Bluebird Skims Over Salt Lake At Speed Of 299.875 Miles

DAPPER ENGLISHMAN BETTERS HIS OWN MARK IN UTAH TODAY AFTER MAKING RECORD RUN OF 304.311 MILES IN FIRST TRIAL

BY RUSSELL J. NEWLAND
Associated Press Sports Writer

BONNEVILLE SALT FLATS, Utah, Sept. 3—Sir Malcolm Campbell, England's man of super-speed, bettered his own world's record for land speed on the salt beds of Utah with an average of 299.875 miles an hour.

Campbell sent his mighty Bluebird thundering through the measured mile on his second run in a slightly slower time than on his first trial.

On the opening dash he made the time in 11.83 seconds for a speed of 304.311 miles an hour.

His average time for the measured mile was 12.005, compared to his former record, set last February at Daytona Beach, Fla., of 13.005.

> TO TRY AGAIN
> BOONEVILLE SALT FLATS, Utah, Sept. 3 (AP)—Keenly disappointed because he missed his cherished goal of 300 miles an hour by a fraction, Sir Malcolm Campbell, king of land speed, announced today he would make a second attempt at this mark tomorrow.

On his second trip over the snow white expanse of salt, he was clocked in 12.18 seconds for the measured mile and his speed was 295.566 miles an hour.

Fraction Under Goal

The average of the two times brought him a new record, just a fraction under the goal of 300 miles an hour or five miles a minute he had set for himself.

His first run, in which he developed the almost unbelievable speed of a fraction over 304 miles an hour, was made into the glare of the sun, with a slight favoring cross wind. On the second trip he was bucking the wind a bit, which, according to American Automobile Association officials, accounted for his slower speed.

Better By 23 Miles

The new record bettered by 23 miles an hour, the 276.816 miles per hour speed he reached only a few months ago.

The giant Bluebird roared over the hard salt bed apparently in perfect fashion. Guided by a jet black line oiled into the track, Sir Malcolm steered the six-ton juggernaut with hardly a sway.

On his first run he came close

FATALITIES OF HOLIDAY HIGH

WEEK-END DEATH TOLL IS EXPECTED TO BE MORE THAN 300

(By The Associated Press)

Fewer than 300 automobile fatalities were recorded today in the United States during the triple Labor day week-end holiday.

The National Safety Council had predicted the death toll would mount to between 350 and 400, and described the week-end as "death's favorite holiday."

Death List At 282

Figures reported at 1 a. m. (Central Standard Time) placed the death list at 282. No definite check could be made of the injured, but estimates placed the seriously hurt at more than 200.

Deaths from drownings and other fatal accidents, not included in the automobile figures, also tended to swell the grand total.

Eight states and the District of Columbia had clean records. Arizona, Delaware, Florida, Louisiana, Mississippi, Nebraska, North and South Dakota reported no automobile fatalities.

California headed the list of states with the greatest number of deaths—32. New York was second with 24 and Illinois next with 17.

Three states Missouri, Ohio and Pennsylvania were fourth, with 16 each. Michigan was in seventh place with 11 and Iowa and West Virginia followed with 10 each.

BRADY CREEK IS ON RISE TODAY

BRADY, Sept. 3 (AP)—The Brady creek, fed by a 10-inch overnight rain, was rushing two feet deep through the business district of Brady today as the rain fell steadily. The downpour started yesterday at 4 p. m. and had not let up.

The creek, normally about 10 feet deep near here, rose 25 feet and was going higher as it flowed over the down town plaza.

Merchants hastily moved stock to second floors and high ledges and abandoned their stores.

Water stood two feet deep in the Hotel Brady lobby and 12 blocks within the city limits were inundated.

Fear Heavy Damage

Residents feared the flood would reach greater proportions than the October, 1930, disaster which caused $300,000 in damage.

The Brady creek winds just a few blocks from the business section.

Three highways were blocked to traffic. Highway No. 23 to Brownwood; No. 16 to Coleman and No. 9 to San Angelo were closed. Traffic

TWO FIREMEN ARE KILLED

FIRE AT ROCKDALE IS FATAL TO PAIR AS AWNING CRASHES

(By The Associated Press)

ROCKDALE, Sept. 3—Two volunteer firemen lost their lives early today in a $100,000 fire which razed the old Scarbrough and Hicks Mercantile company in the Rockdale business district.

A heavy awning on the front of the store building collapsed and crushed to death J. Wesley Hooper, 35, and Wilbur Williams, 21, while they were fighting the blaze.

Spreads Rapidly

The fire broke at 12:45 a. m. in the grocery department and spread rapidly to clothing and other branches of the rambling one-story building, which covered half a block. It was not until nearly dawn that firemen gained control and relieved the danger of the fire spreading to other parts of the business district.

Several other fire fighters suffered burns and minor injuries in their desperate efforts to halt the fire.

The company, one of the oldest concerns in Milan county, was established in 1883 by E. M. Scarbrough and Bob Hicks, pioneer merchants.

The fire was regarded as the worse here since 1888, when a number of lives were lost in the burning of the historic Mundine hotel.

Predetermination Of Sex Is Claimed By Artificiality

MANILA, Sept. 3 (AP)—Results which indicated sex of human offspring apparently were predetermined in two cases involving artificial insemination have been revealed here by Dr. I. Garcia, of the University of the Philippines.

In each instance, boys were born to mothers who previously had been childless. One of the births was recorded Aug. 19, but in a second case the child died at birth, Dr. Garcia said.

The treatment utilized by Dr. Garcia, who is a member of the university's school of hygiene, involves use of electrical apparatus described as apparently able to separate male and female elements in spermatozoa. Complete details of the technique were not made known for the present.

Although comment was guarded, Dr. Garcia said he would continue his research and planned to present a formal report shortly.

ROAD PROGRAM IS PLANNED

LATERAL ROUTES TO BE BUILT WITH AID OF WPA FUNDS

Employing an engineer to draw up preliminary plans, county commissioners at a called meeting Monday afternoon discussed a county-wide program to build lateral roads with the aid of WPA funds.

Type of roads to be built, the number of projects and the amount to be spent, should the court decide to enter upon the road-building program on completion of plans and specifications, would be determined by expense to the county and the need for work relief, it was said.

King Is Employed

Arch L. King, who has been connected with the division highway office, was employed by the court to start work Tuesday morning in preparing the necessary specifications. Deadline for submitting work projects to the WPA is Sept. 12.

Although the court did not announce the location of projects which are being considered, earlier Monday afternoon while meeting with the county planning board mention was made that the court was including in its considerations a county-line road from Slaton to Becton.

Notice Received

The planning board, acting in an advisory capacity to representatives of political units and in stimulating interest in WPA, met for the second time at WPA offices and received notice of several projects which are being drawn up for submission to WPA. Lubbock county has approximately $600,000 available in federal funds provided suitable projects are submitted.

Three projects at Slaton, two at Lubbock and one each at Wolfforth and Shallowater were received in tentative form by the board.

The three projects at Slaton, presented by Mayor Sam Staggs, included six blocks of paving, a mile and a half drainage ditch from the city to a lake, and a waterworks extension. Estimated cost was not available, Mayor Staggs said, as no

SIMMONS IS TO LEAVE POST

PRISON SYSTEM HEAD IS TO RETURN TO PRIVATE LIFE

(By The Associated Press)

HOUSTON, Sept. 3.—The resignation of Lee Simmons, general manager of the Texas prison system since 1930, was in the hands of the state prison commission today.

W. A. Paddock of Houston, chairman of the commission, said no action had been taken on the resignation, filed yesterday, but added Simmons had told the commission it was "final."

"None of us was expecting it," he said, "and we all are distressed over it."

Effective Nov. 1

The resignation was drawn to become effective Nov. 1.

Simmons expressed regret over leaving the office but said he had been making a financial sacrifice since he had held it. The place paid $8,000 a year when he took it, but the salary was cut to $6,500 several years ago.

"I wasn't looking for a job when I took this and I'm not looking for one now," he said.

He indicated he would return to his home in Sherman where he formerly held the sheriff's office and later served as manager of the chamber of commerce.

Friends said he probably would return to the management of his considerable holdings in Sherman. Before going into public affairs Simmons was successful farmer in Grayson county.

He was a member of the prison board for a number of years and has been interested in penal problems for a long time.

Huey Visits Fort Worth But Leaves Hotel In A Hurry

FORT WORTH, Sept. 3 (AP)—Senator Huey Long came here from Oklahoma City last night, gruffly declined to be interviewed, and registered at a hotel.

Forty-five minutes later he packed up and left.

The "Kingfish" came here after delivering a Labor day address at Oklahoma City. A girl reporter met him at the train.

