Delegation of 100 or More to Invade Baylor Exposition

When the official Wichita Falls delegation crashes the gates at the Baylor county fair and rodeo at Seymour Saturday, there will be a noticeable livening up of the event, if plans of local chamber of commerce officials are fulfilled. Manager Hubert M. Harrison and Mayor R. E. Shepherd, of the Texas-Oklahoma Fair association, have issued a call to all the local "Howdy Boys" to rally to the Wichita Falls standard and be on hand Saturday morning at 9 o'clock for the journey to Seymour. Everybody who can possibly get away, is requested to join the part, and are especially requested to notify either Mr. Harrison or the mayor of their intention to go.

"It will be the greatest advertising feature possible to obtain for the coming Texas-Oklahoma fair and will also spread good will among our neighbors of Baylor county," Mayor Shepherd stated yesterday. Fully a hundred local citizens are expected to join the party.

Fair Is Opened.

The Seymour fair opened Thursday morning with the greatest list of attractions they have ever offered. The fair will last three full days and an excellent program of special attractions are scheduled for each day.

Rodeo events for Thursday were unusually brilliant with approximately 30 experienced bronco busters contending for high stakes and a corral full of real "bad actors." Bronco busting, steer riding, calf roping and bull dogging furnished the four rodeo events, and they were the best the country affords, being under the able supervision of Fred and Bob Malone of Merkel.

The fair also included a large diversification of agricultural and farm club exhibits, and a fine lot of livestock as well. In fact the Baylor county fair has become one of the leading county fairs of the state, and boasts of an attendance and patronage far in excess of the average county fair.

Seymour in Gala Dress.

The city of Seymour has turned itself over to the fair visitors, and has attired itself in gala decorations in celebration of the event, while the citizenship have placed themselves at advantages points to extend the hand of welcome to everybody.

Wichita Falls has been given a cordial invitation to attend the big event Saturday, and the local chamber of commerce and fair association are anxious to surprise the Baylorites with a rousing big delegation from this city, so let's all get together Saturday morning, dig out our little tin whistles, tune up the vocal cords a little, and just naturally storm the scene of activity with the regular old Wichita Falls spirit.

Dame Fashion's Dictates Still in Good Standing as Wichitans Pour Into Town to See Late Fall Modes

Merchants Offer Glittering Displays Thursday Night Of Newest Creations From the Marts of Fashion; Thousands Jam Down Town Streets to See

Dame Fashion's dictates still hold magic sway with Pro Bono Publico.

In testimony thereof bear witness to Wichita Falls Thursday night.

The night wasn't a great deal unlike any other September evening; but on the other hand it was, too, for the first formal showing of what's what in wearing regalia brought one of the largest crowds of window shoppers in history into the business district.

Local merchants having previously announced that Thursday evening would find their show windows packed with the latest fall fashion modes, ought to have been and probably were gratified at the throngs swarming the streets and peering through the shining glasses at rows and stacks and piles of suits, coats, hats, dresses, shoes and all the other units of a well-planned wardrobe. In justice to the merchants it must be chronicled that their windows were things of beauty; and in justice to the public it must also be chronicled that those who came to see, looked their fill and went away thoroughly appreciative of the quality and quantity of goods laid out for their inspection.

Estimates on the crowd were hazardous, but the numbers down town really did exceed expectations. Indiana avenue took on a holiday appearance shortly after dusk. Sidewalk trafic was blocked in front of some of the larger stores, while every institution offering new fall merchandise in its windows had a liberal sprinkling for hours in front of its doors.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 2.—(AP)—Results of a study of cotton gin operations in the south, announced today by the department of agriculture, showed a marked decrease in the number of cotton gins in the last 13 years, but enough of an increase in the size of the gins to make up for the numerical loss.

While the study was confined to north central Texas, conditions there were considered as representative of a large part of the cotton belt. The work was undertaken primarily to determine what efficiency methods could be adopted to reduce waste in the industry.

VACUUM GETS BIG WELL

16,000 Barrel Flow Reported From Louisiana Test

HOUSTON, Sept. 2.—(AP)—An announcement here Thursday said that the Vacuum Oil company's Bondages number 3 well at Lockport, La., was brought in late Wednesday for a flow estimated at 10,000 barrels, extending the field 300 feet to the west. Due to a small percentage of sand in the production, the well was pinched in with one half inch choker, and Thursday morning was making 1,600 barrels by gauge. The gravity of the oil tested 24.8 baume. Depth of the hole was 3784 feet. This is the largest producer ever brought in at Lockport and indicates there is yet stronger production in the field than was formerly found.

Nothing could be given out in regard to the nature of the sealed report but Judge Cox in his charge to the grand jury instructed them to investigate the killing of Dr. Ramsey "from all angles" and the fact that the grand jury recessed until September 13, is taken to indicate that the jurymen have finished their investigation and taken some action. Under the law the grand jurors could have taken three actions. They could have returned an indictment, returned a no-bill or referred the matter to some future grand jury. Which was the result of the deliberations will not be known until the report is made public by Judge Cox.

STORMS FLOOD MIDDLE WEST RIVER TOWNS

Loss Will Run Above Million As Rains Sweep Eastward

CHICAGO, Sept. 2.—(AP)—Rain storms which paralyzed traffic and industry in Iowa and central Illinois carried their pluvian torrents eastward today, threatening repetition of the deluge in Indiana and Ohio.

The four-inch rain fell on Tuesday and Wednesday to the west of them was paralleled in Ohio and Indiana last night and today, with no indication tonight whether the storm clouds had yet vented their full wrath.

Indiana's storm centered around Frankfort and Kokomo. Ohio's heaviest rain fall, 4.65 inches, was reported from Akron.

Fresh Fall In Illinois.

Meanwhile a fresh fall of rain aggregated the flood menace along the western bank of the Illinois river in the vicinity of Peoria, where two tributaries were still rising, threatening homes in the valleys.

At Galesburg, Ill., where railroads and factories were inundated yesterday the water receded to permit repairs and a re-check of damage estimated yesterday in Galesburg and Peoria at $1,000,000 for each city.

Iowa's flood crest passed last night and stranded motor tourists resumed their journeys although high water continued to harass the southern part of the state.

Freak Storm Stories.

Many freak stories of the flood were told today. A wedding was halted at Galesburg when the bride was marooned at home by high waters and the groom waited eight hours at the church before she appeared. Two motorists near Peoria saw the flood approaching their road and they crawled from the windows of their sedan and swam to safety just as the torrent buried the car. It still stood in the road today with only the top visible.

Firemen of Cambridge City, Ind., dynamited a section of a dam to release waters which were backing up on farm lands. Richmond, Ind., firemen rescued residents of lowlands whose homes were surrounded by water.

He got in the man's automobile and, while driving toward Hollis, Okla., a second man in the car poked a pistol into his ribs and told him to keep quiet. He says he was then bound and gagged with a cloth over his face and that he lost consciousness.

Barber was found unconscious beneath a culvert near Altus, Okla., and was taken to an Altus hospital where he regained consciousness. Being uninjured, he returned to Childress today.

His following say he was kidnaped because of his strong sermons against liquor. He resides on a ranch, 14 miles west of Childress and conducts his meetings in the country near here.

CHURCH KEEPS HANDS OFF

NEW ORLEANS, Sept. 2.—(AP)—Prohibition enforcement is the responsibility of the state and the church should not be concerned with it. Such is the viewpoint of the Lutheran church of Louisiana expressed in a resolution adopted here today adopting an annual conference. This action was taken in response to an appeal by O. D. What is believed to be a record in long time lease contracts in Wichita Falls was set yesterday with the closing of a deal whereby the entire ground floor of the Joline building, Ninth and Indiana, was leased to the McCrory Stores corporation for a period of 30 years. The deal had been pending for some time, owing to a difference in terms of the lease, but yesterday Mrs. C. Joline agreed to give the lessees a 30-year possession of the building. This is said to be the longest term ever given in a straight lease on a building in this city.

The deal was consumated through the firm of McNeny & McNeny, who are sole representatives of the McCrory Stores corporation in Texas. This firm has leased buildings in Fort Worth, Dallas, Houston, Waco, Galveston and Wichita Falls, within the past few months, preparatory to establishing a chain of stores in this state. At 20, Merry fails in her stenography course, to the great disappointment of Moms, her ambitious mother. When her father dies she takes a job in Lillie Dale's beauty shop.

At this time she is having the first real love affair of her life. The man in the case is Anthony Gaines, a serious-minded young lawyer who wants to marry her. Their engagement ends when Tony finds out that Merry has been going out with other men and letting them make love to her. Helen, her oldest sister, marries Bill Hepworth. They settle down and have a baby. Cassie, the second oldest, marries her employer, Morley Kaufman. They do not get along well, but nevertheless Merry envies Cassie her life of lazy luxury.

Through Morley, Merry meets Bill Erskine, a middle-aged bachelor. She becomes engaged to him. He sends her expensive presents, lends her money to buy a share in the beauty shop, but keeps postponing their wedding day. Finally he goes to Florida for three months, to be with his father who is dying.

During his absence, Merry decides to go out with other men. She begins a flirtation with CABBY MARSH, a friend of Morley's sister, MURIEL. Then she meets LESTER PURCELL, an old "crush" of her high school days. Lester is selling cold cream for a cosmetic firm. Lillie Dale, who rents a room in the house from Moms, tells Merry that she thinks Lester is married. But she isn't sure, so Merry lets him come to call on her.

One night when Moms is out with her other boarder, MR. HEFFLINGER, JINNY, the youngest of the four sisters, runs away with DERRICK JONES, who lives next door. Merry suddenly realizes that only she, the prettiest one of the four, is left! The others have all married the men they wanted.

"I'm A Friend of Tony G aines," the voice said.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY
CHAPTER XXXVIII

Moms took the news of Jinny's elopment with a calmness that surprised Merry. She had expected Moms to wail and cry and beat the air with her hands.

But all her mother did was to shrug her shoulders and look blank.

"She and Derrick were bound to get married sooner or later, anyway," she said, sitting on the edge of Merry's bed, late that night, "and he's a nice decent boy even if he isn't much to look at. He'll make Jinny a good husband. There's no doubt about that."

She seemed to forget that she had been calling him a "softy" and a "silly goat" and like names for more than a year—ever since the night she had caught him kissing Jinny out in the darkness of the driveway.

She went to bed looking more cheerful than she had looked in weeks.

All the crying that was done in the house that night was done by Merry. Long after Moms and Lillie and Mr. Hefflinger were asleep, she was awake in the little room she and Jinny had shared as long as she could remember.

The old bookcase under the windows still held the books of their childhood—the old brown "Little Women," the volume that told about the "Five Little Peppers and How They Grew," the works of Frances Hodgson Burnett, and two or three books of fairy tales.

Their old dolls were in the chintz-covered box couch at the foot of Jinny's little bed. Even the flowered chintz reminded her of Jinny—of the long-ago afternoon when the two of them had tacked the covering on the old box couch.

Looking at it, Merry sat up in bed and cried aloud, with the abandon of a heart-broken child. She cried, not so much because Jinny was gone as because she herself was left. She, who had had more boy friends dangling at her finger-ends in one year of her life than the other three girls had ever had! All three of them put together—Helen, Cassie and Jinny!

How in the world had it happened? That he should be here, alone, and they should all be successfully married? None of them had ever been one-tenth as popular as she had been.

"It's Bill Erskine's fault, of course," she figured it out for herself, "old dog in the manger that he is! He doesn't want to marry me himself, and he doesn't want anyone else to marry me, either!"

She looked back bitterly at the long weary months that Bill had kept her on tender-hooks. First asking her to marry him, and then putting her off for one flimsy reason or another! It was humiliating to take such treatment from a man. Humiliating and shameful!

"But it's too late to do anything about it now," she told herself grimly. "The best thing I can do is to hang on to him like grim death. I've waited so long that may just as well stick it out for the next two or three months."

She sighed and sat down at the table between the window and wrote him the kind of letter that an engaged girl writes to the man she expects to marry.

"Jinny and Derrick ran away and got married today," it wound up. "I suppose that's exactly what you and I will be doing one of these days, Billy Boy, don't you? No fuss, no church wedding, no brides-maids. Just you and I, and a justice of the peace. Love from "MERRY."

She sat there biting the end of her pen thoughtfully, and looking at the words she had just written. The word "love."

She knew that she did not love Bill Erskine. But she enjoyed being with him, she missed him when he was away from her, and she admired his man-of-the-world ways. He was a "good catch," too, from a common sense viewpoint.

Besides, hadn't someone said that no woman ever really fell in love until after she was married?

The next morning before breakfast Moms and Mrs. Jones buried the hatchet.

Mrs. Jones rang the doorbell of the Locke's house for the first time in nearly a year. Behind her, on the front porch, stood small timid Mr. Jones, holding a dusty wine bottle in his arms, as if it were a baby.

"We thought we'd come over and drink the health of our young newlyweds," he announced heartily.

He came into the dining room, carrying his bottle carefully, and uncorked it. It was elderberry wine.

"Made by loving hands at home, so it's perfectly safe to drink," as Mr. Jones said, with a glance at his wife who still looked weepy and jumpy.

The wine she had made was not very good wine. It was quite sour, to tell the truth, and it left a nasty taste in the mouth.

Moms made a wry face when she tasted it.

However it had "a kick like a white mule," to quote Mr. Jones who thought himself a second George Ade.

After a glass of it, Merry and Lillie laughed and talked cheerfully all the way to the beauty shop. It was fully 11 o'clock before Merry's head was clear again.

Early in the afternoon Les Purcell dropped in, better-looking than usual in some new gray clothes.

Even Cassie, who was having a "facial" in one of the booths, got out of her chair to peak at him from beneath the white curtains.

"I say, Lillie," he called, giving Merry his engaging grin while he did it, "will you lend Merry to me for the afternoon? I've got to drive over to Olmsted Falls, and I want her to go along." He seemed to take it for granted that Merry did not need to be invited.

