Committee sees lowering of jail population

■ Anticipated changes in Austin may inflate levels

By Kathleen Thurber
Staff Writer

Having significantly reduced the average daily jail population since it started targeting the issue in 2007, Midland County officials now are waiting to see what happens in Austin.

If state lawmakers increase the number of days an inmate stays in a county facility as opposed to the Department of Criminal Justice, Carl Griffith, with consulting group Carl R. Griffith & Associates Inc., said it will become much more difficult for Midland County to keep its daily totals fewer than 300.

"That's going to cause a swell in population," Griffith said, adding officials anticipate the stay in county jails will increase to 44 days from 26.

On a recent morning, there were 278 inmates in the Midland County Detention Center, down from the average of 304 seen in January.

With the new detention center set to open in December, consultant Richard Kirkland said an increase in population is something the jail could handle but something officials want to ensure doesn't happen just because there's space to allow for it. Inmate stays cost about $60 a day, and county officials want to ensure taxpayers aren't spending more than is necessary, he said.

"This is all about one thing," said Kirkland, a former sheriff in Reno, Nev., describing the consulting work. "It's all about making sure the people in the jail consists of people who need to be there."

When the group first started work with the county in May 2007, the Midland County Detention Center daily population was between 350 and 360 inmates, with between 40 and 60

Midland residents flock to purchase new iPad 2

By James Cannon

About 100 Midlanders waited in line at Best Buy on Friday in hopes they would be one of the lucky few to purchase the new Apple iPad 2.

Despite several Android-based competitors and the original iPad already on the market, some buyers stood in line for more than 12 hours to get the new iDevice that boasts a faster processor and dual cameras.

"From what I've read, the new iPad is a great improvement over the original," said Marlon Villarreal.

He doesn't own the original, but said the faster dual-core processor, cameras and improved aesthetic design won him over. He and a group of fellow University of Texas of the Permian Basin students had waited in line since 3 a.m.

Unlike most Apple enthusiasts, he said it wasn't the prevalence of the device or the personality-driven love of Apple boss, Steve Jobs; rather, he said he thinks the iPad 2 is the best tablet computer on the market.

"I want it to stun me and completely live up to all of the hype," Villarreal said, laughing. "Or, I'm taking it back."

Besides the hardware improvements, the new tablet boasts an improved operating system that is supposed to speed up multitasking and web browsing. Despite significant upgrades and added features, the most striking change is the reduction in size and weight. The device is only about one-third of an inch thick — even thinner than Apple's newest iPhone.

Most people in line said they didn't own the original, but the few who did said they wanted the new one to add to the number the family owned.

"My wife owns (an original iPad), and I don't get to use it often," said Brian Fralin. He said he hopes he doesn't have to give up the new iPad to his wife and take the older version. "That's not the plan, at least."

Woman threatens CPS, fights police

By James Cannon
Staff Writer

Midland police arrested a 21-year-old woman after she fought with police and threatened Child Protective Service workers Thursday.

Marisa Y. Sauceda, of Midland, was arrested on two counts of assault on a peace officer, among other charges, after a dispute over custody of her child erupted at the CPS office.

Sauceda

Police responded to a disturbance at the agency's office after Sauceda threatened to follow CPS workers home and kill them for their involvement with the child protection agency, according the arrest affidavit. She tried to remove her child from CPS custody and continued threatening CPS workers until police arrived, the report read.

Police tried to take the child from her and talk her down when she tried to punch a Midland police sergeant. Another officer tried to assist and was struck in the face by Sauceda, the report read.

Police said a struggle ensued with

Marshals seeking Nigeria's help with day care fire fugitive

Associated Press

HOUSTON — The U.S. Marshals Service is "aggressively pursuing" a woman charged in a deadly day care fire in Texas and is working with Nigerian officials to find her, an agency spokesman said Friday.

Authorities believe Jessica Tata, 22, fled to Nigeria two days after a fire erupted at her home day care center in Houston on Feb. 24. Four children were killed and three others were injured. Investigators believe the children had been left alone.

"U.S. Marshals investigators are aggressively pursuing this case," Jeff Carter, the agency's spokesman in Washington, told The Associated Press. "The U.S. Marshals Service in Washington has been in contact with Nigerian officials, through the appropriate law enforcement and diplomatic channels, to let them know of our interest and solicit their cooperation in locating Jessica Tata."

Tata has been charged with manslaughter, injury to a child and child abandonment amid accusations she left the youngsters alone while she shopped. Fire investigators said they received a tip that she had relatives in Nigeria and might flee.

Another U.S. Marshals Service spokesman, Alfredo Perez, said earlier Friday that agents actively were looking for Tata but haven't confirmed her location.

"The bottom line is that we don't know where she's at," Perez said.

Tata's name appeared on an airline's passenger manifest for a flight to Nigeria, but the Marshals Service hasn't confirmed the person who boarded was Tata, he said.

Last week, officials said passenger records reviewed by U.S. Customs and Border Protection agents showed that two days after the fire, Tata flew from Dallas to Atlanta and then to Lagos, Nigeria. Authorities in Nigeria said they have no record that a woman wanted in Houston flew into the West African nation.

Nigerian Immigration Service spokesman Joachim Olumba said officials checked the logs at each of Nigeria's international airports for Tata.

"If she came into Nigeria, she likely used another name," Olumba told the AP.

Olumba said the U.S. has yet to contact his office about Tata.

Repeated efforts to reach Tata's relatives by phone and in person at their Houston home have been unsuccessful.

The U.S. Marshals Service, which is leading the search for Tata, has put the day care operator on its list of the 15 most wanted fugitives and has offered a reward of up to $25,000. Interpol, the international police agency, has alerted its member countries, including Nigeria, telling them that Tata is being sought by the United States.

3 San Antonio firefighters suspended after wreck

Associated Press

SAN ANTONIO — San Antonio's fire chief has suspended three firefighters for traveling too fast and not buckling up while racing to a fire.

The firefighters were involved in a wreck last year that injured one of the four men on a ladder truck and destroyed the $600,000 vehicle.

Fire Chief Charles Hood said he's disciplining the three to send a strong message to his department about the importance of always fastening their seatbelts.

"It is a wake-up call," the chief told the San Antonio Express-News.

Firefighter Brandon Wheeler, 29, was driving to a structure fire on Nov. 14 when the truck rolled on its side during a left turn and came to a stop in oncoming traffic lanes. Police said speed caused the crash. The truck was going 33 mph into the turn.

"It was a surreal experience for me, looking at that truck upside-down," Hood said. "I thought, 'Man, I'm glad they had their seat belts on,' and as it turned out, they didn't."

Capt. Larry Schultz, 59, received the harshest penalty, a 60-day suspension because the crew was his responsibility. Wheeler was suspended for 45 days, and Brad Phipps, 31, for five days.

Robert Arranaga, 30, wasn't suspended. His first day at the station was the day of the crash. Arranaga suffered a broken neck and remains on medical leave.

As a result of the crash, the department has mandatory seat belt drills, drivers get additional training and all 1,674 operations employees were ordered to view the demolished fire truck. The cab will be displayed at the training academy.

The chief said crashes account for 20 percent of on-duty firefighter deaths nationwide.

Farmers on the US, Mexico border say drug war making job dangerous

By Paul J. Weber
Associated Press

LA JOYA — As Texas farmhands prepared this winter to burn stalks of sugarcane for harvest along the Rio Grande, four masked men on ATVs suddenly surrounded the crew members and ordered them to leave.

Farmer Dale Murden has little doubt they were Mexican drug traffickers.

"They hide stuff in there," Murden said of the dense sugarcane crops, some as high as 14 feet. "It was very intimidating for my guys. You got men dressed in black, looking like thugs and telling them to get back."

Texas farmers and ranchers say confrontations like these are quietly adding up. This month the Texas Department of Agriculture, going beyond its usual purview that includes school lunches and regulating gas pumps, launched a website publicizing what it calls a worsening situation "threatening the lives of our fellow citizens and jeopardizing our nation's food supply."

However, some Texas Democratic lawmakers say the danger is being wildly overstated, and U.S. Border Patrol officials said they are not aware of landowners in the Rio Grande Valley facing increasing threats.

The launch last week of ProtectYourTexasBorder.com also left the state somewhat embarrassed after the site's message board quickly filled with postings calling for vigilante justice and the killing of illegal immigrants. The postings have since been removed.

Texas Agriculture Commissioner Todd Staples, a Republican in the job once held by Gov. Rick Perry, condemned those postings Thursday. But he said they shouldn't detract from the site's goal of getting more federal resources to the Texas border.

"The website demonstrates in undeniable form that greater federal government presence is needed. We need to keep this as a lookout post," Staples said.

But Texas state Sen. Jose Rodriguez said the site is misleading, lacking any data that puts the incidents or danger in context.

"For the site to convey the impression that we are under a serious threat and that there's all this concern, including to the food supply, it's just total exaggeration of reality," Rodriguez said. "It's unacceptable."

Still, there is little doubt of increased unease on Texas border farms.

Most brazen among the reported confrontations occurred earlier this year on the sugarcane field near Rio Grande City. In February, a Hidalgo County employee similarly was threatened by three men along the border river to stop clearing brush near a canal, said Troy Allen, general manager of the Delta Lake Irrigation District.

Allen said another of his workers has taken to locking himself inside the water pump houses along the Rio Grande. If someone knocks, Allen said, he doesn't answer.

"Five years ago, if someone wanted a drink of water we'd give it to them," Allen said of illegal immigrants passing through. "We have a situation that's getting pretty serious in my opinion."

Last weekend, on a ranch adjacent to land owned by country music star George Strait, authorities said a ranch foreman was shot at by men inside a pickup truck who were found trespassing. The foreman returned fire, and no one was hurt.

Staples pointed out the bullet holes as proof of the escalating threat along the border. Webb County Sheriff's Department spokeswoman Maru De La Paz, however, said there was no evidence tying the shooting to suspected drug traffickers.

Several growers and ranchers say their jobs started becoming more dangerous about two years ago.

An Arizona rancher was gunned down in 2009 while checking water lines on his property, in what authorities suspect was a killing carried out by a scout for drug smugglers. No arrests have been made. Apart from that incident, Arizona agricultural leaders say they've heard of no direct threats toward their farmers and ranchers.

In Texas, the run-ins with traffickers are largely anecdotal. Border Patrol spokesman Mark Qualia said any confrontations would be investigated by local law enforcement, but added that landowners "haven't been expressing those feelings to us."

Staples said farmers are scared to speak out. Last week, a 2 1/2-hour meeting between Staples and about 20 farmers was closed to reporters over concern farmers wouldn't otherwise attend.

"I told (farmers) we have to tell this story so our policymakers understand the critical nature of what's being said," Staples said. "It is a process that we have to continue to tell it until we get the help we need."

The Rio Grande Valley is largely farmland, making it an almost necessary route for drug smugglers. The border fence built in the last few years doesn't run through all the farms, and even farmers with the fence worry about their safety while cultivating their crops between the fence and rivers.

Midland Humane Coalition working to raise $130,000

■ Funds would go toward building pet adoption center.

By Kathleen Thurber
Staff Writer

The Midland Humane Coalition is working to raise $130,000 in the next four months to have its PetSmart adoption center open this year.

Paul O'Neill, director of Animal Services, said PetSmart has agreed to cover about $750,000 in construction costs for adding an adoption center to its Loop 250 store, but the coalition needs to have its first year of operating expenses ready before the project can begin.

"If we can get the money raised by the end of June and get the contract signed by PetSmart, then it's a 90-day build out," O'Neill said.

The store is launching 12 adoption centers nationwide after opening an adoption center in Fort Worth last year. The center there eliminated the city's euthanization of "adoptable" animals. In 2009, they'd euthanized 2,500 animals, a city spokesman said previously.

O'Neill said the coalition hopes the adoption center can cut Midland's euthanization rate that's previously been at more than 4,000 a year.

Midland's Humane Coalition will adopt out pets it receives from Animal Services. The shelter has a standard 72-hour holding period, and the adoption center will keep animals until adopted, whether at the center or in foster homes.

Initially, the coalition had hoped to have the adoption center open by the start of this year. However, O'Neill said the process took longer than anticipated.

PetSmart told the coalition last month the group would need to raise $200,000 before construction could start. After coalition members met with the company and explained its costs should be lower than those of Fort Worth's shelter, PetSmart lowered the total to $130,000.

"It's still a pretty good amount of money, but it's doable," O'Neill said.

