Brother Held In Dallas Murder

Navy Charged With "Amateur Bungling" By Mitchell

SAYS TROPIC PLANES USED ON POLE TRIP

Hawaii Ships Carried Too Little Gas for Long Trip

PROPAGANDA CHARGE

Shenandoah Voyage Styled a Publicity Stunt—Mitchell

WASHINGTON, Sept. 30.—(AP) Condensing all his previous charges into one verbal bombshell, Colonel William Mitchell concluded his testimony before the president's air board today by charging the navy with "amateur bungling" of its last three major aernautical projects.

In rapid succession, the former assistant army air chief told the board that incompetency and mismanagement by the navy sent the dirigible Shenandoah to its doom on a "propaganda mission" to the midwest, that tropical type planes were given navy fliers with the MacMillan Arctic expedition and that the Hawaiian flight was attempted with a gas supply known to be inadequate.

His appearance preceded several other witnesses, who added vivid chapters to the running story of the activities of American air forces.

Lieutenant Colonel John Paegelow, commandant of the army balloon school at Scott Field, Illinois, testified that a local thunder storm and not a line squall brought disaster to the Shenandoah.

Major Clarke Brant, air officer attached to the general board, admitted under questioning that the general board was preparing an answer to Colonel Mitchell's charges and that since his last outburst it had "given much attention" to air craft problems.

He also said the value of aircraft in the Hawaiian maneuvers had been minimized in the press.

Colonel Mitchell testified that sending the Shenandoah to the midwest when unequipped with parachutes was "like sending a vessel to sea without life boats."

He also charged the midcontinental trip was in "direct violation of law," declaring naval air activities were generally confined to sea. Under questioning he denied he was putting a "far fetched" interpretation upon the law, asserting that to send the dirigible over the "mountains" was a far different thing than to send it over the coast or the land to join a fleet.

"The law was evaded not exactly obeyed," he replied to one question although he had only the highest for the Shenandoah crew.

Mrs. Mitchell Defends Husband

"They know he is speaking the truth," says Mrs. William A. Mitchell, whose husband, former army air chief, faces a court martial for varlous attacks on his superior officers over air policies of the army and navy. Colonel Mitchell testified Tuesday and Wednesday before the president's air policy board. They are shown together. Inset is a closeup of her.

Family in Famous Front Street Brick House Defies City's Order To Move; Police Will Take Hand

Contractor Was Ready to Start His Job But the Lady of the Mansion Said She Had No Intentions of Leaving

They thought the Front street row was settled, but it has just begun.

In testimony thereof bear witness to the predicament of one Jack Humphrey, house mover de luxe, who has a perfectly good contract with the city to move a brick mansion and who, if the owner's authority is worth anything, is faced with the necessity of moving the latter worthy and all his family. Said family, according to the excited Humphrey, is comprised of numerous offspring—very numerous, in fact.

It all started months ago when the city went to hat with certain residents who, it claimed, had their place of abode in the middle of Front street along the river banks. After long litigation a court order was obtained ordering evacuation of the premises and removal of the houses. It was stipulated, however, that the city must pay expense of moving these structures.

All have been moved but the one brick house. A contract was signed with Humphrey to do this, and Wednesday he went to the place with jacks and timbers. The owner's wife, however, told him plainly she had no intention of getting out and if he tried to move it and the thing fell down on the family's collective head, damage suits would be strictly in order.

Humphrey appealed to City Attorney W. E. George. He told the attorney it would require all of Thursday to jack the place up, put the timbers under it and prepare for moving. This operation presents little likelihood of a shower of brick bats.

"Go ahead and get ready," the city attorney said, "then when you're ready to move let me know and we'll be down with the police force and see what can be done."

Friday morning is the zero hour, Humphrey said.

SOAP, NOT GEMS, IN TRUNKS OF SLAIN WIDOW

"Treasure" Chests Filled with Various Kinds of Junk

FIND OPIUM BOTTLES

No New Light Shed on San Antonio Murder Mystery

SAN ANTONIO, Sept. 30.—Soap, 2,000 bars or more, of the individual hotel size with the name of the Martha Washington hotel, New York, almost filled two of the 11 "treasure trunks" stored by Mrs. Ada McCobb, hammer killing victim, in Laredo, Texas, since 1922.

Eight of the trunks were opened this afternoon in the presence of District Attorney C. M. Chambers, John H. Cunningham, appointed administrator of the widow's estate, and United States immigration, narcotic and secret service agents.

Besides the soap, the baggage that was searched contained hundreds of linen towels, about a dozen pairs of new kid gloves, never worn; several dozen pairs of men's socks, never worn; old photographs; heirlooms and articles of no intrinsic value. There were also several bottles which narcotic men said had once contained pills of tincture of opium.

"Just a lot of junk stored in Laredo by an old woman who some years ago intended to go into Mexico to make her home," Cunningham said.

"We are right back where we were when we started, with little or no light shed on the past life of the deceased and the mystery of her stay in San Antonio over a period of six years, during which time she did not stay long at any one boarding house, and lived in many different sections of the city," Chambers said after the contents of the chests from Laredo had been examined.

Cunningham said he would not have truths the woman has stored in San Francisco brought to San Antonio.

FURL, WITNESS IN IKARD CASE, AGAIN QUIZZED

Questioned About Stolen Cigarettes Which Were Cause of Tragedy

HELD IN JAIL HERE

Man Who Fled Scene of Triple Killing Not Blamed In Murder

"Red" Furl, one-time companion of the Looney-Crabtree duo which was shot down near Megargle last week in a gun battle with Archer county officers, was questioned at length again Wednesday concerning his knowledge of stolen cigarettes and other commodities which precipitated the fatal fight. Furl fled from the pasture in which Looney and Crabtree were slain by Sheriff Harrison Ikard and Deputy Sheriff Bob Munford of Archer City but gave himself up the next day on learning that Ikard, too, had been killed.

It is conceded by officials that Furl had no part in the shooting, he having dashed into the darkness when the firing started and before anyone had been hit.

He was brought to Wichita Falls the next day and has been held in the county jail here since then. The questioning Wednesday was simply an amplification of other such examinations in whic hofficers have sought to learn more of his association with Looney and Crabtree. So far, however, nothing of importance has been gleaned.

Wilson Made Plans For War In 1916 Claim

NEW YORK, Sept. 30.—(AP)—Enlightening many hitherto obscured pages of the history of the World war, Viscount Grey's volumes of memoirs have just been given to the public in Europe and America.

The Lord's chronicle of the intimate details of the diplomatic negotiations between Washington and London which preceded the entry of America into the great conflict, probably has primary interest on this side of the Atlantic, but his volumes also are rich with diplomatic history written by a man who was Britain's foreign minister during the early years of the war, and who was longer than any other man the foreign minister of a great world power.

Viscount Grey reveals definite documentary evidence, for the first time to show President Wilson as early as 1916, was giving thought to a definite proposal to throw the United States into the war on the side of the Allies if the Central powers rejected the proposal for a peace conference. He ventures the opinion that Germany today, in efficiency and numbers combined, is potentially the strongest country in Europe. He believes the Kaiser and the German people of the full odium of setting the torch which started the World conflagration and thinks that in determining the guilt for bringing on the war, the armed camp condition to which Europe had been brought by the etter Understanding Forecasted for Oil Men-Railroad Commission

Wichitans Commend Spirit of Conservation; Ask for Office at Wichita Falls, and Question Inexperienced Appointees

By A. HALLMAN

Clarification of a certain amount of the discontent that has characterized the relation of north Texas oil operators and deputies of the Texas railroad commission, and better spirit of cooperation between agencies of the oil producer and the commission is promised as a result of a meeting of Wichita Falls operators and members of the oil and gas division of the commission at Austin, Monday.

Three-fold Purpose.

Wichita Falls oil operators made the trip to Austin Monday last with a three-fold purpose in view. (1) They wished to express their approval of the facts and spirit of the commission's conservation policies and to promise cooperation in the furtherance of conservation. (2) They wished to register dissatisfaction with the abolition of a central office for north Texas operations at Wichita Falls. (3) They wished to enter a criticism of the commission's policy of installing men inexperienced in oil field work in deputy supervisors' positions.

The first phase of the "complaint" met with a 'Thank You, Sir." The oil industry as a whole is in thorough accord with the spirit of conservation in the oil fields. The commission's activities present an effective procection against the unscrupulous operator, and insure every lease its fair chance at what oil is underneath the ground, and at the same time curb a tendency toward waste that is present sometimes when the plentifulness of a commodity blinds the eyes of the owner to its value, as in the case of a big well, a wild gasser and the like.

Explanations.

Explanations were the vogue as to the second phase, though.

The commission was told that the oil industry in north Texas was centralized to a high degree. Most of per cent of the operations of the area from Grayson to Collingsworth county, and from Graham north on the Red river were carried on with Wichita Falls. A recent redistricting practically every oil operator in that district lived in Wichita Falls. For the past five years an office had been kept open here which carried on the work for the entire district. Deputies lived at Electra at Graham, and handled the field work from there, but correspondence was carried on with T. L. Coplin at Wichita Falls. A recent redistribution and reforming of the policies of the commission, however, took the office away from Wichita Falls. A deputy was placed at Olney with supervisory power over that field, at Electra with power there, at Wichita Falls with power over only the eastern half of Wichita county, Clay, Montague and Cooke counties.

The deputies at those places were allotted no office space, they were difficult to find when needed, and the time wasted cost operators considerable inconvenience and money. This much was told the commission. And the request made: Couldn't it be so arranged that an office be kept open in Wichita Falls to handle these operations, all of which originate and revert back to Wichita Falls. It was pointed out that there was no objection to Electra and Olney having their deputy supervisors, but that it would make for efficiency all the way round if a deputy having supervisory power over the whole district were furnished Wichita Falls, or at least in an office were kept open here to handle correspondence and the like.

Commission Explains.

This was the answer made by the commission: The appropriation act for state departments passed at the last session of the legislature does not provide for a central office job, and does not require that every deputy spend his entire time in the field." The act is in the hands of Attorney General Dan Moody at present to determine if "in the field of duty whether that be in field" means derrick floor or in the the office answering letters or in the oil field themselves. Furthermore the appropriation act makes no provision for office space of any kind. It is pointed out in this connection that the levying of a one-cent to a pipeline is, by virtue of the original conservation act passed several years ago intended to provide funds for conservation, and conservation only.

This yearly in Texas, amounts to about $100,000. The present appropriation act makes the oil and gas division's appropriation out of the state's general fund, granting them less than $100,000, the remainder of the income from the conservation tax being diverted to the treasury of the state. The attorney general has been asked to decide also on the legality of the diverting of these funds. Should he find "in the field" means in the field of duty wherever that may be, office or derrick floor, and that the conservation board is entitled to all of the tax money raised for its support, then an office such as operators here want may be furnished. If he finds otherwise,—the commission throws up its hands at the possibility. And, pending decision they are interpreting "in the field" to mean derrick floor, and have no money to provide any Wichitans have a number of complaints an office here immediately what they are is not known.

Defense.

The division has no policy in that regard. Answer of Judge Ramsey and gas division of the Wichita Falls inexperienced deputies in certain of the districts at a distance from Wichita Falls.

pletion of a well a week or so ago and told the operator that never before had he seen a well flow was cited Judge Bell. The answer is regarded here as further justification of the charge that politics is playing too important a part in the work of the commission.

But in any event the spirit of willingness displayed at Austin, and the evidence of good faith and effort, was more than satisfactory to Wichitans. They have a clearer idea as to how to get what they want, and what they feel their just due.

The meeting found unqualified endorsement of the commission's efforts to enforce rule 37, requiring a 300-foot spacing between wells. Coincident with this applications for five wells to be drilled on the Olney townsite in violation of the ruling were turned down. Instructions were given to make a five-day effort to get property owners in affected blocks to pool their acreage; if at the end of that time this was found impossible the hearing would be reopened.

Other Matters.

The commission itself brought up four questions of policy. As regards these the operators present recommended (1) that swabbing for production be permitted only by special permit, and then for a whole field, if it was to be allowed any one operator. (2) That the provision for wooden covering over earthen storage in south Texas heavy oil fields be removed. (3) That the ruling allowing the use of vacuum pumps in oil fields is all right as it is, and that the vacuum should not be allowed in the new districts. (4) That the present ruling allowing 50 per cent consumption of the capacity of a gas well be retained.

Those making the trip from Wichita Falls to Austin included W. B. Hamilton, president of the Texahoma Oil and Refining company, Walter Cline, J. S. Bridwell, Senator J. D. Parnell, C. W. Murchison and others.

Oil Gossip

John O'Donohoe had a radio rigged up in his office yesterday and a crowd of operators gathered around listening to reports on the Dixie series at Atlanta.

How Speedy Is Nature?

AUSTIN, Sept. 30.—Texas courts must decide how fast nature works.

What is the dividing line between the deliberate processes of nature and the hurried results of artificially-stimulated processes, is to me the issue in litigation in which the state is a party for possession of valuable oil land in Gaillard peninsula of Harris county.

Big oil companies are suing alleged owners to remove cloud to title of the Gaillard peninsula. The attorney general department has intervened for the state, reciting the peninsula is now submerged, and claiming it under the general law giving the state all submerged lands.

Other claimants admit the peninsula is now submerged, but contend the submergance was artificially caused, and was a sudden result, rather than the slow, deliberate process of nature.

Oil and gas was taken from beneath the land through drilling operations, until there was nothing to hold it up, and the land suddenly sank beneath the water surrounding it, is the claim of those who insist their title was not thus destroyed by the sudden artifical change.

The case is to be first tried in Harris county district court, with prospect of being fought through supreme court here.

IT WILL BE A HUGE PRODUCTION

New Detail Announced for T-O Fair Pageant

By PEGGY

IN every huge production where many people take part, there necessitates changes in the personnel. Those who accept parts of course think at the time that they will be able to go through with them. But in very department of a pageant program every now and then something will happen and this one and that one will have to drop out causing changes to be made all the way around.

* * * *

THE program for the Texas-Oklahoma Fair has been no exception. First the fair association planned to have the pageant, coronation ceremonies and style show on Monday night, October 5, after considering the matter more fully it was decided that the three attractions would be too long and it was therefore dvided so that the pageant and coronation will take place on Saturday, the opening night of the fair, followed by the "Peacock Syle Show" on Monday evening. Both programs to be open to the public before the grandstand.

Among the changes in the personnel of the pageant program will be that of Miss Anna Ruth Kahn who was at first announced as the fun-maker to give the Jazz Baby dance in the fifth period of the development of Texas. Miss Kahn is a student at S. M. U. this year and found after accepting the part that it would be impossible for her to return for the fair. Miss Anna Mae Cahn, another of Wichita Fall's versatile dancers, who was announced as ballet in the French period, supported by a chorus, therefore immediately arose to the emergency, taking Miss Kahn's place. Miss Iona Ehlert, another of the city's talented toe dancers, took Miss Cato's place in the French period.

Everything is well that ends well and now the program is all arranged and rehearsals are the order of the day.

* * * *

MISS EHLERT will be supported in her dance by Betty Rob Moore and Joan Hoffman, while those supporting Mrs. George Thorburn, besides Misses Elizabeth Langford and Catherine Weeks, will be a group of dainty little dancers in colonial costumes including Ona Bell Britain, Charlotte Sutton, Wilma Brown, Nancy Jane Faver and Juanita Mozengo.

Society folk, returning from their summer vacations have found plenty to do upon their arrival home. Scarcely have they had time to unpack their trunks so rapidly have events of importance piled up.

Today as has been announced the Forum opens it's season with a musical at the Wichita club, and according to the program outlined by these women, lectures, physical culture classes, civic, music, art and health meetings will follow in rapid succession.

* * * *

AND then of course the fair always brings charming visitors that will be inspiration for more or less entertaining. The court ball on Saturday night at the Country club following the coronation ceremonies will be an event in local social circles as will be the Court Tea at the Wichita club Sunday afternoon from 4 to 5 o'clock.

The invitations to this affair are very beautiful, Silver embossed and read: Her Royal Majesty, Third Queen of the Texas-Oklahoma Fair, summons you to appear at the Court Tea, Sunday afternoon, October the fourth, nineteen hundred twenty-five, Wichita club, 4 to 5 o'clock.

Miss Zona Marie Ehlert, dainty toe dancer will give a ballet solo number in the French period of the pageant, "Texas Under Six Flags," on Saturday, the opening night of the Texas-Oklahoma Fair. Miss Ehlert will be supported by a bevy of charming girls.

IN FATHER KNICKERBOCKER'S TOWN.

Father Knickerbocker's town has resumed normalcy. Mayor John F. Hylan has gone to the Catskill mountains to recuperate. His lieutenants have all boarded the Smith band wagon. They know there are soft places in sight and the plum pickings are rich. They know that the king is dead. They know another king wields the sceptre. They are for the new king.

Mayor Hylan will not be compelled to fight the wolf of poverty. He can take down a pension of $6,000 a year, or better than this, he can accept a nomination for supreme court justice in the city of Brooklyn where Boss John Henry McCooey has made peace with the Tiger and will be permitted to have a voice in the naming of the next judicial ticket.

Senator Royal A. Copeland, always for Hearst and Hylan, was the first of the Hylan leaders to make his peace with the victors. He declared against the naming of a third or independent ticket. He declared his loyalty to Senator Jimmie Walker, the democratic nominee for mayor.

Senator Copeland is a wise politician. He is in love with his job. He will come up for re-election in 1928. He will need the Tiger and he will need Governor Smith. Now the question has been raised by the New York Times "Will the Tiger and Governor Smith need Senator Copeland?"

