Pro Golfers Find Game Is Worth a Try

By HAROLD V. RATLIFF
Associated Press Sports Editor

Why does the golf professional follow the weary tournament trail when chances of even paying his expenses with his winnings are about one in six?

Most of them don't rake in enough cash to take care of their travel.

But there are several good, sound reasons, and there's no need to feel sorry for the fellow if he has to quit the tour and go back home to recoup his fortunes so he can try again.

Selecting one of the touring golfers at random, take Chuck Dupree of Spencer, Ia. Chuck is 34. He didn't turn pro until 1949 and he made the winter tour last year. He's back on the winter tour this year after saving up a few hundred dollars.

Chuck never has won a dime in a tournament. He travels and lives on $80 to $100 a week. That means he doesn't put up at the big hotels, he rides with some other pro and has a car, he doesn't practice because he can't afford the caddy fee.

He never expected to win anything much though and he manages to live without starving.

Other pros—the fellows who finish in the money, have equipment manufacturers back of them or are sponsored by commercial interests—spend $150 to $225 a week on the tour.

But you know what? Dupree thinks he's doing as well as anybody. You see Chuck had a goal—he made the tour with the idea of becoming a good golf teacher. He advanced from assistant pro to head pro and he's going to do even better. "What I have spent in time and money is a good investment, he says.

There are four or five goals the professional can point to in making the tour—he can become a top golfer who wins more money than his expenses, he can qualify for a club pro job, he can become a greenskeeper, he can become a pro-manager, he can become a salesman of golfing equipment.

Most of the golfers who make the tour have one of those things in mind.

Dupree says it requires six or seven years of tournament golf before the man is seasoned and can hope to become a winner. But it doesn't take that long to attain the other goals.

This, then, is the thing that tournament golf accomplishes. And that's what will be wiped out if tournament golf doesn't snap out of its troubles. Instead of getting better, tournament golf is getting worse in its relation with the public. There are too many arguments, too much bickering and too much confusion. Golf needs a commissioner—a man with supreme authority who will make all decisions and set down rules that can not be broken.

It once had a man like that in Fred Corcoran. Corcoran was eased out, however, and eventually the players themselves got control of tournament golf. There is a committee dominated by the players. There is no head man and nobody seems to know what anybody else is doing.

The average player is between the squeeze. It costs him more to play than it costs the public to see him play. A professional must pay an entry fee of $10, a fee of $3.00 to support the PGA and caddy fees of $20 to play in one tournament—in other words he pays $33. The fan can see him play four days for $7.50. In no other sport does the participant pay more than the spectator.

But the pro isn't kicking about that—he just wants to play and better himself. But golf is going to have to snap out of its trouble and get on a business basis with somebody in ironfisted authority for him to do it.

There are a lot of Chuck Duprees.

After many doleful, losing seasons, the Browns are expected to come to life this year under the direction of these two men, both of whom have a fanatic will to win.

Two Fire Calls On Wednesday

Perryton firemen answered two calls Wednesday morning, neither of a serious nature.

The first call, at 6:30 a. m. Wednesday was from the Johnson Trailer Court on W. Brillhart, where the attic of the camp bath house had caught fire. The blaze burned a hole in the roof of the building before it was extinguished.

The second call, at 8:30 a. m. Wednesday, was at 708 S. Drake, where the cook stove of a trailer house blazed and threatened to set the trailer on fire. It was extinguished by the time the firemen arrived. The trailer is owned by R. E. Roberts, member of a seismograph crew, who had just moved his trailer into the lot Tuesday.

Mr. and Mrs. R. C. Johnson of Lubbock are visiting friends in Perryton and looking after business interests.

Dr. and Mrs. A. A. Eisenberg and daughter Julie Val of Dallas arrived last week end to visit Mrs. Eisenberg's parents, Mr. and Mrs. R. T. Correll. Dr. Eisenberg returned to Dallas, Monday, and Mrs. Eisenberg and Julie Val remained for a longer visit.

Blowing Your Top High Up

NEW TRAINING methods and new equipment are helping U. S. Airforce men to get out of fast jet planes and stay alive. The ejection seat which literally blasts a man out of a crippled plane has long been used. But her is some of the new equipment being used at Williams Field in Arizona as new airmen are trained.

HOW IT FEELS to have your chair blasted upward is learned on the device at left without going up 50,000 feet to try it. But an airman might freeze to death on the trip down. The pictures (right) show the new parachute gadget that delays the parachute opening until the man gets down where he can live. Before he goes up he sets two dials (top right). When he bails out he pulls a little knob (lower right). The parachute does the rest, opening automatically to cushion his fall.

No War Seen; Old Men Do Not Start 'Em

ROME—Signor Neri, who is of almost no importance except that there are millions like him in Italy and Europe, thinks there will be no war soon.

"You know why?" he asked.

"Because old men do not go to war—not if they can help it."

Signor Neri, old himself, but still the main support of a family of five children, makes about $55 a month acting as liaison man between Italian plumbing and a couple of American families. He paused in his task of adjusting a bathroom floater and said:

"Stop and think—nearly every body who ever started a war was a handsome young guy; somebody who thought he could win in a hurry and cash in on the glory."

Today's Leaders Are Wise

"Look at the world's leaders today. Sure, they could start something, but they know they probably wouldn't be there at the finish."

"Besides, nearly all of them have been through it—they got a good idea what it's like."

"Look at Balgione"—Italian affectionate or derisive for Stalin, meaning "Mustache"—"He's 72, anyway, and not too well, from what I read in the papers."

"Look at Churchill—even older, 77. All of them—Truman, Eisenhower, Adenauer, De Gasperi—all of them over 60 and most of them around 70."

"The ones who went to war in the past were pretty young," said Signor Neri, "look them up and you'll see."

History Proves the Point

A check showed they were. Alexander the Great was only 22 when he crossed the Hellespont with 30,000 men to begin one of the greatest continuous marches in history. He was only 33 when he died of a fever in 328 B. C.

Julius Caesar lived to be 58 (comparatively ripe old age in those days) before daggers cut him down at the foot of Pompey's statue. He was only 30 when he became Military Tribune of Rome.

Napoleon, with the life expectancy index climbing up, lived to be 62, sitting out his later years, on the Island of Saint Helena. But he was only 35 and full of victories when, on Dec. 2, 1804, he took the crown from the hands of Pope Pius VII and, setting it on his own head, declared himself to be Emperor of the French.

Kaiser at 55 Was Old

William Hohenzollern, the Kaiser of Germany, was comparatively old—55—when he and his generals started World War I. Adolf Hitler was 50 when he blitzed into Poland in 1939 to begin what was to become World War II.

Mussolini was pretty old as war-starters go by the time he was hung up by the heels at a Milan service station. He was then 62. But he was only 52 when the thirst for glory persuaded him to send Italian troops and bombers into Ethiopia. "You see," said Signor Neri, "old ones don't start wars—not if they can help it."

He smiled with pleasure at the thought.

Mrs. Raymond Powell, Mrs. E. B. Morgan and Mrs. Nannie Edmondson visited the T. B. Stark-eyes and other relatives in Wellington last week end.

Frank Chase of Fayetteville, Ark., left Sunday after spending a week with his brother and family, Dr. and Mrs. J. W. Chase. Mr. and Mrs. John Chase of Amarillo visited in the home of his parents Sunday and took their uncle to Amarillo where he took a train to San Antonio to visit with another brother.

Veterans Still Responsible for Home Mortgage

Veterans who sell their homes and let the purchasers assume the 4 per cent GI loans remain personally responsible for the payment of the loan, Veterans Administration warned today.

VA said World War II veterans should not sell their property without making certain that their interests are protected. The best way to do that, VA stated, is to have the purchaser pay cash or arrange a loan in his own name.

VA points out that property is more easily sold with the favorable 4 per cent GI mortgage remaining in effect—a factor that should influence the selling price.

However, a veteran selling his property with the GI loan intact runs the risk of later having to pay all or part of the debt resulting from a default by the new owner.

Should the new owner of the property fail to keep up the mortgage payments, the holder of the GI mortgage can foreclose.

When the proceeds of the sale resulting from the foreclosure do not cover this amount of the GI loan outstanding, the difference may remain a debt against the veteran. The VA has to pay the holder of the mortgage for the guaranteed portion of the debt. The veteran will then owe the government the next amount of that payment, plus interest.

In many areas throughout the country, foreclosure may take place without notice being given directly to the original veteran-borrower (for example, foreclosure by publication) even though the veteran remains liable for the debt.

For this reason, the veteran is urged to keep the holder of the GI mortgage and the Veterans Administration advised of any change of his address. He should also request the lender to notify him if the new owner defaults.