PetSmart doesn't work on in-store construction projects between October and December so it doesn't interfere with holiday shopping. That means if the coalition raises its money by the end of June, construction could be finished before the holiday season begins. If the money isn't raised by that point, construction will start in January 2012, O'Neill said.

"It's going to happen either way," he said.

From the $130,000 raised, the coalition will pay the salary of its executive director, pay any adoption costs from obtaining animals from the city's shelter and cover transportation costs and any animal care other than food. PetSmart will provide dog and cat food.

If the group raises enough funds in the future, O'Neill said it will also work to rehabilitate animals with costly medical issues like heart worms, which presently are deemed unadoptable. Animals deemed unadoptable typically are those considered dangerous breeds or those with serious health issues.

Giffords makes 'leaps and bounds' in recovery

Associated Press

HOUSTON — She can talk, even saying short sentences. With some help, she can walk. She also knows that she was shot.

But for doctors, some of the greatest moments in treating Rep. Gabrielle Giffords occur when her true personality shines through and she shares big grins and excitement over milestones in her recovery from a devastating gunshot wound to the head.

"That's Gabby. It's a constant, wonderful thing," said Dr. Dong Kim, a neuroscientist.

Doctors provided the new details about Giffords' condition Friday, their first official update since she began intensive rehabilitation in Houston on Jan. 26. Until now, tidbits of information came from friends and family, but the doctors, those with the understanding and knowledge of what each setback and step forward means for long-term recovery, remained tight-lipped.

Kim and two other members of her medical team described several breakthroughs in Giffords' recovery from her brain injury, saying she has made "leaps and bounds."

He breathing tube was removed last week, a "fist-pump" moment, said Dr. Imoigele Aisiku, a neurosurgeon. She also can express desires, such as "I'm tired. I want to go to bed."

Giffords can't remember the shooting, but her husband, astronaut Mark Kelly, has told her about the incident, though it remains unclear whether she knows six people were killed and 12 others injured at the Jan. 8 political event outside a supermarket in Tucson, Ariz.

The demeanor of the news conference was largely subdued — until the doctors were asked whether Giffords' personality was starting to surface. Then, the three men grinned and nodded simultaneously. They snickered with affection.

"She has a personality that's already showing through," Kim said. "She's very upbeat, focused on getting better. She hasn't shown us depression, and she's just been very forward-looking and even with the speech she's not showing much frustration."

"I feel like I know her very well. She's able to express her personality, she's able to express what she wants and doesn't want," said Dr. Gerard Francisco, the head of Giffords medical team.

That Giffords is showing emotion is especially encouraging because the bullet pierced the front of her head, an area that controls personality. Some people shot in the front may recover their ability to speak but never truly show emotion again, said Dr. Steve Williams, chairman of rehabilitative medicine at Boston University.

"So the fact that she actually is able to show emotion is good because many people have very flat personalities," after being shot in the front of the head, Williams said.

Scottish-Irish Faire celebrates Celtic culture in West Texas

By Audrie Palmer
Staff Writer

Bagpipes, kilts and musicians will be on display this weekend as the Celtic Heritage Society of the Permian Basin brings its ninth annual Scottish-Irish Faire to the Midland County Horseshoe.

Those interested in learning more about the Celtic culture are encouraged to attend the festivities today and Sunday.

Three workshops will be held on topics such as genealogy, textile and crafts and learning the basics of the Gaelic language, said fair director Roy Raney. Food vendors with authentic Celtic food will be out on the patio, while musicians will play inside the main arena near booths. Other vendors also have been set up.

Songwriter and storyteller Don Gabbert is a first-generation Irish-American. He said the fair is a good way to reach out to those in West Texas and teach people about the Celtic traditions.

"It gives people the opportunity to be a part of a 5,000-year-old conversation and the opportunity to discover this continuum we live in," he said.

The society had to cancel its annual jousting performance this year for economic reasons but is looking at ways of bringing back the event next year.

Fifteen clans are among the 18 vendors that will provide informational talks to attendees. Among the vendors are three who sell kilts, along with those who offer clothing, jewelry and hats.

Tim Fischer/Reporter-Telegram

William Paul, from Congress, Ariz., who was originally from Western Scotland, organizes his booth, Kerr's Import, Friday as he and others prepare for the Scottish-Irish Faire at the Horseshoe today and Sunday.

"There's a lot of culture that we want to expose people to," Raney said.

Bill Paul moved from Scotland to the United States in 1967. He travels to about 40 shows around the United States as a general merchandiser. He and his wife, Marion, sell traditional hats, kilts and shoes and said that while the economy has halted shows in places like Florida, it has increased attendance in other areas.

Families who may not be able to travel and take vacations now are attending the shows and learning about the culture in an atmosphere that's closer to home.

"Coming here is like a mini vacation," he said. "They're suffering big time and simply can't afford to go anywhere else."

Those who attend will have the chance to listen to bagpipers play and musicians with the Clandestine perform. A dog costume contest along with a "boniest knees" contest will be held this afternoon and a Ceilidh — song circle and jam — is set to start at 8 p.m., staff said.

Raney encouraged all who are interested to come out and participate in the weekend's program.

"If they're Celtic, they ought to come out and get a taste of their own heritage. If they're not, they should come out and find out what the Celtic heritage is all about," he said. "There are a lot who are of Celtic heritage and don't realize it."

recreation and for business because the device boasts more than 350,000 applications.

Others, like Steven Maier, who joined the more than 80 standing in line at Best Buy about an hour before the official 5 p.m. launch time, didn't own the original and decided to hold out for the improvements. He said he wanted the black, 32-gigabyte, wireless-only version of the new device.

Unlike the original iPad launch, Apple did not allow pre-orders. But also unlike the original launch, Apple has decided to open up initial offerings of the device to Walmart, Target, Best Buy, AT&T and Verizon retailers.

There hasn't been any official word from Apple on how many devices have been shipped, or specifically, how many devices are available in the city. Walmart was the only location to disclose that it was supposed to get about eight devices for each of the two stores in Midland, according to a retail sales associate Friday afternoon.

If history is any indication of the device's popularity, Apple reported that it sold more than 300,000 devices in the first three days of the launch of the original iPad last year.

Unlike the previous model, there are now 18 hardware and aesthetic-specific choices for the tablet, instead of the originals six varying options. The device is offered in three hard drive sizes: 16-, 32- and 64-gigabyte versions. The device also comes in two colors — black and white — and has two options for wireless carriers: AT&T and Verizon.

Villarreal said he is opting for the most expensive device, the 64 gigabyte, 3G wireless version through AT&T. Both wireless services have various entry-points and offer competitive pricing, but Villarreal said his existing contract with AT&T would make more sense to him, so he can get everything on one bill.

Regardless of how many devices the locations receive, technology experts expect another weeks-long backorder process like the original release because of the increased demand and large variety of device configurations.

When she arrived at the jail, she continued to be uncooperative with officers and refused to give her name or her date of birth. Police said they were able to get her information from the CPS office.

Sauceda is being held on a $13,000 bond for two third-degree felony charges of assaulting a peace officer, a third-degree felony charge of retaliation and a misdemeanor charge of resisting arrest. If convicted, she could serve up to 10 years in prison for each third-degree felony.

people sent to other counties for incarceration. The cost of sending them away cost more than $1 million, and the overtime pay required to supervise inmates in Midland County costi about $500,000.

Since resolving the issue, Kirkland said he estimates the county has saved $6 million.

"It's been monumentally successful for us, but I'm going to tell you it's not where we want it yet," County Judge Mike Bradford said.

A few times since officials started assessing data, numbers have gone back up for various reasons. Kirkland said it's like a balloon; when one problem area is fixed, it often puts pressure on another.

In June, the jail population rose to an average of 322 inmates per day, the highest total seen since before 2008. At the same time, national, state and local crime rates were down.

"We look at the whole picture and then identify some choke points," Kirkland said.

The company analyzes the average bookings per day, average daily population, length of stay, number of pre-trial inmates, the number of cases dismissed and how long those people stayed in jail, among several other data sets.

In 2007, part of the issue was an abnormally large number of felons waiting too long to go through the judicial process. The county implemented "rocket dockets" to get to a trial or plea faster and, in turn, get those out of jail who didn't need to be there. That tactic alone eliminated 60 to 70 people from the average daily population, Kirkland said.

When the population increased in 2010, there was a larger number of Class C misdemeanors in the facility.

"The data will always tell the story," Kirkland said.

Such a trend, he said, is common when crime rates are down because officers have more time to target those issues when there are an abundance of felonies.

One way to keep misdemeanor stays at the jail to an acceptable level is to ensure cases are submitted within a certain number of days and to get to the point where inmates whose cases will be dismissed aren't housed for several days, Kirkland said.

District Attorney Teresa Clingman said minimizing stays is something the judges already are working on through methods like assigning attorneys in indigent cases as quickly as possible.

Jed Davenport, director of the Community Supervision and Corrections Department for the Midland Judicial District, said the agency also is trying to keep people on probation out of jail when possible. He said staff had training this week and will work toward handling "bumps in the road" with people and help them to change habits instead of re-incarcerating them.

Kirkland said because of the success, the consultants likely will stop monitoring the data on a consistent basis by the end of the year. Bradford said some of the work will be taken in-house. Officials are considering at Monday's Commissioners Court meeting the hiring of a Criminal Justice Advisory Committee coordinator to handle the data-gathering.

"This is coming a year earlier than we had forecasted," Bradford said.

When decisions are made in Austin about the length of inmate stays, Griffith said Midland County and others simply have to continue looking for solutions.

"It's the same everywhere," he said.

Today in history

Today is Saturday, March 12, the 71st day of 2011. There are 294 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:

On March 12, 1933, President Franklin D. Roosevelt delivered the first of his 30 radio "fireside chats," telling Americans what was being done to deal with the nation's economic crisis.

On this date:

In 1864, Ulysses S. Grant was promoted to the rank of general-in-chief of the Union armies in the Civil War by President Abraham Lincoln.

In 1912, Juliette Gordon Low of Savannah, Ga., founded the Girl Guides, which later became the Girl Scouts of America.

In 1930, Indian political and spiritual leader Mohandas K. Gandhi began a 200-mile march to protest a British tax on salt.

In 1939, Pope Pius XII formally was crowned in ceremonies at the Vatican.

In 1947, President Harry S. Truman established what became known as the "Truman Doctrine" to help Greece and Turkey resist Communism.

In 1968, President Lyndon B. Johnson won the New Hampshire Democratic primary, but Sen. Eugene McCarthy of Minnesota placed a strong second.

Ten years ago: A U.S. Navy jet mistakenly dropped a bomb on a group of military personnel at a bombing range in Kuwait, killing five Americans and one New Zealander.

Five years ago: Three U.S. Army soldiers attacked an Iraqi family south of Baghdad; each took turns raping a 14-year-old girl, Abeer Qassim Al-Janabi, whose parents and 6-year-old sister were slain by one of the soldiers before Abeer herself was killed. (All three soldiers pleaded guilty in connection with the attack; a fourth soldier accused of acting as a lookout was convicted for his involvement, while a fifth pleaded guilty to being an accessory.)

Today's Birthdays: Actress-singer Liza Minnelli is 65. Former Massachusetts Gov. Mitt Romney is 64. Singer-songwriter James Taylor is 63. Sen. Kent Conrad, D-N.D., is 63. Former MLB All-Star Darryl Strawberry is 49. Actor Aaron Eckhart is 43. ABC News reporter Jake Tapper is 42.

WASHINGTON

Tax cuts moved people to shop in February

Americans are using extra money from their tax cuts to buy new cars, clothing, sporting goods and electronics.

The reduction in Social Security taxes helped lift retail sales for the eighth straight month in February and by the largest amount since the fall. Still, higher oil prices threaten to chip away at consumers' disposable income over the next few months.

"Consumers are back, but whether they will stay is the big question," said David Wyss, chief economist at Standard & Poor's in New York.

Retail sales rose 1 percent last month, the Commerce Department said Friday. Shoppers returned to department stores after snow storms kept many away in January. And they flooded car lots to take advantage of deals.

ANNAPOLIS

House to take final vote on gay marriage

A Maryland House committee did not take action on a proposed amendment to same-sex marriage legislation, and the unaltered bill is headed for a final vote on the House floor.

The House has started its floor session, but began by taking up an unrelated bill.

House leaders have resisted previous attempts to amend the bill — cautioning supporters that the Senate would not consider any changes.

If approved, Maryland would become the sixth state to legalize gay marriage, although opponents have promised to petition the issue to a public referendum if the bill passes.

