PUBLISHED EVERY FRIDAY IN THE INTEREST OF SLATON AND SLATONITES.

Slaton, Lubbock County, Texas. Friday, November 22, 1929.

Number 16.

Members are Signed up Here In Legion Post

Twenty-five members for 1930 signed up by the local American Legion Post during the membership sign which ended last Monday, it was announced by D. E. Kemp, post commander, and L. A. Wilson, post secretary. This is the largest membership the Slaton post has ever had. It was organized three years ago.

With the larger membership, a more active and more successful work is now in prospect for the officers said this week.

Post's next regular meeting will be held at the Slaton Clubhouse Friday night, Nov. 29, and all members are urged to be present at that time, it is announced.

Antelopes - - Tigers Which?

Today, November 22nd, is the day, the place, and the Antelopes and Tigers will clash again for supremacy, both teams have lost but one game apiece, this meeting will be well worth the price of admission. It is expected as to the winner. Of course, we are looking for the Tigers to stage a fine clean game, and we expect winning, while a material loss has taken place, as the executive committee in their meeting at Slaton last Saturday, placed Post in the running, in a decision handed down, that the winner of the Rallies game should meet Lamesa, undefeated.

It is expected Post out of her meet with Slaton; just too bad all around, but we hope that we have the last say in being good sports, we naturally like the medicine administered.

Well, what of it, we are going to get a 1,000 strong and set the record. The train is ordered, we'll have a fine time, we are sure Post will welcome us with open arms even though we come home with the long tail; they have a good bunch of sports there; so has Slaton. Well, change your linen, leave all at home, be on your good behavior, but before you go, get out in back yard and root (not as a hog), cheer and get your lungs filled, for we are going to support that Tiger to the limit, and you all must support. Sure, we will have a going and coming and while

Santa Fe will see we are well cared of on that special train. Well, the price is only six bits for a round trip, beg or borrow the money, be there and sing, "Hail, Hail, Santa Fe is all here."

at "Blow Out" At Club House

business men of Slaton, not only for the many good things they have done, saw fit to invite to a feed. They came in droves with Coach Wright and Supt. and the other pedagogues from high school. This all happened last night. While it was strictly a affair, it was enjoyable, may next time we can have the squad. The token for this occasion, presented to each member in the Coach, were selected green and what was supposed to be mint candy.

A happy occasion was presided by the vaude-villians Walter and Bill Smith, of Santa Fe the Doctors Overton and Payne. are known also as the Four men of Slaton, and you just can't miss one of them.

When they took the muzzles off football gang, you should have seen the turkey fly; if they keep this surely pity Post, for there will be a post left.

Mr. Garland, the big football player, wanted to sing, but they would not let him, so Chick blew the horn and said we will win. We are delighted to have our footballers; we will have them. Everybody made a touchdown, and the curtain was drawn on the football game. Each fellow there was with the best football player in the South Plains. Sure, we will meet you.

Prizes Posted on Best Decorations
For Yule Season

Two cash prizes of $25 each, one for the business district and one for the residence section of Slaton, have been posted by the Slaton State Bank for the best Christmas decorations to be displayed in front of business houses and in front of individual residences here during the pre-Christmas season, beginning Dec. 15 and ending at Christmas.

The local Chamber of Commerce has been requested to have charge of the contest, furnishing judges to pick the prize winners.

Exterior attractiveness of each individual business house and of each individual residence is the aim in view, and by accomplishing this purpose the city will be converted into a very beautiful Christmas scene during the pre-Season days and up to and including Christmas-time.

The plan is calculated to prove very valuable as a civic feature, drawing wide attention from all over this section of the country, increasing interest in the approaching Christmas season and heightening the joy with which people will enter into the spirit of the Yuletide.

Those wishing additional information with reference to how they should proceed in decorating the exterior of their residences or places of business in order to compete for the prizes, may secure such information at the Chamber of Commerce office.

Already, the American Legion has started a movement to place Christmas trees in front of all the business houses of the city, and this will be the initial step in making Slaton the most attractive Christmas shopping center on the South Plains, it is believed.

Judging in the contest will be held on Dec. 24.

Ginnings Here
Now 5,236 for Present Season

Slaton's six cotton gins have received 5,236 bales this season when a total was compiled last Saturday. This was a gain of 194 bales over the previous Saturday's report. The slow progress for that week was accounted for by the cold weather.

Gins at Posey, Union and McClung have received about 3,000 bales so far.

It is estimated that the Slaton gins will get a total of 7,000 bales by the time the ginning period closes.

Weather conditions for harvesting have not been favorable during the past month.

Formal Opening of Hospital
To Be Held Next Wednesday

New $125,000 Building Virtually Complete; One of Finest Institutions in Southwest; Many Visitors Expected.

Formal opening of Slaton's new sanitarium, the Mercy Hospital, will be held here next Wednesday, Nov. 27, it is officially announced. The program will begin in the morning, continuing again in the afternoon, and visitors will be permitted to inspect the new building through the day.

The hospital building is a four-story, strictly fireproof structure, costing $125,000. Work on the building is practically complete now, and virtually all the equipment and furnishings are in place.

Construction started last April. The general building contract was held by the Brennan company, of Amarillo. That firm has been in complete charge of erecting the building. Joe Brennan, of the Brennan company, has been on the ground personally a large part of the time. Fred Koch, of Dallas, a Brennan company employee, superintended the entire job. Including equipment and furnishings, the investment reaches approximately $200,000.

The site for the building and a large cash bonus were given by the people of Slaton and surrounding community to secure the hospital's location here. The Slaton Chamber of Commerce conducted the campaign to raise and collect the bonus funds.

Seventy patients can be accommodated by the hospital, and all equipment is of the most modern type. The institution will be one of the finest and most complete in the entire Southwest. It will be owned and operated by the Sisters of Mercy, a national Catholic charity organization.

Literally hundreds of people from all parts of the South Plains region are expected to attend the formal opening next Wednesday, if weather conditions will permit.

This decision was reached at the football team's banquet held at the Slaton Clubhouse. The seventeen men making the guarantee were: W. H. Smith, W. B. Hestand, H. G. Sanders, L. T. Garland, Carl W. George, J. H. Brewer, T. A. Worley, Jr., Dr. M. C. Overton, Jr., O. Z. Ball, A. J. Payne, J. E. Roderick, Dr. W. E. Payne, J. S. Tekell, L. A. Wilson, J. M. Simmons, Tom Abel, and J. A. Elliott.

James W. Good, Secretary of War in the present administration, after a valiant battle for life, passed away Monday night at Walter Reed hospital.

Mr. Good was a representative from Iowa for several years, and was well thought of and liked by his associates. Speculation as to his successor indicates that Patrick J. Hurley of Oklahoma, may receive the appointment. Mr. Hurley is the present Assistant Secretary of War. He saw much service overseas, and is a mighty fine

Mrs. Parchman Wins
Bedroom Suite

Mrs. W. T. Parchman was awarded the lovely bedroom suite which was given away Saturday, November 16th, concluding a month's furniture sale conducted by the Burks Furniture and Undertaking Company.

The drawing was held in front of the store on Texas Avenue at 4 o'clock Saturday afternoon with a large number present.

The first ticket drawn was number 2853, but the person holding that number was not present and a second drawing was necessary. A little girl from among the crowd was chosen to do the drawing.

The bedroom suite awarded was made of African walnut and trimmed in zebra-wood. The suite retailed at $175. Everyone making a dollar purchase during the sale received a chance on the suite. This caused much enthusiasm and interest to prevail at the drawing.