VA, when notified of property sales and of any change of address, will inform the veteran when it learns that the loan is in serious default or in danger of foreclosure. The veteran can then contact the holders of the GI mortgage and the owner of the property to protect his interest. In many instances, the veteran might be able to obtain title back from the owner and either sell the property to cover the unpaid balance or rent the property for enough to keep the loan current.

Veterans faced with the problem of foreclosure on property they have sold with the GI mortgage in effect can obtain assistance and advice from their nearest Veterans Administration Regional Office.

They Raised Them Tough In Old Days

ROSWELL, N. M. — (AP) — In the days when New Mexico was a sprawling rough and violent land, it didn't take much pressure for a strongwilled youngster to go bad and join the wild bunch.

One who didn't was Burt Mossman, but his initiation into the fabulous Southwest was a rough one.

It is in this manner that Frazier Hunt sets the stage and the themes for his story of Purton C. Mossman. He takes the easy path of familiarity which is a part of the Southwest and titles his book simply "Cap Mossman—Last of the Great Cowmen."

The story of Cap Mossman—who sits today on his porch at Roswell and dreams of days gone by—is the story of one of the most colorful cowmen of the Great West.

Illustrated by Ross Sandee with a touch that perhaps only those who love the Southwest can fully appreciate, Hunt's biography of one of the top-notchers in a land of great men covers more than 70 years. The setting swings a wide lariat stretching from the range lands of Sonora and Chihuahua in Old Mexico far north to the grass lands of Alberta, Canada.

The story is one of grass—that giant question mark of the cattle industry—and those who knew it, feared it, loved it, and understood with rare farsightedness, its potentialities.

Mossman got his big chance as a cowman when still under 20, he signed on with Warren Carpenter's Bar A Bar outfit near what is now Truth or Consequences, N. M. as a bog rider and later as a roundup representative.

Cap Mossman learned early the cruel hard lesson of the range that he was never to forget.

"Bad weather and low prices

—those are the enemies that never let up on a cattleman. Either one is tough enough, but when they join together you're finished."

That warning singing in his head, Mossman became foreman of Bar A Bar and boss man over 8,000 head of cattle when he had barely turned 21. The die was cast and his career—so aptly and with so much understanding told by Hunt—never turned from the cattle he knew so well.

Mossman went on to manage the famous Bloody Basin ranch in Northern Arizona, later faced disaster as general superintendent of the Hash Knife of Arizona which encompassed two million acres of range and 60,000 head of cattle, and formed the legendary Arizona Rangers to clean the state of its legions of bandits and toughs. The story of his capture of Augustin Chacop, the wild bandit of Mexico is in itself a thrilling story.

The Turkey Track outfit of Northern New Mexico was the next stop but it wasn't long before Mossman found the place he had wanted—a great rolling prairie, wide and deep and rich in grass, sun and rain. He took

Reds Burn Victim Alive

SINGAPORE (AP) — Communist terrorists burned alive an Asian chief clerk of a Malayan rubber estate recently, a letter by a "North Johore Planter" to the "Strait Times" (English-language paper) revealed.

The "Planter" wrote that "armed bandits entered the house of the chief clerk of Tangkak Rubber Estate, North Johore, trussed him up, piled furniture on top of him and set fire to the house. He was burned to death."

The "Planter," complaining that this incident was never announced on the government-controlled radio or published in the local daily papers, remarked: "Maybe this is considered to be a minor incident?"

over the land in the sprawling Cheyenne River Reservation in South Dakota.

It is somewhat ironic that one of the greatest cowmen of them all pioneered the sheep raising industry in the Southwest. Cap Mossman swallowed a lot of cattle pride and in later days his holdings on the Pecos river in New Mexico echoed the baa's of woolly animals.

Hunt tells directly and simply Mossman's stature as a cowman and his contribution to the southwest. "The last of the Great Cowmen" is another valuable addition to the great storehouse of legends and fact about the courage and stature of men like Mossman who brought civilization to the sprawling wilderness, fought for law and order, and saw a great industry grow and prosper out of thievery and hard times.

JAZZ AIDS PLAYERS—Coach Bill Borchers leaves the record player while three of his Oregon basketball players, Bob Peterson and Chet Noe, wait to hear the tune. Borchers believes that music in the dressing room before the game helps the players relax and play better. Jazz, not oratory, is the key.

Miss Betty Jo Cone and Todd will visit Todd's father, Capt. C. E. (Bill) Cone in Denver this week-end.

Mrs. Carl Ellis visited with Frank Roberts of N. M. last week-end.

Adjustment made by Dr. Mayfield after thorough examination and results were positive. Now has no more blinking—schoolwork much improved and is a different person.

Skoda Production Drops

VIENNA (AP)—Despite a demand for greater production, the output of locomotives in the giant Skoda works in Pilsen, Czechoslovakia, is behind schedule. Radio Brno said that January production was only 66 per cent of the target.

Western economists in Vienna said locomotive production possibly was down because the Skoda works is streamlining its output of tanks and guns for Russia.

Last year, he and Hutchins saw Mexico from the seats of their English motorcycles. They enjoyed it so much they decided to take the longer journey to Panama.

plant crops that will add ample organic matter to the soil and make plans to conserve all organic matter that is produced in the way of crop stubble. It has not been many years since stubble burning was a very dangerous and common practice, and this led to loss of organic matter in the soil, Jacques said.

Overgrazing of some sorghum crop fields this year has reduced the amount of organic matter returned to the soil and has resulted in some wind erosion since last fall.

In summing up, Jacques pointed out that farmers cannot continue to take from the soil, putting very little back, and maintain the physical and productive content of the land.

When New England farmers cleared their land, they often piled loose stones found in the fields at the edges of the fields as fences. Thousands of miles of these stone fences are still in place.

Dean Maberry Hurt In Wreck Monday Morning

Dean Maberry received painful facial cuts in an automobile accident which occurred Monday morning about four miles south of Perryton on highway 83.

He was driving his father's car a 1941 Chevrolet, and had with him Bill Lynch and W. L. Martin. The men were returning to town from working on an oil rig south of town.

The accident occurred during the snow, and the road was covered with snow and slush. The car ran off the pavement and went out of control, crashing into a concrete culvert. All three were treated in a local hospital, where Maberry had a number of stitches taken in his face. The other two men were bruised and shaken.

Damage to the car was estimated at $300 by state highway patrolman Jack Shields, who investigated the accident.

Oregon Location Site Plenty Rugged, Says James Stewart

"It was the roughest, most rugged picture I've ever made," said James Stewart, veteran of 16 years in the movies, in speaking about "Bend of the River," which comes to the Ellis Theatre on Tuesday-Thursday, March 18-20.

"I don't see how the early-day pioneers ever made the trip," Stewart declared. "We had every known type of modern equipment to aid us during four weeks of filming along their trails in Oregon, and it was still the worst physical beating I'd ever encountered."

The month's location, centered first in the snows and dense forests on and around Mt. Hood, later along the Sandy and Columbia Rivers of Oregon, produced every type of hazard and peril possible on a film set. First, it was the paralyzing jolts of steel-rimmed covered wagons bouncing over the large boulders of a dry river bed. Next came the dangerous lowering of wagons down the steep mountain slopes, held back and upright by struggling four-horse teams and drag ropes.

Then the film pioneer caravan was pulled into the snowfields of Mt. Hood at the 8,000-foot level where the constant danger of slipping on the frozen slopes presented a hazard.

In the rapids of the Sandy

River, an ice-cold stream fed by melting snows and frothing wildly as it crashed along its rocky bed, Stewart and his co-star, Arthur Kennedy, worked for almost a week. Their horses fought gamely to stay upright as they forded the wild river. Then the actors piled from their mounts, waded into the numbing waters of the river, and staged a knock-down, drag-out brawl in mid-stream.

"I never felt a blow," Stewart later admitted. "I was so completely pumbed by the cold water, I couldn't have felt a thing."

Groucho, Jane And Frankie Star In Film

The unusual situations which develop around the romantic troubles of a bank teller's fiancée are told in "Double Dynamite," the new comedy which comes to the Ellis on Sunday and Monday, starring Jane Russell, Groucho Marx and Frankie Sinatra.

Sinatra plays the teller, a serious and hard-working lad who wants to marry his fellow-employee, Miss Russell, but insists on waiting until he gets a raise—despite the exhortations of his best friend, Marx, a waiter in a near-by restaurant.

Quite by accident, Sinatra manages to rescue a big-time bookie from an assault by business rivals. In gratitude, the bookie induces Sinatra to take a thousand-dollar reward, and then swiftly parlayes this into $60,000, with bets on a race. Stunned but delighted, Sinatra picks up Marx, who is convinced that his pal has robbed the bank. After buying a flashy big convertible they head for the bank to tell Miss Russell the news—only to find there is a huge shortage in the institution's books, and that all the employees are under suspicion!

