

Score's one to one at final debate time

By DONALD M. ROTHBERG
AP Political Writer

Gerald Ford and Jimmy Carter, two presidential candidates in search of a breakthrough to a clear edge in the race for the White House, get their last chance tonight to find that advantage in head-on debate.

Their third and final debate takes place in historic Williamsburg, Va. Afterward, the Republican President and his Democratic challenger leave on campaign trips that will keep them on the road until the election.

Associated Press polls following the first two debates gave Ford an edge in the first and Carter an almost identical edge in the second.

So, it's one each going into the final match. But no one can be sure what role the debates will have in the final election outcome.

The first debate covered domestic issues and economic policy, the second, foreign policy and defense issues. There is no limitation on the subject matter of the third debate.

A week ago, the vice presidential candidates, Republican Sen. Bob Dole and Democratic Sen. Walter F. Mondale, debated. It was their only scheduled meeting, and it produced generally livelier exchanges than the confrontations between the men at the top of the tickets.

President Ford and Carter spoke at the annual Al Smith Dinner in New York on Thursday night, a charity affair that usually draws the presidential candidates from both major parties.

Carter and Ford timed their appearances so that one was gone before the other arrived.

In an ornate ballroom decorated with thousands of roses, and before an audience heavy with philanthropists and politicians, first Ford and later Carter spoke, each introduced by Terence Cardinal Cooke, Roman Catholic Archbishop of New York.

Tradition has it that if the speeches are political, their tone should be lighthearted. And so it was.

Ford took note of the upcoming debate and said, "Gov. Carter is going to answer his questions and I'm going to question my answers." They were references to Ford's frequent campaign charge that Carter refuses to give straight answers during the debates and to the President's own gaffe in the second debate when he said there was "no Soviet domination of Eastern Europe."

Ford also told the dinner that "we've just installed a special lock on the front door of the White House. It's Jimmy proof."

Carter referred to his interview with Playboy magazine and said, "I had an opportunity to chat privately with Cardinal Cooke and he gave me some good advice. Among other things, I've agreed that if I ever give another interview on Biblical sins of pride and lust, it will be to a reporter from Our Sunday Visitor."

Our Sunday Visitor is a widely circulated Catholic weekly. Both candidates may have trouble figuring out where they are during the final 10 days of the campaign. They'll be on the road constantly and if either wonders where he is, a good guess would be that he's in one of the eight most populous states, all seen as key battlegrounds and none of which is considered a sure bet for either man.

Aboard Air Force One, on the flight back to Washington from New York, an aide said gaps are being left in Ford's campaign schedule that will be filled after the latest polling data is received on Monday.

The eight big states where both candidates expect to spend much of their remaining time are California, New York, Illinois, Pennsylvania, Ohio, Michigan, Texas and New Jersey.

Carter flew to Williamsburg immediately after the New York dinner Thursday night. Thousands of New Yorkers waited along Park Avenue to wave at the Carter motorcade as it rolled past and, despite a post-midnight arrival in Williamsburg, Carter was greeted by two crowds.

A crowd estimated at about 700 persons waited at the airport in nearby Newport News, Va., and another 1,000 were on hand when the candidate arrived at his Williamsburg hotel.

"The real debate in this campaign is between Mr. Carter and Mr. Carter," Ford repeated. He told a news conference Wednesday that "Mr. Carter does waver, wander, wiggle and waffle."

Those charges fit in with the Ford campaign theme that the President is a known quantity, a decent man who has brought the nation back from the agony of Watergate, while Carter is the unknown quantity and no one can say how he might, act as president.

Carter has hit hard at what he describes as the lack of leadership in the Ford administration. He frequently quotes the sign President Harry Truman kept in the Oval Office that read, "The buck stops here," and then tells crowds that "The buck can travel all over Washington these days and not find a place to stop."

Now both men are poised for their final campaign push. And barring a major slip by either man in tonight's debate, the two candidates could reach election day in a virtual dead heat.

As the two major party candidates prepared to debate, independent candidate Eugene McCarthy was campaigning in San Francisco where he was critical of state laws that have kept him off some ballots.

"The people are unconstitutionally being denied the right of choice because of state laws and the federal election law," McCarthy said. He said he now plans to have succeeded in getting on the ballot in "slightly more than 30 states" by election day.

Before the first debate a 48-29 plurality worried about Carter's "lack of experience." After the first debate, which Harris said Carter lost 40-31, the number of voters who said they worry about Carter's lack of experience dropped to 45-41. In the second debate, Harris said Carter was the clear-cut victor by 54-30 per cent. However, Harris said, the number of voters who worry about Carter's lack of experience rose to 52-32 after the second debate.

Call might have averted deaths

LULING, La. (AP) — Divers found a body on the Mississippi River bed today and said the discovery could help them locate 52 other persons missing after the collision of a ferry and a tanker.

A body was found this morning about 300 yards from the west levee by divers hunting for cars, authorities said. It was the first body recovered since Wednesday afternoon, not long after a tanker ran over the ferry, dumping people and cars into the swift, cold river.

An estimated 75 passengers died in the incident. The body located today was the 23rd found. Eighteen persons survived.

Officials on the scene said today's discovery may show where the ferry dumped its load of early morning commuters. They immediately lined divers up with the new location and said they would concentrate the search in that area.

Meanwhile, workers floated the battered ferry after working two days to get it right side up and out of the river mud. As she sat heavily in the brown river water, the signs of the collision showed clearly amidships where the side was caved in from the blow of the huge tanker.

Other damage also was obvious — torn guard railings, smashed radar antenna, bent fixings. But the tall pilothouse remained standing above the deck.

The blow from the tanker left a deep V in the middle of the port side, down from the pilothouse in the dead center of the deck. The collision was almost exactly broadside.

As the search continued, funerals for some of the victims were held in communities near the ferry landing.

The Coast Guard was organizing an inquiry into the accident, about 20 miles upriver from New Orleans. A spokesman said the actual questioning of witnesses probably would begin Saturday.

A list of 53 missing persons was compiled by state police from family inquiries, unclaimed cars in parking lots, unpunched time clocks at factories, and workers' lunchboxes and hard hats found floating on the river. No one knows exactly how many persons were aboard the ferry.

Capt. Clyde T. Lusk of the Coast Guard's Marine Inspection Office said investigators had talked with N.F. Colombo, the river pilot who was at the wheel of the Norwegian tanker Frostia when it rammed the George Prince ferry. But Lusk declined to say what was discussed.

Coast Guard Cmdr. George Oberholzer said the tragedy might have been averted by a routine call on bridge-to-bridge radio. Both vessels were equipped with such radios, the Coast Guard said.

"If it was me, I'd call out on the radio before I came out from the land and say I was the Destrehan ferry and about to pull out," Oberholzer said. He said such calls are routine at other points along the river.

Oberholzer said that, normally, a smaller vessel such as the ferry would yield the right-of-way to a larger, less maneuverable ship. But he said other rules require a ship spotting an emergency to sound appropriate signals and "back down."

Lusk said the collision could have resulted from misunderstanding, poor communication or equipment failure. "We've got to take everything that was happening that day into account," he said.

Crews using metal detectors and sonar gear on Thursday spotted what they thought to be a pile of eight or nine of the approximately 30 cars that spilled from the ferry deck. But divers found only pieces of metal unrelated to the sinking.

The forecast calls for partly cloudy skies through Saturday with a chance for thundershowers. The highs will be in the 60s, and the lows in the 40s.

Study shows families minus tv are closer

NEW MILFORD, Conn. (AP) — Susie was a 4-year-old loner.

But after her television viewing was cut to one hour a week for a month, she began asking kindergarten classmates over to play — something she had never done before.

Susie and the children of 15 other families here participated in the four-week television experiment with Redbook magazine. The magazine reported in its November issue that the families became closer and the children improved in school. The children's real names were not used.

But of all the children in the experiment — from kindergarten age through third grade — Susie was the most changed.

the magazine said.

The magazine did not say how much television each child watched before the experiment. It noted that the average child between the ages of 2 and 5 watches 23.5 hours a week, according to the A.C. Nielsen Co., which rates television audiences.

Most parents who participated in the test said their youngsters complained for the first week or so. Susie at first often had fits of temper about not being allowed to watch "Batman." But by the second week she was becoming more involved with her schoolmates.

After the experiment, another youngster, Mark, stopped playing at "blowing up things," and his parents said he stopped getting into fist fights.

Mary, who had been getting Ds and Fs on her third-grade spelling tests, brought home a B-plus after the experiment.

The article said that even after the experiment was over it found most parents much more conscious of what children watched and more careful not to "slip back into the old patterns, the automatic click of the 'on' button, the mindless watching."

However, the magazine reported that Susie resumed her old viewing habits after the test, and her parents and teachers noticed immediately that she began to withdraw again.

Neighbors save family

LEFORS — Mr. and Mrs. Jesse Baker of Lefors lost two vehicles — a car and station wagon, washer, dryer and many other items when their garage burst into flames shortly before midnight Wednesday.

But Mrs. Baker said this morning the family has much to be thankful for.

"We were sleeping (they have five children and all were home) when a man barged in the door and said 'Your garage is on fire.'"

The fire extended to the back side of the house where shingles were burned and windows popped out.

"Had he not awakened us we probably would have been burned up," Mrs. Baker said.

Baker is Lefors elementary school principal. The Baker children range in age from three to 19 years.

"I didn't worry about the garage after I saw all of us were safe and the house was going to be saved," Mrs. Baker said.

Asked if they have transportation today, she replied, "We have an old beat up pickup."

Jim Hix, fireman, said the Baker's garage was about five feet from the house.

Hix said the fire was reported after a neighbor looked out the back door about midnight and saw the billowing smoke.

Garage sale signs protested

Cooperation of Pampa citizens was asked today by City Manager Mack Wofford for compliance with the city's anti-sign posting ordinance.

Wofford said unauthorized signs are being placed on poles in public right-of-way in violation of the law.

"The practice seems to have reached the point where it is has become a serious traffic hazard at street intersections," Wofford said.

The city manager added that he believes the violations are committed by persons unaware of the law and the dangers involved in the practice.

Most of the signs deal with garage sales in the vicinity of the violations, he stated.

"It is illegal to place signs anywhere except in certain regulated areas of the downtown business section," Wofford said.

Under the city ordinance banning the signs, violators are subject to a fine not to exceed $200 upon conviction.

Hospital board orders interior audit of books

By ANNA BURCHELL
Pampa News Staff

An interior audit of the Gray County hospital books to be done as quickly as possible was approved Thursday afternoon during an emergency meeting of the board of managers.

Joel Plunk, new board member and an accountant, recommended the audit.

"There are some questions I would like answered," he said, explaining that the audit is "pretty well regular procedure due to a change in administration. It is for the benefit of both the old and the new administration," Plunk said.

He estimated it will cost about $1,500. Mathis, West and Huffines, an auditing firm from Wichita Falls, will send two men in who will probably stay three days. Plunk told the board.

Proposed room rate hikes were tabled for the second time since the new board was sworn in a week ago.

R.W. Sidwell, new president, asked for discussion on the proposed room rate increase.

"If we have to have room rate increases to meet bills we'll do so, but think we should go over the budget and see if costs can be cut before we ask people to pay more," commented Susie Wilkinson, vice president.

Royce Gee of Lefors, new board member, said he thought everything should be looked over.

"There are those who can't afford to pay these (rates)," he added.

John Haynes of McLean said he too is in favor of looking it over.

Plunk then told the board that he is in the process of "taking a look at some administrative costs."

"Hopefully we can see a ray of hope," he reported. Bill Tidwell also indicated that the proposal should be studied.

Sidwell then commented: "I think it is unanimous that we table this for further action."

Horace Williams, acting administrator asked if the proposed room rates should be incorporated in a proposed budget for the coming year.

"I would say no," Sidwell replied.

Plunk reported that the leasing contract for a new computer, purchased by a previous board, has been received. Total leasing cost is $34,770, he said, while the original cost of the computer is $24,900.

It was the opinion of the board that even though the previous administrator had leased it, the board is bound by the contract which already had been signed when it came to the new board.

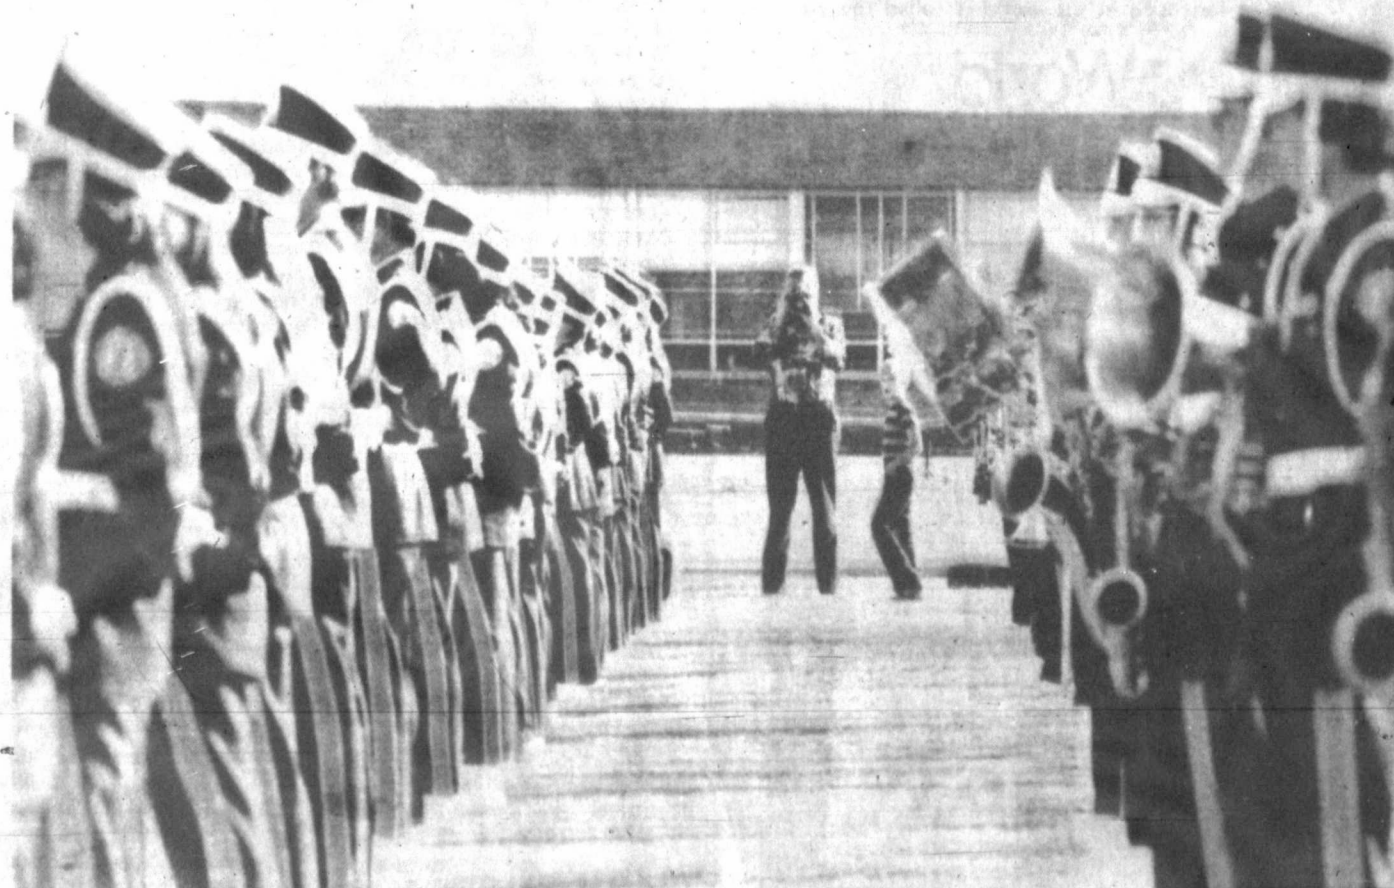

In other action, the board approved expenses for K.V. Thakkar, hospital accountant, to attend a computer systems applications course in Dallas in November to learn to operate the computer more smoothly. There will be no tuition fees.