Those who are familiar with conditions in New York and who understand New York politics say that Senator Walker will be elected by an overwhelming majority. Governor Smith will take the stump in October and make thirty speeches for Walker and the other nominees on the regular democratic ticket. For days before the primary balloting Senator Walker was a three to one favorite over Hylan. Now the betting is all his way again. He is a three to one favorite over Waterman, the republican nominee for mayor.

Joah M. Banton, a native of Texas, is the Tammany candidate for re-election to the office of district attorney. He is a three and one-half to one favorite over former Governor Charles M. Whitman, the republican standard bearer. There are democratic defenders in New York who say that Banton may be the democratic nominee for governor in 1928, as the successor of Alfred E. Smith.

If Smith should run for the United States senate next year he will be pitted against Senator James A. Wadsworth, republican, who is a scion of one of the old Knickerbocker families of upper New York. Senator Wadsworth is well known in the Panhandle of Texas. In his college day he spent his vacations at the ranch of his aunt, near Clarendon in the Panhandle. He has made many visits to Texas since he became prominent in the political life of New York. His family own large farms in the Genesseo valley and are breeders of pedigreed cattle.

There are democrats in New York who say that Smith does not care to go to the senate, that a $50,000 position is open to him when he retired from the office of governor, that he is poor in purse and feels that he should make provision for his family in the near future. Also that his ambition is to retain the leadership of the eastern and New England democracy and thus be all powerful in the battles to take place in the presidential year of 1928.

But Mayor Hylan has gone to the Catskills and all his lieutenants have made their way to the den of the Tiger.

"HORROR AND SHAME."

President Coolidge's proclamation setting the date of fire prevention week vividly depicts the conditions which make the observance of that week necessary. There are certain facts which must be added to bite themselves into the consciousness of the people. The president does his best to bite them in.

"I am informed that during 1924 fires caused the loss of approximately 15,000 lives and of property exceeding $568,000,000 in value," says the president. "The figures are startling; they are yet more so when it is added that this is declared by competent authorities the greatest fire loss in any year of our history."

Nor is that the worst of it. "Not only was the 1924 fire loss greater than that of any preceding year, but the loss for the first half of 1925 exceeded that for the like period of 1924."

We are getting worse all the time. The total fire loss for the entire country is steadily increasing. And the loss per capita is increasing, too. And meanwhile the total losses for comparable European countries are decreasing, and so are the losses per person.

"For the most recent comparable periods," the president points out, "fire losses in Great Britain are calculated at less than $1 per capita per annum, while those of the United States are placed at approximately $5 per capita."

The president says truly that "this waste results from conditions which justify a sense of shame and horror; for the greater part of it could and ought to be prevented."

Our carelessness has caused this loss in property and, what is far more important, this loss in lives. Fifteen thousand deaths last year attributable to public and private carelessness! "Shame and horror" should certainly be felt. Fire prevention week will help us feel these necessary emotions, without which improvement is impossible.

This year the week will begin on Sunday, Oct. 4. It will include Oct. 9, the anniversary of the Chicago fire.

The nation's business community, its public community and its social community should observe fire prevention week with more than mouth service.

All conditions which cause danger of fire should be itemized, and efforts should be made to guard against each dangerous condition.—Star-Telegram.

Dr. Edwin R. Scott says that his death ray will eradicate pests. Would it work on the man who insists on telling you the latest story?

[illegible] loved because his wife had bobbed her hair, an[illegible] man shot her. Some men take their pre[illegible] seriously.

By JOHN BLAKE.

Is Your Salary All You Get.

Samuel Vauclain, president of the great Baldwin Locomotive Works, told a gathering of engineers that he was wealthy because he had never had time to spend his money.

He said that all his life he had made it a rule to work as hard as he possibly could at whatever job he happened to have, irrespective of the salary he got.

In that way he kept so busy that he could never get much time off for spending money.

What Mr. Vauclain said about the way he worked was more important than what he said about how he got rich.

Getting rich is secondary to doing something worth doing while you are getting rich.

Mr. Vauclain built up a great business that has been of tremendous value to the country and the world.

Because of his establishment and others like it, freight and passengers can be taken across continents in a tenth of the time they could travel the same distance when steam was first harnessed to cars.

Improvements made in locomotives have brought about economy in fuel, although they are still so expensive that in fifty years from now they may all be displaced by motors driven by power which now goes to waste in the streams that rush down mountain sides, and in the tides that rush to and fro through the Bay of Funday and other inlets of the sea.

In building locomotives, Mr. Vauclain worked hard—and note carefully that he worked hard no matter what pay he happened to get.

Often in his young days he must have been underpaid, but he was always a willing and an intelligent worker.

But if he was underpaid in wages, his pay was made up in what he got out of his job in experience and understanding of it.

And he knew it. That is why he kept on working without thinking much about the actual amount of money that was handed him every week by his employer.

Any man who works hard and intelligently gets something out of the job—most such men get a great deal.

That extra pay, which is not money pay is stored up in the brain, and stays there to earn interest exactly as does money in the savings bank.

And by and by it will be used in the same business, or in some other business, and then its owner will discover that instead of being underpaid, he was merely paid in another kind of coin, which later on can be cashed in.

The salary that Mr. Vauclain gets is part payment for what he did in those low salaried years.

It is partly interest on mental capital stored away every day he worked on the job and learned more and more about his business.

And that capital is of far more value to him today than all the wealth he may have invested in material securities.

For it is all his own, and no failure, no change in government, nothing can take it away from him.

HIGHWAY MUDHOLES.

Highway matters will hold attention of Texas officials all the way from Houston to Amarillo this week. There is a possibility the week may see a satisfactory end of the Harris county road litigation and road contract controversy. There are several possibilities before the meetings of Texas county judges and commissioners at Amarillo.

At Austin, the justice court of inquiry into matters growing out of the Houston road wrangle, is likely to be resumed, according to announcement of Attorney General Dan Moody. Moody, in the injunction hearing at Houston last Friday asked the case be continued to Oct. 5, pending his investigation at Austin.

Friday, Chairman Frank Lanham of the highway commission is to meet County Judge Chester H. Bryan of Harris county here, and officials of Haden and Austin, contracting firm which has offered to do road surfacing in Harris county for 17 cents per square yard, as compared with 32 cents, now paid, with a view of signing up an acceptance of this offer. The injunction pending is not against future operation of the 32-cent contract with Sherman and Youmans, but against payment of approximately $80,000 already due; but it was thought likely here if a satisfactory contract is completed, it will be easy to settle the pending controversy.

But the real pyrotechnics, if any, will be at the county judges' meeting in Amarillo. Dallas county officials are already levelling a scrutiny of road contracts throughout the state, in light of the Harris county situation and new prices found possible.

L. W. Kemp, ousted contractors' association secretary, who has been barred from the highway department, and denied access to what have been termed public records of the commission, will be at Amarillo when the county judges' convention opens. He has made known his desire to address the convention and tell the officials his side of his own controversy with the highway department, which resulted in his being fired.

He has assurance from some members of the convention they will seek to get him the invitation to speak; and a scrap in the meeting, over letting him appear is thought likely. Kemp himself is doubtful whether he will be permitted to address the meeting.

Administration of highway affairs has undergone a profound change, as new laws of 1925 became effective, and the court decisions in the Limestone county case, upholding state jurisdiction and control, are being worked out. The commission, confronted with enormous tasks in new and untried fields, is rapidly stabilizing the vast machinery which got off to a rather jerky, uncertain start. No longer is every step a new and untried one. Precedents, though still shiny and new, are being accumulated, and methods of unifying the state-wide program are being worked out. The highway commission has announced it has allotted all funds available until next year; and it has already allotted considerable sums of 1926 and 1927, and several sizeable amounts to become available in 1928.

And so it goes.

MITCHELL A MAN OF ACTION.

Colonel William Mitchell has the center of the the Shenandoah crashed to the earth Colonel Mitchell shot his bolt. It struck army and navy pillars with terrific effect.

Colonel Mitchell did not mince his words. He stands pat on all that he said. He is ready to become a martyr for conviction's sake. He is ready for dismissal from the army for the good of the cause.

He will not be a candidate for public office. He isn't looking for any high salaried jobs. If he is thrown out by the government he is going to Africa on a big game hunt next year.

He is well fixed financially. He owns a big stock farm in Virginia. He owns a country home in Wisconsin. He is a man of direct action and lets the chips fall where they may.

WHAT TODAY MEANS TO YOU

By MARY BLAKE
Libra.

Today's planetary aspects, although favorable, do not indicate any marked degree of success, for either professional or business ventures. They do, however, denote that the better emotions will be stimulated. Hatred will be forgotten, worry will be dismissed, and things that hitherto looked dark and foreboding, will, under the prevailing influences, bear quite another appearance. The signs reveal that optimism will replace doubt or despair, especially in those all-important matters that affect your life and its happiness. If your children have caused you misgivings, remember they are your children and that you once were a child yourself. If you have differences with your mate, remember that we can not all think alike. If you are "at outs" with your sweetheart, remember that love should rise superior to all jarring trifles.

Children born today will, with careful nutrition and good environment, enjoy excellent health during the infantile period, and there is nothing except lack of proper attention or their own foolhardiness, to prevent them attaining a robust majority. Temperamentally, they will be rather moody, and, although lacking quickness of intellect, they will, by plodding, acquire a great fund of valuable information. They may disappoint a schoolmaster, like many of those that have become great; they will never advertise well any school. Later on in life, they will prove that what they devoured of learning, they digested and assimilated properly.

If today is your birthday, you are reticent and excessively cautious. You never yield to an impulse, nor give way to any emotion. You are self-contained and self-contented. As a natural result, you get very little real pleasure out of life, and give very little of it to others, who, in the vernacular, consider you "hard boiled."

Owing to your conservatism, and your watchful vigilance of your own interest, you have probably achieved a moderate success. You could have done more, if your thoughts and actions had been more liberal, and if you had not endeavored, at so much effort, to suppress natural emotions.

You are very persistent, but often miss a good opportunity by discussing for too long a time in your mind, the "pros" and "cons." Impetuosity and too much eagerness to take a chance can not be too severely criticized. On the other hand, it may be said "tis better to have tried and lost, than never to have tried at all."

Need Substitute For Gas, He Says

NEW YORK, Sept. 30.—(AP)—America should be working on a substitute for gasoline and coal is the logical source for such a substitute, Dr. A. C. Fieldner, chief chemist of the United States bureau of mines, told the chemists attending the American Chemical Society symposium today.

"The gradual failure of the yearly output of petroleum gasoline to meet the increasing needs of the automotive industries," said Dr. Fieldner, "with the consequent rise in prices of motor fuel should stimulate the carbonization of coal by both high and low temperature processes."

RAIL MEN OPPOSE CUT.

Carriers Fight Decrease in Sand and Gravel Rates.

DALLAS, Sept. 30.—Rail carriers of Texas will oppose decrease in sand and gravel rates recommended by the Texas railroad commission and will ask postponement of the Oct. 10, hearing on the matter, railroad representatives decided here today. Seventeen rail traffic men were of the opinion that a 90-day extension of time would be required to answer the proposal of the commission.

It was intimated the traffic men believe present rates are fair and reasonable.

POEMS THAT LIVE

I Wandered lonely as a cloud
That floats on high o'er vales and hills,
When all at once I saw a crowd,
A host of golden daffodils.
Beside the lake beneath the trees,
Fluttering and dancing in the breeze.

Continuous as the stars that shine
And twinkle on the milky way,
They stretched in never ending line
Along the margin of a bay;
Ten thousand saw I at a glance,
Tossing their heads in sprightly dance.

The waves beside them danced, but they
Outside the sparkling waves in glee:—
A poet could not but be gay
In such a jocund company!
I gazed—and gazed—but little thought,
What wealth to me the show had brought.

For oft, when on my couch I lie
In vacant or in pensive mood,
They flash upon that inward eye
Which is the bliss of solitude;
And then my heart with pleasure fills,
And dances with the daffodils.

HOW IT STARTED

"GAG RULE"

Not only in our national and state legislatures do we hear this term resentfully used, but in clubs and gatherings of all kinds where parliamentary proceeding is observed. In high school sorority recently, the faction that had been opposed to certain action that was taken complained of being silenced by "gag rule."

The expression signifies any parliamentary ruling which silences or prevents agitation or opposition along certain lines. With us it is a relic of a historic parliamentary struggle of our young congress in pre Civil war days over the question of abolition.

After the beginning of the agitation of northern abolitionists against slavery about 1831, petitions began to pour into both houses of congress asking for the abolition or the restriction of slavery in the states. In May, 1835, the house, under pressure of slave states, of course, passed the so-called Pinckney resolutions which provided that no petitions relating to slavery should be printed or referred, in fact that they should be disregarded. This was the first of the "gag rules," which were in disregard of the first amendment of the constitution referring to the right to petition.

Subsequently came the Patton resolutions and the Atherton gag with similar discriminations against petitions regarding slavery, and finally the famous "twenty-first rule." At the opening of each new congress, however, John Quincy Adams, the champion of the right of petition, fough tthis "gag" and in December, 1844, succeeded in having it rescinded. The term, however, has survived in modern speech.

Beg Your Pardon

TO THE EDITOR:

I do not know whether it is possible to change a statement made by a paper, but the morning issue carries quite a wrong idea. The purpose of the Red Cross meeting Thursday night is to elect a board. Voting upon continued activity really has no place. The old board has resigned. The 3,000 chapters of the national organization throughout the United States hold annual meetings with election of an executive board and election of officers one week later from this group from October to December—in other words during October, November, December. Officers are elected for one year. The board here has held office for five years. It feels that it has given long service and that a new group should carry on its responsibilities. We are chiefly anxious to have good attendance that the community may see elected as strong a leadership as was had under the old board whose resignation is effective Oct. 1. The incoming board will be responsible for determining program. You will, of course, not use this as written and it ought not be an interview but we should all be glad if we could get this thought over.

Sincerely,

GRACE ASHBAUGH.

IRRIGATION

The recent meeting at the chamber of commerce of a large number of land owners who will come under the Holliday lateral when it is built had some very encouraging aspects.

It showed beyond any question of a doubt the change of mind that is taking place among the owners and people generally in this section in regard to irrigation.

A few years ago such a meeting would have been an impossibility. Pretty near every one except those who really knew by experience or observation were opposed to irrigation. Or if they were not opposed to it they did not believe in it enough to try and help.

Irrigation in the past two years has demonstrated beyond any question that it is a paying proposition for the farmer and land owner.

Instead of the water from Lake Kemp being poisonous to crops and detrimental to the soil it has been shown that the finest kinds of crops can be raised with it and that it improves the soil rendering it more mellow and friable.

Whenever a farmer sees a field producing a bale of cotton to the acre by using irrigation and other fields not irrigated doing well if they pick as much as a quarter of a bale then he is convinced.

Seeing it believing to most of us and it seems to apply with especial force to the average land owner.

The meeting on the 26th showed that a lot of land owners had seen and believed.

PICK REA'S SUCCESSOR

Wm. W. Atterbury Is New President of Pennsylvania Railroad.

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 30.—(AP)—William Wallace Atterbury was elected today as president of the Pennsylvania Railroad company. He succeeds Samuel Rea, retired under the company's pension regulations.

Mr. Atterbury, who has been a vice president of the company for the last 16 years, assumes his duties tomorrow. Mr. Rea, who was 70 years old on September 21, will remain as a member of the board of directors.

Rea said that unless some emergency arises it will be unnecessary to issue and sell any securities of the company this year and probably none throughout the year 1926. Mr. Rea's statement was prompted by reports that the company was about to sell large amounts of capital stock.

The Storm CenteR

By BURTON L. STEVENSON

"But I have already told you," broke in Pat, impatiently, "that dad and I stick together in everything."

"And now," Landon added, paring his hand across his eyes with a gesture of sudden weariness, "I am going to tell you good night. I have to get an early start tomorrow—I have a lot of work to do."

Pat took O'Neill to the door.

"I am so glad you are going!" she whispered. "And you will be glad too! It is true what dad said—you will see. It's the biggest thing in the world! Good night."

"Good night," answered O'Neill mechanically, and walked out upon the terrace.

He started violently, for a hand had been laid lightly on his shoulder.

"I have come as you suggested, Monsieur O'Neill," said a harsh voice in French, "to talk over our affair."

And, looking up, O'Neill saw standing beside him a tall figure wrapped in a great burnoose—a dark face framed in a close-clipped beard—the face of the unknown of the Marseilles express.

"May I sit down?" continued the unknown, and seated himself quietly on the bench beside O'Neill and got out a cigarette and lighted it. "We can not be overheard here?" and he cast a fleeting glance about him.

"No. I think not," answered O'Neill mechanically, and continued staring at him, his head whirling more than ever.

"You appear surprised," continued the other, smiling, but there was a hint of savagery under the smile and the voice lost none of its harshness. "I have only to speak a word and you are finished. Nevertheless, I am empowered to offer you two hundred thousand francs for the map."

O'Neill looked at him without answering, trying desperately to understand. So it was a map they were searching for—but a map of what?

"Two hundred thousand francs in one hand," went on the other, his voice deepening with menace; "and in the other hand—death! It ought not to be difficult to choose."

"No," agreed O'Neill slowly; "no—perhaps not."

"Well, then?"

O'Neill took a reflective puff or two. He realized that he was playing a dangerous game, but he really must learn more about that mysterious man.

"Perhaps you will be good enough to answer a few questions first," he suggested.

"Ask them."

"Was it you I saw in the Place de la Republique tonight?"

The unknown chuckled softly.

"No; that was my very famous brother, Ali Bey, to whom I am a great trial." And then he looked at O'Neill sharply. "But you should know that—if you know anything!"

"Yes, perhaps I should," O'Neill agreed.

"How did you discover I had taken the room in this hotel just under yours?"