Former Slaton
Youth Killed Last
Sunday, 6 p. m.

Charles F. Lanham, son of Mr. and Mrs. F. H. Lanham of Midland, was killed on a Brewster county ranch, 65 miles from Marathon, Sunday afternoon about six o'clock, when his gun was accidentally discharged.

Young Lanham had left Midland Saturday afternoon in company with Roy Long of Midland and William Starr, of Alpine, for a two months hunting and trapping trip. At the time of the fatal accident the boys had sighted a coyote and Lanham ran to the back of the automobile when the accident occurred, the discharge hitting him in the breast. He spoke only a few words before falling, and died immediately.

The deceased, who was 18 years of age at the time of his death, made his home in Slaton with his parents for five years until about a year and a half ago when the family moved to Midland.

Lanham finished Buckeye High School in Arizona in 1928 and since that time has been employed in a grocery firm in Midland until the day previous to his death.

Funeral services were held Tuesday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock, from the family residence in Midland, with interment following in the Midland cemetery.

He is survived by his parents, one sister, Stella Mae and three brothers, W. S. F. H., Jr., and Wayne Johnson.

James Lanham, a cousin of the accident victim, left Slaton Monday morning upon receipt of a message stating the tragedy. He returned Tuesday evening.

Poultry Show to Solicit Funds to Finance Expenses

Funds to meet expenses of holding Slaton's fourth annual poultry show, which will be held here on Dec. 5, 6 and 7, will be solicited during the next few days, according to officers of the Poultry Association.

This will be the first time in two years that a general campaign for financing the show has been necessary. Last year it was necessary to raise only about 100 to finish paying off the accounts of the show held last December.

It is estimated by the Poultry Association committee that between $350 and $400 will be needed to pay all expenses this year, and this amount is to be raised by subscription.

Officials of the poultry association have called attention to the fact that merchants were not called upon to buy advertising space in the poultry catalog, the catalog being printed without any advertising, and this has effected a considerable saving. It is therefore believed likely that all business interests of the city will join solidly and willingly in contributing their shares to the fund that is needed, with the assurance that they will not be called upon to buy advertising space in the catalog, also.

A committee will be busy next week raising the expense fund, and officers of the poultry association said yesterday that they will appreciate the co-operation of the business men in raising the fund as quickly as possible.

The funds will be used to pay premiums offered on poultry that will be shown during the three-day exhibition, and to meet other miscellaneous expenses connected with holding the show which has grown to be one of the largest poultry shows in West Texas, attracting birds from all parts of the Plains-Panhandle country.

Season's First Snow
Fell Here Last Week

The first snow of the 1929 winter season fell in Slaton early last Friday morning. Snow fell again Saturday, but in both instances the fall was very light, not covering the ground, and it melted quickly. The snow followed three days of the coldest weather this section had experienced this fall.

County Election
On Road Bonds is Set for Dec. 17

Lubbock County will vote on a bond issue for $991,000 to pave three highways through the county, the election having been called last Friday by the Commissioner's Court to be held on Tuesday, Dec. 17. Highways Nos. 7, 9 and 53 would be paved entirely through the county, if the issue carries.

The call of the election was passed by the Commissioners Court after a compromise agreement was reached between representatives of Lubbock and of Slaton, both cities declaring their willingness to support the bond issue for the three main highways of the county, excluding the road from Lubbock toward the Hockley county line on the west. If that highway is paved, it will be provided for under a later bond issue. In the meantime, Slaton will seek to secure state designation on the road from Tahoka to Wilson and on through Slaton and connecting with Highway 53 north of Slaton. When that designation is secured, bonds for paving it, together with bonds for paving the road west from Lubbock toward Levelland, would be voted at a second election, it was agreed when the compromise was effected. The Lubbock County Good Road association passed a resolution favoring the paving of the north-south road through Slaton when it is designated as a state highway, and also adopted a resolution pledging Lubbock's support in Slaton's effort to secure such designation.

Throughout the county, reports of rejoicing have been heard since the compromise was agreed upon, and general sentiment seems to predict that the issue will be carried. Expressions from local people have been decidedly favorable for the bond issue, and it is believed Slaton will give the issue a large majority when the election is held on Dec. 17.

Slaton was represented last week, in the meetings when the compromise was made, by Commissioner J. T. Pinkston, J. H. Brewer, chairman of the Slaton highway committee; L. A. Wilson, J. T. Overby, P. G. Stokes and other local men who fought for a square deal for this section of the county—and won.

The election will be the third attempt of the county to vote road bonds, two former elections having been defeated on Dec. 1, 1928, and Jan. 12, 1929.

If the present issue carries, state and federal aid will be received for paving all of the roads included in the bond issue, except the road leading southwest from Lubbock toward Brownfield, and state aid will be available for that road. It is not a federal highway at this time, however. All other roads included are both state and federal roads, the county paying only one-third of the cost of paving. The county would pay half the cost of paving the road from Lubbock toward Brownfield, and the state would pay half.

Rotarians Will Discuss Benefits
Paved Highways

At the luncheon meeting of the Slaton Rotary Club this Friday, a discussion will be held on the subject, "Would Hard-Surfaced Roads be a Profitable Financial Investment for Lubbock County?" C. C. Hoffman, Jr., and J. Tom Overby will take the affirmative side of the question, and Walter B. Hestand and Tom A. Worley, Jr., will defend the negative side. A lively discussion will be heard, it is expected. The timeliness of the subject, although not known when the program was arranged, is evident when it is remembered that the county road bond issue will be voted on Dec. 17.

L. T. Green will also be a speaker at Friday's meeting, discussing the third object of Rotary in a four-minute talk.

The luncheon will be held at 11:30 instead of at 12:15, in order to allow all members plenty of time to prepare for the trip to Post on the football special train, which leaves here at 12:45 p. m., it was announced by W. H. (Bill) Smith, club president.

CHARLES BROADWAY ROUSS, INC., RETIRE FROM WHOLESALE FIELD

The decision of Charles Broadway Rouss, Inc., to retire from the wholesale field after a half century of leadership, and to devote its efforts hereafter, in conjunction with the Acorn Stores, Inc., to the chain store field, will be regarded with interest throughout the country. As an important sequence to this action the general public will, in the future, be recipients of a comprehensive service such as can be rendered only by an old and well-established organization of this type.

The managing structure of the company has been further strengthened by the election of new directors, and the complete board now contains such outstanding business men as Peter W. Rouss, Chairman; George J. Patterson, President of the Scranton and Lehigh Coal Co., Brooklyn; Leonard J. Buck, President of Leonard J. Buck, Inc.; F. C. Nicodemus, Jr., of Pierce & Greer, and E. J. Quintal, of the Equitable Trust Co. Associated with these men in the active management of both companies, as heretofore, will be L. J. Botting, Vice President and General Manager.

It would be rather trite at this time to review the career of Charles Broadway Rouss, Inc.; but suffice it to say there never has been a better known nor more respected wholesale house in the country. The decision of this company henceforth to devote its entire efforts to retail merchandising, removes from the wholesale field, one of its leading representatives; but the general public will gain from the fine merchandising principles practiced by Charles Broadway Rouss, Inc., and the Acorn Stores, Inc.—National Business Review.

ONE SHEEP—ONE SUIT.

Back in 1840 the average weight of fleece sheared from American sheep was less than two pounds. By 1900 it had been increased to nearly 5½ pounds. Today it is approaching eight pounds.

