POT POURRI

After Dallas Golden, who doubled as full-time fireman and city hall custodian for many years, had tried in vain all of those years to grow grass at the corner of the city hall, the problem was solved last summer by the simple expedient of erecting an iron-pipe fence along the walk there, thus discouraging people from tromping over the place.

And now Jess Truett has moved his post office across the street from the city hall, so it won't be long until the lawn between the sidewalk and curb on the west side is gone, because of people taking a short cut—even as we do.

Guess we'll have to promote another fence for Dallas Golden.

Old Tack, the Tactless Texas, in The Amarillo News:

President Truman had better be a bit careful. Now he is talking of $12,000 a year income for each and every family in the United States.

Not that it wouldn't be wonderful, but some years ago a certain man by the name of Hoover began promising two cars for every garage, as well as two chickens for every pot. And see what happened to him.

The center one of three fellows at a fountain was kidding the girl behind the counter. She had made some statement, which the man in the middle feigned to doubt.

"Well, then, just ask those two guys between you," she demanded.

Somewhere or other we read this old definition of a committee: A group of men who individually can do nothing, but who as a group can meet and decide that nothing can be done.

Congratulations to R. N. Russell, who is remodeling the old post office building, which he owns.

He did what we believe the majority of property owners would not have done under the circumstances, had the old, broken, dangerous concrete sidewalk removed and replaced, thus completing the job at considerable additional cost and at the same time improving the appearance of the entire picture and removing a hazard to toes and ankles.

There are a number of other landlords who would do well to emulate the action taken by Russell, even though they are not remodeling.

Some weeks ago we explained in this story, in response to a request from a subscriber, the meaning of "top allowable," a term frequently used in our oil stories.

We said that is the amount of oil an operator is permitted to pump or flow from a well in a 24-hour period, as set by the State Oil Conservation Commission. The figure at this time is 42 barrels of oil a day.

Since then we have been asked to define some more of the common terms heard in the oil business, which the average man on the street does not savvy. So here are a few:

Stripper—An oil well of small production, perhaps adapted from stripper cow. The term is some what ambiguous and arbitrary and what might be considered a stripper in one field would not be in another. However, in general a well of 10 or 12 barrels a day or less is considered a stripper.

Schlumberger—Commonly called "jeep" in the business, a term used long before the famous wartime jeep came along. The name given to Lane-Wells or underground electric surveys.

Total depth—The greatest subsurface depth to which a well has been drilled.

Perforation—Holes shot in a casing to permit flow of oil.

IP—Oil. The flow measured under various conditions, actually the initial production.

Gas-oil ratio—The ration in cubic feet of gas to barrels of oil produced per day.

Spud-in—To start the bit digging at the surface, also a particular type of drilling.

Doghouse—Something in which oil men, particularly drillers and pushers frequently find themselves, when on the job, as well as at home. On the job it is a small building in which they change clothes, eat their grub and sometimes sleep.

Bottom-hole or subsurface pressure—The pounds of pressure per square inch under conditions at or near a producing horizon.

Inside well or location—One which is within the established or presumed limits of a pool, surrounded by producing wells, hence one on which the log is known to a reasonable degree and from (Continued last page, this section)

Hagerman Boy Raises Five Bales To Win Contest

John F. Adams, 18-year-old Hagerman boy, produced five bales of cotton to the acre to win the 1949 long-fiber cotton production contest for 1949 in New Mexico, Arizona and District 6 of Texas.

Forty-three boys and girls in the area competed for the $500 sweepstakes prize and $50 each in county awards, of which Jerry Simmons of Artesia won for Eddy County.

The county awards were given in those counties in which there were more than five entrants.

Results of the contest were announced at Las Cruces by John T. Stovall, secretary of the 1517 Association, sponsor.

Adams, a senior at Hagerman High School, produced 2347 pounds of lint—the equivalent of more than 49 bales—on his acre. His land is two miles south of Roswell and is part of a farm owned by his father, Wayne C. Adams, Roswell real estate agent. He says soil fertility, proper insect control and timely irrigation all contributed to (Continued last page, this section)

Artesia Children Attend District Clinic Thursday

Nineteen Artesia children were examined Thursday at Carlsbad on the first day of a two-day clinic for crippled children of this district, planned by the Crippled Children's Service Division of the New Mexico Department of Public Health.

They were taken to and returned from the clinic in a school bus through the co-operation of the Artesia school system.

The clinic in Carlsbad was one of a series being held once each month in a district in the state. It was attended by children from Eddy and Lea Counties and a portion of Chaves County.

Examinations at the clinics are made by members of the staff of Carrie Tingley Hospital at Hot Springs. They include examinations of new patients and rechecks. The hospital staff members were assisted by county health and school nurses.

It was pointed out that some children are seen only at the district clinics, whereas others must go to the hospital for further examination and treatment.

REA Cage Team Showing This Season Is High

Paul Frost, manager of the Central Valley Electric Co-op, Inc. and sponsor of the REA basketball team, has expressed pride in the team's showing this season, during which it has won 17 and lost two games and has made 675 points to 300 for the opponents. He plans as well to sponsor a baseball team here next summer.

The basketball team is coached and managed by G. E. (Red) Goodwin, who is no newcomer in the field of sports, having played sandlot, semi-pro and professional basketball and baseball. He received his basketball knowledge from such coaches as Brennon Witt and Chuck Finley, both former all-American and the latter a famed A.A.U. player with the Denver Nuggets and from the famous Oklahoma A. & M. College coach, Henry P. Iba.

