Many Interesting Sights at Gallup

Last week Mr. and Mrs. Howard Lecher of Melrose made a trip to Gallup, for a visit with the L. Thurston family, they were accompanied by Elizabeth Greaves who also visited Miss Mary Noonan who was her roommate at the University.

The trip to Gallup was made by the way of Albuquerque returning by Santa Fe and Las Vegas. After leaving the broad rolling plains the road enters the Sandia mountains east of Albuquerque. These mountains are one of the beauty spots of New Mexico. It is through them that the famous rim one looks down on the basin one looking down on the Rio Grande valley whose broad mooriness is broken in places by villages and towns along the winding banks of the river.

Leaving the mountains behind the road winds through the Rio Grande Valley on the West side. Here one sees orchards, alfalfa fields and truck gardens. Near Santa Fe the Indian Pueblo, an Indian dressed in the usual garb with long hair and moccasins was seen tending a tractor.

Next we came to the foot hills which gradually ascended to high rocky mountains. Differing from the Sandias, these mountains were largely made up of rocky cliffs which walled in narrow valleys which contained huge piles of lava and other volcanic refuse. Thirty miles east of Gallup the Great Divide was crossed and we descended into the territory in which the great coal mines are found, miles without finding a town we came upon a small town nestled in a filling station. Finding it was still one hundred and sixty miles to Gallup, we decided to spend the night. We drove into a camp ground and an Indian girl showed us a cabin. There were many Indians around but knowing that we were near the Laguna Pueblo we felt little about it. The next morning we discovered that we had spent the night at the Pueblo instead of at the "white man's" town where we had supposed we were.

Every few miles along the road Indian women were seen sitting under little shades selling pottery. Sometimes there would be only one in a place and at others there would be several. Once we stopped the car and were surrounded by women and children, each one trying to get us to buy one of hers. Not even the fierce parking of Princess, the German Police Dog, make them draw back so anxious were they to sell their wares.

Gallup is a town of about six thousand built upon rocky hills. The streets are very steep and houses are built close to them. Many residences are built facing alleys. To level a place for a house or to open a street it is necessary to blast solid rock. Gallup is surrounded by high rocky cliffs. The rocks are of the most beautiful colors which can be seen for many miles. A few miles from Gallup is an immense red rock. It covers several acres of ground and is quite high. Its surface is smooth and slick as glass. At the foot of the rock are old Indian sheep pens and little Indian children may be seen herding sheep and goats in the vicinity. From the top of Red Rock one can hear three different echoes.

One of the interesting sights was a dog leading a bunch of cats. The dog was trotting along the lead appearing to pay no attention what ever to the goats. They came to the highway. The dog stopped looked up and down the road waited for three cars to pass then led his flock safely across.

On Thursday we spent the day at the mountains near MacGaffey with the Thurston family. All day we were near hills and valleys were explored in the morning, then at noon we stopped at Turkey Springs and cooked dinner over a camp fire to add a little excitement to the while everyone else was sitting around enjoying a rest after a strenuous morning climb. Baby Grace set out to explore all alone. Faint cry was heard and looking around we discovered that Grace was gone. She was found on the other side of the hill lost and very scared. In the afternoon we visited the MacGaffey Saw Mill.

Friday we went through the Amercole Coal Mine. This mine is said to be the best equipped in the United States. On reaching the site of the mine we went to the office where we were permitted to visit the mine. Guide then took us to the Safety Station, and gave us each a helmet sort of cap which he said was to keep the rocks which fell from hurtling. Prepared to crawl through narrow dark tunnels off our rocks constantly bouncing off our dump, or the elevator which car-ried the coal out of the mine.

After going down a dark hole eight hundred feet we were let out in a cave like room which had well lighted tunnels leading in all directions. First we visited the machine shop where the trips are repaired. As we followed the tunnels farther back the walls were of solid coal. On the tracks which ran down the middle of all the tunnels were cars filled with coal. We kept waiting for the rocks to start falling and the tunnels continued to be high enough for us to stand up in and were well lighted. The men who were working in the mine were so covered with coal dust we couldn't tell what color they were supposed to be.

