Legislation Advocated For Texas Gasoline Dealers Billion Dollar Treasury-Post Office Measure Passed

Bill Goes Through House After Fight Over Enforcement

Appropriations Include Big Sum for Prohibition Enforcement; House Leaders Wrangle Over Unit

Assures Building

Passage of Bill Gives Lubbock Final Assurance Of Location of New Federal Building and Court

WASHINGTON, Dec. 7.—After a struggle over the $13,500,000 appropriation for prohibition enforcement, the house late today passed without a roll call vote the billion dollar treasury-post office bill, the first of the big annual supply bills to come before congress.

The measure carries $813,213,735 for the post office and $303,459,654 for the treasury. Besides the prohibition enforcement appropriation, it included $23,946,000 for continuing work on public buildings and $10,000,000 for the return of illegally collected taxes.

Appropriations Approved
The fight on the prohibition enforcement fund brought debate between several prominent house wets while a number of dry members, led by Representative Cranton, Republican, Michigan, rose to its defense.

The wets, however, lost out in the end and the item was approved without change, as were the public building allotments.

The treasury-post office measure, taken up for debate yesterday, was rushed through with unusual speed and permitted an adjournment of the house over the week-end.

The passage of the treasury-post office bill gives assurance to Lubbock that the new federal building will be located here. The $250,000 appropriation for the building here was included in the bill which was voted through the house intact, thereby eliminating any possibility that the building will be delayed further.

Red Cross Quota One-Half Raised

Teams To Continue In Drive For Funds In Lubbock Today; Canvass Is Expected Completed Today

A few dollars more than half of the $8,000 quota set to be raised for the Lubbock chapter of the American Red Cross, in the annual roll call, which began Thursday morning, was reported as having been received Friday afternoon, although a complete check of results of all of the 13 teams conducting the drive was not available at the time.

George P. Kuykendall, chairman of the drive, announced that the teams will continue today, the teams will do their best to complete a canvass of the city, and that one or two days of next week a "tying squad" would attend to cover the places not seen by the various teams this week.

Pressure at the cooperation obtained from everyone was expressed as well as a belief that the entire quota would be raised within a few days of next week.

Los Angeles Wife Slayer Takes His Execution Lightly

SAN QUENTIN PRISON, Cal., Dec. 7. (AP)—John J. Malone, Los Angeles wife slayer, went to his death on the gallows here today. He was puffing a cigarette as the trap was sprung and a few moments later he had been listening to the strains of jazz music. The record played at his request, "I want to go where you go," was shot off as he stepped from the death cell and faced the flight of thirteen steps that led to the scaffold.

As the guards placed the black cap over his head, Malone still smoking his cigarette, ejaculated:
"Well boys, I got a run for this one."
As he spoke he dropped and three witnesses, one of them a guard, faintly.

Federal Officers Seize Two Trunks Full of Narcotics

Drugs Said To Be Valued Near Million Copied By Agents In New York; To Make Investigation

NEW YORK, Dec. 7.—Two trunks full of narcotics valued by federal agents at several hundred thousand dollars were taken to the federal building tonight from a mid-town hotel where they had been checked for shipment to a western city. The agents said the seizure was an outgrowth of search conducted last Thursday of offices connected with the activities of Arnold Rothstein, slain gambler.

The seizure was made by federal agents without the aid or knowledge of the police. United States Attorney E. J. Connelley has been assured the drugs were worth $2,000,000 at retail prices.

In the search of the Rothstein offices, conducted on a warrant issued by U. S. Commissioner Cotler, federal agents examined hundreds of documents, some of which they said provided "leads" indicating a huge shipment of drugs was to be made today.

Adams Declares He Shot Mathews To Protect Self

Bartlett Farmer Testifies In Election Bet Trial At Dallas, Friday; Clings To Version of Killing

Life Threatened
Defendant Relates Graphic Story of Details of Killing On Stand; Witnesses Testify for Mathews

DALLAS, Dec. 7.—Declaring that he shot Orville L. Mathews, Dallas bank employee, and purported co-holder in a $2,000 election bet only after he feared that his life was in danger, Ray Adams, Bartlett farmer and sheep raiser took the stand today and for more than two hours described events climaxed by the slaying, in the business section here, September 1.

When defense attorneys had developed their theory and the defendant was cross-examined he clung to his version of the killing.

On Stand As Court Adjourns
The farmer still was on the stand when court was adjourned and the several hundred spectators, many of whom had brought their lunches and remained since early morning, filed out.

Adams dressed in a blue business suit, took the stand shortly before noon, and after a 14 character witness, many of them prominent politicians in Central Texas, had related that the man asserted to have shot twice into the body of the banker as he lay on the sidewalk was quiet and peaceful and enjoyed a reputation in his community for truth and veracity.

Nervous at first as he shifted in his chair, the 35-year-old farmer gradually became calmer as he unfolded the story of how he had learned that bets might be placed in Dallas on the result of an election between United States Senator Earl B. Mayfield and Congressman Tom Connally, of whom he had come here and made a $1,000 wager with Ben C. Richards, supposed Dallas county leader of the Ku Klux Klan, and dressed in Mathews' name to be the holder of the bet.

Agreed to Collect Wager
The money, put up in the name of Adams' friend, W. Tom Ramsey of Belton, was turned over to Mathews.

Freeman was shot and killed on the night of November 22 when he and other Birmingham students went to a drug store where Westbrook was working to take the Howard youth out and "cut his hair."

Deserter Supplies Illinois Sheriff With Excitement

Confessor to Burning Of Lake Forest Teacher Attempts to Kill Self; Repudiates Stories
WAUKEGAN, Ill., Dec. 7.—Eva McVeagh, alias James Kelley, army deserter, who "confessed" that she had shot her way out of the army, aided the Lake Bluff Sunday school teacher to burn herself to death. Furnished Waukegan authorities with plenty of excitement today when he arrived here from San Antonio, Texas, where he was arrested.

Within an hour he repudiated two confessions, one detailing the Knack death and the other an attack on a Lake Forest School teacher, and then tried to commit suicide by jumping from the third floor of the county jail.

Makes Confessions
Folled by the sheriff in the attempt to end his life, McVeagh said he made his confessions and tried to end his life to embarrass relatives he dislikes.

A. V. Smith, state's attorney, said the man would be returned to the state asylum at Elgin, from which he escaped last month. Records there showed he was incarcerated when he said he burned Miss Knack.

When this story was proven false he said he attacked the Lake Forest school teacher with an iron car, but today also repudiated it. Officials who returned him from Texas said he also had attempted to kill himself en route.

Tom W. Owens Shoots Bride and Turns Gun on Self

PORT WORTH, Dec. 7.—A quarrel with his young wife or a serious illness of his mother may have motivated Tom W. Owens, Jr., 17, when he shot the bride of four months to death today and sent a fatal bullet into his own head, investigators believed tonight.

Owens, son of a New York cotton broker, drove out on a highway west of here today, his wife in the automobile seat beside him. He parked the machine and police looking into the affair believe he shot his wife, Ruth Landis Owens, 19, daughter of D. S. Landis, head of the local U. S. weather bureau here, and fired a slug into his head. The girl's body was found in the automobile; the youthful husband on the ground just outside. He died several hours later.

Identified by Letters
Owens was identified by letters in his pockets, one which told that his mother is very ill.

Owens and his wife, whom he married four months ago, had quarreled Thursday night and young Mrs. Owens had sent a $3,000 wrist watch and a ring of keys to her mother with the note that she "still loved her."

Autumn leaves and bright berries were found in Owens' automobile. Presumably, the ride which ended in the deaths was taken ostensibly as an outing.

Lasto Warren, traveling railroad freight agent, chanced to note the body of Mrs. Owens slumped in the seat of the car. He investigated and found Owens dying beside it.

Flow Is Diverted
Dealers Pretend to "Fill" Gas Tanks, Inspector Says; Galveston Leads In Shortage Percentage

AUSTIN, Dec. 7.—Strict legislation to curb a reported prevalence in Texas of short measures in gasoline sold to motorists was advocated by J. A. Kinard, of Big Spring, state weights and measures inspector, today before a meeting of city and state inspectors here.

He declared that during the year ending last March, Texas motorists paid $2,182,800 for gasoline withheld from their automobile tanks by short measurements.

Kinard said inquiry disclosed that at some stations, gasoline is diverted from the pumps into underground storage tanks while customers' car tanks are being "filled."

Recommendations
Kinard recommended that all gasoline dispensers be licensed by state law, that counties be allowed to employ county sealers of weights and measures and that appropriations be made for an adequate number of state supervisors.

E. C. Best, of Dallas, president of the Texas State Automobile Association, said that from a survey recently completed by the American Automobile association, it was revealed that motorists of the United States are losing about $20,000,000 annually through a short measure in the sale of gasoline.

Kinard review an investigation he conducted in cooperating with V. A. Stovall, chief of the weights and measure division of the department of agriculture.

Gasoline is being diverted in many instances from the pumps to underground storage tanks while customer's tanks are being serviced, Kinard said.

During the survey 374 pumps were tested. Three hundred and four were found short, 29 correct, and 26

"Get Turkeys To Market Early," Says Scurry County Agent to Poultry Men Of West Texas; Poultry Plan Talked

Texas Poultry Brings Higher Prices In Early Market, W. H. Logan Says; Weeks Visits Section

(Special to The Avalanche)
SNYDER, Dec. 7.—West Texas turkey growers must get their turkeys out of Texas by December 12th is the orders received in this section if growers are to receive a reasonable price.

The demoralizing market in New York last week with a break of 10 to 15 cents is mainly responsible. Texas young toms on the foot brought 30 cents with a dressed price of 40 cents; hens brought 30 cents and dressed at 38 cents. Top prices were only received in exceptional cases with live turkeys an oversupply.

According to County Agent W. H. Logan who has just completed a survey of the poultry and egg market conditions for the coming year, there are fourteen per cent less eggs on cold storage and 15,000,000 less pounds of dressed poultry in ten of the leading markets of the country than at this time last year. United States department of agriculture as of July 1, 1928, reported 10 per cent less poultry on farms compared with last year.

