Clements: Let White Sue

Attorney General Accused Of Oil Spill 'Circus'

AUSTIN (AP) — Gov. Bill Clements accused Attorney General Mark White on Thursday of turning the Mexican oil spill into "a circus" and told him to make good on his threats to sue SEDCO or shut up.

He also said Texas beaches are clean and ready for the tourist trade.

"At this moment, I am happy to say, the beaches are clean and I want to underline that and I want to repeat it. The beaches are clean and our environment has been protected. The inside waters at Laguna Madre have not been damaged. Now those are the facts," Clements said.

He also vouched for the quality of Texas shrimp. He said the State Health Department and the U.S. Food and Drug Administration "regularly and consistently and energetically" have inspected the shrimp "and there has been no contamination. Everything is fine."

Clements said at his first Capitol news conference since returning from Russia and Eastern Europe that "there seems to be no end to" White's talk of suing SEDCO.

"If he thinks there is any liability on SEDCO's part, he ought to go ahead and sue them. That's his duty," Clements said.

White said last week he planned to sue SEDCO, a Dallas-based oil drilling company founded by Clements; Pemex, the Mexican oil monopoly; and Permargo, a Mexican drilling contractor.

SEDCO owned the rig used by Permargo on behalf of Pemex to drill the Ixtoc I oil well that blew out June 3, sending millions of gallons of oil drifting onto Texas beaches.

Clements' interest in SEDCO is in a blind trust during his tenure as governor. His son, Gill, runs the company.

The governor said White, Texas Democratic Party Chairman Billy Goldberg and state AFL-CIO President Harry Hubbard were "an off-key trio singing the same song" of blame for SEDCO.

"Making a disaster like this ... into a political circus serves no purpose except to inflate the egos of the ringmasters and confuse the public," Clements said.

He said that while White should sue SEDCO if he thinks it bears liability for the spill, he should stop threatening to sue Pemex "and let this issue cool. If he does, I feel confident that Mexico as a good neighbor will assist us in this oil spill clean-up and in meeting some damage claims."

Clements, who often has bridled at questions about SEDCO's involvement in the spill, brought up the issue himself but at one point told reporters, "One of these days, you are going to accept the fact I have nothing to do with SEDCO."

Copies Of Testimony

He passed out copies of SEDCO officers' sworn testimony to a congressional committee investigating the spill.

The governor, an oilman for 40 years, said there "undoubtedly" would be more offshore oil spills in the future, calling it "the kind of risk you take" in energy production.

"This goes with that kind of endeavor. I say we have to move forward," he said.

Clements said he was considering the addition of $1 million for advertising the Texas Gulf Coast to tourists to the agenda for the special legislative session he will call next year.

He said, however, he might be able to find advertising money in funds already appropriated without having to raise the issue in a special session.

Session Targeted

Clements said "for the umpteenth time" the session will be in January, March or September, 1980.

On other subjects, Clements said:

— He has not pushed Jim Adams, his criminal justice division chief, for director of the Texas Department of Public Safety but thinks he should be considered.

"I personally think he is the outstanding law enforcement person in the United States," Clements said of Adams, former No. 2 man in the FBI.

— He has rejected a fourth of the parole recommendations submitted by the Board of Pardons and Paroles because they are coming too fast and thick — "If we followed their recommendations, our

THERE SHE GOES AGAIN — Nanci Pavlin grimaces in the preliminary throes of her midway role, that of changing into a ferocious (see banner) gorilla. (Staff Photo by Dennis Copeland)

Girl, Gorilla Play Dual Midway Role

NANCI PAVLIN has pretty teeth, a clear complexion and a nice smile. Just doesn't look like the sort of girl who'd do anything like turn into a mean, hairy gorilla.

But she does. Every day, maybe 40, 50 times ("right before your very eyes"), on the midway at the Panhandle South Plains Fair.

Nanci (according to the legend), was reared by apes in Africa and now, under hypnosis, goes from shapely to apely at the snap of a finger. Trouble is, Nanci, as Zambora, the ape-girl, tends to become a little unruly, as witnesses to the occurence can testify.

So far, though, other members of the show have managed to subdue her before anyone gets hurt.

It would be unusual if anyone did; the show is a longtime classic in midway annals and plays to perfection here — as probably several thousand Lubbock fairgoers know by this time.

This year's ride and show lineup is one of the best ever seen here and has played a large role in attracting what may be a record attendance at the 62nd annual exposition.

Novices Head For Hills As Gold Prices Soar

By DAVID L. LANGFORD
Associated Press Writer

THE LUST for gold, whetted by a price tag of nearly $400 an ounce, is sending amateur prospectors into America's hills and canyons and old abandoned mines in mounting numbers.

"Every time the price goes up $20 in three days we have another gold rush," said Frank Sullivan, proprietor of the Mother Lode Dive Shop in Sacramento, Calif. "It's happened about four times this year."

The price of gold bullion soared nearly $20 an ounce in London on Thursday, reaching a record high of $395.50, and hit $399 in New York.

The Gold Rush of '79 may be only a slow stroll as compared with the stampede to Sutter's Mill following the big strike there on Jan. 24, 1848, but it's more than just a weekend diversion for the novice with a new plastic pan and a rock hammer.

William C. Butterman, gold specialist for the Bureau of Mines in Washington, said 12 to 15 gold mines have been opened or reopened in the past year. But the only major strike has come in Jerritt Canyon in Nevada, where Freeport Minerals and FMC Corp. hope to have a mine in operation by 1982.

"When the price increases this much, it's bound to have an effect on exploration," Butterman said.

The old Iron Dye mine in Oregon's Hell's Canyon, recently purchased along with some surrounding property by Texas Gulf Sulfur for $1.5 million, has been reopened with new techniques to retrieve gold, silver and copper.

"I'd call this a gold mine rather than a copper mine," said Arne Widman, a veteran miner in charge of the Iron Dyke operation.

Widman, a native of Baker, Ore., said his firm found a large ore concentration which the early miners apparently missed.

"Our first ore body looks real good," he said. "The old timers mined above it and to the east."

Gold fever also is spreading among the "dig-it-yourself" amateurs. The U.S. Geolgical Survey, which has distributed

250,000 copies of a leaflet on prospecting as a hobby over the years, recently updated the phamplet.

"With the gold approaching $400 an ounce there just have to be a lot of people who have known or have poked around old mining areas who will be interested in prospecting," said survey geologist Bill Newman.

Already the makers of prospecting equipment have struck it rich.

Charles Garrett of Garrett Electronics in Dallas, makers of a $4.95 plastic tray for panning gold, has marketed 68,000 in the past year, compared with 23,000 the year before.

"We're absolutely flabbergasted," he said.

At the Mother Lode Dive Shop, Sullivan has sold out of the eight-horsepower gasoline engines that power the vacuum cleaner-type dredges popular with weekend gold seekers. It now takes two to four weeks to get delivery on one of the dredges that suck up the sand and water and jiggle out the light materials. They sell for between $500 and $1,500.

Carl Harmon, a mining geologist with the U.S. Forest Service, said prospectors are pouring into Idaho's Nez Perce National Forest, staking out claims and working the streams with the portable dredges. He said he counted 22 dredges working within the South Fork drainage area at one time and estimates that 50 to 60 dredges are in the area at one time or the other.

"We've had an increase here that's almost immeasurable," Harmon said. "Claims are being staked, not only by individuals, but by large companies."

Trade Deficit Rises On Imports Surge

WASHINGTON (AP) — A surge in imports, including a record-setting cost for foreign oil, helped widen the U.S. trade deficit to $2.36 billion in August, the government reported Thursday.

The August deficit was more than double the $1.1 billion by which imports exceeded exports in July, the Commerce Department report said. And it was the largest since a $2.48 billion red-ink figure in May.

The report was likely to result in more pressure on the dollar, which fell sharply against major European currencies on foreign money markets Thursday.

The U.S. inflation rate, currently at an annual pace above 13 percent, and its merchandise trade deficit are among the factors causing the dollar's recent weakness.

The Commerce Department report indicated that imports rose to a record $18.18 billion in August, up 8.3 percent from July's $16.78 billion.

The increase was the largest, in percentage terms, since an 8.8 percent rise in February, 1978, figures show.

Exports also hit a record level, $15.82 billion. But the 1 percent increase from July was not enough to keep pace with the import surge.

The August figures are the reverse of the pattern so far this year. Exports for the first eight months totaled $115.4 billion, 27 percent ahead of the same period last year. Imports, meanwhile, are up only 16 percent to $130.6 billion.

The strength of the exports has led Carter administration officials to predict that the trade deficit for 1979 will be about $23 billion, down from last year's $28.5 billion.

Part of the surge in import costs in August was due to higher-priced foreign oil, which has been boosted 60 percent in price since the start of the year by the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries.

The nation's petroleum import bill rose to a record $5.2 billion in August, up 7.9 percent from the previous high of $4.8 billion in July.

The volume of imports totaled 245.9 million barrels, up only slightly from the previous month and still below the 8.2 million barrel-per-day quota that President Carter has set.

That produced a per-barrel price of $21.14 in August, compared with $19.60

Commissioners Face Minorities' Censure

By RUTHANNE BROCKWAY
Avalanche-Journal Staff

AN ORGANIZATION of area minority groups says it may use its political clout to publicly disapprove of the Lubbock County Commissioners' decision to withdraw membership from the South Plains Association of Governments.

The Conference of Organizations, composed of representatives from 35 area minority groups, met Thursday to decide its course of action on the matter.

Individuals in the group already have expressed their displeasure. Gilbert Herrera of the Brown Berets called it "a slap in the face" and accused the commissioners of "playing games with us."

The commissioners pulled out after SPAG amended its bylaws to add eight members to represent the minority community.

Bidel Aguero, publisher of El Editor newspaper, said of Lubbock County's withdrawal, "I don't know if it's a racial reaction or if they are sincere in saying it's because of federal intervention, but it's one of the two. I think it's more of a racial reason."

Aguero believes minority members of county advisory boards should resign in protest of the matter, saying that the county doesn't object to minority membership on "rinky-dink" advisory boards but does object to "real representation such as SPAG."

The conference plans to poll minority members of advisory boards for their reaction on resignation. If that idea fails, the conference will write "a strong letter" to the county commissioners expressing public disapproval of their withdrawal from SPAG.

One conference member disagreed with the proposal that minorities resign from advisory boards, saying, "Who will represent us then?"

The conference also accepted the names of four minority representatives nominated by their executive board to serve as Lubbock city and county representatives on SPAG. The four are Aguero, Bert McWilliams, Joan Ervin and Tomas Garza.

The nominations will be presented to the SPAG board at 8 p.m. Monday at Rodgers Community Center. Director Jerry Casstevens said the board will also take other nominations, if any, at that meeting.

Since the withdrawal of the commissioners, SPAG is unsure if there should should be eight minority representatives as originally planned or six.

Fair Attendance Figure Bids To Shatter Record

By RAYNIE HARDESTY
Avalanche-Journal Staff

WITH ATTRACTIONS including the Tom T. Hall show and guest Charley McLain, fair officials are hoping this year's entertainment will lure a record-breaking crowd to the 62nd annual Panhandle South Plains Fair before the gates close Saturday.

Superb weather combined with a lineup of 11 country shows and a host of other attractions have brought 214,854 to the fair this week. Thursday's turnout numbered 24,284.

Officials hope attendance figures will surpass the 325,000 mark by Saturday night. The fair's attendance record, set in 1976, is 324,721. By Wednesday, this year's attendance already was about 60,000 short of 1978's overall turnout, and about 134,000 away from breaking the old record.

College students and military personnel will be admitted to the grounds free today.

Tom T. Hall takes the stage at 8 p.m. in the Fair Park Coliseum along with Charley McLain.

Hall, who has had at least a dozen number one hits, has been nicknamed the "Storyteller" because of songs including "Harper Valley PTA," "The Year Clayton Delaney Died," "Old Dogs and Children and Watermelon Wine" and "Your Old Man Loves You Honey."

Youngsters are among Hall's fans, too, as a result of such small fry favorites as "Sneaky Snake" and "You Gotta Say Baaaa to a Little Baby Goat."

Miss McLain was nominated this year as Best New Female Vocalist by the Academy of Country Music and was runnerup for Country Music Magazine's Bullet Award for Best Female Vocalist of the the Year.

The second night of competition between 262 entrants in the All Youth Rodeo, sponsored by Lubbock County 4-H clubs and the fair association, will take place at 7:30 p.m. in the livestock pavilion.

Rodeo performers will be putting their skills to the test in nine events to win cash prizes paid to the best riders and ropers.

The competitors, 19 and under, will be trying to make the best scores in bareback riding, bull riding, tie-down calf roping, ribbon roping, barrel racing and pole bending. Some events will be

All day: Gene Ladel million dollar midway; displays in women's building; commercial displays, both indoors and outdoors; winning agricultural exhibits in agriculture building.

J. Edd McLaughlin, Former Regent, Dies

RALLS (Special) — J. Edd McLaughlin, past president of Rotary International and former chairman of the Texas Tech University Board of Regents, died at 12:40 p.m. Thursday in Lubbock's Methodist Hospital after a brief illness.

McLAUGHLIN

Services for McLaughlin, 85, of Ralls will be at 4 p.m. Saturday in the First United Methodist Church here. The Rev. Howard Marcom, pastor, will officiate, and Robert L. Burgess and Rex Webster will assist.

Burial will follow in Ralls Cemetery under the direction of the Carter-Adams Funeral Home here.

The Childress County native moved to Crosby County in 1905. He was educated in the public schools of Texas, graduated from West Texas State Teachers College of Canyon and Brantley-Draughon Business College in Fort Worth.

In 1912 he joined his father and brothers in founding two private banks in Crosby County. He was chairman of the board of the Security State Bank and Trust Co. in Ralls and was joint proprietor and executive of The McLaughlins, a family land holding and investment group. He also owned and operated extensive farming and oil properties.

McLaughlin was a charter member, director and past president of the Ralls Rotary Club and served later as governor and director of Rotary International. He was elected president of Rotary International for 1960-1961.

He was appointed to the Texas Tech Board of Regents and served from 1961 to 1967, including a term as chairman of the board.

McLaughlin served on the board of the Federal Reserve Bank of Dallas from 1947 to 1967. He also served as past president of the Caprock Bankers Association, South Plains Bankers Association and chairman of the seventh district of the Texas Bankers Association.

He has served as director and past president of the Ralls Chamber of Commerce, past director of the Panhandle Plains Historical Society and as a member of the Executive Council and National Council of the Boy Scouts of America, receiving the Silver Beaver Award.

McLaughlin was a Mason, a member

Mariachis Invade San Antonio To Stage Own Convention

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — Mariachi musicians have been serenading conventions of doctors, lawyers, morticians, plumbers and pipefitters in this convention city for many years. But now it's the mariachis who are holding the convention.

More than 300 mariachis from Mexico, the southwestern United States — and Rhode Island of all places — are exchanging ideas, methods and interpretations of the lively Mexican folk music at the 1st International Mariachi Conference here this weekend.

Belle San Miguel, conference coordinator, said it's only natural that the convention should be in San Antonio, where thousands of Yankee conventioneers hear mariachi music for the first time.

The strolling trumpet-and-string bands — in elegant black costumes complete with huge white sombreros — are a staple in the numerous restaurants frequented by tourists and natives alike. There are few San Antonio social events without mariachi bands.

There are, Mrs. San Miguel said, more than 400 mariachi musicians and at least 33 organized professional mariachi groups in San Antonio, where Roman Catholic churches regularly hold mariachi mass and where many high schools sponsor mariachi bands.

It's still common in San Antonio for a young Don Juan to hire a band for a midnight serenade outside his girlfriend's window.

And Mrs. San Miguel pointed out that enraged fathers are still known to douse the band with a bucket of water if he doesn't approve of the suitor or the midnight noise. "One band member told me he would never do those jobs again because his instrument got wet."

Mrs. San Miguel said mariachi music is rapidly growing in popularity. She said there are hundreds of mariachi groups in the southwestern states, especially California.

The music is understandably popular in Mexico and South America, but there's also an all-girl mariachi in Japan.

The wailing string ballads and blaring, staccato trumpet polkas are believed to have originated in the state of Jalisco, Mexico, in the mid-1800s, said Mrs. San Miguel.

The generally accepted story of the origin of the word "mariachi" is tha is comesfrom the French word for wedding, "mariage." Maxmilian, who ruled Mexico from 1864 until 1867, enjoyed the folk orchestras and asked that they play in the French Court for weddings and other special occasions.

The Mexicans then reputedly began calling the musicians "mariachis."

The music has never been written down or published, so there are numerous interpretations of the songs, she said. The convention is aimed at bringing together the various groups and giving them a chance to compare interpretations or techniques of playing the unique mariachi instruments.

"There's no correct technique, perhaps because it has never been put down as music before," she said.

Mrs. San Miguel, who teaches a mariachi class at San Antonio College and whose four children are mariachi musicians, said a mariachi group should include six to 12 musicians. That can vary, she added.

In addition to trumpets, the band should include guitars, violins, a guitarron, which is a large bass guitar with four or five gut strings, and a vihuela, a small guitar with eight strings.

Among the delegates will be mariachi musicians as young as seven and educators planning to include mariachi music in their ethnic musicology programs.

But the highlight of the whole event is the appearance of the historic Mariachi Vargas de Tecalitlan, considered the most popular mariachi group ever.

If you've never heard of them, Mrs. San Miguel had a simple description: "They are the Beatles of mariachi music."

Long-Term Effects Of Oil Spill Pondered

GALVESTON (AP) — A scientist home after a three-week tour of the giant oil spill in Mexico's Bay of Campeche said Thursday "There is an ecological mess there, but it is impossible to predict the long term effects."

Dr. Donald Atwood, during a news conference aboard the ship "Researcher," said:

"We are frustrated. We cannot give you hard answers to your hard this project."

Dr. John Sarrington, the senior chemist on the voyage, said, "Those who say the oil spill is the worst disaster of the decade are wrong.

"I am comparing this spill to earthquakes and hurricanes and famines that take human lives. No lives have been lost in the oil spill. It is much too early to predict any long-run effects."

The scientists on board the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration (NOAA) ship studied the life cycle of the oil spill, hoping to find answers that could eliminate this type of disaster in the future.

Atwood, from the NOAA laboratory in Miami, said, "We did find that the mousse does not form by an oil-water combination.

"Mousse appears to be a function of sunlight and wind stress. This could help in a similar situations if they ever occur."

On board the ship were scientists from NOAA, Texas A&M University, and the Universities of Louisville, North Carolina, Washington, and from France and Mexico.

Atwood said the research team received "carte blanche" cooperation from the Mexican government.

The scientist added, "It is one ungodly mess there now, but there is really no way we can say that it will have a long-range effect on the beaches of Mexico and Texas or on the fishing industry. We must put togethr all theinformation we have collected and then study it. Let us be honest, this is all now what you could call a gray area."

Atwood said that in his personal opinion Pemex, the Mexican national oil company is now putting all its efforts into placing a cement cap over the runaway well and that "there is very little cleanup operation now underway."

Earlier in the week, Dr. Roy Hann, head of the department of environmental science at Texas A&M, said the U.S. Coast Guard does not have the sufficient funds or authority to keep clean the beaches of Texas affected by the oil spill.

Hann said the Ixtoc I blowout off the Mexican coast was an opportunity "to demonstrate to the world we have the capacity of dealing with the spill.

"The best of everything should have been used. But on the conditional level, it just didn't pull that kind of priority.

"The whole thing was lost in the shuffle."

Songwriter Makes Most Of Mexican Oil Spill

SOUTH PADRE ISLAND (AP) —First it was "Tar Baby" t-shirts.

Now the world's largest oil spill has inspired a record.

Call it American ingenuity or cashing in on a diasater, but local singer and songwriter Amy Quates says it started as a joke.

Her song, "Mexican Oil Slick Blues," enjoyed such a good reception at a hotel dining room where she sings, that she decided to record it in English and Spanish.

On the Island Sound Waves label, she and three musicians are billed as "Slick Chic and the Tar Babies."

Several area radio stations are airing the disc and she's working on state and national distribution.

Accompanied by marimbas and other south-of-the-border sounds, she sings:

"I've got the mexican oil slick blues
This black crud all over my shoes
If only somebody wiser put that hole in the ground
We'd have more oil in the pumps and less crude floating around.
What's a poor little island girl to do?"

The 26-year-old singer says she wrote the song after watching people line up on beaches of this resort community to see the tarballs and patches of sticky oil wash up in August.

"You know everone was sad. It was kind of depressing," said the island resident.

Business dropped off drastically after oil from the leaking offshore Mexican well drove tourists from the once pristine beaches, Hotel and restaruant employees encouraged her to capture their frustrations in a song, she said.

Diners at the Bahia Mar resort laughed when she started singing it, but that was the reaction she wanted.

"It's nice if you can have a sense of humor when things are bad," says the graduate of Sarah Lawrence College in New York. Miss Quate moved to Texas after visiting the beach with a friend last February.

She recorded the song at the Sea Island Hilton here when the hotel's club was closed.

Since the record was made, local beaches no longer wear an oily coating. And the U.S. Coast guard reports no large oil globs threaten the Texas Coast.

Pemex, the Mexican national oil company, is trying to control the Ixtoc 1 well with a steel cap to divert the daily 10,000-barrel flow.

Adverse weather has slowed the capping operation.

Many area merchants have seen nothing funny about the spill. Three lawsuits seeking a total of $355 million have been filed and Texas Attorney General Mark White says he'll file a fourth suit later this fall.

Miss Quate insists she's not trying to capitalize on the unfortunate incident.

"It's not really a gimmick and it's not calculated to send me to Hollywood," she said.

'Fair' Conditions Anticipated Today

Today will be sunny and warm with a few cotton candy-like clouds overhead — perfect weather for College and Military day at the Panhandle-South Plains Fair.

The high temperature both today and Saturday will be near 90, with overnight lows in the upper 50s.

Fair to partly cloudy skies and warm temperatures are expected for the remainder of the state as well. But the high pressure system that has dominated Texas weather this week continues to weaken, bringing light variable winds.

A few isolated showers were expected in the Panhandle Thursday night, but no significant precipitation is expected in the South Plains through Saturday.

New Mexico Senator Introduces Legislation

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Pete Domenici introduced legislation Thursday to provide federal money to compensate uranium miners with cancer or lung diseases.

The legislation was "primarily aimed toward benefitting miners who worked in the early part of the nuclear age — the 1940s, 1950s and early 1960s," said Domenici, R-N.M.

The measure would provide fully paid medical benefits and cash compensation of $307.74 a month for a miner or widow.

"There is no question but that mining today is carried out in infinitely safer miners than it was just a few decades ago," Domenici told a news conference.

AN EDITORIAL:

A Red Flag, A White Flag?

ALMOST FROM the start of the Russian-troops-in-Cuba confrontation, to use the word loosely, it has been obvious President Carter had no stomach for a showdown with Moscow over the issue.

Despite persistent pressure from some Congressmen and in the early stages only a small part of the media, including this newspaper, the State Department tended to play down reports of a Soviet combat force only 90 miles from U.S. shores.

Finally, in a surprising show of candor, Sec. of State Cyrus Vance and others confirmed what Sen. Frank Church and others already had revealed. Indeed, there was some sort of sophisticated Russian combat unit operating on Communist Fidel Castro's island.

FOR A MOMENT there, the American people heard a glimmer of the tough talk this nation once was noted for in dealing with those who attempted to shove Uncle Sam around, particularly in his own back yard.

Then, all of a sudden, the White House and State Department spokesmen—who seem to have a record of apologizing for just about anything that has a Marxist tag on it—started talking of finding some "accommodation" on the issue.

Even though key members of the Senate had warned the White House that SALT II had no chance of passage unless the White House all but demanded removal of the Russian armored force, the President "played it cool."

As was expected, Moscow denied the troops posed any threat and hid under the claim they were merely training Cuban forces.

THEN, THIS past weekend, this revealing item came out...

"The United States has not asked the Soviet Union to withdraw its combat brigade from Cuba because it would be 'unrealistic' to expect the Russians to leave, Carter administration officials have said."

Instead, the news item continued, U.S. officials were negotiating a plan aimed at eliminating the combat capability of the Soviet troops.

One solution, it was reported, would involve the Russian soldiers turning over their sophisticated equipment to the Cubans and then remaining or serving only in some sort of advisory capacity.

THIS, IT IS argued, would not force a serious confrontation between the two super powers.

It also would give wishy-washy senators a chance to waffle on the SALT II pact and vote approval, saying the Soviet troop danger had been eliminated.

Too, stories were leaked that the Soviets in Cuba, using highly sophisticated listening devices which could pick up an individual American's phone conversation, were doing no more than the U.S. was doing in Iran.

THAT'S ALL fine and dandy, except it's not accurate. In the first place, if the U.S. backs down in the face of the Russian threat, for all practical purposes we are "dead," and Moscow knows it.

In the second, the comparison to Iran is not the same, and we are no longer in Iran nor even using Turkish air space for such things because Moscow objects!

In brief, once upon a time, no respectable President or Congress—with old-fashioned American guts—would have tolerated such a threat in the American hemisphere for one week, let alone 10 years, and we don't think the American people think we should now.

The President can either take the firm stand his position demands, or he can add one more nail to his record of vacillation, weakness and giving in to this nation's enemies. The time is short.

AN EDITORIAL:

Congress--Too Much Chutzpah

ANOTHER CLASSIC example of why Congress is held in such low esteem was given this week as the solons considered the Congressional pay hike issue.

After three previous efforts to boost their own salaries had been rebuffed, proponents finally got a bill through Tuesday which would give all members of Congress, federal employes and judges a 5.5 percent boost as of Oct. 1.

The key to final passage was a sugar-coated "rider" to fund $10 billion in water and energy projects, actually an "excuse" for reluctant House members to back the overall package.

However, when the Senate Appropriations Committee took up the pay dispute the next day, the boost for Congress was eliminated for the time being.

The increase for top-level government workers and federal judges remained.

A House-Senate conference committee is supposed to work out the Congressional pay item later.

Most taxpayers will view the whole charade as another bit of unmitigated and unjustified gouging on the part of the men and women who are supposed to be setting an example for the rest of the nation.

Hard-pressed wage earners aren't likely to take kindly to another boost for their public servants, considering that a House member already makes $57,500 a year, with healthy fringe benefits.

No one denies that Congressmen, like the rest of us, are affected by inflation.

But, realistically speaking, it is somewhat silly to see Congress, with its current record, voting itself another handout at taxpayer expense.

What finally happens to the "pay gouge" will be worth watching.

M. STANTON EVANS:

Solar Energy Future Isn't All That Bright

WASHINGTON—Despite the ardent claims of its supporters, solar power is a long way from becoming a practical source of energy for the U.S.

Such is the conclusion emerging from an intensive study of solar energy issues conducted for the Education and Research Institute by Thomas Humbert, David Williams and Walter Olson.

These researchers find that solar energy is far more expensive than conventional fuel supplies, would require enormous tracts of land for production on a widespread basis and would have negative impact in terms of human safety and protection of the environment.

THE ESSENTIAL problem with solar power is that the energy in sunlight is so diffused:

One kilowatt per square meter.

To turn this into a usable fuel supply, it is necessary to collect and focus the latent energy in sunbeams with reflectors, storage devices or power cells.

"Because of these factors," says the ERI study, "enormous collecting areas would be required to capture the sun's energy...Running an ordinary pressing iron, for instance, would require more than 100 square feet of collector area when the sun was shining brightly.

"To meet the total energy needs of our country in 1980 by this method would require covering 8,000 square miles of land (about the size of Massachusetts or New Jersey) with solar devices."

THERE HAS BEEN talk of overcoming such problems with photovoltaics—silicon semi-conductors which convert sunlight into electricity. This is the way, for instance, that the Skylab space station was powered.

Unfortunately, even here the space requirements and associated costs of getting the energy potential out of sunlight are prohibitive.

The authors of the study observe:

"A 1,000 mw electric plant with about 10 percent efficiency and 50 percent spacing of the collectors (a capacity about equal to an average-sized conventional power plant) would need 50 square miles of area.

"Meeting Washington's electrical needs would require close to 200 square miles—nearly three times the size of the city itself."

Photovoltaic costs are further inflated by the high price of manufacturing silicon crystals.

The energy costs for Skylab—whose requirements in this respect were comparable to those of the average home—ran to $20 million.

Even with technology improvements and declining costs since Skylab, the study notes, "it would still cost over $15,000 today for a photovoltaic unit to run a $15 hairdryer."

AMONG THE MOST ironic of the researchers' findings is that solar energy would in many respects be environmentally hazardous.

The vast collecting areas needed to gather solar power would obviously despoil the landscape, and individualized devices in homes would spread the safety risks involved in any form of energy production to millions of locations.

The Office of Technology Assessment observes, "The process of manufacturing solar devices creates substantially more pollution than the operation of an equivalent conventional energy plant."

IN ECONOMIC terms, it appears the most feasible use of solar energy would be hot-water heating through "passive" systems in the home.

Costs of installing such a system can run to several thousand dollars, with energy outputs that vary according to climatic conditions.

In terms of 1980 prices, this was not generally competitive with other fuels, but as conventional fuel prices rise, solar power in this guise could become increasingly feasible.

So, on this evidence, solar power could have a modest role to play in America's energy future. But by no stretch of the imagination is it a solution to our large-scale energy problems.

ROWLAND EVANS AND ROBERT NOVAK:

Demo Party-Splitting

NOVAK

WASHINGTON—The White House was less than pleased when two of President Carter's most visible supporters, Ambassador Robert S. Strauss and Democratic National Chairman John White, denied that Sen. Edward M. Kennedy's challenge would split the party.

"I thought Bob went a little overboard," one of Carter's closest senior aides told us in commenting on Strauss's statements to newsmen.

Once Strauss took that position, fellow-Texan White changed his. After spending months warning of the woes that would ensue if Kennedy challenged Carter, White agreed with Strauss.

"We would have been happier if John had just disagreed," the same presidential aide told us.

The White House sticks to the position we previously reported: Kennedy's challenge unavoidably opens North vs. South, urban vs. rural, Catholic vs. Protestant tensions in the Demo party.

The President's men take the position that this conflict is inevitable, whether they forecast it or not.

SEN. FRANK CHURCH of Idaho, chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, is now telling the White House that he never did condition his support of the SALT II treaty on withdrawal of the Soviet combat brigade from Cuba.

That word, stunning to both administration officials and many senators, is being put out by the senator to smooth his poor standing in the White House following his leak of U.S. intelligence that the combat brigade had been discovered.

Church said then that the Senate would never approve SALT II so long as the brigade remained in Cuba. That unaccustomed hawkishness of the dovish Church was directly tied to his tough re-election campaign for a fifth Senate term in conservative Idaho.

Now, by telling the White House that his warning about the defeat of SALT was simply his objective judgment, but did not apply to himself, Church is trying to have it both ways: appear tough and hawkish back home and as a loyal ally for SALT to the White House.

★

DURING THE WEEK after he unexpectedly resigned from Ronald Reagan's campaign, veteran political pro Lyn Nofziger received feelers or offers from five other Republican presidential hopefuls—and turned them all down.

Nofziger, a top aide in every Reagan campaign dating back to 1966, was probably tempted by one offer: to run a dark horse campaign for Gen. Alexander Haig. But he decided to stay out of presidential politics in 1980.

Contrary to denials by the Reagan camp, Nofziger in fact was concerned by efforts to moderate Reagan's conservative image. But that isn't the reason he quit.

He decided he simply could not work as a subordinate to Reagan campaign manager John Sears and Reagan's top aide, Mike Deaver.

★

BEFORE AGREEING TO become President Carter's new White House counsel, Washington super-lawyer, Lloyd Cutler, laid down this condition: He would not resign his membership in the men-only Metropolitan Club.

In the background was a White House order barring an informal, off-the-record talk to club members by inflation czar Alfred Kahn several weeks before Cutler signed on at the White House.

The veto of Kahn surprised Washington politicians. When the White House first complained, it was made clear that wives of members would be invited to hear him discuss the Carter anti-inflation program.

Presumably, that would satisfy White House political worries that Kahn would in effect be lending his prestige to alleged discrimination against women.

But that did not change the White House; the veto was based on the club's bar against female membership. Cutler, however, persuaded the President to accept his no-resignation condition.

★

AS PART OF THE President's campaign for re-nomination, his political agents are wooing the titans of Wall Street with this message: Considering the threat offered by Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, you're better off with Jimmy Carter.

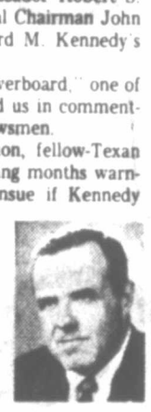
Nationally known money men flew down to Washington from New York last week for a private dinner with White House chief of staff Hamilton Jordan; Jordan's deputy, Alonzo McDonald, and Dr. Charles Schultze, chairman of the President's Council of Economic Advisers.

Besides extolling Carter as safer for Wall Street than Kennedy, they promised a continued budget-balancing effort with no tax cut now but perhaps one in the near future.

What impressed the money men more than the political sales pitch was the performance of Ham Jordan. Not quite knowing what to expect in light of Jordan's recent notoriety, the Wall Streeters were impressed by his general demeanor and particular knowledge of politics.

ANDREW TULLY:

Ted On The Run



WASHINGTON—It sounds noble, every time Sen. Ted Kennedy explains why he's running for President.

He keeps saying that during the past few months his colleagues and various others had expressed their concerns about the direction of the nation and whether President Carter was really coming to grips with major problems.

So, he says, he decided not to close the door on his candidacy. The implication is always that the country needs a President named Ted Kennedy and that he cannot ignore expressions of that need.

This is not to question Kennedy's sincerity. He honestly believes he can do a better job than Jimmy Carter, and given Carter's record so far he may be right. There are times when I think Johnny Carson would make a better President.

BUT I AM NOT quite ready to give Ted Kennedy an "A" in statesmanship. Jimmy Carter is a Democrat. So is Kennedy, and so is the Congress.

When Kennedy worries about the mess the country is in, it never seems to occur to him that in our system the President proposes and the Congress disposes. And a Congress of Carter's own party so far has been of little help to him in leading the country. Carter has had a hard time getting even minor legislation enacted by his fellow Democrats on Capitol Hill.

Thus, I wonder why Kennedy, before making himself available for the nomination, didn't consider an exercise in real statesmanship.

I wonder why he didn't have a long private talk with Jimmy Carter, reach a compromise with the Georgian on their policy differences, and then announce that Carter would have his 100 per cent support in putting the country together again.

THAT WOULD HAVE lost Kennedy much of his support for the Presidency, but his name and influence might well have had the effect of rallying the Congress to Carter's aid.

But Kennedy took the easy way out like others with an avid eye on the White House. Such politicians were inoculated with the "me syndrome" long before it became a way of life for certain Americans.

Kennedy's solution to the country's many problems is the old one: "Elect me President." And no wonder. All those "Draft Kennedy" movements would turn the head of any man not elevated to sainthood.

Kennedy's availability already may have condemned Carter to the status of a lame duck.

How will Carter deal with Congress and with foreign governments when the feeling is that he is in serious danger of being denied his party's nomination?

KENNEDY PROBABLY would be a good President, perhaps even a great one. He is much admired by his Capitol Hill colleagues as a hard worker and a clear thinker.

He would give the Presidency vigor and that elusive quality known as charisma.

But he still could seize that option of selflessly getting behind Jimmy Carter and thereby helping to mend the holes in Carter's leadership. By thus sacrificing his personal ambitions, he could win new respect for his idealism.

Besides, he's got plenty of time. He will be only 51 in 1984, and he could enter the Presidential stakes then, clutching the IOU's that accrue to a man who has put his party first.

JAY HARRIS:

The New Look...

PRETORIA, South Africa—In the Republic of South Africa, as in many parts of the world today, a great debate is taking place over what the future holds.

At stake is not only the direction South Africa will follow, but possibly the Free World, in the months ahead.

If Pieter W. Botha, the RSA's tough-talking Prime Minister, now rounding out his first year in office, has his way, that path will point toward a new role for all South Africans, both black and white.

And if Prime Minister Botha's recent actions and remarks are any indication, the "new Africa" he envisions, including a plan for a Constellation of States of Southern Africa, might well be a giant step toward defusing the area's potentially explosive racial time bomb.

A YEAR AGO, when Botha took over the reins of government from the veteran John Vorster, some foreign observers, including some segments of the U.S. media, saw him as a tough, unyielding foe of those who would dismantle apartheid.

"Another Hard-Liner to Run South Africa" read the caption on a story in U.S. News & World Report.

Newsweek saw the 63-year-old Defense Minister as "a tough Nationalist with a reputation for espousing militaristic adventures, such as South Africa's disastrous 1975 intervention in Angola..."

Others painted a similar picture, much in keeping with the constant biased harping on almost anything to do with South Africa, from President Carter and Andy Young to the World Council of Churches and the liberal Eastern press.

BUT, SOMETHING unusual happened on the way to "circling the wagons," as it were.

Pieter W. Botha not only has taken over the reins of government, and in recent days those of his own Nationalist Party, but he has done so in a way which is gaining him widespread support among both black and white moderates.

During the two weeks we have just spent in various parts of South Africa, much of the nation's attention has centered on Botha's "take charge" tactics. If the wily leader of "the new right" can make his reform policies stick, and then sell them to others, in Africa as well as the West, then he may well chart a new course for this nation in world affairs.