Announcement was made that review of the local hospital by the Joint Commission on Accreditation of Hospitals is scheduled Nov. 16-17.

In conclusion, Sidwell told board members he had received three applications for the administrator's post at Highland General and McLean General hospitals.

"As we get word around, we hope to have additional applications," he said.

Prior to the next meeting on Nov. 11, Sidwell said he hoped board members could meet and look at applications "and try to screen them."

Future pride

EVER STRIVING FOR TOP O' TEXAS
TO BE AN EVEN BETTER PLACE TO LIVE

Let Peace Begin With Me:

This newspaper is dedicated to furnishing information to our readers so that they can better promote and preserve their own freedom and encourage others to see its blessing. For only when man understands freedom and is free to control himself and all he possesses can he develop to his utmost capabilities.

We believe that all men are equally endowed by their Creator, and not by a government, with the right to take moral action to preserve their life and property and secure more freedom and keep it for themselves and others.

To discharge this responsibility, free men, to the best of their ability, must understand and apply to daily living the great moral guide expressed in the Coveting Commandment.

Soothsayers of doom

The soothsayers of doom have always been with us. For many years, those noticed were only an occasional person on a street corner handing out pamphlets warning of impending doom. These usually had a religious connotation.

The press paid no attention to the scare writing in these hand-outs. Few people would take a second look even though some would accept the pamphlets.

These sincere religious souls could not get many people to accept the scare or embrace the ideas as a means for personal salvation. Perhaps the worldly rewards were too scant to attract the right type of promotional mind. The nice folks keep on with no thought of building lucrative careers and power empires.

There are now more modern soothsayers of doom who have the formula to grab public attention, enhance careers and be successful in political empire building. It just takes one part (however small) of newly found scientific information, or misinformation will do; several parts of fad-oriented people looking for a cause and most important, many people ready to accept the fallacy that politicians can protect against all hazards.

With those ingredients, you just can't miss. Whether it be cranberries, tuna fish, dead lakes, off-shore drilling, coal burning or nuclear power, it makes little difference. Get the pitch set up and the people can be conned out of tax money and deprived of useful products.

Noticeable difference

It's really true, as Dorothy Parker rhymed, that men don't make passes at girls who wear glasses. But women like men just as well with or without spectacles. Or so reports the Sight Improvement Center, a New York company that specializes in contact lenses.

A study made by the center of 670 female and 550 male patients found that more than 70 per cent of the women who replaced their

Only, consumers, taxpayers, industry, its shareholders and employees will be hurt. This seems a small price to pay for the enhancement of political careers and giving do-gooders a cause to pursue.

The aerosol industry is one recently victimized by the modern soothsayers of doom. It has been alleged that aerosol sprays would deplete the upper atmosphere's protective layer of ozone and unfiltered sunlight could cause skin cancer. There is only theory to this with no clear evidence to sustain the allegation.

Having already been hurt by the usual initial blast, this industry got it again with a wrong interpretation of a report from the National Academy of Sciences.

The erroneous interpretation by a news wire service gave rise to headlines across the land saying that the academy had recommended Aerosol banning in the next two years.

The gist of the findings were: "In view of the present inadequacies in the basis of our calculations, in view of the reduction in these inadequacies promised by ongoing measurement programs and in view of the small changes in ozone reduction following from a year to two delay, we wish to recommend against decision to regulate at this time."

The damage has been done. The only ray of hope that can be expected at this time is that the cry of "wolf" will be made once too often and the press and people will cease to be alarmed.

Crime is good business

Crime pays — for those companies in the business of trying to prevent crime, anyway.

Spending by the private sector of the economy for protective services, deterrent and fire control equipment will more than triple to $13 billion by 1990, predicts Predict, Inc., a

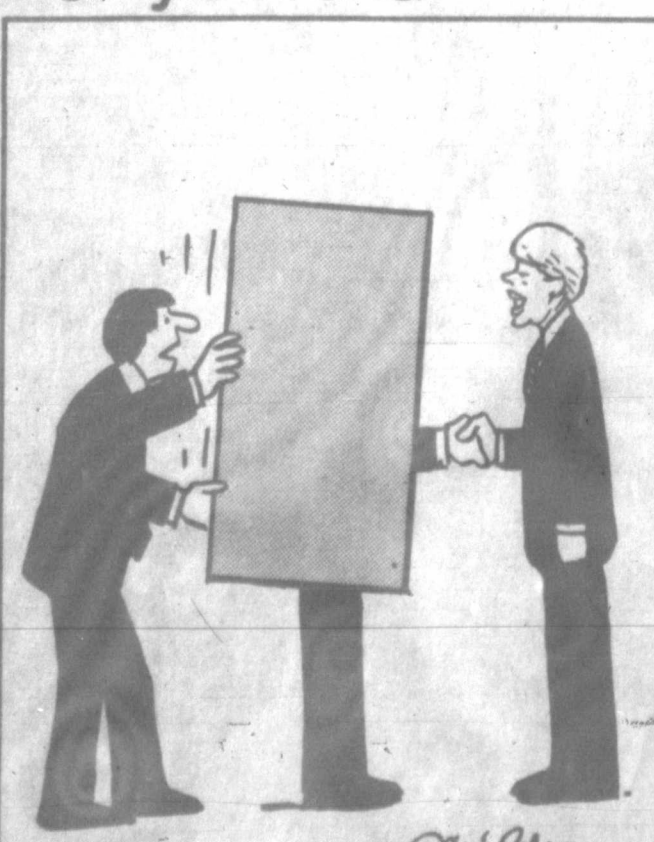

Cleveland, Ohio, business information and research firm.

Protective services will account for the greatest growth, with revenues approaching $6 billion 1990, it says. By that year, more than $2.5 billion will be spent on guard services alone, with over 40 per cent of industry utilizing outside guards.

Spotlight turns on Arkansas

By ANTHONY HARRIGAN

If democracy is to endure in the United States, Americans must be vigilant in preventing the growth of coercive forces in their society. They will have to be on watch against new forms of political control which involve shrewd, sophisticated use of community organizations.

The battle to retain traditional American freedoms is being fought in many states. One state worth watching this year is Arkansas where significant tests are taking place.

Since 1944, Arkansians have enjoyed the benefits of a freedom to work law. This law prevents coercion of the working man. He can't be forced to join a union or to pay dues to a union in order to get or keep a job.

This important guarantee of freedom is threatened this year by something known as Amendment 59. This Amendment, which is on the ballot Nov. 2, would effectively dismantle the freedom to work law. If it passes, employers will be encouraged by law to discriminate against employees who won't voluntarily pay union dues. Workers will be compelled to pay money into union treasuries whether they like it or not.

This type of economic coercion has no place in a free society. Of course, the pressure on workers to pay union dues — over their principled objections — is but one phase of union coercion. The public record in this country clearly shows that in many areas organized labor is closely allied with organized crime.

Powerful economic arguments can be advanced for having a freedom to work law, but these arguments are of secondary importance. The struggle against compulsory unionism is a basic moral issue. Freedom can't endure in the United States if millions of citizens are forced to belong to unions against their will.

In truth, every state should have a freedom to work law. Freedom to work without a union membership card should be as basic as freedom of speech or the right to a fair and speedy trial.

The situation in Arkansas this year is interesting in another respect. Arkansas is the principal operating area of something known as ACORN (Association of Community Organizations For Reform Now.)

According to The New York Times, inspiration for ACORN came from the late George Wiley, head of the radical National Welfare Rights Organization. Wade Rathke, founder and chief organizer of ACORN, is described by the Times as a "28-year-old Williams College dropout" and former organizer for the National Welfare Rights Organization in Massachusetts.

The Times stated that "With Mr. Wiley's encouragement and initial financial aid, Mr. Rathke chose Arkansas with its diverse population and geography to test the theory" that a more effective action organization might be built if it had a broader base than one composed of welfare recipients alone.

Today, ACORN is involved in lobbying, lawsuits and public hearings. Putting neighborhood associations together for larger community projects is nothing new. What's new is this country is the effort to build neighborhood groups into a powerful social action force with political clout. Indeed, this is the current objective of radical groups that seek to transform American society. Certainly, the ACORN has to be viewed in terms of social and political developments nationwide.

Clearly, the voters in Arkansas have serious freedom issues to consider when they go to the polls next month.

"From the beginning, I knew that the vulnerability of the Watergate affair spread broadly across the whole administration. The lesser aides came to the counsel with confessions; the higher aides commenced to behave in a stealthy manner. "This campaign is not a repeat of Thomas E. Dewey against Harry Truman. Nor is it Barry Goldwater against Lyndon Johnson. It looks more like Thomas E. Dewey against Thomas E. Dewey."

"I like to fast, I try to do it one or two days a month. It rinses out the system."

"Generating new jobs obviously has to be on the basis of an ever-expanding industry. If the industry isn't going to expand, then what this, the union's first step toward the four-day workweek, leads to is not more jobs, but the preservation of jobs you would otherwise lose."

FINAL DEBATE TONIGHT

Grave issues ignored so far

The debates between the presidential candidates aren't without value. They add some to the public's insight into the character of the two principal contenders for the presidency.

Unfortunately, neither the televised debates nor the appearances on the campaign trail has given the American people a deeper understanding of the great issues likely to confront this nation in the remaining years of the 20th century. Indeed, politicians generally prefer to ignore the truly grave issues.

The American people should be concerned about their security in the future, not only insofar as military strength is concerned, but in terms of access of energy and raw materials and the nation's ability to maintain its superiority in wealth and technology.

It's clear that the central reality of the late seventies and eighties will be the growing hostility of Third World nations toward the United States and its allies among the developed nations. This hostility already is manifested in the actions and rhetoric of the Afro-Asian majority in the U.N. General Assembly. This majority is demanding that the United States, Western Europe, and Japan transfer wealth to the less developed countries. They threaten violence if income transfers aren't made. They support guerrilla warfare and terrorism in the global countryside, with Western countries and interests as their targets and victims.

The advocates of appeasement of Third World demands say that income transfers must be made inasmuch as the United States represents only 215 million people out of a world population total in excess of four billion. They suggest that the Third World will utilize a human wave strategy against the West. And the Third World may employ such a strategy as the Chinese Communists threatened years ago.

The West finds it hard to understand the threat of Third World aggression. Yet President Boumedienne of Algeria declared in 1974 that "no quantity of atomic bombs could stem the tide of billions of human beings who someday will leave the poor southern part of the world to erupt into the relatively accessible spaces of the rich northern hemisphere."

Western appeasement is a dead end in a literal sense, however. The West can't divest itself of its wealth without reducing itself to the level of backward countries. It can't meet the demands of the Third World without abandoning the liberty cherished by our civilization.

The use of the population weapon isn't a distant threat. No candidate for the Presidency mentions it, but the U.S. faces serious difficulties with Mexico. Since 1945, Mexico's population has risen from 25 million to 62 million. Economic growth has failed to keep up with the explosive population growth. Revolutionary sentiments are increasing as Mexico's population grows and the economic problems are compounded.

Furthermore, illegal immigration has become a grave problem for the United States, though one that receives inadequate attention. An estimated eight million illegal immigrants are in the United States today — approximately five million of them from Mexico. The danger of future mass population movements across the Mexican border can't be ignored by responsible people.

The United States can't solve the problems of incapable nations elsewhere on this planet. The American people should not be expected to feed, educate and industrialize retarded nations or countries with inept leaders and faulty socialist economic systems. Indeed, the American people must husband their resources for their own needs, including security against all forms of aggression.

Fifteen hundred years ago, the Roman Empire collapsed because the Roman people lost sight of the need for safeguards against population pressure on their frontiers. The result was a long dark age for the West. Americans should recall the Roman experience as they strive to preserve a civilized Western order in the late 20th century. Unfortunately, the politicians either don't understand the truly critical dangers or choose to ignore them.

Thoughts

"Do not judge by appearances, but judge with right judgment." — John 7:24.

"Men in general judge more from appearances than from reality. All men have eyes, but few have the gift of penetration." — Niccolò Machiavelli, Italian statesman.

For freedom Christ has set us free; stand fast therefore, and rejoice, O young man, in your youth, and let your heart cheer you in the days of your youth; walk in the ways of your heart and the sight of your eyes. But know that for all these things God will bring you into judgment. — Eccl. 11:9.

Somehow, "dwellingsperson" just hasn't the comfy ring of "homemaker."

The most unpleasant thing about modern art is the gaggle of pseudo art "experts" who insist you must enjoy it.

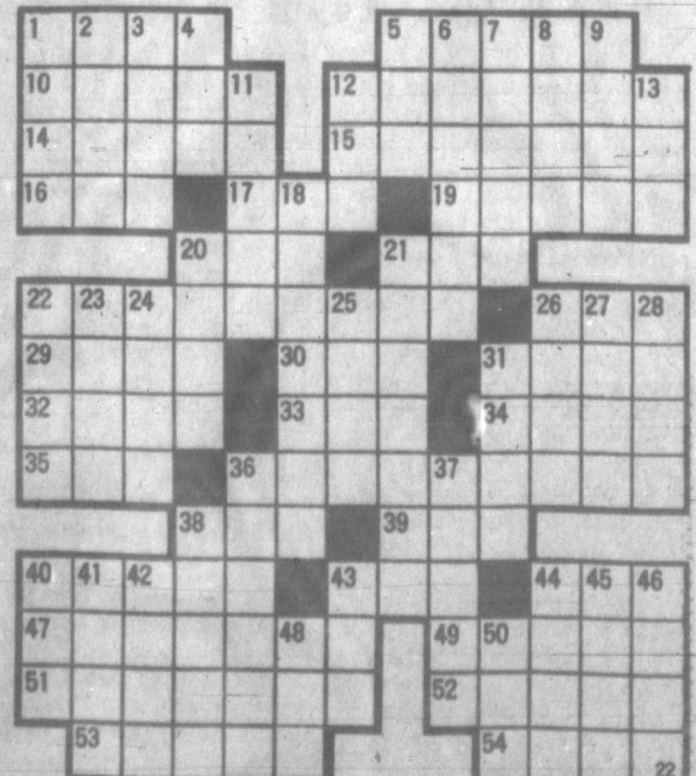

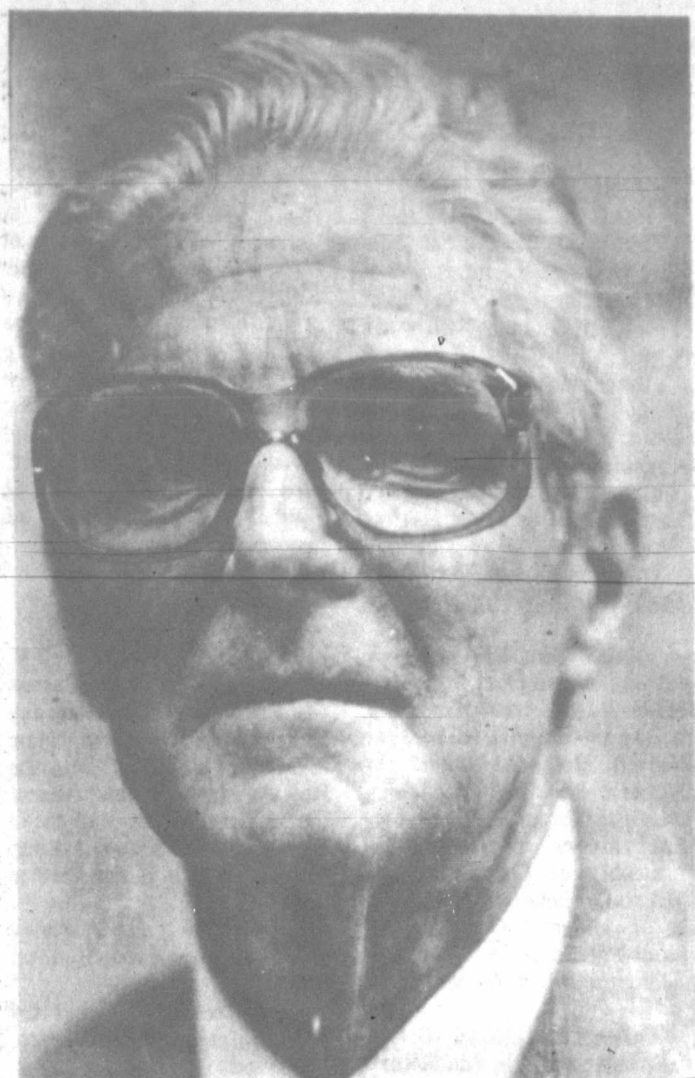

With all the pumpkin heads in high places, the jack-o'-lantern people are facing a glutted market.