"I didn't discover it," retorted O'Neill.

"But the note."

"Which note?"

"Asking me to meet you here?"

"I never asked you to meet me here—I hadn't the slightest wish to meet you, and the quicker you get out, the better I'll be pleased," said O'Neill, and slipped his pipe into his pocket, his muscles tense.

"Do you mean," said the Arab savagely, at last, "that you did not write the note—that you did not invite me here—that you did not leave your door unlocked . . ."

"No," broke in O'Neill.

"It was I unlocked it, Mustapha," said a suave voice behind them. "Monsieur O'Neill is entirely innocent."

Even before he turned, O'Neill recognized that voice. It was the voice of the Gare de Lyon—the voice which had urged upon him the reservation to seat fifteen—a voice rich and melodious, wonderfully controlled.

But Mustapha was on his feet with a spring like a panther, one hand buried in the folds of his burnoose. And his face was like a wolf's.

"Who are you?" he demanded hoarsely.

"Louis Delage, at your service."

A knife flashed in the Arab's hand as he jerked it free of his burnoose, but Delage was upon him like a flash, and with one savage blow upon the wrist sent it spinning to the pavement. O'Neill could hear the quick gasp for breath as the two men locked—breast to breast. There was for a moment no other sound—just that quick gasp, that sense of strain; but he knew that both men were putting every ounce of strength into the struggle.

The Arab's back was against the stone balustrade, and Delage held him there, rigid for a moment, and then slowly bending him backward above the coping, his arms locked at his side. Once he wrenched an arm free and grabbed at his adversary's throat, but Delage caught it and bent it up and back.

Then, with a mighty effort, the Arab shook himself free, leaving his burnoose in Delage's hands, and hurled himself upon the latter; but Delage, in instant apprehension of his plan, stepped quickly aside, leaped, and sent him hurtling over the balustrade. O'Neill caught a glimpse of his body, spread-eagled, one of his hands grasping at nothing, and then it shot from sight.

Delage stood for an instant looking down over the balustrade, then he picked up the burnoose, and, reaching over the balustrade, drew [illegible] hand into the hood, drew [illegible] of papers and threw them over the balustrade after [illegible].

"It was his life or mine, O'Neill," he said, a little breathlessly, and drew out a handkerchief and mopped the sweat from his face and hands. "You saw that?"

O'Neill nodded. His heart was beating so that he could not trust himself to speak.

"I cannot stay here," went on Delage rapidly. "His body will be discovered in a moment or two, and I must arrange this window so that it will appear he fell from it by accident. You forget," O'Neill protested, "that when they search the room they will find a note from me inviting him to meet me here. That will be hard to explain, it seems to me."

"One moment," said Delage, and stepped to the light from the open window and ran rapidly through the papers in his hand. "Here is the note, Monsieur O'Neill," he added, and handed it to him. "There is absolutely nothing to connect you with this affair."

He paused, his lips open, as though hesitating whether to say something more; then, with a little shrug, stepped through the open window into O'Neill's room.

"Good-bye, Monsieur O'Neill," he said, opened the outer door and passed from sight.

For an instant O'Neill stood staring at the door. Then he went to the balustrade and looked over it. Five stories down, in the street below, a group had gathered—he could hear excited voices.

They would be coming up in a moment—he must decide what to do.

And with sudden resolution he hurried back to his room and snapped out the light. Then he struck a match, held it to the note, and watched until it was quite consumed. Finally he undressed hastily and tumbled into bed.

CHAPTER VIII.

The Hour Strikes

The sun was just rising over the eastern hills when O'Neill threw back the tent-flap and stepped briskly out into the fresh morning air.

"Hi, Belayed!" he shouted.

There was no response.

"Now I wonder—" he began, and then his eye caught something moving toward him down the hillside. It was Belayed, bending under a distended goat-skin slung across his shoulders.

"Bon jour, Monsieur O'Neill," he said, with a wide smile displaying his white teeth, swung the girba from his shoulders and placed it carefully between two boulders.

"Good morning, Belayed," O'Neill answered. "Do not forget that Monsieur Landon wishes you to catch the diligence when it passes, and to bring back the horses, with provision for four days."

"I have not forgotten, sir," said Belayed.

"You understand that Monsieur Landon has made all arrangements with the Commissaire, and that all charges are paid?"

"I understand, sir, said Belayed, and glanced at the sun. "We are to go—tomorrow?"

"Yes; tomorrow."

"I have still ten minutes," Belayed observed, drew some water from the [illegible] move on then, it seems?"

[illegible] skin into a broad pan, set it on a rude stove made of slabs of stone, and blew into flame the smouldering coals of juniper roots beneath it.

"Now I must go, monsieur," he said. "The water will boil in a minute. I have just opened a fresh bag of meal."

"Very well; I'll find it," said O'Neill, and Belayed, saluting respectfully, hurried away down the hillside toward the road.

Those six weeks since he had left Algiers had done much more to O'Neill than give him a knowledge of cookery. He was thinner, harder, deeply-tanned. Six weeks away from civilization really mattered.

"What ho, the cook!" shouted a voice. It was Pat's voice, but the figure which he saw approaching when he turned his head was that of a slim and sun-browned youth, in shirt and breeches and puttees. Only the slenderness of the waist betrayed her sex. "Why didn't you call me?"

"Why should I? I know how to get breakfast," said O'Neill proudly.

"Well," she said, "I am ready to help."

"Suppose you finish this mush while I get washed," O'Neill suggested, and gave her the wooden spoon with which he had been stirring it.

Landon appeared while this was in progress.

"Did Belayed get off?" he asked.

"Yes," said O'Neill, "I made sure he understood your instructions."

Landon nodded and performed his ablutions while O'Neill set the table—a board, flat stone laid across two [illegible] ones.

The meal was a simple one—oranges and dates, the semolina mush and coffee sweetened with honey. It was eaten with the appetite which life in the open gives, and was soon over.

"Belayed ought to be back by noon," Landon observed as he arose. "This afternoon we will get everything packed for an early start tomorrow. I wish you would come down with me to the villa, O'Neill," he added. "There are a few tracings I want to complete. Pat can clean up."

And O'Neill, who had developed an unsuspected talent for making tracings, of which he was very proud, arose with alacrity.

What they had been excavating and clearing of sand, with the assistance of a gang of Berber labourers brought down by Belayed from the hills, was the ruin of a dwelling. To be exact, it was the baths only they had been working on, for the baths were all that remained of what had once been a great establishment.

As this work had proceeded, as Landon had explained step by step the meaning of the various discoveries, O'Neill's astonishment had steadily deepened. It was his first glimpse into the splendour and stateliness of that old existence, and he was fairly [illegible] these were the baths, the meaning of the dwelling itself [illegible] and what [illegible]

RUM HABIT IS GREAT CRIME, ALLRED SAYS

Shows Tendency of Belittling Laws, Optimists Told

"The drinking habit is the one great crime of the boys and girls of today, and it shows the tendency toward belittling the laws and especially the liquor law," emphatically declared James V. Allred, former district attorney, to the members of the Optimist club at the noon luncheon at the Kemp Hotel, Wednesday when he talked on "The Youthful Crime of the Nation."

"The lack of enforcement of the law in this country, this city, and this state is the fault of the people and not the fault of the officers."

He gave examples of cases which he had observed while district attorney, showing how men, prominent citizens, had served on juries and had helped to give a verdict of "not guilty," on persons, bootleggers, from whom they had bought liquor.

Mr. Allred said that he believed no better move could be started than a program whereby business men, church members and real citizens would pledge that they would not belittle the liquor law.

Optimists were told of the work of the Camp Fire Girls' organization by the Rev. Leslie Miller.

WILSON MADE

events of decades [illegible] considered.

The Lord doubts that the worst of the economic disaster following the war has yet been seen; he holds that militarism and armaments made the world war inevitable and he doubts that even yet nations have learned that lesson, without which, he thinks, they must perish.

It never has hitherto been definitely revealed that President Wilson as early as 1916 was thinking of throwing the weight of the United States into the conflict on the side of the Allies. Even Earl Grey in his memoirs qualifies it with the statement that the president was considering it as an alternative to a peace conference. The sequence of events, however, as they are revealed by the diplomatic history of that time, bears out Viscount Grey's recital.

In his memoirs, the Lord records that in February 1916 E. M. House, President Wilson's personal representative on many unofficial diplomatic negotiations in European capitals, set down in collaboration with him a memorandum defining, as definitely as was then possible, the steps President Wilson would be prepared to take and the terms of peace which the president would use the influence of the United States to secure. House, the Lord writes, left a copy of the memorandum with him, while he returned to Washington, and later cabled that the text had been confirmed by the president. The text of the memorandum which Viscount Grey includes in his memoirs dated February 22, 1916, is as follows:

Memorandum.

(Confidential) Colonel House told me that President Wilson was ready, on hearing from France and England, that the moment was opportune, to propose that a conference should be summoned to put an end to the war. Should the Allies accept this proposal, and should Germany refuse it, the United States would probably enter the war against Germany.

Colonel House expressed the opinion that, if such a conference met it would secure peace on terms not unfavorable to the Allies; and, if it failed to secure peace, the United States would leave the conference as a belligerent on the side of the Allies, if Germany was unreasonable. Colonel House expressed an opinion decidedly favorable to the restoration of Belgium, the transfer of Alsace and Lorraine to France, and the acquisition by Russia of an outlet to the sea, though he thought the loss of territory incurred by Germany in one place would have to be compensated to her by concessions to her in other places outside of Europe. If the Allies delayed accepting the offer of President Wilson, and if, later on, the course of the war was so unfavorable to them that the intervention of the United States would not be effective, the United States would probably disinterest themselves in Europe and look to their own protection in their own way.

Ready to Talk.

I said that I felt the statement coming from the president of the United States, to be a matter of such importance that I must inform the Prime Minister and my colleagues; but that I could say nothing until it had received their consideration. The British government could, under no circumstances, accept or make any proposal except in consultation and agreement [illegible] I thought [illegible] feel [illegible] t.

December 18, President Wilson addressed an official note to all the belligerents asking them to state more specifically than they had therefore terms on which they were prepared to make peace. The war president disclosed this step to congress January 22, 1917, in his celebrated "peace without victory" address which in effect embraced in principle all the fundamental propositions which had been outlined in the memorandum which Lord Grey regards as containing the substance of his conversation with House.

As the world knows, nothing came of the president's proposal for a peace conference at that time, and whether he was then considering throwing the United States into the war is not disclosed by any of the late president's shorthand notes, memoranda or official documents which so far have been revealed to the public.

Viscount Grey, in his memoirs says House had cabled him that President Wilson confirmed the memorandum "with the alteration of only one word." He does not disclose what this one word was, but confidentes of the late president who have read Viscount Grey's work believe undoubtedly was the word "probably," making the document read, "the United States probably would enter the war against Germany" in the event that peace proposals failed.

Much support for this supposition is to be found in recollections of confidential conversations with the late president by those very few men with whom he intimately discussed the war and revealed the drift of his mind. As late as the winter of 1918,—in fact while he was on his way to the peace conference,—he disclosed to one of his confidantes that for many months before the United States entered the war, he was not sure that the drastic application of the British naval blockade would not so shape public opinion in America so as to make it difficult to avoid an open rupture with the allies and Great Britain in particular.

Who to Fight.

"For a long time," President Wilson told this confidante, "I was unable to make up my mind whom we might have to fight, after all. It was difficult to determine which the American public regarded as worst—British navalism or Prussian militarism. My decision finally turned on this point, to wit: seized ships and cargoes could be paid for in money, leaving everybody satisfied. But the American lives which the Prussian government was sacrificing in its submarine campaign never could be paid for or restored, and in making a choice of two evils I had to come to the conclusion that Prussian militarism was the worst."

From that, the war president turned to the frantic efforts the allied powers had made to hasten the effective forces of the United States to the battle line.

"It was after Gough's fifth army had been annihilated before Amiens," said Mr. Wilson, "and the German armies were pouring through the gap toward the English channel, piercing the allied resistance like the prow of a powerful ship pushing through still water. They came to me with tears in their eyes—these ambassadors in Washington. I do not use his term figuratively but literally. The tears actually rolled down the cheeks of these ambassadors as they told me all was lost unless we hurried our forces and won the war for them. The British ambassador in particular (the late Sir Cecil Spring-Rice) threw out his arms in a despairing gesture and moaned:

"'If you are coming at all, for God's sake come quickly.' We came," continued the president to his confidante, "and now they want to discuss who won the war. I shall make this plain to Lloyd George and Clemenceau. America won this war for them, but America doesn't necessarily need to help them make an old fashioned peace. I already hear that they want to make an old world peace on the basis of balances of power and then later attempt a peace to insure the peace of the world for the future. In other words, they want to make a peace to suit their own selfish ends and then having done that rise from the table and say, 'Now, gentlemen, we will discuss this League of Nations business at some later time.' And that time of course will never come. They will understand from the first that I will have no part in that business. They will make guarantees for the peace of the future or they will make their peace without America. And if we make this peace, I will so intertwine the principle of the League of Nations with its terms, that no man will be able to accept one without the other."

The president's friend asked him what he proposed to do if he failed to have his viewpoint accepted.

"I can always take my peace mission and go home," Mr. Wilson replied with a gesture of finality.

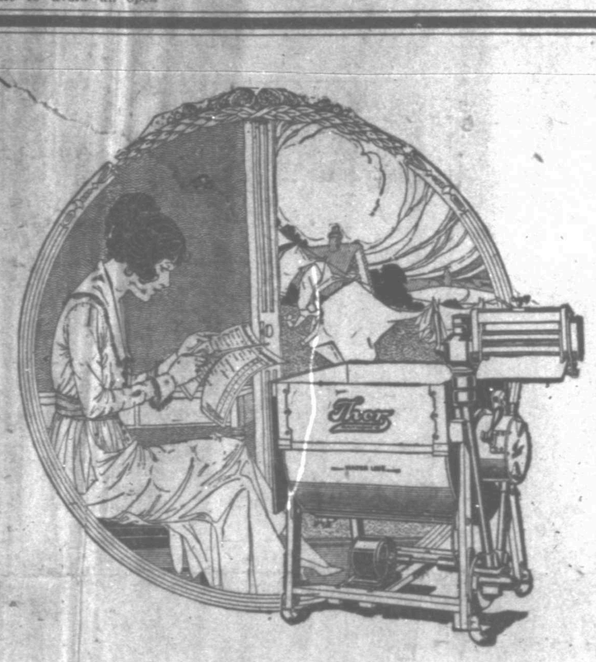

The succeeding events proved that Mr. Wilson carried out his intentions as he outlined them to his friend. He did intertwine the peace and he did at one time, effectually terms with the League of Nations, threaten to take his peace mission and go home.

TAX PAYMENTS NOW IN ORDER, RALEY STATES

Season for Settling Dues With State and County Open

Due and payable, lease remit!

Tax paying season on state and county assessments opens officially today.

"We're ready for them," was County Tax Collector Raley's terse and heartless comment yesterday. "Ready for them" implying that his office and deputies were suitably provided with rolls and receipt books, along with an avaracious capacity for footing up the tax bills.

From now on all county and state taxes on property in Wichita county may be paid for the current year. The big rush of course, will not come until the first of next year.

Poll taxes, too, may be paid today and thereafter. This will bring the annual issuance of poll tax receipt No. 1 to Mrs. R. E. Huff, who has been given this number for years. Her husband, Judge Huff, will get the first exemption. Mr. Raley himself will get poll ta xreceipt No. 2 and his wife will have No. 3.

Branch offices of the tax department will be opened about Nov. 15 in Electra and Burkburnett for the accommodation of the tax-paying public, Mr. Raley has announced. All taxes may be settled there with competent deputies who will be put in charge. In addition to these, a large number of stations will be established in Wichita Falls later in the year for the accommodation of those wishing to pay poll taxes. It is hoped that 20,000 will be reached this year and provisions are to be made for the greatest convenience possible for the public.

EXCURSIONS REVIVED.

Railroad Experiment With American Travelers Successful.

CHICAGO, Sept. 30.—(AP)—An impressive experiment with the American love of travel has just been concluded by the Mid-western Railroads with headquarters in Chicago. In the face of ownership of nearly 9,000,000 passenger automobiles by residents of 14 midwestern states the roads this summer revived the old fashioned railroad excursion on a big scale for the first time since the world war and with success.

When summer excursions were at their peak before the war passenger automobiles numbered far less than half the present figures. Nevertheless the western roads, in reviving the once popular custom, introduced no new advertising wrinkles, but stuck to the old fashioned principle of offering a very long ride for a bargain price.

Run-Down
SO MANY women who are weak and run-down just drag around, not knowing how to find relief from their troubles. Are you one of them? If so, learn from the experience of other women, thousands of whom have reported that, when they were thus troubled, Cardui helped them up and restored them to their normal health and strength.
Mrs. Linwood D. Furman, 1010 East Church St., Jacksonville, Fla., whose picture is printed above, tells how she gained relief through the use of Cardui.
"I was very much run-down last spring," says Mrs. Furman. "I could hardly drag myself around the house. A lady friend came to see me one day and asked me why I did not take Cardui.
"I got a bottle and began to take it. I noticed an improvement in myself almost at once. My appetite came back and my general health grew better.
"In every way I found Cardui a most satisfactory tonic and I have recommended it to several of my friends."
Don't experiment with your health. Forty years of constant use, by thousands of sick women, stands behind every bottle of Cardui you buy. If you suffer from a female ailment, for which an internal remedy is indicated, we urge you to take Cardui. It contains medicinal ingredients of best, selected quality, which years of thorough testing has shown to be of value in just such cases as yours.