Adams Trial

(Continued from Page 1) Adams in cash; checks made payable to the bank, Adams stated on direct examination. He declared that the trio, Richards, Ramsey and himself, had agreed to be present on the Saturday following the election to collect the water.

When Adams protested with the bank employes regarding the transaction, Matthews designated a meeting place at the bank for the next morning, Adams said. The farmer, after conferring with both Dallas and Fort Worth attorneys as to the best course he should pursue, took the pistol which he brought on the trip, he said, and started toward the institution. He was accompanied by Ramsey.

Refused To Tell Names Matthews on the street intersection where the shooting occurred and he asked me to go down the street with him to talk to someone. Adams told the crowded court room, "I told him several times that I wanted to know who the men were but he refused to tell me. Then I told him that they might be another Vest."

When I said this, Matthews wheeled and shouted you're not going to get one dime of this money and if you don't get out of town I'm going to get a gun and blow your head off. Adams, raising his voice to high pitch, asserted, "Matthews hands were in his pockets and I jerked my pistol and started shooting. Matthews turned and ran and I shot again. After that, gentlemen, I don't know what happened."

I don't have any mind, I started running after him but I don't know what happened. I might have shot him four times or seven. I don't know whether I shot him while he was lying on the sidewalk or not."

Believed In Danger "Did you kill Matthews because he stole your money," the white-haired farmer was asked and he replied, "I didn't fire because I believed I was in danger."

Among the character witnesses called previously by the defense to support Adams' reputation in several communities where he had lived were: W. P. Deenan, Belton, a member of the state legislature; District Judge L. H. Jones of the 7th district, and Sheriffs Louis Love of Williamson county, John R. Nathan, Bell county, L. L. Blaylock, Milam county and Love Kimbrough, McCulloch county.

Repaying obligations contracted by Lubbock last October during the Panhandle South Plains Fair, Tom A. White and Garnet Reeves, visited the third annual poultry show at Slaton and the ninth annual Scurry County Poultry show at Snyder yesterday.

Both Slaton and Snyder showed a splendid spirit of cooperation in the annual South Plains Fair here this fall. In answer to invitations from the chambers of commerce in the two towns, the Lubbock representatives visited the two poultry shows.

Both poultry exhibits are of high quality and are creating a great deal of constructive interest, according to the report brought back to Lubbock.

Slaton Has Record Crowd

At Slaton a record crowd of farmers and merchants have been visiting the show where more than 400 birds of the best quality are entered from a number of points over West Texas. W. P. Spawn, is secretary of the show.

At Snyder a total of 783 birds are on exhibition, drawing large crowds. Joe A. Merritt, president of the Scurry County Poultry association and County Agent Logan are in charge of the show. George Sampson of Post, well known agricultural exhibitor, whose Garza county agricultural exhibits have won the blue ribbon at the Panhandle South Plains Fair, at the state fair and a number of other fairs in past years was there with some winning Rhode Island Red poultry.

A movement is under way at Snyder to bring Charles Weeks of Petaluma, Cal., originator of the one-acre poultry colony, to Snyder to advise in regard to starting a similar colony at Snyder.

L. H. Plain Heads New Firm In Lubbock Monday; Mystery Car Is To Give Performances

The latest evidence of Lubbock's increasing growth as a distributing center for a wide territory is the coming opening of the Panhandle Durant company, of which L. H. Plain is the head, which will formally open its doors in their new building, 1311 Main Street, Monday morning.

The Panhandle Durant company will be the distributing center for the Durant automobile for all of the Texas Panhandle and eastern New Mexico, its sales territory in Texas comprising approximately 60 counties.

Finishing touches are being put to the interior of the firm's new building, which is a brick and concrete one, 50 by 125 feet in dimensions and erected at a cost of approximately $13,000. B. L. Thompson being the contractor. A display room of 50 by 54 feet is reserved for showing the Durant cars at the front of the building, with the rear composed of a well-equipped repair shop.

A complete line of parts will be kept to serve the extensive territory, which includes everything from the north border of the Panhandle to almost the Texas and Pacific railroad on the south.

Mystery Car Here

A feature of the formal opening will be the mysterious performances of "The Mystery Durant," a car which "talks to you, fights with you, answers questions" and does numerous other wondrously attractive stunts. This car is being demonstrated by Billy Van, a veteran minstrel and vaudeville headliner, and promises to be as entertaining as a good vaudeville act.

Performances of "The Mystery Durant" will be given twice daily during all of next week, beginning with Monday. Performances will be at 4 and 8 p. m.

Complex Triangle Yields Story Of Love's Sacrifice

(By Associated Press) NEW YORK, Dec. 7.—A story of self-sacrifice love by a wife for an erring husband emerged today from the complex marital triangle in which a man married another woman with the aid of his wife.

Mrs. Herbert Leigh-Manuell wife of the 36-year-old church organist and music teacher, who married Miss Martha Van Wyen, his 19-year-old pupil while the wife served as a witness, explained her action as due entirely to the love she felt for the man she married 13 years ago.

"Why did I do it?" she said. "Because I love him. He was so good, so considerate always, so kind to me. Herbert has always done everything I could to make me happy."

When her husband was ordered to jail to answer to a charge of bigamy, Mrs. Leigh-Manuell sent him away with a kiss and pledged their little home in Sayville, Long Island, to obtain his release on $5,000 bail.

The Leigh-Manuells were married in England in 1915 and have three children. Wednesday, with his wife as a witness, he married Miss Van Wyen in Marble Collegiate church here.

Meanwhile, Miss Van Wyen remained in seclusion at the home of her parents weeping and refusing to eat because her father would not allow her to join the "professor," as Leigh-Manuell is known in the village.

YOUR CHILDREN

by Olive Roberts Barton

"Mother, I'm going to stop at Aunt Eleanor's after school, and stay to dinner. She can bring me home right afterward. I won't be late."

Peggy's mother stared at her daughter in astonishment. There was no request in the words of this ten-year-old, just a flat statement that she was going.

And instantly rebellion rose in her mother's heart.

"You'll do no such thing, young lady. You'll walk right home here and see if I need you for anything."

Then thinking, no doubt, that this sounded rather thin, she added, "I may have to go out myself and I'll want you to look after Harry."

There was a reason for her half apologetic supplement; she felt vaguely guilty at refusing Peggy permission to do an entirely reasonable thing.

Do we realize how much we enjoy our authority over our children? Well, we do, whether we realize it or not.

However small, to our bidding, be at our beck and call, is very sweet—too sweet! Are we always thinking of their good when we boss them? Not by any manner of means.

It's a pretty safe guess to say that half the time when we command them or deny them or in some other unpleasant way show our authority, we do it because it suits our own selfish convenience.

And she should have smiled with inward satisfaction that her daughter had taken one more step toward that self-reliance which all of us must learn sooner or later.

Peggy's sort of independence did not mean insubordination. We must not confuse them. The right kind of independence is a grand thing indeed.

Had her mother been wise, she would have taken a second breath before she answered, "That will be fine; it's such a lovely day and Auntleanor has been wanting you for so long."

And she should have smiled with inward satisfaction that her daughter had taken one more step toward that self-reliance which all of us must learn sooner or later.

Peggy's sort of independence did not mean insubordination. We must not confuse them. The right kind of independence is a grand thing indeed.

By JULIA BLANSHARD NEA Service Writer

NEW YORK, Dec. 7.—This is, supposedly, a feminine age. But shop a bit for Christmas presents for the men folks and see if you do not think the male of the species is staging a come-back!

There are, literally, thousands of gifts displayed for "him," be he father, brother, husband or lover.

Facing this sea of masculine presents, there are two wrecking spots a woman must beware of, the Seylla and Charybdis of such a shopping trip.

Shopping Don'ts First, spending too much money. Second, getting something he doesn't want, need or like.

The first can be avoided one way and only one way. Budget the Christmas money. Be firm and do not spend one cent for a gift that you have not reckoned.

Second, getting something he doesn't want, need or like. This is harder. Know before you go what it is you want. Plan your presents as carefully as you budgeted your funds.

A hint may help in this. Don't buy "gadgets." Men, as a rule, hate clutter. The safe and sure rule is to buy something personal.

If you have time, make him something personal. Some suggestions are: a dressing gown of flannel, silk lined with silk; hand-embroidered or rayon; a house jacket of kasha, hankies, a scarf with his monogram; individual shoe bags of linen; to protect his shirts when traveling, shirt cases for the same purpose; a laundry bag; closest shoe bag; some modernistic sofa pillows for his den, or a clothes bag for his tuxedo.

For the stay-at-home man, one can always buy subscriptions to his favorite magazines, books, smoking tips, a combination of modernistic refreshment sets, a fancy combination smoking and magazine rack, a clock, a pair of house slippers, a new reading lamp, or a modernistic shade for the old one, a radio and poker sets, one of the new books on playing solitaire, puzzles, or a lounge chair.

For the college man or the man about town, there are dressy things, such as jewelry, tuxedo accessories, one of the new combination overnight bags and brief cases, pieces of hosiery, or a stick. All men like neckties, neckties, neckties, fancy pajamas, shirts, sports sweaters, gloves, neat fitted cases for their shaving things, brushes and combs and manicure articles. A combination coat hanger and clothes brush is good. So is, closet equipment that includes necktie racks, shoe racks and hat stands.

Men are growing to love luxuries as women do. There are available new masculine-looking bottles of perfume made from leather.

Also a tremendous assortment of nice shaving things, traveling toilet cases or folding Pullman slipper sets. Other extras include silk underwear, a handsome evening set of handkerchief and muffler to match in white, with black monogram, gandy pajamas, golf, tennis or swimming trunks, robes, neckties, socks or folding Pullman slipper sets. Men, having had less fuss made over their gifts, are very appreciative of their gifts. But the man is rare who wants a woman to spend more than she should for such a gift. Therefore, the wise woman will think before she buys and budget before she shops.

Parfaits can be made most palatable if dried, cooked in salted water and served with drawn butter and sprinkled with grated cheese and shredded parsley.