Goodwin has centered his REA team around the big pivotman, Pete Hatch, former star at Highlands University and he depends on the big Indian, Bill Case, who is a good, dependable man to keep opposing hotrods well in check.

The team is rounded out by former high school and college stars, including the Wilburn Brothers, Zane Ray and Alpha Dee, from Hope High School, Lyle Terpening, Artesia High School; "Cotton" Pittman, Ada (Okla.) High School; Sam Hawkins and Bill Case, Southwestern Oklahoma College; Jim Parmer, Oklahoma A. & M. and "Red" Goodwin, New Mexico School of Mines and Oklahoma A. & M.

Goodwin said the REA team this year will enter several tournaments and hopes to represent New Mexico in the National A.A.U. tourney at Denver. The team has scheduled games with the famous Globe Trotters, world champions and several other travelling ball clubs, whose appearances here will be announced later.

Dimes Campaign Ends, But Funds Are Still Needed

Although the March of Dimes closes officially today, Jerry Loece, chairman of the North Eddy County chapter of the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis, announced this morning some phases of the campaign will continue a few days, in hopes sufficient funds may be realized to meet all debts incurred during the epidemic last year.

The "disc jockey" programs were concluded Saturday night and the counter coin containers are to be brought in Wednesday. Loece said, but the canvass of residences and business houses will continue a little longer, as workers attempt to contact those who have been missed.

Likewise, the chairman said, checks to the March of Dimes will be welcome at any time and they may be mailed or taken to Fred Cole, chapter treasurer, at the First National Bank. He urged, however, that checks be mailed promptly, so as to be included in the campaign.

Although it will be some days before the total receipts for the 30 March of Dimes are known here, Loece said preliminary check ups indicate the campaign has fallen down somewhat. He said a resume of receipts will be made public as soon as compiled.

Mrs. King, 28, Dies Suddenly On Saturday

Mrs. Delmar King, 28, died suddenly at 5 o'clock Saturday afternoon at the home in Morningside of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. S. A. Farrar.

Funeral services were from Paul in Chapel at 2:30 o'clock Monday afternoon by Rev. Robert Hudson, pastor of the Church of God in Morningside. Burial was in Woodbine Cemetery.

Mrs. King is survived by her husband, parents, two children, Alvis and Katherine and a sister and three brothers, Mrs. Juanita Gossett, Loving; Jack Farrar, Carlsbad and Roy and Troy Farrar, Artesia.

As Lucy Lillian Farrar, Mrs. King was born Sept. 25, 1921, at Devol, Okla. She married Delmar King in 1940 at Morton, Texas and to them were born the two children who survive.

She came to Morningside two months ago from Portales. Mrs. King was a member of the Church of God.

Fugitive From Georgia Picked Up In Artesia

James Puchett, a prisoner in the Artesia city jail on a minor charge, is a fugitive from Georgia, where he escaped while serving a term for the murder of a Negro, according to information to Police Chief Earl B. Westfall.

Discovery of Puchett's identity came about through a routing procedure, in which fingerprints of all prisoners are sent to the Federal Bureau of Investigation, Chief Westfall said.

When the FBI checked the prints sent by the Artesia police, it was discovered Puchett was wanted in Georgia on the murder charge and the information was forwarded to Georgia authorities, who in turn wired the Artesia police, asking that the prisoner be (Continued last page, this section)

Fire Eaters Of Area Re-elect Golden Secretary

Dallas Golden, full-time Artesia city fireman, was re-elected secretary-treasurer of the Southeastern New Mexico Firemen's Association at a quarterly meeting in Roswell Friday night, which was attended by nine members of the Artesia Volunteer Fire Department.

Chief Porter of Hagerman was elected president for 1950, succeeding Chief Archie Conner of Hobbs.

During the meeting, members of the Roswell Fire Department showed fire-fighting motion pictures produced by the National Association of Fire Insurance Underwriters and the Army and Navy.

Orchard Park, a suburb of Roswell, was selected for the next quarterly meeting, which will be held in April.

Attending from Artesia besides Golden, who is also secretary of the department here, were Chief Albert Richards and Volunteer Firemen Ulas Golden, Ormond Loving, Phillip Kranz, Lee Francis, Cal Dunn, Steve Lindsey and J. L. Walker.

M/Sgt. Preston Triplett of Roswell, who was a volunteer fireman when stationed in Artesia as recruiting officer, attended as a guest of the Artesia Fire Department members.

Besides the department here, others represented were those at Carlsbad, Thayer Apartments, Loving, Roswell, Hobbs, Dexter, Hagerman, Orchard Park, Captain and Walker Air Force Base at Roswell.

Case Of Alexander, Maljamar, Diagnosed As Bubonic Plague

The case of Jack W. Alexander of Maljamar, who was suspected last week of being tularemia, or rabbit fever, has been diagnosed as bubonic plague, the "Black Death" of the Middle Ages, it has been announced by Dr. James R. Scott, director of the New Mexico State Health Department.

Authorities at the Veterans Hospital in Albuquerque, where Alexander is a patient, said he became ill on Jan. 9, a few hours after hunting rabbits, which was a factor in suspecting his illness of being tularemia.