No place is entirely safe—a mouse ran across the floor in front of us. We visited the stables where the mules are kept. They appeared to be contented in their underground home.

Early Saturday morning we left Gallup and drove to Santa Fe. We stopped here and visited the penitentiary, the old palace of governors and other interesting places.

Saturday afternoon we drove to Las Vegas. There is quite a contrast in these mountains from the others we had crossed. The ground under the trees was covered in fresh green grass and all along the way there were small farms where alfalfa was being cut and baled. We spent the night at Romerville and reached home Sunday afternoon.

Portales Stores To Close on July 4th.

According to custom the merchants will close their place of business on the 4th of July, so that their employees may join the national holiday.

The Fourth of July is America's greatest holiday, commemorating the independence of the nation.

While Portales will have no celebration this year, many of the neighboring towns have prepared to celebrate on this occasion, and Portales people will attend these various celebrations.

As has been the custom in the past the Portales Valley News will close on this day, and will publish Wednesday of next week.

All correspondents and advertisers are requested to bear this in mind and have their copy in early in the week, so that this will be possible.

The News feels that its obligation to the public regardless of holidays, and the paper will come out as usual, only one day early.

A holiday now and then puts the public in better spirits and better fits them to carry on in the useful occupations of life.

Roosevelt County Experiences Some Hot Weather

The Citizens of Roosevelt county have experienced some real hot weather for the past week. In fact the weather has been such as to make many hunt the shade and enjoy ice water.

However the nights have been cool, and cover has been in demand very night.

There has been considerable cloudy weather and prospects are good for rain.

The wheat farmers say that rain is not needed, but others are expressing the hopes that a good rain will fall soon.

The crops of the county are in fair shape, and where the land has been worked and the weeds killed, the crops are in fine shape.

The coming fourth of July celebrations will doubtless bring the much needed rain.

Steinberger Well Below 3420 Feet

On Tuesday afternoon the News representative visited the Steinberger well 12 miles southeast of Portales, and found the well drilling below 3420 feet.

Drilling was stopped at this time and the crew was busy stringing a new wire drilling cable, the large cable used in this drilling having been worn out.

Drilling operations at this well are very interesting.

The rig is of the latest model, and two crews are at work daily, one crew going on at 12 at noon and continuing till 12 at night, when the other crew goes on.

Watching the massive drill bit chug up and down over three thousand feet below the earth's surface, biting into the formations causes one to wonder at the marvels of the modern invention.

It takes near 10 minutes to draw the bit, after which the large slush bucket is lowered. On raising the slush bucket samples of the formations are taken to complete the records of the log, as running high, and every indication points to an early showing of oil or gas.

Both drilling crews are competent and efficient, every device being at hand to handle the massive machinery used in this operation.

An interesting sight is the mascot, a rooster, which sits perched on one of the large beams, where he watches the drilling operations, looking as wise as an owl.

The contract calls for a depth of 4500 feet, and on Tuesday afternoon 3420 feet of this depth had been reached.

The log for this week, runs as follows:

- 3105 to 3355 feet, lime.
- 3355 to 3415, salt.
- 3415 to 3420 feet, lime.

This well is being closely watched by the oil interests, and an early showing is expected.

Soaking Rain Covers Portales Valley

On Wednesday evening about 5:30 accompanied by high wind and dust storm, rain fell in torrents for about thirty minutes. The rain continued more gently for about an hour.

The cloud looked like a hall cloud but the only hall reported is at Delphos, where the ground was covered with small hail stones, no damage being reported.

The rain extended to Elida, being lighter that way.

The rain extended west of town for 10 miles, the heaviest about miles west of Portales. Dora reports a light rain.

The News was unable to get telephone connections with Rogers, and could not learn if the rain reached that section.

Coming at this time, the rain was of great encouragement to the farmers. While farmers were not suffering for want of moisture, the hot dry weather was making the farmers uneasy.

News Editor Visits City of Elida

On Monday morning of this week the editor of the Portales Valley News paid a visit to our sister city of Elida, where he enjoyed several hours renewing acquaintances of old friends.

