Court strikes Sabbath work law

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Supreme Court, invoking the Constitution's demand for separation of church and state, said Wednesday that states may not force any employer to give workers their choice of a religious day off each week.

In an 8-1 ruling, the justices declared unconstitutional a Connecticut law that protected employees from retaliation for missing work on their religious Sabbath.

"This unyielding weighting in favor of Sabbath observers over all other interests contravenes a fundamental principle" of the Constitution, Chief Justice Warren E. Burger said for the court.

The state law "decreed that those who observe a Sabbath any day of the week as a matter of religious conviction must be relieved of the duty to work on that day, no matter what burden or inconvenience this imposes on the employer or fellow workers," he said.

Texas Attorney General Jim Mattox said he would review the court's ruling to see if it affects legislation repealing the state's Blue Law.

Texas lawmakers this year voted down the 1961 Blue Law that effectively forced most stores to close on Sundays. The repeal bill includes provisions guaranteeing that Sunday work won't interfere with religious services.

The decision in the Connecticut Sabbath case did not overturn a 1964 federal civil rights law requiring employers to allow workers a day off for their Sabbath if that does not cause "undue hardship" to the business.

Most states have laws similar to the federal statute and, according to legal authorities, only Connecticut had an absolute protection for Sabbath observance.

While Wednesday's ruling, therefore, appears to have limited impact, the court could have opened the way for a major overhaul of state laws if it had upheld the Connecticut statute.

A plague of locusts

Hopper hordes munching on area cotton crops

Herds of glutinous grasshoppers are feasting in the fields.

A larger than usual flock of the greedy varmints has appeared in West Texas this year, posing a threat to farmer's largest cash crop, King Cotton.

In Howard County and four of its neighbors, Glasscock, Martin, Mitchell and Borden counties, the grasshoppers are as large as their appetites.

"They're as big as your thumb," said rancher Bill Wilson, who raises Hereford cattle on the Borden-Howard County line.

"I never saw as large a crop of hoppers. I've seen 'em bigger, though," Wilson said. "They're thick. You see them everywhere

"As big as your thumb? No, they're bigger. They're at least two inches long," said Rick Minzenmayor, the extension service entomologist for Martin, Midland and Howard Counties.

Study targets Texas water quality

AUSTIN (AP) — A national organization has chosen Texas for a comprehensive study of rural water problems, and state agriculture officials say many of those troubles have been ignored for a long time.

"To most of us in Texas, getting a clear, clean glass of water simply means turning on the tap. But over 1½ million Texas farmers, ranchers, farmworkers and other rural residents still cannot take their water quality for granted," said Agriculture Commissioner Jim Hightower.

Hightower will head a 24-member task force overseeing the water study.

The study was announced Wednesday by Kathi Stanley, deputy director of the National Demonstration Water Project Inc., a Washington-based organization which has helped numerous rural areas develop and maintain water supply systems.

Hightower said an Environmental Protection Agency study indicated that two-thirds of rural water sources may be contaminated at levels greater than federal standards.

He said the task force would seek legislative and administrative steps to make certain the 1½ million rural Texans have access to quality water supplies.

As Texas has struggled with explosive growth, Hightower said, rural water quality problems appear to have been ignored.

"In planning for the future, we have forgotten that 10 percent of our population must still get its drinking water from individual wells.

For these 1½ million people, there currently is no government agency — state or federal — which

Roughneck safety law in question

WASHINGTON (AP) — A safety plan designed to protect 95,000 workers in the oil and gas well drilling industry may be scrapped, mainly because of objections to its cost.

The Office of Management and Budget is pressuring the Occupational Safety and Health Administration to replace the current plan with a new proposal, in effect starting the regulatory process all over again. The procedure could involve several more years of study and hearings.

For the past five years, OSHA has been trying to develop a regulation to reduce the 200 deaths and thousands of serious injuries that occur annually among drilling rig workers, who are engaged in one of the most dangerous occupations.

As of Tuesday, OSHA had made no announcement on what it intends to do. The parent Labor Department will have to decide in the next few weeks whether to challenge OMB's position.

An industry lobbying group challenged OSHA's proposal as soon as it was issued a year and a half ago and OMB now has sided with industry.

In a letter recently put in the public record and dated last Oct. 10, OMB's administrator for regulatory affairs, Douglas H. Ginsburg, told the Labor Department that "in light of the ... widespread criticism ... on this rule," OSHA should consider issuing a new proposal.

The industry objects to OSHA's proposal mainly because of its cost. OSHA says the proposed regulation would cost the industry $24 million a year. The International Association of Drilling

Comics now drawing large adult audience for new titles

FORT WORTH (AP) — Move over, Archie and Veronica. Comics aren't just for kids any more. Companies that gave kids of the 1930s and '40s adventures such as "Superman" and "Captain Marvel" now produce flashier funnies designed for an older — and wealthier — generation.

"There's no money in selling comic books for kids," said Trip Reynolds, 31, of Arlington, a comic book collector for 25 years. "Adults are the serious collectors."

Local experts estimate that between 50 percent and 60 percent of all comic books are purchased by people aged 15 to 25. The majority of those readers are men.

"Ninety percent of all comic books on the market today are super hero," said Craig Miller, 25, manager of Lone Star Comics in Arlington. "There aren't too many women interested in super hero comics."

Not only are more adults buying comics, more adults are collecting comics. Reynolds and Craig both said they have thousands of comic books in their private collections — such as "The X-Men," "Tales of the Teen Titans" and "Six From Sirius."

"I buy everything that comes in," said Tim Nolen, a comic book collector for 10 years and a back-issue employee at Lone Star Comics. "We usually get 10 to 20 titles (comic books) each week."

Nolen, 21, said he spends "a fair amount of my day" with his head buried in a comic book. Some collectors, like Miller, only read their favorite comics but buy other books for their collections.

"If I've been collecting a certain title since it started, I'll keep buying the title, even if the story has gotten boring," Miller said.

CRAIG MILLER, owner of Lone Star Comics in Fort Worth, inspects new shipment catered for adult readers.

At 75 cents a shot for most titles, comic books still are cheap entertainment — except for the serious collector. In 1983, Reynolds said he spent $1,368.46 — or about $26 a week — on comics.

Police Beat

Newspaper racks stolen

Three Big Spring Herald newspaper racks have been stolen since Saturday, according to police reports.

Circulation manager Chuck Benz told police the newspaper racks, which had been in front of the Furr's Supermarket on 11th Place, the Winn-Dixie store and the Wal-Mart stores on Gregg, were taken between 5:30 p.m. Saturday and 11 a.m. Wednesday.

The news racks were valued at $240 each, or $720 total.

Burglars made off with a television set and tools from Kirby's Dry Cleaners at 1003 State, D.B. Kirby told police.

Taken were a 19-inch television, valued at $400; a metal tool box and pipe dye, valued at $150; and pipe cutters, valued at $50.

The items were taken between 5:30 p.m. Tuesday and 7:30 a.m. Wednesday.

Jerri Just of 204 E. 11th Place told police someone damaged the front spoke wheel and chain sprocket on her 26-inch 10-speed bicycle at 7:30 p.m. Wednesday near Runnels Junior High School. Damage was estimated at $100.

Police Wednesday night arrested Roger Henry, 20, of 1505½ Main in the 800 block of Gregg on a warrant for assault.

Police early today arrested Morris Wayne Griffice, 70, of 1400 E. 18th at 4806 W. Highway 80 on suspicion of driving while intoxicated.

Arrested Wednesday afternoon by police was Tami Lou Jenkins, 22, of 1429 E. Sixth in the 400 block of E. Fourth on a warrant for theft.

Sheriff's Log

2 taken to state penitentiary

A Howard County sheriff's deputy transferred two men today to the Texas Department of Corrections to Huntsville.

Adam Vela, 24, of 402 N.W. 11th will resume serving a five year prison sentence set in December 1983 for a theft by appropriation conviction.

His parole was revoked last Monday after he was charged with violation of a peace bond and aggravated assault.

Ricardo T. Gomez, 25, of Ackerly was transferred back to the TDC after he was served a bench warrant last week at the state prison. He was transferred to Howard County jail and was "a potential witness" and "co-defendant" of Santos Duran Jr., 30, of Anton, said District Court Judge James Gregg.

Duran pleaded guilty last week in 118th District Court to a charge of delivering a controlled substance (methamphetamine). He was sentenced to 10 years at the TDC.

Big Spring Police transferred Tami Lou Jenkins, 22, of 1429 E. Sixth to county jail after she was arrested for theft under $200. She was released on $500 bond set by Melvin Fowler of the police department.

Deputies arrested Luciano Ruben Rodriguez, 36, of Route 1 on a warrant for fines that he owes the county. He was released after paying $186 to the county clerk's office.

Deputies arrested Janice Marie Banks, 27, of 1002 N. Main on a peace bond warrant issued from Justice of the Peace Willie Grant's office. She was released on $1,000 bond.

Police transferred William Benjamin Padgett, 23, of Mayo Ranch Motel to county jail after he was arrested and charged with forgery by passing. He was released on $10,000 bond set by the city.

Avel Abreo Ramirez, 28, of 1504 W. Cherokee pleaded guilty to a charge of unauthorized use of a motor vehicle in district court Wednesday morning. He was given five years probation by Gregg and later released.

Police transferred Roger Renee Henry, 20, of 1505½ Main to county jail after he was arrested for indecent exposure.

Police transferred Wayne G. Morris, 60, of 1400 E. 18th to county jail after he was arrested on suspicion of driving while intoxicated. He was released on $1,000 bond.

Guard who shot 7 won't be charged

HOUSTON (AP) — A security guard whose gunshots wounded seven people during a disturbance at an apartment complex will face no charges in the incident, a grand jury ruled.

A Harris County grand jury decided Wednesday not to indict Lester Cormier, 38, after hearing testimony from four witnesses, including two of the shooting victims. Seven of the nearly 50 people were wounded slightly by bullet fragments.

Water

Hightower cited several examples of the seriousness of water quality problems in the state, including:

A state Health Department official says at least half the approximately 3,000 water systems serving fewer than 500 people fail to meet minimum health standards each year.

Up to 40 percent of residences served by independent wells or small water systems may have bacteria levels greater than national standards. Nearly 2 percent of these drinking water systems are in violation of standards for swimming or water skiing.

In 1932, the health department said 51 of 86 public water systems in non-compliance because of high nitrate levels were located in rural areas.

In 71 counties, 5 percent or more of all households still lack indoor bathrooms.

The Texas Rural Water Task Force and its study will cost $150,000, with funding provided by the Ford Foundation and the William H. Donner Foundation, plus staff and other support from the agriculture department.

Contractors, an industry lobbying group with a membership of 800 firms, estimates the annual cost at nearly $600 million.

OSHA chief Robert A. Rowland said Tuesday through spokesman Jack McDavitt that because of the opposition to the rule from industry, Rowland had long ago decided to "take another look at" the proposal and is still doing so.

Rowland, who is resigning effective next Monday, has been OSHA director for the past year. McDavitt said he did not know whether Rowland would recommend going ahead with the drilling rule or starting the process over again.

Currently, some states have their own safety standards for well drilling. But the sole federal protection for workers in the oil and gas well and servicing industries is a set of general industry standards that apply to all workplaces, not just well-drilling sites.