Uncle Sam Offers Bisons to Those Who Are Willing Care for Them Tenderly

Dear Uncle Sam:—My dooryard
Has but a limited horizon,
And all too little room I've got
In which to park a full grown bison.
So cumbersome a quadruped
Would need a lot of room and forage,
If you'll give me a mole instead—
I might perchance afford him forage.

Although a bison, I am sure,
Is quite a fascinating creature
Albiet somewhat grim and dour
And saturnine in facial feature
I find I must decline the brute
And why I feel I must decline
That I am sure he'd hardly suit
So limited a place as mine is.

This may seem rank ingratitude
A thing I hold in detestation
But I must feed my little brood
And save up for their education
And guard their lives, dear little apes—
And I'm appalled to think maybe,
This bison, were he here, perhaps
Might some day trample on my baby.

It was exetremely kind of you
To offer me this handsome animal
But even if you made it two,
And added for good weight camel,
I'd have to turn the gift down flat.
The brutes are big, and round and prankful
If you have got a mole—or
Send them along and I'll be thankful!

Griffin and Dixon Meet In 15-Round Battle Here Tonight

BANTAMS TO PUT ON REAL GLOREE SHOW

Murdock and Carney Meet In Ten-Round Semi-Final

Wichita Falls fistic fans have the chance tonight to see one of the best cards for some time when Dick Griffin of El Paso, and Dick Dixson of Fort Worth, hook up for a 15-round main go at the legion arena. A 10-round semi-final between Young Murdock and Billy Carney, both of Wichita Falls, and a pair of good four round matches will complete the card.

Three bantam weight fighters are in the midst of a dispute over the championship of the Southwest. Griffin, Murdock and Dixson all lay claim to this title.

Dixson has won from Murdock by a knockout, while Murdock won from Dixson with a decision in Dallas some time ago. The Fort Worth lad expects to give Griffin a hard battle tonight, and looks to be in perfect form. He says he has been working steadily for the last three weeks without the loss of a day and should in prime condition for the match.

Not a Bad Record.

While on the coast in a recent tour Dixson fought no less than 37 times. Thirteen fights were won by knockouts, he gained 18 decisions, and fought six draws.

Griffin an El Paso fighter, already has a hold on the championship of the Pacific Coast. Griffin is a clever boy, and in his recent fight here he made a great impression on the fans.

Griffin is fast as well as clever. It is not a light punch that he lands and he swings that right with or his regularity.

Should Be a Hummer.

This bout should be one of the best in the ring this season. It promises to be a real scrap from gong to gong.

No less interest is displayed in the 10-round semi-final bout between Young Murdock and Billy Carney. These two lads have met on three occasions before, twice here and once in Oklahoma City. Murdock has won all three, but Carney has given him some stiff opposition in all three. Their first fight was four-rounder which many thought should have gone to Carney. In the last, Murdock showed them in through eight rounds. In Oklahoma City, Murdock won a 10-round decision from Carney. Billy Carney is a boy that doesn't give in, and is out on Murdock's trail.

Beat Young Cotton.

Carney won his bout last week from Young Cotton with a knockout in the early rounds. Carney is fast and clever with a nice punch. His nerve to hang on to a man that has bested him through 21 rounds of hard fighting is a credit to his power. He is tough and expects to put up a real brand of fighting which has pleased the fans since he started in the local arena.

Murdock, a youngster just out of the preliminaries, is making a big bid for the favor of the hearts of the local fans. He recently was declared the bantam-weight champion of the Southwest by the Oklahoma City fans after his great fight with Norvin Vance, the Waurika wildcat. This youngster has been fighting the semi-finals and main events in the Oklahoma capital for some time now, and will be greeted back in the Wichita Falls ring by his many followers.

This should prove every bit as good a fight as the best of the four-round bouts that will start the card. The names of the four fighters were not announced, but Promoter Woffard stated that they were all good boys.

Pirates Keep In Trim For Games

PITTSBURG, Pa., Sept. 30.—(AP)—The Pittsburg Pirates, pennant winners in the National league, will have no opportunity to study the lights and shadows of Griffith stadium in Washington, but they are not overlooking any bets in other directions. The entire squad, regulars and rookies alike, are undergoing a siege of severe preparation, designed to keep the team on edge for the battle for baseball supremacy which opens here a week from today. The Buccaneers, not having had a regularly scheduled game since last Sunday, have been indulging in a series of intensive batting and fielding drills at Forbes Field. This preparatory work will continue until Thursday. The team plays its last three games at Cincinnati on Friday, Saturday and Sunday.

Scalpers Busy On Tickets For Series

PITTSBURGH, Sept. 30.—(AP)—Scalpers desirous of obtaining large numbers of world series tickets are resorting to many tricks in attempts to gain their end. One hopeful scalper sent a number of banks in each bought a cashier's check to cover the cost of four allotted tickets. He then sent in requests for tickets, signing each request by the name of a bank. His one little slip came when he used the same kind of envelope for each letter. His mail came back, sans tickets.

Many similiar incidents have been detected by those in charge of ticket sales.

"WE'LL SURPRISE 'EM."

So Says Coach Montgomery of His Coyote Pups.

"We will surprise some of these teams this year," stated Coach Montgomery Wednesday morning on discussing the Coyote Cubs football prospects for the 1925 season. "I think I can develop a team this year from the things I have at hand."

BLONDY BURK'S BACK.

Again Dons Junior College Uniform After Injury to Finger.

The Junior college gridsters greeted back the guard that was taken from their midst early in the practice season when Wednesday afternoon Roscoe "Blondy" Burks was back in the moleskin suit. Burks was one of the best looking prospects in the Junior college line when he broke a finger on his left hand.

The squad took a light practice Wednesday afternoon with a grass drill, and work on several new plays. The latter they only clicked through to get the plans they were supposed to go.

POINT OF CONTACT

("Sports have played a big part in Senator Walker's life. .... He was responsible for the passage of the state boxing law, introduced the measure which legalized Sunday baseball, and it was his appeal which induced Ruth to turn over a new leaf."—Associated Press).

I sing the ath-a-let-ic gent,
Whose life is full of games and sports
Who counts his time as but mis-spent
When not in play of various sorts,
Who loves the idol of the fan—
This higly ath-a-let-ic man.

He legalizes fisticuffs—
He gets the crowd its Sunday ball—
On wayward stars, he throwns his bluffs
That mend their ways and save a fall!
He takes his sports in grandstand slants—
How very wearing on the pants!

TIA JUAN'S bars were all wiped out in a million dollar fire when the water supply failed. That's the trouble with a town where they don't figure anybody uses water.

Looking Backward—and Forward.

THE casual follower of football—and reader of it—is not inclined to devote much attention to the results of the first week of football. Nor is there overmuch importance to be attached to it except to that painstaking and frequently outraged gentleman, th ecoach, his charges, and what both may glean for the future—insofar as results on the field run true to form. Consider the case of the southwestern conference teams last week:

The biggest game, of course by nature of its participants, was the clash at South Bend between the 1924 conference champions and Notre Dame. The actual one-sided defeat of Baylor by a new Catholic team was not overy important. The loss of the giant Jack Sisco with a broken leg was not only important, but tragic. This young man, a serious minded student of his game, was probably the most consistent of the new men developed at Baylor last year. His loss will be felt. As was pointed out some time back here, Baylor, under Bridges, never reaches top stride until the conference schedule. Of course Bridges and Baylor would have liked to defeat Noter Dame, but their hearts would not be broken by defeat. There is no reason to think, as a result, that the Bears will not hit the November card with a strong machine.

Texas vs. Southwestern.

FROM the Longhorn encounter with Southwestern, one or two important points can be gleaned. The first is that out of a squad which Stewart complains is small, he has selected a fairly compact first-string team. The second is that this team is going to be fairly adaptable in the matter of combining the power and open offense because of size mixed with speed. The manner of the winning meant little. The few intricate plays were largely old—Southwestern was repeatedly sucked in on a very antique end-running play. But the best point is that the team can and will pass successfully. The ground work in overhead is there for tricky formations that will be effective later.

Some of the mentor's apprehensions over a green line were justified. There were faults in line play, and at the start Southwestern made ground through the line to smear offense. But it looks like an adaptable line that will improve.

The Aggie Spirit.

WHATEVER disappointment adherents of the Aggies may have felt over the close shave with Trinity (not entirely justified, as here is a capable coach with a good squad, was ameliorated to a large extent by the manner of the victory—that indefinable something that is known as Aggie spirit flaming out in Fay Wilson and his conferees as they bore down to register a triumph.

In other years, early Aggie defeats have been accepted as giving the team a good moral outlook. This year Bible gets the same effect without a loss.

One criticism that might have been directed against last year's Aggie team was that it came along too rapidly and was at its peak by the end of October. This year's squad will peak up but more slowly and much more slowly in spite of having a hard early game with Sewanee.

The squad will bear watching. Don't forget this about it—it's comparatively third year in 1924 was due entirely to bad breaks that turned potential success into defeat. It was a fine consistent team that should have defeated SMU and Baylor and tied Texas. Instead, it tied SMU and lost to Baylor and Texas.

SMU Has Weight.

MORRISON'S problem at SMU seems to have been simplified by the eligibility of Ott Stiles, who will play football. The line-up he started against Denison indicated plenty of weight and the score was one of the biggest this game has ever known.

One thing that seems to indicate the Mustangs will have a strong line is the fact that two players who are as fine tackles as George Watters and Vaughn can be shifted to guard. There is little difference between guard and tackle play except a matter of shiftiness in meinst and physical agility—and where material is scant, the thinkers play tackle and the slower minded guards. Now neither Watters nor Vaughn is slow, either mentally or physically, and if the younger Watters and Captain Magness are filling the forward positions, look out for at least a very formidable front wall.

Presumably the four starting backs are the regular combination. Roy Bishop and Wade are two young men who will be heard from. But Cortemeglia is only a mediocre player who can plunge, and Visor when he was at SMU a couple of seasons back, nothing exceptional.

Nothing to Judge.

TCU left nothing by which to judge when Bell used a largely youngster line-up in putting East Texas out of the way. Here was a coach out to get a line on his own new material.

That, too, applies at Rice, where your uncle John Heisman has a lot of problems to work out—and is working them. Rice is the conference enigma. You can accept TCU at Matty Bell's own estimate—that he has the best team he has known there, but it is not yet a conference contender, except in fighting spirit. But Rice, no one is certain of. It is a new team, but the comparatively successful eleven of 1924 was new to Heisman. What this one does can not be judged by its easy win over Stephen F. Austin.

Disch Unable To Take Free Trip To The World Series

AUSTIN, Sept. 30.—Because he is teaching two classes in physical education and no one is available to take his place, Billy Disch, veteran Texas university baseball mentor, likely will not be able to see the world series on a fund raised by student admirers. Mr. Disch has played and coached baseball for more than 30 years but he never saw a world series game. "My gratitude is beyond expression," he said, in commenting on the action of the students.

RAZORBACKS TO PLAY IOWA THIS WEEK-END

Ambitious Arkansans Go Into Hawkeye Camp Saturday

FAYETTEVILLE, Ark., Sept. 30.—The University of Arkansas Razorbacks left today for Iowa City, Ias., where they will open their 1925 football season against Iowa university, Saturday. The game will also mark the opening of the season for Iowa.

Coach Francis A. Schmidt and assistant Coach Barnes accompanied the 22 men composing the Razorback team. While most Arkansas supporters do not even hope for victory over the Big Ten conference team, they believe the Arkansas squad will give a good account of itself in spite of comparative inexperience of the men.

The sensational Arkansas backfield of 1924 is riddled, only one veteran remaining of the once almost unbeatable combination. Only five letter men are in the line.

Reports from the Hawkeye camp indicate that Coach Ingwersen, former Illinois star, is about to develop one of the halfback sensations of the country in Keutsche, a new comer to Iowa's team. He is fleet, a crack line plunger, and a good passer, and receiver.

The addition of Jeff Rucker, an end of last year's team and who is being made into a halfback, is regarded as a great aid to the Razormacks. Since the shift he is developing into an excellent man, and is regarded as one of the best punters in Arkansas football.

Steed Again Shows Up As a Runner; Horton Punts Well

The Coyotes were busy all afternoon, Wednesday, with a varied assortment of drills. Line practice, punting, blocking, passing and a few other details were run off.

The feature of the workout was the return to form of Buck Steed and the punting of Tank Horton. Steed has been a bit slow for some time, but Wednesday he again was the broken field demon of 1924. Several times he slyly evaded would-be tacklers.

Tank Horton was averaging an easy 40 yards on his punting. The chap is husky and shakes a wicked toe.

Pate's Hurling Gives Panthers Title of Dixie

ATLANTA, Sept. 30.—(AP)—The Fort Worth Panthers, champions of the Texas league, today retained their supremacy in class "A" baseball of the south by defeating the Atlanta Crackers, 1 to 0, and winning the Dixie series.

A pitching staff so strong that it turned back the hard hitting Georgians in four of the six games played was largely responsible for the triumph of the Panthers.

Led by Wilbur Good, champion batsman of the league, Nick Cullop home run king and several others with a good eye for the ball, the Crackers literally batted their way to the championship of the Southern Association.

But when they faced the moundsmen of Fort Worth the result usually was a walk back to the dugout. Good made a miserable showing at the plate, while Cullop only hit one home run.

Cats Get Nine Hits.

In the final contest, Hollis McLaughlin, veteran right hander, attempted to bolster the reputation of the Atlanta pitching staff. He pitched a strong game, despite the fact he lost.

The box score revealed nine hits for the Panthers while the Crackers got eight off Joe Pate, a portsider. McLaughlin walked five men. Pate gave no free tickets. The Atlanta hurler struck out five men in comparison to Pate's three.

Thus, it would appear that the Texan had a slight edge over the Cracker. An error and a hit which was so close that the official scorer hesitated in deciding whether to credit J. Smith, Atlanta third baseman with a bobble, figured in the one-run scored by Fort Worth. The Panthers gave their hurler sensational support while the Crackers committed four errors.

Five Innings Scoreless.

The first five innings were scoreless. Then in the sixth, Brock contributed an error to make H. Smith safe on first. Pate singled through third and Smith went to second. The latter scoring when Davis shot a liner through J. Smith at third. This was the bingle that caused the official scorer to hesitate on the question of a hit or error.

Atlanta won the first game of the series, "Pug" Cavet being credited with the win. Pate pitched the Panthers to a victory in the second. The third was won by Paul Wachtel, Fort Worth spitball artist, getting the credit. Atlant won the fourth, Cavet receiving the official credit although relieved by McLaughlin. Wachtel again was victorious in the fifth contest.

The victory of the Panthers today gave them their fifth Dixie series in comparison to one triumph for the Southern association.

Mobile defeated the Texas league champions in 1922.

TEN YARDS A CLIP GRANGE'S RECORD FOR GROUND GAINING

In 13 University of Illinois football games during the last two years, Harold "Red" Grange, All-American halfback, has averaged ten yards every time he carried the ball.

Grange gained a total of 2424 yards in 244 plays in which he figured; averaged 10 yards a play and 187 yards a game; and scored 25 touchdowns; at least one in every game he played except against Nebraska in 1924.

In actual playing time, Grange competed but 561 minutes during the 13 games,—which is only 9 1-3 games. Yet he managed to gain over 100 yards in every contest with the exception of the Minnesota battle last year. In that game he carried the ball but nine times for 56 yards. Still he scored Illinois' only touchdown.

Red's greatest ground-gaining feat came in the famous Michigan-Illinois game of October 18, 1924, when 67,000 football fans saw Illinois dedicate the Memorial Stadium with a 39 to 14 victory.

Grange played for 10 minutes during the first quarter and figured in but six plays; yet scored four touchdowns and gained 264 yards for an average of 26 yards a minute. He raced through the entire Michigan team on the opening kickoff for 90 yards and a touchdown; then repeated with three more touchdowns on runs of 70, 57 and 43 yards. Then to make the day complete, Red scored his fifth touchdown with a 15-yard dash to the goal in the second half.

Grange's next best performance was in the Northwestern-Illinois game of 1923 played at Cubs Park. Red played but 19 minutes; scored three touchdowns; and gained 251 yards. His longest run was on an intercepted forward pass that resulted in a touchdown after a 90-yard race. Red will complete his football days as captain of the University of Illinois team this fall. His first appearance will be against Nebraska at Illinois on October 3.

WOMAN GOLF CHAMPION OF U. S. BEATEN

Loses In Third Round of Meet During Big Rain Storm

ST. LOUIS, Sept. 30.—(AP)—There will be a new woman's golf champion of the United States this year, as Miss Dorothy Campbell Hurd of Philadelphia, who won the title last year, was defeated today in the third round of the championship meet at the St. Louis Country club by Mrs. F. C. Letts of Chicago by the liberal margin of 4 and 2.

The former champion weakened in a terrific wind and rain storm which swept the links during the second half of the 18-hole match, while Mrs. Letts, former western title holder, shot even par in the elemental conditions. It were the stronger hearts weaken but the women fought on gamely, three of the eight matches going to the home green, two sloshing to the 17th green and two to the 16th, while only one ended in midfield.

This one sided match was won by Louise Fordyce of Youngstown, from Helen Tillotson of Toledo 6 and 5, bringing the former Ohio champion into contact tomorrow with the conqueror of Mrs. Hurd.

The most spectacular match to reach the home green was an international one between the Canadian champion, Ada Mackenzie of Toronto, and Glenna Collett of Providence, former American and present French champion. The American won the struggle by the narrow margin of one up only by scoring one under par for 18 holes. The Rhode Island girl was out in 37, only two above men's par, but gained a lead of only one up, as the Canadian premier totalled 39, including two birdies. Miss Collett got only one birdie on this nine, but captured an eagle 3 on the 34-yard eighth, one of the most difficult on the links.