Gov. Martin O'Malley has said he would sign the bill into law if it reaches his desk.

WASHINGTON

Public database for US safety complaints goes live

Despite a last-minute attempt to derail it, the U.S. government launched a public database Friday that allows Americans to report and search safety complaints on thousands of products — from cribs and toys to power tools and hair dryers.

SaferProducts.gov, overseen by the Consumer Product Safety Commission, went live as scheduled over the objections of manufacturers and a stalled Republican effort in Congress to withhold money for the project until critics' concerns were addressed.

The database allows people to file reports of injury or potential harm about household products, baby gear and more. In the coming weeks, as consumers file reports with the agency, people will be able to search for safety complaints about specific items they might have in their homes or want to purchase.

But manufacturers, congressional Republicans and others charge the public database will be replete with bogus reports and misleading information.

DES MOINES

Iowa reps pass bill limiting collective bargaining

The Iowa House approved a bill Friday limiting public workers' collective bargaining rights and requiring them to pay more for their health insurance.

But while similar legislation reducing the power of unions has passed in states like Ohio and Wisconsin, it is unlikely to become law in Iowa. Democrats who control the Senate there have said they won't allow debate on the bill backed by Republican Gov. Terry Branstad.

Republicans who control the House insisted the measure was needed to help address a state budget shortfall estimated at between $500 million and $700 million.

NEW JERSEY

Rivers flood in East, force evacuations

WOODLAND PARK — Rivers rose from Maryland to Maine on Friday after days of rain, filling basements with water and forcing hundreds of people from their homes but so far not fulfilling fears of widespread catastrophe.

Some of the hardest-hit areas were just outside New York City, which is emerging from a snow-filled winter. Flood-prone parts of northern New Jersey were under water not expected to recede for a few days in spots.

By Friday afternoon, 1,500 homes in near the Pompton River in Pequannock had to be evacuated, as did about 100 in Fairfield, Gov. Chris Christie said. A handful of shelters opened by midday, and the American Red Cross was preparing more.

Obama defends energy policy

By Richard S. Dunham
Houston Chronicle

WASHINGTON — A feisty President Barack Obama defended his administration's energy policies Friday after weeks of attacks from Republicans and energy-state lawmakers of both parties who say the president has blocked new domestic oil and gas production.

"Any notion that my administration has shut down oil production might make for a good political sound bite, but it doesn't match up with reality," he said at a midday press conference.

Caught in a political squeeze between pro-drilling Republicans and industry critics on the left, Obama delicately tried to balance the nation's need for increased domestic energy supplies with his desire for environmental and workplace safety on offshore drilling projects.

He also tried to reassure Americans that rapidly rising gas prices will not tip the nation back into a recession, while attempting to convince them that he felt their pain in the pocketbook.

"In an economy that relies on oil, gas prices affect everybody," he said. "For Americans already facing tough times, it's an added burden."

Despite pressure from liberal Democrats, Obama did not announce that he would open the nation's Strategic Petroleum Reserve to provide temporary relief from skyrocketing pump prices. Instead, the president declared that "all options are on the table" to constrain prices and guarantee a steady supply of oil, including tapping the 727 million barrels of oil in the petroleum reserve "should the situation demand it."

In prepared remarks, the president took credit for a jump in domestic petroleum exploration during his time in office, saying that production was at its highest level since 2003.

But he also called on his Interior Department to investigate why drillers hold leases on tens of millions of acres — offshore and on American soil — "where they aren't producing a thing." He ordered the agency to report back to him in two weeks "so that we can encourage companies to develop the leases they hold and produce American energy."

Industry executives and Republican lawmakers strongly disputed Obama's claims, saying that the president was manipulating statistics and claiming credit for the production of leases approved during the oil-friendly Bush administration.

"This administration continues to deceive hard-working Americans with false assurances of today's production output," said Jim Adams, president and CEO of the Offshore Marine Service Association. "There has been no exploration off the continental shelf for nearly a year — that means future production will drop precipitously."

Karen Harbert, president of the U.S. Chamber of Commerce's Institute for 21st Century Energy, said there are so many unused leases because the Obama administration "won't let them explore and because the government's regulatory process to obtain permits is so arduous and time-consuming."

Wis. governor officially cuts collective bargaining

Associated Press

MADISON, Wis. — Wisconsin Gov. Scott Walker succeeded Friday in taking away nearly all collective bargaining rights from the vast majority of the state's public employees, quietly capping weeks of contentious debate and delivering an epic defeat to the labor movement with a private bill signing.

The proposal touched off a national debate over labor rights for public employees, and its implementation is a key victory for Republicans who have targeted unions in nationwide efforts to slash government spending. But labor leaders said they plan to use the setback to fire up their members nationwide and mount a major counterattack against Republicans at the ballot box in 2012.

The measure passed the state's Assembly on Thursday following more than three weeks of protests that drew tens of thousands of people to the Capitol in opposition. The Senate cleared the way for passage with a surprise move Wednesday that allowed them to move the measure forward without 14 Democratic senators present.

The bill forces state workers to pay more for their pensions and health care benefits, which is estimated to save Wisconsin $30 million to help pay down a $137 million budget shortfall projected by July 1. The higher payments for state workers will take effect over the coming weeks.

But portions of the proposal had to be removed in order for it to pass the Senate without Democrats, meaning the Legislature will have to take more action later to balance the budget.

Walker repeatedly had argued that ending collective bargaining would give local governments the flexibility they needed to confront the state aid cuts necessary to fix Wisconsin's deficit, which is projected to grow to $3.6 billion deficit over two years.

'Battle: Los Angeles' is conventional war movie with clear-cut enemy

By Jake Coyle
Associated Press

■ Review

Disaster films really will get interesting when they start running out of iconic skylines to destroy. How about "Battle: Wichita" or "Deep Impact: Albany"?

"Battle: Los Angeles" doesn't rely as much as its genre brethren on the gleeful horror of seeing familiar landmarks burn. (We don't even get a shot of the "Hollywood" sign in flames.) Instead, this West Coast version of alien invasion distinguishes itself as an urban warfare film and a patriotic advert for the Marines.

Like so many of these films, "Battle: Los Angeles" opens on urgent news reports announcing that "the world is at war." CNN snippets are laced throughout the movie, and it's easy to see their function in relaying exposition. But it's rather terrifying to think that even extraterrestrials can't stop the 24/7 stream of cable news.

The date is Aug. 12, 2011. Alien ships, first appearing like a cluster of meteors, "breach" the Earth and quickly make their violent intentions clear, shooting gun-like weapons and discharging flying mechanical droids. One of the 12 ships lands just off the shore of L.A.'s laid-back Santa Monica.

The film flashes back 24 hours to introduce the handful of Marines whom we will follow into battle. Staff Sergeant Nantz (Aaron Eckhart) is retiring after a particularly rough mission only vaguely referred to. Though it's his last day, the weary veteran is dispatched to assist a platoon of young Marines (Ne-Yo, Cory Hardrict among them) expecting to head to Afghanistan.

It's the first hint that director Jonathan Liebesman ("The Texas Chainsaw Massacre: The Beginning") and screenwriter Chris Bertolini are most interested in a conventional war film. All the hallmarks are here, with handheld cameras and rousing, "ooh-rah" solidarity — just with the notable exception of enemy species.

Once the aliens have landed, the unit is sent into Santa Monica with the task of rescuing a handful of civilians (Bridget Moynahan, Michael Pena) trapped at a police station. They're told to "kill anything that's not human."

Masked in a haze or jumping from rooftops, the aliens aren't seen straight on for some time. When we eventually do get a good look at them, they aren't anything special. The audience demands unique extraterrestrials in such a movie.

As the marines make their way through the wreckage and various skirmishes with the aliens, great care is taken to portray military hierarchy. In command is Lt. William Martinez (Ramon Rodriguez), whom Nantz guides as an adviser.

There's great trepidation among the platoon for Nantz, who's rumored to have led several of his men into death. But Nantz keeps the group focused and grounded, much as the talented Eckhart ("The Dark Knight," "Thank You For Smoking") does for the film.

With a square jaw and reluctant eyes, Eckhart fits the part well and does a great deal to keep "Battle: Los Angeles" engaging. He and Liebesman manage to pull off the ultra-seriousness for much of the film, before a laughable speech of teary-eyed inspiration finally does them in.

In times of great terrorist concerns, there's obvious comfort in depicting a war with such a clear-cut enemy: If we can't straighten out Afghanistan, at least we can kick some alien behind.

The spectacle of disaster oddly is lacking throughout. At one point, our jaws are supposed to drop for an obliterated freeway onramp. There's also little sense of Los Angeles: No terrified actors running from set, no jokes that a sophisticated subway system would really have come in handy with aliens buzzing overhead.

Instead, the movie stays surprisingly close to the ground, bogged down in block-by-block combat. Los Angeles traffic triumphs again. (In reality, 90 percent of the film was shot in low-tax Louisiana.)

"Battle: Los Angeles," a Columbia Pictures release, is rated PG-13 for sustained and intense sequences of war violence and destruction, and for language. Running time: 116 minutes. One and a half stars out of four.

Also opening: 'Red Riding Hood'

This aims not for little girls who want to hear a fairy tale before they go to sleep, but rather for teenage girls who want a soapy melodrama full of angst and hair product — with some supernatural flourishes thrown in. Does that sound vaguely familiar to you? It should. "Red Riding Hood" suggests what it might look like if the kids from "Twilight" got dressed up and went to the Renaissance Faire. And that is not a good thing. Catherine Hardwicke, who directed the first "Twilight," is working from a script by "Orphan" writer David Leslie Johnson, which takes this classic story and turns it into a medieval love triangle. Valerie (Amanda Seyfried) would rather be with the bad boy she loves than the good guy she's been arranged to marry. She knows that Peter (Shiloh Fernandez), a hunky woodcutter, is wrong for her, but she longs to run away with him, rather than live a safe, comfortable life with Henry (Max Irons), a hunky blacksmith. They all live in a tiny village on the edge of a dark, dangerous forest, where everyone is more on edge than usual following the latest werewolf attack. Hardwicke depicts the place in haunted fashion, with scenery and lighting that often have a misty, ethereal, almost otherworldly glow. PG-13 for violence and creature terror, and some sensuality. 100 minutes. One and a half stars out of four.

Trinity's Farris dominates in 3,200-meter run

By Jonathan Hull
Sports Writer

ODESSA — Trinity sophomore Christian Farris has his sights set on a couple of Texas Christian Athletic Fellowship track and field records. And who better to help him reach those marks than the current record holder.

Farris took gold in the Division II boys 3,200-meter run registering a time of 10 minutes, 36.22 seconds. Behind Trinity's sophomore distance runner was his senior teammate Connor Brock, who took silver with a mark of 11:09.97 on Friday at the West Texas Relays at Ratliff Stadium.

It's fairly common for the two Chargers to finish first and second in a race. It's something they've experienced on multiple occasions throughout the last three years they've been running together whether it's on the track or a cross country course.

"It's a very friendly competition," said Trinity track coach Cindy Brock, who is also Connor's mother. "They've trained together for several years. They do summer track together, then train together on the track during the school year and in cross country. They even run together on the weekends."

For the last couple years the duo has been running together, Brock has gotten the best of Farris more times than not. But that's starting to change.

The difference between Farris' gold-medal performance and Brock's second-place finish on Friday is possibly the largest it has ever been at a given meet. That's definitely a feat Farris can be proud of considering Brock is the current TCAF state record holder in the 1,600 and 3,200 meters.

While Brock could easily use the excuse that he was focused on playing basketball for the months prior to track season while Farris spent all winter on the track, Brock doesn't want to take anything away from his younger teammate.

"Right now, he's definitely in better shape than me," Brock said. "I'm getting to chase him a lot. He's just gotten better than me. He's working at it a lot harder than I am."

At last year's TCAF state meet, which was held at Trinity's Coombs Field, Brock set the private school division's record in the 3,200 with a time of 10:45.80 and then ran the mile in a record-setting 4:47. But he knows those marks might not last past this year, and if anyone is going to break them, he prefers it to be Farris.

"Yeah, I hold those records right now, but I don't think I'll have them for very long," Brock

Collins leads Hawks to sweep of Chaparrals

By Oscar LeRoy
Sports Writer

BIG SPRING — Howard College left fielder Tyler Collins had the approach and kind of day at the plate that Midland College baseball coach David Coleman would have liked to have seen from his own team on a sunny Friday afternoon at Jack Barber Field.