For years, South Africa has been the target of those who demand some sort of "black majority" rule throughout this huge continent, even if it means getting in bed with Marxist-backed forces to ostensibly achieve that goal.

P. W. (PIET) Botha isn't going to be the architect who dismantles white rule of the Republic of South Africa by any means.

But, he may be the man who can work out an accommodation satisfactory to both blacks and whites to share in running the government and the nation's vast economic potential, if the "do-gooders" and militants of the world give him breathing room and time.

Today, the man who some U.S. media described as a "strong authoritarian," is saying and doing things which would have been unheard of in this nation even five years ago.

It is no small task the veteran, bald and bespectacled leader has set for himself and his nation. Some of his major opposition, not surprisingly, has come from within his own Nationalist Party ranks, particularly among the Verkramptes, or ultra conservatives opposed to any major change in the RSA's internal policies.

TO UNDERSTAND South Africa, one must study a bit of background.

Since 1948, after a low-keyed election with racial overtones and stunning results, the Nationalists have been in charge of the government.

The Nationalists, for the most part, have espoused not only a policy of apartheid, or separate development for the nation's black, white, coloured and Asian peoples, but refused to consider any alternative.

In the past 10 years, however, and especially in the past five, the RSA has been moving rapidly to encourage and pay for massive education of the nation's 18 million blacks, improved housing with the right of long-range home leasing or ownership, adequate health care and lately more equal wages and union recognition.

The changes have been both sweeping and meaningful despite criticism from the Carter Administration and others. It is in this arena that the RSA must move ahead or face the "ghastly alternative" of a race confrontation, Pieter W. Botha has warned South Africans.

IN THE RECENT showdown here, Botha told party leaders he no longer could lead if they did not give him freedom to adapt policies in a rapidly changing world, or if they wanted him to hate blacks.

He urged both whites and blacks to join hands "to work for a Christian western civilization..."

In quick order, Botha's regime this week granted trade union rights to the nation's black workers, and Botha himself startled many with comments that laws affecting interracial relations might need changing.

Botha's "new look" does not mean that South Africa's entrenched white regime will be dismantled for a black majority rule anytime in the foreseeable future, even with force. But, it does presage a new attitude at the highest levels of government.

Botha's new Africa would be one in which a Constellation of States, involving not only the RSA's black homelands but neighboring nations, would join in a more or less confederation to work for the economic and political well-being of all races.

It is a bold and imaginative stroke. It deserves a chance even if U.S. meddlers, the World Council of Churches and Communists don't like it.

Q. WHO FIRST characterized northerners as "damned yankees"?

A. Coiner remains unknown. Can only report it was not first used by southerners against northerners during the Civil War as commonly believed.

Price Of Gold Sky-Rockets Toward $400 Mark

NEW YORK (AP) — The price of gold shot toward a record-shattering $400 an ounce Thursday in hectic trading on the world's bullion markets as the dollar's value plummeted on currency exchanges.

Gold soared by $20.50 a troy ounce to an all-time high of $395.50 in Zurich, Europe's largest bullion exchange. The metal then continued rising in New York, where Republic National Bank quoted bullion at $399 and Mocatta Metals Corp. sold gold at $399.75.

Mocatta and other houses offered gold at prices as high as $402.75 an ounce, but no bullion traded at that level. Mocatta and several other dealers said.

On New York's Commodity Exchange Inc., gold for delivery in October jumped $18.60 to $399, and a trader said, "I believe it will go higher Friday." The December gold contract closed at $408, up $19 for the day and $23.20 for the week.

"Everybody is afraid there's going to be a reshuffling" of the world's monetry system "that's bad for the dollar and good for gold," said trader Paul Hallerdan in an interview on the Commodity Exchange floor.

Traders said strong demand from New York helped touch off the bullion rally, with gold jumping $10 at the opening in London and rising to $395.50 before settling back to $394, up $17.50 from Wednesday.

The five leading London bullion firms 'fixed' the morning gold price at $386.25, but buying pressure was so strong they upped the afternoon fix by another $9.25 an ounce.

"We are almost at $400 an ounce — an unbelievable price only two months ago," a trader at the London bullion house of Sharps, Pixley and Co. said.

"Nobody expected gold to rise so quickly," he said. "The professionals are really worried about currencies and the prospect of yet higher oil prices and so everybody wants gold."

London dealers attributed the gold buying spree in part to rumors the Organizaton of Petoleum Exporting Countries will begin demanding part payment for its oil in British pounds instead of dollars — an historic change since the world oil trade traditionally is based on the dollar. OPEC's finance ministers met Thursday in Vienna.

The reports also helped push the British pound to $2.2115 in New York and $2.2045 in earlier London trading, up from $2.1960 in New York and $2.1810 in London Wednesday.

While "there was no specific news" to account for the price jump, said Merrill Lynch Pierce, Fenner & Smith analyst Robert House in New York, "in a market such as this, you don't necessarily need to have any news to create a quick upward move. A lot of people just get excited and start to buy more."

Dealers said investors and speculators also were buying platinum, silver and copper Thursday, sending the metals' prices sharply higher. In addition, investors unloaded dollars for the strong Swiss franc and West German mark.

At one point, the dollar slumped in Frankfurt to 1.7438 marks, its lowest official price since last Oct. 31, when the dollar was pegged at 1.7367 marks and President Carter launched a 30 billion rescue plan that temporarily stabilized the U.S. currency.

The dollar later recovered a bit in Frankfurt to close at 1.7456 marks, down from 1.7685 Wednesday. But it slipped in late New York trading to 1.7370 marks, down from 1.7613 a day earlier.

Other 4 p.m. EDT New York dollar rates included: 4.0900 French francs, down from 4.1255; 1.5485 Swiss francs, down from 1.5720; 222.30 Japanese yen, down from 222.88; and 1.1607 Canadian dollars, down from 1.1675.

Late dollar rates in Japan and Europe included: Tokyo, 222.75 yen, down from 223.00 Wednesday; Zurich, 1.5553 Swiss francs, down from 1.5827; Paris, 4.10 French francs, down from 4.1430; Amsterdam, 1.9345 Dutch guilders, down from 1.9585; and Milan, 803.45 Italian lire, down from 809.35.

Copper Prices Follow Gold, Silver Jump

NEW YORK (AP) — The price of copper, propelled by the same speculation that has sent gold and silver prices soaring, has risen more than 15 percent in the past week and is nearing the point at which the government may stop making copper pennies.

Several major copper producers raised prices Thursday to $1.05 a pound. That is up from 89 cents or less a week ago, just before the speculative fever that drove up gold and silver prices spread to copper.

On the New York Commodity Exchange, copper futures for October closed at $1.095 a pound, up 2.5 cents for the day. Since two major producers set their prices by adding 2.5 cents to that price, they will charge a record $1.12 on sales Friday.

For the first time since a similar speculative binge in 1974, concern is being voiced over the future of the copper penny, whose metal content would be worth a penny if the price of copper rises to $1.75 a pound.

The Treasury Department announced earlier this week that a government study group recommended pennies be made from a cheaper aluminum alloy "when and if copper costs more than $1.15 a pound."

If there is more than a penny's worth of copper in a penny, people could make money by melting the coins and selling the metal. That has happened to silver coins, which are no longer minted.

Many analysts are puzzled at the feverish increases that began last Friday on commodities markets and have continued all this week. There have been no major news announcements affecting copper supplies during the period.

"We don't know what's going on," said Nelson Chang, the director of commodity research for Shearson Hayden Stone. "There is a dramatic increase in the demand for copper. We don't know where it's coming from."

The sharp rise follows increases in gold and silver prices. "An awful lot of traders left silver and gold alone and went into copper futures," said Irving Louis, the chief of the metals department at Bache Halsey Stuart Shields.

"There is concern about not only the value of the dollar, but other paper currencies as well," said John Hing, the director of commodity research for Merrill Lynch. "They are seeking to put their money into physical assets that may retain value."

Copper is used in a wide variety of industrial applications, and some analysts had been warning that the long-term supply outlook was troubled. A United Nations survey concluded investments of $46 billion would be needed before 1990 to maintain production at projected consumption levels. Copper companies have been reluctant to make those investments.

"People are looking for $1.25 to $1.50 for copper now," he said Thursday. "Copper was underpriced in relation to other metals."

AN EDITORIAL:

A Red Flag, A White Flag?

ALMOST FROM the start of the Russian-troops-in-Cuba confrontation, to use the word loosely, it has been obvious President Carter had no stomach for a showdown with Moscow over the issue.

Despite persistent pressure from some Congressmen and in the early stages only a small part of the media, including this newspaper, the State Department tended to play down reports of a Soviet combat force only 90 miles from U.S. shores.

Finally, in a surprising show of candor, Sec. of State Cyrus Vance and others confirmed what Sen. Frank Church and others already had revealed. Indeed, there was some sort of sophisticated Russian combat unit operating on Communist Fidel Castro's island.

FOR A MOMENT there, the American people heard a glimmer of the tough talk this nation once was noted for in dealing with those who attempted to shove Uncle Sam around, particularly in his own back yard.

Then, all of a sudden, the White House and State Department spokesmen—who seem to have a record of apologizing for just about anything that has a Marxist tag on it—started talking of finding some "accommodation" on the issue.

Even though key members of the Senate had warned the White House that SALT II had no chance of passage unless the White House all but demanded removal of the Russian armored force, the President "played it cool."

As was expected, Moscow denied the troops posed any threat and hid under the claim they were merely training Cuban forces.

THEN, THIS past weekend, this revealing item came out...

"The United States has not asked the Soviet Union to withdraw its combat brigade from Cuba because it would be 'unrealistic' to expect the Russians to leave, Carter administration officials have said."

Instead, the news item continued, U.S. officials were negotiating a plan aimed at eliminating the combat capability of the Soviet troops.

One solution, it was reported, would involve the Russian soldiers turning over their sophisticated equipment to the Cubans and then remaining or serving only in some sort of advisory capacity.

THIS, IT IS argued, would not force a serious confrontation between the two super powers.

It also would give wishy-washy senators a chance to waffle on the SALT II pact and vote approval, saying the Soviet troop danger had been eliminated.

Too, stories were leaked that the Soviets in Cuba, using highly sophisticated listening devices which could pick up an individual American's phone conversation, were doing no more than the U.S. was doing in Iran.

THAT'S ALL fine and dandy, except it's not accurate. In the first place, if the U.S. backs down in the face of the Russian threat, for all practical purposes we are "dead," and Moscow knows it.

In the second, the comparison to Iran is not the same, and we are no longer in Iran nor even using Turkish air space for such things because Moscow objects!

In brief, once upon a time, no respectable President or Congress—with old-fashioned American guts—would have tolerated such a threat in the American hemisphere for one week, let alone 10 years, and we don't think the American people think we should now.

The President can either take the firm stand his position demands, or he can add one more nail to his record of vacillation, weakness and giving in to this nation's enemies. The time is short.

AN EDITORIAL:

Congress--Too Much Chutzpah

ANOTHER CLASSIC example of why Congress is held in such low esteem was given this week as the solons considered the Congressional pay hike issue.

After three previous efforts to boost their own salaries had been rebuffed, proponents finally got a bill through Tuesday which would give all members of Congress, federal employes and judges a 5.5 percent boost as of Oct. 1.

The key to final passage was a sugar-coated "rider" to fund $10 billion in water and energy projects, actually an "excuse" for reluctant House members to back the overall package.

However, when the Senate Appropriations Committee took up the pay dispute the next day, the boost for Congress was eliminated for the time being.

The increase for top-level government workers and federal judges remained.

A House-Senate conference committee is supposed to work out the Congressional pay item later.

Most taxpayers will view the whole charade as another bit of unmitigated and unjustified gouging on the part of the men and women who are supposed to be setting an example for the rest of the nation.

Hard-pressed wage earners aren't likely to take kindly to another boost for their public servants, considering that a House member already makes $57,500 a year, with healthy fringe benefits.

No one denies that Congressmen, like the rest of us, are affected by inflation.

But, realistically speaking, it is somewhat silly to see Congress, with its current record, voting itself another handout at taxpayer expense.

What finally happens to the "pay gouge" will be worth watching.

M. STANTON EVANS:

Solar Energy Future Isn't All That Bright

WASHINGTON—Despite the ardent claims of its supporters, solar power is a long way from becoming a practical source of energy for the U.S.

Such is the conclusion emerging from an intensive study of solar energy issues conducted for the Education and Research Institute by Thomas Humbert, David Williams and Walter Olson.

These researchers find that solar energy is far more expensive than conventional fuel supplies, would require enormous tracts of land for production on a widespread basis and would have negative impact in terms of human safety and protection of the environment.

THE ESSENTIAL problem with solar power is that the energy in sunlight is so diffused:

One kilowatt per square meter.

To turn this into a usable fuel supply, it is necessary to collect and focus the latent energy in sunbeams with reflectors, storage devices or power cells.

"Because of these factors," says the ERI study, "enormous collecting areas would be required to capture the sun's energy...Running an ordinary pressing iron, for instance, would require more than 100 square feet of collector area when the sun was shining brightly.

"To meet the total energy needs of our country in 1980 by this method would require covering 8,000 square miles of land (about the size of Massachusetts or New Jersey) with solar devices."

THERE HAS BEEN talk of overcoming such problems with photovoltaics—silicon semi-conductors which convert sunlight into electricity. This is the way, for instance, that the Skylab space station was powered.

Unfortunately, even here the space requirements and associated costs of getting the energy potential out of sunlight are prohibitive.

The authors of the study observe:

"A 1,000 mw electric plant with about 10 percent efficiency and 50 percent spacing of the collectors (a capacity about equal to an average-sized conventional power plant) would need 50 square miles of area.

"Meeting Washington's electrical needs would require close to 200 square miles—nearly three times the size of the city itself."

Photovoltaic costs are further inflated by the high price of manufacturing silicon crystals.

The energy costs for Skylab—whose requirements in this respect were comparable to those of the average home—ran to $20 million.

Even with technology improvements and declining costs since Skylab, the study notes, "it would still cost over $15,000 today for a photovoltaic unit to run a $15 hairdryer."

AMONG THE MOST ironic of the researchers' findings is that solar energy would in many respects be environmentally hazardous.

The vast collecting areas needed to gather solar power would obviously despoil the landscape, and individualized devices in homes would spread the safety risks involved in any form of energy production to millions of locations.

The Office of Technology Assessment observes, "The process of manufacturing solar devices creates substantially more pollution than the operation of an equivalent conventional energy plant."

IN ECONOMIC terms, it appears the most feasible use of solar energy would be hot-water heating through "passive" systems in the home.

Costs of installing such a system can run to several thousand dollars, with energy outputs that vary according to climatic conditions.

In terms of 1980 prices, this was not generally competitive with other fuels, but as conventional fuel prices rise, solar power in this guise could become increasingly feasible.

So, on this evidence, solar power could have a modest role to play in America's energy future. But by no stretch of the imagination is it a solution to our large-scale energy problems.

ROWLAND EVANS AND ROBERT NOVAK:

Demo Party-Splitting

NOVAK

WASHINGTON—The White House was less than pleased when two of President Carter's most visible supporters, Ambassador Robert S. Strauss and Democratic National Chairman John White, denied that Sen. Edward M. Kennedy's challenge would split the party.

"I thought Bob went a little overboard," one of Carter's closest senior aides told us in commenting on Strauss's statements to newsmen.

Once Strauss took that position, fellow-Texan White changed his. After spending months warning of the woes that would ensue if Kennedy challenged Carter, White agreed with Strauss.

"We would have been happier if John had just disagreed," the same presidential aide told us.

The White House sticks to the position we previously reported: Kennedy's challenge unavoidably opens North vs. South, urban vs. rural, Catholic vs. Protestant tensions in the Demo party.

The President's men take the position that this conflict is inevitable, whether they forecast it or not.

★

SEN. FRANK CHURCH of Idaho, chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, is now telling the White House that he never did condition his support of the SALT II treaty on withdrawal of the Soviet combat brigade from Cuba.

That word, stunning to both administration officials and many senators, is being put out by the senator to smooth his poor standing in the White House following his leak of U.S. intelligence that the combat brigade had been discovered.

Church said then that the Senate would never approve SALT II so long as the brigade remained in Cuba. That unaccustomed hawkishness of the dovish Church was directly tied to his tough re-election campaign for a fifth Senate term in conservative Idaho.

Now, by telling the White House that his warning about the defeat of SALT was simply his objective judgment, but did not apply to himself, Church is trying to have it both ways: appear tough and hawkish back home and as a loyal ally for SALT to the White House.

★

DURING THE WEEK after he unexpectedly resigned from Ronald Reagan's campaign, veteran political pro Lyn Nofziger received feelers or offers from five other Republican presidential hopefuls—and turned them all down.

Nofziger, a top aide in every Reagan campaign dating back to 1966, was probably tempted by one offer: to run a dark horse campaign for Gen. Alexander Haig. But he decided to stay out of presidential politics in 1980.

Contrary to denials by the Reagan camp, Nofziger in fact was concerned by efforts to moderate Reagan's conservative image. But that isn't the reason he quit.

He decided he simply could not work as a subordinate to Reagan campaign manager John Sears and Reagan's top aide, Mike Deaver.

★

BEFORE AGREEING TO become President Carter's new White House counsel, Washington super-lawyer, Lloyd Cutler, laid down this condition: He would not resign his membership in the men-only Metropolitan Club.

In the background was a White House order barring an informal, off-the-record talk to club members by inflation czar Alfred Kahn several weeks before Cutler signed on at the White House.

The veto of Kahn surprised Washington politicians. When the White House first complained, it was made clear that wives of members would be invited to hear him discuss the Carter anti-inflation program.

Presumably, that would satisfy White House political worries that Kahn would in effect be lending his prestige to alleged discrimination against women.

But that did not change the White House; the veto was based on the club's bar against female membership. Cutler, however, persuaded the President to accept his no-resignation condition.

★

AS PART OF THE President's campaign for re-nomination, his political agents are wooing the titans of Wall Street with this message: Considering the threat offered by Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, you're better off with Jimmy Carter.

Nationally known money men flew down to Washington from New York last week for a private dinner with White House chief of staff Hamilton Jordan; Jordan's deputy, Alonzo McDonald, and Dr. Charles Schultze, chairman of the President's Council of Economic Advisers.

Besides extolling Carter as safer for Wall Street than Kennedy, they promised a continued budget-balancing effort with no tax cut now but perhaps one in the near future.

What impressed the money men more than the political sales pitch was the performance of Ham Jordan. Not quite knowing what to expect in light of Jordan's recent notoriety, the Wall Streeters were impressed by his general demeanor and particular knowledge of politics.

ANDREW TULLY:

Ted On The Run

WASHINGTON—It sounds noble, every time Sen. Ted Kennedy explains why he's running for President.

He keeps saying that during the past few months his colleagues and various others had expressed their concerns about the direction of the nation and whether President Carter was really coming to grips with major problems.

So, he says, he decided not to close the door on his candidacy. The implication is always that the country needs a President named Ted Kennedy and that he cannot ignore expressions of that need.

This is not to question Kennedy's sincerity. He honestly believes he can do a better job than Jimmy Carter, and given Carter's record so far he may be right. There are times when I think Johnny Carson would make a better President.

BUT I AM NOT quite ready to give Ted Kennedy an "A" in statesmanship. Jimmy Carter is a Democrat. So is Kennedy, and so is the Congress.

When Kennedy worries about the mess the country is in, it never seems to occur to him that in our system the President proposes and the Congress disposes. And a Congress of Carter's own party so far has been of little help to him in leading the country. Carter has had a hard time getting even minor legislation enacted by his fellow Democrats on Capitol Hill.

Thus, I wonder why Kennedy, before making himself available for the nomination, didn't consider an exercise in real statesmanship.

I wonder why he didn't have a long private talk with Jimmy Carter, reach a compromise with the Georgian on their policy differences, and then announce that Carter would have his 100 per cent support in putting the country together again.

THAT WOULD HAVE lost Kennedy much of his support for the Presidency, but his name and influence might well have had the effect of rallying the Congress to Carter's aid.

But Kennedy took the easy way out like others with an avid eye on the White House. Such politicians were inoculated with the "me syndrome" long before it became a way of life for certain Americans.

Kennedy's solution to the country's many problems is the old one: "Elect me President." And no wonder. All those "Draft Kennedy" movements would turn the head of any man not elevated to sainthood.

Kennedy's availability already may have condemned Carter to the status of a lame duck.

How will Carter deal with Congress and with foreign governments when the feeling is that he is in serious danger of being denied his party's nomination?

KENNEDY PROBABLY would be a good President, perhaps even a great one. He is much admired by his Capitol Hill colleagues as a hard worker and a clear thinker.

He would give the Presidency vigor and that elusive quality known as charisma.

But he still could seize that option of selflessly getting behind Jimmy Carter and thereby helping to mend the holes in Carter's leadership. By thus sacrificing his personal ambitions, he could win new respect for his idealism.

Besides, he's got plenty of time. He will be only 51 in 1984, and he could enter the Presidential stakes then, clutching the IOU's that accrue to a man who has put his party first.

JAY HARRIS:

The New Look...

PRETORIA, South Africa—In the Republic of South Africa, as in many parts of the world today, a great debate is taking place over what the future holds.

At stake is not only the direction South Africa will follow, but possibly the Free World, in the months ahead.

If Pieter W. Botha, the RSA's tough-talking Prime Minister, now rounding out his first year in office, has his way, that path will point toward a new role for all South Africans, both black and white.

And if Prime Minister Botha's recent actions and remarks are any indication, the "new Africa" he envisions, including a plan for a Constellation of States of Southern Africa, might well be a giant step toward defusing the area's potentially explosive racial time bomb.

A YEAR AGO, when Botha took over the reins of government from the veteran John Vorster, some foreign observers, including some segments of the U.S. media, saw him as a tough, unyielding foe of those who would dismantle apartheid.

"Another Hard-Liner to Run South Africa" read the caption on a story in U.S. News & World Report.

Newsweek saw the 62-year-old Defense Minister as "a tough Nationalist with a reputation for espousing militaristic adventures, such as South Africa's disastrous 1975 intervention in Angola..."

Others painted a similar picture, much in keeping with the constant, biased harping on almost anything to do with South Africa, from President Carter and Andy Young to the World Council of Churches and the liberal Eastern press.

BUT, SOMETHING unusual happened on the way to "circling the wagons," as it were.

Pieter W. Botha not only has taken over the reins of government, and in recent days those of his own Nationalist Party, but he has done so in a way which is gaining him widespread support among both black and white moderates.

During the two weeks we have just spent in various parts of South Africa, much of the nation's attention has centered on Botha's "take charge" tactics. If the wily leader of "the new right" can make his reform policies stick, and then sell them to others, in Africa as well as the West, then he may well chart a new course for this nation in world affairs.

For years, South Africa has been the target of those who demand some sort of "black majority" rule throughout this huge continent, even if it means getting in bed with Marxist-backed forces to ostensibly achieve that goal.

P. W. (PIET) Botha isn't going to be the architect who dismantles white rule of the Republic of South Africa by any means.

But, he may be the man who can work out an accommodation satisfactory to both blacks and whites to share in running the government and the nation's vast economic potential, if the "do-gooders" and militants of the world give him breathing room and time.

Today, the man who some U.S. media described as a "strong authoritarian," is saying and doing things which would have been unheard of in this nation even five years ago.

It is no small task the veteran, bald and bespectacled leader has set for himself and his nation. Some of his major opposition, not surprisingly, has come from within his own Nationalist Party ranks, particularly among the Verkramptes, or ultra conservatives opposed to any major change in the RSA's internal policies.

TO UNDERSTAND South Africa, one must study a bit of background.

Since 1948, after a low-keyed election with racial overtones and stunning results, the Nationalists have been in charge of the government.

The Nationalists, for the most part, have espoused not only a policy of apartheid, or separate development for the nation's black, white, coloured and Asian peoples, but refused to consider any alternative.

In the past 10 years, however, and especially in the past five, the RSA has been moving rapidly to encourage and pay for massive education of the nation's 18 million blacks, improved housing with the right of long-range home leasing or ownership, adequate health care and lately more equal wages and union recognition.

The changes have been both sweeping and meaningful despite criticism from the Carter Administration and others. It is in this arena that the RSA must move ahead or face the "ghastly alternative" of a race confrontation, Pieter W. Botha has warned South Africans.

IN THE RECENT showdown here, Botha told party leaders he no longer could lead if they did not give him freedom to adapt policies in a rapidly changing world, or if they wanted him to hate blacks.

He urged both whites and blacks to join hands "to work for a Christian western civilization..."

In quick order, Botha's regime this week granted trade union rights to the nation's black workers, and Botha himself startled many with comments that laws affecting interracial relations might need changing.

Botha's "new look" does not mean that South Africa's entrenched white regime will be dismantled for a black majority rule anytime in the foreseeable future, even with force. But, it does presage a new attitude at the highest levels of government.

Botha's new Africa would be one in which a Constellation of States, involving not only the RSA's black homelands but neighboring nations, would join in a more or less confederation to work for the economic and political well-being of all races.

It is a bold and imaginative stroke. It deserves a chance even if U.S. meddlers, the World Council of Churches and Communists don't like it.

L.M. BOYD:

Q. WHO FIRST characterized northerners as "damned yankees"?

A. Coiner remains unknown. Can only report it was not first used by southerners against northerners during the Civil War as commonly believed.

It goes all the way back to the Revolutionary War when Yorkers so labeled the northern provincial soldiers.

Price Of Gold Sky-Rockets Toward $400 Mark

NEW YORK (AP) — The price of gold shot toward a record-shattering $400 an ounce Thursday in hectic trading on the world's bullion markets as the dollar's value plummeted on currency exchanges.

Gold soared by $20.50 a troy ounce to an all-time high of $395.50 in Zurich, Europe's largest bullion exchange. The metal then continued rising in New York, where Republic National Bank quoted bullion at $399 and Mocatta Metals Corp. sold gold at $399.75.

Mocatta and other houses offered gold at prices as high as $402.75 an ounce, but no bullion traded at that level, Mocatta and several other dealers said.

On New York's Commodity Exchange Inc., gold for delivery in October jumped $18.60 to $399, and a trader said, "I believe it will go higher Friday." The December gold contract closed at $408, up $19 for the day and $23.20 for the week.

"Everybody is afraid there's going to be a reshuffling" of the world's monetry system "that's bad for the dollar and good for gold," said trader Paul Hallerdan in an interview on the Commodity Exchange floor.

Traders said strong demand from New York helped touch off the bullion rally, with gold jumping $10 at the opening in London and rising to $395.50 before settling back to $394, up $17.50 from Wednesday.

The five leading London bullion firms 'fixed' the morning gold price at $386.25, but buying pressure was so strong they upped the afternoon fix by another $9.25 an ounce.

"We are almost at $400 an ounce — an unbelievable price only two months ago," a trader at the London bullion house of Sharps, Pixley and Co. said.

"Nobody expected gold to rise so quickly," he said. "The professionals are really worried about currencies and the prospect of yet higher oil prices and so everybody wants gold."

London dealers attributed the gold buying spree in part to rumors the Organizaton of Petoleum Exporting Countries will begin demanding part payment for its oil in British pounds instead of dollars — an historic change since the world oil trade traditionally is based on the dollar. OPEC's finance ministers met Thursday in Vienna.

The reports also helped push the British pound to $2.2115 in New York and $2.2045 in earlier London trading, up from $2.1960 in New York and $2.1810 in London Wednesday.

While "there was no specific news" to account for the price jump, said Merrill Lynch Pierce, Fenner & Smith analyst Robert House in New York, "in a market such as this, you don't necessarily need to have any news to create a quick upward move. A lot of people just get excited and start to buy more."

Dealers said investors and speculators also were buying platinum, silver and copper Thursday, sending the metals' prices sharply higher. In addition, investors unloaded dollars for the strong Swiss franc and West German mark.

At one point, the dollar slumped in Frankfurt to 1.7438 marks, its lowest official price since last Oct. 31, when the dollar was pegged at 1.7367 marks and President Carter launched a 30 billion rescue plan that temporarily stabilized the U.S. currency.

The dollar later recovered a bit in Frankfurt to close at 1.7456 marks, down from 1.7685 Wednesday. But it slipped in late New York trading to 1.7370 marks, down from 1.7613 a day earlier.

Other 4 p.m. EDT New York dollar rates included: 4.0900 French francs, down from 4.1255; 1.5485 Swiss francs, down from 1.5720; 222.30 Japanese yen, down from 222.88; and 1.1607 Canadian dollars, down from 1.1675.

Late dollar rates in Japan and Europe included: Tokyo, 222.75 yen, down from 223.00 Wednesday; Zurich, 1.5553 Swiss francs, down from 1.5827; Paris, 4.10 French francs, down from 4.1430; Amsterdam, 1.9345 Dutch guilders, down from 1.9585; and Milan, 903.45 Italian lire, down from 909.95.

Copper Prices Follow Gold, Silver Jump

NEW YORK (AP) — The price of copper, propelled by the same speculation that has sent gold and silver prices soaring, has risen more than 15 percent in the past week and is nearing the point at which the government may stop making copper pennies.

Several major copper producers raised prices Thursday to $1.05 a pound. That is up from 89 cents or less a week ago, just before the speculative fever that drove up gold and silver prices spread to copper.

On the New York Commodity Exchange, copper futures for October closed at $1.095 a pound, up 2.5 cents for the day. Since two major producers set their prices by adding 2.5 cents to that price, they will charge a record $1.12 on sales Friday.

For the first time since a similar speculative binge in 1974, concern is being voiced over the future of the copper penny, whose metal content would be worth a penny if the price of copper rises to $1.75 a pound.

The Treasury Department announced earlier this week that a government study group recommended pennies be made from a cheaper aluminum alloy "when and if copper costs more than $1.15 a pound."

If there is more than a penny's worth of copper in a penny, people could make money by melting the coins and selling the metal. That has happened to silver coins, which are no longer minted.

Many analysts are puzzled at the feverish increases that began last Friday on commodities markets and have continued all this week. There have been no major news announcements affecting copper supplies during the period.

"We don't know what's going on," said Nelson Chang, the director of commodity research for Shearson Hayden Stone. "There is a dramatic increase in the demand for copper. We don't know where it's coming from."

The sharp rise follows increases in gold and silver prices. "An awful lot of traders left silver and gold alone and went into copper futures," said Irving Louis, the chief of the metals department at Bache Halsey Stuart Shields.

"There is concern about not only the value of the dollar, but other paper currencies as well," said John Hing, the director of commodity research for Merrill Lynch. "They are seeking to put their money into physical assets that may retain value."

Copper is used in a wide variety of industrial applications, and some analysts had been warning that the long-term supply outlook was troubled. A United Nations survey concluded investments of $46 billion would be needed before 1990 to maintain production at projected consumption levels. Copper companies have been reluctant to make those investments.

"People are looking for $1.25 to $1.50 for copper now," he said Thursday. "Copper was underpriced in relation to other metals."

College Student Holds Classroom Hostage, Threatens Suicide

KNOXVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — A heavy-set student holding a pistol to his head burst into a classroom at a business college Thursday and took 30 students hostage, threatening to kill himself, police said. He let most of the students go after an hour and surrendered two hours after that.

Lt. Hugh Shelton said the gunman, tentatively identified as Louis Posey, held a gun to his head during the standoff, which started at about noon at Knoxville Business College. The gunman had wanted to come out earlier, Sheton said, but vowed to shoot himself if there was anybody on the street outside.

At 2:50 p.m., police came out of the building escorting the gunman, a heavy-set man in his early 20s wearing a white T-shirt and black pants.

The two negotiators had already talked the man into freeing most of the hostages, but four or five students had voluntarily remained behind, authorities said. Officers said the gunman had earlier threatened to shoot himself if anyone attempted to leave.

One of the hostages, Melodie Burkey, said she was sitting on the front row of the psychology class when Posey rushed into the room. She said Posey — not a member of the class but enrolled in the school — was holding a gun to his head and said, "'I don't want to live anymore. I'm going to kill myself.' He talked about how miserable he was. He said he wanted to 'do it' in front of a lot of people."

The young blonde said the students moved to the back of the classroom while talking calmly to Posey in an effort to keep him from using his gun. She said Posey said he didn't want to hurt anyone.

The school is across from a building shared by the Knoxville News-Sentinel, an afternoon newspaper, and the Knoxville Journal, a morning newspaper.

Shelton asked newspaper personnel to move away from the windows at midafternoon. At one point, Shelton said, Posey was going to give himself up and was beginning to walk out of the building when he saw a photographer. Shelton said Posey put the gun to his own neck and retreated because he was too embarrassed by the attention he had attracted from news reporters.

Police and spectators said there were no shots or injuries.

Police dispatcher Bruce Dyer said the negotiators, one of them a woman who helps handle mentally disturbed offenders, worked with Posey in the classroom on the top floor of the three-story, flagstone-facade downtown building.

One of the freed hostages, a woman who declined to give her name, said the man was not a member of her class though he was enrolled in the school. She told a reporter the gunman burst into the room about noon (EDT) "and grabbed a girl by the hair."

Dallas Mayor's Son Nabbed By Police For Drunk Driving

DALLAS (UPI) — The 23-year-old son of Mayor Robert Folsom spent several hours in jail and faces drunken driving charges. It is the second time since 1976 that Dallas police have charged John Vest Folsom III with a crime.

Folsom's latest encounter with Dallas police came early Wednesday following a traffic accident involving his new automobile on a city freeway. Folsom was arrested and charged with driving while intoxicated after police said they found him near his wrecked car on the side of the freeway.

The report by patrol officer Robert Nelson said Folsom's car struck a guardrail, knocking down a 60-foot section. The officer's report said Folsom took a breath test designed to detect alcohol but the results could not be released.

Folsom was booked at the city jail at 4 a.m. and released two hours later on a writ of habeus corpus issued by County Criminal Judge Tom Price. A Medical attendant at the jail examined the mayor's son and determined he did not have to be hospitalized.

A police spokesman said the young Folsom probably would be billed by the state highway department for $400 damage to the guard rail as the result of Wednesday's accident.

Teachers Remain Absent From Schools

By The Associated Press

Teachers went back to work in Detroit, Spokane, Wash., and two small school districts in Illinois and Pennsylvania on Thursday, but 19,000 instructors were still on strike across the country, including teachers in San Francisco and Indianapolis.

Altogether, teacher strikes in 10 states were affecting classes for 321,000 students.

The 12,000 Detroit teachers returned to their classrooms pending a ratification vote on a proposed contract that would boost pay 25 percent over three years. The settlement includes a provision for reopening wage bargaining in the third year.

Teachers had sought provisions to adjust their pay for inflation, but union leaders said the offer was "the best contract that was available."

The pact would increase the annual salary for a beginning teacher from the current $12,041 to $13,884 in the first year. Top pay, for an instructor with a master's degree, would rise from $22,563 to $24,132.

The strike had kept 189,000 students out of school since Sept. 10, and officials said the time would be made up by cancelling spring vacation and adding a week at the end of the school year.

In Spokane, 1,400 teachers ended a 23-day strike by ratifying a contract offer Thursday. The school board called a meeting for Friday to vote on formal approval of the pact. Details of the contract were not released.

Teachers, who had been defying a back-to-work order, went to work Thursday for in-service training. Classes for the district's 28,600 students were scheduled to resume today.

Classes had begun Monday, but attendance was running about 50 percent as substitutes and administrators ran the classes.

In other settlements, 589 teachers went back to work in Champaign, Ill., after a 12-day strike, and classes resumed in the Greater Latrobe Area School District in Pennsylvania's Westmoreland County, after teachers voted 161-26 to accept a contract.

The Detroit settlement left a strike by 2,000 teachers in Jefferson Parish district outside New Orleans as the biggest walkout in the country. That strike, which began Aug. 24, already was the longest this fall and prospects for a settlement soon seemed slim.

On Thursday, the teacher union rejected what spokesmen said the school board called its final offer. The proposal called for a 19 percent raise this year and a 5.4 percent boost next year.

The offer was made after Gov. Edwin Edwards spent 13 hours mediating between both sides. No new bargaining was scheduled.

In San Francisco, 1,400 teachers manned picket lines in a 17-day-old strike. Classes were being held in kindergarten through the eighth grades, as 2,200 teachers continued to work. Attendance was running at about 75 percent of normal for those grades, officials said.

In Indianapolis, two striking teachers were arrested on charges of disorderly conduct in the 24th day of a strike by 1,800 of the city's 3,400 public school teachers.

The dispute is to move into the courts Monday when a parents group seeks an an order to end the walkout.

A strike in Morris, N.J., also was in the courts Thursday when a judge fined 70 striking teachers $50 each for refusing to end a 2-week-old strike and obey a back-to-work order. Action against 370 other strikers was dropped because court papers were not served properly, officials said.

Superior Court Judge Robert Muir asked attorneys for the school board to appear in court Friday to decide whether a criminal contempt citiation should be issued, which could result in the jailing of strike leaders.

Georgia Water Sought By Bottling Firm

ATLANTA (AP) — The French firm that bottles Perrier and other mineral waters is negotiating for the right to bottle mineral water from Georgia's Warm Springs, Gov. George Busbee said Thursday.

The governor said negotiations are in the final stages between the state, which owns the property on which the bottling facility would be located, and Great Waters of America Inc., a unit of Society Generale de Grandes Sources de Eaux Minerales Francaises.