"Well, I don't know," Lillie's voice came, doubtfully, "I'm pretty busy this afternoon. Come here a minute, Merry! I want to talk to you."

"I don't think you ought to go with him until you find out whether he's married or not," she whispered when Merry joined her in the little room at the back of the shop. "We don't want to stir up a scandal, do we?"

Merry laughed. "How about you and the man you call 'Hot Heels'? He's married, isn't he?" she asked impudently.

Lillie shook her mop of dyed hair. "Indeed not!" she declared "Where did you ever get that idea? And anyway, I never see him any more. I'll tell you why, some day when we both have more time. Now, run along, like a good girl, and tell Purcell to go on his way, rejoicing."

But Merry had no intention of doing any such thing. She wasn't going to let Lillie Dale arrange her life for her! She just guessed not!

She took her little black felt hat and her coat from the hooks beside her and put them on.

In three minutes she was with Lester Purcell in his car on the way to Olmsted Falls.

"Only that isn't where we're going," Les said to her cheerfully, as they turned out of Gower street. "We're not going anywhere. We're just going to drive—any old place. We're playing hookey."

He smiled at her and she smiled back at him. She knew just how she looked when she did it. She had practised that slow enchanting smile a hundred times before the mirror of her dressing table.

It was no longer the natural, happy thing it had once been—that smile of hers. It was like the smile of a chorus girl, who knows that she must show so many teeth or loose her job.

"I never could stand these long-faced babies!" Bill Erskine had told her once upon a time, "and neither can any other man. It's the girl with the smile who wins!"

And ever since then Merry had been "the girl with the smile" for him. It had become a habit with her to be "the girl with the smile," the jolly-good-fellow girl, on the surface. But she never was happy, deep down inside, as she had been at the time she first met Bill Erskine.

Merry never had very much to say, but she was a good listener. She sat back in the corner of her seat today and let Les Purcell ramble on in his good natured boastful way. He told her that he was a "crack" salesman, whatever that was—and how many sales he had made last month.

Merry thought little of him and his salesmanship, but she enjoyed the long drive through the autumn countryside. She loved the smell of burning leaves, of dusty golden-rod along the side of the road, of ragged baby chrysanthemums that leaned over broken-down fences here and there. It was all so refreshing after the sight and sounds and smells of the beauty shop.

She enjoyed the beef sandwiches that Les brought out to the car from a barbecue shack that they came upon late in the afternoon.

"Now, we must be starting back," she said to him, when he got back into the car. "It's late. And I must be home before dark."

"Before dark? Where do you think you are—in kindergarten?" Les wanted to know. "You're allowed out, after dark, at your age, I hope."

"Don't talk about me as if I were an old hag of twenty-two!" she laughed at him. "I'm only twenty-one, you know—and besides, Lillie Dale says you're a married man! She's afraid I'm going to bring scandal down upon my innocent head by driving around with you!"

Les did not answer her. He turned the car. All the way back to town he sulked, and Merry hummed cheerfully.

"You and your temper!" she chaffed him, when he turned into Chester street. "I believe Lillie was right, and you really have a wife! Only your husband would know how to be a grouch the way you do!"

But she did not believe that he was married. It never occurred to her seriously, that he might be married. Somehow he did not have the look of a married man, and, anyway, if he were, wouldn't he have said so?

No one at home except Lillie when Merry went into the house. She was out in the kitchen, singing at the top of her voice, as she got supper.

But she stopped when Merry came in and turned her eyes on her with a half-humorous look of importance.

"Hmm! Now don't you wish you hadn't gone out with the cold-cream sheik?" she asked, tasting the soup she was making. "Now, aren't you sorry you went?"

"Why?" asked Merry, wondering what on earth she was getting at.

"Because a man with a very nice voice has called up three times this afternoon," Lillie answered with a smirk. "Three times since I came home, at five o'clock."

"Bill Erskine, I suppose," said Merry.

At that instant the telephone rang again.

The connection was bad, and all she could hear at first was a buzzing noise. Then a man's voice came to her, above the buzzing.

"—Tony Gaines," she heard it say.

Her heart stood still. Tony—after all these dreary months! Tony! Happiness stabbed her like pain, so that her breath caught and she could not speak for a moment.

Then all she could say was his name—"Tony?"

"No, not Tony," the voice at the other end of the wire answered amiably. The line was perfectly clear now. "I'm Benny Benson, a friend of Tony Gaines—"

"I see. Will you call me again in five minutes, Mr. Benson?" Merry managed to blurt out, "there's someone at the door, here—"

The receiver clattered into the hook, and she dropped down into the chair that stood beside the telephone. She put her head down into her hands, and sat there, perfectly motionless.

"Now, what's got into you?" came the cheerful, puzzled voice of Lillie from the kitchen doorway. "There's no one at the door! What did you hang up the receiver for?"

But Merry did not reply. She did not hear her. She just sat there, stunned, like a person who has had terrible news of some kind and cannot take it in.

(To Be Continued Tomorrow)

The friend from Montana, "Benny" Benson, calls on Merry and gives her heart-breaking news in regards to Tony. Read it in tomorrow's chapter of "The Petter."

Valentino Film On At The Strand

Wanderlust-afflicted youths and girls who pine for high-powered desert romance are getting a liberal education this week. If Rudolph Valentino's new picture, "The Son of the Sheik," the current attraction at the Strand theater, is any criterion, amorous adventure in the land of sand and oases isn't such a sinecure after all.

For every kiss and tryst, there are a few uncouth gentlemen lurking around the corner of a palm tree with daggers and pistols, and for every moonlight ride there are a few sandstorms to make dreamers realize that desert romance isn't all dates and honey.

For the dashing Rudolph's sequel to the original sheik picture shows the fiery loves and deep-dyed hates of the desert people as they really are, not as fancy has them. From the sidelines, the consensus of opinion seems to be that a Bedouin Don Juan earns all the romance he can get.

The young sheik rides many miles over the desert for a few stolen moments with a dancing girl, and then is beaten nearly to death by her followers. Nothing daunted, he kidnaps the girl, who happens to be Vilma Banky, and takes her to his tent.

That's just the start of his troubles. Before he eventually wins her he has to battle some of the most villainous-looking Arabs who ever galloped across the silver-sheet. Valentino demonstrates his athletic prowess by performing daring feats of horsemanship and making spectacular dives through the air to foil his foes. Some of the fights in "The Son of the Sheik" have been compared in ferocity to the historic combat in the original "Spoilers."

Of love there's aplenty. The scenes with Rudolph and Vilma are even more fervent than those in "The Eagle," the picture which introduced Miss Banky as Valentino's leading lady.

Shows at 12:00, 2:00, 4:00, 6:00, 8:00 and 10:00 o'clock.

Merry Locke, pretty and gay as her nickname, is a born flirt. The sort of girl who is happy only when some man is in love with her.

At 20, Merry fails in her stenography course, to the great disappointment of Moms, her ambitious mother. When her father dies she takes a job in Lillie Dale's beauty shop.

At this time she is having the first real love affair of her life. The man in the case is Anthony Gaines, a serious-minded young lawyer who wants to marry her. Their engagement ends when Tony finds out that Merry has been going out with other men and letting them make love to her. He goes to Montana to open a law office, and Merry does her best to forget him.

Helen, her oldest sister, marries Bill Hepworth. They settle down and have a baby. Cassie, the second oldest, marries her employer, Morley Kaufman. They do not get along well, but nevertheless Merry envies Cassie her life of lazy luxury.

Through Morley, Merry meets Bill Erskine, a middle-aged bachelor. She becomes engaged to him. He sends her expensive presents, lends her money to buy a share in the beauty shop, but keeps postponing their wedding day. Finally he goes to Florida for three months, to be with his father who is dying.

During his absence, Merry decides to go out with other men. She begins a flirtation with CABBY MARSH, a friend of Morley's sister, MURIEL. Then she meets LESTER PURCELL, an old "crush" of her high school days. Lester is selling cold cream for a cosmetic firm. Lillie Dale, who rents a room in the house from Moms, tells Merry that she thinks Lester is married. But she isn't sure, so Merry lets him come to sall on her.

One night when Moms is out with her other boarder, MR. HEFFLINGER, JINNY, the youngest of the four sisters, runs away with DERRICK JONES, who lives next door. Merry suddenly realizes that only she, the prettiest one of the four, is left! The others have all married the men they wanted.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY
CHAPTER XXXVIII

Moms took the news of Jinny's elopment with a calmness that surprised Merry. She had expected Moms to wail and cry and beat the air with her hands.

But all her mother did was to shrug her shoulders and look blank.

"She and Derrick were bound to get married sooner or later, anyway," she said, sitting on the edge of Merry's bed, late that night, "and he's a nice decent boy even if he isn't much to look at. He'll make Jinny a good husband. There's no doubt about that."

She seemed to forget that she had been calling him a "softy" and a "silly goat" and like names for more than a year—ever since the night she had caught him kissing Jinny out in the darkness of the driveway.

She went to bed looking more cheerful than she had looked in weeks.

All the crying that was done in the house that night was done by Merry. Long after Moms and Lillie and Mr. Hefflinger were asleep, she was awake in the little room she and Jinny had shared as long as she could remember.

The old bookcase under the windows still held the books of their childhood—the old brown "Little Women," the volume that told about the "Five Little Peppers and How They Grew," the works of Frances Hodgson Burnett, and two or three books of fairy tales.

Their old dolls were in the chintz-covered box couch at the foot of Jinny's little bed. Even the flowered chintz reminded her of Jinny—of the long-ago afternoon when the two of them had tacked the covering on the old box couch.

Looking at it, Merry sat up in bed and cried aloud, with the abandon of a heart-broken child. She cried, not so much because Jinny was gone as because she herself was left. She, who had had more boy friends dangling at her finger-ends in one year of her life than the other three girls had ever had! All three of them put together—Helen, Cassie and Jinny!

How in the world had it happened? That he should be here, alone, and they should all be successfully married? None of them had ever been one-tenth as popular as she had been.

"It's Bill Erskine's fault, of course," she figured it out for herself, "old dog in the manger that he is! He doesn't want to marry me himself, and he doesn't want anyone else to marry me, either!"

She looked back bitterly at the long weary months that Bill had kept her on tender-hooks. First asking her to marry him, and then putting her off for one flimsy reason or another! It was humiliating to take such treatment from a man. Humiliating and shameful!

"But it's too late to do anything about it now," she told herself grimly. "The best thing I can do is to hang on to him like grim death. I've waited so long that may just as well stick it out for the next two or three months."

She sighed and sat down at the table between the window and wrote him the kind of letter that an engaged girl writes to the man she expects to marry.

"Jinny and Derrick ran away and got married today," it wound up. "I suppose that's exactly what you and I will be doing one of these days, Billy Boy, don't you? No fuss, no church wedding, no brides-maids. Just you and I, and a justice of the peace. Love from "MERRY."

She sat there biting the end of her pen thoughtfully, and looking at the words she had just written. The word "love."

She knew that she did not love Bill Erskine. But she enjoyed being with him, she missed him when he was away from her, and she admired his man-of-the-world ways. He was a "good catch," too, from a common sense viewpoint.

Besides, hadn't someone said that no woman ever really fell in love until after she was married?

The next morning before breakfast Moms and Mrs. Jones buried the hatchet.

Mrs. Jones rang the doorbell of the Locke's house for the first time in nearly a year. Behind her, on the front porch, stood small timid Mr. Jones, holding a dusty wine bottle in his arms, as if it were a baby.

"We thought we'd come over and drink the health of our young newlyweds," he announced heartily.

He came into the dining room, carrying his bottle carefully, and uncorked it. It was elderberry wine.

"Made by loving hands at home, so it's perfectly safe to drink," as Mr. Jones said, with a glance at his wife who still looked weepy and jumpy.

The wine she had made was not very good wine. It was quite sour, to tell the truth, and it left a nasty taste in the mouth.

Moms made a wry face when she tasted it.

However it had "a kick like a white mule," to quote Mr. Jones who thought himself a second George Ade.

"I'm A Friend of Tony G aines," the voice said.

After a glass of it, Merry and Lillie laughed and talked cheerfully all the way to the beauty shop. It was fully 11 o'clock before Merry's head was clear again.

Early in the afternoon Les Purcell dropped in, better-looking than usual in some new gray clothes.

Even Cassie, who was having a "facial" in one of the booths, got out of her chair to peak at him from beneath the white curtains.

"I say, Lillie," he called, giving Merry his engaging grin while he did it, "will you lend Merry to me for the afternoon? I've got to drive over to Olmsted Falls, and I want her to go along." He seemed to take it for granted that Merry did not need to be invited.

"Well, I don't know," Lillie's voice came, doubtfully, "I'm pretty busy this afternoon. Come here a minute, Merry! I want to talk to you."

"I don't think you ought to go with him until you find out whether he's married or not," she whispered when Merry joined her in the little room at the back of the shop. "We don't want to stir up a scandal, do we?"

Merry laughed. "How about you and the man you call 'Hot Heels'? He's married, isn't he?" she asked impudently.

Lillie shook her mop of dyed hair. "Indeed not!" she declared "Where did you ever get that idea? And anyway, I never see him any more. I'll tell you why, some day when we both have more time. Now, run along, like a good girl, and tell Purcell to go on his way, rejoicing."

But Merry had no intention of doing any such thing. She wasn't going to let Lillie Dale arrange her life for her! She just guessed not!

She took her little black felt hat and her coat from the hooks beside her and put them on.

In three minutes she was with Lester Purcell in his car on the way to Olmsted Falls.

"Only that isn't where we're going," Les said to her cheerfully, as they turned out of Gower street. "We're not going anywhere. We're just going to drive—any old place. We're playing hookey."