"The death and injury experience in this industry is compelling evidence that workers are exposed to hazards which OSHA inadequately regulates through existing general industry standards," Barry White, the agency's director of safety standards, testified at a hearing on the drilling regulation.

Grasshoppers

Vealmore, Minzenmayor said. Some also have been spotted around the Grady school, while further south, St. Laurence and Garden City are knee-deep in the critters.

According to Minzenmayor, the grasshoppers stuffing their mandibles with cotton leaves in this area are lubber, or jumbo, grasshoppers.

The rapacious 'hoppers are chomping on the newly formed leaves on young cotton plants, stripping them of their ability to convert sunlight into energy via photosynthesis, Minzenmayor said.

"Grasshoppers can damage seedling cotton up to the second and third true-leaf stage," Minzenmayor said.

But the damage is worse when it strips the first pair of leaves, the cotyledon leaves. "After it develops more leaves, it can stand to lose some and still produce enough energy to survive," he said.

"Some farmers have had to replant two or three times. Some have spent several thousand dollars on chemicals," Minzenmayor said. "They're trying to control them just to get the cotton up."

Once the cotton grows taller, the hoppers will no longer be able to reach its leaves, he said.

Because the jumbo hoppers can't fly, farmers are having a little easier time battling them, he said.

Farmers are using one of two methods to fight the pests. They are crop-dusting fields aerially with insecticides. Or, they are digging a ditch around the perimeter of the field and putting out bait to lure them into the ditch.

The most successful method, Minzenmayor said, has been using Sevin bait or Malathion ULV to lure them into ditches. However, he and the extension service do not endorse any chemicals, he said.

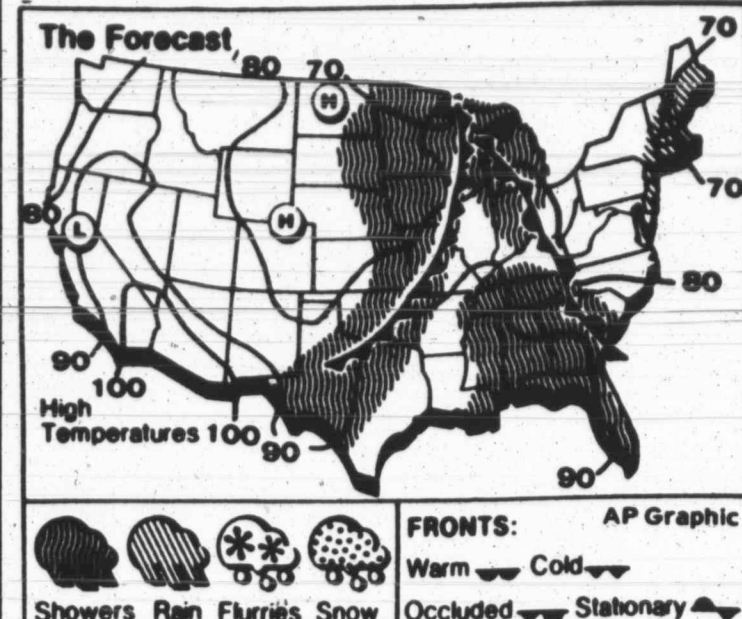

Using chemicals, however, presents some problems because the fields most chomped on by grasshoppers are ones surrounded by pastures.

"The pastures aren't always owned by the farmers. A lot of the chemicals sprayed on the fields aren't labeled for use in the pasture," Minzenmayor said. "We encourage farmers and ranchers to keep in contact, especially on the chemicals used."

But no matter how hard they try, farmers will never eradicate the hoppers completely, he said. What they can do is try to kill enough before they finish mating and begin burying eggs, which should start during the first part of July.

Although the grasshoppers may be in the pastures, Minzenmayor said they shouldn't pose too much of a problem to ranchers.

Weather

Local

Unusually chilly temperatures clung to the Crossroads Country Thursday morning as the mercury hovered in the 60s and 70s. Warming weather was expected for the weekend when a slow moving cold front, which left 2 inches of rain here in two days, moves out to the southeast.

State

Scattered showers and thunderstorms dotted portions of Northwest Texas before dawn today.

Most of the shower activity was spotted in a band from Wichita Falls to near the Dallas-Fort Worth area. Rains extended westward through Stephenville and Abilene to just west of Midland.

Partly cloudy skies were the rule across the rest of Texas.

The showers were triggered by a cool front that stretched across the state from near Texarkana to just south of El Paso. A few other showers were noted just ahead of the front near Del Rio.

Pre-dawn temperatures ranged from 61 at Amarillo to 80 at Laredo. Most readings were in the 60s and 70s.

Behind the front, northerly and northeasterly winds at 10 to 20 mph were noted, while southerly winds at 5 to 15 mph were noted ahead of the front.

The forecast called for scattered showers over Southwest, Central and East Texas. Otherwise, partly cloudy skies were expected.

Museum's great train robbery may not get on the right track

The Heritage Museum could be the sight for a great train robbery on Saturday at 11:30 a.m.

That is, if students in curator Neil Allen's Big Spring Adventure Class decide to stage it.

Saturday is graduation day for the nine students, ages 6 to 9, who participated in the four-session West Texas history class sponsored by the museum.

The class began June 8 and will conclude with a final session at 8 a.m. on Saturday. At this time, students will make their final decision on the play they will use to show the history they learned, Allen said.

The children are sure they want to be in costume for their parents who will join their class at 11:30, but they are not sure whether a train robbery will be the type production they perform, Allen said.

"They've changed their minds several times," he said about the children and the play's topic.

The subjects studied by the class were: Native Americans in West Texas, Big Spring Pioneers and Cowboys and Cattle.

He said he wanted the children to be completely in charge of the majority of the program they present, because he felt the best way to find out what they learned is from them.

During the class, students used pioneer tools, ground corn, dressed in antique costumes, saw slide shows and visited the Pottin House.

After the children put on their play, whether it be a train robbery or not, they will receive certificates from Allen.

Typhoon rakes S. China

HONG KONG — Typhoon Hal has killed or injured 11 people, stranded more than 100,000 others and inundated farmland in China's southern Fujian province.

The hardest hit areas were five counties in southern Fujian. The storm washed away bridges and brought down telephone lines. Typhoon Hal killed two people and left five missing on Sunday in Taiwan opposite Fujian. It earlier left three dead in the Philippines.

U.K. widens IRA search

TORQUAY, England — Police evacuated staff and guests from six seaside hotels in this southwestern resort on suspicion that an IRA bomber had been a guest at one of them. However, a search of the hotel turned up no bomb.

Police continued a nationwide bomb hunt, which coupled with a series of arrests was designed to smash an alleged IRA plot to bomb 12 resorts during the peak of the summer holiday season.

Agca refuses to testify

ROME — Papal assailant Mehmet Ali Agca refused to testify today at the trial of seven men he has accused of plotting to kill Pope John Paul II.

The 27-year-old Turk did not show up, as is his right, and wrote the court from his jail cell that he wanted to "think about" whether to continue testifying. In 12 days on the stand, Agca has given erratic and contradictory testimony.

U.S. may aid jet search

CORK, Ireland — Unmanned U.S. submarines may be called in to search for flight recorders from the Air-India Boeing 747 that crashed into the Atlantic Ocean off the Irish coast, if sonar can locate the recorders, an investigator said.

The HMS Challenger of the British navy continued scanning the ocean bed 120 miles southwest of Ireland with sonar today, seeking the recorders and the bulk of the wreckage. The plane went down Sunday on its way from Canada to India, killing 329 people.

Blacks injured in riots

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa — Seven blacks wounded in a series of grenade blasts that killed eight men were under police guard in hospitals today. Police said the victims may have blown themselves up in coordinated terrorist attacks in three black townships.

Police headquarters in Pretoria said sporadic rioting continued late Wednesday and early today.

'End of this thing'

Shiite leader says hostage ordeal almost over

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Shiite Moslem leader Nabih Berri said today that the two-week-old ordeal of the 39 American hijack hostages in Beirut was nearing an end.

He talked to Western television reporters at his heavily fortified house in west Beirut minutes after coming from a 30-minute meeting with French Embassy First Secretary Marcel L'Augel.

"I'm waiting for an answer. Until now I don't receive any answer from U.S. government," Berri said in English. "But I think we're in the end, end of this thing."

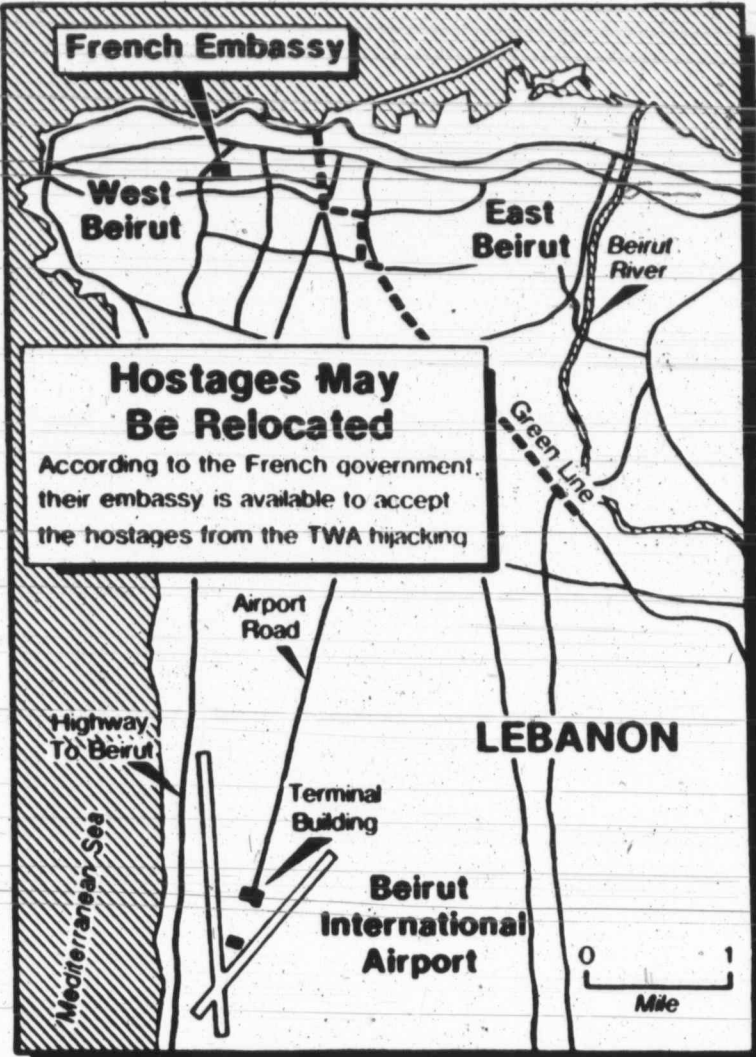

Beirut radio stations said France had offered to house the 39 Americans, taken hostage in the hijacking of a TWA airliner on June 15, and two kidnapped Frenchmen at its west Beirut embassy for two days on condition Israel freed 735 Lebanese prisoners.

But the French Foreign Ministry in Paris issued a statement saying: "We cannot act as substitute jailers. ... We are ready to welcome liberated people, not hostages."

L'Augel said after meeting Berri that "moving the hostages to an embassy would be a long-term matter. It will take a lot of talks to get them there."

In Bern, Switzerland, the government said it was studying an offer from Berri to transfer the American hostages to the Swiss Embassy.

