Law Enforcement To Be 'Explored'

By RAY BAXTER

Last night nine young people between the ages of 14 and 18 discovered that police officers are not only very nice human beings but are interested in the youth of the city beyond their overt behavior.

Five officers from the Pampa police department organized a group of young people between 14 and 18 years of age and the initial meeting was at 7 p.m. yesterday in the Palm Room at city hall.

This group will be known as "The Explorers."

Certainly they will be pioneering in a field of learning and understanding--not crowded with young people at present.

In addition to regular meetings each Thursday night, the group will make field trips planned to acquaint them first hand with behind-the-scenes problems and procedures of law enforcement.

Membership in the explorers is open to both boys and girls and they may bring their parents to the meeting if they desire but it is not mandatory.

The vision of the officers that inspired the effort is proof that, close as they are to the "seamy" side of life, they see hope for the current generation. Their efforts in actively creating this group they consider simply an investment in possible worthy successors to current community leadership.

Officers involved in the Explorers project are J.J. Rysman, Charles Morris, Wayne Maynard, Randol Nichols and Chief Jim Conner.

Senate Schedules Vote On Federal Sharing Bill

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate tentatively scheduled a vote today that could send $2.65 billion—the first installment in a $30-billion revenue-sharing program—flowing to states, cities and other local governments.

If the Senate passes the bill, as is expected, President Nixon is certain to sign it.

The five-year revenue-sharing measure is a key element in his "new federalism" program.

The Treasury, without waiting for passage, has been working for weeks on preparations for mailing 39,000 checks, scheduled to go out before the Nov. 7 election.

The sum to be distributed immediately represents half the $5.3-billion allotment for 1972. The other half is expected to be paid in January.

By a 265-110 vote Thursday, the House passed the bill in its final form, a compromise between versions earlier approved by the two chambers.

Opponents, who contended the bill violates good governmental procedures and would swell the big federal deficits, pressed their unsuccessful fight to the end.

"Really, we ought to have our heads examined as we embark on this historical mistake," said Rep. John W. Byrnes, R-Wis. Byrnes, the senior Republican member of the House Ways and Means Committee who is retiring from Congress this year, broke with the White House to fight revenue sharing.

One-third of each year's allocation, which would rise gradually to $6.4 billion in the fifth year, will go to states to spend as they please. Two-thirds will go to the subordinate governments, to be spent within broad guidelines embracing most governmental areas except education.

The distribution among the states, and within each state, would be governed by complex formulas based on population, tax effort and need as measured by per capita income.

The bill also contains a limitation that would hit some states which have made maximum use of a program for the government to match, three to one, expenditures for social services to the disadvantaged, especially welfare recipients.

There is now no limit on the amount of matching funds states may receive. The bill would set a $2.5-billion annual ceiling and apportion the money among the states by population. It also would tighten requirements that the funds be used primarily for welfare recipients.

Pesticide Law Reform

WASHINGTON (AP) — With mixed feelings about an indemnity provision, Congress has sent President Nixon a bill calling for the first major pesticide-law reform in 25 years.

A Senate-passed compromise providing for new rules to govern chemical warfare against pests was approved 198 to 99 by the House Thursday night.

For the first time, pesticides would be subject to regulation through control of chemical use rather than merely the making and labeling of a product, said sponsors of the legislation, while ways to ban pesticides would be streamlined to to head off widespread damage.

C-C Tickets For Banquet Sold Out

Tickets for the Pampa Chamber of Commerce annual banquet in the Heritage Room of the M.K. Brown Memorial Auditorium Oct. 24 were completely sold out today.

Approximately 550 reservations have been made, according to Roy Sparkman, chamber president. It will be the largest crowd ever to attend the annual affair and the first time there has been a sellout ten days ahead of the banquet.

New officers of the 1972-73 chamber year will officially take office at the banquet.

Lt. Gov. George Nigh of Oklahoma, nationally known humorist, will be the speaker and entertainment will be by the New Day, a musical group from West Texas University under the direction of Hugh Sanders, former Pampa High School choir director.

Optimists To Honor Newspaper Carriers

Approximately 80 Pampa newspaper carriers will be honored by the Pampa Optimist Club Monday, Oct. 23, at a hamburger supper.

The party, to be given at the regular club meeting, will be a follow-up to national Newspaper Carriers Day which falls tomorrow.

Optimist president R.W. McPhillips will be the official host and a special program will be given for the carriers.

Chile Plagued By Spreading Walkouts

SANTIAGO, Chile (AP) — President Salvador Allende's troubles increased today with the announcement of an indefinite strike by small businesses, retail shops, the construction industry and private farmers.

They were called out in support of a nationwide trucking strike and to express their opposition to Allende's socialist program.

The Marxist president declared a state of emergency in Santiago and a large part of populous central Chile Thursday as a result of the trucking strike, now in its third day.

Gasoline rationing was ordered as some service stations went dry, and some bakeries ran out of flour.

Despite the state of emergency, Jorge Fontaine, president of the Confederation of Production and Commerce, said the sympathy strike would begin today.

The confederation's members are threatened by Allende's plans to convert Chile to socialism eventually.

Fontaine said in a broadcast they were striking because of "repeated attacks against freedom to work and freedom of expression and to express our solidarity with the national trucking movement."

The University Student Federation, led by Communist Alejandro Rojas, issued a call to impede "the new reactionary escalation aimed at defeating the government."

The Councils of Supplies and Prices, formed by the government in poor neighborhoods to report store owners charging more than official prices, called upon its members to take measures "to open the businesses that remain closed."

The truckers' strike began late Tuesday after the breakdown of talks between the government and the Confederation of Truck Owners, which is demanding higher cargo rates.

Some 300 truck drivers and owners, including confederation president Leon Vilarin, have been arrested and charged with breaking the internal security law.

Gen. Hector Bravo, chief of the emergency zone for Santiago province, banned all demonstrations as well as publication of news that the government considered "exaggerated, alarmist, tendentious or provocative."

The general, in a nationwide broadcast, also forbade the carrying of firearms by civilians, ordered police checkpoints to control traffic into Santiago and ordered the police to patrol roads and highways to keep the striking truck drivers from blocking them, as they did the Pan American Highway north and south of the capital Wednesday.

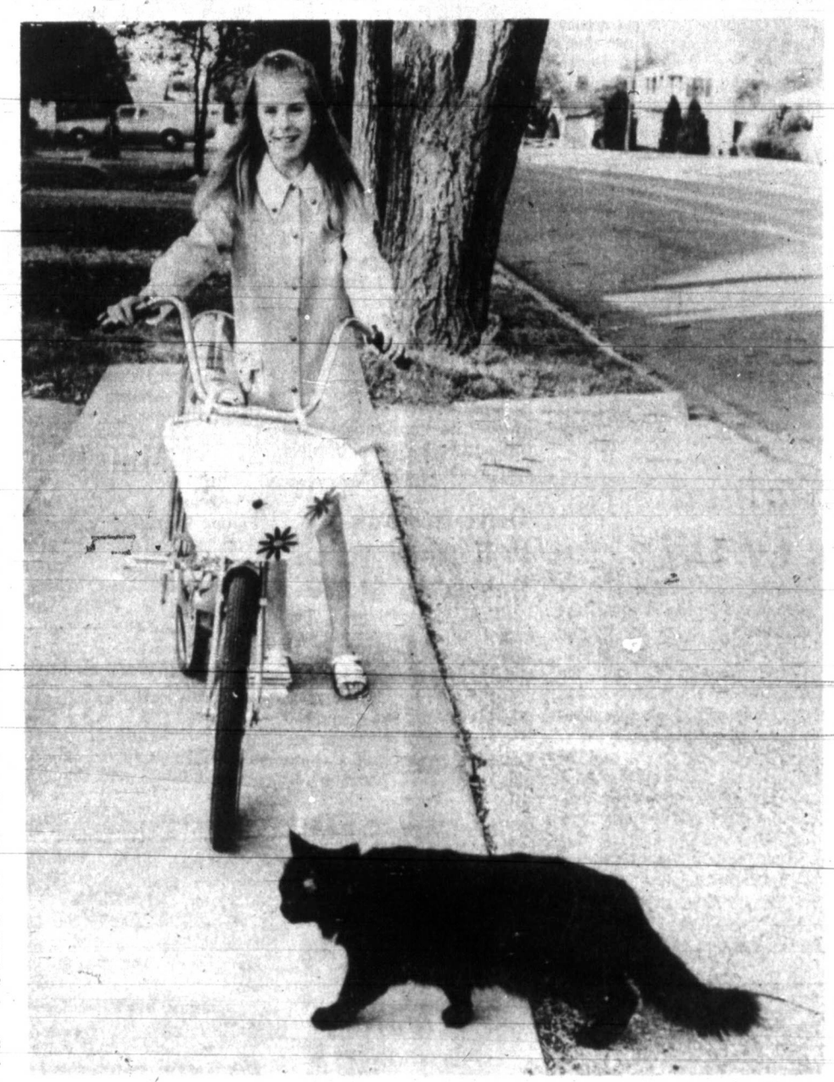

Meanwhile, Allende told a group of directors of the Inter-American Press Association that "freedom of the press and, in general, freedom of expression" will be maintained "at all costs" in Chile.

Oakland A's To Challenge Cincinnati Reds

DETROIT (AP) — The Oakland A's, with stellar pitching performances from John Odom and Vida Blue, won the American League pennant Thursday, beating the Detroit Tigers 2-1 in the championship playoffs.

The victory, the A's third in the final game of the best-of-five series, places Oakland in the World Series beginning Saturday against the National League champion Cincinnati Reds.

White House Still Silent On Secret Talks Results

FRIDAY THE 13TH — This is the day those inclined to popular superstitions think maybe they should have "stood in bed." Three on a match, walking under ladders and having black cats cross your path are strictly taboo. Kelly D. Love, 10-year-old granddaughter of Mrs. C.V. Ingram, 1215 Williston, is shown as she stopped when a black cat crossed her path.

President Nixon Briefed By Aide On Negotiations

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon received a breakfast briefing from adviser Henry A. Kissinger today as the administration continued its silence on whether his intensive Paris negotiation had made progress toward ending the Vietnam war.

Before a crackling fireplace in the White House family dining room, Nixon conferred with Kissinger, Secretary of State William P. Rogers, and Kissinger's top assistant on the National Security Council, Gen. Alexander M. Haig Jr.

Nixon was given an initial report from Kissinger and Haig Thursday night after they returned from Paris and an unprecedented four days of private talks with North Vietnamese negotiator, Le Duc Tho and Xuan Thuy.

Kissinger and Haig, upon arriving Thursday night from Paris, said nothing to newsmen. The two went directly to the White House for an initial report to Nixon.

A White House source said he knew of no immediate plans to disclose what has gone on in the negotiations. So far Nixon has said only that "the negotiations are at a sensitive stage."

Against this backdrop, Senate Republican Leader Hugh Scott Thursday predicted that the United States' "warlike participation" in Vietnam will be over by Jan. 20.

The White House silence on the secret negotiations, matched by Hanoi's silence, has set off flurries of speculation that a peace deal is near at hand. But some rumors also portray the rival envoys as still far apart.

The announced circumstances suggest that the two sides have gone into each others' peace terms in considerable detail, perhaps refining differences in a way to allow leadership decisions on the next negotiating move.

If so, Nixon could be weighing options brought home by Kissinger. A decision on the timing and scope of the next U.S. move would be up to the President.

Meanwhile, the public side of Vietnam peace diplomacy continued to find the rivals in deep deadlock. Both the Vietnamese communists and the allies held to their long-standing positions at Thursday's 163rd session of the weekly Paris talks.

North Vietnam said the Nixon administration "only prolongs the deadlock of the Paris conference, prolongs the war." The Viet Cong again demanded a total U.S. pullout and ouster of South Vietnamese President Nguyen Van Thieu.

U.S. Ambassador William J. Porter renewed the U.S. call for an end to North Vietnam's invasion of South Vietnam.

Reds Seize Border Camp In Highlands

SAIGON (AP) — North Vietnamese forces today overran the Ben Het border camp in the central highlands, a legacy from the Green Berets that had withstood years of assaults.

A two-day attack drove South Vietnamese forces from the camp for the first time in the war. This coupled with increased attacks in other parts of the highlands apparently signaled a renewal there of the offensive the North Vietnamese launched 6½ months ago.

The Saigon command said that two days of heavy shelling, in which at least 1,500 rounds of heavy artillery, rockets and mortar hit Ben Het, destroying the defenders' artillery, ammunition and a food warehouse.

Radio contact was lost with the camp Thursday night after units of the 320th North Vietnamese Division launched a ground assault, the chief spokesman for the Saigon command, Lt. Col. Le Trung Hien, said.

More than 100 strikes by American and South Vietnamese fighter-bombers and U.S. B52 bombers failed to drive off the North Vietnamese.

Hien said about 140 of the camp's 300-man garrison were spotted by observation planes southwest of the base and contact had been made with them.

There was no word yet on the fate of the other troops.