The French firm bottles Perrier, Contrexeville, Vichy Etat and Vichy St. Yorre mineral waters.

The state now controls 939 acres of land and buildings once held by the Georgia Warm Springs Foundation, which was set up to promote the use of the natural waters around the west Georgia spring in the treatment of paralysis and other ailments.

Warrant Issued For Babysitter Of Missing Boy

COLORADO SPRINGS, Colo. (AP) — Police have issued a nationwide alert for an 18-year-old babysitter, released from jail a week ago after serving a prostitution sentenee, following the disappearance of a 2-year-old boy suffering from asthma.

Jamie Mokshefski, son of Charles and Vera Mokshefski of Colorado Springs, disappeared Tuesday while on shopping trip with his babysitter, identified from El Paso County Jail records as Jo Ann Fergunson, which police believe may be an alias, of Cheyenne, Wyo.

Bob Compton, investigator for the El Paso County Sheriff's Office, said Jamie suffers from severe asthma and, if not given required medication, "could go into pneumonia and he could die and then I'd have a homicide."

Compton said he has a kidnap warrant out for Fergunson, released from El Paso County Jail on Sept. 20 after serving 45 days for prostitution.

Compton said the boy's father gave Fergunson a ride while she was hitchhiking following her release from jail.

The Mokshefskis took the woman into their home to take care of Jamie and his 5-year-old sister and to care for Mrs. Mokshefskis, who has a bad back, authorities said.

El Paso County Sheriff's Lt. Jim Ivey said Thursday that, in the first break in the case, a map found under a couch in the Mokshefski home Thursday afternoon had the Olney Springs area, 35 miles east of Pueblo, circled.

Compton added that the woman "was seen at a truck stop south of Colorado Springs where she was attempting to hitch a ride to Missouri. We are trying to track it down."

Police said the FBI, which has sent the woman's fingerpcints to Washington, lists her last name as Furgunson.

A Cheyenne resident, who saw the woman's picture on television, tentatively identified her as Yvonne Kingsberry, Ivey said.

The woman's former cellmates told deputies she had said her grandmother lived near Pueblo on Colorado's eastern plains and police were searching that area.

Compton said the woman's booking sheet describes her as 5-foot-4, 150 pounds, red hair, blue eyes, freckles, "and I'd say she's pretty chubby."

Jamie was described as about 2-feet tall, blond, wearing a football jersey, corduroy pants and boots when he left home Tuesday.

HSCH Gains Approval For Burn Unit

By KIM COBB
Avalanche-Journal Staff

Health Sciences Center Hospital has been approved for the construction of a specialized burn unit after Thursday morning's meeting of the Texas Health Facilities Commission.

Health Sciences officials have been working toward approval of a four-bed unit since June, when the local South Plains Health Systems approved their application for a certificate of need. SPHS backed the hospital in saying the South Plains area is in immediate need of specialized care for burn victims.

Adminstrator Robert Berryman, hospital legal counsel Don Cummings and Dr. David Bessinger made the pitch for the unit before hearing officer John Darrouzet Aug. 15. Darrouzet recommended the construction of the unit to the health facilities commission last week, with the stipulation that no more than $130,000 be spent on its construction.

However, that amount already has been spent on equipment for the unit.

Health Sciences is not financially able to construct the unit now, but has a year's time before the certificate of need expires. The unit had been estimated to cost about $182,000 for construction alone. In making their presentation to the South Plains Health Systems board in June, hospital representatives said that private corporations and granting institutions had expressed interest in funding the unit.

Proponents of the burn unit stress that the facility will organize and formalize acute burn care for victims in Lubbock and the surrounding area. Currently victims are treated in hospitals without burn programs or are sent to burn centers in Dallas, San Antonio and Galveston.

The unit would be remodeled from the existing surgical, intensive-care unit and adjacent call rooms and offices. Facilities for hydrotherapy and some physical therapy will be available within the burn unit so that severely injured patients will not have to be removed from the unit — thus risking contamination so dangerous to burn victims.

Surgical and specialized diagnostic procedures would still require removal from the unit. But the operating room is right across the hall, so traveling distance would be minimal.

In supporting the hospital's request for the unit, Bessinger submitted a survey indicating that approximately 475 burn patients were hospitalized in the area served by Health Sciences. That area includes Amarillo, Abilene, the Permian Basin, El Paso and Eastern New Mexico.

Bessinger's projections indicate an increase to 529 burn patients per year by 1983.

Hospital District Budget Receives Approval

By KIM COBB
Avalanche-Journal Staff

County commissioners Thursday rubber-stamped the $20 million Lubbock County Hospital District budget for 1980, adding a vote of confidence in the district's ability to solve its financial problems.

It didn't take long for the county officials to approve the budget, since they sat in on preliminary budget discussions with the hospital district board several weeks ago. The vote to approve the document included leaving the tax rate at 75 cents, which will produce almost $4.4 million in tax revenue for the district's teaching hospital.

The 1980 budget compares with a total of nearly $23 million budgeted for the district in 1979. The budget for operation of the hospital alone last year was a little more than $22 million.

The trimmed-down 1980 budget includes allocations for administering the hospital district, Health Sciences Center Hospital and Emergency Medical Services.

In presenting the budget for county approval, LCHD finance committee chairman C. Wayne Smith said that preparing the budget had been one of the first tasks assigned to Brookwood Management Services when they arrived at Health Sciences Center Hospital more than a month ago.

"I believe everything looks like it's in pretty good shape," Smith said, despite the short time given Brookwood to complete the budget.

Hospital finance director Tom Kearney volunteered to go through the budget with the commissioners, but was told by County Judge Rod Shaw that the item-by-item examination was not necessary since the document has been on file in the County Clerk's office since Sept. 12.

"You've got a continued vote of confidence," Shaw told Brookwood personnel and hospital district board members present at the public hearing. Shaw cited the complete lack of public criticism of the budget as a kind of mute support for the document.

The budget, which goes into effect in January, may be subject to more than the average number of line item changes due to the short period of time given for preparation. But Kearney stressed that the overall total would not change.

He compared the hospital district budget to a grocery store visit, saying that when you walk into a grocery store with $75, you can't buy food costing $78.

Perhaps the most visible difference between the proposed 1980 budget and that for 1979 is the number of employees on the payroll. The new budget includes a drop of from 864 employees to 660.

Between natural attrition and staff layoffs, the hospital will be paying $7,984,545 for salaries and wages rather than last year's budgeted $9,051,000.

That's a reduction from about 7 employees per admitted patient to 4.4 employees per patient. The board voted several months ago to work toward the 4.4 ratio and Brookwood personnel had to juggle the budget department-by-department to meet the ratio requirements.

The hospital has eliminated a little over $1 million in the budget in terms of supplies. Brookwood reported soon after arriving at the teaching hospital that the institution was overstocked and that the management firm intended to cut back on the stockpiling of goods.

Rep. Hance Plans Area Town Meetings

WASHINGTON D.C. (Special) — U.S. Rep. Kent Hance will begin a fall round of area town hall meetings in the 19th District on Saturday.

Hance's first meeting begins at 10 a.m. in Brownfield High School.

The congressman also will conduct meetings Saturday at 1 p.m. in the First State Bank in Seagraves; at 2:30 p.m. in the Plains scout hut; and at 4:30 p.m. in the County Activity Building in Morton.

Hance will hold other community meetings across the district throughout a week-long recess for Congress.

RUNAWAY BUS KILLS ONE

NEW YORK (AP) — A stolen city bus careened through Harlem on a deadly run that killed one woman and injured four other persons in a series of accidents Thursday along 12 blocks of Lenox Avenue. Police arrested Terry Ross, 35, after the bus ended its wild run which started from a bus depot at 147th Street and Lenox Avenue about 8:30 a.m. The dead woman, identified as Veronica Ashby, 32, a police department employee, was killed when she was struck by the bus at 145th Street. Then, in successive accidents at 137th Street and 135th Street, the bus struck and injured two men and two women.

Silverton Enchilada Supper Set Today

A-J Correspondent

SILVERTON — The senior class of Silverton High School is sponsoring an enchilada supper from 5:30 p.m. to 7:30 p.m. today in the school cafeteria.

Advance tickets are $2.50, and tickets at the door will be $2.75.

Underground Disposal Site Hearing Set

A-J Correspondent

HOBBS, N.M. — A public hearing on the draft environmental impact statement for a proposed underground nuclear waste site to be located southeast of Carlsbad is scheduled for Tuesday at the Holiday Inn here.

The hearing, which will include presentations from Department of Energy officials and the public on the proposed Waste Isolation Pilot Plant, gets under way at 9 a.m.

Robert W. Hamilton, University of Texas School of Law; Dr. John Cumberland, economics professor at the University of Maryland; and Dr. Erwin Remson, geology professor at Stanford University comprise the panel which will conduct this latest series of public hearings.

Other hearings are scheduled Monday in Odessa at the Founders Building at the University of Texas, Permian Basin, and Friday at the New Mexico National Guard complex in Santa Fe. Those hearings also begin at 9 a.m.

Department of Energy officials believe that an area with underground salt formations about 25 miles southeast of Carlsbad will be stable enough for the storage of some of the U.S. government's estimated 100 million gallons of defense-related radioactive waste.

Opponents of the plant contend that it will not be safe, arguing there are radiation, transportation and geological problems associated with the project.

Loop Announces Homecoming Activities

LOOP (Special) — Homecoming festivities at Loop High School will get under way Oct. 5 with a parade in front of the school.

A pep rally will follow the parade.

Loop will meet Patton Springs in that night's football game. Kickoff is 8 p.m. After the game, exes will meet in the community building to elect the homecoming queen and football hero.

Queen candidates are Trina Foshee, Sonia Smith and Penny Scott. Burt Gibson, Darran Ancinee and Robert Owens are running for football hero.

On Oct. 6, the Young Homemakers are sponsoring a turkey shoot from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. behind the community building. All exes are invited to attend.

Mackenzie Pageant Slated Saturday

A-J Correspondent

SILVERTON — The sixth annual Miss Mackenzie pageant is set for 8 p.m. Saturday in the Silverton School auditorium.

Tickets are $2.50 for adults and students and $1 for pre-school children.

The pageant is sponsored by the Love One Another Junior Study Club.

Oregon Firm High Bidder For Military Housing

FORT WORTH — A General Services Administration spokesman here this week announced that an $8.5 million offer by an Oregon firm was the highest among 18 bids submitted for 785 units of military housing at Roswell, N.M.

The bids were opened Thursday and are presently being evaluated by GSA officials who are selling the Wherry Housing units located at the old Walker Air Force Base site.

"Unless something unusual happens, we normally would accept the highest bid," the spokesman said.

He said no date had yet been set for awarding of the bid.

Estate Builders Inc. of Corvallis, Ore. submitted the $8.5 bid. Next highest bids included Valley Savings and Loan of Artesia, N.M. with $5.95 million and Roswell South Inc. of El Paso with $5.74 million.

The GSA had previously attempted to sell the housing in 1974, when the highest bidder, then Hubert Hatch Jr. of Roswell, defaulted on the $4.8 million offer.

The units being sold include about 200 duplexes, with 685 separate buildings involved. the structures are made of cinderblock and slab floors.

The Roswell Housing Authority has rented most of the units for the federal government since August, 1967.

"This is a cost reimbursible project," said housing director Wallace Massey. "Any profit goes to the Air Force, and any losses are absorbed by the Air Force."

He said current tenants will probably have about a year of residency before the new owner can get the property platted, subdivided and dedicated.

Tenants pay $147.50 monthly on duplex rental to $210 for four-bedroom houses. About 160 units remain boarded up, with 515 units currently occupied by renters.

Massey said he had shown the units more than 50 times to interested investors from throughout the nation.

Four years ago the City of Roswell withdrew inquiries about possible purchase of the housing.

"They came to the conclusion that it would not be wise for the city to get into the rental business," Massey explained.

Two Male Nurses Receive Charges Of Possession

A male registered nurse at Health Sciences Center Hospital Thursday was charged with stealing seven stethoscopes from the hospital, and he and a male licensed vocational nurse at the county-owned medical complex were charged with possession of the pain-killing drug Demerol.

Robert Maurice Scott, R.N., 29, of 2217 Ninth St., was charged with possession of a controlled substance, Demerol, and theft over $200 in the reported theft of the stethoscopes.

Kelly Bryan Hogan, 24, of 223 Indiana Ave., No. 105-B, the L.V.N., was charged with possession of two controlled substances — Demerol and Seconal.

The district attorney's office recommended total bonds of $25,000 for Scott and $20,000 for Hogan.

Texas Tech University police, federal Drug Enforcement Administration agents and officers of the criminal district attorney's office took part in the investigation leading to the Thursday arrests of the two men, a district attorney's office spokesman said.

Poland has an area of 120.7 million square miles, about the size of the state of New Mexico.

Moonshiners Returning As Gasohol Producers

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — Old-time moonshiners, a vanishing breed, are becoming popular again — as makers of a gasoline substitute.

"Some of the old moonshiners are using their skills to make gasohol," said G.R. Dickerson, director of the Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms.

Many people, especially small farmers, want to make gasohol but have no experience in distilling grains. Dickerson said it's not unusual for them to call in former moonshiners as consultants.

"In these small towns, people generally know who used to make it," he said Tuesday while here to attend a convention.

Gasohol is a mixture of nearly pure alcohol and gasoline which proponents say will cut rising fuel costs. Throughout the country, investors are building gasohol plants for commercial production.

But gasohol can be brewed in backyard stills from just about anything from sugar cane to corn.

It's illegal, however, to make the alcohol, which is about 195 proof, unless you have the government's permission.

Dickerson said his bureau is now giving such permission for experimental gasohol plants, and since January, more than 4,000 people have sent in applications.

"What we are seeing is the growth of small producers of alcohol for gasohol," he said.

Since the process for making the alcohol is the same as making liquor, federal agents keep close tabs on the new ventures.

"We require that the alcohol is treated in such a way that it is not drinkable," he said.

Dickerson said cultural changes, increased public awareness of the dangers of moonshine and rising costs have forced most moonshiners out of their old line of work.

"Moonshine is one of our lowest priorities now," he said.

Gasoline Prices Top $1 Mark

WASHINGTON (AP) — Rising gasoline prices have topped the $1-a-gallon mark for all three popular grades for the first time this year, the American Automobile Association reported Thursday.

The group's survey of 6,419 service stations across the country also disclosed that gasoline is more widely available than at any time since spring.

The average price for all grades of gasoline climbed 2.4 cents over the past month, the auto club said, bringing the boost so far this year to 31.9 cents per gallon.

Average prices for individual grades climbed to $1.001 per gallon for full-service regular, $1.055 for premium and $1.042 for unleaded.

Self-service station prices nationwide averaged 96.9 cents a gallon for regular, $1.026 for premium and $1.021 for unleaded.

The average price of diesel fuel rose 2.3 cents a gallon to 96.5 cents.

Illinois had the nation's highest fuel prices with full-service premium selling for $1.123. The lowest prices were found in Texas, with self-sevice regular averaging 89.5 cents a gallon.

Dry Hole Ends Exploration Near Atlantic City

HOUSTON (AP) — A fourth consecutive dry hole in the Baltimore Canyon area about 70 miles east of Atlantic City was reported Thursday by Exxon Co. USA.

Exxon said it is moving the drilling vessel out of the area but any future Baltimore Canyon drilling plans have not been finalized and are contingent upon further study of data acquired so far.

H.D. Martin, Gulf-Atlantic exploration manager, said Exxon now has spent more than $423 million in the canyon area, including $343 million in lease purchases and $80 million in drilling costs.

The fourth test with no indication of hydrocarbons was drilled to a total depth of 12,253 feet on Block 500 in 203 feet of water. The hole was plugged and abandoned, as had been the case with two earlier tests on Block 684 and one on Block 902.

Exxon said the drilling vessel will be used to start operations in the Southeast Georgia embayment area where two tests are planned on federal leases acquired last year.

Exxon also announced plans to move the Semi-I drilling vessel from the mid-Atlantic to the south-Atlantic to start operations in the southeast Georgia Embayment Area in an initial program of two wells on federal leases purchased in March 1978.

Exxon started drilling in the Baltimore Canyon area in the spring of 1978. It announced its first dry well in block 684 on Dec. 6, 1978. It announced its first dry well in block 684 on Dec. 6, 1978. The company announced the second dry well in block 902 on April 10 and the third dry well on July 6 in block 684.

Study Says Adequate Fuel Oil Available

WASHINGTON (AP) — A study by the Congressional Research Service says there should be enough light fuel oil to meet the nation's home heating and diesel needs this winter, barring unforeseen problems.

The study, obtained by The Associated Press, was conducted by the research service, a branch of the Library of Congress, for Sen. Max Baucus, D-Mont., chairman of a Senate Judiciary subcommittee that deals with purchases of services for the government.

If supplies being held by dealers and customers are not adequate, it said, achievement of the administration goal of stockpiling 240 million barrels at refineries could present only an illusion of safety, masking hidden shortages elsewhere in the distribution system.

Margo Smith To Sub For Tammy Wynette

Tammy Wynette, who has received two Grammies and originally was scheduled to perform Saturday at the Fair Park Coliseum, will be replaced by Margo Smith.

After fair officials learned Miss Wynette was hospitalized in a New Jersey hospital, Margo Smith was signed to appear for the scheduled 5 and 8 p.m. performances with Rex Allen Jr., and George "Goober" Lindsey, said general manager Steve L. Lewis.

MARGO SMITH

Lewis confirmed a report Thursday morning that Miss Wynette had been hospitalized at Underwood Memorial Hospital in Woodbury, N.J., with a stomach-related illness and would not be able to make her Lubbock appearances.

Although Miss Smith is filling the headline position at the fair, said Lewis, tickets will be refunded at the Fair Park box office to those who do not want to see the second line-up of performers.

Miss Smith has had three number one singles, including "It Only Hurts a Little While," "Little Things Mean A Lot," and "Don't Break the Heart that Loves You."

The singer-songwriter's current release is "Baby, My Baby."

Miss Smith, whose new album should be shipped in October, began writing songs while teaching kindergarten and was encouraged by her friends to write seriously.

After singing in several local clubs, she signed with Twentieth Century Records in 1975 and released her first record, "There, I Said It," which hit number two on the country charts.

When country and pop music was phased out of that company, Miss Smith joined Warner Brothers and writes many of her songs with Noro Wilson, head of the artist and repertoire department.

Before headlining her own shows, Miss Smith had worked with Conway Twitty, T.G. Shepherd, Jerry Reed and Rex Allen Jr.

Shiite Man, Family Deported To Iran

KUWAIT (AP) — Kuwait has deported to Iran a Shiite leader and all 18 members of his family for allegedly conducting anti-government activities here, Kuwait newspapers reported Thursday.

The reports said Abbas Al Mohri and his family were placed aboard an Iranian airliner Wednesday after the government withdrew his Kuwaiti citizenship. An earlier report said three other Kuwaitis had their passports withdrawn apparently for taking part in an unauthorized Mosque meeting.

Arab Gulf states have become alarmed at the possibility of Iranian-inspired revolutionary activity spreading to their countries through the Shiite communities, the dominant religious sect in Iran. Kuwait's ruling family and most Kuwaitis are Suni moslem, like the majority of all Arabs.

Cupcake Debate Over; Elementary Kids Lose

PLEASANT HILL, Calif. (AP) — The Great Cupcake Debate is over, and the kids at Pleasant Hill Elementary School lost. No more will the tasty but sugary morsels be sold during traditional "Cupcake Days."

The students' lesson in nutrition — and civics — began when the Parent-Teacher Association decided to eliminate its popular fund-raising after-school sales of parent-made cupcakes to students.

Exercising pre-puberty urges for participatory democracy, the youngsters took up picket signs declaring "Kids Crave Cupcakes" and mounted a petition campaign. They convinced many newspapers and television stations to cover the story.

"They were very effective in getting publicity," said Luann Duggan, a teacher.

Ed Adams, principal of the 500-student school in this normally quiet suburb 25 miles east of San Francisco, was so impressed by the protest that he arranged a formal debate. It was held Wednesday before about 75 parents and teachers.

"All we ask for is a cupcake every now and then," pleaded sixth-grader Anthony Damaschini, pointing out that cupcakes were sold only five times a year while sugar-laced chocolate milk is available daily at the cafeteria.

The other sixth-grade debater, Daryl Hardy, accused the adults of age discrimination. "The high school sells cookies and Snickers (candy bars) every day, and everybody buys it, because they're all sold out," he said.

On the other side, second-grade teacher Mabel Bumala said that as a child, "I developed an absolute craving for sweets to the point where I really ruined my body."

Why the cupcake ban? "It's only because we love you," Mrs. Bumala said.

Pat Wilcox, a first-grade teacher, stressed the need for students to develop good nutritional habits and she said cupcakes would undermine that.

Study on Buddhism Knocked By Senator Proxmire

WASHINGTON (AP) — The National Science Foundation, picked Thursday for Sen. William Proxmire's monthly Golden Fleece award, defended spending $39,600 of taxpayers money to find out about Buddhism in Nepal.

"What is really of concern in the study is the role of religion in a rapidly changing society," foundation spokesman Jack Renirie said.

Proxmire, D-Wis., who gives the award for what he considers flagrant examples of government waste, saw it differently.

"Is there no limit to the subjects which are now said to be the responsibility of the federal government to pursue?" he asked in a speech on the Senate floor.

"Should it not more appropriately be funded by a religious order or a private foundation or university?"

The foundation awarded a grant to Sherry B. Ortner of the University of Michigan anthropology department, who has made previous studies of the Sherpas of Nepal, to investigate whether their exposure to outside influence through their work as mountain guides made their Buddhism more orthodox.

"I have no objection as such to a study of Sherpa mountaineering and its possible connection to the rise of local Buddhist celibate monasteries," Proxmire said.

"What I object to is the use of taxpayers' money at a time of rampaging inflation to send researchers halfway around the world to study what is at best an esoteric question."

Proxmire said the project should be "at the bottom end of the list of priorities."

Renirie, director of public information for the foundation, responded that it should be "higher on the list of priorities; certainly not at the bottom."

INVESTORS' GUIDE

By BILL DOYLE

Q. What is the difference between investing in "no-load" and "load" mutual funds? Naturally, my financial advisor — who sells load funds — has an explanation that the no-load funds have other charges which offset the 8 percent load on his funds. What is the truth?

A. The truth is that it's less expensive to invest in no-load mutual funds than it is to invest in load mutual funds. "Load" is simply a nickname for "commission."

Most mutual funds sell their shares to the investing public through brokers and-or salespeople. So, commissions are charged. There's nothing wrong with that. The brokers and salespeople deserve to be compensated for their sales efforts.

But some mutual funds — and their numbers are growing — sell their shares directly to the investing public and don't use brokers and salespeople. No salesmen; no load.

If you put $1,000 into a mutual fund with an 8 percent load, you get $920 worth of shares — with the other $80 going to pay commissions. If you put $1,000 into a no-load mutual fund, you get $1,000 worth of shares.

It doesn't take a finanoial wizard to see that you start out with an advantage in a no-load fund.

Past that point, all mutual funds have operating expenses — just as all companies do. You'll find those expenses detailed in the income and expense statements of every fund's annual report and prospectus. The biggest expense is usually the "advisory fee" a fund pays to the organization which picks its investments and performs certain other services.

Those expenses vary from one fund to another. Typically, however, they amount to a fractii on of 1 percent — such as 0.4 to 0.7 percent a year — of a fund's assets. Larger funds usually have lower "expense ratios" than smaller funds. This applies to load and no-load funds.

I don't know exactly what your "financial advisor" told you. But you can tell him that no-load funds do not have "other charges" which offset the load his funds levy.

Q. I am 46, with a healthy bank account, a retirement plan, insurance, blue chip stocks and bonds. I also have about $50,000 in a money market mutual fund, run by the brokerage firm with which I do business. My broker says it is better to have my money there than in six-month savings certificates.

But, exactly how safe is my money? Do you think I should cash in that money market mutual fund and put my money in six-month savings certificates?

A. Your investment in a money market 'mutual fund is not insured by an agency of the federal government, as your money would be if you had it in savings certificates issued by most banks and savings and loan associations.

But there is little or no risk involved in a money market mutual fund. Funds of that type invest in short-term "money market" instruments, such as U.S. Treasury bills, other federal government and agency short-term issues, certificates of deposit, bankers' acceptances, letters of credit and repurchase agreements. Those short-term investments are considered as "liquid" as cash.

No, I don't think you should shift your money into savings certificates. Well-managed money market mutual funds — including the one you named in your letter — now provide higher yields than six-month certificates.

Q. Do U.S. Savings Notes and Freedom Shares pay the same rate of interest?

A. Yes, because they are one and the same thing. Freedom Share is the nickname for U.S. Savings Note. They now accrue interest at an annual rate of 6 ½ percent.

For readers who have forgotten, let's explain that U.S. Savings Notes were sold only from May, 1967 through January, 1970. Sales were so low that they were tabbed the Edsel of the savings bond business.

Eye Patch Influenced Shirt Manufacturer

MATURA

Influenced by that experience, as a college student in 1952 he wrote a term paper on the much-heralded "man with the eye patch" who had been introduced the previous year as an advertising symbol for Hathaway shirts.

So it may seem fitting that Matura, 45, eventually found himself as president of C.F. Hathaway Co., the venerable Maine shirtmaker that gained national attention thanks to advertising pioneer David Ogilvy's creation of the eye patch man.

"Little things, you never can tell where they're going to lead you," Matura said with a grin during an interview in his antique-filled office at Hathaway's sprawling factory in Waterville.

One of Matura's first changes after becoming president in 1976 was to rehire Ogilvy's agency, Ogilvy and Mather, to handle the Hathaway account. The agency had been dropped six years earlier.

"I wanted to reaffirm our position in the better shirt market, and I wanted to bring back the eye patch man," recalled Matura, whose enthusiasm for Ogilvy's creation dates back to his student years at St. Peter's College.

It was there, in a marketing class, that Matura discoursed on how the distinguished gentleman with the intriguing black patch over his right eye had captured instant brand recognition for Hathaway shirts.

"The man was an attention-getter. He was the very image of quality himself," said Matura. The original eye patch man was Baron George Wrangell, a mustachioed White Russian emigre, who has been followed in succession by three other models sporting the Hathaway patch.

Sales and profits have been on the upswing since Matura's arrival at Hathaway, a 142-year-old company that was acquired two decades ago by Warnaco Inc., a Connecticut-based apparel manufacturer whose other lines include Warner's foundation wear and White Stag sportswear.

Hit hard by the last recession, Hathaway's sales of shirts and ties slumped to $27.6 million in 1975, but climbed gradually to $42.2 million in 1978. Matura's target for this year is $55 million.

While Warnaco does not break down profits by division, Matura said Hathaway's pretax earnings and return on investment have doubled over the past four years. "We're coming off the best six months in our history — both from a salesman's viewpoint and a financial analyst's viewpoint," he said.

Characterizing Hathaway as the leading manufacturer in the premium segment of the shirt market, Matura said his company has benefited in recent years from a dramatic change in consumer attitudes.

Recalling the pre-1968 years when 80 percent of dress shirts were white, he said men have become more knowledgeable and interested in what they wear, displaying a willingness to "trade up" to higher quality.

As a result, Matura said, premium shirts now account for 13 percent of the number of shirts sold, up from just 8 percent prior to 1977. In terms of dollars, they've gone from 12 percent of the total market to close to 20 percent.

"People are now deeply interested in apparel," he said "It's not a frivolous purchase any more. They're going to exhibit their own lifestyle in apparel — even during an inflation-recession."

To meet this interest, Hathaway has divided its production into three lines in an effort to appeal to specialized areas of the marketplace. The biggest segment, accounting for just over half its shirts, consists of classic British-American designs that are marketed under the Hathaway label.

The rest of the company's production appears under the labels of Christian Dior, targeted to devotees of "the elegant look," and Chapsby Ralph Lauren, aimed at younger men who prefer the more traditional button-down image.

While Hathaway's retail prices range from $20 to $70, with the average shirt going for around $30, Matura said he doesn't expect the anticipated recession to have much impact on his company. He theorized that many men will prefer to buy two higher-priced shirts instead of three of lesser quality.

During the past year, the company has branched out into leather goods and jewelry, acquiring Destino-Dior, which is expected to boost sales by $5 million.

Hathaway has had its share of ups and downs since its founder moved to Waterville in 1837 "to get away from sweatshop conditions in Boston."

Charles F. Hathaway, credited with being the first manufacturer in America to produce a ready-to-wear shirt, was also a Baptist minister, who maintained an organ in his plant and opened the workday with a hymn and a prayer.

After a sharp decline in sales during the Great Depression, the company prospered under the new leadership of Ellerton Jette, whose salesmanship made Hathaway internationally famous. Although he retired 15 years ago, Jette, now approaching age 80, still travels around the world selecting new fabrics and designs.

Hathaway makes most of its shirts at its plant in Waterville, where roughly half of its 1,500 workers are located. Other factories are in Dover-Foxcroft and Ciales, Puerto Rico.

The son of a garbage hauler, Matura worked for R.H. Macy, Hanes and Jockey before being offered the top post at Hathaway.

An outspoken conservative who speaks periodically before service clubs and other audiences, Matura professes concern about excessive government regulation, bureaucratic growth and an anti-business climate in Washington.

He said his company is fortunate to have its production centered in Maine because he thinks it's one of the few remaining places where the work ethic remains strong.

"Our employees realize that 'profit' is not a dirty word," said Matura.

SOVIET—YUGOSLAVIA AGREE

BELGRADE, Yugoslavia (AP) — Yugoslavia and the Soviet Union have signed an agreement calling for increased economic cooperation to the level of about $20 billion during the 1981-1985 period. A protocol was signed by representatives of the two countries Wednesday in Belgrade.

Colate Trying To Sell Cosmetic Company

NEW YORK (AP) — Colgate Palmolive Co. said Thursday it failed again to sell Helena Rubinstein, the $200 million-a-year troubled luxury cosmetics maker no one seems to want.

Colgate, the worldwide producer of soaps, food products and beauty and health aids whose 1978 sales were $4.3 billion, said the second round of sale talks it has held this year with the French company L'Oreal S.A. "had terminated."

It did not elaborate on the announcement. But several analysts said Colgate may be asking much too high a price for loss-plagued Rubinstein, which Colgate purchased during its mid-1970s expansion spree for $142.5 millon in stock.

Cometics maker L'Oreal, whose annual sales total $1.3 billion, reportedly was offering a top price of $60 million for Rubinstein when an initial series of negotiations fell through in January.

In April, Japan's Kao Soap Co. Ltd. announced an agreement to buy Rubinstein for $75 million, but that deal was scrubbed just one month later. Then L'Oreal resumed bargaining in mid-September over undisclosed, but perhaps less costly, "new terms."

The sale talks — apparently part of a general revamping of Colgate under Chairman Keith Crane — have been held against a background of continued losses for the prestigious cosmetics division.

While Colgate has conceded only that Rubinstein lost a "substantial amount" last year, several outside estimates have pegged the 1978 deficit at about $3 million. On Thursday, one industry source predicted the division would lose $5 million to $7 million this year as sales stay unchanged from 1978 at $200 million.

As a result of the poor showing, analyst Beverly Lannquist of Morgan, Stanley & Co. suggested Colgate eventually might mark down Rubinstein to as low as "$35 million to $40 million."

Van Missing From Auto Dealer; Police Investigate Stabbing

The manager of a Lubbock car dealership told police Thursday that a late-model cargo van had been stolen from the firm's lot.

L.A. Caraway, 45, manager of Modern Chevrolet at 41st Street and Avenue Q, told police that a 1978 black Chevrolet cargo van was missing from the dealership's used car lot.

Reports indicate that the vehicle was stolen some time between 7 p.m. Wednesday and 8 a.m Thursday. Caraway told police that the keys to the van were not left in the vehicle and that all of the van's doors were locked.

A game booth operator at the Panhandle South Plains fairgrounds reportedly was stabbed about midnight Wednesday by a man the victim said he had fired earlier in the day.

Police said Richard Black, 40, of Jefferson, Maine, was found lying in front of his booth at the west end of the midway. He was treated for a stab wound in the back at Health Sciences Center Hospital and later released.

Black told officers the suspect, a black man, had worked for him but was fired Wednesday afternoon. He said the suspect returned to the booth late that day and stabbed him in the back.

Police Thursday had not made any arrests in connection with the assault.

In other activity, a Lubbock man and woman were slightly wounded by gunfire about 8 p.m. Wednesday while they sat on the hood of their car on 98th Street, about a quarter mile west of U.S. 87.

Timothy Goodman of 4619 38th St. and Regina Davis of 2025 63rd St. were treated and released at Highland Hospital. Miss Davis suffered a gunshot wound in the leg and Goodman was grazed on the side by a bullet.

The Lubbock County Sheriff's Department had as a suspect a 32-year-old man who lives near where the couple was wounded, but no arrests had been made by early today.

Goodman told deputies he and Miss Davis were sitting on the hood of his car, parked in a driveway off 98th Street, when he heard gunshots and his companion screamed.

He said he jumped in the car and pulled his companion inside, then drove to the hospital.

Deputies went to a house near the scene and were told by a woman that her husband did the shooting. She said her husband became angry over the loud music the couple was playing and fired several shots their direction.

Deputies were told the man heard Miss Davis scream and told his wife, "Oh my God, I've shot someone." The man left his house, according to reports, but returned about 1:30 a.m. today and called the sheriff's department.

A .22-caliber automatic rifle was confiscated in connection with the incident.

Several persons were arrested Wednesday at the fairgrounds for various offenses, such as unlawfully carrying a weapon, public intoxication and evading arrest.

Two boys were taken into custody shortly after 11 p.m. Wednesday at the midway for suspicion of carrying knives, one a switchblade, and for public intoxication.

One of the young suspects told police he was carrying the weapon for protection, because somone was out "to get me."

In another incident, a Lubbock boy was taken into custody about 7:10 p.m. Wednesday at the midway for allegedly smoking a marijuana cigarette and carrying a switchblade knife in his pocket.

Reports indicate the youth attempted to eat the "joint," but spit it out after police confronted him.

An 18-year-old Lubbock man wrestled with police at the fairgrounds about 10 p.m. Wednesday after he reportedly was caught downing an alcoholic beverage on the grounds.

The teen-ager ran from officers, according to reports, but was caught on the other side of the fairgrounds. After a brief scuffle with arresting officers, the suspect was taken to the county jail.

DA Files Burglary Charges

The Lubbock County criminal district attorney's office Wednesday filed criminal charges against three Lubbock men in connection with as many as 50 burglaries in five South Plains counties.

Alfred Mendoza, 31, of 320 Ave. R and Rongelio "Roy" Rodriquez, 31, of 2710 Bates, were charged with burglary of habitation. Each man is being held in Lubbock County Jail in leiu of $10,000 bond.

Theft charges were filed against Ernest Rodriquez, 25, of 2408 Auburn St. Rodriquez was released from jail Wednesday after posting bond.

Authorities believe the three men may have been responsible for burglaries in Lubbock, Lynn, Lamb, Hockley and Crosby counties during a six-week period that netted more than $200,000 in clothing, jewelry and household goods.

Sheriff's deputy Sonny Keesee said Mendoza and Alfred Rodriquez have provided authorities with information to clear 27 burglaries.

English Singer, Actress Dies

CAPRI, Italy (AP) — Dame Gracie Fields, a humble Lancashire lass who went from a shilling-a-week vocalist to a world famous singer-actress worth millions, died Thursday at her villa on the Isle of Capri. She was 81.

Her husband, Boris Alperovici, said Miss Fields collapsed during breakfast and died. She had been hospitalized for six weeks in the summer with bronchial pneumonia.

Miss Fields, who sang her way into the hearts of millions for more than half a century, was made a dame only seven months ago by Britain's queen mother, acting on behalf of Queen Elizabeth II, in a pomp-filled ceremony in the ballroom of Buckingham Palace.

Born Grace Stanfield in a room above a fish and chips shop at Rochdale, in northern England, she began her entertainment career at age 8 for one shilling, then 25 cents, a week.

Eventually, she became "Our Gracie" to millions and commanded high fees, giving as much as $2 million to charity during her career.

Sterling Miller, Lubbock Finance Director, Dies

Sterling Miller, city finance director for the past 14 years, died Thursday night in Methodist Hospital after suffering an apparent heart attack.

Miller, 46, of 4903 15th St., was brought in by EMS attendants to the hospital's emergency room at 8:20 p.m. and was pronounced dead at 9 p.m.

He reportedly had been working in his yard when he collapsed.

Services for Miller are pending with the Franklin-Bartley Funeral Home.

The Santa Fe, N.M., native was hired as internal auditor for the City of Lubbock on Feb. 25, 1958, and was promoted to director of finance in June 1965. Prior to working for the city, he had served in the Air Force.

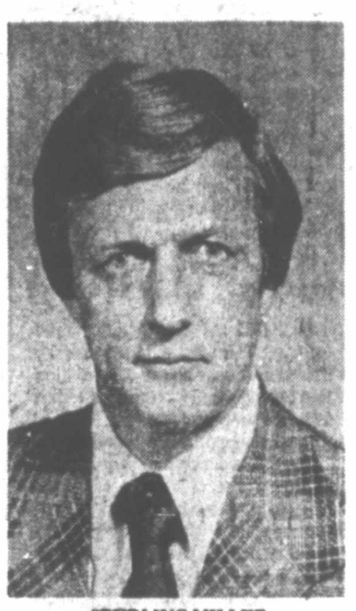
Miller was a member of the board of trustees for the Texas Municipal Retirement System. He was appointed to that board by the governor in 1972. He was an officer in the Texas Municipal Finance Officers Association and had received an award from that group for outstanding financial reporting.