Elida is in the heart of one of the richest dry farming sections of the state and all reports heard were that crops were in good shape in that section, promising a good yield, although rain was needed at this time.

Elida is now enjoying the advantages of electricity, the local light plant having been completed, and linemen are now busy connecting up the homes and business houses of that city.

Justin Click Cashier of the First National Bank of Elida, states that cattle are in fine shape in that part of the county, and that farming operations are in full swing. He states that the future prosperity of this section depends upon the increased dairy and poultry activities, as that pays much better than plain farming or stock raising.

On Saturday June 15 there were 160 cans of cream shipped from Elida, which brings the total shipped out of the county to 470 cans for that day.

The farmers in the Elida trade territory are turning to dairying more and more each day, and this is as it should be as it was at Elida that the cream shipment for the county began many years ago.

Elida is in need of a grain elevator and a broom corn warehouse to take care of the large amount of grain and broom corn grown in that section of the county.

Cotton in the Elida territory is looking good and promises a good turnout in the fall.

Portales is Unsafe for Dogs day as a result of poison put out day as a result of poison put out Sunday night. This no doubt means five and probably more broken hearted children in Portales because some one selfishly took the life of their pet. Not only do we have dog haters but there are people who love some one else's dog too well. Twice in the last two weeks children have called on the News to help find a dog which someone had picked up.

Last week it was a German Police pup belonging to Betty Trout who is only three. Now it was the fox terrier companion of J. O. Hancock, who can't run and play and misses his dog more than other children might.

What grown-up would break a little girl's doll intentionally? Yet someone deliberately puts out poison to kill the pet which means more than any manufactured toy can ever mean. The News will do all in its power to help find lost dogs but it can't restore life.

We are glad to see Mr. Hollis back to the barber shop. Roy has just recovered from a case of the mumps.

Mr. Will Cryer and family of Union Valley passed through town on their way to Quitaque, Texas to visit relatives.

Mr. and Mrs. W. F. Greer of Clovis were Portales guests on Thursday in the E. N. Smith home and spending one night in the J. B. Raymond home.

The Roosevelt County Dairymen are now coming into their own. The price of cream and dairy and poultry products are encouraging, and the dairy herds of the county are being improved and increased.

Roosevelt county has earned the reputation of being the egg basket and butter tub of New Mexico, and with an increase in this activity, the farmers of the county will be enabled to go on a strict cash basis and do away with the credit system which has so handicapped the older states.

In the Portales Valley, an increase in the growing of alfalfa will supply rich pasture for the dairy cow and at the same time build up the soil fertility. Alfalfa produces from 4 to 6 cuttings in one season, and the yield is such as to make this crop very profitable.

One great draw back to irrigated farming is that a great number of farmers are over cropped, under irrigation the farmer cannot handle a great acreage, but by farming well that which he can take care of his profits are increased. Alfalfa is a good crop to plant on the surplus lands, and will enable the farmer to devote more of his time to the intensive crops.

Twenty years ago dairying and poultry raising were practically unknown to the Roosevelt county farmer. He produced large crops of grain and found no market for his products. Today he can, in connection with his dairying, consume a great part of his grain crops on the farm and the revenue from the cream can, keeps his bank account out of the red.

Roosevelt County Has Great Possibilities

In driving over a great portion of West Texas and New Mexico, the writer is more and more impressed with the great agricultural and dairying possibilities of Roosevelt County.

With her wide diversity of crops, there is no reason why the farmers of Roosevelt County can not make a financial success of farming.

The lands of Roosevelt County both dry and irrigated, are fertile and yield readily to the fertile of the progressive farmer.

Thousands of acres are now planted to broom corn, cotton, wheat and row grains. The present outlook for a record yield is good, and in many instances the farmer will realize from this season's crop many dollars more than the actual cost of the crop.

Over in Texas, like lands are much higher in price, and do not yield in excess to Roosevelt County lands. The taxable values of Roosevelt County lands are low when compared to that of other sections. The markets for farm products in Roosevelt County are good, and the farmer is assured at all times the top market price for his products.

