. Mr. Davis also played traditional wedding music before and during the ceremony.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a traditional white satin gown, fashioned with a sheer yoke trimmed with seed pearls and a Chantilly lace ruffle. The sleeves were long and fitted and the full skirt fell into a train. Her fingertip veil fell from a tiara of orange blossoms and she carried a bouquet of white carnations and stepnanotis.

Miss Ann Knox attended her sister as maid of honor. She was dressed in blue and carried a colonial bouquet of pink painted daisies, and Miss Frances Yarbrough, bridesmaid, wore pink and carried blue painted daisies.

TEEN-TALK

More pen pals are shaking hands across the sea, these days, reports the International Friendship League of Boston, Mass. But the society, which is sanctioned by the State Department, says it still needs 150,000 unofficial American ambassadors. The league has that many letters on hand from young people in Europe, all waiting to be answered by American teen-age pen pals.

The league thinks that through these pen friendships young people here can learn about life in other countries and young people abroad will learn about America. Kids are asked to send self-addressed stamped envelopes to keep postage costs down.

Have you ever been a pen friend?, I asked Mary Kelly about her experiences writing to people she never had seen and she thinks it is delightful fun. She has struck up a fine acquaintance with two girls — one in Seattle, Wash., and the other in London, Eng., and has been carrying on a correspondence with them for years. It has got to the point where Mary knows their glove and stocking sizes and the girls exchange presents of hand knit wearables and other gifts, and never forget each other's birthdays, Christmas and Easter. Says Mary:

"Pen friendships are wonderful for lonely people especially. Sometimes you can pore out your loneliness in a letter and feel so much better. The only trouble is that occasionally it can be embarrassing. For instance when you are asked to describe yourself, it really stymies you. How can you say whether you are homely, gaunt or fat? Once when I was asked whether I was pretty or not, I just sent the girl my picture, and let her make up her mind what I looked like."

As if all teen-agers felt the need to expand their interests, a group of young people in San Francisco are talking about a national get-together, reports Katherine Pinkham.

Actually, says Augie Costa, president of the Northern California Youth Council "it might be too big a proposition although there are lots of kid groups that would like to engage in a big get-together but don't know how to go about it."

California now has some 300 teen centers. Things really are kept humming. Some are boys clubs, some are girls clubs and some are co-ed.

The kids do everything from choral singing for hospitals to helping with the Community Chest drives and collecting books for school libraries.

In Fresno, Calif., the Y.W.C.A. helped start the "Shack," a teenage center that has 1700 members. It gets an allotment from the Community Chest, a paid activities director and use of the old civic auditorium both days and evenings.

Some of the city centers have started in empty store buildings, old firehouses and other unused rooms. Most of them were born in wartime and although most Californians figured they would die out after the war, actually they have grown.

Augie and his pals think teen age centers in the United States have a big future, and they are going to continue to work for a national pow-wow. Augie's going to San Francisco State College now, and he'll carry on his ac-

What's Cookin' In Gray County HD Club Work

By MARY ANNE DUKE

Misses Barbara Edwards and Margaret Baggerman were the two lovely 4-H Club members from Gray County attending the State 4-H Round-Up at College Station on June 13 and 14. Barbara participated in the State Clothing Revue. Mrs. Ernest Edwards, county 4-H committee chairman, accompanied the delegates and, in spite of the extreme heat and the blistered feet, admits the State 4-H Round-Up is really a big affair.

LANDSCAPES are certainly responding to the much needed rain. The Ernest Edwards' lawn is so pretty. The shrubs planted by the Ray Robertsons last spring are really growing. The J. M. McCrackens' red cedar windbreak will grow rapidly now.

Wonder how many would be interested in a plant exchange two or three times during the year?

ANTS AND "CHIGGERS" usually develop along with the lovely lawns. The ants can be controlled with Chlordane. Just dust the ground surface around the ant hills — do a thorough job — with a 5 percent chlordane powder. If the ants are scattered tivities in the interest of teen age centers from there.

You've got to have patience to be a baby sitter, it was voted in a recent poll conducted by the Council Bluffs Nonpareil. Out of 18 girls voting 5 said patience was tops as the most important qualification of a baby sitter. 14 said it was second most important and 12 others placed it 3rd. Next in importance was kindness with alertness third and cleanliness a close fourth.

Although 13 of the girls liked to have the babies tucked in when they arrived on the scene 76 of the girls said they like to tuck the babies in bed themselves. One said "I like to have the baby up for a while so it knows I am there."

Most of the girls queried had started their pin-money earnings at the age of 12 or 13. The usual charge for baby sitting is 35 cents an hour for the early evening work. 10 or 15 cents more for every after-midnight hour. A few of the girls charge 25 cents an hour and some of the real professional baby sitters are up to 75 cents an hour.

Nearly all of the girls are permitted to entertain a date while on guard and most of them are invited to raid the ice box.

What is the hardest job of caring for other people's children? The girls had different ideas about that but mostly it boiled down to "Parents who forget to tell you where things are," "Children not wanting to go to bed," "Finding something to do" — and "questions."

over the entire yard, you will be wise to give the entire yard a good dusting. At the same time you will get the red bugs or chiggers. If you prefer, you can use a 2 percent Chlordane solution. Make it from wettable Chlordane powder or by diluting a Chlordane emulsion which is available at most drug stores. About one-fourth pint of the solution per ant colony will give good control.

If your lawn is infested with chiggers only a 5 percent DDT dust or just ordinary dusting sulphur will control them, but when used in combination they are even more effective. They can be applied with a hand dusting gun. Remember that neither the DDT nor the sulphur will control the ants — use Chlordane for ants.

SUMMER TIME is picnic time and there'll be many a picnicker especially among the youngsters, who'll take home an unpleasant reminder of the outing — that is if they come in contact with poison ivy. The old saying, "Leaves three, let it be," is good advice. Use soap and water for first aid treatment if you think you have come in contact with poison ivy. More severe cases should be treated by a doctor for complications can be serious.

Grace Friend...

WANTS TO KEEP TEEN-AGE DAUGHTER BUSY

Dear Grace Friend:

With summer vacation practically upon us I am at my wits end as to what I will do to keep my 13-year-old daughter occupied. Both my husband and I work and it makes a convenient schedule when my daughter is in school. However, with summer vacation coming I can't seem to find any possible solution unless I send her to a summer camp for girls which would be too great an expense.

I am sure that there must be other mothers wondering the same thing. Perhaps you could suggest some solution so that I do not have to leave her alone and her entire summer will not be wasted.

sincerely,
Mrs. John B.

Dear Mrs. B.:

I wonder if you might find some other mothers in the same position with whom you can work out a schedule so that each of you might look after your children one day a week.

As many mothers are employed now it shouldn't be too hard to arrange for a group of you to take turns. Employers I am sure, would cooperate with you in this as they know that you will be more useful to them if you are not worried about your child.

You also might inquire at the YWCA which usually offers a variety of summer classes some of which might interest your daughter.

Two weeks in a Girl Scout or YWCA camp will help keep her occupied and you will find that it is not expensive.

As a last resort, how about inviting a relative to spend the summer with you and look after your child?

High School Head Will Attend Austin Guidance Discussion

High School Principal Frank Wilson will oe in Austin Monday to open a week's conference on the administrative guidance program for Texas schools.

The school official is one of twenty principals from over the state to participate in the discussion.

Five study groups will be organized to work on the problem, Wilson will serve as chairman of one.

"This conference," said Wilson, "comes at an opportune time, since Pampa High School has been studying the problem of the administration breakdown guidance program for the past three years."

Mrs. Wilson and their daughter, Jane, accompanied the principal to Austin. Wilson was associated with the school system in that city nine years prior to his coming to Pampa.

Detective Teaches Wife Wrong Trade

MIAMI, Fla. — (AP) — Mrs. Ida F. Bryte, says in a divorce suit she turned detective to get the goods on her private detective husband.