Collins led the Hawks' offense with three home runs and Howard's pitchers stifled the MC hitters for a sweep of the Chaparrals in a Western Junior College Athletic Conference doubleheader. The No. 7 Hawks won the first game 8-1 and then invoked the run-rule in the seventh inning of the second game for a 9-1 victory.

Collins had all three of his homers in the first game and finished the afternoon 6 for 8 at the plate with six RBI, three runs scored, plus a double for the Hawks (17-7, 4-2 in WJCAC).

"I was getting a lot of fastballs," said Collins, the sophomore from Trophy Club. "I did a lot of work this week and I just tried to stay inside the ball and doing my best to drive it. It paid off. The wind helped a little bit too."

Howard College coach Britt Smith said Friday was part of Collins' recent offensive tear.

"I think early in the year he was kind of pressing. We had high expectations on him," Smith said. "Last week we used an old Sandy Koufax line, 'Show us how easy you can hit the ball hard.' I think he's hit seven home runs in his last seven games."

Unfortunately for the Chaps (10-13, 5-5), they couldn't match the production of Collins or the rest of the Hawks, who combined for 27 hits on the day.

Michael Franco (3-2) held the Chaps in check in the first game as MC totaled four hits against the Hawks starter and reliever Stephen Spurlin.

In the second game, it was sophomore lefty Kyle Bartsch's (3-1) turn as he and Clint Sharp combined to hold the Chaps to five hits.

Coleman said his hitters were "terrible".

"We went completely away from what our game plan is and what our approach is, trying to stay inside balls

Midland Christian pitcher David Gates throws a pitch Friday during the Mustang's game against Pantego Christian at Christensen Stadium.

Gates pitches 1-hitter as Midland Christian wins district opener

By Shawn Shroyer
Sports Writer

The hits column on the visitor's half of the Christensen Stadium scoreboard wasn't broken, it just hadn't had a reason to light up until the fifth inning.

Then with Midland Christian's David Gates two outs away from a no-hitter, the blank spot between Arlington Pantego's runs and errors finally switched to a straight number. Gates was forced to settle for a one-hitter, but it was the lone disappointment in a 14-0 run-rule victory for the Mustangs (14-4, 1-0) in their TAPPS 1-4A opener on Friday.

"I was trying not to think about it the last inning," Gates said. "I had real good mechanics trying to make everything smooth. My last outing I was kind of unbalanced, so I was just trying to make everything simple tonight and it worked for me."

The beginning of Gates' (3-1) start was a bit unbalanced as Panthers (8-6, 0-1) leadoff man Zach Carter drew a walk. However, the next batter Caleb Ginger grounded into a 6-4 fielder's choice and Carter was ruled out at second for interference.

As a result, Gates faced the minimum in each of his first four innings, retiring 12 straight batters following his walk to Carter.

> "I was trying not to think about it the last inning. I had real good mechanics trying to make everything smooth. My last outing I was kind of unbalanced, so I was just trying to make everything simple tonight and it worked for me.

> Midland Christian pitcher

"It felt awesome," Gates said. "In the bullpen, I could tell it was going to be a great day. I was feeling real smooth, I was hitting the mitt every time and I wasn't trying to overpower the hitters."

Gates said the key was his command of his slider and curveball. It was obvious Pantego's hitters were overwhelmed by Gates' stuff as he recorded two strikeouts in each of his last four innings to finish with eight.

But after Pantego's first batter in the fifth struck out, Luke Jones grounded a 1-2 pitch up the middle. Mustangs second baseman Casey King tracked the ball down, but was too far in the hole to get the throw to first in time. That infield hit was as much damage as the Panthers did against Gates as he sat down the next two batters to finish off the victory.

"That was the best his breaking ball was all year," Midland Christian coach Mike Munguia said. "(Pitching coach Mike Withrow) has been working with him to get that down to where he had it last year. They've done some work and coach Withrow does a great job with him."

Gates' performance seemed like overkill with the run support he was given.

The Mustangs scored at least three runs in each inning, led by Bryant Burleson. Burleson had a hit in each of the first three innings and was left on deck in the fourth. He started with an RBI-double, then added a bases-loaded triple in the second and bases-loaded double in the third to pile up seven RBI.

"He had some good clutch hits, but the guys in front of him getting on and filling the bases up like that really did a good job, too," Munguia said. "Then Bry cleaning up like that did a good job."

Stephen Withrow also had a solid day with two hits and a walk on his way to scoring three runs and driving in two and

Rangers CEO Greenberg leaving organization

By Stephen Hawkins

Greenberg

ARLINGTON — The Texas Rangers abruptly announced Friday that CEO and managing partner Chuck Greenberg is leaving the organization three weeks before the AL champions open the season and just seven months after leading the purchase of the team in a dramatic bankruptcy court showdown.

In a statement released by the Rangers, Greenberg indicated that he was leaving because of differences between he, team president Nolan Ryan and board co-chairmen Ray Davis and Bob Simpson.

"Unfortunately, Nolan Ryan, the co-chairmen and I have somewhat different styles. While I am disappointed we did not work through our differences, I remain wholeheartedly committed to doing what's right for the franchise," Greenberg said. "Together we concluded it is best for all concerned for me to sell my interest back to Rangers Baseball Express and move on. I do so with a heavy heart."

Ryan will add the title of CEO and oversee all baseball and business operations for the organization, reporting directly to the team's board of directors. The Hall of Fame pitcher, who finished his 27-season playing career with the Rangers, became their team president in February 2008.

Ryan was scheduled to join Davis and Simpson, the largest investors in the ownership group, in a news conference at Rangers Ballpark later Friday to discuss Greenberg's departure.

In a joint statement, Davis and Simpson touted Greenberg's hard work and "unwavering commitment" to the team and what was accomplished in their short time owning the club.

"We thank Chuck for his many contributions to the organization, and wish him well in his future endeavors," the statement read. "At the same time, we are very confident in the continued success and further development of the Texas Rangers under Nolan's leadership."

Rangers in WT Classic title game

From staff reports

Thanks to some solid run production, the Greenwood baseball team will play in the championship game of the West Texas Classic today against District 4-3A rival Seminole.

The Rangers finished Pool A in the tournament with a 3-1 record, along with Graham and Pampa.

Tournament officials used a run-differential tiebreaker between the three teams to determine the seeds for today's placement games, and Greenwood had the best run differential by scoring a total of 20 runs against Graham and Pampa. Graham is the No. 2 seed, and Pampa will be the No. 3 seed.

The Rangers will play the Indians at 3 p.m. today at Greenwood's field.

Greenwood split its pair of games on Friday as the Rangers began the day by holding off Pecos, 10-9, and then fell to Graham 11-8.

Against Pecos, Matthew Ulcak earned the pitching victory as Kory Hollums picked up a save. Joe Crow was 3 for 3 with three RBI, and Zane Helms was 2 for 3 with two RBI in the victory.

In Friday's tournament nightcap, the Rangers battled back from an early deficit against Graham to take an 8-5 lead but could not hold it. Jesse Madrid was 2 for 3 with a double, triple and two RBI, and Crow was 2 for 3 with a RBI in the victory.

"(Friday) night was a big game for us because we got down early and came back, and went ahead at one point,"

Tim Fischer/Reporter-Telegram

OFF THE MARK Coahoma's Aaron Gonzales has to scramble off of second base to get the throw as Pampa's Cole Engle safely steals second Friday in a West Texas Classic game at Zachery Field. Pampa was tied with Greenwood and Graham with 3-1 records in the tournament. Greenwood won the tiebreaker on run-differential.

Greenwood coach Vince Callicoatte said. "In the last week, we've come a long way in my mind where we are competing a lot and starting to put the ball in play quite a bit. We've started playing as more of a complete team."

Callicoatte said he was not sure who would pitch in today's game against Seminole, adding "if they got a jersey, they may be throwing."

But he said his squad is looking forward to the game against the Indians.

"They are well coached, and very fast and put the ball in play," Callicoatte said. "They are very aggressive on the base paths. We are going to have to have a good defensive game, and have a good outing by our pitchers."

In the tournament's other placement games today, Graham will play the Midland High JV at noon at Greenwood for third, and Pampa and Presidio will also play at noon for fifth at Zachary Field. Pecos and Ozona will play at 9 a.m. at Greenwood for seventh spot, and Coahoma and Borger will play at 9 a.m. at Zachary Field for ninth.

Last game: Odessa Permian 6, Midland High 2; San Angelo Central 7, Abilene High 3

Notes: It might be the first week of the 3-5A season, but the Lady Bulldogs have dug a hole that may only be tougher to climb out of as the season progresses. Odessa Permian scored four runs in the top of the seventh to beat Midland High on Tuesday as the Lady Bulldogs used three of the team's four pitchers. Madison Garcia started the game, Jeannie Freeman and Stefani Baeza came on in relief. Who will be pitch today will be a game-time decision. Vines said that senior Kelsey Hoppel, who played in games with the team at the McKinney tournament last week, could also pitch. Hoppel is still recovering from a finger injury to her right hand suffered in the tournament. ... Offensively the Lady Bulldogs had six hits, but left nine runners on base during the game. No MHS player had multiple hits, and there were no extra base hits for the Lady Bulldogs. ... Central had an opposite game when it came to bringing runners home as the Lady Bobcats pounded out 11 hits, including six for extra bases, in the win against Abilene High on Tuesday. Mykaela Lane and Alana Hill each had two hits in the victory for Central. ... MHS swept the Lady Bobcats in 2010.

Jacks come closer to clinching playoff berth

From staff reports

Jacks	4
PrairieThunder	1

ODESSA -- Bloomington has already secured one of 16 playoff spots in the Central Hockey League. Odessa is still battling to clinch a postseason pass and the Jackalopes helped that cause on Friday.

The Jacks never trailed in a 4-1 victory against the PrairieThunder at Ector County Coliseum. Odessa now has 58 points in the Berry Conference, one point ahead of Mississippi for fifth place and eight points ahead of ninth-place Laredo with eight games left in the regular season. The top eight teams in each conference qualify for the postseason.

Sebastien Thinel put the Jacks on the board first with a power-play goal 11:13 into the first period. Bloomington's Brett Holmberg tied the score less than two minutes later, but Odessa's Kenny Bernard struck back equally as fast to give the Jacks a 2-1 lead going into the second period.

The Jacks pulled away with one power-play goal in the two remaining periods.

Alex Dunn scored at the 13:35 mark of the second period and Mike Ramsay finished off the scoring at the 12:39 mark of the third period.

Odessa and Bloomington for the last time this season at 7:05 p.m. today at Ector County Coliseum.

Midland polo team wins opening match

From staff reports

CHARLOTTESVILLE, Va. — The Midland Interscholastic polo team won its opening match of the United State Polo Association's National Interscholastic Championship Friday.

The Midland squad defeated Country Farms from New York, 21-8, and will take on the Cowtown team from the Washington, D.C. area today.

The team is made up of players from various Midland schools, and will compete in the three-day event this weekend at the University of Virginia.

Russell Stimmel, who attends Trinity, is the team captain. Other team members are Alonso Nunez (Midland High), Nick Watson (home school), Luke Reddell (Midland Classical Academy) and Loretto Natividad (MHS).

HIGH SCHOOL BASEBALL ROUNDUP

MHS SPLITS IN SCOTLAND YARD CLASSIC

DALLAS — Friday was a mixed bag of results for the Midland High baseball team.

After dropping its first game of the day to Rowlett, 20-12, Midland High bounced back against Wylie East in an 11-4 victory. The Bulldogs moved to 11-6 on the season and 2-1 in Highland Park's Scotland Yard Classic.

For all the runs Rowlett produced, they were two outs away from losing 12-1. All 12 of the Eagles' first-inning runs and all seven of their third-inning runs came with two outs. In the first inning, the Bulldogs retired the first two batters of the inning, but then proceeded to hit three batters, walk two and allow hits to the remaining seven. The Eagles put 12 straight runners on base and all 12 came in to score to put the Bulldogs in a 12-0 hole before their first at bat.

The Bulldogs' misfortunes repeated in the third inning as the Eagles took a 19-1 lead. The Bulldogs managed five runs in the fourth and six more in the fifth, but the time limit expired before they could make up any more ground.

Against Wylie East, Midland High did its damage in small doses. The Bulldogs pushed across two runs in the first and second innings to take a 4-1 lead. Then in the sixth, Connor Beck hit a two-run single with two outs and Ryan Whittenberg followed with a double to drive in Beck.