He smiled at her and she smiled back at him. She knew just how she looked when she did it. She had practised that slow enchanting smile a hundred times before the mirror of her dressing table.

It was no longer the natural, happy thing it had once been—that smile of hers. It was like the smile of a chorus girl, who knows that she must show so many teeth or loose her job.

"I never could stand these long-faced babies!" Bill Erskine had told her once upon a time, "and neither can any other man. It's the girl with the smile who wins!"

And ever since then Merry had been "the girl with the smile" for him. It had become a habit with her to be "the girl with the smile," the jolly-good-fellow girl, on the surface. But she never was happy, deep down inside, as she had been at the time she first met Bill Erskine.

Merry never had very much to say, but she was a good listener. She sat back in the corner of her seat today and let Les Purcell ramble on in his good natured boastful way. He told her that he was a "crack" salesman, whatever that was—and how many sales he had made last month.

Merry thought little of him and his salesmanship, but she enjoyed the long drive through the autumn countryside. She loved the smell of burning leaves, of dusty golden-rod along the side of the road, of ragged baby chrysanthemums that leaned over broken-down fences here and there. It was all so refreshing after the sight and sounds and smells of the beauty shop.

She enjoyed the beef sandwiches that Les brought out to the car from a barbecue shack that they came upon late in the afternoon.

"Now, we must be starting back," she said to him, when he got back into the car. "It's late. And I must be home before dark."

"Before dark? Where do you think you are—in kindergarten?" Les wanted to know. "You're allowed out, after dark, at your age, I hope."

"Don't talk about me as if I were an old hag of twenty-two!" she laughed at him. "I'm only twenty-one, you know—and besides, Lillie Dale says you're a married man! She's afraid I'm going to bring scandal down upon my innocent head by driving around with you!"

Les did not answer her. He turned the car. All the way back to town he sulked, and Merry hummed cheerfully.

"You and your temper!" she chaffed him, when he turned into Chester street. "I believe Lillie was right, and you really have a wife! Only a husband would know how to be a grouch the way you do!"

But she did not believe that he was married. It never occurred to her seriously, that he might be married. Somehow he did not have the look of a married man, and, anyway, if he were, wouldn't he have said so?

No one at home except Lillie when Merry went into the house. She was out in the kitchen, singing at the top of her voice, a she got supper.

But she stopped when Merry came in and turned her eyes on her with a half-humorous look of importance.

"Hmm! Now don't you wish you hadn't gone out with the cold-cream sheik?" she asked, tasting the soup she was making. "Now, aren't you sorry you went?"

"Why?" asked Merry, wondering what on earth she was getting at.

"Because a man with a very nice voice has called up three times this afternoon," Lillie answered with a smirk. "Three times since I came home, at five o'clock."

"Bill Erskine, I suppose," said Merry.

At that instant the telephone rang again.

The connection was bad, and all she could hear at first was a buzzing noise. Then a man's voice came to her, above the buzzing.

"—Tony Gaines," she heard it say.

Her heart stood still. Tony—after all these dreary months! Tony! Happiness stabbed her like pain, so that her breath caught and she could not speak for a moment.

Then all she could say was his name—"Tony?"

"No, not Tony," the voice at the other end of the wire answered amiably. The line was perfectly clear now. "I'm Benny Benson, a friend of Tony Gaines—"

"I see. Will you call me again in five minutes, Mr. Benson?" Merry managed to blurt out, "there's someone at the door, here—"

The receiver clattered into the hook, and she dropped down into the chair that stood beside the telephone. She put her head down into her hands, and sat there, perfectly motionless.

"Now, what's got into you?" came the cheerful, puzzled voice of Lillie from the kitchen doorway. "There's no one at the door! What did you hang up the receiver for?"

But Merry did not reply. She did not hear her. She just sat there, stunned, like a person who has had terrible news of some kind and cannot take it in.

(To Be Continued Tomorrow)

The friend from Montana, "Benny" Benson, calls on Merry and gives her heart-breaking news in regards to Tony. Read it in tomorrow's chapter of "The Petter."

AT THEATRES

Valentino Film On At The Strand

Wanderlust-afflicted youths and girls who pine for high-powered desert romance are getting a liberal education this week. If Rudolph Valentino's new picture, "The Son of the Sheik," the current attraction at the Strand theater, is any criterion, amorous adventure in the land of sand and oases isn't such a sinecure after all.

For every kiss and tryst, there are a few uncouth gentlemen lurking around the corner of a palm tree with daggers and pistols, and for every moonlight ride there are a few sandstorms to make dreamers realize that desert romance isn't all dates and honey.

For the dashing Rudolph's sequel to the original sheik picture shows the fiery loves and deep-dyed hates of the desert people as they really are, not as fancy has them. From the sidelines, the consensus of opinion seems to be that a Bedouin Don Juan earns all the romance he can get.

The young sheik rides many miles over the desert for a few stolen moments with a dancing girl, and then is beaten nearly to death by her followers. Nothing daunted, he kidnaps the girl, who happens to be Vilma Banky, and takes her to his tent.

That's just the start of his troubles. Before he eventually wins her he has to battle some of the most villainous-looking Arabs who ever galloped across the silver-sheet. Valentino demonstrates his athletic prowess by performing daring feats of horsemanship and making spectacular dives through the air to foil his foes. Some of the fights in "The Son of the Sheik" have been compared in ferocity to the historic combat in the original "Spoilers."

Of love there's aplenty. The scenes with Rudolph and Vilma are even more fervent than those in "The Eagle," the picture which introduced Miss Banky as Valentino's leading lady.

Shows at 12:00, 2:00, 4:00, 6:00, 8:00 and 10:00 o'clock.

WISCONSIN

POLITICALLY speaking Wisconsin has the queerest lineup of any one of the 48 states. For 30 years Robert M. La Follette, the elder, was political dictator of the state. He was greater than any party although he classified himself a republican. When he died Robert M. La Follette Jr., became the successor of his father in the American senate and political dictator of Wisconsin.

Irvin M. Lenroot began his political career as a follower of the elder La Follette. La Follette's friendship made him governor, made him a representative from a congressional district and finally made him United States senator.

Then Lenroot turned ingrate. He repudiated the policies of Lafollette. He turned his back upon his creator. It has been war to the knife ever since Lenroot deserted the standard of the La Follettes. Lenroot is a Coolidge republican. He is a candidate for re-nomination.

In Wisconsin the state primary will take place September 8. Pitted against Renroot is Governor John G. Blaine ever loyal to the house of La Follette and ever a champion of its policies of government.

There is a battle royal on in Wisconsin between the house of La Follette and the house of Lenroot with young La Follette making a stirring speaking campaign for Blaine for senator and calling upon all shades of republicans to drive Lenroot from high place.

All ten congressmen from Wisconsin are La Follette congressmen. All twelve are candidates for re-nomination. Senator Lenroot and his followers have the backing of the federal administration. They control the federal patronage. They dominate what is known as the old guard machine but this is not the machine which has ruled Wisconsin politically and carried the La Follettes to victory for a third of a century.

They have their own machine and it is the best running plant of its kind in any of the western or northwestern states. If Lenroot should win a re-nomination it will be a body blow for the house of La Follette. If La Follette drives Lenroot from public life then he will be completely in control of the republican party of the state as his famous father in all the bitter campaigns of thirty years.

WHY NOT WHIPPING POST?

WHY not the whipping post for incorrigible criminals? This mode of punishment is popular in Canada. At Winnepeg three American hijackers robbed a Canadian of $100. They were caught and convicted and this was the punishment meted out: First twenty stripes on the bare back and then three years at hard labor.

It is said that one application of Canadian justice effects a cure. An American criminal on his release from prison, loses no time in crossing the border line and getting back in the dear old United States.

Desperate criminals avoid Delaware as they would the plague. In Delaware criminals are whipped, publicly whipped and it is never necessary to apply the punishment for a second offense.

A whipping post may be a relic of the dark ages but it is a mode of punishment that produces a result.

TRAMMELL OF FLORIDA

SENATOR TRAMMELL is a democrat. He voted for the ratification of the world court. Now Trammell of Florida has reversed himself. In political parlance he has taken the back track. He is going to ask the senate to withdraw the United States from the world court. Senator Gooding of Idaho is a republican. He voted for the world court. He has taken the back track. He flopped when Trammell flopped. It is possible for a senator to know his own mind.

WHAT, IN KANSAS?

GOVERNOR BEN S. PAULEN of Kansas has ordered the attorney general of the sunflower state to clean up Kansas cities and towns and to drive the gamblers and bootleggers out of the state. Is it possible that there are rum sellers in Kansas? Is it possible that there are gamblers in Kansas? Is it possible that Vice dares to show her ugly mug in Kansas?

WHERE THE GOLD FLOWS

PARIS is the mecca of rich Americans. Paris is the gayest of all the cities of Europe. Paris has more attractions of a certain kind than any city on the map of the world. Paris is a city of pleasure, a city of wine and song, a city where the idle rich of all the nations foregather.

France borrowed $4,000,000,000 from the United States in war time. France was offered the most generous settlement by the United States government of all of the war ridden countries which were carried by the United States in the dark days of the world war and for years after a peace pact had been signed.

According to a Paris correspondent the tide of American tourists that flowed into France this summer is estimated as the greatest in history and many conjectures have been made of the gold which Americans left in France this year.

In 1925 it is said that 220,000 Americans visited France and in that year these pleasure loving sons and daughters of Uncle Sam spent $226,160,000 in Paris and the provinces of France. Sons and daughters of British Isle love Paris and Parisian life.

In 1925 it is said 760,000 tourists from the British Isles let loose a river of gold in France and Spain was next on the list with 685,000 tourists who invaded France and spent their easy money in the gay capital of that romantic and historic land.

Every year American tourists distribute a quarter of a billion of American dollars in the land of Lafayette. Now why should the French growl because they are asked to refund their war loan?

Why should French editors brand the American people as shylocks? Why should French statesmen insist that the war loan was a debt of gratitude never to be paid?

American men and American money saved the life of France and the honor of France. Had it not been for the soldiers and the gold of the United States there would have been no France on the map today and the black eagles of Germany would float triumphantly in the land of the lilies.

HOW OLD IS THE EARTH?

A CAMEL that lived in Florida a million years ago, more or less and that is different from any other branch of the camel tribe, is to be classified by Dr. J. W. Gidley of the national museum. He found the bones of the camel, the Florida camel, which had long slender legs and should have been a fast runner.

In discovering the bones the scientist also made the discovery that Florida may have been a desert at one time. Florida isn't a desert now. Florida is a bit slumpy but promises to come back.

Florida enjoyed the greatest boom of any southern state. In the short space of two years more than a billion dollars was invested on Florida by residents of other states. Scientist Gibley may have been one of the investors.

If so he recouped his financial losses when he discovered the bones of this camel which existed according to his count of time a million years ago. How old is the earth? How old is time? How old is the camel family?

William Jennings Bryan lived and died in Florida. He never unearthed a skeleton of prehistoric times, but he did ride the democratic donkey until the patient little beast of burden landed in the ditch.

TEACHERS SEEKING JOBS

ACCORDING to Marshall Johnston, superintendent of public schools in the city of San Antonio, the number of applications to teach average from 2,000 and 2,500 each year and a new high record may be made in 1926.

When there is a bumper cotton crop the price slumps. When there is a bumper wheat crop it is the same. Colleges of the commonwealth must be turning out bumper crops of teachers.

Notwithstanding this alarming situation there is a demand for efficient teachers in the rural districts and the politicians say that if the legislature would make liberal appropriation for the support of the country schools there would be a greater demand than ever for teachers of first grade.

First grade teachers should be paid first grade salaries. Are they? Superintendent Old Man Marrs should be able to make a satisfactory reply.

The Toonerville Trolley That Meets All The Trains

The Pied Piper of One-Track Gulch

By Francis Lynde

He came on the Dolomito & Utah Pacific scene in character, stealing a night ride on the blind baggage of west bound train No. 4; and Shockey, Bloodgood's fireman on the 1026, discovered him soon after the train had pitched over the summit of the divide at Elk Pass tunnel.

Shockey amused himself on the long down grade from the tunnel to the knot-tying curves in the Boiling Water basin by heaving lumps of coal into the air with the trajectory nicely calculated to drop missiles upon the hunched figure on the platform of the baggage car.

Farther along he coupled the hose used for wetting down the coal, and by skillfully manipulating the injector contrived to send a stream of moderately hot water over the tender—also at the effective angle. The result was doubtless all that could have been desired. The March night was cold, and water which has been heated freezes quickly.

Afterwards, the headlight dynamo needing to be tinkered, Shockey forgot his victim. But at Split Canyon, the meeting point with the delayed "Flyer," there was a reminder. When No. 4 had come to a stand on the siding, the tramp, crackling as if clad in parchment, climbed the tank end and slid down over the coal to the footplate.

He was a tall young fellow, healthily haggard and clear eyed. Also, he lacked the submissive cringe of his tribe; which was possibly the reason why Shockey, balancing himself for the kick propulsive, changed his mind, made fanning motions with his hands as if he were driving chickens, and said:

"Now, then; twenty-three for you, Weary Willie—shoo!"

But the tramp did not "shoo." When Bloodgood swung up to his gangway, torch and oil can in hand, the ice-armored young man has saying crisply to Shockey: "You turned a hose on me a little while back, and I'm so cold that I think I shall have to ask you to biff me once or twice—just to start the circulation."

Precisely what took place was not very clear, even to Bloodgood, who was a short-range spectator. But when the situation clarified itself, Shockey had been thrown out among the bystanders on the right-of-way, and the tramp, smiling genially and breathing on his chilled fingers, was dropping from the engine step.

The laugh was on the fat-armed fireman. One of the passengers, an alert little gentleman in a fur-lined overcoat, stood Shockey on his feet and whispered in his ear:

"Do you stand for that?—from a man 20 pounds lighter than you are?"