When Bryte, a specialist in getting divorce evidence, told her he had to work at night on a case she decided to take a fling at the detecting business herself, the suit continues.

She trailed her husband to a restaurant where he picked up an attractive waitress, she said.

Later when he came home with his face and clothing covered with lipstick, Mrs. Bryte said, and she confronted him with the result of her detection, the private detective packed his bags and left.

They were married June 18, 1938, and separated two weeks ago.

22-Month-Old Baby Already Well-to-Do

LONG BEACH, Calif. — (AP) — Because she received unsightly burns on her left thigh while in a hospital, little Gloria Lime, 22 months old, is a lady of means.

A superior court jury awarded her $20,000 in damages after her parents testified she was burned mysteriously during her treatment for pneumonia at Long Beach Community Hospital when she was 5 1-2 months old.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert L. Lime told the court that as the child grows, so do the third degree burn scars, and that even with plastic surgery the blemishes can never be erased completely.

SMEAR CAMPAIGN

By Edwin Ratt

Copyright 1950 by NEA Service, Inc.

THE STORY: Bill Jarvis, engaged to Bev Coulter, his boss's daughter, is spending a week at a swank vacation resort as guest of his fiancee's parents. He sees a pretty girl at the resort and has learned that this girl, Hilda Sands, is the object of a "smear campaign" of malicious gossip. He discovers that the others in Bev's crowd at the place are inclined to be snobbish, particularly Caroline Marx, Bev's closest friend, and Lloyd Williston, a wealthy young man.

III

BILL begged off from playing in the bridge game Bev Coulter organized later in the evening and, lighting a cigaret, he took a short walk on a path which led to the Inn's golf course. He was still thinking of Joe Coulter's inquiry about Lloyd Williston.

Bill bumbled along the path, more and more convinced that Joe Coulter was involved in some father-to-father proposition. Coulter might even be considering taking Lloyd into his publicity bureau. And wanting to know from Bill, Lloyd's contemporary, how Lloyd ticked, before committing himself.

Aagh, there wasn't anything to it. Nothing, anyway, that concerned him. He . . . he stopped short.

The movement that halted him had come from a short distance beyond a little flag that marked the 18th green.

Springing up, with a little gasp, off a garden roller left near the green's edge by some workman, was a figure in light-colored crepe or chiffon.

The girl took a few uncertain steps on the opposite side of the green and Bill said: "Take it easy! I won't hurt you."

"Thanks!" The word seemed to come at him like a steel bullet. And then he heard, even though her voice dropped abruptly: "That makes you practically unique around here."

• • •

BILL ignored that addition. It had been spoken involuntarily, almost in an aside. It hadn't been meant to reach his ears.

"Sorry if I scared you," he said. "I was just browsing around."

"Well, go ahead and browse," Hildy Sands said. "Don't mind me."

Her tone carried a trace of truculence at which Bill didn't wonder. Probably, with that scurrilous rumor abroad, this girl had a chip-on-the-shoulder attitude toward the world about now.

"Look," he said, "I know we haven't been properly introduced. But I saw you play tennis today. And someone told me your name. Well, I'm Bill Jarvis."

Hilda Sands came slowly around the green. "So I believe. You got a fair amount of advance publicity."

Bill laughed. "You can't keep women from talking."

She peered at him. He had an impression of wide eyes that might have been gray and clear in daylight.

"So," she said, "you're just her Bill, eh?"

Being nice to this bitter-voiced girl could be quite an assignment. He said: "I guess you might put it that way."

Instantly she made an apologetic little gesture. "Oh, darn! It was a mean way of putting it. The way I said it was mean. I'm honestly sorry. And, since you saw the match, I'm sorry too that I wasn't kinder to poor Muriel Graydon."

"Well," Bill said judicially, "they can't hang you for playing to win."

Hildy's lips tightened. "I really was going to hand her a few games, at first. But then . . . the crowd was all with her and against me and I—I got sore." She gave a short hard laugh.

Bill, striving for something sympathetic, let his tongue slip. "I know," he said.

Her body seemed to stiffen. "Just what do you know?"

She had him off balance and a moment dragged by. "N-nothing," he muttered, finally and awkwardly. "Forget it!"

"Listen, Mr. Jarvis!" Her voice crackled. "Don't be afraid to come out with it. They've probably told you, already, about my father. And now you ought to know that it isn't the—the thing to associate with me."

Bill was glad of the darkness, hiding his crimson cheeks. "I'm a dope, Grade A," he said. "But since I've put my foot in it, I did hear some gossip. But it wasn't malicious."

"Not malicious? That could only be Mrs. Fasker. Did she tell you?"

Bill nodded uncomfortably.

Hildy drew a breath. "Well, I don't mind so much, if it came from her. She's an old dear. I would have thought, though . . ."

"Nope." He anticipated her and scotched the idea. "Nobody else said a word."

"Don't worry," Hildy said, a little harshly, "Somebody will."

BILL felt helpless. An unpremeditated walk in the dark had given him a chance to—well, please old lady Fasker. But he hadn't meant to get involved, embroiled.

"Aren't you taking all this too seriously?" he asked vaguely.

"Why wouldn't I take it seriously? And, seeing you know so much, you may as well know something else. I . . . Oh, what's the matter with me? You're not interested."

"But I am."

It was supposed to be merely a polite conventional reply. But right there Bill Jarvis made a disconcerting discovery. He really was interested.

Unconsciously he took a step forward. The moon threw an opal shaft across Hildy's bright hair and the pine-scented breeze whipped little tendrils of it around her forehead.

"You're just being nice," she said. "But . . . well, I was trying to make up my mind to go home. Why I'm telling you, though, I'll never know."

Eight-Day Marriage Ends After 26 Years

LOS ANGELES —(AP)— Twenty-six years ago Roland Clendening married in Wheeling, W.Va.

Friday he sued for annulment of the marriage.

His story: his bride, Alice, left him after eight days of marriage, saying she could never be his actual wife since she married solely to get away from her parents. He tried, year after year, unceasingly, to trace her. He heard reports she had divorced him, but never was able to verify them.

Last April 11, he says, Alice Clendening wrote him, saying she had not gotten a divorce or annulment.

Radioactive Mineral Discovery Revealed

SANTA BARBARA, Calif. —(AP)— Discovery near Kingman, Ariz., of a rare radioactive mineral that may be valuable in atomic research has been disclosed by Santa Barbara College, a branch of the University of California.

The mineral, called thalenite, heretofore has been found only in Sweden, the college said. C. Douglas Woodhouse, lecturer in mineralogy, found the sample last spring.

Hole in the Head Not Comfortable

SAN FRANCINSCO — (AP) — When a man gets a bullet in his head it hurts.

That's what taxicab driver Nicholas Rasberry, 44, confided as he sipped his beer.

The bartender called an ambulance for clearly there was something wrong with Rasberry's head. He had a hole in it.

At the hospital Rasberry told police he had shot himself in a fit of despondency over a love affair. The bullet entered his neck, ranged upward, broke his jaw and emerged near his ear.

Decision on Coplon Appeal Due Monday

WASHINGTON — (AP) — Federal Judge Albert J. Reeves, who sentenced Judith Coplon to prison last year as a spy for Russia, may announce Monday whether he will grant her motion for a new trial.

Judge Reeves took the motion under advisement yesterday after hearing Miss Coplon's attorney charge that the government had "deliberately concealed" wire tapping evidence while the former Justice Department worker was on trial here for espionage last spring.

Federal Prosecutor John M. Kelley, Jr., denied that the government's case was based on any such evidence.

Miss Coplon was sentenced to 40 months to 10 years in prison at that trial. She received an additional 15-year sentence after being convicted in New York of conspiring with Russian Engineer Valentine Gubitchev to relay U.S. secrets to Moscow.