Unable to convince anyone, even Miss Russell, that he isn't a thief, Sinatra has a terrible time of it, and things get more and more complicated and hilarious until Marx stumbles on the clue to the mystery and everything is cleared up in a rousing climax.

Monte Cristo Is Portrayed Again

The Count of Monte Cristo, fabled hero of Alexandre Dumas, comes to the screen again in "The Mask of the Avenger," starring John Derek. The picture comes to the Pertex on Sunday-Tuesday.

This time, the awe-inspiring figure of the Count of Monte Cristo is brought back to life during the Italo-Austrian War of 1848 by a young Italian captain, played by Derek, whose father has been killed and slandered as a traitor. An avenging fury who adopts the cloak and sword of Monte Cristo, Derek humbles his powerful enemies by some super-human riding and fighting.

Role of Industry To Town Told

"The Whistle at Eaton Falls," which comes to the Pertex Theatre on Wednesday and Thursday, tells of the importance of industry to the lives of people living in a small town. Lloyd Bridges and Dorothy Gish star in the picture.

The story deals with a young workingman who is given an opportunity to save his community from becoming a ghost town, and with the compromises and adjustments that must be made before the town can function again.

Powell Stars In Stevenson Story

"The Treasure of Lost Canyon," which comes to the Ellis Theatre on Friday and Saturday, is an exciting screen version of Robert Louis Stevenson's famous story, "Treasure of Franchard."

Briefly, the story concerns a backwoods philosopher who befriends a homeless boy late in the 19th century. The lad, in turn, stumbles across a long-forgotten buried treasure which changes the lives of everyone connected with the story.

In a role strikingly different from any other he has ever portrayed, William Powell plays the part of the gentle philosopher. His characterization of "Doc Brown," the bumbling rustic sage, is filled with both humor and pathos.

Loving, Field, Weed, Pietown, Stetson, Sunset and High Lonesome are towns and villages in New Mexico.

The day last year I went for a drive with my friend. Her three-year-old boy was with us, sitting in the back seat. As we were rolling along, the child got to playing with a rear door handle. Suddenly the door swung open and dragged the little fellow right out of the car.

I was sick with fear when I saw his limp body sprawled by the road. We rushed him to a doctor and, I'm thankful to say, found that he wasn't seriously hurt. There were some bills for his medical care and though I wasn't at fault, my Automobile Insurance paid them all, under its wonderful Medical Payment feature.

GOD'S LIVING LETTERS

By Kirby Page

Sponsored by
PERRYTON MINISTERIAL ALLIANCE

For sheer joy you can scarcely match the experience of St. Francis of Assisi. He enjoyed God and he enjoyed people. He was so grateful to God for his conversion and transformation that he never ceased from giving praise. He lived on this earth only forty-four years, from 1182 to 1226, but from the moment of his awakening to the drawing of his last breath, his words and his deeds were a continuing stream of thanksgiving.

Francis loved people, all kinds of people. He loved people with self-giving concern for them and with radiant satisfaction at being with them. His tender care of lepers fills one with awe at such deep compassion. Every beggar he recognized as a holy temple of God, worthy to be treated with respect and reverence. He really loved his enemies, even when they abused him and pelted him with stones.

His love of nature has rarely been equaled. He entered into companionship with the birds and talked with them as with other friends. He gloried in flowers and in the moon and in the sun. Everywhere he found evidence of the outbreathing, immeasurable love of God.

His life is a glowing illustration of the truth later expressed by Ralph Waldo Emerson: "Let me go wherever I will I hear a sky-born music still. It sounds from all things old, it sounds from all things young, from all that fair, from all that's foul, peals out a cheerful song." In the darkest, meanest things, there always, always something sings.

Because Francis enjoyed God and nature and people, he was extraordinarily free from self-interest. He was a genius of the spirit, a God-intoxicated troubadour, and one of the most Christlike of all followers of our Lord.

Life Begins at 40, But Becomes More Complicated

AUSTIN, Texas—From a literary point of view life may begin at forty, but from a health standpoint, life after forty begins to be more complicated for the average individual, than it was in his earlier years. According to Dr. Geo. W. Cox, State Health Officer, the principal health foes confronting people in middle life are heart disease, cancer, kidney disease, high blood pressure, hardening of the arteries, apoplexy, diabetes, and arthritis.

Middle aged people of today are healthier than were those of preceding generations, and the present generation, when they reach middle age, should enjoy even better health than their parents of today.

Medical care in middle life has two important phases. The first is going to the doctor at regular intervals for a complete physical checkup, whether or not there have been symptoms that suggest the need for medical attention. The second is prompt recovery and continued good health and prolonged invalidism. It is difficult to say which of these phases is the more important.

It has been found that men and women who faithfully pursue the habit of regular health examinations and who follow the advice arising from them tend to live longer, more satisfactorily, and freer from disease than those who simply take a chance and go to the doctor only when pain or disability forces them to give up their normal activities.

It is also a fact that many diseases of middle age respond to treatment in early stages whereas if neglected until later stages they often cause permanent invalidism and even death.

Good advice for persons over forty is that they have regular physical examinations and obtain prompt medical attention for any and all illnesses.

Shamrock Plans Big Celebration For March 17

Plans for Shamrock's sixth annual St. Patrick's Day Irish Celebration, scheduled for Monday, March 17, rushed toward completion today as members of some 20 committees worked feverishly on last-minute details, according to General Chairman Norman Patrick.

"Judging from the enthusiasm and work that has gone into the planning of this year's celebration, visitors will see one of the best rounded shows ever staged," Mr. Patrick said.

Always a headliner, the mammoth street parade starting at 11 o'clock should be the equal of any ever held. Roy Carlton, float chairman, said 25 commercial and five organizational floats are certain with a possibility of as many as 50, including comic entries.

Other attractions include: Pilots Breakfast, Colleen Contest and Coronation of "Miss Irish Rose," Uncle Hiram's Stage Show, Amarillo Air Force Base Jamjets, songs by Irish Tenor, Cisco Junior College Quartet and Choir, Khiva Drum and Bugle Corps, World Famous Kiltie Band of Oklahoma City, Bill Mack and his Black Mountain Boys.

National Guard Drill Exhibition, Square Dance Exhibition, Sunset Ramblers Western Dance, Kiddie Show and Contest, Carnival, Jimmy Dorsey Modern Dance.

Presentation of 1952 Powerglide Chevrolet and a host of other varied entertainment features jam-packed throughout the day.

EACH A COG

You In The Church... The Church In You

Form a combination for good. We should attend church regularly. Every man, woman and child needs the influence of the CHURCH. Be faithful. Be a Churchman!

HOW NECESSARY is every cog in the wheel? If the wheel belong in my auto, then I know every single cog must be in its place and working smoothly. If that is important in mechanics, how much more significant in the human and personal and social realm. I am a cog in a family, in a neighborhood, in a city, in a church. I wonder how well I work. What a lesson for each of us! For we are tempted to go our own way... think of our own concerns, as if each of us were the whole wheel... the only person in the world.

COGS IN WHEELS! That is a good figure. How good a cog are you? Ath I? When heavy loads are to be borne, do I carry my share of the weight? When necessary errands must run, do I gear in smoothly? Or do I insist on breaking out of the groove, that I may be noticed, or escape some of the grinding experience of helpful living? God is master of us all. He calls us to a particular little part in the world's work... each is a cog. He expects us to work for Him and to His glory! If we keep our place and function smoothly for the common good of His church and His world we shall know the blessing of work, "Well done, good and faithful servant."

IT'S THE LAW in Texas

Waiting until the last minute to file your 1951 Income Tax return? Even if you have already filed, some tax savings may be possible.

While there are few bright spots in the tax picture for the average taxpayer, lawyers say that some lucky individuals may be able to take advantage of certain relaxed provisions of the 1951 Revenue Act. For example you may now claim an exemption for a dependent whose gross income during the year was any amount less than $600. Previously, an income of $500 or more by the dependent barred your claim for an exemption on his account.

If you sold your home during 1951, you may avoid being taxed on any profit made in the transaction by purchasing and occupying a new home within one year. The new residence must cost as much or more than the sales price of the old one. However, you may include notes and other liabilities forming part of the consideration in figuring the cost of your new home. Suppose you bought a home in 1945 for $5,000 and sold it on July 1, 1951, for $8,500, making a profit of $3,500. If you buy and move into a new home not later than June 30, 1952, costing as much as $8,500, no tax will be due on your $3,500 profit. This is true even though you may pay only $500 or less as a down payment on the new home and the balance of the purchase price is represented by a note and mortgage.