"I got nothing to say," he said. A bodyguard pushed the reporter away. The senator climbed into a taxicab and drove to a hotel where he registered and took a suite of rooms.

"I may be here five minutes," he told the clerk, "or I may want it all night."

Two men went to the suite with him but did not register.

The three came down at 11:30 o'clock and hastily left the hotel.

Chinese Protest Is Rejected By Soviet

MOSCOW, Sept. 3. (AP)—Soviet officials said today Japanese objections to activities of the comintern (congress of the Third Internationale) had been promptly rejected.

Informed sources revealed at the same time that in a recent conversation with Soviet officials, the Chinese minister also had raised a question over comintern activities. They said, however, he did not lodge a formal protest.

By its objections last night, the Japanese government stood with the United States, England, Italy and Latvia, which previously had taken a similar step.

LOSS OF FAITH OF SMALL COUNTRIES THREATENS TO SOUND DEATH KNELL OF LEAGUE; CONFERENCE NEARS

BY MILTON BRONNER
NEA Service Staff Correspondent

LONDON, Sept. 3 — Death throes of the League of Nations and cessation of its power as international body for the preservation of peace—these easily may be the results of the meeting at Geneva as the League Council deliberates upon the war that threatens to ensue from it.

The League itself may be put upon the spot—doomed if it tries to do anything radical and doomed if it remains supine.

In the past it has been the big nations which have scorned it. Japan and Germany gave notice that they were giving up membership when they objected to some of its actions. Italy threatens to do so.

Faith Falters

But just as serious is the fact that now the smaller nations are beginning to lose faith in the League. In it they had placed their hopes for international justice and square dealing. But the present dispute was practically killed those hopes. They have seen so many cynical things done in the name of a square deal. For instance:

1. The noble-sounding proclamation by the British government (before Britain itself quarreled with Italy) that it would not issue licenses for the export of arms either to Italy or Ethiopia, because it was doing its best to secure a peaceful settlement. The net result of this was, of course, that a great industrial state like Italy could go ahead and manufacture arms and munitions all it

FEAR FELT FOR PASSENGERS OF VESSEL

RESCUE SHIP STANDING BY AND OTHERS ARE ON WAY TO SCENE

(Copyright, 1935, By Associated Press)

MIAMI, Fla., Sept. 3—While a rescue ship stood helplessly by, sledge-hammer waves pounded the leaking liner Dixie as she lay aground today on a coral reef off the Florida Keys with 350 persons aboard.

In his second message since the Morgan liner struck Carysfort reef early this morning, the skipper of the imperiled vessel wirelessed:

"Few passengers bruised. Several members of crew minor injuries. Ship making some water in double-bottom tanks. Waiting for weather to moderate before transferring passengers."

Tanker Nearby

Standing nearby, but reporting she could not see the Dixie, was the oil tanker Reaper.

A fleet of other vessels steamed through heavy seas to aid the liner. They were the United Fruit liners Platano and Limon, the tanker Watertown, the coast guard cutters Carrabasset, Saukee and the steamship King.

Others On Way

The navy department at Washington announced the King was steaming full speed to Carysfort reef.

At Key West, two more coast guard cutters and a commercial tug awaited moderation of the weather before going to the rescue.

Either Carysfort was veiled in fog, or a still-raging storm cut visibility to a minimum, he said.

Task To Be Dangerous

Reaching the side of the vessel would mean but one step toward averting a major catastrophe, according to veteran seamen. Transfer of the passengers to other ships,

Lost The Use Of His Arm-Crippled With Rheumatism

Pain so Intense He Couldn't Sleep; Endured Many Miserable Years Until he Began Gly-Cas; New Remedy Again Unfailing

"I now understand why Gly-Cas receives so much praise—it deserves it all and more too," Mr. F. B. Jackson, 1702—5th St., Lubbock, well known local gentleman who has lived here for the past ten years, said recently in talking with the

MR. F. B. JACKSON

Gly-Cas Man who is daily meeting crowds of local people at the Mark Halsey Drug Co., 1219 Broadway, this city, where he is introducing and explaining the action of this new medical discovery.

"For the past year I had suffered severely with a severe rheumatic pain in my right arm," said Mr. Jackson. "My shoulder was affected too and my arm became stiff and sore. I was so crippled I could not put my arm to the back of my head and practically lost its use. At times the pain was so intense that sleep was impossible and I never could sleep on my right side. In this condition there was much work it was impossible for me to do. I did my best and was forever trying many different kinds of medicines to find relief but, ever, only with continued failure—until I began to hear the praise everyone seemed to have for Gly-Cas and decided to put it the test on my own case—it was wonderful."

"I have only been taking this new remedy a short while and yet I am like a new person," continued Mr. Jackson. "Gly-Cas has given me just the results I had been searching for. That dreadful rheumatism has left my arm and shoulder, have full use of my arm again, able to use a saw and hammer and do the work anyone else can do. I no longer lose sleep over my condition and all that soreness and stiffness has left me entirely. My wife also found Gly-Cas so beneficial for her high blood pressure and we both join in lauding Gly-Cas as the greatest ever for we know from our own experience that it is one medicine that gives the results others just claim to give."

And so it goes—another case right here in Lubbock where Gly-Cas has accomplished the seemingly impossible.

The Gly-Cas Man is kept busy everyday at the Mark Halsey Drug Co., 1219 Broadway, where he is introducing and explaining the action of this new medical discovery.

"Camels don't get your Wind"
FAMOUS SWIMMERS AGREE

Champion swimmers speak with authority when they discuss sound wind—healthy nerves—and Camels. Buster Crabbe, champion in the 400-meter free-style Olympic event, says: "I have smoked Camels for years. If you go in for sports at all, I'd advise Camels. You'll find, as I did, that Camels are so mild they never get your wind or cut your endurance."

What Buster Crabbe says is confirmed by Helene Madison; by Jane Fauntz, the Chicago girl who rose to Olympic fame; and by Stubby Kruger and Josephine McKim. So turn to Camels. Enjoy those costlier tobaccos in Camel's matchless blend. Smoke all you wish. Athletes say, "Camels don't disturb your nerves or wind."

TUESDAY, LUBBOCK EVENING JOURNAL SEPTEMBER 3, 1935

BY NECESSITY

The reason Elden Auker, Detroit's ace submarine hurler, pitches in the manner of Carl Mays is that both his shoulders were "knocked down" in college. Auker was a triple-threat halfback for Coach Bo McMillin at Kansas State.

SPORTOGRAMS

By Oller Akins

A LETTER FROM Coach Chapman is followed by a personal visit at the office by Pinky Lowrey, and between the two we glean the first bit of dope on the Lubbock High school football prospects for 1935.

Coach Chapman and the Westerners are in camp at Montezuma, N. M. Lowrey was with them until Sunday but had to come home and get ready to put season tickets on sale. That is another story, and a more or less important one. In his letter, Chapman gives a general outline of what the boys are doing. Lowrey supplies additional details, and answers a few questions, suggests a few names that might be well to remember.

The boys, meaning the Westerners, are getting along fine, making progress, rounding into physical and mental shape for the coming season. Lads who reported for spring practice weighing around 135 pounds have reported to camp qualified for the welterweight division, and this is heartening news. A youngster by the name of Marshall Hendryx, for instance, who played on the Cowhand team last year and came out for spring training this year a slight 130-pounder, now tickles the indicator at 146. He was about twice as big as his weight in spring training, and the only lament was the size of him. Now he has blossomed out as a real contender for a halfback position.

A PROBABLE starting lineup? Well, Pinkey isn't sure yet, because there are several things to be worked out with the green squad. But it appears that at least two places are clinched in the backfield, and maybe three in the line.

There will be several individual battles for certain positions, two of them in the backfield. Clendon Kerr, who never played a lick of football in his life, who registered at Lubbock High school last year in time to be a star on the basketball team, is going to give somebody a fit for a regular backfield place, Pinkey believes. He is down as a halfback. Murray Venable, who starred on the Cowhand team year before last, is another good looking halfback. They just possibly be the starters.

Battling Kerr and Venable are Hendryx, mentioned above, who is looking good; Joe McClinton, younger brother of the famous Snyder High school McClinton, who is just about the fastest thing in training camp, and Harold Ingley, a transfer from Monroe who is getting his first taste of football.

The quarterback position is pretty well sewed up by Co-Captain Othie Upton, one of the two returning letter men of last year—one of the two returning squadsmen, also. Othie's understudies are Guy Bonnette and Earl Ince.

There is a battle for the fullback, or blocking back, position between Hershel Maxey and Max Rutledge, standouts last year on Ross Ayers' Cowhand team, and so far it seems to be a toss-up as to which of the two is best. Maxey may hold a slight edge, but now, but Rutledge is expected to improve steadily.