Miller also was treasurer for the Lubbock Firemen's Relief and Retirement Fund.

Mayor Dirk West said late Thursday that the city had lost one of the finest persons in municipal financing in the country.

"He did an outstanding job," West said. "We'll miss him very much."

City Manager Larry Cunningham, who had worked with Miller for the past 13 years, said that he was shocked and extremely saddened by Miller's death.



STERLING MILLER

"He was not only a good friend but also was a tremendous public servant. It's as great loss to city government and this community," Cunningham said.

Cunningham called Miller "a financial wizard" and termed him "one of the top people in his field in the state."

Rod Bouffard, internal auditor for the city, also expressed shock at learning of Miller's death. "He was a great individual and will be missed by us all."

Woman Dies In Auto Accident

One Lubbock woman was killed and another injured about 4:20 p.m. Wednesday in a one-car accident on Interstate 20 about 4 1/2 miles east of Baird in Callahan County.

The driver of the car, June Cozart, 49, of 5405 17th St., was pronounced dead at the scene by Baird Justice of the Peace Bob Curtis.

A passenger, Bettie Allred Sims, 45, of 6124 21st St., was listed in fair condition Thursday at Graham Memorial Hospital in Cisco, where she was being treated for internal injuries, multiple lacerations and a fractured hip.

Mrs. Cozart reportedly was driving east on I-20 when she apparently lost control of her car, which left the roadway, according to the Department of Public Safety. The 1978 Lincoln Continental dropped about 35 feet into a creek bed and overturned, DPS said.

Mrs. Cozart's body was first taken to Parker Funeral Home in Baird and later transferred to Sanders Funeral Home in Lubbock, where services were scheduled for 2 p.m. today at Sanders Memorial Chapel with the Rev. J.T. Bolding, a retired Baptist minister, officiating.

Burial will be in the City of Lubbock Cemetery under the direction of Sanders Funeral Home.

A Lubbock resident most of her life, she married Ray Cozart May 8, 1964, in Llano.

Survivors include her husband; two daughters, Patty Humphries of Azle and Marilyn Isreal of Richardson; and seven grandchildren.

Lifesaving Course Credited With Saving Girl's Life

An 8-year-old Ackerly girl was saved from drowning Thursday night by a family friend who took a first aid course last year "just in case I might need it."

Shelby Airhart, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Quentin Airhart of Route 1, Ackerly, was in guarded condition late Thursday at Health Sciences Center Hospital after she was pulled about 9:30 p.m. from the bottom of the swimming pool at the Villa Inn Motor Hotel, 5401 Ave. Q.

Her mother, finding the girl missing from her room, went to the pool area where the youngster had been playing earlier and saw her daughter n the bottom of the pool.

Lamesa residents Jim Bob Beam and Max Richards, both friends of the Airhart family, pulled the girl from the pool and Richards began mouth-to-mouth resuscitation. EMS paramedics called to the scene administered first aid to regulate the girl's breathing.

The Airharts, in town for the 4-H stock show at the Panhandle South Plains Fair, had checked into the southeast Lubbock hotel Thursday.

Richards, also in Lubbock for the fair's stock show, said he had taken a Red Cross-sponsored cardiopulmonary resuscitation course in April 1978, "just in case I ever needed it. And you know, I think I might just take a refresher course."

Brown Sports Wide Variety Of Advisers

BROWN'S ADVISORS — California Gov. Jerry Brown's circle of advisors include a variety of people including: anti-war activist of the '60s Tom Hayden, left; Jesse Jackson, the black political and religious leader, second from left; former Apollo 9 astronaut Rusty Schweickart, second from right; and A. W. Clausen, Bank of America president, right. (AP Laserphoto)

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (AP) — Gov. Edmund G. Brown Jr. does not — as some think — spend all of his time getting advice from an odd bunch of gurus, actresses, ex-astronauts and counter-culture folk.

The would-be president's circle of advisers includes all of those people.

But it also includes powerful, conservative business executives, politically seasoned campaign aides and an array of nonpolitical scholars, authors and activists.

Tom Hayden, the aquitted Chicago Seven defendant and anti-war activist of the 1960s, and Hayden's wife, actress Jane Fonda, are among people Jerry Brown often turns to for advice and ideas.

So are Rusty Schweickart, the philosophical Apollo 9 astronaut; Stewart Brand, publisher of the Whole Earth Catalog; and Jesse Jackson, the black political and religious leader.

Brown also spends time, however, listening to some of California's most influential businessmen such as A.W. Clausen of the Bank of America and Ben Biaggini of Southern Pacific Co.

And he spends long hours, at irregular intervals, discussing the nature of man with nonpolitical figures such as anthropologist Gregory Bateson and San Francisco Zen Center abbot Baker-Roshi.

For Brown, a 41-year-old Democrat, this quest for a broad range of advice is a part of what he calls his "canoe theory" of politics: "You paddle a little bit on the left, then you paddle a little bit on the right side, and you keep going straight down the middle."

Critics view Brown's canoe theory as a political ploy aimed at crassly stroking various interest groups and playing one-by-one to the prejudices of each group. But those who represent various ideas say Brown is receptive to them.

Clausen, who visits Brown every six to 12 months for a lunch of cold cuts and a discussion of business, describes the governor as a fiscal conservative open to ideas from businessmen but "a bit unpredictable." Hayden, too, says he finds Brown receptive to his left-leaning politics, adding: "I think we get more out of him than the Bank of America gets."

The result of Brown's "canoe" process is usually a synthesis — a favorite Brown word — of ideas from rival factions.

For example, he supports a constitutional convention to balance the federal budget — a goal of the far right — but argues that as well as imposing fiscal displine, a balanced budget would force Congress to make hard choices about such things as excessive defense spending.

Hayden and Miss Fonda are Brown's most controversial advisers, mainly because of their opposition to the Vietnam War. Brown has appointed Hayden to three non-paying posts and Miss Fonda to the California Arts Council, but her appointment later was vetoed by the State Senate after debate over her Hanoi visits during the war.

Hayden, who heads the 7,500-member Campaign for Economic Democracy, says he talks with Brown about once a week on various issues.

"It's a relationship based on issues, not on hanging out together or anything like that," says Hayden, who describes Brown as "a reformer" who is sympathetic to progressive causes, but only if Brown sees enough political force behind an idea to make it feasible.

"As long as I know how he views his job, then I know how to view mine. If he's going to paddle on the left and paddle on the right, then my job is to make him paddle like hell on the left," he says.

On the right are people like Clausen of Bank of America and members of the California Roundtable, an association of chief executives of California's 80 largest companies who meet with Brown.

Clausen says of Brown: "He has sought the business point of view. But he's got another side of him. His political appointments kind of fly in the face of his fiscal conservtivism. He's a bit unpredictable."

Biaggni, president of the roundtable and chairman of Southern Pacific Co., says Brown is "a good listener."

"We get a fair hearing, but the end result is going to be the product of a lot of different viewpoints and it ... may not be at all like the business viewpoint," Biaggini said, adding he was disappointed at Brown's adament opposition to nuclear power.

Some roundtable members have become disenchanted with Brown. For example, Industrialist Justin Dart, who says of the governor: "He listens, but he doesn't listen ... I can't figure out what he really believes in, or whether he really believes in anytning."

Jacques Barzaghi, Brown's staff liason officer, describes how Brown seeks advice: "He doesn't have one or two or 10 people" as advisers. "You are talking about a huge number of people, hundreds.

"He will seek out anyone whose views he thinks might add something. Then there are books. He swallows books like a vacuum cleaner. And we may have to find the author for him to answer more questions."

Two Franks Divided By One Betty Equals Major Problem

SEATTLE (UPI) — This is a tale of two Franks and one busy blonde, named Betty.

Both Franks, in their 50s, were frankly surprised Sunday night when they discovered they married the same Betty.

Police reports said Frank No. 1 was awakened by a late night knock at the door of his Magnolia area home. On the doorstep was Frank No. 2, who said he was looking for his wife. He'd spotted her car outside.

His own wife was inside and nobody else. Frank No. 1 told Frank No. 2. Furthermore, he said, the car outside belonged to his own wife.

Frank No. 2 begged to differ. Frank No. 1 called police.

When an officer arrived, he found Betty, 44, who appeared to be very ill, trembling in the back room. He asked her to come to the door.

When Frank No. 2, still waiting at the doorstep, finally saw Frank No. 1's wife, he exclamed: "Betty, why did you do this to me?"

Betty replied: "I'm sorry, but I don't know you." Then she fainted.

The policeman called an aid car for Betty while the two bewildered Franks looked on.

Frank No. 2 told police he married Betty 10 days ago in Mississippi and traveled back to Seattle with her and her daughter. Frank No. 1 said he married Betty in Alabama two years ago.

Finally, Betty's daughter spilled the beans. Her mother married both Franks, she said.

LEGAL LECTURE — City Attorney John Ross explains a defect in a pay raise petition to Luther Dean, left, president of the Lubbock Firefighters Association, and Jon Peterson at the city council meeting. Ross said the city charter states the petition should request passage of an ordinance, but the petition asks that an election be called on whether firemen should receive a 15 percent pay raise. Council members decided to ignore the "technicality." (Staff Photos by Paul Moseley)

Panama Threat Made On Pact Implementation

PANAMA CITY, Panama (AP) — President Aristides Royo said Thursday that Panama will reject all parts of the Panama Canal treaty implementing legislation his government considers in violation of the agreements.

Earlier in the day, the Panamanian government halted independent radio programming in a move to silence critics and combat unrest spawned by growing strikes and opposition to the treaties.

"The United States Congress has unilaterally interpreted the treaties. No secondary texts can be accepted," Royo told a news conference in the presidential palace.

"If the law contradicts the treaties, we don't accept it. It is the U.S. government's problem."

The comment was the first official reaction to House passage Wednesday of the legislative package.

Royo declined to say what aspects of the bill were unacceptable because "we have not yet received the official text."

But two provisions of the bill, which passed by a 232-188 vote and was signed into law Thursday by President Carter, are known to be objectionable to Panama.

One grants the U.S. president the right to place canal operations under U.S. military authorities, and the other gives the president the right not to hand canal operation over to Panama in the year 2000 as specified in the treaties.

Political analysts said the Panamanians apparently have decided to face the problems if and when they arise.

Speaking briefly in English, Royo acknowledged worries by Americans in the zone about living under Panamanian authority, but predicted they would feel easier after Oct. 1, the day the new treaties become effective.

"Winning New Friend"

"Americans are losing Ancon hill and an old railroad, but they are winning a new type of friend," Royo said.

He also said the U.S. Army School of the Americas must be reformed to better serve the needs of Latin American people "in a socially responsible manner."

The school, located in the zone, has been a training center for thousands of Latin American troops over the years. Critics say it has been used mainly to train soldiers for right-wing military regimes sympathetic to the United States.

The order halting independent radio programming affected 74 stations. Two of Panama City's 22 stations decided to close rather than carry government programming.

To Last Indefinitely

The government said the order was given "to provide better information about the Oct. 1 activities" but would last indefinitely. Some station owners said they had been told it would last six days.

Panama assumes jurisdiction over most of the Canal Zone on Monday and has invited 10 heads of state to a march into the zone and a rally at Albrook air field.

Vice President Walter Mondale and Secretary of State Cyrus R. Vance will represent the United States. Vance is to tour the zone Tuesday.

The Panamanian Broadcasters Association protested the restriction and was preparing an appeal to the Supreme Court charging it was unconstitutional.

Catholic Exception

The government made one exception, allowing Radio Hogar, a Roman Catholic Church station, 15 minutes of independent programming for a rosary broadcast.

The government network carried a series of programs reflecting "the years of imperialism" and "the valiant Panamanian struggle to recoup sovereignty." Some spots carried the sound of gunfire and many attacked the 76 years of American occupation of the Canal Zone.

Silencing the independent stations, some of which were vehement critics of President Aristides Royo's government, leaves Panama without an independent media voice.

Council Accepts Fireman Pay Petition

By SYLVIA TEAGUE
Avalanche-Journal Staff

Despite a discrepancy in the pay raise petition circulated by Lubbock fire fighters, the city council decided Thursday to ignore the problem and begin validating the signatures on the petition.

Council members formally received copies of the petition for a 15 percent pay raise and the petition for collective bargaining rights for fire fighters and set a 10:30 a.m. public hearing on Oct. 11 on the proposed pay increase.

However city attorney John Ross said wording of the pay raise petition could lead to challenges of the expected Nov. 6 election.

Under the city charter, Ross said, the petition should ask for passage of an ordinance, but that the fire fighters' petition asks for the calling of an election.

This raises questions about whether petition signers favor the pay increase or favor an election on the issue, Ross said.

"It doesn't technically meet the requirements of the city charter," Ross said, but added the defect could be viewed as a "procedural oversight."

Ross said the council could choose to view the wording problem as a procedural defect and follow procedures established in the charter on ordinances proposed by petitions.

That was the course favored by the council, with councilman Bill McAlister commenting, "It seems to me we'd be hanging on legal mumbo-jumbo" if an election is not called.

"I wouldn't want to negate all their hard work on a technicality," Mayor Dirk West said

However council members noted the election would be open to challenge because of the defect.

Luther Dean, president of the Lubbock Firefighters Association, told council members the wording of the petition did not reflect the intent of the fire fighters. "I don't know how it happened."

Ross encouraged association members and their attorney to examine the situation and decide whether the election still should be called.

Under the city charter the council must accept or reject the proposed pay ordinance following the Oct. 11 public hearing. Then the fire fighters have 20 days to indicate they still want an election on the issue.

That procedure does not have to be followed for the collective bargaining petition, which is governed by state law.

When delivering the collective bargaining petition to the council, Dean said association members feel the bargaining and pay issues "are two issues that are vital for morale and efficiency of Lubbock fire fighters."

Dean said he feels the requests are "within reason and justified" and said, "the ultimate solution will benefit all citizens of Lubbock as well as the fire fighters."

Both council members and fire fighters pledged they would conduct their respective election campaigns without malice.

Dean said the fire fighters hold no malice or ill will toward the council or city manager for not granting a previously requested 12 percent pay raise. "I don't fault the council or manager on this," he said.

"I'd like to see this expedited with the least amount of friction."

West agreed and pledged the city would conduct its campaign "without malice," adding the only differnce between fire fighters and city officials is "between what we feel like we can afford and what you feel like you need."

"We feel like we've got the finest fire department in the U.S.," West said.

Also at the meeting, council members upheld a planning and zoning commission denial to rezone three garage apartments which are illegal.

William A. Bethune, who had represented himself and two other owners of garage apartments at 2119 14th St., 2601 25th St. and 2602 29th St., had appealed a decision of the planning commission but failed to appear for the discussion on the zone case.

City Planning Director Jim Bertram said Bethune had asked that the case be continued pending the findings of a commission subcommittee studying the problem of illegal apartment conversions, but council members decided to hear the case when Bertram said the subcommittee findings would have no effect on Bethune's zone change application.

Bethune applied for a change in zoning after city inspectors cited him for an illegal apartment in a residential zone and threatened to take legal action against him. That legal action now will proceed with the denial of the zone change request.

Senate Rejects Pay Raise This Session

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate Thursday approved an emergency appropriations bill that contains no payraise for members of Congress but allows a 5.5 percent hike for top-level federal employees.

The measure now goes to a House-Senate conference that will work out differences between the House and Senate versions of the bill. The House bill contains a $3,200-a-year raise for members of Congress.

The emergency appropriations bill was approved on a 76-11 Senate vote.

The bill must be passed by Monday, the start of a new fiscal year, since it contains emergency funds to keep the government operating after the new fiscal year starts.

Sen. Warren Magnuson, D-Wash., who will head the Senate's negotiators, said the conference committee would meet today to work out differences. The compromise version then would go back to the House and to the Senate for final passage.

House leaders announced that the House, which is scheduled to begin a 10-day Columbus Day recess Saturday, would remain in session until the bill is passed.

House Democratic Whip John Brademas, D-Ind., said a Saturday session might be necessary.

Senate passage of the legislation came after it adopted several controversial resolutions that will have to be worked out in conference.

Possibly the stickiest of those issues is one dealing with federal funding of abortions. The House bill would forbid the use of federal funds to pay for abortions unless the mother's life is directly threatened.

The Senate has rejected that language four times this year. And Thursday, it insisted again on its more liberal language, allowing federally-funded abortions in cases where the life or health of the mother is threatened and in cases of rape or incest.

Another controversial provision added by the Senate would prohibit any pay raise for members of Congress from going into effect until a new Congress is elected.

If accepted by the conference, that provision apparently would mean that no pay raise voted by the current Congress could go into effect until Jan. 1, 1981 — after all House members and one-third of the Senate have gone through the 1980 elections. It was offered by Sen. Richard Stone, D-Fla., and was passed without opposition. Stone said his position was that no congressional pay raise approved by the House and Senate should take effect during the same legislative session — but should be delayed until a new Congress is elected.

Another provision passed by the Senate but not in the House bill would continue federal funding until Nov. 30 for the financially-ailing Milwaukee Railroad.

The Senate rejected an attempt to cut off funding for the Clinch River, Tenn., beeder reator and an attempt to restore cuts already made in Amtrak routes.

New Education Agency Voted By Congress

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House gave approval Thursday to a bill creating a new Department of Education and sent the measure to President Carter.

The House voted 215-201 to create the 13th Cabinet agency. (Rep. Kent Hance, D-Lubbock, voted against the bill.) During his 1976 campaign, Carter had promised to place the government's education programs within a single new agency.

The Senate passed the measure Monday.

The measure will reduce the size of the Department of Health, Educatiou and Welfare and will rename the agency the Department of Health and Human Services.

As the House vote was announced, a cheer went up outside the chamber where private supporters of the proposal, many of them teachers, had been waiting.

The new department is the second created during Carter's term. The Energy Department was established in 1977.

Under the legislation, more than 150 federal programs will be transferred to the new agency. The education division in the Department of Health, Education and Welfare will be the heart of the new agency, but programs from the departments of Agriculture, Justice, Housing and Urban Development, Labor and other agencies will be added.

The new department will have a budget exceeding $14 billion and will have about 18,000 employees.

The debate over the Education Department pitted the two largest teacher organizations against one another. The National Education Association, the largest teacher organization, actively supported the idea. But the rival American Federation of Teachers led the opposition.

After the vote, Carter called it "a significant milestone in my effort to make the federal government more efficient." He said the new department would give the American people "a much clearer picture of what the federal government is doing in education and who is in charge of those activities."

Carter planned to have breakfast today with the NEA board of directors. The board is expected to endorse Carter's re-election.

Judge Hints Defense Lacking For Davis

FORT WORTH (AP) — The judge in the Cullen Davis murder conspiracy trial suggested outside the jury's presence Thursday that the defense, in effect, has no defense.

"I read your opening statement, trying to figure out what you were doing, and it doesn't say anything...it's just words," State District Judge Gordon Gray told the defense team.

"It was fractured a little bit..." responded lead defense lawyer Richard "Racehorse" Haynes. "But it should not be held against Cullen Davis."

"Well," said Gray, 'it presents no legal defense, you know. I mean, what you outlined in your opening statement is not a legal defense."

Haynes argued that "it's a legal defense to show no motive."

Davis, 46, a millionaire industrialist, is accused of masterminding a summertime 1978 plot to kill his divorce judge and others.

He contends he was framed by his ex-wife Priscilla, informant David McCrory and karate instructor Pat Burleson.

At the time Davis and his wife were involved in a multimillion-dollar divorce suit.

The exchange between Gray and Haynes during questioning of defense witness Mark Hill, one of the lawyers who represented Davis in the divorce case.

When Haynes attempted to introduce a divorce-related letter into evidence, Gray sent the jury out and told Haynes:

"It's simply not relevant at this time. All you've done so far is try the divorce case and I'm not in the divorce business."

"Our position," countered Haynes, "is that we can demonstrate through this witness that Cullen Davis was not unhappy with the proceedings in the divorce court."

Trade Deficit Widened By Imports Hike

in July. The price per barrel in January had been $13.64.

A Commerce Department analyst who asked that his name not be used said the August price "is in the range that OPEC wanted it to be, so we probably won't go up much more."

Other import categories showing large increases were steel, up 18 percent to $673.1 million, and foreign automobiles, up 30 percent to $1.16 billion.

The Commerce Department also reported that three closely watched national trade balances worsened in August.

Imports from Japan exceeded exports by $714.4 million last month, compared with $484.7 million in July. The trade deficit with Germany also widened from $166.5 million in July to $307.5 million in August.

And, reflecting the oil import bill, the U.S. trade deficit with OPEC countries rose to $2.6 billion, compared with $2.3 billion in July.

The nation's trade deficits with Japan and Germany are expected to turn to surpluses next year when figured on a current account basis, which also include U.S. export of services and individual payments overseas, according to Undersecretary of the Treasury Anthony M. Solomon.

Solomon told a news briefing earlier this week that the current account deficit should be between $3 billion and $4 billion this year and lead to a $10 billion surplus next year. The nation ran a $14 billion deficit in its current accounts last year.

Finalists for the rodeo will be announced Saturday.

Other attractions scheduled for College and Military Day are a series of free shows from 5 to 10 p.m. on the outdoor stage between the women's and merchants building.

Action in the livestock pavilion begins today at 9 a.m. with junior lamb judging. Lambs born since mid-December will be judged in Rambouillet, Dorset, Suffolk, Hampshire and Southdown classifications.

Junior steer judging will take place at 10 a.m. in the pavilion.

A second day of rabbit judging begins at 9 a.m. in the rabbit barn.

Persons planning to see Tammy Wynette perform Saturday along with Rex Allen Jr. and George "Goober" Lindsey, instead will find Margo Smith performing with Allen and Lindsey.

Miss Wynette, originally scheduled to headline two shows Saturday, is hospitalized in Woodbury, N.J., with a stomach-related illness that forcedcancellation of her Lubbock appearances.

Miss Smith has produced three hits, including "Don't Break the Heart that Loves You," "It Only Hurts for a Little While," and "Little Things Mean a Lot."

Thursday's special guests, citizens older than 60, and other thousands of fairgoers crowded onto the grounds to enjoy entertainment exclusive to the fair's sixth day.

Treats included the Golden Years of Country Music show staged in the Fair Park Coliseum by a dozen performers from South Plains College..

The crowd also found another type of entertainment at the Cutting Horse Contest and the All Youth Rodeo, both held in the livestock pavilion.

Between milling around displays in exhibit buildings and outdoors, exploring the thrills along the midway and munching on fair food treats, many patrons filed in to see the top sheep and rabbits across the area entered for Thursday's contests.

House Approves 1980 Budget, Splits With Senate On Defense

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House finally approved a 1980 budget Thursday, but apparently not in time to resolve differences with the Senate over defense spending before the start of the new fiscal year next week.

By a 212-206 margin, the House passed a $548.2 billion budget, only slightly leaner than the spending package that the lawmakers rejected last week. Republicans unanimously opposed the budget measure.

The Senate version of the budget calls for $546.3 billion in spending and differs from the House budget by calling for sharply higher outlays for defense and cuts in social programs.

House leaders said Thursday that House and Senate negotiators will not meet to reconcile their deep-seated differences until after a week-long House recess that starts this weekend.

That means the 1980 fiscal year will begin Monday without a firm budget ceiling in place. But the lack of a budget ceiling is not expected to affect the day-to-day operation of government since Congress can still approriate money.

Rep. Robert N. Giaimo, D-Conn., budget committee chairman, said he is concerned about the public perception of congressional failure to agree on a spending plan, but he added that "enacting a budget is not easy."

Giaimo also predicted that the House-Senate budget conference would be "extremely difficult."

In the House vote, 154 Republicans voted against the budget along with 52 Democrats. No Republicans joined with the 212 Democrats in support of the budget.

Last week, the House defeated a $548.6 billion budget, 213-192. However, some liberal Democrats, who favor higher social spending and opposed the first proposal, reversed their votes to prevent possible approval of an even more stringent spending package.

Rep. Parren Mitchell, D-Md., a member of the Congressional Black Caucus, said he switched his vote because other budget proposals would be more harmful to minorities.

Mitchell said that if the House ended up with the Senate budget, "we'll be putting the squeeze on those that have almost been squeezed to death."

Giaimo said the leadership was able to turn around the budget vote because "a lot of good Democrats realized that this was the best we could get under today's economy."

However, two lawmakers said the leadership also agreed to delay a vote on a bill to curb campaign donations from special interest groups in order to keep about 15 Democrats from breaking ranks on the budget and dooming it to a second defeat.

Rep. Mendel J. Davis, D-S.C., said he and other opponents of the campaign bill struck a "fair deal" in which House Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill Jr. agreed to delay a vote on the bill until after the upcoming House recess in exchange for their budget votes.

Manslaughter Charged Against Truck Driver; Bond At $10,000

POST (Special) — A truck driver has been charged with involuntary manslaughter in connection with a traffic accident here about 8:45 p.m. Wednesday which killed Randy Bell, 20, of Post, Garza County Sheriff Jim Pippin said.

Bell, who was traveling on a motorcycle when he reportedly was struck by the tractor-trailer rig at an intersection within the city, died shortly after midnight at Methodist Hospital in Lubbock.

Pippin said the driver of the truck, Claude Lee Willis, 32, also of Post, was charged with involuntary manslaughter and was being held in the Garza County Jail in lieu of $10,000 bond.

Willis allegedly ran a stop sign at the intersection before colliding with Bell's motorcycle.

The sheriff said Willis left the scene while officers were investigating the accident, but was apprehended minutes later about 10 miles north of Post on Highway 651.

Bell was taken to Hudman Funeral Home, where services were scheduled for 3 p.m. today at the First Baptist Church in Post with the Rev. Glenn Reece, pastor, officiating.

Burial will follow in the Terrace Cemetery in Post under the direction of Hudman Funeral Home.

Bell was born March 10, 1959, in Lubbock. He had been employed the past year as a brakeman for Santa Fe Railroad.

Survivors include his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Dennis Bell of Post; two brothers, Ken of Post and Wayne of Harrah, Okla.; a sister, Marilyn of the home; and a grandmother, Mrs. Selma Loveless of Post.

HEARTLINE: In August 1970, I had a massive heart attack. I was judged disabled by the Social Security Administration and have received a regular monthly check since then. My condition has not changed since that time and I have not been able to work. The question I have is, I now 64 years old, will Social Security put me on regular Social Security checks at 65 years, or am I required to contact them about this? I will be 65 August, 1980. If I am changed over, will my monthly check be smaller, larger, or not changed? — W.N.

When you become 65 years of age, your Social Security benefits will stop coming from the Social Security Disability Fund and start coming from the Social Security Retirement Fund. Social Security will not consider you disabled any longer, but retired. The amount of your benefits will be unchanged. You do not have to contact Social Security about this. The transfer of funds from one to another is done automatioally.

HEARTLINE: I went to a chiropractor and he manually manipulated my spine as treatment of a subluxation. It is my understanding that this type of service is covered by Medicare. This particular chiropraotor is licensed and he is also certified by Medicare, but my claim was refused. I just don't understand why, and hoped you could explain? — N.J.

In your letter to us, you did not mention anything about an X-ray being taken before this treatment. So we checked with your chiropractor. He did not have an X-ray of the subluxation.

Medicare will only cover a chiropractor's treatment of manual manipulation of the spine to correct a subluxation (if the subluxation can be demonstrated by X-ray). In fact, this is the only treaent by a chiropractor which Medicare does cover.

Also, it should be noted that medical insurance (Part B) of Medicare will not help cover the cost of the X-rays or any other diagnostic or therapeutic services furnished by a chiropractor.

HEARTLINE: I have four Medicare supplement policies. I want to make sure that I have adequate coverage should I ever require a long stay in hospital.hospital. My niece tells me that I may be over-insured. What do you think? — G.F.

We could not say without looking at each of your supplement policies and comparing coverages. We will say, however, that with four policies, there is a very good chance that you are over-insured. If two or more of your policies have the same coverage, then you may not need that duplicate coverage. Many Medicare supplement policies will not pay on top of other Medicare supplement policies. It is important to read your policies carefully to determine this.

JAILING CAUSES DISTURBANCE

SCRANTON, Pa. (AP) — When guards tried to lock up a "cantankerous" inmate at the Lackawanna County prison, it touched off a 30-minute disturbance by 23 others who smashed lights and tables. "The guy who started it had some superficial scratches and was taken to the hospital," said Warden Louis Pizzo after the incident Wednesday. "He's a big, husky guy who refused lockup and went berserk and started busting up the place," Pizzo said. "Others started in on the lights and furniture in sympathy."

Jaycees To Hold Crown-Kicking Pageant

HAVELOCK, N.C. (UPI) — Taking a cue from Debbie Shook who kicked her crown after being stripped of the Miss North Carolina title, the Havelock-Cherry Point Jaycees will sponsor a "Miss North Carolina Crown-Kicking Pageant."

The Oct. 7 contest "allows each beauty contestant, especially the losers, to fulfill her fantasy and kick the crown," the chapter said.

The contest is open to any woman aged 18 or older, Jaycee spokesman Darryl Nixon said Thursday. The women will kick crowns while wearing swimsuits and evening gowns, and the kicker with the best average will be declared the winner.

"Accuracy and distance will count," he said. "It'll be much like the punt, pass and kick contest."

Miss Shook was invited to "kick off" the event, but there was no immediate word on whether she would attend.

The contest is a spinoff of the events of June 29 when Miss Shook was stripped of her title the night before she was to give up her crown to a new Miss North Carolina. In response, Miss Shook took off her crown, threw it to the ground and then kicked it onto a stage before a shocked audience waiting for preliminary competition to begin.

Carter Calls Security Council For Vance Report

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter convened the National Security Council Thursday night to hear Secretary of State Cyrus Vance's report on his high-level talks with the Soviets on their troops in Cuba.

Vance and Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei A. Gromyko ended their latest round of talks apparently without a settlement after meeting for more than three hours Thursday in New York.

"There is not a crisis atmosphere but there is a problem," an administration source said. "Vance held a long meeting today with Gromyko and now we want to see what the Russians said."

Besides the president and Vice President Walter Mondale, those summoned to the White House briefing included Defense Secretary Harold Brown, CIA Director Stansfield Turner and presidential National Security Adviser Zbigniew Brzezinski.

Administration officials, who requested anonymity, said the council meeting was called hurriedly Thursday night because Vance has a heavy schedule of Washington meetings today.

The mood seemed gloomy on both sides as Vance and Gromyko ended their latest session. No further talks were planned.

An administration source indicated, however, that Vance might meet again with Soviet Ambassador Anatoly Dobrynin on the troops issue.

State Department spokesman Hodding Carter would not rule out some unspecified U.S. effort to keep the negotiations going. "I'm really trying not to rule out any possibility," he said.

U.S. sources said prior to the last Vance-Gromyko meeting that its outcome would weigh heavily on whether Carter personally enters the negotiations. Those officials had said a weekend meeting between Gromyko and Carter was possible if the stalemate eased.

But Gromyko said he planned to return to Moscow today, apparently precluding a meeting with Carter.

The talks with Gromyko, held in Vance's 37th floor hotel suite overlooking the United Nations, were the first that went beyond the troop dispute, spokesman Carter said.

For part of the discussion they were joined by top advisers.

Vance has met on six occasions over the last three weeks with either Gromyko or Dobrynin.

In the talks, Vance tried to impress on the Soviets the Carter administration's judgment that without a prompt settlement of the troops dispute there is little prospect the Senate will ratify the new strategic arms limitation treaty by the end of the year.

From 2,000 to 3,000 Russian combat troops are said to be in Cuba. The Carter administration claims the presence of a combat brigade on the island 90 miles from Florida impinges on U.S. security. The Russians say the troops are a training unit that has been in the Caribbean country for 17 years.

Gromyko and Vance came down to the hotel lobby together to speak with reporters.

Gromyko, speaking in Russian, said: "We had a lengthy discussion with the secretary of state and we discussed a number of matters. The questions that we discussed related both to bilateral relations between the United States and the Soviet Union and the international situation.

"I should like to say our discussion was of a serious nature. As regards the substance and the context of our conversation, I would like not to comment on that and I would like that you not ask me questions."

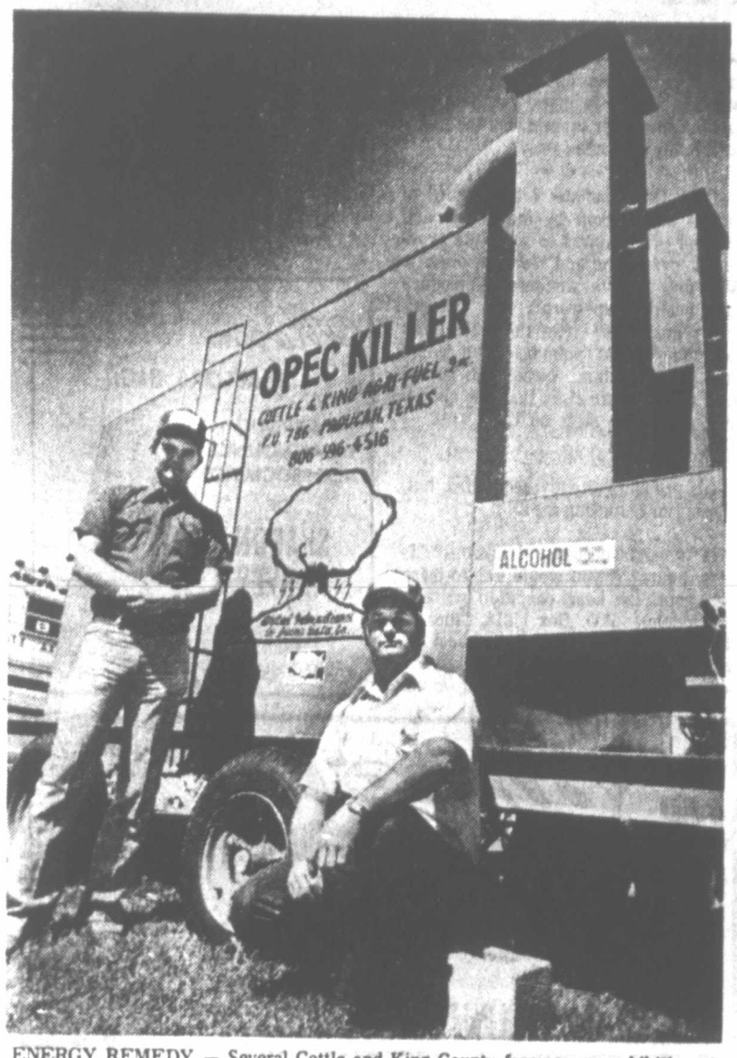
Fair Showcases 'OPEC Killer' Scheme



ENERGY REMEDY — Several Cottle and King County farmers are exhibiting at the fair this week what they call a remedy to the nation's energy shortage. The alcohol processor they have named "The OPEC Killer," operates on water, a starchy crop and anything that burns to produce more than 300 gallons of alcohol a week. Helping to inform the rest of West Texas on the agricultural fuel machine are left to right, Kelvin King and Randell Bockleman, both Paducah farmers. (Staff Photo by Dennis Copeland)

By RAYNIE HARDESTY
Avalanche-Journal Staff

The sign says "The OPEC Killer," but the Panhandle South Plains Fair attraction is not a huge, muscle-bound giant.

It's a huge machine designed to turn farm products into ethyl alcohol which in turn can be used for fuel.

The portable alcohol processor recently was purchased by 42 farmers who have formed Cottle-King Agri-Fuels Inc. And while most farm machinery exhibits usually only draw a small crowd, in 1979 when the fuel crunch has been felt by almost everyone, many interested fairgoers are stopping to take a look at the machine.

Several hundred Panhandle and South Plains residents have signed their names to a list indicating to the farmers that they plan to be in Paducah when the farmers make their first batch of fuel alcohol within the next two weeks.

Any interested passerby can get a quick summary on how the machine operates from one or several of the enthusiastic owners of the unusual farm equipment.

The portable facility is capable of producing 300 gallons of ethyl alcohol per week as it is equipped now, but with the addition of more fermentation tanks, it should produce up to 600 gallons per day, the farmers say.

The simple machine, purchased in Buena Vista, Ga., produces what many are calling "agrifuel," because the fuel is produced from crops.

Although the ethanol production requires 50 to 60 bushels of feed stock, or any grain crop containing starches and sugars, only the starch is taken from the grains and the leftover mash can be used as a feed for cattle, hogs, fish, fowl — even humans.

The processor is powered "by anything that'll make a fire," said farmer James A. Long.

The only other resource needed to produce the fuel in the machine is about 30 to 35 gallons of water per bushel of grain.

The farmers' experiments have shown that diesel tractors can burn up to 95 percent alcohol in their engines, and "because alcohol burns cleaner and dryer, the oil in the tractor will last three times longer," Long said.

Other experimenters have estimated that the machines gain about 30 percent more horsepower using the alcohol fuel.

The farmers chartering Cottle-King Agri-Fuels Inc., said "we got up the money ourselves" to purchase the $14,-150 dollar machine.

The members of the new corporation are planning to alternate weeks processing the fuel and donating a single rolled bail of sudan-type grain.