Political platforms are best built with presidential timber for support.

Liberated hand, trained hand

Presidential race too close to call

By BRIAN SULLIVAN
Associated Press Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — Regardless of how the percentage points in the latest political polls appear to the naked eye, the margin of error built into the surveys makes the race between President Ford and Jimmy Carter now too close to call.

The polls show Carter ahead by 2 to 6 percentage points, but any conclusion from those numbers would be cloudy at best. And an unusually moody electorate, as indicated by great swings in the opinion surveys over the campaign season, adds uncertainty.

The dean of the pollsters, Dr. George Gallup Sr., agrees — "If you look at the last two to three months, since the conventions, you find the greatest shifting in sentiment we've encountered in 40 years."

Usually the first poll after the conventions will tell a great deal about the eventual outcome. Dr. Gallup says, but this year the situation is "vastly different."

"No, you can't predict a winner," he says. "We do know the debates are making a slight difference. And with two candidates as close as they are, events could make a difference — any crisis, any front page event."

Heading into the final week before the election — with more polling still to come — the major surveys agree that Carter was ahead. They also agree his lead has greatly diminished since early September, but the poll's percentage charts are inconclusive.

That's because a margin of error is built into the polling process by the laws of probability. A typical sample of about 1,200 to 1,500 persons, the size generally used by the national polls, will produce results that 95 out of 100 times have a margin of error of about 3 per cent in either direction. Given other variables of polling, including techniques, the actual margin of error could be even greater.

Here is what four major polls have shown most recently:

NBC News-Newday: Carter 42, Ford 38, and 20 either undecided, won't vote or prefer some other candidate. The polls gains over Ford after the second debate. Those results were based on a survey of between 1,450 and 1,500 persons.

The New York Times-CBS News: The Times said Carter "has regained the strong position he held at the beginning of the general election campaign," but did not cite over-all percentages. In Western and Eastern states, this poll showed Carter at 51 and Ford at 49. In the Midwest, Carter 58, Ford 41. In the South, Carter 60, Ford 40. (Worked out on the basis of each region's population, this would be 49 Carter, 45 Ford and 6 undecided or for others nationally.) That survey was taken Oct. 8-12, and based on 1,761 registered voters with a 2.5 margin of error either way.

In addition to the statistical margin of error, there are other aspects of uncertainty in polling which help account for the difference among the polls: the timing, weighting of samples to assure they are representative of the whole population, whether the selection of persons interviewed is truly random, whether questions and the order of questions do not influence the answers.

And the pollsters themselves generally acknowledge these problems. As Peter D. Hart of Washington puts it: "Those readers who hang on percentage points are going to find 1976 a very confusing year."

While Harris finds Ford narrowing the contest, Gallup finds Carter gaining after the second debate. The Times-CBS poll finds Carter stronger than anyone else does. So the trends themselves are cloudy.

An AP news special was based on a sample of 1,583 respondents, with a margin of error of plus or minus 3 per cent. This means, for example, that Carter could actually have anywhere from 39 to 45 per cent, and Ford 35 to 41. The poll was taken Oct. 12, 13, and 14.

Louis Harris-ABC News: Carter 44, Ford 40, Eugene McCarthy 6. Harris said the results were based on a survey of 1,503 voters and concluded that the results suggest that the Ford-Carter race is now likely to narrow even further. The poll was taken Oct. 7-11.

George Gallup: Carter 47, Ford 41, McCarthy 2, and undecided 10. The results were based on a survey of 1,032 registered voters conducted nationwide Oct. 15-18. A Gallup poll taken Oct. 8-11, just after the second debate, showed Carter leading Ford 48 to 42. McCarthy 2, and undecided 8. At the time Gallup, concluded that Carter had registered

'Write less desperately'

By THOM MARSHALL
Pampa News Staff

Too many people have neglected developing penmanship skills in this age of dependence upon electronic and mechanical communications and Gerry Doyle believes there is something wrong with that. He wants to set it right.

In a talk and slide presentation Thursday evening in the Pioneer Natural Gas Flame Room, Doyle, a trustee of the Beaumont Art Museum, talked and projected slides on "Calligraphy of the Spanish Borderlands."

"We had a hard time in Beaumont getting this title across," Doyle told the Pampa Fine Arts Association audience of about 30 men and women. "Calligraphy" is not a common word.

He defined the uncommon word as "just writing considered as an art."

Doyle said that with the advent of typewriters, copying machines, and duplicating systems, "we have almost abandoned the use of the hand in written communications. I'm not arguing against those things. They liberate us to use the hand as it should be used in writing."

Doyle, the father of Pampa's

Susan Dunigan, said that handwriting is "a basic communication tool," but he added it also can be considered a craft and a fine art.

"It's a useful and pleasant craft," he said. "And it's simple craft. The way you learn a craft is by doing it. There is no such thing as calligraphy without a trained hand. It doesn't take talent, it just takes training."

Doyle said that "We're all apologetic of our handwriting. We are self-conscious about it." He illustrated his comment with a story about Texas Governor Dolph Briscoe who visited the calligraphy show in Beaumont.

"We asked him to sign the register and we almost lost him. 'I'm not going to sign that,' he said."

The speaker complimented Pampa as being "far ahead in this sort of thing," because calligraphy instruction sessions have been conducted and many Pampans know the meaning of the word.

Doyle concluded his program by urging the members of the audience: "The next time you pick up a pen, also take a deep breath and write a little less desperately."

Hua appointment confirmed

TOKYO (AP) — China's official news agency today gave the first official confirmation of the appointment of Premier Hua Kuo-feng to succeed Mao Tse-tung as chairman of the Chinese Communist party and of the purge of Mao's widow and her three radical allies on the party Politburo, the Hsinhua agency said.

Reporting on the huge demonstration in Peking Thursday against Chiang Ching, Mao's widow, and her three radical allies on the party Politburo, the Hsinhua agency said:

"The party central committee headed by Chairman Hua Kuo-feng adopted resolute and decisive measures to crush the counter-revolutionary conspiratorial clique and liquidated a bane inside the party."

The use of the word "liquidated" in the Hsinhua report was not considered an indication that the four had been executed. No political executions are known to have taken place in China in recent years, not even during the stormiest days of the radicals' Great Cultural Revolution in the 1960s.

Japanese correspondents in Peking reported that the demonstrations continued today for the second day, with military personnel, workers and students marching and beating drums and gongs.

Although wall posters in Peking first reported the promotion of the 57-year-old premier on Oct. 9, Hsinhua's report today was the first by an official organ to refer to him as party chairman. Previous official reports all spoke of the "party central committee headed by Comrade Hua Kuo-feng."

Crystal City resents 'Cuba' brand by Briscoe

CRYSTAL CITY, Tex. (AP) — The city council of this Raza Unida-controlled South Texas city has demanded that Gov. Dolph Briscoe apologize for branding it a "little Cuba."

The Crystal City Council passed a resolution Thursday accusing Briscoe of trying to "isolate" the city and cause it "irreparable economic damage" with his "little Cuba" statement.

A Crystal City official also said Thursday that the governor's attitude is affecting the economic development of the city.

Briscoe made the statement recently when he said he would try to block a $1.5 million federal grant to a Crystal City economic development corporation because it would be used to promote socialism.

County Judge Jose Angel Gutierrez, founder of the Raza Unida party that controls the county, said the federal funds were to be used for the formation of an agricultural co-operative. The state government ordered halting the flow of money.

Mayor Francisco Benavides, a political foe of Gutierrez, said council members passed the resolution saying Briscoe "knows that the statement is false . . . and that there is no possibility of a little Cuba existing in Texas."

The resolution added that "public officials of this city and county were elected by the same process by which he (Briscoe) and other public officials were elected."

The council's statement said officials of Crystal City "are as much a part of the United States as officials of any other city or county."

Council members also demanded that Briscoe "take his office more seriously and try to create harmony among the people of the state instead of creating ill feelings and chaos," and asked for an apology for "the statement he so irresponsibly made against the people of Crystal City."

Benavides said Thursday, "Everything has stopped. We are having trouble getting private industry to talk to us, we can't get any state of federal aid, we are being isolated."

Benavides also said that the Crystal City hospital, a private institution, had closed down last week.

Dr. Donald Smith, co-owner of the hospital, said the 30-bed hospital closed down because it was losing money and added that the "political turmoil" in the county was only one of other indirect reasons having to do with the decision.

Dr. Smith said he planned to continue his private practice in Crystal City, but added that the political situation has caused some people to leave the city.

"Carrizo Springs is now the growing city in the area," he said.

Raza Unida was founded in Crystal City five years ago and now controls most government agencies in the county.

Mistrial motions fail in Ramiro Carrillo trial

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — The official misconduct trial of suspended Duval County Commissioner Ramiro Carrillo has been recessed until Monday after two unsuccessful attempts by the defense for a mistrial.

The mistrial motions were rejected Thursday by State Dist. Court Judge Joe Evins.

After nearly four hours of testimony, Evins recessed the trial until Monday morning to return to Edinburg because of the death of his brother-in-law.

Evins dismissed the jurors for a long weekend but said he wanted to "emphasize very, very strongly" that they were not to read anything, listen to newscasts or talk to anyone — including family — about the "facts of this trial."

To do so, he said, would be contempt of court.

Both mistrial motions by defense lawyer Richard "Racehorse" Haynes were argued while the jury was out of the courtroom.

The first was based on "state's exhibit no. 2" — a front-page story by The Associated Press that appeared in the San Antonio Express.

The Wednesday story said a witness called by the defense, Ricky Barton, allegedly told prospective juror Fred Looney to remain silent about Looney's hunting trips to Duval County because "We want you on the jury."

Carrillo's brother told a reporter Barton had been subpoenaed by the defense but as an adverse witness. Barton is running a write-in campaign against Ramiro Carrillo for county commissioner. Oscar Carrillo said.

Haynes particularly objected to a paragraph in the story that said one of the prosecutors, Duval Dist. Atty. Arnulfo Guerra, "scooped at that characterization. He (Guerra) said Barton was a Carrillo man as recently as last week."

The alleged incident between Barton and Looney was reported to the bailiff by Denise Elledge, a member of the jury panel who was later selected to sit on the jury.

Looney's name was eliminated from the jury panel.

Oscar Carrillo testified that the AP story accurately portrayed what he had said.

Evins instructed lawyers not to discuss the case with news media. He also asked Oscar Carrillo and other members of the Carrillo family not to talk to the press until the trial has been completed.

The second mistrial motion was made as Asst. Atty. Gen. Gerald Carruth questioned Duval County Clerk Alberto Garcia about the whereabouts of former Duval County Judge Archer Parr, who is serving a federal prison sentence.

US, Vietnam near agreement

WASHINGTON (AP) — After six months of exchanging messages, the United States and Vietnam are moving toward agreement on opening preliminary talks about normalizing relations, qualified officials say.

However, U.S. officials say they are trying to avoid any "sterile debate" with the Vietnamese and that the United States wants to "test the waters" in preliminary talks with Vietnam before committing itself to hard bargaining.

"We want to talk about talks," one official said.

The plan, sources say, calls for meetings to be held in Paris with the two sides represented by embassy officials. No time has been set.

The chief American objective is a full accounting of the 800 American servicemen still listed as missing in action in Vietnam.

Democratic presidential candidate Jimmy Carter said in his second debate with President Ford two weeks ago that "aggressive action" is needed to obtain an accounting of MIAs. Carter said Ford's refusal to send an MIA fact-finding commission to Indochina is "one of the most embarrassing failures of the Ford administration."

It is unclear whether Carter's accusations contributed to the break in the impasse of face-to-face talks.

Since April, there have been seven notes exchanged between the two countries, and the breakthrough on opening talks apparently came with the most recent note, from the American side, earlier this month. No official would give the precise date of the note but one official said it was about Oct. 11, five days after the second Carter-Ford debate.

On Oct. 15, Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger hinted that talks were near but gave no details. So far as is known, there have been no meetings between American and Vietnamese officials since the signing of the Paris peace agreement in January 1973.

The main Vietnamese goal in negotiations with the United States is U.S. reconstruction aid, which Washington pledged as part of the Paris pact. The U.S. position is that Hanoi is not entitled to such aid because of what the Ford administration describes as massive violations of the pact by Hanoi in its conquest of South Vietnam last year.

Carter has given no indication he disagrees with administration policy on this issue. In any case, aid for Vietnam has virtually no support in the U.S. Congress.

However, there are some advantages for Vietnam in negotiating with the United States. An easing of relations would enable Vietnam to fulfill its goal of gaining admission to the United Nations.

Both Ford and Carter have said they would veto any Vietnamese application for U.N. membership as long as the MIAs remained unaccounted for.

Two babies dead

By Associated Press
Two infants were dead and another disfigured while five young parents were in Texas county jails today after three unconnected, macabre cases of child abuse in the state.

Murder charges were filed Thursday in Amarillo against 20-year-old Linda Sue Moss — the second set of murder charges stemming from child abuse in the Panhandle city in two days.

Her two-year-old son, Jack Roy Moss, died Wednesday of brain injuries, authorities said.

Officials said Lionel Tschudy, 30, and his 25-year-old wife, Beverly, were jailed Wednesday, charged with the murder of their three-month-old son Terry Wayne. The child died Monday night of malnutrition.

Meanwhile in Dallas, 18-month-old Robert Smith Jr. remained hospitalized in serious condition, suffering from mutilated fingers and toes, a disfigured lip and cigarette burns.

His parents, Robert Smith,

22, and his 18-year-old wife, Eva Marie, were in Dallas County jail, charged Wednesday with inflicting serious bodily injury to a child, a jail spokesman said.

Justice of the Peace Cleophas R. Steele Jr. set bond at $50,000 each for the couple.

Police said the infant had bite marks on his upper lip and wounds in his buttocks and chest. His fingernails and toenails were mangled.

Dallas County Sheriff's Deputy H.A. Bockemuhl said Thursday the two parents are being kept in separate, single cells to protect them from other inmates.

Justice of the Peace Clifford Roberts of Amarillo set $100,000 bond on each of the three parents charged in the two deaths.

Roberts said Robert Francis Lang, 24, who had been living with Miss Moss, is being held under $50,000 bond as a material witness in the death of the Moss infant.

Gift for Ford leaves carver broke

WASHINGTON (AP) — An 80-year-old Pakistani woodcarver who would not be deterred by rejection, a language barrier or a lack of money is going to the White House to present an ivory-inlaid rosewood table that he spent two months carving as a gift for President Ford.