How to Achieve Beauty

When we come to the "bath requisites" we find a variety of suggestions, each one seemingly more suitable than the other. Personally, I think it shows discrimination and rare good taste to make your minor gift selections among the wide array of salts, powders, tablets, etc.

Here, as with perfume, it's a good idea to classify your gift list and have your common-sense working overtime while you choose fragrances. Before we go into that, however, let me tell you of the varieties of gifts which may be listed as bath requisites.

First, there are salts, and every woman loves these dainty luxuries, so they may be classed 100 per cent safe as gifts. Salts come either in crystal form, plain or effervescent, or in little tablets. I've used both, and I can choose a favorite, so I suppose it's largely a matter of personal taste.

Every known and some totally unknown fragrance may be had in bath salts. Violet and lavender are widely popular, but chypre and rose and combination scents are also very lovely.

Sachets, I think, may be listed here, and you can either make the little satin pillows with bits of satin ribbon, or the fat, soft handkerchief box sachets that are simple or elaborate, according to your skill and patience. These are gifts always acceptable and always in good taste.

Bath talcum is as nice as it can be in a bright, decorated tin and with the accompanying down puff. This, incidentally, is a nice, inexpensive gift for your daughter to give to her school friends—or to receive from you, for that matter. Choose any or all of these gifts—and rest assured you have chosen well and wisely.

Company officials will begin working in December 15. Exclusive agencies of Standard Varnish works' products the company will handle all types of paint and wallpaper. The Amarillo store was established about two years ago.

Col. Charles A. Lindbergh, dispatches here it is about to wed. Yes, that's been said before. But this particular rumor has been in the works for some time. The lady in the case is said to be Mexican Ambassador Morrow's daughter. Which daughter? That's just the point. The dispatch very seriously says that the Colonel is "up in the air" as to whether it shall be Elizabeth, who is 25 and described as "a serious minded school teacher," or Anne, aged 22, who is quite a social light.

Now the despair which floods the maiden hearts of the world at hearing "the flying colonel" is engaged will be as nothing to the despair of all of us if we must admit that this hero of the air is so poor a hero of the heart that he can toy with the idea of marriage without knowing which of two girls he wants.

I don't believe a word of it. I believe when Colonel Lindbergh takes a flyer in romance it will be quite as satisfactorily done as the flight which made him beloved by the world.

MORE ROMANCE Speaking of romance here's word of the engagement of Dolores Costello and John Barrymore. There was a time—and it still exists, to some extent—when stage people would do anything rather than let their public know they were married. BAGS BIG GAME Paducah Man Exhibits Deer And Bear Here Friday J. B. Needles, of Paducah, in passing through Lubbock Friday on his way back home from a hunting trip into the Big Bend country, was exhibiting a five-point buck deer and a 350-pound black bear, which he had bagged. The bear was a monstrous one, looking to be about six feet in length with thick black hair, a beautiful specimen, and one of the very few known to have been killed in Texas.

SUMMARY

Market up six to ten points after another business session. Liverpool was better than day calling and the trade was calling cotton and that Bombay buying showed a hint of liquidation. The private estimates of the crop vary so widely that it is difficult to form any opinion from them as to what the government figures may be. The report due at ten o'clock Saturday morning is the final estimate of the crop to be released. The highest private estimate issued to date is 14,328,000 bales and the lowest is 12,728,000 bales. It is evident that a report of around 14,000,000 bales is expected. The only item of news received today was that a large firm with international connections estimated the world's consumption of American cotton for this season at 15,250,000. This statement if correct can be considered bullish.

Manchester called, "Fair cloth inquiry from South America. Business with China slowly developing."

New Orleans: Domestic cotton goods market reports steady prices and moderately good business.

Pharr, Tex.: Cotton all gathered and farmers are beginning to prepare for next crop. Planting will begin in February if weather is favorable and outlook is for a large acreage. Soil needs rain.

Daily Markets

NEW YORK STOCKS

NEW YORK, Dec. 7. (AP)—The bull party made a frantic effort to boost prices again on the stock market today only to let them fall with what was in many respects a more violent crash than yesterday's. The market went through the most spectacular gyrations in the memory of most traders. Opening losses of 2 to 15 points largely were cancelled in a bull rally around midday, and replaced by several gains of 2 to 10 points. Finding inadequate public support forthcoming, however, the bulls withdrew and prices of some two score issues tumbled 3 to 25 points below the levels recorded at the end of yesterday's acute reaction.

The Associated Press average price of 20 industrials was carried down about 7 1/2 points. In contrast to yesterday's drop of about 9 1/2, but trading was in far greater volume, selling up total sales of 4,171,500 shares, the sixth largest day's transactions, in contrast to total sales yesterday of only 3,422,200 shares.

The reactions of the past two days have been the most violent since the Associated Press average price have been compiled. The average of 20 industrials has dropped nearly 20 points from its high mark of November 30, but still stands about 9 1/2 points above the level reached on the day before election, from which dated the so-called "Hoover market."

The call money rate renewed at 10 per cent today, for the first time since 1920, but dropped to 9 per cent in the afternoon, in contrast to the 12 per cent rate reached yesterday. Trading failed to respond to this development, however. The vast company of new recruits in the army of traders was extremely nervous after yesterday's trial by fire, and dumping of shares on the market by the discouraged bulls in the later afternoon caused a de-luge of panicky selling.

FORT WORTH LIVESTOCK

FORT WORTH, Dec. 7. (AP)—U. S. D. A.—Slaughter steers and slaughter yearlings were scarce in today's limited receipts of cattle at Fort Worth, bulk of the run consisted of the stock low-cutters and mixed butcher classes.

Butchers and low cutters wanted at steady to strong figures and the low sales of sausage bulls appeared strong. Other classes of cattle sold mostly at steady prices. A good price was made for practically all divisions of the trade.

Plain cake on grass slaughter steers at 10.50 and 11.00; few straight grassers at 9.00 to 10.00. One load rood fat yearlings, averaging 871 pounds made a top of 12.00 and sort out of slaughter yearlings around 10.00 to 11.25; fat cows in earlots sold up to 8.00; butcher grades found an outlet mostly around and under 7.00. Several loads of strong weight low-cutters, reported at 5.50; others around 4.85 to 5.25. Two loads of sausage bulls sold at 6.75 to 6.85; choice heavy stock steer calves sold up to 11.75.

The better grades of slaughter calves held steady, but others ruled slow. Packers paid up to 11.00 and 11.15 for several loads good to choice heifers. Other sales of weighty averages around 10.00 and on down; calf sorts 8.00 to 8.50.

Hogs receipts sold on an active market at prices ten to 15c higher; cash-butcher scored a top of 8.75 and best hogs reported at 8.00. Most of the earlots sold at 8.40 to 8.65. Packing hogs that brought 7.50 to 8.00 were mostly a quarter higher. Actual receipts on sheep and lambs today were limited to the dock of woolled feeder lambs that sold at a steady price of 19.50. The market for fat sheep and lambs remained nominal.

Lubbock Men Buy Cattle In Alpine

Jot Smith and Arnett and Beal purchase 1,050 head from Jackson and Harmon of Big Bend Area

(Special to the Avalanche) ALPINE, Dec. 7.—Four hundred and sixty head of cows and bulls sold by George A. Brown were shipped this week to Kansas pastures by a Maria man who bought the cattle, the cattle going to H. O. Phant, Kansas buyer.

Jackson & Harmon report the sale of five loads of big steers to the Houser Packing Company of California, the steers averaging 1110 the 11-market overall was marked by strong to 25c higher prices, packers at some points failed to follow the early advances in its entirety; the days top of $9.50 was paid at Chicago, aggregate receipts were estimated at $6,000, a decrease of $800 from a week ago but 20,000 more than the same day last year.

Fed steers continued to find a slow outlet but with supplies limited no material changes were registered, trade on other killing classes consisted of the usual Friday clean-up, light to moderate supplies of dressed beef at eastern markets met a slow demand at fairly steady values, the supply approximated 12,000, a shortage of 12,000 from last Friday and 3,700 less than a year ago.

They also sold three loads of fat cows to the same buyers, 450 steer yearlings to Jot Smith of Lubbock and 600 steer calves to Arnett & Beal which will be delivered next Monday. George A. Brown also sold 250 heifer yearlings to Cap. Gates of Jack county last week. H. W. Ferguson and Joe Parker delivered to S. C. Colady of Midland three loads of better calves last Tuesday.

Damage Suit Filed On Insurance Firm

A damage suit for $2,170 was filed in the Ninety-Ninth district court Friday, by Homer T. Crum, against the National Security Life Insurance company, for alleged salary

In Crum's original petition, he alleges that the insurance company made an oral contract with him as branch manager at Lubbock and as district manager for the South Plains territory, of the company, on June 25, this year. He further claims that he started to work for the company July 15, and understood the work was to be permanent, but that the company discharged him on December 1st, and has refused to pay him salary of $200 per month since July 15, 1928. Crum asks for $2,170 as damages of $1,355 are asked because of Crum's loss of position as a school teacher at New Hope, in Lynn county, which he relinquished in order to work for the insurance company.

Jackets Trounce Sunset Buffaloes In Bitter Battle

Victory Sends Cleburne Into Semi-Finals of State Race; Yellowjackets Play Without Squyers

(By Associated Press) DALLAS, Dec. 7. (AP)—Cleburne High school's Yellowjackets hurled another barrier in their drive to overpower the Sunset High school Buffaloes of Dallas, 12 to 6, before 8,000 fans here today. Sunset chalked up 18 first downs to 11 for the husky visitors but lacked the punch of their opponents at crucial times.

The victory sends Cleburne into the semi-finals of the state race. Next Saturday the Yellowjackets will meet the winners of tomorrow's tilt between Amarillo and Abilene in semi-final battle.

For Cleburne the hefty Taylor was the outstanding light in today's game.

Seaman Squyers, Cleburne's big fullback and star punter, did not get into today's game. Neither did Captain Strickland, guard, who was reported ill.

Cleburne Scores First

Cleburne's first touchdown came quickly. With the wind at his back Taylor punted to Sunset's five-yard line, where McLemore, Sunes' back, tumbled when tackling Cleburne.