However, the Bureau wants a record of your transactions, even though no tax is due. If you have already repurchased, both your sale and your purchase should be shown on separate Schedule D and attached to your tax return. If you have not bought your new home as yet, but expect to do so before the one year limit runs out, report the 1951 sale on Schedule D anyhow. But, enter the word "None" in the Gain or Loss column and add a short explanation that you expect to purchase or rebuild. Then, when you do replace, write the collector giving him full details on the transaction. If your plans for replacement should fall through, an amended 1951 return would be necessary.

Another new feature which may save taxes for some people is the removal of one limitation on medical expense deductions for all persons over 65. They are no longer limited to the excess over and above 5% of adjusted gross income. The limit still applies to all taxpayers under 65, unless their husband or wife happens to be 65 or older. In this event, both husband and wife may deduct medical expenses without reference to the amount of adjusted gross income. However, the general limitation of $1250 per individual still applies in all cases.

If you have passed up any of these savings, an amended return may pay dividends.

The new Self Employment Tax is causing extra tax return headaches for some people this year. If you had net earnings of $400 or more derived from a trade or business which you conducted during 1951 as a sole proprietor or as a partner, this new tax may apply to you. Public officials, railroad workers, ministers and various professional people are excluded from the application of this tax, as are non-resident aliens.

Similarly, income derived from farming, interest and dividends from securities, and gains and losses resulting from sale or exchange of capital assets are excluded. Rentals from real property are excluded except in the case of a real estate broker.

This new tax covers many people newly added to the list of those covered by the Social Security Act, and is imposed to help finance the benefits they may later receive. If you are liable for the Self Employment Tax, you should obtain separate Schedule C and file with your regular tax return.

Applying in many instances where no regular income tax is due, this tax will also force some people to file returns even though their gross income of less than $600 would not otherwise require a filing. Suppose you operated a very small business and grossed only $590 in 1951. Under the old law, no return would be required.

However, under the 1951 Act, the Self Employment Tax is carried from Schedule C to Form 1040 and collected as a part of your total income tax liability. If your net income from this small business was $401, you would be required to file a completed 1040 return along with Schedule C in order to comply with the law.

Veterans Forum

Q. I plan to obtain a GI home loan, but I lost my original discharge papers which I'm supposed to present to the lender. What should I do?

A. You must apply for a certificate in lieu of the discharge papers from the branch of service from which you were discharged.

Q. I am a World War II veteran, entitled to a pension because I lost my sight. Do I have to show actual need for the aid and attendance of another person, in order to qualify for the increased rate of $120 a month, authorized by a recent law?

A. No. Blinded veterans are not required to show need for aid in getting about, in connection with the recent pension increase.

Q. I am attending school under the GI Bill, and I have about two years of entitlement remaining. Will I be allowed to take the summer vacation off, and resume next Fall, or must I stay in training all year 'round, so as not to lose out under VA's post-cut-off-date regulations?

A. If your school's practice is to have a summer vacation for all students that want it, you may take that vacation and resume your studies in the fall. The regulations require you to remain in continuous training except for interruptions, such as the summer vacations, that would apply to all students, veterans and non-veterans alike.

The acreage of Irish potatoes grown in North America has dropped from 3.6 million in pre-war years to 2.5 million in 1950.

Are Politicians Honest

We have heard so much lately about graft in Washington, the many angles that are being worked to siphon off public funds, that people sometimes wonder if there is such a thing as an honest politician.

An illuminating article along this line has been written by George Peck, chairman of the board of the National Labor-Management Foundation.

Most politicians are certainly honest, Peck maintains. They become dishonest only when the American people make them that way.

Most men elected to political office are inherently honest. They aspire to serve their fellow citizens well—they embark on their public careers fired with a zeal to do a thorough, unselfish job of cleaning up corruption and of administering honestly, capably and economically the affairs of the public.

But the new political electorate barely has time to hang his hat on the peg provided by the taxpayers' money before the onslaught begins. Individuals, committees, pressure groups, corporations, mendicants, cranks, chislers, social reformers and legions of others besiege him for this favor and that handout—nearly all of them selfish, unreasonable demands upon him to crack open the public treasury and give them some of the loot.

It takes a strong man to withstand the pressure.

And the politician who satisfies the most people, whether by passing out public funds to his district or any other means, is the man who stays in office and usually adds his voice to the clamor for more "economy in government."

It's something to think about in choosing our public officials.

Pearson Can Keep Advice to Himself

Most Texans will thank Drew Pearson to keep his big mouth out of Texas politics. The New Deal hatchman made a flying trip to Texas recently and wrote a column which Texans resented.

Pearson probably does not as completely misunderstand Texans' feelings about the tideland as he pretends. He wrote not a word about our states' rights convictions down here or the fact that while Texans are convinced that all the maritime states own their tidelands, our ownership was confirmed by treaty. Instead he wrote of Texas pride and then asserted that this state's sentiment in the matter is due largely "to the fact that three of the wealthiest oilmen of the Southwest... see the tideland oil issue as an effective stick with which to beat Washington over the head."

His efforts to belittle Attorney General Price Daniel are on a par with his analysis of Texas sentiment.

Texans know more about tidelands oil than Pearson does. They know more about Texas politics than he does, too, and don't want to be annoyed with any more of his advice. Of course Price Daniel should welcome Pearson's interference in Texas politics. It will make him many votes. — Houston Chronicle

Dear editor:

I was down the road the other day and happened to pass by my neighbor's mail box and looked in to see if the paper was in there, which it wasn't, looks like some folks can't learn to leave other people's newspapers alone, when I came across one of these mail order advertising letters dropped on the ground beside the mail box and I opened it up and looked inside just to be sure it wasn't anything valuable that my neighbor would want, which he wouldn't.

Anyway, what this letter was advertising was "plug-in" grass. "No back-breaking spading, tilling, sowing, no harvest of weeds and bare spots... these grass

From the SIDELINE with HAROLD HUDSON

The OPS, a government agency which seems to be mainly ignored nowadays, has announced a new plan to put some more workers on the payroll. The Lubbock OPS office has some members now training and preparing to assist in a nation-wide business survey to get under way later this month. This survey is to be a study of percentage markups in use by wholesale and retail grocers on products bought and sold in the period immediately preceding the Korean war.

This means, we suppose, that a new flood of government reports will soon be upon us, followed closely by eager inspectors desiring to peer into the records of business men. And then what will we have when this survey is finished?

The Department of Agriculture has now declared all of Texas as a disaster area under its emergency farm loan program. This entitles farmers who suffer crop losses and who are unable to obtain credit elsewhere to obtain loans from the Farmers Home Administration.

Last year, when Ochiltree county was one of the 97 Texas counties placed in this "disaster area" status, we wondered where the disaster was. We still wonder. While things are not as rosy around here as most of us would like them, we're sure not in the throes of a crop disaster, as even a casual examination would reveal. But this does give the government a chance to step in and be a "big brother," we suppose. After all, this is an election year.

We read the other day about an electronic brain, which, the scientists say, can solve in two weeks a problem that would take a man 2,000,000 years to work. If it would take a man that long, how can we ever know if the machine's answer sod plugs set in existing lawn bare spots or newly prepared lawns spread quickly to form a tough, dense, green lawn—choking out crabgrass and summer weeds as it spreads—the article read.

Now, these grass men are getting somewhere coming out with a product like that. While I ain't got no lawn and my wife gave up a long time ago on getting me out in the beat of day attendin' to lawn grass, I can't help but think them grass scientists is on the right track. When they get around to the same sort of thing for cash crop farming, and refine their findings a little bit, maybe me and them can do business.

This part about no back-breaking work appeals to me, as does the idea of this grass chokin' out the weeds. If they can now invent some sort of "plug-in" wheat which will operate the same way, and perhaps reseed itself like I mentioned a week or so ago, then we will have something. If there's anything home to see, it's weeds coming up in a patch of wheat after I've gone to all the trouble of plowing the ground and drilling it in.

You could expand this idea to other things, say vegetables. Why not have "plug-in" radishes, corn, onions, etc., which will keep a garden slick as a whistle and yet furnish all the garden stuff a man can eat?

You might pass the word along to these grass men that they've got a potential customer, out here on Wolf Creek once they advance their idea along. And I know some more folks that would go along with me on this. There may even be some of the town birds that would be interested in "plug-in" lawn grass if they're not interested in "plug-in" wheat.

Yours faithfully,

is correct?

Did you know that Gen. Douglas MacArthur had his personal staff cut from eight to three? We didn't, until recently, and in fact we didn't even know he had a personal staff. The news story we read said Mac was offered an office in the Pentagon, but he declined, saying he preferred to stay at the Waldorf hotel in New York City.