Paris Regime Facing Fight For Survival

PARIS — (AP) — France's middle-of-the-road cabinet, deep in negotiations to merge Western Europe's coal and steel under international control, faces a home-front fight for its own life tomorrow.

The National Assembly will ballot then on Premier Georges Bidault's request yesterday for a vote of confidence. Bidault asked approval of a law prohibiting new government expenditures unless they are covered by receipts.

Across the English Channel Britain's Labor government also is heading for a win-or-resign parliamentary test. Prime Minister Attlee asked for a confidence endorsement of his government's decision to stay out of the current Schuman plan talks until it learns more about how the proposed coal-steel pool will operate.

The House of Commons will debate the government's policy on Monday and is expected to vote Tuesday night.

Defeat of either the French or British cabinet would cause the government involved to resign.

The assembly rejected Bidault's request that it turn down a Socialist Party proposal which would give government employes pay raises equalling about $35,000,000 in the 1951 budget. Bidault said he could not endorse payments that would come due when he might not be in office, and asked for the vote of confidence. A new French election is scheduled in 1951.

The impending assembly ballot arouses speculation on how it would affect French Foreign Minister Robert Schuman. He is sponsor of the industrial pool plan which six Western European nations are trying to set up in negotiations here.

Larger Companies Account For Corporate Profit Hike

WASHINGTON — (AP) — The Federal Reserve Board has reported a few large companies accounted for the upswing in corporate profits in early 1950 — because they alone were able to cut costs.

In the June issue of its monthly bulletin, the board said smaller concerns missed sharing in the overall profits gain for the reason they have been "somewhat less successful in their attempts to reduce costs in the face of growing competition."

"Larger companies have realized substantial operating economies from extensive postwar additions and improvements to plant and equipment," it continued.

"Hence, while corporate profits for first quarter 1950 were larger in the aggregate than those of fourth quarter 1949, the increase reflects the improved earnings of a few large companies rather than a general rise in the earnings of all size classes of concerns."

The report was issued in the wake of a decision by the House ways and means committee to propose a bill boosting income taxes on concerns with profits above $167,000 a year, reducing the rate on those with lesser net earnings.

The board saw "a continued rise in industrial production, accompanied by moderate increase in prices," pointing to a further expansion in business inventories and in the volume of business credit this year.

Despite the comparatively low efficiency rating it gave smaller concerns on their early 1950 showings, it suggested improvements should be expected.

"Numerous opportunities exist for further cost reduction through modernization and improvement of facilities," it said.

"New products and processes are continually being developed through research on a scale unprecedented in peacetime.

"To what extent business may initiate further expansion and modernization of their plant and equipment will depend in part on their efforts to reduce costs and increase productivity and in part on the demand for their products and services.

"Financially, business concerns in the aggregate are favorably situated, both with respect to liquid assets and inflow of funds from operations, to undertake further expansion."

Truman Dedicates Baltimore Airport To Peaceful Future

BALTIMORE — (AP) — President Truman yesterday dedicated the great Friendship Airport as a symbol "of American prosperity and a peaceful future."

The ominous overtone of his St. Louis speech two weeks ago assailing Russia for "preparing for war" were missing.

Instead, he spoke mostly of his hopes for a continually growing and expanding economy to a sunbaked crowd gathered on the 32,000-acre, $15,000,000 airport.

Asserting the Baltimore airport exemplifies "the spirit of growth and confidence with which our country faces the future," the president declared:

"We would not build so elaborate a facility of our air commerce if we did not have faith in a peaceful future."

Despite "the conflict which shakes the world today," he said, "I am confident our economy will continue to grow and expand."

It will do so, he added, "if we base our plans on the assumptions on increasing output, growing efficiency and higher incomes."

Mr. Truman flew here with Maryland's Gov. William Preston Lane, Jr., and Major Thomas D'Alesandro of Baltimore.

Stolen Car Driver Captured by Plane

SALT FLAT, Texas — (AP) — The driver of a stolen car was taken to an El Paso jail, caught by an airplane.

Lt. Howard Peters of the El Paso police department rented a plane to chase the car and landed on the highway to Carlsbad to block the road Thursday night.

Two bewildered hitchhikers climbed out of the car with the driver. They were G. C. Staley, a sailor from San Diego, Calif., on his way to visit a relative in Hobbs, N.M.: and Wayne K. Horton, an airman from Biggs Air Force Base going to visit friends in Wichita Falls, Texas.

"A hitchhiker," Staley said, "can't tell what he's getting into any more."

Britain May Have Practical Atomic Power Plant Soon

HARWELL, Eng. — (AP) — Sir John Cockroft, director of the giant new Harwell atom research laboratory, says Britain may have a practical atomic power plant in "four or five years."

Cockroft revealed that researchers at Harwell, with this goal in view, are trying to figure out new ways to produce plutonium — atom bomb ingredient — faster and more efficiently.

He said his scientists already have worked out a new way of getting uranium out of uranium ore more economically.

The vast Harwell laboratory has been thrown open to the press for the first time. Top atom scientists showed American and European newsmen — no Russians or East Europeans were invited — their 110-inch underground cyclotron, their house-high atomic pile and many of their formerly secret processes. Few key facts or figures were disclosed, however.

The atomic pile is a 40-foot stack of lavender-painted graphite blocks. Uranium slugs are thrust in through small six-inch square ports on both sides and cold-air ducts keep the temperature down.

Harwell's so-called "hot lab" where products of the atomic pile are sorted was engaged in the separation of a quantity of uanium from the plutonium produced in the pile the day before.

Scientists guided the process with the aid of mirrors from behind a four-inch wall of interlocking lead bricks.

A major product of the atomic pile consists of radioactive isotopes which give off rays used in the fight against disease. A spokesman said they can be produced so cheaply that they are rapidly displacing high-cost radium as a disease fighter.

McLEAN — (Special) — The Kimbrell Milling Company of Frederick, Okla., has constructed a new cement pit and two grain bins above the ground just south of the Rock Island railroad tracks.

Ash, Finchum Get 5 Years

Two ex-convicts face another five-year stretch at Huntsville for the burglary of the Trueblood Motor Co. at Canadian on April 16.

Alvin John "Knob" Ash and Van Leach Finchum entered pleas of guilty Friday afternoon in 31st District Court at Canadian before Judge Lewis M. Goodrich and drew prison terms of five years each.

Ash's sister, Louise Ash Meade, drew a five year suspended sentence as a first offender. She was with the two men when they broke into the motor company around 8:30 a.m. Sunday, April 16, at Canadian. The trio was nabbed a few minutes later by Sheriff Clyde Risley between Canadian and Miami.

Ash and Finchum wre interrupted while knocking the knob of the motor company's safe. They were discovered by an attendant who came by and grew suspicious of an open door.

Ash and Finchum were interbrothers. Smoky Ash is now in Leavenworth Penitentiary, and Carl and Smoky are also ex-convicts.

Senators, Governors Invited To Soil, Water Survey Meet

WASHINGTON — (AP) — Governors and U.S. senators of eight states have been invited to to attend a meeting in Oklahoma City July 28 of a federal committee coordinating soil and water survey plans for the Arkansas, White and Red River basins.

Senator Kerr (D-Okla), who sponsored the "one-package" basin-wide plan recently indorsed by President Truman, issued the invitation to governors and senators of Arkansas, Kansas, Colorado, Missouri, Oklahoma, Texas, New Mexico and Louisiana.

Kerr, who will be co-host with Gov. Roy J. Turner of Oklahoma, said at a news conference: "this is the biggest thing that has happened to Oklahoma and the Southwest in years."

The committee, representing six federal agencies and headed by Col. Louis W. Prentiss, Army division engineer at Dallas, will hold a two-day work session preceding the July 28 open meeting.

It was established by President Truman to conduct a basin-wide survey authorized by Congres. The Oklahoma City meeting will be the first of a series to be held monthly in the various state capitals of the eight affected states.