The Bulldogs put the game away in the seventh. In order, Matt Reyes doubled, Erick Callier singled, Shane Sawyer doubled and Blair Beck singled in the four-run inning. That was plenty of support for Keith Fritschen, who entered in relief in the fifth and held the Raiders scoreless on three hits the final three innings to pick up the win.

Midland High continues play in the Classic today with a 10 a.m. meeting with Midlothian and a 1 p.m. game with Flower Mound. Both games will be played at Dallas Jesuit.

UTPB ROUNDUP

Baseball team blown out

FORT SMITH, Ark. — The University of Texas of the Permian Basin baseball team lost to Arkansas-Fort Smith 21-3 in a non-conference baseball game on Friday.

Arkansas-Fort Smith opened the game with nine runs in the first inning, and then added two in the second, one in the third, five in the fourth and four in the sixth to close out the scoring barrage.

UTPB had nine hits along with the three runs.

swiping a base. Nikko Velarde was 2 for 3 with two doubles and three RBI, and No. 9 hitter Christian Whigham did an excellent job turning the order over, going 2 for 2 with a walk, three runs and a stolen base.

Even Gates got involved in the hit parade, hitting an inside-the-park home run. He led off the fourth inning with a high fly ball to center field, but the Panthers' outfielders lost it in the lights. While they scrambled for it, Gates rounded the bases and, with a well-placed slide to knock the ball out of the catcher's mitt, he made it safely home.

"I thought he was right under that ball and I got to second and saw he was 20 feet from it so I turned on the jets a little bit," Gates said. "Luckily I kicked the ball out of the catcher's glove or I would have been out."

The Mustangs and Panthers conclude their two-game series at 11 a.m. today at Ernie Johnson Field.

SWEEP

and use the middle of the field," Coleman said. "We were that way against Clarendon and we thought we adjusted during the week. We didn't and we decided to come out and try to pull balls and they pitched to us, kept the ball away and we never made an adjustment. We've got a bunch of sophomores in the lineup, so it's inexcusable. Our offensive approach was flat terrible.

"They pitched good and they never broke the game plan, but we never forced them to do anything different because they kept throwing it away and we kept trying to pull it. They just kept giggling, going 'Oh good, this is going to be fun. I'll just throw it out there again.'"

When asked if he thought his hitters were forcing things, Coleman said his Chaps looked more lethargic than anything else.

"I see a lot of guys just kind of defeated, pouting and feeling sorry for themselves, and getting whipped at a rapid pace," he said. "We will continue to get whipped if we don't show any more toughness than we showed today."

While the Chaps' offense struggled, Coleman didn't see much better results from his pitchers. Starter Tyler Rockafellow (2-2) gave up seven runs on 12 hits in 4 1/3 innings, while Kirby Wheeler (1-2) was knocked out of the game after three innings in which he gave up four runs on five hits.

"I don't think we pitched well at all," Coleman said. "We were behind in every count, we didn't locate and our misses were right over the middle of the plate."

As the Chaps had a bad day, the Hawks looked like a team that's hitting its stride in WJCAC play, having now won nine consecutive games.

"We've played a tough schedule early and we went on the road, and we just needed to start playing well," Smith said. "With the bat changes, you have to play well to win now. We played fairly well today and it was encouraging."

The series now switches to Christensen Stadium today with a doubleheader beginning at 1 p.m. The Chaps hope to have a better showing.

"It has to turn around," Coleman said. "We've practiceD for six months and we put in a lot of work and a lot of effort. Then we come out and don't play the way we've practiced to play. That's six conference games where we've played below expectations."

MHS grad finishes 6th in track championships

From staff reports

COLLEGE STATION — Midland High graduate and University of Texas junior Victoria Lucas finished sixth in the women's high jump at the NCAA Indoor Track & Field Championships on Friday.

Lucas leaped 6-1/2 feet and with her sixth place finish earned All-American honors as well. Arizona's Brigetta Barrett won the event with a jump of 6-2 3/4.

Lee, MHS tennis teams find good results

From staff reports

SAN ANGELO — The Lee and Midland High tennis teams competed at the Central Slam on Thursday, and both came away with positive results.

The Lee boys doubles team of Michael Endsley and Devin Hampton finished second in A Boys Doubles. The Midland High squad of Ty Parkison and Jamieson Farquhar finished third in A Boys Doubles.

Also in boys doubles, the Midland High team of Robert McDonnold and Tyler Gilland won the B division, defeating Lee's Stephen Mangum and Paxton Albert, 6-4, 6-4 in the finals.

Also for Midland High, Davis Krisa finished third in A boys singles, and Hillary Gilland was fifth in A girls singles. The Bulldog doubles team of Morgan Kratzer and Caroline Smith finished fifth in A girls doubles, and Wesley Spark and Kathryn Hanson teamed up to finish fifth in A mixed doubles.

In B girls singles, Katie Almaguer was third and in B mixed doubles, Frankie Sanchez and Taylor Lamb combined to take third.

Also for Lee in the A division, Caity Tarabocchia and Jordyn Willis combined to finish fourth in girls doubles, and Kyle Milne and Danielle Rubio were also fourth in mixed doubles. In the B division, Kaitlin Leary and Megan Presley were third in girls doubles, and Tuesdee Coggan was fourth in girls singles.

Both teams will take the next few weeks off, and return to action the weekend of April 1. Lee will play in Lewisville, and Midland High will play in Abilene.

HIGH SCHOOL SOCCER TODAY

Girls

ODESSA PERMIAN AT LEE

When/where: Noon today, Grande Communications Stadium

Records: Permian 12-5-1, 6-3-0-0 (18 points) in District 3-5A; Lee 9-5-5, 3-4-1-0 (11 points).

Last match: Permian 2, Odessa High 0; Midland High 4, Lee 1.

Last meeting: Permian 2, Lee 1 on Feb. 15.

Notes & Quotes: Lee found its grip on the fourth seed in District 3-5A get a bit looser after losing to Midland high 4-1 in regulation on Tuesday. That, compounded with a shootout victory for Abilene Cooper against Abilene High, left the Lady Rebels a mere three points ahead of Cooper and Abilene High in the race for the fourth and final playoff spot available out of the district. ... Permian moved into a tie for second with San Angelo Central with a regulation victory against Odessa High on Tuesday. Central, which had a bye Tuesday, and Permian each have 18 points. ... Permian has yet to play in a shootout through nine district games this season. Meanwhile, Lee has played in only one shootout, which it won 1-0 against Odessa High on March 1. ... In their first meeting, the Lady Panthers held on for a 2-1 victory. The Lady Rebels got a goal in the 65th minute when Tori Rackow found Haley Smith to tie the game at 1-1. But the 77th minute, a defensive miscommunication by Lee allowed Permian senior Dusty Westlund get loose and score the game-winner.

Next: San Angelo Central at Odessa Permian, 4:30 p.m. Tuesday, San Angelo Stadium; Lee at Abilene Cooper, 4:30 p.m. Tuesday, Shotwell Stadium.

MIDLAND HIGH AT ODESSA HIGH

When/where: Noon today, Ratliff Sports Complex

Records: Midland High 15-6-1, 7-0-1-1 (24 points) in District 3-5A; Odessa High 8-10-2, 0-7-1-1 (3 points).

Last match: Midland High 4, Lee 1; Odessa Permian 2, Odessa High 0.

Last meeting: Midland High 2, Odessa High 0 on Feb. 15.

Notes & Quotes: Midland High suffered its first loss in district play on Saturday, losing to San Angelo Central in a shootout. The Lady Bulldogs rebounded from that defeat by routing crosstown rival Lee 4-1. The Lady Dawgs scored three goals in the first half, while sophomore Madison Scribner added her second of the match to round out the Lady Dawgs' scoring in the second half. ... Odessa High had its losing streak slip to nine games after falling to crosstown rival Permian 2-0 on Tuesday. The Lady Bronchos are yet to win a district game in regulation this season. Their lone shootout victory came against Abilene High, 1-0, on Feb. 8. ... In Midland High's 2-0 victory against the Lady Bronchos on Feb. 15, the Lady Dawgs built its lead on the back of a pair of first-half goals. Senior Laramie Holifield had one with sophomore Madison McAdams scoring the other. ... Midland High clinched a playoff spot with its 4-1 victory against Lee. The Lady Dawgs can guarantee at least a share of the 3-5A title with a win in regulation against Odessa High. Should the Lady Dawgs get the regulation win and both Odessa Permian and San Angelo Central not get regulation wins, the Lady Dawgs claim an outright district title. ... Due to the West Texas Relays occurring at Ratliff Stadium Friday and Saturday, this game will be played at the fields adjacent to the stadium in the Ratliff Sports Complex.

Next: Abilene High at Midland High, 4:30 p.m. Tuesday, Grande Communications Stadium; Abilene Cooper at Odessa High, Noon March 15, Ratliff Stadium.

ABILENE COOPER AT SAN ANGELO CENTRAL

When/where: Noon today, San Angelo Stadium

Records: Cooper 5-9-1, 1-4-2-1 (8 points) in District 3-5A; Central 10-3-3, 4-0-2-2 (18 points).

Last match: Abilene High 2, Cooper 1, SO (2-1); Central 1, Midland High 0, SO (2-1) on Saturday.

Last meeting: Cooper 2, Central 1, SO (2-1) on Feb. 15.

Next: Lee at Abilene Cooper, 4:30 p.m. Tuesday, Shotwell Stadium; San Angelo Central at Odessa Permian, 4:30 p.m. Tuesday, Ratliff Stadium.

Notes & Quotes: In an already tight district race, both Lee and Permian are coming off losses to their respective crosstown rivals on Tuesday. Those losses could prove critical if either squad can't come away with some points today. ... The Rebels lost in regulation to Midland High, 2-1, on Tuesday. The loss allowed the Bulldogs to pull a point ahead of the Rebels in the 3-5A standings. Lee stays in a tie for third place with Odessa High at 14 points. ... Permian still holds a four-point lead atop the district standings, but lost some ground with a 2-1 shootout loss to Odessa High on Tuesday. ... The Panthers are yet to lose a game in regulation during district play. At the same time, they haven't won any of the four games that have gone into a shootout, either. ... Lee defeated the Panthers 2-1 in a shootout on Feb. 15. The Rebels were down 1-0 at half, but Jakab Marquez scored on an assist from Keagan Davis in the 60th minute to tie the game. Goals by Colyn Moore, Brandon Estrada and Davis gave Lee the edge in the shootout.

MIDLAND HIGH AT ODESSA HIGH

When/where: 2 p.m. today, Ratliff Sports Complex

Records: Midland High 9-6-4, 5-4-0-0 (15 points) in District 3-5A; Odessa High 7-11-1, 2-2-3-2 (14 points).

Last match: Midland High 2, Lee 1; Odessa High 2, Odessa Permian 1, SO (3-2).

Last meeting: Odessa High 3, Midland High 1 on Feb. 15.

Notes & Quotes: Midland High picked up a key win on Tuesday, defeating in-town rival Lee 2-1 at Grande Communications Stadium. With the win, the Bulldogs moved into second place in the District 3-5A standings, holding a one-point advantage on Lee and Odessa High. ... Odessa High kept pace in the standings, defeating Odessa Permian 2-1 in a shootout victory. The Bronchos are tied with Lee in third place with 14 points. ... Midland High has yet to have a match go into a shootout. Ironically, the Dawgs had four matches end in a tie during its pre-district schedule. That's the most of any other team in 3-5A. Meanwhile, Odessa High has played in five shootouts, which is tied with Abilene High for most in the district. ... In their first meeting on Feb. 15, the Bronchos handed Midland High what was its third loss in four matches with a 3-1 victory. It was also Odessa High's first district win. Both teams are 4-1 since that match. ... This match will be played at the soccer fields at Ratliff Sports Complex, which are adjacent to Ratliff Stadium, which is being used for the West Texas Relays this weekend.

Next: Abilene High at Midland High, 6:30 p.m. Tuesday, Grande Communications Stadium; Abilene Cooper at Odessa High, 2 p.m. March 15, Ratliff Stadium.

BARNES, MCPHERSON TOPS IN TRIPLE JUMP: L Omar Barnes won yet anot gold medal on Friday, winni the Division I boys triple jun with a mark of 43 feet, 10 i es. It's the sixth event Barn has won in the past three meets. Right behind Barnes though, was his teammate Corey McPherson. McPher who won the district title in triple jump as a junior, clear 42 feet, 11 inches. Typically, Barnes would have a chanc add to his medal tally in the finals for the 400. However, boys track coach Kenneth H didn't want Barnes to have heavy of a workload this we end. It wasn't clear if he wa going to be a member of ar Lee's relay teams today.