Most of the men were Montagnards—mountain tribesmen—and many had their families living in the camp.

The mountaintop camp is just east of the triborder region where the frontiers of South Vietnam, Cambodia and Laos meet. It was established as an observation post to track North Vietnamese infiltration along the Ho Chi Minh Trail.

Ben Het has been virtually surrounded by the North Vietnamese for years, and periodically the enemy has laid siege to the camp. But this is the first time it has fallen.

When the Green Berets of the U.S. Special Forces were in Vietnam, they led and trained the camp's garrison of Montagnards. The camp was turned over to the South Vietnamese on Jan. 4, 1971, but most of the Montagnards signed up as rangers and stayed on at the camp.

Congress To Tackle Major Bills As Session Adjournment Nears

WASHINGTON (AP) — Inching toward final adjournment, Congress planned to tackle several major bills today but it appeared likely two of them would delay the end of the session until early next week.

The legislators had intended to adjourn the 92nd session by Saturday.

But no settlement seemed probable before Monday or Tuesday on the Social Security-welfare bill now in a House-Senate conference committee, and the $250-billion spending ceiling President Nixon had requested.

Both houses extended the Thursday sessions into the night in an effort to whittle down the last-minute crush.

The House passed the compromise $74.3-billion defense appropriations bill, one of the largest in history. The Senate planned to vote on it today and send it to the President.

The House cleared the compromise revenue-sharing bill and sent it to the Senate which plans to pass it on to Nixon this afternoon. The measure would distribute $30 billion in federal funds to the state and local governments over five years.

The spending-ceiling measure Thursday was cleared by the Senate Finance Committee for floor debate. The panel's 8-8 tie vote blocked efforts to put restrictions on Nixon's power to cut federal programs to stay within the $250-billion ceiling he seeks for the current fiscal year.

The legislation was scheduled for consideration by the full Senate this afternoon.

Democrats said they would continue the fight to put some limits on the bill's broad grant of authority to the President.

As the bill passed the House, the President could cut any program by any amount he chooses, to hold spending to the $250-billion limit.

Conferees today were to conduct their third meeting in an effort to resolve conflicts between the House and Senate versions of the 989-page bill.

McGovern Described As 'Isolationist' By Connally

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Stumping for President Nixon, former Texas Gov. John B. Connally has called Democratic candidate George McGovern an "isolationist" who "has no business being President."

Connally told 600 persons attending a $10-a-plate "Democrats for Nixon" luncheon Thursday they would be asked Nov. 7 to "make the most important decision of your lifetime."

In urging Democrats to abandon their party's choice this election, he said, "I don't like to be called a turncoat. But I don't mind if it comes from the McGovern people."

Connally, a Democrat who served as secretary of the treasury under Nixon, quoted the late Democratic presidential nominee Adlai Stevenson as saying "it would be a sad day for the country" if party labels were the only basis for electoral choices.

Democrats should not be ashamed to vote for a Republican candidate for President, he said. And should "do it with your head high and your chest out regardless of party ... if in your judgment you should support Nixon."

McGovern is an "isolationist and always has been," Connally said. "He voted for the Gulf of Tonkin Resolution and supported President Johnson and now he says he was never" for the Vietnam war.

Connally also accused McGovern of making unfair attacks upon President Nguyen Van Thieu of South Vietnam.

Philippines Nabs 2 U.S. Priests

MANILA (AP) — Government troops have arrested two American Roman Catholic priests accused of inciting rebellion through illegal broadcasts over their radio station on Negros Island, central Philippines, Information Secretary Francisco S. Tatad announced today.

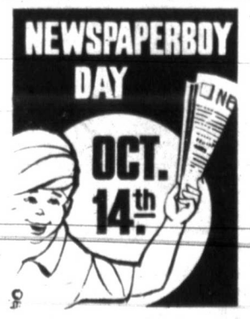

The Rev. Bruno Hicks, 43, was arrested on Sept. 26 and the Rev. John Peterson, 45, on Sept. 29, on charges of violating the closure of all news media in the nation after martial law was imposed Sept. 22, Tatad added. He said the priests made the broadcasts over a station they called "The Voice of the Voiceless."

In his afternoon news briefing, Tatad said the two priests were undergoing interrogation by the military and no details were available.

An intensified campaign against dissident forces continued in the jungles of the Sierra Madre mountain range, 150 miles northeast of Manila, Tatad reported.

Muskie May File Suit Against G.O.P. For Campaign 'Espionage'

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Edmund S. Muskie says his campaign for the Democratic presidential nomination was riddled with an "astonishing series" of incidents of apparent espionage and sabotage.

Though sidestepping accusing specific individuals, the Maine Democrat and his staff suggested Thursday that Republicans were to blame.

Muskie said he has not ruled out the possibility of filing suit against the Committee for the Re-election of the President and certain White House officials linked in published reports of alleged sabotage.

The occurrences labeled suspicious by the Muskie staff peaked during the period the senator was considered the frontrunner for the nomination subsequently won by Sen. George McGovern.

The incidents dropped off when Muskie's campaign faltered.

The list released by the Muskie staff included possible cases of wiretapping, stolen documents, forged campaign literature, false news releases, and bogus telephone calls arousing voters in the middle of the night.

The list was prefaced with the admonition that the incidents had not been thoroughly investigated and were "not intended at this time as charges against any individual or group."

John T. McEvoy, the senator's administrative assistant, said the incidents "were not undertaken in the spirit of fun. They were undertaken to destroy a candidate."

Muskie said, "Over the past 18 months, there have been a number of inexplicable incidents that seem to us to be inevitably involved with somebody's sabotage efforts."

In a related development, Chairman Wright Patman was stymied in efforts to conduct House Banking Committee hearings on financial aspects of the investigation of the break-in and alleged bugging of Democratic headquarters in the Watergate building.

Republicans on the committee boycotted the session Thursday, as did the four White House and re-election committee officials who Patman, D-Tex., had invited to testify.

But one of those Patman sought to question, Maurice H. Stans, was ordered to appear in a Miami court to testify in the trial of Bernard L. Barker, one of the seven men indicted in the Watergate case.

Muskie and his assistant tied their own list of possible sabotage incidents to reports published earlier this week linking White House aide Kenneth W. Clawson and one-time GOP campaign worker James W. McCord to similar occurrences.

Clawson, deputy director of White House communications, was quoted as acknowledging that he wrote a letter accusing Muskie of condoning a racial slur against Americans of French-Canadian descent. Clawson denied making the statement. Muskie had denied the incident mentioned in the letter.

Newsweek magazine this week reports that McCord, also under indictment in the Watergate case, once rented an office next to the Muskie campaign headquarters on K Street in Washington.

"If these reports are correct," McEvoy said, "they weren't there to measure the traffic on K Street. They were in there to listen."

Muskie has said published reports "suggest a political opposition which is ruthless and unprincipled."

The Muskie memo labeled these incidents as suspicious:

—During the New Hampshire primary campaign a number of Manchester, N.H., residents received middle-of-the-night telephone calls from persons falsely identifying themselves as black canvassers of the Harlem for Muskie Committee "who were calling New Hampshire people to urge them to vote for Muskie because he would be so good for black people."

—Several hundred other New Hampshire residents from all over the state complained of post-midnight phone calls from alleged Muskie people ..."

—Just prior to the Florida primary, a flyer appeared in parts of that state on Muskie stationery. It accused (Sen. Henry M.) Jackson of illicit sexual activity and made comparable allegations about (Sen. Hubert H.) Humphrey. It was, of course, bogus and was apparently designed to hurt Muskie, while tarring Jackson and Humphrey too."

Texas House Plans Final Vote On Competitive Insurance Bill

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — Their hopes of early adjournment vanished, Texas House members take a final vote today on that chamber's version of a competitive auto and home insurance rate bill.

Senators, meanwhile, planned to vote on an amended version of the House-passed bill creating a state commission to plan an offshore port of jumbo oil tankers.

Before today's vote on his competitive rate bill, Austin Rep. Don Cavness hoped to talk the House into removing an amendment telling the State Insurance Board to set maximum rates. That amendment also would outlaw separate—and higher—auto rates for men under 25, and Cavness said it would push up rates for other drivers who would have to share the cost of the greater number of accidents caused by young men.

House members tentatively approved Cavness bill Thursday night, 88-47.

The ultimate bill on competitive rates is expected to be a compromise worked out by a House-Senate conference committee. Senators passed their bill Wednesday.

Gov. Preston Smith served notice Thursday night that his decision whether to call another special session will hang on what the Legislature's final word is on competitive rates.

"I will want to see the final action of the Legislature on the compromise competitive rating bill before I make a determination ...," Smith said in a written statement.

Lawmakers, particularly those in contested political races with just 3½-weeks remaining until election day, are anxious to go home and did not welcome Smith's threat.

The session has a constitutional adjournment deadline of midnight Tuesday, but many lawmakers had expected it to end today.

Smith added the 28th and 29th topics to his call of the session Thursday night.

He said he wanted the lawmakers to consider enacting penalties for "certain heinous crimes," which he did not enumerate. A recent U.S. Supreme Court decision outlawed the death penalty in Texas as it has been applied.

"While I am not advocating a return to a system of capital punishment, I feel it is essential that certain maximum punishments be provided by law for those who commit heinous crimes. Determining what that punishment should be is a legislative responsibility," the governor said.

Some legislators advocate giving courts a choice only between the death penalty and a mandatory life sentence with no possibility of parole in certain cases. They contend this would satisfy the Supreme Court.

ToT Rodeo Unit Picks President

Bill McIntyre, Pampa rancher, was elected president of the Top O' Texas Rodeo Association at a board meeting last night in the Chamber of Commerce offices.

Other officers named for the coming year include Dr. Kenneth Royse, first vice president; Bill Tidwell, second vice president; Don Kite, treasurer, and E.O. Wedgeworth, secretary.

McIntyre will succeed Holly Gray, outgoing president.

TOT directors discussed plans to rejuvenate the annual rodeo next summer and make it bigger and better than ever, according to association officials.

Man Injured In Altercation

A 36-year old Pampa man was treated last night at Highland General Hospital for injuries from a fight and admitted for X-rays and further examination.

Metropolitan ambulance attendants called police after they had been summoned to a local night club to pick up the injured man.

Officers found him lying on the parking lot with a number of cuts about the head and face and, apparently, in a highly intoxicated state.

Witnesses told officers the victim had initiated the altercation that led to his injuries. He had made no indication this morning whether he would file charges.

Vandals Again Damage Glass

Glass took a breaking in Pampa last night with a $300 loss at a wig shop and loss of a rear car window on N. Banks.

The manager of the wig salon on N. Hobart showed investigating officers holes in a display window either made by BBs or by a pellet gun.

In the 600 block N. Banks, a parked car had the rear glass completely shattered. According to the official report, it was difficult to assess whether the damage was from BBs or a rock thrown, possibly from a passing vehicle.

Drive-In Bank In Houston Area Robbed Of $4,000

HOUSTON (AP) — Police sought today two young men who robbed a drive-in teller of $4,000 at the Meyerland Bank.

Milton Smith, senior vice president of the bank, said the men drove up in a green car late Thursday and placed a white sack in the drawer with a note attached. Smith said the teller thought the sack contained explosives and that one of the men also had a gun.

Janis Gerhardt, the teller, told police that when she first saw the bag she thought the man was making a hugh deposit.

Two Suspected Drug Traffickers, One Agent Killed During NY Raid

NEW YORK (AP) — One federal agent and two suspected drug traffickers were killed Thursday night when federal Bureau of Narcotics agents raided a motor inn on Manhattan's West Side. A second agent was critically wounded.

A Bureau of Narcotics spokesman said the shootout occurred about 10 p.m. EDT when a federal undercover agent arrived at a 10th floor room at the Sheraton Motor Inn for a prearranged meeting to buy 10 pounds of cocaine with $160,000 in cash.

Frank V. Monastero, associate regional director of the bureau, said the two men who met the agent "had no intention" of going through with the deal and planned to rob the agent of the money.

When the agent, identified by police as Tom Devine, attempted to resist the robbery he was shot. A backup agent, identified as Frank Cumillo, burst into the room and was shot and killed, Monastero said.

The two alleged narcotics dealers were shot by agents and died in the hallway outside the room, police said. They were identified as Jose Matta and J. Nieves.

Monastero said one of the suspected dealers was a "major trafficker in narcotics." He said the agent who carried the money had met previously with the suspected dealers.

Police clamped a tight security net around the incident and no further details were immediately available.

Devine was taken to Roosevelt Hospital where he was said to be in critical condition.

Curfew Violated

A 15-year old Pampa youth was booked for violation of probation when officers found him out past his curfew.

Police were checking vehicles in the vicinity of an attempted break-in when they stopped a car with what they thought were three young women.

One of them proved to be the youth dressed completely in female garb. He was released to relatives pending action by juvenile authorities.

Red Chinese Physicians Visiting Six U.S. Cities

WASHINGTON (AP) — The first physicians from China to visit the United States since the early 1950s were scheduled to start a coast-to-coast tour today to see what's new in American medicine.