Golf

AS CHAMPIONS PLAY IT

Could the average player reasonably expect to shoot in the eighties, provided he studied and practiced the game intelligently? Or is the 80-4090 mark "over the head" and beyond the capacity of the average man, regardless of his effort? What is the chief reason for the average dubb's remaining forever in the dubb class?

By BILL STRACHAN
Wichita Falls Country Club Golf Professional.

The average player should expect to shoot in the eighties if he is athletically inclined and studies and practices the game intelligently. I don't think the 80-4090 mark is "over the head" of the average man. The chief reason for players staying in the "dubb" class is because they do not get the proper fundamentals at the start of the game, such as the proper grip, stance, pivot and good balance all through the swing. These may be obtained through instruction and practice, principally practice.

"Watch Little!" Is Cry of Western Grid Followers

Yost's Aide Preps Strong Eleven at Wisconsin This Fall.

By HARRY M. GOLDEN.
Central Press Special Correspondent.

MADISON, Wis., Sept. 29.—Coach George E. Little and his staff of all-American coaches are slowly but surely rounding out the 1925 University of Wisconsin football team. With twelve letter men in the fold, Little has a fair nucleus to start the season. He is well supplied with ends. Captain Steve Potaski, who is playing his third year in the conference, Birrus, Long, and Blackman completing a quartet of vets.

At the Tackle posts, the Badgers have a trio who should prove the real backbone of the forward wall. Paul Nelson, playing his last season should be an outstanding player in the conference, while Straubel and Kasieka should not be far in the rear. The guards positions are giving Little the most worry as Wisconsin lost two regulars who were a great help to Ryan. The flaring gaps left by Hibersteln and Miller are proving hard to fill. Only one letter man has come to answer the call for the start of this season was Ray Stipek. The husky Montanan should hold down one side of the line without any trouble.

Center Position in Doubt.

At the pivot, another problem presents itself. Teckemyer, the mainstay in the center of the line has departed and right there the Badger staff is faced with a real job. Wilke was expected to fill the gap but after the first scrimmage of the season, Wilson, a sophomore loomed to the fore and is today holding down the center position from the veteran. Kuehnu, another member of the last year frosh also looks like a comer and thus it appears to become a three-cornered race.

Speed and little weight is the chief asset of the backfield. Little to date has the following men who have shown great promise. At left half, he has the speedy McAndrews. The latter was one of the Badger stars last fall and with Little at the reins looks to become the mainstay of the backs. Giving plenty of competition to the speedy one is Larry Reuland, a member of the ineligible squad last year. Reuland is as fast as McAndrews and shows more promise than the average luns give him credit for having. He will develop and help Little a lot. Doyle Harmon, who last fall alternated between quarter and half looks better than ever. The Dakota husky has all the speed of last year and needs only another year to become a high class performer.

Has Plunging Back.

For the plunging type of halfback, Little can rely on Barnum who was Harris's understudy last fall. Barnum has added weight and with the essential amount of speed to make him a real driving back. Little is another back who can rip at line and has an equal in Lorson. The problem of backs is not the heaviest by any means when the fullback situation is taken into consideration. Kreuz, Radke, and Muegge are the three leading candidates and to date there is little to choose between them. Kreuz is a plunger and backs up the defense well, while, Muegge lacks plunging ability. Radke is a fair linebucker and exceptional punter.

Among the other backs who are fighting gamely for places on the squad are Hartlett, Hawley, Orcutt, Wigdale, Curties and Burbridge.

The quarterback situation is a three cornered battle again. Crofoot, captain of the 1924 frosh team is leading the field at the present time and looks great. Barofsky, captain of the 1923 frosh is next in line while last but not least is Goodland. The trio present a merry scramble, but your choice falls to Crofoot. The later is a natural field general and handles the squad well.

NEW YORK COTTON.

NEW YORK, Sept. 30.—An early advance in the cotton market today was followed b ya decline into new ncw ground for the movement. December contracts sold off from 23.51 to 23.15 and closed at that figure, the general market closing easy at net declines of 10 to 20 points.

The early rallies reflected relatively steady cables and apprehensions of unfavorable weather developments in the southwest either in the shape of a cold wave from the north or possible storms from the south. The opening was steady at an advance of 1 to 11 points and active months sold 16 to 19 points net higher. October advancing to 23.42 and January to 22.69. Nothing of a storm threat appeared in the official weather advices, however, while the advance to the 23½c level for December seemed to bring out increased offerings from one source or another and the market became weak and unsettled in the early afternoon.

Reports that ocean freight bookings for October shipment out of Gulf ports were smaller than for this date last year probably accounted for part of the selling here in late trading when sentiment also was influenced to some extent by the first of the end-month crop reports indicating a condition of 55.8 compared with an end-August report of 60.9. This condition as compared wit hthe mid-September bureau of 58.8 was commented upon by local traders as tending to encourage crop estimates of over 14¼ million bales.

Exports for the day 36,796, making 978,803 so far this season.

Port receipts 86,353. U. S. port stocks 919,370.

NEW ORLEANS COTTON.

NEW ORLEANS, Sept. 30.—(AP)—The cotton market was erratic today with rather wider fluctuations than have been the rule of late. The early trading was characterized by an advance of 15 to 22 points due mainly to prospects of less favorable weather and a weekly weather and crop report that was considered bullish. Later, and principally during the afternoon the market reacted on the liquidation of the state long interest and prices lost all the early gain and enough more to bring the decline from the highe down to 26 to 38 points lower. The close was at the bottom showing net losses for the day of 14 to 23 points.

At the start, first trades showed no change to gains of five points. Prices advanced after the opening on the prospect for less favorable weather as indicated by the map and on the rather unfavorable character of the weekly weather and crop report which said that picking had been delayed by the rainy weather and that much cotton had been damaged by the rains and by insect pests. At the highest December traded up to 22.28; January to 22.82 and March to 22.80; or 15 to 21 points above yesterday's close.

The market turned reactionary near noon and during the afternoon the downward trend of prices became more pronounced owing to reports that the October bookings of freight room were barely half what they were last year and because of weakness of stocks and the advance in call money rate to 6 per cent which occasioned fears that the federal reserve banks would raise their re-discount rates. Prices made new low right at the end with December at 22.50, January at 22.44 and March at 22.45, or 35 to 38 points under the early highs.

Exports for the day totalled 36,796 bales.

NEW YORK, Sept. 30.—(AP)—The stock market today succumber to the depressing effects of high money rates and prices reacted sharply. Liquidation of standard industrial shares increased in volume throughout the da ynad although some buying support appeared in the final hour efforts to bring about a general rally were unsuccessful.

The tendency of large banking institutions to draw in their loans for the heavy October first interest and dividend requirements and in expectation of an early bank call resulted in the marking of the renewal rate to 5½ per cent the highest since early in the year, and in a subsequent advance tg 6 per cent. While this situation was not considered unusual n view of seasonal developments its restrictive influence was readily apparent when an initial upturn in prices was checked.

Cautious commission houses advices offered little incentive for the extension of buying activities. With some of them recommending a liquidation of speculative lines a flood of selling struck many of the recent favorites, among which the high priced motors and specialties were the hardest hit. Pool operators strove to check the reaction by bringing forth new leaders but each temporary recovery seemed to invite a fresh flow of offerings.

Early constructive efforts centered in the baking, rubber, oil, equipment and shipping shares, some 20 of which reached new high levels for the year before the downward drift set in. Meanwhile vigorous selling broke out in other industrials and rails, with prices crumbling away rapidly when money rates were boosted in the early afternoon.

In contrast to its recent movements, U. S. Steel showed greater stability than other market leaders, responding with a moderate gain to the favorable predictions of the weekly trade reviews. American Can, however, slumped about four points below last night's close and net losses of two to six points were recorded by General Electric, Chrysler, Dupont, Baldwin, Mack Trucks, American Tobacco, Sears Roebuck, U. S. Cast ron Pipe and Union Bag and Paper.

Extreme fluctuations were considerably wider, reaching such proportions at one time that many stop-loss orders were uncovered. Baaking shares maintained their gains faierly well. General Baking and Ward B, being bolstered up by indications that merger plans involving these companies will soon be announced.

Rubber company stocks consistently followed an upward course under the leadership of U. S. Rubber, Goodrich and the Fisk issues. Buying of Fisk first preferred was stimulated by reports that arrangements would be made soon to pay off some 26 per cent in back dividends on this issue.

Several sharp gains were scored in the final up turn by specialties which have not heretofore figured prominently in speculative operations. National Distillers products preferred was rushed up eight points and New York canners seven points, both to new to prices for the year. American International moved up 3¼ points.

Foreign exchanges were steady in quiet trading. Demand sterling continued to hover around the theoretical gold export point at one time selling below $4.84 but later recovering. Belgian francs moved up six points to 4.42 cents on reports that a new loan for the stabilization of Belgium's monetary situation would be arranged before the end of the year.

The Scandinavian currencies made further gains.

In line with the lighter call money situation, tim eloans held firm at 4½ to 4¾ per cent. Commercial paper rates were unchanged.

TEXAS LIVESTOCK.

FORT WORTH, Sept. 30.—Except for slightly more early activity, the Fort Worth cattle market Wednesday was a quotably unchanged affair. Demand was not materially better, but the receipts arrived at a more seasonable hour, and traders were enabled to make better progress as a result. Only 4,000 head of cattle and 1,500 calves were on display.

Receipts of steers available for slaughter purposes, were no greater than usual, and quality offered nothing particularly appealing. Sales were negotiated without any unnecessary peddling, rates being considered about steady. One car went at $765.

Cows were going scaleward within a reasonable hour, and the weighing throughout the morning was more lively than at any time during the forenoon Tuesday. Carloads of good quality sold mostly within a spread of $4.25 to $5.000, with lumpy individual cows making $6 to $6.50.

CHICAGO GRAIN.

CHICAGO, Sept. 30.—(AP)—Notwithstanding a brisk advance at one time today, the wheat market later executed a right-about face. Reports which were current early that half of the Argentine wheat crop is poor were later denied. Meanwhile, month-end settlements gave the price of the September delivery of wheat an extreme range of 8 cents a bushel. Wheat closed nervous, ⅞ to 1¾c net lower, December $1.37⅞ to $1.38 and May $1.40⅝ to $1.40¾. Corn ⅝ to 4¾c off, oats at ¼c decline to ¼c advance and provisions 10 to 80c down.

Corn was governed by the changes in wheat. Frost predictions cut no figure, but reports saying frost damage to corn was negligible. Some investment buying helped to steady the oats market.

Big deliveries of lard, 2,000,000 pounds, pulled down provisions.

TEXAS VEGETABLES.

SAN ANTONIO, Sept. 30.—Texas was out of the list on fruit and vegetable shipment, and as a result much of the movement of nearby states was rolled this way to supply the demand. In the 24-hour period there were shipped by the nation, 1,079 cars of apples, 886 potatoes, 87 of tomatoes, four of watermelons, 136 of pears, 35 of peaches, 130 of sweet potatoes, five of lemons, 656 of grapes, 14 of oranges, 46 of lettuce, five of string beans, one of spinach, 156 cabbage, 183 onions, ten cauliflowers and five of cucumbers.

Crimmess was noted in lettuce shipping point markets of Colorad yesterday which worked to $2.50 and $3.00 for California crates of Iceberg, this price comparing with $1.50 @2.00 which has prevailed recently. Grapes, at Fresno were dull around 80@90c for four basket crates of Malagas on a carload f. o. b. cash track basis. Thompson seedless ranged mostly around 60 cents. White potatoes at Grand Junction, Colo., were reported weak under a light inquiry around $1.55 for U. S. first stock in warehouse, mixtoffir popies peiples russets. Market Gossip

MARKET GOSSIP.

E. E. Flowerree and company, Brokers, Basement Staley building, today received the following market comment from Pomeroy and Beane of New Orleans, New York and Chicago:

COTTON.

Cotton opened unchanged, and soon ran up 15 to 20 points on good Liverpool and prospects of bad weather.

It was a rather dull affair until afternoon, when rather heavy selling developed on issuance of the first of the barrage of private reports, showing a condition of 55.8, which would indicate a crop of around 14,700,000 bales.

Government statitician for Oklahoma reported plants that state averaged 7.6 bolls per plant against 10.4 last year, and that it was requiring around 80 bolls to produce a pound against 60 to 65 last year.

Southwest, southeast and central Texas reported considerable rain, but the greatest part of the state was dry.

It is extremely cold in the northwest, and there is a possibility of the gulf disturbance coming inland. If either of these storms reach the cotton belt, higher prices will result, but if the skies continus to clear, a sagging tendency is likely.

COTTON SEED OIL.

Cotton seed oil held steady until near the close when weakness in lard and cotton and lower prices for cruda brought about some hedging and futures slipped 4 to 14 points. Spots 65 lower, 9.95 for prime summer yell. Seed unchanged.

GRAINS.

Wheat extremely irregular, with December showing a range of 8 full cents on its last day, and other deliveries slightly less than 4 cents.

Five to ten inches of wet snow is reported to cover Saskatchewan, stopping threshing in the far northwest.

Report demand continued amost nil, and after the urgent buying of the early trading, prices quickly slipped below last night's finals, closing about 1 cent net lower.

We still see little on which to buy wheat, but believe other grains should be picked up on all declines from present prices.

STOCKS.

It was a day of liquidation in stocks, selling was heavy enough to overbalance demand and to depress values.

While the situation does not call for extreme pessimism there are factors that must be corrected before stocks can take a definite upward trend, in the face of gradually-tichtening money.

The public is long considerable stocks, and it is probable that some further liquidation will come into the market.

Firestone Cooperation Aids Bus Service Development

FOLLOWING the consolidation of this Company's extensive motor bus system in southeastern Pennsylvania, we felt the most important step was the solution of the tire problem. It seemed good judgment to place our whole tire problem in the hands of some Company equipped by experience to work out for us practical methods for handling what we consider to be one of the most important and difficult phases of successful bus operation.

After complete consideration we decided to utilize Firestone tires and service for our entire system. As a result a decided improvement in regularity of service has occurred.

The genuine satisfaction we have in the way our tire problem is working out under your direction, makes it a pleasure to give your Company this credit.

Griffin and Dixon Meet In 15-Round Battle Here Tonight

BANTAMS TO PUT ON REAL GLOREE SHOW

Murdock and Carney Meet In Ten-Round Semi-Final

Wichita Falls fistic fans have the chance tonight to see one of the best cards for some time when Dick Griffin of El Paso, and Dick Dixson of Fort Worth, hook up for a 15-round main go at the legion arena. A 10-round semi-final between Young Murdock and Billy Carney, both of Wichita Falls, and a pair of good four round matches will complete the card.

Three bantam weight fighters are in the midst of a dispute over the championship of the Southwest. Griffin, Murdock and Dixson all lay claim to the title.

Dixson has won from Murdock by a knockout, while Murdock won from Dixson with a decision in Dallas some time ago. The Fort Worth lad expects to give Griffin a hard battle tonight, and looks to be in perfect form. He says he has been working steadily for the last three weeks without the loss of a day and should in prime condition for the match.

Not a Bad Record.

While on the coast in a recent tour Dixson fought no less than 37 times. Thirteen fights were won by knockouts, he gained 18 decisions, and fought six draws.

Griffin an El Paso fighter, already has a hold on the championship of the Pacific Coast. Griffin is a clever boy, and in his recent fight here he made a great impression on the fans.

Griffin is fast as well as clever. It is said that he packs a wicked punch and he swings that right with terrific regularity.

Should Be a Hummer.

This bout should be one of the best in the local ring this season. It promises to be a real scrap from gong to gong.

No less interest is displayed in the 10-round semi-final bout between Young Murdock and Billy Carney. These two lads have met on three occasions before, twice here and once in Oklahoma City. Murdock has won all three, but Carney has given him some stiff opposition in all three. Their first fight was four-rounder which many thought should have gone to Carney. In the last Murdock showed them in through eight rounds. In Oklahoma City, Murdock won a 10-round decision from Carney. Billy Carney is a boy that does not give in, and is still on Murdock's trail.

Host Young Cotton.

Carney won his bout last week from Young Cotton with a knockout in the early rounds. Carney is a clever scrapper with a nice punch. His nerve to hang on to a man that has bested him through 21 rounds of hard fighting is a credit to his power. He is hungry and expects to put up his usual brand of fighting which has pleased the fans since he started in the local arena.

Murdock, a youngster just out of the preliminaries, is making a big bid for fame in the hearts of the local fans. He recently was declared the bantamweight champion of the Southwest by the Oklahoma City fans after his great fight with Kid Vance, the Waurika wildcat. This youngster has been fighting the semi-finals and main events in the Oklahoma capital for some time now, and will be greeted back in the Wichita Falls ring by his many followers.

This should prove every bit as good a fight as the first one. A pair of four-rounders will start the card. The names of the four fighters were not announced, but Promoter Wofford stated that they were all good boys.

Pirates Keep In Trim For Games

PITTSBURG, Pa., Sept. 30.—(AP)—The Pittsburg Pirates, pennant winners in the National league, will have no opportunity to study the lights and shadows of Griffith stadium in Washington, but they are not overlooking any bets in other directions. The entire squad, regulars and rookies alike, are undergoing a siege of severe preparation, designed to keep the team on edge for the battle for baseball supremacy which opens here a week from today. The Buccaneers, not having had a regularly scheduled game since last Sunday, have been indulging in a series of intensive batting and fielding drills at Forbes Field. This preparatory work will continue until Thursday. The team plays its last three games at Cincinnati on Friday, Saturday and Sunday.

Scalpers Busy On Tickets For Series

PITTSBURGH, Sept. 30.—(AP)—Scalpers, desirous of obtaining large numbers of world series tickets are resorting to many tricks in their efforts to get them.