Dr. O. E. Puckett of Carlsbad, district health officer, said he went to Maljamar Saturday to investigate. He said there was evidence both inside and outside of Alexander's home of rats, common carrier of bubonic plague infested fleas.

He said he later telephoned Santa Fe headquarters, requesting that a special health officer be sent here Monday to aid in discovering if rats near the Alexander home are infected. Dr. Puckett said.

The district health officer said he would accompany the special officer to Maljamar on Monday for the investigation.

Dr. Scott, in commenting on the case, said at Santa Fe Saturday, that while rabbits are not the most common carriers of bubonic plague, they can do so. The disease is carried by fleas which infest rodents, he explained.

Alexander's case is the fourth human case of bubonic plague of record in the state in the last six months, Dr. Scott said.

He announced a San Patricio boy died from the disease last fall and that a Sandoval County man and a Taos boy were treated for the disease last August and recovered.

The case of Alexander has been reported to the U.S. Health Department in Washington, D. C., Dr. Scott said.

When it was reported last week that Scott's case was suspected of being tularemia, a warning was issued to rabbit hunters of this area to be cautious in handling rabbits, common carriers of that disease. Whereas tularemia is contracted by contact with an uncooked rabbit, the germ entering a person's body through any cut or abrasion, bubonic plague is transmitted by fleas from infested rodents.

Whereas Alexander's condition has been classified as critical, he was removed from the critical list Tuesday of last week.

Cotton Classing Office Here Is Closing Today For Season

The temporary cotton classing office, which was opened last September at 613 North First Street in Artesia by the Department of Agriculture in co-operation with the Pecos Valley Farmers' Association, will close for the season today after having classified more than 138,000 bales of cotton this season.

Stanley C. Rademaker, who has been in charge of the office since it was opened last fall at the time cotton picking started in Southeast New Mexico, said about 1000 bales will be left for classification from Eddy, Lea and Chaves Counties, which the office has been serving.

He said this cotton will be sent to the permanent cotton classing office at El Paso for classification.

Rademaker said that in classifying upwards of 138,000 bales of cotton this season, the office has been of great assistance to producers in marketing their cotton.

The principal factor which has made the office here desirable has been the fast return on classification. In past years it was frequently necessary for a producer to have to wait a few weeks for official classification, which has been narrowed down to a delay of only a few hours up to three days through the office here.

Less than 5 per cent of the cotton in this area has entered the government loan, Rademaker said. Practically all was sold by producers in the open market, based on the cotton office classifications.

Prices received by producers ranged from gross loan prices on some of the higher grades to about $20 over the loan for some of the lower qualities.

Rademaker said it is estimated producers in Eddy, Chaves and Lea Counties received about $22,500, 000 for lint cotton and cottonseed this season.

W. B. Lanham, Western Cotton Branch manager of the Department of Agriculture's Production and Marketing Administration, made a similar announcement from Dallas, Texas, of the closing of the temporary office here and plans for sending samples received after today to the permanent classing office at El Paso.

Lanham said most of the cotton in the area of Eddy, Chaves and Lea Counties, served by the Artesia office, has been picked.

Farmers To Help In Taking Census

U.S. farmers are going to help the census taker next spring, so that a better set of facts than ever can be assembled by Uncle Sam. And what personal facts they give are strictly confidential.

In the last two weeks of March, mail carriers will deliver federal census sheets to rural mail boxes. All R.F.D. boxholders will get them, except those in six Southern states, with a request that the farmer put in the answers and give them to the census taker when he arrives in April.

None will be sent to farms in North and South Carolina, Georgia, Alabama, Mississippi and Louisiana. Other special methods will be used in the plantation areas.

Each enumerator (interviewer) will have from 125 to 150 farms to visit, where he will collect the papers which the farmer has previously filled out as far as possible alone. The census taker will help the farmer finish it. He will also take the official population census at the same time.

There are mainly about 100 questions on the paper for the farmer's attention and only a few of them will take any books and records to complete. Many of the spaces are answerable by "yes" and "no." Meanwhile copies of the official data sheets are being sent to American Agricultural Publishers Association in advance.

The census of 1950 will employ 45,000 rural enumerators out of a total of 140,000 who will handle questions in the special housing and regular population census (Continued last page this section)

White Auto Store Is To Open Here Friday, Feb. 10

H. B. and Wade Maupin of Levelland, Texas and Alamogordo have announced they will open a White Auto Store here Friday, Feb. 10, in the building at 407 West Main Street, recently remodeled by R. M. McDonald.

They said theirs will be an associate store in a system in which there are about 250 company and dealer stores throughout the Southwest.

Of the total, they will own and operate three, including stores at Alamogordo and Levelland, when the store is opened here.

H. B. Maupin, who will manage the Artesia store, was connected with Sears Roebuck about two years, before and after 13 months of service in the Marine Corps, with which he was in the South Pacific theater. He lived at Alamogordo about a year and was associated there with his brother, Wade. The last three and a half years he has been manager of their White Auto Store at Levelland.

He is married and plans to make his permanent home in Artesia. H. B. Maupin said he hopes to assist in all civic and community activities as a citizen of the Artesia community.

His brother, Wade Maupin was with Sears Roebuck about eight years, of which five were at Lubbock, Texas and three in El Paso. Besides operating and managing the White Auto Store at Alamogordo, he also owns the Home Furniture Company store there.