On offense the Buffaloes were more than holding their own until "Red" Webster, halfback, was put out by a hard tackle. He had been catching pass after pass from McLemore's hands and was dealing the Cleburne defense misery.

Centenary Seeks Conference Berth

DALLAS, Dec. 7. (AP)—Centenary College of Shreveport will seek admission to the Southwest Conference when faculty heads of the organization meet here tomorrow along with faculty officials of the Texas Conference and Texas Intercollegiate Athletic association, it was said tonight.

The Dallas News, which months ago published assertions that Arkansas University would be asked to withdraw from the Southwest Conference, tomorrow will say that four members have handed to put the proposal before the meeting.

Delegates from the Big Six and Western Conferences were expected to make proposals for intercollegiate games next season.

A meeting of the association of athletic managers also will be held here tomorrow.

Strolling Down Sports Lane

With Allan Carney, Avalanche Sports Editor

Unusual interest centers around the Amarillo-Abilene game on the Simmons University gridiron this afternoon. A large number of Lubbock fans will be on hand to pull for the District One representatives.

Football as a high school sport is on the upgrade in West Texas and the Panhandle. Whereas in central and east Texas, it is more of an institution and generally accepted as the sport of all sports, West Texans are just now coming to realize the importance of football in high school and appreciate the stirring action it affords amateur athletes.

Formerly looked upon as a brutal pastime, it is gradually becoming more popular in this section. Larger crowds, greater prestige and higher standards of the game are indications of the change which is taking place.

There is no reason why Lubbock shouldn't produce a high school team to the best in the state. With a large section from which to draw athletes, the advantage of a high and dry climate and few outside attractions to draw interest away from the rough old game of football as is the case in larger cities, this city is in the position to take a leading part in the annual chase for intercollegiate honors.

Although the majority of the football teams of the nation finished their 1928 grid season Thanksgiving day, there are yet a few outstanding games to hold the interest of the fans. Today there are a number of outstanding attractions of the inter-sectional and traditional variety.

Alabama meets L. S. U. at Birmingham. Georgia Tech and Georgia Dangle at Atlanta and Notre Dame invades the West Coast in a game with Southern California. The powerful Florida Alligators will meet in Knoxville for a battle which will have considerable bearing on the championship of Dixie.

In Texas the immediate interest of football followers centers around the high school race. There will be post season contests later on among the collegiate circles. On Christmas day, the Southwest Conference election meets the all-Texas stars in a battle that will bring together some of the greatest stars that ever trod across the gridiron in Texas. Many of these who played their last conference game on Turkey Day, will again be seen in action.

Another post season contest which will furnish an interesting contrast when the all-star teams representing the Big Six Conference and Southwestern Conference meet in Dallas New Year's Day. Clyde Littlefield, coach of the champion Texas University Longhorns, and Matty Bell T. C. U. mentor, have been assigned the task of selecting and coaching the team to represent the Southwest group.

Coach Ernie Bearg, coach of the champion Nebraska Cornhuskers, will be in charge of the Big Six all-stars.

Mavericks Wreck Title Hopes For Greenville High

Three Sensational Runs and Pass Over Goal Line Gives Marshall Eleven 26 To 6 Victory

GREENVILLE, Dec. 7. (AP)—Greenville's hopes in the state high school football race were wrecked here today by the ripping offense of the Marshall Mavericks. Three sensational runs for touchdowns by the Marshall backs and a pass over the goal line gave the visitors four touchdowns and a well-earned 26 to 6 victory in the quarter-final struggle.

As a result of their win the Mavericks enter the semi-finals of the state race for the second time in three years. Their opponents in the semi-finals will be decided when Port Arthur and Marshall Avenue of San Antonio clash tomorrow at Port Arthur. The Mavericks were eliminated by the Waco Tigers in the semi-finals of 1926.

Greenville Threatens

In the first quarter the Greenville eleven threatened, pounding its way to Marshall's 18-yard line before being halted. Again at the outset of the second period it went into the Mavericks' territory but lacked the punch to pierce the visitor's line.

Marshall scored its first touchdown in the second quarter on a 12-yard pass, Murrif to Scott, and try for extra points was successful.

Opening the third quarter, Harris, Maverick left halfback, broke loose and sprinted 40 yards for a touchdown. A few minutes later Murrif, quarterback, shook off two tackles and reared 46 yards for another and, before the quarter was ended, Rodgers did his frown backer one better by ripping off end and traveling 75 yards to the Lions goal line.

Greenville scored in the closing minutes of play, Ransom plunging over after a determined drive goalward.

Army Wins Second In City Cage Race

Two fast and furious basketball games were on the program in the City Basketball League last night at the high school gymnasium. Taking the floor in their first game of the season, the Printers were noot out by the National Guard quintet after both teams had taken the lead at various intervals. In the second contest of the evening, the Business College trounced Montgomery Ward with a final spurt in the closing minutes of the game.

The scores: Printers 19, Business College 28; Montgomery Ward 16.

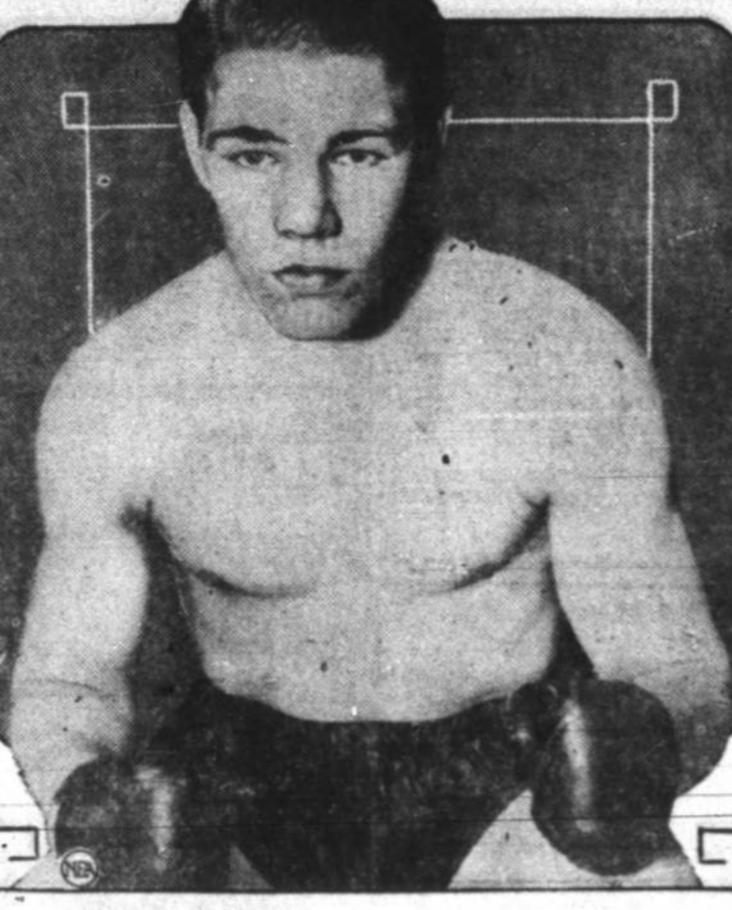

Arnold led in scoring for the Printers with 14 points. Adkinson, Army forward, came next with 6. Bryant carried off scoring honors in the second game, scoring five field goals and one free toss for a total of 12 points. Conn of the Montgomery Ward outfit ran him a close second with 10 points.

Cowboys Trounced By Yellowjackets

BROWNWOOD, Tex., Dec. 7. (AP)—The Yellowjackets of Howard Payne College closed the most successful grid season in history by defeating their traditional rivals, the Simmons University Cowboys, 16 to 7, here today. Although the Jackets already had won the Texas Conference Championship, today's victory was necessary to make everything entirely right.

The Jackets took a 13-point lead in the second quarter. Fields bucked over from the one-yard line for their first touchdown and Johnny Baker, Jacket quarterback, scored the second with a 55-yard dash through a broken field. Claude Boyd, Jacket halfback, added three points with a 30-yard field goal in the third period.

Light Heavy Looks Promising

By HENRY L. FARRELL, NEA Service Sports Editor

Four names have been given a place of prominence in recent months on the list of the cauliflower market. The list is a roll of fighters that the managers of ambitious or conservative young men of the industry are warned to stay away from.

It has been some time since the list included fighters of such promise in four important divisions as Tuffy Griffiths, light heavyweight; Bern De Vos, middleweight; Jackie Fields, welterweight and Kid Chocolate, featherweight. And they seem to be the answer to the prayer of the promoters for new faces and new color to stimulate a near dead business.

Griffiths is a 21-year-old battler from Sioux City, Ia., and before he had the name Tuffy hung on him he had to bludge to the moniker of Gerald Ambrose Griffiths. His publicity man would have you believe that it was the taunts directed at him because of a silly name that started him to fight with the juveniles at home and it may be so, although it is an old story.

But it is a matter of official record, regardless of the motives that inspired or provoked him to it, that Gerald Griffiths started fighting when he was 16 and that at the end of five years of campaigning he owned a record of 52 consecutive victories. It is true that his record includes almost as many Whoasas and Whatas as Young Stribbling's but the last four victims of his sock caused him to be added hastily and very leniently to the list of don'ts.

Griffiths caused real attention first when he knocked over Mike McTigue. There may come a time when the association of those who knocked off McTigue will have the largest membership in the racket but there aren't many doing it right now.

The Tuffy then took Tony Marullo, Jimmy Mahoney and Joe Anderson. Marullo is recognized as one of the toughest men in the game. Mahoney stopped Walcott Langford twice, broke even with Joe Sekyra and gave George Courtney all he wanted and Anderson was one of the coming fighters in the class.

It Was a Sucker Trick

The real tip-off on Griffiths came when Baron Jimmy Dougherty, Anderson's manager and one of the smartest men in the business, said after his boy had been bused off—"That Griffiths is a helluva fighter. What a sucker-I was feeding my boy to him!"