As for the line, the ends may be Ralph Letsinger and C. J. Griggs. The latter is a brother of last year's Ocie Griggs, and may turn out to be a better ball player. Letsinger is the long, lanky youth who played considerable basketball last winter.

Chapman had counted upon the large Ritchie boys as his tackles. They are 200-pounders, and fairly fast, but in camp they have not performed as well as they look. Something about their attitude, maybe, just as is the case with big Clayton Wassom, a fullback candidate. These three boys could make names for themselves if they applied themselves eagerly, although the game is new to them.

The other returning letter man, Dixie White, co-captain with Upton, probably will fill a tackle position. There was talk of making an end of him, or maybe a center, but he may be needed more at tackle. The center job seems to be safe with 204-pound Rafe Nabors, another Westerner freshman who is coming along very nicely indeed.

At least one guard position is safe. Lonny "Primo" McCurry is the lad's name, and it looks like he's "in." Not so large, but plenty solid and fast, he is due to fill one guard post completely. Other guard candidates who are looking up are Paul Kinard, Wilson Abbott, Wilburn Piercey and Cecil "Red" Sanders.

CHAPMAN'S LETTER and Lowrey's oral discussion lead to the same thing: Westerner prospects look much brighter today than they did last spring or a week ago. The training camp is working wonders. The boys all live together, work together and play together, and any coach will tell you that a certain amount of this is very, very helpful to a team.

The training grind starts at 8 o'clock each morning when the boys gather for skull practice. Field work begins about 8:45 or 9 o'clock, with calisthenics, followed by signal running, dummy scrimmages, group work and individual work. They go for a swim about 11 o'clock, and after lunch are "on their own" for a couple of hours, reporting back for more field work at 3 o'clock, winding up the day's work with another swim, maybe a hike, and a healthy supper. By 9 o'clock they're ready to hit the hay.

The "camp" is the large dormitory at Montezuma college. Originally constructed as a mammoth resort hotel, the building has served as Montezuma College for several years, being closed for a time, now reopened as an educational institution fostered by the Baptist church. Just now it is occupied only by the Westerners and the "keepers," and, Pinkey says, is a fine place to spend a vacation, or conduct a training camp.

Cards Seem Pennant Bound After Double Throttling Of Bucs

BROTHERS DEAN ARE AGAIN CAST IN HERO ROLES

BY ANDY CLARKE
Associated Press Sports Writer

Back in their own ballwick for the remainder of the season, those pennant-bent Cards are going to be hard to beat.

They threw the Brothers Dean into the fray Monday and emerged with a double triumph over the Pittsburgh Pirates, 4-3 and 4-1.

In the first game they came from behind in the ninth to tie the score and then battled along evenly until the sixteenth inning when Medwick doubled and came home on a single by Jim Collins.

Daffy In Relief

Paul Dean, who entered the game in the tenth after Hallahan was retired for a pinch hitter, was credited with his 16th victory.

Dizzy recorded his 23rd win in the second game. It was a soft job for dusk halted the contest after the fifth inning.

The 25,000 fans who flocked to Fenway park saw 24 innings of baseball between the Boston Red Sox and the Washington Senators as the Sox took the first game 9-8 in 11 innings and the Senators won the second, 3-2 in 13 innings.

Jack Wilson, relief pitcher in the opener, clouted one into the center field bleachers in the 11th inning and accounted for the winning run.

Cubs, Cincy Split

The Sox came from behind to knot the nightcap in the ninth. Kress hit a single to bring Myers in with the winning run in the 13th.

The Cubs and Cincinnati also split a double bill, Chicago taking the opener 3-1 and the Reds the second game, 4-2.

Billy Herman's hitting was the margin of victory in the first game. He collected a double, two singles and a sacrifice. Errors by Herman and Hartnett allowed the Reds to step away to a 3-0 lead off Bill Lee early in the second game.

The St. Louis Browns broke even in a doubleheader with the Cleveland Indians, taking the first 4-1 and losing the nightcap, 7-2.

Auker Wins

The Detroit Tigers took both games from the Chicago White Sox to increase their lead in the American league to nine full games.

Schoolboy Rowe won the first game 6-1 as 31,000 fans, the largest holiday morning crowd in the history of Navin Field, looked on. He hit a home run with a man on base while hanging up victory No. 17.

Elden Auker kept seven hits well scattered as he chalked up his 15th victory in the afternoon encounter.

LUBBOCK HIGH'S SEASON TICKETS TO BE SOLD SOON

Season coupon books, for admittance to Lubbock High school's football games on the home field this season, will go on sale, probably this week, E. J. Lowery, business manager of athletics, said Monday.

Lowrey returned Sunday from the Lubbock High school pre-season football training camp at Montezuma, N. M., in order to make arrangements for the printing and advance sale of season tickets, which will go at a real "bargain price."

Fans paying $2.50 for a coupon book will be admitted to eight games played by Lubbock High team this season, Lowrey said. These include five Westerner games and three Cowhand contests. The coupon books will be on the order of those used at Texas Tech, and will call for reserved seats at each game. Purchasers of coupon books will occupy the same grandstand seat for every game during the season.

Tech Fans Warned

Texas Tech season tickets are on sale now for those who purchased them last year. Coupon book holders last season have through Thursday of this week in which to exercise options on the same seats. After Thursday, all reserved seats will go on sale via the season ticket route. Fans are urged to act quickly if they wish to retain the grandstand locations they occupied last year.

Congressman Is Winner Over Son

HARLINGEN, Sept. 3. (AP)—Congressman Richard Kleberg of Corpus Christi was forced to play fifteen holes of par golf Monday afternoon to defeat his son, Richard, Jr., in the second flight of the fourth annual Rio Grande Valley Amateur championship golf tournament.

Congressman Kleberg won three down. Both he and his son previously had won three matches and a large gallery followed the father-son duel.

All flights except the championship have been completed. Bill Barton, Mercedes, the defending champion, will play the final 36-hole match Sunday against Dickie Turner, Mission.

Southworth And Morgan In Finals

BIG SPRING, Sept. 3 (AP)—Eddie Morgan, medalist, and J. C. Southworth of Sweetwater, conqueror of the defending champion, faced each other today in the finals of the fifth annual Big Spring Country club golf tournament.

Morgan eliminated H. S. Forgeron of Midland 3 and 2 in the quarter finals Monday, and defeated Bob Scott of Colorado, 5 and 4, in the penultimate round.

Southworth disposed of Shirley Robbins of Big Spring, 6 and 4, and won his way to the finals over J. J. Neal of Hobbs, N. M., the defending champion, 5 and 4.

YOUNG JUDEANS PROTEST

The resolutions will be forwarded to the Young Judean National board.

LAYDEN PLANS TO REVISE SYSTEM

IRISH TO SHOOT MORE PLAYS TO LEFT NEXT SEASON

(Editor's Note: This is the first of a series of articles on football prospects at leading universities and colleges for the 1935 season.)

BY WILLIAM WEEKES
Associated Press Sports Writer

SOUTH BEND, Ind., Sept. 3. (AP)—Elmer Layden has about decided he will have to take some liberties with the Notre Dame football system handed down by Knute Rockne this season.

Faced with as tough a schedule as any Irish squad has dared, and unexpectedly deprived of stars on whom he had counted, Layden contemplates further development of a "weak side" attack. Almost without exception, Notre Dame's great teams of the past ran most of their plays to the right, with the left halfback carrying the ball.

Last year, however, when the orthodox attack failed to function consistently, Layden switched, shooting more plays to the left. The result was that a right halfback, George Melinkovich, did more running and less blocking and became the team's leading ground gainer and scorer. Layden's younger brother, Mike, as Melinkovich's first understudy, came in for a share of the honors, and is likely to be even better this year.

Layden, although about as pessimistic as coaches ever become, is not particularly worried over his backs. The line problem, however, has him guessing. Only Wayne Millner, an end, and Tackle Joe Michuta, of the five linemen Layden had planned on, are back. Captain-Elect Joe Sullivan died last March. Jack Robinson was declared ineligible for having played five minutes of a "B" team game in 1931. Bill Smith, a veteran guard, was lost through illness.

"We have good backs," Layden said, "but they can't get anywhere unless we can patch up the line. The loss of Sullivan, Robinson and Smith upset most of my plans.

"We not only lost a great tackle when Sullivan died, but our spark-plug, as well. We will have to find a new leader, which will be as hard as filling in the uncertain spots in the line."