The agrifuel is a renewable resource, Long said, because it is natural, made from "sunshine, soil, water and organic material."

Alcohol also is a nonpollutant element for the same reasons, he said.

The new fuel, which can be burned pure by autos designed to use unleaded gasoline, "will be sold to anybody," although the corporation has not established a price for it.

"Wylie Distributors already is showing a lot of interest in it," Long said.

Although the idea of burning alcohol seems new to many residents, alcohol first was blended with gasoline as a motor fuel in 1906. Because of a federal tax howevever, the product was too expensive to make as compared to gasoline.

After the tax was removed from fuel alcohol, but not drinking alcohol (a cleaner and purer form), "agrol" was sold by a plant in Atchison, Kan., for about four years in the middle 1930s. The 2,000 service stations selling fuel alcohol in eight midwestern states were closed, however, when cheap gasoline hit the market.

Long said the farmers hope to see alcohol save rural America during this year's recession by creating an economy in the less populated areas.

"For every dollar spent making alcohol, the product should generate $7 in the economy. We hope this would prevent our children from having to leave the farms and compete in city job markets," he said.

Tea Production Estimated Slightly Lower This Year

WASHINGTON (AP) — World tea production this year is estimated at 1.47 million metric tons, slightly less than the record 1978 harvest of 1.48 million, the Agriculture Department said Thursday.

The estimate did not include tea production in China.

The report included these estimates for the major tea-producing countries, compared with 1978 output:

India, 560,000 metric tons and 573,000 last year; Sri Lanka, 200,000 and 199,000; Japan, 105,000 and 105,000; Soviet Union, 105,000 and 103,000; Kenya, 102,000 and 93,000; Turkey, 95,000 and 95,000; Indonesia, 75,000 and 73,000; and Bangladesh, 36,000 and 37,000.

YMCA Concentrating On Public Programs

(EDITOR'S NOTE: This is another in a series of articles dealing with the United Way of Lubbock. The stories reflect actual case histories here.)

Lloyd Davis likes the YMCA so much he decided to make a commitment to the organization and be an active member of its board of directors. Davis not only uses the YMCA facilities on a regular basis, but has become chairman of its program committee.

The YMCA of Lubbock is a United Way agency. It will receive $47,-890 from the United Way's 1980 goal of $1,803,752.

Davis, who is a division superintendent for Southwestern Public Service, is a relative newcomer to the YMCA in Lubbock. However, before coming to the Hub City in 1970, Davis served as president of the YMCA in Plainview. He said he dropped out of the organization until four years ago, when he joined the Lubbock chapter.

United Way of Lubbock

Davis said he first joined the YMCA to keep in good physical shape but later believed in the organization and wanted to make a contribution to it.

"I think the YMCA has a very important function in the community," he said. "It has something for all age groups and individuals in the community."

Davis explained that the YMCA offers many programs for individuals. He said it tries to emphasize participation of the family in its programs and the "Y" just doesn't serve one part of the community but all areas of the community. He said the YMCA sponsors an "outreach program" in cooperation with the Housing Authority of Lubbock, at Greenfair and Hub Homes. More than 100 persons were involved in these programs this summer.

"When I was raising my family, I was interested in involving my whole family," Davis said. Now, he said, his children are grown but the YMCA still concentrates its efforts in family programs and provides a Christian atmosphere where the activities can consolidate the family and bring it together.

According to executive director of the YMCA, Bob Schreiner, the "Y" has programs for both men and women as well as youth and tries to meet the needs of its members that aren't being met elsewhere.

Schreiner said the three-sided symbol of the YMCA means that the organization is concerned with the total person — spirit, mind and body. He said that the YMCA has goals it hopes to achieve for its members making the total person grow in spirit, mind and body.

"In Lubbock we are meeting these goals by providing a place for two or three concentrated efforts," he said. "They are in the areas of the family, programs, fitness, fitness for the entire family and the development of leadership through programs for young people."

Schreiner added that the "Y" is very much concerned in teaching youth how to get things done through the system through its Tri-Hi-Y groups, Hi-Y and Indian guide groups. The "Y" also provides a program to teach youth our form of government.

The YMCA not only offers programs for registered members, but also many programs that are for the public, such as its church leagues which include softball, volleyball and basketball teams administered by the YMCA. Schreiner said that in 1978 the YMCA had registered members numbering 6,-242 but a total of 12,742 persons participated in the YMCA's programs.

In addition, the "Y" sponsors many health-oriented programs, including its popular fitness testing and evaluation for both men and women. The testing measures many of the body's vital signs and is then used to set up a program for regular exercise according to the individual's needs. This program allows its participants to see what type of physical shape they are in and what needs to be done to achieve the desired fitness.

The YMCA of Lubbock is among 34 agencies supported by the United Way.

Woman Gets 10 Years For Lorenzo Murder

By BOB CAMPBELL
Avalanche-Journal Staff

CROSBYTON — A 72nd District Court jury Thursday returned a 10-year sentence against Paula Bruce, whom the eight-man, four-woman jury found guilty of murder Wednesday in the Oct. 2, 1978, shooting deaths of an elderly Lorenzo couple.

The jury began punishment deliberations at 10:18 a.m. Thursday and returned with the punishment verdict at 1:40 p.m. after hearing special prosecutor Alton Griffin ask a life sentence and defense attorneys ask probation for the thin, 58-year-old defendant.

Mrs. Bruce could have been assessed a term ranging from five to 99 years or life in the penitentiary. She could have been given probation for a period ranging from five to 10 years.

The jury deliberated three hours Wednesday afternoon before finding her guilty.

In the closing half-hour of his Wednesday argument, Griffin, of Lubbock, read from a statement Mrs. Bruce gave after Mr. and Mrs. Valton V. Gandy were killed.

Standing before the jury, Griffin read, "I believe that either Tommy Carter or myself had to have killed the Gandys, but I don't recall which one of us did it."

"She acknowledged her ability to kill right there," Griffin told the jury, shaking the white paper he had read from for emphasis.

Mrs. Bruce's statement referred to 34-year-old John Thomas Carter of Lubbock, who also was charged with murder in the case and who committed suicide in his jail cell here March 7.

"This was a killing done deliberately and coldly and to make darn sure there was nobody left alive," Griffin argued. "That's what the shots in the back of the head were for."

Griffin referred to testimony that Valton Gandy, 73, and his wife Cora, 68, both were shot in the back of the head. Gandy also was shot in the face and his wife shot in the temple.

The Gandys were discovered at their home a half-mile north of Lorenzo about 6 p.m. last Oct. 2.

Defense attorney Bill Lee of Ralls suggested that Carter had plotted to rob and kill the Gandys and brought Mrs. Bruce with him, thinking she was too intoxicated to remember what happened and that she could provide him with an alibi for his actions that day.

"She was a mere pawn in the hands of a killer," Lee said.

High School To Pay Medical Expenses Incurred On Trip

Distress at losing a football game in San Angelo was compounded by an epidemic of gastric distress for the Dunbar-Struggs High School band last week, but the school district has said it will not add any more insult to injury.

About 20 to 24 band students became ill on the bus trip back from a varsity football game in San Angelo Friday night and ended up in Big Spring for an emergency medical stop.

Dunbar-Struggs principal Roy Roberts said the students are fine now and are attending classes.

The school district will not add any complications to the plight of the students and their families, however, and will assume financial responsibility for the medical bills incurred in Big Spring.

DR. E.C. Leslie, assistant superintendent for administration, said Thursday "there was some question whether we could assume responsibility, but we felt we should."

TO YOUR GOOD HEALTH

BY DR. PAUL G. DONOHUE

Dear Dr. Donohue: My sister-in-law is 26 and has been sick for the past year and a half. Her doctor told her she has a disease called "lupus." Can you tell me about this? All I know is that it is a blood disorder. Should she be seeing a blood doctor? Is there a cure? What is the treatment? I am very concerned about her. She is under the impression that she hasn't very long to live. — M.R.

Lupus erythematosus is the latin phrase for "red wolf." A disease that takes many courses, it is one of the so-called "connective tissue disorders"(like rheumatoid arthritis). That's because the body's supporting tissue (connective tissue) is most affected. The name "red wolf" refers to the typical mask-like red rash seen over the cheeks in many who have it.

Sometimes only skin is involved. If organs and other internal parts of the body are involved it is called "systemic lupus erythematosus" (SLE). The kidneys, brain and lining of the lungs and heart may be affected, for examples. Joints almost always are. Women get it more than men — nine to one.

It is not a blood disorder, even though most patients with it are anemic. Anemia is a side-result not a symptom of the disease. Lupus is probably one of those illnesses in which the body is fooled into "thinking" that its own tissue is "foreign," and so reacts by producing unneeded protective antibodies.

Yes, your sister-in-law can live with the disease. I'm not sure it is accurate to say there is a "cure," but lupus can be kept under control for most with cortisone-like drugs and hydroxychloroquine. The latter is a drug in the same class as those used to treat malaria.

Have your sister-in-law contact a chapter of a lupus society. You live in a large city. I know there is one there.

Dear Dr. Donohue: I have gotten into the habit of eating non-dairy creamer powder out of the bottle rather than dissolving it in a liquid. I have noticed that if I eat it on an empty stomach it gives me acid distress. If I eat it after a meal my stomach feels full. I am very concerned about this and would greatly appreciate knowing if there are any ill effects from the creamer. — Miss A.P.T.

I looked up the ingredients on the non-dairy creamer I have. They are: corn syrup solids, vegetable oils, mono and diglycerides (carbohydrates), potassium and phosphate. The only ill effects I can think of would be the symptoms you describe. Nothing particularly dangerous, but why in the world would you want to do this? Is it interfering with your normal dietary intake?

• • •

Dear Dr. Donohue: My husband has bronchial trouble. I put small trays of mothballs around in our summer cottage to keep mice away. Will the odor of the mothballs be harmful to his lungs? Is it unhealthy for anyone to breathe? — Mrs. R.A.

You probably have your summer cottage closed up by now, but you'll wonder again next year, so . . .

The usual problem with mothballs is from ingestion of them. The naphthalene in them can cause nausea, vomiting, and liver and kidney damage if eaten. Other substances in mothballs are camphor and paradichlorobenzene. Prolonged exposure to high concentrations of the fumes may be harmful. Under ordinary circumstances, (if the cottage is well-ventilated), there should be no difficulty for your husband.

However, the habit of placing mothballs around in trays is dangerous. They are a temptation for young children, who are known to ingest anything they can put into their mouths. Do the mothballs really keep mice away?

• • •

Dear Dr. Donohue: I have heard of radical steps taken by individuals and medical practitioners to solve the problem of overeating and resulting obesity. Why not, I have wondered, introduce live, healthy tapeworms into the patient's intestines? After the patient has lost the desired poundage you could then de-worm him. Would this procedure be any more risky than the abundance of quacky diets on the scene? — L.M.

It's probably already been tried, but, please, you're making me ill!

Is angina pectoris dangerous? Is there a cure? If you would like to learn more about this heart condition, write to Dr. Donohue, P.O. Box 11210, Chicago, Ill. 60611, for a copy of his booklet, "How to Handle Angina Pectoris." Enclose a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope and 50 cents.

Dr. Donohue welcomes reader mail but regrets that, due to the tremendous volume received daily, he is unable to answer individual letters. Readers' questions are incorporated in his column whenever possible.

At Wit's End...

By ERMA BOMBECK

As I sat in the dental chair having stitches put into my mouth, the dentist said, "You're not going to do a funny column about this, are you?"

My teeth came dangerously close to his hand and I wanted to say, "Of course I am...just as soon as I get the light piece I'm doing on World War II out of the typewriter."

I have no sense of humor whatsoever when it comes to my own pain. I'm really funny that way. The more it hurts, the less I laugh.

The less I laugh, the funnier everyone around me becomes. I guess I never realized before how sadistic a family can be. Here I am — my mouth struck down in its prime — and they're dancing around like they're auditioning for The Comedy Store.

"Hey, look at you. You're in stitches and I haven't even told the joke yet."

"Look at all the weight you're going to lose by not being able to eat. Already you look $300 thinner."

"I knew a woman who had her jaws wired shut. She choked to death on orange juice."

"Sit down and let me tell you what I feel about life."

"Mom can't come to the phone now, she's hitting the bottle." (This when I was coaxing syrup into the blender.)

"Hey, Mom...do your impersonation for Ralph. Come on. Listen to this. Say, 'You help me and together we'll solve our problems.' Smile at the same time. Who do you think it is? Give up? Jimmy Carter!"

As I painfully wrapped my parched lips around a straw my husband said, "You want to go out to dinner or something?"

My eyes widened in shock as I shook my head no.

"Isn't that just like a woman?" he said. "They bug you every day of the week to take you out to eat and the moment someone suggests it they back down. I was going to take you to that expensive French restaurant. We went there back when you had an impacted wisdom tooth, remember?"

Just then, the kids came in with a couple of large pizzas. "How about some of the soft parts?" they offered. (My eyes welled with tears.) "Don't get too choked up about it. The soft part is the part that didn't get done."

And people wonder why some mothers are becoming registered terrorists for Planned Parenthood.

ANN LANDERS

Dear Ann Landers: I've read your column ever since I can remember, and I have a lot of respect for your advice. Now I need help.

A couple of months ago I went to a party. It turned out to be a wild bash. I met a 15-year-old girl who told me she was 20. I was drinking doubles and behaving like a fool. This girl and I did some things I'm not proud of.

I am 24 years old, and her parents are insisting that I marry her. I don't think I could cope with the situation.

Would it be terribly wrong of me to ask the girl to get an abortion? A family at this point would ruin my life. I know I should have thought of all this before, but I didn't and now I must face whatever comes. Any advice you can give me would help immensely. — Sad And Sorry In Corning

Dear S & S: You have every right to express your feelings, but the decision whether to have an abortion must be left to the girl.

Since you obviously believe this marriage would not be right for you, don't be pressured into it. There is no law that says you must marry a girl if she becomes pregnant with your child.

If she decides to have the child, however, you are responsible for support until your son or daughter reaches the age of majority, which is 18 in some states and 21 in others.

I hope your letter will have special meaning to other young men who are taking their pleasure where they find it with no thought of the consequences.

Dear Ann Landers: Is it wrong to reprimand the children of strangers? Here's what happened:

My husband and I took three other couples to dinner in a fine restaurant. It was the anniversary of one of the couples and the dinner was our gift to them.

Midway through the meal, two children about four and six years of age became bored, left the table of their parents and began to play tag. They ran by our table, laughing and screaming. Their parents were completely oblivious — as if they didn't know whose kids they were.

The third time they ran by our table, I grabbed the older child and said in a stern voice, "Take your little brother back to your parents, sit down and behave yourself." The youngster looked terrified but did precisely as he was told. End of disruption.

On the way home, my husband said I was out of line. Was I? — Irked In Newark

Dear Irked: What you did was just fine, although the management should have beat you to it. People who dine out should not be subjected to such disturbance.

I feel sorry for children whose parents are so laid back or, more to the point, spineless. The kids grow up to be obnoxious, a problem to themselves and others.

Dear Ann Landers: Would it be considered improper to take a photograph of a deceased friend or relative in the slumber room during viewing hours?

I would like such pictures as final remembrances but am reluctant to go ahead and take them. Of course I would be discreet and wait until I was alone. Please give me your opinon. — Want To Do What's Right

Dear W.T.D.W.R.: It is perfectly proper to photograph the deceased. In fact, according to the executives of two mortuaries with whom I checked, it is done frequently.

By Oswald Jacoby and Alan Sontag

South's 19 high-card point two notrump got him to four spades. North's three-heart response was a Jacoby transfer which is played by Mr. Kelsey and most British experts. His four-diamond call was a mild slam try which South refused to accept.

You are West this time and open your singleton 10 of diamonds. Declarer takes his ace and plays the kind of spades which you must duck.

You win the second spade and partner completes a trump echo to show that he held three trumps. What do you do now?

The winning play is to lead the jack of clubs!

This desperation effort to beat the contract is based on the hope that South opened a shaded two notrump with a long club suit. In that case your partner will have just one club and if he also holds the ace of hearts you have beaten this contract. Declarer can't get to dummy to draw you last trumps and you get to ruff a diamond and he gets to ruff a club.

Ask the Experts

We have been asked several times to describe a trump echo.

When a defender wants to show partner that he holds three small trumps he follows high-low instead of low-high.

U.S. History Comes Alive On Cards

By SYD KRONISH
Associated Press Writer

American history comes alive on two new postal cards ready for issuance by the U.S. Postal Service. One features the Iolani Palace in Honolulu and the other honors Gen. Casimir Pulaski, Revolutionary War hero. Both cards are 10-centers.

The Iolani Palace card is part of the 1979 Historic Preservation Series. The palace served the Hawaiian monarchy and later became the legislative and governmental building of the Republic of Hawaii, the Territory of Hawaii and now the State of Hawaii. It was first occupied by King David Kalakaua, know as the "Merry Monarch."

The design of the card incorporates an origial painting by noted Hawaiian artist Herb Kawainui Kane showing a frontal view of the palace, with palms lining the drive. Also seen is the characteristic rainbow that appears almost daily in Hawaiian skies.

The 10-cent, multi-colored postal card is the third in the Historic Preservation series which began in 1977 with the Galveston, Texas, Courthouse, and continued in 1978 with the Cincinnati, Ohio, Music Hall. The theme of the series is historically significant American buildings.

Requests for first-day cancellations should be addressed to "Iolani Palace Postal Card, Postmaster, Honolulu, HI 96820." Money orders in the exact amount will be accepted for orders up to the limit of 50 cards. Do not send cash. Orders must be postmarked by Monday.

To eliminate the requirement for USPS personnel to apply return addresses, you are requested to send self-addressed envelopes of an appropriate size or you may enclose return address labels with the order.

The Casimir Pulaski 10-cent card is the third in a series honoring heroes of the American Revolution and will be issued Oct. 11 at Savannah, Ga., during a re-enactment of the Battle of Savannah, where Pulaski was fatally wounded in 1779.

The Polish patriot joined Gen. George Washington's army in 1777 at the recommendation of Benjamin Franklin and served with distinction, being accorded the rank of Brigadier General by the Continental Congress.

It is interesting to note that Pulaski formed a mixed corps known as the Pulaski Legion. He was experienced in guerrilla warfare and participated in the defense of Charleston, S.C., in May 1779. Pulaski was wounded leading a charge during the Battle of Savannah and died Oct. 11. The design of the postal card depicts Pulaski leading his men into action.

The commemorative postal-card series began in 1978 with the card honoring Molly Pitcher, heroine of the Battle of Monmouth. The second card in the series issued last February hailed George Rogers Clark, Revolutionary War frontier military leader. The designer of the new card, David Blossom, also designed the Pitcher and Clark cards.

Collectors who would like to purchase first-day cancellations of the Pulaski card should address their requests to "Pulaski Postal Card, Postmaster, Savannah, GA. 31401." In similar manner to acquiring the Iolani Palace card, send money orders in the exact amount up to the limit of 50 cards. Do not send cash. Requests must be received no later than Oct. 11.

Remember to enclose self-addressed envelopes or return address labels.

Philatelists who specialize in German stamps will be interested in "The Germany Album" by Minkus Publications. The album, richly illustrated, is for stamps of Germany, former German states, territories and colonies. It is complete through 1978 and sells for $40. The album is available at your local dealer or stamp department.

'Soft Art' Concept Gains Popularity

"Soft art," a relatively new concept in crafts today, has been gathering momentum in both the art world and the home recently. Many prestigious museums across the nation have even presented shows around this medium. Most objects made from fibers and fabrics and employing needlework techniques are considered "soft art." The forms the new art takes can be anything from quilts to pillows to the most expeerimental free-form designs.

Anyone can do it. All it takes is basic sewing knowledge and a lively imagination to create beautiful stitched and stuffed soft art. Your piece can be something utilitarian, such as a quilt, toy, or pillow; or it can be designed simply to delight the eye, such as a wall hanging or soft sculpture piece. Many craft publications feature patterns for such soft items as a cactus plant, stuffed birthday cake, and even a mini-soft sculpture car.

Soft wall hangings are simply stuffed pictures or mini-quilts. Inspiration for making a soft art wall hanging can be found in the world around you — in magazine pictures, in your own backyard, even when you open the door to your refrigerator. Experiment with a variety of techniques. You may want to paint your design onto the fabric instead of appliqueing or embroidering it. Or you may want to try fabric photo printing process.

To inspire you to make your first soft art piece, here's a whimsical quilt that brings American Gothic into the bedroom. The soft sculpture people are to be stitched together, stuffed, and then sewn to the comforter. Their arms and feet hang free and can be moved around. You can make the comforter, too, keeping it puffy with layers of quilt batting.

People quilt pattern includes full-size pieces and complete instructions and will adjust to any bed size. To order, ask for Kit NO. 01016 for $4.99 plus $1.45 postage and handling. Creative Home Crafts is required to collect and pay sales tax in Texas.

Group Seeks War Museum

WASHINGTON (AP) — A presidential commission charged with recommending an appropriate American memorial for victims of the World War II holocaust is suggesting construction of a major museum here.

The Commission on the Holocaust said contributions would finance the project, with the federal government providing $1 million in seed money plus land for the museum and an unspecified amount for matching grants.

"We wish ... (through the museum and education efforts) to reach and transform as many human beings as possible. We hope to share our conviction that when war and genocide unleash hatred against any one people or peoples, all are ultimately engulfed in the fire," commission chairman Elie Wiesel said in a letter to President Carter. Wiesel is a novelist and survivor of the Auschwitz and Buchenwald concentration camps.

The Washington Post, which obtained a copy of the commission report before its presentation to Carter today, quoted sources as saying the proposed museum and a Holocaust educational foundation would cost at least $40 million.

Enthusiasm Necessary For Photojournalists

By SANDY COLTON
Associated Press Writer

So you want to be a photojournalist!

My advice is don't even consider it unless you want to live, eat and sleep photography for the rest of your life with no guarantee you'll ever succeed.

Taking pictures for fun is fine, and I encourage it. But if you want to make your living at it be prepared to work, study, experiment and work some more. Then pray for a lucky break.

Over my desk I have a Chinese character that translates roughly into our word "enthusiasm." I tell all young photographers who ask for advice on becoming a photojouralist that unless they have that — enthusiasm — forget it and become an accountant or something else.

Photography, at least news photography, is not an 8-to-5 job. Those photographers who get ahead and excel over others have one trait in common. I like to say that they chase firetrucks. They think photography all the time and are constantly experimenting, trying new things and new ways of doing something.

They develop an eye and see pictures that others miss even driving from one assignment to another. Some actually do chase firetrucks.

Many of the top photographers are terribly insecure. I've seen some spend hours trying to get a specific shot they have in mind. They'll use various lenses, bracket their exposures, change their position and then agonize over the results.

Almost always they're like the fisherman who complains about the one that got away. They almost always feel that they could have done better.

When a new gadget comes along — filter, lens, flash unit or whatever — they can't wait to take it home and play with it. Using the family as guinea pigs, they'll shoot and shoot until the new gadget is old hat and they understand all of its ramifications.

Some time ago, when the fisheye lenses first came on the scene, there was a rash of round pictures. Photographers were using the lens to get as much into the picture as possible.

One of our young photographers asked to borrow the lens from our cabinet shortly after it arrived. He took it home and, using multiple flash and his children as models, came up with two of the best uses of this lens I've seen yet.

A lens like this has tremendous depth of field, meaning that a greater portion distorts a lot.

Halloween was just a week away when this photographer borrowed the lens. He came back with two square photos, cropped out of the normal circle you get from a fisheye, just in time to move on the wire as a Halloween illustration.

In one photo he cut out the back of a pumpkin lantern for the lens to show the candle burning in the foreground and his children peering into it framed in the eyes, nose and mouth. The second photo, used as an illustration here, had the distorted images of the children grimacing into the lens from inches away.

That was years ago. That young photographer was Eddie Adams and he's gone on to become one of the top photojournalists in the world. He still experiments.

Technique Could Aid Fruit Tree Production

By EARL ARONSON
Associated Press Writer

Tissue culture, or micropropagation for mass-producing house plants has been in use for several years. Now researchers are seeking to make the technique feasible for mass-producing fruit trees and berries.

More than 700 strawberry shoots have been propagated in a jar about 4 inches in diameter — each one a potential full-sized strawberry plant — at the U.S. Department of Agriculture's Science and Education Administration in Beltsvillen, Md. Similar four-inch jars house masses of apple shoots and clusters of blackberry and blueberry shoots supported by a synthetic growth medium. And the scientists are coaxing tiny cuttings to multiply rapidly in a clear medium containing nutrients and hormones.

Plant pathologist Richard Zimmerman says the technique could cut to a fraction the time required for nurserymen to propagate these plants, also reducing the space needed for the propagation of fruit trees.

Currently, for example, apple trees are propagated by grafting shoots from the parent tree onto rootstocks. One tree is produced for each shoot. In tissue culture, thousands of trees could be produced from a single shoot. Now it takes up to 12 years and several acres for nurserymen to propagate a new cultivated variety to introduce to the general market. With micropropagation, or minlaturization, it might take only a year and little space, Zimmerman says.

Tissue culture is also a good way to produce virus-free plants which, unlike field propagated plants, are grown in a sterile environment.

Unaffected stock, the researchers point out is especially important to strawberry growers because strawberry plants are susceptible to many viruses that rob vigor.

What Zimmerman's team is striving for is to make the culture method more uniform for the many strawberry varieties and to inform producers who will be setting up strawberry culture laboratories. The main object is to find the combinations of nutrients and hormones that produce the best shoot and root development for each fruit.

This is how it works: To start a culture, the scientists implant a shoot or meristem in a shoot-inducing medium. If the nutrients and hormones are in proper amounts the shoot tip will grow many new shoots. These can be separated and moved to a fresh medium to produce more shoots. The multiplication process can be repeated every three-four weeks to produce thousands of shoots in a four-month period.

In an additional three-four weeks, the shoots will root if placed in perlite, vermiculite, an agar-based medium, or a combination of these. To stimulate root development, an auxin (organic substance that promotes such growth) is added.

The researchers report fine multiplication and rooting result with strawberries and thornless blackberries. But apples and blueberries and other woody plants are more difficult to propagate by tissue culture.

Weather Stripping Stops Condensation

By ANDY LANG
Associated Press Writer

Q. — We have storm windows on our house. They are the old-fashioned kind with wooden frames that are hung separately. The past few years, whenever the heat is on in the house, moisture forms on the inside of the storm windows, sometimes turning to frost or ice. We would like to avoid that this year. Is there anything you can suggest?

A. — This reply may forestall some of the many letters that come in every year as soon as heating equipment goes into operation. So, all you potential questioners on the subject: clip out this answer and keep it handy for a look-see when the weather gets colder in your area. The formation of moisture — condensation — occurs when warm, moist air settles on a cold surface, which in this case is usually the glass in the window frame.

How does warm air reach the inside of a storm window? Obviously, from inside the house through openings in the non-storm window. You cannot stop the condensation unless you prevent the air from leaking through the inside window and settling on the storm window. You may think the inside window is airtight, but the condensation proves that it is not.

Air leaks in the common double-hung windows, which have upper and lower sashes, usually take place at the point where the sashes meet — the top of the lower sash and the bottom of the upper sash. Weather stripping is the answer. There are many types, some of which can be used if the sashes must be raised and lowered and some of which do not permit such movement. Generally, it is better to seal the windows for the duration of the cold-weather period and unseal them when the temperature rises and the heat is not on.

Q. — An old cabinet with a varnish finish is in need of refinishing. It will be used in a child's room, so we want to enamel it a bright color. The varnish has what seems to be a number of cracks or breaks in it. Can we fill these cracks and then enamel right over the old finish?

A. — When an old varnish finish is in good condition, it usually is all right to paint over it provided that any remaining gloss is removed. In this case, however, removal of the old varnish is necessary. It would probably be only a question of time before irregularities in the old finish attacked the new finish. Even if you were able to do a perfect job of filling the cracks, it would take so much time and be so much trouble that you would be better off to remove the old finish. Since there are so many different varnish removers on the market, be sure to follow the manufacturer's directions to the letter.

(The techniques of using varnish, lacquer, shellac, bleach, stain, remover, etc., are detailed in Andy Lang's booklet, "Wood Finishing in the Home," available by sending 35 cents PLUS a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope to Know-How, P.O. Box 477, Huntington, N.Y. 11743. Questions of general interest will be answered in the column, but individual correspondence cannot be undertaken.)

One of the most fragrant spices blended in incense, cinnamon was burned at the funeral of Poppaea, Nero's second wife. The city of Rome had to relinquish its entire annual supply for the show of grief.

Man Waits To Correct Goof

NEW YORK (AP) — Edward Simmelkjaer, turned down when he applied for a $2,000 car loan a week earlier, waltzed out of a Citibank branch on Staten Island with $9 million — on paper.

That was last Monday. On Thursday, after everyone realized that a terrible goof had occurred, Simmelkjaer said he'd stop at the bank and straighten it all out, "maybe today, maybe tomorrow."

Otherwise, he was in no hurry to surrender the money order he bought at the bank that was made out for $9,000,010, instead of $10.

The 33-year-old man said he wasn't sure what the extra numbers meant, but went ahead and used the money order to pay for a routine security check employees must undergo at Willowbrook developmental center.

Willowbrook returned the money order Wednesday and Simmelkjaer telephoned the Citibank Castleton Corner branch to tell the people there not to worry if their books showed a $9 million shortage.

"Come down here right now and give that check back," a curt voice on the other end replied.

Recalling that the bank had made him wait five days on his loan application and then turned him down, Simmelkjaer said it was the bank's turn to wait.

Free Drinks Hazardous

GLENWOOD SPRINGS, Colo. (AP) — For Redmond Harrington of Colorado Springs, the drinks were on the house. But it was serve-yourself.

Glenwood Springs police officer Conrad Paul said he got an early-morning telephone call from a man who said he had been locked in a bar after falling asleep in a broom closet.

Paul said when he and two other officers arrived at the bar, the man appeared with a glass in one hand and a whiskey bottle in the other.

While the three officers tried to break down the door, Harrington drank two water glasses filled with booze, disappeared and then reappeared in the storefront window.

"As he reached for a ladder, his eyes appeared to glaze over," said Paul. "He stiffened and, not unlike a cut tree, fell backwards onto the floor with a resounding 'whack.'"

The officers climbed through a transom window and took Harrington to Valley View Hospital. He was released from the hospital uninjured but for a "goose egg" on his head, Paul said.

Pig Lady Proud Of Name

BRODHEAD, Wis. (AP) — Joyce Keller says she doesn't mind at all when people call her "the pig lady." She says it makes her proud.

Miss Keller, of rural Brodhead, was one of 34 women who completed a three-day course on pig raising for women here Wednesday.

Like many of her fellow students, Miss Keller is not unfamiliar with the subject.

"We've got a phone in the hog house and when I answer, my friends always ask if I'm in the hog house again," she said. "They all call me the pig lady and I'm proud. Last night we were with the sows until 11 p.m. and we got two litters."

Israel Accepts Ex-Publisher

TEL AVIV, Israel (AP) — Jacob Timerman, the Argentine publisher who was stripped of his citizenship and expelled after 2½ years under arrest, is making a fresh start in Israel.

TIMERMAN

He arrived Thursday for a warm welcome from his family, who already had come to Israel, and then was granted Israeli citizenship.

Timerman told reporters at Ben-Gurion airport that he "wanted to think things over" and relax with his wife and sons before saying much about his time in jail and under house arrest in Argentina.

"I just met my daughter-in-law for the first time, and if you want a scoop, I am going to be a grandfather," the 56-year-old Timerman said.

Timerman, who is Jewish, was the publisher of the influential Buenos Aires newspaper La Opinion. Israel grants automatic citizenship to any Jewish immigrant who requests it, and Timerman said he had telephoned Jerusalem from Rome to do so.

Abba Eban Raps Jackson

CHICAGO (AP) — Former Israeli Foreign Minister Abba Eban says the Rev. Jesse Jackson has been "vulgar" and "unstatesmanlike" during his current tour of the Mideast.

Speaking to an Israel Bonds dinner Wednesday night, Eban said Jackson had no right to expect an audience with Israeli Prime Minister Menachem Begin, who refused to meet with the American black leader.

"Mr. Jackson's desire to be received by the prime minister did not come on a clean slate but after Mr. Jackson had made very many statements about the Middle East, creating the impression that he knew all the answers in advance," Eban said.

Jackson earlier this week denounced Begin's refusal to meet with him, charging the decision was based on Jackson's skin color.

"That's vulgar and malicious ... and unstatesmanlike," said Eban, a member of the opposition Labor Party in Israel's parliament. "Why should he (Jackson) want to meet with someone he regards as racist?"

Governor's Wife Jogs Daily

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Gov. Lamar Alexander is noted for walking more than 1,000 miles during his 1978 campaign, but his wife, Honey, covers ground faster.

Every morning, Mrs. Alexander laces up her jogging shoes, drags Tennessee Highway Patrolman Hugh Hayes out the door and heads down Curtiswood Lane for a 2-to 3-mile run.

Hayes, Mrs. Alexander's security guard, isn't too thrilled with the running, and he and the governor make sure she reads any article outlining the hazards of running.

"I just don't pay it any attention," Mrs. Alexander says.

Besides, she adds, Hayes is improving.

"Hugh is ahead of me on the way out and I'm ahead of him on the way back," she says.

Mrs. Alexander turned in a time of just over 48 minutes Sunday in Nashville's second annual Bonne Bell, a 6.2-mile race for women.

"I started running because I didn't have time for any other exercise," she says. "I could handle that — just going up and down the street. The children were here and I could go back and forth. That way they could flag me down if there was any trouble."

Clements Welcomes Demos

AUSTIN (AP) — Bill Clements, Texas' Republican governor, has the welcome mat out for Democratic presidential hopefuls — it means more money for the state's tourist industry.

Clements, who has predicted President Carter could not carry Texas in the 1980 presidential election, noted Thursday that he had met with Gov. Edmund Brown Jr. of California on the Democrat's recent visit to Texas. "And I encouraged him to come back when he feels like it."

He said any time Carter, Sen. Edward Kennedy of Massachusetts or Brown "want to come to Texas, they are welcome."

Clements said he told Brown to bring a large entourage on his next trip. "The more money they spend in Texas, the better we like it," the governor said.

Asked if he wanted to invite other presidential candidates to Texas, Clements replied: "It's a blanket invitation."

Teacher Seeks 'Ag School'

VERONA, Wis. (AP) — Ferron Havens hates to see old barns being torn down, and has an idea for at least of one them. He wants to turn it into sort of classroom where "city kids" can learn about rural life.

Havens, 23, an agriculture teacher at Verona High School, is seeking permission to turn an abandoned barn into an agricultural classroom with about 100 animals, including calves, hogs, sheep, goats and poultry.

Havens said the classroom would be for "students who think they want to work on farms or who just want to find out what it's like."

Students would learn all the problems of raising animals during the year, including disease control, surgical processes and farm management, he said.

The county's chief attorney has drawn up a contract to lease the barn, located east of Verona near the Dane County Hospital and Home.

Havens said the project may get started as early as November.

Hello To You, Too!

AUSTIN (AP) — Gov. Bill Clements, meeting with Capitol reporters for the first time since his return from a three-week trip to Eastern Europe, had this greeting for the news media Thursday:

"Well, good to see everybody.

"I've been missing you.

"Do you all believe that?

"Ha!"

Pictures Upset Streisand

NEW YORK (AP) — Barbra Streisand filed a $5 million damage suit Thursday seeking to block High Society magazine from publishing photographs showing her nude above the waist.

The actress-singer claimed the magazine, which features "hard-core pornography," wrongfully obtained the photographs and intends to distribute them in its November issue about to be sent to subscribers.

Papers filed in the U.S. District Court in Manhattan indicated the photographs were taken but never used while the star was filming the movie, "The Owl and the Pussycat."

Rastar Productions, Inc., producers of the film, joined Miss Streisand in a request for an injunction against distribution plus damages.

"Throughout her career, Streisand has vigorously protected her reputation and privacy by refusing to consent to release of any film or publication in which she was not fully clothed," the papers state.

MORE WATERFOWL EXPECTED — The conversion to steel shot hunters seems a small price to pay for the elimination of the millions of pounds of lead. This lead, despoited in feeding areas each year, poisons the fowl on which the sport depends. Only two areas in Texas (J.D. Murphree Wildlife Management Area near Port Arthur, and Sea Rim State Park in Jefferson County) presently require steel shot.

Letter Stresses Importance Of Shot Types Knowledge

(EDITOR'S NOTE: The following is from a letter to outdoor writers signed by Bob Brister — Shooting Editor -Field & Stream, Jim Carmichael — Shooting Editor — Outdoor Life, and John Wooters — Shooting Editor — Hunting. Steel shot is required in Texas only at J.D. Murphree Wildlife Management Area near Port Arthur and at Sea Rim State Parkin Jefferson County, but the controversial shot may eventually affect all waterfowl hunters.)

The issue of steel shot has become of vital importance to waterfowl and to the rights of many Americans to hunt them. The use of nontoxic steel pellets, rather than the usual lead pellets, for waterfowl hunting has been mandated in many states because of estimates that 2.3 million waterfowl die each year by ingesting spent lead pellets.

Some states have refused to enforce federal regulations. This could result in injunction suits by antihunting groups that conceivably could halt all waterfowl hunting until the matter is resolved in the courts.