"Not in a month o' Sundays!" raged the heavyweight. "Lemme at him! Don't let him get away!"

The square-shouldered young fellow who was blowing on his fingers showed no disposition to shirk. "Turn him loose," he said; and the battle was on.

It was short and sweet. Three times the fireman rushed for the clinch, and three times there was a sound like the smack of a hearty kiss and Shockey bit the dust.

"I g-guess I'm it," he gasped reluctantly, after the third catapulting. Whereupon the tramp, still smiling, reached down and picked him up.

The up-coming fast train was whistling on the curve below, and the conductor called "All aboard!" Shockey was hauled up the steps of the 1026 by his engineer, and the tramp found himself confronting the alert little gentleman in the fur-lined coat.

"Now, then," said Shockey's backer, "talk fast. What had you been doing?—brake beaming?"

"Same as," was the offhand reply. "I was on, the blind baggage. He turned the hose on me, and I had to warm up some way."

"Ride stealing costs you 30 days in this state. Did you know that?"

The young man looked around at the bare, bleak, mountain wilderness of Split Canyon, brilliantly illuminated at the moment by the headlight of the coming train.

"Nice, sociable-looking place, isn't it?" he commented. "I'm afraid I shall have to swing and let the judge make it 60 days."

"Where are you headed for?"

"Any old place with houses in it."

The alert gentleman turned to the conductor, who was waiting patiently, lantern in hand.

"Carry this young scrapper to Castle Cliff, and call on me for a pass to cover," he ordered curtly; and he was on his way back to his sleeper when the "Flyer" thundered past.

"Climb on," growled the train captain to his new passenger, when he had given the starting signal, adding: "If Jack Shockey'd knocked you out, you wouldn't have got even a tie pass out of Mr. Reddick. You can bet on that." Then, reverting to a detail: "What's your name? He'll have to call you something, on the pass."

The vagrant backed into the stove corner of the smoking car and laughed light-heartedly. "Name's like the place; any old handle will do. Suppose we call it 'Montgomery,' and if we have to have an initial, make it 'H.' How will that do?" he said; and while the conductor was making the memorandum; "You've got a carload of dagos—Italians—up ahead; where are they going?"

Conductor Halkett thought this was palpably none of the tramp's business, and said so. But having thus put the hobo in his proper place, he gave the required information.

"They're going to Riata, 60 miles this side o' Casle Cliff. They're pick-and-shovel men for the T. C. coal branch buildin' over to the Burnt Hills."

With the blind-baggage incident for the prologue, the tramp's next appearance—also in character—was in the railroad headquarters building at Castle Cliff; scene, the public office in the general passenger agent's suite; time, the following morning; persons of the drama, Stanwix, the severely correct chief clerk—and the hobo. The brief colloquy was good-naturedly insolent on one side and brittle on the other.

"Is this Mr. Reddick's office?"

"Yes."

"I want to see him."

"You can't."

"Why not?"

"Because he's too busy."

"Bet you a dollar, when I get hold of one, that I can see him."

"I don't bet."

"Good boy; you'd lose. See here."

The chief clerk's flat-topped desk comfortably filled the space between the counter and the low partition boxing off the private office. Laying one hand on the counter, the trampish young man vaulted to the top of the desk, looked over the partition to fling a cheerful "Good morning" to the general passenger agent, and was back in his place beyond the barrier, all before the scandalized Stanwix could get his second breath.

As was to be expected, there was an explosion in the private office; the crash of a pivot chair righting itself, and the immediate appearance at the door of communication of a wrathful department head.

"What's going on out here?" he snapped; then he recognized the intruder. "Oh, it's you, is it? What do you want?"

"Work," said the young man, tersely.

"Oh, you do? Well, you don't go very diplomatically about getting it."

"I might hint that I am saving the diplomacy for the job itself," was the smooth reply.

The head of the department smiled in spite of himself.

Questions from the World of Love Answered by a Noted Authority

"Believe Me, Husbands and Wives," Warns Dorothy Dix, "Marriage Is Not the Place to Tell Home Truths. No One Marries to Be Elevated or Reformed or Improved; We Marry to Be Loved and Appreciated.

There is no greater foe to domestic peace and harmony than the critic on the hearth, and few, indeed, are the households that are not afflicted with one of these pests whose chirpings can never be silenced.

Stevenson once said that "to marry is to domesticate the recording angel." This is what only too many men and women find, to their horror, that they have inadvertently done. They took unto themselves husbands and wives in the fond belief that they were annexing admiring audiences that would give them the perpetual glad hand, and lo and behold, they discover that they have sold themselves into bondage to mentors and school mistresses and reformers.

When John led Mary to the altar, he never doubted that, in her eyes, he was a perfect pattern of all that a man should be, and that he realized her ideal in good looks, deportment, judgment, wit and wisdom, as embodied in a member of the masculine sex. Judge then, of his dismay when he discovers along about the time that the honeymoon begins to wane, that instead of regarding him as a model she apparently considers him an awful warning.

Everything he does and does not do is wrong. She finds fault with his every act. She criticizes his taste and tells him that his clothes are either too loud or too somber; that the style of his coat shows how humpshouldered he is getting, or that the cut of his trousers emphasizes the fact that he is a trifle bowlegged, and that the way he wears his hair brings out the weakness of his chin. She spoils his dinners by correcting his table manners, and takes the punch and pep out of his best story by setting him right about the pronunciation of a word in the midst of it.

And Mary is in the same boat. When she intrusted her young life into John's hands she never dreamed that she was also committing to his care her toilettes, her complexion, her habits, her grammar, her general likes and dislikes.

She never doubted that he considered her only a little less perfect than the angels, but to her consternation she finds that he appears to look upon her as the world's greatest agglomeration of faults and weaknesses.

He never notices her dress except to tell her that it is ten years too young for her, or the color of it makes her look like a salaratus biscuit, or that it shows up her fat.

Tainted Meat Is Cause of Poisoning

PEORIA, Ills., Sept. 2.—(AP)—Veal loaf was blamed today for the illness of nearly 200 persons stricken with ptomaine poisoning after the annual picnic of the City Christian Endeavor Society.

A half dozen of the cases were so serious as to prohibit the removal of patients from their homes to hospitals and physicians despaired of the lives of two girls.

Two clergymen were among the sufferers whom doctors were called to attend several hours after church leaders and young people concluded yesterday afternoon's outing with a banquet spread beneath the trees. It was expected that both Rev. J. Summers, retired, and Rev. R. F. Joop, pastor of the First Evangelical church, would recover.

Physicians who attended the victims agreed that the poisoning was the result of tainted veal loaf, which had been prepared in advance for the picnic

Lyrics of Life

By Douglas Malloch

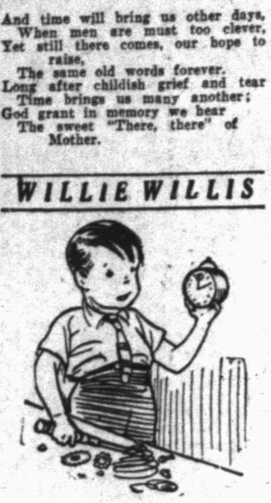

THERE, THERE

Some darling doll is broken now;
"There, there," and that is mended.
Some grief will cloud the little brow;
"There, there," and grief is ended.
Perhaps it is some fragile joy
That breaks the heart of Brother,
But this will heal the heart and toy—
The sweet "There, there" of Mother.

When youth shall have its larger loss,
If youth will but reveal it,
Will come to Mother with its cross,
She has a balm to heal it.
Though hurt may make the heart to bleed.
And seem the soul to smother,
Then this is all that children need,
That old "There, there" of Mother.

And time will bring us other days,
When men are must too clever,
Yet still there comes, our hope to raise,
The same old words forever.
Long after childish grief and tear
Time brings us many another;
God grant in memory we hear
The sweet "There, there" of Mother.

What Do You Know About It?

DAILY SCIENCE SIX

1. How are flies harmful?
2. When a basket of fruit is brought in the house, where do the little flies that often cluster around it come from?
3. What is the best way to get rid of ants in the house?
4. What is a catch-crop?
5. What is the latest method of combating the boll weevil?
6. What is the "weak point" in the life history of harmful insects?

Answers to these questions in tomorrow's Record News.

LIFE-SAVING BEETLE

Entomologists are generally considered by the community to be bughouse, because they study bugs. As a matter of fact they are among the most practical and useful scientists in the world, and have saved many lives, and know how to take the lives of harmful insects in large quantity. It is not often that we hear how insects save entomologists's lives, though a spider is supposed to have saved that of the Scottish chief, Bruce. But there is a true story of a great French entomologist who was implicated in political troubles in the stormy last century in France's history, who was about to be sent away on a convict ship to a penal colony where disease soon ends men's lives. An officer on the ship was much interested in a beautiful beetle; the entomologist told him its name; the officer became interested in the scientist, and procured his release.

Now what do you know about that?

Answers to yesterday's questions:

1. A great hurricane recently occurred in the gulf states.
2. It originated in the West Indies.
3. It disappeared in Alabama.
4. Hurricanes are caused by unequal heating of different portions of land and water, causing the wind to flow from high to low pressure areas very fast.
5. Although the wind may blow at 60 miles an hour or twice that in a hurricane, the center of the storm actually travels very slowly, so that the storm remains in any one place for many hours.
6. The difference between a typhoon and a hurricane is merely geographical; typhoons are East Indian storms; hurricanes are West Indian.

WHAT TODAY MEANS TO YOU

BY MARY BLAKE

Today's planetary aspects are very favorable, and continue so throughout the whole day. Only very late in the evening, will there be sensed any disquieting influences. It is an eminently auspicious occasion for the energetic prosecution of any enterprise—old or new—in which you may be interested, or for putting into effect any radical changes in which you have faith. Hope, resolution, and energy will be sensed, and these fundamental influences will necessarily cause and bring about success; provided your efforts are confined to that which is sane and constructive and not directed along channels of speculation and hazard.

Children born today will, during infancy and up until late in the teens, enjoy oxuberant health, and the few minor ailments, to which they will be subject, will readily yield to ordinary methods of treatment. Between the stage of adolescence and that of adulthood they will, so the stars say, suffer from one serious illness—either caused by too rapid growth, or accident. Their characters will be dependable, and while a trifle too introspective, this will not make them churlish or uncongenial. They will study with great avidity and, although not exceptionally talented, their knowledge will always be fundamental and not superficial. Their success in life is practically assured.

If today is your birthday, you possess a very patient disposition and are more plodding, than spectacular. You, in all probability, have mechanical ability and, if engaged in any such work, your methodical and careful habits are of inestimable value. You rarely, if ever go off at "half-cock" but your judgment is always conservative, and your speech is cautious. Observation is one of your chief assets and you are quick to profit by the experience of others. Selfishness is foreign to you and your friends realize that you are always ready to land a helping hand when "the going is rough."

You are slow to form attachments. The few friends you have are worth considerably more than a wide circle of acquaintances. Falling in love at first sight would be an impossibility for one of your characteristics. Affection must, in your condition, be founded on long acquaintance, and of steady growth. As a natural result you, when you marry, will bring to your mate a devotion and well-founded love that can, if reciprocated, only lead to a life of happiness and lasting joy.

The Tough Luck That Sunny's Good Luck Brings to Me.
By Hers-To-Command.

Ah, Sunny dear, it seems to me
Life is unfair;
For two long weeks I know I'll be
In deep despair
While you're away on your vacation.
The thought fills me with consternation.

I know just how you love to dance,
And I know, too,
You will not turn down any chance!
What shall I do?
Strange arms your form will be embracing
While I, in my room, will be pacing!

Strange men will hear your lovely voice.
So sweet, so soft!
It's bound to make their hearts rejoice;
I fear TOO oft!
I hate them now, each Sheik and Petter,
For all I'll get will be a letter!

You'll spend two weeks down at the shore,
And there you'll wear
That bathing suit that I adore,
And strangers there
Will feast their eyes, no limitation—
While I must use imagination!!

PUZZLING.
By Seth B. Goddard.

An Ozark youth brought a watch in to a jeweler to have a broken crystal replaced. The next day he called for it and the jeweler saw him no more for a week. But a week later he brought in the watch with another shattered crystal.

A few days later the jeweler put in a third crystal, then another. Every few days he replaced the glass in the front of the watch case. Finally he spoke to the young fellow about it.

"See here," he said. "Why are you always breaking the crystals out of your watch? This is the tenth one I've put in!"

"That's what I wanted to speak to you about," drawled the youth. "The upkeep's gettin' durned expensive. Ain't there some other way to set the blamed thing when she runs down without bustin' out the glass?"

My Favorite Stories

THE REAL CAUSE OF SORROW

There are various versions of this one. All of them are good. It is, I would say, one of those sure-fire stories which cannot be seriously damaged even by a faulty rendition.

The scene is a concert in a northern home. An ambitious pianist is just finishing playing "Way Down Upon the Swanee River."

In the corner sits a gentleman who was brought to the party by one of the friends of the hostess. As the performer concludes, the strange guest sinks his head in his hands and bursts into a loud sob.

The concerned hostess hurries to him and puts a compassionate hand on his shoulder.

"You must be a southerner," she says, "that this should make you weep so."

He raises a tear-stained face.

"No, madam," he replies. "I'm a musician."

HUNTSVILLE, Texas, Sept. 2.—(AP)—Gale McAdams, 16, died here Thursday from injuries sustained when a horse threw him against a stump Wednesday afternoon, crushing his chest. Edgar McAdams, father of the boy, was elected tax assessor of Walker county Saturday.

MIRACULOUS!

Our wrongsanded friend, Freddy Fussell, finally got over for a win in Beaumont. The persevering southpaw has been a source of enjoyment for some reason or other, to Exporter fans. 'Twas no secret that the Shippers like portsiders in the home park and Freddy best of all. But finally the tide of war has changed. That 6-5 triumph yesterday in ten frames means more than merely a victory as victories go; it means Fussell broke his jinx at last, even if the season is about finished and Fred won't get another chance at the Beaumonters this year.