For Noor Hussain, the ceremony next Tuesday will end an odyssey that began in his hometown in Dubai, a tiny Arab state along the Persian Gulf, and left him broke. The story will not end in storybook fashion, however, because Ford will be away campaigning at the time and Hussain's gift will be accepted on behalf of the American people by a presidential assistant.

Hussain has been trying to get one of his tables to the White House since 1973. Richard Nixon's resignation as president in 1974 first thwarted his efforts. Then, on Sept. 4, 1975, he received a letter from the American consulate in Abu Dhabi saying that while Ford appreciated his offer of a table, "the President does not wish to avail himself of your kind offer."

Hussain decided to come anyway.

He acquired a one-way visa to the United States, made a pilgrimage to Mecca, carved the table, called in debts and liquidated his savings to pay for the $900 one-way ticket.

Last Saturday, he landed at Dulles International Airport with the table and little else — no money and no return ticket. He could speak no English and could neither read nor write.

People in such circumstances usually are not admitted. But, said Nicole Sours, coordinator of the International Visitors Service at Dulles, "he was such a sweet little man" that nobody wanted to send him back.

The Pakistani Embassy agreed to take in Hussain, she said, only after "some pressure from the State Department and the White House."

Later, a White House spokesman said the tiny, wizened artisan would be received at the mansion on Tuesday to present his table.

Hussain said through an interpreter that he believes it brings good fortune to do kindnesses for great people. He first tested the theory in 1911 when he went to New Delhi to present two ornamental wooden plates and a pair of carved vases to King George V of Great Britain.

The king rewarded his loyalty with a silver scroll, a silver medallion and 500 rupees, Hussain said. He wore the medallion around his neck throughout World War I, he related. But eventually someone stole it from under his pillow while he slept, and the scroll was burned accidentally.

Plane found, missile missing

WASHINGTON (AP) — A Navy crew which located a F4 fighter jet on the bottom of the Atlantic Ocean reported today that the aircraft's top-secret Phoenix missile is missing.

Earlier, the crew had reported that the missile was attached to the fighter plane.

The fighter, which rolled off the deck of the U.S. aircraft carrier John F. Kennedy, was located Thursday in 1,900 feet of water off the coast of Scotland. The Navy had been searching for the jet for nearly a month.

A Pentagon spokesman said that the nuclear-powered research vessel NRI which located the plane is continuing its search for the missile. Preparations are still under way to retrieve the $14-million plane from the ocean floor, the spokesman said.

On Thursday, the Navy said the plane was located lying on its back, with its three landing gears intact and the Phoenix missile "secure in place" on the bottom of the plane. Today's announcement said the missile "is not attached to the aircraft as originally believed" and that the NRI "is continuing its search for the missile."

The highly sophisticated Phoenix missile, the F4's primary weapons system, is capable of being launched at six targets simultaneously. The Phoenix guidance system itself is immune to any electronic counter measure known.

Farmers holding wheat

WASHINGTON (AP) — American farmers are holding record amounts of wheat off the market, apparently in an effort to force up prices.

The Agriculture Department reported Thursday that on Oct. 1, with wheat prices 30 per cent below a year earlier, farmers were holding 832 million bushels, even more than in the months immediately before the Soviet Union in the summer of 1972.

The report on grain inventories, which could indicate higher food prices, came as the Labor Department was reporting this September consumer prices rose 5.8 per cent, compared with 7 per cent in 1975 and 12.2 per cent in 1974.

The index means that a typical package of goods and services that cost $100 in 1967 now cost $172.60.

Real spendable earnings — after taxes and inflation — fell for the second consecutive month, this time by one-half of 1 per cent.

The White House said little significance in the latter figure. But Democratic presidential nominee Jimmy Carter said the fact that spendable earnings are 2 per cent below what they were when President Ford took office is "the bottom line of the disastrous economic policies of the Ford administration."

In another development, representatives of the automobile industry said there is no incentive for Americans to give up their big cars in favor of those that use less fuel.

W.D. Eberle, president of the Motor Vehicle Manufacturers Association, told a federal hearing that gasoline mileage of American models may be doubled over the next 10 years, but there is no assurance the lighter, less-powerful models would sell.

"The recent decline in the real cost of gasoline as compared to other nondurables has reduced the incentive to purchase fuel-efficient cars," Eberle said.

If manufacturers switch to highly efficient models and they don't sell, customers will keep their old cars longer, thus raising unemployment in the auto industry and damaging the entire economy, Eberle suggested.

Former FBI agents to build Hoover fund

WASHINGTON (AP) — J. Edgar Hoover's supporters are raising a half million dollars for a monument and scholarship fund honoring the man who was the FBI's iron-willed director for 48 years.

The fund raising comes in the wake of disclosures in congressional hearings and news stories about Hoover's use of the FBI to harass and spy on civil rights leader Martin Luther King, conduct a "dirty tricks" operation to disrupt militant political groups and alleged use of FBI employees and material to do repair work at his home and perform other personal services.

"We feel very close to Mr. Hoover and still think he's one of the great men," said Charles H. Stanley of Little Rock, Ark., president of the J. Edgar Hoover Memorial Fund.

The Society of Former Special Agents of the FBI launched the fund last year to finance the tribute to Hoover. Stanley said the campaign already has raised more than $100,000 in contributions from ex-agents, their friends and some corporations employing ex-agents.

The ex-agents' donations range from $5 to $5,000, with the average about $50 to $75, he said in a telephone interview.

The fund-raisers recently prepared a brochure explaining the project and soliciting donations. In it, outgoing society president Ralph H. Jones of Salt Lake City called the project "a public proclamation of support of the FBI" and Hoover.

"The current wave of unjustified criticism of Mr. Hoover and the FBI by some overzealous media and opportunistic individuals violates the American principle of fair play and maligns the dedicated effort, personal integrity and performance record of each of us who served as special agents," Jones wrote.

"I spent 33 years with Mr. Hoover. We know what he stood for, and he's a great man," said Stanley, who retired as a supervisor at bureau headquarters and now helps run a family hardware business. He says "the memorial is not just for Mr. Hoover but also for the dedicated men who worked for him."

The brochure states that the society, with its 6,700 members, expects to raise more than $500,000 for a monument to be placed in the courtyard of the FBI headquarters building which is named for Hoover and for a "living memorial" in the form of scholarships awarded annually.

Several sculptors have been invited to submit designs of the monument which is to be in place next year, the brochure said. "The design will be in a simple, understandable, 'real world' style," it continued.

Wallace files defamation suit against Screw

NEW YORK (AP) — Alabama Gov. George C. Wallace has filed a $5 million defamation suit against the publisher and editor of Screw magazine for allegedly portraying him as "infamous, immoral and perverted."

The suit is based on a full-page advertisement in the February 1976 issue of the magazine, which is published by Milky Way Productions under editor Al Goldstein.

The ad showed Wallace sitting in his wheelchair and said, in part: "If I could walk, I'd run for Screw! ... And it's the only paper in the nation dedicated to cripples — mental, emotional and physical."

Peter A. McKay, attorney for Wallace, said the ad implies that the governor approves of the magazine. He said Wallace will testify in person at the trial.

Lebanon cease-fire partly successful

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Muslim and Christian spokesmen today reported a 70 per cent decrease in fighting in and around Beirut during the first 24 hours of the Lebanese civil war's new cease-fire.

The Lebanese capital had its first quiet night in seven months, and no casualties were reported. Two mortar shells exploded this morning, "but definitely we are getting off to a much better start Friday than Thursday," said the Christian Phalangist radio station.

Even the Palestinian Rejection Front, made up of extremist guerrilla groups who consider Yasir Arafat too moderate and have frequently defied previous cease-fire agreements, announced that its men were ordered to respect the new truce.

The fronts east and south of Beirut where Arafat's Palestinians faced Syrian troops also were reported quiet. Nor was there word of any fighting in southeast Lebanon, where Christian and Palestinian forces battled early this week.

Both Christian and leftist Muslim spokesmen credited Lebanon's Christian president, Elias Sarkis, and Saudi Arabia's military attaché, Gen. Ali Shaïr, with a major part in securing compliance with the cease-fire.

Sarkis, who controls no militiamen and had no part in the previous 18 months of fighting, set up an operations room at his home with direct telephone lines to the leaders of the warring militias and to Arafat in Beirut and Syrian President Hafez Assad in Damascus.

The 51-year-old president also put together his own observer team of officers of the disintegrated Lebanese army to patrol the no man's land between the Muslim and Christian sectors of Beirut.

But both Muslim and Christian Lebanese spokesmen warned that the truce could still collapse, like the 56 others preceding it.

Texas weather

Scattered light showers fell in the Davis Mountains in Southwest Texas, but skies over most of the state were clear to partly cloudy early today as warmer weather returned to the state.

Forecasters see no significant change in the Texas weather during the weekend. Some showers are forecast for far West Texas, the Panhandle and South Plains, but elsewhere it will be clear to partly cloudy and warmer.

Early morning temperatures ranged from 38 at Marfa in Southwest Texas to 60 at Brownsville in the Lower Rio Grande Valley. Other early morning readings included 43 at Amarillo, 52 at Wichita Falls, 48 at Texarkana, 51 at Waco, 62 at Alice, and 63 at Galveston.

The rain in West Texas was light with El Paso reporting only .02 of an inch in a shower about midnight.

Temperatures highs today are expected to be mostly in the 60s and 70s with a few readings in the 80s possible in South Texas.

City of Pampa tax statements covering the 1976 tax roll went into the mail today and should be received during the weekend or the first of next week, according to City Tax Assessor-Collector Aubrey L. Jones.

He explained there is no split payment or discount on the tax bills. Payments not made by Jan. 31 become delinquent the following day and are subject to an 8 per cent penalty plus 6 per cent annual interest at the rate of one-half per cent additional for each month of delinquency.

Hill son claims forgery

HOUSTON (AP) — The guardian of the surviving son of Houston plastic surgeon Dr. John Hill has filed suit in probate court claiming the already probated will of Joan Robinson Hill was forged by her father, Ash Robinson.

The suit was filed Thursday by Connie L. Hill, the doctor's third wife. The suit claimed Mrs. Joan Hill's will, dated Nov. 2, 1968, actually was signed by Robinson after her death.

The suit also claims the two witnesses of the one-page document also affixed their names to the will after the death of Mrs. Hill, a noted horsewoman and socialite.

Dr. Hill was fatally shot in his River Oaks home in September 1972 shortly before he was to go on trial on charges he murdered his wife, Robinson's daughter.

Attorney Mayo Davidson said he thinks the case will go to trial in two months after Robinson, an oil millionaire, has a chance to answer the charges.

Robinson declined comment on the suit.

Connie Hill and Myra Hill, Dr. Hill's mother, have a $7.8 million wrongful death suit pending against Robinson in state district court.

That suit claims Robinson is the unindicted mastermind of a plot to kill Dr. Hill as revenge for allegedly murdering his only daughter.

Best teacher in Texas likes thinkers

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — A first grade teacher in Fort Worth who believes the educator's goal is "to develop thinkers rather than memorizers" has been named Texas Teacher of the Year for 1977.

The selection of Mrs. Marie Haines of J.T. Stevens Elementary School means her name will be placed in the annual competition for National Teacher of the Year.

State Education Commissioner M.L. Brockett announced Thursday that Dr. Anne Ramundo Catalani, an English teacher at Robert E. Lee High School in San Antonio, was named first runner-up. It was noted that she grew up in a non-English speaking home.

Mrs. Haines was chosen from 41 entrants in Texas.

She has taught for 28 years.

Slaying publicity prompts mistrial

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP) — Arizona's attorney general has taken control of the Don Bolles murder case on orders of the governor after publicity about the reporter's slaying prompted a mistrial.

Defendant John Harvey Adamson, a 32-year-old greynosed dog breeder, returned to his jail cell to await a new trial date.

The state's special prosecutor on the case, Asst. Atty. Gen. William Schafer, accused the chief county prosecutor of scuttling the trial with his public statements.

The defense team also berated Maricopa County Atty. Donald W. Harris for giving press interviews predicting indictments of other persons in Bolles' killing.

Superior Court Judge Frederic Heinemann, who ordered a new trial to begin before Dec. 20, was the only principal who did not blame Harris for the troubles that aborted the four-day-old trial Thursday.

"I do not believe that Maricopa County Atty. Donald Harris has acted in bad faith," the judge said at an emergency hearing. "However, I do agree there has been sufficient prejudicial publicity in recent weeks to warrant a mistrial."

Shortly after the mistrial was declared, Gov. Raul Castro ordered Atty. Gen. Bruce Babbitt and Schafer to "take exclusive control and prosecute any and all other matters or persons relating to or arising out of the murder of Don Bolles."

Attorneys said that in three days of jury selection it had been almost impossible to find jurors who did not know every detail of the Bolles case.

The 47-year-old Arizona Republic reporter was injured June 2 when dynamite exploded under his car as he left a hotel. He had been summoned there by an unknown tipster who promised to help in Bolles' probe of local land fraud and corruption.

Adamson was arrested two hours after Bolles died of those injuries on June 13.

The dispute which brought a mistrial centered on Harris' statements that conspirators in the murder might be indicted soon.

Schafer, who had been sent in as a deputy prosecutor on the case, criticized Harris and joined in the defense motion for mistrial.

"Because of recent public statements about the Adamson case by Mr. Donald Harris ... the state feels that the possibility of reversal on appeal is too great to proceed to trial at this time," Schafer said in a written response filed with the judge.

The defense team accused Harris of lying in statements to reporters and on the CBS-TV show "60 minutes" about prospects for further arrests in the case.

"The chief prosecuting attorney in Maricopa County, Donald W. Harris, has engaged in a course of willful and intentional dissemination of prejudicial information and statements to the news media to deprive John Harvey Adamson of a fair trial," the defense said in its motion for mistrial.

Advice

Dear Abby

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1976 by Chicago Tribune. H. T. News Synd. Inc.

DEAR ABBY: A man in our office was told by his doctor to quit smoking. (Heart, emphysema and asthma.) Well, this guy decided that the best way to quit smoking was to quit BUYING cigarettes, and that's our problem. He buys cigarettes from every smoker he sees, and I don't mean just one cigarette. Yesterday I gave him six, and several others in the office contributed, too.

It's awfully hard to turn down a guy who asks for a cigarette, but I'm fed up with his bumming. If he's going to smoke, don't you think he should buy his own? Nobody in this office has the nerve to tell him—including me. Any suggestions?

CHICKEN

DEAR CHICKEN: If a diabetic asked you for sugar, would you give it to him? And would you give an alcoholic a drink? The cigarette bummer desperately needs support from his coworkers to help him to quit his habit. Be a friend and say no.

DEAR ABBY: My fiancé is 28 and I am 24. Jeff's friends are having a stag party for him, and from what I hear about the plans, it is going to be very exciting. They're having stag films, and a naked girl is going to jump out of a big cake!

In days gone by, all the bride got was a lot of boring showers, but my girlfriends want to change all that. They're planning a "bachelor girls' party" with films just like the men's, and a naked guy jumping out of a cake. I think it's a neat idea, but Jeff is against it.

I think his objections are unfair. What do you think?

ALL FOR EQUALITY

DEAR ALL FOR: Of course, Jeff's objections are unfair. Just be sure all the "girls" know what to expect in case Granny or Aunt Matilda have weak hearts—or stomachs.

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I have been married for seven years, and we are very happy. We know other couples who have been married about the same length of time, and they aren't at all happy. In fact, they fight a lot. The secret to our happiness is one simple rule we follow: Treat each other like a human being FIRST, like a man or a woman SECOND, like a husband or wife THIRD. This has worked for us. It may for others, too.

STILL HONEYMOONERS

DEAR HONEYMOONERS: If you can make a rule that works for seven years work for seven times seven, you've got it made. Good luck.