Kerr said the continuous operation would be coordinated by Lt. Col. James B. Lampert, Army district engineer at Chalreston, S. C., who is being transferred to Tulsa as director of a full-time technical staff.

The committee, Kerr said, hopes to complete its survey and present a coordinated river basin plan to Congres within two years.

"Sponsors hope this will make it possible to secure authorization of the plan in the next biennial rivers and harbors and flood control bill," Kerr said, adding:

"As this great new development gets under way in the Southwest it will halt and reverse the population decreases and raise the per capita income. It will set off an agricultural and industrial boom and lay the foundation for permanent prosperity."

John S. Service, 41, Amerasia Case Figure, Gave Up Art Career to Enter Foreign Service

WASHINGTON — (AP) John S. Service, the most controversial figure today in the Senate investigation of the 1945 Amerasia case, was born in a remote section of Western China nearly 41 years ago.

He owes his presence in the headlines, among other things, to a decision some years ago to forego a career teaching the history of art. He became a State Department foreign service officer instead.

Service is a tall, wiry, youthful looking man with sharp, deeply tanned features. He was born August 3, 1909 in Cheng - tu, China, where his father was a YMCA secretary.

His mother tutored him by means of a U. S. correspondence course until time to enter high school. Then he went to an American boarding school at Shanghai.

A year's furlough for his father gave Service an opportunity to graduate from a Berkeley, Calif., high school, at the age of 15.

He then returned to China for a year and a half before again setting out for the United States via India, the Middle East and Europe.

He entered Oberlin College in Ohio, in 1927 and was graduated with a major in economics. In the meantime he had become interested in the history of art, so he took a year's post graduate work in that field.

But that didn't pan out, he told a Senate foreign relations subcommittee. The committee is investigating his role in the Amerasia stolen documents case, as well as pro-Communist charges made against him by Senator McCarthy (R-Wis).

Following his college work, Service decided on a foreign service career. He passed his final State Department examinations in January, 1933, but lack of an assignment sent him back to China.

There he eventually landed a clerkship in one of the U.S. consular offices. In 1935 his appointment as a foreign service officer came through.

Since then, much of his career has been spent in China and the Far East, where his wartime service has been denounced by one former U.S. ambassador, Patrick J. Hurley, and praised by another, Clarence E. Gauss.

For a time Service was attached to the staff of the late Gen. Joseph Stilwell, onetime U.S commander in the China-Burma-India theatre. His job was getting information about the Chinese Communists.

He was ordered back to this country in the spring of 1945 and in June of the same year was arrested along with five other persons after government raiders had seized hundreds of secret government documents in the New York offices of the now-defunct Amerasia magazine.

The indictment against him was dropped, and he returned to the foreign service. McCarthy's Communist - in - government charges against the State Department last February brought Service back into public print again.

Plow Mare Who Gained Fame In Texas Circus Dies at 28

GAINESVILLE, Texas — (AP) — A one-time plow mare which become a featured performer in the Gainesville Community Circus is dead.

Lou — one of the best known show mares in Texas — succumbed to a heart attack in her stall at the home of her owner, Alex Murrell. Lou, a cross between Arabian and Steeldust breeds, was 28.

Having never missed a performance with the community circus since she joined the show in 1932 Lou was retired from the ring in 1948 — after she had suffered a heart attack during the 1947 circus season.

Circus fans will remember her as one of the white horses which led the circus grand entry. Lou also led the liberty horse act and performed as a "high school" horse.

For some time Lou, her daughter, Sun D. and her granddaughter June all performed together in the circus. Last year, when the circus was showing at Beaumont, June was killed when she fell. Sun D. is still performing.

Lou was foaled in Gainesville. She was raised from a colt by a Gainesville man who sold her to an Era farmer. Before her circus days, Lou was used mostly as a saddle mare, but sometimes she wore the plow harness.

So also is the resurrection of the dead. It is sown in corruption: it is raised in incorruption. —Cor. 15:42

Square Dancing's Fun For Many Pampans

By ROBIN TIBBETS

"Swing ol' Sal, an' swing ol' Sue, an' swing that gal with eyes of blue!"

Square dancing has taken the country by storm, and Pampa is no exception. All over the city, square dance clubs with rather limited memberships have formed to give Pampans their chance to learn all the latest dances.

Luckily for the local dancers, Pampa has several experienced callers who "really know their stuff." Included among these are Harold Turner, Gordon Rice, John Anderson, Bill Heckew, Russell Kennedy, Ned Pryor, Fred Sloan, Dorothy Station, Al Mills and High Statton.

At one of the recent public square dances, sponsored by the Paw and Taw club for the benefit of the Girl Scouts, one of the most popular dances proved to be the Mule Train, called by High Statton, one of the local callers. The pictures on this page were taken at that dance.

The dance is performed somewhat in this manner: the number one man swings all four ladies, one at a time, beginning with his right hand lady, then his opposite, then his left hand lady and then his partner. He puts his partner in the center of the ring and he and the remaining three couples join hands and circle around her. Then the first man gets in the ring with his honey and they form an arch. Traveling in line and with hands joined, the rest of the set go through the arch and crack the whip. Then comes a stomping of the feet and the traditional yell, "Hi! Hi! Get along, mule!" which is emitted by all present. Etc. where the dance starts over again.

Eight major clubs in Pampa embrace practically all of the square dance lovers in the city and around the area. Other clubs have been formed at McLean, Lefors, Shamrock, Wheeler, Mobeetie, and other towns in our area.

Pampa has the following clubs: Do-Si-Do, Heel and Toe, Circle Eight, Paw and Taw, Promenaders, Wagon Wheel, Foot 'n Fiddle, and Little Brown Jug.

Each club has a certain night to meet and on that night all members gather and perform such squares as the Texas Star, Catch All Eight, Sides Cut In, Three Ladies Chain, Four Gents Star, Rose of San Antone, El Rancho Grande, Texas Whirlwind, Corners of the World, Mule Train, and many others too numerous to mention.

Unlike all others, square dances can be done by a limited number of persons. The word "square" comes from the way in which dancers place themselves — one couple at each of the four directions, facing the center and the couple directly opposite. Each square is called a "set" and each set is composed of eight persons.

But adults aren't the only ones who have taken up the square dance.

Toddlers clad in tiny blue jeans can be seen practically any time working out the intricate steps of a square dance. Some adults say the youngsters take to square dancing much quicker than other types of dancing.

Shamrock particularly, has an ambitious square dance program for youngsters as young as three years of age. Needless to say, these kids will be out in force at the various community gathering places when they grow old enough to toe the mark for themselves.

Square dancing seems destined to live as long—or longer—than any other type of dance. They're doing it from Portland, Maine, to San Diego, and from Fargo, N. D., to Brownsville. Why don't you try?

Astronomers Report New Exploding Star Discovered

SALT LAKE CITY — (AP) — The 200-inch Hale telescope has discovered an exploding star farther away than any yet reported — it took 50,000,000 years for its light to reach the earth.

The explosion was reported at a meeting of the Astronomical Society of the Pacific in a paper written by Dr. Milton Humason, of the Mt. Wilson and Palomar observatories in California.

Had the supernova been as close as Vega, a bright star visible to the naked eye, it would have been as bright as the Moon, he said. The Palomar telescope, the world's largest, found the star in the Coma cluster, one of several distant universes similar to the Milky Way.

Discovery of two new dwarf stellar systems in the constellation of Leo also was announced by astronomers R. G. Harrington and Dr. Albert G. Wilson.

They said one of these — they were both recorded by Palomar's 48-inch Schmidt camera — is the smallest ever found. The scientists said the discoveries are significant because further study may yield clues about how huge island universes like the Milky Way, of which the solar system is a part, are evolved.

Shriner Gunther Is Just a Cop at Heart

HOLLYWOOD — (AP) — Back home in Kansas City Joe Gunther is vice-president of the P. J. Byrne Lumber Co., and he finds little time to do some of the things he'd really like to do.