Down in the Rio Grande Valley of New Mexico, the crops are no more advanced than in Roosevelt County, and the nature of Roosevelt county lands enables the farmer to operate on a larger scale and at a lower cost than in any section that we have visited.

There is room in Roosevelt Co. for a hundred of dirt farmers, who desire good living conditions and a chance to own their own lands at a small outlay of cash.

The resources of the county have only been scratched, and with a development of 50 per cent of her lands, enough increase in the taxable valuation can be made to cut the taxes of the county one-half.

Many prospectors have visited within the last month, and at the end of the wheat harvest in Texas, a great influx of Texas farmers will result. Every citizen of Roosevelt County should encourage the coming of the progressive dirt farmers, who will aid in settling and developing the many thousands of acres now in grass.

CITY COMMISSION

Portales has outgrown its present form of government, and now would be a good time to consider a commission form of government.

The city election will not be before next spring, but this matter should be discussed pro and con before that time arrives.

The News would like an expression of the citizens of this subject, and offers its columns for that purpose.

In discussing this all communications must be signed, as unnamed communications have no weight with the public.

Mr. Citizen, what do you think of calling an election for this purpose at the next regular city election?

N. M. Cottonseed High Oil Content

A three year test made by the New Mexico Agricultural Experiment Station showed that Acala cotton, the variety grown most extensively in the state, averaged from .7 to 2 percent higher in oil than the averages reported for other regions, says C. W. Botkin, Experiment Station Chemist. The protein in the New Mexico seed was found to average as high or higher than averages reported for seed reported from other states. Gossypol, a toxic substance occurring in cottonseed, was lower in the New Mexico seed than the percentage reported for high oil varieties in other regions. Less than one-fifth of this toxic was present in the cake and meal made from this seed.

Acala seed was as high in oil and protein as any variety analyzed. This variety delinted, moisture-free, averaged 26.5 percent of oil and 27.7 percent of protein for three seasons. This average for oil, being from .7 to 2 percent higher than the averages reported for other regions, classes New Mexico seed with the highest oil yielding seed. Since the protein in New Mexico seed was found to average as high or higher than the averages reported for seed from other states, this high oil producing seed cannot be classed as low in protein.

Immature or boll seed were found to contain less oil and protein than mature seed. Data for the season of 1927 show that there was no decrease in the quality of the mature seed during the picking season. The quality of the seed was rather uniform for the different cotton growing counties and did not show much seasonal variation. A complete report of these tests has been published in New Mexico Experiment Station Bulletin No. 175 which is available for general distribution.

3,000,000 Tourist To visit New Mex.

Santa Fe, N. M. June 17—The 3,000,000 tourist who will come to New Mexico in 1929 will find touring conditions better this year than ever before, a survey by the Highway Service Bureau shows.

The trunk line roads and many of the secondary roads are in better shape this year due to the intensive construction and reconditioning work of the fall and winter months. Notorious bad spots have eliminated they have ridden roughly in the past, the new maintenance methods taught by the Highway Training School are showing good results, while the oil surfacing work is steadily pushing up the total mileage figure on semi-hard surfaced roads.

Many new routes have been opened up since last season, and many old routes which were passable in only the most favorable circumstances have been worked on to bring up to the all-year specification. New road work is constantly reaching out to make accessible major tourist points of interest.

Service Stations, campgrounds and hotel facilities have been increased and brought up to new high standards all over the state. Lordsburg, Carlsbad, and Raton all have new hotels of the highest type, while several other cities have new high class structures under way which will be finished soon.

Another great step forward over last years conditions is the adoption of the Uniform Motor Vehicle Code. This advance in legislation a large appeal to eastern tourists who are used to abiding by this same code in their home states. The new motor vehicle code provides for greater safety on the highways while taking away at the same time that bugaboo of the tourist the hard boiled traffic cop. The new code also makes it impossible for small towns to lay down speed traps to catch the unwary tourist who is thereupon invited to help pay the town's taxes.

Touring information of a more up to date nature than has been available before is ready for the tourist this year through the co-operation of the various touring agencies, chambers of commerce and the Highway Department. The service is undergoing constant improvement work to bring it up to a plane of high usefulness to the tourist and state traveler.