The wife of one of the two kidnapped Frenchmen said French Foreign Minister Roland Dumas told her today that her husband, magazine writer Jean-Paul Kaufmann, and the other Frenchman, scientific researcher Michel Seurat, had been handed over to Berri.

Gunmen kidnapped the two Frenchmen on the highway to Beirut airport May 22. L'Augel, asked about a report earlier that Kaufmann and Seurat had been turned over to Berri, said it was "absolutely not true."

L'Augel said after meeting Berri that the two Frenchmen "are in good shape and alive. They are here, but I don't know exactly where they are."

White House mum on hijack news

WASHINGTON (AP) — An administration news blackout, coupled with intensifying contacts with Syria and other countries to win the freedom of the 39 American hostages in Beirut, suggests diplomatic efforts are at a particularly sensitive stage.

Hints that the 13-day old drama may have reached a turning point revolved around comments Wednesday by Senate Foreign Relations Committee Chairman Richard Lugar and the Rev. Jesse Jackson and — before the blackout — by White House spokesman Larry Speakes.

The administration-wide secrecy lid, a tactic often applied when a negotiating effort may be bearing fruit, was another indication of diplomatic movement.

Secretary of State George Shultz briefly broke the administration's silence on the subject Wednesday night with a call for the release of all American hostages in Lebanon — those captured in the hijacking of TWA Flight 847, as well as seven Americans abducted in recent months in Beirut.

"We are working intensely on this matter and we insist on release of our hostages, all 46 of them, immediately and unconditionally," Shultz said at a San Francisco gathering commemorating the 40th anniversary of the signing of the United Nations charter.

But after his speech, Shultz was tight-lipped about the hostage situation, refusing to answer any questions about it.

Pesticide plant ablaze

THERMAL, Calif. — A pesticide plant blaze that kept 2,200 residents of two desert communities away from home today was a "carbon copy" of what may have been an arson fire that forced 7,500 people to flee four days earlier in Anaheim, officials say.

More than 120 people were treated Wednesday for chemical burns and respiratory ailments from the fire at the Wilbur-Ellis Co. plant, where authorities were allowing the fire to burn out by itself.

NEW YORK — Picket lines that ringed the city's poshest hotels for 26 days were gone today as workers prepared to ratify a new five-year contract that calls for a 30 percent increase in wages and benefits.

Cheese deaths top 50

LOS ANGELES — As the number of deaths and stillbirths linked to a bacteria found in tainted cheese rose to 51, prosecutors announced a criminal probe into whether the manufacturer intentionally used unpasteurized milk.

Pandas born in Tokyo, Mexico City

By The Associated Press

Tokyo's first panda cub was born at that city's Ueno Zoo today, a day after twin pandas were born in Mexico City.

Zoo officials said the cub was 6 to 8 inches long and weighed about 3½ ounces. Like all baby pandas, it was pink. Huan Huan and her cub were healthy, they said.

Katsuichi Nagayama, an official of the Tokyo park department, said the baby born to the zoo's giant panda Huan Huan is only the eighth born in captivity outside China, the home of the rare mammal.

Nagayama said the sex of the baby had not yet been determined.

The 220-pound, 12-year-old mother was artificially inseminated March 9 and during the past few weeks she began to show signs she might be pregnant. She had little appetite for bamboo shoots, pandas' favorite meal, and began preparing a nest for the baby, zoo officials said.

U.S. oil reserve: fill 'er up, please

The current hostage crisis in Lebanon should be a reminder to all that America's fortunes can quickly change in the Middle East and that the U.S. government should always be prepared for the worst. This includes protection against another oil shortage.

A radical Moslem Shiite faction using innocent American tourists as pawns in a Lebanese power struggle may not appear to have much of a connection to oil supplies. But terrorist attacks in recent years have been directed against vulnerable Americans and American institutions. Even if an OPEC oil glut has lessened the fear of another oil embargo, falling OPEC production and rising demand can always make the United States vulnerable once again. And given the instability in the Middle East, from the Iranian border to the Israeli border, one can never rule out disruptions to oil supplies.

That is why it is so important for Congress and the Reagan administration to continue filling up the U.S. Strategic Petroleum Reserve, established in the 1970s during the last energy crisis.

As of September, the reserve, contained in salt caverns in Texas and Louisiana, will hold about 490 million barrels of oil, or enough to meet U.S. domestic needs for approximately three months. This is less than half the amount envisioned when the SPR program began.

Fortunately, both the U.S. House and Senate have passed similar measures to continue the SPR program for another four years and fill up SPR tanks to at least the three-quarters level.

Until now, the Reagan administration opposed an extension, arguing that the $7.3 billion in additional outlays for the reserve cannot be justified during a time of deficits. Others have ridiculed the SPR because technical problems remain in getting the oil back out of the caverns.

These objections are not good enough. Curbing the SPR at a time when oil prices are low — compared to what they were a few years ago and may become in a few years hence — makes little sense.

In his cautious response to the hostage dilemma, President Reagan has said, "We must not allow our people to be placed at risk simply because they are blessed in being citizens of this great republic."

We agree, so fill 'er up, Mr. President.

Tennis sex was Freud's racket

A very revealing book about tennis has just crossed my desk. It's titled "Sex as a Sublimation for Tennis" (Workman Press, $4.95) and was written by Theodore Saretsky, a Freudian specialist at Adelphi University and full-time tennis fanatic.

Saretsky told me on the phone, "It was Freud who first wrote that 'all human beings are motivated by a primal lust which translates itself into the endless and fruitless search for an unused tennis court on the weekends.'"

Saretsky said he lucked into all of Freud's writings on the subject when he bought a trunk at a tennis memorabilia sale at Sotheby's in 1990. The trunk contained some of the master's greatest work, including "The Myth of the Sweet Spot," "Interpretation of Tennis Dreams," "The Primitive Taboo of the Foot Fault" and "The Nightmare of the Canceled Tennis Game: A Study in Obesity, Perversion and Suicide."

This year Saretsky decided to share this gold mine with the public.

The professor said one of his most fascinating discoveries was that Freud lost interest in the sex act when he discovered that a tennis game lasted much longer.

Saretsky has found Freud's theories invaluable because more and more patients are coming to him with tennis problems rather than sexual ones. Up until recently experts in the psychoanalytical profession refused to accept tennis court mental cases because they were too difficult to cure.

"The hardest thing for a patient with a tennis neurosis or psychosis is to find an analyst who will take the time to treat him," Saretsky said. "Freud discovered the more a patient talked about his deep-seated tennis problems the more anxious the analyst was to go out on the court and hit a few balls himself. This attitude is diametrically opposed to how the analyst feels when he listens to a patient talk about sexual dysfunction."

Saretsky says, "Freud took one of the great steps in modern analysis by stating categorically, 'The only way to know one's patients is to play tennis with them.'"

I don't have the space here to reveal everything that Professor Saretsky says Freud said about tennis other than to print a few highlights.

One is Freud observed that individuals who immerse themselves in work and who stress family obligations and engage in extensive sexual activity, to the point where they are prevented from playing sufficient tennis, will suffer from severe tension anxiety and nosebleeds.

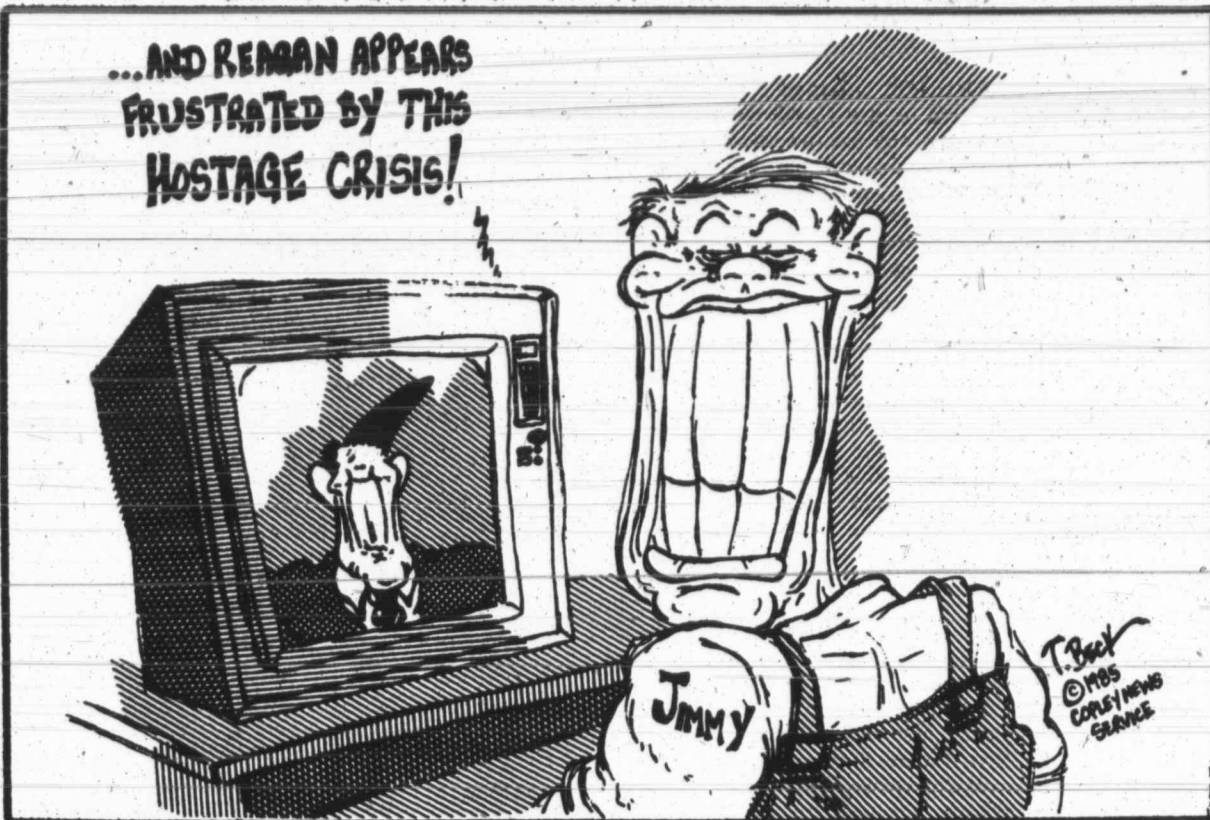

Another is that people who are constantly measuring the height of the net have a paranoid delusion that the net is higher on their side of the court.

When a distinguished colleague, W.W. Wilner, after years of research, arrived at the conclusion that tennis spelled backwards was "sin-net" it confirmed Freud's scientific theory that there are murky, mysterious forces buried alive in the human psyche.

As soon as he checked it out, Freud rejected his own classical view of infant sexuality as the mainspring of the human condition and replaced it with the dictum that "tennis truths lie everywhere; they are the essence of being."

This led him to devote the remaining years of his life to studying the lingering fantasy of the empty tennis can.

Boondoggle project's claws hooked in federal budget

WASHINGTON — The federal budget is encumbered with pet projects that cling to it like barnacles. We have joined J. Peter Grace in a campaign to scrape off these expensive increments.

But every government project, no matter how wasteful, has acquired a constituency of influential beneficiaries. They swarm like termites out of the woodwork at the slightest threat to their pampered programs.