But as Shrine delegate Joe Gunther of Ararat Temple, he managed to fulfill a lifetime ambition — directing traffic.

"And at the most famous corner in the country, Hollywood and Vine," Byrne said. "It was worth coming 1,765 miles for."

Stories That Never Happen Often End in Odd Manner

By WILLIAM C. BARNARD
Associated Press Staff

Every newspaperman writes his quota of short, bright features with "surprise" endings. Here are a few of the kind that never get published:

Realizing there wasn't time to wait for an ambulance, Hort Blurton placed his wife in the family car and raced the stork to a hospital.

But halfway there, Mrs. Blurton told her husband to stop the car. Blurton thankfully noted that Patrolman Joseph Mulrooney was standing on the corner of Center and Vale streets and skidded to a stop.

"My wife is going to have a baby," Blurton yelled. "You'll have to help."

"I don't know a thing about it," Mulrooney replied, "and I don't intend to learn."

Corporation Court Judge Heavy Heady, late for work, parked his car in a loading zone at the police station and a rookie cop gave him a ticket.

"Are you going to fine yourself?" his secretary giggled.

"Don't be a fool," said Judge Heady, tearing up the ticket.

A lesser woman would have screamed and fled, but when Mrs. Cora McSnaff found a five-foot rattlesnake in her kitchen, she cooly picked up a rolling pin and threw it with all her might.

Her aim was lousy and the snake bit her on the leg.

Frank Wrackle had not seen his brother, Morp, in 29 years.

But Friday, as Frank was taking a bundle to the washeteria, he saw a tall, dignified-looking, grey-haired man alight from a taxicab at a local hotel. Frank could hardly believe his eyes. He dashed over to the man, excitedly, and exclaimed: "Is your name Morp Wrackle?"

"No, thank goodness," the man replied.

Mrs. Eleanor Jersey figured she was out $75 when she absentmindedly left her purse in a telephone booth at a downtown department store, but five hours later she hurried back to the booth.

Her hunch was quite correct —the purse was gone.

It was a moving scene as the 15-year-old boy stood before County Judge Cole Biscuit for judgment.

The boy was charged with stabbing tires with an ice pick, breaking two store windows, and carving his initials on the sides of three new automobiles.

Just then the culprit's father, a thin, sadfaced man, arose and said pleadingly: "Judge, weren't you a boy once, yourself?"

There was a dramatic silence. Then the judge replied: "Yes, but not a malicious vandal. Two years in the reformatory!"

Princesses' Life in Okinawa Orphanage Is Not Very Royal

By NEA Foreign Service

SHURI, Okinawa — (NEA) — This is the story of two little princesses who aren't living happily ever after. Right now, in fact, they're living in a squalid, tumbled-down orphanage, barefoot, undernourished, wearing rags.

The two girls are Etsuko Sho, 10, and Sachiko Sho, 11. They are princesses of the royal House of Sho, direct descendants of the Sho kings who long ruled Okinawa before the Japanese took over in the 19th Century. They were orphaned when their parents were killed during the wartime bombings.

Now they hardly look like princesses. Both are stunted in growth from malnutrition. Sachiko has an infectious skin disease. They wear patched clothes.

And they eat the sub-standard, monotonous meals which are all the Shuri Orphanage and Old Folks' Home can provide. Their daily 1400-calorie ration consists of rice, soy beans, barley, soup and occasionally a little fish.

The one thing they have is companionship. There are 224 other war orphans in the orphanage. And there are 89 old people sharing the pitiful huts of Shuri. Some CARE packages now reach them, as Okinawa has been added to the list of CARE.

Sanitation and cooking facilities at Shuri are primitive. The princesses eat at rough-hewn wooden tables and benches. The rice and beans are cooked in large iron pots over open wood fires, and are stirred with a stick. Roaches, rats and mosquitoes are everywhere.

The well pump in the compound is broken. The orphans have to draw the water by hand. Soap is scarce, so washing clothes is a luxury.

They sleep on hard grass mats on raised platforms in huts. The only play equipment they have are some home-made swings and slides. The children have to ride down the slides with grass pillows strapped behind. The slide is not very smooth.

The old folks, who share the institution with children, have the same rations and quarters. There are many who were once prosperous.

Among the aged women in Shuri is Ushi Okumura, 87. She is the proud possessor of a beautiful set of tattoos on the backs of her hands. Until about 40 years ago, girls had their hands tattooed when they married, like Western girls wear wedding rings. Ushi's are very elaborate, and the envy of her friends in the home.

Now she dips her tattooed hands in surplus Army helmets to wash. And she sits on the green hill and gossips with the other old men and women of the better days gone by.

Companies Send Stalin Products

CHICAGO — (AP) — Joseph Stalin is reaping some benefits from the current summer home furnishings show.

A few days ago a mattress company announced it had sent the Russian marshal one of its products "to ease his tensions."

Today a Chicago firm advertised it was worried about the Russian chief's daylight hours.

So they're sending him a lounge chair and ottoman. The ad carried a reproduction of the accompanying cablegram which said in part: the two are "priced at only $89. We don't know what that comes to in rubles, Marshal, but forget it, Like America, your . . .chair is free."

Establishment of a dictatorship in Colombia last year ended an unbroken half-century of constitutional government in that country, says the Book of Knowledge year book.

Woman Is Guilty Of Poisoning Mate

COVINGTON, Ind. — (AP) — Mrs. Mary Ellen Osborn was convicted of first degree murder last night in the arsenic death of her husband.

The Fountain Circuit Court jury found the 39-year-old farm woman guilty of giving a fatal dose of the poison to her husband, Amandus Osborn, 49, last Christmas day. He died the next day.

The jury recommended life imprisonment. Judge Roy C. Fenters set sentencing for Saturday.

The jury deliberated almost eight hours before returning the verdict. Mrs. Osborn showed no emotion.

The state said Mrs. Osborn wanted to do away with her husband because she had fallen in love with 30-year-old apple picker, Robert Tibbetts. Tibbetts was wanted as witness in the trial but never was located. Mrs. Osborn denied killing her husband.

FPC Considers Gas Pipeline For Southwest

WASHINGTON — (AP) — The Power Commission is considering an application of the El Paso Natural Gas Co. for permission to carry out a major expansion of its Southwestern pipeline system.

The case went to the commission Monday after final arguments. A commission spokesman said Friday there was no way of telling when a decision may be expected.

The proposed expansion would cost $42,500,000 and would include a 433-mile pipeline from the San Juan Basin in New Mexico to Topock, Ariz.

During final arguments, Attorney Allen R. Grambling told the commission El Paso plans to take 33,000,000,000 cubic feet of gas a year from the San Juan Basin. This gas, he said, would supplement gas fed into the El Paso system from the Permian Basin in Texas and New Mexico.

The San Juan line would deliver gas to the Pacific Gas and Electric Co. at Topock. The line also would supply Gallup, N. M., and Winslow, Kingman, Williams, Prescott, Seligman, Flagstaff and Holbrook, Ariz.

The El Paso application also involves construction of a new 116-mile pipeline to tap flare gas production in the rich new Scurry field of Texas. Flare gas is taken from oil wells.

El Paso has contracted to deliver 150,000,000 cubic feet of gas a day, after the line is finished, to the Pacific Gas and Electric Co. and 17,000,000 cubic feet a day to the Arizona anad New Mexico communities.

The commission, in considering El Paso's application, is faced with a problem posed by the Interatate Natural Gas Co.

This firm, through its attorneys, demanded that El Paso be required to act as a common carrier for transportation of gas from Texas and New Mexico fields to California.

Senator Seeking Higher Tariffs On Oil Imports

WASHINGTON — (AP) — If he has his way, Senator Neely (D-WVa) said his subcommittee studying oil imports will recommend substantially higher oil tariffs.

"So far as I am concerned," he told a reporter, "the answer is an immediate and substantially higher tariff."