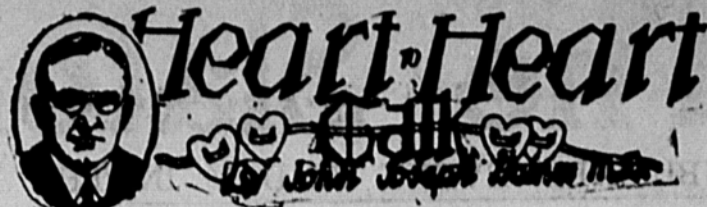

In other words, an average sheep is now shearing enough wool each year to make approximately one suit of clothes. In 1840 it took the wool of four sheep to make a suit of equal weight and quality.—Oklahoma Farmer-Stockman, November 15.

What have I done, and, what am I doing to make people love and respect me? Am I doing anything, consciously or unconsciously to make them dislike or hate me? I am in daily contact with folks—droves of them; they are going to think of me one way or the other. Even if they regard me with indifference, that is of no benefit to me. I'd rather their opinions of me were good, and, it is wholly with me whether they are.

Nobody loves a human hog—the sort that lives solely for himself. I've seen them, so have you.

The human hog roots strictly for himself; he knows no Sunday. Seven full days per week he toils—ever looking down at his sordid pilt; he never looks toward the blue heavens. He serves one god—the golden calf—and never for a moment takes his eyes off it; for him, there is no security or safety in any other sort of God.

Let misfortune touch him on the pocket-book, and he crumples like a leaf. When his god shatters, as all earthly things must shatter, he is wrecked morally, physically, and, spiritually—if a hog has a spirit. He hasn't the true and spendid manhood to rise above the ruin of his broken idols.

Am I a human hog? Are you? The answer is—No! Need I ask why? For one thing, good people don't cast pearls before swine, lest the beasts turn upon them and rend them. Just why any sane being can adopt the tactics of the hog and live only for his own greedy self, has always been a mystery to me.

The human hog never sees the error of his way. And, he wonders why people don't feel sorry for him when his boat capsizes. He is willing to accept what the best people have, but he has nothing to give in exchange. His superb selfishness blinds him as it leads him slowly to destruction. If he could find fault with himself he would not be a human hog.

What Will you do

When your Children Cry for It

There is hardly a household that hasn't heard of Castoria! At least five million mothers use it every day. If there are children in your family, there's almost sure to be a box of it. And any night when your baby is crying, there's a good chance that a little Castoria will do the trick. Just a few drops, and the colic or constipation is relieved. It's a vegetable product. A vegetable product, a baby remedy meant for young children. Castoria is about the only thing that has been heard of by doctors and mothers alike. Stronger medicines are given to a tiny baby, however, but they may be to grown-ups. Remember the name, Castoria. It's a name to buy it. It may save your baby from a restless, anxious night. It is always safe to use; in fact, it's for everyday ailments. The day or night that Baby cries, or restless, Castoria was made for mothers, and it's the regular with mothers than it is with druggists has it.

Announcing

a revolutionizing Motor Oil, a new principle and a Challenge

the Challenge

Several years ago, the exclusive North American patent rights on the Germ Process were acquired by this Company. It was evolved and patented by two British scientists after exhaustive chemical and physical laboratory tests.

Germ Process oils were revolutionary in that they met every requirement, through special characteristics, for each type of internal combustion motor. These scientists, by the Germ Process, eradicated the prevalent weaknesses existent in motor oils regardless of their base.

This Company has made innumerable laboratory and road tests, under every conceivable condition, over the past seven years, and we are now prepared to state definitely that your motor oil problem is solved by the Germ-Processed Motor Oils.

By comparison, our tests prove that the "Germ Essence" creates the only safe motor oil under all conditions and at all times operates at the highest obtainable efficiency.

We are now prepared to meet any challenge of competitors. I confidently believe that Conoco Germ-Processed Paraffin Base Motor Oils are superior to any other motor oils made from any crude by any process.

More than twenty thousand outlets are now prepared to offer to the public such a motor oil for the discriminating buyer, and for a technical problem which has always been recognized but not solved until now.

J. M. Brown President,
CONTINENTAL OIL COMPANY

Here are our Claims for Conoco Germ-Processed Motor Oil— Check against the oil you are now using

1 Under the Germ patents . . . exclusive to CONOCO for North America . . . there is imparted to CONOCO Germ-Processed Motor Oil an "oiliness" which is responsible for its greater lubricating value, greater film strength, greater penetrativeness, greater adhesiveness, greater tenacity, greater permanence, greater stability, greater stamina and a more nearly perfect compression seal than any other oil on the American market. Because of this affinity for metal—this actually combining with the metal itself, CONOCO Germ-Processed Motor Oil never leaves the bearings. Where other oils drain out and leave the surface dry, Germ-Processed oil penetrates the metal surfaces, forming a film that adheres for months. This "carry-over" film—this always present film gives ample lubrication to all parts needing it when a cold motor is started, until such time as oil from the crank case can reach them.

2 This remarkable and exclusive feature of CONOCO Germ-Processed Motor Oil is reinforced by the fact that these oils are refined from only carefully selected paraffin base crudes by the most modern and scientific methods known to the petroleum technologist. Patented processes are used to remove all objectionable elements, leaving a perfectly balanced, stable product that is 100% lubricating oil. Thousands of tests demonstrate its remarkable resistance to corrosion.

The majority of motor oils never receive this degree of refining. None ever exceed it.

3 Increased gasoline mileage and improved motor performance are realized through the use of this new oil. The exclusive CONOCO Germ Process so adds to the "oiliness" of this lubricant that metal-against-metal friction is eliminated, even in motor starting after all oil ordinarily would have drained from the motor into the crankcase. The perfect sealing qualities of the CONOCO fracture-proof film insures a high compression efficiency that results in greatly increased motor performance. Marked improvements in power, speed, acceleration and flexibility are noticeable.

4 Due to the Germ Process and the select, premium, paraffin base crude stocks used, CONOCO Germ-Processed Motor Oil positively does not break down under the most intense cylinder wall heat. A climb, high speed, heavy load, temperature extremes—none of these strains cause this oil to heat sufficiently to actually burn, break down or evaporate to any appreciable degree. By comparison with many oils on the market, you may confidently expect a saving in oil consumption up to 50%.

5 Automotive engineers agree that 40% to 60% of all motor wear occurs during the starting period. This destructive wear is definitely reduced by the use of CONOCO Germ-Processed Motor Oil. Ordinary oil, thinned by heat and dilution, drains down past the piston rings when the motor is stopped, leaving little or no protective film. On starting the motor, a considerable time is required for the oil to reach all bearings and working surfaces. Under adverse conditions, such as winter temperatures, this time may be from 15 to 20 minutes or even longer.

Since CONOCO Germ-Processed Motor Oil never leaves the bearings and working surfaces, it is always there under any and all conditions to provide needed lubrication until the normal supply of oil arrives.

6 Unlike other oils, dilution does not impair the "oiliness" value of CONOCO Germ-Processed Motor Oil.

7 CONOCO Germ-Processed Motor Oil retains its fluidity at sub-zero temperatures. No practical operating conditions in winter will affect its immediate lubricating value at the first touch of the electric starter.

Synopsis

What Happened Before

At a party in Palm Beach given by Mr. Cooper Clary, Leeson, an attorney, meets Lucy Harkness, known as Devil-May-Care because of her adventurous, eventful life. In a game in which partners for the evening are chosen, Lucy is won by Tim Stevens, who has a great reputation as a successful heart-breaker. Leeson is a bit jealous. Tim Stevens tells Lucy they are going aboard his boat, the Minerva, and she accedes in order not to be "a quitter". Asked if she is sorry that he won her company, Lucy says she is not and that evidently Fate has arranged it. Tim thereupon tells her to stop looking regretfully after Leeson.