It was pointed out that Gen. MacArthur has no command duties now, and we really can't see why he should have a personal pilot, aide and valet if he's not on active duty. This in spite of the long years of service he has rendered to the country and the raw deal he got from the administration in being recalled from Japan. After all it's the taxpayers' money that pays for his personal staff and if he's off active duty, let him rough it at the Waldorf, we say.

The man at Reno who let burglars haul off a safe with $2,500,000 in it is pretty sore about having his privacy destroyed, he says. He also thinks the thieves are stuck with all that dough. "They might as well light their cigarettes with the two $10,000 bills they got," says L. V. Redfield. "Bills that large are quite rare."

You bet they are, L. V. Lots of us poor folks never saw one, and even if we had one and were afraid to spend it, we're afraid there would be some long, tall, thinking done before a match were applied to the corner of one, too.

Counties in Pitt's District 5 include Potter, Carson, Randall, Oldham, Deaf Smith, Farmer, Castro, Swisher, Armstrong, Donley, Roberts, Gray, Hemphill, Lipscomb, Ochiltree, Hutchinson, Dallam, Sherman, Hansford, Moore, Hartley, Childress, Hall, Briscoe, Collingsworth and Wheeler.

In revealing plans for the approaching meetings, Pitt urged all airmen and airport operators in each of the counties in his district to be on the alert for an announcement of a time, date and place, and to make every possible effort to attend.

In an emergency, Pitt pointed out, a county's private planes and airports may well provide the only available means to carry disaster personnel, evacuate the wounded, decontaminate ground areas, survey and control congested ground areas, provide communication, security patrol, reconnaissance, search and rescue, deliver parts, and meet threats on farms and in forests. You're off in a Swirl of Power!

We're willing to wager that not one person in a hundred knows what really goes on inside an automobile engine—so let's take this by easy stages. The instant you nudge Buick's Fireball 8 Engine into action—a whole string of things starts to happen.

Eight sparks begin to crackle in well-timed sequence. Eight pistons start gliding up and down with rhythmic precision. Eight pairs of valves dance open and closed—to let fuel charges in, exhaust gases out of cylinder after cylinder.

All right, you say, what's so complex about that? Can't anyone build an engine that does this to perfection?

Well, we'd better add, these things happen at the rate of more than 10,000 times per mile—and that's 100 times per second at 35 miles an hour!

So—it's important to know that Buick uses a deep-breathing valve-in-head design that shoots a fuel charge in—cleans exhaust gases out—in a hurry.

It's important to know that all the power released by the fuel concentrates its driving force right on the head of each Buick piston. (Everyone who has recently built "new" high-compression engines copied this "Buick first.") But most important of all—Buick adds one more twist which others still haven't copied.

Every charge of fuel rushing into a Buick engine becomes a twisting, swirling, high-compressed ball that flashes with sudden, consuming completeness the instant the spark sets it afire.

And to add this all up: clean, complete combustion—10,000 times per mile—is the secret of getting more power—more miles—from each gallon of gasoline. So we're not simply using picture words when we tell you that Buick—only Buick—has a FIREBALL Engine—or that you're off in a swirl of power with one of these high-powered performers under the hood.

1952 has brought a lot of sparkling improvements which you'll want to see and admire when you come to our showrooms.

But the thrill of thrills is still what you and a Buick—and a Fireball 8 Engine—can do out on the road. When do you want to try a sample?

Equipment, accessories, trim and models are subject to change without notice.

APPEARED TO THE MILITARY TRAINING. Many people are just what did happen. Universal Military Training. Here is the exact bill was brought before the House for consideration. The House is composed of legislation to perfect it by the House of Representatives, but are before all members of the House. A Committee of the House is not over by the Speaker, a member of Congress as chairman. The bill was a highly controversial measure and was not acceptable to the majority of the members in its original version. The first amendment that was offered came from the chairman of the Armed Services Committee, Honorable Carl Vinson, of Georgia. This amendment provided two things: (1) The UMT would not start until the drafting of boys under Selective Service had stopped; (2) The life of the UMT program would be terminated in 1958 unless Congress at that time extended it. This amendment made the bill acceptable to many members who had originally opposed it. The amendment was adopted and was referred to the Vinson amendment. Another amendment was then offered by Congressman Omar Burleson, of Texas. The Burleson amendment provided that the proposed training program would take place in the junior colleges, colleges and universities, in connection with the civilian education of young men. It also provided certain vocational training programs to be set up in the institutions of higher learning to take care of those young men who would not wish to attend college but who would be required to take the military training.

Since this amendment changed a substantial part of the original bill, it was introduced as a substitute for the original bill, and amounted to a law within itself. While the debate was proceeding on the Burleson substitute, Congressman Brownson of Indiana offered an amendment to the Burleson substitute, which was also a complete law in itself and therefore became a substitute for the Burleson substitute.

LONGHORN LANDING—Two huge C-87 "Flying Boxcars" transports unload men and equipment at San Angelo's Municipal Airport—the beginning of Operation Longhorn. The airport, a bombardier training school during World War II, will be one of the bases for the "Aggressor Air Force" during the March 25 to April 11 maneuvers. The entire maneuver will cover some 1,800 square miles in central and west Texas and involve 115,000 to 120,000 men. (U. S. Army Photo)

The Brownson substitute provided for the military training to be coordinated with the last two years of high school and made provision to take care of those boys who did not finish high school. The purpose of both the Burleson substitute and the Brownson substitute was to provide the military training and at the same time keep the boys at home, or as nearly at home as possible.

Both of these amendments had substantial support. Under parliamentary law, the voting was on the Brownson substitute, which started the training in high school. Had the Brownson substitute failed, the next voting would have been on the Burleson substitute, but the Brownson substitute passed by a vote of 150 to 145, which meant that the Burleson substitute was killed and the Brownson substitute took its place.

As soon as this was done, the rules required that the Committee of the Whole cease to function and report back to the House of Representatives, with the Speaker presiding, for further action on the bill. This was done and a vote was then taken on the Brownson bill, the members voting as members of the House of Representatives and not as members of the Committee of the Whole. On this vote the Brownson substitute failed. The reason it failed was because there was no chance to amend it. It had to be accepted as it was written with no amendments whatever.

This the House refused to do because there were several imperfections in the bill that did not meet with House approval. When the Brownson bill was defeated by the House of Representatives, the result was that the original UMT bill was back before the House in its original form, with no amendments, not even the Vinson amendment which had already been agreed to. Since the bill was not acceptable to a majority of the membership without the Vinson amendment, a motion was made to recommit the bill to the Armed Services Committee for further study and perfection.

This motion to recommit prevailed and the bill was returned to the Committee. This means that the Committee can study the bill further, make amendments to it and bring it back to the House for consideration. The chairman of that committee has stated that this will not be done. Unless it is done, the UMT bill that is pending in the House of Representatives is dead as far as this session of Congress is

Local Students Contribute to McMurray Book

ABILENE—James Kirby, sophomore, and Zona Donley, junior, McMurray College students from Perryton, are two of the 47 students who contributed an original composition to a Devotional Booklet for Lent, published by the McMurray College Christian Foundation.

It has become an annual project of the Christian Foundation to publish the booklet for Lent, explained the Rev. H. Doyle Ragle, director of religious activities. He said, "These short devotional readings were prepared in the hope that they will serve as a source of personal enrichment and inspiration during the days of this Lenten season."

Doris E. Johnson of Stamford served as editor of the booklet, and Hal Mohler of LaMarque was art editor. Jo Johnson, Las Cruces, N. Mex., was draftsman, while Bobby Boyd, Sweetwater, and Jimmie Hodges, Ft. Stockton, were in charge of production.

Actually there never was a vote in the House for or against Universal Military Training, and there is no way to tell what would have happened to the bill had it been up for vote on final passage. As I told you in a previous news letter, the question of segregation was a major issue and would undoubtedly have been the subject of heated debate and high tempers. However, segregation amendments were never reached in the discussion because of the course that the bill took, as herebefore outlined. From this history of the bill you can get a good idea of what is meant by parliamentary maneuvering.

The Yale University Art Gallery in New Haven, Conn., was founded in 1832 by Col. John Trumbull (Washington's aide-camp) and Benjamin Silliman.

BEAUTY AND THE FEAST

If there is one special place in the home where the surroundings should contribute to the well-being of the occupants and the festivity of every occasion, it's the dining space.

In many homes mealtime is the only time when family members get together. Those brief get-togethers will be more enjoyable and memorable if the space set aside for dining is bright, cheerful and stimulating.

Lately the trend is more and more away from the center-of-the-room dining arrangement. We place our dining groups to make the most space, to take full advantage of pleasing vistas, and to add individuality and distinctiveness to our decorative scheme.