Ask Dr. Lamb

By Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I would like some information on getting rid of fat in certain areas of the body. I read that when you lose weight or fat, you lose it over your entire body. The weight I gain seems to settle in my hips and seat. I'm not overweight, I just need rearranging. How do I get rid of fat in one place and stay the same or not get skinny in the other areas that are just fine?

Also, could you tell me what exercises are good to flatten the derriere?

DEAR READER — I've got news for you. You are overweight. There is no such thing as spot reducing. You have to be on a general weight reduction program to get rid of fat even if you seem skinny in some areas, such as the face.

You have two problems, loss of muscle mass in the face, neck, arms and gain of fat below the chest. The way you go about rearranging yourself is to recognize you have two problems, not just one.

It is a perverse aspect of nature that causes us to lose fat in our face first and last in the abdomen and hips area. A good program is to do exercises to build up muscles in the skinny places and be on an exercise diet program to lose calories and get rid of the unwanted fat deposits.

Do isometric exercises for your face. That means contracting each group of facial muscles that you can identify several times each morning—between three and ten times is enough for each group.

Also do exercises that use your arms and chest muscles. Push-ups, pull-ups and windmill exercises are all good. Be sure to use exercises that help

Polly's Problem

DEAR POLLY — My son spilled milk on our living room carpet and it left a sour smell. I have tried vinegar and baking soda to no avail. I hope someone has some further suggestions. — DIANNA

DEAR DIANNA — Try table salt. It removes the strong odor of cat urine, so it should work on the sour smell. Dampen carpet where milk was spilled, cover area with lots of salt put on very thickly and then let spot dry. The drying time will depend on how damp it is and the atmospheric conditions. When dry, remove salt with the vacuum. After bag is emptied, remove salt from any areas of the cleaner it may have touched. — POLLY

DEAR POLLY — My Pet Peeve or gripe is that stores do not sell milk in the same size cartons children get at school. We oldsters who like milk on our morning cereal are getting tired of having to buy the quart or half-gallon size and then having it spoil before it is all used. We simply cannot afford it. Some stores have even stopped selling the quart size. — PEARL

DEAR POLLY — If you are unable to unscrew a cap on a jar, use a nutcracker. Many times they are easier to find than the pliers.

A recent Pointer suggested putting your degreaser or liquid detergent in a roll-on anti-perspirant bottle and then rolling it on a soiled area. How do you remove the roller top so you can fill the bottle? None of my friends were able to do this. Thanks for any help. — DOROTHY

DEAR DOROTHY — I removed the roll-on top from a bottle of a widely-advised antiperspirant by pushing the tip of a paring knife under the edge of the heavy plastic-like top so that it grabbed on to the glass bottle rim enough that the top could be pushed off. This means a slight bending of the knife so do be careful that the knife point is pointed away and not toward you. The top comes off with a quick pop. — POLLY

The Parks are a four-hardhat family

By JEANNE GRIMES

Pampa News Staff
Anita Parks of Skellytown likes to tell people that she, her husband and two children are a four-hardhat family.

Having both parents work might upset some children, but Parks said her own are used to the idea.

"For Christmas we gave them these little hardhats with their names on them," she said.

It wasn't always that way, but three years ago the 27-year-old Parks traded soapbuds and soap operas for a hardhat, safety glasses and steel-toed boots when she went to work as a maintenance person at the Northern Natural Gas Company Skellytown Plant.

Parks said her duties range from taking care of engines to cleanup to painting — "just whatever needs doing."

"You never know what you're going to be doing. It's really interesting work," she said.

She starts her work day treating the water that circulates in the engines for coolant. Then she goes to the basement and works on general cleanup assignments.

Parks said her husband, Claude Lee Parks, really makes her role of working mother possible.

"I couldn't make it without him," she said. "Since Claude is on a rotating shift (the works for Phillips), he's taken a lot of the burden off."

"My husband has always been a car nut and I've helped him overhaul car engines," she said of her mechanical abilities, adding quickly that there is little resemblance between a car engine and the Cooper Bessemer horizontal engines she cares for on the job.

Parks' previous job experience had been for eight weeks during one summer when she worked for Marie Foundations in Pampa. She was in high school then.

"I never really thought about working out here," she said. "My daddy worked for Northern years ago ... He (her father) thought it was really great (when she was hired). A lot of the guys out here have known me since I was knee high to a duck."

Northern was not reluctant to consider a woman for one of their 10 maintenance slots, she said.

"That's (women) what they needed when I came out here," she said. There is one other woman employed in maintenance.

"There's a lot of teasing that goes on," Parks said, "but that's between all of us. It's just a nice place to work. I couldn't believe how well everyone out here got along."

"From everything I've heard, everyone seems to get along better here. I think it helps because a lot have worked here 25 or 30 years."

Her parents moved to Skellytown when she was two and she attended schools in Skellytown and Pampa.

"I've lived around this area all my life," she said. She moved back to Skellytown from Panhandle with her husband and children in January.

"My husband is on a rotating shift and most of the time he's home when the kids get home from school," she said.

They have a nine-year-old son, Lee Allen, and a five-year-old daughter, Cyndi.

"The oldest can pretty well get himself ready," she said. Both children are in school by 8 a.m. and Cyndi, a kindergarten student, waits on her brother's class to get out after her own school day stops at 3 p.m.

Their mother doesn't worry too much about them getting to school or back home because "we live about 200 feet from the school."

Usually Parks works days — on the job from 8 a.m. until 4:30 p.m. But work schedules at the plant which employs 41 people can vary, especially during vacation season.

The plant, which Parks called a booster plant, is open 24 hours a day, seven days a week. Through the plant, gas collected in the field is "boosted on up north."

Parks said she wants to work "until my kids graduate from high school."

Hopefully by that time she and her husband will "be in a position to retire and travel."

"Doing whatever needs doing..."

Starting up one of the electrical generators at the Northern Natural Gas Company Skellytown Plant is only one of the duties Anita Parks is trained to do. She has worked three years as a maintenance person at the plant.

Diet can harm skin

By VIVIAN BROWN

AP Newsfeatures Writer
College meals may be the cause of a lot of the skin problems experienced by students, says skin specialist Georgette Klinger, who cautions young clients about their food habits when they go away to school.

She suggests also that they shower immediately after using the school pool to remove chemicals that might have been in the water, to be aware that smoking and sun can cause early wrinkling of the skin and to avoid eating and drinking anything to excess.

"Too much starch and sugar, canned foods, oils and fats make up the student's diet at the college dining table where there are usually few fresh vegetables and salads. They eat what they are served because they are hungry and the hunger they get the more they want starches and sugars which will give them a temporary lift," she explained.

More fruit should be eaten, especially after meals, she advises, so the natural sugar may curtail the desire for other sweets. When young people enter the reception area of her New York skin care salon, they get the message: a hostess cart is laden with bowls of fresh cut carrots and cucumbers alongside a coffee urn.

"The digestive system plays a critical role in conditioning the skin. Waste materials can create problems — constipation can cause acne and allergies," she notes, recommending more bulk in the diet. "Raw vegetables, citrus pulp as well as the juice of fruit, millers' bran added to cereals, and yogurt and cottage cheese may all help digestion."

She suggests that "it is possible to get too much as well as too little of vitamins," and one should consult a physician before dosing.

Often she solves skin problems merely by checking the habits of clients, a point she emphasizes when men and women write for her skin examination charts to indicate their problems. What are their nutritional habits? What are their cleansing and makeup routines? She can tell a great deal from answers to those questions.

"Proper cleansing is a very important aspect of skin care. Even dandruff and other scalp conditions have a bad effect on skin. Girls should concentrate makeup only around their eyes, leaving their skin free. It should be a challenge to have a beautiful skin that doesn't need a cover, and the more you cover, the more you must cover," she says.

She also warns about the effects of sun, but she does provide sun screens "for those who would have a bit," and a sun block — a sun survival kit, she calls it — to screen sun out completely. After showering off swimming pool chemicals, she suggests swimmers use body moisturizer.

"My staff is afraid to be seen here with a sunburn. If they find out I am here, they try to sneak into the salon and hide all day," she says with a laugh. "After 30 years some have said, why didn't you make me listen?"

Her daughter Kathryn listened, she said, which may have been a rare mother-daughter experience. She came home from college for skin treatments and "did as she was told," Miss Klinger explains. As a youngster she had traveled widely with her mother on trips to Europe where Miss Klinger has done a great deal of research on skin. In fact, her daughter became so knowledgeable that she has been able to take over the job of running her Beverly Hills, Calif., salon, Miss Klinger says.

Another John Nance Garner runs

MONROE, Wash. (AP) — He may not be as colorful as Texas' "Cactus Jack," but Washington congressional candidate John Nance Garner lacks none of his namesake's penchant for politics.

"He and my grandfather were second cousins, or something like that," said Garner. "My father thought that was a nice handle to hang on a little kid that couldn't fight back."

The late John Nance Garner was elected to represent Texas in Congress when he was 34 and, after 14 terms, became Speaker of the House.

He was vice president for eight years under Franklin D. Roosevelt, but broke with Roosevelt's New Deal policies and was dropped from the ticket in 1940.

One major difference between the two John Nance Garners is political persuasion: "Cactus Jack" was a Democrat and Washington's Garner is a Republican.

Garner, 42, making his second bid for elective office, faces an uphill battle against six-term Democrat Rep. Lloyd Meeds. Two years ago he was defeated when he ran for the state legislature.

He says his most successful issue has been a federal court ruling on Indian fishing rights. He has pledged to try to get

Congress to overturn the ruling, based on a 19th century treaty that guarantees Indians the opportunity to catch up to half the harvestable salmon and steelhead. Non-Indian commercial fishermen complain that doesn't leave enough fish for them.

Appearing on behalf of Garner have been Rep. William Cohen of Maine, Sen. John Tower of Texas and Vice President Nelson Rockefeller, who confessed he knew nothing about the fishing dispute.

Garner wasn't perturbed and, in a spirit reminiscent of Cactus Jack, tried to turn Rockefeller's problem to his advantage.

Grocery costs down; goods, services up

WASHINGTON (AP) — Consumer prices rose four-tenths of a per cent in September as grocery costs declined for the first time in six months, helping offset increases for other goods and services, the government said today.

The over-all rise in the consumer price index translates into an annual inflation rate of about 4.9 per cent, a level in line with the basic underlying rate of inflation in the economy of 5 to 6 per cent.

September's rise follows increases of five-tenths of a per cent in each of the previous three months.

While inflation eased slightly last month, the Labor Department said the purchasing power of the average worker's paycheck continued to shrink. The department said real earnings — what's left of salary after deductions for taxes and adjusted for inflation — declined five-tenths of a per cent last month.

The price report was the final major economic statistic to be released before the November elections.

President Ford has claimed that his economic policies have helped cut the inflation rate to half of its 1974 levels, while Democrat Jimmy Carter has charged that the current rate still is twice as high as when the Democrats were in office.

Consumer prices surged 12.2 per cent in 1974 and slowed to 7 per cent in 1975. Over the past 12 months, prices have risen 5.8 per cent.

But for Americans accustomed to price increases averaging about 2 per cent a year through much of the post-World War II period, the current rate is high.

Over-all, the Consumer Price Index stood at 172.6 in September, meaning a market basket of goods and services costing $100 in 1967 now costs $172.60.

Grocery prices declined in September one-tenth of a per cent after seasonal adjustment, the first decline since March when they fell eight-tenths of a per cent.

Pork and poultry prices declined sharply as they have in recent months. Beef prices also fell but by less than in July or August, the Labor Department said.

Prices of cereal and bakery products dropped for the first time since March, and sugar prices declined sharply. But prices for fresh vegetables, dairy products and coffee continued to increase.

The over-all food index, which includes prices of both store-bought food and restaurant meals, was unchanged in September, following three months of relatively small increases.

Prices for non-food commodities rose four-tenths of a per cent last month, compared with increases of six-tenths of a per cent during the spring and summer months and three-tenths of a per cent early in the year.

The recent rise in wholesale prices indicates that consumer price inflation may accelerate soon. In September, wholesale prices jumped nine-tenths of 1 per cent, the largest increase in 11 months. Higher prices for farm products and most major industrial goods were blamed.

Wholesale-price trends are usually reflected at the retail level though not necessarily on a one-for-one basis. Food-price increases generally pass through quickly but price changes for nonfood items often take months to work their way through the price chain.

At a news conference Wednesday, President Ford told reporters he was disappointed at a sag in the growth rate of the Gross National Product to 4 per cent in the last quarter.

Gospel music at the Highland Baptist Church, 1301 N. Banks, at 7 p.m. Sunday will be by the Key Notes, a Perryton group, according to the Rev. M.B. Smith, pastor. The Key Notes were organized in 1973 and in 1975 they traveled over 5,000 miles in four states. They have released an album, "Love Eternally," and expect to release another soon. From left they are Charlotte Davis, Margaret Swinney and Esther Parker.

Missouri pastor here

Coordinator of the Assemblies of God services to retired ministers and missionaries, child care and placement agencies, the Rev. Stanley V. Michael, will speak to the Bethel Assembly of God congregation Sunday.

The Rev. Paul DeWolfe, pastor, said Rev. Michael of Springfield, Mo., will be at the church at 1541 Hamilton for the 11 a.m. worship service.

Rev. Michael is secretary of the Department of Benevolences which oversees the Bethany Mobile Home Park in Lakeland, Fla., the Hillcrest Children's Home at Hot Springs, Ark., and the Highlands Child Placement Services in Kansas City Mo.

Rev. Michael served as an assistant pastor in Houston and was pastor at Donna before joining the church's national Sunday School staff in 1954. He was promotion director and field representative for "Revivaltime" from 1955-65 and he writes regularly for many denominational publications. He's listed in "Who's Who in Religion."

Lubbock man at seminar

A Lubbock minister will speak three times during a Christian Life Seminar at the Lamar Full Gospel Assembly, 1200 S. Sumner, according to the Rev. Gene Allen, pastor.

The Rev. Morris Sheats, pastor of Trinity Church in Lubbock, will address the seminar at 7:30 p.m. Monday and 9:30 a.m. and 7:30 p.m. Tuesday.

In addition to his work with Trinity Church, Rev. Sheats has an extensive radio and television ministry. He is author of "You Can Be Emotionally Healed," a book published this year.

Rev. Allen said the seminar is open to the public and added that a nursery will be provided during the services.

THE UNCHANGEABLE CHIRST

"Jesus Christ the same yesterday, and today, and forever." (Hebrews 13:8) This declaration can be made of no one but the Lord. All earthly things are subject to change. The weather changes frequently, sometimes quite frequently here. We all know this and act accordingly. One day may be just fine. The sun is bright. The air is pleasant. Everything is cheerful. The following day may see a change in the weather. Clouds may hide the sun. A cold wind may blow. Rain or snow may fall.

Sometimes our earthly life is like this. Things may go well with us today. We feel fine. We are happy. But tomorrow may bring depressing changes and we feel the experiences of change in our lives.

People sometime go back "home" for a family reunion. It can be a happy occasion but it may also cause sadness. Why? Because of changes the passing of time has wrought. Voices known and loved in earlier life have been stilled in death. The old home has fallen into ruin and decay. Things are different. We are saddened because of it.

Jesus Christ changes not. He is the same yesterday, today, and forever. Yet, some Christians say they grow weary in serving him. They say it is no longer a pleasure. There is no satisfaction in it. But, who has changed?

These dissatisfied ones once studied their Bibles regularly, but they do not study anymore. They were once regular in attendance at worship services. Now they seldom, if ever attend. How can such a one expect to get satisfaction out of the Christian life when they do not live it? Who has changed?

It is difficult to withdraw money from a bank in which you have never made a deposit. We usually do not expect to do so. The reason some people get nothing from the service of Christ is because they put nothing into it. What is your attitude? Have YOU changed?