The building here, which has just been remodeled for the new store, will be equipped with new, modern fixtures and ready for the opening on Feb. 10, further announcements of which the brothers plan to make in the meantime.

With the coming to Artesia of H. B. Maupin, the store at Levelland will be under the management of another brother, James Maupin and their father, G. C. Maupin.

COLE ATTENDS SHOWING AT HOUSTON, TEXAS

Mr. and Mrs. G. Taylor Cole and sons, Jerry and Paul, left Wednesday of last week and returned home Sunday night from visiting in Dallas and Houston, Texas. Cole went to attend the showing of the 1950 Cadillac at the Shamrock Hotel, Houston and also visited his sister, Mrs. W. A. Dennard.

First Issue Printed On New Goss Web Press Is Presented

This is the first issue of The Artesia Advocate printed on the new Goss Cox-O-Type web press, installation of which was started Wednesday of last week in a new pressroom, especially built.

The initial issue goes to the public in two sections of six pages each or 12 pages, which is the customary Tuesday issue run. It is probable that in the future a newspaper of this size will be printed in an eight-page front section and a four-page second section for more convenience. But although some rolls of paper have arrived, The Advocate has received no rolls intended for the printing of four pages only.

In other words, rolls of paper of various widths will be employed for different mechanical requirements and will vary from issue to issue.

Installation of the press was made by E. D. Tullio, press mechanic and expert, representing the A. E. Heinsohn Company of Denver. He was assisted in the installation by members of The Advocate's mechanical staff, who were instructed about the mechanical ramifications of the press as he went along. And Tullio served as pressman for the runs for this issue.

Among the slight differences, readers will note is the lengthening of the column from 20 inches of type—besides the heading—date line—to 21 inches, giving eight additional column inches to a page or 48 additional column inches in the issue, somewhat more than two more columns in a 12-page issue.

The new measurement of the column is standard for this type of press and is generally employed throughout the nation.

Another difference which may be noted is the perforation cut at the top and bottom of each page, put there as the new press prints a complete section from a roll of paper, folds and cuts.

Heretofore, sheets as large as four of the former pages, which had been factory cut to size, were fed through The Advocate's Miehl flatbed press and printed on one side, after which they were fed through a folder by hand—three hand-fed runs at the rate of less than 2000 an hour by a pressman.

The new process will not eliminate the services of a pressman, who keeps busy during the entire run, checking impression, ink distribution and the like. But he will be able to print at the rate of 3500 complete eight-page sections an hour.

In the near future the Miehl flatbed press will be disposed of, Mrs. Kitty Flint McConnell, daughter of Mrs. T. H. Flint and the late T. H. Flint, became the bride of Frank H. Livingston in a ceremony solemnized at 2:30 o'clock Friday afternoon at the home of the bride's mother before relatives of the two families.

Rev. Ralph O'Dell, pastor of the First Presbyterian Church, officiated at the single-ring ceremony.

The bride, given in marriage by her brother, T. H. Flint, wore a dress of iridescent rose taffeta fashioned with a waist-length jacket and large standing collar and bouffant ballet-length skirt. She wore a corsage of red roses and pale pink snapdragons pinned at the center of the low neckline. A charming close-fitting, pale-pink lace and maline hat and a single strand of small pearls completed her costume. Her bouquet was a single Duchess rose made of 12 American Beauty roses.

The bride's only attendant was her 6-year-old daughter, Sue, who wore a formal pale pink taffeta dress and tiny red rosebuds in her hair and carried a small basket fashioned of rose colored taffeta ribbon filled with red rose petals.

Music for the wedding was played on an antique organ by Russell Floore. Preceding the ceremony "Drink to Me Only With Thine Eyes" was played, followed by "Bridal Chorus" from "Lohengrin."

Immediately after the ceremony, an informal reception was held. The table was decorated with white satin ribbons and a crystal and silver epergne holding an arrangement of American Beauty roses. Mrs. Hickam Gailles of Albuquerque served the pale-pink three-tiered wedding cake and Mrs. Gordon B. Smith, also of Albuquerque, poured at the silver coffee service. Both are sisters of the bridegroom.

Mrs. Livingston's going-away costume was a dark rose gabardine suit with a navy taffeta hat and navy accessories. Her corsage was of red roses and pink snapdragons.

After a short wedding trip, the couple will make their home at 1001 West Main Street in Artesia.

Mr. Livingston is associated with the Motors Insurance Corporation and has opened an office for this district in Artesia.

in Tells Farmers to Expect can farmers expect in answer to that question, W. Martin of Artesia, chairman of the New Mexico State Production and Marketing Administration, brought back from the National PMA Conference held in Memphis, Tenn., the following news presented by O. V. Wells, chief of the Bureau of Agricultural Economics:

"Farm production is holding at a high level. Food production for sale or home use is again 35 per cent above the prewar or 1935-39 level this year and with average yields, the over-all volume is not likely to be much different in 1950. Wheat production was 50 per cent over the prewar level.

"Farm prices and incomes are drifting downward. Farm prices so far this fall have been running about 12 per cent under a year ago and 22 per cent under the peak recorded in January, 1948. Prices paid are another story, running only about 3 per cent under a year ago, about 4 per cent under January, 1948. Let's say it another way. Prices received by farmers have been declining at about four times as fast a rate as prices paid with most of the decline in prices paid or in farm costs tracing back through declines which farmers themselves must absorb in prices paid to purchase feed and food.