The sketch above shows a fresh and unusual dining arrangement. The corner of a large living room has been set aside as the dining area. Window treatment on corner windows form effective backdrop for mahogany drop-leaf table with Dunoon Phyllis legs and lyre-back chairs. Deep-rose coloring of antique satin chair seats was picked up from floral print draperies.

This corner dining arrangement is not limited to Traditional theme; it would be equally lovely with Modern or Provincial furnishings.

Our selection of furniture is always up-to-the-minute to please a variety of tastes. We hope we'll have the pleasure of seeing you in the near future . . . to help you choose the type of furniture you want and need for your home.

SHE TAKES THE FEAR OUT OF DARKNESS

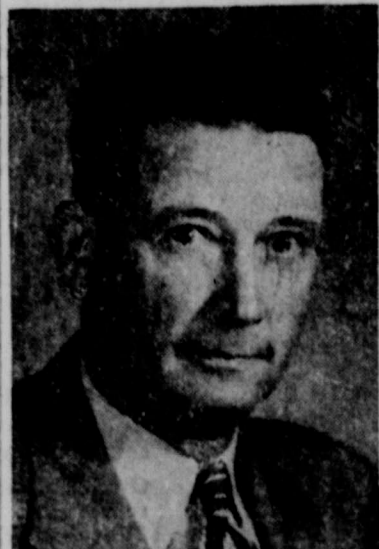

At night, when the rest of the town is asleep, there's a light burning in the telephone office.

If you've ever needed her badly, the night operator sitting at the switchboard there is your best friend. When the baby wakes up with a fever, when the ugly menace of fire threatens you or your neighbor, when emergency demands reaching through the darkness to rouse someone in the next block or many hundreds of miles away, she stands ready.

A small service perhaps, but a priceless insurance policy against the insecurity of the night.

School Trains Singers For Grass Roots Opera

By BRYAN HAILSLIP

Newsfeatures
RALEIGH, N. C.—The glitter of the Diamond Horseshoe of New York's Metropolitan Opera House is reflected in a studio over a jewelry store here.

It's a long jump between the two points, but Director Robert C. Bird of the Carolina Opera School believes some of his students can make the grade.

The school launched under the extension service of the University of North Carolina, already has some of the glamour of the Met. One of its staff members is Norman Cordon, a native North Carolinian who sang baritone roles with the Metropolitan.

Another member of the staff is Mrs. Estelle Rucker, equally famed as a concert pianist and as Vice President Alben Barkley's mother-in-law.

Director Bird sees a future for the school as bright as the wares sold in the jewelry store below. There's not another quite like it in the country, he declared.

Grass Roots Opera on Road
 Some other universities offer training in opera, but this school has its own touring company to give students actual on-the-road experience, Bird explained. The Grass Roots Opera Company, a project of the North Carolina

Federation of Music Clubs, helps the students take the music of Verdi and Mozart to small towns and rural areas of the state. The federation also helped launch the school.

Bird, a former director of the Fort Worth, Tex., Civic Opera Association, said he has found a lot of enthusiasm for opera in touring the state. He directs the opera company as well as the school.

The picture wasn't so rosy when the school first set up shop in a Raleigh residential district last fall. After the first few operatic trills sounded through the neighborhood, distressed citizens took their complaints to the city council.

The council amended zoning ordinances to ban opera schools from residential districts and the school moved downtown. The would-be Carusos and budding prima donnas now practice in the rooms over the jewelry store and in a radio station's soundproof studios.

General Staging Taught
 Singing isn't the only subject taught. Students also get training in opera dramatics, costume and stage techniques. If they wish, they can receive undergraduate credit at the university at Chapel Hill about 30 miles away.

About 20 students are enrolled. Most take full-time work, but some come in for evening classes.

The operas the students take on the road with the Grass Roots company are still given in English. This is the only way opera will ever gain a secure foothold in America, says Bird. Faculty members and local singers are

Chowhound Finds Berth

CUMBERLAND, Md. (AP)—Private Striker, 7-month bulldog mascot of the Cumberland Marine reserves, looked down in the mouth when his unit shipped out and left him behind. But he perked up again when Navy reservists adopted him, outfitted him with a gob's cap and put him in training.

The Navy reservists say ex-private Striker seems quite adjusted now to his new unit and new rating—Chowhound.

SYDNEY, N. S. (AP)—The once-proud wooden flagship of the British fleet, the Pelican, which has protruded from Halifax harbor since 1923, is going to be removed. The harbor board announced that divers will seal the hull and it will be towed out to sea and sunk.

"Deerproof," "foxproof," "rabbitproof," are all familiar expressions with the hound fancier and when a hound consistently proves he can live up to one or more of them his value grows and grows.

Nothing is more exasperating to the fox or coon hunter than to have his hounds run rabbits, unless it is for them to go off on a futile chase of deer. To break a fox or coon hound of running the wrong game is sometimes quite a difficult task. But it is not impossible in the vast majority of cases.

The use of game scents, or musks, in the "proofing" of trail hounds against undesired game is growing. It is painless, easy to administer and generally quickly effective. To get the dope on the use of these scents Henry P. Davis, one of our top dog writers, went right to the man who probably knows most about them.

That man is Pete Rickard of Cobleskill, New York. Through years of experience he has found that the simplest way of using scents is the best. He makes scents for the proofing of dogs against deer, coon, fox, rabbit and porcupine.

Davis asked Rickard about the use of steel traps with the scent (the jaws wrapped with scent-impregnated cloth) and the system of applying the scent to a sack and then tying the sack over the dog's head for several hours. They also discussed other methods of forcefully breaking the dog of running tabooed trails.

"I don't recommend the use of force in any form," said Rickard. "There is no necessity for it at all when the scent is properly applied, and whipping the dog for running the wrong trail may make him afraid of any kind of trail.

"All that is necessary is to apply a little scent each day around the ears and head of the dog.

Betty Lawrence Takes Part In HSU Production

ABILENE—Betty Lawrence of Perryton has been selected to serve on the stage crew committee and the publicity committee of "Death Takes a Holiday," spring production of the Hardin-Simmons University Players, under the direction of Dr. Katharine Boyd.

Miss Lawrence, daughter of Mrs. Mae Belle Lawrence, is a freshman member of the Players' Club. She is also a member of the Hardin-Simmons University Chapel Choir.

The scent is quite powerful and soon becomes so obnoxious to the dog that he wants no part of it, either at the home kennel or in the field.

"A great many of the dogs so treated respond quite quickly, requiring only about four day's treatment. But we recommend an occasional supplemental application for a while, particularly during the hunting season."

The Alberto Casella comedy, edited for the American stage by Walter Ferris, will be presented on the Behrens Chapel stage March 14-15.

The play involves Death, in the person of Prince Sirki, who takes a holiday on earth in order to experience all human emotions and discover why men fear him.

An estate tax return must be filed for every citizen or resident of the United States whose gross estate, including insurance, exceeds $60,000 in value at the time of death.

Dysentery Said On Increase In Texas Homes

AUSTIN, Texas—Commenting on the unusually high incidence of dysentery in Texas at the present time, Dr. Geo. W. Cox, State Health Officer, described dysentery as being an infectious disease characterized by diarrhea, pain in the abdomen and toxemia. It is caused by a specific bacteria or germ. These germs cause inflammation of the lining of the intestinal tract which produces pain throughout the abdomen and the discharge of many loose stools that frequently contain blood and mucus. Toxemia results from absorption of the poisonous substances produced by the germs.

"The germs gain entrance to the body through the mouth," Dr. Cox said, "and then make their way to the intestines in the same manner in which food does. When they reach the intestines they find conditions favorable to their growth, and there they establish themselves at the expense of the person infected and produce their harmful effects."

Dr. Cox warned that dysentery affects young children more often and more seriously than adults, frequently resulting fatally; however, he said, it may occur at any age. It is usually more prevalent during the summer season, and the great number of cases now being reported are unusual for spring.

"The germ is always expelled with the excreta of persons sick with dysentery and may continue to be expelled for some time

Christian Science

7th and Colgate
Services 11 a. m. each Sunday
Public Cordially Invited

That true substance is indestructible because it is infinite Spirit, God, is a leading thought in the Lesson-Sermon entitled "Substance" to be read in Christian Science churches on Sunday. "The foundation of God standeth sure, having this seal, The Lord knoweth them that are his," is the Golden Text from II Timothy (2:19).

The strength of trust in real substance is illustrated in these Bible verses (Psalms 125:1,2): "They that trust in the Lord shall be as mount Zion, which cannot be removed, but abideth for ever. As the mountains are round about Jerusalem, so the Lord is round about his people from henceforth even for ever." Mary Baker Eddy has given this definition of Zion on page 599 of her textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures": "Spiritual foundation and superstructure; inspiration; spiritual strength." And she also says this, "The supremacy of Spirit was the foundation on which Jesus built" (p. 138).