An investment in Your Future ...ATTEND CHURCH

Removing the THORN

Almost everyone that has ever removed a shoe and run barefoot through the fields, knows of the wonderful feeling of freedom that this gives. Most, also have known what it is to remove a sticker or a thorn. The first attempts to pull it out are usually handled so gingerly and slowly, and then, screwing up your courage you yank it out, and find that this was the easiest way after all.

There are many thorns in life, and these evils should be removed swiftly, and put out of our lives. Attend Church, receive help and encouragement in removing the thorns from your life.

The Church is God's appointed agency in this world for spreading the knowledge of His love for man and of His demand for man to respond to that love by loving his neighbor. Without this grounding in the love of God, no government or society or way of life will long persevere and the freedoms which we hold so dear will inevitably perish. Therefore, even from a selfish point of view, one should support the Church for the sake of the welfare of himself and his family. Beyond that, however, every person should uphold and participate in the Church because it tells the truth about man's life, death and destiny; the truth which alone will set him free to live as a child of God.

Hard-luck Tascosa hosts Harvesters

By PAUL SIMS
Sports Editor

"I don't know if they're mad or frustrated but I'm sure they're a little of both."

Pampa Coach John Welborn hopes Tascosa doesn't take its frustrations or anger out on the Harvesters, who meet the Amarillo team in a District 3-AAAA contest at 7:30 p.m. today in Amarillo's Dick Bivins Stadium.

Tascosa has won twice, downing El Paso Riverside and Dumas. It has lost five games but never by more than one touchdown.

"Yeah, its frustrating," Rebel Coach Jocko Harris said, "but we feel like we're playing as good as we can. I think we should've won the Berger ball game (7-6 loss) and probably the rest of them."

Tascosa's other setbacks have been to Midland 14-7, Plainview 7-0, Lubbock Coronado 13-7, Borger 7-6 and Amarillo Palo Duro 13-6.

The latter was a district contest. Tascosa cannot afford another loss since District 3-AAAA teams play a total of just four games.

Pampa, last week in its 3-AAAA opener, edged Amarillo Caprock, 14-12, despite losing five fumbles for the second week in a row.

"I don't know why we're fumbling so much," Welborn said. "If somebody wants to win, they're going to hang onto the ball. It shows a lack of concentration and possibly a lack of maturity, maybe a lack of leadership."

Three Pampa fumbles resulted in short drives for touchdowns for Lubbock Monterey, which won, 35-0, in both teams' non-conference finale two weeks ago. Both Caprock touchdowns came after Harvester fumbles deep in Pampa territory.

Tascosa has also had a turnover problem, though it differs somewhat from Pampa's. Welborn said.

"Most of their fumbles have come on the opponents' goal line when Tascosa was getting ready to score."

Which indicates that Tascosa has a potentially dangerous offense. The Rebels rank third in total offense, averaging 229.8 yards per contest, and are second in rushing.

Tailback Don Williams is the district's leading rusher with 596 yards on 113 carries (5.3 average), while fullback Stan Frampton has run 67 times for 362 yards (5.4).

"Tascosa is much better than their record indicates," Welborn said. "They're so much better than what they were last year — they have a better defense and a much better offense."

Tascosa ranks first in defense, allowing just 170.4 yards per outing. The Harvesters are second both offensively and defensively.

Pampa, like Tascosa, has a capable running attack, with fullback David Caldwell leading the way. Caldwell has racked up 398 yards on 88 carries (4.5) and gained 90 yards against Caprock.

Left halfback Ricky Moore has 71 carries for 370 yards (5.2) and is tied for the district leadership with Williams for most touchdowns scored on the ground (five).

Pampa unleashed a new threat last week — right halfback Dean Smith, who hadn't carried much prior to the game but gained 53 yards on four attempts.

The three backs may be hard-pressed to get yards tonight. "Tascosa runs an eight-man front and they're going to come at you real quick and hard at you on the outside," Welborn said.

"Defensively, they're as good as anybody in the district."

Inside linebackers (Tascosa uses four linebackers) Steve Washburn (190) and Brian Bealmear (195), right linebacker Steve Gambrel (165) and tackles Richard Feferman (220) and David Massick (200) lead the Rebel defensive charge.

The game is critical for the Harvesters (4-2), according to the Pampa coach.

"I think we can still have a real good season. I think we need to make the big push right here and be the best ball club at the end of the season. I think we've got the potential."

In the only other district encounter this weekend, Amarillo High and Caprock play Saturday afternoon.

Cincy sweeps Series

NEW YORK (AP) — Seven games ago, Sparky Anderson knew it would take only seven games for his Cincinnati Reds to become baseball champions of the world.

The first of those seven came in Philadelphia. The Reds, winners of the National League's West Division, were playing the Phillies, the best of the East.

"I said to myself then that if we beat (pitcher) Steve Carlton in the first game, we'd win seven straight," Anderson recalled.

The Reds did beat Carlton. Then they beat Philadelphia again... and again. That was the National League pennant.

Then came the New York Yankees, who had just won the American League flag in an exhausting five-game series with Kansas City.

The Reds beat the Yanks. Then they beat them again... and again. Seven games later, the Reds were 1 for the second straight year.

Thursday night's clincher was a 7-2 romp built on Johnny Bench's two home runs and the pitching of Gary Nolan and reliever Will McEneaney. It was the first World Series sweep since Baltimore's over Los Angeles in 1966. And it was the first time a National League club had taken two straight World Series since the New York Giants did it in 1921-22.

It was, to put it mildly, awesome.

Some.

"They beat us tonight," muttered catcher Thurman Munson, the only bright spot in the otherwise pale New York lineup.

"They beat us this time, they beat us four straight, they beat the hell out of us all the way through. What else is there to say?"

Whatever else there was to say was said succinctly by Anderson.

"This ball club has more class than any other club of the 24 all around the country," Anderson said. "Last year, when we beat Boston in seven games, they were like kids. Now they're men."

Indeed, in the Cincinnati locker room, the mood was remarkably subdued, as though these Reds were used to such championships — which, in fact, they are. There was little of the yahoing, champagne-bathing, towel-throwing of last year, when it took the Reds seven dramatic games to subdue the Boston Red Sox.

"Last year was certainly exciting, more so than this one," said Bench, the runaway Most Valuable Player in the Series for his eight hits in 15 at-bats and six runs batted in. Five of those RBI came in the clincher on a two-run homer in the fourth and a three-run shot in the ninth.

"And last year might have been more gratifying for me, personally," added Bench, whose .533 Series average more than offset his dismal, injury-decimated season when he batted .234 with 16 homers and 74 RBI.

It may well have been Munson's finest game ever, too. He had four hits, scored one run and drove in the other. His six straight hits over two games tied a Series record set in 1924 by Washington's Goose Goslin.

Munson batted .529 in the Series, far above any other Yankees starter. New York as a whole hit a paltry .222 to the Reds' .313.

In the first inning, Munson singled and scored on Chris Chambliss' double. In the fifth, Mickey Rivers singled, stole second and scored on Munson's single.

But each time the Yanks got a run, the Reds got more.

In the fourth inning, Joe Morgan walked and stole second with such ease that Munson didn't even bother throwing.

With two out, George Foster singled him home. Then Bench unloaded on an Ed Figueroa fastball and sent it soaring down the left-field line. It hit the foul screen in front of the upper deck and the Reds led 3-1.

"Yeah, I knew it was out," Bench said. "But at first I didn't know if it was going to be fair. The way I hit it, though, as soon as it started straightening out, I figured it was good. I stood watching it at the plate — not because I didn't want to have to walk back, but just to make sure."

In the ninth, with the Yanks down by just one run, the Reds demolished any hopes they had of making a comeback.

Tony Perez walked, then Dan Driessen did, too. In came Dick Tidrow, replacing Figueroa. One out later, Bench hit his second homer, a line drive a couple of rows back in the lower left-field seats.

"Tidrow had gotten me out in the third game with a slider, gotten me to hit into a double play with it, so I was thinking slider," Bench said. "That's what he threw and I really got into it."

A few minutes earlier, Yankees Manager Billy Martin had gotten out of it. The game, that is. He was thumbed by NL umpire Bruce Froemming at first base.

Thurman Munson had turned around a few times on balls and strikes. Froemming said, starting his explanation.

"Then Bill Deegan (the home plate umpire) threw a ball of play. I watched it roll into the Yankee dugout. I saw Martin pick it up and throw it back on the field in Deegan's direction."

"We had a riot situation here in New York and Martin knew it."

And Martin was immediately gone. "I would throw a manager out of any field in the country for doing what he did," Froemming said. "It's an automatic ejection for throwing equipment on the field."

The Reds' last run came on successive ground-rule doubles off Tidrow, by Cesar Geronimo down the right-field line, and Dave Concepcion down the left-field line. Each was grabbed by a souvenir-hunting fan.

Not much later, the souvenir-hunters were on the field by the hundreds, even before Roy White's fly ball settled in Foster's glove in left field.

And half an hour after that, Yankee Stadium stood like an enormous tomb in the ravaged South Bronx. Silent, littered, ravaged itself with huge chunks of sod torn away. And most of all, empty.

'Headknocker' slated in Big 8

By HANK LOWENKRON
AP Sports Writer

Third-rated Nebraska figures this will be an up week for up and down No. 17 Missouri in Saturday's nationally televised Big Eight Conference football game.

"This is going to be a typical Missouri-Nebraska football game — a real headknocker for 60 minutes," said Nebraska defensive coach Monte Kiffin.

The battle of the linemen is expected to be a classic, with Nebraska defensive tackles Mike Fultz and Ron Pruitt regarded as two of the best in the nation.

Missouri boasts a pair of offensive tackles who also are well respected. Morris Towns will face Pruitt across the line of scrimmage and James Taylor will go against Fultz.

Coach Tom Osborne said he thinks Nebraska will see the "real Missouri" team at Memorial Stadium, meaning he expects them to play on a par with their performances against Ohio State and the University of Southern California — teams the Tigers upset earlier this year.

Two other members of the conference in the Top 20 also have Big Eight games. No. 5 Oklahoma entertains Oklahoma State, while No. 16 Iowa State is at Colorado. Top-rated Michigan tries to remain undefeated in a Big Ten test at Indiana. In another Big Ten game, ninth-rated Ohio State entertains Purdue.

Most of the top 20 are favored to keep winning. Heisman Trophy candidate Tony Dorsett figures to move closer to — and possibly surpass — Archie Griffin as college football's No. 1 all-time rushing leader when No. 2 Pittsburgh visits Navy. No. 4 UCLA has a Pac-8 game at California, while No. 7 Southern California is home against Oregon State in another Pac-8 match.

In other games involving rated teams, No. 6 Maryland is at Duke; No. 11 Florida visits Tennessee.

NFL roundup

Bengals, Oilers battle for lead

By HANK LOWENKRON
AP Sports Writer

There may be little foot and plenty of arm in use Sunday when the Cincinnati Bengals and Houston Oilers battle for first place in the American Football Conference's Central Division.

Both teams take 4-2 records into the game at the Astrodome, which will be seen on television in most parts of the country.

As usual, the Bengals will depend on quarterback Ken Anderson, the National Football League's top passer the past two seasons. And the Bengals defense, No. 1 in the AFC this season, will be challenged by an offense directed by quarterback Dan Pastorini.

"In my opinion, they have perhaps the best home run combination in pro football," said Bengals' defensive line coach Chuck Studley, rattling off the names of Pastorini and wide receivers Ken Burroughs and Billy "White Shoes" Johnson.

This is the halfway mark in an NFL season which has had plenty of surprises, including the 24 showing of defending Super Bowl champion Pittsburgh.

The Steelers, who must beat out both Cincinnati and Houston to retain their conference championship, try to make up some ground at the expense of the winless New York Giants in another Sunday game.

The weekend schedule begins with 5-1 San Francisco trying to protect its National Conference West lead against visiting Atlanta, 1-5, on Saturday.

Other Sunday games are Minnesota, 5-0-1, at Philadelphia, 2-4; Chicago, 3-3, at Dallas, 5-1; Los Angeles, 4-1-1, at New Orleans, 2-4; Green Bay, 3-3, at Oakland, 5-1; New England, 4-2, at Buffalo, 2-4; Baltimore, 5-1, at New York Jets, 1-5; San Diego, 4-2, at Cleveland, 3-3; Denver, 3-3, at Kansas City, 2-4; Detroit, 2-4, at Seattle, 1-5; and Miami, 2-4, at Tampa Bay, 0-6.

Monday night's nationally televised game has the 4-2 Washington Redskins entertaining the 5-1 St. Louis Cardinals, who share the NFC East lead with Dallas after knocking the Cowboys from the unbeaten ranks last week.

Both Houston and Cincinnati are trying to rebound from losses last weekend. The Oilers lost 30-27 to San Diego while the Bengals were trounced by Pittsburgh 23-6.

"The 49ers looked awesome last week," said New Falcons Coach Pat Pepler, whose club must contain kick returner Anthony Leonard and wide receiver Gene Washington if his club is to prevent the heavily favored 49ers from producing their best seven-game record since 1959.

Fran Tarkenton goes after another milestone in Philadelphia. The Minnesota quarterback needs only 100 yards to become the second player in NFL history to pass for 40,000 yards.

The NFL's leading passer, Roger Staubach, will be trying to keep Dallas at the top of the NFC East while his club's defense tries to contain Chicago's Walter Payton — the league's top rusher with 694 yards and six touchdowns in six games.

YOU CAN TRUST JIMMY CARTER TO DO WHAT'S BEST FOR THE AMERICAN FARMER?

Jimmy Carter is an engineer, a scientist, a former governor. He is also a farmer. His children will be the sixth generation on the same land. He understands what it means to roll up his sleeves to do an honest day's work for an honest day's pay.

He also understands the abuses you have suffered during a Republican Administration which has taken excellent care of the grain speculators, the Russians, the food processors and the powerful. At your expense. The Republican big-business approach to farming is a disgrace and a failure. American farmers are going broke trying to produce food American consumers cannot afford to buy. As a farmer, Jimmy Carter is committed to changing that. As President, Jimmy Carter will change that.

FARM EXPORTS.

"We can't tolerate an agricultural policy which encourages foreign sales and then cuts them off for political convenience. We can only develop overseas markets for our goods, if our buyers can depend on us and the quality and quantity of our products. Our farmers are dependable. It's our government that's not."

DOMESTIC AGRICULTURAL POLICY.

"The Republican big-business approach to agriculture is driving the family farmer out of business. We need to end the threat of embargoes, to create small but adequate reserves, to establish realistic fall back prices. We need to develop an abundant production policy coupled with a vigorous expansion of our export markets."

RURAL AND SMALL TOWN DEVELOPMENT.

"Farmers are entitled to exactly the same standard of living that most urban dwellers take for granted — adequate water and sewer systems, affordable electric and telephone service and a realistic wage for a good day's labor."

ESTATE TAXES.

"The present estate tax threatens the very existence of the family farmer. It should be and will be eliminated with progressive tax credits or by a substantial increase in estate tax exemptions. Permanent farm land must be and will be valued at its production value. Not at its value to land speculators."

TOGETHER, JIMMY CARTER AND WALTER MONDALE WILL GIVE THE AMERICAN FARMERS A VOICE IN THE WAY YOUR GOVERNMENT IS RUN.

One of the reasons Jimmy Carter chose Walter Mondale to be his running mate was because they both share the same concern for the American farmer. Born and raised in rural Minnesota, Mondale has relentlessly and consistently fought for the rights of the family farmer. And as a U.S. Senator, his record stands as one of the most impressive in Congress.

CAN YOU TRUST A REPUBLICAN ADMINISTRATION WHICH STANDS ON A RECORD LIKE THIS?