Aboard Stevens' boat, the Minerva, Stevens tells Lucy of his love. When she replies with contempt for him, he grows violently angry and she becomes afraid of him. He says he will never let her go from the Minerva until she accepts him. To escape him, she leaps into the water from her cabin window, swimming a short distance under water.

Lucy reaches land and meets Dr. Fergus Faunce on an island. He takes care of her and takes her home. Everyone is worried about her, and when she meets Stevens he is frantic, regretful and still ardent in protestations of love.

Leeson informs Lucy that Stevens must raise a quarter of a million dollars or go to jail—"at five o'clock". Lucy goes to her bank and raises the sum.

Now Go On With The Story.

Half an hour later her chair paused before the gate of Stevens' place, out beyond Vita Serena, in southern Palm Beach. He was in his garden, at a table on which lay something that looked like a check-book. He was writing in it, but looked up as Lucy approached, and waved away the colored servant who had admitted her. He rose and started at her.

He had shaved, had donned fresh flannels, a colored shirt, and a gay tie. He could wear clothes, she inconspicuously thought, better than any man she had ever seen.

"This is a surprise," he said. She made no reply, but opened the satchel and dumped the money upon the table.

"What's it all about?" he asked. "To save you from jail," she replied. His eyes puckered, and a tiny crease appeared between them.

"Jail?" he echoed. "Mr. Leeson has seen me. He told me that the man who wanted to marry me was a thief. Perhaps, Tim, one reason you professed such great devotion was because of what money I possess."

She was looking right at him, but his eyes never flickered. His hand moved toward the check-book; he swept a piece of paper from it and tore it into tiny bits.

"Perhaps," he agreed calmly, "But . . . inasmuch as I'm not to marry you, I'd hardly take your money."

There was a hard finality in his voice. "Not even to keep out of jail?" she demanded. "You're a shade better than I thought."

He bowed. "Many thanks." She bit her lip. "But Mr. Leeson said you'd be arrested this afternoon."

He bowed again. "Great little man—Leeson."

"I can't let you go to jail," she cried helplessly.

"And I couldn't take your money," he said.

"Then," she said slowly, "as I can't let you go to jail—"

"Why not?" he demanded. "Is it because, after all, you love me?"

"I hate you," she blazed. "That's why . . . you mustn't go to jail. You must take my money."

"You're a bit incomprehensible, Lucy," he told her. "You hate me; yet you'd save me. Well, I'd take money only from the woman I was married to, and I'd hate to take it from her."

"But you would?" she asked. He shrugged.

"To avoid jail, yes."

"Then," she said, "I'll have to marry you. To-day. Now!"

Had Diana, sojourning at Jupiter's palace on Olympus, slipped down the mountainside and in some wayside personage in Thessaly taken unto herself a husband, the scandal would have been comparable to the marriage of Devil-May-Care.

Apparently hurried weddings, among people nationally known, are bound to cause gossip. But neither he nor Lucy would have cared a whit for that. Had their marriage been one of equal love and trust, they would have been uninterested in the nasty speculations of nasty people.

But Lucy had left him. She had strolled out of his patio as unconcerned as though she had been having tea and was now on her way home to dress for dinner. Home! She had gone home!

Devil-May-Care she was called. Well, the insouciance that defied death itself could not defy Tim Stevens. He knew his rights and he would have them. He'd force—But he slumped back in the wicker chair that protested against his twisted bulk. He'd tried to force Lucy last night and she has chosen almost certain death in preference to himself. He might as well face the facts; he was no nearer Lucy than he was before the minister had read the marriage ceremony to them.

To marry a man who positively ravened for her, and then coolly deny

"And that reputation of yours which I have just mentioned?"

"Would be as unimportant as I have just indicated to you!" he laughed. "But your own reputation; that would be a thing not lightly to be smirched by any act, even though merely acquiescent, of mine."

"In other words, you'd leave me, lest scandal—"

He shook his head.

"No, I don't think so. You didn't come here lightly, my child. You did some thinking. I simply said I would not lightly smirch you. Let's hear your reasons."

"Suppose I choose to give none?"

"I sha'n't ask for them again. Sufficient unto the day is the Lucy thereof."

"Then I am evil?" She caught at his paraphrase.

"That was unfortunately put. Let me say that the Lord said, 'Let there be Lucy, and there was Lucy.'"

"That is better, much better," she said judiciously.

She lighted another cigarette, removed her hand from its abiding-place upon his knee. She puffed at it slowly.

herself . . . That, he thought, was the explanation. She had no intention of coming back to him, ever. But to have loaned, given him an incredible sum of money, to have married him in order to assure his acceptance of the money, to have installed in his heart the hope that, married, she would relent, would come to him . . . What exquisite torture was this?

CHAPTER III

South, along the Ocean Boulevard, Lucy bowed along in the little Ford. Somehow, the ocean that had seemed so grim and dour a few hours ago, now, in the gathering dusk, seemed gentle and inviting.

The path through the trees to the center of the island, where Faunce's cabin was located, was easily followed. In five minutes, she was upon the edge of the clearing, and her torch turned off, was standing gazing at the porch of the cabin.

Before the cabin blazed a fire. It had extended beyond the confines of the fireplace, and was, quite evidently not for purposes of cooking, but for purposes of cheerful companionship and perhaps warmth. The resinous pine logs roared and cracked, and threw a fierce light upon the face of Fergus Faunce, who sat upon his porch.

"Who's that?" he called.

"It's Lucy Harkness," she said.

"I wonder," he said, still seated in his chair, "if our thoughts evoke our friends, or if the approach of our friends evoke our thoughts. Or has the tropic moon, which has just peered over the palms, brought delightful madness to me?"

She stared at the tropic moon which now had gloriously risen. She saw, silhouetted, the lacy outlines of the palms and the pines. She could hear the eternal rustle of the trees, as the pines kissed the palms, and the palms returned the caress. Little intimate noises came from the jungle, as though the night whispered secrets hidden from the day. Afar, the wild surf wooed the sand . . . And the glory, the unutterable glory of the Florida stars . . .

"Where shall I begin?" she asked suddenly.

"Where it suits you; or nowhere," he replied.

"I'm in trouble," she said.

"Of course," he said.

"Why of course?" she demanded.

"All people are in trouble, always. They may not know it, but the fact remains."

"Well, I know it, and—Suppose I just wanted to stay here—oh, for as long as I chose, Fergus Faunce."

"Then here you should remain," he stated flatly.

"Were you ever a damn fool, Fergus Faunce?" she asked.

"Yes," he replied.

"I'm glad of that," she said.

"Were you ever in a scandal, Fergus Faunce?"

"No," he replied.

"Would you mind, terribly, being in one?"

"Not particularly," he answered.

"Would it affect your practice?" she persisted.

"Not in the slightest. Patients come to me for my skill with a knife, not for my morals."

"I was married to-day," she said lazily.

She could feel his sudden rigidity. But his voice, when he spoke, was even and calm:

"Then, when I called you Lucy Harkness I called you out of your name."

"My name is Lucy Stevens," she said.

"Do I know the happy bridegroom?" he inquired.

"It was from his boat, last night, that I dived into the tide that swept me on your beach," she said.

"And, the usual obvious reason being obviously not accountable, in your case, for to-day's marriage, what did impel you to the act?"

"I hated him so," she murmured.

"Think of him, Fergus Faunce, a bridegroom minus a bride, wondering where on earth I am—"

"But you didn't do it just to play a trick upon him, Lucy," said the doctor.