The National Endowment for Democracy, for example, is an eminently expendable barnacle. It has a fancy name and a glorious purpose — spreading the good word about democracy to the rest of the world — but it's really just a multi-million-dollar boondoggle.

We've written about the endowment's extravagances in the past: its apparently incurable weakness for funding junkets to exotic places and its frequent duplication of programs already being handled by other federal agencies.

As a result of the publicity over these abuses, the endowment has agreed to change some of its practices to get its $19.3 million 1986 budget through Congress without undue difficulty.

But the basic problem remains: The National Endowment for Democracy, for all its laudable goals, has no business being funded by the taxpayers. Yet it was shrewdly set up so that it is almost impossible to kill.

The endowment's four principal money-disbursing "institutes" are controlled by the Republican Party, the Democratic Party, the U.S. Chamber of Commerce and the AFL-CIO. This evenhanded distribution of dollars guarantees the agency support from both sides of the aisle at budget time — or whenever the endowment's existence or excesses are threatened by reform.

Just ask Sen. Ernest Hollings, D-S.C. He was one of five Senate and House members who met to discuss the billion-dollar shortage in appropriations for the State, Commerce and Justice departments. Hollings reportedly questioned the wisdom of spending public funds on get-out-the-vote drives in foreign elections when, for example, poor Americans are being denied legal services because of budgetary restrictions.

A source told our associate Vicki Warren that when the subject of the endowment was raised, everyone present lambasted the agency except Sen. Paul Laxalt, R-Nev., the president's staunchest Senate friend.

Hollings soon got a letter from Brian Atwood, a former member of the Democratic Senatorial Campaign Committee who is now with the National Democratic Institute for International Affairs, which gets $1.5 million from the endowment. The letter extolled the endowment and urged the senator to drop his opposition to it.

Another opponent who heard from Atwood was Rep. John Conyers, D-Mich., who also was lobbied by labor and business representatives. Conyers wants to cut the endowment's budget because he's concluded that funds it gave to a labor institute were used to back right-wing political parties in El Salvador, Honduras and Nicaragua, and a right-wing labor group in Chile.

And when Rep. Merv Dymally, D-Calif., attacked the endowment on grounds that it was unrepresentative of all Americans, particularly minorities, he was told bluntly that "labor didn't want the endowment's funding delayed," according to a congressional source. Dymally, an endowment board member, dropped his opposition.

Footnote: Despite heavy lobbying, the Senate is trying to cut approximately $2 million from the endowment and to stop all funding for the Republican and Democratic institutes.

FUDDLE FACTORY: The proposed "Competition in Contracting Act," passed by the House April 1 and now before a Senate subcommittee, may contain an unanticipated April Fools' joke on the taxpayers. It's intended to save money by eliminating "sole-source" government contracts, but in one area competitive bidding could cost the government dearly.

The Advertising Council, an industry-wide association, gives the government $50 million-plus of free public-service advertising each year through its members across the country. It produces television commercials at cost — as a sole-source contractor — and coordinates their distribution, with volunteer groups paying for the air time on local stations.

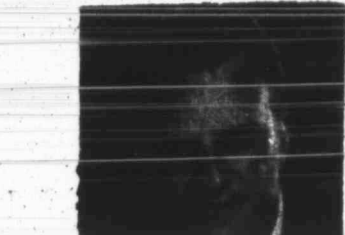

But because the Ad Council goes first-class when it contracts for production of a TV commercial, lean and hungry competitors could easily submit lower bids and get the contract if the pending legislation becomes a law. But, as the council points out, its ability to get free air time through its nationwide network is unique; no independent outfit could hope to do that.

When our reporter Mark Woolley asked a staff member of the Senate subcommittee handling the bill about the potential cost of media coverage, he was told it "could be a problem," and that it might indeed "cost big bucks" in the future for air time the government now gets free.

Billy Graham Church alone not enough

DEAR DR. GRAHAM: I have always been active in my church, because that is what I was taught to do when I was growing up. But recently I have drifted away from it and quit going. I know I should be concerned about this, but honestly, I don't miss it and find my life is just as full without it. Why do you think I feel this way, if church is supposed to be so important? — Mrs. T.B.C.

DEAR MRS. T.B.C.: Yes, church is important — but it may be that it has little meaning for you because you have never really committed your life to Jesus Christ and made Him the center of your life. You see, church activities alone will never give us eternal life, and if we just go through the motions of going to church without realizing that Christ should be at the center, then all those activities will be meaningless.

Going to church without having Christ in our hearts is somewhat like baking a cake but leaving out one of the key ingredients — it will be flat and tasteless. Let me suggest, then, that Jesus Christ may be the "missing ingredient" in your life. The Bible says our greatest need is to be spiritually renewed, or "born again" by the Spirit of God. "Jesus declared, 'I tell you the truth, unless a man is born again, he cannot see the kingdom of God'" (John 3:3). We need to have our sins forgiven, and we need to be restored to a right relationship with God. And this can happen because God has made it possible through Jesus Christ.

You need Christ — whether you sense your need or not. You need Him each day to guide you and help you, and you need Him also because someday you will die and face God's judgment. Open your heart to Christ and invite Him into your life as your Lord and Savior. Then seek out a church where Christ is preached and you can grow spiritually. With Christ, you will find a new joy in being with God's people in the church.

Post key to club's stand on water plan

By JAY ROSSER

Harte-Hanks Austin Bureau AUSTIN — Texas environmentalists are hinting that politics may play an important factor in deciding whether they will oppose or take no stand on a proposed billion-dollar state water plan heading for voters in November.

Leaders of the Lone Star Chapter of the Sierra Club — which helped defeat a proposed water plan in 1981 — have written club members informing them that group executives aren't likely to reach even a tentative decision on the latest plan until July 20.

And that decision, club executives said, could be changed depending on who is chosen to fill a vacant seat on the Texas Water Commission effective Sept. 1.

Ken Kramer, the group's Capitol lobbyist, said Tuesday that it is unlikely the group will support or campaign for the package. The Sierra Club, he said, has long opposed massive increases in state funding for water development projects.

In November, voters will decide the fate of two constitutional amendments proposed by the 1985 Texas Legislature that would authorize the use of more than $1 billion in state bonds and revenue for water projects and conservation efforts.

The letter was penned by Stuart Henry, water resources chairman for the club, and Kramer. The organization claims nearly 14,000 dues-paying members across Texas.

"We want someone who certainly has some environmental sensitivity."

Dwayne Holman, appointments aide to Gov. Mark White

Kramer and Henry said Gov. Mark White's new appointee to the three-member Texas Water Commission could sway the group between neutrality and opposition to the plan. That commission, because of a massive overhaul of the state's water agencies ordered by the 1985 Legislature, will be the chief agency responsible for appropriating state water and all enforcement activities.

"The next water commissioner, along with the present two members, will be in a position to set a number of precedents in interpretation of the provisions of the water package," Henry and Kramer wrote.

They said they will urge Gov. Mark White, who is charged with appointing the new commissioner, to select "a person with a strong record of interest and activity in the area of environmental protection."

Dwayne Holman, who gathers and reviews White's list of candidates for political appointments, said the governor's office has been studying the water commission seat "very superficially."

White identified water as his chief legislative priority in 1985 and, said Holman, the Sierra Club's concerns will be considered.

"We want someone who certainly has some environmental sensitivity," Holman said.

Club leaders, Henry and Kramer said, also are waiting until water law experts contacted by the organization have time to study the plan.

Central to those studies, the pair wrote, is the effectiveness of provisions designed to ensure that a portion of the fresh water stored in some state reservoirs be reserved for release to coastal bays and estuaries to lower salinity levels.

Bays and estuaries — generally located where rivers reach the Gulf Coast — are major nurseries for a host of coastal marine species that cannot tolerate high salt levels.

Work on that analysis, Kramer and Henry noted, isn't expected to be completed until mid-July. The results could form the foundation of a tentative Sierra Club position on the plan to be discussed at the group's executive committee meeting July 20.

The state's League of Women Voters, which also successfully urged voters to reject the 1981 water plan, also is expected to delay a decision on whether to support the 1985 proposal until September, said Catherine Perrine, the league's director of legislative affairs.

Home insurance rates may drop

Harte-Hanks Austin Bureau
AUSTIN — Homeowners' property insurance costs in Big Spring and many area cities would decrease an average of 6.3 percent if a staff proposal presented Wednesday is accepted by the State Board of Insurance.

The board took the recommendation under advisement following a two-hour presentation by the staff and the Texas Insurance Advisory Association, an industry group that proposed even higher homeowners' rates.

Board Chairman Lyndon Olson did not say when a ruling on the new maximum rates might be made. A staff spokeswoman said the board could make a decision as early as Thursday, but that would be unlikely.

Under the staff's insurance proposal, homeowners' insurance rates statewide would rise an average of 6.7 percent for a $58 million hike in annual premiums.

Those who rent, however, would see an average drop of 25 percent or a $23 million cut in annual premiums, while farm and ranch coverage would increase only 4 percent for a $1 million annual premium hike.

The industry wants a 15.8 percent average hike in homeowners' coverage, a 17.2 percent decrease in renters' insurance and a 15.8 percent increase in farm and ranch coverage.

Losses from Hurricane Alicia in 1983, tornado and hail damage in North and West Texas and a harsh 1983-84 winter prompted the call for rate increases in many areas of the state, insurance board staffers said.

When adopted, any new rates would apply to those policies sold or renewed after Dec. 1. Many companies offer rates below the maximum allowed, however.

Under the staff proposal, a one-year basic homeowners' policy in Big Spring would decrease from $410 to $384 on a $50,000 brick veneer home, from $568 to $531 on a $75,000 home and from $715 to $670 on a $100,000 home. The exact cost depends on the type of structure and other variables.

Tenant or renter's insurance would drop by 25 percent and fire and extended coverage on a $75,000 home in Big Spring would decrease by 17.3 percent from $451 to $373.

In addition, the cost of farm and ranch insurance would increase by an average of 4 percent statewide and 4.2 percent in Howard County.

Staff actuary Kenneth Arnold noted that the average rates for each area apply only within the city limits of towns with professional fire fighters.

Area receives 2-inch rainfall in 2 days

June rainfall totals continue to rise in the area as over an inch was reported from Wednesday showers, a significant increase over the six-tenths of an inch received during the entire month in 1984.

Wednesday showers came while the area was under flash flood watch issued by the National Weather Service. And Big Spring received another inch of rain Tuesday.

The highest two-day total for the area was 1.75 inches, which was reported in Big Spring. Wednesday rainfall amounts from across the Crossroads Country ranged from 1.1 rain in Forsan to a trace reported in Coahoma. Luther received no additional rain yesterday.

The U.S.-Big Spring Field Station officially recorded .14 of an inch of rain for Wednesday.

Woman injured in I-20 collision

A Big Spring woman was taken to Malone-Hogan Hospital for treatment of injuries she sustained in a two-car accident this morning on the Interstate 20 service road near the Cosden Oil & Refinery Co.

Department of Public Safety Trooper Glenn Redmon said the woman was expected to be released later from the hospital.

Janice Elaine Sipes, 32, of Midway Mobile Home Park was cited for failure to yield right-of-way at a controlled intersection in the accident that occurred on the north service road of Interstate 20 and the Midway Exit Ramp.

Redmon said that Sipes was traveling eastbound on the service road and struck a pickup driven by Dennis Jones, 34, of Colorado City, who was exiting the interstate. The left front end of Sipes' car struck the left rear of Jones' truck, causing him to veer off into the north bar ditch.