The result of the hunting shutdown could be the loss of millions of acres of prime waterfowl wintering habitat which has for years been flooded and maintained by hunting clubs. It is doubtful that many clubs can afford to flood their areas without the income from hunting.

Since hunters won't buy duck stamps where they can't hunt, there would also be losses to management funding and waterfowl habitat acquisition.

Hunters, and politicians representing them in some states, have opposed steel shot primarily because some early steel loads gave poor performance and because they have been told steel shot will damage gun barrels and cripple more ducks than would be saved from lead poisoning.

But modern steel shot loads contain a thick plastic protective shotcup wad which prevents erosion of the gun's choke from the hard pellets. Complaints of gun damage have been very few from areas where steel shot has been in use since 1976.

Also, in the fall of 1978, a test was made by the Illinois Department of Conservation in which hunters used unmarked lead and steel loads (they didn't know which were which) and were carefully observed as to what they hit, missed, or crippled in firing at wild Canada geese. Size BB steel in 3-inch magnum loads killed more geese, and crippled fewer, than non-buffered 3-inch No. 2 magnum lead loads.

How many waterfowl this season will die to lead poisoning, or become weakened by it to the extent they contribute to epidemics of avian cholera or botulism, can only be estimated. Nobody knows. the loss figure is one million or three million birds, or whether there is a five per cent difference in lead or steel performance, seems much less significant than the risk of season-closing lawsuits or the tarnishing of the public image of the American waterfowl hunter.

At a time when powerful antihunting groups are having increased effect upon federal agencies and the Congress, it becomes critical that outdoor writers do their best to make their readers aware of the whole story of steel shot, and certainly the danger to their future hunting by refusing to use it.

This, in many localities, may be a highly unpopular position. To be even open-minded on this issue may require courage.

But the stakes are high.

Discovery

Hunters Adjusting To Steel Loads

One of the first things duck and geese hunters learned about the new steel loads, now required by the Fish and Wildlife Service in designated areas of major flyways, is that they travel very fast and very tight.

A 1⅛ ounce load of steel shot leaves the barrel at a speed well over 100 feet per second faster than the speed of a standard 1½ ounce load of lead. At a distance of 40 yards, the steel load will deliver 10 per cent more pellets in a 30-inch circle than will the lead load. Beyond 40 yards, the steel load patterns will remain tighter, but velocity will drop more quickly than with lead shot.

For experienced waterfowl hunters, the change in shot means a change in established patterns of shooting. Leading the near target in the traditional way will deliver a pattern in front of the bird. Doing the same with the target out beyond 40 yards will carry the pattern behind the bird. The wise hunter now takes some practice time to tighten leads on close-in targets and loosen them beyond 40 yards.

With such practice, the hunter can become as accurate using nontoxic shot as he was with lead. Another expected side benefit of nontoxic shot is that, with the lower velocity at distance, hunters will take fewer "prayer" shots in the 50-yard range and, as a result, cripple fewer waterfowl.

In addition, hunters are learning that they get better results from steel shot in larger sizes than those they would normally use in shooting lead. The rule currently gaining popularity is to move two shot sizes larger in steel than the preferred size in lead. In other words, hunters who favor No. 4 lead shot should buy No. 2 in nontoxic steel. If your lead choice was No. 6, you would take No. 4 in steel to achieve the best stopping power.

Steel shot also changes choke requirements for shotguns because of its tighter pattern. For example, shooters using full choke with lead are required to adjust to modified choke with steel.

DIFFERENT TECHNIQUE — The use of steel shot requires some practice to adapt to a different velocity. Since 1976, the Fish and Wildlife Service has been requiring the use of nontoxic shot in designated areas for the hunting of migratory waterfowl to help limit the two million lead poisoning deaths annually imposed on the waterfowl population. Tickets For Chamber Banquet Still Available

By JOE GULICK
Avalanche-Journal Staff

Tickets are still available for today's Chamber of Commerce banquet featuring Gen. Alexander M. Haig Jr., former Supreme Allied Commander of European Operations and NATO, at 7 p.m. in the Lubbock Memorial Civic Center.

Chamber manager John Logan said ticket sales for the banquet have gone will since it was announced Haig would be the principal speaker, but that some tickets are still available.

Haig will be introduced on the program by U.S. Rep. Kent Hance of Lubbock. Former Rep. George Mahon will introduce Hance.

The banquet marks the third distinguished, internationally recognized speaker the Chamber of Commerce has brought to Lubbock in succession. The 1977 banquet featured former President Ford and the 1978 banquet had Henry Kissinger as keynote speaker.

"Three and a half years ago, the board of directors of the Chamber of Commerce decided to try to bring distinguished speakers to Lubbock," Logan said. "We wanted such people to meet Lubbock people and chamber members and get to know the city."

Logan added that the program to bring speakers of international recognition has gone very well in the last three years.

Haig graduated from the U.S. Military Academy at West Point in 1947. After continuing his military education stateside, he served as administrative assistant and aide to Gen. Douglas MacArthur in Japan beginning in 1949. He also served in both the Korean and Vietnam conflicts.

In the early 1960s, Haig served in the Pentagon as assistant to then-Secretary of the Army Cyrus Vance and as Deputy Special Assistant to Secretary of Defense Robert McNamara.

In 1969, Haig was hired by Henry Kissinger as an assistant to the national security staff. For four years, Haig was Kissinger's deputy and staff manager. He left the staff to become Army vice chief of staff.

He served as White House chief of staff from May 1973 until October 1974, when Ford appointed him commander in chief of the United States Eurpoean Command. On Dec. 15, 1974, he was named the Supreme Allied Commander of Europe.

In January 1979, he announced his retirement from the Army, which became effective July 1. In August, Haig was elected to the board of directors of Texas Instruments.

Music for the Chamber of Commerce banquet will be provided by the Texas Tech Music Department and the invocation will be given by Dr. Jim Granberry. Tickets can be purchased through the Chamber of Commerce office.

DEAR FOLKS:

We promised to "pass it along" should you tell us if packing away white clothes in blue tissue paper works.

Overwhelmingly you said it does and quoted from your own experiences to back up your claims.

I thank you from the bottom of my heart for responding so generously. Your letters made very interesting reading and I'd like to share a few of them with you.

From K.P.J.: "To prevent yellowing of a Communion veil used when I was 7 years old, my mother wrapped blue colored tissue paper around the veil, then packed it in a box. "At present I am nearly 30 years old and happy to say the veil looks as white as the day it was worn years ago."

"You are right, it does help," wrote Randie L. from Detroit. "I have my mother's wedding dress which is 70 years old and it has been wrapped in blue cloth all these years and is still as white as the day she wore it."

Sharon Schmitt wrote, "My daughter was just baptized in a white dress that is around 64 years old. She was the 25th person to use it."After each use, grandmother, age 86, hand washes it, then packs it away in blue tissue paper. The dress is still as white as can be."

I'm not a chemist, or whatever, but a physics teacher, D. Dale, came up with an interesting scientific explanation as to why the blue paper keeps cloth white. To quote:

"Complementary colors such as blue and yellow combine to form white light. Since a high percent of visible light to which our eyes are sensitive fall in the yellow range, the clothes eventually look yellow from age.

"However, when the blue light, which is transmitted through the blue tissue paper, falls on the yellowed olothes it becomes white.

"Old timers will remember when bluing — nothing more than blue dye — was added to white clothes in laundering. This served a similar purpose when used on white clothes which had yellowed with many washings."

Thanks to D. Dale for enlightening us and to all of you for commenting. For whatever the reason, the paper does seem to have worked for many generations, so it will probably be around for many more, quietly performing it's blue magic. Hugs to each of you for writing — Heloise

When you decide at the last minute to serve macaroni salad for supper, cook the macaroni as usual and pour into a large collander to drain.

Give it a once over with cold water, then add a tray of ice cubes. Stir occasionally as you prepare the rest of the meal.

Remove the remaining ice and you have nice, cold macaroni ready for seasoning and dressing. — Majorie Bean

LETTER OF LAUGHTER

DEAR HELOISE:

In answer to your recent request for funny sayings or happenings which occur in our lives...

My little niece, Mimi, who was 3 or 4 years old at the time, would visit us and she always wanted to watch the few chickens we were raising.

One day, just as we got down to the coop, the old rooster threw back his head and crowed. I said to her, "Do you know what he is saying?" "No," she answered.

"He's saying cock-a-doodle-do!"

She looked up at me and said, "Tell him to say Twinkle, twinkle, little star." — Mrs. A. Wilson

We really chuckled at this one. Cute, isn't it, folks? — Heloise

District Attorney's Office Files Burglary Charges Against Men

The Lubbock Criminal District Attorney's office Wednesday filed criminal charges against three Lubbock men in connection with as many as 50 burglaries in five South Plains counties.

Alfred Mendoza, 31, of 320 Ave. R and Rongelio "Roy" Rodriquez, 31, of 2710 Bates, were charged with burglary of habitation. Each man is being held in Lubbock County Jail in leiu of $10,000 bond.

Theft charges were filed against Ernest Rodriquez, 25, of 2408 Auburn. Rodriquez was released from jail Wednesday after posting bond.

Authorities believe the three men may have been responsible for burglaries in Lubbock, Lynn, Lamb, Hockley and Crosby counties during a six-week period that netted more than $200,000 in clothing, jewelry and household goods.

Sheriff's deputy Sonny Keesee said Mendoza and Alfred Rodriquez have provided authorities with information to clear 27 burglaries.

Presidio Man Charged In Carlsbad Murder

CARLSBAD, N.M. (Special) — Murder charges were filed Monday against a 35-year-old man in connection with the beating death of an elderly Carlsbad night watchman.

Angel J. Martinez of 510 W. Presidio was charged in the murder of 70-year-old Clarence Rogers. No bond was set.

Stocks End As Mixed

NEW YORK (AP) The stock market finished mixed today as strength from metal and oil issues countered news of a sliding dollar and a record gold price of $399 an ounce.

"It's just amazing the market has held up the way it has, considering the enormous rise in gold prices," said Eldon Grimm, an analyst at Birr, Wilson & Co.

The Dow Jones industrial average closed up 1.11 at 887.46 after being down by more than three points earlier in the day.

But declines led advances by a small margin on the New York Stock Exchange, where the composite common-stock index rose .11 to 62.68.

Volume on the NYSE was 33.11 million shares, compared to 37.77 million Wednesday.

The price of gold just missed hitting the $400-an-ounce mark, a level considered unthinkable by analysts a few weeks ago.

New York (AP) — Thursday's national prices for New York Stock Exchange issues as of NYSE close. Prices and volume consolidated for securities also traded on other markets.

Manson Prosecutor Views Cults As Time Bombs

By RUTHANNE BROCKWAY
Avalanche-Journal Staff

Cults are walking time bombs, warned Vincent Bugliosi, prosecuting attorney in the Charles Manson trial, at a news conference Thursday prior to his appearance at Texas Tech University.

Bugliosi said cult leaders have the charisma to program their followers to do anything, including murder, but he added that not everyone is a potential cult member.

Most followers are in their late teens or early 20s, Caucasian and intelligent but "emotionally weak," he said. "The average American kid with sound values is not likely to follow (a cult leader)," he said.

The 45-year-old trial lawyer said an ex-Moonie (a follower of the Rev. Sun Myung Moon) told him if Moon had told her to kill her mother, she would.

Although Bugliosi said, "I don't think there's ever been a cult like Manson's," he added that Moonies and Hare Krishna are cults which are potentially dangerous. He termed the Ku Klux Klan, Black Panthers and Nazi groups as "a form of cults."

The Charles Manson "family" which was convicted of the Tate/LaBianca murders of 1969 was the subject of Bugliosi's book "Helter Skelter." The author speaks about a dozen times a year on the Manson episode. Although the murders occurred a decade ago, Bugliosi still finds high interest in the subject.

"People are fascinated by things that are strange and bizarre," he said, adding that the Manson cult was "unparalleled in bizarreness."

One of Manson's techniques was using "sexual perversion to break down ego and inhibition" of his followers, Bugliosi said.

The Rev. Jim Jones, leader of the People's Temple mass suicide in Guyana, reportedly had sex with both male and female followers and ordered them to do the same, Bugliosi noted.

Both Manson and Jones were charismatic leaders, he said, but Bugliosi said, "Jones lacked the classic evilness of Manson. Jones was more sickness and paranoia."

Both the Manson and Jones groups were isolated from society, he noted, saying that if the followers had kept in touch with the world through the news media they would have questioned their leaders.

De-programming cult followers involves exposing the leader as a fraud, he said, and by taking the follower out of cult isolation and back into society the cult "ideas cannot survive."

The man who put Manson behind bars said the prisoner would probably never get out if he were in Texas, but in California, Bugliosi said Manson has a 50-50 chance of eventual parole.

The trial brought Bugliosi fame and, "It allowed me to write two books," he said. But it also brought a lack of privacy and periodic death threats. For two years he and his family were protected by bodyguards.

His last death threat was about six months ago. He doubts that the calls and letters come directly from Manson family members, but rather from people who identify with Manson. "Just kooks," he said.

He admits that the threats are upsetting at the time they occur, but shrugged and said, "You just have to go on and forget."

Council Forwards Motor Bank Dilemma To Zoning Panel

By SYLVIA TEAGUE
Avalanche-Journal Staff

Despite pleas from Overton South residents, the City Council dumped the sticky question of whether to allow a motor bank on the east edge of the neighborhood back in the lap of the Planning and Zoning Commission Thursday.

The commission denied the request of American State Bank earlier this month to change property at 1707 15th St. from family apartment zoning (A-1) to restricted local retail (C-2A), but proponents appealed that decision to the council.

However, attorney Tom Johnson, who represented the bank at the council meeting, asked the council to send the case back to the planning commission until final boundaries are set for a proposed Design-Historic district for Overton South.

Members of the Overton South Neighborhood Association argued the district designation, to be finally decided by the council next month, has nothing to do with a change in zoning for the drive-in bank.

Association member Ted Hogan said the district would have nothing to do with land use in the area, but would impose design standards on new construction or renovation in the district.

Hogan added the requested zone change would conflict with a 1975 land use plan adopted for Overton South by the council and would constitute illegal spot zoning.

Approval of the zoning also would allow "further intrusion of commercial zoning" into the predominantly residential area and create traffic problems and encourage the spread of blight.

But council members voted 3-2 to ask the planning commission to reexamine the land use plan for the area west of Avenue Q to determine if some commercial zoning should be permitted and, if so, under what circumstances.

Councilman Bud Aderton, who made the motion to return the case to the planning commission, said he wanted more clarification of the situation and asked commissioners "to come back with something more specific which would be of help to me in reaching a decision."

However, Councilwoman Carolyn Jordan and Councilman Bill McAlister said the position of the planning commission seemed clear.

"I can't help but feel that the Planning and Zoning Commission already has addressed this," McAlister said.

"I haven't heard anything today to indicate why we need more commercial zoning on the west," Mrs. Jordan added.

The city Human Relations Commission also will be asked to reconsider a recommendation to the council on renaming Quirt Avenue after slain civil rights leader Martin Luther King Jr.

Because a 30-year-old ordinance requires streets east of Avenue A to be named in alphabetical order after trees and shrubs, council members decided to ask the HRC to consider alternative ways to honor King.

After receiving the commission's reply, the council plans to schedule a public hearing on ways to honor King.

Also at the meeting, the council:

•Set a 10 a.m. public hearing on Oct. 11 to hear from residents of the Yellowhouse Canyon Addition and the owner of the neighborhood's private water system about inadequate water service.

•Amended a federal grant application so the city can purchase 18 rather than 14 39-passenger buses.

•Decided to meet with Chamber of Commerce officials on an HRC recommendation on ways to increase minority membership on the Board of City Development.

•Reduced the city's participation in alley paving from 50 percent to 10 percent, virtually eliminating alley paving in the city.

CHICAGOANS TO GO JOBLESS

CHICAGO (AP) — In an attempt to save the city $1 million by the end of the year, Mayor Jane Byrne says several hundred city workers will be laid off Oct. 1. The mayor emphasized Wednesday that the layoffs were for economic reasons rather than disciplinary. She said a number of smaller city departments would be either eliminated or merged into others "without affecting city services."

WANTS AMERICAN POPULARITY — Icelander Jakob Magnusson is pictured with his wife, model Anna Bjorn. After a stint in England, they came to the United States where she celebrated their arrival by pawning her camera for a car; he, by adopting elements of "the one great American art form, jazz."; (AP Laserphoto)

Small Horizons Send Icelander To U.S.

SANTA MONICA, Calif. (AP) — Small may be beautiful, but too small can be downright limiting. That, in a nutshell, is why Jakob Magnusson left a successful musical career in his native Iceland to build a new one here.

"It's so small, it's just like one family over there," says Magnusson, reminiscing over duckling in a small Polish restaurant. "You can give two or three concerts a year, and then you start playing for the same people."

Sounds reasonable. There are, after all, only 200,000 people living in Iceland. The place probably is most famous as the scene of Bobby Fischer's world championship chess triumph over Russian Boris Spassky seven years ago.

Magnusson has a fair chance of changing that if his American achievements so far are any indication.

Unlike many foreign musicians who hope to crack the fat U.S. music market and spend years trying to get people to listen, Magnusson — after only 18 months — is already set to embark on a tour to promote his recently released American debut, "Special Treatment."

It's a stylish jazz-tinged rock release showcasing Magnusson's wide-ranging talents, both as a composer and keyboard player, and it probably will come as a surprise to his countrymen.

In Iceland, Magnusson is known as a rock 'n' roller from the three records he cut with a band he started in high school.

Playing in Iceland was no way to earn a living — and Magnusson put it, "You're never going to maker big bucks" — so in 1974 he decided to go for broke in England.

Broke it eventually was. Magnusson returned to Iceland in 1976, taking odd jobs as a newspaper reporter and tour guide to support himself between gigs and his political science studies at the University of Iceland.

But his stay in England wasn't a total loss. He met fellow Icelander Anna Bjorn, the actress-model who recently played Paul Le Mat's Scandinavian heartthrob in "More American Graffiti," and the two later married.

He also cut a solo album, but scattered studio and sidemen jobs and met blues musician Long John Baldry, who brought him to North America in late 1976 with an invitation to play on a Canadian tour. Four months later, a nearly penniless Magnusson and Miss Bjorn were in Los Angeles.

She celebrated their arrival by pawning her camera for a car; he by adopting elements of "the one great American art form, jazz" in his music.

"Not that I consider myself a jazz musician in the traditional sense of the word," he cautions. "But the freedom and harmonic ingredients of jazz are so great that anybody interested in music should check it out."

The result was an amalgamation which, Magnusson says, has the same relationship to jazz that New Wave has to mainstream rock. However, the 26-year-old musician shies away from the label "fusion," currently in vogue for music that falls somewhere between jazz and rock.

"Fuion is a ot messier than the stuff I do," he says. "I do a lot more arranged, composed and produced material. The solos are shorter and the melodies are stronger. It's sort of an offspring of fusion."

Whatever you call it. Magnusson's music impressed a number of people who scout talent in this town. Several contract offers were made but Magnusson went with the prestigious Warner Bros. Records. A courteous fellow, he goes out of his way to say that he's never been sorry.

Magnusson's blond good looks would probably make him a natural as a get-hot-and-bothered teen rock idol. But in going with the cooler stuff of "Special Treatment." he's gambling that American audiences are ready for more sophisticated instrumental music.

With a house in the Hollywood Hills and a wife shuffling through a number of film and television offers, he's even ready to wait a while for the big bucks.

"It's just a matter of common sense," he says. "You look at a situation and set your goals and just go at it step by step. It might take some time but you must work at it.

"I have achieved quite a lot, but I have a lot I want to achieve."

Life Not All Sunsets For Singing Cowboy

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — The young man who won a highly publicized nationwide contest to find "The Singing Cowboy" in 1974 is an unpretentious lounge singer who has yet to earn his spurs as a buckskin baritone.

REYNOLDS

Neely Reynolds, 29 earns $240 a week singing alone in Nashville lounges, five years after winning the contest on the ABC "Wide World of Entertainment" special, "In Search of the Singing Cowboy."

He has yet to ride into the sunset with a pretty leading lady or strum a guitar while astride a handsome palomino. The contest left him a disillusioned cowpoke.

As he tells it, promoters on the West Coast tried to turn him into a teen-age idol shortly after he defeated seven others in the contest that was dubbed "the greatest talent search in the history of show business."

"This is where it got strange," he recalls. "They wanted me to be the replacement as the teeny bop idol — another David Cassidy.

"I went from a nobody to an image," he says. "I wasn't happy. I didn't want to be something I wasn't."

Within a year, he began drawing unemployment checks for $90 a week.

"After the television special, they (promoters) didn't seem too interested. There was little communication. There was a lot of talk and little action.

"I really had to start over," Reynolds says. "The night I won, I was moved. It was like a dream come true. I saw the whole thing as a small step in my career. I figured that within five years, I'd make my impact.

"It was nice for about a month. I got to be on 'The Merv Griffin Show' and do a lot of interviews. Then people sort of forgot about me.

"I had to decide what kind of person I wanted to be. I decided that I had to be myself. I'm not good at hype.

"I'm sorry I couldn't handle it. I did what I could live with. I'm not sorry for getting out the way I did. I don't think I should have a black mark against me."

He admits, though, that he wasn't much of a cowboy. Just prior to the contest, he rode his first horse.

"Someone had to tell me you put the balls of you feet in the stirrups. You don't go clear back to the ankles."

He says he plans to enroll at Belmont College in Nashville and get a solid background in the business aspect of the music industry. "I know the importance of knowing the business end of it," he says.

YOUR PERSONAL BIORHYTHMS

By Bernard Gittelson, Author of "Biorhythm: A Personal Science"

The personal science of biorhythm can tell you how your day will go. Now you can judge the highs and lows of not only yourself, but loved ones and friends, and celebrities and stars. Biorhythm, our newest scientific discipline, is the study of the built-in natural cycles that powerfully influence our behavior.

BIORHYTHMS FOR SEP. 28, 1979

PHYSICAL
Criticals: 9, 20, 32, 43, 55, 66 ..... Take extra physical care
Highs: 10-19, 33-42, 56-65 ..... Full of vitality
Lows: 1-8, 21-31, 44-54, 67-75 ..... Action not your strong suit

EMOTIONAL
Criticals: 6, 20, 34, 48, 62, 76 ..... Easily provoked
Highs: 7-19, 35-47, 63-75 ..... Happy and easygoing day
Lows: 1-5, 21-33, 49-61, 77-85 ..... Temperament low

INTELLECTUAL
Criticals: 16, 32, 49, 65, 82 ..... Don't drop your guard
Highs: 17-31, 50-64, 83-95 ..... Prime time intellectually
Lows: 1-15, 33-48, 66-81 ..... Hard to think clearly

Enter your own permanent numbers in the chart in the bottom right-hand corner. To figure your own permanent numbers, follow these three steps:

Step 1: From the year chart, find the numbers corresponding to your year of birth. For instance, if you were born in 1947, your number for Physical would be 21, Emotional 17, Intellectual 19. Note whether your numbers are preceded by an A or B; this will be used for Step 2.

Step 2: Now find the corresponding number for the month you were born. If your month is February, and your year numbers were preceded by a B, your month numbers would be 8 for Physical, 3 for Emotional and 31 for Intellectual. Enter your own numbers in the figure chart for Step 2.

Step 3: In the figure chart, enter your day of birth three times, one each for Physical (P), Emotional (E) and Intellectual (I). (If you were born on April 3, for instance, place a 3 in each column.)

Add the three columns to derive your permanent biorhythm numbers for your Physical, Emotional and Intellectual cycles. Now you can refer to today's rhythms.

These numbers are yours permanently. Check them each day for your biorhythm reading.

'Trapper John, M.D.' Has 'M-A-S-H' Humor

LOS ANGELES (AP) — If you've seen "M-A-S-H," you probably know what "Trapper John, M.D." is about.

It's 28 years after Korea, "Trapper John" McIntyre has matured a bit and is now chief of surgery at a San Francisco hospital. On "M-A-S-H" he was played by Wayne Rogers. Now he's played by balding, bearded Pernell Roberts in the new CBS series airing Sunday night.

Despite the difference in time and locale, things haven't changed that much. There's a Hawkeye — Greg Harrison as Dr. Conzo Gates. There's a Frank Burns — Charles Seibert as Dr. Stanley Riverside.

"In the pilot I was Hot Lips," says Chris Norris, who plays Nurse Ripples Brancusi. She's a blonde guaranteed to raise any male patient's blood pressure.

"But I talked it over with the producers and we refocused a little bit. Frankly, I don't think it was attractive to see a young woman so uptight. Such a fuss budget. It would be different if I were a little older, but, you know, where does she get off.

"Now I at least have a sense of humor. I know that I can laugh occasionally and take things in stride. So in that regard I am not a Hot Lips. However, I am in the fact that I'm a bright young woman who happens to be attractive. I'm not the dumb blonde, thank goodness.

Attractive is an understatement. As is explained in the pilot, Ripples gets her name from the fact that she seems to be moving even when she's standing still.

If the show is a hit, as seems likely, Chris Norris — her full name is Christopher — is certain to become this year's blonde sensation, in the footsteps of Farrah Fawcett, Suzanne Somers and Loni Anderson.

She thought about that for a moment. "I love the idea because of the opportunities," she said. "I grew up in New York doing theater. My parents were in Broadway. I naturally fell into that and I did many years on Broadway. I was never recognized on the street by anyone. Until I did my first soap opera. Then I couldn't walk my dog to the corner without people yelling, 'Sarah!'"

She spent three years as a teen-ager playing Sarah Capice on "The Edge of Night." She also was busy doing commercials — she was an Ivory soap baby when she was 3. At 7 she started in "The Sound of Music" and regularly changed roles as she grew older. She made her first movie at 15.

"I was the blonde with the red lips in 'Summer of '41,'" she said. "I was the one they were trying to get into the bushes — and succeeded."

She and Jerry Houser filmed the scene wearing body stockings at 4:30 one frigid morning on a beach in Northern California.

CHRIS NORRIS

Her proudest moment came when she led a group of her school friends to a theater to see her love scene. "I sat through the whole film and the scene wasn't in it," she said. "We were always behind the bushes. You could only hear us. My friends didn't believe we actually filmed it."

In "Airport '75" she played a rookie stewardess and Karen Black's best friend. When she was 12, she and Miss Black had been in "The Playroom" on Broadway. She appeared in several other movies and TV movies and on episodic television. She was in "Police Story" twice, and she and Charles Seibert appeared together in "Barnaby Jones."

"Early this year she was in New York for a Christmas visit and was preparing to leave for Manila to star in a movie when she got a call from her agent. He said producers Frank Glicksman and Don Brinkley wanted to talk to her about a pilot.

She wasn't too interested, but then the film project began to develop a few loose ends. She returned to Los Angeles for her visa and shots. All the time they kept calling her about the pilot, "Trapper John, M.D."

On the day before her departure she agreed to go in and read for Jackie Cooper, who was to direct the pilot. "That night I was having a farewell dinner and they called me at the restaurant and offered me the part," she said. "I said, 'Yes.' I had really good feelings about it. I was the first one cast, so they took a chance on me."

PBS Programs To Offer Insights Into History

NEW YORK (AP) — James Burke's sleuth-like pursuit, deep into history, of the roots of some modern technological marvels, is, in a sense, his way of helping man cope with an ever-changing society.

"I think we live in a brief, transitional period," says Burke, a British journalist and television commentator, "between the time when knowing facts was important and when the ability to find information will be primary."

Burke says the objective of his book, "Connections: An Alternative View of Change," and the 10-part TV series of the same name, is rather simple: "If we can figure out how the world got the way it is, we may be able to exert some influence over the way it will be in the future."

"Connections," a co-production of BBC-TV and Time-Life Television, will be offered stations in the Public Broadcasting Service network on a weekly basis, beginning Sunday, Sept. 30, at 7 p.m. CDT on Channel 5.

Individual hour-long programs trace through history the development the atomic bomb, telecommunications, the computer, the production line, jet aircraft, plastics, rocketry and television.

In the series' first installment, "The Trigger Effect," Burke recreates New York's power blackout of 1965, and traces that event back 7,000 years to ancient Egypt and the invention of the plough. Burke maintains the plough was the trigger for all ensuing technological change.

Though each segment in the series is a fascinating "detective story" — Burke's description — the over-all purpose se is more general.

"I believe we are on the eve of a leap in the rate of change that could catch us off balance. I don't believe we are ready for it," Burke says.

"The vital commodity of the world will be information," he says, "and 'Connections' is a way of training people, not to recall and recite facts, but how to ask questions."

"Connections" is the basis for two educational projects, one using newspapers in many cities, the other involving distribution of materials to colleges, junior colleges and secondary schools.

Burke, born in Londonderry, Northern Ireland, earned a masters degree in English at Oxford University, and later taught at the universities of Bologna and Urbino in Italy.

From 1966 to 1972, he was co-host for a weekly science program for the British Broadcasting Corp., "Tomorrow's World." He spent four years, 1972-76, as reporter, producer and writer of "The Burke Special — A One-Man Science Show," for British television.

He anchored the BBC's coverage of the Apollo moon flights, and has written and produced a number of documentaries shown in both Britain and the United States.

"I wanted to find a way of illustrating how change happens," he says of the development of "Connections," "and incidentally, and only incidentally, of illustrating scientific development.

"I think we've taken the world so much for granted that we can't cope when it doesn't work. We don't understand why it doesn't work, and we tend to blame the wrong reasons.

Burke is a reporter rather than an historian, and "Connections" is written for the interested layman, rather than the expert or specialist. "Above all," Burke says, "one must intrigue and entertain people, so they read. The path through history must be interesting."

Burke emphasizes the fact "Connections" is by no means exhaustive history. "The historians who helped me all said there is no such thing as the non-arbitrary choice in writtng history.

"In each segment, there are moments I could have gone any number of ways. The alternative I chose was the one I felt would keep the reader or viewer intrigued."

Burke says he believes "Connections" goes as far as necessary in its treatment of history. "I don't think there would be any value in making any more connections.

"One you've shown how to do it," he says, "anyone can go to the public library, as I did, and follow a trail, any trail."

TV Networks Plan Live Coverage Of Pope's Visit

NEW YORK (AP) — The three commercial television networks plan live coverage of at least three major events during Pope John Paul II's week-long visit to this country, beginning with his arrival in Boston Monday.

In addition, ABC will air live, exclusively, the pontiff's concluding Mass from the Washington Mall, beginning at 3 p.m. Sunday, Oct. 7.

And the Public Broadcasting Service said it will feed at least 27 hours of live coverage to stations in the non-commercial network. That is more than double the time allocated by the others, although many PBS stations may not carry the full schedule.

ABC says Frank Reynolds and Max Robinson will anchor most of its coverage, with help from Rome bureau chief Bill Blakemore and analysis by the Rev. Vincent O'Keefe, assistant general of the Society of Jesus and an expert on papal affairs.

NBC's coverage will be anchored by John Chancellor, Floyd Kalber, David Brinkley, Edwin Newman, Jim Bitterman and John Palmer, with assistance from the Rev. Robert O'Donnell of the Paulist Fathers.

CBS says Harry Reasoner will handle its special reports on the pope's trip.

Television coverage, barring late changes, will consist of the following:

•Monday, Oct. 1. Arrival in Boston, beginning at 3 p.m. EDT on all three networks. PBS' station in Boston, WGBH, will offer five hours of live reporting, beginning with the arrival and continuing through a late afternoon Mass on the Boston Common.

CBS plans a half-hour special, 11:30 p.m.-midnight, wrapping up the pontiff's first day in the United States. NBC has scheduled a 90-minute special, 11:30 p.m.-1 a.m.

•Tuesday, Oct. 2. Speech at the United Nations, noon to conclusion on all three networks. PBS' WNET in New York will devote 10 hours to live coverage of the pope's first day in New York, including the U.N. address, a prayer service at St. Patrick's Cathedral,and a motorcade to Yankee Stadium for an evening Mass.

ABC has scheduled a half-hour special on the pope's day, from 11:30 p.m.-midnight.

•Wednesday, Oct. 3. Speech on religious freedom at New York's Battery Park. NBC will cover, live, a parade from Madison Square Garden to Battery Park, 10:15-10:20 a.m., as well as the address, 11-11:45 a.m. PBS stations will get 5½ hours of live coverage from WNET, including a prayer service at St. Patricks, to motorcade to Madison Square Garden and then to Battery Park, and the Battery Park speech.

•Saturday, Oct. 6. Arrival at the White House in Washington. All three networks plan live coverage, beginning at 1:30 p.m.

•Sunday, Oct. 7. Address at the Shrine of Immaculate Conception in Washington on the role of women in the church.

October Good For Stargazers

WASHINGTON (AP) — A meteor shower and the lovely "harvest moon" highlight October skies for stargazers.

This year's harvest moon occurs Oct. 5, the full moon nearest the autumnal equinox.

Besides delighting lovers spooning in the balmy fall weather, the harvest moon also serves a practical purpose, ushering in a period of several days in which the moon rises promptly after the sun sets.

This gives farmers in temperate latitudes extra hours of light in which to harvest crops before frost and winter arrive.

Oct. 21 will mark the peak of the Orionid meteor shower.

The U.S. Naval Observatory reports there will be no moonlight to interfere with observing and if skies are clear an observer could see as any as 25 meteors an hour.

The best time to watch will be after midnight, looking directly overhead.

Mercury and Venus will be too close to the sun for easy observation this month.

Mars will move from Cancer into Leo. It will rise about midnight and will be in the southeastern sky during the morning hours.

Jupiter rises about five hours before the sun and can be seen high in the southeast at sunrise.

Saturn moves from Leo into Virgo this month. It rises about three hours before the sun and is low in the southeast at sunrise.

By the end of the month the rings of Saturn will seem to disappear. That is because viewers on Earth will be looking at their edges during October and early November.

The moon will be closest to Earth at 223,161 miles on Oct. 4 and will be farthest away — 251,925 miles — on Oct. 16.

The full moon is Oct. 5, last quarter Oct. 12, new moon Oct. 20 and first quarter Oct. 28.

Beatles Hit 'Beatlemania' Stage Hit With Lawsuit

HENDERSON TO PERFORM — Singer Tim Henderson will perform at 8 p.m. today at the Storm Cellar, located at the Texas Tech University Center. There is a cover charge. For prices, call 742-3621.

VITAMIN C DOUBTED AS CURE

BOSTON (AP) — Despite earlier promising results, large doses of vitamin C will not cure cancer, according to a new study reported in the New England Journal of Medicine. Researchers at the Mayo Clinic in Rochester, Minn., tested vitamin C on patients with advanced cases of cancer and concluded, "We were unable to show a therapeutic benefit of high-dose vitamin C treatment."

LOS ANGELES (AP) — In a reunion of a legal sort, the Beatles have sued organizers and promoters of the stage hit "Beatlemania" for $60 million in damages, a lawyer said Thursday.

Former 'Wings' Member Found Dead In Home

LONDON (AP) — Jimmy McCulloch, who achieved prominence as lead guitarist wih former Beatle Paul McCartney's Wings group from 1974 to 1978, was found dead in his London home Thursday.

Reporting the death, Dave Jarrett, spokesman for the WEA Record Company with which McCulloch was connected, said the British guitarist had been playing with the Dukes group, and was last seen by group members on Monday.

Bertram Fields, who filed the Superior Court suit on behalf of the English firm Apple Core Ltd., said the action also seeks to shut down six "Beatlemania" companies touring the United States and to prevent production of a "Beatlemania" film and television series.

The suit filed Tuesday names as defendants Steve Leber, David Krebs and others involved in stage productions of "Beatlemania"; William Sargent and Special Events Entertainment Co., who allegedly are working on a film version; and NBC, Procter & Gamble and Lexington Broadcast Services, who reportedly are planning the weekly TV shows.

The stage production of "Beatlemania" features four young men who closely resemble the Beatles — John Lennon, Paul McCartney, George Harrison and Ringo Starr — and perform their songs.

While "Beatlemania" producers may have paid for the rights to use Beatle songs, Fields said, "No one gave them any right to perform a simulated Beatle performance or to use the name of the Beatles."

He said the suit seeks $30 million in compensatory damages and $30 million in punitive damages, and "they're simply an estimate which we consider a minimum."

Asked about the suit, Leber told the New York Daily News he was amazed.

"Why have they waited three years to come forward like this?" Leber was quoted Thursday as saying. "That's when the idea was first mooted, and the show has been on Broadway for 2½ years."

"It's my understanding that they objected from the beginning," Fields said.

'Sleeping Beauty' Reissue Hoping For Comeback

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — When "Sleeping Beauty" was released 20 years ago, it was greeted with perplexity by the followers of the art of Walt Disney.

The animated feature was impressive artistically, they conceded, but was too, well, different from previous Disney classics. The characters were not all that lovable, the comedy was scant. Moviegoers weren't left with the warm feeling that followed most Disney cartoons.

Theater receipts reflected the public's disappointment. The 1959 widescreen release collected $6.2 million in rentals from the United States and Canada, unimpressive considering the film's $6 million cost. A 1970 reissue in conventional 35mm size provided only $3.8 million.

The Disney forces hope that "Sleeping Beauty" will vindicate itself this fall. It is being released in 750 theaters, 50 of them in the 70mm, four-track-stereo form of the original.

"I think the picture may prove itself, just as 'Fantasia' did after 20 years," commented Wolfgang Reitherman, who has been working in Disney animation since "Snow White and the Seven Dwarfs."