The schedule: Sept. 28, Kansas at Notre Dame; Oct. 5, at Carnegie Tech; Oct. 12, at Wisconsin; Oct. 19, Pittsburgh at Notre Dame; Oct 26, Navy at Baltimore; Nov. 2, at Ohio State; Nov. 9, Northwestern at Notre Dame; Nov. 16, Army at New York; Nov. 23, Southern California at Notre Dame.

TIGERS ARE VASTLY IMPROVED OVER LAST YEAR'S OUTFIT, SAYS MICKEY

(This is the last of a series of stories appraising the pennant-bound Detroit Tigers.)

BY EARL HILLIGAN
Associated Press Sports Writer

DETROIT, Sept. 3. (AP)—The Detroit Tigers of 1935, rushing along toward another American league title, are a better all-around ball club than the team which upset the dope last season by taking the first pennant a Detroit team had won since 1909.

Manager Mickey Cochrane points out that the 1935 club got away slowly—in April the team was in the cellar—but that it rose to the league lead in a hard climb which proved it the best-balanced club in the circuit, in Cochrane's opinion.

"No club could make that climb if it were depending on luck and the breaks," the Tiger boss and backstop says. "The boys are playing great defensive ball, the pitching has shown a steady improvement until it is the best in the league. Our batting has been consistently better than that of any other club."

'Iron-Man' Setup

Last year Greenberg on first, Gehringer on second, Rogell at shortstop and Owen at third base, constituted the best infield in the league, both defensive and offensively. They were the "iron-man" quartet, and only for one game was the combination broken . . . when Greenberg was excused because of a Jewish holiday.

This year the infield, in comparison, has been "shot full of holes." In the early season, Cochrane had to use Schuble and Clifton at third because of Owen's condition. He had sinus trouble and wasn't in any shape to play . . . with the result that the play of the entire squad was bad.

Owen is back at third, and playing fine ball. But the compensating factor which helped the club along while Owen was on the bench was the brilliant play of Gehringer at second, as always, hit and fielded brilliantly. Rogell showed himself one of the best shortstops in the game by consistently saving games with great stops and fine throws.

Three Double Killings

In one game Rogell and Gehringer worked three double plays—all of them pulling Pitcher Crowder out of bad spots.

Last season, Schoolboy Rowe won 24 games and lost only eight. He put together a 16-game winning streak. His sensational performance was one reason the Tigers won the flag. This year he hasn't gone quite as "hot," but the performance of Pitchers Crowder, Elden Auker and Tommy Bridges has been another compensating factor.

Goslin, White and Fox, in the outfield, are playing better ball than did the 1934 outfield. Rap Hayworth, subbing for Cochrane behind the plate, is a greatly improved player over the Hayworth of 1934. All in all, the Tigers, as Cochrane says, are better this year.

SCHOOLBOY ROWE

MARVEL FAVORED TO DEFEAT DOMAR IN TOP MAT BOUT

The Masked Marvel, who ranks along with Otis Clingman and Buck Weaver in the middleweight ranks of the Southwest, grapples with Jack Domar, tough Cincinnatian, in the main event at the Arena tomorrow night.

The Marvelous One has been taking a rest cure for stomach disorders, probably caused by absorbing too many skull butts and drop-kicks over a period of years. But he's back in the mat wars with full effectiveness now, and is a heavy favorite to halt Domar.

La Rue Returns

The preliminary and semi-final bouts promise a lot of wallop. Promoter Allen is bringing back the Dallas comedy star, lanky John La Rue, to meet a newcomer in the curtain raiser. The stranger is Don Kent of Chattanooga, and the promoter says Kent has a record that qualifies him for a place on anybody's mat show. La Rue worked in the semi-final last week, battling Don Hill to a 30-minute draw that was packed with action and laughs. Toward the last, Hill's cheek bone collided with a La Rue heel, with the result that Hill is laid up with a fractured face for a few weeks.

Doc Mueller, the grappling chiropractor of Austin, and Cliff Chambres, Dallas villain, mix in the semi-final, and this should bring the folks to the edges of the seats.

The card differs this week from last in that the tin-ears for the semi-final and main event are [illegible] not hesitate to employ all the treachery and illegal holds in the books to gain a point.

FOREST HILLS, N. Y., Sept. 3 (AP)—Frankie Parker succumbed to Fred Perry in straight sets yesterday in the Men's National singles tennis championship and the after-effects of his defeat are felt mostly by the U. S. Lawn Tennis association today.

Parker went down, 6-4, 6-2, 6-0, in a fourth-round match which saw the defending champion, peeved because he was made to play in a chill, wet atmosphere, go "all out" in the last two sets and give one of the finest exhibition ever turned in here.

Bright Young Hopeful

For two years Parker has been one of the association's bright young hopefuls. He's one of the youngsters the U. S. L. T. A. is counting on to wrest the international Davis cup from England's Perry and "Bunny" Austin.

Parker wasn't expected to beat Perry, but he was counted on to make a better showing than he did.

Allison Has Protest

Here and there over the West Side club's courts:

Wilmer Allison, the top-seeded American, is piqued because the U. S. L. T. A. put him in the same half of the draw with Perry. As the country's No. 1 and last year's finalist, Allison feels he should have been put in the opposite half instead of Don Budge. Now the only chance the Texan has of winning the title is by beating Perry in the semi-final and then taking over Budge, who appears to have a cinch path to the title round.

All this talk about the United States having a dearth of prospective international material is just so much talk in the opinion of A. Wallis Myers, noted British expert.

"You have more youngsters playing than any other nation," he said. "Just give them time, that's all."

There's an umpire here who's a rabid baseball fan. Refereeing a match he called out, after the first point, "ball one." The crowd loved it.

SCHOOLBOY ROWE and PETE FOX, Tigers — Former hit homer and held White Sox to five hits in first game; Fox drove in four runs in second game with homer and two singles.

BILL HERMAN, Cubs and GENE SCHOOT, Reds — Herman helped Lon Waneke to his 16th victory with double, two singles and sacrifice in opener; Schoot held Cubs to six scattered hits in nightcap.

JIMMY COLLINS and DIZZY DEAN, Cardinals — Collins' single drove Joe Medwick home with winning run in 16th inning of first game; Dean won 22nd victory in nightcap as Collins drove in three runs.

PAUL ANDREWS, Browns and MONTE PEARSON, Indians — Their pitching resulted in split of double bill, Andrews hurling five-hit ball in first and Pearson three-hit ball in second.

JACK WILSON, JOE CRONIN, Red Sox, and ALVIN POWELL, Senators—Wilson's home run decided 11-inning first game after Cronin had driven in six runs; Powell drove in two of Senators three tallies in 13-inning nightcap.

MARBERRY TO GO ON TECH SPECIAL TO LOYOLA GAME

Fred "Firpo" Marberry, umpire in the American League and former Detroit Tiger moundman, is first to make reservations on the Texas Tech special train to the Loyola university game at Los Angeles.

E. Kancher, Santa Fe railroad officials here, said Monday Marberry had called him from Philadelphia Sunday night to make reservations for tickets and Pullman space, saying that he would "be here hot and ready to ride that rattler to Los Angeles."

The train is to leave Lubbock Oct. 23, returning Oct. 28. The game is scheduled for Friday night, Oct. 25, at Gilmore Stadium.

SHIPPERS HOT ON HEELS OF INDIANS IN TEXAS LEAGUE

(By The Associated Press)

A full day of doubleheaders in the Texas league on Labor day left the status of the clubs little changed.

Oklahoma City's Indians, leading the league, split even in a double bill at Tulsa, winning the opener 7 to 1 and then being nosed out in the nightcap, 3 to 2. The Beaumont Exporters, hot on the heels of the Indians, gained a full game by taking both ends of the doubleheader with Houston the scores in both games were the same, 4 to 3. Fort Worth, struggling desperately to crawl out of the cellar, jumped on the Steers for a double victory, 4-3 and 5-2. Manager Alex Gaston of Dallas protested the second game, disputing Umpire Welsh's decision on an infield fly. He was ousted from the game for his argument.

Goes 21 Innings

It took San Antonio and Galveston 21 innings to come out even. The Missions won the opener 3-2 in the regulation nine innings, but the Buccaneers drove them back in the second engagement and finally came out ahead, 2-1 after 12 innings of close battling. Galveston gained a certain place in the play-off to determine the league champion by dividing the twin bill.

GREENVILLE, S. C. (AP)—"I don't have any money, but we can all drink this liquor I got," a well-meaning hitch-hiker told his benefactors. Thereupon they took him to jail, and he must pay $200 or serve three months. He found out too late that he had hailed a car load of county policemen.

THE PLAINSMAN is in no mood for humor as these lines are typed.

There is no place for jokes in this column today; no room for those regular, fictitious characters, "The Girl on Broadway" and "That Man on Avenue Q".