Redmon said Sipes' car spun around on the roadway as a result of the collision.

Jones was not injured in the accident.
• A 36-year-old Big Spring man remains in the hospital today after a single-vehicle accident Wednesday.

John Reid, 36, of Route 2 was admitted to the Veterans Administration Medical Center Wednesday after being transferred from Malone-Hogan Hospital, according to hospital spokesmen.

The VA hospital said Reid was listed in stable condition this morning.

Also injured in the motorcycle accident Wednesday was Reid's daughter, Cassie Reid, 15, also of Route 2. She was treated and released from Malone-Hogan Hospital, according to a spokesman there.

The accident occurred at 11:52 a.m. on the north service road of Interstate 20 west of the Highway 87 intersection, according to police reports.

The Reids were traveling east on the north service road on a black Suzuki motorcycle.

According to the report, the motorcycle struck the southside curb several times before it jumped the curb and landed on the median.

Barcelona picked as beauty spot

The Barcelona Apartments at 538 Westover have been picked by the Chamber of Commerce as the commercial beauty spot in Big Spring for June.

The 124-unit complex, managed by Sam Sizemore, is owned by Balcors Property Management, a subsidiary of American Express.

The Spanish architecture apartments, located off the northeast point of Scenic Mountain, were constructed over 12 years ago, Sizemore said.

Recent improvements have been made to the apartments landscaping and tenant quality of life, Sizemore said.

NOTICE OF INTENT TO IMPLEMENT RATES

General Telephone Company of the Southwest in accordance with the Public Utility Regulatory Act and the Rules of the Public Utility Commission of Texas gives notice of its intent to implement new exchange access rates for the provision of shared tenant and tenant resale services.

These proposed rates are applicable to customers of General Telephone Company of the Southwest, excluding hotel/motel customers, who provide local exchange telephone service of General Telephone Company of the Southwest to their tenants or patrons on a resale or shared use basis. This resale or sharing arrangement is normally provided utilizing a customer-provided PABX or other similar stored control switch capable of common control processing or other features commonly associated with a PABX "Smart" switch.

These proposed rates are designed to recover costs on a usage basis for local exchange telephone service access and are identical to General Telephone's "Optional Measured Service" rates. The monthly access rate will be $28.95 per trunk line and the usage rates are as follows:

Over	Up To and Including	Band	Set Up	Full Rate Period Each Minute
0	7 miles	A	$.025	$.015
7	14 miles	B	.035	.021
14	21 miles	C	.050	.030
21	28 miles	D	.070	.042
28		E	.090	.054

As this is a new service offering, we are unable to determine the number of customers who may be affected. Currently, there are no known prospective customers. Until any customer utilizes this new offering, there will be no effect on the revenues of the telephone company, and in any event, the telephone company does not expect revenues to be affected by more than 2 1/2 percent. These proposed rates, where applicable, will provide tariffed local exchange access to customers who then will provide shared or resale services to tenants.

These proposed rates have been suspended by the Public Utility Commission of Texas and will become effective as proposed or modified by order of the Commission on a date to be determined by the commission.

The proposed rate schedule is on file with the Commission for public inspection and is also available at any business office of General Telephone Company of the Southwest. Persons who wish to intervene or otherwise participate in these proceedings should notify the commission as soon as possible. A request to intervene, participate, or for further information should be mailed to the Public Utility Commission of Texas, 7800 Shoal Creek Boulevard, Suite 400N Austin, Texas 78757. Further information may also be obtained by calling the Public Utility Commission Consumers Affairs Division at (512)458-0223 or (512)458-0227, or (512)458-0221 teletypewriter for the deal.

Dear Abby

Wife upset about husband's habit

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I have been married less than a year and we really do love each other, but whenever we are out in public he "eyes" every attractive woman he sees. He's very handsome, and of course these women look back at him, which irritates me. I feel unattractive and inferior, although I know I'm not. We have talked endlessly about this. He says it's "normal" and I am nuts.

Abby, I don't check out other men. In restaurants, his eyes are everywhere but on me. When we're shopping his head is always turning to get a better look at some pretty woman. He blames my attitude on the fact that my mother divorced my father because he was a girl-watcher and philanderer.

Do other women feel this way? What do they do? Can my husband change? Should he? Should I try to change? If so, how? I hate myself for hating my husband for making me so miserable. And finally, does girl-watching go hand-in-hand with infidelity? He's never been unfaithful as far as I know.

If you advise counseling, where can I go if I can't afford a psychologist once a week at $50 an hour? Please help me. Except for this one fault, he's a wonderful man, but I can't live like this.

WATCHING HIM WATCHING HER

DEAR WATCHING: A man who eyes strange women in a way that causes them to look back is either consciously or unconsciously sending her a message.

I agree, you can't live like that, nor should you.

Do other women feel this way? Yes. What do they do? Some of them go on making themselves (and their husbands) miserable, but the smart ones realize that they can't change anyone except themselves, so they contact a local mental health facility and arrange for low-cost counseling at a price they can afford to pay.

Also, some husbands can — and do — change, but not those who insist that girl-watching is "natural" and their wives are "nuts" to resent it.

DEAR ABBY: I am writing for all the tea lovers and hope the restaurant owners will take note.

Most restaurants offer as many refills as a coffee drinker wishes, but just try to get a refill for a cup of hot tea — or glass of iced tea — and see what happens.

The tea drinker usually gets one tea bag with his tea, and if he wants to reuse the tea bag for a second cup he must ask for more water, which he eventually gets, but he can't expect a second tea bag at no charge. I could bring my own tea bags and ask for water, but that would look tacky.

Maybe it's time for another Boston Tea Party.

TEA LOVER

DEAR TEA LOVER: I think your suggestion is a good one, and not at all "tacky." Since tea bags take up practically no space, carry a spare in your purse or wallet.

You have my blessing. And if you get hassled, have your tea — and my sympathy.

DEAR ABBY: A friend of mine (I'll call him Charlie) was walking down the street reading your column when a car hit him. The driver said Charlie had walked against the light, right into the car's path. Now Charlie is all banged up.

If it hadn't been for your column, Abby, Charlie would have blamed himself for not paying attention. Instead, he hired a real sharp lawyer to sue you. After all, you should have put a warning in your column to let people know that it's dangerous to read "Dear Abby" in traffic. Right? Sorry.

ANOTHER CHARLIE'S PAL

Dr. Donohue

EKG won't always detect past attacks

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: Is it true that an EKG will always indicate whether the person has had a prior heart attack, no matter how far in the past? — S.J.

Most of the time it will, especially if it is taken within a year or a year and a half of the attack. And this is true of even one of the so-called "silent" attacks. But we are learning that the reliability is not as great as once thought.

With the years the abnormal signal showing a past infarction (heart attack) can be hidden. Now we think that even under the best circumstances the chances of the EKG picking up heart attack signals are about 80 percent.

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: I have multiple heart arrhythmias, including what are called ventricular ectopic beats and a 2:1 block. What does the 2:1 block mean? — J.E.C.

First a couple of definitions to help other readers. Arrhythmias are irregularities in the heart's normal tempo. Ventricular refers to the lower heart chambers. Upper chambers are referred to as atrial.

Ventricular ectopic beats begin in the lower chambers. They should normally start in the upper chambers. And that is the meaning of ectopic (occurring in an abnormal place).

Now, to the 2:1 block. This is a different problem. It means that for every two beats that begin in the upper chamber, only one gets down to the lower one, the ventricle. I would have to know more about your specific case to comment further.

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: What is considered a normal amount of urine production in a day? — Mrs. W.J.B.

With normal fluid intake it should be about one and a half quarts a day.

CONFIDENTIAL FOR MRS. D.H. — All men have erections during sleep, and not because of sexual dreams. There are bursts of involuntary nerve impulses during sleep that produce erection. Determination of nocturnal erection is one way of finding out if impotence is psychological or physical.

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: Can you comment on Plummer-Vinson syndrome, where there are cobwebs in the throat? Who gets this problem, and what can be done for it? — Mrs. J.S.

The typical Plummer-Vinson patient is a middle-aged woman who has difficulty swallowing along with an iron-deficiency anemia. The cause of the swallowing difficulty are webs of fibrous tissue that block the entrance to the esophagus. When iron is given and levels restored to normal the webs often disappear. If that doesn't work they can be broken down with a special instrument inserted down the throat.

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: I have been told that aluminum chloride is good as an underarm deodorant. Is that so? And where can you get it? — Mrs. R.P.K.

Aluminum chloride is a drying agent that helps suppress body odor from bacterial build-up on the skin. You will find similar drying agents in some of the commercial deodorant sprays and lotions. But if you want to, your doctor can write a prescription for the proper solution of aluminum chloride for you to use.

Having trouble getting to sleep at night? In his new booklet Dr. Donohue examines the insomnia problem and offers some ways to help you get your needed rest. For a copy of "Why Can't You Sleep?" send 50 cents and a stamped, self-addressed envelope to Dr. Donohue in care of the Big Spring Herald, P.O. Box 11210, Chicago, IL 60611.

Students think of life after college

ROCHESTER, N.Y. (AP) — College students today are sometimes criticized for being too career-oriented.

But that career interest "is a simple deduction from the professionalized world in which they are destined to exist," says Dennis O'Brien, president of the University of Rochester. "The modern university must come to terms with this professional trend."

"We just cannot repeat the classical curriculum in a world of computers and lasers."

But he also warns that specialized study isn't the only point of a university education, noting, "Some human practices — and those most important — are not necessarily improved by professionalization."

Horticulture of herbs topic of Mrs. M.R. Hurt's program

Mrs. M.R. Hurt presented a program on "Horticulture of Herbs" during the Judges Advanced Study Club of Odessa meeting June 20 at the home of Mrs. J.A. Mills.

Also during the meeting, Mrs. L.A. Pickering displayed "Daylilies."

The Judges Advanced Study Club promotes the advanced study of horticulture, floral design and landscape design and encourages conservation of natural resources. The membership covers the areas of Amarillo, Big Spring, Fort Stockton, Kermit, Lamesa, Midland, Odessa and Snyder.

The next meeting will be Aug. 15 at 1610 Seaboard in Midland.

Calcium and osteoporosis topic of program

A program about calcium and osteoporosis was presented by Bettie Cordes during the Center Point Extension Homemakers Club meeting Tuesday at Kentwood Center.

A nominating committee was appointed. It consists of Zan Ryan, Lennis Couch and Cordes.

Plans were made for the July 23 Big Spring State Hospital picnic.

The next meeting will be Sept. 10 at 2 p.m. at Kentwood Center.

THE PATH OF HALLEY'S COMET

NOVEMBER 1985-MAY 1986

Halley baloo

Sky watchers in orbit over comet's return

NEW YORK (AP) — Come January, some lovelorn adolescent gazing wistfully up at the night sky may become the first person since 1910 to see Halley's comet with the naked eye.

More likely, the trained eye of an astronomer will have spotted it first. This time around, rather than the spectacular fireball reported in 1910, Halley's comet will probably appear as only a faint smudge in the heavens.

The comet will be dimmer than the stars in the Big Dipper, dimmer even than Comet West, that little-noticed, now-forgotten comet visible in the pre-dawn sky of 1976. While brighter than Halley's will be, Comet West failed to stir the imaginations of the masses. Few people even knew it was there.