"Young adults are appreciative of good filmmaking today. They have experts' eyes and can spot cheap, phony effects on television or in movies. Today's discriminating audience will recognize the artistry and effort that went into 'Sleeping Beauty.'"

Woolie Reitherman is one of the legendary "nine old men," Disney animators who arrived at the studio in the booming 1930s and created the enduring Disney features. Reitherman is the last of the nine to remain active in production. He produced "The Rescuers," the most recent and most successful Disney cartoon — $45 million in its first release.

He recalled the history of "Sleeping Beauty," which required six years to complete:

"I think that Walt, having made 'Snow White' and 'Cinderella,' wanted a different kind of picture. In my opinion, he had tried to do something different with 'Fantasia' by the use of art, and by doing so, he made it turn out a big cut above the 'cartoon.' In his search for something different for 'Sleeping Beauty' he hit upon the idea of making use of the 'Sleeping Beauty Ballet' music by Tchaikovsky.

"Walt was a very down-to-earth guy, but he had an uncanny sense of what was good music. He recognized that the Tchaikovsky music would give the picture an added plus. Then he faced the challenge of making the picture as beautiful as the music.

"That wasn't easy. To do that, the usual gags and humor of the cartoon features had to be eliminated. The early backgrounds by Eyvino Earle contributed to the elevated reach for something unique — you might call it art. There was an attempt at subtlety in taste. The colors had to be muted to work with the ornate backgrounds.

"'Sleeping Beauty' is one of a kind. It's a masterpiece of that kind of animton."

Reitherman diected the climactic battle between the Prince and the Dragon, transformed from the evil Maleficient. Live-action movies of an actor on horseback were filmed so the animators could adapt the movement as realistically as possible. Because live-action was used as a guide, Sleeping Beauty and the Prince are the most fully realized of all Disney heroines and heros.

"Walt was disappointed that 'Sleeping Beauty' wasn't better receive," Reitherman recalled. "He had put everything he had into it, and he didn't understand why it didn't succeed. But then, he was disappointed when 'Fantasia' and 'Bambi' failed in their first releases. Sometimes vindication comes slowly."

SLEEPING BEAUTY — When Walt Disney released "Sleeping Beauty" 20 years ago, it bothered some followers of the art. The characters were not all lovable, comedy was scant, and people didn't leave the theater with the warmfeeling usually associated with Disney cartoons, such as "Bambi." Consequently, the feature, though artistically impressive, has always lagged in popularity, and at the boxoffice. Disney people hope the film's quality will be appreciated in its latest rerelease, to 750 theaters, this fall. (Photo Copywright 1958 Walt Disney Prods.)(AP Laserphoto)

Egyptian Wine Hassle Causes Fair Problems

OKLAHOMA CITY (UPI) — Forty-six cases of Egyptian wine have been giving State Fair of Oklahoma officials a real headache.

The wine hasn't even been consumed yet, but it was a continuing problem to fair officials, who had proudly announced that a top Egyptian official would reveal a new economic policy at a reception this week.

The reception was to feature Egyptian wine. The wine signified the fact that Oklahoma's fair is the first in the nation to exhibit Egyptian products.

However, the 46 cases were confiscated at Will Rogers World Airport.

It was not known who was responsible, but the solution involved the office of Sen. David Boren, D-Okla., the State Department's Office of Protocol and a Vienna Convention treaty.

Art Cox, a fair spokesman, said the Thursday night party was scheduled to allow the Egyptian economic minister to announce a new "economic open door policy" betwen his country and others.

"Our state fair was chosen for the announcement because this was the first state fair at which they had ever unveiled products of that country," he said.

Cox said State Alcohol Beverage Control Board director Richard Crisp and Tax Commission chairman James Walker were responsible for the confiscation.

Crisp said it was the fault of the U.S. Customs office.

Walker said no confiscation was involved.

There is a state law forbidding entry from any other port of more than one quart of wine and spirits on which state excise taxes have not been paid, Crisp and Walker said.

But officials also learned the Vienna Convention on Diplomatic Relations says foreign governments have the right to bring in such products for a state event.

Ag Secretary Gets Security Scare

WASHINGTON (AP) — For a moment, aides in Agriculture Secretary Bob Bergland's office wondered recently if someone in the White House was trying to tell them something.

An envelope arrived from the Executive Office of the President, Office of Management and Budget, addressed to: "Mr. Earl L. Butz, Secretary, Department of Agriculture, Room 200-A."

That has been Bergland's office since he joined the Carter Cabinet more than 2½ years ago.

Butz was the secretary of agriculture during much of the administrations of Richard M. Nixon and Gerald R. Ford.

Thomas R. Sand, an aide to Bergland, said the envelope contained an updated 1979 catalog of federal assistance programs.

RUNNING WILLIE — Monterey tailback Willie Johnson takes off around right end during first quarter action Thursday night against Estacado. Johnson was the game's leading rusher with 86 yards on 20 carries. He also scored the only touchdown of the game on a seven-yard jaunt in the third quarter as MHS won 7-0. Still, it was the first time in four games that the Plainsman speedster was held to less than 100 yards. (Staff Photo By Milton Adams)

Monterey Defense Stops Estacado 7-0

By CHUCK McDONALD
Avalanche-Journal Sports Staff

The game had been billed as a hard-hitting, defensive struggle. And, lo-and-behold, that's just the way it turned out as Monterey eked out a narrow 7-0 win over Estacado Thursday night at Lowrey Field.

A glance at the stats will tell you how close the contest was and anyone who was at Lowrey knows how rugged the play was. Hardly a series went by without someone limping off the field.

With the Plainsmen victory, both teams are now 3-1 on the year. The contest also marked the first shutout inflicted on the Matadors this season.

But the win came only by the narrowest of margins. After battling evenly through the first half, Monterey capitalized on a critical Matador mistake to break open the scoreless tie.

Facing a fourth-and-21 on their own 32, Matador punter James Rose watched in horror as the snap from center sailed high over his head. Rose picked up the ball inside the 10 but was dragged down by a horde of Plainsmen at the EHS 21.

And Monterey wasted no time putting the ball in the end zone. Fullback Ricky Pinkerton burst eight yards, then tailback Willie Johnson got three more to the EHS eight-yard line.

Johnson got another yard on the next carry, and then blew up the middle for seven yards and a touchdown. The Plainsmen tailback carried three Estacado defenders with him the last three yards. Kent Potts' extra point made it 7-0 with 4:28 left in the third period.

"Our kids wanted it really bad," said MHS coach James Odom. "I thought Ricky Pinkerton and Willie Johnson just did a great job for us.

"And the entire defensive unit was just outstanding," the elated Odom added.

Johnson, who carried for 86 yards on 20 carries, and Pinkerton (17-for-79) did provide the brunt of the MHS attack which netted 214 yards — all on the ground.

And the Monterey defense held the Matador ground attack to only 99 yards and 147 yards of total. That's the lowest output of the year for the Mats.

"They (Monterey) deserved to win," said Estacado coach Louis Kelley. "They played exceptionally well and that one mistake killed us.

"Still, our kids played a tough ballgame. It was just one of those things."

With just two over two minutes left in the contest, the Mats threw a scare into MHS.

D★ SPORTS
Lubbock Avalanche-Journal
Friday, Sept. 28, 1979

Jerry Gray returned a Monterey punt from the EHS 15 all the way to the Monterey 45. But a clipping penalty moved the Mats all the way back to their own 12 — a hole they just couldn't dig their way out of.

And with 40 seconds left in the game, Marty Bubany intercepted a Gray pass to kill any EHS hopes. The steal was Bubany's second of the game and Monterey's fourth.

Both teams moved well in the first half, but couldn't come up with the big play. Monterey came within inches of scoring in the first quarter but fumbled near the Mat goal line.

On third-and-one at the EHS three Potts attempted a quarterback sneak. It appeared that both of his knee's had hit the ground — but no one blew a whistle — so Potts dove forward and coughed up the ball.

When the official untangled the pile, Estacado end Warren Lyons was lying on the pigskin inside the one-yard line.

"I thought we had beaten ourselves again," said Odom of the drive-killing fumble. "But we were able to make four, five and six yards on first down and that's what we needed to do to win."

Before the fumble, the Plainsmen had driven 44 yards following Kevin Evans' interception of a Gray pass.

Estacado also threatened late in the first half when Gray connected with tight end James Rose on a picture perfect 26-yard toss. That moved the Mats across midfield and runs by George Irvin and Kelly McBride moved the ball down to the MHS 32. But on third-and-20 Bubany got his first interception of the night to kill the drive.

Monterey did dominate the first half statistically though. The Plainsmen had eight first downs and 123 yards to five firsts and 89 yards for the Mats in the first half.

The contest got even more defensive in the second half. The Plainsmen threw only two passes in the entire contest while the Mats attempted 12, completing three.

George Irvin paced the Mats with 40 yards on seven carries. Quarterback Gray was next with 25 yards.

NORVAL POLLARD
Offensive Tech Will Cage Bears

SATURDAY AFTERNOON IN WACO, one football team is going to find something in all that heat and humidity that it knew was there all along — an explosive offense capable of moving the football consistently and capable of putting maybe 30 points on the scoreboard.

For the other team, the search — and the frustration that usually accompanies it — will continue.

The Texas Tech and Baylor squads that meet at 2 p.m. Saturday in the only Southwest Conference action of the weekend, are similar in several ways.

Both teams have outstanding, big-play defensive units capable of dominating an opponent. Baylor is led by All-America linebacker Mike Singletary and defensive tackle Gary Don Johnson. Tech counters with tackle David Hill and linebackers Johnny Quinney and Jeff McKinney.

And both teams have offenses laden with good skill players and hard-charging lines. But neither offensive unit has played a game this season where it exerted itself as the overwhelming force. Both offenses are waiting and hoping that Saturday will be the day that everything finally comes together. The day it all clicks. The day the waiting ends.

I'VE SEEN TECH'S OFFENSE practice every day this week and I've been impressed with the attitude and determination of that squad. Every player on the team knows how close they've come to breaking it wide open.

The Red Raiders have confidence. They know they have what it takes personnel-wise to score some points. They know they are capable. It's been the little breakdowns that have held Tech back and now that spring is would about as tight as it can get. Something has got to give in Waco Saturday, and I have a feeling Tech's offensive unit is going to find itself

Baylor coach Grant Teaff has said that the Tech game "is the most important game Baylor has played since the 1975 season." It's important for Tech, too, because with A&M, Arkansas, Texas and Houston down the line a victory this early is essential to stay in the running for that Cotton Bowl berth.

When the Red Raiders return to Lubbock Saturday night, they'll be 1-0 in the conference standings. Early offensive momentum will carry Tech to a 30-17 victory over the Bears.

Tech's tie with Arizona last week and Texas A&M's shocker over Penn State were the only two SWC predictions I missed. The other six turned out to be true, so after three weeks I'm 13 of 19 for a batting average of .684.

THE REMAINING SEVEN SWC squads are all in action this weekend against non-conference opponents. There are a couple close ones on tap, but the remaining five look like laughers.

TEXAS AT MISSOURI

The Longhorns' vaunted defense will get a real test Saturday against the 3-0 Tigers. Missouri is expected to challenge for the Big Eight crown and the Tigers have scored more than 30 points twice this season.

Texas has that tremendous defensive unit, but the offense sputtered last week against Iowa State. I'm going to have to go with an upset in Columbia. Mizzou by six points.

SOUTHERN METHODIST AT TULANE

Not that this is any great test, but this will be the Mustangs toughest opponent yet this campaign. Mania is 3-0 against Rice, TCU and North Texas State — nothing to really brag about.

Tulane will be tough at home, but all SMU will have to do is call out the yearlings — Charles Waggoner, Eric Dickerson and Craig James. Make that 4-0, SMU by 10 points.

OKLAHOMA AT RICE

Poor Ray Alborn. Last week it was Louisiana State and this week it's Oklahoma. Billy Sims and company will find the sledding easy through the Owls.

There is one advantage for Rice. The university has a small under-graduate population, so not too many people are going to see the game. The Sooners by 28.

TEXAS-ARLINGTON AT TEXAS CHRISTIAN

This could be the contest that keeps F.A. Dry and his Frog Fever from going winless in 1979. No, TCU won't get many more chances at victory after this one. They better make the most of it.

How about the Horned Frogs by three big points?

TULSA AT ARKANSAS

Lou Holtz' magic show continues. The Razorbacks add another nobody to their list of victories in 1979. The Hogs have already defeated Colorado State and Oklahoma State. Now it's Tulsa. I can hardly wait until Arkansas and SMU get together.

The Razorbacks pull another one out of the hat — Lou and friends by 17.

Mustangs Tip Over Tascosa

By JIM FERGUSON
Avalanche-Journal Sports Staff

AMARILLO— The Tascosa Rebels must have taken a cue from one of those 50-watt radio stations that dot the Panhandle. At sundown, they went off the air.

Finding it almost impossible to move the football against the stingy Coronado defense, the Rebels lost this high school football contest Thursday night 17-0.

It was the first time in the 13-year meeting ofthe two teams that the Mustangs were able to win a contest here in Dick Bevins Stadium. The win also snapped a three-year streak for the Rebels.

"It was a great win for us," said Coronado coach Jack Quarles, "but I'll guarantee you, any win is a big one for us. . . We'll take anything we can get."

"I thought we did somethings wrong however," continued Quarles. "We dropped too many passes and we missed too many blocks and that really hurt. I think we should have beaten them by at least five touchdowns. We had the opportunities anyway."

Led by the running of quarterback Alan Harp, who ended the night with 164 yards on 22 carries, the Mustangs evened their won-loss mark for the year at 2-2. Meanwhile Tascosa dropped to 1-3.

It was homecoming night for theRebels and by the size of the crowd it appeared most stayed home. A lofty estimate put the meager attendance at less than 1,000. It could have been more had the Coronado band shown up, but they didn't.

Coronado got all the points it needed to win the contest in the first half.

Coronado got on the boards first with 9:52 left in the second quarter after Melvin connected on a 32-yard kick, which barely cleared the crossbar on the right corner.

The Mustangs had moved down to the Rebel 10 and it appeared the Ponies would move in for the game's first touchdown. But a holding penalty moved CHS back 15 yards, Harp was sacked for minus four more and an attempted pass from Harp to Abel Castro fell incomplete, leaving the Ponies on the THS 29. However, Harp put Melvin within field goal position after scrambling for 12 yards to the 17, setting Coronado with a fourth-and-17 situation.

Coronado got its first touchdown at the 1:57 mark on a play that hadn't been drawn on the blackboard, obviosuly. Harp scrambled for 30 yards to the THS 40, where he was tackled from behind and fumbled the ball. An alert Jeff Modwell picked up the loose ball and rambled the remaining 40 yards untouched to put the Ponies up 10-0 following the PAT kick.

Tascosa, which found it almost impossible to move the ball on Coronado for most of the first 24 minutes, had one scoring drive thwarted on the CHS four. The Rebels, who had only 110 yards total offense, thanks primarily to a 67-yard pass play from quarterback Kevin Leu-

Coronado Sophs Blast Slaton 21-0

The Coronado High School sophomore football team exploded for two first-quarter touchdowns and went on to easily defeat the Slaton Junior Varsity, 20-0 Thursday afternoon.

Quarterback Mark Sobosle and wide receiver Doug Sewell combined for two touchdown passes, a 16-yarder in the first quarter and a 40-yarder in the fourth quarter. The first quarter score followed an 86-yard touchdown gallop by halfback Jason Owen.

The Coronado defense, led by middle linebacker Mark Rickman, held Slaton to 106 yards on the ground while the Mustang infantry cranked out 288 yards.

Wolverines Getting Better Every Day

By RUSS PARSONS
Avalanche-Journal Sports Staff

Last year Springlake-Earth established quite a tradition on the football field. Only problem was, it was all bad.

The Wolverines went winless through 10 games last year and were outscored by a healthy margin. If they weren't the worst Class A team on the South Plains, they were sure in the running.

All that has changed this year, or at least it has seemed to. Through three games Springlake-Earth is 1-1-1 with its only loss coming to Class B No. 1 Amherst and the tie against Shallowater, well-respected in District 5-A.

Whether the change is for real or not will be found out tonight as the Wolverines host Hale Center, a District 4-A power which pounded them 40-0 last year.

Hale Center stands at 2-1 on the year with the loss against Class AA Abernathy by only 13-12.

The Owls boast impressive wins over both Bovina, 29-0 and Kress, 27-6 as well.

"I don't know if this will be a good game or not," said Bob Masters, the man who has turned the Wolves around. "It could be if we play well.

"Shoot, like I told the kids, four more points and we'd be 3-0 right now. We keep getting close, but we need to get closer."

Leading the Springlake-Earth offense, which has accumulated 873 yards total so far, second best in Class A on the South Plains, is running back Ronnie James.

After missing the first game, Ronnie exploded for 159 yards and a pair of touchdowns on only five carries in a 32-12 win over Sudan.

On the year, James has run the ball only 18 times for 234 yards. But that's part of Masters' plan, he believes in spreading the running chores around.

So far it's paid off. The Wolverines have 761 yards rushing. That's second only to Seagraves' unbelieveable 1,000-plus total on the South Plains.

"We're tickled to death with our running game," Masters said. "Our offensive line's been doing a heck of a job. We've been giving the ball to a lot of different people to see who can do what. That's a necessity in fact, we just got here."

Other areas don't please Masters so much. In particular, he says, the kicking and passing games need a lot of work.

It's easy to understand his dismay with the kicking game. An extra point would have won the game against Shallowater and an extra point kick would have forced Amherst to go for two after their last touchdown.

It's the running game that will have to do the job tonight against Hale Center. The Owls are packed with big people. And they've allowed only 382 yards rushing (530 total) through three games.

"They're sitting in their with those big kids (Gordon) Compton and (Robert) Smith at defensive end," Masters said. "If we make any errors gainst Hale Center, we could get in trouble real early."

Another bit of bad news for Wolverine fans, Compton and Smith are Hale Center's two running backs. Compton has carried 52 times in three games, with 403 yards to show.

But Masters is counting on his team's continued improvement to carry them through.

"I'd say the kids' attitudes are the thing that's let us turn this around. Everything we've asked them to do they've done. They are starting to believe in themselves. And they don't like to lose."

Abernathy, the team that handed Hale Center its only defeat, has a challenge coming up this weekend too.

The Antelopes, which have been pressing at times this year, travel to Acuff to take on Roosevelt. Despite its 2-0-1 record, Abernathy has had its problems. Look a little deeper and you'll see that its two closest games (the Owls and a 6-6 tie with Petersburg) were against Class A teams. A 20-0 blowout to Olton (1-3 in Class AA) was the only solid win.

"There's no doubt about it, their defense is very sound," said Antelope coach Larry Aldridge of Roosevelt. "It's improved immensely since last year.

"Their offense has improved too. They don't have that breakaway threat, but they do have to big old power backs (Junior Vasquez and Sid Roberts) and their quarterback (Rex Beck) does a good job running the veer."

Aldridge isn't nearly so optimistic when talking about his own troops. "I've been pleased with the number of points we've given up — we've only allowed three touchdowns — but we're letting them run too many yards.

"We're not breaking but we're bending too much. That and our passing game. We've got to get that going, it's not clicking yet."

Aldridge received some bad news this week. Running back Roger Lindsay broke his arm in a motorcycle accident Sunday and will be lost for the season.

"This has to change our game plan a little," he said. "Instead of those wide pitches, we'll be running inside more. Roger was our fast back, he made a lot of yards outside."

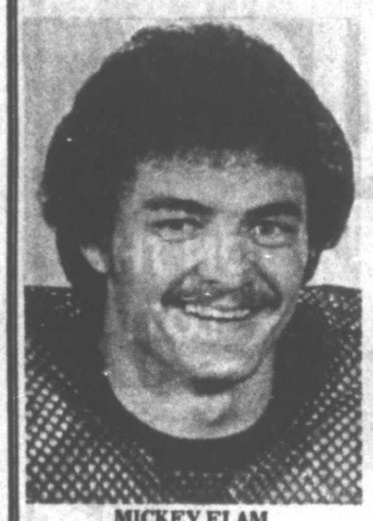
SWC Focus: Tech Vs. Baylor

Texas Tech quarterback Ron Reeves and Baylor quarterback Mickey Elam come to agreement when they leave the past behind and look to Saturday. That's when the non-stop conference race gets heavy for both the Bears and Raiders. The teams will meet for the 38th time, but for the young quarterbacks, it's still a new experience.

Ron Reeves will be starting his 13th straight game for Tech after coming off the bench in the 1978 Arizona game. Mickey Elam, still recognized for his performance in last year's 38-14 win over Texas, is the starter for Grant Teaff, and after three games this year, feels like an established field general in the Southwest Conference.

Elam, who originally signed out of Irving High School with Texas Tech in 1975, transferred to Baylor and played sparingly at running back before taking the quarterback role. Reeves, the hometown boy from Lubbock Monterey, led Tech to seven straight victories last year. The two young quarterbacks talk about this old rivalry:

Q — How about your team's attitude after three games?
Reeves— I don't think we really are where we want to be as far as where we wanted to be before the season. That was 3-0, and 1-1-1 is really a long way from that. We've learned a lot of things through the games we've played. The defense has done a great job and they are really ready to play. The offense seems like we're just one man away from really coming around and putting it together like we have the ability to do. So I think that this week in practice will tell how we've come around.
Elam— I think we have a good mental attitude. We did have two victories before we played Alabama and one of those was an important conference win (over Texas A&M, 17-7). Now we know that the rest of our games, except for one, are conference games and it's like a whole new season. That's what our goals have been. Of course, Saturday night against Alabama was an embarrassment to us. We're just going to have to put that behind us and try to put things back together like we did the first two games. Alabama is not something we will completely forget about, but maybe we can learn something from it.



MICKEY ELAM

RON REEVES

Q — Talk about your own offensive line and the job they're doing.
Reeves— It's almost the same line we had last year. I think that they're doing the job. The thing that we nbeed to do is just really play together and everybody settle down every play. It seems like there'll be on e guy let down each time and that keeps us from being as good as we can be. The ability is there but we just haven't put it together yet.

Elam— I think one of the strong points most people thought we would have would be the offenseive line. I think it has been that way. Keith Bishop is the only one who's out who was in there to start with. Buzzy Nelson has done real well replacing Keith. I haven't noticed any slack because of that. I think they all have so much experience. Frank Ditta is probably the newest one, but Arlan Thompson and Billy Glass and Ron Barnes have all had at least two years experience.

Q — How about your running back and receivers?
Reeves— James Hadnot has really run hard this year. He's in a lot better shape physically. He's running the ball about 30 times a game and not getting tired at all, which shows that his weight program has helped. He's definately one of the top running backs in the country. I would hate to have to tackle him. I think we need to get the ball to Mark Olbert a little more. He's doing a great job blocking, but he's also a good runner and I'd like to see him run more than just a couple of times a game. I've been working well with Howie Lewis and Edwin Newsome on the pasing game. They both have all kinds of ability. Neither had any experience before this year. I think in the Arizona game they both built their confidence. If I can just get the ball out there to them and quit trying to force it, I think the passing game will be strong.

Elam— I think Walter Abercrombie and Frank Pollard are really coming on strong. Walter is picking up where he left off last season. He's got all the physical capabilities to do anything he wants to on the field. He worked very hard this past summer. Pollard is in his last year and he's running harder than I've seen him run since I've been here. It's his senior year and he's acting like it. The rest of our running backs — Dennis Gentry, Kenneth Matthews and Moke Lively — are ready to step in any time. There's no slack off when they come in.

Q — How about your own personal performance so far?
Reeves— This summer I really worked harder than I ever had. I was excited about going into the year. But all of a sudden the intensity wasn't there and I don't know what the problem was. But last week through practice, it came back. And this week I'm fired up about the Baylor game. I've thrown a lot of interceptions and that's bad, but I think my biggest problem is the lack of intensity. I need to be the one who gets the offense together. The interceptions have come from forcing the ball and the stupid mistakes.

Elam— I didn't expect really big things at first since I only played one game at quarterback last year. But I was with my game performance against Lamar and A&M. Last week, against Alabama, I had a poor performance and as a team we didn't execute well. But I'm going to put that behind me and think about Texas Tech. I have been named starting quarterback so I think I'm established in that role. My passing is certainly better than it was last fall. I like to throw on the run more than being a drop-back passer. I have more confidence in looking at defenses and more confidence in what I'm doing when I'm going to throw.

LHS, Dunbar Battle Tonight

By CHUCK McDONALD
Avalanche-Journal Sports Staff

It's not that neither team wants to win — it's just that so far this year they haven't been capable of winning.

Last week Dunbar was humiliated 41-0 by San Angelo Lake View. And Lubbock High ran into similar trouble, dropping a 45-12 decision to Amarillo High.

And neither contest was as close as the score would indicate. Both the Westerners and the Panthers trailed 30-0 at the half. But, using those scores as a measuring device, tonight's contest between LHS and DHS ought to be a dandy.

The two 0-3 teams will meet tonight at 7:30 p.m. at Lowrey Field. Lubbock's other three public schools were in action Thursday night.

"I am tired of losing," said Lubbock High coach Army Salinas Wednesday at a coaches press conference. "My kids are also tired of losing.

"And I'm sure that Van's (Jefferson, DHS coach) are also tired of losing.

"We need a win very badly," added Salinas. "Because we're going to win some ballgames this year."

"We're looking forward to the game with Lubbock High," said Jefferson. "I think they have a fine ballclub this year because they are one of the best-coached teams in the city."

Jefferson praised the work of center Rudy Hernandez, defensive lineman Jeff Reid, defensive back Del Harris and halfback Fabian Garcia.

Although tonight's contest should be a close one, the Westerners may have a slight edge. Lubbock High, although 0-3 on the year, has scored 19 points so far this year. Meanwhile the Panthers are still looking for their first points of the 1979 season.

"We played a very poor first quarter last week," said Salinas. "But our kids responded very well in the second, third and fourth quarters.

"We were embarrased up there (Amarillo)."

"There's been enough said about our game last week," said Jefferson. "Now we're just looking forward to the game with Lubbock High."

Brock, Rose On Jap Tour

NEW YORK (AP) — Lou Brock of the St. Louis Cardinals and Pete Rose of the Philadelphia Phillies headline the lineup of 44 major league players who will travel to Japan for a series of all-star games in November, it was announced Thursday.

Brock and Rose, both members of baseball's exclusive 3,000-hit club, will play on the 22-man National League squad managed by Tom Lasorda of the Los Angeles Dodgers. Hall of Famer Willie Mays, another 3,000-hit man, will serve as one of National League coaches.

The American League team, which will face the NL seven times, will be managed by Earl Weaver of the East Division-champion Baltimore Orioles.

In addition to Brock, the NL outfielders on the trip ar Jack Clark (San Francisco), George Foster (Cincinnati), Dave Kingman (Chicago) and Greg Luzinski (Philadelphia). Besides Rose, infielders for the NL will be Larry Bowa (Philadelphia), Steve Garvey and Davey Lopes (Los Angeles), Bill Madlock (Pittsburgh), and Ozzie Smith (San Diego). The catchers will be Montreal's Gary Carter, Ted Simmons of St. Louis and John Stearns of the New York Mets. The pitching staff will be composed of Pittsburgh's Jim Bibby and John Candelaria, Phil Niekro and Gene Garber of Atlanta, and Bob Forsch (St. Louis).

SOFTBALL TOURNAMENT PLANNED

The Lubbock Lumberjacks will sponsor a softball tournament Oct. 5-7 on the corner of 42nd St. and Avenue U. Entry fee is $60 per team and entry deadline is Oct. 3. For tourney information call Mario Prieto at 765-7546 or Roy Elia at 797-5135.

GAMES NEEDED

LAZBUDDIE (Special) — Lazbuddie High School needs two games to fill its boys and girls varsity basketball schedule for this year. The two open dates are Nov. 11 and Feb. 5. A Class B basketball team is also needed to complete the bracket for the Lazbuddie Tournament Dec. 6-7-8. For more information call Ray Reynolds at (806)-965-2152.

Holmes Set For Defense

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — Larry Holmes will defend the World Boxing Council heavyweight title against "ancient" Earnie Shavers in a match of boxing skills against punching power.

Finesse ruled when the two met March 25, 1978. Holmes won a one-sided, 12-round decision to earn a winning title shot against Ken Norton. Shavers, who turned 35 Aug. 31, seemed through as a championship contender until he blasted his way back with a one-round knockout of Norton last March 23.

The oddsmakers feel that Holmes' boxing ability again will overcome Shavers' power. The odds were 4-1 if you like Holmes and you get 3-1 if you like Shavers

Holmes' fourth defense of the title headlines a talent-laden card at Caesars Palace. Also appearing will be Sugar Ray Leonard in a 12-round North American Boxing Federation welterweight title defense against Andy Price; former lightweight champion Roberto Duran in a 10-round welterweight bout against Zeferino Gonzalez; Wilfredo Gomez in a 15-round WBC super bantamweight title defense against Carlos Mendoza, and Jimmy Young, the No. 3 WBC heavyweight contender, against unbeaten Mike Dokes.

ABC will televise from 7 p.m. to 10 p.m., PDT. The heavyweight championship fight and the Leonard and Duran bouts will be shown live. The super bantamweight fight will be taped for possible showing. Whether the Young-Dokes bout is televised depends on how long the other fights last.

At 35, Shavers is trying to become the second oldest heavyweight champion in history. Jersey Joe Walcott was 37 when he knocked out Ezzard Charles in the seventh round in 1951. That was Walcott's fifth crack at the title. Shavers will be making his second bid, having lost a unanimous 15-round decision to Muhammad Ali in a fight for universal championship recognition.

The winner Friday night won't be universal heavyweight champion but temporarily he will be the only one. The World Boxing Association title was made vacant by Ali's retirement. It will be filled Oct. 20 when John Tate fight Gerrie Coetzee in South Africa.

"I will knock him out in five rounds," said Shavers who has scored 56 knockouts in 58 victories against seven losses and a draw. Shavers contends he was in shape physically or mentally for his first fight with Holmes because of managerial problems. He now is managed by trainer Frank Luca.

Holmes claims Shavers is making excuses and trying to psych himself, and when asked how he felt this fight might be different from the first one, he replied: "It ain't."

"I'm gonna push him (force the pace)," said the 29-year-old champion who has won all 31 of his pro fights. "Gonna push him a lot. If my strategy is right, the fight won't go the distance.

The 6-foot-3 Holmes, who weighed 210 pounds to 211 for Shavers Thursday, has a three-inch advantage in height and a one-inch edge in reach plus a great deal more hand and foot speed. Holmes also punches well enough to have stopped 22 opponents.

Shavers, who has been stopped three times, is expected to come out gunning. But he says he is not going to be right-hand crazy but will concentrate on putting his punches together and also work to the body.

Holmes, who was a sparring partner for Shavers in 1973, expects to see the same Shavers he fought the first time. "I don't believe you can get better when you reach a certain age," he said.

Holmes also is well-aware that he is going into the fight off a sub-par performance against little-known Mike Weaver, who gave the champion a rough time before being stopped in the 12th round last June 22. "I learned I got to discipline myself," said Holmes, who claims he didn't properly prepare for Weaver.

Shavers, who recently purchased a $575,000 house in Mecca, Ohio, is getting $300,000 and a chance to earn much more in the future. Holmes, of Easton, Pa., is guaranteed $2.5 miillion.

Unbeaten Leonard Wants Duran Bout

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — Sugar Ray Leonard, fight buff, has gotten Roberto Duran's autograph and has watched him work out.

But Leonard's attendance at some of Duran's training sessions goes beyond being a fan.

"I was really impressed by the way he works out," said Sugar Ray Leonard, fighter, who appears destined to meet the great Duran in the ring.

"I see the belief he has in himself," Leonard said while lounging by the pool at Caesars Palace, where he will fight Friday night on the Larry Holmes-Earnie Shavers heavyweight championship card. Duran also is on the show.

But while the unbeaten Leonard is impressed by Duran, he said he is not awed. "I don't look at Duran as a god. I look at him as a superior boxer — but I know I can beat him."

Leonard was asked if he felt Duran respected him. "I don't know, I can't understand him," Leonard said. The former lightweight champion from Panama, who has lost only once in 67 pro fights, speaks only Spanish.

Despite the interest, a Duran-Leonard fight is not in the works. When and if it takes place Leonard could be a champion. He is scheduled to meet Wilfredo Benitez of Puerto Rico for the World Boxing Council welterweight title Dec. 1.

For his title shot the 24-year-old Olympic champion from Palmer Park, Md., is getting $1 million, which will push his earnings past $3 million since he turned pro in 1977.

"I don't want to be just another boxer — broke," said Leonard, the sole stockholder in Sugard Ray Leonard, Inc. "I'm fighting not for ego but for the money."

And Leonard is fighting well. He is 24-0 going into tonight's fight against Andy Price. But some boxing people are not convinced the Leonard is as good as his record.

"As long as there is a Roberto Duran or a Pipino Cuevas (the World Boxing Association welterweight champion), my ability will always be doubted," said Duran, who thinks his sense of pacing and ring knowledge is improving with each fight. He also feels "my punching ability is underestimated by critics."

As to the charge that he is a "hot dog" in the ring, Leonard said, "that is the way I fight. It psychs my opponent out."

But Leonard's showboating has added to his popularity, and it is a reason that a bout with Duran, who also fights with a flair, is in demand.

"Surgar Ray and Duran is a dollar sign ... a big dollar sign," said Leonard with a grin.

Mike-Mayer Brothers Back On Field Again

By The Associated Press

On Sunday, Nick and Steve Mike-Mayer are getting together in Buffalo — and mom couldn't be happier.

"Even though I can't be there, it is a big day for me because the boys don't have a chance to be together too often," Julianna said from the home in Ridgewood, N.J., where she and her husband, Istvan, are raising the two youngest of their brood.

Barely a week ago, Nick was killing time in Philadelphia, thinking about putting his real estate salesman's license to good use. His brother, Steve, was already using his out in California.

Then axes started falling and the phones started ringing. In 24 hours, both journeyman place-kickers were gainfully employed in the National Football League again.

In Buffalo, Coach Chuck Knox, disenchanted with Tom Dempsey's erratic kicks which had cost the Bills one game, sent him packing and signed Nick. And in Baltimore, Coach Ted Marchibroda, deciding that the $10,000 raise awarded by club owner Robert Irsay wasn't the only thing Toni Linhart deserved for missing three easy field goals that cost the Colts a game, cut him and hired Steve.

On Sunday, the Colts play the Bills and the brothers' friendly rivalry will be renewed.

"I wish I could be there," their mother said in her lilting, sing-song Middle European accent. "It would be so special for me becuse the only time we are all together each year is Christmas. But my husband has an injury to his back so we can't go there."

She is delighted, of course, that her sons are back on NFL payrolls and believes they'll be around for a while. "Nick and Steve, they can do it for few years more because I know they are very good and they like it very much," she said.

If they're not, the Mike-Mayer family has a few potential replacements waiting in the wings.

Istvan and Julianna's first child was a girl, Marika, now 33. Then came six boys — Steve, Nick, Frank (he place-kicked at Temple and now works for an insurance company in California), Henry (he's kicking these days at Drake University) and high school students (and kickers) Laszlo and Robert.

"It would be nice if my other boys would also play football," Julianna says. "I hope so because my first two boys are doing so well at it."

Nick is starting his seventh year in the NFL. He was drafted in the 10th round by Atlanta in 1973, made it to the Pro Bowl as a rookie and stayed with the Falcons until they cut him midway in the 1977 season. He joined the Philadelphia Eagles that year and remained until this season, when barefooted Tony Franklin won the job.

Steve was San Francisco's third-round selection in the 1975 draft, played with the 49ers until 1977, when he joined the Detroit Lions. He spent 1978 with New Orleans, then the Saints made place-kicker Russell Erxleben their No.1 draft choice.

When Erxleben was hurt, the Saints signed Garo Yepremian, who had been cut by Miami. He was the only place-kicker to beat the Mike-Mayers back onto NFL rosters this year.

MAJOR LEAGUE ROUNDUP

Rain, Cards Help Expos Gain Ground

By The Associated Press

George Hendrick rapped five hits, including his 16th home run to lead the St. Louis Cardinals to a 9-5 victory over Pittsburgh Thursday, trimming the Pirates' lead to one game over Montreal in the National League East.

The Expos, 10-1 losers to Pittsburgh Wednesday night, played a twinight doubleheader Thursday in Atlanta with a chance to move back into a first-place tie.

The Cardinals, who clinched third place in the East with the victory, pounded 17 hits off six pitchers shuffled into the game by Pirates Manager Chuck Tanner.

The game began with an ill omen for the Pirates when the American flag was raised upside down, recognized as a distress signal. Then the Cards jumped to a 5-0 lead in the first four innings off Dave Roberts, 5-4, John Candelaria and Don Robinson.

Roberts started because Candelaria had an ailing ribcage and Robinson had a questionable shoulder. But Candelaria and Robinson were pressed into service in the fourth inning.

Hendrick singled in St. Louis' two-run second inning and scored on a sacrifice fly by Ken Reitz. The Cardinals added an unearned run in the third and scored twice in the fourth with the aid of a leadoff double by Hendrick and RBI singles by Tony Scott and Garry Templeton.

Dave Parker hit his 24th homer leading off the Pirates' fourth off winner Bob Forsch, 11-11.