One hopeful scalper visited a number of banks and in each bought a cashier's check to cover the cost of four allotted tickets. He then sent in requests for tickets, signing each request by the name of a friend. His one little slip came when he used the same kind of envelope for each letter. His mail came back, sans tickets.

"WE'LL SURPRISE 'EM."

So Says Coach Montgomery of His Coyote Pups.

"We will surprise some of these teams this year," stated Coach Montgomery Wednesday morning on discussing the Coyote Cubs festival prospects for the 1925 season. "I think I can develop a team this year from the things I have to hand."

BLONDY BURK'S BACK.

Again Dons Junior College Uniform After Injury to Finger.

The Junior college gridsters greeted back the guard that was taken from their midst early in the practice session when Wednesday afternoon Roscoe "Blondy" Burks was back in the monkey suit. Burks was one of the best looking prospects in the Junior college line when he broke a finger on his left hand.

The squad took a light practice Wednesday afternoon with a grass drill, and work on several new plays. The latter they only walked through to get the places they were supposed to go.

TIA JUAN'S bars were all wiped out in a million dollar fire when the water supply failed. That's the trouble with a town where they don't figure anybody uses water.

Looking Backward—and Forward.

THE casual follower of football—and reader of it—is not inclined to devote much attention to the results of the first week of football. Nor is there overmuch importance to be attached to it except to that painstaking and frequently outraged gentleman, the coach, his charges, and what both may glean for the future—in-justified, as here is a capable coach with a good squad, was ameliorated to a large extent by the manner of the victory—the inestimable something that is known as Aggie spirit flaming out in Fay Wilson and his conferees as they bore down to register a triumph.

In other years, early Aggie defeats have been accepted as giving the team a good moral outlook. This year Bible gets the same effect without a loss.

One criticism that might have been directed against last year's Aggie team was that it came along too rapidly and was at its peak the first end of the season. This year's squad will probably be moved along much more slowly in spite of having a hard early game with Sewanee.

The squad will bear watching. Don't forget this school's comparatively hard year in 1924 was due entirely to bad breaks that turned potential success into defeat. It was a fine consistent team that should have defeated SMU and Baylor and tied Texas. Instead, it tied SMU and lost to Baylor and Texas.

SMU Has Weight.

MORRISON'S problem at SMU seems to have been simplified by the eligibility of Ox Key, who can at least play football. The line-up he started against Denton indicated plenty of weight and the score was one of the biggest this game has ever known.

One thing that seems to indicate the Mustangs will have a strong line is the fact that two players who are as fine tackles as George Walters and Vaughn can be shifted to guard. There is little difference between guard and tackle play except a matter of shiftiness in mental and physical agility—and where material is scant, the thinkers play tackle and the slower minded guards. Now neither Walters nor Vaughn is slow, either mentally or physically, and if the Younger Walters and Captain Magness are filling the forward positions, look out for at least a very formidable front wall.

Presumably the four starting backs are the regular combination. Roy Bisbee and Wade are two young men who will be heard from. But Cartemezila is only a mediocre player who can plunge, and Visor when he was at SMU a couple of seasons back, nothing exceptional.

Nothing to Judge.

TCU left nothing by which to judge when Bell used a largely youngster line-up in putting East Texas out of the way. Here was a coach out to get a line on his own new material.

That, too, applies at Rice, where your uncle John Heisman has a lot of problems to work out—and is working them. Rice is the conference enigma. You can accept TCU as Matty Bell's own estimate—that he has the best team he has known there, but it is not yet a conference contender, except in fighting spirit. But Rice, no one is certain of. It is a new team, but the comparatively successful eleven of 1924 was new to Heisman. What this one does can not be judged by its easy win over Stephen F. Austin.

BOSTON 8; WASHINGTON 4.

BOSTON, Sept. 30.—(AP)—Washington used 4 make shift team against Boston in the first game of the final series of the year today, the Red Sox pulling out one run ahead, 5 to 4. At the close of the game only one Washington regular, Rice, at centerfield, was in the lineup Peck took charge of the champions as Manager Harris stayed behind in Washington.

PHILLIES WIN ANOTHER.

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 30.—(AP)—The Phillies made it two straight over Brooklyn by winning today, 5 to 4. Sand's double in the seventh with the bases filled decided the game in the Phillies favor.

RAZORBACKS TO PLAY IOWA THIS WEEK-END

Ambitious Arkansans Go Into Hawkeye Camp Saturday

FAYETTEVILLE, Ark., Sept. 30.—The University of Arkansas Razorbacks left today for Iowa City, Iaa., where they will open their 1925 football season against Iowa university, Saturday. The game will also mark the opening of the season for Iowa.

Coach Francis A. Schmidt and assistant Coach Barnes accompanied the 22 men composing the Razorback team. While most Arkansas supporters do not even hope for victory over the Big Ten conference team, they believe the Arkansas squad will give a good account of itself in spite of comparative inexperience of the stars.

The sensational Arkansas backfield of 1924 is riddled, only one veteran remaining of the once almost unbeatable combination. Only five letter men are in the line.

Reports from the Hawkeye camp indicate that Coach Ingwersen, former Illinois star, is about to develop one of the halfback sensations of the country in Keutsche, a new comer to Iowa's team. He is fleet, is crack line plunger, and a good passer and receiver.

The addition of Jeff Rucker, an end of last year's team and who is being made into a halfback, is regarded as a great aid to the Razormacks. Since the ability is developing into an excellent man, and is regarded as one of the best punters in Arkansas football.

Steed Again Shows Up As a Runner; Horton Punts Well

The Coyotes were busy all afternoon, Wednesday, with a varied assortment of drills. Line practice, punting, blocking, passing and a few other details were run off.

The feature of the workout was the return to form of Buck Steed and the punting of Tank Horton. Steed has been a bit slow for some time, but Wednesday he again was the broken field demon of 1924. Several times he shiftily evaded would-be tacklers.

Disch Unable To Take Free Trip To The World Series

AUSTIN, Sept. 30.—Because he is teaching two classes in physical education and no one is available to take his place, Billy Disch, veteran Texas university baseball mentor, likely will not be able to see the world series on a fund raised by student admirers. Mr. Disch has played and coached baseball for more than 30 years but he never saw a world series game. "My gratitude is beyond expression," he said, in commenting on the action of the students.

Pate's Hurling Gives Panthers Title of Dixie

ATLANTA, Sept. 30.—(AP)—The Fort Worth Panthers, champions of the Texas league, today retained their supremacy in class "A" baseball of the south by defeating the Atlanta Crackers, 1 to 0, and winning the Dixie series.

A pitching staff so strong that it turned back the hard hitting Georgians in four of the six games played was largely responsible for the triumph of the Panthers.

Led by Wilbur Good, champion batsman of the league, Nick Cullop home run king and several others with a good eye for the ball, the Crackers literally batted their way to the championship of of the Southern Association.

But when they faced the moundsmen of Fort Worth the result usually was a walk back to the dugout. Good made a miserable showing at the plate, while Cullop only hit one home run.

Cats Get Nine Hits.

In the final contest, Hollis McLaughlin, veteran right hander, attempted to bolster the reputation of the Atlanta pitching staff. He pitched a strong game, despite the fact he lost.

The box score revealed nine hits for the Panthers while the Crackers got eight off Joe Pate, a portsider. McLaughlin walked five men. Pate gave no free tickets. The Atlanta hurler struck out five men in comparison to Pate's three.

Thus, it would appear that the Texan had a slight edge over the Cracker. An error and a hit which was so close that the official scorer hesitated in deciding whether to credit J. Smith, Atlanta third baseman with a bobble, figured in the one-run scored by Fort Worth. The Panthers gave their hurler sensational support while the Crackers committed four errors.

Five Innings Scoreless.

The first five innings were scoreless. Then in the sixth, Brock contributed an error to make H. Smith safe on first. Pate singled through third and Smith went to second, the latter scoring when Davis shot a liner through J. Smith at third. This was the bingle that caused the official scorer to hesitate on the question of a hit or an error.

Atlanta won the first game of the series. "Pug" Cavet being credited with the win. Pate pitched the Panthers to a victory in the second. The third was won by Paul Wachtel, Fort Worth spitball artist, getting the credit. Atlant won the fourth, Cavet receiving the official credit although relieved by McLaughlin. Wachtel again was victorious in the fifth contest.

The victory of the Panthers today gave them their fifth Dixie series in comparison to one triumph for the Southern association.

Mobile defeated the Texas league champions in 1922.

Loses In Third Round of Meet During Big Rain Storm

ST. LOUIS, Sept. 30.—(AP)—There will be a new woman's golf champion of the United States this year, as Mrs. Dorothy Campbell Hurd of Philadelphia, who won the title last year, was defeated today in the third round of the championship meet at the St. Louis Country club by Mrs. F. C. Letts of Chicago by the liberal margin of 4 and 2.

The former champion weakened in a terrific wind and rain storm which swept the links during the second half of the 18-hole match, while Mrs. Letts, former western title holder, shot even par in the elemental disturbance. It was a storm to make strong hearts weaken but the two men fought on gamely, three of the eight matches going to the home green, two sloshing to the 17th green and two to the 16th, while only one ended in mid-field.

This one sided match was won by Louise Fordyce of Youngstown from Helen Tillotson of Toledo 6 and 5, bringing the former Ohio champion into contact tomorrow with the conqueror of Mrs. Hurd.

The most spectacular match to reach the home green was an international one between the Canadian champion, Ada Mackenzie of Toronto, and Glenna Collett of Providence, former American and present French champion. The American won the struggle by the narrow margin of one up only by scoring one under par for 18 holes. The Rhode Island girl was out in 37, only two above men's par, but gained a lead of only one up, as the Canadian premier totalled 39, including two birdies. Miss Collett got only one birdie on this hole, but captured an eagle 3 on the 34-yard eighth, one of the most difficult on the links.

AS CHAMPIONS PLAY IT

Could the average player reasonably expect to shoot in the eighties, provided he studied and practiced the game intelligently? Or is the 80-to90 mark "over the head" and beyond the capacity of the average man, regardless of his effort? What is the chief reason for the average dubb's remaining forever in the dubb class?

By BILL STRACHAN
Wichita Falls Country Club Golf Professional.

The average player should expect to shoot in the eighties if he is athletically inclined and studies and practices the game intelligently. I don't think the 80-to90 mark is "over the head" of the average man. The chief reason for players staying in the "dubb" class is because they do not get the proper fundamentals at the start of the game, such as the proper grip, stance, pivot and good balance all through the swing. These are obtained through instruction and practice, principally practice.

TEN YARDS A CLIP GRANGE'S RECORD FOR GROUND GAINING

In 13 University of Illinois football games during the last two years, Harold "Red" Grange, All-American halfback, has averaged ten yards every time he carried the ball.

Grange gained a total of 2424 yards in 244 plays in which he figured; averaged 10 yards a play and 187 yards a game; and scored 25 touchdowns; at least one in every game he played except against Nebraska in 1924.

In actual playing time, Grange competed but 361 minutes during the 13 games,—which is only 9 1-3 games. Yet he managed to gain over 100 yards in every contest with the exception of the Minnesota battle last year. In that game he carried the ball but nine times for 56 yards. Still he scored Illinois' only touchdown.

Red's greatest ground-gaining feat came in the famous Michigan-Illinois game of October 18, 1924, when 67,000 football fans saw Illinois declcate the Memorial Stadium with a 39 to 14 victory.

Grange played for 10 minutes during the first quarter and figured in but six plays; yet scored four touchdowns and gained 264 yards for an average of 26 yards a minute. He raced through the entire Michigan team on the opening kickoff for 90 yards and a touchdown; then repeated with three more touchdowns on runs of 70, 57 and 43 yards. Then to make the day complete, Red scored his fifth touchdown with a 15-yard dash to the goal in the second half.

Grange's next best performance was in the Northwestern-Illinois game of 1923 played at Cubs Park. Red played but 19 minutes; scored three touchdowns; and gained 251 yards. His longest run was on an intercepted forward pass that resulted in a touchdown after a 50-yard race. Red will complete his football days as captain of the University of Illinois team this fall. His first appearance will be against Nebraska at Illinois on October 3.

"Watch Little!" Is Cry of Western Grid Followers

Yost's Aide Preps Strong Eleven at Wisconsin This Fall.

By HARRY M. GOLDEN.
Central Press Special Correspondent.

MADISON, Wis., Sept. 29.—Coach George E. Little and his staff of all-American coaches are slowly but surely rounding out the 1925 University of Wisconsin football team. With twelve letter men in the fold, Little has a fair nucleus to start the season. He is well supplied with ends. Captain Steve Polaski, who is playing his third year in the conference, Bottrell, Long, and Blackman completing a quartet of vets.

At the Tackle posts, the Badgers have a trio who should prove the real backbone of the forward wall. Paul Nelson, playing his last season should be an outstanding player in the conference, while Straubel and Kasicka should not be far in the rear. The guards positions are giving Little the most worry as Wisconsin lost two regulars who were a great help to Ryan. The flaring gaps left by Biberstein and Miller are proving hard to fill. The lone letter man to answer the call for the pivot position is senior Ray Stipek. The husky Montsnan should hold down one side of the line without any trouble.

Center Position in Doubt.

At the pivot, another problem presents itself. Teckemyer, the mainstay in the center of the line has departed and right there the Badger staff is faced with a real job. Willke was expected to fill the gap but after the last few scrimmages of the season, Wilson, a sophomore loomed to the fore and is today holding down the center position on the varsity. Kuethau, another member of the last year frosh also looks like a comer and thus it appears to become a three-cornered race.

Speed and little weight is the chief asset of the backfield. Little to date has shown the following men who have shown great promise. At left half, he has the speedy McAndrews. The latter was one of the Badger stars last fall and with Little at the reins looks to become the mainstay of the backs. Giving plenty of competition to the speedy one is Larry Reuland, a member of the ineligible squad last year. Reuland is as fast as McAndrews and shows more promise than the average fans give him credit for having. He will develop and help Little a lot. Doyle Harmon, who last fall alternated between quarter and half looks better than ever. The Dakota husky hits all the speed of last year and needs only another year to become a high class performer.

Has Plunging Back.

For the plunging type of halfback, Little can rely on Barnum who was Harris's understudy last fall. Barnum has taken on weight and added the essential drive but still needs more real driving back. Little is another back who can rip at line and has an equal in Larson. The problem of backs is not the heaviest by any means when the fullback selection is taken into consideration. Kreuz, Radke, and Muegre are the three leading candidates and to date there is little to choose between them. Kreuz is a plunger and backs up the defense well. Radke, Muegre backs plunging ability. Radke is a fair linebucker and exceptional punter.

Among the other backs who are fighting gamely for places on the squad are Bartlett, Hawley, Orcutt, Wigdale, Curtiss and Burbridge.

The quarterback situation is a three cornered battle again. Crofoot, captain of the 1924 frosh team is leading the field at the present time and looks great. Barofsky, captain of the 1923 frosh is next in line while last but not least is Goodland. The trio present a merry scramble but our choice falls to Crofoot. The latter is a natural field general and handles the squad well.

NEW YORK COTTON.

NEW YORK, Sept. 30.—An early advance in the cotton market today was followed by a decline into new now ground for the movement. December contracts sold off from 23.51 to 23.15 and closed at that figure, the general market closing easy at net declines of 10 to 20 points.

The early rallies reflected relatively steady cables and apprehensions of unfavorable weather developments in the southwest either in the shape of a cold wave from the north or possible storms from the south. The opening was steady at an advance of 1 to 11 points and active months sold 16 to 19 points net higher. October advancing to 23.42 and January to 22.69. Nothing of a storm threat appeared in the official weather advices, however, while the advance to the 23½d level for December seemed to bring out increased offerings from one source or another and the market became weak and unsettled in the early afternoon.

Reports that ocean freight bookings for October shipment out of Gulf ports were smaller than for this date last year probably accounted for part of the selling here in late trading when sentiment also was influenced to some extent by the first of the end-month crop reports indicating a condition of 55.3 compared with an end-August report of 60.9. This condition as compared wit hthe mid-September bureau of 53.8 was commented upon by local traders as tending to encourage crop estimates of over 14½ million bales.

Exports for the day 36,795, making 978,802 so far this season.

Port receipts 86,353. U. S. port stocks 919,270.

NEW ORLEANS COTTON.

NEW ORLEANS, Sept. 30.—(AP)—The cotton market was erratic today with rather wider fluctuations than have been the rule of late. The early trading was characterized by an advance of 15 to 22 points due mainly to prospects of less favorable weather, and a weekly weather and crop report that was considered bullish. Later, and principally during the afternoon the market reacted on the liquidation of the state long interest and prices lost all the early gain and enough more to bring the decline from the highs down to 35 to 38 points lower. The close was at the bottom showing net losses for the day of 14 to 23 points.

At the start, first trades showed no change to gains of five points. Prices advanced after the opening on the prospect for less favorable weather as indicated by the map and on the rather unfavorable character of the weekly weather and crop report which said that picking had been delayed by the rainy weather and that much cotton had been damaged by the rains and by insect pests. At the highest December traded up to 22.58—January to 23.82 and March to 22.80; or 15 to 21 points above yesterday's close.

The market turned reactionary near noon and during the afternoon the downward trend of prices became more pronounced owing to reports that the October bookings of freight room were barely half what they were last year and because of weakness of stocks and the advance in call money rate to 6 per cent which occasioned fears that the federal reserve banks would raise their re-discount rates. Prices made new lows right at the end with December at 22.50, January at 22.44 and March at 22.45, or 35 to 38 points under the early highs.