"The result of these differential movements in prices received by farmers versus prices paid for goods used in farm family living and production are easily understandable. First, the net income of farm operators is declining more than farm prices, despite high level production and second, support prices and other farm program devices are becoming increasingly important.

"Some simple statistics may illuminate these items: The net realized income of farm operators for this calendar year is now estimated as not much over 14 billion dollars as compared with 18 billion dollars in 1947, the record year and there are some indications that farm operators' net realized income may be as low as 12 billion dollars next year, or down one-third from 1947."

Program For 1950 On Cotton Sets Favorable Vote

With the overwhelming stamp of approval given by cotton growers to the use of marketing quotas on the 1950 crop, the basic features of the federal cotton price support and production adjustment programs for the coming year have been established, the Eddy County Production and Marketing Committee said.

"Growers who plant within their acreage allotments are assured price support at 90 per cent of parity on their 1950 crop," says Jay Ogden, county PMA chairman. "The actual support price in cents-per-pound will be based on the parity price next Aug. 1."

The level of price support for the 1950 crop was contingent upon the outcome of the marketing quota referendum held Dec. 15 and would have dropped to 50 per cent of parity had growers rejected quotas.

The chairman also explains that co-operators with the acreage allotment program will be able to market all of their 1950-crop cotton penalty-free. Non-co-operators—those producers who plant in excess of their farm acreage allotments—will be required to pay a per pound penalty of 50 per cent of the parity price next June 15 on their "farm marketing excess" before they can market the balance of their crop without penalty.

Ogden defines "farm marketing excess" as the normal production of the acreage planted in excess of the farm allotment. He points out, however, that if the actual yield on a farm drops below the normal yield set for the farm, the farm marketing excess can be reduced to the amount by which the total actual production exceeds the normal production of the allotted acreage.

"In planning their 1950 crop, growers will wish to consider these factors," says the chairman, "and should also keep in mind that no price support protection will be available to non-co-operators."

Ogden reports that nationally, growers approved the use of marketing quotas in the recent referendum by nearly nine to one. An unofficial but virtually complete canvass of voting in New Mexico showed that 80 per cent of the producers who cast ballots in this state favor quotas. This is the seventh time cotton growers have authorized the use of marketing quotas. Quotas were last approved for the 1943 crop, but were suspended that year as war requirements for cotton removed any possibility of a surplus.

Rierson Advises Ordering Of Fruit Trees Early

Fruit trees for the home orchard or commercial plants should be ordered within the next month, according to County Agent Dallas Rierson.

"The home owner who has a limited amount of space available for the planting of fruit trees would do well to consider the use of some of the new dwarf varieties in the home plants," Rierson says. "Dwarf trees have an advantage in that they can be used in small places and planted as close as 10 to 15 feet apart. They also bear earlier and are easier to spray for the control of insects and diseases, which is a must in New Mexico."

"Early orders for nursery stock are filled in the order in which they are received; therefore, if you place your order early, you will get the pick of the best trees and varieties."

Nursery stock should be purchased from reliable nurseries which are noted for the sale of varieties which are free from disease, the county agent advises. He also recommended that orchardists plant only varieties adapted to the locality. "It is best to buy year-old trees, four to seven feet high, which have a well-developed root system," Rierson said. "Trees of this type become established quicker and are grown out much faster. Smaller and older trees will not give the desirable response and will only result in disagreement and often waste of time and money."

"Also include some berry bushes

Senator Elmer Thomas Rep. Mike Monroney

"I WANT to be absolutely certain I can win," says Rep. Mike Monroney (D), Oklahoma, who is expected to give up his House seat to run for the Senate seat of Elmer Thomas, another Democrat. Back in Washington after a "feel-out" tour of Oklahoma, Monroney thinks "the situation looks pretty good" for a try. (International)

Wool Show To Feature Methods Of Production

Improved practices in the production and marketing of lambs and wool will be featured on the program of the 1950 wool school at the State Wool Show during the 47th annual convention of the New Mexico Wool Growers Association Feb. 7-8 at the Hilton Hotel in Albuquerque.

Prof. P. E. Neale, associate animal husbandman of the experiment station at New Mexico A. & M. College, will be in charge of the school, which will be held Feb. 8, the second day of the convention. Everyone is invited to attend the school, Neale said.

As for the wool show, more than 80 per cent of the fleeces entered are of fine wool grades, while about 20 per cent are divided between half blood and three-eighths blood grades. The number of fleeces entered in the open classes has increased over past years' shows, with a decrease in the number of breed fleeces and entries in the junior wool show.

Approximately 100 fleeces are entered in the pasture fine wool classes, 70 of them ewe fleeces and 30 yearling and lamb fleeces. The ewe fleeces will be shown in four classes on a spinning count basis: 80's and above, 70-72's, 64-66's and a fine medium class of 62's. The spinning count of each fleece will be determined by a cross-section of the fleeces and the general appearance of the fleece.

All fleeces in the show must have been shorn during the 1949 shearing season. Fleeces from mature sheep must not be over 12 months' growth and not in excess of 14 months for yearling fleeces. A shrinkage committee will examine the fleeces prior to the judging and estimate shrinkage for each fleece. The judging committee will be composed of a wool grower, a wool buyer and a wool technician. They will judge the show on Feb. 6, the day before the convention opens.