Tight security regulations have been laid down to safeguard their comings and goings in six American cities during an $80,000 trip entirely sponsored and funded by private U.S. scientific and medical organizations.

Although the U.S. government is reported to have no official hand in the visit—as was true of other U.S. Chinese visits—the doctors may be greeted when they arrive here by high government officials.

President Nixon met with the Chinese table-tennis team which visited Washington last spring.

Advance word, including published reports attributed to Premier Chou En-lai himself, was that the visiting doctors were especially interested in what their U.S. counterparts are doing in cancer and heart disease treatment and research; bronchitis and common-cold studies—and what progress they're making toward developing a once-a-month birth-control pill.

The 10 doctors, including Mme. Lin Chiao Chih, a 72-year-old gynecologist who once did postgraduate study in Chicago, arrived in New York Thursday, but scientific phases of their tour are due to start in the Washington area.

The delegation is headed by Dr. Wu Wei-jan, vice chairman of the all-China Medical Association, the surgeon who operated on New York Times columnist James Reston in Peking last year for appendicitis.

Man Prefers Used Car To Souvenirs

HOUSTON (AP) — An aerospace worker who has fallen on hard times says he will trade a pair of space souvenirs for a used car.

Earl Guthridge said Thursday a used car has become more important to him than a souvenir he says Capt. Alan B. Shephard brought back from the moon.

And he says if he can obtain a 1970 model car or later he will throw in another item that circled the moon in the wounded Apollo 13 spacecraft.

Guthridge, 40, worked at the Manned Spacecraft Center for three years as a training technician, said he has a plaque bearing a bolt that Shephard took off an experiments package on the moon during the Apollo 14 mission.

He said he also was given a piece of netting from the Apollo 13 spacecraft which was striken by an explosion that kept it from completing its moon-landing attempt.

The bolt is one of many of the experiments package that must be removed so the package can be unfolded. It is not needed in any way once the package is unfolded.

The netting is used in the spacecraft to hold items that would otherwise float about in the spacecraft.

"It's not something I want to do," Guthridge said, "but I'm trying to get out of debt."

He was laid off by an aerospace contractor at MSC in August, 1971.

He figures he needs about $3,500.

San Juan River In Utah Stained By About 120,000 Gallons Of Oil

MEXICAN HAT, Utah (AP) — Crews began work at first light this morning to try to block a miles-long oil slip on the San Juan River from polluting Lake Powell in southeastern Utah.

Federal Parks officials and crews from the Texas-New Mexico Pipeline Co. began moving a system of special styrofoam floats and log booms with fabric skirts to the Copper Canyon-Piute Farms area, where the river flows in the lake, last night.

They hope to halt the spreading oil there and skim it from the surface of the lake.

The office of Gov. Calvin L. Rampton said spokesmen for the pipeline company reported that 3,000 barrels, about 120,000 gallons, of oil entered the river when the line ruptured 14 miles northeast of Shiprock, N.M. The break was discovered Tuesday.

The miles-long slick flowed down through rugged and almost inaccessible country almost 10 miles before it entered the Glan Canyon National Recreation Area late Thursday.

The slick covered the entire 300-foot width of the river in some places. Newsmen viewing it from the air said it appeared that the chocolate-colored slick would reach the clear emerald waters of Lake Powell by this morning.

Rampton's office expressed concern that, even though the pipe rupture apparently occurred Tuesday or earlier, the state was not notified until about 11 a.m. Wednesday. A company spokesman said that the federal Environmental Protection Agency was notified promptly when the leak was found.

The oil-trapping equipment was brought by boat from Hall's Crossing on the Colorado River arm of the Y-shaped lake. More gear was to begin the 90-mile trip today.

Rampton's office said, the Coast Guard could bring in special equipment if asked, but that was not being considered yet.

Officials were hoping that the oil's spread would slow when it reached the more placid lake, giving them time to get their equipment into place.

The brown-black oil left a residue on both sides of the river. Some of the steep canyons rising from the water's edge showed stains visible from the air.

Wanda Harrison, a staff member at a Seventh-day Adventist Indian hospital in Monument Valley, said she and her family drove past Mexican Hat Sunday and noticed what appeared to be dark streaks in the river.

The company said it did not know when the rupture occurred.

Phil Iverson of the National Park Service and Bob Kenney of Texaco Corp. owner of the pipeline company, said the rapidly moving water of the river made it impossible to stop the oil before it entered Copper Canyon.

Iverson said he had received reports that canyon walls had been stained at some points, and he expressed concern that the canyon's walls would also be left stained by the rise and fall of the reservoir's water level.

At worst, he said, the oil could spread across the lake and cut off oxygen needed by aquatic life. At best, he said, it could be trapped at Copper Canyon before it caused any more staining.

An observer at Mexican Hat, photographer Roger Chadwick of Moab, said the oil began passing Mexican Hat Thursday morning. From there the river cannot be reached before Copper Canyon.

Lavor Chaffin of the Deseret News in Salt Lake City, also on the scene at Mexican Hat, said the oil gave a stench to the river and had a mottled effect, "like chocolate in a marble cake."

Iverson estimated the oil was moving at two miles per hour. He said another danger would be to marine life if the oil breaks down into toxins.

Officials of the Utah Division of Wildlife Resources were making tests.

Kenney said the break was discovered by aircraft making routine checks of the line just before midnight Tuesday. He said the system was shut off when the break was discovered. The line carries oil from the Aneth Oil Fields to Jal, N.M., and then to a refinery at El Paso, Texas.

Iverson said the pipeline runs parallel to the San Juan and the rupture was near an irrigation ditch, which carried the oil directly into the river.

Apollo 17 Astronauts To Probe Moon Water

CAPE KENNEDY Fla. (AP) —Water on the moon? Apollo 17 astronauts are practicing the use of a space-age "divining rod" to sound for water below the lunar surface in their Dec. 6 moon mission.

Commander Eugene A. Cernan said, "I think when you have something as exotic as the moon, something we have so much to learn about... there's always the possibility of finding anything, anywhere."

"With our experiments, we're going to get a good idea whether there is water on the moon," he said. "The probability is pretty low, but we can't discount the possibility."

Cernan and Astronaut Harrison H. Schmitt, the Apollo 17 moon landers, showed off one of the water-detection experiments to newsmen Wednesday while they rehearsed a lunar walk on a sandy, mock moonscape at Cape Kennedy.

It's called a "surface electrical properties experiment" to measure electrical and mechanical characteristics of the subsurface, including matter that might be in the form of ice or permafrost.

"If their is water beneath the surface, we should be able to detect it with this equipment," explained Schmitt, a geologist and the first scientist-astronaut assigned to a space flight.

"So far thre's no indication of a subsurface known to be water-bearing," he said. "But the dark mantle deposits at our Taurus-Littrow landing site, which may be young and volcanic in origin, could be one of the best places on the moon to find water.

"Still I feel the possibility that water exists there is slim," he added.

Astronaut Ronald E. Evans, who will orbit the moon while Cernan and Schmitt explore below, also will operate a water detection instrument called a lunar sounder. It is a transmit radio beams to probe for physical properties down to a subsurface depth of three-quarters of a mile.

Russia Said Producing New Supersonic Bomber

WASHINGTON (AP) — Military intelligence sources say Russia may have started quantity production of a new supersonic bomber believed capable of reaching the United States.

U.S. officials have been monitoring Soviet p.)gress in testing the new swing-wing bomber, code-named Backfire, for about three years.

In a new assessment of Soviet aircraft production, U.S. intelligence experts indicated the Russians may have moved beyond the development phase and into production of the bomber.

They estimated the Russians have completed about 12 of the new bombers so far, but do not yet know how many the Russians plan to build.

Nor are American experts certain whether the Russians intend the 1,500-mile-an-hour bomber for use against possible enemies in Asia or Europe, or whether they are thinking of lengthier missions.

The Backfire is rated capable of operating against targets up to 3,000 miles from Russian bases and returning home without refueling. This, in the view of U.S. experts, means the Backfire could strike against the United States in the event of war.

There is nothing in the limited nuclear-arms-limitation agreement to bar the United States and Russia from pushing ahead with new bomber development and manufacture.

The United States is working on an advance bomber, called the B1, which is somewhat similar to the Soviet Backfire. But the new American bomber could not be ready for combat until 1977 at the earliest. The Pentagon has not yet decided whether to start production.

Over the past few years the Nixon administration has thinned out this country's anti-bomber defenses, in part because they have been growing obsolete and costly to operate.

Instead, the administration wants to install a new air-defense system equipped to deal with the most sophisticated bomber threat of the 1970s and 1980s. Such a system would cost up to $15 billion.

The Soviets now own about 195 aging long-range bombers and tankers to refuel them in flight.

The U.S. strategic-bomber fleet numbers about 400 B52s and 70 more-modern FB111s. Half the B52s are committed to the Southeast Asian war.

The Backfire is believed capable of penetrating enemy airspace at lower altitudes at relatively high speeds. It is likely to be armed with air-to-surface missiles and bombs and to be equipped with electronic devices for foiling defense radar and antiaircraft weapons.

Scientists Studying Diabetic Baboons

GALVESTON, Tex. (AP) — A researcher at the University of Texas Medical Branch is conducting research with diabetic baboons which he hopes one day may lead to the successful treatment of such diabetic complications as blindness and kidney failure.

Dr. Clark Stout Jr., associate professor in the department of pathology, said the process being studied, microangiopathy, is a degenerative, occlusive disease of the small blood vessels which mainly occurs in patients with diabetes.

"It is even possible," he said, "that in addition to blindness and kidney problems, microangiopathy may also be responsible for other problems in diabetes such as peripheral neuropathy, the process which causes loss of sensation in limbs.

Sea Is Way of Life for Maldivians

By MORT ROSENBLUM

MALE, Maldives (AP) — Anyone can have a shipping line subsidized by the state. Here's a place where the state is subsidized by the shipping line.

This Moslem republic, with 110,000 inhabitants scattered over coral islands totaling a few square miles in the middle of the Indian Ocean, has a fleet of 32 freighters and a number of smaller craft.

The vessels carry two to three million tons of tramp cargo a year, including most exports of Ceylon, 400 miles to the east. They handle Egyptian fertilizer and Japanese watchsprings.

The Maldivian National Trading Corp. operates the fleet from a crumbling building in Ceylon that could accommodate every government office in this tiny capital back home.

As with many things in the tight-lipped republic, the books of the corporation aren't discussed. But the government owns a major share with a few insiders known to hold the rest.

Directors are reluctant to announce their capital or turnover, but shipping sources report the corporation pays cash on the spot for ocean-going freighters on the second hand market.

It is clear a large share of government revenue comes from shipping profits.

The line started in 1955 when small Maldivian boats were trapped by a monsoon and couldn't bring home imports. It was discovered that buying a freighter was cheaper than chartering one.

Since then the company added about a vessel a year and then stepped up the pace until the fleet's capacity totalled 120,000 gross tons.

Ships are added any way they can be gotten. Two Taiwanese trawlers that strayed close to the Maldives in 1970 were seized and put into service as coasters. The crews were charged heavy fines for fishing in Maldivian waters and sent home.

Maldivian vessels carry a British flag which directors say offers an advantage worth the price of London registration in troubled Middle Eastern waters.

The officers are mainly Indian and British and all deck crews are Maldivians.

"They are born to the sea, the Maldivians," said one corporation official. "We have a master with no certificate who is a better sailor than anyone. If his engine fails, he just puts out a sail . . ."

Maldivian skills at boatbuilding and navigation are undisputed. On a recent visit, Queen Elizabeth and Prince Philip stood in honest amazement as craftsmen whipped up a boat with crude iron tools.

Fishermen, using ancient Arabic star sighting, sail for days at a time in tiny boats. If their water runs out, they simply ship seawater and lie in it to keep from being dehydrated.

A boy begins rowing beyond the reefs by his eighth birthday, and most youths can stay alive for weeks on end lost at sea.

Besides shipping returns and payments from an island leased to the British Royal Air Force, about the only other government revenue comes from fish caught by Maldivians.

Maldive fish is carried to Ceylon in small boats that take four days for the crossing. The merchant fleet doesn't bother with such small pickings, and its ships rarely see the Maldives at all.

The Maldivian line carries freight for less than the minimums set by international freight conferences, giving it a slight advantage.

Its ships range from Japan to the Red Sea and the Persian Gulf. If the Suez Canal reopens, directors say, they will sail in the Mediterranean.

AT HOME AT SEA — Maldivians commute home to their own islands after a day's work at the British base at Gan. Maldivians grow up on the water and are expert sailors and boatbuilders.

A Unique Political Medal

Collectors of political memorabilia will find the new and unusual Mark O. Hatfield medal something of a prize. This particular piece comes in both bronze and silver, as do most medals, but what makes it unique is that nowhere does it refer to a political party.

This must be a compliment to the senator from Oregon, taking for granted the immense popularity enjoyed among voters in his state, Republican or Democrat.