"If you didn't see Comet West in 1976, you probably won't see Comet Halley," said Alan MacRobert, an editor at Sky & Telescope magazine in Cambridge, Mass.

Halley's comet will be much farther away on this visit than it was in 1910, when it passed 14 million miles from Earth. This time it will come no closer than 39 million miles, on April 11, 1986. That's why its appearance will be much less dramatic.

"It is important that people be told over and over that this is not going to be a spectacular comet," said MacRobert.

Spectacular, no. But Halley's comet remains by far the most famous of what the Greeks called "kometes," or hairy ones.

"It's the brightest of the comets that come around on a regular, predictable basis," said Andrew

Scientist's get 1st look at comet's atmosphere

FLAGSTAFF, Ariz. (AP) — Astronomers say Halley's comet has given them their first look at the birth of any comet's atmosphere and their findings support the prevailing theory that the unearthly visitor is a "dusty snowball."

Based on observations of the comet and its changes in brightness, the ice-and-dust nucleus of Halley's sprouted a coma, or gas-and-dust atmosphere, in October, said Susan Wyckoff, of Arizona State University.

The findings by researchers from Arizona State and the Institut d'Astrophysique in Paris were presented Tuesday at the annual meeting of the Astronomical Society of the Pacific. Wyckoff said the study will be published next month in the British journal Nature.

"This is the first time we've been able to follow a comet through the transition from a bare nucleus to the onset and development of its atmosphere," said Michael Belton, an astronomer at Kitt Peak National Observatory outside Tucson. Belton said other astronomers also observed the transition, but the Wyckoff group is the first to publish findings. Halley's comet will be visible to the naked eye by late January.

"We've never followed a comet from this far out," said Paul Weissman of the National Aeronautics and Space Administration's Jet Propulsion Laboratory in Pasadena, Calif. "We've actually watched it go from an inactive nucleus to a point (where) we can see gas coming off the nucleus."

Analysis of light from the comet revealed that water ice is evaporating from its nucleus, a finding consistent with the broadly accepted theory that Halley's comet is basically a dirty snowball made primarily of water ice, but also containing dust and ices of various gases, Wyckoff said.

Water ice and ices of gases evaporate at different temperatures and thus at different distances from the sun's heat. The point at which the evaporation formed a coma — about 600 million miles from the sun — showed that the comet's ice is primarily water, she added.

A comet appears brighter when it develops an atmosphere because particles of dust in the gas reflect more light than the bare nucleus. The nucleus of Halley's comet is believed to be only a few miles in diameter, while its coma is expected to measure 10,000 miles across during its nearest approach to the sun Feb. 9.

Wyckoff said the observations were made between the first sighting of the comet's current visit on Oct. 16, 1982, and April. Her team studied the observations of astronomers worldwide and photographs of the comet made through the Multiple Mirror Telescope near Amado.

The comet was lost to view because of glare from the sun in April and will reappear to professional astronomers in August and to amateurs sometime between November and January, Wyckoff said. It should be visible to the naked eye by January, but views from the Northern Hemisphere will be poor.

"In February, we made the first detection of the gaseous atmosphere coming out of the comet," then determined from brightness increases that the coma was born in October, she said.

While astronomers took months to realize what they had seen in October, "our observations indicated for the first time the onset of evaporation of the dusty snowball that is the comet nucleus," she continued. "Nobody has ever documented this before."

Belton, however, said evaporation of the comet's icy surface always occurs to some extent, but "what suddenly started (last October) was that the process was powerful enough to lift the small dust particles from the nucleus and form a coma."

There is evidence that a coma briefly flared in September, he said. The event, not seen, apparently was caused when gases were emitted by fast change in the state of the comet's ices, not by steady evaporation, he said.

The dirty snowball concept of comets was first proposed in the 1950s by Fred Whipple of Harvard University but some astronomers have argued the ice is mainly dry ice, or frozen carbon dioxide, rather than water ice, Wyckoff said.

Belton said that during the comet's current voyage around the sun, astronomers have viewed all of its major features except its gas and dust tails, and "that will probably happen in September or October."

Comet spins cooperation among world's scientists

EDMUND HALLEY, discoverer of comet's orbit.

Fraknoi, executive officer of the Astronomical Society of the Pacific.

The fabled Halley's comet has returned every 76 years or so since at least 239 B.C., when the earliest known recorded observations were made by the Chinese.

"It comes by just infrequently enough to be a special event and frequently enough to be remembered," Fraknoi said.

The comet has been speeding earthward since 1948, when it turned the far corner of its orbit 3.2 billion miles from the sun. It is now less than 430 million miles from Earth and 340 million miles from the sun. It is moving at 48,000 miles an hour.

On this loop, Halley's comet was first observed in October 1982 by astronomers using the 200-inch telescope on Mount Palomar in California. The comet will become visible to the naked eye in January and then pass out of sight behind the sun at the end of January. It will return to view in March and come closest to the Earth on April 11 — before departing again for the solar system's most distant purities.

Though the comings and goings of comets have been recorded since ancient times, no one is yet quite sure what a comet is.

"A haughty and proud star," is what the theologian Martin Luther called a comet.

The prevailing theory among astronomers is that comets are made of frozen gases with trapped bits of dust and debris — "dirty snowballs."

All comets are divided into three parts: a nucleus, a coma, the glowing halo around the nucleus, and a tail. That's where certainty ends.

Meteors and asteroids, the comets' kin, are naked chunks of rock and relatively easy to examine. They also fall conveniently to Earth now and then. But comets are elusive because of their bright comas. Trying to examine the nucleus through the blinding coma is like trying to look past a car's headlights at night to see the driver.

As a comet approaches the sun, the frozen material in its nucleus begins to boil off. The boiling gases — spouting in unpredictable bursts as the comet tumbles and gets hotter — feed the coma, which gets brighter. The gases are also pushed away from the comet by radiation and particles emitted by the Sun — "and thereby hangs the tail," said Fraknoi.

More properly, thereby hang the two tails — one of dust particles and another of electrically charged gases. The tails always point away from the sun, forced back by electrically charged particles and photons, or light particles emitted by the sun. The tails trail a comet moving toward the sun and precede one speeding away from it.

Occasionally both are visible;

more often they overlap.

The tails of Halley's comet will reach a maximum length of some 50 million miles shortly after it rounds the sun Feb. 9, when the comet's nucleus has been heated to its highest temperatures.

The comet's coma will be perhaps 100,000 miles across, said Stephen Edberg of the National Aeronautics and Space Administration's Jet Propulsion Laboratory in Pasadena, Calif.

Although Halley's comet has been observed for more than 2,000 years, it was not until the 18th century that Edmund Halley realized that astronomers were seeing repeat visits of a single comet.

- Mass: 100 billion tons.
- Speed in mid-June: 48,000 mph.
- Maximum speed: 122,000 mph when rounding the sun.

miles.

- Closest approach to sun on this return: 53 million miles on Feb. 9, 1986.
- Closest approaches to Earth on this return: 58 million miles on Nov. 27, 1985; 39 million miles on April 11, 1986.
- Size of comet's halo (coma) in mid-June: About 100,000 miles across.
- Maximum size of coma: About 100,000 miles across when closest to sun.
- Length of tail in mid-June: Unknown — not visible yet.
- Maximum length of tail: 50 million miles when closest to sun.

Another comet threatens satellite

FLAGSTAFF, Ariz. (AP) — Comet Giacobini-Zinner has unexpectedly developed a conspicuous dust tail, threatening to damage a recycled U.S. satellite that in September will become the first spacecraft to explore a comet, a scientist says.

The odds that dust particles will destroy the International Cometary Explorer, or ICE, as it passes through Giacobini-Zinner's tail on Sept. 11 probably are "just a few out of a hundred," Brandt said. "But anything can happen."

The comet, which makes its trip through the solar system every 6½ years but isn't visible to the naked eye, never displayed a dust tail in any of its previous returns since its discovery in 1900, Brandt said.

The dust tail could have developed as early as April but was confirmed only in the past two weeks, he added.

Notes

By Steve Belvin

The 10th Annual David and Goliath Men's Slow-Pitch Softball Tournament sponsored by the Big Spring Chamber of Commerce, will be held July 5-7 at Johnny Stone Memorial Park.

There will be two divisions, for Class A and B teams. There will be eight Class A teams who will play a round-robin tourney with a guarantee of seven games. Entry fee is $110.

There will be a maximum of 32 teams in the Class B Division. A double elimination format will be played. Entry fee is $90.

The first four finishers in each division will receive team trophies and the first three will receive individual trophies. There will also be awards for the MVP, golden glove and most home runs.

To enter call John Weeks at 263-7641 or at 267-8323.

While on the subject of softball, two young ladies captured the softball world's attention in Howard County a couple of weeks ago.

The first triple play of the season in Howard County occurred when the Coahoma Lions were playing the Sweetwater Assests in United Girls Softball Association Division III play for ages 14-16.

The Lions were in the field and the Assests had men on first and second. A liner was hit just over second and second baseman Kerry McSwain snagged the hit for out number one and tagged second to double the runner for the second out. She completed the triple play by firing the ball to first baseman Carol Mendez, catching the runner off first.

That's what you call a quick inning.

Several Howard College Hawks baseball players are either committed or leaning to different colleges.

Second baseman Jimmy Garcia has signed with St. Edward's University. Center fielder Steve Carrasco is leaning towards St. Edward's. Outfielder Mark Howell and pitcher Doug Meyers are looking at the University of Texas-Arlington and shortstop Michael Byrd will choose Sam Houston State or Lamar University.

First baseman Joey Ortiz is leaning towards Louisiana State University or the University of Pacific. Catcher Eddie Citronelli will head to Southwestern Louisiana or Lubbock Christian College. Pitcher Chris Segrist is leaning towards Texas Tech and reserve catcher Kenny Merritt has been talking with coaches at North Texas State.

The Texas Quarterhorse Show and Cowboy Reunion will be held July 5-6 in Stamford.

Those interested should call Linda Martin at 773-2001 or 773-2383 or 773-2337.

The Amateur 20 Boxing Tourney will be held July 6 at 7 p.m. in the Howard County Fair Barn.

The tourney is sponsored by Coors Beer and promoted by the Howard County Boxing Club along with managers Zeke Valles and J.V. Martinez.

Admission is $1.50 for students and $3 for adults.

The Texas Little League recently announced their All-Star team for the upcoming playoffs. They are: Richard Ruiz, Manuel Sosa, Richard Kriesen, Steven Robles, Sammy Gonzalez, Dimas Morales, Marvin Rubio and Shane Kimper.

Other include Pink Grigg, Alonza Porras, Ricky Villa, Thomas Hernandez, Donny Cervantez and Angel Villa. Alternates are Brandon Riddle and Michael Munoz. Manager is Lupe Lara and coach is Vito Garcia.