Duke, another one of these ardent Spudder followers, returned the other day from a trip that carried him east where he saw the popular Alex Metzler, late of Wichita Falls, in action with Connie Mack's Athletics. Chirps Bill Brandt, Public Ledger sports authority:

"The boys executed some bits of brilliance which were just as welcome as their other plays were painful. Young Alexander Metzler, our left fielder, besides smashing home a run with a husky line single to right, bobbed into the public eye with two sensational plays.

"In the fourth inning he had to make his first serious throw since leaving Wichita Falls. With the bases filled, and one out, he caught a fly from Kamm and nailed Big Falk at the plate with a perfect peg. It came low and pretty fast and bounced right into Cochran's lap."

"Bib was right in there, too, and when Umpire Rowland called it a double play, Manager Collins made quite a speech.

"Metzler's other heroic was equally important. In the eighth inning, with Morehart on first and one out, Falk crashed a heavy liner at the left field stands. It would have bumped the stone for a couple of sacks if Metzler had not taken steps. He leaped high off the ground to wrap his hands around the ball, and Morehart went scrampering back to first base. Since Bill Barrett followed with one of the three real-honest-to-goodness singles credited to the Sox, the crucial nature of Metzler's flying leap can be easily appreciated."

HOW ABOUT IT, DON?

The unusual in sports (as far as Wichita Falls is concerned): A first-class boxing program from start to finish with every fighter advertised as scheduled on the card really putting in an appearance and then earning his money.

Rain Halts Crucial Red-Pirate Game

CINCINNATI, Sept. 2.—(AP)—A heavy rain brought to a halt the crucial game between Pittsburgh and Cincinnati today after three and one-half innings of play. It was the final appearance of the Pirates here and one of the largest week-day crowds of the season went home disappointed after waiting two hours for the skies to clear.

Cincinnati gathered two runs in the first inning and another tally in the second while Pittsburgh failed to register in their four innings. Luque held the visitors to one hit up to that stage.

The game possibly will be played in Pittsburgh September 10, as part of a double header.

CANNIBALS WIN, 3-0

PALESTINE, Texas, Sept. 2.—(AP)—Longview took Thursday's game in the Lone Star series from Palestine, 3 to 0. Bowman, pitching for the Cannibals, held the Pals scoreless and allowed them only three scattered hits. Walker pitched a great game for the Pals but two errors proved costly. Then, too the Cannibals outhit the Pals.

MIGHTY ALEX REAPS SWEET REVENGE, 2-0

Hornsby Crew Runs Wild In Second, Grabbing 9-1 Win

CHICAGO, Sept. 2.—(AP)—The St. Louis Cardinals today played like champions and defeated the Chicago Cubs in both games of a double header by scores of 2 to 0, and 9 to 1. The double victory while Pittsburgh and Cincinnati remained idle gave the Cardinals a two-game lead over the Reds and a three-game margin over the world champion Pirates.

Grover Alexander, the former Cub pitcher who was sold down the river for $4,000 reaped revenge on his former team mates in his first appearance against them in Chicago. He let them down with three scattered hits, while he led the attack which brought victory in the first game by doubling into the overflow crowd in left field.

This blow was followed by Douthit's triple and Southworth's double for the only two runs of the game.

In the second contest Rhem kept Chicago's hits well scattered. The Cub's lone run resulted from Hartnett's double and two infield outs. The league leaders bunched their hits off three Chicago pitchers, Hornsby contributing a home run with a man on base and won easily. Great fielding plays by Southworth, Hornsby, Tevenow and Bottomley aided the Cardinal pitcher.

More than 31,000 people were jammed in the park, a crowd of ten deep being jammed in left field where the bleachers were formerly located.

The day was dark and intermittent sprinkles worried the crowd but failed to slow the game.

Fans came to blows as Alexander quit the mound with his shutout victory in the first game. An uproar of boos and cheers greeted him as he walked to the dugout and immediately fists began to fly among those for and against the former Cub.

The police were quick in restoring order and a near-calm had been achieved when the second game was called.

PEORIA, Ill., Sept. 2.—(AP)—President Joe Goebel of the Peoria Fans' association announced Thursday that the St. Louis Cardinals had purchased Harry Layne, outfielder, for $5,000. The Brooklyn Dodgers had an option on his purchase up until last Monday, but failed to exercise it.

Mantell Throws Both Referee And Gorman to Win His Bout! Now Rasseling Fandom's Mad

Dutch Heaves Ross on Jack, Then Pins Foe While Nobody's Looking, So Ringsiders Get Miffed.

BY BLONDY CROSS.

Most of Wichita Falls' noble wrestling fandom got all riled up last night and, no doubt, quite a few of the boys still are smoldering and dimmering under the gills this morning.

For the biff and grapple tournament between Jack Gorman, the favorite, and Dutch Mantell, the much maligned Columbus monkey-man, didn't wind up to suit.

Dutch was awarded the victory palm after considerable boisterous tiffing on what appeared to John Public as a very doubtful third fall. Having received the verdict, little Alfred dodged a random haymaker launched by his adversary, looked mildly around and seeing there was nothing else to do, picked up his gear, consisting of a bathrobe and a towel, then betook himself hence. So much for Dutch.

The battle of blows was finished and the battle of words just begun!

Agitated fandom ganged itself to the ropes. They demanded the life (or money back) of Matchmaker Alec Ross, who, for lack of a better, was referee for the night.

Strangely, they got neither.

Following 20 or 30 minutes wrangling and yelping, the city constabulary became imbued with a brilliant thought. No sooner thunk than did. Spreading out in as-skirmishers-quide-is-right formation, they escorted the center of attraction from the arena. With the official umpire gone, the crowd quickly dispersed.

Threw Referee, Too.

Briefly told it is this: The referee cautioned Mantell for hitting with closed fists, Mantell retorted, "Tell him about," the "him" being Jack Gorman. "G'wan, tell him!" bellowed Dutch, grabbing Ross by an arm and swinging him around to face Gorman. "Tell him," roared Dutch again, and shoved the referee on top of his foe. They went down in a mess, Jack on the bottom, Dutch having enacted a perfect swan dive and the referee in the middle. The referee was the first to break. When he did he found Gorman clamped in a vise-like hold put on by Mantell. In a flitting fraction of a second, Jack was on his back, Dutch on top. The referee secured command, felt under the fallen battler's shoulders, then patted Mantell on the after end, signifying that Mantell had captured the fall and, since it was the third one, the match.

Now, let us zap a little. Mantell outsmarted both Ross and Gorman. Ross should not have been in the way and since he was, not so slow of foot. Jack should have been on his toes more for under the rules a wrestler must protect himself, must be ever on his guard except when time out is called.

In this particular incident, the referee was not at fault in awarding Mantell the fall. But he WAS at fault in that the second he became tangled up betwen the two he did not order them to break and get back to the center of the ring standing up.

The Second Guess.

Knowing Mantell as we do, it's safe to declare that the first thing Ross should have done, instead of jumping up, was slap a headlock on the burly midget and then order him to break.

Would I have done the same, do you ask, if I had been the referee? Absolutely! I'd have grabbed that Dutchman, perhaps clipped him one and taken a chance on what the consequences may have been.

The finish of the match was unpleasing. But fandom should not take it so hard for, after all, we're all human. Don't blame the referee because he was not fast enough afoot to avoid the melee. Don't blame him because all he thought about at the moment was getting back to his feet instead of breaking the wrestlers apart. It's easy to second guess a man.

Gorman won the first fall in 16 minutes with a flying headlock. It came as a surprise, Dutch was up to his old tricks at the time, talking back to a ringsider, head turned from his opponent and acting as if he was off guard. Mantell, in truth, had one foot cocked and was endeavoring to "suck" Gorman in. What occurred was Gorman jumped about three times as fast as expected to, slammed on a headlock and busted Dutch to the mat, pinning both blades in a twinkling.

Gorman trapped himself on the second fall, Dutch winning in 19 minutes with a body slam. After Gorman had applied a head scissors, Mantell picked him up bodily, blocked Jack's crossed ankles so he couldn't pull loose, whirled and flopped backwards with Gorman on the bottom. The crash put Gorman "out" long enough for Mantell to twist over and pin him.

Yaqui Joe Wins.

Yaqui Joe continues to win hands down. Joe Russell, Houston welter, substituted for Bill Kendall, fought the Indian at a merry clip but lost in straight falls. It was a sturdy battle. Yaqui copped initial honors in 21 minutes when Russell conceded to the agony of a wrenching arm lock. The second came in 14 minutes, the Indian putting on a Japanese arm lock.

Oh yes, about the times Gorman had Mantell pinned under the ropes, two to be exact; turn to your rules again—no falls in or under the ropes allowed. They performed under New York biff commish rules. Look 'em up.

Speaking of referees, ain't they just terrible, what we've been having the last few weeks? Many fans thought Ross wilfully favored Mantell on that final fall. They overlooked the fact that Ross really favored Gorman throughout. Several times he stalled with Mantell long enough for Jack to get his bearings. One time in particular, Jack was hanging over the ropes, fists clamped to the hemp, practically out from a series of headlocks. Ross, whether intentionally or not stalled long enough on the break for Jack to clear his head up again. Had he promptly pulled Jack from the ropes and let him go the match may have ended sooner. So, you see, usually there are two sides to every question.

SPORTS DONE BROWN

Elinor Glynn, world's greatest expert on women and love, says that what makes some women attractive and alluring to men is not just beauty of face or form, or any particular charm but just "it."

To my mind Jack Dempsey's chances of retaining his world's heavyweight championship when he faces Gene Tunney September 23 depends upon just one thing—"Whether or not he still has "it."

"It" in Dempsey's case does not mean any mysterious alluring charm, however.

"It" refers solely to the "killing" instinct that he carried into the ring with him on his long fight toward the championship that day in Toledo against Jess Willard.

If ever a "killer" stalked the boards of a prize ring it was Dempsey, when he faced the Kansas giant in Toledo.

For eight solid weeks Dempsey had lived, trained, eaten, played and slept with but one aim in view, that of battering Jess Willard into submission and winning the world's championship.

He lived the seclusion of a tiger in a cage. Jimmy DeForrest, wizard trainer, watched over him day and night. To drive his fists into Willard's midriff and face became an obsession with Jack. Naturally a boring in, hammering, grinding type of fighter, he perfected that style. DeForrest gave him exercises that accustomed his back to the crouching pose he assumed when starting his two-fisted drive.

Willard was not the heavyweight champion; as far as the atmosphere about Jack's camp was concerned. He was simply something that had to be hewn down to Dempsey's size and then dropped.

The afternoon that the two entered the ring Dempsey was as sullen as a tiger kept without meat but within smelling distance of it for eight weeks. No thought given to his personal appearance. Two days' whiskers smeared his scowling face. A dirty red sweater covered shoulders colored chocolate by eight weeks of summer sun. As his aides put on his gloves he shuffled his chair in evident desire to climb out of it into the center of the ring.

Called to the center of the ring by Referee Ollie Pecord for final instructions he walked out head down, fists swinging eagerly. He refused Willard the satisfaction of a glance. He merely looked at Willard's feet and legs—up to his stomach where hung too much fat.

The gong sounded. Willard stepped out of his corner smiling and ready to spar a bit. Dempsey came out like an angered bull. He muttered a bit as he "shook off" one of two lefts which Willard sent to feel him out. Then came his time. Ducking under one of these lefts he stepped in close. His right fist shot home to that stomach. An agonized grunt came from Willard as he bent over and lowered his guard. Flash! The left went crashing to Willard's jaw. He dropped—dropped drunkenly as a poled steer.

There wasn't a grin on Dempsey's face then, just a lust for blood in his eyes in addition to that sullen look. How he battered Willard to a hopeless bit of pulp in three rounds is history.

If Dempsey still has that "killing" instinct he will watch the referee count the baleful seconds over Gene Tunney next month. If a life of comparative ease, association with gentle and pleasure loving folk has allowed this instinct to die, Jack Dempsey will be half licked when he goes into the ring. For he'll be an ordinary champ in defense of his title instead of a tiger looking for prey.

COYOTES PLAY CATS SEPT. 16

Pack Rushes to Get Into Shape For Childress Encounter

Wichita Falls high school grid candidates chased through their second day's work sessions yesterday at the Junior college with nothing of the very unusual cropping up other than the fact Coach Bud McCallum shot a brace of new plays to his squad.

That makes four plays given the youngsters already and the training season but two days old. Nothing premature about that, however, because McCallum is forced to whip his squad into shape rapidly due to the billing of a game with the Childress Bobcats September 16, to be played at the Childress state fair.

It is possible the boys will not have more than four or six plays to work with when they tangle with the Bobcats.

No rough practice has been indulged in yet. They'll probably get a dose of this Saturday, hitting the dummy and falling on the ball.

Fundamentals, naturally, are to the fore at present with McCallum drilling mostly on line defensive and offensive positions and the backfield on shifts.

The general run of punting, passing and sprinting, of course, is receiving heavy attention.

Grandfield Points For Iowa Park And Wichita Tiffs

FREDERICK, Okla., Sept. 2.—With an excellent team in the making, Coach Harry Chambers of the Grandfield football team is pointing his squads to the opening game of the season which will be played at Grandfield September 17, against the Iowa Park team. The Friday following the Grandfield team will journey to Wichita Falls for a game and on October 1, will meet the Frederick high school team at Grandfield.

Chambers has fourteen letter men as his basis for team organization this year and having begun practice it is believed the Grandfield football aggregation will rate along with the best teams in southwestern Oklahoma and northwestern Texas this year.