Bookkeeper Turns To Rosin

LAKE BUTLER, Fla. (AP)—One day Tom Aycock of the Aycock-Lindsey Corporation, a turpentine firm here, mentioned that he needed another rosin grader. Mary Margaret Raulerson, a bookkeeper for the firm, said jokingly:

"Let me grade it."

He did and now Miss Raulerson is the first woman authorized by the U. S. Department of Agriculture to grade rosin.

"I was a trifle nervous at first," she said. "But I got over that and finally caught on."

In her work Miss Raulerson classifies the rosin after it is processed in the firm's twin-fire still and put in drums. She compares samples from each drum with a U. S. Bureau of Standards grading chart. On an average she grades about 42 drums a day.

Dallas Baseball Men Jealous of Football Team

By Harold V. Ratliff
Associated Press Sports Editor

It appears everybody is enthusiastic about pro football in Texas except the baseball people. They tell you privately they can't see how the sport is to prosper and that the folks who brought a National Football League franchise to Dallas are like sheep being led to slaughter.

It could be that the diamond people are a little jealous—major league football got here before major league baseball. The reason major league baseball isn't here is because of territorial rights and the amount of money involved, the baseball people say. Too many obstacles. But that was the same time played about pro football yet it required only a name attached to a franchise and $300,000 to get the grid game to Dallas.

The tipoff as to rivalry between the pro baseball and pro football people came the other night when meetings were scheduled by the two sports at the same time. Pro football did appear to have encroached—the baseball meeting had been scheduled for weeks when all of a sudden the Dallas club announced it was going to hold one. The baseball people growled.

Giles Miller, the young textile tycoon who heads the Dallas pro football club, doesn't buy that "led to slaughter stuff." "It all looks so good something is bound to happen," he says. "But I don't see how we can miss."

Already they're being deluged with ticket applications and most everybody—except the baseball people—tell them they have hit the jackpot.

The reports that the Texans were going after Doak Walker, Sammy Baugh, Kyle Rote and other illustrious Texas footballers owned by other clubs, are dying out.

Of course, says Miller, Dallas would like to have all those fellows. "But they tell me in pro football if somebody wants to sell you a player, you better leave him alone," Miller comments. "Nobody has tried to sell me Walker, Baugh, or Rote as yet." Anyway, the Texans would not want to pay what those guys would bring if they were offered for sale.

He has found that the only way to get the stars from the other clubs is to trade—trade them somebody who is better fitted for their style of football or would be a better drawing card.

Miller wouldn't be surprised if Martin Ruby and Jack Russell, the former Southwest Conference stars who jumped to the Canadian pro league, came back to American pro football this year. Ruby, the former Texas Aggie, already has visited in Dallas and talked with Coach Jimmy Pheland.

CANBERRA, Australia (AP)—External Affairs Minister Richard G. Casey has announced Australia will exchange diplomatic representatives with Indo-China. An Australian mission would be established soon in Saigon, he said.

Coal Power Ships Fading

LONDON (AP)—The sweating coal heaver with the blacksmith muscles who used to be a fixture in front of the boiler of almost every steamship in the world is on his way to join the dodo as an extinct creature.

Coal itself is being shoved aside as a ship fuel. Almost all ships being built now will burn oil, and of all the ships in the world only about one in four still uses coal.

Before World War II about 60 per cent of the world's shipping was powered with coal generated steam. The world steamer tonnage was a little less than 52,000,000 tons.

Now, says a survey by the London Financial Times, steamer tonnage has climbed to more than 63,000,000 tons but only about 27 per cent of this tonnage is moved by coal-steam power.

There also is a trend away from steamships of all kinds. Motorships are becoming more and more common. In 1939 there were 7,551 of them on the world's shipping routes. Now there are nearly 11,000 with a total tonnage equal to one third of all the world's steamships.

Ruby and Russell, the ex-Baylor great are on the reserve list of the Dallas club and can't play with any pro club in the United States unless it's with Dallas.

They went to Canada last year because they could get more money and besides they figured they were getting at that age when the softer type of football as played in Canada would be better than the slambang stuff in America. But both still have a lot of football left.

Third place went to the Ten Teens, who were dressed in white blouses and square dance skirts with bows of shiny ribbon in their hair. The teens sang "What Would You Do?"

Innkeepers Buy Inn For the Hired Help

"HOT" GAME of Chinese checkers among the help.

AP Newsfeatures

MT. POCONO, Pa. — After a working day is done, the hired hands at one Pocono Mountains resort "check in" at their own hotel.

Mr. and Mrs. Edmund Strickland, operators of an inn near here, recently bought another nearby hotel for the exclusive use of their 50 employees.

The new property consists of two buildings, one with 28 rooms for women workers and the other an eight-room structure housing male help.

The larger building contains recreational facilities comparable to those provided for paying guests at the inn—including game rooms, lounges and a cozy fireplace. The new property includes plenty of acreage for outdoor fun and relaxation, too.

There's a chef to operate the workers' hotel kitchen. A modern cafeteria is being installed. The employers are supplying everything—food, linens, bedding, heat and light.

Mystery Bullet

NEW YORK (AP)—A policeman's widow, complaining of headaches, was sent to Shore Road Hospital in Brooklyn by her doctor for X-rays. The pictures revealed a bullet lodged under her left cheekbone.

There were no scars on her face, but she had lost her right eye in an operation following an injury she said was caused by a fall in her home.

The fall occurred recently, but the bullet apparently had been under her cheekbone for several months. If the bullet did not enter under the eye, the doctors do not know how it got there.

A housekeeper daily checks on everything, to see that top hotel standards are maintained.

The Stricklands are no star-gazing idealists but pleasant, hardworking individuals who combine their philanthropy with sound reasoning.

As Ed Strickland put it: "Most of our employees come from nice families and are used to nice things. And a hard day's work doesn't seem so hard if you can relax afterward in comfortable surroundings."

"So this proposition works both ways. The 'kids' are happier and happy people do better work. And there's less turnover in hired hands, which means more efficiency and a better deal for our own hotel guests."

Zoning Rules Beaten in Walk

OKLAHOMA CITY, (AP) — "Is this a 15-cent zone?" inquired the passenger before boarding the bus.

No, explained the driver. It would cost him 20 cents. The cheaper zone started one block farther.

"Well, if you have time," the old gentleman suggested, "let me walk down there—then pick me up." The driver complied.

CESENA, Italy (AP)—The Malatestian library, one of the oldest in the world, will celebrate its fifth centenary this spring.

The library was founded in 1452 by Prince Domenico Malatesta, and was kept by the Franciscan Brothers until 1866 when the Italian state took over the property.

The books have been kept with almost religious care for the past five centuries.

Terrible Tempered Tommy Follows Hot Golf Trail

By BOB MYERS

AP Newsfeatures

SAN DIEGO, Calif. "I'll bet," said a spectator in the gallery, "that you could light a match if you stuck it on the back of that fellow's neck."

"That fellow" was Tommy Bolt, no neophyte in tournament golf, but at least a newcomer to laurels in the sport.

"Terrible Tempered Tommy," many friends called him in humorous fashion, but there is more truth than humor in the description.

The match suggestion came on the 12th hole in the third round of the recent San Diego Open, a par 4 where torrid Tommy had just taken a fat six. He had tapped up short on his fourth shot, which made him a little sore. So instead of lining up the ball for the remaining six inches, he elected to "pull" it in.

"This failed, and he virtually blew it in on the next try."

TOMMY BOLT
Never Gave Up

He calmed down almost immediately and birdied two of the next four holes.

"Yes, Tommy does have a temper, but he never gets mad at anyone but himself. In fact, he's a lot better now than he used to be."

So spoke Mrs. Shirley Bolt, the golfer's wife and mother of their 14-year-old son Richard. She travels with Tommy on the tournament tour and the son goes to school in her home town of Houston, Texas.

Bolt, who may become a most interesting figure in golf, captured the North and South Open by three strokes last winter, and followed up with the best triumph of his unusual golf career—victory in the rich $17,500 Los Angeles Open in January.

Tommy pocketed $4,000 for that one after disposing of Jack Burke, Jr., and veteran Dutch Harrison in a three-way play-off.

The four grand looked exceptionally good to the Bolts. Tommy has been one of those many pros who hit the tournament trail with more courage than cash, just as a once poor Ben Hogan did in the late 1930's.

Tommy, now 33 years old, got acquainted with golf when he caddied as a kid in Shreveport, La., at the old Municipal course. He began to play, too, but the war interrupted a formal start. He served for nearly two years in the European theater, and after the conflict he was assigned as a GI golf instructor at the Rome Country Club in Italy.

He decided then to take up the game seriously when he got back home.