After Hendrick singled home another Cardinal run in the fifth, the Pirates scored twice in the bottom of the inning on RBI singles by Omar Moreno and Tim Foli.

Dock Ellis checked the Cardinals in the sixth and seventh innings, and Pittsburgh scored twice in the bottom of the seventh with the aid of a double by Moreno and an RBI single by Foli.

But St. Louis secured the victory with two eighth-inning runs off Kent Tekulve, who made his 92nd appearance of the season to break the Pirates record he set last season. Templeton drove in one run off Tekulve with a two-out double and Jerry Mumphrey added a run-scoring single. Hedrick homered in the ninth off Enrique Romo.

Expos Postponed

The Montreal Expos and Atlanta Braves makeup doubleheader Thursday night was postponed by rain and will be played, if necessary, beginning at noon Monday.

The Expos, fighting for their first National League Eastern Division title in their history, gained a half-game on the division leading Pittsburgh Pirates earlier Thursday, when the St. Louis Cardinals downed the Bucs 9-5.

Pittsburgh now has a 96-63 record, with three home games remaining against the Chicago Cubs and the Expos have a 94-63 mark.

Montreal returns home Friday to open a three-game series with the Philadelphia Phillies and if the doubleheader with Atlanta is needed to determine the division title, it will be played Monday.

The rainout changes the Expos' pitching rotation for their final home series. Bill Lee, 16-10, will face the Phillies' Dickie Noles, 3-4, Friday night and David Palmer, 10-2, will oppose Randy Lerch, 10-13, Saturday.

Expos officials said they were undecided who would pitch against Philadelphia's Steve Carlton on Sunday.

A steady rain began falling in Atlanta shortly after the Braves' 9-4 victory over Houston Wednesday night, and it rained lightly throughout the day.

Umpire Ed Vargo took a look at the soaked field about one hour after Thursday's doubleheader was scheduled to start, and then waited another 15 minutes before postponing it.

Rangers 4, A's 3

Jim Sundberg's RBI single capped a three-run Texas sixth inning and gave the Rangers a 4-3 victory over the Oakland A's Thursday night.

Larry McCall, 1-0, made his first start for the Rangers gave up six hits and got eighth-inning relief from Sparky Lyle.

Zisk homered in the fourth for a 1-0 Texas lead against Matt Keough, 2-17. In the sixth, Al Oliver walked, stole second and took third on Buddy Bell's single.

Oliver scored when second baseman Dave Chalk mishandled Willie Montanez' grounder, and Bell raced home when Zisk's shot bounded off the glove of third baseman Rob Picciolo.

Sundberg singled for the third run of the inning, but Zisk was thrown out at the plate trying to score from second.

Chalk's seventh-inning single delivered Oakland's first run. Joe Wallis hit a two-run homer in the ninth for the A's.

Yankees 5, Indians 2

Pinch-hitter Oscar Gamble clubbed a three-run homer in the bottom of the ninth inning Thursday to give the New York Yankees a 5-2 victory over the Cleveland Indians.

New York trailed 2-1 when George Scott opened the ninth with a single and Bobby Brown ran for him as Sid Monge, 11-10, replaced Rick Waits on the mound for Cleveland. One out later, pinch-hitter Reggie Jackson and Juan Beniquez each walked. Pinch-hitter Roy White's sacrifice fly to left scored Brown with the tying run.

Gamble then hit his 19th home run.

Cliff Johnson's ninth-inning double scored Ted Cox from first base to put Cleveland ahead 2-1. Rich Gossage, 5-3, relieved Ron Davis and faced Johnson, who was batting against his one-time locker room adversary for the second time this season.

Johnson tried for a triple on his RBI hit but was thrown out by center fielder Juan Beniquez. He protested vociferously and threw his batting helmet, prompting his ejection by umpire Larry McCoy.

White Sox 4, Twins 2

Jim Morrison slammed a two-run homer in the top of the 10th inning, lifting Chicago to a 4-2 victory over Minnesota Thursday.

Morrison's blast, his 13th of the year, was his fourth hit of the day and came off loser Dave Goltz, 14-13, after Jorge Orta had singled with two out.

The White Sox carried a 2-1 lead into the bottom of the eighth inning, but Roy Smalley drilled his 24th homer to tie the game.

Relievers Mike Proly and Ed Farmer worked final 2 and 1-3 innings for the White Sox. Proly gained the victory, his third against eight losses.

Reds Rained Out

The National League game between the San Diego Padres and Cincinnati Reds was postponed Thursday because of rain with the Padres leading 3-0 in the second inning.

League President Chub Feeney's office was expected to make an announcement Friday about a makeup date for the game.

The Reds lead the second-place Houston Astros by 2½ games in the NL West. They have three games remaining — at home against Atlanta — aside from a makeup game with San Diego. Houston plays three games in Los Angeles beginning Friday.

LEVELLAND (Special)— The South Plains College tennis team defeated Wayland Baptist 9-0 Thursday afternoon in its men's tennis opener. SPC will play Lubbock Christian in Levelland Tuesday afternoon at 2:30 in its next match.

Mustangs Tip Tascosa

thkhans to Wade Hunt moved all the way to the CHS five. However, four plays netted only one yard and Tascosa came up short.

Coronado got an insurance touchdown in the third period, this time on a 57-yard romp by Harp. After taking the snap from center, the junior signalcaller rolled left and looked downfield.

He found all his receivers covered so he pulled the ball down and, with a strong north wind spanking him on the backside, took off. At the 10, Harp ran into some heavy traffic but he shook loose of defensive back Troy Johnson and scored.

Melvin added the extra point to put CHS up 17-0 and that's all it needed.

In the second half, Tascosa had the ball for 45 plays while Coronado had it only 19. However, Tascosa was unable to cash in on great field position and played most of the game between the 30s.

NEW MEXICO ROUNDUP

Unbeaten Clovis Set For Alamogordo

How good are the Clovis Wildcats?

The question has rebounded off the bleachers of Leon Williams Stadium and is now making its way across Southeastern New Mexico like the weeds of summer. It isn't without good reason.

After all, these same Clovis Wildcats — after a dismal 1-4 start a year ago — were good enough to the win the Class AAAA state championship. This year Eric Roanhaus' Purple Pack appears to be even better.

A defense sparked by the likes of Mark Eastham, Darrin Bishop, Bryan Funderbunk and Mike Hill has given up a mere field goal in three outings. An offense keyed by fullback J.R. Houston has piled up 43 points. All of which has been good enough to give Clovis a 3-0 start in 1979.

And, one must remember what Roanhouse said at the start of the season: "It's going to take us a few games to develop balance and cohesiveness." Apparently it didn't take nearly as many games as the CHS head coach figured.

However, the question about just how good the Wildcats are this year may get a more definite answer tonight when Clovis battles unbeaten Alamogordo (2-0-1) in what may be the feature game in all of New Mexico. Alamogordo, which sidetracked the 'Cats 14-12 a year ago, is No. 3 on the Land of Enchantment football charts this week.

Clovis occupies the No. 2 slot in the state-wide rankings behind unbeaten Albuquerque Highland, which gained the top spot in the shuffle that followed top-rated Santa Fe's 35-6 loss to Albuquerque Eldorado last Saturday.

The Clovis-Alamogordo game won't be the only game of interest in the southeast this week. Clas AAA football fans have the Portales at Tularosa headknocker on the menu. Portales, under first-year head coach Tommy Gruber, sports a 3-0 record and is rated fifth statewide while Tularosa, 2-1 and a 14-12 upset victor over top-ranked Artesia last week, rates the No. 6 berth.

And, of course, there's the annual Eddy County War on this week's calendar, pitting Artesia and Carlsbad in the state's oldest football rivalry. Except for a couple of interruptions, the latest caused a few years ago by hard feelings over a game that got "snowed out", the Bulldogs and Cavemen have been going at each other every autumn since the early 1900's.

Elsewhere this week, Hobbs will be looking for its first victory — not to mention its first point — of the season when it hosts winless Lamesa. Tucumcari goes gunning for its fourth consecutive victory against Raton; Lovington tries to bounce back into the win column against West Las Vegas; Tatum risks its perfect 2-0 reading against Meadow; Eunice entertains Class AAA NMMI and Jal renews acquaintances when it hosts Ruidoso, coached by former Panther mentor Doyle Howell.

Missouri Picked Over 'Horns

NEW YORK (AP) — The nation's longest Upset Special winning streak came to a shattering end at three in a row last week when Mississippi over Missouri, Wisconsin over UCLA and Oklahoma State over Arkansas all fell by the wayside.

Accordingly, we will now try to snap the nation's longest Upset Special losing streak at three in a row.

Actually, tree out of six ain't bad and we did tout you onto Boston College's victory over Villanova to end the nation's longest losing streak at 13 games, as well as the exact score of Arizona State's 49-0 rout of Toledo.

Overall, the week wasn't all that bad with 51 correct picks, 19 wrong and two ties for a .729 percentage. For the season, it's 146-46-3 — .760.

Southern California at Louisiana State: The Tigers have outscored Colorado and Rice 91-3 and are the only team with both USC and Alabama on its schedule. Wouldn't it be a feather in the cap of outgoing Coach Charlie McClendon to knock off the Trojans? That's a joke, son ... Southern Cal 27-14.

Texas at Missouri: Mizzou has scored 89 of its 92 points this season in the second half but the Tigers had best not fall behind too far in this one ... Missouri 16-10.

Penn State at Nebraska: Both sides may have been looking ahead a week ago when Penn State bowed to Texas A&M and Nebraska edged Iowa on a late field goal. Home-field advantage to ... Nebraska 24-20.

Michigan State at Notre Dame: The Irish are looking back at a loss to Purdue while the Spartans are looking ahead to Michigan ... Notre Dame 24-17.

Oregon at Purdue: A return to the Midwest for the Ducks, who bowed to Michigan State 41-17 two weeks ago. How about a similar trip ... Purdue 41-17.

Michigan at California: The Golden Bears are riding a hot streak, having beaten Arizona State 17-9, Arizona 10-7 and San Jose State 13-10. They'll need more offense against ... Michigan 24-7.

Florida State at Virginia Tech: One of ABC-TV's regional telecasts, but they almost couldn't do it because of a shortage of phone lines in Blacksburg. The Seminoles are worth seeing ... Florida State 42-21.

Ohio State at UCLA: Art Schlichter and the Buckeyes do it on national television ... Ohio State 28-17.

Wake Forest at North Carolina State: "Mackovic's Meatballs" have singed Appalachian State, Georgia and East Carolina. This is a Wolfpack of a different color ... N.C. State 35-17.

Southern Methodist at Tulane: The first Upset Special of the season was Tulane over Stanford and it came through. SMU quarterback Mike Ford is injured, Tulane's Roch Hontas is healthy and this is now a pick-'em game ... Tulane 29-25.

North Carolina at Army: Are the Cadets for real after upsetting Stanford? The Tar Heels will be a better test ... North Carolina 31-10.

Rutgers at Princeton: These two rivals started all the fall madness back in 1869 and the series comes to an end after next year's contest ... Rutgers 24-14.

Pitt at Temple: The Owls have everything to gain and nothing to lose in this intrastate rivalry. It's just the opposite for ... Pitt 22-15.

South Carolina at Georgia: Tragedy marred the Gamecocks' week when defensive end Scott Sinclair collapsed and died before Tuesday's practice. Georgia is 0-2 and overdue ... Georgia 20-10.

Texas A&M at Memphis State: The Aggies are sky-high after upsetting Penn State. Time for a letdown. Upset Special of the Week ... Memphis State 21-18.

Auburn at Tennessee: The winner will be favored in the Southeastern Conference — as runnerup to Alabama ... Tennessee 27-18.

Miami, Ohio, at Central Michigan: A Mid-American Conference showdown with the Redskins coming off a heartbreaking 24-21 loss to Michigan State and the Chippewas unscored upon in two outings ... Central Michigan 12-9.

Iowa State at Iowa: The Hawkeyes face their third consecutive Big Eight foe after battling mighty Oklahoma and Nebraska tooth and nail. Iowa State gave Texas quite a scrap last week ... Iowa State 27-21.

Boston College at Stanford: Eagles are flying high after ending the nation's longest losing streak, Cardinals are flying low after bowing to Army. Second Upset Special ... Boston College 28-20.

LCC Favored At Tourney

SAN ANTONIO (Special) — Although ineligible for the championship, Lubbock Christian College will enter the Texas Intercollegiate Athletic Association volleyball tournament as the favorite.

LCC is ineligible since it gives scholarships in girls volleyball; the other schools involved do not.

LCC girls will open play today at 5:30 p.m. against Tarleton, then follow at 9:30 tonight against McMurry.

Saturday, the Lady Chaparrals will take on hostess Trinity at 11:30 a.m., Sul Ross at 1:30 p.m., and Austin College at 3:30 p.m.

School with the best record will be declared champion.

Already this year, LCC has divided matches with Sul Ross and beaten McMurry and Tarleton.

Expected to start for LCC will be Diane Fogarty, Cheryl Skaggs, Bridget Biggers, Gayla Parker, Lynn Miller, and Janice Wilkey. Miss Fogarty is returning to the lineup after missing a week because of a shoulder injury.

Raider Women Beat Midland

The Texas Tech women's tennis team upped its dual-meet record to 2-0-1 Thursday with a 6-3 win over Midland College.

Four Tech women and one doubles team took victories in the meet.

Regina Revello defeated Midland's Debbie Smith 6-0, 7-5. Other Tech women taking singles victories were Becky Gerken over Brenda Burgess 6-3, 6-2; Jill Crutchfield over Teresa Landry 6-1, 4-6, 6-3 and Cary Garton beat Linda Hankins 6-1, 6-3.

The doubles team of Revello-Crutchfield upended Midland's doubles team of Smith-Landry 3-6, 6-4, 6-2.

Taking loses for Tech was Sandra Carrillo, who fell to Midland's Leslie Miller 2-6, 7-5, 6-4 in singles competition. Two Tech doubles teams took losses. The team of Garton-Waltko lost to Midland's Burgess-Miller 7-6, 6-3 while Fritz-Moore loss to Hankins-Towry 6-2, 6-2.

Tech's women will host New Mexico State at 2:30 p.m. today on the men's varsity court.

Bean Captures Lead At Firestone Meet

AKRON, Ohio (AP) — Andy Bean, generally leaving his driver in the bag on one of the longest courses the pros ever see, scorched tough Firestone with a 6-under-par 64 and established a 2-stroke lead Thursday in the first round of the World Series of Golf.

"For me, it was a perfect round," the big redhead said after taking birdies on the last three holes of the massive course that rambles some 7,180 yards over rolling Ohio countryside.

"I played about as well as I can," Bean said.

"Fantastic," said Lee Trevino, who played immediately behind Bean. "That's a helluva score on this golf course."

J.C. Snead and Australian Graham Marsh had 66s in the near-perfect playing conditions, mild temperatures under an overcast sky and virtually no wind.

"It was a perfect day to play golf, and the golf course is in perfect condition," Bean said.

Trevino, Tom Kite and Lon Hinkle had 67s and Tom Watson, golf's outstanding performer and the heavy favorite for the $100,000 first prize here, topped the group at 68.

"I'm pleased with my score," said Watson, making his first American start in a month. "I didn't make many mistakes. It could have been a little better. But any time you shoot under 70 on Firestone, you have to be pleased.

"The conditions were ideal. I think that's the reason you're seeing so many low scores. It's probably the best day the pros have ever had at Firestone. But Firestone has a habit of rearing its head and getting back at you. If we get a weather change, you'll see the scores go up."

Masters champ Fuzzy Zoeller and U.S. Open king Hale Irwin had 69s. PGA titleholder David Graham of Australia shot 72, 2 over par. British Open champion Seve Ballesteros and the other European eligibles chose not to play in the select, international field of 38 players. Jack Nicklaus and Gary Player, who have combined for 10 victories on this course, failed to qualify.

Bean's score was within a single stroke of the course record on the long, long layout that has six par-4 holes of more than 450 yards in length.

And Bean did it with his driver in the bag.

"I broke my driver during a practice round at the PGA," Bean said, "and I haven't been able to get a replacement that I'm really confident in.

"I used the driver off the first tee today, put it in a bunker and that's when the driver went back in the bag," he said. He used it only three more times during the day, on the two par-5 holes and the 469-yard, par-4 sixth.

The rest of the time, he used the 3-wood off the tee.

"I was hitting it about 250 yards today, so I really wasn't sacrificing that much. And I feel confident, very confident, with the 3-wood. To score, it's very important to get the ball in the fairway on this golf course," he said.

Bean didn't have a bogey and got his first birdie with a chip-in from the fringe on the fourth hole. He scored from 15 feet on the eighth, flipped a 7-iron to within a foot of the unruffled flag on the 10th, then closed with a rush.

He wedged to eight feet on the 625-yard monster at 16, birdied the 17th from 12 feet and dropped an eight-foot putt for a third consecutive birdie on the closing hole.

Champion Ewes, Rams Exhibited At Fair

By KATHLEEN HARRIS
Avalanche-Journal Farm Writer

Exhibitors from across Texas, Colorado and Indiana showed champion ewes and rams Thursday in the Panhandle South Plains Fair sheep show.

About 149 animals competed in the five breed divisions that were judged by John Menzies of Odessa.

Wesley Hodges of Sterling City dominated the Rambouillet show, exhibiting both the champion ram and the champion ewe.

Both Dorset champions were shown by Bob Cobean of Longmont, Colo. and Don Sellers of Kempton, Ind. won the two championships in Southdown competition.

In the struggle for the top animal in the Suffolks show, G. and R. A. Sanders of Mullins won the ram championship while Scott Orr of Tahoka took the champion ewe banner.

Miller Hampshires of Seagraves exhibited the top Hampshire ram and Carrol Bentley of Panhandle showed the champion ewe.

Livestock judging concludes today with the junior lamb and steer shows.

USDA Providing Information For Grain Export Businesses

By RODERICK TURNBULL
Kansas City Board of Trade

KANSAS CITY — A U.S. Department of Agriculture report is called "U.S. Export Sales." It is published weekly and comes out the latter part of each week. The pamphlet on which the report is printed contains 30 to 45 pages.

The report is one of the major indicators as to the grain trade on how much business is being done overseas. The data contained affects prices and therefore is of interest to farmers whether they ever see it or not. It is, of course, publicly available and no doubt is studied carefully by representatives of other nations which are either importers or exporters of grain.

The USDA provides other data which also indicates the extent of the grain export business. In its supply and demand reports, as an example, it analyzes the "situation" and comes up with a projection on the yearly export total on the various grains. The projections may change as conditions change either in this country or around the world.

As an example, in July, the USDA projected wheat exports in the current marketing year (June 1, 1979 — May 31, 1980) would total 1,300 million bushels. In August, because of indicated increased world demand, the USDA raised its projection by 100 million bushels to 1,400 million.

The first of each week, the USDA provides the data on actual shipments of all grains in the previous week plus the total shipments to date for the marketing year.

The "U.S. Export Sales" report supplements the other data by revealing not only the actual shipments of the grains, but the sales that have been made for future delivery, both to definite and to "unknown" destinations. This report is a development that came with the law passed a few years ago requiring all exporters to report within 24 hours any export sales of 100,000 bushels or more whether to known or unknown destinations.

In general, the trade regards the quantity of the sale more important as a price factor than the immediate name of the buyer. Eventually, however, the name of the buyer is revealed.

There are a lot of figures in the export sales report and it takes some careful reading to get the gist of what it says.

Take wheat as an example. The pages on "all wheat" in the report listed outstanding sales in both metric tons and in bushels to some 69 countries since the start of this marketing year, June 1. Outstanding sales, the report explains, are unshipped balances on sales. The outstanding sales carried in the Aug. 16 release covered transactions up to Aug. 5.

The total on outstanding sales to known destinations in this report was 301.1 million bushels. At the same time, there was a total of sales to unknown destinations of 188.6 million bushels plus 6.5 million bushels in a technical classification that includes unsold commodities shipped abroad and those in transit from the U.S. to foreign ports.

Adding all the sales to known and unknown destinations, total from this report was 496.2 million bushels. At the same time, the amount of wheat that already had been exported since June 1 this year came to 254.1 million bushels. Adding the business on hand, to known and unknown destinations, plus the actual exports revealed a figure of 750.3 million bushels of wheat export business as of Aug. 5.

An interesting point here is that the USDA is projecting wheat exports of a record 1,400 million bushels in this marketing year. So, as of Aug. 5, almost exactly half of the whole year's expected total business has been accounted for. This is one reason for much of the talk about excellent export prospects this year. Incidentally, already, also 15 million bushels of wheat have been sold for delivery in the 1980-81 marketing year which starts next June 1.

The figures on exports are subject to change, mostly upward obviously as the year moves along, but also occasionally downward. An announced sale to either a known or unknown destination can be cancelled. The fact is, a sale never is accomplished totally until the exporter gets his money, but in most cases, of course, the transaction is completed.

It is routine, of course, that sales will be changed from the unknown to the known destination column.

Quite often it is revealed that a sale of a certain number of tons of wheat or corn has been switched from the unknown destination category to the Soviet Union. Switches to the Soviet Union seem to get the most attention, but over the last several weeks switches from the unknown category to several nations have been revealed. Obviously, the practice of listing sales as to unknown destinations is not exclusively designed for trades with the Soviet Union.

The corn marketing year is from Oct. 1 to Sept. 30. The export sales report as of Aug. 5 showed outstanding sales of 328.3 million bushels to known destinations and 40.9 million bushels to unknown for a total of 369.2 million for the remainder of this marketing year. At the same time, actual exports already had reached 1,759.1 million bushels. Thus the total business indicated for the year as of Aug. 5 was 2,128.3 million bushels.

Hog Sale Scheduled At Bilt Rite Farms

HAPPY (Special) — A hog sale by the Bilt Rite Farms of Larry N. Tackitt of Happy is scheduled at 7:30 p.m. here Monday at the Harman-Toles Elevator.

The offering will include 10 Hampshire boars, 30 Hampshire gilts, 10 Duroc boars and 30 Duroc gilts. Tackitt said older barrows for early shows will be a special offering at this sale.

In addition, the farms will offer Duroc, Hampshire and Yorkshire barrows plus a few gilts at a Bilt Rite barrow sale at 7 p.m. Oct. 31.

PLAINS AGRICULTURE

By DUANE HOWELL

A CONGRESSIONAL CRITIC OF COTTON'S research-promotion program says the U. S. Department of Agriculture has been lax in investigating fresh charges against Cotton Inc.

Rep. Paul Findley, R-Ill., in a new letter to Secretary of Agriculture Bob Bergland, criticized the USDA for asking the Cotton Board to investigate the hiring of private detectives to spy on employees in Cotton Inc.'s office in Raleigh, N. C.

The detectives were paid with checkoff money collected from cotton farmers under authority of federal law. Findley said the USDA's inspector general, the Agricultural Marketing Service and the general counsel all should have investigated the issue.

Findley — whose urging initially prompted Bergland to order an inspector general's report that turned out to be critical of Cotton Inc.'s management — said asking Cotton Board chairman Don Anderson of Lubbock to investigate the latest charge is "like putting the fox in the chicken coop."

THE CONTROVERSY RESULTED from an investigation earlier this year by Cotton Inc. president Dukes Wooters to find out who sent copies of newspaper stories about a Cotton Inc. investigation to persons in the cotton industry. Wooters asked employees to take lie detector tests but some refused.

Dr. George Slater, vice president for agricultural research who was a target of Wooters' investigation, was forced to resign, although cotton industry sources said another person has admitted distributing the newspaper articles. Findley said he hoped the USDA would recommend that Slater be rehired.

Findley said the Cotton Board, a producer group appointed by the agriculture secretary to oversee the cotton research-promotion program, would produce only a "whitewash" because its leadership "is enmeshed in an incredible conflict of interest with Wooters."

The Illinois congressman said Anderson, a cotton producer and agribusinessman, had benefited from alleged "sweetheart contracts" arranged by Cotton Inc. providing for "the sale of thousands of bales of his cotton" to foreign textile mills. Findley said all cotton producers should have been given a chance to participate in this contract.

"I DON'T KNOW WHAT A 'SWEETHEART deal' is," Anderson said in an interview. "I have worked to help Cotton Inc. in any way I could to improve and carry out research projects on agricultural production, processing and marketing.

"The tragedy is that we don't have more people who are willing to cooperate with Cotton Inc. to make our whole production and marketing system more efficient. I think this is a situation where Cotton Inc. has worked with the people who were willing to work with them."

Anderson said research or pilot programs require "a lot of time, a lot of effort and expenditure of money" on the part of cooperators and added that not everyone is willing to become that involved. He said the situation is similar to that of farmers working with an agricultural experiment station.

"You go out there and put research plots in your field and in the long run it probably will help to make you money," Anderson said. "But, meanwhile, it costs you a lot of extra effort and extra time and extra money to carry out those research plots. They may wind up being of benefit to everybody but during the time the research is going on it costs you money."

ANDERSON SAID FINDLEY'S CHARGE that a large amount of his cotton was sold through preferential deals "is just absolutely untrue — and certainly no thousands of bales were involved."

He said what Findley probably was referring to was that the Texas Cotton Marketing Corp. — of which Anderson is board chairman — has cooperated with Cotton Inc. in pulling together types of High Plains cotton that would fit specific spinning and fabric requirements.

"There were a lot of problems, a lot of trouble, in accumulating the types of cotton needed," Anderson said. "And if any of my cotton — cotton off my farm — got involved in it, I don't even know it."

So far as he knows, Anderson said, Cotton Inc. — despite Findley's assertion that all producers should have been given "an equal chance at this lucrative contract" — probably would have had difficulty in finding anyone else who would or could have cooperated to the extent required in a detailed project of this kind.

THE TEXAS COTTON MARKETING CORP., Anderson said, has spent money on research grants or contracts with the Textile Research Center at Texas Tech to try to develop information on the qualities that would perform best in the open-end spinning system, for which High Plains cotton is especially well suited.

"That — the open-end spinning system — was what our particular interest was out here," he said.

"I guess you could take any cotton farmer across the United States who has cooperated with Cotton Inc. in either production research, gin processing research, module development, or whatever, and you could say he is working out a 'sweetheart deal' with Cotton Inc. to make him money in the long run," Anderson said.

"But that would not be a fair thing to say," he said, adding that the same principle applies to the dealings he had with Cotton Inc. which were criticized by Findley.

COTTON FUTURES CONTINUED TO ADVANCE Thursday, based on strength in the precious metals markets, the trade's need to meet cash commitments, and fears that the certificated stock level could fall short of increased demands, sources said.

October gained 52 points to settle at 66.45 cents. December advanced 62 points to settle at 66.48 cents. Volume was estimated at 7,050 lots.

Commission houses were the buyers throughout the day against scale-up trade selling. As expected, futures opened stronger in line with gains in the precious metals markets and the weakness of the dollar.

Early in the session, December made its daily high of 66.70 cents on speculative buying. Despite fears that October and December would have difficulty penetrating the 66-cent level, both moved higher with relative ease, sources said. Later, October reached the daily high of 66.50, up 57 points.

Although sources noted trade interests had intensified their demand in the nearbys in order to satisfy outstanding commitments, they generally were sellers Thursday. Their buying had been supposed to attract producer selling at higher levels, sources said.

In addition, 17,927 bales have been removed from the certificated stock, prompting heavy trade short covering.

THE GOVERNMENT'S REPORT OF EXPORTS for the week ended Sept. 16, released after the close, was said to be encouraging and constructive.

U. S. cotton export sales for the week totaled 225,900 running bales for 1979-80 delivery and 6,000 bales for shipment in the 1980-81 marketing year.

China took 90,500 bales for 1979-80 delivery, bringing the total Chinese commitment for U. S. cotton this marketing year to 590,200 bales. The week's new sales of 6,000 bales for 1980-81 delivery went entirely to Spain.

Exports were moderate at 97,000 bales, with most of them going to Asia.

Grain Sorghum Board Officers Announced

The Texas Grain Sorghum Producers Board, with headquarters at Lubbock, has announced the election of four candidates to six-year terms on the board.

They are Dennis Anthony of Friona, who received 332 votes; John Gilbreath of Hart, 341 votes; Steve Lee of Hale Center, 298 votes; and Albert Scheele of Lockney, 282 votes.

There were 398 votes cast. Sixteen write-in candidates were received. A maximum of two votes were received by any one of the write-in candidates.

The four directors, one of whom was an incumbent, were chosen by grain sorghum producers in the 29-county TGSPB area.

Canvassing committee members were Lubbock County Judge Rodrick Shaw, Lubbock County Agent Randy Upshaw, assistant marketing director Bob Gray of the Texas Department of Agriculture, and TGSPB executive director Elbert Harp.

The TGSPB seeks to solve certain production problems, develop new markets for sorghum, and provide information on grain marketing.

Research Center Plans Sugarbeet Tour

INSPECTS YIELDS — Dr. Steve Winter, sugarbeet researcher with the Texas Agricultural Experiment Station, inspects yields from sugarbeet plots in preparation for a field day Thursday at the U. S. Department of Agriculture Research Center at Bushland.

AMARILLO (Special) — Growers and others interested in sugarbeet production are invited to a field day and tour on Thursday by Dr. B. A. Stewart director of research at the U.S. Department of Agriculture Research Center at Bushland.

The tour will start at 9:30 a.m. near the greenhouse.

Sugarbeet growers will see latest research to help fine tune their operations for maximum profit.

Dr. Steve Winter, Texas Agricultural Experiment Station researcher at the Center says, "Our research shows that proper management of nitrogen will enable beet growers to have both high root yield and sucrose content."

Winter figures if farmers adopted new methods that are available, they would be able to average 25 tons of sugarbeets with 16 percent sugar.

Tour stops will be at an advanced variety trial, furrow blocking experiment, and a root rot study. Other stops will be at an irrigation experiment with nine irrigation levels, and a limited irrigation experiment with one irrigation in July. Also featured will be fertility trials with phosphate, zinc, boron and nitrogen levels.

Two days prior to the field day, a few sugarbeets will be dug from selected treatments to estimate yield and sugar percentage. Additional beets will be dug just before the tour for inspection by growers.

Winter says he expects yields equal to 1978 when beets produced up to 43 tons per acre with 17.5 percent sucrose.

Dr. G. B. Thompson, director of research at the Texas A&M Center at Amarillo, says the event will be sponsored by the Texas Agricultural Experiment Station, USDA's Science and Education Administration, Texas New Mexico Sugarbeet Growers Association, and Holly Sugar Corp.

Winter says, "My research shows that technology and methods are available to produce high tonnage and sucrose with only occasional hand labor."

Grain Futures

CHICAGO (AP) — Grain and soybean futures rose sharply Thursday on the Chicago Board of Trade.

A decline in the dollar against other currencies and a rally in precious metals futures triggered sympathetic buying in grains. The dollar's weakness in Europe led to brisk cash soybean sales in Rotterdam, analysts said.

An increase in corn shipments out of Chicago also was cited in explaining the rally.

A cheaper U.S. dollar makes dollar-priced grains look cheaper to foreign buyers, analysts said.

There was little other news to influence prices. Weather forecasts were clear for the harvest, which was reported progressing well if slightly behind schedule for this time of year.

At the close, soybeans were 20 to 30 cents higher, November $7.27¾; wheat was 11¾ to 14 cents higher, December $4.56; corn was 8¾ to 10 cents higher, December $2.85½; and oats were 5¼ to 6 cents higher, December $1.58¾.

Playful Professor Teaches Others About Fun

PROVO, Utah (AP) — He teaches grandmothers to dance with teen-agers and college students to play like 6-year-olds. He's the "professor of fun" of Provo, Utah, and he thinks people need to play more.

Alma Heaton, 65, a retired Brigham Young University physical education professor, has a veritable obstacle course in his backyard, with swings, slides and ropes. The daring can ride a makeshift tramway from the top of a tree house down 50 feet of cable to crash into waiting mattresses.

He has invented more than 1,000 games using things like old tires, steering wheels, broken baseball bats and pulleys.

Heaton has written 29 books that have sold more than 100,000 copies, and has produced record albums, movies and filmstrips, nearly all Mormon-oriented.

His latest books — "Disco With Donny and Marie" and "Close Dancing With Donny and Marie" — are in second printings. They feature entertainers Donny and Marie Osmond, members of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints.

"People have forgotten how to have fun," says Heaton. "We spend so much time learning to work, but the only reason we work is to have some leisure time to have fun. What's the purpose of working if you can't have fun."

The backyard has become a popular resort for neighborhood children who squeal and giggle as Heaton laughingly loads them onto a "pogo pole" or coaxes them over fear of their first ride on an elevated Tarzan-type swing.

Inside Heaton's basement, gamesters are strapped in a seat on a length of rubberized rope and launched slingshot-style to swing back and forth between the basement walls.

"I've had 300-pound football players on that one who beg to get off," Heaton chuckles.

Games fold out from the walls of the basement and the floor is tiled for shuffleboard, baseball and basketball.

The professor's games aren't just for kids. College students often come to the house as a respite from studies.

Heaton has games for every occasion, from small parties to gatherings of a thousand people. He uses games to teach religious and secular classes.

"I try to involve all five senses in the games," he says. "Whenever I teach anything I use a game. That way people remember."

A Mormon high priest, he teaches a class of fellow high priests at his local congregation. "The games work well with them," he says.

"It's the only way I can keep the old mossbags awake."

The professor's brand of fun is not always well-received. Once he went to a high school dance, planning to involve students in mixer dances. But, the students had other ideas.

"They stole my records, turned off the lights and talked over the microphone," he says. "I finally decided to let them play their own music and dance."

Heaton says he believes active and playful people don't have time to grow old. "Look at kids. A kid is always moving around, and he's doing it for a purpose — to learn. When we stop being active we don't learn."

Even in retirement, the professor's calendar is nearly full with requests for his services.

He recently received a query from Johnny Carson's "Tonight Show," and is planning games if he appears. "I'd like to put Johnny on the elastic rope, shoot him out over the audience and say, 'Here comes Johnny,'"

Almanac Amuses, Informs

DUBLIN, N.H. (AP) — Where but in the Old Farmer's Almanac could you find the weather forecast for Christmas Day and read the first chronicle of Jewish life in America?

The Christmas prognostication is in the 1980 edition of the almanac. "A Brief Account of the Persecution of Jews" was in the first edition — in 1792.

As surely as the autumn leaves begin to color New England's hills each year, 3 million copies of "America's oldest continuously published periodical" are on their way to newsstands and supermarkets around the country.

Within the 178 pages of the pocket-size paperback are tips for farmers and gardeners, tide tables, household hints, folksy stories, word games. And there are brief articles, such as one headlined "New Hope for the Dead," in which it is revealed by undertakers that human bodies keep longer than they used to because of all the preservatives in the modern diet.

But weather forecasts have been the almanac's chief appeal for 188 years, lately expanded to 16 regions of the country with specific predictions for three-to four-day periods.

"It's good fun," says Rob Trowbridge, the bald and beguiling proprietor of Yankee Inc., publisher of the almanac, the 700,000-circulation Yankee magazine and other publications. He presides over the almanac from a large, rambling, white-frame house that is the bustling headquarters of the publications in this picturebook New England town.

It bothers him not a bit that professional meteorologists sneeze at the almanac's weather predictions.

"Weather forecasters will knock it and say you can't prove this, you can't predict the weather," he says. "We make it pretty well known we think the weather is predictable."

But he allows that "trying to make day-to-day forecasts is impossible." Nevertheless, they're in the almanac to indulge readers who squawked one year when they were dropped.

"We were deluged with complaints," he recalls, "mothers who said: 'We want to know what it's going to be on June 21st for my daughter's wedding.'

"The best thing we do are seasonal forecasts — whether it's going to be really cold or really warm, really wet or really dry. That's predictable, in our opinion," says Trowbridge, a computer-armed businessman and former state senator.

This year, he predicts that east of the Mississippi, it will be cold and snowy in November and part of December, then mild and wet through January with frequent warm spells and below-average snowfalls. Normal winter conditions are expected to prevail in the first half of February, mild weather in the second half, then unusually cold and snowy in March, before winter bows out.

In the West, the almanac, not to be confused with another published in Maine, calls for cold and stormy weather alternating with sunny and mild conditions in November, mild and wet in December followed by a cold and stormy January and February, then a generally mild March.

As for Christmas Day, a nor'easter is expected in New England with heavy rain along the coast and snow inland.

In New York City, it could be cold with rain changing to snow.

In Washington on Christmas, rain.

On or about Christmas day, there'll be snow falling in the Ohio Valley, it will be cloudy and cold in Chicago and sunny and warm in Los Angeles.

Day Care Centers Topic Of Hearing

A public hearing regarding proposed changes in minimum standards for day care centers has been called for 1 p.m. to 7 p.m. Wednesday in the Garden and Arts Center. It will be conducted by the Texas Department of Human Resources, which licenses the centers.

Changes in character investigation of day care employees are the only ones proposed which could make the qualifications more stringent, say TDHR officials. They have received recommendations from providers, advisory groups and individuals in the field of child care.

The proposed standards also require reassignment or removal from direct child care activities, an employee indicted for a felony or child protection law.

Anyone interested may attend the hearing and give testimony on the proposed standards. For additional information, call the TDHR office at 762-8922.

Cloves, the pungent and oil-rich dried unopened buds of a tropical evergreen, are named after nails, which they somewhat resemble, from the Latin "clavus," for nail.