Zuni Tourists to New Mexico this year should be pleased with the steps which have been taken to make their stay in the state more enjoyable says the Service Bureau. Early reports from the vanguard of the season's tourists indicate that this result is being achieved.

None Left to Second the Motion

By AD SCHUSTER

YEARS ago Utecha was a roaring town. Counting those who inhabited the gulley thereabouts there were more than ten thousand miners and others in the place, and plenty of revelry and song and only a few miles from the big city of El Paso. The big mine of Utecha, full of silver, gold and other minerals, was worth of gold weighed over the acre-bearing scales in the Wells Fargo office, of swift work and the cleanup. And now Utecha is a ghost city, as picturesque and eerie a place as may be found.

Drop down the slope to the stream some moonlight night and pass on the bridge to look at the all but deserted village. The iron doors are closed on most of the buildings and some of the roofs have fallen in, but here the desolation is no different than that of a number of the old camps in that Mother Lode which started Bret Harie chronicling and Mark Twain to swapping yarns. It is the great field of white rocks standing like sentinels that gives the place its ghostly appearance. And there on the hillside, on a foundation twenty feet above the surrounding level is the old church.

It may be said for those in the old Utecha that they established the church along with the post office and stores. Then some one found that there was gold on the flat, gold caught in the hollow of rock, wedged in the crevasses, and to be had for the finding. The water was turned in and the dirt was sent away in the flumes. What were overcroppings of buried rock appeared now as grotesque statues, washed clean and glaring white. Thousands piled into the town and all through the fifties, sixties, and seventies they worked. When they were through the rocks stood, a phantom crowd surrounding the drying city. The dirt and the gold were gone and Utecha was left, the home of a few old men who did not wish to leave.

Con Tomlin, Louie Brown, and Len Hughes were trustees of the church in the old days when the miners packed it to the doors. All around the building the miners worked until the little structure and its yard stood high above the rest. No one thought of digging under the church and every one knew that gold was there. So it stands today weather-beaten and dreary but upon a foundation of native wealth.

There came a time when the three old men were all that were left of the original trustees and it was then that Louie Brown made his proposal.

"There's no minister to come to talk to us," he spoke with hesitation, almost afraid of his own words, "and besides we can put in heavy beams and replace the dirt."

Tomlin and Hughes went on smoking, giving no sign of their thoughts.

"It isn't," the other continued, "that I want the money so much, but just think of the fun of getting it out, just as we did way back then! And it's ours, you know—all in our names."

"Put it as a motion," said Con Tomlin and, when Louie did, there were two firm votes in the negative.

On Sundays the three old men held services, taking turns at delivering the sermons which often wandered from theology into reminiscence but, nevertheless, seemed to supply for them something that was needed and important. When Tomlin died he was buried from the church and Len Hughes spoke the last words.

"I put the motion again," said Louie Brown, after a month or two had passed.

"And I vote 'no,'" said Len. "You are a confounded old idiot," was Louie's rejoinder and he stamped out in a rage that could not be stifled.

Thereafter when Len delivered his sermon it was an empty church for Louie would not attend. When it was the other's turn to speak, however, Len sat in a back seat and listened respectfully until the close when he arose hastily and departed. And this went on for more than a year.

Len was the next to go and a minister from the county seat conducted the funeral with Louie standing near the door. Now the church belonged to Louie Brown. That is what he thought when he went there alone on trustee's night. He looked out of the window on the thousands of white rocks and each stood in his mind for one of the miners who had come before. The church belonged to them, those old-timers who had made the town. It belonged to Con Tomlin and Len Hughes.

"I make a motion," and Louie Brown's voice echoed in the empty building, "that nobody disturbs this here church. Do I hear any objections?"

Again he looked out of the window and the rocks which crowded around.

"It is so ordered," said Louie Brown, and he stamped out and down the hill into the dead town of Utecha.