"Fergus Faunce, I don't know why I did it!" she cried. "Can you tell me?"

"I'd rather not, just yet," he answered.

"Now, what do you mean by that?" she asked.

He waved the question aside.

"And what do you do next?" he asked.

"Next? It's a very sleepy Lucy who sits at your feet, Dr. Fergus Faunce. Probably I shall go to bed. I wonder, you who are willing to give life and reputation to me, what you will say if I demand your cabin?"

"It is yours already," he smiled.

"Frequently I sleep in a blanket by my fire; I love the stars, the moon, the waving branches—"

"Don't be poetical," she ordered.

"Get the scolding over with, Fergus Faunce."

She had turned and was looking up at him, and the rays of the moon illumined her features. Faunce thought he had never seen anything so elfinly beautiful as the face of this girl. Yet his smile was not even faintly tremulous.

"There will be no scolding, my child," he told her gently. "Of the Lucys man asks nothing save that they be. Do we scold the sun because it sulks and hides behind a cloud? Aren't we, rather, grateful for the hours it shines upon us? The Lucys come but once in a generation, my child, and we who meet them, who are privileged to know them, cannot censure, even."

"Fergus Faunce, why didn't I, the moment I saw you, love you?" wailed Lucy.

"I am not good enough for that, my dear," he told her.

"Too good!" she cried. "Aman like you—you do really love me? You really loved me the moment you saw me?"

"I adored you," he said simply.

"I knew it—knew it this morning," she said. "And if I were anything but a silly little fool, I'd have loved you. You're everything that I want to love, that I ought to love, that I need to love. Why don't I?"

He made no answer.

"I wonder if perhaps I will," she cried.

He shook his head.

"My dear, Love doesn't do what we want him to. But that you should want to love me—that lifts me above the rest of the world. Lucy Harkness—Lucy Stevens, it's time you want to bed."

Wrapped in the blankets, she could hear him moving outside. Somewhere in Palm Beach Tim Stevens was crazy, with anger, with worry. She smiled as she thought of Tim.

Never Spent Any Money That Gave Better Returns

"My Back Would Hurt Like it was Breaking in Two Before I Took Orgatone," Says Crosbyton Woman.

"I never spent a dollar in my life that brought better returns than when I bought my first bottle of Orgatone," declared Mrs. Madeline Grubaugh, of Crosbyton, Texas, while in the Bowsens Drug Store. "I never took any- thing in my life that did me near as much good and in so short a time as Orgatone has done.

"I suffered from indigestion, liver and kidney trouble," she continued, "and was in such a nervous run down condition, that I could hardly do my own work. I had sharp pains in my shoulders that would almost kill me, and felt like a knife sticking me in my back. I would roll and toss from one side of the bed to the other and back and forth all night long and would get so nervous, I just couldn't go to sleep and would get up in the morning feeling worse than when I went to bed.

"My food didn't agree with me, and didn't taste right and didn't nourish me any and I was so constipated I had to be constantly taking medicine. After eating, I would belch up my food sour and undigested and I had dizzy billious bloating spells, and gas formed on my stomach, and I just got to where I was afraid to eat anything for I would suffer so if I did.

"Some three weeks ago I started in taking Orgatone, and noticed right off it was improving my case, and I can work so much better and feel so much stronger I do all my own work. I don't feel tired and worn out as I did, and those terrible pains have left my back and shoulders. I'm not constipated and just sleep like a top every night. I eat with a relish and my food is giving me nourishment and strength and in fact, I honestly feel better than I have in twenty years. Orgatone has done more for me than anything else in those twenty long years, and I am glad to recommend it and know that it will help others."

Genuine Orgatone is not a so-called patent or secret remedy but a new scientific bile treatment containing no alcohol or other false stimulating drugs and is sold in Slaton by the Teague Drug Store who are direct laboratory agents.

LARGER TURKEY CROP THIS YEAR

This year's turkey crop will be about 9 per cent larger than production last year in leading producing States, according to estimates by the Bureau of Agricultural Economics, United States Department of Agriculture. Practically all leading States have increased production this year, but the larger increases are in the Eastern and Southeastern States where the crop has been small in recent years.

Production has increased this year in the Western States, but increases are less marked than in 1928. The bureau points out, however, that increases in the Western area go very largely into the commercial turkey supply so that increases there are likely to have a relatively greater effect on the turkeys market situation than are increases in other areas.

Weather conditions were fairly favorable for turkey raising over most of the country this year, and the adoption of better methods of handling turkeys and the commercial hatching and sale of young poults are in large part credited with the increased production. The condition of the young turkeys about October 1 as reported by growers was about average for that date, and the reports indicate a disposition in some States to push the finishing of the birds so as to have a larger than usual proportion ready by Thanksgiving. In some areas, a feed shortage and high prices

The Cost of Living and Electricity

According to the United States Bureau of Labor, the cost of living today is two and one-half times what it was in 1890. It is 70 per cent above what it was in 1913.

The cost of household electric service is one-third of what it was in 1890, and 25 per cent less than the average cost in 1913.

Any increase in the cost of living means an increase in the cost of labor and materials and in all other items of cost entering into the generation of electricity and its distribution to the switch on your wall.

In spite of this, and the constant demand for improvements and extensions of service, the electric light and power industry has actually been able to bring about a steady reduction of charges to its consumers.

"AIN'T IT A GRAND AND GLORIOUS FEELING."

That is when we get to riding on paved highways, and to think there is no break in the friendship existing over the county, with the various communities, villages, towns and cities, and that in time we are to vote bonds for paving Lubbock County Highways.

The get together meeting at Lubbock was fine in all the departments; Slaton's representatives are to be commended for helping to get the skein untangled, and now that we have the ball in shape let us all keep it moving, and work that Lubbock county will start getting out of the mud. We need the roads, every one needs them; the saving will be great, they will come eventually. Let us enjoy some portion of our lives in riding on paving, get together, and let Texas know that Slaton and Lubbock county are mighty progressive. The date has been set as Dec. 17th, for voting on this project. We must not fail this time, keep the date well in mind, get out, get your neighbor out on that day and vote for one of the greatest things Lubbock county could do for progress.

Oh, Boy! Lubbock county going to have paving! Well, who wouldn't smile, we are a progressive people out here on the Plains, watch us pave our roads.

WORLD PEACE.

With Armistice Day celebrations still ringing in our ears our thoughts turn to the subject of world peace and the inspiring address on the subject delivered by President Herbert Hoover, at the Legion Celebration held in Washington.

Many of our readers unquestionably heard his keen analysis of the problem and effective expression of a practical idealism. One thing he emphasized that bears repetition, the fact that international good will and trust is the one sure road to universal peace.

Distrust, fear, and hatred breed future wars regardless of the machinery set up for the amicable settlement of international disputes; while mutual trust, confidence, and friendship will make it possible for nations to settle their disputes without recourse to arms.

There are skeptics and pessimists, of course, who point to the present unsatisfactory condition of world adjustments, and assert that wars in the future are a certainty. But history shows that the skeptic is as likely to be in error as the unthinking optimist.

Back in the middle ages when every hill-top in Europe was crowded with the castle of some warlike baron who was engaged in almost incessant strife with his neighbors, here were optimists who dreamed of united nationalities. They looked forward to the day when there might be a united France, a united Italy, or England or Germany. There were then skeptics too, who called the dreams of the idealists impossible of realization, human nature being as it is.

But we know that united nationalities eventually came into existence.

The next step in humanity's advancement toward better and happier living is international friendship.