The model and the medals were a gift to the senator from Ralph J. Menconi as a gesture of long-standing friendship. This in itself is most unusual and came as a surprise to both Hatfield and the Medallic Art Company, which produced a series in bronze and a series in silver. Menconi and Hatfield served together on the coins and medals panel of the American Revolution Bicentennial Commission. "It was," to quote Mr. Menconi, ". . . something I wanted to do as a birthday gift to a good friend."

The obverse portrait was sculptured from a composite of photographs including one by Fabian Bachrach. The medal measures 2¾" in diameter and shows the likeness of Hatfield embayed by 33 stars and his name closed at the base with the inscription, "United States Senator —Oregon."

A topographical map of Oregon occupies the entire reverse with a beaver superimposed at the base. Neither side has a rim or border, but on close examination, the signature of Ralph J. Menconi can be found just under the bust truncation of Mr. Hatfield on the obverse.

Interested readers may order a bronze specimen for $10 or a silver for $100 by writing directly to the senator's campaign office—P.O. Box 1972, Salem, Oregon 97308. They are being sold on a first-come, first-served basis with no limit to an order. However, the entire edition is limited.

In reading the description of the medal and the story behind it, sent to me by David Poling of the New Mexico Synod of the United Presbyterian Church, also a close friend of the senator, I learned that Hatfield was an avid collector of Menconi's work as displayed in the U.S. Presidential medal series and the Signers of Declaration of Independence series. And I can't help wondering just where the good senator will place the unique Hatfield medal in his Menconi collection.

Mr. David Lehr. The W initial on the face of your 1938 Mercury Head dime is actually the letters AW superimposed. It is the initials of the coins designer Mr. A. A. Weinman.

Mrs. Barbara Mathews. The initials J.S. below the profile on your Roosevelt dime are those of the designer, John R. Sinnock.

Mrs. John Botzic. A three-legged Buffalo nickel has most of the right front leg missing. A missing left front leg is merely a bad job at trying to create a collectors' item. Somebody goofed.

Mr. Wm. Babcock. Any legally issued gold coin of the United States issued prior to 1933 may be bought or sold without having to obtain a license from the Treasury. Just make sure it is genuine and no younger than 40 years old.

Mr. Paul Miller. An 1877 Indian-head cent is valued at roughly $80 to $700 depending on its condition. When you gold plate it the value will be exactly what some dummy would offer and no more. The coin will have been ruined in the process.

Mr. Steve Clamer. Silver comes in many compositions. The best is .999 Fine which means it is as pure as you can get it. Sterling on the other hand is slightly better than coin silver. Sterling is .925 alloyed with .075 copper while coin silver is .900 alloyed with .100 copper. The difference will be noticed in the resale value.

'You're A Born Winner'

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK (AP) — Some people never seem to have any luck because other people seem to have all the luck.

There are, on the one hand, the losers, and on the other hand, the winners.

The losers usually have a hangdog air as they go through this world, the winners a topdog look.

There are other ways, of course, to tell them apart.

You can safely be reckoned a born winner if —

The reason you have so few friends is that, with your kind of luck, friends would only be a liability.

Cabs go out of the way to pick you up on a rainy day.

The church won't sell you any more lottery tickets, because you always win first prize. That's also why they only let you play bingo every other Wednesday night — so that on the nights you're not there someone else has a chance to win.

You hardly ever get a chance to call the White House because the White House is usually on the phone to you.

When you were growing up, your mother never, never called you "stupid."

Although he is now over 80 and no longer in the best of health, your father still gets to his feet and says "sir" when you enter the room. The old chap wouldn't hear of having it any other way.

In kindergarten, the only two pretty red-haired girls in the class fought each other in the cloakroom with their fists for the privilege of carrying your books home.

Later on in school, you were the kind of kid the teachers enjoyed bringing apples to.

And when you ate in the high school cafeteria, the waitress always put two more meatballs in your spaghetti than she did anyone else's.

When you buy a stock on the stock market, it invariably goes up; when you sell it, it invariably goes down.

When you go fishing, you have to strike out at the fish with a baseball bat to keep them from all leaping into your boat and surrendering en masse.

When you play golf with your boss, you let him win a hole now and then just so he'll have some inducement to go on living.

When your wife calls you "dum dum," she's only joking.

When you tell the laundry you don't want any starch in your shirts, your shirts come back without any starch in them.

Yes, sir, you're a born winner — and couldn't lose if you tried to.

Texas Voters Will Decide Amendments

CANYON—When Texas voters go to the polls Nov. 7 they will be asked to make decisions on a whopping 14 proposed amendments to the state Constitution.

For persons interested in learning more about the proposed amendments, which range from equal rights for women to annual salaries for legislators, the West Texas State University political science department is sponsoring a public meeting at 7:30 p.m. Oct. 24 in room 201 of the Activities Center.

Each proposal will be explained by the departmental staff.

"Neither the department nor individual members will assume positions for or against the proposed amendments," said Dr. Travis McBride, department chairman and program moderator.

He added that "attempts will be made to balance the arguments for and against each of them."

McBride said the meeting will be limited to about two hours in length, including time for audience questions.

No Opposition

On only two occasions in the history of the United States was there only one presidential candidate running in an election. George Washington was unopposed in 1792 and James Monroe was the sole candidate in 1820.

The Capitol dome in Denver is plated with gold leaf worth more than $14,000.

Money Managing the Little Guy

By CARLTON SMITH

You've heard, of course, about all the troubles "the little guy" has been having, trying to find someone to manage his money, or even sell him a few shares of stock.

You may be a little guy without ever having suspected it. A distinguished professor of archeology, for example, or a world-renowned authority on Cimex lectularius, would probably be addressed respectfully by anyone else, but to a broker or money manager he is "one of the little guys" if he can't write a Wall Street-size check that his bank will honor.

How do you know whether you're a little guy, or one of the big boys? There may be good news for you, if you're seriously worried about that sort of thing, in the decision that the Fiduciary Trust Company of New York made recently.

Fiduciary has lowered the requirements for membership in the club. Chances are you've never heard of Fiduciary. It doesn't advertise. It doesn't have to. After all, it has a pretty good address: One Wall Street. Who needs to blow his horn, with an address like that?

Until a few weeks ago, you had to have $400,000 that needed managing — that is four hundred thousand clams —before you could walk in at One Wall Street and ask someone, "Please, sir, would you manage my money?" Today you can walk in with only $100,000, and you're not a little guy any longer. Somebody at Fiduciary will say, "Why, yes, of course—do sit down."

Does this lowering of the bars mean that the pinch is really on the economy—that the money managers are having to scrape the bottom of the barrel to get some business?

On the contrary. Harry W. Fowler, chairman of the board at Fiduciary, says our affluent society has created so many 100-thousandaires that the poor guys have no place to go for professional management of their assets. Fiduciary, he says, has lowered the barriers in response to insistent demand.

For a one per cent management fee—$1,000 a year—you'll get "close, personal attention" to your portfolio and your particular financial objectives.

The only thing is that, as an ex-little guy, you can't expect to bother the people who are doing the managing.

Once you tell them what you want the management to accomplish, you agree to a "discretionary account," which means that your portfolio manager buys and sells at his discretion, and will you please not tell him how to run his business. As Fiduciary puts it, more urbanely, it "will not include consultation with clients and their attorneys."

What can you expect in the way of results? You don't ask. Places like Fiduciary simply don't talk about their clients' business. Two federal marshals, a Texas Ranger and a Canadian Mountie couldn't get the time of day from Fiduciary, with a court order.

Oh, there's the United Nations pension fund, a little $700 million affair that Fiduciary manages. It came out recently—the U.N. let it slip; Fiduciary never would—that over the last 10 years a U.N.er's $1,000 has grown to $2,280 in the pension fund.

Which shows that being a little guy—or an ex-little guy —is getting to be much more bearable than it used to be.

Worry Clinic

By GEORGE W. CRANE, PH. D., M. D.

Hal's wife might win blue ribbons on her culinary products at the State Fair. But his paramour is serving more delectable cheesecake in the boudoir! Wives, it isn't the roast beef in the dining room but bedroom cheesecake that keeps a man from straying!

CASE V-517: Hal W., aged 37, is a sex rover.

"Dr. Crane," his grieving wife began, "we have been ideally happy till the last year.

"We also have 3 lovely children, who occupy much of my time.

"But Hal has developed a 'crush' on his young secretary.

"Recently, I learned that he has been having an affair with her.

"Why, when the children and I were visiting their grandparents for a week, I just found out that Hal had brought this girl into our own home.

"She slept with him all week, as if she were his wife! Imagine!

"Dr. Crane, shouldn't I divorce Hal? For how could any selfrespecting wife forgive such an insult?"

DIVORCE PROS AND CONS

Always weigh the pros and cons before you break up a marriage.

That's doubly true when children are involved.

So why should Hal's wife surrender Hal to his office paramour?

For that's what a divorce would publicly signify.

Even under present circumstances, she is far ahead, just by holding on to the status quo.

For now she still occupies their house. She also retains the social and legal position of being his wife.

Her children likewise are fond of their daddy and not aware of his unfaithfulness, so they are presently happy but would certainly be far more unhappy after a publicized divorce.

Hal also comes home to be with his wife where he still partakes of her stodgy variety of boudoir cheesecake, the perfunctory nature of which drove him elsewhere for extra helpings of the tastier paramour's confection.

Hal's wife could easily defeat her rival if she'd merely fight fire with romantic fire.

First, however, she ought to diet, for she is now 20 pounds overweight. So I put her on the dieting plan below.

Meanwhile, she should affect more enthusiasm in the bedroom.

And deliberately adopt some of the seductive wiles of the outside professional sirens.

These include not only a new, alluring type of perfume and diaphanous nighties.

But also the deliberately slow, lascivious act of disrobing in their bedroom to revive Hal's erotic interest.

Remember, the odds favor you wives if you will just play your cards more seductively!

For men rarely propose to more than ONE woman, though they may play around with half a dozen sirens!

So that wife already has the cards stacked in her favor if she doesn't meanwhile stack too many calories around her "equator" and then grow indifferent to her husband's desire for boudoir romancing.

Since men are basically polygamous, being geared to have at least the 4 mates that Biblical Jacob possessed, then you modern wives must feign more ardor in order to serve as a 4-wife harem in his own boudoir!

It isn't roast beef in the dining room that holds a man as much as exciting cheesecake in the boudoir!

The paramour may not even be able to fry an egg or perk coffee!

Yet she often steals good husbands from wives who win blue ribbons on their cakes and other culinary exhibits at the State Fair!

So get hep!

TDPS Seeks Applicants

The Texas Department of Public Safety is seeking applicants to fill the ranks of its uniform services. The training school for cadet patrolmen will begin Nov. 28. This announcement was made by Major C.W. Bell, regional commander of the Texas Department of Public Safety for the Panhandle area.

WHERE THEY STAND

THE ISSUES OF THE 1972 CAMPAIGN

Foreign Policy

REPUBLICANS	DEMOCRATS
Seek agreement with the Warsaw Pact nations on a mutual and balanced reduction of military forces in Europe. We will press for expansion of contacts with the peoples of Eastern Europe and the People's Republic of China, so long isolated from most of the world. We are fully aware of and share the concern of many citizens for the plight of Soviet Jews with regard to their freedom and emigration. Hailing the success of President Nixon's summit negotiations with Moscow, the Platform pledges to build upon these promising beginnings toward a lasting peace. We will help in any way possible to bring Israel and the Arab states to the conference table, where they may negotiate a lasting peace. We will continue to act to prevent the development of a military imbalance . . . by providing Israel with support essential for her security . . . and also by helping friendly Arab governments and peoples, including support for their efforts to diminish their dependence on outside powers. We will maintain our tactical forces in Europe and the Mediterranean area at strength.	Re-establish the United Nations as a key forum for international activity. Abide by the binding U.N. Security Council decision on Rhodesia sanctions, and support U.N. peacekeeping efforts. Take the steps necessary to establish regular diplomatic relations with China. Cease American support for the repressive Greek military Government, stop military aid to Portugal, and make clear U.S. opposition to racial totalitarianism of South Africa. Sharply reduce military assistance in Latin America. Provide Israel with aircraft and other military equipment she needs . . . and maintain a political commitment and a military force in Europe and at sea in the Mediterranean ample to deter the Soviet Union from putting unbearable pressure on Israel. In concert with our allies pursue with the USSR mutual force reductions in Europe. Greater sharing with Congress of real decisions on issues of war and peace.

The positions above were extracted from the official 1972 platforms of the Republican and Democratic Parties.

Blood Problems Said Growing Worse In U.S.

HOUSTON (AP) — A Michigan blood bank authority says blood problems facing most parts of the country are growing worse all the time.

Only when some type of permanent answer is found will severe blood shortages be prevented, said Dr. Richard Walker.

Walker, chief of the blood bank and transfusion services at William Beaumont Hospital in Royal Oak, Mich., told a seminar here that crisis appeals for blood are only stopgap measures at best and help out only for brief periods.