But the word had gone out before Dougherty broke his world's record by admitting that some other fellow's fighter was a good one. Tom McArdle, Rickard's matchmaker, signed Griffiths for a show in the Garden and had to ask to be released from the contract because he couldn't get anybody to take him.

Jimmy Slattery laughed off the offer with the joke that he didn't know the young man. Jack Deley said he had a social date for the night mentioned and that he would get one for any other night. All the good ones had excuses and the punks could afford to be more honest and admit that they were afraid of him.

Post High School Whips Plainview Eleven, 52 to 13

Antelopes Run Roughshod Over Class A Eleven To Win Crushing Victory In Friday Encounter

(Special to the Avalanche) POST, Dec. 7.—Scoring almost at will throughout the contest, the Post Antelopes crushed the Plainview Bulldogs here today 52 to 13. Post scored 26 points in the opening period with the first stringers running rough shod over the Class A eleven.

Coach Taylor sent in his second team in the second quarter and the reserves held the Bulldogs scoreless until the first half was over. At the beginning of the third quarter, the Post second stringers started and the Bulldogs came back with two touchdowns.

The first team went back into the fray in the final quarter and ran over the Plainview aggregation for 26 points more. Post had the ball on the Bulldog's one yard line when the final gun sounded.

Apparently the weakest team the Antelopes have met this season, the Plainview eleven failed to register a first down on the Post first team. Having been awarded the championship of districts 1 and 2, the Antelopes will play the winner of the Mineral Wells-Olney game next Friday.

TEAMS DISAGREE

Rocky Mountain Teams May Boycott Colorado

SALT LAKE CITY, Utah, Dec. 7. (AP)—Disagreement between the University of Colorado and the other five big institutions of the Rocky Mountain Inter-Collegiate Conference tonight apparently had deadlocked negotiations for next season's football schedule.

A plan said to be favored by the others of the "Big Six" and opposed by Colorado, was declared to provide for games among them in the exclusion of other members of the conference, who would be left to arrange games among themselves.

Colorado's refusal to consent to such an arrangement was said tonight to have given rise to a threat of a boycott of Colorado by the other five larger institutions.

Committeemen To Decide Question On January Tenth

Representatives From The Minors Will Gather At West Baden, Ind. To Reach Agreement

(Associated Press Sports Writer) TORONTO, Ont., Dec. 7.—The forces of minor league baseball today closed their annual convention with the whole question of the draft or selection of baseball players by the majors from the minors, just as big a problem as ever.

The 28th convention "passed the buck" to a group of committeemen ordered to meet at West Baden, Ind., January 10, to see what a small body can do about a task the larger organization did not care to face.

At the concluding session of the convention today it was agreed that three representatives of the three AA Leagues all participating only in the modified draft, one representative of each of the Class A minor leagues, three of them draft leagues and one outside, and five baseball men to speak for the 23 Class B, C, and D leagues who are almost solidly behind a movement for the unrestricted selection of worthy baseball players by the majors from the minors, should gather at the Indiana water place in an effort to reach an agreement with the majors.

In the meantime, however, the National League will meet at New York Tuesday with the American League clubs assembled at Chicago the same day and the majors may take some action on their own account with the draft problem. Major league action may wait for the joint meeting at Chicago Thursday.

THIS HAS HAPPENED

Fate introduces JERRY RAY, a shop girl, to ALESTER CARSTAIRS when he crashes his airplane into the camp she is sharing with her roommate, MERTIE. She likes his plan. DAN HARTVEY, but Alester admires her beauty and shows her attention.

Unable to buy a gown for a party he has invited her to, Jerry yields to the temptation to slip one from the store for the evening. When they found her for being "dirt" the party, Jerry dreads too much. A ready dancing partner throws her into the pool to revive her. Dan appears to help her, but Alester takes her home.

She is discharged from the store when she confesses about the dress. Jerry seeks another job and is surprised one evening when Dan calls. He proposes and she tells him she does not believe in love, but hopes to marry for money. He leaves her after a warning.

Alester makes advances which Jerry repulses. But when he learns that she has lost her job on his account, he becomes contrite and uses his influence to get her a place in a chorus.

Rehearsals are hard, but she is befriended by EVELYN STARR, who is in love with JARL THANE. Evelyn gives a party at which Jerry takes exception to Jerry's presence. A scene ensues and Dan forces an apology from Jarl.

Dan realizes that Alester is jealous and tells Jerry that she is bringing him to her feet, but is careful of her reputation. Alester insists on driving Jerry to Atlantic City for the opening of their show, but she refuses to attend a midnight party he wants to give in honor of the opening event.

Angered, he gives the party anyway and invites LEONTINE LEBAUDY to take Jerry's place. A very short mention of her in the show review makes Jerry feel as though she has made good in the new position.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY
CHAPTER XXXVII
It was a very short notice that Jerry received in the review of summertime, but to her and Evelyn it was fame. They looked arm and danced around the room in high spirits.

For both knew that when a chorus girl got a line in the papers someone was taking notice of her. The critic had referred to her by place and not by name, as one reason for Jake Weinert's leadership in the business of assembling feminine pulchritude.

"I know it," Evelyn exclaimed. "You're on the road to success, Jerry."

Suddenly Jerry caught sight of her reflection in the mirror, and of Evelyn's. Her friends' stupid pink pajamas had been made in France. Jerry knew, they stich by tiny stich. Her own robe de nuit was a flimsy peach veil, trimmed with machine-made lace.

Success. French lingerie! She stopped dancing and turned her suddenly-serious eyes upon Evelyn. "But he didn't say anything about my work," she cried with dismay. Evelyn knew she referred to the critic's review.

"Well, he certainly wouldn't have mentioned you at all if your work wasn't good," she declared stoutly.

"But I haven't any real talent. You know that," Jerry lamented. "I'm only on the stage by luck."

"You haven't any ambition. Evelyn rejoined impatiently. "Just because you haven't a magic lamp to rub."

"I won't turn down any offers," Jerry interposed laughingly, "but I'm afraid it will be a long, long time before I can see my way to the top. And I want to get to the top somewhere," she added wisely. "I want to have things."

"Evelyn, nice things like yours."

as those. Why, dear, you will soon be able to help your mother a great deal.

"While I'm working," Jerry amended excitedly. "And when I'm out of a job? What then? If the show had failed . . . oh I wish I hadn't been so stubborn last night," she wailed. "You were right, Evelyn; I've driven Alester away and . . . and . . . I wanted to marry him . . ."

"Jerry, please!" "Jerry, please!" "Didn't you guess it?" Jerry asked, suddenly calmed.

Evelyn smiled. "You're a strange little idiot," she said tenderly. "If you really wanted to marry Alester Carstairs you wouldn't act as you do. But I hope you find out before it's too late that you're chasing a will-o'-the-wisp," she added gently.

Jerry misunderstood her. "But men like Alester do marry show girls," she said defensively. "I didn't mean to say he wouldn't marry you," Evelyn explained. "I was thinking of how you've blinded yourself. It's true that I've never been really poor, Jerry, and that I'm not frightfully rich, but I do know that money will not bring you happiness."

"I don't expect to be happy the way most girls do," Jerry told her. "It's people who believe in love that are chasing will-o'-the-wisp."

Evelyn did not let her see that her words had wounded. "Well," she said. "I hope for your sake that Alester stays good and mad at you."

Her hope, however, was not to be realized.

Alester, fighting a staggering headache and cursing himself for a fool, was thinking of his gift to Leontine and hoping that Jerry would not hear of it. And he remembered, too, that he owed Jerry a coat.

He got dressed and made his way to a shop where he'd been informed that he could find imports. Selecting several coats of a size that he thought would fit Jerry he ordered them sent to her hotel, and with them he included a note.

Jerry and Evelyn had gone to the theater for afternoon rehearsal. To escape Leontine, Alester went there, about four. Jerry saw him sitting out front. He was hunched up in an attitude of dejection that won her sympathy, unguessing as she was of his well-deserved headache.

She was very much excited at that particular moment. She wondered if Alester would notice that she was rehearsing a new number.

When she had reached the theater, a half hour back, Mr. Hule had told her that she was to take the place of a girl who was ill. When Jerry came to the stage she discovered that she was replacing the girl whom the director had named against catching cold. Apparently that sneeze of Jane's had been the cue for Jerry's first rise in the theater. The bit she had got was in direct support of the star, with two other girls and three men.

Consequently Jerry felt like embracing the world. Her rebellious mood of the morning was gone, and the fear that she had lost Alester. It had not troubled her long, she never could worry over much about his feeling for her, and now that she had this good fortune to raise her spirits she felt like forgiving him everything simply because she was so happy.

At the end of the rehearsal she waved her hand to him before running down to the dressing-room. There she found the coats, which had been brought over from the hotel. The unformed boy who delivered them gave her Alester's note and Jerry read it before opening the boxes. It was a plea for fairness and a chance to talk to her.

"Jerry turned to Evelyn and held out the note. "What shall I do?" she asked.

"If Alester is responsible for the loss of your coat, as he says, I see no reason why you shouldn't let him replace it," Evelyn said after reading his message. "Let's see what he sent, anyway."

They opened the boxes and lifted the coats from the tissue paper wrappings. Jerry exclaimed in delight over one in particular. It was deeply colored with red and blue and when she put it on and felt the soft fur about her neck she lost her reluctance to let Alester give it to her.

After all, he had been unwilling to turn back and search for the coat she had lost. He preferred to buy a new one—and she owed him something for staying away from the party he had planned in her honor.

She looked long at her self in the mirror, and sent the other coats back to the shop. When she emerged from the stage door and found Alester waiting there for her she was wearing the one with the badge.

Evelyn, suspecting that Alester would be at the stage door, had lingered behind on some pretext, saying she would take a cab later.

making too much of her capitulation. "Did you notice that I'm in Miss Laurel's support now?" "To stay?" Alester asked. "I thought you might be taking Jane's place for rehearsal."

Jerry glanced at him sharply. "Is that the name of the girl who caught cold at your swimming party?" she inquired.

"I didn't know she had caught cold," Alester said with no attempt at evasion. "Some of us left the beach early and carried on in my rooms, but I heard . . ." He stopped.