And who knows—perhaps that day is almost here, and are we too skeptical to believe it possible?

THE AMERICAN PACE.

America has long been known as the land of bustle and struggle. Foreigners say we move too fast. They go home to their own countries and remark that the American people wearing themselves out, that our business men toil too assiduously, that workmen are speeded up to too rapid production, and that premature declassification must result.

Not all of our people will assent to the accuracy of this description. He will point to many types of "Toms" who seemingly dawdle at "Them", and they allege that they are slow. To men made to conform to Had Diana, a slowest members of palace on Olympus mountain. And business men who personage in the "Them" links, to the self a husband, the play at some have been comparable to the folks flying hither and thither in their automobiles, to suggest that we do not overwork.

The American people have the nervous temperament, with its advantages and disadvantages. Plenty of individuals are slow and sluggish, but as a whole our people are keyed up to a more nervous pitch. This temperament makes it possible to think and act quickly. Their pace, compared with that of the old world, is naturally rapid. People of that type do not necessarily suffer if they work fairly fast.

The disadvantage of the nervous temperament, is that it cannot stand long continued strain. It will break quicker under pressure. The people who work fast cannot be driven for long hours. They must have their times of relaxation.

If people allow for this relaxation, they may get along perfectly well with this quick moving habit, and get a lot of work done without physical or nervous injury. In our haste to acquire money and have a good time, we should not push ourselves, nor push those who come under our direction, to the point of exhausting fatigue.

THANKSGIVING SPIRIT.

The American people do not observe Thanksgiving Day in the spirit of yore. Not many of them can be persuaded to attend church services. For the great majority, the occasion is nothing more than a big feast of eating and a pleasant family reunion. The eating end of it is fine if exercised with prudence. The family gathering is a splendid one, that should be cherished with all our hearts. It is a wonderful thing when we can draw together the members of our various clans, and when the children come back to the old family hearthstone. Good cheer is thereby brought to many homes that had become all too lonely.

The birds leave the nest at an early date nowadays, and the old ones are often left with a dull outlook on life. It means a great deal to them, when the young crowd come back and fill the silent home with their cheerful laughter and hopefulness.

It does people good after getting out in the world, to come into contact again with their home ties. They often thereby discover that they have drifted a good way from the standards that have made their family life fine and worthy. Going back to the old home and old circle, once more tends to keep their thoughts and conduct true and straight. While this renewal of family ties for Thanksgiving Day is thus an inspiring influence, it does not give us all that the true Thanksgiving spirit calls for. Our achieving people are too much inclined to feel that they accomplished all their results by their own unaided effort. But somehow back of it all there is a mysterious power and sustenance, and we owe something of gratitude and loyalty to it. Thanksgiving is a good time to entertain this feeling.

CO-EDUCATION PROBLEM THEME OF TALKING FILM

The problem of co-education and its effect upon youthful minds furnishes the appealing theme of Columbia's powerful all-talking drama of college life, "The College Coquette," which will be shown at the Palace Theatre on Saturday. The

SPELLS OF BACKACHE

"I HAVE used Cardui at intervals for sixteen years, when I suffered from weakness, and it always helped me," says Mrs. J. W. Jirright, R. F. D. 2, Troy, Ala.

"Mostly I was afflicted with bad spells of backache. At times I felt as if my back would break. I would drag one foot after the other, in a helpless sort of a way, and once I got down in bed. My husband urged me to take Cardui, and I soon found what a fine medicine it really was."

"When my second child was little, I was in very bad health. I did not pick up as I should have. I was weak and sickly. I do not believe that I would have come through, but for Cardui."

plot revolves around the adventures of two girls of widely different natures. One portrayed by Ruth Taylor, is coquettish, used to masculine companions and ever ready for a good time. She knows how to handle herself in any gathering and is always mistress of any situation. The other is of the clinging vine variety, delineated by Jobyna Raiston. She represents the girl who has been reared in a mid-victorian home under the rigid discipline of a stern mother, who does not believe in girls and boys mingling.

Both girls enter a co-educational institution. The results of the different environments and discipline furnish material for an intensely human drama of love and sacrifice. William Collier, Jr., and John Holland have the leading masculine roles.

CLEANER STREETS.

Dr. T. A. McIlroy.

Slaton has some pretty streets That run most every way,
And still they'd look much better To clean them every day.

The mud and rubbish that's on them And stays from day to day,
We could see the great improvement To clean them every day.

Each one of us in business With a small amount to pay,
Could have the trash cans emptied And cleaned up every day.

There's lots of men among us, That's wishing to hear us say
These dirty, unhealthy conditions Should be cleaned up every day.

Let the cost come from the city From the taxes that you pay,
Then have some man who needs A job to clean streets every day.

Now I merely drop this idea, And seems I can hear you say,
That's right, it won't cost very much Let's clean the streets every day.

THE HOLIDAY OF THE PIONEERS.

The holiday which we now celebrate as Thanksgiving Day owes its origin to the Pilgrim Fathers who settled at Plymouth, Massachusetts. But in a very true sense it stands for the courage and heroism and religious sentiment that have distinguished so many of our pioneers in Texas and elsewhere. Wherever these pioneers met the trials of frontier life with courage and worship of God, there the spirit of Thanksgiving Day was manifested.

Plymouth colony was founded by a little band of 102 pioneers, who faced the terrors of an unknown wilderness, of savage beasts and even more savage Indians, to obtain freedom to worship.

They landed on the wintry shores of New England at a most inopportune date, the 21st of December, 1620.

Their hardships through the cold weather were so great that 44 out of the 102 died within four months. But as summer came again with its promise of the future, and as they succeeded in raising some crops, their hopes rose. Their outlook even then was desperate enough. But the slight improvement was enough to fill their noble hearts with courage and thankfulness. They turned their eyes to heaven in gratitude, and observed the first Thanksgiving Day. In modern America, where we are freed from all perils that beset them when compared with primitive life, we have such a wealth of luxuries and pleasures, many of us find nothing to be thankful for. Let us look back on Thanksgiving Day with gratitude to the Source from which all blessings flow, and give a thought of recognition to the superb courage of the men and women who built up our country, and who performed deeds of heroism in all our states, to produce the comfort and happiness we enjoy today here in our beautiful city of Slaton.

AMERICAN RED CROSS STANDS FOR PROTECTION AND FOR CHARITY

The people who join the American Red Cross respond to two of the best impulses of human nature. The first of these impulses is the wise motive that leads us to protect ourselves and our families against want and suffering. When we join the Red Cross, we contribute to and ally ourselves with one of the country's greatest agencies for combatting suffering, distress and disease. We can never tell when we ourselves or members of our families may be involved in some dire calamity, in which the work of the Red Cross is the only adequate agency to ward off suffering and death. If we become involved in such troubles and are rescued from their worse effects by this superb agency, it will be a satisfaction to think that we have had some little share in making this work possible.

Also everyone of us here in Slaton gain some benefit from the educational and health work of the Red Cross. Its agencies are working all over the country to educate the people on the means by which disease is averted and health maintained. The promotion of these health measures makes our population less susceptible to the dangerous contagions which menace us all. But if our hearts shut themselves up to our own personal needs and perils, our life is too narrow and limited. We should look out on the world at large, and see how people are constantly being stricken down by calamity, and how often they are laid low by disease.

We should want to have some little share in relieving the various forms of distress caused by great disasters; we should be anxious to contribute to the aid of the war veterans, and eager to have some share in the noble educational work by which health education is promoted. All these generous ends we assist when we join the American Red Cross. How many members do we have in Slaton; we have not seen a card so far this year.