Such means cannot be relied on every time a community or an individual hospital has a blood shortage, he said.

He suggested a method similar to the jury selection system be instituted to insure a continuous supply of blood donors.

He said he wouldn't rely on this jury type system exclusively for all blood needs but "it does have a lot of merit and it's high time someone started looking at some new ideas."

He said another possibility or perhaps one that could dovetail into the jury idea would be that at age 18, when all American youths register for the military, they could also fill out a permanent blood file.

These records could then be used to summon blood donors from time to time.

"The whole point is that now in most communities the same donors are giving over and over as often as they can," he said. "That's not really fair."

"With a more equitable plan, no one should have to be called for blood except perhaps every five or seven years as an average."

Walker said most of the incentives that have been tried to attract donors in recent years have been only partially successful at best and some have failed completely.

Gimmicks like free tickets for blood donors and the whole philosophy of paying donors just doesn't get the job done, he said. He said blood insurance plans don't always work, either.

Walker cited American Association of Blood Banks' statistics which show that less than three per cent of the qualified blood donors in the United States actually ever give.

His poetry is corny, but it's an earful!

By Abigail Van Buren

[© 1972 by Chicago Tribune-N. Y. News Synd., Inc.]

DEAR ABBY: About that man who sang to his tomatoes: I can top that. I read poetry to my corn.

After planting the seeds for sweetcorn, I got out my Shakespeare, turned to Julius Caesar and improvised:

"Sunshine, bumble bees and cornstalks.
Lend me your ears."

And believe me, it works. If you wish, I will send you a picture of the corn as it is now, growing rapidly in a flower box on my front porch. I hope you won't think this is too corny to print. KERNEL SAM GUGGENHEIM, ROCHESTER, N. Y.

DEAR SAM: Never mind the picture. I'm a sucker for corn, so send me your ears?

DEAR ABBY: Just read your letter about the guy who thought "music" would help his vegetables grow, so he went out in the garden with a six-pack of beer and serenaded his tomato plants. Could he have been growing "stewed" tomatoes? FORMER IOWAN

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I are middle-aged with five children, ages ranging from 9 to 21—all home and, of course, in school.

My husband nets a fair income, and I have a part time professional job, a 12-room house, and am active in church and civic affairs.

The last two years the teen-age children [ages 13 to 19] of my two married sisters have been hitchhiking to Mother's every time they have some difficulty at home. Mother isn't well [as my sisters know] and since Mother lives near me and I look after her, you know where the kids end up. That's right. With me!

We have trouble enough keeping our own kids in line without taking on the responsibility of our nieces and nephews and I am sick and tired of all the extra cooking and cleaning and laundry for these kids, not to mention the expense. I am fond of them, but I don't want them in my hair all the time.

Some of the kids are pretty far out, and already I see some of their kooky ideas beginning to take root, and I am honestly afraid of leaving them alone in my house when I go to work. I am all for sending them home after a week's visit, and making a rule to have only one of them here at a time. My husband says, "Ask Abby." What do you say? STUMPED IN W. VA.

DEAR STUMPED: I say seven days of them would make one weak! But don't surprise them with the news. Let them know NOW that you have placed a ceiling on their visits.

DEAR ABBY: I don't pretend to be a paragon of virtue, but I am a somewhat confused member of the male sex. I am not quite 85, but it burns me up when a young woman puts her arms around you, gives you a big kiss and all but waves the green flag at you [usually in front of other people] then shows virtuous indignation when you react like a healthy normal male. They get themselves up with their miniskirts, low necklines and all the rest of it, then play hard to get if we take the bait. Either leave us old boys alone or go for broke! BEEN THAR IN CEDAR MOUNTAIN, N. C.

Problems? Trust Abby. For a personal reply, write to ABBY, BOX 69700, L. A., CALIF. 90069 and enclose a stamped, addressed envelope.

ON DISPLAY AT EXHIBIT-The above watercolor painting by Carolyn Stallwitz, Dumas, will be shown Sunday, Oct. 15-19 from 1 p.m. to 4 p.m. at the Fine Arts Association Gallery, 516 W. Kingsmill. The public is invited to view these paintings and drawings. Carolyn is an artist with the camera as well as the brush. Her slides of birds and wildflowers have been seen by Audubon groups, youth groups and various organizations; some have been put in the Texas Photo-Record File at Texas A and M University.

Your Horoscope

By Jeane Dixon

Saturday, October 14

Your birthday today: Marks a departure from things as they were. Relationships evolve as those who know you adjust to your subtle progressive changes. Today's natives are inclined to research and impersonal applications of their findings.

Aries [March 21-April 19]: Pitch right into the backlog of unfinished personal business, set things up for more action later. Nobody will see things as you do.

Taurus [April 20-May 20]: Whatever minimum you must do of serious work, do it, with no particular prospect of praise or even cooperation.

Gemini [May 21-June 20]: Property and possessions must be considered now. An urge to splurge on sizeable purchases may be very well channeled.

Cancer [June 21-July 22]: Get out early and make the rounds of places you don't often go. Your expectations of those who care for you tend to run high.

Leo [July 23-Aug. 22]: Error, impatience are all too easy—stay home and work things out. The change of pace and activity will do you good.

Virgo [Aug. 23-Sept. 22]: Impulse is not the most accurate guide to financial moves. Sympathy for others and their problems is naturally accented.

Libra [Sept. 23-Oct. 22]: You have help going that you scarcely realize is there. Select correspondence for settling financial details.

Scorpio [Oct. 23-Nov. 21]: Those who know you well are helpful, but take nothing for granted about those who don't—they tend to misjudge, disagree.

Sagittarius [Nov. 22-Dec. 21]: A brisk start gets you thru many long awaited deals with support and cooperation from all sides.

Capricorn [Dec. 22-Jan. 19]: Postpone business changes, stick with plans and routines. Circumstances include pressure toward hasty moves.

Aquarius [Jan. 20-Feb. 18]: Strangers, odd information leave many gaps. Hard-to-notice. Unusual circumstances bring luck while your actions are serene.

Pisces [Feb. 19-March 20]: Social contacts are provocative, enjoyable—but not as yet an area for seeking any sort of business. Travels are favored.

By Oswald & James Jacoby

The late Charles Lockett of St. Louis was one of the great players of the west in the 30s and 40s. His first appearance in the east occurred in 1934 when the late Ely Culbertson brought teams from over the country to New York to play in his Grand National championship.

Matches were at total points and Charley, sitting South, was playing against a couple of eastern experts.

Charley wanted to play a slam after his partner's raise to four hearts. He also saw little chance that he would get to play it. Those easterners weren't vulnerable and held the spades.

Charley thought some more and finally decided to charge them the limit if they wanted to defend. He jumped right to seven hearts.

West thought and thought and then thought a little more. Finally the pressure was too much. He sacrificed at seven spades.

The loss was only 700 points, four tricks.

The swing turned out to be considerable. At the other table South just went to five hearts. West and North passed and East bid five spades. South went to six hearts and this time East and West passed.

South was just where he wanted to be but six hearts didn't quite make. South had to lose a spade and a club.

APPLE DOLLS

WINNIPEG (AP) — Jean Lambert refuses to eat apples because she says it's "cannibalistic." But the suburban St. Vital housewife has for the last 10 years made them into little dolls. Mrs. Lambert says the apples dry naturally over a period of three to four weeks after being peeled and are formed into faces by gently applying pressure daily over the drying period.

DAVID POLING, D.D.

Women in Church: Ellen G. White

By REV. DAVID POLING

Every national church assembly this year is nodding toward women's liberation. Major programs are getting overhauled. New recognition and larger assignments are being offered. The visibility and audibility of women in leadership is most apparent.

Yet history reveals that this is not the first decade to recognize the special talents and skills of women in the church. The late 1900s and early 20th century years saw some major personalities giving leadership within the Christian community and even establishing denominations.

No, we're not referring, this time to Mary Baker Eddy and Christian Science. Nor to Amy Semple McPherson and the Four Square Gospel Church. But the amazing, unique ministry of Ellen G. White and the founding, with her husband, of the Seventh-Day Adventist Church.

In the new book, "Ellen G. White, Prophet of Destiny," (Keats Publishing, Inc., $6.95) we have the most recent look at a woman who employed real gifts of prophecy to shape the lives of millions of people.

The clue to the success of this quiet, self-educated lady from Portland, Maine, is summed up in her own words:

"At times I am carried far ahead into the future and shown what is to take place. Then again I am shown things as they have occurred in the past. Why have I not claimed to be a prophet? It is because in these days many who boldly claim that they are prophets are a reproach to the cause of Christ . . ."

Of course, an earlier group of Adventists (choosing Saturday as the Sabbath and rightful day of worship, not Sunday) made the most glaring gaff by predicting the end of the world for 1843—so asserted by William Miller. When that date came and went, they took a crack at 1845, but the vision was blurred.

Following this episode, Ellen White and her husband, James, ardent followers of Miller, began their own evangelistic outreach.

Ellen White was believed to have psychic powers and related some 2,000 visions to her followers. Much of this appeared in book form (although she was an able public speaker) where she penned some 37 volumes—writing until her death at 88!

Much that Mrs. White and her followers teach is not accepted by all Christians—and that is what makes for denominations and division. Yet many of her views—and visions—have a surprising relevance for today.

She taught that tobacco was a malignant poison. She questioned the use of X ray and held that overuse could be deadly.

Directing her people toward the benefits of nutrition and natural foods, she must have been one of the first to sound the alarm over consumption of fatty food and refined sugar.

Concerning urban life in 1890, she wrote with a cutting edge:

"In the future the condition of things in the cities will grow more and more objectionable . . . from the standpoint of health, the smoke and dust of the cities are very objectionable. The constant liability to contact with disease, the prevalence of foul air, impure water, impure food are some of the many evils to be met."

Ellen G. White now has a global following and in the day when women's lib is rising in the church it might be helpful to see the trail carved out by individuals who were doing their thing a century ago.

The youth festival is set for 4:30 p.m., Oct. 30, in the Hardin-Simmons quadrangle. The opening session of the convention will be at 6:45 p.m. in Behrens Chapel.

Tuesday morning and afternoon sessions are scheduled for 9 a.m. and 1:30 p.m. respectively at Hardin-Simmons' Van Ellis Little Theater.

A SOFT PILLOW FOR A TIRED HEART

By CLAUDE CONE
Pastor

You don't have to go far to find a tired heart. In fact there is nothing more universal than trial. All of us face hours when our world shrinks to the narrowness of our own concern, when life tumbles in on us, when life is like an elevator with a sign written over it, "Not Running Today." Trials and troubles dog our steps in this mortal life. We face trials every day. Our ambitions are shattered by the closing of doors, dreams are broken by what appears to be a cruel stroke of providence, health is suddenly lost, and we lose our loved ones. Life tumbles in on us and our hearts are crushed by the weight of life itself.

In these hours of trial many a child of God has turned to Romans 8:28 and found a new strength. Let us read it: "And we know that all things work together for good to them that love God, to them who are the called according to His purpose." This is "A Soft Pillow for a Tired Heart." But to many it becomes a hard stone of stumbling. This may be one of the misunderstood verses in all the Bible. We try to make it say many things it does not say. Let's take a few minutes to see what this verse does not say and what it does say.

It does not say that all things work together for good for all people. All things work together for good "to them that love God." To those who do not love God with all their heart, their trial may turn them bitter. Voltaire, beaten by his doubts said, "I wish I had never been born." Many have become disgusted with God and soured on men because of his trial. All things can only work together for good for those who have a burning love for God in their hearts.

It does not say that all things that happen are good. Is it good for people to die with cancer? Is it good when a family watches their home go up in smoke? Is it good when an innocent little child is stricken with polio? Is it good when man deserts his wife and children? There are many things that happen in this life that are not good. When a trial comes upon us, we are prone to say, "This is good or it wouldn't have happened."

There are many burdens of this life that are not good as we define the word "good" and as God defines it. Jesus never said it was good for people to be hungry, diseased, or burdened down with their sins. He spent his entire ministry changing things that were not good. It is an untruth to say that everything that happens is good.

It does not say that all things that happen are God's doings. All too often we say in the midst of a tragedy "It is the will of God." Is it? When a man gets drunk and runs over an innocent child, is that the will of God? When a three or four-year-old child slowly wastes away with cancer, cerebral palsy or polio, is that the will of God? When a fire destroys a home and innocent children, is that the will of God?

Leslie D. Weatherhead tells of an account that well answers our questions. He was visiting a friend in India. The Indian friend had lost his little son, the light of his eyes, in a cholera epidemic. At the end of the porch his little daughter, the only remaining child, slept on a cot covered with a mosquito net. As the father paced back and forth thinking of his son's death, he finally stopped and said, "It is the will of God. That's all there is to it. It is the will of God." Dr. Weatherhead replied, "Suppose someone crept up the steps on the porch tonight, while you slept, and deliberately put a wad of cotton soaked in Cholera germ culture over your little girl's mouth as she lay on that cot, what would you think about that?" The father quickly answered, "What would I think about that? Nobody would do such a damnable thing! If he attempted it and I caught him, I would kill him with as little compunction as I would a snake, and throw him over the porch. What do you mean by suggesting such a thing?" Dr. Weatherhead replied, "But isn't that just what you have accused God of doing when you said it was His will? Call your little boy's death the result of mass ignorance, call it mass folly, call it mass sin, if you like, call it bad brains or communal carelessness, but don't call it the will of God."