Neely said he believes the tariff should be raised from the present 10.5 cents a barrel to about $1.05. He added, however, that it is difficult to determine what the tariff "should be since it can not be determined mathematically."

The subcommittee, which conducted hearings on the effects of oil imports on unemployment, has ben granted an extension of time until July 5 to make its report.

Publisher Dies In New Zealand

SYDNEY, Australia — (AP) — Sir Cecil Leys, 73, New Zealand newspaper publisher, died Friday at Mackay, North Queensland.

Sir Cecil, who had been ill for a week, was chairman of the board of directors of New Zealand Newspapers, Ltd., publishers of the Auckland Star, Christ Star-Sun and two periodicals. He was chief shareholder of the company.

He formerly served as chairman of the United Press Association and was also a trustee of Reuters, Ltd.

After reaching a peak of 47 billion passenger miles in 1920, U. S. railroad passenger mileage declined, but rose again in World War II to a peak of 98 billion passenger miles.

New Tax Bill Can Put Oilmen at Ease

By TEX EASLEY

WASHINGTON — (AP) — If the new tax bill becomes law, oil men can put to rest for some time to come any fears of a reduction in their tax depletion allowance.

The bill, scheduled for House consideration Tuesday, leaves undisturbed the 27 1-2 percent reduction allowed oil and gas operators for income tax purposes — a provision designed to compensate them for abnormal financial risks peculiar to the petroleum industry.

In writing the new bill, the House ways and means committee rejected, after exhaustive study, a recommendation by President Truman that the depletion allowance be cut to 15 percent.

Rep. Combs (D-Texas), a member of the committee, says the House undoubtedly will back up the committee.

"The justice of the 27 1-2 percent depletion allowance is plainly evident to anyone who looks thoroughly into the matter," he said.

"A man may drill numerous dry holes before striking oil if at all. And he may have a well catch fire just as it comes in and get it put out only at great additional cost. These are only some of the reasons why the industry needs encouragement in the form of tax relief."

Senator O'Mahoney (D-Wyo) told a reporter the Senate also can be expected to support the 27 1-2 percent depletion allowance.

Announcement Friday that the United States and Mexico are ending their reciprocal trade agreement on Dec. 31 means higher tariffs on about half the oil imported into this country, government officials said.

These officials said the cancellation will double the 10 1-2 cents a barrel duty on much oil coming in from Venezuela, the Middle East and other areas, as well as from Mexico.

HOUSTON — (AP) — Collapse of the United States-Mexico oil trade agreement would cost the Texas Gulf Coast an estimated $3,250,000 yearly and in the long run would actually increase foreign oil imports, some segments of the oil industry believed.

Oil imports will be affected in this manner:

The Mexican trade agreement, among other things, permits unlimited shipments of oil into this country at a tariff of 10 1-2 cents a 42-gallon barrel.

Negotiated in 1943, the petroleum provisions of the Mexican agreement supplanted the then existing Venezuela agreement.

The latter, negotiated in 1939, provided that the 10 1-2 cent tariff should apply only to imports so long as the quantity did not exceed five percent of the total refinery runs in the United States in the immediately preceding year. When the imports went over the five percent figure, the tariff automatically would increase to 21 cents a barrel.

Cancellation of the Mexican trade agreement, as a result of difficulties over tariffs on tomatoes and other farm crops, visa troubles and Mexican labor snarls, means that the Venezuela agreement once again becomes effective Jan. 1 with respect to oil.

And its terms will apply to oil from all countries, not just Venezuela.

An idea of what this may mean:

In 1949 refinery runs in the U. S. totaled 1,945,000,000 barrels; five percent of this would be approximately 97,275,000 barrels. The total imports into the U. S. for this year are estimated at 234,131,000 barrels.

Using these figures as a base, nearly two-thirds of the imports of oil will be subject to the doubled tariff rate of 21 cents.

Doubled Locations Set Pace For Area Drilling Activity

Operators File Intents on 24 Wells; 11 Oilers Finaled

Pace in the Panhandle stepped up somewhat last week by virtue of a spurt in new locations. Intents to drill filed last week doubled the previous week's figure. There were 24 new locations filed compared to the 12 reported the preceding period.

The number of oil completions rose from 10 reported from the week ended June 17 to 11 reported the past week. The number of barrels of oil brought in, however, dropped to 512 from a previously reported 714.

One well was plugged during the past week, but no gas wells were reported completed.

Sooner Activity Up With 126 Completed

TULSA — (AP) — Oklahoma Oil well drilling activity rose in intensity with the thermometer last week, early reports show.

A Tulsa World survey found 126 completions, compared with 101 last week. Included were 71 oilers, 54 dry holes and a lone gasser.

Meteorites are said to have been man's first source of iron.

Rising Trend Is Maintained In Active Rigs

DALLAS — Aided by increased drilling activity in Oklahoma, Rocky Mountain, and Gulf Coast areas, operations of rotary rigs in oilfields of the United States and Canada reached another new peak for the week of June 19. Drilling in West Texas and New Mexico, where approximately one third of all active rigs are operating, showed a sizeable drop for the second consecutive week.

The total for the week of 2284 activ rigs, as reported to American Association of Oilwell Drilling Contractors by Hughes Tool Co., compares with 2,259 rigs operating in all areas a week ago, 2,164 a month ago, and with 2,071 for the comparable week in 1949.

Comparison by areas for the past two weeks shows:

Pacific Coast, 132, down 4; Oklahoma, 297, up 15; Kansas, 139, up 6; Rocky Mountain, 101, up 10; Canada, 85, up 7; Ark-La-Tex, 149, up 1; West Texas & New Mexico, 742, down 17; Gulf Coast, 499, up 17; Illinois, 140, down 10.

Tidelands Leaders Meet Wednesday

GALVESTON — (AP) — Heads of the Texas Property Defense Assn. will meet here next Wednesday to line up their forces for a counter-attack on the tidelands issue.

Atty. Gen. Price Daniel will attend this executive meeting of the organization. He is to outline his plans for the fight to retain state control of the tidelands.

The TPDA is pledged to support Daniel and to power a drive for congressional action specifically designating tideland properties as belonging to the states they border.

Daniel also is expected to report on progress made since the Surpeme Court ruled the nations marginal lands belong to the federal government.

Terrorists Charged Blasting Missions

BOGOTA, Colombia —(AP)— The U.S. Consulate at Medellin has received reports of police waging a terror campaign against Presbyterians in rural Dabeiba, driving pastors from their homes, and blowing up the mission school.

Dr. Luis Quiroga, general secretary of the Presbyterian Church Synod, said the consulate had received a detailed complaint from Clifford Douglass, 65-year-old veteran missionaray, charging that:

Late in May Nationalist police invaded the homes of Presbyterians in Dabeiba, 180 miles from Bogota, stole their horses, seized papers, drove two missionaries and a school teacher from their homes, burned Bibles and touched off a dynamite charge in the local mission school.

The heads of Moore barley, a new strain, stay on when ripe, thus allowing the farmer to wait until the whole crop is ready to harvest.

Major Oil Strike Seen Near Houston

HOUSTON — (AP) — A major oil strike is developing along a stretch of nearly 25 miles between New Ulm and Bellville in Austin County, 70 miles west of Houston, informed oilmen said.

The strike includes Glenn McCarthy's recently opened field at New Ulm, which other oilmen class as a dramatic stroke of good fortune.

Attention was not on the McCarthy field, however, but on a Dallas oilman's well three miles south of Bellville. This well, G. S. Hammonds No. 1 Schneider, was running a production test from the same series of sands that the McCarthy wells are producing from at New Ulm.

The acreage for the Bellville well was blocked by John Mayo and associates of Houston, who have an interest in the well and the block.

Mayo's associates and oil company scouts said the No. 1 Schneider "will make a producer." This well is nine miles east of McCarthy's nearest producer in the New Ulm field.