As a Congressman, Gerald Ford led the fight for cutbacks and impoundments of rural funds. He voted for every termination and elimination of rural programs family farmers so desperately need. As President, Gerald Ford and a Butz Department of Agriculture have consistently vetoed, embargoed, reduced and curtailed a long list of programs designed to guarantee the family farmer a decent standard of living. It's a record of disregard and insensitivity to the problems facing the farmers and consumers of this nation.

If you agree that drastic reforms must be made in the way this country is run, in the way our farm program is administered, you have only one choice on November 2nd. And that's for change.

ON NOVEMBER 2ND, VOTE FOR JIMMY CARTER. A LEADER, FOR A CHANGE.

They'd rather go fishing

QUINLAN, Tex. (AP) — High school football may be "king" over most of Texas but in Quinlan, where the Panthers have a 25-game losing streak, it takes a back seat to the town's infatuation with the rod and reel.

The lead story in this week's Tawakoni News was about an upcoming bass fishing tournament, while the Panthers' latest loss was buried at the bottom of the page.

"Attendance at school seems to go down when the fishing is good," says Coach Thurman Adams. "People just don't care as much about football."

Adams and assistant Coach Jerry Trussel are quick to emphasize that their players are not "losers" despite their poor record, which includes six straight losses this season and a 187-20 point deficit.

"They have guts and determination to represent their school," says Adams. Attendance at practice has been near 100 per cent and all the players say they will win two or three games before the season is over, including tonight's game against Rains County, which also is winless this year.

A football chant like "Two, four, six, eight, score before we graduate" might be a joke to most football coaches but to Adams it wouldn't be funny. At one point last year, his first as head coach, the Panthers had been outscored 356-7.

"Behind our backs, some of students might say some things about the way we play but not to our face," says senior center-linebacker Robert Renfro, one of the team's better athletes.

"I like it here. I would rather play tailback on this team than any other in the district," says starting halfback Pat Cornauad. "It's not fun to lose, but it has been worth it to play because of the teamwork. We've lost, but we've lost as a team."

Adams, 30, is a clean-cut, handsome man who wears gold wire-rim glasses. In street clothes he looks like he would be more at home in a courtroom or a bank than the football field.

With bermuda shorts and a t-shirt, he displays a slight paunch that he didn't acquire from lack of exercise.

The Quinlan roster has only 25 players, nine of whom start on both offense and defense. So during defense drills, with starting quarterback Danny Washington playing defensive safety, it is Adams who throws passes and calls signals.

"Pro teams can draft and buy players, but we have to take what we get," Adams says. "When I took the job last year, they said it would be tough, but I didn't think it would be this tough."

Adams, Quinlan principal Charlie Thompson and most of the players agree that it is a lack of continuity in the program which causes it to suffer most.

Quinlan is located about 40 miles east of Dallas. Interstate 30 and Texas Highway 276 make comfortable and leisurely driving until you get about five miles away from Quinlan. Then 276 becomes a highway where you had best use two hands to drive.

Most of the population of 2,000 does not live near "downtown" Quinlan, which has more vacant stores than occupied ones. Homes on nearby Lake Tawakoni house the bulk of the town's citizens.

"People move in and out of Quinlan all the time," says Thompson. "They get tired of big-city living in Dallas, move out here and then move away when they get tired of commuting."

"The guys that are seniors now had a 9-0 record when they played in the eighth grade," says Adams. "Only four are still here that played on that team. It's hard to build a successful program with that kind of turnover."

The football players complain that only 20 per cent of the school's male population of about 250 participate in athletics, while the percentage at other schools of similar size is 80 or 90 per cent.

"A lot of the boys here have back problems," Adams says. "Kind of a yellow streak."

There was a long silence when he was asked if this meant he is bitter about having students stay away from football, he said after a long pause. "No, not really. A boy has to have a lot besides size to play a hard sport like football."

Boston trims Pacers

By ALEX SACHARE

AP Sports Writer

Some things never change. On a day when the New York Nets were shipping the heart and soul of their franchise down the turnpike to Philadelphia and when 13-time All-Star Jerry West was finding out what it was like to coach, it was up to the classy captain of the Boston Celtics to lend some sense of order to it all.

So John Havlicek scored 32 points, including six in the last three minutes of regulation play and eight in overtime, and sank his final eight shots as the Celtics rallied to beat the Indiana Pacers 129-122 in one of four National Basketball Association openers Thursday night.

"That's him," marveled Indiana Coach Bobby Leonard. "He's been doing that all his life. That's what makes him one of the greats."

In other NBA openers, the New York Knicks trimmed the Los Angeles Lakers 102-97, the Houston Rockets beat the Atlanta Hawks 120-104 and the Buffalo Braves defeated the Milwaukee Bucks 133-112.

As for NBA debuts, it was mostly negative. Indiana, one of four teams absorbed from the American Basketball Association, was a loser. Among new coaches, West, of the Lakers, and Hubie Brown of the Hawks were losers, while Tates Locke of the Braves and Tom Nissalke of the Rockets were winners.

The Celtics, defending NBA champions, trailed by 18 points in the second period, when Boston center Dave Cowens picked up his fifth personal foul. But they closed to 63-57 at halftime and finally caught up on a basket by Sidney Wicks with 4:11 left.

The teams then traded baskets until Havlicek's jumper with 49 seconds left sent the game into overtime. Havlicek then hit two baskets in the first two minutes of overtime as the Celtics broke it open.

Charlie Scott added 20 points for Boston, Jo Jo White had 23 and Wicks had 21 in his debut with the Celtics. Billy Knight topped Indiana with 29.

Knicks 102, Lakers 97
Bill Bradley scored all 16 of his points in the second half and Jim McMillian, playing his first game for the Knicks, got 16 of his 18 after intermission as New York erased a 10-point third-quarter deficit.

Kareem Abdul-Jabbar led Los Angeles with 29 points and 17 rebounds.

Rockets 120, Hawks 104
Mike Newlin scored 33 points and Rudy Tomjanovich added 20 — including 14 in the fourth quarter and 11 in a row — as Houston took command by outscoring Atlanta 65-49 in the second half.

Braves 133, Bucks 112
Buffalo made up for the absence of three-time scoring champion Bob McAdoo, out with a back injury, by getting 23 points from John Shumate, 22 from Ernie DiGregorio and 21 from reserve Johnny Neumann.

Philadelphia purchases Dr. J from New York

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — The mechanics that put Julius Erving in a Philadelphia 76ers uniform began when Coach Gene Shue and General Manager Pat Williams realized they weren't the only ones with money to spend.

"How will we feel," asked Williams of Shue several weeks ago. "If we wake up one morning and read that Dr. J is a Boston Celtic or a New York Knick?"

Williams answered his own question: "I'd be sick."

So the negotiations started and Philadelphia paid the financially troubled New York Nets $2.5 million for the young superstar.

Williams satisfied Erving with a six-year, $3.5 million contract that reportedly makes him the highest paid player in pro basketball, topping the estimated $500,000 per year earned by Los Angeles center Kareem Abdul Jabbar. The eye-popping $6 million deal was the largest cash transaction in NBA history.

The 26-year-old Erving, a gifted 6-foot-7 forward with dazzling moves, was introduced to some 100 members of the media Thursday night at a press conference.

"I should be ready to go within one or two weeks," said Erving, who missed the entire NBA training camp period and exhibition season because he was holding out.

Amarillo hosts golf tourney

AMARILLO — Amarillo High, which won the Pampa Invitational a week ago, and Plainview, the tournament favorite in that event, should be the top teams in the Amarillo Invitational Boys' Golf Tournament today at the Amarillo Public Golf Course.

Pampa, New Mexico Military Institute, Hereford, Borger and Amarillo schools Caprock, Palo Duro and Tascosa are also entered.

Odesa Permian, which won last year, did not enter.

Sandies, PD tie in 1st half

AMARILLO — Amarillo High and Amarillo Palo Duro tied for the District 3-AAAA first-half girls volleyball championship with 3-1 records.

Amarillo whipped Palo Duro, 15-11, 15-12, Thursday. In another district match, Amarillo Tascosa edged Amarillo Caprock, 15-8, 9-15, 15-13.

The second half opens Tuesday.

But Shue moved up the timetable, saying he planned to play Erving in tonight's season opening game against the San Antonio Spurs.

Erving will team with George McGinnis to give Philadelphia what could be the strongest front line in pro basketball history. The two shared the Most Valuable Player Award in the American Basketball Association in 1975, before McGinnis jumped from the Indiana Pacers to the 76ers, also for a multi-million dollar contract.

Philadelphia now has six players who cost in excess of $1 million in bonus and salary — Erving, McGinnis, Doug Collins, Darryl Dawkins, Joe Bryant and Caldwell Jones.

It has progressed from a team that finished 9-73 in 1972-73, for the worst record in pro basketball history, to the championship favorite this season.

Erving was accompanied to the news conference by his wife, Turquoise, and answered questions during and after the formal session for almost two hours.

Erving defended his holdout stance with the Nets. He had insisted the Nets rewrite the final four years of his $1.9 million contract.

"I felt and I still feel, that my position was just and right," Erving maintained. "I was verbally promised certain considerations and they weren't lived up to. And there were no guarantees that they would be."

Williams emphasized at the news conference that, "in dealing with the Nets we never at any time approached them."

Shockers, sophs fall

AMARILLO — Amarillo High battled back from a 6-0 deficit to whip Pampa, 23-6, in junior varsity football action Thursday afternoon at the Sandie practice field.

Pampa scored in the first quarter on an 11-yard run by Rick Dougherty, who then threw incomplete to Mike Cole on the conversion try.

The Sandies came back in the quarter on a 28-yard run by Mark Isaacson. Barry Martin booted the first of three conversions.

The Sandies blocked a Dougherty punt for a safety in the second quarter, then took the ensuing kickoff and drove in for a touchdown. Randy Whitaker scored on a five-yard run just before halftime for a 16-6 lead.

The Yannigans added another touchdown in the third quarter on a two-yard run by Whitaker. "We had a real letdown in the second quarter," Pampa Coach Phil Pirkle said. "We moved the ball good in the second half but never could score."

The Pampa sophomores lost 21-16 to Guymon, Okla., Thursday in Harvester Stadium.

"I think our defense played pretty good," said Lou Allred, Pampa coach. "I think both our linebackers — Mike Crippen and Greg Koch — did real good and so did our ends — Mackal Smith and Jeff Copeland."

"I was also pleased with Dane Greenhouse (defensive left tackle). Mark Hutchison scored on a long run in the first quarter for the Pampa sophomores, then threw for the conversion. The second touchdown, which came in the final period, was on a two-yard run by Richard Wuest.

The Shockers, 4-3 for the season, are open Thursday, while the Pampa sophomores, 1-5, visit Perryton.

Skellytown Baptists pitch in for parson's new parsonage

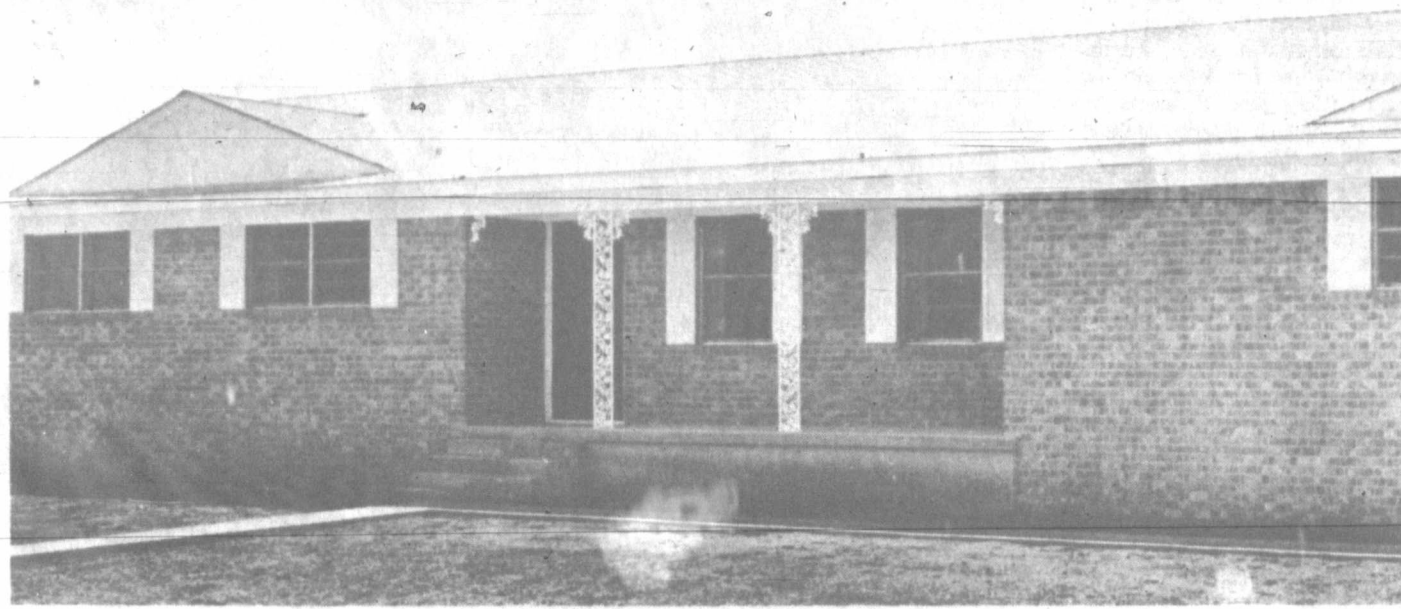

By JEANNE GRIMES
Pampa News Staff

Once the congregation of the First Baptist Church in Skellytown got the church's new sanctuary paid off, the members decided maybe they could afford a new parsonage too.

At least, that's what M.L. Giesler, deacon of the church and member of the building committee, said about the beginnings of the new brick parsonage which has been appraised at $50,000.

The parsonage will be on display 2-4 p.m. Sunday when the building committee and their wives host an open house.

"We sent quite a few invitations," Dorothy Thompson, pastor's wife, said, adding that she expects 200 persons to attend.

Open house at the new Baptist parsonage in Skellytown will be 2-4 p.m. Sunday. Construction on the brick home started in July and the house is occupied by the Rev.

The First Baptist Church has 231 resident members and is one of four churches which serve the town's 800 residents. Mrs. Thompson said open house invitations were sent to the three other churches in town.

Clyde Horner, building committee chairman, said talk about the possibility of building a new parsonage began in February and a seven-member building committee was organized.

Other committee members besides Giesler and Horner were John Chaney, Tom Spence, Clarence Kaiser, Garry Gortmaker and E.R. Nichols.

The committee considered several house plans before deciding on one and the Rev. Milton Thompson, pastor, was consulted on the home's design.

Construction began in July by a Hugo, Okla., contractor, W.P. Cross, on a lot donated by Chaney, and wife and family.

"This was the first time we've ever been where they've built a new parsonage," Mrs. Thompson said. "It was quite an experience."

She admitted to being concerned that some terrible mistake had been made when the concrete foundation was poured and she saw it for the first time. She had a hard time believing there would really be 1,650 square feet of heated floor space in the finished home.

"The foundation can really fool you about the size," she said.

"I'm retired. I hung around up here; it was something for me to do," Giesler said. "since it's been built I've been kinda lost."

Giesler was one of several church members who watched the progress of the building, contributing time, labor and several of the built-in appliances. Charley McCloud donated all of the electrical work.

The Thompsons and their teenage son Brian moved into the parsonage about three weeks ago.

"The house is real nice," Rev. Thompson said. "We really enjoy it."

Rev. Thompson has been with the Skellytown church four and one-half years.

"We just needed a new parsonage," Horner said. "The other one has been here ever since about 1941 and we were just ready for another one."

The old parsonage is for sale. Horner said the parsonage includes an estimated $40,000 of materials, time and labor. An insurance appraiser placed a $50,000 value on the home.