Jerry was glad he did not say what he had heard. She guessed that it was the same thing Mr. Hule had referred to. But whatever it was Alester had not been involved in it, she told herself with immeasurable relief.

The show stayed a week in Atlantic City and in that time Jerry had time for realizing her ambition. Leontine had left on Tuesday night, furious at Alester for turning back his attentions to Jerry.

Jerry had not heard of the emerald bracelet though the girl whose enmity she had incurred over dressing-room rights had told her that Alester gave Leontine a diamond bracelet.

She made it diamonds because she thought those stones would more readily inflame Jerry's jealousy. Had she described the bracelet truthfully Jerry could not have helped believing her. As it was she put the information down as spiteful gossip. She saw the other girls sporting the expensive favors they had received at the party and assumed that Leontine had received a similar one.

She had no quarrel with Alester now. He had been behaving very well, and she had promised to drive with him to New York on Sunday. But shortly before the hour for the departure of the troupe Jerry was called into Mr. Weinert's office to receive some important news.

KING GEORGE

England is gloomy these days because of the serious illness of King George. It is with anxiety that the people of that nation gather around the bulletin board for a bit of information regarding the condition of the king. It may be a bit difficult for the American people to understand thoroughly the feeling and affection that the citizens of Great Britain hold toward their king.

Britishers venerate the kingly office and in the case of their present ruler, this feeling is strengthened and reinforced by the fact that the king is the nominal head of the empire.

King George's illness, which reached a serious stage Thursday night, has thrown the British Isles into a state of nervous apprehension. All other news has been overshadowed. In everything except name Great Britain is a democracy.

It is even more strongly implanted in Great Britain than in America, for the reason that the cabinet system of government is more responsive to public opinion than is the American elective fixed-term system. Retention of the kingly office in the empire is a concession to sentiment.

The king, though not without influence, exerts little direct force on either the legislative or the executive branches of the government. It is a fine tribute to the governmental genius of the British people that they have been able to retain the old tradition and maintain royalty on a basis befitting kingly traditions; and at the same time have been able to convert their government into a democracy closely responsive to the popular will.

Credit to the executive branch of the government belongs in part to the royal family of which King George is the present head. King George, no less than his illustrious predecessors, has merited the confidence and love of the people. He and his sons are the world's most noted ambassadors of good will.

The British Empire is an empire and federation. It is held in solidarity by two things: the ties of economic and military needs on the one hand and sentiment on the other. The royal family constitutes a center round which the sentimental influences of this far-flung empire rally. They are the visible symbols of Britain's solidarity and unity of purpose.

From the Arctic to the Antarctic and in lands betwixt the east and west, citizens of the British Empire are concerned with the welfare of their majesty, King George. And in America, where royalty, nobility and titles do not obtain, the news from Buckingham Palace will be read with sympathetic interest.

PULL LUBBOCK OUT OF THE MUD

The road bond election will likely be set for the 12th of January, and that will be the date when the people will be called upon to vote their wishes in the matter of paving the state and Federal highways through Lubbock county as they are now designated. The matter was submitted for the first time to the voters expressed their opinion to the first plan in a very definite way, but adversely, and now the new plan will be to pave only the highways that have been designated through the county as state and federal roads.

Those who fought the other proposition are favoring the new plan, and if the voters will fall in line and support the present plan, we presume that it will be only a matter of getting the people to the polls and counting the votes to put the matter over. But there may be those who do not understand the matter, and there should be a good clear explanation given the public in the matter, and the voters should familiarize themselves with the plans so that they will not vote through prejudice against the bonds as some people do.

One thing that you must not overlook and that is you will have to have a bran new poll tax receipt before you can vote in the coming election, for the old voting ticket will be out of date. January 1 is the most worthy cause, and the people of Lubbock should see to it that it goes over in good shape. If every third person in Lubbock would contribute only one dollar it would be raised and no one would be hurt.

A Washington Bystander

BY KIRKE L. SIMPSON

ASHINGTON, Dec. 7.—It was mere happenstance that brought a party of British journalistic pilgrims touring the United States on the goodwill promotion journey organized by the Carnegie peace foundation just at the time when Anglo-American relations seemed particularly "hot" over the cruiser row.

No doubt the visitors realized that much more was to be learned in this country about domestic political considerations like the extra session controversy. They were all experienced political reporters at home and familiar with such things. Still, it is quite possible their visit may prove helpful. To the general cause of trans-Atlantic understanding as they heard at first hand very friendly expressions in all parts of the country.

Friendship Events. That aspect of the two months of receptions, dinners, luncheons and speechmaking exchanges during the tour particularly impressed Paul Cowles, the Bystander's one-time Associated Press chief out in San Francisco and who acted as escort for the visitors in the name of the press of the United States.

While in Washington, Cowles said that aside from the hand-across-the-sea atmosphere American hosts to the Britishers everywhere had seemed anxious to create, he was also struck by the fact with which the spokesmen of the visiting journalists had handled themselves in replying to addresses of welcome.

And, he added, "they also learned to talk American."

Capital Classic. That reminds the writer of one of the classics of Washington press life which grew out of the naval limitations conference here in 1921-22.

A very considerable corps of British and other foreign political writers came over to "cover" that host to the Britishers of hospitality Van Lear Black of the Baltimore "Sunpapers" arranged a vast barbecue for the conference press wing at his Maryland farm. It was a stupendous affair with circus tents covering tables laden not only with barbecued beef, roasted to a turn-in fiery pits just outside, but with chicken in true Maryland style, turkey, salads, relishes, pastries and seemingly almost everything else the heart or palate of man could desire.

A big turn out did honor to the feast. On the way home to Washington one car was filled entirely with Britishers except for one American veteran of the press gallery. He heard one Britisher ask another how he had enjoyed "the luncheon."

"Oh, quite well, quite well," said the man addressed, a chap representing a Manchester paper. "It was crude, rawther, but quite good. A bit incomplete in spots, what?"

"Incomplete?" gasped the shocked American who had never seen such a lavish outdoor banquet.

"Yes," nodded the Britisher. "In spots. There was no cheese."

RESPIRATORY DISEASES TAKE TOLL OF CLERKS BY DR. MORRIS FISHEIN

Editor Journal of the American Medical Association And of Hygiene, the Health Magazine

Among more than 9,000 clerical workers employed in the home office of a large insurance company there were 12,378 absences lasting one day or more in 1926 due to the common cold, influenza, bronchitis and pneumonia.

There were 1,345 absences for each year due to these diseases for every thousand men and women on the payroll. For all other types of disease, the figure was 1,632 absences per thousand.

Expressed in another way, coughs, colds, influenza, bronchitis and tonsillitis are responsible for 45.2 per cent of all illness reported among clerical workers in any year. About five working days are lost for every clerk each year because of respiratory diseases.

The women employes have a much higher absence rate because of sickness than do men employes, exceeding the rate of men by 78 per cent. For respiratory diseases alone, the absence rate of women is 54 per cent higher than that of men. The figures for this insurance company may be duplicated in any large concern employing numbers of people.

Investigators are convinced at present that the control of respiratory diseases by the ordinary methods of preventive medicine is extremely difficult under modern conditions of civilization in which large numbers of people are constantly thrown into intimate contacts, assembling the great crowds at entertainments and sports, eating in tremendous eating places, traveling to and from their places of employment.

A single germ cause for the cold has not been determined at present, investigators inclining rather to the belief that various germs which may produce these symptoms are constantly in the nose, throat and respiratory tract generally, and that they seize upon the body when it is in a poor condition to resist disease.

Bodily Condition. It is generally believed that an acid condition of the body favors the infection, that bad anatomical construction in the nose and throat may aid the establishment of the germs, that bad ventilation, including particularly dryness of the atmosphere, may play a large part. Constipation may be associated with conditions of the body leading to lowered resistance.

The prevention of colds therefore involves primarily observations of simple rules of hygiene in relationship to diet, clothing, exercise and rest, and avoidance so far as possible of immediate contact with persons who may be suffering with respiratory disease.

Question—Does the average person today live longer than people did 100 years ago? Answer—In the 17th century the average age at death was 33 years; in 1850, the average age at death in Massachusetts and in New York was 46; in 1920, the average age at death in 24 states was 55.

Judging From the Size of Mother's List—

—AND DON'T FORGET TO TELETYPE TO BRING THIS— I'VE ASKED FOR IT FOR THE PAST 8 YEARS!

SO THINK WE

We think the Vernon Record is a bit particular where the flag of the country is used. The editor of the paper is objecting to the use of the American flag on Thanksgiving day. We cannot see that this is at all out of place not nearly so much as on occasions like fairs and other occasions that have nothing to do with national patriotism at all. Thanksgiving is an American made occasion, and we believe that it is perfectly legitimate for the American flag to float out on the breeze on an occasion like that.

We think there are times however that the stars and stripes are used entirely out of place, and we are afraid that the average American does not really know how the old flag should be used, and honored. We notice that people hoist the stars and stripes, and allow them to flutter in the breezes till the flag is torn to pieces by the winds. Talk of abusing the flag. That's it!

We think the new Denver line has put many towns in touch with Lubbock the Hub of the Plains, that were a long way removed in years gone by. For example see what the Vernon Record has to say about the new service: "Some of the Vernon people who attended the Lubbock football game yesterday got an opportunity to try the over-night passenger train service to the South Plains country. The new Denver service puts Lubbock and Plainview in about the same position as Fort Worth and Dallas, so far as train service from Vernon is concerned. It is all right. Before the new line was opened a rail trip to Lubbock or Plainview was a long and tiresome journey over a round-about way."

We think that next to voting for the road bonds when the election comes around is to pay your poll tax. Fact-of-the-business if you do not do that first you will be as helpless as a Chinaman when the bond election comes along on the 12th of January.

We think that if the dollar mark is all that is behind every reason for people doing the things that they do, this nation is getting dangerously far away from the best reason on earth for people to live in the United States.

We think that if the people of America would obey the commandment that reads: Remember the Sabbath day to keep it holy, there would not be such a demand for front page publicity to the great number of accidents that occur on Sunday.