Approximately $700 in premium money, plus cups and trophies valued at $300, will be offered in the wool show.

Maljamar Items

Mrs. Artice O. Vowell entertained the Kewanee Sewing Club at her home Thursday afternoon. Several accidents occurred such as water being spilled, eye glasses broken and sewing baskets turned upside down on the floor, all quite by accident. Caramel candy was passed to the three women who talked the most so they would be kept busy so the others attending could get in the conversation. Everyone had a grand time all afternoon. Those attending were Meses. Ira Pleasant, Luther Kelley and Glenda, Ralph McGill, John Leo, W. D. Wilson, Floyd McCarthy, Son Taylor, Oscar Goodman, Herbert C. Hunter, M. P. Blakely, J. C. Davis, Mrs. Kenneth Shields.

'THE KING CAN DO NO WRONG'

Zaki Hachian loses fiancée... to his monarch, King Farouk.

THE DICTUM that "the king can do no wrong" is a tough pill for Zaki Hachian, 27, former UN employee, to swallow as he ponders reported decision of Egypt's King Farouk to marry 16-year-old Narriman Sadek. She is daughter of one of Farouk's subjects, and was to have married Zaki last Dec. 8. Then Farouk saw her. Farouk is reported intending to wed her on his 36th birthday, Feb. 11. (International)

Changes In GI
Loan Regulations
Help Veterans

Two changes in the GI loan regulations, designed to make it easier for veterans to finance and occupy homes purchased with the aid of loan guarantees under the GI Bill, have been announced by the Veterans Administration.

One change will permit a veteran to occupy the home of his choice even though some outside work, necessarily delayed because of inclement weather, remains to be completed. The other provides an optional, flat allowance instead of certain origination costs, which may be charged to home buyers by lending institutions.

The first change involves such outside work as unfinished sidewalks, curbs, gutters, driveways and final coats of exterior paint. Heretofore, VA has required a certification that the home was completed before issuing a loan guarantee to the lender.

Several weather conditions in many parts of the country, therefore, have resulted in delays for veterans in moving into new homes which were fully suitable for living purposes, except for the unfinished exterior work.

Under the new plan, an amount equal to one and a half times the estimated cost of the unfinished work will be placed in escrow to guarantee completion and VA will issue its regular guaranty on the loan. This procedure will be instituted only at the request of the veteran buyer.

The second change concerns numerous miscellaneous expense items incurred by lenders in connection with the making of a mortgage loan. Included are the lender's costs for appraisals, inspections, preparation and mailing of papers and a variety of fees, such as those paid to notaries and trustees.

Previously, all such cost items had to be accounted for individually. Under the new regulation, the lender may, at his option, charge instead an amount equal to 1 per cent of the amount of the loan or a minimum of $50.

The optional allowance is applicable only to straight, first-mortgage GI loans where the veteran gets all his financing at the low 4 per cent interest rate, VA said.

The veteran should be convinced that the home he buys is suitable to the needs of his family and that the price is well within his ability to pay, VA cautioned.

Having exercised good judgment in choosing his home, the veteran who obtains a 4 per cent GI loan gets his mortgage financing on the most favorable terms ever available to any large group of borrowers — the lowest financing cost available.

Demonstration Of Stalk Cutters Is Held On Friday

A field demonstration of two new types of stalk cutters was held Friday afternoon for veteran trainees in the Artesia institutional farm training program two miles northeast of Artesia on the farm of Robert McCormick, a member of the class of 18, in a field of cotton stalks that varied from about 24 inches to near shoulder height.

Joe Mitchell & Son demonstrated the operation of the Rotocycle and the Artesia Implement & Supply Company demonstrated the Humboldt cutter.

The Rotocycle cuts and shreds stalks by means of a double blade

RELAX SECRECY, SAYS LILIENTHAL

IMPORTANT ADVANCES in secret realms of atomic energy were made in 1949, retiring AEC Chairman David Lilienthal (left) announces in Washington, adding that if the discoveries could be made known they would help scientists in other fields. He recommends relaxing secrecy barriers in fields not involving national security. Beside him is Henry de Wolfe Smyth, AEC commission member. (International) which rotates at high speed parallel to the ground and the Humboldt cut by means of double vertical blades which work like a hammermill as the machine passes over the row of stalks. Both machines are driven by tractor power take-off, cut two rows of stalks at a time and are adjustable for height above the ground.

The implement dealers said that a hitch could be built which would allow the operator to pull a disc behind the cutter, as is done by most Pecos Valley farmers with the conventional type of rolling stalk cutter, thus combining two operations in one.

The veteran farmers were impressed with the thoroughness with which the two machines broke the woody stalks into pieces which will decay rapidly when turned under and which will give less trouble with tangle when the land is worked with plow and subsoiler.

One thing that was striking was the amount of cotton lying on the ground after the power-driven cutters had cut the stalk—and with it the partly open bolls—into bits, veteran trainees said. It suggests a possibility of harvesting late or bolly cotton by picking it up from the ground instead of snapping bolls. One veteran remarked, "All you need is a vacuum sweeper to pick up a bale of cotton!"

The telegram asking that Puchett be held came from J. B. Hatcher, assistant director of the Georgia State Board of Correction, in which he said the man had left while serving a term for killing a Negro.

Puchett was picked up at Fourth and Texas Avenue here at 5:15 o'clock Saturday afternoon, Jan. 21 and he was fined $25 by Police Judge Arba Green Monday morning of last week. As Puchett did not have that much money, he was committed to the city jail to work out his fine.