SANTA FE OFFICIALS VISIT SLATON

F. A. Lehman, General Manager of Eastern lines, with headquarters at Topeka, Kansas, passed through Slaton, Saturday, Nov. 6th, in his private car, No. 37, enroute to Sweetwater. W. E. Maxson, Asst. General Manager, headquarters at Galveston, Texas, with his special car, No. 10, enroute from Coast Lines, was on his way home.

Mr. Gillies, our Slaton Supt., has a new private business car. We are going to ask for a ride some day; bet we get it.

John E. Dyer, assistant to the General Manager, was an overnight visitor with Uncle George Marriott; he just cannot keep away from Slaton, Uncle George being a mighty fine host. Tuesday morning Uncle George took Mr. Dyer for an inspection of Slaton, and especially out to the new Mercy Hospital, which caused Mr. Dyer to state that it was one of the most complete structures that he had ever seen, and that the good people of Slaton should be proud of the erection of such an edifice in their midst, and wished those in charge all possible success.

SIMMONS UNIVERSITY TO HAVE HOMECOMING AT ABILENE ON THANKSGIVING

ABILENE.—The Homecoming of alumni and ex-students of Simmons University will be held here November 28, Thanksgiving, the date of the football game between the Simmons Cowboys and the Texas Tech Matadors. Plans are going forward, according to Mrs. Len Fawcett, alumni president, to make this eclipse any such occasion of the past.

A big, old time barbecue, the football game, class reunions, Cowgirl reunion, and Cowboy Band reunion, are to be the features of the day. Plans are being made to care for 10,000 spectators at the game. The barbecue is to be given at noon for all alumni and exes.

One thousand rooters are expected to come from Lubbock by special train and in cars to support the Matadors. The game will be called at 2:30.

Personal invitations are being sent out to 10,000 exes of Simmons and a response from at least 2,000 is expected, according to Mrs. Fawcett.

During the last three years in which they have played the Cowboys and the Matadors have each won a game and one has been tied. In 1926 the game ended in a 0-0 draw. In 1927 the Tech warriors won 10-6, and last year the Cowboys took the big end of the 19-0 score.

Prices of securities on the Stock Exchange are now from 30 to 50 per cent lower than they were a month ago.

The Federal Reserve Banks have reduced their rate of rediscount. Those events are the beginning of a period of economic readjustment in America.

For four years the prices of stocks have been running wild. Twenty-two million persons, Wall Street estimates, were infected with the delusion that money can be got, honestly without working for it. Now their money is in the hands of gentlemen who had no such delusions, and the losers are going back to work.

It is hard to sympathize with the amateur stock-market gambler even if he has lost his life's savings in speculating on margin. The same ones will do the same thing again when the next 'bull' movement starts. In the long run the realities of business, the actual earnings of industry, determine stock prices. The speculating public does not believe that and never will.

Charles (Buddy) Rogers and Nancy Carroll in the Paramount Picturization of Arthur Train's novel, "Illusion"

MISS CARROLL SAYS "BUDDY" BRINGS LUCK

Nancy Carroll is a daughter of Old Erin and like many others of them she is just a bit superstitious. She believes that some things bring good luck.

But the greatest embodiment of good luck for Nancy is in the person of Charles (Buddy) Rogers. She has played opposite Buddy in three pictures and each one of them, she is convinced, has brought her good luck.

A little more than a year ago she was cast in "Abie's Irish Rose". She proved to be the proper foil for the handsome youth just out of college. Next they played in "Close Harmony" together. As the result of this first all-talking picture or both of them, there were thousands of favorable criticisms and thousands of new Carroll and Rogers fans. This led to Nancy's being cast opposite Hal Skelly in "The Dance of Life," one of the biggest pictures of the year.

After that Miss Carroll and Buddy were cast as the featured players in "Illusion," which comes to the Palace Theatre for three days' run beginning next Tuesday. It was while they were filming this production that Paramount decided to raise the roguish, auburn-haired Nancy to stardom. You couldn't convince Nancy, now, that Buddy isn't worth more as a good luck charm than a bale of four leaf clovers.

Limestone County leads Texas in the number of farms, the Census Bureau showing 6,755 in 1925. Texas leads the states with 466,395 farms.

AN EVER-GROWING PROBLEM.

Automobile accident legislation fails to strike at the root of the problem. Liability insurance, which all should carry, indemnifies but cannot prevent accidents.

In most states driving laws are antiquated, inadequate and are laxly enforced. As a result incompetent and careless drivers crowd the public highways, an ever-present menace to the lives of all of us.

Licenses to operate a motor car are usually granted without examination, or without inquiry into the fitness of the applicant. Only a few of our states surround the issuance of licenses with any restrictions. The competent and incompetent, the reckless and careful, the law-breaking and the law-abiding, are treated alike.

It is no wonder that under such circumstances the accident toll continues to mount. We can never check this devastating record until our laws refuse the use of public highways to drivers who have been proven incompetent or chronically reckless.

to marry sweethearts. Thus the power of love pulls young people out of their homes and away from their friends, to cross 3000 miles of ocean and live in an unknown land. Many girls would not have the courage to do it.

These young people have the true pioneer spirit that built up our country. The venture is relatively easy now, as there are no wildernesses and Indians to conquer, though sometimes the newcomers have quite a task to fit into their new life. But any girl who comes over for this purpose is heartily welcomed.

World Trip on the Zep Given At East Ward

Last Friday evening, at 7:30 p. m., the East Ward Zeppelin was given a flight around the world, proved to be quite successful, interesting to the passengers. The first country visited was Old Mexico. In this country fourteen and boys dressed in the native dress of the Mexicans told the passengers something of the life of Mexico. Also something of the educational advantages of the country were displayed. These and girls sang a Spanish song—English, however. The visitors also demonstrated how the Mexican makes love to the Senorita hanging under her window on a moonlight night. The room was beautifully decorated with gaudy pictures bought in the Mexican market, including canes, lace work, rugs and many other things. There was also a real Mexican flag, pottery and baskets, and crackers were served to the guests. In Mexico the Zep flew to Africa. At the front of the room were seven black-faced children, sitting in a row, who entertained the Zep guests by singing verses of African songs. Apples were passed to the visitors and as they ate they were entertained by the black-faced children. Zep then flew to Japan, which was represented by the low first floor. The room was beautifully decorated with various Japanese articles such as umbrellas, fans, lanterns, wall hangings. There was a display of genuine Japanese articles including a tapestry table runner, a fan of embroidery, a parasol, a fan, two pictures as well as the Kimono worn by Mrs. Wallace, were purchased in Japanese shops. The program in this country consisted of a song and rhythm by ten boys in Japanese coolie dresses, a song, "Little Japanese" by five little girls wearing kimono, a reading of "Richasha" by Janie Rodgers, a "The Jap Plate" by Christine and a folk dance by twelve girls. Spiced tea and wafers were served to the Zep passengers. The fourth landing of the Zeppelin was in the land of Hawaii as represented by the low Second and high grades. Palms and flowers made the scene more real. The passengers were entertained first by a given by some of the students in the costumes and wreaths of Hawaii. Then Mr. and Mrs. B. E. played some real Hawaiian music on their Hawaiian guitars. Remnants of fruit salad and cheese were served. Zep then sailed from Hawaii to the land of wooden shoes. The room was represented by Dutch and girls dressed in blue, white, black suits with Dutch caps and wooden shoes. The room was decorated with windmills and tulips. "In the Shoes" was given by four little Dutch-dressed boys and girls, and beautiful reading, "Tulips," also a famous story, "The Leak in the Dam," and "Windmills of Holland," given. Refreshments of cheese, wafers and milk were served to the guests. From Holland the Zep went to the United States, which was represented by the high grade. The walls were decorated with gay Chinese characters and scenes and the Chinese flag of red and yellow. The exhibit included a unique tea set, dainty made Chinese luncheon set and things brought from China, including the Mandarin robe worn by George. The air was full of incense, typical of an oriental room. The Zep passengers landed in the United States they were given to be eaten with real chop sticks. The passengers were entertained by a program consisting of a song by Chinese boys and Japanese girls; singing and dance by boys; acrobatics by the Chinese, the Chinese acrobats and a motion song by little Chinese girls with umbrellas. These Chinese, clad in bright pajamas, with queues, some with parasols, fans made China quite realistic. America was the last country to be visited by the Zep, and this country was represented by the fifth grade. The room was decorated with flags of red, white and blue bunting. A scene of American history were presented which included the Indians, the coming of Columbus, then the Pilgrims and the settlement of the West which was represented by a boy who sang a cowboy song.