There is room only for a tribute to a fellow worker, a good friend and a fine mechanic who, in the parlance of the newspaper world, has "taken his last trick, has turned out his light and has had the final '30' written beneath his name".

Late Sunday night Fred Hines answered the call that comes to us all somewhere along the highway of life.

He slipped away, across the river and to the land from which no traveler returns.

The heart of every person on The Avalanche-Journal is heavy today because "Old Hiney" doesn't work here any more and no one. The Plainsman perhaps least of all, has any inclination toward gaiety.

So today this column is turned over to "Old Hiney"—"Old Hiney" who was a friend of many people in Lubbock, people in all walks of life. To "Old Hiney" who loved to live and who lived his life, full to the very brim with happiness and the zest for living.

"OLD HINEY" is gone.

It doesn't seem possible, but it's true.

The thin, gray little fellow who has been part of the blood, bone and sinew of The Journal for nearly a dozen years is with us no more.

His great, loyal heart cracked under the strain of illness and he's moved to the Elysian fields where the shining presses run all the time and good pressmen are supremely happy.

They're burying "Old Hiney" up at Ardmore, Okla., tomorrow, but they're burying only the mortal shell.

"Old Hiney's" spirit will live on down here at The Journal, where he has been well nigh as essential to "getting out the paper" as the big press which was his pride and joy.

WE all called him "Old Hiney" down here—not because he was old and certainly not in disrespect. We called him "Old Hiney" because we loved him and because he loved us and because "Old Hiney" fitted him just like "old" fits Gibralter and the term "Old Rugged Cross" denotes reliability, seasoned experience, time-tested, tried and found not wanting.

Time, it is said, heals all sorrow. We know, at least, that it makes sorrow easier to bear.

But it's going to be a long, long time before things will seem anywhere near right in The Journal pressroom and we're all going to miss the sight of "Old Hiney", his blue eyes twinkling over his spectacles, chisel in hand, his spare 120 pounds of bone and muscle almost lost in a pair of overalls much too big for him.

WHENEVER The Plainsman thinks of the word "loyalty" he always has thought and always will think of "Old Hiney".

He ate, slept and breathed his work; the press to him was a living, breathing thing, too, and in his last illness, when he was partially delirious, he would raise himself up on one elbow, cock his head to one side and mutter:

"I think there's a knock in the press".

Other times, fully conscious, he would talk about "having to get back to the printin' office. They'll be needing me".

And he wanted to know about "my bunch"—and when he said "my bunch" he meant the whole staff of over 50, "back office" and "front office", for "Old Hiney" drew no lines. If they worked on the paper, no matter whether they were carrier kids, mechanical, editorial or business office men and women, they were in "my bunch".

That was the way "Old Hiney" was.

BUT "Old Hiney", bless his cheerful, faithful soul, is gone and all of us who worked with him and played with him, who laughed with him and hoped with him—all we can say, in "Old Hiney's" own words, is:

"Gee, we're glad we knew you; you're were a swell guy, "Hiney", and wherever you are, we know you're still a swell guy, making things better than they were when you got there".

Make Food For Stars And Extras Get It! Chef Finds His Favorite Dishes Avoided By Noted Players Of Hollywood

BY DAN THOMAS
Journal Hollywood Correspondent

HOLLYWOOD, Sept. 3.—If you happen to be in Hollywood and crave a luncheon companion, be sure you invite a star. Never take an extra—it costs too much.

Strange as that may seem, it's a fact. Nine times out of ten, the check for an extra would amount to at least twice the bill for the star's lunch.

Of course, there are reasons. Stars can have as much or as fancy food as they like at any time. Hence most of them care very little for elaborate dishes and many of them eat sparingly, particularly at lunch time. They claim heavy lunches make them logy.

Extras usually can afford only the simplest of food. As a result they really dig in when the meal is free. And they don't care how logy it makes them.

If your companion is a girl, there's still another reason for the star to eat lightly. Most stars have to watch their weight rather closely. Extra girls don't have to worry about that. They mix enough meals to counteract any heavy ones they are fortunate enough to enjoy.

The extras aren't the only heavy eaters in the movie racket, however. Employes of the stars and studio laborers also are in that category. Invariably their lunch checks are higher than those of the stars.

Contrasts In Taste

Jean Noetzli, chef in the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer commissary, has made quite a study of the contrasting appetites of the persons he serves. He continually bewails the fact that the stars steer clear of his culinary masterpieces.

"Clark Gable lunches on navy bean soup, bread and butter and tea," says Noetzli. "His makeup man orders caviar at least three times a week. Joan Crawford nearly always eats a fruit salad, nothing else. But her hairdresser's favorite dish is chicken a la Newburg.

"Lionel Barrymore eats one chop and some potatoes. His chauffeur, who frequently eats with him, always orders some fancy dish. Jean Harlow dotes on pineapple and cottage cheese salads. Her secretary favors mushroom omelettes.

"Once a week I feature on the menu broiled sweetbreads with sauce Colbert. In the five years I've been here not one star has ordered it. But I serve many dishes of it to extras and electricians.

"Every day I have a star's special of some kind, something I regard as particularly tasty. And I always get a lot of orders for it—but none of them from the stars."

Veteran At 9

Delmar Watson is only 9 years old—but he already has played in more pictures than many great stars. He's really a veteran in the movie game, his 78th role being the little backwoods brother of Barbara Stanwyck in "Anne Oakley." Delmar, who made his debut on the screen when he was only 7 months old, was born in the seventh month of the year and is the seventh youngster in a family of eight children.

Lucky Room

There's one dressing room at the Warner studio that has become sort of a charm. It always brings good luck to the person who occupies it. But no player ever stays in it very long. As a result, no name ever is painted on the door. Instead, the players simply write their own names with chalk when they enter and cross them out when they leave. The list now includes Alice Brady, Ginger Rogers, George Brent, Jean Muir and Wini Shaw, Wini being the present occupant.

SALUTING THE THIN, GRAY LINE OF HEROES

Drums are rolling and bugles are blowing in Amarillo today as a thin, gray line of heroes gathers for the 45th annual general reunion of United Veterans of the Confederacy.

Aged men, who 70 and 75 years ago represented the flower of Southern manhood, are reliving the days of the war between the states, flanked by sons and daughters, grandsons and granddaughters, great-grandsons and great-granddaughters. For a few brief hours they will catch again the fleeting memories of a day long gone and then will return to their homes from which some of them will never travel again.

Pathos struggles with pride at the Amarillo reunion. Pathos when one compares the feeble old men with the mind's picture of what they were from '61 to '65.

Pride when one remembers how they struggled bravely and undauntedly against insurmountable odds.

For they were men in those days at Bull Run, at Gettysburg and along the Shenandoah—men with high ideals and with the courage to support them. Today, shells of their youth, they wait only to die.

It is sad to contemplate, yet an inexorable law of nature that some day, [illegible] knocks.

The best we can do is resign ourselves to the fact that they have lived full and useful lives.

As the band blazes forth in the stirring tunes of "Dixie", the South again salutes the heroes of the Confederacy—not only today, but every day.

And may their brief remaining months and years be wrapped in comfort and happiness, bolstered by the knowledge that they "fought a good fight" and "completed the course".

Dutchers' News And Views OF WASHINGTON

Dutcher

(Copyright, 1934, NEA Service, Inc.)

BY RODNEY DUTCHER
Journal Washington Correspondent

WASHINGTON, Sept. 3.—Displays of genuine emotion, as distinguished from the simulated variety, are so rare in Congress that they shouldn't pass without mention.

Nor is it every day that a president of the United States clambers rapidly and awkwardly down from a high perch.

Those two phenomena, however, acted respectively as cause and effect in the sequence of events leading up to passage of the first piece of neutrality legislation to go on the law books. It was the red-hot indignation of certain members, conspicuously Senator Homer Bone of Washington and Representative Maury Maverick of Texas, which impressed and infected others to the extent of wrecking a neat plan to bury the proposals designed to keep us out of war.

Four days before the anticipated adjournment date, Bone got word that the Nye-Clark resolutions, one of the fruits of the munitions committee investigation, were to be sidetracked.

Bone Blasts War Mongers

Bone rushed onto the Senate floor and held it most of the day with as passionate, forceful, and effective a delivery as one has heard since Costigan of Colorado spoke for unemployment relief in the ruggedly individualistic Hoover period.

Tracing the 1914-17 "road to war" through State Department documents recently unearthed, ably seconded by Nye, Clark, and Vandenberg, Bone poured out a scorn for bureaucrats and plutocrats who might again bungle us into war which was equaled only by his contempt for a Congress which would ignore European war clouds and toddle home without action to insure this country against participation.