TEXAS SCORES AT SPUD PARK

Game Results To Be Given During Amateur Title Series

Jess Winters and his Panhandle team intend to run off their championship series with the Fort Worth amateurs at Spudder park Sunday and Monday in sure-enough championship style.

The club has been working away at a stiff clip daily so that Wichita Falls fans may be assured of witnessing a first class battle unmarred by a host of boots and misplays that occur in so many amateur games simply because the players are not in the best of condition and not because they are not capable diamond performers.

And to round out everything in major league order plans are under way to keep all the score boards at the park working over-time on Texas league games. In other words, fans who attend the Wichita Falls-Fort Worth amateur series will be enabled to keep up with Texas league results at the same time. On Monday the amateurs hook up in a double header. At the same time the Spudders and Cats will be in double deadlock at Fort Worth. It is planned to get inning-by-inning wire reports on these games and slap 'em on the scoreboards while the contests here are in progress.

Tank Horton and Speck Roberts, who at first, it was feared would not be in the Panhandle lineup, returned yesterday from the Denver baseball tournament and will be ready to step this week-end. Both athletes are in great condition, having played through the recent Amarillo tourney and then part of the Denver meet.

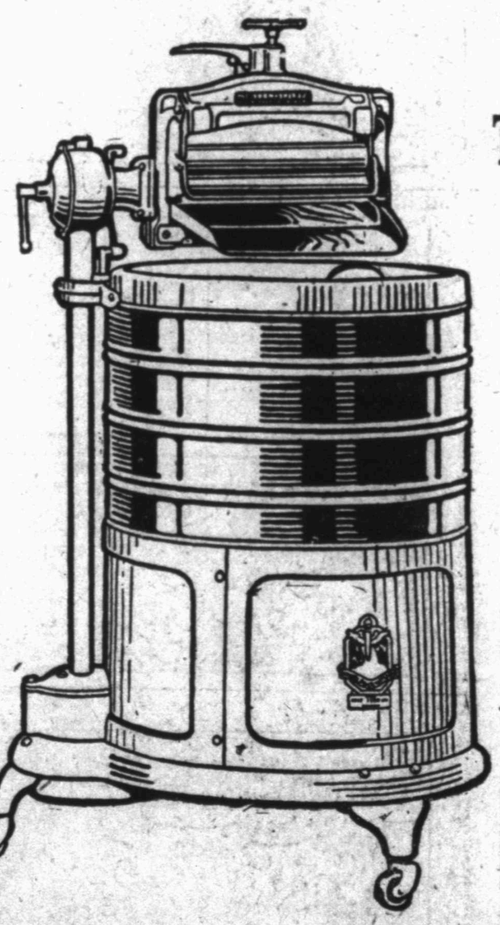

SNYDER CHECKS OUT.

ST. LOUIS, Sept. 2.—(AP)—Catcher Frank Snyder, obtained from the New York Giants by the Cardinals for the waiver price of $4,000, has quit the club and apparently has gone to his home in Texas, club officials believe. He did not appear at the ball park Wednesday.

Spudders Capture Deciding Tilt, 6 to 5

Ed Hughes' Column

CAN THE KING BE KO'D.

Is Jack Dempsey less durable in the matter of soaking up punishment than the ring kings who have gone before him? The fact that Dempsey has either been hurt or badly dazed in practically all of his major Queensberry encounters is one of the arguments given by Tunney supporters for their belief that the ex-marine has a glittering chance of knocking out the Man Killer. Dempsey, it is true, has been on the fringe of defeat more than once, even since becoming champion.

* * *

Carpentier's crashing right in that memorable second round at Boyle's staggered and stunned the champion momentarily. That Dempsey was dazed and shaken up was patent by his actions. For the first time during the battle Dempsey ceased his pulverizing body punching in close. Jack blinked and his paw sagged as he gripped for the clinch until his head cleared. Long before that, on the coast, when Dempsey was fighting his way to the top, Gunboat Smith almost cashiered him with his famous looping right. The blow found impact in the second round and Dempsey was badly used up. Afterward Jack maintained that he had fought the remainder of the bout in a daze and that when he won the decision at the end of the fourth he was unable to comprehend the fact. Firpo knocked him out of the ring, and Willard at Toledo brought Dempsey up short with a long right uppercut as Jack was trying to finish the old champion. That wallop, as Dempsey admits, almost turned the tide of battle. All of which would seem to indicate that Dempsey is not exactly a man of iron, despite the fact that he has weathered the sinking spells and won out in the end.

* * *

Much has been made of these incidents, yet it is a fact that practically all of the old champions have had their own giddy sinking spells or moments when they were "in reverse," so to speak.

* * *

CASE OF CORBETT.

Jim Corbett, ex-champion, experienced no such quirks and qualms as did Dempsey. But then Corbett fought but seldom and his opponents, for the most part, were decidedly mediocre. Charley Mitchell, his first challenger, was "done" when he faced the clever Californian. Corbett whipped him in three dazzling rounds, but in the very first round Gentleman Jim experienced something of a humiliation. In a lively exchange Mitchell's rapid left jabbing brought blood from Jim's nose for the first time during a ring fight.

* * *

Fitzsimmons was down for the count in the sixth round in his title-winning battle with Corbett. In his very next battle Jeffries knocked him out. Before that Peter Maher stretched him senseless over the ropes, Fitz being saved by a timely ringing of the gong. Gus Ruhlin also shook him to his heels in their memorable battle in the old garden.

* * *

Hero wroshippers of Jeffries like to contend that Jeffries was never once dazed by a blow when in his prime. But listen to W. W. Naughton's account of the seventh round of the Coney Island battle with Sharkey: "He caught Jeff one heavy left on the side of the head and it looked as if the bigger man was hurt. Jeffries wanted to clinch, but Sharkey pushed him away and smashed him again with the left. They stood close together and exchanged blows and it really seemed as if Jeffries was becoming dazed."

* * *

Jack Johnson was floored heavily by Ketchel in the historic battle on the coast before Johnson won with a clear knockout.

He is, indeed, an iron man who has not been shaken by a blow and the type has yet to be glimpsed within ropes, all arguments to the contrary notwithstanding.

FRED FUSSELL SMASHES JINX IN BEAUMONT

Fitz' Single, Sacrifices By Tony and Lapan Win In Tenth

GANG TIES IT TWICE

BEAUMONT, Sept. 2.—(AP)—The Spudders took the deciding game of the series, 6-5, today in ten innings. Loose fielding contributed largely to the scoring of both teams while both hurlers did creditable work. It was another bad day for umpires, there being much baiting and razzing throughout the game. The Exporters were in charge of Claud Robertson, Galloway having been indefinitely suspended for a reported run-in with Umpire Fanning between games yesterday.

Wichita Falls broke off to a three-run lead in the first inning, but err two frames had been played the Beaumonters forged a tally out front. The gang tied it in the first half of the eighth merely to have it unknotted in the last half. They came back and deadlocked her again in the ninth and won in the tenth.

George Homers.

LaFayette opened the game auspiciously, slamming a home run over the right field wall. Turgeon singled and Jenkins followed with a duplicate sending Pete to third. Tut stole second and Williams walked, filling the bases. Benton hit into a double play, but Turgeon scored. Jenkins scored when Deviveros kicked Fitzgerald's bounder to short.

Reagan started the Beaumont half of the first with a single to center. Connolly singled to left, Reagan advancing no further than second. Brown filled the sacks with a single to left. Hansen rolled to Turgeon. Reagan scored and the rest were safe because DeFate dropped Pete's toss to second. Jones forced Hansen at second, Connolly scoring. Brown was caught off third when somebody became imbued with the idea a double steal was in order.

Shippers Two In Second.

Singles by Oliver and Reagan with a walk and Robertson's double gave the Shippers two runs in the second, making the score 4-3.

Fillingim and Fussell tightened up and the game was slick, snappy and scoreless until the eighth when the score was tied and untied again. With one out, Fitzgerald singled to right. DeFate walked and was forced at second by Lapan, Fitzgerald taking third. Fitz and Lapan tried a double steal and got away with it because Robertson threw high to second. Fitz, of course, tabulated. Fussell struck out.

Fussell walked Hansen at the beginning of the Shipper half of the eighth. Hansen absconded with second when Fred rolled the ball to Lapan and asked for another. He went to third on a wild pitch and scored after the catch of Deviveros' fly to center.

Turgeon Doubles.

A double by Turgeon, an infield out and Williams' single gave Wichita Falls the tying run again in the ninth.

Fussell held 'em off in the latter portion of the ninth and the boys stepped out and sewed the argument up in the tenth. Fitzgerald opened the victory stanza with a single down third base way. He went to second on DeFate's sacrifice and continued on to third when Hansen fielded the bunt and hit DeFate in the back with the ball. Lapan flied to center. Fitzgerald scoring after the catch.

CUBS WIN THIRD

WACO, Sept. 2.—(AP)—The Waco Cubs made it two straight from the Shreveport Sports here today by a score of 4 to 3. The locals bunched two hits, a walk and an error in the third for two runs and in the Sports' half, Cantrell hit a fluke homer, the ball hitting on the right field foul line and bouncing over the bleachers for a home run. Nason also hit a homer in the eighth but the bases were empty on both circuit clouts. Caldwell, rookie hurler from the Texas Association hurled a steady game and also fielded his position in a brilliant fashion, knocking down several hits which were turned into putouts.

Dancing Beauties Irk Noble Champ

Jack Hightones Dougherty, Rain Butts In, Oh, He's Mad

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., Sept. 2 (AP)—To the accompaniment of forked lightning and downpouring rain, Jack Dempsey resumed training today after a 24-hour lay off.

The world's heavyweight champion, irritable and unable to restrain his nervous energy worked out in the open at the Greyhound racing track, but had to limit his boxing to five rounds because of the deluge that swept the ring.

Rough on Mates.

Before the rain drove him to cover, however, Dempsey unleashed a savage attack against two of his five sparring mates, all but knocking them out.

Tillie (Kid) Herman, the Los Angeles middleweight, fell a victim to a short left hook and a right to the chin that dropped him to his knees. Frankie Carpenter, the Freeport lightweight, also was severely punished.

The champion was thoroughly aroused over events that preceded his workout. He was in a savage mood when he entered the ring. When he appeared at the track, a jazz orchestra, seated directly in front of the ring, was thumping out lively tunes while young women dancers attired in skimpy bathing suits were ripping off the latest Charleston steps on the platform Dempsey uses for shadow boxing.

Just all Wrong.

Dempsey ordered the cabaret performance stopped, the dancers and orchestra were from a board walk cafe the owner of which desired to give Dempsey a little entertainment. Dempsey said their appearance had been unauthorized.

Before going to the track Dempsey dropped into Mayor Baden's office and bumped into Jimmy Dougherty of Philadelphia, once warm friend of the champion. Dempsey declined to greet him and turned his back. Dougherty, who has refereed three contests for Dempsey was bitter because of this cool reception. Their break in friendship came after Dempsey split with Kearns. Dempsey feels that Dougherty cast his support in favor of Kearns.

Frisch Tagged With $500 A.W.O.L. Fine

NEW YORK, Sept. 2.—(AP)—Captain Frank Frisch of the New York Giants today was fined $500 for leaving his team without permission in St. Louis two weeks ago, team officials announced. Manager John McGraw said that Frisch would return to the team tomorrow.

In a statement given out by the officials it was pointed out that the fine was necessarily imposed as the result of Frisch's deserting the club but in view of Frisch's good conduct and satisfactory services previously no further action would be taken. However. Frisch will lose his salary for the time he has been absent from the Giants.

TUNNEY RAINED OUT

STROUDSBURG, Pa., Sept. 2.—(AP)—Rain brought rest to Gene Tunney today, his first day in his new Stroudsburg camp. A steady drizzle kept the challenger for the heavyweight fistic championship in the dry Glenbrook golf club all day.

BIG BILL MAY COP DOUBLES

First Time Since 1923 Has Singles King Neared Team Top

BROOKLINE, Mass., Sept. 2.—(AP)—For the first time since 1923 William T. Tilden reached within striking distance of the national doubles championship today. After failing for two successive years to carry youthful Sandy Wiener of Philadelphia beyond the third round, the national singles title holder today won his way to the finals of the 1926 tournament with Alfred H. Chapin Jr., as his partner, paddling through five sets over a wet court to defeat his veteran far west rival, William M. Johnston, and the intercollegiate champion Edward G. Chandler at 6-3, 0-6, 2-6, 6-2, 6-4.

Defeat came to Johnston today as it always has come in the past—with the little Californian fighting back gamely to stave off a sensational finish on the part of Tilden and his team mate.

The victory gave Tilden and Chapin the right to face the winners of a match tomorrow between R. Norris Williams and Vincent Richards, the defending title holders and Lewis N. White and Louis Thalheimer of Texas.

Three teams including Mrs. Molla Mallory and Tilden reached the semi-finals of the national mixed doubles, summaries of which follow:

Second round: Elizabeth Ryan and Jean Borotra defeated Elanora Sears and W. M. Johnston, 6-4 6-2; Mr. and Mrs. A. H. Chapin Jr., eliminated Sarah Palfrey and Howard Langlie, 6-3, 6-4; Mrs. G. W. Wightman and Rene LaCoste defeated Polly Pal Frey and Sam Luce, 6-1, 7-5.

Third round: Mrs. Mallory and Tilden defeated Martha Bayard and Jacques Brugnon, 9-11, 6-3, 6-4; Miss Ryan and Borotra defeated Edith Sigourney and Phil Neer, 6-0, 6-1; Mrs. Wightman and LaCoste won over Mrs. N. W. Niles and G. Stadel, 6-0, 6-0.

TWO GOING UP.

FORT WORTH, Sept. 2.—(AP)—Jimmy Walkup and Charley Sullivan, two left-hand pitchers, will get a trial with the Detroit Tigers next season. Announcement of the sale was made Thursday by Paul LaGrave, business manager of the Fort Worth club of the Texas league.