Chief Westfall said Puchett has been an ideal prisoner and has been doing well work which has been assigned him.

Puchett told Artesia police he

Living Standards On Farms Below Level In Cities

The level of living of American farm families has risen considerably in recent years, but still is below that of city families as a whole, according to the Bureau of Agricultural Economics of the U.S. Department of Agriculture.

Farmer families have less cash to spend than city families, less farmland, and less access to adequate medical care, fewer household comforts and conveniences and less educational opportunities for their children.

If homes are rated by such facilities as running water, electric lights, bathrooms and modern installed cooking arrangements, farm homes rate only 30 per cent of the national average compared to 115 per cent of city and suburban homes. At least two-thirds of American farm homes were still without running water at the most recent count.

Physicians, dentists and hospitals tend to concentrate in cities. The city, the less its share of these health facilities. For each 100,000 people in most rural counties in 1940, there were only 29 physicians, eight dentists and 20 hospital beds. In contrast, most urban counties had 120 physicians, 64 dentists and 396 hospital beds for each 100,000 people.

As for education, in most rural counties only 8 per cent of the people of 25 years or older have completed high school compared to 27 per cent in most urban counties. A much larger share of the money spent on education goes to the city or suburban pupil than to the rural pupil. The expenditure for each pupil in rural areas is estimated at 52 per cent of the national average compared to 116 per cent for pupils living in or close to cities.

Kankakee, Ill. (AFPS) — Roy Smith of Detroit was halted by police as he arrived here. "Where's your wife?" they asked him. Pointing to the rear seat he answered, "Back there." The seat was empty. Smith's wife had been there when he stopped 30 miles away. But he didn't know she had gone to the rest room and so had driven off without her.

New Orleans (AFPS) — Persistence wins out. At least it did for James Graemes, a 40-year-old combat veteran who questioned 354 cab drivers in a successful search to find the blind poodle dog he had adopted in a French foxhole. He found that the dog had been taken from his parked station wagon by some seamen aboard a ship in the harbor. The poodle happily leaped into his master's arms during the reunion.

recipients of a duck, shot by a friend. As Mrs. Sweet was dressing it, out rolled five pieces of gold from the gizzard. The largest was as wide as the broad end of a toothpick and a quarter of an inch long. Her 87-year-old husband quipped, "All my life I wanted to discover gold. Reckon this is as close as we'll ever come. Sure would give a nugget to know where that duck came from."

MAYBE CHRIS DIDN'T DISCOVER AMERICA

Washington (AFPS) — Maybe Columbus didn't discover America after all. It could be that we have been misinformed on this point from early childhood.

At least Arlington H. Mallory, a 72-year-old Washington engineer, believes that Chris may have been as much as four or five hundred years late. As proof, Mallory points to archaeological evidence uncovered at Mound City National Park, Ohio, which he says proves that a flourishing iron age existed in America long before Columbus.

Pre-Columbus iron tools and other relics of the past, including iron-making furnaces of the kind used by Vikings in Europe, Greenland, Labrador and Newfoundland were found in the earth mounds of the Park. Analysis shows that the same iron-making

But bear this one thought in mind...

ONE of the grandest things about your Buick is the way you can ignore the season—chew your way through gravel and dust alike, splash through the wet stretches, snug and secure even on slippery pavements.

Rough road conditions call for special attention to your lubricants. Tires should be checked for correct inflation—for deep, clean tread that bites on slick surface. Brakes won't stop you with a soft and gentle touch if the master cylinder needs fluid, or if an air-bubble has worked itself into line. These things, and more, should be checked to keep your Buick at its best.

If that sounds like more than one thought to keep in mind—just drive into our shop and tell the man "LUBRICARE, please."

Our winter Lubricare treatment covers all these points—with specially trained mechanics following factory specifications as they go over your car from end to end.

Drive in this week, why don't you? The price is surprisingly low. The peace of mind is priceless.

Borthwick Still Serves Artesia From Roswell

Dr. N. M. Borthwick, veterinarian, whose ad appears on this page, is moving to Roswell, but he will continue to serve Artesia from his new City Animal Hospital at 711 North Virginia in Roswell.

Until this week, Dr. Borthwick has been operating the Artesia Animal Hospital in Artesia and has been practicing in this community a year and a half.

In order to continue to serve Artesia and the residents of this community, Dr. Borthwick will be in Artesia each Tuesday and will make his headquarters at the F. L. Wilson Feed & Farm Supply Store, 111 South Second Street.

He plans to be there from 8 o'clock to noon and from 1 to 4 o'clock in the afternoon on that day.

At his new City Animal Hospital in Roswell, Dr. Borthwick is equipped to care for 30 dogs or other small pets, whether they need hospitalization or are there merely as boarders while their masters are away on trips. In either case, they will have the very best of care and attention.

And Dr. Borthwick will continue to handle ranch supplies and vaccines from his new City Animal Hospital.

If your pet needs attention immediately, take it to the City Animal Hospital at 711 North Virginia in Roswell. Or if there is no emergency, take it to the F. L. Wilson Feed & Farm Supply Store, 111 South Second Street in Artesia, on Tuesday morning or afternoon, where Dr. Borthwick will make an examination and confer with you. If hospitalization is indicated, he will so advise. Or if it is a matter of less importance, he will treat the pet while he is in Artesia.