Senators and galleryites sat tense. When Bone had finished, it was obvious that neutrality legislation would pass the Senate. It quickly did, almost unanimously.

F. R. Firmly Squelched

The House Foreign Relations Committee was framing a relatively innocuous bill and few believed even that would reach the House floor. Then senators went to House members and demanded strong action. Bone demanded of Rules Chairman John O'Connor that his committee let the neutrality proposals onto the floor, "in the name of your mother and every other mother . . ." and O'Connor caved in.

Meanwhile, Maverick and eight other congressmen went to the White House about it. Roosevelt at once complained to them about the mandatory provisions of the Senate resolution.

[illegible] executive discretion," he said.

"But you're not going to get it!" blurted Maverick, who is still badly crippled from wounds received in the last war, in what was probably an unprecedented outburst at the White House. "There's no reason why you, as president, should have the power to steer us toward war. That kind of legislation will never go through the House or the Senate."

The other eight supported Maverick and threatened a filibuster.

Within half an hour, the White House had sent word to the hill that it would consent to a mandatory embargo on munitions until March, and to the rest of the Senate bill.

Paints Ghastly Picture

On the House floor, Maverick cited Mussolini's statement of that day that Italy was "on the march" and, said he:

"Someone may think that I, as an old soldier, believe that 'march' talk is all glory, flags, and bugles. Like hell! I say that literally. All I can think of is blood and guts, rotting, stinking bodies—mud."

After that, the House session became almost a revival meeting as members gave testimony. As for instance, Ashbrook of Ohio, who said, to loud applause:

"I would like to say that I served in Congress during the World War and there is not a vote that I then cast that I regret today as the vote I cast against the McLemore resolution (which warned American citizens to keep off the high seas and restricted passports). I am happy to vote for this resolution."

Better Than Nothing

The law Congress passed imposes the arms embargo, licenses munitions exports, and lets the president lay down minor restrictions. It falls short of the Nye-Clark resolutions because it doesn't say anything about loans or ordinary exports to warring nations—two major routes to the last war. The Senate munitions group and the House "mavericks" are satisfied fairly well, believing they got the most they could in the face of a hostile State Department, Navy, and White House, but planning to ask for more next session.

Senator Clark says: "It's better to have a little bit of something than a great deal of nothing."

BEGIN HERE TODAY

JO DARIEN, finishing her first year in college, learns her father is out of work. Jo hunts a job and secures part time work in a marine supply store. There she meets wealthy, handsome DOUGLAS MARSH who offers her the job of hostess at his inn at Crest Lake. Jo accepts. This causes a quarrel with BRET PAUL to whom she is engaged and Jo breaks the engagement.

She goes to Crest Lake. Her duties are pleasant but Marsh's eccentric mother takes a dislike to the girl. BABS MONTGOMERY, a school acquaintance who is jealous of Jo's popularity, comes to the inn. PETER FRAGONET, film actor, and his wife are also guests.

Fragonet takes Jo for a sailboat ride. Babs Montgomery, piloting a speedboat, crashes into the sailboat and Jo is hurled into the water. She is not injured but suffers from shock. Marsh comes to see her and later Fragonet calls.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER XVII

"The nurse has taken your tray downstairs," Fragonet replied. He gripped the girl's arm in a hand that trembled. "Jo—I'm a fool to try to talk to you like this when you're ill. But I'm trying to make you see how important it is. I want you enough to give up everything." He released her arm, seemed to control his emotion with effort, and then went on more quietly. "You must feel something toward me. Out there on the lake that day you said you didn't know for certain. Do you know now?"

Jo felt trapped and helpless. She realized that his advantage was unfair, that even his simple question was unfair—as long as there was a Mrs. Fragonet. And yet she felt drawn toward this man, not because of his place in a world of women, but rather because he was so like a willful child. She sensed rather than knew the tragedy of such a life, a life made up of so many easy conquests that one barrier meant almost madness.

No, he had no rights, none in the world—but he was in love with her, and he had risked his life for her. Whatever else there was to consider, these things couldn't be discounted now.

She looked half-fearfully into his dark eyes, summoning the courage to begin. "I like you, Peter . . . but I don't want to say that I love you, because I—I don't know." She smiled. "You see, I have to be careful. I thought I was in love once, not so very long ago. It seemed the most important thing in the world that I hold to a certain one man, and marry him, and live with him until I died. And then one night — with just a few words — everything was finished. But I keep on living, and don't think about him very much now. And what I feel for you isn't at all what I felt for Bret Paul."

"How do you know that was love?" Fragonet asked. "You were a girl then, and now you're a woman. I've watched you grow into a woman in the short time I've been at Crest Lake. You're years older now than you were that day we rode from the station in Marsh's car. You can't be sure at all that you loved this boy at the university."

"I know I can't, Peter. That's true. And I may not know for a long time."

"Until you really fall in love, perhaps?" Fragonet said.

"Perhaps. . . ." She returned his gaze steadily, but there was something in her eyes which begged him to leave her now, to give her time to think things out. He regained his feet uncertainly and stood looking down at her.

"Jo, if only you wouldn't be so afraid," he said. "If only you'd let down your shield. I—"

He broke off suddenly and dropped to his knees beside the bed, taking her in his arms.

"Peter! You—"

But Fragonet's lips cut off her words and he held her helpless in his arms. Weak with fury, Jo held her clenched fists against his shoulders, and as he released her she struck him across the mouth with all the strength at her command. She was about to speak when another voice hit like acid into the silence of the room. It was Edna Fragonet's, and just beyond her Jo saw Mrs. Marsh!

"A very pretty performance, Miss Darien," Edna Fragonet was saying, "but it would have been more convincing if you hadn't seen me first."

Poor Jo could only sag there helplessly against the pillows, her mouth foolishly open. Between her anger at Fragonet and astonishment at the sudden appearance of his wife she could find no words at all. But instantly Fragonet faced the two women in the doorway.

"Let's not have one of your scenes, Edna. I assure you I'm entirely to blame." He managed a wry smile, and in that moment Jo

SYRACUSE, Kas.—Fast thinking Wilbur Marshall, night clerk of a hotel here, was warned that flood waters were coming down and likely would sweep through the town, so he did something about it.

The sand-containing cuspidors were dragged hastily to the lobby door and a dyke was improvised. As a result, no water ran into the building, although first floors of adjoining stores were flooded.

Marshall failed to report if he had any tobacco chewing hotel guests that night.

Stock Market

WALL STREET REPORT

NEW YORK, Sept. 3 (AP)—Opinions as well as prices were decidedly mixed in today's stock market.

Traders who had anticipated an "after-Labor-day" boom were a trifle disappointed, but they continued to entertain visions of the "long-pull." The commission houses gossipped over European war prospects, the Ethiopian oil concession and domestic problems although professing to find nothing stimulating in any of them.

Shares of International Business Machines moved up 3 points and Columbian Carbon gained 2. United Fruit and Eastman Kodak were about 1 each higher. Issues of Paramount Pictures, Fox Film and Warner Bros. were lively performers with small gains. The rails and oils were unchanged to somewhat easier and Chrysler, General Motors, Consolidated Gas, U. S. Steel, Bethlehem, Du Pont, American Water Works, Columbia Gas, and Sears Roebuck were off fractionally to a point.

ROAD PROGRAM

engineer had been employed to draft the plans.

Two paving projects, tentatively estimated at $25,000 each, were submitted by the City of Lubbock. Depending upon cooperation of property owners, the City commission recently authorized paving included in the two projects. Following streets would be improved:

Twentieth street from El Camino Avenue to City limits; Twenty-first street from Avenue X to Central Avenue; Twenty-second street from Avenue X to Balboa avenue; Central avenue from Nineteenth street to Twenty-second street; College avenue from Twentieth street to Twenty-second street;

Avenue F from Broadway to Fourteenth street; Avenue F from Broadway to Main street; Avenue O from Broadway to Main street; Avenue V from Broadway to Main street; Eighth street from Avenue Q to College; Eighth street from Avenue Q to Avenue H; Thirteenth street from Avenue T to College avenue; Avenue U from Broadway to Nineteenth street; Avenue S from Broadway to Thirteenth street; Avenue T from Broadway to Seventh street; Seventh street from Avenue T to Avenue Q.

Improvements at Wolfforth school, estimates not available, were placed before the planning board as a proposed project. Building of eight miles of lateral roads in the vicinity of Shallowater was also proposed as a possible project.

Discussions with representatives of political units will continue at the next meeting of the board, Monday, Sept. 9, at 2 p. m. in WPA offices.

Grand Jury Panel Drawn Here Today

Sixteen Lubbock county men, 12 of whom will be chosen for service on a 99th district court grand jury, were drawn this morning by a jury commission.