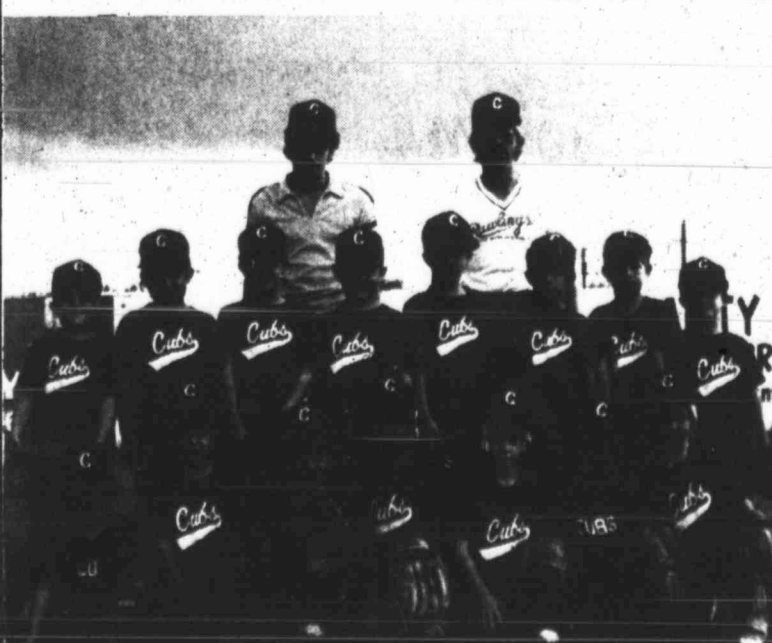

There will be a ladies slow-pitch softball tournament in Snyder July 5-7.

Entry fee is $90. For more information call 573-8027.

After coming off a fifth place finish in the Wichita Falls fast-pitch softball tournament, The Cotton Chippers face another tough task Saturday when they entertain Clovis, New Mexico, the defending New Mexico state champs.

The Wichita Falls tourney was a big one for the Chippers because they defeated Texas' No. 1 team, McGregor Produce of Wichita Falls.

Action versus Clovis begins a 10 a.m. in City Park. There will be four games played.

Rodeo times fast despite mud

By CHARLIE ALCORN

Sports Writer

The 52nd Annual Cowboy Reunion and Rodeo officially opened last night with lots of hard riding and roping mixed with liberal helpings of grand rodeo pageantry. The threatening weather that enveloped the city all day, broke in time for a slew of outstanding performances by BOBBY DEL VECCHIO some of the top names on the PRCA and WPRA circuits.

An impressive crowd at the Howard County Rodeo Bowl, was treated to an intricate display of horsemanship and patriotism as various regional riding clubs and other local rodeo celebrities filled the muddy floor of the Bowl with flags and western finery.

Following the Grand Entry and introductions of the Big Spring Rodeo Board of Directors, some heated bull riding competition, featuring some of stock contractor Mack Altizer's rankest beasts, got underway. A relative newcomer, Bubba Monkres of Everman, Texas, thrilled the crowd with an 8 second ride worth 82 points to lead the event after one round. 1984 National Finals bull rider Ted Nuce and the current number-one ranked bull rider, Tuff Hedeman, were tied for second with scores of 80 points.

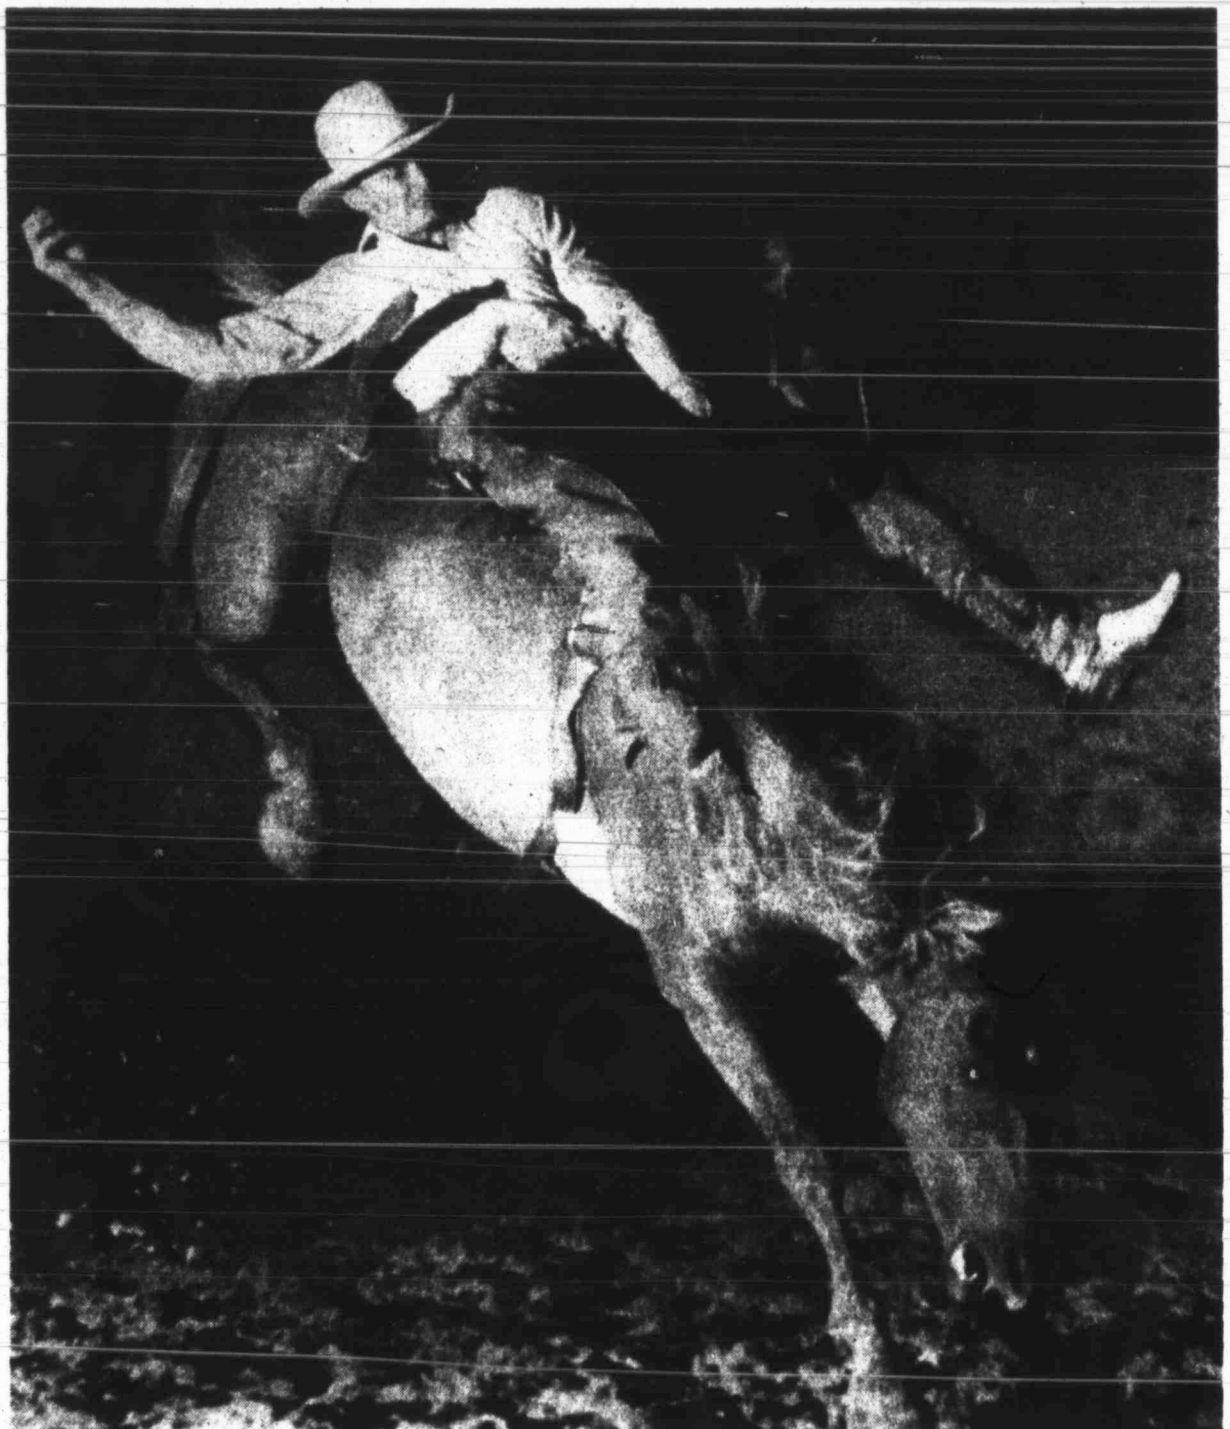

Perennial favorite Bobby Del Vecchio of Bronx, New York, currently ranked second in the world, led the first section of the bull riding with a score of 76.

In other rough stock events, three-time world champion saddle bronc riding champion Monty Henson took advantage of a reride call by the Wrangler judges to vault into first place after the first round with a ride worth 77 points. Henson's first ride scored only 67 points but the judges allowed a reride because Henson's mount quit bucking before the 8 second count was over.

Former Howard College rodeo star Cody Lambert was in third place after the first go-round of saddle bronc riding with a score of 64.

In bareback bronc riding competition, local cowboy Tony Hecksher of Snyder, Texas, led the pack with a ride worth 75 points. Big Spring cowboy Jack Himes, couldn't hang on to a tough bronc named Lucky Lady in other first round action.

In the men's timed events, Russell Blandford of San Antonio was leading the calf roping with a time of 9.9 seconds. Lamesa roper Guy Miller was in second place after the first go-round at 10.8 seconds.

A pair of big men from Stephenville, Texas were leading the steer wrestling competition. Lloyd Hodges had the fastest time at 5.5 seconds. Neighbor, C.J. Urbanek was in second place with a time of 5.6. National Finalist Clay O'Brien Cooper is the overall leader in the steer wrestling with a Tuesday night time of 5.0.

In team roping action, a pair of Sonora cowboys had the top time Wednesday night. Jimmy Powers and Bob Blandford roped and heeled their calf in 9.5 seconds to place a distant second to Tuesday night's top team of Steve Purcella and Russell Freeman who had an outstanding time of 6.8 seconds for the overall lead.

In the ladies' barrel racing event, Ray Lynn Key of Gail galloped through the thick mud of the Rodeo Bowl to a first place time of 16.66 seconds. Kristan Crain was a close second at 16.74 and Martha Wright held down the third position with a time of 16.78 after the first go-round.

Bullfighters Rick Young and Micheal Horton kept the riders safe and the pace lively during lulls in the action with their unruly behavior, while Coahoma's Quail Dobbs thrilled young and old with his exploding car show and barrelman antics.

Tonight's second round action will begin at 8:30 p.m. with another full slate of rodeo action and funny stuff scheduled.

Yugoslav stuns
Swedish seed

WIMBLEDON, England (AP) — Slobodan Zivojinovic, a 21-year-old hard-hitting Yugoslav making his Wimbledon debut, sprang the first big upset of this year's championships Wednesday when he eliminated Mats Wilander, the No. 4 seed from Sweden, 6-2, 5-7, 7-5, 6-0 on the center court.

Ninth-seeded Johan Kriek faltered in the third set but recovered his composure to beat Victor Pecci 6-4, 6-0, 4-6, 7-5 while in the women's singles, Zina Garrison, seeded No. 8, crushed Elna Reinach of South Africa 6-2, 6-1.

The first seed in the women's event tumbled out when Catarina Lindqvist of Sweden, the No. 12, lost 6-0, 7-5 to American serve-and-volleyer Barbara Potter.

But there was better news for two other Swedish seeds in the men's singles.