Li Hung Chang the Buffer

Li Hung Chang was a Chinese statesman and diplomat born about 1823. Early in life he became noted as a scholar and soon became prominent in the army by suppressing the Taping rebellion. His career was most checkered as he was alternately raised to the highest rank in power and degraded and stripped of his honors. In 1896 he made a tour of the world and returning home became even more powerful. His shrewdness and thrift were his outstanding characteristics and he was responsible for much of the progress made by China during his life. He has often been called the "buffer" between China and the rest of the world.

FAREWELL PARTY FOR HALLS ATTENDED BY MANY

One of the most pleasant social gatherings—albeit it marked a feeling of sorrow for many Roy people—was held last Monday night when fellow townspeople to the number of three score or more gathered at the basement dining room of the local Methodist church at a farewell party on honor of Rev. Bryan Hall and his good wife who were recently called to another charge.

A large number of covered dishes filled with delicacies prepared by the housewives of Roy and vicinity afforded a bounteous repast which was served from a long table in cafeteria style.

Following the supper, an hour or more of enjoyment was had in listening to talks, by the retiring pastor, members of his church and others. Attorney C. E. McGinnis acted as toastmaster and made an interesting talk in presenting a number of appropriate gifts to the Halls.

Mr. and Mrs. Hall left Wednesday by automobile for Hagerman, where they will take up the same work they have made a success of since their coming here just a few months ago.—Roy Record.

Highway Dept. Warns against Junk on Road

Santa Fe, N. M. June 22—Rubbish containing glass, tacks, and other injurious substances thrown on the road is the cause of many accidents, a bulletin issued today by the Highway Department states. The practice of throwing such stuff on the road must be stopped and the legal means are available, it says.

Referring to the section of the motor vehicle code which makes it a misdemeanor to throw junk on the road, the bulletin avers that while the nailpicker is having a steady success in cleaning up metallic substance, glass and similar injurious but non-metallic objects are the cause of much tire damage and frequent accidents. When glass in on the road the maintenance crews try to clean it up but some of it always escapes their machinery and is imbedded in the road where it is a constant menace to traffic.

"Persons who carelessly throw glass and rubbish on the road should remember that they are liable before the law if apprehended for this practice," says the bulletin. "In the interests of the public safety an effort must be made to prosecute all such persons."

It is a wonderful thing to live all day and then be able to go to bed at night with a clear conscience, to lay your head upon your pillow and rest in peace with your family and with the world. Aesop's fables are some times true remember, that he said, that it is better to stand in a corner and gaze through the cracks at the stars, than to be blind, with two good eyes to look at the ugly.

We are trying to help you to see the beautiful, and it is our aim to make the services at the Portales as helpful and inspiring as is possible, and we cordially invite you to attend the services with us on next Sunday.

The Pastor, will speak at both services, and the messages will be help to you and then you will enjoy the splendid music rendered by the Choir, and Congregation.

Thin Female Figure Here To Stay, Says Authority

Rudy Vallée

Rudy Vallée Claims It's All Due to Dancing

New York City.—Stylists may predict the return of feminine curves, but Rudy Vallée, Yale Ph.D., and director of one of America's leading jazz orchestras, now playing at the Villa Vallée in New York, raises an amused and doubtful eyebrow.
"The slim, flat, and, I think, attractive figure of the modern American girl is here to stay unless the fashion professors can chain the youngsters down and keep them from dancing," declares Vallée. "The slim feminine figure of today is due directly to the dance craze."
"How on earth is the young girl going to develop any very hearty curves when she dances thirty miles in a single evening? And she does. The average middle-aged dancer considers fifteen minutes a pretty strenuous dance period. The college youngsters do forty-five minutes without stopping to powder their noses or pull up their socks. There has never been so much exercise in the history of the world."
"Our music is responsible for this. There is something infectious about our modern dance tunes. They are like eating nuts. Once started one cannot stop. 'Guess Who?', which I play half a dozen times an evening, is a perfect example. Its melody and lyrics linger and dancers keep humming and go on and on."
At the Villa Vallée, heavily patronized by the young college set, the orchestra plays straight through the evening. Vallée says that this is true at all college dances. No intermissions, is the command of the young folks.