The men will report to Judge Clark M. Mullican at 10 a. m. Thursday. They are:

H. G. Sanders, Royce Pember, McDuff Gambell, all of Slaton; Sears Gentry, W. H. Robinson, Shallowater; Earl Redell, route 5, Lubbock; A. C. Wright, Shallowater; E. A. Woods, J. N. Sowder, Idalou; Charles Bacon, C. A. Burrus, W. W. Snodgrass, N. F. Minor, all of Lubbock; N. A. Payne, W. A. Martin, and L. M. Hobgood, all of route 5 Lubbock.

The commission members were D. H. Hatchett, John Spikes, J. T. Hubbard, O. D. McInroe, Henry Mahoney.

Judge Mullican today had granted three temporary injunctions to restrain public sale of property. The injunctions were issued in the cases of F. R. Jones against J. J. Dillard; W. A. Ford against S. J. McFarland and others, and Mrs. Minnie B. Miller and others against H. C. Glenn, receiver for Temple Trust company.

INJURED IN ACCIDENT

RALLS, Sept. 3.—(Special)—After his automobile had turned over three times Sunday afternoon, Frank Hawkins, 18, son of Mrs. Joe Hawkins of Ralls, was treated for internal injuries and for a badly torn left ear. He has been taken to his mother's home, where his condition is reported to be satisfactory.

Cotton Market

NEW YORK REPORT

NEW YORK, Sept. 3 (AP)—Cotton futures opened steady, unchanged to 2 higher on buying by trade houses and small offers. Oct. 10.31; Dec. 10.35; Jan. 10.38; March 10.45; May 10.48; July 10.50.

Offerings increased after the call with a little more hedging coming from the south. Demand was limited. Prices eased off to 10.27 for Oct and 10.43 for May, net declines of 3 to 6 points but there was enough trade demand to hold prices steady at those levels.

Traders were watching the course of the tropical disturbance off the Florida coast and there was a tendency to await for additional private end-August crop reports before making commitments.

Liverpool continued to buy during the first half hour, particularly in the Dec position. The demand from that quarter tapered off later but no selling pressure of consequence developed. The market held steady around mid-day with Oct ruling around 10.43 and May 10.46, or 3 points higher to 3 points net lower.

Futures closed steady, 2-8 lower. Spot quiet; middling 10.65.

NEW ORLEANS COTTON

NEW ORLEANS, Sept. 3. (AP)—The cotton market resumed business today after the holidays with active futures registering losses of 1 to 5 points. Light offerings by the trade and professionals at the first call unsettled active months and Oct. lost 25 cents a bale at 10.25, Dec was off 2 points at 10.29, while May lost 1 point to 10.43.

Light buying came into the market during the first hour and prices recovered to within a point or two of the previous closing levels.

Active options held in a narrow range around opening levels during the morning with the volume of business falling off.

As trading passed the halfway mark Oct. sold at 10.28, Dec. at 10.28, Mch at 10.38 and May at 10.42.

The leather over the holiday appeared to be closely in line with previous weekly and daily reports. Scattered showers fell in Texas with some rains reported in southern Alabama.

Grain Market

CHICAGO REPORT

CHICAGO, Sept. 3. (AP) — Wheat prices were pushed upward almost a cent a bushel at the opening today in the filling of accumulated over-the-holiday orders, but the advance was not maintained.

Opening 3-8 to 1 cent higher, Dec 90 1-4@1-2, wheat later fluctuated fractionally. Corn started 1-8 off to 1-4 up, Dec. 57 5-8@3-4, and then eased.

Wheat closed 5-8 lower to 1-8 higher compared with Saturday's finish, December 89 5-8 to 3-4, and corn was 3-8 to 1 5-8 off, December 56 to 56 1-8. Oats lost 5-8 to 7-8, rye 1 1-8 to 1 3-8, and barley was unchanged. Provisions were higher.

CCC OFFICIALS HERE ON VISIT

Col. J. O. Green, a member of the staff of Major General Johnson Hagood of San Antonio is in Lubbock today to inspect the Lubbock district office of Civilian Conservation corps and the CCC camp in Mackenzie state park.

Colonel Green is on a tour of inspection of Civilian Conservation corps camps in the northern district. Major J. F. Roehm is district commander.

Enrollees at the camp in Mackenzie state park this morning took their last typhoid serum. They probably will begin work on the park project Wednesday, a period of conditioning and innoculation having ended.

Captain F. S. Worth, commander of the camp, is in Amarillo in connection with a convention of Confederate veterans.

LOSS OF FAITH

wanted while a backward state like Ethiopia with no factories of its own, was unable to purchase abroad. And this, despite a treaty of August 1930, between Britain, France, Italy and Ethiopia whereby the latter was "to obtain all the arms and munitions necessary for the defense of its territories from external aggression."

2. There were the brutally cynical conversations between representatives of Britain, France and Italy during which the English and the French tried to find a formula which would satisfy the Italians. They offered to recommend that the Ethiopian emperor accept what would be tantamount to Italian economic supremacy within his territories. To say nothing of this partial abrogation of the independence of a fellow member of the League, there is the further historic fact that, sooner or later, the predatory European powers have always followed up economic penetration with an actual grab of the territory involved.

More Connivances

These things have not escaped the intense interest of the little nations of the world, represented in the League. But these Paris conversations were not more brutally frank than the various treaties Britain, France and Italy entered into at various times with regard to Ethiopia. Because Britain has the Soudan on the west of Ethiopia, Uganda and Kenya on the south and British Somaliland on the west; because France has French Somaliland on the east; and because Italy has Eritrea to the north and Italian Somaliland to the southeast—these three nations, without much regard for Ethiopia, had calmly gone ahead and arranged their plans for its carving — when and if the time came for carving.

In 1906 they jointly signed a treaty promising to make every effort to preserve the integrity of Ethiopia, but—there is usually a but — they also agreed to safeguard

(A) The interests of England and Egypt in the Nile basin, meaning thereby some kind of control of Lake Tana from which flows the Blue Nile.

(B) The interests of Italy in the possibility of connecting Eritrea and Somaliland by way of the Ethiopian hinterland to the west of Addis Ababa.

(C) The interests of France, as regards the hinterland of its coastal possession and the [illegible] from Djibuti to Addis Ababa.

A Secret Treaty

In the celebrated 1915 secret treaty of London, which brought Italy into the war on the side of the Allies, one section promised that, if France and England increased their territories in Africa at the expense of Germany, Italy could claim compensation in the way of redrawing the frontiers of Eritrea, Libya and Somaliland.

In November, 1919, arising out of this treaty, Italy proposed to Britain that she would support a British claim for a concession for a barrage on Lake Tana and a motor road from the lake to Soudan, if in return Britain would support an Italian Somaliland, running west of Addis Ababa, Italy reserving for itself all rights in the "Italian Zone." Britain did not favor this at the time, but in December, 1925, the British government took up the matter again. If Italy supported Britain in getting the Lake Tana barrage concession and the motor road, the British would support the Italian railway project and recognise "exclusive Italian influence" in the west of Ethiopia. This pretty little piece of diplomacy really violated the agreement of 1906 as France, the other partner, was not notified of what was going on. The Ethiopian government, learned of it and sent identical notes of protest in June, 1926, to Britain and Italy. To the British note, Ethiopia added a stinger:

"We should never have suspected that the British government would come to an agreement with another government regarding our lake."

Ethiopia further appealed to the League of Nations. The matter never came before the Council, because, placed under the limelight, both Britain and Italy squirmed out of it. They both averred their agreement did not affect Ethiopian independence. It merely secured Britain and Italy against mutual rivalries. On August 2, 1928, Ethiopia signed with Italy a twenty-year pact of friendship and arbitration. In one article they mutually pledged themselves not to take any action detrimental to the independence of the other. There was also an agreement about conciliation and arbitration in case of any disputes between them.

The increase in number of proposals was attributed by Director J. O. Jones to interest in the Work Relief program and nearness of the deadline date, Sept. 12, for the submission of projects.

was still moving over No. 9 to San Antonio but it was feared motorists would be stalled at the low water bridge between Mason and Fredericksburg.

Heavy rains in nearby sections and other parts of the state also were reported.

San Angelo received an overnight fall of 1.24 inches and Winters reported a fall of 9.75 inches in the last 24 hours. Ballinger was soaked by inches but farmers believed it to be a boon to the top grain crop. However, the cotton pest menace was expected to increase after the rain.

Coleman reported 2.83 inches and a steady rain still falling. The Hord creek, traversing the city, was rising and other creeks were filling their banks.

Heavy rains, ranging from two inches at Fredericksburg to eight inches in the Cherry mountain section, seven miles northwest of Fredericksburg, had almost repeated the June flood condition.