McPherson is also likely run a couple relays, but wa expected to be a medalist tender in the 110 hurdles. H ever, the Lee senior had a start that disqualified him fr the preliminary race Friday. also slightly tweaked his an during that start, but appea to be fine and walked witho limp afterwards.

NFL Players union decertifie

By Howard Fendri
Associated Press

WASHINGTON — NFL labor talks broke down just hours before t latest contract extension expired Friday, putting America's most popular sport on a path to its firs work stoppage since 19

The NFL players' uni decertified — effectivel ceasing to operate as a c tified union — and play including Tom Brady ar Peyton Manning sued th league.

Despite 16 days of negotiations with a fede mediator — and previou months of stop-and-star bargaining — the sides could not agree on a ne deal. The league said it hadn't decided whether lock out the players, wh meanwhile, went to cou to request an injunction block such a move.

"The parties have not achieved an overall agre ment, nor have they bee able to resolve the stron held competing position that separated them on core issues," mediator George Cohen said. "N useful purpose would b served by requesting th parties to continue the mediation process at th time."

By dissolving and announcing it no longe represents the players i collective bargaining, th NFL Players Associatio cleared the way for clas action lawsuits against NFL, which opted out the CBA in 2008.

The CBA originally due to expire last week then was extended twic in hopes that the sides could find common ground on the key issue how to divide more tha $9 billion in annual rev enues, and how much financial information th league would be willin turn over.

It all set the stage fo lengthy court fight that eventually could threat the 2011 season.

WEST TEXAS RELAYS NOTEBOOK AND RESULTS

BARNES, MCPHERSON TOPS IN TRIPLE JUMP: Lee's Omar Barnes won yet another gold medal on Friday, winning the Division I boys triple jump with a mark of 43 feet, 10 inches. It's the sixth event Barnes has won in the past three meets. Right behind Barnes, though, was his teammate Corey McPherson. McPherson, who won the district title in the triple jump as a junior, cleared 42 feet, 11 inches. Typically, Barnes would have a chance to add to his medal tally in the finals for the 400. However, Lee boys track coach Kenneth Hines didn't want Barnes to have as heavy of a workload this weekend. It wasn't clear if he was going to be a member of any of Lee's relay teams today.

McPherson is also likely to run a couple relays, but was expected to be a medalist contender in the 110 hurdles. However, the Lee senior had a false start that disqualified him from the preliminary race Friday. He also slightly tweaked his ankle during that start, but appeared to be fine and walked without a limp afterwards.

The duo's effort in the triple jump puts the Rebels in second place in the team standings with 18 points after the first day. They trail only Amarillo Tascosa, which has 30 points.

MIDDLETON FLYING: Midland High senior sprinter Tyler Middleton posted his best time of the early track season in the 100 on Friday. Middleton had the top preliminary time at 10.38 seconds. One advantage Middleton has had is the ability to focus solely on the 100. MHS boys track coach Jeff Streun has allowed the senior speedster to only run the 100 to start the season. After barely missing out on advancing to the state meet the last two years, Middleton is determined to make it to Austin for the 100 as a senior. Streun did say he expects Middleton to be a member of the MHS relay teams as the District 3-5A meet gets closer.

MCS LOOKS FOR DII SWEEP: The Midland Christian boys and girls track teams got a good start Friday to sweeping the team titles at the West Texas Relays. The girls scored 50 points in the first day of competition, which is 21 more than second-place Sweetwater. Headlining the Lady Mustangs' first day efforts was Hannah and Emma Thompson, no relation. Hannah Thompson won the discus with a mark of 120 feet, 1 inch, while Emma Thompson was just behind her at 117 feet, 3 inches. MCS also took gold and silver in the high jump with Kayla Johnston winning the event by clearing 5 feet. Kayla Dupriest had a mark of 4 feet, 8 inches for second. It probably didn't hurt matters for MCS by having Ariel Bell as the lone competitor in the Division II girls 3,200 meter run.

On the boys side, the Mustangs lead with 40 points -- 12 ahead of second-place Fort Stockton. Mason Allsup won the triple jump with a mark of 40 feet, 1 inch for the MCS boys' lone gold medal on the first day. However, Bobby Thompson and Kevin Gosch finished second and third, respectively, in the shot put.

RACKOW'S JUMP PUTS LEE IN THIRD: The Lee girls are one of only four teams who scored points in the girls Division I on Friday and sit in a third-place tie with Amarillo Tascosa with 13 points. Sophomore Tori Rackow had the Lady Rebels' top performance with a second-place finish in the long jump. Rackow's mark of 16 feet, 8.5 inches was less than five inches shy of event winner April Williams from Permian.

LEE'S RAY HAS SHOT AT 100 TITLE: Thanks somewhat to the absence of Lubbock Coronado in the Division I girls field, Lee freshman Shanses Ray is going to have a chance of winning her first 100-meter race as a Lady Rebel. Ray has finished second to Lubbock Coronado's Sharniece King the last two weeks. However, King isn't at the West Texas Relays, making Ray's toughest competition Amarillo Tascosa's Toneshia Gindratt. Gindratt was seven one-hundredths of a second faster than Ray in the prelims.

Texas tops Aggies

By Doug Tucker
Associated Press

Longhorns	70
Aggies	58

KANSAS CITY, Mo. — Jordan Hamilton scored 17 points and No. 10 Texas had four players in double figures while beating Texas A&M 70-58 in the Big 12 semifinals Friday night, giving the Longhorns a three-game season sweep of their old rivals.

With the victory, the second-seeded Longhorns (27-6) set up a 1 vs. 2 championship game Saturday against top-seeded and No. 2 Kansas. Texas, one of two teams to beat the Jayhawks, upset them 74-63 on Jan. 22 and snapped their team-record 69-game home court winning streak.

Tristan Thompson, the Big 12 freshman of the year, had 14 points and 13 rebounds for Texas, which finished second to Kansas in the regular-season Big 12 race. J'Covan Brown had 15 points, including three 3-pointers in the second half, and Cory Joseph had 10.

COLLEGE BASKETBALL ROUNDUP

Men

BIG 12 TOURNAMENT
NO. 2 KANSAS 90, COLORADO 83: At Kansas City, Mo., Marcus and Markieff Morris personally outscored Colorado 17-4 during one stretch of the first half, pulling No. 2 Kansas out of a deep early deficit and leading the second-ranked Jayhawks past Colorado 90-83 Friday night in the Big 12 tournament semifinals.

TEXAS
UTEP 66, TULSA 54: At El Paso, Randy Culpepper scored 26 points to lead UTEP to a 66-54 victory over Tulsa in the Conference USA semifinals on Friday.

NORTH DAKOTA 65, HOUSTON BAPTIST 63: At Orem, Utah, Patrick Mitchell made two free throws with a second remaining and North Dakota beat Houston Baptist 65-63 in the Great West Conference tournament semifinals Friday night.

Women

BIG 12 TOURNAMENT
NO. 3 BAYLOR 86, KANSAS STATE 53: At Kansas City, Mo., Brittney Griner scored 21 points and Destiny Williams added 18 to lead No. 3 Baylor to an 86-53 victory over Kansas State that sent the Lady Bears to the Big 12 tournament finals.

FARRIS

said. "I really feel like the best thing I can do this year is push (Christian) and help him win state and break those records. I feel like I can help him reach that."

Farris attended Lee Freshman last year, but made the move to Trinity this fall for his sophomore year. The move has worked out for him, but it wasn't because he was afraid of the level of competition he would have faced at Lee.

Many times, Farris and Brock compete at the Division I level at meets as was the case last week for Farris at the Tall City Invitational. Farris finished second in the 3,200 and 1,600 meter races at the Tall City, proving he can run with big school athletes.

"It was good to compete with them," Farris said. "I was on Lee's varsity last year, but I struggled to keep up with the pack. Connor branches out and does some different things. I just love to run. That's all I want to do."

And as far as Brock's records go, Farris knows its well within his reach, but time will tell if he has what it takes to set new TCAF marks.

"I'm just going to run and see what happens," Farris said. "Hopefully, I can set the record in the two mile, but I'm not focusing on it. If it happens, it happens."

NFL Players union decertifies

By Howard Fendrich
Associated Press

WASHINGTON — NFL labor talks broke down just hours before the latest contract extension expired Friday, putting America's most popular sport on a path to its first work stoppage since 1987.

The NFL players' union decertified — effectively ceasing to operate as a certified union — and players including Tom Brady and Peyton Manning sued the league.

Despite 16 days of negotiations with a federal mediator — and previous months of stop-and-start bargaining — the sides could not agree on a new deal. The league said it hadn't decided whether to lock out the players, who, meanwhile, went to court to request an injunction to block such a move.

"The parties have not achieved an overall agreement, nor have they been able to resolve the strongly held competing positions that separated them on core issues," mediator George Cohen said. "No useful purpose would be served by requesting the parties to continue the mediation process at this time."

By dissolving and announcing it no longer represents the players in collective bargaining, the NFL Players Association cleared the way for class-action lawsuits against the NFL, which opted out of the CBA in 2008.

The CBA originally was due to expire last week, then was extended twice, in hopes that the sides could find common ground on the key issues: how to divide more than $9 billion in annual revenues, and how much financial information the league would be willing to turn over.

It all set the stage for a lengthy court fight that eventually could threaten the 2011 season.

TOKYO — A ferocious tsunami spawned by one of the largest earthquakes on record slammed Japan's eastern coast Friday, killing hundreds of people as it swept away ships, cars and homes while widespread fires burned out of control.

Hours later, the tsunami hit Hawaii but did not cause major damage. Warnings blanketed the Pacific, putting areas on alert as far away as South America, Canada, Alaska and the entire U.S. West coast. In northeastern Japan, the area around a nuclear power plant was evacuated after the reactor's cooling system failed.

Police said 200 to 300 bodies were found in the northeastern coastal city of Sendai, the city in Miyagi prefecture, or state, closest to the epicenter. Another 137 were confirmed killed, with 531 people missing. Police also said 627 people were injured.

The magnitude-8.9 offshore quake unleashed a 23-foot tsunami and was followed for hours by more than 50 aftershocks, many of them of more than magnitude 6.0.

Dozens of cities and villages along a 1,300-mile stretch of coastline were shaken by violent tremors that reached as far away as Tokyo, hundreds of miles from the epicenter. A large section of Kesennuma, a town of 70,000 people in Miyagi, burned furiously into the night with no apparent hope of being extinguished, public broadcaster NHK said.

"The earthquake has caused major damage in broad areas in northern Japan," Prime Minister Naoto Kan said at a news

Calif., Ore. sustained most damage from tsunami

CRESCENT CITY, Calif. — The warnings traveled quickly across the Pacific in the middle of the night: An 8.9-magnitude earthquake in Japan spawned a deadly tsunami, and it was racing east Friday as fast as a jetliner.

Sirens blared in Hawaii. The West Coast pulled back from the shoreline, fearing the worst. People were warned to stay away from the beaches. Fishermen took their boats out to sea and safety.

The alerts moved faster than the waves, giving millions of people across the Pacific Rim hours to prepare.

In the end, the damage was mainly to harbors and marinas in California and Oregon. Boats crashed into each other, some vessels were pulled out to sea and docks were ripped out. Rescue crews searched for a man who was swept out to sea while taking pictures.

None of the damage — in the U.S., South America or Canada — was anything like the devastation in Japan.

The warnings — the second major one for the region in a year — and the response showed how far the earthquake-prone Pacific Rim had come since a deadly tsunami caught much of Asia by surprise in 2004.

"That was a different era," said Gerard Fryer, a geophysicist with the Pacific Tsunami Warning Center. "We got the warning out very quickly. It would not have been possible to do it that fast in 2004."

Within 10 minutes after Japan was shaken by its biggest earthquake in recorded history, the center had issued its warning. The offshore quake pushed water onto land, sometimes miles inland, sweeping away boats, cars, homes and people. Hundreds are dead.

As the tsunami raced across the Pacific at 500 mph, the first sirens began sounding across Hawaii late Thursday night.

Police went through the tourist mecca of Waikiki, warning of an approaching tsunami. Hotels moved tourists from lower floors to upper levels. Some tourists ended up spending the night in their cars.

Across the islands, people stocked up on bottled water, canned foods and toilet paper. Authorities opened buildings to people fleeing low-lying areas. Fishermen took their boats out to sea, away from harbors and marinas where the waves would be most intense.