The Pampa Daily News

A Watchful Newspaper

EVER STRIVING FOR THE TOP O' TEXAS
TO BE AN EVEN BETTER PLACE TO LIVE

Our Capsule Policy

The Pampa News is dedicated to furnishing information to our readers so that they can better promote and preserve their own freedom and encourage others to see its blessing. Only when man is free to control himself and all he produces can he develop to his utmost capability.

The News believes each and every person would get more satisfaction in the long run if he were permitted to spend what he earns on a volunteer basis rather than having part of it distributed involuntarily.

Newspaper Carrier Day

Tomorrow is International Newspaper Carrier Day. Thanks to 'girls' lib, that's the new designation for the day which occurs on Saturday, Oct. 14.

And the International Circulation Managers Association has come up with a new theme for 1972: "A lawyer delivered your newspaper today."

The idea is that a success-oriented youngster ought to have a newspaper route (a new ICMA study shows the best carriers to be success-oriented, making good grades in school, having a savings account, and shooting for college).

In recognition of newspaper carriers in Texas, Gov. Preston Smith has issued the following proclamation:

"October 14, 1972, has been designated as National Newspaper Carrier Day in tribute to the thousands of young men and women who serve the public early and late in the day to bring them the latest news from their own towns and cities and from all over the world.

"These young people will be the leaders of tomorrow serving in the business and professional world.

"Thomas Jefferson, more than two hundred years ago said, 'The only security for all of us is the free press.' These young people are doing their part in disseminating the news to one and all.

"It is fitting that the citizens of Texas express their gratitude to these young people for the efficiency that they give in the performance of the many duties of newspaper carrier.

"Therefore, I, as Governor of Texas, do hereby designate Oct. 14, 1972, as Newspaper Carrier Day in Texas, and urge all the people they represent and the customers they serve so diligently to express their appreciation for these unfailing services."

Servant, Not Dictator

"Newspapermen write on sand," an editor once complained.

And he was correct. We do. The wave of the next edition is barely remembered by its own author the day after.
was so important the day before is barely remembered by its own author the day after.

A sad disposal for creativity?

Well, you've got to look at the matter with perspective. If the newspaperman writes on sand, the television man—as columnist James Kilpatrick commented—writes on the wind. Newspapers have both their drawbacks and their advantages.

Newspapers are not the most dramatic means of communication but big headlines are fairly dramatic.

Newspapers are not as speedy a messenger as radio, but they are fairly speedy.

Newspapers are not as durable as a book, but newspaper clippings or scrapbooks can be kept for decades.

Our message, therefore, is like a triple threat man in football. We tell a good story. We get the message to your home before sunset (usually). Thirdly, our product is flexible so that it fits into your schedule; you can read it now or later, whichever suits you better. We know of no other communications method that can validly make all those claims.

A Poor Substitute?

With ethnic humor out of style, the apparent trend is toward Goldwater and McGovern jokes to replace Polish jokes. Sample of Goldwater joke (An Arizonan is speaking): "In 1964 I was told that if I voted for Goldwater, there would be rioting in the streets, the Vietnam war would be escalated, and our dollar would be devalued. I voted for Goldwater, and that's exactly what happened." Sample of McGovern joke: "McGovern's library burned down and both books were destroyed; one of them he hadn't finished coloring yet." Some claim the new humor is a poor substitute.

Is It Justice?

OBERLIN, KANS., HERALD: "Whenever a judge suspends sentence on a lawbreaker if he promises to get out of town, it is easy to wonder how often this person could repeat the offense in a different town each time and never have to serve a stretch in jail. Serving time does not necessarily convince the lawbreaker he should go straight. But the 'get out of town by sundown' warning is a neat way for the judge to wash his hands of the duty of meting out justice to the guilty.... If we want law and order we are going to have to see to it that our courts are doing their job. Sending trouble on to the next town isn't doing the job."

"I've saved the government millions again. I designed another plane that can't possibly be made before it becomes obsolete!"

We're Too Slow With Technology

By RAY CROMLEY

WASHINGTON (NEA) —Economic data in government files indicate that, despite the emergency measures now being applied, inflation and a dollar imbalance will be endemic for years.

That same economic information makes clear the underlying cause of both the dollar imbalance and inflation is that in wide areas of business, industry, education and the services, the application of new technology has not been sufficiently rapid.

Government economic files also provide a solution which has been tried in two major instances with major success.

—In the past several decades, U.S. agriculture has made the greatest applied technology strides by far of any major segment of industry—in mechanization, in the adoption of new strains and in the use of advanced fertilizers.

Agriculture efficiency is now so great that in a very real sense the farmer is the mainstay of our export program. We are able to compete on favorable terms with the world's other major producers regardless of wage differentials.

This agricultural miracle has been accomplished through a major research effort coupled with a county agent system which has fervently "sold" individual farmers on improved methods—through demonstration plots and the personal "advocacy" of new ideas.

—Western European and other industry here and there in the world have made tremendous strides, in part because the United States, through President Truman's Point Four program and its successors, adopted the spirit of the county agent system in bringing Western European and other industrial groups to this country, using demonstration plants to sell these foreign businessmen on modern management and technology and by sending technical men abroad. American companies, building very modern plants on foreign soil, provided additional demonstration plants. The result Western European and other foreign businessmen have become all-too-able competitors.

The federal government should adopt this county agent-demonstration philosophy in selling the slower sectors of private and public industry (such as textile firms and hospitals) on the more rapid adoption of new productive, administrative and organizational technology.

More government research would be devoted to discovering technological improvements in selected industries. More government effort would be spent in adapting discoveries made in space, military and other areas for use by private industries. More joint scientist-engineer industrialist cross-fertilizing teams would be set up to inform businessmen on what new technology has to offer and to give the research technicians in a wide variety of fields ideas as to how they can modify certain technological discoveries to improve efficiency in one industry or another. (A most notable advance has been made by a team of engineer-scientists and medical men in adapting some nuclear weapon production techniques to work on virus diseases.)

More government-employed technologists would be put to visiting local factories and businesses, with the approval of the owners, to "sell" these owners on management, operations, mechanical, computer or other technical improvements they might not know about—and on how much money these improvements might save them.

This program would, of necessity, be a major effort, as is the county agent program in agriculture. But it need not be expensive, a relatively few able technical men do better than countless numbers of bureaucratically-minded officials.

BRUCE BIOSSAT

McG's Antiwar Theme May Hurt

By BRUCE BIOSSAT

WITH McGOVERN CAMPAIGN (NEA) — Sen. George McGovern is at his campaign best when he is delivering his deeply felt, evangelistic cries against the Vietnam war. The irony is that some political appraisers think he should't be doing it.

In his New York appearance before the conference of major American Jewish organizations, his principal purpose was to dispel the damaging notion that he is not strongly pro-Israel. Still, he couldn't resist taking the time sound off loudly against our Vietnam bombing. His cry drew the barest flutter of applause.

It is not usually this way. His plea against the war and its human cost was long and eloquent at a Philadelphia fund-raiser, and the audience response was vigorously approving. Often, in shorter speeches at airports and city squares, he finds his shouted demand for an end to the war drawing by his greatest response.

Yet, whether the response is great or small, McGovern seems determined to dwell heavily upon the war wherever he goes. At one stop, he confessed that he is "obsessed" by it.

Why, then, should any political expert be suggesting—as some have—that he ought to knock it off and talk more about the economy, crime, trust in government, etc.

One argument, consistently advanced by some of his Democratic friends is that everyone knows where George McGovern stands on Vietnam. That his antiwar constituency is already solidly behind him, and that it is therefore a waste of valuable campaign time to keep dwelling on it.

An astute Republican politician makes another point. He argues that McGovern's constant mention of the war is a special advantage to President Nixon, since it is a reminder to millions of voters that he has pulled out more than 500,000 U.S. troops, cut our casualties to almost nothing, stopped sending draftees to Vietnam and ended U.S. ground action in the war.

Polls do indeed indicate that the President is getting credit on these major counts. They also show that sizable majorities of the American people favor the bombing, the mining of Haiphong harbor, and other U.S. efforts to prevent a North Vietnamese take-over as we withdraw.

McGovern simply declines to accept this evidence. He minimizes the President's withdrawal achievement. For instance, he never says Mr. Nixon has taken out more than half a million men. He concedes, somewhat grudgingly, that he has removed "thousands," making it sound like a mere handful.

The reason is clear enough. McGovern sees the war through the eyes of the South Dakota preacher-man, the near-pacifist, the complete hater of violence. Practical moves that only diminish war activity without ending it altogether do not impress him.

Observers following McGovern on the trail are inevitably stirred by the genuineness of his antiwar passions. That Philadelphia speech could well have been the very best of his campaign to date.

Nevertheless, his preoccupation with Vietnam does have its heavy political cost. McGovern by contrast often seems uninspired and even slightly disinterested when he is talking about the economy and other domestic concerns. Inadvertently, perhaps, he appears to be advertising that he really is a one-issue candidate, as his rivals always used to contend.

The betting has to be, however, that McGovern will still be hammering on Vietnam the night before the election.

H. L. Hunt Writes

FREEDOM AND PRIVILEGE

One way of looking at freedom is the right to do anything you like so long as it doesn't infringe on someone else's rights, that is, as long as it doesn't harm someone else or interfere with the other person's freedom. You can swing your arm in a wide circle so long as it doesn't hit someone else or deter that someone from swinging his arm just as widely.

When a person wants more freedom at someone else's expense, that's not freedom at all; that's privilege. When a group of protesters wants to air its grievances, it has a constitutional freedom to do so. But when it wants to use a bustling business district to make speeches, it is undermining the rights of the businessmen and customers in that area.

When a group of student protesters occupies a college administration building, it is seeking privilege, not freedom. The group may have legitimate complaints, but a building belonging to a private school or a state university owned by all the taxpayers and administered by a representative of the people, is not fair game for any privileged group.

Freedom of speech is a constitutionally-guaranteed freedom, but no one has the right to yell "fire" in a crowded theater. There are limitations on all our freedoms.

We have the right to life, liberty and property, but even these are limited. To have these rights, we must respect the rights of others in their freedom to live, to be free, and to own property. When we ask for freedom beyond others, we are asking for privilege.

What Can Be Done for Gout?

By Dr. Lawrence Lamb, M.D.

Dear Dr. Lamb — I keep getting attacks from the gout and it usually hits my ankles. I've been going to a doctor about a year or longer and he gives me some pills to take when it occurs. I'm 50 years old and it started about five years ago. I need to know what I can eat and drink. Sometimes I get it when I've been drinking and other times I get it even if I haven't had anything to drink. I'm just plain stumped. I don't have a regular doctor now since he moved out of the state. Could you please help me? I need it very much.

Dear Reader—Yes, I can help you. Get yourself a new doctor as soon as possible. You'll need regular supervision. While dietary control helps a little bit in some people with gout, individuals who have recurring attacks should be taking medicine since even the strictest dietary control doesn't accomplish enough.

Individuals who have attacks of gouty arthritis need medicine all the time and not just for the attacks. The idea is to take medicines regularly to prevent the attacks in the first place.

You also need to take medicine to prevent the later development of gouty arthritis, which is not like the acute attacks, but which can cause deformity of the joints. Without medicine there may be a slow accumulation of deposits in the joints that causes chronic gouty arthritis. Alcohol and dietary binges often precipitate an acute attack as do emotional factors and some other aspects of living, but prevention of these attacks doesn't obviate the point that you need to be taking medicine regularly and this means that you need a doctor.

Dear Dr. Lamb — I would like to know if it is necessary for a woman 63 years old who has had a hysterectomy and has been a widow for seven years to have a Pap smear every year. (Only the womb is out.) I have had four children and have been retired one year.

Dear Reader—If your doctor who has been giving you your examinations thinks so, I believe you should continue to do so. There are different ways of doing a hysterectomy and it's not clear what you mean by having only the womb out. Actually the complete uterus consists of the body of the uterus and the cervix. For an analogy, you can think of it like a fruit jar. The body of the uterus is the main part of the jar and the rim of the jar where the lid is screwed on represents the cervix. Sometimes when a hysterectomy is done, only the body of the uterus is removed and the cervix is left in. In this case, a woman can still develop cancer of the cervix and a regular examination with a Pap smear is indicated. In other instances the entire uterus is taken out, including the cervix. In these instances a woman is most unlikely to develop a cancer. Theoretically, she might develop one of the vaginal wall but these are relatively rare.

Inside Washington

By ROBERT S. ALLEN

Propose 'Syncrop' for U.S. Energy Crisis

WASHINGTON — One member of Congress is doing something about the increasingly grave energy shortage in the U.S. besides talk about it.