Neumann Winner Of Trophy Race

CLEVELAND, Sept. 3 (AP)—Harold Neumann, 29, of Moline, Ill., a nervy, precise racing pilot, held the highest prize offered by the 1935 National Air races today—the Thompson trophy.

Neumann flew a plane known as "Mr. Mulligan" ten perilous laps around a misty 15-mile course yesterday to win first place in the Thompson trophy race. His average speed was 220 miles an hour.

Not until he came to earth after the race, did Neumann know he had won. He thought Col. Roscoe Turner, far in the lead for eight laps, had won the race.

A broken oil line brought Turner down as he streaked around the course on the ninth lap at a speed of nearly four miles a minute.

WPA previously gave tentative approval to the project before forwarding it to the army engineers. That administration now will study it again with a view to making its recommendation to the allotment board, which is the last agency to pass upon such projects before their submission to President Roosevelt for final approval.

"A sufficient amount of information, however, has since been received to enable me to say definitely that, whatever the nature of this transaction may prove to be, either commercially or politically or both, the attitude and policy of this government towards the controversy between Italy and Ethiopia will be maintained hereafter just as it would have been maintained had this reported oil transaction not occurred.

"The central point in the policy of this government in regard to the Italian and Ethiopian controversy is the preservation of peace—to which policy every country throughout the world is committed by one or more treaties—and we earnestly hope that no nations will, in any circumstances, be diverted from this supreme objective."

"But no flag will ever lead ours," will be the last reunion for many. Each train and bus brought more recruits for the forty-fifth annual rally of the southern defenders.

he stated. "The American flag can be on the right, where it belongs, but it must be even and even. I am in favor of a joint reunion with that one absolute stipulation."

"[illegible] left in 1865," commented Gen. R. L. Steele of Houston, retiring commander of the Texas division, U. C. V. "I am in favor of laying down all prejudices, but we will never parade without our flag."

Vigorous opposition to the joint meeting was voiced by Major General M. J. Bonner of Fort Worth.

"It will never occur," he said, "and I'll fight it with all of my might. There are extremists on both sides. Why, we even fall out among ourselves. If we all met together there would be a fight and the war would be renewed. Some of the best friends I have are northerners, but there is no question but that disputes would arise."

Led by Capt. Taylor Branson, the 73-piece United States Marine band began a series of concerts, which will be climaxed in the grand parade Friday morning. "Dixie" became the theme song of the reunion with the arrival of the band.

Texas Session Ends

The Texas division of the Sons of Confederate Veterans prepared to wind up its convention this morning and join sons from other states below the Mason-Dixon line in honoring the aged heroes tonight. Col. Walter L. Jopkins of Richmond, Va., national commander of the S. C. V., will preside.

First business sessions of the U. C. V. will be held Wednesday morning. The principal questions to be decided will be whether another national reunion will be attempted, and whether the southerners will meet with the Grand Army of the Republic in a joint session at Gettysburg, Pa.

Paul Roy of Gettysburg, secretary of the Pennsylvania state commission, an organization formed to promote the Blue and Gray reunion, will extend the invitation.

if this were necessary, would be a perilous job, they pointed out.

The Dixie, crack ship of the Morgan line, was New York bound from New Orleans. In command is Captain Einar William Sundstrom, veteran seaman, but youngest skipper in the service of the line.

Hurricane Does Damage

The hurricane that tossed the Dixie against the reef roared across the southern tip of the Florida peninsula, damaging citrus crops and then spending its force out at sea.

Carysfort reef lies off shore—a section of a dangerous, mostly submarine arm of carol which extends from Miami to Key West.

Anxiety over the safety of 700 war veterans engaged in construction work on the Florida Keys prompted authorities to move speedily to evacuate them from the hurricane-lashed region.

An American Legion survey party reported that it had been informed a special train sent to carry the veterans to safety had been halted at Rock Harbor, about 17 miles from its goal.

The survey party was compelled to turn back, unable to proceed down the keys because the only highway was submerged in water two or three feet in depth.

FAIR TRIPS

for each of the three trips has been set at $4.

Members of the Lubbock Senior High school band will feature the porgram planned at each stop.

At the meeting Tuesday morning, members decided to charter the buses instead of having the delegation tour the towns in private cars as in the past years.

Second of the trips will be made Wednesday, Sept. 11, and the third will be made Tuesday, Sept. 17. Committeemen working on these trips are Amos Howard, chairman of the Sept. 11 trip, L. E. Grimes, vice chairman, F. H. Hemphill, J. A. Raley, jr., Truman Meinecke, Jim Barrow and I. A. Stephens; W. O. Daniels, chairman of the Sept. 17 tour, A. F. Holt, vice chairman, Jimmie Stone, J. saw the Fragonet who was the actor. He was acting now, just as she had seen him dozens of times on the screen.

"I've no intention of making a scene," his wife answered coldly. "Mrs. Marsh and I had intended to pay a sick-room visit, and we were quite unaware that we'd be interrupting."

Mrs. Marsh had glanced at Jo only once, and now her manner seemed to say that as far as she was concerned Joanne Darien did not exist. Turning her back upon Jo, she addressed Edna Fragonet in a voice as cool as if it were commenting on the weather.

"Please don't let this disturb you, Mrs. Fragonet. I'm sure that, like most men, Peter is unduly chivalrous, I haven't been entirely asleep the past few weeks and I know where to lay the blame. I'll have Douglas take care of the matter in the morning."

She started from the room, but Fragonet detained her. "Just a moment, Mrs. Marsh. It will do you no good to talk to Doug. I'm going to give him the whole story." He whirled desperately toward his wife. "What's the use of pretending any longer? I'm damned tired of pretense. This has got to be the finish, Edna!" He stopped suddenly, then went on in almost a whisper. "I don't suppose anything I can ever do or say will make up for what I've done to you, Jo." He seemed about to add something else, shrugged helplessly, and was gone.

Jo lifted herself upright, trembling in every fiber. "Mrs. Fragonet, you must listen to me a moment. I—"

But Edna Fragonet's eyes were points of ice. "Listen to you, Miss Darien? I'm afraid it is you who must listen to me. Perhaps you think you've done it at last, but you're wrong. You'll get nothing. Nothing at all out of this, do you hear? And I'll drag your name into every newspaper from here to Hollywood!"

The door of the bedroom slammed shut with a resounding crash, and Jo closed her eyes tight against a sudden, throbbing pain at the back of her neck. But only one thought was in her mind now—to make Edna Fragonet listen, to make her understand.

"I've got to talk to her," Jo said aloud. "I've got to make them all listen to me . . ."

She stumbled from the bed, rushed headlong toward the closet where her dressing robe was hanging. The room seemed to whirl madly, and the floor seemed to lift and sink in waves beneath her feet, but Jo knew only that she must get down the hall to Edna Fragonet's room. She must make her see the truth, make her tell that truth to Mrs. Marsh and her son.

How Jo reached the outer door she never knew, but suddenly she was in the half-light of the hallway. And then the hallway became darker and darker still, and the carpeting lifted obliquely in a long green flash to strike her hard across the cheek.

All at once, despite the throbbing of her head and the new pain where her cheek had struck the floor, Jo felt terribly weary. She raised her head once, then let it fall gently against her arm. She thought oddly that it was too cold to be sleeping there in the hallway with only her thin pajamas and her robe over her. She thought crazily that she must sleep close to the wall so as not to disturb anyone who might want to pass that way. And then a swift curtain dropped before her eyes.

Mrs Marsh encountered Nurse Conley in the hall as the latter was returning to Jo's room.

"You won't be needed any more by Miss Darien," the old lady informed her curtly.

Miss Conley's eyes widened in astonishment. "But I—"

"Those are my orders, Miss Conley."

The nurse hesitated a moment, and then replied, "Very well, Mrs. Marsh. I'll take my things from the room."

"I've instructed one of the boys to bring them to you, Miss Conley. You might drop in at the Davis Cottage. Mrs. Davis was complaining of a slight cold last night."

"Yes, Mrs. Marsh."

The nurse fought a moment between her sense of duty and her desire to keep a pleasant and lucrative place at Crest Lake. Perhaps the former would have won, for it was really strong in Miss Conley, had not Mrs. Marsh left her so imperiously.

When Douglas Marsh met his mother on the wide veranda of the Inn he knew at once that something was up. He was not long in finding out just what that something was.

"You simply must let this Miss Darien go at once, Douglas," his mother said. "Perhaps the others will stand it a few days longer, but I shan't."

"Why . . . what's wrong?"

In direct fashion Mrs. Marsh told him. She told him, too, how she had seen Todd Barston and Jo coming out of her room on the evening of the dance.