He got back, and turned pro in 1946 in Shreveport. He played in four tournaments and won a little cash each time.

He didn't win enough, and he decided to try other work and save enough for a better try at the pro business. So he spent nearly three years in Houston, working as a carpenter—and playing when possible.

In December of 1950 he came back to golf, and he's been on the trail ever since.

Sure, says Tommy and Shirley, things have been rough. But they kept going. From mid-1951 Tommy won around $6,000. Not much, but enough to keep trying.

The rich Los Angeles event was the big one. But others are in prospect for a player many

Owl Called Stupid

CHICAGO (AP)—The owl isn't so smart. Austin L. Rand, curator of birds at the Chicago Natural History Museum, grants that they make quite an impressive appearance.

"But owls don't seem to have much behind the front they put up," he says. "People who have studied them find that the young are very slow to learn to feed themselves. One saw-whet owl that was kept captive refused to eat liver put into its cage, apparently not recognizing the meat as food. But when the liver was crammed into an empty mouse skin the owl ate it at once."

"The crows and their relatives, the jays, are the birds that are really intelligent."

Pakistani Pilgrims Banned

KARACHI (AP)—A ban on Pakistani pilgrims to Mecca has been imposed at the request of Egypt, Syed Abdul Hamid El Khatib, Saudi Arabian minister, told a press conference here.

He said the ban would be lifted as soon as the World Health Organization informed his government that Pakistan would abide by the International Health Convention of 1926. Egypt, he said, feared its nationals might be contaminated by Pakistanis infected with cholera.

Buys Bomb With Home

SAN BERNARDINO, Calif. (AP)—E. S. Winter got more than he bargained for when he bought his new home.

He decided to clean out a closet. Reaching up to remove some junk from a shelf, his hand brushed a cold, hard, unfamiliar object. It was a live bomb.

Police officers, to whom Winter took the bomb, said it was the type used by the Air Force for bomb practice. It was about 16 inches long and weighed 13 pounds.

Mrs. Tommie Briggs, Victor, Suzann and Tommie Lee and Mr. and Mrs. O. P. Graves, Wanda and Billie Jennell and Mrs. Jennie Graves were Sunday afternoon callers in the W. A. Moon home.

A side entrance from the garage, in addition to front and rear entries is a convenient detail. This is Plan C-24-G by the Small House Planning Bureau, St. Cloud, Minn., and St. John, N. B., Canada. Many Benefits To Veterans Are Tax Free

Payments to veterans for benefits administered by the Veterans Administration are tax-free and need not be considered in computing Federal income tax, VA reminded veterans today.

Also, VA added, dividends which veterans have received on their GI insurance policies are exempt from taxation, and need not be reported.

Among the tax-exempt VA payments are the following:

Subsistence allowances for veterans training in schools, on farms and on-the-job under the GI Bill and Public Law 16 (for the disabled).

Payments by VA to be applied to veterans' GI loans. Under the GI Bill, VA pays the lender an amount equivalent to four per cent of the guaranteed portion of the loan, which is credited to the veteran's account.

Disability compensation and pensions paid to veterans for both service-connected and non-service-connected disabilities. Grants for seriously disabled veterans for homes designed for wheelchair living.

World War I emergency officers' retirement pay.

Death benefits to families of deceased veterans are also exempt from taxation, VA said. These include compensation, pension and all GI insurance payments.

Tarzan Likes Real Africa

NAIROBI, Kenya Colony (AP)—Lex Barker, the latest in the line of film Tarzans founded by Elmo Lincoln, finds the great forests of the foothills of snow-capped Mount Kenya a much more romantic place to work than the American settings previously used by the jungle man.

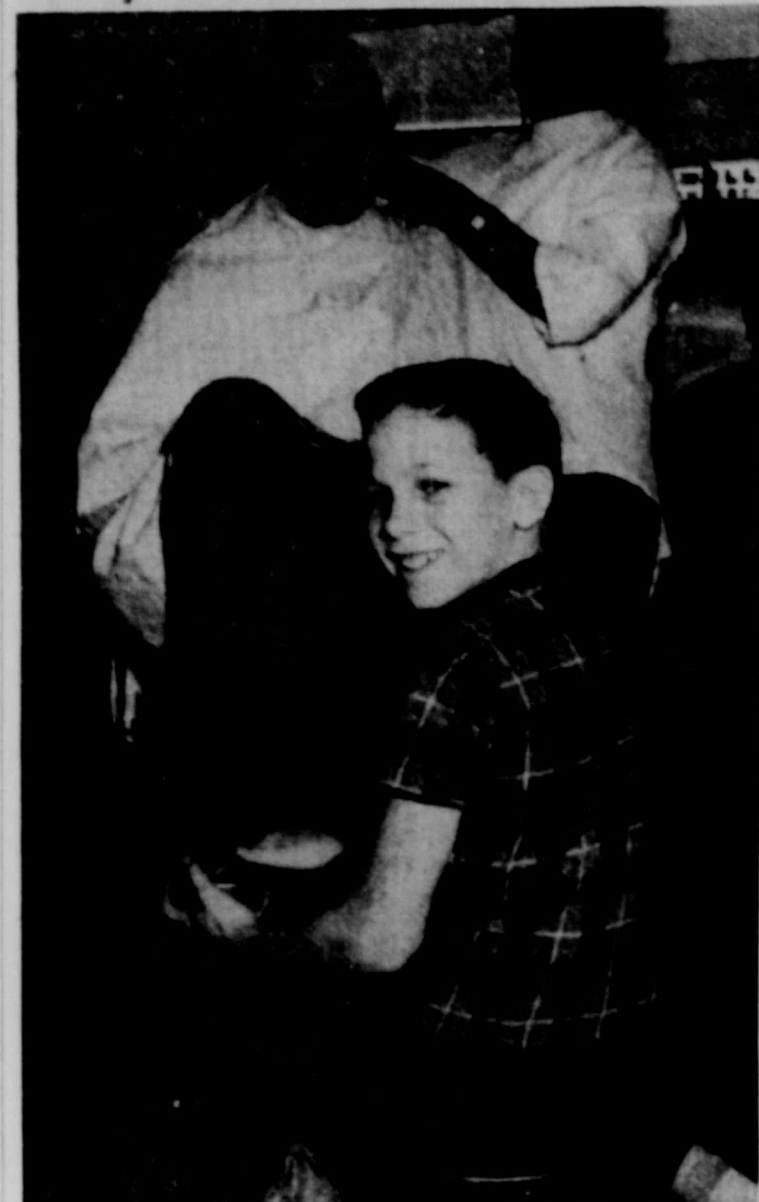

"I have never enjoyed anything more than these contacts with the real thing," Barker said. Picture making here has its drawbacks, however. One day an elephant charged the camp, dislocating the shooting schedule. It did no serious damage, however.

States Spare Taxpayers

CHICAGO (AP)—Legislatures met in 24 states this year, but most of them went easy on the taxpayers. The Federation of Tax Administrators says there were major tax rate increases in four states—Kentucky, Mississippi, South Carolina and Texas.

As early as 80 A. D., oysters were reported from the Thames estuary to Rome.

She also received six weeks training under Bill Buch of the Buch College. Buch is known for his work as a hair stylist all over the United States.

Villa Marie graduated with highest honors in cosmetology and is now taking an advanced course under the instruction of "Evelyn."

She will return home in the spring to open a shop near Booker. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Slovacek of Booker.

Premature Birth Hazardous

NEW YORK (AP)—A newborn, premature infant is nearly 6,000 times as susceptible to death as a school child, says Dr. L. Emmett Holt, Jr., of New York University-Bellevue Medical Center.

If they can be pulled through, "fully 90 per cent are as healthy as one could ask." Famous premature babies include Isaac Newton, Voltaire, Charles Darwin, Victor Hugo, Napoleon, and Winston Churchill.

Medical Corps Praised

NEW YORK (AP)—"The boys in Korea have been getting wonderful medical care," says Dr. Herman E. Hilleboe, New York State's Health Commissioner.

Dr. Hilleboe spent two weeks in Korea and Japan with Gov. Thomas E. Dewey.

"Two wonderful things I saw," he said, "were the speed with which the seriously wounded were moved back in helicopters and the rapidity with which they were treated in a mobile, surgical hospital set up in 20 tents."

Jap Treaty Draft Disturbs Singapore Chinese

SINGAPORE (AP)—A large section of the Chinese community in Singapore feels frustrated by terms of the draft Japanese peace treaty — they see no hope in these terms of recovering large funds taken from them by the Japanese as donations during the occupation.

Tay Koh Yat, president of the Chinese War Damage Claim Committee, said "it is unfortunate that not a word is mentioned in the draft concerning the payment of the money." He remarked that the Singapore government had promised many years ago to forward this claim to authorities concerned.