Rep. Louis Wyman, R.-N.H., influential member of the powerful Appropriations Committee, has introduced comprehensive legislation that would do in the field of energy what Comsat has strikingly accomplished in communications.

Under Wyman's measure, a government sponsored, privately owned corporation would be set up to speed the development and sale of synthetic fuels.

Fuels Corporation (Syncorp), it would be chartered with the express mission of developing the urgently needed technology to make possible the utmost utilization of the country's vast supplies of coal and shale oil for energy purposes. Says Wyman:

"The natural gas crisis is all too painfully well known, and a crisis in the form of a domestic crude oil shortage is already on us. It is imperative that we find a solution for these crucial needs. We have got to find alternative sources of fuel-energy supply.

"They exist right in our own country and we must lose no time in making the utmost use of them. It is too late to expect private industry to take up the ball and run with it fast enough to stay in the game. It' up to the government to take the imitiative, and that's what I propose to do with Syncorp."

As detailed by Wyman, this government-sponsored, privately owned corporation would:

"Become a channel for Federal government development funds for solid fossil fuel conversion technology, with appropriate fund matching by Syncorp. Government funds would be committed against an agreed timetable for development and would be repaid from royalties."

"Develop and commercialize solid fossil fuel technology, develop patent rights and know-how, and obtain royalty income from the licensing of this technology to interested industries and concerns.

"Build a number of demonstration plants to make coal gas and synthetic crude oil, and manufacture and sell the products. Syncorp would become and remain a viable entity as a producer of energy products for the U.S. market."

Wyman noted that when Congress created the Communications Satellite Corporation (Comsat) in 1962, it was owned 42 per cent by private communications companies and the balance by private investors. The corporation raised $196 million when it went public in 1964.

SPELLING IT OUT

With Congress rushing to wind up by the middle of this month, there is no likelihood of Rep. Wyman's momentous measure being considered this year. To cope with that problem, he is therefore pressing a resolution directing the Office of Emergency Preparedness to make a study of the "feasibility of his far-reaching proposal and report to the new Congress that convenes next January.

Such an official survey would give considerable impetus to favorable action on Wyman's legislation by Congress.

The importance of obtaining that is strongly stressed by Wyman in citing the increasing gravity of the fuel-energy crisis.

Current domestic natural gas reserves are equivalent to only 12.5 years, Wyman pointed out, while indigenous crude oil resources are steadily diminishing as demand soars.

"Few observers believe that price increases or even decontrol of natural gas will result in ample new gas being found," said Wyman. "The preponderance of opinion is that this will not be the case and that, regardless of selling price, the shortage of natural gas will continue. While some minor relief will be obtained from overseas imports of liquified natural gas, and overland imports from Canada and Alaska, there will still be a large shortfall.

"Up to recently, the U.S. has been in the position where it was well able to fulfill its domestic requirements of crude oil from indigenous sources. But we are not entering a period of change. While our home supply steadily declines, our needs continue to mount. By 1980, over 40 per cent of U.S. crude oil will have to be imported, and this raises serious questions of national policy, particularly in view of the hard line being taken by the oil-producing countries in the middle East and elsewhere.

"But even if we buy this oil abroad, our foreign payments by 1980 would be in the range of $15 to $20 billion a year, an intolerable sum of money."

It is therefore obviously vital, Wyman contends, that alternate sources of energy be developed by 1980. This, he holds, can readily be done by developing the necessary technology to use the immense indigenous stores of coal and shale oil to create energy.

"A massive government effort to develop coal conversion processes without large-scale private industry participation is undesirable," said Wyman. "Even if the government were best qualified to develop technology, there would then be a question of how this technology would be used. Clearly, the government should not be in the business of making the country's gasoline and natural gas."

The solution to this problem, Wyman holds, is the establishment of a government-sponsored, privately owned synthetic fuels corporation which would provide a desirable vehicle to serve the national interests while maintaining a private enterprise approach.

Too much. "Comsat was established as 'an instrument of U.S. Policy,' " pointed out Wyman, "and the same should be done in the fuel-energy field by creating Syncorp. There is no reason why it shouldn't be as successful in its sphere as Comsat has been in communications. I am fully convinced it would be."

Wyman's impressive bill has evoked much interest in Congress, and legislators from many sections of the country have commended for taking the initiative in pressing the matter.

From this extensive interest, the legislation is certain to be given high priority in the next Congress.

Answer to Previous Puzzle

A lawyer may have delivered your newspaper today

Newspaper route management: There's a future in it.

Or a doctor. Or an accountant. Or president of the whole United States.

Of course, we're talking about the future—but a carrier is laying the groundwork for his future NOW.

Because he is a carrier, he has the stuff that makes for success.

He's managing a business of his own. That's what a newspaper route is all about. He is learning the lessons of responsibility and promptness and courtesy. And how to make a profit.

That profit, chances are, he is banking away. To use when he will need it. For something important, like college and a professional career, perhaps. To become the lawyer who once delivered your newspaper, and learned a great deal while doing it.

So congratulate a future lawyer. Or future doctor. Or spaceman.

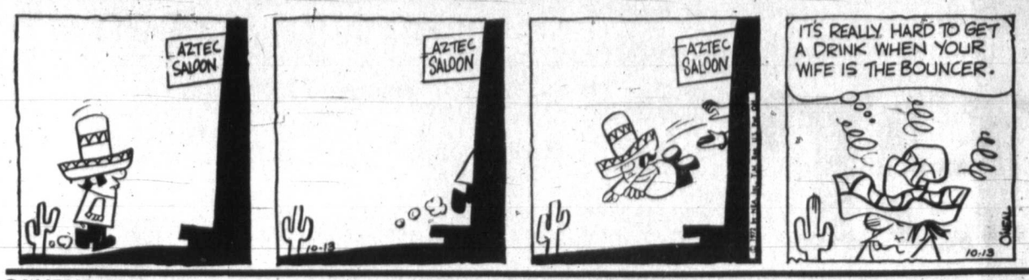

Congratulate him the next time he comes around to deliver or collect for your newspaper.

Oakland Wins Pennant

DETROIT (AP) — In 1931 Herbert Hoover was President, champagne was illegal, and Manager Connie Mack's Philadelphia Athletics were the American League baseball champions.

A lot has changed in the 41 years since but one thing is the same—the Athletics, now of Oakland, are again AL champions.

They will carry the pennant into Cincinnati where they'll face the National League champion Reds beginning Saturday in the World Series.

It took the maximum of five games, but the A's finally overcame the Detroit Tigers with a 2-1 victory Thursday to take the AL playoffs.

"The day I got traded (from the Chicago Cubs) Dick Williams called me at my house and said, 'We're going to put you in the World Series.' And damned if he didn't," said Oakland pitcher Ken Holtzman, smiling as he sat quietly in front of his clubhouse locker.

Most of his teammates were exploding champagne corks, splashing beer, hugging each other, and yelling with joy. Even millionaire owner Charlie Finley joined in, pouring champagne on dry heads and crying with happiness at the moment which seemed to be slipping away after Tiger victories Tuesday and Wednesday.

Holtzman is Manager Williams' choice to pitch the Series opener and the A's will have suspended shortstop Bert Campaneris back in action, although Reggie Jackson may be out with a pulled hamstring muscle suffered in a successful steal of home plate Thursday.

The A's won Thursday on the strong arms of John "Blue Moon" Odom and Vida Blue, plus some questionable Tiger fielding and the running of Jackson and his replacement, George Hendrick.

Winner Odom gave up an unearned run in the first inning as he pitched a two-hitter for five frames before getting an upset stomach. Blue finished the job with a lightning fastball, allowing three harmless singles in picking up the save.

Campaneris, suspended by AL President Joe Cronin for the last three playoff games for throwing a bat at Detroit pitcher Lerrin LaGrow, joined in the Oakland post-game bedlam but wasn't saying much.

It was learned Thursday night that Baseball Commissioner Bowie Kuhn will permit Campaneris to play in the Series.

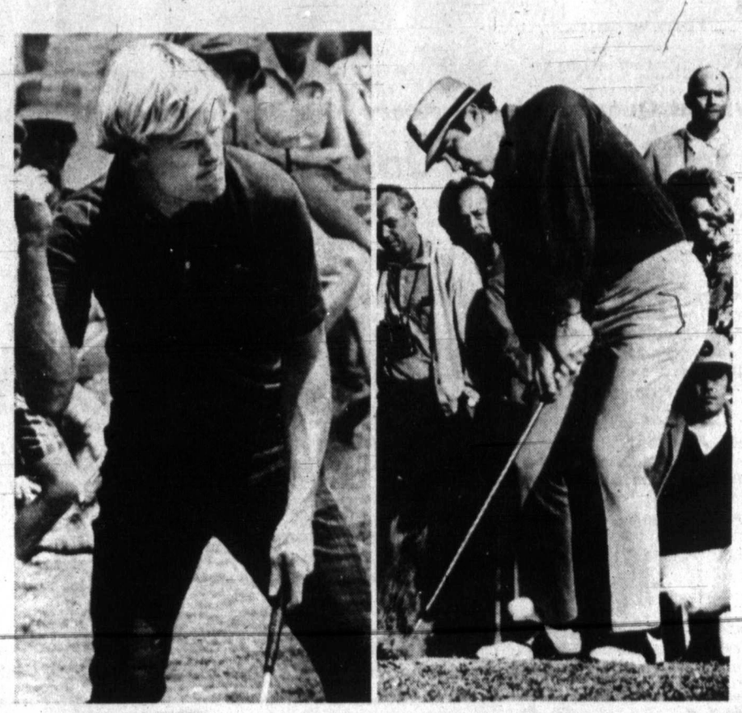

Jackson opened the A's second with a walk off loser Woodie Fryman, stole second, and reached third on a long fly out by Sal Bando.

Mike Epstein was hit with a pitch and Gene Tenace struck out before Epstein broke for second on a steal, hoping Tiger catcher Bill Freehan would throw to second and give Jackson a chance to steal home. And that's what Freehan did, both runners sliding in safe.

Jackson was injured in the slide and replaced by Hendrick, who reached first leading off the fourth on a throwing error.

Hendrick took second on Sal Bando's bunt and scored the winning run on a single by Tenace.

Left fielder Duke Sims was a little slow getting the ball out of his glove on the hit. It was a close play at the plate and Freehan let the throw slip away; however, Hendrick was ruled safe before that.

JOHN MILLER, left, and Bob Lunn are two of the younger members of the pro golf tour but they contend nevertheless that the new generation of golfers takes too much time to play a round.

Rice Star Barnes Out

HOUSTON (AP) — Rice Athletic Director Red Bale says the Owls' outstanding middle linebacker Rodrigo Barnes may be lost four to six weeks because of a kidney injury received in last week's Louisiana State game.

Bale said Thursday that Barnes ignored the injury at first, believing the soreness to be normal following the rough-and-tumble game against the Tigers.

But when the pain persisted, Bale said, Barnes entered a hospital where it was determined he had a bruised kidney.

The Owls now face the prospect of opening Southwest Conference play next week at Dallas against Southern Methodist without two starters. Defensive tackle Larry Medford has not played since the Clemson game when he received a knee injury.

Bale said Medford would be doubtful for the SMU game and may face knee surgery, which would end the season for him.

Medford's replacement likely would be junior letterman Steve Pruitt, who played an outstanding game against LSU.

Barnes would be replaced by Junior Richard Hollas, who has performed well in relief of Barnes this season.

The Owls are open this week following last week's 12-6 loss to the eighth ranked Bengal Tigers.

Dolphins Picked To Continue Winning Ways

NEW YORK (AP) — Nobody's going unbeaten in the National Football League. Nobody ... including the Miami Dolphins. Sooner or later, somebody'll get 'em.

But, not this week.

San Diego's suddenly-super Chargers should bite the dust in the Orange Bowl as the Dolphins go 5-0 with the toughest part of their schedule behind them.

Elsewhere in the NFL, the hour of decision will come for at least two erstwhile powerhouses, the Minnesota Vikings and Baltimore Colts. Each is 1-3 and another defeat will just about kill playoff hopes.

Game by game, here's the call for Sunday-Monday:

Miami 24, San Diego 10: It looks like a ground war and Miami has a tank in Larry Csonka, a bazooka in Jim Kiick and a rocket in Mercury Morris that gives it the edge. Both defenses are underrated.

Oakland 30, Buffalo 14: The Raiders have their offense untracked and George Blanda shouldn't have to be summoned for heroics.

San Francisco 38, New York Giants 17: The Giants have beaten the NFL's two weakest teams, Philadelphia and New Orelans, but their defense can't hold John Brodie and pals.

Green Bay 17, Detroit 13: The Packers' Scott Hunter should have a good battle with Detroit's Greg Landry, but defense should still be the key in the well-matched Monday night TV special.

Atlanta 27, New Orleans 14: The Saints haven't won in four starts and are solid picks to make it five. The Falcons need only to continue improving their offense to be true division contenders.