Walkup, 28, and a veteran, has been the best left-hander in the league this season, having won 20 and lost ten games and having set the smallest earned run average record for the season.

The Pennant Scramble

NEW YORK, Sept. 2.—(AP)—The St. Louis Cardinals dashed farther out in front of the pack in the National League today by taking two games from the Chicago Cubs, 2-0 and 9-1, while Pittsburgh and Cincinnati were obliged to call off their conflict after 3 1-2 innings of play. After waiting two hours for the rain to cease the game was called with Cincinnati leading, 2 to 0.

Today's victories over the fourth place Cubs gave the Cards a two game margin over Cincinnati, the runner-up. Pittsburgh is still in third place three games behind the leader. Chicago settled farther back in fourth, a full seven and a half games to the rear of St. Louis.

The standing of the leaders:

St. Louis	78	54	.591
Cincinnati	74	54	.578

BEARS SLOUGH STEER OUTFIT

Mitze's Macemen Turn On Leaders For 12 to 0 Victory

SAN ANTONIO, Sept. 2.—(AP)—San Antonio Thursday got ample revenge on Dallas for the 16-2 defeat of Wednesday by whitewashing the Steers in the series final, 13 to 0.

Tiny Owens not only pitched a magnificent game, yielding but three hits, but his hitting was in perfect unison as a contributing factor to the Bear victory. Owen's three hits drove in three tallies. Scott Perry, Dallas hurling ace, who came from the Philadelphia Americans with a 15-inning no-hit game this credit, was pasted all over the lot for nine hits and five runs in seven innings before he was yanked. Southpaw Shuman-elkewise failed to halt the rampaging Bruins and Darrough finished the farce.

CATS NIP THREE

HOUSTON, Sept. 2.—(AP)—A triple play by Fort Worth featured the 8 to 5 victory over the Buffs here today. In the seventh Miller singled and Powell walked. Kearns, attempting to bunt, popped in front of the plate and Smith grabbed it. The Cat catcher threw to Windle, who touched second to retire Miller and then tagged Powell out on the base line.

Burns' error on Miller's throw in the twelfth paved the way for the three runs which gave the Cats the victory.

Both Walkup and Barnes pitched well in relief, rules after Pipkin and Danny Burns starting hurlers, had been mauled from the mound. Score:

Camel—the greatest tobacco word of all time

NEVER in the history of smoking has there been such a cigarette as Camel. No other cigarette was ever made welcome in so many millions of homes, because no other ever brought so much enjoyment to smokers.

When Camels came into the world they brought an entirely new sense of smoking satisfaction and contentment. Millions who have tried them all, who could well afford to pay more, will smoke only Camels. Camels on the table mean that this is the home of experienced smokers.

Camel is the world's favorite cigarette. Camel is given a greater patronage than any other cigarette ever had. Why? Because Camels contain the choicest Turkish and Domestic tobaccos grown. Because Camels never tire the taste, no matter how liberally you smoke them. Because they never leave a cigaretty after-taste. The world's largest tobacco organization puts the utmost quality into this one cigarette.

If you want the mellowest mildness that ever came from a cigarette, try Camels. Regardless of what you are willing to pay, you will find in this famous smoke every fine feature you ever looked for in a cigarette.

Have a Camel!

NEW YORK COTTON.

NEW YORK, Sept. 2.—(AP)—Business in the cotton market today was again attributed chiefly to transferring of commitments for near to late months or the evening up of accounts in preparation for the approaching holidays and government crop report. The price of December contracts fluctuated from 17.75 to 17.81 and closed at 17.75, compared with 17.78 at the close yesterday. The general market closed steady at a net decline of eight points on October, but generally one to four points higher.

The market opened steady at an advance of one to eight points on overnight buying orders, probably brought in by the steadiness of yesterday afternoon but almost immediately turned easier. Relatively easy late cables from Liverpoou, and failure of today's reports from the weather bureau to contain any further mention of the tropical disturbance reported near the West Indies yesterday, probably led to realizing or liquidation. Otherwise, there was very little pressure and after selling off to 17.73 for October and 17.83 for January, prices stiffened on covering.

The detailed weather reports showing a little more rain than anticipated in the Carolinas and Georgia may have promoted some covering in the early afternoon while one of the private crop reports showed a crop indication of only 14,100,000 bales. Demand failed to broaden on the advance to 17.92 for January, however, and last prices were a few points off fro mthe best. October was relatively weak in the afternoon under selling against purchases of later deliveries presumably to transfer long accounts and sold off to 17.66 in late trading.

One of the private crop reports made the condition 59.8 and the indicated yield 15,-852,000 bales, while another placed condition at 57 and the indicated yield at only 14,500,000 and a third report summarizing the views of southern correspondents pointed to a yield of 14,140,000 bales.

The average of nine private crop indications so far issued is 14,672,000 bales.

Exports today 34,084, making 424 so far this season. Port receipts 19,985. U. S. port stocks 588,190.

NEW ORLEANS COTTON.

NEW ORLEANS, Sept. 2—(AP)—The cotton market was a very quiet affair today, the near approach of a triple holiday and the nearness of the government report which will be issued Wednesday restricting trading to evening up operations. The range of prices was confined to very narrow limits not exceeding nine points on the most active month, December. Prices after opening three to four points down on easier cables, rallied four to six points on moderate covering and trade buying but soon eased off again three to six points from the early highs. The market fluctuated narrowly all day and made the lows in the late trading, seven to nine points under the highs of the morning. The closing was a shade above the lows, showing net unchanged to three points down on the day.

At the start Liverpool came in a shade lower than due and before the end of the first hour, October traded down to 17.69, December to 17.68 and January to 17.86, or three to five points below yesterday's close. The market gradually rallied and during the early afternoon, October traded up to 17.76, December also to 17.76 and January to 17.72, or three to four points above yesterday's close.

The market again eased off in the late afternoon and made new lows with October at 17.69, December at 17.67 and January to 17.64, or seven to nine points down from the highs. The close was a little above the lowest.

Exports for the day total 34,084 bales.

STOCK-A-DAY

ILLINOIS CENTRAL RAILROAD COMPANY

The Illinois Central is one of the main north and south trunk lines of the country and in its 75 years of existence, is one of the few carriers which has not had to be reorganized. The main line extends from Chicago to New Orleans with important branches to Birmingham, Louisville, Indianapolis and Omaha, taps the rich Mississippi valley, the Illinois coal fields, the timber and fruit belts of the south and has entry into the gulf coast region in various places. About 4,875 miles of first line track, is operated and the company controls a large number of subsidary roads including the Central of Georgia and the Gulf and Ship Islands and has investments in others.

By the terms of its charter the road must pay Illinois on its Chicago-Cairo and Centralia-Dubuque lines 7 per cent of gross earnings in lieu of taxes. It should not be overlooked that the Union Pacific system is a potent factor in the affairs of the Illinois Central through ownership of $24,750,000 of the common and $4,500,000 of the preferred stock of the north and south road. The Union Pacific also owns the entire stock of the Railroad Securities company which on December 31, 1924, owned $10,120,000 in common and $1,840,000 in preferred Illinois Central stock.

Total funded debt consists of $324,-761,257. Capital stock includes $21,-194,500 in 6 per cent non cumulative convertible "A" preferred shares of $100 par and $122,637,000 in common shares of $100 par. Interest and fixed charges have been increased but the balance for dividends has been larger each year. Earnings per common share in 1925 amounted to 12.86 per cent. Estimated property value greatly exceeds the company's capitalization.

Dividends have been regularly paid on the preferred stock issue at the regular rate. Dividends on the common stock have never been less than 4 per cent since 1860 and since 1901 have not been less than 6 per cent. The present 7 per cent rate has been paid since 1917. Gross revenues in 1925 were $178,169,025 and net operating income $29,926,943. For the first five months of 1926 gross revenues were $73,380,958 and net income $11,481,408. Net working capital as of December 31, 1925 was $11,385,445.

TO ENLARGE HANGAR.

FORT WORTH, Sept. 2.—(AP)—Decision to increase the size of the municipal hangar at the Fort Worth air port was announced Thursday by City Manager F. E. Carr. This new hangar, which will house 40 ships, will cost $30,000 instead of $25,000.

The suggestion by the government that provision be made for several ships of large wing spread, caused the decision to increase the size of the hangar.

Brussels, Sept. 2.—(AP)—Alfred Loewenstein, Belgian financier, authorized the newspaper Soir today to announce that he will shortly put a minimum of $50,000,000 at the disposal of the Belgian government, free of interest, for at least two years.

N. Y. Stocks

NEW YORK, Sept. 2.—(AP)—Price movement in today's stock market were irregular and inconclusive, representing largely the readjustment of speculative accounts incidental to approach of every extended market holidays. Although about a score issues were bid up to new high levels during the day, net losers exceeded net gains at the close, due chiefly to an unusually large volume of realizing sales in the last hour.

Some uneasiness developed in the session on a revival of unconfirmed rumors that most of the smaller federal reserve banks particularly Philadelphia and Boston would shortly increase their re-discount rates. However these fears were allayed when large sums of money appeared in the call money market at the renewal rate of 4½ per cent, as against 5 yesterday, and the longer maturities were shaded from 5 to 4¾ per cent in the time money market. The New York federal reserve bank rediscount rate was unchanged at 4 per cent.

Considerable attention was attracted by the interview given by George F. Baker, veteran banker, on his return from Europe. His statement that he was glad the public was beginning "to recognize the true value of New York Central" induced heavy buying in that stock which sent it up two points to 141, the highest price since 1909. His intimation that no stock dividend would be paid in the near future to stockholders of the United States Steel corporation was held responsible for the liquidation of that issue, which closed 1⅝ lower at 149⅝.

Operators working for higher prices derived encouragement from the fact that freight car loadings in the week ended August 21, the latest for which figures are available, crossed the million mark for the 13th consecutive week and that steel shipments from the Youngstown valley broke all records in August, with indications that September would set a new high figure.

High grade railroad shares were again in brisk demand, the average of 20 leading issues touching the highest level since 1913. Chesapeake and Ohio common and preferred registered the highest quotations ever recorded, while Illinois Central common and preferred, Pere Marquette, Hocking Valley, Delaware and Hudson, Norfolk and Southern, Western Maryland second preferred and Western preferred all broke through their previous peak prices for the year.

Sustained strength of the tobacco shares, new peak prices being attained by the American Tobacco issues and Tobacco Products and a revival of activity in the coppers on the theory that the proposed stabilization of French, Belgian and Italian currencies would be followed by an increased demand for the red metal were among the few features in the industrial list. A series of bullish demonstrations also took place in the low priced motors, but they failed to maintain all their gains. Stewart Warner and Jordan sank to new low levels for the year.

Commercial paper rates were unchanged.

Foreign exchanges reacted at the opening but received good buying support and closed steady, demand sterling ruling around $4.83 3-10 and Frenche francs around 3.90 cents.

M. D'S ASSAIL M'DONALD MINE

Mentality of Dead Paris Capitalist Questioned By Relatives

PARIS, Texas, Sept. 2.—(AP)—Two physicians expressed the opinion Thursday that the late W. J. McDonald, Paris capitalist, was of unsound mind at the time he bequeathed the bulk of his estate to the University of Texas for establishment of an astronomical observatory.

The witnesses so testifying in the contest filed by relatives of Mr. McDonald are Dr. Frank Childs of Honey Grove and Dr. Guy Witt, specialist in mental diseases of Dallas. The opinions were based on hypothetical questions submitted by attorneys for the contestants.

One of the physicians, Dr. Childs, expressed belief that the deceased was of sound mind, in answer to a counter hypothetical question submitted to him by proponents of the will. This was after he had declared the deceased of unsound mind before a portion of the question detailing a physical condition due to advanced age had been overruled on objection of attorneys.

Kruger and Wilson's No. 1 Turbeville in the southeast corner of the northwest quarter, block 150, Robert Carson survey, Archer county, is drilling at 600 feet.

GULF, HOWARD

The Gulf Production company No. A-1 Howard in the Prothro survey of Montague county and in the Nocona field, is in the sand at 1,157 to 1,159 feet and in 10 hours filled 1,000 feet of the hole and will be placed on the pump.

GULF COAST NEWS

The Texas company is the last gulf coast purchasing agency to meet the 10 to 20 cents a barrel reduction on coastal crudes that the Humble Oil and Refining company has established there. Sinclair Crude Oil Purchasing company is expected to follow, says a wire from Houston.

In the Sour Lake field of the gulf coast, the Bushare Oil company has completed its No. 1, for 3,000 barrels initial, and the Gulf Oil corporation has made three locations and other operators are also active.

CANARY ET AL, TILL.

S. C. Canary and associates of Tulsa, have spudded in their wildcat well, located in the center of the northwest quarter of the southeast quarter of section 8 4-8, 18-W, and southwest of the town of Davidson in Tillman county, Oklahoma. This location is on a geological sub-surface structure mapped by W. V. Hoyt, geologist for the Canary interests. This test will be watched with interest as numerous other tests have revealed an interesting sub-surface high on which the Canary well is located. Acreage around the test is owned by several of the major companies. The well is to be drilled to a depth of 2,700 feet by Harry Hines and J. H. Turner, drilling contractors of Wichita Falls.

S E NEW MEXICO

To the west of the Maljamar pool in Lea county, southeast New Mexico, the Skelly Oil company No. 1 Baish-Lynch, in 22-17-31, Eddy county, has 400 feet of oil in the hole at 3,374 feet. Reports that it was a flowing well are incorrect.

PAN., ET AL, S. ARCHER

The Panhandle Refining company, Harry Muse and Harry Hines are movink in for a wildcat test located in the south part of the east 40 acres of the southwest 60 acres of block 17, Harris subdivision of the Club Ranch in south Archer county.