Uncle Sam was also present accompanied by Liberty. Chewing gum was served as a typical American habit. The program was an overwhelming success and the East Ward is to be complimented on such a delightful entertainment.

L. A. Wilson Talks To Commercial Club

The Commercial Club of Slaton High School met Monday, November 18th, and enjoyed an interesting talk by L. A. Wilson on "Choosing Your Vocation." The two main points stressed by Mr. Wilson were, do not let your vocation choose you and do not do anything that you are not talented to do. He stated that everyone must choose for themselves and do the thing that is best suited for them. The club thoroughly enjoyed Mr. Wilson's talk and have invited him to visit them again.

Slaton Glee Club Doing Good Work

One of the best organizations of Slaton High School is the Glee Club. In this club, music, a very beneficial factor, is taught. This will enable the members of the club to read music and will save them embarrassment in their later life if they are called upon to sing. Although some of our members cannot attend all of the time, we are doing good work and are going to render some good programs to the community of Slaton.

The Fine Arts teachers of Slaton and Lubbock are exchanging programs. The Slaton teachers plan to take a program to Lubbock at an early date. The public has a cordial invitation to attend.

Children Almost Hate Cross, Nervous Mother

"My children almost hated me, I was so cross. Thanks to Vinol, my nervousness is all gone and we are happy again."—Mrs. T. Johnstone. For 30 years doctors have prescribed Vinol because it contains important mineral elements of iron, calcium and cod liver peptone. The very FIRST bottle brings sound sleep and a BIG appetite. Nervous, worn-out people are surprised how QUICK Vinol gives new life and pep! Tastes delicious. City Drug Store.

DOES MARKET CRASH MEAN A DEPRESSION?

What is the meaning of the unprecedented collapse in security markets, which carried many issues down 30 to 75 percent from prices they were selling for a few weeks or a few months ago? Does it forecast a severe depression in general business which will adversely affect agriculture? The November 15 Oklahoma Farmer-Stockman asks these questions and then goes on to analyze the market situation as follows:

The shrinkage in quoted values was as pronounced as in farm land prices in the post-war deflation. That it will be followed by a prolonged aftermath of painful consequences to thousands of individuals appears inescapable. But, just as the prosperity of the urban population in recent years did not increase the demand for food and clothing materials sufficiently to make agriculture prosperous, so the bursting of the stock market boom is unlikely to reduce the demand for these essentials of living enough to bring an agricultural depression. It may reduce the contrast between urban and rural levels of well-being.

The decline in stock prices probably represents a revision of views both as to the ratio that should exist between price and earnings and as to the prospects for earnings in the near future.

OLD FOLKS SAY DR. CALDWELL WAS RIGHT

The basis of treating sickness has not changed since Dr. Caldwell left Medical College in 1875, nor since he placed on the market the laxative prescription he had used in his practice. He treated constipation, biliousness, headaches, mental depression, indigestion, sour stomach and other indispositions entirely by means of simple vegetable laxatives, herbs and roots. These are still the basis of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, a combination of senna and other mild herbs, with pepsin. The simpler the remedy for constipation, the safer for the child and for you. And as you can get results in a mild and safe way by using Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, why take chances with strong drugs? A bottle will last several months, and all can use it. It is pleasant to the taste, gentle in action, and free from narcotics. Elderly people find it ideal. All drug stores have the generous bottles, or write "Syrup Pepsin," Dept. BB, Masticello, Illinois, for free trial bottle.

Business activity has shown less than the usual seasonal expansion this fall which means, in effect, that it has begun to recede. The pace may continue to slacken until in the fore part of 1930, but a moderate recession rather than a severe depression appears to be in prospect.

Demand for luxury goods as well as some staple industrial products will be reduced by the shrunken incomes of those caught when security prices were run through the wringer. But, the absence of excessive inventories of goods in most branches of industry means that consumer demand will overtake supplies and stimulate manufacturing operations again without a prolonged delay.

Snyder reports to have an average farmer residing in Scurry county named F. I. Townsend, who states that during the past twelve months poultry has been a profitable side line. An accurate report was kept by Mr. Townsend which shows that from October, 1928, to October, 1929, two hundred and sixty Leghorn hens produced $781.47 worth of eggs, and $188.70 was spent for feed, leaving a profit of $592.77 for the year.

Owen-Graves Nuptials In Amarillo

Announcements have been received in Slaton of the marriage of Mrs. F. Graves and C. W. Owens, both of Amarillo. The wedding occurred Thursday, November 14th, in Amarillo.

Both parties are well-known in Slaton. Mrs. Owens operated a Dry Goods store here for twelve years, until about three years ago when she moved with her son, Charlie Graves, to Amarillo.

Mr. Owens, who is now Road Foreman of Engines of the Amarillo division of the Santa Fe, was formerly located here with the same position on this division. He made his home here for about six years.

Mr. and Mrs. Owens left Friday, November 15th, for Los Angeles, Calif., on a wedding trip, after which they will make their home in Amarillo.

Mrs. K. J. Brown Hostess to Lovely 6 o'Clock Dinner

Mrs. Kirby J. Brown was the charming hostess to the Thursday Bridge Club with a lovely six o'clock dinner Tuesday evening at the Harvey House.

A delicious dinner was served after which the members and guests were invited to the Brown home at 1000 West Lynn Street, where bridge was enjoyed until a late hour.

The Brown home was beautifully decorated in cut flowers. All club members were present and other guests included Mesdames George Everline, K. C. Scott, C. W. Taylor and Kirkpatrick.

ROTARY HIGH SPOTS.

It was a cotton program, and everyone exhorting the fleecy stuff, everyone had a mouthful. Walter Hestand gave a history of Cotton Bollie. Very entertaining.

Rod Roderick tried to talk about, "How can the new farm relief bill help the Slaton Cotton farmer?"

Robert, the first, of the House of Tudor, told us all about the factors that determine the price of cotton and cotton seed in Slaton, in 1929. He told us. He also had a few samples of cotton, showing the long and short staple, and just what this means to the raiser of cotton. No doubt the cotton farmer should try for a longer staple.

Ben Holloway inducted a couple of the new members into the workings of Rotary, and as usual, Ben did nicely.

The eating was mighty fine, those Catholic ladies have the art of Home Economics down Patrick.

The dispensing of music by the scrambled quartette, with the assistance of the audience was par excellence.

We miss some of the smiling faces of the absent members. Maybe we will be 100 percent next time.

Word has been received in Slaton from Miss Maude Dean, formerly history teacher in Slaton High School, of the serious condition of her mother, who is very ill.