Oilmen said present indications are that there is not a solid producing structure between New Ulm and Bellville, but that there will be several producing areas along the 15-mile stretch.

One big independent oilman said the McCarthy field apparently has uncovered an oil reservoir of 10 to 15 square miles. The most conservative estimates by oilmen were that the McCarthy pool is five to six miles long.

McCarthy has 12,500 acres in the New Ulm field, which he got on a farm-out agreement from Gulf Oil Corp.

Several oilmen, not connected with the McCarthy organization, classed the New Ulm field as "the biggest reservoir uncovered on the Gulf Coast in recent years."

The New Ulm and Bellville discoveries are in the deep Wilcox formation which is productive at several other spots along the upper coast.

World Output Of Crude Oil Up for April

TULSA — World production of crude oil established another new record in April, The Oil and Gas Journal reports.

During the month, an average of Russia and Communist conduced. This includes the estimated 855,000 bbl. daily output of Russia and Communistc ontrolled Eastern Europe.

The April world total represented an increase of about 221,000 bbl. daily, or 2.3 percent, over the preceding month. The world total also was 572,000 bbl. daily, or more than 6 percent, above April 1949.

Gains in crude-oil output in the United States, Venezuela, and Saudi Arabia accounted for most of the increase from March to April. Smaller but significant increases also were reported in Colombia, Mexico, Japan, and Germany.

Production in Venezuela, world's largest oil exporting country, rose to more than 1,441,000 bbl. daily, nearly 55,000 bbl. daily above the preceding month. Increasing oil demand in the United States and in Europe caused the production increase in Venezuela. The April output in Venezuela was the highest since the all-time record established in that country in January.

In the Persian Gulf area, Saudi Arabian production gained about 54,000 bbl. daily over March to reach 465,000 bbl. daily. Iran and Kuwait dropped off slightly, but the Saudi Arabian increase, coupled with a smaller gain in Iraq, lifted total Middle East production to a new alltime high of nearly 1,640,000 bbl. daily.

Gas Line Proposed To Midwest States

HOUSTON — (AP) — The Valley Gas Pipeline Co., has proposed to build a 1,440 mile pipeline to Southern Michigan and Indiana from Texas and Louisiana.

Company headquarters said the Federal Power Commission in Washington had been asked permission to allow the $144,500,000 project. Officials said the line would serve an area containing 9,000,000 people. Its capacity would be 505,000,000 cubic feet of gas daily.

The company said work would start within two days after its application is approved. Target date for completion was set at April 1, 1952.

The line would tap fields in Goliad County and the Vermilion Bay area of Louisiana. It would be built through El Dorado, Ark., Jonesboro, Ark.; Cape Girardeau, Mo., Lawrenceville, Ill., Terre Haute, Inc., Atlanta, Ind. The lie would terminate in southern Michigan.

Louisiana Crude Allowable Hiked

BATON ROUGE — (AP) — Daily production from Louisiana oil wells during July has been set at 600,835 barrels, a new high.

The June allowable was 591,135 barrels daily.

The allowable figures by districts are:

Houma, 109,618; Lafayette, 148,103; Lake Charles, 74,170; New Orleans, 146,258; Monroe, 72,281; Shreveport, 50,405.

China's Hainan Island is about 180 miles long and 110 miles wide.

Vets Veto Fighting Alongside Women if War Breaks Again

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK — (AP) — What are we going to do with mama and the girls if war breaks out again?

Let them pack an M-1 rifle? Not if the vets have their way. The boys generally are dead sot against fighting alongside a brassiere brigade or leading a petticoat patrol across no-man's-land.

The question comes up because La Belle Femme would surely have to play a greater role than she has in any previous American war. For women today not only outthink men—as always. They now outnumber men, too.

This means they will inevitably be more of a muscle factor in wartime. Rosie the riveter may have to man the factories all by herself, except for codgers too elderly for battle and too bald to be pinup boys.

But what about using women as actual frontline troops? A number of ladies I know say flatly that if another war comes they'll march on Washington if necessary to win the right to shoulder muskets and go overseas with the boys.

Some see that as a patriotic duty of their sex. Others have more personal reasons.

"Darned if I'll stay at home and be whistled at for another four years by high school kids and old men in rocking chairs," said a bachelor lady of mature vintage. And a wife explained:

"I'm tired of hearing my husband tell how he won the last war. I want to be able to tell him how I win the next one."

Just how the Department of Defense will react to this feminine militancy is a Pentagon secret. It probably will deploy the girls "according to plan." This is a military term used to cover retreats, victories, band concerts, the promotion of colonels and the outcome of the Army-Navy football game.

But a group of war vets I talked to showed no delight at the prospect of going into battle with women — be they college girls, beauty contest winners, or just someone's dear old grandmother.

Their general verdict:

"War has enough hardships already. That would make it unendurable."

"Yeh," said a European veteran. "The women would start off by saying, 'just treat me like one of the boys' — and in two weeks they'd be expecting you to stand up and tip your helmet everytime they changed foxholes."

Other comments:

"Imagine coming back to a girl friend who had run a machine-gun and wore two more medals than you. What could you talk about?"

"If my wife went into combat I know the Army would put me on a bazooka team with her. That's not war — it's just a kind of outdoor marriage."

"How about a female wrestler? She could carry the base plate for the mortar squad. It's too heavy for an ordinary man."

The boys agreed, however, that they had a wide open mind on the question of serving in an army commanded by a woman general.

"What difference does it make whether a general is a woman or a man?" said one. "Who sees him?"

A recently laid egg in New Hampshire weighed 10 1-2 ounces and measured 9 1-2 inches around the longest end.

Friendship Worth More Than $75

TOWSON, Md. — (AP) — The Cameron Heimillers went to court to settle a share-cropping disagreemnt. "It's the principle of the thing," they said. And they meant it.

The circuit court awarded them $75.

But Heimiller and his wife told Mr. and Mrs. Francis Getz, who had been ordred to pay the $75, to forget the whole thing.

Chorused the Heimillers and the Getzes:

"We wouldn't want to lose their friendship for anything."

Curiosity Cured In Painful Way

WASHINGTON — (AP) — Ten-year-old Johnny Devine is in the hospital with burns and scratches — but minus the bump of curiosity which led him to investigate a bird's nest.

Energy Conservation Called Greatest Need

BUFFALO, N.Y. —(AP)— Lazybones, you've got a public relations man in your corner.

SMEAR CAMPAIGN

By Edwin Rutt

Copyright 1950 by NEA Service, Inc.

THE STORY: Bill Jarvis, spending a week at a swank vacation resort as a guest of the parents of his fiancee Bev Coulter, is angered at a campaign of malicious gossip directed against Hilda Sands, a pretty Middlewesterner who is also at the resort. During a stroll while Bev is playing bridge with others, he meets Hilda on the golf course. Hilda tells Bill she is trying to decide to go home.

IV

HILDY SANDS narrowed her eyes suddenly. "Somebody, it seems, would like to force me out of here—for a reason I can't imagine. Well, she's going to be fooled. I'd like to leave. I'd like never to see this place again, but darned if I'll be driven out." Her chin jutted sharply.

"But if you're unhappy?" Bill felt himself relaxing.

"That's not the point. I'm just not letting a lot of cats and scandalmongers lick me. And beyond that—" her voice quivered "—when Dad struck trouble he faced up to it and took—the rap!"

"For somebody else?"

She shot him a peculiar glance. "You know, then?"

"I don't know anything. I did hear this rumor. But now I've met you, it makes even less sense than when I first heard it."

Hildy's eyes dropped. "Thanks—Bill! That's one of the sweetest things that's ever been said to me. But I won't pull any punches. My father really did go to prison."

"So what? It was a frame of some kind, wasn't it?"

"Definitely. Some day, if you're interested, I may tell you the whole thing. Not now. Everybody knows it was a frame, though, out in Rexford, Ill., where I live. And it happened three years ago and I was managing to forget it. Until"—a suggestion of teeth cut into the vague dark line of her lips—"somebody has raised it up and put the nastiest kind of construction on it."