Cleveland 24, Chicago 14: The Bears are 0-3-1 and seem headed for another winless weekend although running quarterback Bobby Douglass and powerful Cyril Pinder give Chicago at least a chance for an upset.

Kansas City 24, Cincinnati 17: This matchup of division leaders is perhaps the NFL's game of the week. The Bengal offense finally got rolling last week, but the Chiefs provide too tough a barrier.

Dallas 13, Baltimore 10: Neither team has been outstanding, but the Cowboys keep getting by. Colt luck has been sour and a sudden spree by John Unitas seems Baltimore's only hope for not sitting out the playoffs.

Pittsburgh 21, Houston 14: The Oilers aren't as bad as they looked last Monday night ... nobody is. But, they're not good enough to win just yet with quarterback Dan Pastorini.

Los Angeles 27, Philadelphia 10: The Eagles are well balanced, poor on both offense and defense.

Minnesota 20, Denver 7: Tarkenton wins one and keeps the Vikings alive for a fifth straight division title while the Purple Gang does reasonably well in hemming up Floyd Little and his playmates.

New York Jets 24, New England 17: This one is an air fight between Joe Namath and Jim Plunkett and the Broadway one usually gets the best of such things.

Washington 35, St. Louis 24: Sonny Jurgensen is back and Gary Cuozzo has pumped offensive life into the Cardinals, making this one of the better shows of the weekend.

Area Football Roundup

A great many area football teams are idle this week, including all but two of the District 3-AAAA schools. Only Caprock and Palo Duro play this week as the others in the league prepare for the opening of district play next week.

Caprock, which had an open date last week, hosts Lubbock High at Dick Bivins stadium tonight. Caprock has lost only one game so far this season--to Perryton. The Westerners from Lubbock are 1-3 this year.

Pampa fans should be interested in the outcome of this tilt as the Harvesters play the Longhorns next week.

Palo Duro travels to Canyon for a game against the winless Eagles. All of Canyon's losses have come at the hands of AAAA schools and they will probably be 0-5 after tonight.

In area action Miami goes on the road to Turpin, Okla. The Warriors won last week's scheduled game with Estelline by default when Estelline cancelled out because of injuries.

The Wheeler Mustangs are at home against the Wellington Skyrockets. Wheeler won its game last week against Silverton, 14-12.

McLean, which was victorious over Valley High last Friday 25-2, hosts a tough Memphis team tonight.

The Groom Tigers hope to get on the winning path as they host Boy's Ranch. Groom was blanked 28-0 by Canadian last week.

The Wildcats travel to Shamrock in what could be the feature contest of the weekend. Both Canadian and Shamrock have shown tremendous scoring potential and defense in their earlier games.

Two Dislike Match Play

VIRGINIA WATER, ENGLAND (AP) — Lee Trevino and Tony Jacklin, who both dislike the unnerving twists and turns of match play golf, were pitted against each other today in just the kind of man-to-man clash they prefer to avoid.

The target was a place in the final of the Piccadilly Match Play Championship, just about the only major tournament still run at match play.

After an opening round that saw the elimination of South Africa's defending champion Gary Player, two Americans and two Britons were left in the battle over the 6,997-yard Wentworth Course.

Trevino, the American who holds the British Open crown and Jacklin, the Englishman who took the U.S. Open title in 1970, were matched in one 36-hole semi final.

Peter Oosterhuis, the 24-year old Briton who ousted Player by one hole Thursday, was up against Tom Weiskopf of Columbus, Ohio, in the other.

Jacklin makes no secret of his belief that match play involves one golfer intruding on what should be another golfer's private fight with the course.

The true test of golf, Jacklin claimed, is how many shots it takes to finish the round.

"Anyone can beat anyone on his day," said Jacklin, who crushed Grier Jones of Wichita, Kan., 7 and 6 in the opening round.

Trevino, rated favorite to win the Piccadilly crown for the first time, agreed with Jacklin. "Certainly match play over 36 holes in a day is just too much," he said. "I'm happier simply playing the course."

Trevino, who defeated fellow American Doug Sanders 2 and 1 in the first round of the three-day championship, said afterward: "If I play as well as that again I have an excellent chance of winning, but who can tell what will happen in this kind of game?"

A BANNER NIGHT

NEW YORK — At 7:30 PM baseball fans with banners were told to assemble outside the park to line up for the annual banner parade at Shea Stadium. Nobody expected the first game to last 18 innings, but the Mets won it from the Phillies 3-2 and thousands carrying 3,912 banners — after waiting two and one-half hours outside center field — were permitted back in to the park at 10:10 PM when the game ended. They had to wait 11 innings.

Luman Harris of the Atlanta Braves was the fourth National League baseball manager to lose his job in 1972.

After Nine Long Years Oklahoma Now Favored

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

For the first time in nine years Oklahoma is favored over Texas in the 67th renewal of the Red River Classic in college football Saturday.

The clash between the nationally second-ranked Sooners and the 10th-ranked Longhorns in the Cotton Bowl is one of two games pitting teams in The Associated Press Top Ten against each other. Eighth-ranked Louisiana State and ninth-ranked Auburn battle at Baton Rouge in the other.

These two games between four nationally rated and unbeaten teams spice the weekend fare on collegiate gridirons.

Coach John McKay's unbeaten and top-ranked Southern California Trojans seek their sixth in a row against California.

In other games involving the AP Top Ten, No. 3 Alabama takes on Florida, No. 4 Ohio State faces Illinois, No. 5 Michigan tangles with Michigan State, No. 6 Nebraska battles Missouri and No. 7 Notre Dame engages the Pitt Panthers.

No. 12 Washington opposes No. 17 Stanford and No. 13 Colorado is pitted against No. 18 Iowa State in games pairing teams in the AP Second Ten.

No. 14 UCLA plays at Oregon State, No. 15 Penn State is at Army, No. 16 Air Force is at Boston College, No. 19 Oklahoma State is at Virginia Tech while No. 20 Arkansas hosts Baylor. No. 11 Tennessee has an open date.

While the Sooners are favored, Oklahoma fullback Tim Welch says the game with the Longhorns is "going to be a real battle. I don't think people are taking them serious enough. They've got as good a team as they've ever had."

A sellout crowd of 71,938 is assured for the game with another SRO turnout of 67,500 set for the night encounter between LSU and Auburn at Baton Rouge. Charles McClendon is looking for his 84th victory to become the winningest coach in LSU grid annals.

California is ineligible for the Rose Bowl, but the Bears hope to throw a roadblock in the path of the Trojans. "USC is the game we've been waiting for," said Cal coach Mike White.

Nebraska's Cornhuskers, the defending national champions, are favored to defeat Missouri and continue their climb back to the top after their first game upset by UCLA.

Sparky Anderson Not Talking Much

CINCINNATI (AP) — Two years ago Cincinnati Manager Sparky Anderson boasted: "Bring on the big bad Birds. We'll beat 'em."

Anderson's first Cincinnati team had won the National League pennant in a three-game playoff sweep over Pittsburgh. He looked down his nose at the American League champion Baltimore Orioles.

The Orioles made Anderson choke on his words, beating the Reds in the Series four games to one. Anderson hasn't forgotten. He's not about to make the same mistake.

"I have to be honest," said Anderson Thursday as he watched the Oakland Athletics win the American League pennant over the Detroit Tigers, "after the beating we took in '70, I'll make no comment. I'm not going to give Dick (Oakland Manager Dick Williams) any ammunition."

Anderson added, "I never dreamed an American League club would beat us, but I've changed my thinking about the AL now. Dick's team plays good baseball."

The 38-year-old Anderson recalled his outlook before the 1970 Series.

"In 1970 I was naive," he said. "I had never been to a World Series. I was just so glad to be there. I came in awe. The whole season was that way. I remember the reaction in Cincinnati when I got the job. They said Sparky who?

"Everybody at the Series couldn't understand how I could be so nice after losing. Well, I was so glad to be there I didn't realize until I got home that we had lost four out of five."

Anderson watched the A's go ahead of the Tigers 2-1, then win by that score.

"Oakland has great balance," Anderson said. "They can run, have good pitching and a fine defense. And they've got some good bats in Reggie Jackson, Joe Rudi, Mike Epstein and Sal Bando."

The Cincinnati manager said Oakland posed a different problem from a pitching standpoint than Detroit would have presented.

"If the Tigers had won, we would have had to look at Lolich maybe three times," Anderson noted.

WORLD OF WORK

Answers to Employment Questions by Secretary of Labor James D. Hodgson

Where to Find a New Job at 60 Plus?

S. W. of Davis Pa., writes: I am 67 years old and a widow. Ten years ago, after my husband died, I went to junior college to learn office work. After working for the same company for seven years, the company was sold. The new president believes that people over 60 should be retired. Where can I go for help in finding a new job?

Dear S. W.: While the Age Discrimination in Employment Act covers only workers from 40 to 65 years of age, you may obtain employment assistance from your local Bureau of Employment Security. There you will find counselors who are knowledgeable about employment problems of mature job seekers.

D. S. of Boulder, Colo., writes: I moved recently from another state where I had worked as a maid in a large motel. I earned $1.60 per hour which I understood was the minimum wage in every state. In this area, most of the motels and laundries pay less than $1.60. Can you explain why?

Dear D. S.: The Fair Labor Standards Act applies only to motels whose business is more than $250,000 a year. A motel that does less business than that does not have to pay the federal minimum wage of $1.60 per hour.

J. A. of Waco, Texas, writes: I recently resigned from my job and am looking for a new one. However, some employment agencies remind me that some employers seek younger men and women to fill jobs. The newspapers, too, are filled with ads which say, "bright young man wanted," or "recent college graduates needed." What about us "over 40s"?

Dear J. A.: Employment agencies which serve employers covered by the federal Age Discrimination in Employment Act may not classify or refuse to refer for employment any client because he is over 40. The law also bans help-wanted advertisements which include phrases such as "young" or those designating preference for a certain age group such as "25-35," because these terms imply that qualified applicants between 40 and 65 will not be considered.

'Month' Show May Shake TV

By DICK KLEINER

HOLLYWOOD — (NEA)— You have to admire that great director, William Wyler. He's been a serious cigarette smoker for 50 years and he just quit, using one of those new commercial methods.

He's so proud of himself that he's turned down a couple of picture offers. He figures the pressure of working on a film would drive him back to the weed so he'd rather not direct than run the risk of smoking again, he says.

There's an experiment going on in TV programming which could change the whole business. One sponsor has put together a program which does away with the middleman — the networks — and goes directly from the producer to the local stations.

The sponsor is the Long Distance Division of the Bell System. Up until this year they have annually put on a special, via the networks, each spring. They chose that season because it was just before the summer, when traditionally, people traveled, and traveling people are what makes for long distance phone calls.

Their research told them that people now are traveling throughout the year, not just in the summer, so they figured they ought to be on TV more often. Rather than a network series or a bunch of network specials, however, they opted for this new gimmick.

The show is called Top of the Month, and it is a variety show built around the theme of each upcoming month, with Tony Randall and E. J. Peaker in charge.

They're distributing it themselves — each of the 23 operating companies in the Bell System is marketing it individually, station by station, in the key cities. Angela Tedesco, the company's pretty, young executive in charge, says she expects they'll wind up with a bigger bunch of stations than if they went with a network.

They give the program to the stations free, with only a few provisos. It must be aired in prime time sometime during the first week of each month. And, because of Randall's presence (He does The Odd Couple on ABC) it cannot be aired by NBC and CBS stations opposite Odd Couple, and ABC stations cannot preempt Odd Couple with it.

This seems to be an economical breakthrough for TV. It's good for the individual stations — they get a top quality show free, something that has all the earmarks of being a big special. The sponsor doesn't have to buy network time so he's getting his message across at a greatly reduced cost.

The only one who's suffering is the network and the middleman always gets hurt when he's amputated.

THE PSYCHIC STARS: Nina Van Pallandt —

The Danish singer-actress, notorious because of her connection with Clifford Irving, lives (as Irving used to) on the island of Ibiza. Her house, she says, is so old nobody knows when it was built — she found 16th century coins in the new part of the building.

It was abandoned when she and her former husband, Frederick Van Pallandt, bought it. Nobody had lived in it for 50 years or so. The last owner, island legend had it, died there. On his death bed he was pointing at the walls to tell people where his fortune was walled up.

The natives came in, after his death and tore the place apart looking for that treasure. But nobody found a thing.

"One night," Nina says, "I was sleeping. I'm not the sort to scare easily, but something woke me up. There was a heavy weight of some kind on my chest. I heard the sound of breathing. I could smell that peasant smell — you know, a mixture of sweat, garlic and dirt.

"I saw nothing, only that weight, that sound, that smell. After awhile the sensations went away. There's no explanation, but I'm convinced it was the old man, coming back to check on his fortune."

Cup That Cheereth

The wassail bowls of old England were made of lignum-vitae, a hard wood that "never wore out." Often they held boiling-hot liquids and received banging against stone without damage.

Seasons on Mars are about double the length of those on earth.