We think it is a strange thing that some people who have made a fortune in a town would ever want to leave that town. But some folks seem to want to do that. However, since we have never owned a fortune, we are forced to let this remain among the mysteries.

We think the Altus Times paragraph is possibly right when he said that, "As long as people drive automobiles there'll be wrecks and mangled bodies. As long as airplanes roar above there'll be crashes and crushed skulls. Progress in either branch of transportation will not stop. It takes a lot more nerve to take a ten mile auto drive with a fool driver than a thirty minute hop with a careful pilot." But why is it really necessary to do either, is what brings a question mark into our minds.

We think the people of Ft. Worth and Dallas and Chicago and New York, and every other place that is in close touch with the great South Plains are greatly surprised at the wonderful possibilities of the great Staked Plains of Texas. When they come out here and strike nits and rub shoulders with the populace of this country, and see things as they

TERRIFYING. Be sure that the man who likes to terrify others, to make others fear him, is the man who himself lives in fear. Cruelty may be the sign of a cowardly nature. Men who are really fearful prefer to disguise their fears by appearing to be "crudely bold."

COURTESY. If employees knew how their stores or offices or plants are judged by the attitude of their employes toward the wear and tear of things, some of them are in teaching those who represent them to be courteous. Probably courtesy brings as much business as sound goods and efficiency.

NOT TO BE CRITICISED. Don't ever criticize a man who has not had the advantage of a school of fools. Some of them are always good reasons for not blaming him. In the first place the best part of education is something that one can get without going to school and something that many have who never had the opportunity to study books. Somewhere they have learned modesty and gentleness and courtesy and a thoughtful attitude toward this curious life we are in. They have both education and culture. And even if a man has not these qualities he ought not to be condemned. For he has no education at all, he probably appreciates and regrets that fact more than anybody.

WHY FEAR DEATH? The natural process of life includes death. The body finally succumbs to the wear and tear of life and it is normal thing that it should. Death is as natural as going to sleep. If we do thoughtfully and serenely what we have to do in this active sphere in which we move about, why fear the next normal step?

IT'S WORTH THE PRICE. One of the most helpful signs of the times is the fact that cities are first hand. Listen to what some of the newspapers said about the Plains after their visit to this country on the recent inauguration of passenger service over the Denver railroad. Here is what they say: Officials of the Burlington System, visiting West Texas on the new South Plains line of the Fort Worth and Denver City, return to their homes expressing "amazement and gratification" at the development of this section. When men at the head of a great railroad system are astonished by the magnitude of the development of a section served by their lines, there is indeed something here to astonish. Railroads are barometers of conditions. When business is good, when development is proceeding, the railroads know it through their increased revenues. The new line of the Fort Worth and Denver will keep above there'll be crashes and crushed skulls. Progress in either branch of transportation will not stop. It takes a lot more nerve to take a ten mile auto drive with a fool driver than a thirty minute hop with a careful pilot." But why is it really necessary to do either, is what brings a question mark into our minds.

We think the people of Ft. Worth and Dallas and Chicago and New York, and every other place that is in close touch with the great South Plains are greatly surprised at the wonderful possibilities of the great Staked Plains of Texas. When they come out here and strike nits and rub shoulders with the populace of this country, and see things as they

Public Opinion

To The Editor: Had a fine trip and handed in Harrison, Arkansas, on November 30th. Missed my train at Joplin and so missed the opportunity of two Thanksgiving dinners but made up for it Friday with my grandson and wife, then with my 84-year-old brother and wife and a late supper with my son-in-law and daughter which, with other good eats, included a fat possum and "saters." Anybody here that has a little piece of land, is able to work and will try, can have plenty of good, clean eats the year around but some don't try.

I now sit by a log fire, pick up walnuts in the yard and crack and eat them. I read the Morning Avalanche, which is coming okay. Have seen several Boone county relatives and friends and am going soon to see my other brother, nearly 79, in Marion county, and other relatives and old friends.

Oh, how precious the memories of old friends and loved ones and associations of the past! How we cherish and dream of them! I saw some covered wagons on the road that reminded me of early days where I lived on the main highway and saw long trains of wagons, sometimes between twenty and thirty wagons on their way to Texas. Some had "Texas or Bust" in big letters on the wagon sheets. Later some of these returned with "Busted" just below.

I have also seen some pass with pushcarts and carrying what they could on their backs. The old trees, rocks, hills and hollows, though rough and rugged, look so natural, friendly and homelike that I love them although their green, summer beauty and the beautiful flowers are gone.

The beautiful leaves and flowers die and decay in the fall and reappear in the spring. Shall we do the same? That is our hope.

LIBERALS CALLED ON TO FIGHT BIGOTRY BY REV. DELWORTH LUPTON, Pastor, First Unitarian Church, of Cleveland.

(Delworth Lupton was born at Cincinnati, O., Sept. 15, 1883. He is a graduate of Shady Side academy, Hackley school, Yale university and Meadville Theological school. He was ordained in the Unitarian ministry in 1916 and was pastor of First Unitarian church at Louisville, Ky., until 1919. He has been pastor of First Unitarian church at Cleveland, O., since 1919. In 1919 he was a chaplain in the United States army.)

Bigotry, the arch enemy of untrammelled thought of the highest quality, can be offset only by the spirit of liberalism, a return to our fathers' faith in freedom rather than suppression. The anti-evolution movement bears evidence to a great wave of mass religious bigotry.

This movement first appeared in 1881 when the Florida legislature passed a unanimous resolution that the teaching of the theory of evolution is contrary to public welfare.

Since then the anti-evolution supporters have urged campaigns in 40 states. They succeeded in Tennessee, as all the world knows. Their latest success came during the last election in Arkansas.

What can the liberal do to combat the spirit of bigotry? He can work through existing institutions. He can encourage newspapers to present fairly all sides of most questions. He can insist that a dominant political party resist the temptation to tyrannize over minorities. He can insist upon the right of teachers and professors to state freely to their students what they believe to be the truth.

The first task of the liberal, however, is to develop free spirit within him. He must learn to understand sympathetically those whose ideas differ from his own. "We must read all sides or ostentatious questions. He must refuse to be an intellectual yes man to any party or sect.

Furthermore, a man who seeks a free mind for himself must have courage. There are times when it is necessary for him to oppose the crowd, even in the face of ridicule and intimidation, and to cry with Luther, "Here I stand; I can do no otherwise. So help me, God!"

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., Dec. 7 (AP)—Nineteen years of painstaking labor in collecting flags have rewarded David I. McCormick with an honor possessed only by one other—Col. Charles A. Lindbergh.

The two men, one virtually unknown and the other of worldwide renown, held the cross of honor of the United States Flag association. McCormick's recognition came after he spent nearly two decades in the reclamation of United States battle flags.

This 78-year-old veteran of the Spanish-American war, who is superintendent of the Indiana flag commission, has assembled 75 flags and 84 banners, many tattered by age or torn by bullet holes. He has mounted the flags, often by a tedious process of sewing, and has placed them behind specially constructed glass cases, airtight and fireproof. The flags are on display on the top floor of the state house.

Suzanne Lenglen Makes Mysterious California Visit

Romance Believed Motive of French Tennis Star in Attending Party at Lake Tahoe Lodge

LAKE TAHOE, Cal., Dec. 7. (AP)—Errors of reporters to solve the mystery arising out of the visit here of Mme. Suzanne Lenglen, French tennis star, went for naught today after they had interviewed every accessible member of the group of persons quartered at the Lake Tahoe lodge of Mrs. Anita Baldwin, hostess of the French woman.

Mlle. Lenglen and a woman said to be her mother, accompanied by Thaddeus A. Winter, divorced husband of Mrs. Baldwin's daughter Dextra, detained at Truckee, Cal., early yesterday morning and were whisked away by automobile to the seclusion of Mrs. Baldwin's lodge. The trio arrived from Europe a week ago.

Poses As Spokesman

A man, who said his name was Ninocely, but who refused to further identify himself, told the correspondents he was spokesman for Mrs. Baldwin. He denied that any marriage was contemplated among the guests, particularly the report that Mlle. Lenglen would become the bride of either Winter or Baldwin M. Baldwin, son of the hostess.

"If any romance whatever exists it is between Baldwin M. Baldwin and Mlle. Lenglen," he said. "But that is their own business, now, isn't it? Anyway, Mrs. Baldwin is very tired of the speculation that has arisen over Mlle. Lenglen's visit and is on the verge of collapse."

Sunday-School Lesson

BY DR. J. E. NUNN

INTERNATIONAL SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON FOR DECEMBER 9, 1928

General Topic: Paul Goes to Rome.
Scripture Lesson: Acts 28:11-24, 30, 31.

11. And after three months we set sail in a ship of Alexandria, which had wintered in the island, whose sign was The Twin Brothers.

12. And touching at Syracuse, we tarried there three days.

13. And from thence we made a circuit, and arrived at Rhegium, and after one day a south wind sprang up, and on the second day we came to Puteoli.

14. Where we found brethren, and were entertained to tarry with them seven days; and so we came to Rome.

15. And from thence the brethren, when they heard of us, came to meet us as far as the market of Appia and The Three Taverna: whom when Paul saw, he thanked God, and took courage.

16. And when we entered into Rome, Paul was suffered to abide by himself with the soldier that guarded him.

17. And it came to pass, that after three days he called together those that were the chief of the Jews; and when they were come together, he said unto them, I brethren, though I had done nothing against the people, or the customs of our fathers, yet was delivered prisoner from Jerusalem into the hands of the Romans:

18. Who, when they had examined me, desired to set me at liberty, because there was no cause of death in me.

19. But when the Jews spake against me, I was constrained to appeal unto Caesar; not that I had sought whereof to accuse my nation.

20. For this cause therefore did I entrust you to see and to speak with me: for because of the hope of Israel I am bound with this chain.

21. And they said unto him, We neither received letters from Judea concerning thee, nor did any of the brethren come hither and report or speak any harm of thee.

22. But we desire to hear of thee what thou thinkest: for as concerning this sect, it is known to us that everywhere it is spoken against.