JAFFE, MITCHELL

Harry Jaffe et al tested a sand on their No. 9 Mitchell, located in the southeast corner of the west 50 acres of block 5, Patience Castleman survey, southwest of Iowa Park in Wichita county, at 1516-21 feet which failed to pay off. This well is an offset to the Ross Bros. prouecr in the same survey which is producing at 1878 to 1880 feet and the Jaffe test will try for that pay.

AMERICAN, TURB

The American Refining company has made three good completions on its Turbeville lease, Robert Carson survey in Archer county. American No. 1, Turbeville is pumping 100 barrels daily from sand at 1492-94, and is now cleaning out and drilling further into the sand. No. 2 is pumping 150 barrels daily from sand at 1503-05, while No. 3 was put on the pump Wednesday and is estimated as a 175-barrel producer. This company's No. 4 Turbeville, located 150 feet each way from the northeast corner of the southwest quarter of block 148, Carson survey, is spudding at 100 feet. The derrick is up on N., 5 in block 150 of the same survey.

By eating four and one-third quarts of peas one only receives the same nourishment obtainable in a quart of Colvert's Ice Cream.—Adv.

ROXANA OPENS NEW OIL AREA

New Territory Is Being Exploited By Big Concern

SAN ANTONIO, Sept. 2.—(AP)—Roxana Petroleum corporation has a force of men on 29,000 acres out of the Allen Land and Cattle company's Rochelle ranch in Brooks, Starr and Hidalgo counties, the lease on which has already been obtained and will do very elaborate geological work on the tract before beginning to drill. It is understood that Torsion balance or Seismograph or both will be used.

The beginning of operations by the Roxana on this tract will attract considerable attention to that territory which until now has not been before the oil industry to any great extent though it is understood that other major companies were bidding for the block when the Roxana got the lease.

Allen Land and Cattle company is a New York concern that has oil production in the Pennsylvania fields and it reserved 10,000 acres off the north end of its 39,000-acre tract.

PROVE NEW ACREAGE

NEW YORK, Sept. 2.—(AP)—New acreage near Lockport, La., has been proved by Vaccum Oil company which has completed a well at 3,786 feet with initial flow of 10,000 barrels daily. The flow has been pinched to 2,000 barrels daily, through a quarter-inch choke.

Community Night Planned by Church

A community citizenship program has been announced for Sunday night at the First Christian church, according to the pastor, Dr. Floyd Allan Bash. The subject on which addresses will be made is "Wichita Falls—The Past, Present and Future Spiritual Possibilities."

Judge A. H. Carrigan will speak on "Wichita Falls, a Memory." Luther Hoffman, local attorney, will speak on "Wichita Falls, a Realization;" and Dr. Bash will talk on "Wichita Falls, a City of God."

Special numbers by the male and ladies' quartet will be included in the program. Mayor R. E. Shepherd will be in charge of the services and will preside.

For a service in keeping with Labor Day, Dr. Bash will speak Sunday morning at 10:45 o'clock on "A Christian Platform for Capital and Labor," it was announced.

Rotary Applauds As Nat Comes In

Rotarians heartily welcomed their pastor-member, Dr. Nat F. Grafton, Thursday on his return to the club at the regular luncheon at the Kemp after seven months' absence. Serious illness in the spring necessitated his five months' vacation in Corpus Christi and Mineral Wells. Dr. Grafton made a short talk of appreciation and offered his resignation, stating that his illness prevented him from active service in the club. The resignation was unanimously rejected.

The classification talk for the day was given by E. H. Eddleman, who told of the history of the oil refining industry, from the first refinery in Russia, in 1832 to the modern plants such as are in Wichita Falls. Wichita county has 21 plants at present, with an average output of 32,000 barrels per day, the speaker said.

J. S. Pitman presided over the program, and the guests were introduced by T. H. Lawson. Albert Myles, president of the club, introduced Capt. J. L. Cardiff of the Salvation Army, who made a short talk concerning the work of the Salvation Army.

The Woodman Circle, Wilson Grove 1751, will elect oficers at the regular meeting at the K. P. hall this afternoon at three o'clock. All members are urged to be present.

Mrs. J. E. H. Railey, Miss Vivian Railey, and Miss Margaret Fleming arrived home Thursday after an automobile trip in south Texas. They were preceded by Mr. Railey, who returned Monday. Their trip included a stay in the Westminster Presbyterian encampment at Kerrville and visits in San Antonio, Austin, Belton and Hillsboro.

City National Club Is Formed Here To Study Institute Bank Course

The first chapter of the American institute to be formed in northwest Texas was organized in Wichita Falls last night by officers and employes of the City National bank, in a special meeting held for the purpose in the directors room of the bank. The American Banking institute is the educational division of the American Bankers association and is composed of 187 chapters numbering 57,456 members. The local organization is the first to be established in the area between Fort Worth and Denver, and was named the "City National club" in honor of the institution to which it owes its origin.

Thirty members of the bank's personnel attended the meeting and all became members of the club. The directors and officers of the City National bank compose the board of directors of the club, and the following officers were elected at the first meeting: Oral Jones president; R. M. Wilhite, first vice president; C. E. McWhorter, second vice president; Mrs. L. A. Ward, secretary; R. E. Basham, treasurer; Mrs. Bonnie Carter, chairman of the social committee. James L. Randel, newly elected director of public relations at the City National, was selected as instructor, and has been accepted as such by the national association.

This study club is fostered and affiliated by the American Institute of banking, and many of the outstanding bankers of the nation are graduates of the study course. The time required to obtain a diploma as given by the American Institute of banking to those completing the courses is three and a half to four years of intensive study. To a banker this means the same as a Ph. D. does to the university professor and comprises all the available information on general banking.

The club has another object—that of promoting better social relations among the employes of the bank and there will be social events from time to time for club members only.

Regular meeting dates for the club have been selected as Thursday night of each week.

Following is the membership roster of the newly formed club: W. S. Abbott, Wm. C. Alexander, Walton Allen, Allen T. Rowan, Robert E. Basham, Ray Bowmer, C. Porter Brandon, H. H. Carson, Connie Carter, W. T. Cox, Ethel Covington, E. W. Dechman, F. A. Foster, Joe Goodlett, P. S. Graham, J. Hobart Hicks, L. Earl Holcomb, J. M. Jeffus, Oral Jones, Helen Leech, C. E. McWhirter, J. S. Minton, J. L. Randel, C. V. Reynolds, Herman Staton, Richard W. Thomason, Luther R. Thurman, Lilyan A. Ward, R. M. Wilhite, Franklin Wilson.

2 CHARGED WITH THEFT

Youths Arrested Following Robbery Attempt Are Filed On

Charges of assault with attempt to rob were filed in the district courts Thursday, naming H. F. Pool and A. A. Pool, arrested Wednesday afternoon by city officers after an alleged daylight hold-up in the home of Mrs. W. M. Gamble at 1703 Elizabeth street. According to Mrs. Gamble, she found the two in the front room of her house. They pulled a gun and stuck it in her face, she said, and demanded her money and jewelry but evidently in fear of a man being about the place left without getting anything. They were captured a few minutes later by two city officers a block or so away on Collins street. Officers stated they found a gun and several articles of minor value on their persons which they believed were stolen from other places in the neighborhood. The arrests, they believe, will clear a large amount of petty thievery which has taken place in Wichita Falls recently.

COPS SAY "NO" OVER FIGHT

Badger Battle Planned For Tuesday Rouses Ire Of Police

A threat to stop a "badger fight" planned by a local luncheon club for next Tuesday night in support of their movement to endow a boys' band organization here was made Thursday by Chief George Hodgins. He stated it might be necessary to prevent the fight under the state laws forbidding cruelty to animals. A conference will be held this afternoon at the city hall between officers of the club and the chief, in an effort to work out a solution to this. Officers of the club Thursday declared they were determined to hold the fight if they had to carry the matter to court to do it.

It was originally planned to hold the fight at the electric light plant next Tuesday night, charging a 50 cents entrance fee to go to the boys' band.

WORK READY FOR FIRST M. E.

Dr. Johnson Announces Busy Schedule Ahead For His Church

"We are getting back to normalcy," Dr. Walter J. Johnson, pastor of the First Methodist church, south, said yesterday. "We start the fall work with our full corps of assistants which consists of J. H. MacGregor, financial secretary and choir director; E. F. Bohmfalk, director of religious education; Miss Annie Laurie Long, church visitor, and Miss Marguerite Haynie, office secretary.

Plans are shaping themselves in regard to the campaign for funds necessary to construct the new church building. Some time in the next few weeks active solicitation of the membership for subscriptions will take place. The foundation for the new church has been excavated and construction of the basement will start shortly, it was said.

"Home coming day will be observed with an appropriate service, both at the Sunday school hour and the morning church service on September 12. Plans are now maturing to make this a great day in the history of the church," the pastor stated.

The Woman's Missionary society resumes its regular meetings with a business meeting on Monday, September 6.

In addition to observing home coming day on September 12, the following activities will take place in the Sunday school. September 15, weekly meetings of the officers and teachers' council will be resumed. This occasion will be ushered in with a banquet; Septembes 26, promotion day; October 3, rally day, and October 10, photographer's day, when a picture of the entire Sunday school will be taken at this time.

The first meeting of the men's club is scheduled for the second Tuesday in October and an outstanding speaker has been secured for this occasion.

The annual meeting of the North Texas Conference will be held this year in Wichita Falls, all sessions being held in this church. It will be your opportunity to hear some of the brightest speakers in southern Methodism. The conference opens on November 3, and extends through the seventh.

The Wichita Falls District Epworth league holds its next meeting with an annual banquet in the basement of the church, November 10," Dr. Johnson announced.

The choir, which has been holding rehearsals every week, even during the summer months, is planning many special musicals through the fall and winter. Rehearsals start soon on a cantata to be given at the Thanksgiving season.

FUNERAL FOR WALLER.

The funeral for Harvey Richard Waller, 11-month-old son of Mr. and Mrs. W. W. Waller who died Tuesday night in a local hospital, was held from the residence, 2173 Avenue I, Thursday morning. Burial was in Riverside. Dr. Walter J. Johnson, pastor of the First Methodist church, and Rev. E. F. McGaughey, pastor of Floral Heights Presbyterian church, were in charge.

Laying Plans For State Convention

Arrangements for voters of Wichita county to attend the state democratic convention at San Antonio, Tuesday, September 7, may be made with W. E. George, according to announcement yesterday. A proxy can be arranged for them if they have none, and by getting in touch with Mr. George, the details will be explained, it was said. Official delegates are asked to inform him if they expect to attend the convention, and if it is impossible, they are asked to appoint substitutes.

NO ACTION ON DIST. CLERK

Executive Committee Not To Make Appointment For Month

There will probably be no action by the county democratic executive committee on appointment of nominee for district clerk to succeed A. P. Kerr before the last of this month. E. C. DeMontel, incoming county chairman, declared Thursday.

The new county convention, with but 26 or 27 accredited delegates and a chairman, will assume the reigns of the county democracy this coming Saturday. The matter of selecting a nominee to take Mr. Kerr's place was left to the new body by H. J. Bruce, chairman of the committee which loses its authority today, Mr. Bruce's comment being that the real sentiment of the county in the matter could be more nearly expressed by the committee elected a month ago than one elected two years ago.

A large number of aspirants have already made themselves heard in the race for the post now held by Miss Eunice Jackson.

Prominent among these are Miss Jackson, incumbent, and Donovan Weldon, now an assistant in the office of E. P. Walsh, county auditor. Mr. DeMontel Thursday stated that the applications of two, Miss Jackson and Nat L. Inge only had been filed with him. A number of applications have been filed with H. J. Bruce, outgoing county chairman, but when called at his home Thursday night he did not have either names or number available. Others working for the place, besides those mentioned, however, are J. L. Mears, Frank E. Johnson, J. S. Pitman, Mrs. Effie Wages, and C. V. Stodghill.

SEND IN APPLICATIONS

All persons aspiring to appointments as notaries public should send in their applications to Senator J. D. Parnell at Austin by addressing him at Capitol Station. Applications should reach him by September 15, according to announcement by the senator yesterday.

It is unnecessary to enclose any fee, Mr. Parnell said, because notaries who are appointed will be notified by the county clerk of the county in which they reside.

WADE VISITS LOCAL C OF C

West Texas Manager Is Brief Caller in City Thursday

Homer T. Wade, general manager of the West Texas Chamber of Commerce, was a brief visitor in the city yesterday, and took occasion to call at the chamber of commerce, and offer compliments on the great showing made here in the recent membership drive for the west Texas organization. Mr. Wade was highly gratified at the result made in one day's effort and heartily agreed with local officials in the belief that more than double that number should be listed before the convention of the West Texas Chamber of Commerce here next year.

"West Texas as a whole is enjoying a most phenomenal, yet steady development," Mr. Wade said, "and the West Texas Chamber of Commerce will find itself with a big job keeping ahead of the natural development of the section."

Mr. Wade visited the fair grounds and was much impressed by the elaborate plans being made for the fair next month.

PROXY IS CHANGED

Charles I. Francis an ardent Moody advocate in the late pre-primary gubernatorial campaign, has been given the proxy of R. Y. Cummings on the state democratic executive committee, for its meeting Monday at San Antonio.

Judge Cummings stated Thursday legal business in the Panhandle section of the state will prevent his attending the San Antonio meeting.

How Many Miles
Has Your Car Traveled Since the DIFFERENTIAL was Last Greased?

The differential is the backbone of your car. Through it, the power from the motor is applied to the wheels. The differential gear are subjected to severe shocks and tremendous stresses and strains. Failure to keep the right amount of lubricant of the proper type and consistency in the gear housing, results in serious friction, loss of power, rapid wear—and often a broken rear axle.

There is a Humble Dealer near you. Have him inspect your car regularly, and see that the proper quantity of Humble Transmission and Differential Lubricant is kept in the differential gear housing at all times.