Anders Jarryd, seeded No. 5, reached the second round for the first time in five attempts when he staged a remarkable comeback to edge Italy's Claudio Panatta in five sets.

Jarryd was two sets down at one stage, rallied to square the match by the time rain interrupted play Tuesday and finished the job when the match resumed in mid-afternoon Wednesday, winning 4-6, 3-6, 6-4, 6-4, 6-3.

Stefan Edberg, seeded 14, had a much easier job in disposing of Australia's Peter Doohan, 6-2, 6-3, 6-4.

Zivojinovic, ranked 77th in the world, kept the experienced Wilander under constant pressure and gradually wore down the reigning Australian and French Open champion with a mixture of big serves and fine touch play.

In the second set, Wilander saved a break in the opening game and carved out a 4-1 lead before the tall Yugoslav hit back to 4-4.

Wilander edged ahead 6-5 and then stopped the set going into a tiebreak when he broke serve after being down 40-0 and squared the match with a forehand cross-court winner.

The third set began with an exchange of service breaks but Zivojinovic a ways looked more positive and gained the crucial break in the 11th game when Wilander hit a backhand wide.

His confidence growing, Zivojinovic served out the set at love and broke the back of Wilander's challenge, which evaporated weakly in a totally one-sided fourth stanza.

"He serves unbelievably hard and his second serve also was working pretty good," said Wilander afterwards. "It's a big disappointment after I won the French open. I must try to forget it as quickly as possible."

Kriek, the world's 14th-ranked player, opened his Wimbledon challenge in promising style against his Paraguayan opponent, who received a warning for unsportsmanlike behaviour in the first game of the fourth set.

From 5-4 in the opening set, Kriek won seven successive games but suddenly lost concentration and dropped the third set.

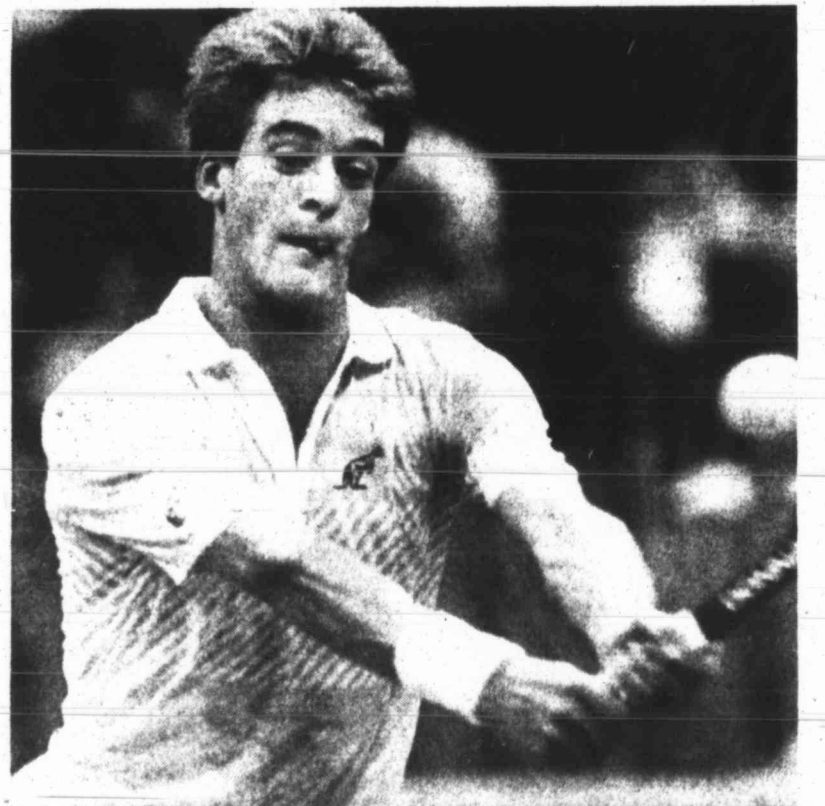

He recovered his touch, however, broke serve in the 11th game of the fourth set and served out the match on Court No. 1.

Tim Mayotte, the No. 16 seed from Springfield, Mass, swept into the second round with a 7-5, 6-4, 6-2 victory over the 84th-ranked Trevor Allan of Australia, while the only other seed to go through before rain interrupted play was Zina Garrison.

The 8th-seeded American, a former Wimbledon junior champion, crushed qualifier Elna Reinach of South Africa 6-2, 6-1.

John McEnroe, the men's defending champion, was not due to return to the show courts until Thursday.

Officials were hoping that the appalling weather, which wrecked more than 10 hours of play during the first two days of the tournament, would improve enough to reduce the backlog of matches.

Swedish star ANDERS JARRYD returns a shot from Italy's CLAUDIO PANNATA in first round action on the grass courts of Wimbledon. JARRYD went on to win his match in five sets.

McEnroe, bidding to become the first American to win three consecutive Wimbledon singles crowns, and his fourth overall, admits he still is haunted by Borg's five-year Wimbledon winning streak.

Borg never played Queens, yet consistently reached a peak at Wimbledon. He retired from competitive tennis in 1982.

"Borg proved you do not have to play a grass tournament beforehand to win Wimbledon. He won it five years in a row and he was not even a grass court player," said McEnroe.

"This year, I decided after the French championships to go home and rest, practice some on grass and then come over here. That doesn't mean I'll win the tournament but I'm not going to use Queens as an excuse if I lose."

McEnroe certainly looked on top of his game against McNamara, crushing the Australian 6-4, 6-3, 6-4 to set up a second-round match against either Nduka Odizor of Nigeria or qualifier Gary Muller of South Africa.

After two days, only eight matches had been completed in one of the wettest Wimbledon starts on record. But the two defending champions were safely through to the second round.

Before McEnroe's defeat of McNamara, top-seeded women's defending champion Martina Navratilova stepped onto center court and annihilated fellow American Lisa Bonder 6-0, 6-2 in only 39 minutes.

Another seeded woman moved into the second round before officials called a halt to proceedings because of poor light. No. 15 seed Gabriela Sabatini of Argentina, the new starlet of women's tennis, rallied after a nervous start to beat Britain's Amanda Brown 3-6, 6-3, 6-3.

the tennis camp. Fifteen local youth are participating in the camp which will conclude Friday.

Rangers, Astros fall in extra innings

SEATTLE (AP) — Seattle's Barry Bonnell, a veteran outfielder appearing in only his 30th game, appearing as a pinch hitter, got the game-winning RBI, drawing a walk for a 5-4 Mariners' victory over the Texas Rangers.

Seattle notched its sixth straight win while Texas lost for the sixth time in seven games, including a three-game sweep by the Mariners. Seattle matched a season-opening winning string.

The Mariners climbed to within two games of .500 at 34-36.

Bonnell, who is hitting .240, went to bat for Owen after 10th-inning singles by Dave Henderson and Jim Presley and an intentional walk to pinch-hitter Ken Phelps.

Texas Manager Bobby Valentine wasn't around at the end of the game. He was ejected by home plate umpire Tim McClelland for arguing about balls and strikes while reliever Greg Harris pitched to Phil Bradley in the sixth inning.

It was the first time Valentine had been thrown out since replacing Doug Rader as the Rangers' manager on May 16. The frustrated Valentine saw the Rangers' record drop to 18-21 with him at the helm. He insisted he did not know why McClelland ejected him.

Roy Thomas, 2-0, made only three pitches and got the win. He got Gary Ward to hit into a double play after replacing Ed VandeBerg.

Texas took a 4-2 lead in the top of the sixth when Oddibe McDowell lofted a two-run pinch homer off Robert Long into the right field stands following a double by Don Slaughter.

Astros 1

HOUSTON (AP) — Atlanta's Albert Hall hasn't been playing much lately and he's angry.

The 26-year-old outfielder turned his displeasure against the Houston Astros Wednesday night, hitting an 11th-inning RBI triple to center to spark the Braves to a 3-1 win over the Astros.

Jeff Dedmon, 4-0, was the winner in relief going two innings and giving up one hit.

Bob Horner sparked the Braves to an early 1-0 lead with his 10th home run of the season in the first inning.

Houston came back to tie it at 1-1 in the second after Phil Garner doubled with one out and went to third on Mark Bailey's infield single. A walk to Bill Doran loaded the bases before Craig Reynolds lined a single to right to score Garner.

Pasquel Perez started his first game since May 31 for the Braves after coming off the 21-day disabled list on June 22. Perez, who has suffered from tendonitis of his rotator cuff in his right shoulder, was ineffective giving up five hits and one run in three innings.

Houston starter Mike Scott worked the first nine innings, giving up just three hits and one walk while striking out four and retiring 23 of the last 25 Atlanta batters he faced.

Organized crime linked to sports

NEW YORK (AP) — Organized crime syndicates reap billions of dollars in profits from illegal gambling rings — and then abuse legalized gambling to conceal the source of their wealth, law enforcement experts say.

In three days of testimony before the President's Commission on Organized Crime, police and prosecutors described a pervasive pattern of organized crime involvement in gambling, from casinos to college sporting contests.

Accompanying the involvement, they said in hearings that ended Wednesday, are the crimes and violence associated with organized mobs: drug trafficking, bribery, arson and murder.

"The importance of gambling as a continuing source of revenue for organized crime cannot be underestimated," said commission Chairman Irving R. Kaufman, a federal appeals judge, as he opened the hearings. "It is clear ... gambling provides organized crime with the money it needs to flourish."

In the New York area alone, Kaufman said, bettors wager an estimated $1.5 billion a year on illegal games run by organized crime.

His investigators presented a portrait of a group that allegedly controls a share of that action — The Corporation, a Cuban-run syndicate said to operate chiefly in New York, northern New Jersey and Miami.

A hooded witness who said he was a member of The Corporation testified its members kill competitors or burn down their betting parlors.

Your Daily HOROSCOPE from the CARROLL RIGTER INSTITUTE

FORECAST FOR FRIDAY, JUNE 28, 1985

GENERAL TENDENCIES: Avoid a pending argument in the early morning, for if you do so, you will find that more harmony comes into being and you will be able to work out a more effective plan of action.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Don't let an early argument upset you, and get busy at whatever is of a constructive nature and make big headway.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Get busy and promote the creative ideas you have even though you think you should be working on a new project.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Don't be overly concerned about gaining a personal aim, and get busy trying to please those who dwell with you.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to Jul. 21) Forget some secret anxiety and get busy on communications and plans for travel. Accomplish something constructive.

LEO (Jul. 22 to Aug. 21) Get busy handling practical and financial affairs and avoid one who likes to gossip and waste your time.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Important that you handle personal affairs well today and forget about other duties that are not so vital to your welfare.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) You want to run off to new activities, but it is better to clear the slate of accumulated duties first.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) First handle a pressing responsibility and later you will be able to handle your personal goals and gain them.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Avoid a bigwig who is irate and looking for a whipping boy. Concentrate on coming to an agreement with an associate.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) It is important that you handle your work more precisely and get greater benefits therefrom.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Keep rooted to your work and get much accomplished. Forget about having a good time which could cost you a pretty penny.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Much talk with partners can bring fine results, so get at this early in the day. Be active and happy.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY ... he or she will be nervous and restless during childhood and need much care and a good diet. Later your progeny will become a precise and accurate person. Make sure that he or she does not get so bogged down with details that the overall plan is forgotten. Teach that important things come first.