Residents did the same last February, when an 8.8-magnitude quake in Chile prompted tsunami warnings. The waves did little damage then.

Early Friday, the tsunami waves reached Hawaii, tossing boats in Honolulu. The water covered beachfront conference.

The quake was nearly 8,000 times stronger than one that struck New Zealand late last month, devastating the city of Christchurch.

"The energy radiated by this quake is nearly equal to one month's worth of energy consumption" in the United States, U.S. Geological Survey Scientist Brian Atwater told The Associated Press.

The government ordered thousands of residents near a nuclear power plant in the city of Onahama to move back at least two miles from the plant. The reactor was not leaking radiation but its core remained hot even after a shutdown. The plant is 170 miles northeast of Tokyo.

Trouble was reported at two other nuclear plants as well, but there was no radiation leak at either of them.

Japan's coast guard said it was searching for 80 dock workers on a ship that was swept away from a shipyard in Miyagi.

Even for a country used to earthquakes, this one was of horrific proportions because of the tsunami that crashed ashore, swallowing everything in its path as it surged several miles inland before retreating. The apocalyptic images on Japanese TV of powerful, debris-filled waves, uncontrolled fires and a ship caught in a massive whirlpool resembled scenes from a Hollywood disaster movie.

Large fishing boats and other vessels rode high waves ashore, slamming against overpasses or scraping under them and snapping power lines along the way. Upturned and partially submerged cars bobbed in the water. Ships anchored in ports crashed against each other.

The tsunami roared over embankments, washing anything in its path inland before reversing directions and carrying the cars, homes and other debris out to sea. Flames shot from some of the homes, probably because of burst gas pipes.

Waves of muddy waters flowed over farmland near Sendai, carrying buildings, some of them ablaze. Drivers attempted to flee. Sendai airport was inundated with thick, muddy debris that included cars, trucks, buses and even

An earthquake-triggered tsunami washes away a warehouse and vehicles in Kesennuma, Miyagi prefecture, Japan, Friday. The ferocious tsunami spawned by one of the largest earthquakes ever recorded slammed Japan's eastern coasts.

Highways to the worst-hit coastal areas buckled. Telephone lines snapped. Train service in northeastern Japan and in Tokyo, which normally serve 10 million people a day, were suspended, leaving untold numbers of people stranded in stations or roaming the streets. Tokyo's Narita airport was closed indefinitely.

President Barack Obama said the U.S. "stands ready to help" Japan.

Jesse Johnson, a native of the Nevada who lives in Chiba, north of Tokyo, was eating at a sushi restaurant with his wife when the quake hit.

"At first it didn't feel unusual, but then it went on and on. So I got myself and my wife under the table," he told The Associated Press. "I've lived in Japan for 10 years, and I've never felt anything like this before. The aftershocks keep coming. It's gotten to the point where I don't know whether it's me shaking or an earthquake."

NHK said more than 4 million buildings were without power in Tokyo and its suburbs.

As night fell, Tokyo's streets were jammed with cars, buses and trucks trying to get around and out of the city. Pedestrians swarmed the sidewalks to walk home, or at least find a warm place to spend the night as the temperatures dropped.

Tomoko Suzuki and her elderly mother stood on a crowded downtown corner, unable to get to their 29th-floor condominium because the elevator wasn't working. They unsuccessfully tried to hail a taxi to a relative's house and couldn't find a hotel room.

"We are so cold," said Suzuki. "We really don't know what to do."

A large fire erupted at the Cosmo oil refinery in the city of Ichihara and burned out of control with 100-foot (30-meter) flames whipping into the sky.

"Our initial assessment indicates that there has already been enormous damage," Chief Cabinet Secretary Yukio Edano said. "We will make maximum relief effort based on that assessment."

He said the Defense Ministry was sending troops to the hardest-hit region. A utility aircraft and several helicopters were on the way.

Also in Miyagi prefecture, a fire broke out in a turbine building of a nuclear power plant, but it was later extinguished, said Tohoku Electric Power Co.

A reactor area of a nearby plant was leaking water, the company said. But it was unclear if the leak was caused by the tsunami or something else. There were no reports of radioactive leaks at any of Japan's nuclear plants.

Jefferies International Ltd., a global investment banking group, estimated overall losses of about $10 billion.

Hiroshi Sato, a disaster management official in northern Iwate prefecture, said officials were having trouble getting an overall picture of the destruction.

"We don't even know the extent of damage. Roads were badly damaged and cut off as tsunami washed away debris, cars and many other things," he said.

The U.S. Geological Survey said the 2:46 p.m. quake was magnitude 8.9, the biggest to hit Japan since record-keeping began in the late 1800s and one of the biggest ever recorded in the world.

The quake struck at a depth of six miles, about 80 miles off the eastern coast, the agency said. The area is 240 miles northeast of Tokyo. Several quakes hit the same region in recent days, including one measured at magnitude 7.3 on Wednesday that caused no damage.

A tsunami warning was extended to a number of areas in the Pacific, Southeast Asia and Latin America, including Japan, Russia, Indonesia, New Zealand and Chile. In the Philippines, authorities ordered an evacuation of coastal communities, but no unusual waves were reported.

Thousands fled homes in Indonesia after officials warned of a tsunami up to 6 feet high, but waves of only 4 inches were measured. No big waves came either to the Northern Mariana Islands, which are a U.S. territory.

The first waves hit Hawaii about 9 a.m. EST. A tsunami about 7 feet high was recorded on Maui and a wave at least 3 feet high was recorded on Oahu and Kauai. Officials warned that the waves would continue and could get larger.

Japan's worst previous quake was a magnitude 8.3 temblor in 1923 in Kanto that killed 143,000 people, according to USGS. A 7.2-magnitude quake in Kobe in 1996 killed 6,400 people.

Japan lies on the "Ring of Fire" — an arc of earthquake and volcanic zones stretching around the Pacific where about 90 percent of the world's quakes occur, including the one that triggered the Dec. 26, 2004, Indian Ocean tsunami that killed an estimated 230,000 people in 12 nations. A magnitude-8.8 temblor that shook central Chile in February 2010 also generated a tsunami and killed 524 people.

roads and rushed into hotels on the Big Island. The waves carried a house out to sea. Seven-foot waves flooded low-lying areas in Maui.

As the sun rose, people breathed a sigh of relief.

"With everything that could have happened and did happen in Japan, we're just thankful that nothing else happened," said Sabrina Skiles, who along with her husband spent a sleepless night at his office in Maui. Their beachfront house was unscathed.

Many other Pacific islands also evacuated their shorelines for a time. In Guam, the waves broke two U.S. Navy submarines from their moorings, but tug boats brought them back to their pier.

In Oregon, the first swells to hit the U.S. mainland were barely noticeable.

Sirens pierced the air in Seaside, a popular tourist town near the Washington state line. Restaurants, gift shops and other beachfront businesses stayed shuttered. Some residents moved to the hills nearby, gathering behind a house.

Albert Wood said he and his wife decided to leave their home late Thursday night after watching news about the Japan quake — the fifth-largest earthquake since 1900.

Wood was expecting the waves to get bigger and more intense than what he saw. Still, he shook his head as the cars lining the hills began to drive west, into the lowlands adjacent to the shore.

"Just if you ask me, they're being too bold," Wood said. "It's still early. They're just not being cautious."

Erik Bergman was back at the shore by 9:30 a.m. Roughly 100 feet away was a man playing with his dog. Two small children chased seagulls.

"People aren't too nervous," Bergman said.

President Barack Obama said the Federal Emergency Management Agency was ready to come to the aid of any U.S. state or territory that needed help. Coast Guard cutters and aircraft were readied to respond as soon as conditions allowed.

Outside Brookings, Ore., just north of the California border, four people went to a beach to watch the waves and were swept into the sea. Two got out on their own, and the others were rescued, authorities said.

In Crescent City, Calif., miles to the south, the Coast Guard searched for a man who was swept out to sea. He was taking photos near the mouth of the Klamath River. Two people with him were able to get back to land.

Sheriff's deputies went door to door at dawn to urge residents to seek higher ground.

By midmorning, water rushing into the harbor had destroyed about 35 boats and ripped chunks off the wooden docks, as marina workers and fishermen scrambled between surges to secure property. Officials estimated millions of dollars in damage.

When the water returned, someone would yell "Here comes another one!" to clear the area.

Ted Scott, a retired mill worker who lived in the city when a 1964 tsunami killed 17 people on the West Coast, including 11 in Crescent City, watched the water pour into the harbor.

"This is just devastating. I never thought I'd see this again," he said. "I watched the docks bust apart. It buckled like a graham cracker."

The waves, however, had not made it over a 20-foot break wall protecting the rest of the city. No serious injuries were immediately reported.

On the central coast in Santa Cruz, loose fishing boats crashed into one another and docks broke away from the shore. The water rushed out as quickly as it poured in, leaving the boats tipped over in mud.

Some surfers ignored evacuation warnings and took advantage of the waves ahead of the tsunami.

"The tides are right, the swell is good, the weather is good, the tsunami is there," said William Hill, an off-duty California trooper. "We're going out."

Scientists warned that the first tsunami waves are not always the strongest. The threat can last for several hours and people should watch out for strong currents.

U.S. Geological Survey geophysicist Ken Hudnut said residents along the coast should heed any calls for evacuation.

Quake brings modern Tokyo to a standstill

TOKYO — Japan's huge earthquake brought super-modern Tokyo to a standstill Friday, paralyzing trains that normally run like clockwork and stranding hordes of commuters carrying mobile phones rendered largely useless by widespread outages.

The magnitude-8.9 quake off Japan's northeastern coast shook buildings in the capital, left millions of homes across Japan without electricity, shut down the mobile phone network and severely disrupted landline telephone service. It brought Tokyo's train system to a halt, choking a daily commuter flow of more than 10 million people.

"This is the kind of earthquake that hits once every 100 years," said restaurant worker Akira Tanaka, 54.

He gave up waiting for trains to resume and decided — for his first time ever — to set off on foot for his home 12 miles north of the capital. "I've been walking an hour and 10 minutes, still have about three hours to go," he said.

Tokyo prides itself on being an orderly, technologically savvy, even futuristic city. Residents usually can rely on a huge, crisscrossing network of train and subway lines. But after the mid-afternoon quake, authorities were forced to scan the entire web for quake damage and canceled nearly all train service for the rest of the day.

Tens of thousands of people milled at train stations, roamed the streets or hunkered down at 24-hour cafes, hotels and government offices offered as emergency accommodations.

Mobile phone lines were crammed, preventing nearly all calls and text messages. Calls to northeastern Japan, where a 23-foot tsunami washed ashore after the quake, generally failed to go through, with a recording saying the area's lines were busy.

Quake is 5th biggest, but Japan best prepared

PASADENA, Calif. — Take the world's most earthquake-prepared country, jolt it with one of the biggest quakes in history and add a devastating tsunami minutes later. In the classic battle of Man vs. Nature, Nature won again.

Hundreds if not thousands of people are dead in Japan. One of the world's most technologically advanced and earthquake-prone nations is paralyzed by a 8.9-magnitude "megathrust." It was the fifth-strongest quake in the world since 1900 and the most powerful on record ever to hit Japan, but not the deadliest.

And it could have been worse.

"No matter what we do, we're not totally safe," said disaster preparedness expert Dennis Mileti, a former California seismic safety commissioner. "Nature can always throw an event at us that exceeds what we've designed for."

Because of warning systems, the tsunami wasn't as deadly worldwide as some in the past. Most buildings withstood the shaking. The quake was 700 times more powerful than the one that struck Haiti last year, but the death toll appears to be far lower than the 220,000-plus killed in the Caribbean.

Friday's quake caused a rupture 186 miles long and 93 miles wide in the sea floor 80 miles off the eastern coast of Japan. It happened 15 miles beneath the sea floor.

All the way across the Pacific Ocean, in California and Oregon, the tsunami tore docks apart and knocked boats loose.

The quake was caused when one giant tectonic plate was shoved under another, the type of movement that produces the biggest earthquakes. It's the same kind of quake that caused the devastating 2004 Indonesian tsunami.

Obama: Japan earthquake potentially 'catastrophic'

WASHINGTON — President Barack Obama said he was "heartbroken" by images of devastation in Japan following Friday's deadly earthquake and tsunami, and pledged U.S. assistance to help the country recover.

"Our hearts go out to our friends in Japan and across the region, and we're going to stand with them as they recover and rebuild from this tragedy," Obama said during a White House news conference.