NEW YORK, Sept. 30.—(AP)—The stock market today succumbed to the depressing effects of high money rates and prices reacted sharply. Liquidation of standard industrial shares increased in volume throughout the da yand although some buying support appeared in the final hour efforts to bring about a general rally were unsuccessful.

The tendency of large banking institutions to draw in their loans for the heavy October first interest and dividend requirements and in expectation of an early bank call resulted in the marking of the prevailing rate to 5½ per cent, the highest since early in the year, and in a subsequent advance to 6 per cent. While this situation was not considered unusual in view of seasonal developments its restrictive influence was readily apparent when an initial upturn in prices was checked.

Cautious commission houses advices offered little incentive for the extension of buying activities. With some of them recommending a liquidation of speculative lines a flood of selling struck many of the recent favorites, among which the high priced motors and specialties were the hardest hit. Pool operators strove to check the reaction by bringing forth new leaders but each temporary recovery seemed to invite a fresh flow of offerings.

Early constructive efforts centered in the baking, rubber, oil, equipment and shipping shares, about 20 of which reached new high levels for the year before the downward drift set in. Meanwhile vigorous selling broke out in other industrials and rails, with prices crumbling away rapidly when money rates were boosted in the early afternoon.

In contrast to its recent movements U. S. Steel showed greater stability than other market leaders, responding with a moderate gain to the cheerful predictions of the weekly trade reviews. American Can, however, slumped about four points below last night's close and net losses of two to six points were recovered by General Electric, Chrysler, Dupont, Baldwin, Mack Trucks, American Tobacco, Sears Roebuck, U. S. Cast ron Pipe and Union Bag and Paper.

Extreme fluctuations were considerably wider, reaching such proportions at one time that many stop-loss orders were uncovered. Baaking shares maintained their gains falarly well, General Baking and Ward B, being bolstered up by indications that merger plans involving these companies will soon be announced.

Rubber company stocks consistently followed an upward course under the leadership of U. S. Rubber, Goodrich and the Fisk issues. Buying of Fisk first preferred was stimulated by reports that arrangements would be made soon to pay off some 20 per cent in back dividends on this issue.

Several sharp gains were scored in the final up turn by specialties which have not heretofore figured prominently in speculative operations. National Distillers products preferred was rushed up eight points and New York canners seven points, both to new to prices for the year. American International moved up 3¾ points.

Foreign exchanges were steady in quiet trading. Demand sterling continued to hover around the theoretical gold export point at one time selling below $4.84 but later recovering. Belgian francs moved up six points to 4.42 cents on reports that a new loan for the stabilization of Belgium's monetary situation would be arranged before the end of the year.

The Scandinavian currencies made further gains.

In line with the lighter call money situation, tim eloans held firm at 4½ to 4¾ per cent. Commercial paper rates were unchanged.

TEXAS LIVESTOCK.

FORT WORTH, Sept. 30.—Except for slightly more early activity, the Fort Worth cattle market Wednesday was a quotably unchanged affair. Demand was not materially better, but the receipts arrived at a more seasonable hour. And traders were enabled to make better progress as a result. Only 4,000 head of cattle and 1,500 calves were on display.

Receipts of steers available for slaughter purposes, were no greater than usual, and quality offered nothing particularly appealing. Sales were negotiated without any unnecessary peddling, rates being considered about steady. One car went at $765.

Cows were going sealward within a reasonable hour, and the weighing throughout the morning was more lively than at any time during the forenoon Tuesday. Carloads of good quality sold mostly within a spread of $4.25 to $5.000, with tops individual cows making $6 to $6.50.

Several cars of fairly desirable heifers and yearlings arrived, but the day's total offering was rather small. One sale of yearlings was at $6. A few loads brought $7 to 8.00.

Bull receipts were meager. A few beef bulls were cashed in at $3.75 to $4.00.

Calves continue to clear to a broad demand. Everybody was out bidding early, and trading was active. One fancy 200 pound vealer went at $11. A few small drafts went at $9@9.50. A fairr supply moved at $7@8.50.

Hog receipts [illegible]0. the market was fairly active, sales prices gave indication of strength. One load of good light hogs brought $13.55. [illegible] of the supply cleared at $13.35@13.40.

Sheep and yea[illegible] changed hands on a steady basis. The estimate was 1,000 head. Choice wethers brought $8.10. Shorn yearlings went at $11.50 to 12.00.

Cattle 5,500 including 1,500 calves; market steady; beeves $3.75@8.00; stockers $3.25@7.00; fat cows $3.00@5.75; cutters, $2.25@2.75; canners $1.75@2.25; heifers $3.50@8.50; yearlings $5.75@9.00; bulls $3.25@4.00; calves $2.50@9.50.

CHICAGO GRAIN.

CHICAGO, Sept. 30.—(AP)—Notwithstanding a brisk advance at one time today, the wheat market later executed a right-about face. Reports which were current early that half of the Argentine wheat crop is poor were later denied. Meanwhile, month-end settlements gave the price of the September delivery of wheat an extreme range of 8 cents a bushel. Wheat closed nervous, ½ to 1¾c net lower. December $1.37¾ to $1.38 and May $1.40⅝ to $1.40¾. Corn ¾ to 4⅝c off, oats at ½c decline to ¾c advance and provisions 10 to 80c down.

Corn was governed by the changes in wheat, frost predictions cut no figure, but reports saying frost danger to corn was negligible. Some investment buying helped to steady the oats market.

Big deliveries of lard, 2,000,000 pounds, pulled down provisions.

Produce

TEXAS PRODUCE.

SAN ANTONIO, Sept. 30.—With an improvement in the outside inquiry for good fryers, South Texas markets for poultry were firm and prices at North Texas points fully steady this morning. Eggs continued in good demand with receipts very light. Butter was mostly unchanged. Prices at Keynote markets follow:

San Antonio poultry, hens all sizes 18@19c; fryers 25@28c; old roosters 10@12c; turkeys 18@24c; some high as 25c; ducks mostly around 16c, some higher, quotations on a pound, live weight basis. Eggs, No. 1 candled, dozen 31c.

TEXAS VEGETABLES.

SAN ANTONIO, Sept. 30.—Texas was out of the list on fruit and vegetable shipment, and as a result much of the movement of nearby states was rolled this way to supply the demand. In the 24-hour period there were shipped by the nation, 1,079 cars of apples, 886 potatoes, 87 of tomatoes, four of watermelons, 136 of pears, 35 of peaches, 130 of sweet potatoes, five of lemons, 656 of grapes, 14 of oranges, 46 of lettuce, five of string beans, one of spinach, 156 cabbage, 183 onions, ten cauliflowers and five of cucumbers.

Firmness was noted in lettuce shipping point markets of Colorad yesterday which worked to $2.50 and $3.00 for California crates of Iceberg, this price comparing with $1.50 @2.00 which has prevailed recently. Grapes, at Fresno were dull around 80@90c for four basket crates of Malagas on a carload f. o. b. cash track basis. Thompson seedless ranged mostly around 60 cents. White potatoes at Grand Junction, Colo., were reported weak under a light inquiry around $1.25 for U. S. first stock in wazonlots, mtostly poples peiples russets. Idaho Falls listed a steady market of $1.25 for cash track cars of rurals, with demand and inquiry rather light.

CHICAGOPRODUCE.

CHICAGO, Sept. 30.—Butter, higher; receipts 6,711 tubs; creamery extras 51; standards 46½; extra firsts 48½@50; firsts 45@46½; seconds 41@43½.

Market Gossip

MARKET GOSSIP.

R. E. Wolverton and company, Brokers, Basement Staley building, today received the following market comment from Fenner and Beane of New Orleans, New York and Chicago:

COTTON.

Cotton opened unchanged, and soon ran up 13 to 20 points on good Liverpool and prospects of bad weather.

It was a rather dull affair until afternoon, when rather heavy selling developed on issuance of the first of the barrage of private reports, showing a condition of 55.8, which would indicate a crop of around 14,700,000 bales.

Government statistician for Oklahoma reported plants that state averaged 7.6 bolls per plant against 10.4 last year, and that it was requiring around 80 bolls to produce a pound against 60 to 65 last year.

Southwest, southeast and central Texas reported considerable rain, but the greatest part of the state was dry.

It is extremely cold in the northwest, and there is a possibility of the gulf disturbances coming inland, if either of these elements reach the cotton belt, higher prices will result, but if the skies continue to clear, a sagging tendency is likely.

COTTON SEED OIL.

Cotton seed oil held steady until near the close when weakness in lard and cotton and lower prices for crude brought about some hedging and futures slipped 4 to 14 points. Spots 6@ lower, 9.25 for prime summer yell. Seed unchanged.

GRAINS.

Wheat extremely irregular, with December showing a range of 8 full cents on its last day, and other deliveries slightly less than 4 cents.

Five to ten inches of wet snow is reported to cover Saskatchewan, stopping threshing in the far northwest.

Report demand continued amost nil, and after the urgent buying of the early trading, prices quickly slipped below last night's finals, closing about 1 cent net lower.

We still see little on which to buy wheat, but believe other grains should be picked up on all declines from present prices.

STOCKS.

It was a day of liquidation in stocks, selling was heavy enough to overbalance demand and to depress values.

While the situation does not call for extreme pessimism there are factors that must be corrected before stocks can take a definite upward trend, in the face of gradually-tightening money.

The public is long considerable stocks, and it is probable that some further liquidation will come into the market.

How Doctors Treat Colds and Flu

To break up a cold overnight or to cut short an attack of grippe, influenza, sore throat or tonsilities, physicians and druggists are now recommending Calotabs, the purified and refined calomel compound tablet that gives you the effects of calomel and salts combined, without the unpleasant effects of either.

One or two Calotabs at bed-time with a swallow of water—that's all. No salts, no nausea nor the slightest interference with your eating, work or pleasure. Next morning your cold has vanished, your system is thoroughly purified and you are feeling fine with a hearty appetite for breakfast. Eat what you please—no danger.

The Mark of Quality

Keeping Buses on Schedule Time

IN the operation of our 42 buses, we appreciate the fine service and mileage given by Firestone Tires, and the co-operation we have received from your company in helping to keep these buses running on schedule time.

WASHINGTON RAILWAY & ELECTRIC COMPANY
Washington, D. C.

Firestone Cooperation Aids Bus Service Development

FOLLOWING the consolidation of this Company's extensive motor bus system in southeastern Pennsylvania, we felt the most important step was the solution of the tire problem. It seemed good judgment to place our whole tire problem in the hands of some Company equipped by experience to work out for us practical methods for handling what we consider to be one of the most important and difficult phases of successful bus operation.

After complete consideration we decided to utilize Firestone tires and service for our entire system. As a result a decided improvement in regularity of service has occurred.

The genuine satisfaction we have in the way our tire problem is working out under your direction, makes it a pleasure to give your Company this credit.

Charles B. Cooke, Jr., President
WEST CHESTER STREET RAILWAY COMPANY
West Chester, Penn.

THESE testimonials, from the Washington (D.C.) Railway & Electric Company and the West Chester (Penn.) Street Railway Company, are typical of similar expressions from electric railway bus operators all over the country. They emphasize that the important factor in keeping buses operating on regular schedules is dependable tire service.

The Firestone Bus Tire Engineer first determines the proper type and size of tire—and then establishes service facilities to insure getting all the mileage built into the tires by the exclusive Firestone Process of Gum-Dipping.

It is this combination of highest quality tires and their practical application to truck and bus transportation requirements that insures maintenance of schedules at minimum cost per mile.

These elements of mileage, safety and economy are vitally important to car owners. Go to the nearest Firestone Dealer—equip now with Gum-Dipped Balloons—while prices are low.

What We Have Learned

Dealers all over the country keep talking about the "Used Car Problem." They seem to regard it as a sort of nightmare. We learned long ago that the biggest part of the problem consists of getting people to realize that all Used Cars and all Used Car dealers aren't alike. And it isn't a problem at all!

S. PLAINS RAIL TAP WOULD NOT HIT I. C. C. PLAN

Giving of Denver Road to Santa Fe Opposed, However

AUSTIN, Sept. 30.—Granting the application of the Fort Worth and Denver City to extend into the South Plains would not interfere with tentative plans of the interstate commerce commission to consolidate all railroads into a limited number of systems, brief of the South Plains railroad committee to the commission contends. The brief was released today to the Associated Press by Drr. Walter Splawn, president of Texas university, who served as counsel for the committee at the Plainview railroad hearing in July.

At the Plainview hearing, the committee presented testimony from at least two score South Plains residents, intended to refute claims of the Santa Fe there is not sufficient tonnage to justify entrance of another railroad.

The brief points out highlights in the Plainview testimony, and therefrom draws arguments favorable to the Denver proposal.

Under the interstate commerce commission's plans of consolidation, the Colorado and Southern properties, including the Fort Worth and Denver, would be made a part of the Santa Fe system. Referring to this plan, the brief says: "While the people of the South Plains are opposed to the plan that would give the Denver to the Santa Fe, yet, if that suggestion ultimately should become a part of the commission's final plan (in spite of cigorous and unanimous opposition of public as well as carried owners as disclosed by the record in that proceeding,) the citizens of the South Plains maintain this proposed extension would be in interests of system 16, or of whatever system in which the Denver might fall. Hence in no event should this application be thought inconsistent with possible consolidation views and this proposed service be denied the South Plains."

Nine-Year-Old Boy Confesses He Stole Purse Containing $52 From Street Clothes of Workman Here

Watches Men Leave; Temptation Proves Too Great After Lad Saw His Way Clear to Take Valuables from Dressing Room

It was as simple confession the little boy made, and he tearfully promised his mother and W. G. Bralley, juvenile officer that he would never steal any more. Mr. Bralley admitted that it is one of the cases he hardly knows how to care for.

A workman of the city missed a purse of $52 from the pocket of his trousers along with a few other things while he was working on a building. The stolen articles were traced to a little nine-year-old boy who had all of them. When questioned, the lad told his story, coming clean. He had watched the workmen don their working clothes, leaving their other suits in the dressing room. He knew they had left money in their clothes and the temptation was too great.

The child was talked to by his mother and the juvenile officer and sent to school. He is in school only half a day going in the afternoon.

All the fruit to be shown in the Canadian exhibit come direct from the provinces of the Dominion. The exhibit is the largest Canada has ever sent south of the Mason-Dixon line, according to those in charge of the display.

Mellon Aluminum Company Charged With Conspiracy

J., to prevent him from obtaining the needed water power to permit him to manufacture aluminum. The directors named are George H. Clapp, Arthur V. Davis, David Gillespie, Roy A. Hunt, Alva H. Laurie and Richard G. Mellon.

Haskell asserts that the Bausch concern used large quantities of aluminum and that he has found it difficult to get the amount needed at reasonable prices. He charges that the aluminum company of America controls virtually all of the bauxite, the mineral from which aluminum is derived, in this country, and in some foreign countries.

SAYS LOSS OF SHENANDOAH AVOIDABLE

Crew Did Not Heed Warning of the Storm

LAKE HURST, N. J., Sept. 30.—(AP)—An opinion that the primary cause of the wrecking of the airship Shenandoah was a failure of the officers in charge to heed danger signals that "shrieking out loud" was expressed to the naval court of inquiry here today by Captain Anton Heinen, former German zeppelin pilot who instructed the crew of the American dirigible.

"Easily Avoidable."

Asserting that the disaster was "entirely and very easily avoidable," Heinen under direct questioning by the court placed the blame squarely on the shoulders of Commander Zachary Lansdowne, who went down to death with his ship.

Asked on what grounds he did this, the witness said:

"In my opinoin the ship ran deliberately into the center of the storm for at least half an hour after danger signals had been shrieking out loud. With the ship having sufficient power for steerage way she easily could have got out of danger. I stand ready to prove this from the evidence presented to this court."

Could Have Saved Ship.

"Are you prepared to say that had you been in charge of the Shenandoah you could have escaped the storm?" asked Rear Admiral Jones, president of the court.

"I am proud to say that I believe I could have," replied Captain Heinen.

FOR MILITARY NEEDS

This Is One Reason State Gives For S. A. & A. P. Extension.

AUSTIN, Sept. 30.—Military necessities of the United States afford compelling reasons why the Interstate Commerce commission should grant application of the San Antonio and Aransas Pass to extend from Falfurrias to the Lower Rio Grande Valley, a brif filed today in behalf of the state by Attorney General Dan Moody, holds. That the extension would measurably advance material interests of Texas, that the transportation act of 1920 does not contemplate such monopoly as the Missouri-Pacific now enjoys in the Rio Grande Valley, and that the proposed extension is consonant with the liberal policy of Texas toward new rail construction are other argument emphasized.

RED CROSS WILL ELECT AT MEET HERE TONIGHT

Believe Work of Organization Will Not Be Given Up

Directors for the Wichita county chapter of the American Red Cross will be elected Thursday night at a meeting to be held at 7:30 in the Kemp public library. All members of the chapter are entitled to attend and vote and it is the plea of officials of the organization that a large and representative attendance turn out for what will be an important session.

The entire board which has been serving voted some time ago to abandon work of the Red Cross here on grounds that it was not needed. Considerable opposition to this has arisen, however, and it is now believed that the work, especially that of the chapter's health campaign in the public schools, will be continued.

In connection with the chapter's work, a report on its activity for the year ending Sept. 30 was issued last night by local nurses and Mrs. Grace Ashbaugh, field representative of the Red Cross, who is now in the city. It shows many phases of health work carried on in Wichita Falls. The report of the school nursing is especially interesting in that it shows that 5,923 children have had health inspection—all have been weighed and measured, eyes have been tested, teeth, throat and skin have also received attention.

Of nearly 6,000 boys and girls so reached, it was found that 1,190 were underweight, 718 appeared to have defected vision and 2,200 had defective teeth and nearly 3,000 appeared to have throat trouble.