"I don't get this," Bill said, almost angrily. "Why can't these people accept the true facts and be decent to you?"

She hesitated. "Aren't you staying away from Bev—your friends—a pretty long time?"

"They're bridging. I'll never be missed."

"Well then, I teach physical training in Rexford. But last spring I had a breakdown. That sounds silly. The P. T. teacher letting herself break down. Anyhow, I did. And I'd heard about Lookout Crest and it sounded like a swell place to build up in during the summer. It's wildly expensive, of course, but I decided to blow myself. So I came and it was the place for me, physically. But in no other way, I guess."

"I'M sorry," Bill said slowly, "that I can't do more than just listen."

"You've been kind." Hildy's head inclined toward him and the vagrant wind brought him the faint sweet scent of her hair. "I'm thinking that Beverly Coulter has got herself a very nice guy."

She was close, too close. And there was too much moonglow; too many soft insidious whispers in the night. Bill knew that it was foolish, dangerous even. But involuntarily his hand went out, toward the shadowy outline of her waist.

Went out, then stopped—wavering slightly.

From somewhere in the path behind them a twig or small fallen branch crackled sharply—as if beneath the pressure of a foot.

Hildy took a quick backward step. "What was that?"

"I don't know." Bill listened, but no further sounds came. "Just some animal, I guess."

"Look," Hildy said sharply, "you'd better go back. Now!"

"Why don't we go together? Not that I think that little noise meant anything. Besides, if someone was there, he saw nothing out of the way."

She shook her head. "Just the same, I'd rather you went alone. I'm being gossiped about enough."

"But that's silly. A guy can meet a girl by accident, I suppose?"

"Please don't argue. I'll see you around, I hope, Bill."

She made it sound authoritative, final. Bill went back along the path. This business, he thought, was getting Hildy down.

Perhaps, indeed, it would be better for her if she did leave.

But—Bill halted suddenly. There was no use kidding himself. Short as his acquaintance with Hilda Sands had been, he knew that he didn't want her to go.

• • •

IN the hotel he found the bridge game still in progress. Momentarily Bev was dummy. Lloyd Williston sprawled in a chair near the card table, idly watching the play.

Bev arose when Bill wandered up. "Take my place, Lloyd," she said. "It's time I paid attention to Jarvis."

"Good idea," Bill grinned. "Mind, Lloyd?"

"Nope." Williston slid his big frame into the chair Bev vacated. "Always glad to help a pal."

Bev drew Bill out to the verandah. "Lloyd asked me to go for a plane ride," she said.

Bill didn't answer her. Instead he asked himself: Why don't you tell her where you were and with whom? There was nothing to it.

But a moment crept by, and he didn't.

is worth two in the bush, and owning your own home now is better than waiting for years, wishfully thinking that things will be cheaper while you're wasting your money on rent. 3-bedroom homes are hard to find in a reasonable price range, but that one at 805 N. Somerville is available. Roomy closets, (one of them cedar), carpets, double garage, carport and its location on the prettiest street in town make it YOUR kind of home.

policy, and I can honestly say that this 2-bedroom home to be moved is a bargain — only 2 years old, with bath, venetian blinds, floor furnace, enclosed service porch, big kitchen with beautiful cabinets, and in perfect condition throughout. We've come down all the way from $4,000 to $3,150 on this house, and it's worth a lot more. It's built for moving, with double floor joists and double siding — a well-constructed house. See it today at Phillips Camp 10 miles south of town — one block west and 1 block north of the offices out there. Mr. and Mrs. Buxton will gladly show you through it.

is a penny earned, and you'll save plenty of coppers by buying Johnny King's home at 518 N. Dwight. It's got great big bedrooms, more closets than you ever saw in a 5-bedroom house before, fenced-in back yard, garage, and doesn't need one cryin' dime spent for decorations or repair. Czechs Unable To Aid Selves, Writer Claims

NEW YORK — (AP) — Most Czechoslovaks hate their present Communist masters but the outside world will have to lift the Red yoke from the Czech neck if they are to be freed.

So concludes New York Times Correspondent Dana Adams Schmidt in a series of dispatches written from Vienna after he fled from Prague recently to escape possible arrest in a spy roundup.

The Communists in February, 1948, took control of Czechoslovakia, a prewar republic which tried to act as a bridge between the postwar East and West in Europe. Today, except for the heroic few, "the Czechoslovak resistance is mostly in the mind," Schmidt writes.

The country, Schmidt continues, is in much the same state of subjection as it was under the Nazis. But the Communist police state is more complete and affects individual lives more.

Schmidt writes thus:

People disappear suddenly, to forced labor camps or to go before courts manned by Communist-indoctrinated "people's judges." The Catholic Church has lost its press and schools. Its bishops are prisoners in their homes and its lower ranking clergy have been forced to sign oaths of allegiance to the Red regime.

The state is rapidly eliminating private enterprise and taking over the country's economy. With the profit motive gone, shops are shoddy and goods are second rate. So is food. The press has but a single, government-dictated, tiresome voice.

Because of her capitalistic past, Czechoslovakia still enjoys a standard of living higher than any other Communist country. But the Russians, fearing unfavorable comparisons, are likely to reduce the Czech level deliberately "to the bleaker Russian standards."

Shrine Potentate Sued by Policeman In Marital Mix-up

CHICAGO — (AP) — A Chicago police sergeant has sued a Shrine potentate — now honeymooning in Los Angeles — for $100,000 damages, saying the potentate stole his former wife's love away.

Dr. Emmett L. Wright, 60, stole the former wife's love away, Sgt. Stephen J. Dunne, 45, said in his superior court suit, by furnishing her "with large sums of money, an apartment, expensive and costly automobiles and clothing. . ."

In Los Angeles, Dr. Wright said his bride was the former Mrs. Dunne, but called Dunne's suit "ridiculous."

Dr. Wright, potentate of Chicago's Medinah Temple, revealed Monday he had eloped with "Mrs. Sally Kane" while enroute to the Shrine convention.

Dunne asserted the woman is his ex-wife, Ada, 39.

Dunne's suit said Ada's divorce was obtained fraudulently in Pocatello, Idaho, June 12, and it would be void in Illinois.

Dr. Wright said he hadn't met Mrs. Dunne until 1947, and she and Dunne separated in 1946, "so how could I have any effect on the matter. I gave her nothing except what she earned — an apartment for managaing my property and her salary. She was a hard worker and a good girl."

There's Nothing New in Holdups, Say Store Owners

DETROIT — (AP) — In the 46 years they've been running their small grocery store Joseph and Herma Barron figure they've had their share of holdups.

So they acted quickly Friday, Joseph's 81st birthday, when two armed thugs demanded the money in the cash register.

Herma, 75, just pushed the gun aside. Its holder fired at her, but the shot went wide. Then he tried again, but the gun jammed. The thugs ran off.

Police arrived a few minutes later, but Joseph insisted "it was nothing."

"We've had several upsets in this respect," he explained. "Perhaps eight or ten times they've tried to get us, and they've only gotten money once. We've been able to out-trick them most times."

Hughes Helicopter Wrecked in Test

CULVER CITY, Calif. — (AP) — The giant jet helicopter that Howard Hughes is building for the U.S. Air Force tore loose from its moorings and was wrecked yesterday while undergoing ground tests.

No one was injured.

The massive craft, designated the XH-17, was rolled out for ground test March 27. It is the largest and most spectacular helicopter ever built, and was designed as a "flying crane" to lug huge loads, such as tanks, field guns and vehicles, for short distances. Its construction permits it to settle over loads much in the fashion that a lumber carrier moves over a stack of boards. It is designed to lift a weight of some 10 tons for short flights.

The Air Force said the XH-17 is a secret project and as such no details of yesterday's accident would be disclosed.