Hundreds were dead or missing in Japan following Friday's 8.9 magnitude earthquake — the largest in Japan's history — and the accompanying tsunami. The West Coast and several islands in the Pacific were also under tsunami warnings, through no major damage was reported in the U.S. as the first waves swamped Hawaii's beaches and grazed the coastline of the mainland.

Obama said he was confident that Japan would successfully rebound from the potentially "catastrophic" disaster, and offered his condolences to the families of those who were killed.

"When you see what's happening in Japan, you are reminded that for all our differences in culture or language or religion, that ultimately humanity is one," Obama said.

One U.S. aircraft carrier is already in Japan, and a second is on its way to assist with the recovery efforts. A U.S. ship was also heading to the Marianas Islands.

Worry for childhood friend overshadows reunion

DEAR ABBY

Write Dear Abby at www.DearAbby.com or P.O. Box 69440, Los Angeles, CA 90069. Her column is distributed by Universal Press Syndicate.

DEAR ABBY: I recently ran into "Grace," who was a dear friend back in elementary school. Back then my parents helped her mother flee and divorce her abusive husband. At age 12 we lost touch because Grace moved to another school and joined a "bad crowd."

Eighteen years later I was happy to see her again, and gave her my phone number. I have the feeling something is a bit "off" about Grace now. She has called me repeatedly and in her messages she sounds nervous and stumbles over her words. When I called her back, she told me she was in a serious car accident nine years ago and hasn't held a job since. The entire conversation was strange, and my gut is telling me Grace has a drug problem.

She has asked me to lunch to "catch up." I'm a stay-at-home mom and not comfortable meeting her in person, especially with my kids. I feel guilty for not wanting to see someone I was so close to when I was young and for assuming she has a drug problem.

Am I wrong in making this assumption? Should I stop returning her calls and ignore her, or should I see her to make a determination? — ALL GROWN UP IN VEGAS

DEAR ALL GROWN UP: You are wrong to prejudge the woman. While it's possible Grace has a drug problem, it is also possible that the car accident left her with an injury that has affected her speech. See her without your children and make a determination.

If she is impaired because of injury, would that make a difference in how you feel about her? Your lives have gone in different directions. She appears to be needy. With your responsibilities as a parent, how much time and effort would you be able to devote to her? Only you can answer these questions. But to take the coward's way out and ignore her would be cruel.

DEAR ABBY: I am a 40-year-old single mom who is just getting back into the dating scene after being divorced for a year and a half. There is a guy, "Hank," I'm interested in getting to know better. We both have kids who go to the same high school. We have gone to several out-of-town football games with our kids and have texted each other often.

What's bothering me is Hank has never asked me on a one-on-one date. Should I ask him, or should I wait for him to make the first move? I don't want to appear desperate, but I really would like to get closer. — STEPPING BACK INTO THE SCENE

DEAR STEPPING BACK: I wish you had given me a little more information about Hank — such as why he's raising his children alone and for how long and whether he dates at all. However, I don't think it would be overly aggressive to say (casually) to him, "You know, we never get a chance to talk one-on-one, and I'd like to get to know you better. Why don't we have dinner one night?" It's not an obvious proposition, and if he's at all interested, he'll agree.

DEAR READERS: To those of you living where daylight saving time is observed, I offer this gentle reminder: Don't forget to turn your clocks forward one hour at bedtime tonight. Daylight saving time begins at 2 a.m. Sunday, and you know what that means — spring is on the way!

The stars show the kind of day you'll have: 5-dynamic; 4-positive; 3-average; 2-so-so; 1-difficult

HAPPY BIRTHDAY for Saturday, March 12, 2011:

This year, tension could build. Many of you will know the reason for this stress. Observe how you might say one thing but do another. Some people might act strangely, not knowing which voice to respond to. This behavior could be a problem. If you are single, you could meet someone through your family, roommates and/or around your home. If you are attached, the two of you might start to love nestling in at home. GEMINI can create a lot of tension.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) ★★★★ Don't be too serious. Your point can be made without a stern attitude. A conflict exists between what is being said and what people do. Return calls before setting up appointments. Easily, news could tumble into your lap. Tonight: Catch up on a friend's news.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) ★★ A difficulty can become a drama if you don't stay anchored. You might wonder what is happening behind the scenes. You might feel unappreciated on some level. Look to a mixed message, and you'll understand that it isn't you. Tonight: Browse at a favorite store.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) ★★★★★ You might feel anchored by a situation far more than you realize. Open up to new possibilities. You see someone in a different light than in the past. You might hear promises from a boss or someone you look up to. Remember, action counts. Tonight: Say "yes."

CANCER (June 21-July 22) ★★★ Stay content, and follow your intuition, as long as you can sort fear from feelings. If not, hold off and understand that you could be negative. Do for yourself — take a walk, or whatever works to clear tension. Tonight: A true vanishing act.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) ★★★★ If you would like to approach a situation differently, now is the time. No one will push or force you in any way, shape or form. Pick and choose your words. Be aware of an incongruity between what one person says and his or her actions. Tonight: Where the action is.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) ★★★ Responsibilities call. A parent or older friend might need your feedback or help. Don't hesitate to pitch in. Try walking in his or her shoes. Your finances could limit you in some manner. Others seek you out. Sort through what you want. Tonight: A force to be dealt with.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22) ★★★★★ Please be aware of how seriousness could color a situation. You might not be comfortable with what is happening and the available choices. Deal directly with someone at a distance. This person really cares more than you realize. Tonight: Try a new spot.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21) ★★★★★ Your natural preference is to be with one person at a time. You could be taken aback by everything that is occurring between you and a key person. Let go of judgments as soon as possible. Tonight: Add some spice to the moment.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21) ★★★★★ Others seem to be spinning around you — all with their own set of plans. You might wonder where, who and when. Go for the most intriguing set of plans. Crowds could energize you. Tonight: Fun and games.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) ★★★ You might be in the mood to relax yet also do something. Some of you might opt for the movies, while others might enjoy hanging out with a friend or two. Decide what you want to do, then make plans. Let the world revolve around you. Tonight: Keep it easy.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18) ★★★★★ Your playful sense of humor comes out with someone who might be very serious. Listen and help this person work through his or her issue. Though you might feel like taking an emotional or financial risk, ask yourself, at what cost? Tonight: Let your hair down.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20) ★★★★ Sometimes the best of intentions can go haywire. Know what is happening within your household or family. A partner could be overly stern and not helpful. Look at how you express yourself, if perhaps you are sending a different message than you intend. Tonight: You don't have to go far.

MORE POWER, MORE VERSATILITY: 2011 Dodge Ram HD Pickup truck

RoadWorthy!

By Ken Chester, Jr.
Motor News Media Corporation

Completely redesigned last year, the all-new Dodge Ram Heavy Duty pickup trucks are available for the first time in a crew-size cab model -- providing Dodge with a formidable entry in the highest-volume part of the heavy-duty pickup segment (approximately 50 percent). Bold, powerful and capable, the Dodge Ram Heavy-Duty lineup offers first-time innovations and features along with new standards of strength, utility and driveability.

First and foremost, the 2011 Dodge Ram is about capability. In fact, its many features -- including powertrain, towing and payload capacities, driving dynamics, amenities and styling – truly make it the ultimate heavy-duty pickup truck

Offered in regular, new crew cab and mega cab configurations and ST, SLT, Power Wagon and Laramie models, power for the heavy-duty Ram pickup starts with a 5.7L HEMI V8 gasoline engine with torque communicated through the standard heavy-duty 5-45RFE five-speed automatic transmission. It offers Electronic Range Select and tow-haul capability that provide a unique shift schedule that minimizes gear hunting while towing heavy loads. It also provides automatic downshift capability while decelerating. The optional Cummins 6.7L Turbo Diesel prime mover (std 3500 models) is mated to G56 six-speed manual transmission or a 68RFE six-speed automatic transmission. The six-speed manual has an ultra-low first-gear ratio, which makes it ideal for heavy hauling requirements, while the six-speed automatic offers ease of driveability and towing. Additionally; the Cummins 6.7L meets the most stringent of 50-state emission requirements and includes a segment-exclusive standard exhaust brake.

Two 4x4 transfer cases are available – the NV 271, a manual unit standard on ST and Power Wagon models; and the NV273, an electric shift-on-the-fly transfer case, standard on SLT and Laramie models. A choice of four axle ratios is available for the Dodge Ram 2500 and 3500 Heavy Duty pickups depending on equipment level: 3.42, 3.73, 4.10 or 4.56.

Inside the passenger cabin, the Ram HD offers abundant amenities, comfort and convenience. Many of the comfort and convenience features were pioneered with the all-new 2009 Dodge Ram 1500. Interior appointments include soft-feel door bolsters and armrests and one-piece molded door panels. Seats are redesigned with improved power lumbar and lateral support. Six-ring instrumentation keeps track of vehicle functions, while many controls are arrayed in the center stack for easy reach to buttons and knobs.

Storage is top-of-mind with many work- and leisure-oriented customers, and Dodge provides many more storage locations in its new Ram HD pick-ups. An available center console features an upper bin that is large enough to hold a laptop computer (with an accessible power outlet), and a lower bin that accommodates hanging files. In addition, the console offers several other storage compartments.

Additional storage locations are built into the instrument panel, front and rear door panels, seat backs, and even the floor – in the crew-size cab, two in-floor bins located in the rear footwells of the crew cab offer storage enough for ten 12-ounce cans. Bins have removable liners for easy cleanout. Upper and lower glove boxes provide a total of more than 800 cubic inches of storage.

Ask the Guys

Dear Classified Guys,
I thought changing jobs meant getting better benefits. I had a great interview and received a job offer yesterday. Good job, great pay, but the vacation time is not what I expected. I had worked up to four weeks at my old job, but this company claims two weeks is the standard for new employees. I really like to travel with my family, but this loss of two weeks vacation could cramp our style. Do you have any bright ideas on how to get more vacation time from this job offer?

Cash: You've brought up a problem that we hear from a lot of people. Seasoned employees have a tough time changing jobs and accepting smaller vacation packages. It's difficult to give up a few weeks of traveling.

Carry: Now me, I rarely get to travel on vacation. My time off is spent fixing things around the house. My wife has a whole honey-do list just waiting for my next vacation.

Cash: If you would stop breaking things, you might be able to spend your vacation doing something else.

Carry: That's what my wife keeps telling me too!

Cash: It's odd that so many people complain about vacation time. The average American fails to take about two vacation days every year. Nationwide, that adds up to more than 19 billion dollars of unused time. That's a lot of time off.

Carry: Since you're now in the negotiating stage of your job offer, there is an opportunity to bargain for more vacation time. However, your chances will depend mostly on how valuable the company sees you for the position.

Cash: Management type positions tend to have some leeway in the vacation policy. Entry level or mid-range positions have less opportunity to negotiate time off. Companies try to maintain a standard vacation policy to prevent animosity among the employees.

Carry: If there is no way to negotiate more paid vacation, ask for an unpaid leave-of-absence. Since this new job pays better than your old one, a week or two of unpaid time could be a good compromise.

Cash: Also ask about working overtime in exchange for some days of compensation time. Depending on the position, some companies are willing to work with flexible schedules.

Carry: If all else fails, look at it this way. Counting Saturdays and Sundays, we all have over 100 days off each year.

Fast Facts

Vacation time averages between two to three weeks in the U.S., depending on your length of service. That may not seem too bad, until you compare it with other countries. For example, in Holland, workers get 31 days of paid vacation every year. France and Belgium employees receive five weeks or more and Australians are typically out on holiday for a month or longer. Surprisingly, the only country to average fewer vacation days than the U.S. is Mexico where workers receive six days vacation after the first year of employment.

Take a Break

Have you ever taken a day off and then returned to work the following morning only to feel like you never left. You're not alone. In order for your mind and body to get a true break from the work environment, it's important to take three to five consecutive days away from the office. Turn off your cell phone or tell your boss you are unreachable. That time is typically enough for your body to unwind and rejuvenate. Of course, take enough time off and you might even forget your boss's name!

Telecommuting

As the president of a small, but progressive company, I understand that the workplace is changing. That's why when several employees asked if they could work from home, I decided to meet their needs.

We gave computers to several homebased workers and equipped each PC with net-meeting software. Their only timely obligation was to log into our meeting every morning at 9:00 am to discuss the day's objectives.

It's been working great, but one of my employees periodically logs in 10 to 15 minutes late. During one morning meeting, I decided to confront him and typed, "Why are you late today?"

To my surprise he typed back, "Sorry boss, I was caught in web traffic!"

(Thanks to Dominick D.)