Dr. Packard Speaks On Bible Question

Eleven men and women responded to Dr. Paul Henry Packard's sermon at First Christian church last night on the subject "Does the Bible contradict itself?" One of the largest audiences of the week was present. Le Roy St. John had charge of the opening service and for 25 minutes led the large audience in the old hymns of the church.

Dr. Packard's sermon was a discussion of why three different answers were given to the question asked three times in the Acts of the Apostles: "What Must I Do to Be Saved?" Dr. Packard showed how the answers were not contradictory but when carefully examined harmonize perfectly.

At the close of the service a large number of men and women were baptized by Dr. Atkinson.

Tonight Dr. Packard will speak on "Almost Persuaded." Announcement was made of the change of the reception to new members on Sunday afternoon from 5 to 6:30 instead of Monday night.

Man, Where Dost Thy Vanity End?

"Women have long used their clothes as a means of attraction," says one manufacturer, "while men's clothes have only been used as a background."

So in the spring men's clothing will be emphasized by brighter colors, with Scotch plaids entering the general color scheme.

Nameless Club of Good Fellows at Childress Has Lived 30 Years But Has Dropped Poker for Forty-Two

Started in Old Ocean Wave Saloon Long Ago. Unusual And Unorganized Institution Still Meets Seven Days a Week.

CHILDRESS, Sept. 29.—From poker and casino to dominoes and forty-two! From a table in the old Ocean Wave saloon to a soap box in the rear of the second floor over Pippet's grocery store building!

Evolution, that. The evolution of the Childress "Club of Good Fellows," president yet with its charter members long gone, but with others "grown up" in the 30 years of its existence and ready to take their places as they drop out.

The club is nameless, without written roll, by-laws, or dues, and manages to exist in a hearty fashion without an ironclad constitution.

Started 30 Years Ago.

It started more than 30 years ago around a little table about a yard square in the old Ocean Wave Saloon, one of the banner enterprises of the Childress of that day and age. Poker and casino were played, but in time these became outlawed and dominoes were resorted to. The club held its meetings every day of th eweek, including Sundays. With the end of the saloon days the club moved its headquarters to the rear of the building now occupied by the First National bank.

From there it drifted from one block to another, and is stationed now over Piggott's store on Main street. Dominoes have been replaced by "42"—much more scientific, these exponents say. "Mo's" wilms and Joe Bailey's strategems are favorite conversation topics. Nowhere can better verbal records of the country be found. History is at their tongue's tips.

Membership Changes.

The membership has changed many times, too. Occasionally someone drops out to return no more, and the club temporarily abandons its haunt to attend the funeral enmasse. Then an occasional quarrel will mar its placidity, and one will play truant, maybe for a year, or two years. But he always comes back.

So far as is known there has been little gambling at the board, especially of recent years when members assert that never a dollar has passed over the table.

You many think yourself a champion "42" player. Challenge one of these boys, however, find yourself a partner. The stranger seldom wins.

W. TEXAS DREAM COMES TRUE AS COLLEGE OPENS

Thousands Gather to Witness Launching of Tech School

LUBBOCK, Sept. 30.—(AP)—West Texas people gathered by the thousands here today to witness the launching of the state's first technological institution, the Texas Technological College. Scores of prominent visitors from this and other states were present for the program which set the wheels of the college in motion. Simultaneously, the twelfth Panhandle and South Plains fair got under way. The board of directors of the West Texas chamber of commerce also held their fall meeting here today.

The opening of the new technological college, a co-educational institution fulfilled dreams of many years in West Texas. A million dollars was appropriated for the construction of the college under a bill passed by the Thirty-eighth legislature. The bill was passed after a decade of effort on the part of West Texas citizens, who claimed that Texas lacked an adequate institution for teaching technology and that West Texas was inadequately supplied with educational facilities. Approximately 2,000 cres of land was given by the city of Lubbock for the institution.

The school will give in technology and textile engineering, arts, sciences, and will give the standard degrees of a first class college.

Dr. Walter Splawn, president of the University of Texas and Dr. W. B. Bizzell, formerly president of Texas A. and M. college and now president of the University of Oklahoma, are scheduled to address the first convocation of the student body tomorrow.

Administrative Board for State Government Great Improvement, Says Michigan, After 4-Year Trial

Many Small and Useless Departments Are Merged, Red Tape Cut and Economy Effected by Plan, Governor States

LANSING, Mich., Sept. 30.—(AP)—The administrative board form of state government, which has completed a four year trial in Michigan, is declared a vast improvement over the "archaic systems," employed in many states, by Governor Alex J. Groesbeck. According to the governor, the plan has had a conclusive tryout and undoubtedly has demonstrated its value.

The Michigan administrative board plan is unique in that it is said to be the only body of its kind composed entirely of elective officers. The members are the governor, the secretary of state, the state treasurer, the attorney general, the highway commissioner, the auditor general and the superintendent of public instruction.

Adopted in 1921.

The administrative board plan was adopted in Michigan by the 1921 legislature. Public meetings, open to the press, are held each Tuesday morning.

Briefly, the governor and other members contend the board has produced the following benefits.

Provided a board of directors which passes upon the state's business and weighs every problem and situation carefully.

Put highway construction on a business basis, saving millions of dollars.

Save on Buying.

Made possible the establishment of a central purchasing department and a central accounting department, thereby saving hundreds of thousands of dollars on supplies and eliminating guess work from the state's bookkeeping.

Prevented duplication of work by merging and centralizing similar departments.

Compelled judicious expenditure of appropriations granted by the legislature, most of which are passed subject to the direction of the board.

Made possible an accurate budget for the legislature and state officials to work with.

Threw the state's business open to the public and healed many ills with publicity and consequent criticisms and suggestions.

FAIR GROUNDS GETS READY FOR OPENING

Scores Work Busily as Eventful Day Draws Near

A thousand lights gleaming, the buzz of saws, the steady rhyme of hammers, the purr of automobiles, the shouting of men, while here and there a colored mazda gave proof Wednesday night that the approaching Texas-Oklahoma Fair has instilled the spirit of the carnival season.

Before the grandstand rehearsals were in progress, in the agricultural building exhibitors were at work arranging the products for county exhibits, while in the merchants' exhibit building a large corps of painters were plying the brushes—retouching and beautifying display booths.

The interior of the fine arts building was being coated with a delicate shade of alabastine, just the right color to please the eyes and make one linger over some wonderful painting.

Decorate Building.

The women's building was also receiving attention, and the interior walls will be painted. The floor cleaned and every thing be spick and span for the placement of the great array of exhibits that are certain to be placed in the domestic science and domestic art department.

The cattle hangers have been divided into stalls to hold the livestock of breeders who are coming from all parts of the nation. The Texas-Oklahoma Fair will have the best livestock display in the southwest this year, as few of the breeders will ship to the State Fair of Texas at Dallas.

Stock Train On Way.

A solid trainload of livestock will arrive Friday night from the Oklahofa State Fair, Oklahoma City. The train will bring running race horses making the Midwest Fair Circuit of which the Texas-Oklahoma Fair is a member. Approximately 75 show horses will be included in the shipment. The equines will be seen in the horse show which is scheduled the last three nights of the big exposition. A large number of beef and dairy cattle will also arrive from Oklahoma.

From Amarillo will come another special train bringing county exhibits, livestock, agriculture and poultry. Still other exhibits will come from the South Plains Fair at Lubbock. All exhibitors in the southwest plan to come to the local exposition.

Fair visitors will find all displays and exhibits in place and ready for the "passing review" by 9 o'clock Saturday morning, at which time the gates of the fourth annual Texas-Oklahoma Fair will be officially opened to the public.

Pimples

What can I do?

"OH, why can't I have a sk like other girls? Why do have to have these ugly pimples blotches and blackheads?

"If I could only find somethin that would clear up my skin an give me back my soft, rosy com plexion, I know I would be the hap pies girl in the world! What can I do?"

Is that you talking? If it is, you don't have to worry a minute! Just build up the rich, red blood in your body. Then your skin will be as clear and soft as anybody's.

That's what S. S. S. has been doing for generations—helping Nature build rich, red blood! You can build red-blood-cells so fast that the impurities that cause breaking out on the skin hardly get into the system before the pure blood annihilates them—kills them right out—stops them from breaking out through the skin.

And then this rich, red, pure blood feeds and nourishes the tissues of the skin and keeps it looking healthy.

That's all there is to it. Healthy, vigorous red blood such as S. S. S. helps Nature build, makes you healthy all over. It beautifies your skin—drives away pimples, blackheads, blotches, rash, boils and eczema—gives you back your appetite—builds firm, plump flesh and fills you full of new life and energy.

All drug stores sell S. S. S. Get the larger bottle. It's more economical.

Vanities of Women Is Basis of "Fine Clothes" Now Showing at Strand

Fine clothes mean luxury, happiness, worry, beauty, heartbreak, frivolity, sorrow—all, or any of those things. Women crave fine clothes. They influence even the strongest minded. People who wear them are given a certain poise that only the confidence of being well dressed could give them. People are subconsciously well pleased when they talk with someone finely garbed.

It might be said that "clothes make the world go round." It is the demand that drives men to earn enough money to please their ladies. It is the craving for pretty clothes that makes girls stray from the protection of their own hearthstones.

John M. Stahl's lates production, "Fine Clothes," tells an intricate and engaging story surrounded by an atmosphere of bustling London. It was adapted from the stage play "Fashions for Men."

Alma Rubens, Lewis S. Stone and Percy Marmont head the cast with Eileen Percy, Otis Harlan, William V. Mong and Raymond Griffith all playing important supporting roles.

Splendid Majestic Bill Gets Great Applause Here Is Most Attractive Show

Harry Seeback, champion bag puncher of the world, and Harriet Seeback have a splendid act. Different from most athletic acts, they start theirs with a touch of comedy and singing. Mr. Seeback is a whizz with punching bags. He beats time to the music changing rhythm several times and punches as many as seven bags at once using various parts of his body. Each new stunt wins fresh applause from the audience. Harriet Seeback is also an expert. Kennedy and Martin, blackface comedians horn in with some good wisecracks during the performance.

"Miss Ampico."

Fred Berrens and Lora Foster went over good with a musical and dancing act assisted by Miss Ampico. Miss Ampico is a mechanical grand paino that responds as naturally and easily to the wishes of Mr. Berrens as though a human being was playing the instrument. Fred Berrens is a good violinist and Miss Foster is a capable dancer. The act contains a variety of musical numbers, dances and novelties. They receive abundant applause.

Kennedy and Martin have a good blackface act. When the curtain rises Heliotrope is holding Rastus on her lap. She wants Rastus to marry her but he wont do it because it is Friday—the 13th. They have a good line of negro chatter and their dancing receives a good hand.

Good Quartet.

Everybody enjoys a good quartet of singers and the four entertainers furnished their hare of the entertainment. Every one of their selections got over in good shape and their encore number entitled "A Speech," is especially well received.

Mlle. Lucille has two trained parrots that talk and sing. Cockie imitates a jazz cornetist and carries on a conversation with his mistress while the other one cries and laughs.

The regular bill was preceded by the Sportlights of Grantland Rice and Aesops Fables. Camille of the Barbary Coast," a picture of the underworld, featuring Mae Busch and Owen Moore followed the vaudeville. There will be a matinee and evening performance today and Friday.

Automobile Most Useful and Most Deadly Instrument in Hands Of Man, National Safety Council Told

Prehistoric Neanderthal Man Suffers Little in Comparison with Modern Speed Demon, Cleveland Man Says

CLEVELAND, Sept. 30.—(AP)—The automobile in its short existence has proved to be the most useful instrument ever placed in the hand of man and at the same time it has been proved that it is the most deadly and, so far as this nation is concerned, it has been more destructive of human life and limb than all the instruments of war.

That is the declaration made by Judge Alva R. Corlett of Cleveland speaking before the Fourteenth Annual Safety congress of the National Safety council.

"The Neanderthal man with his receding brow, flat skull, limited cranial capacity, and glaring eyes suffers little in comparison with our modern speed demons either in physical resemblance or in the number of victims, said Judge Corlett. "Let us realize the seriousness of this by keeping mind that our automobile casualties in 1917 and 1918 were 427,000 and that American casualties in the World war for the same period were 217,387 and that in seven years the figures have more than doubled for the last year automobiles of this country killed 20,000 and injured 600,000.

"Thousands of traffic laws have been passed by legislative bodies in every state, city and village in the United States and most of them are either unenforced or inadequately enforced most of the time. And yet in many instances where serious efforts have been fade to enforce the law the results would seem unmistakably justify the adoption as a permanent

LANSING, Mich., Sept. 30.—(AP)—The administrative board form of state government, which has completed a four year trial in Michigan, is declared a vast improvement over the "archaic systems," employed in many states, by Governor Alex J. Groesbeck. According to the governor, the plan has had a conclusive tryout and unquestionably has demonstrated its value.

The Michigan administrative board plan is unique in that it is said to be the only body of its kind composed entirely of elective officers. The members are the governor, the secretary of state, the state treasurer, the attorney general, the highway commissioner, the auditor general and the superintendent of public instruction.

Adopted in 1921.

The administrative board plan was adopted in Michigan by the 1921 legislature. Public meetings, open to the press, are held each Tuesday morning.

Briefly, the governor and other members created the board to accomplish the following benefits.

Provided a board of directors which passes upon the state's business and weighs every problem and situation carefully.

Save on Buying.

Made possible the establishment of a central purchasing department and a central accounting department, thereby saving hundreds of thousands of dollars on supplies and eliminating guess work from the state's bookkeeping.

Prevented duplication of work by merging and centralizing similar departments.

Compelled judicious expenditure of appropriations granted by the legislature, most of which are passed subject to the direction of the board.

Made possible an accurate budget for the legislature and state officials to work with.

Threw the state's business open to the public and healed many ills with publicity and consequent criticisms and suggestions.

Terre Haute, Indiana.—"I was weak and run-down and in such a nervous condition that I could hardly do my work. I was tired all the time and dizzy, had no appetite and could not sleep. I tried different medicines for a year but they did not help me. Then my husband saw the ad. for Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound in the newspapers and had me take it. I regained my strength and never felt better in my life. It completely restored me to health. I had practically no suffering when my baby boy was born and he is very strong and healthy. I know that the Vegetable Compound is the best medicine a woman can take before and after child birth for health and strength. I would be willing to answer letters from women asking about the Vegetable Compound."—Mrs. Wm. J. Lee, Route 2, Box 648, Terre Haute, Indiana.

FAIR GROUNDS GETS READY FOR OPENING

A thousand lights gleaming, the buzz of saws, the steady rhyme of hammers, the purr of automobiles, the shouting of men, while here and there a colored mazda gave proof Wednesday night that the approaching Texas-Oklahoma Fair has instilled the spirit of the carnival season.

Before the grandstand rehearsals were in progress, in the agricultural building exhibitors were at work arranging the products for county exhibits, while in the merchants' exhibit building a large corps of painters were plying the brushes—retouching and beautifying display booths.

The interior of the fine arts building was being coated with a delicate shade of alabastine, just the right color to please the eyes and make one linger over some wonderful painting.

Decorate Building.

The women's building was also receiving attention, and the interior walls will be painted. The floor cleaned and every thing be spick and span for the placement of the great array of exhibits that are certain to be placed in the domestic science and domestic art department.

The cattle hangers have been divided into stalls to hold the livestock of breeders who are coming from all parts of the nation. The Texas-Oklahoma Fair will have the best livestock display in the southwest this year, as few of the breeders will ship to the State Fair of Texas at Dallas.

Stock Train On Way.

A solid trainload of livestock will arrive Friday night from the Oklahoma State Fair, Oklahoma City. The train will bring running race horses making the Midwest Fair Circuit of which the Texas-Oklahoma Fair is a member. Approximately 75 show horses will be included in the shipment. The equines will be seen in the horse show which is scheduled the last three nights of the big exposition. A large number of beef and dairy cattle will also arrive from Oklahoma.

From Amarillo will come another special train bringing county exhibits, livestock, agriculture and poultry. Still other exhibits will come from the South Plains Fair at Lubbock. All exhibitors in the southwest plan to come to the local exposition.

Fair visitors will find all displays and exhibits in place and ready for the "passing review" by 9 o'clock Saturday morning, at which time the gates of the fourth annual Texas-Oklahoma Fair will be officially opened to the public.

DISCUSS MEXICO DEBT.

Conference on Lamont Agreement to Be Started Today.

NEW YORK, Sept. 30.—(AP)—Discussions of Mexico's debt problems covering the possible resumption of payments under the Lamont-de La Huerta agreement of 1922 will get under way tomorrow when Alberto J. Pani, Mexican finance minister, will confer with members of the international committee of bankers on Mexico.

Pimples

What can I do?

OH, why can't I have a sk like other girls? Why do have to have these ugly pimples blotches and blackheads?

"If I could only find something that would clear up my skin and give me back my soft, rosy complexion, I know I would be the happies girl in the world! What can I do?"

Is that you talking? If it is, you don't have to worry a minute! Just build up the rich, red blood in your body. Then your skin will be as clear and soft as anybody's.

That's what S. S. S. has been doing for generations—helping Nature build rich, red blood! You can build red-blood-cells so fast that the impurities that cause breaking out on the skin hardly get into the system before the pure blood annihilates them—kills them right out—stops them from breaking out through the skin.

And then this rich, red, pure blood feeds and nourishes the tissues of the skin and keeps it looking healthy.

That's all there is to it. Healthy, vigorous red blood such as S. S. S. helps Nature build, makes you healthy all over. It beautifies your skin — drives away pimples, blackheads, blotches, rash, boils and eczema—gives you back your appetite—builds firm, plump flesh and fills you full of new life and energy.