What To Do With Diverted Acreage Is Big Problem

What farmers do with diverted acres—the land taken out of allotment crops—may well determine future margins of profit or loss and the prosperity of agriculture as a whole, says W. Leslie Martin of Artesia, chairman of the New Mexico PMA Committee.

The chairman points out that if these acres are seeded to crops that are now in plentiful supply, it can only result in surpluses of these crops. To illustrate, he points out that farmers who cut their wheat acreage to keep within the wheat allotment and then put the land taken out of wheat into barley, the result will be a surplus of barley.

The same holds true of grain sorghums. Any significant shift of acreage to grain sorghum production could easily result in a flooded market, insufficient storage and a real surplus problem.

And to leave the land idle is no solution, says the chairman, for this creates new problems. Unproductive land is an erosion hazard both from wind and water. Erosion started on idle land may cut back into the remainder of the farm. Not only is the income from this land cut off but the land itself becomes less valuable each year. Uncontrolled weeds go to seed and spread to other parts of the farm.

To disregard acreage allotments also is no solution to the problem. The farmer who does this is not fair to the others who co-operate. If enough farmers disregard acreage programs, surpluses continue to pile up, land is wasted and price support efforts must eventually break down. That is why eligibility for price supports depends on seedings within the allotment, the chairman explains.

The only safe out, says the chairman, is to put diverted acres to work growing grass and legumes for seed and feed. Then the farmer is protecting his land and providing for a future income. Price supports for needed legume and grass seed and conservation payments for seeding land to grasses and legumes are Production and Marketing Administration program operations to help farmers accomplish these objectives, the chairman explains.

makes waste." And Vincent John Donegan recently learned that a hasty decision can be wasteful, especially if you aren't good at arithmetic.

When a county judge found him guilty of an assault charge, he gave the defendant his choice of 30 days in jail or a $250 fine.

"I'll take the fine, Donegan spoke up hastily.

Then he discovered he didn't have enough money, so the judge sent him to jail to serve out the equivalent—not 30 days, but 90 days.

A $250 fine equals 90 days in jail.

An eager but vastly disappointed group of young men is stranded in upstate New York, their bodies at Lake Placid but their hearts and their hopes—and their bobsleds—in Italy. They are the bobsledders who won the world championship a year ago but haven't the money for the defense of their title at Cortina in the Italian Alps. They'll have to let the crown go by default unless they can get $3,000. A committee is working hard on this now.

The plight of these daring young men comes as something of a shock. Nothing quite like it has ever happened before. The common people have moved in on what was once exclusively a rich man's pastime. Stan Benham, driver of the winning four-man sled last year, is the fire chief at Lake Placid; Pat Martin is a mechanic; Jim Atkinson is a hotel clerk and Bill Casey an ironworker. None of them sounds—or is—independently wealthy.

In the old days the American competitors at world bobsled championships were such men as Billy Fiske, Jay O'Brien, Alexis Thompson and the Stevens brothers. The wolf never bothered to wait at any of their doorsteps, he'd have starved to death.

The big change came in 1932 when the Olympic run was constructed at Lake Placid, the first bobsled slide on this continent. The homebreds promptly fell in love with a sport that has always been a flirtation with death.

Fellows from the Placid, Saranac and Adirondack region checked their life insurance policies to make sure no premiums had lapsed and then went rocketing down that treacherous river of ice at a better than mile-a-minute clip.

The local lads never quite said it but a reporter could sense their thoughts. Fiske and the rest of those rich blokes might be all right on the European hills, but Fiske

GEORGE T. HARRIS

Candidate for the Office

DISTRICT JUDGE

(Division 2)

Fifth Judicial District

Democratic Primary

June 6, 1950

In announcing my candidacy to succeed myself as your District Judge of the Second Division, it is my hope that I have merited your confidence in that office; and I earnestly solicit your support in the coming primary election. It is my desire to personally meet all the people of the District and I shall contact as many as I possibly can, without neglecting the work of the court. I feel however, that you appreciate with me the crowded condition of our dockets which made the Second Judgeship necessary; that such congestion, particularly as to jury trials, has not yet been fully relieved; and that my first duty to you is the prompt dispatch, without delay or neglect, of pending district court business. In due time I expect to meet each of you, in the meantime, until our dockets are clear, please bear with me.

—Paid Political Adv.

had no chance of repeating his 1928 Olympic victory at Placid—they thought.

The shock to their self esteem was tremendous when the nervy Fiske and his equally nervy mates negotiated the satanic twists of the sheer ice walls at Whiteface and Shady Corner as well as wicked Zig-Zag in faster time than the natives. He won the eternal deep respect and admiration of the Placid folk. Deep was their grief when Billy was shot down piloting a Royal Air Force plane. The most prized award in bobsledding aptly bears the name—the Fiske Memorial Trophy.

However, the money-in-the-bank boys have now pretty well departed from the scene. Not only is the Benham team stranded on the wrong side of the Atlantic without funds, but a crack bobble pair of Fred Fortune, a workshop foreman, and Bill d'Amica, a bartender, is also stuck. All six of them are willing to sacrifice earnings from their jobs in order to represent the United States in Italy, but they just can't afford to pay out an extra $3,000 for transportation.

The sleds already are overseas, shipped across last month on the Saturnia—because it was cheaper that way.