23. And when they had appointed him a day, they came to him into his lodging in great number; to whom he expounded the matter, testifying the kingdom of God, and persuading them concerning Jesus both from the law of Moses and from the prophets, from morning till evening.

24. And some believed the things which were spoken, and some disbelieved.

25. And he abode two whole years in his own hired dwelling, and received all that went in unto him.

26. Preaching the kingdom of God, and teaching the things concerning Jesus Christ with all boldness, none forbidding him.

27. Time: The voyage to Malta, September; A. D. 59. Malta to Rome, spring of A. D. 60. Paul's first Roman imprisonment, A. D. 60-61. Place: Malta and Rome.

Golden Text: I am not ashamed of the gospel: for it is the power of God unto salvation to every one that believeth. Rom. 1:16.

Introduction.
"Paul was no Galilean peasant but a citizen of the Roman empire. His outlook always was imperial. No other disciple or apostle at the time of his call had such a wide field opened before him. He set out to be a world conqueror. He took the world for his parish from the very beginning. He was a little man with a great soul, like John Wesley. He never was satisfied with the territories traversed or the work already done. He always planned wider itineraries and greater enterprises. He had a boundless ambition. His plans always outspan his possibilities. He dreamed of a kingdom, world-wide and eternal. No other apostle had such an imperial programme. No other apostle did so much to realize such a programme. It was his imperialism which made Paul the greatest missionary the Christian church has produced."

Rome. Now Rome was the world, in Paul's day. No other city before or since has gathered up to itself so many reins of power and influence reaching out over the world. Therefore Paul's thoughts, during all the early years of his missionary work, turned ever and more eagerly to Rome. He labored in Damascus, Jerusalem, Antioch, Ephesus and Corinth, all great cities, but he ever looked forward to a greater, to the greatest.

When at Corinth he was at his nearest point to Rome, and wrote to the Christians of Rome the Epistle which most Christians regard as the supreme writing of his pen. In it he shows how eagerly he had captured every bit of news which reached him from the Roman church, how he rejoiced in every evidence of the faith of the Roman Christians, how he longed to see them, and how he prayed for them constantly, asking that it might be God's will that he should go to them. He tells them that he had often laid plans to go to Rome, but the way had been closed by God's providence which Paul was always so quick to recognize.

Paul's Journey to Rome. The journey to Rome may not have been as he had expected; but Paul never was greatly concerned about the means, about external circumstances, so long as the end he ever held in view was attained—winning men to Christ. Preaching "Jesus and the resurrection" in Jewish synagogues, or rented hall, or public square, or by the shambles that loaded his wrists there at Rome (Rom. 1:12ff.)—it was all one to him, if only the gospel got itself preached. That he could turn misfortune, unpropitious circumstances, bitter opposition, to the gospel's advantage reveals the marvelous genius of the man, as well as his indomitable faith that God works things together to good ends.

The "Man of Macedonia." "Did not the Man of Macedonia—personification of lost Europe in dire need of Christ's salvation—beckon to our apostle from the Imperial City? What he not—ever leading Paul on and on?—He thought, indeed, of far-distant Spain—That vision of the beckoning man was backgrounded by his other vision of the Man of Macedonia; who could answer Europe's, and the world's need; and who had appointed this Paul to be a bearer of his grace to the Gentile nations.

The Arrival in Italy. Our last lesson left Paul at Caesarea. He had appealed to Rome, and thither Festus the governor sent him. We pass over the events of the voyage, the account of which in Acts is one of the most thrilling adventure stories in literature. Its key-though might be embodied in the angel's assurance, "Fear not, Paul." (Acts 27:24). It was a safe journey, as all the goings to and from of the saints are, in the sense that our apostle and his companions finally landed safe on Italian soil.

The Appian Way. They would traverse, on the land journey northward, via Capua, the famous Appian Way, portions of which are still in use. It is the fashion for Christians visiting Italy piously to trace Paul's footsteps along this road and to the places mentioned here in this last chapter of Acts. How it must have heartened our apostle to have brethren of the Roman church come all that long way to bid him welcome! (Ver. 15). Luke voices Paul's appreciation in the short, memorable, splendid sentence—"He thanked God and took courage."

Rome was the center of the civilized world, the melting pot of nations and religions, where the gospel would find its largest opportunity. Paul was on the whole a favored prisoner. Yet, following a common practice, he was kept handcuffed to a soldier (Phil. 1:13; Col. 4:18); and this guard was at one end of a log and a boy at the other end—put Paul at one end of a chain and a Roman soldier at the other and what will happen during the long hours of this intimacy? Assuredly, some at least of those soldiers will be won to Christ.

"Everywhere Spoken Against" v. 22. Not only had the columns of the Jews of Judea been widely disseminated, but in general dark and lying stories about the Christians were in circulation. The Roman author Tacitus writing at this time, speaks of the gospel as "a detestable superstition, guilty of atrocious and shameful crimes." But has any great, good movement ever escaped this fate?

The most important item of these closing verses is that throughout the two years he was not denied freedom of teaching. He could not go out to the people, but they came to him. "How all the schemes of the enemies of Paul and Christ had turned out to the furtherance of the gospel! (Phil. 1:12). They had brought Paul to Rome at the expense of the state—they had given Paul a great audience." (Torrey). During these two years he probably wrote four of the epistles that we highly prize: Ephesians, Colossians, Philippians and Philemon.

"Whose I Am and Whom I Serve" Acts 27:22.

"To the mastery of Christ Paul had fully surrendered, yielding to his personality, a personality so intense, so vivid, as to excite the most ardent affection for 'never man,' as one has said, 'loved Christ with so absorbing a passion as did Paul.' His love for Christ is indeed without a parallel in the history of religious emotions. He never lost the vision of Him whom he saw but once, on the way to Damascus. Dedicating his whole being to 'the Christ who had loved him'—and given himself for him, he had no thought but to please Christ, no aim but to advance his glory. This is the secret of all great life. 'It is only,' said Phillips Brooks, 'in personal love and loyalty that life completes itself.'"—Robert E. Speer.

They had brought Paul to Rome at the expense of the state—they had given Paul a great audience." (Torrey). During these two years he probably wrote four of the epistles that we highly prize: Ephesians, Colossians, Philippians and Philemon.

"Whose I Am and Whom I Serve" Acts 27:22.

"To the mastery of Christ Paul had fully surrendered, yielding to his personality, a personality so intense, so vivid, as to excite the most ardent affection for 'never man,' as one has said, 'loved Christ with so absorbing a passion as did Paul.' His love for Christ is indeed without a parallel in the history of religious emotions. He never lost the vision of Him whom he saw but once, on the way to Damascus. Dedicating his whole being to 'the Christ who had loved him'—and given himself for him, he had no thought but to please Christ, no aim but to advance his glory. This is the secret of all great life. 'It is only,' said Phillips Brooks, 'in personal love and loyalty that life completes itself.'"—Robert E. Speer.

Hoover Ship Now On Way To Chile

ABOARD U. S. S. MARYLAND, ENROUTE TO ANTOFAGASTA, Chile, Dec. 7 (AP)—The Hoover "Good-Will Ship" passed today from the coast of Peru to that of Chile where two stops will be made. The first will take place Saturday at Antofagasta, where officials of the Republic of Bolivia will board the vessel for a four-hour visit with the president-elect of the United States. The second stop will be at Valparaiso on Monday.

Midland Building

MIDLAND, Dec. 7.—Work on the 12-story Petroleum building is making good headway, in spite of the fact that freezing and wet weather last week slowed up the concrete work. Forms are being built for the eighth floor, and concrete will be poured Tuesday.

RUBBER ARTICLES

The new dainty shoe gloves, rubber house gloves and other rubber articles can be kept fresh and new by giving them a "bath" of talcum powder, when dry, after use.

FISH ODOUR

A cut lemon, rubbed over knives and forks, will remove the odor of fish.

OVER-FATIGUE

Housewives who find themselves very tired in the afternoon can be cheered up tremendously if they will try sipping a glass of hot milk and resting a half hour afterwards.

PATCHING SCRATCHES

If your wall paper gets scratched, carefully apply some moistened scrapings from some of the matching left-over paper. Use a sharp knife to scrape off the scraps. When dry the scratches will be covered.

CLEAN FUR

If the collar of your fur coat soils your neck, try the following cleaning process. Heat bran in a saucepan, stirring it well so it will not burn. Rub white warm into the fur collar. Shake well and rub more until the hat bran comes out clean. Shake and air the coat.

FIRE-PLACE PAN

If cleaning the fireplace is such a chore you shrink from having a fire often, why not measure it and have a pan made to catch the ashes. They can be made inexpensively at foundries, of tin or even brass, with the back and sides two inches high and the front open so they will scarcely show.

Volume of Trade Shows Unexpected Gains, Dun's Says

Sustained High Level of Business Activity Shows Year Will End Satisfactorily, Report Says

NEW YORK, Dec. 7.—Dun's Review tomorrow will say: "The sustained high level of business activity is confirming the previous conclusion that the year would end satisfactorily in many instances, the situation holding its various elements of strength. Thus far, December results, if naturally revealing contrasts in different lines have been mainly favorable, and a continuance of the condition is foretold."

lines activity is confirming the previous conclusion that the year would end satisfactorily in many instances, the situation holding its various elements of strength. Thus far, December results, if naturally revealing contrasts in different lines have been mainly favorable, and a continuance of the condition is foretold.

"Even with annual inventories now engaging wider attention, the volume of trade, as a whole, discloses less than the normal shrinkage to be anticipated at the time, and in some quarters shows unexpected gains. It is a period when a desire to keep down stocks of goods invariably causes a deferment of numerous important commitments yet most supplies have been so well aligned to actual consumption that a frequent repeating of orders is necessary to meet the present heavy requirements."

Record Turnover Predicted "Despite the drawback of recent mild weather in some sections, ordinary retail distribution has been quite full, generally considered and Christmas shopping already has attained proportions suggestive of a record turnover. Such phases obviously would not appear without an extensive employment of labor, and in this respect there has been a decided improvement over the status prevailing early in the year."