The all-gas home has three bedrooms, two baths, a study, dining room, kitchen, living room, den, storage and utility area and an attached two-car garage.

"There's really a lot of cabinet space," Mrs. Thompson said, surveying the kitchen.

Rev. Thompson said he will continue to preach in Skellytown and live in the new parsonage "till the Lord wants me somewhere else."

Soviet abortion rate highest in world

MOSCOW (AP) — The controversy over abortion now raging in the United States finds no echo in the Soviet Union, where thousands of women daily undergo legal hospital abortions, their primary form of birth control.

Women here use very few contraceptives, and when they have an unwanted pregnancy, statistics show, more than half of them go to a hospital or a private doctor for an abortion.

The result is what is accepted as the highest abortion rate in the world, 10 times higher than the United States and five times higher than the second leading nation, Japan.

In the Soviet Union, where abortion is available on demand to any woman over 18, the Population Council estimates that 10 million abortions are performed each year, a rate of 180 per thousand women aged 15 to 44. The council is funded by the United Nations, and by some U.S. government and private agencies.

In 1974, according to official statistics, there were 4.5 million births in the Soviet Union — or less than half the number of abortions.

The Population Council says 899,850 abortions were performed in the United States in 1974, for a rate of 19.5 per thousand women.

In Japan, the council says, an estimated 2.2 million abortions are performed each year. No other nation for which the council has statistics reported as many as one million abortions a year.

Soviet women apparently accept the necessity for abortions, despite the harsh, assembly-line atmosphere of hospital abortion wards. And there is virtually no public debate about abortion, although the government often urges women to have big families to boost the Soviet population, now approximately 250 million.

The late dictator Josef Stalin outlawed abortion in 1936 but the then Premier Nikita S. Khrushchev legalized it in 1955, partly because illegal abortions were thriving. When the government talked about banning abortion again in the early 1970s to raise the birth rate, a Moscow physician argued against a ban in terms similar to those voiced by proabortion forces in the United States.

"A woman who does not want to have a baby will not have it," Prof. Dmitri Veleuti of Moscow University said.

Catholics launch 'action'

DETROIT (AP) — The U.S. Catholic Church, with encouragement from Pope Paul VI, is launching an unprecedented convention to assemble a five-year plan of social action for America's more than 45 million Catholics.

The "Call to Action" Conference, a two-year Bicentennial project opening today, is billed as the most representative national assembly of American Roman Catholics in history.

The three-day convention, sponsored by the National Conference of Catholic Bishops and hosted by the Archdiocese of Detroit, caps a series of local and national discussions which have sought to identify social injustice within the church and to propose solutions.

Some 1,500 bishops, priests, religious and lay people are to discuss such issues as the role of women in the church, the church's political responsibility and a call for greater lay participation in decision-making.

"Before the world, you are humbly asserting your conviction that freedom and justice are truly an essential element of Christ's teaching," Pope Paul said in a filmed message to be shown to delegates.

Among those attending are 110 of the nation's 300 bishops, said Francis J. Butler, executive director of the NCCB Committee for the Bicentennial. Also represented are 150 of the 170 U.S. dioceses, geographical units made up of local parishes.

Over the past two years, more than 849,000 persons took local and national hearings of changes they felt were needed in the church, convention officials said.

"Concerns dealing with family life in America certainly were dominant in the consultations," Butler said at a briefing Wednesday. "Another concern deals with communication and decision-making in the church. They want to have a voice in the church. They want the church to be more responsive to their needs."

One recommendation includes a call for the NCCB to "sponsor an interpretive study of recent papal and episcopal statements on the subject of ordination of women."

Butler acknowledged that bishops could veto convention decisions at a meeting next May in Chicago, but he was optimistic the church hierarchy would "warmly welcome" some of the decisions.

Baby hospitalized for burns, bites

DALLAS (AP) — An 18-month-old boy remained hospitalized today with cigarette burns and bite wounds on his face while his young parents were in jail on child abuse charges, police said.

Charges of inflicting serious bodily injury to a child were filed Wednesday against Robert Smith, 28, and his wife, Eva Marie, 18, said Justice of the Peace Cleophas R. Steele Jr., who set bond at $50,000 each.

Police said Robert Smith Jr. had bite marks on his upper lip and wounds in his buttocks and chest. His fingernails and toenails were mangled. He also had cigarette burns on his fingers and toes.

The Smiths, originally from Lufkin, had taken their child to a Dallas osteopathic hospital Tuesday night after he had stopped breathing, police quoted the mother as saying. The child was transferred to Parkland Hospital.

State district court records in Lufkin indicate that Smith's parental rights were terminated on Nov. 10, 1975. The child was placed in the custody of the mother.

Court records also indicate Smith had been employed in the Lufkin area as a laborer. Dallas Detective Sgt. Billy Parker said Smith had been employed by an Oak Cliff welding company.

'Texas needs highways'

AMARILLO, Tex. (AP) — A member of the State Highway and Public Transportation Commission said Thursday that Texas needs $11 billion worth of highway projects in the next 20 years and has less than $2 billion in funding.

Charles E. Simons said his figures came from a year-long study of the Texas highway program by a consulting firm.

"I know of no study that was done with greater competence or objectivity than this one," Simons said.

Lead time for highway projects has stretched from two to eight years, Simons said, and inflation during the interim has caused the money problems.

He said systems and projects have been re-evaluated, and some projects eliminated and others becoming targets of specific recommendations.

"They (recommendations) are under careful scrutiny," Simons said. "The future of hundreds of projects depends on a simple five-letter word — money."

Farm roundup

WASHINGTON (AP) — A Jimmy Carter farm spokesman says the head of a large Agriculture Department agency has distributed at taxpayer expense what he described as political propaganda on behalf of President Ford.

Bobby Smith, chairman of the Carter-Mondale food and agriculture campaign, said the information was sent to state and county offices at the order of Kenneth E. Frick, administrator of the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service (ASCS) in the department.

The information concerned the Oct. 4 resignation of Agriculture Secretary Earl L. Butz in the aftermath of protests stirred by crude racial remarks made by Butz.

Smith said in a statement that Frick "sent that political propaganda at government expense to all ASCS employees and state and county ASCS committees with instructions to circulate it to their many thousands of employees throughout the nation," Smith said.

William H. Cummings, director of information in Frick's agency, provided a copy of the document at the request of a reporter and said it was distributed "simply to acquaint our people with the actual wording of the various statements" made by Ford and Butz in regard to the latter's resignation.

Cummings had no estimate of the cost of distributing the memo.

Frick's memorandum was signed by him and dated Oct. 7, three days after Butz's resignation. In a comment included in the memo, Frick said it was being distributed so that agency employees could have "accurate information" about the resignation. He wrote that the resignation "will not signal a change in the administration's farm policies."

Frick told state and county agency officials to "please circulate this memo and enclosed statements to all employees in your office."

WASHINGTON (AP) — Per capita consumption of beef this year is expected to climb to another record, according to the Agriculture Department.

Also, the department said today in a report on the livestock and meat situation, the new 1976 estimate of 128.5 pounds per American is up from a forecast in August of 126.9 pounds. Last year's beef consumption was 120.1 pounds per capita, also a record.

The consumption figures are based on carcass weights of beef before it is cut into retail portions. On a retail weight basis, this year's per capita consumption was put at 95.1 pounds, compared with 93.9 estimated in August and the 1975 average of 88.9 pounds. The rise in beef consumption reflects the larger slaughter rates of cattle the past several years.

WASHINGTON (AP) — European flour millers and processors say they are satisfied with the quality of this year's U.S. wheat crop according to Great Plains Wheat Inc.

The wheat-market-development organization said in a statement released here that the European comments were gathered by Arlin B. Ward of Kansas State University who recently made a four-week tour of Europe.

Ward reported that "the 1976 hard red winter wheat crop has the strongest overall quality factors since the 1971 crop" and that he found European buyers "well satisfied" with it.

Hard red winter wheat is grown primarily in the Great Plains and is the most abundant kind produced in the United States.

Uncle Sam to pay for untaxed land

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Ford Thursday signed a bill to increase federal payments to approximately 1,000 county governments where there are large blocks of federal lands that cannot be taxed locally.

The greatest impact is in the West, where there are thousands of square miles of federally owned grazing land, national parks and forests and reservoirs. In all, however, 40 states are affected.

The Ford administration had opposed the measure, but in the end the GOP leadership in the Senate dropped its opposition to consideration of the bill, and it was passed by voice vote.

It is estimated to add about $12 million to the federal budget.

The bill provides counties with a choice of two formulas for payment: 75 cents an acre, minus any federal payments under such other programs as timber cutting or mineral leasing; or a flat 10 cents an acre in addition to any other payments. The formulas also take into account population figures.

Each county affected would receive at least some additional federal funds under the bill, which limits the total payment to a maximum of $1 million annually.

Federal lands covered are national forests and parks, wilderness areas, lands administered by the Bureau of Land Management, and reservoirs controlled by Bureau of Reclamation and the Army Corps of Engineers.

Excluded from coverage are

Alaskan lands, Indian reservations, wildlife refuges and military bases. Some of these categories are covered under other aid formulas.

A number of new national parks and wilderness areas have been created in recent years. The bill would reimburse counties for the land lost to the federal government to the extent of one per cent of the estimated fair market value.

This was one of another batch of bills signed by Ford, affecting such matters as immigration and extension of unemployment compensation to agriculture and domestic workers.

Ford also approved an increase of approximately $2 billion in the U.S. quota in the International Monetary Fund. It also includes reforms of the international monetary system which Ford said "will provide the increased flexibility, resilience and reliance on market mechanisms which today's monetary relationships require."

GORILLA REMEMBERED

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — The body of "Big Man," a 20-year-old male gorilla who died of a heart valve infection at the Kansas City Zoo recently has been donated to the Kansas City Museum of History and Science.

It will be mounted for exhibition. A spokeswoman for the zoo said some 600,000 people saw Big Man each year. She said Big Man was "a very handsome gorilla, very much a gentleman gorilla. He always observed gorilla manners and was polite about food."

Big Man was caught as an infant in West Africa. He was donated to the zoo in 1958.

Wilkerson, Mayor, in an amount not less than five (5) per cent of the largest possible bid submitted as a guarantee that Bidder will enter into a contract and execute bond and guaranty in the forms provided within ten (10) days after notice of award of contract to him. Bids without required check or proposal bond will not be considered.

The successful Bidder must furnish performance bond and payment bond in the amount of 100 per cent of the total contract price from a surety company holding a permit from the State of Texas to act as surety, or other surety or sureties acceptable to the Owner.

All lump sum and unit prices must be stated in both script and figures. The Owner reserves the right to reject any or all bids and waive formalities. In case of ambiguity or lack of clarity in stating prices in the bids, the Owner reserves the right to consider the most advantageous construction thereof, or to reject the bid. Unreasonable, or "unbalanced," unit prices will authorize the Owner to reject the bid.

Bidders are expected to inspect the site of the work and to inform themselves regarding all local conditions under which the work is to be done. Attention is called to the provisions of the Acts of the 42nd Legislature of the State of Texas, concerning the wage scale and payment of prevailing wages established by the Owner. Said scale of prevailing minimum rates of wages is set forth in the Specifications.

Information for Bidders, Proposal Forms, Specifications and plans are on file at the City Engineer's Office, City Hall, Pampa, Texas, and copies may be secured at the office of MERRIMAN & BARBER, Consulting Engineers, Inc., 119 North First Street, Pampa, Texas 79066.

To talk on gun control

Lt. Col. Jack Mohr will talk on "Firearms and Freedom — Gun Control Means People Control" in the Gray County Courthouse at 7:30 p.m. Saturday. He is being sponsored by John Birch Society Chapter 529. Mohr, a retired Army officer, is one of the nation's most highly decorated veterans of the Korean War. He charges that "the complete disarmament of the American people is the objective of the federal government. And this goal will become reality unless there is sufficient opposition. A well-armed citizenry is a huge handicap to would-be dictators. A citizen's right to keep and bear arms is so essential to freedom that tyranny must follow if it is abrogated."

Philippines will trade base space for arms

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Philippines is asking the United States for several billion dollars worth of military equipment as a price for a new agreement governing U.S. military bases in that country, American officials say.

The request is part of what officials describe as an unusually tough bargaining stance taken by the Philippines in base negotiations over the past six months.

The United States has 13,000 Air Force and Navy personnel stationed at Clark Air Base and Subic Bay Naval Station and at several smaller facilities in the Philippines.

The current agreement, giving the United States operational control over the bases, runs until 1991 but Washington agreed to a renegotiation at the request of the Philippines.

Officials said they are not taking Manila's bid for massive arms shipments too seriously, and they believe the Philippines will be willing to scale down its shopping list once hard negotiations on that point begin.

The officials said the military-aid component of the new agreement probably will be more in line with base agreements the United States has negotiated this year with Spain, Turkey and Greece. Each provides American aid averaging between $200 million and $250 million a year over a four-to-five-year period.

For the current fiscal year, the United States is planning grant assistance and U.S.-financed military credit sales of just under $40 million to the Philippines.

Since the negotiations began, officials say, the two countries have been unable to bridge the gap between Philippine demands for sovereignty over the bases and the U.S. desire for operational control over them.

The United States places considerable value on the facilities since there are no comparable bases nearby available to the U.S. military. Officials say the facilities have taken on an added importance recently in light of increased Soviet naval activity in the Indian Ocean.

CBS scrape 'Ball Four', 'Doc'

By JAY SHARBUTT
AP Television Writer

LOS ANGELES (AP) — In a surprise move to regain its old ratings glory, CBS has axed "Ball Four" and "Doc" put the "Blue Knight" in doubt and revamped its Wednesday and Saturday schedules.

The changes came only a month into the new season as part of CBS' effort to recapture the top ratings slot it has held 20 years. This season, it's been No. 3 three weeks and was No. 2 last week.

It moved its hit "All in the Family" and new "Alice" from Wednesdays to Saturday nights to battle ABC's high-rated "Starsky and Hutch." The battle starts on Nov. 6.

On that night, the "Mary Tyler Moore" and "Bob Newhart" shows, adult comedies which hadn't worked against ABC's cop show, start appearing earlier in television's so-called "family hour."

"The Jeffersons," now CBS' lead-off show on Saturday nights, was rescheduled to follow "Good Times" on Wednesdays, effective Nov. 10, which puts two black family comedies on in the same hour.

CBS also bumped "Blue Knight" for a Wednesday movie series starting Nov. 10 with "Death Wish." It said the future of "Blue Knight" will be announced later.

A CBS spokeswoman who announced CBS' shifts Wednesday said she didn't know whether other changes will be made soon. CBS' axing of "Ball Four," a new series that starred former New York Yankee baseball pitcher Jim Bouton, and "Doc" in its second season, made CBS the first to cut shows this season. Both were low-rated and the ax was expected, although not so quickly. NBC, which earlier said it expects no changes for several weeks, modified that Wednesday to an ambiguous "no changes are planned at this time" when asked if CBS' move will hasten its moves.

ABC, top-rated since the season began, said, "If there are any changes to be made, it won't happen for several weeks."

Norman Lear, who makes "All in the Family," said everyone involved in it at his company was "disappointed to see the show move again. We feel like pawns in a larger game and we're not part of the game."

"Family" began in January 1971 on a Saturday night at 8 p.m. It now will appear on its original night an hour later.

The fact that on Saturdays "Mary Tyler Moore" and "Bob Newhart" now will appear in the "family hour" didn't alarm Grant Tinker, Miss Moore's husband and head of the company making the two shows.

Antique, art show set

The show along with a silver tea is scheduled from 1 to 5 p.m. both days.

Residents of the surrounding area are invited to participate. Exhibits must be in place by 11 a.m. Saturday.

The library will receive 20 per cent of all sales. The Dahlia Flower Club will sponsor the event.
