Old Holland Hotel Is Wrecked to Make Way for Progress--Motel Courts Slated

The old Holland Hotel building is no more. Wrecking crews are finishing their work, to make way for progress in the form of new motel courts.

Built in 1892 by the White Deer Land Company at the time George Ting was manager, the buliding first served as a headquarters for the Matador Ranch outfit, to which it was leased.

The Matador outfit moved out in 1901 or 1902, when people began to come in and buy land. The building served as a hotel for these visitors, who often came in special trains. It was soon leased to A. A. Holland, who later bought the building, selling out to Alex Schneider Sept. 12, 1911.

The east section of the building was the original hotel, the other wings being added later. The present west wing, which is being moved into the Finley-Banks Addition for use as a rooming house, was added to the hotel in 1915.

The capacity of the original hotel was 16 rooms, an added annex making a total of 24 rooms. The population of the town in the early days of the hotel was around 1,000.

One rumor has it that Ginny Simms, the popular balladist, was born in the hotel, but checks with several sources reveal this was not the case. She was not born in Pampa.

Her father owned the building just across the street from the Crown Theatre, which also has just been dismantled, and he was known as one of the best showmen of the Panhandle. People from all over the area came to hear him sing, play the guitar and harp.

Simms left Pampa, selling out to W. E. Duncan. But he came back in 1913 or 1914 and took over the building again. Ginny had been born while he was away from Pampa, and at the time he returned she was only a year or two old.

But the old hotel had many other visitors, far more famous in that day. Some of the West's richest and most famed men passed through its doors, as did representatives of some of the largest syndicates and businesses of the time.

The old Holland, later the Schneider Hotel, ranked up front with the best of the area at that time, including such well-known old hotels as the Desoto at Dalhart, the Moody at Canadian, the Grand at Miami, the Elks and the Amarillo at Amarillo and the Clark Smith at Lubbock.

Erection of the new Schneider Hotel was begun in 1927, around the time of the oil boom and the incorporation of the city. Pampa's population was only 1,600 at that time, and the founders expressed considerable faith in the city's future in this move. But the large and modern new hotel furnished further impetus for the growth of the community as business and professional men and workers of every type came to cast their lot with Pampa.

Royall Says 'Its Marshall Plan Or Draft Again'

WASHINGTON —(AP)— Secretary of the Army Royall told senators today that the alternative to a European Recovery Plan may be drafting men for military service.

Royall made the statement to the Senate Foreign Relations Committee today in response to questions from Chairman Vandenberg (R-Mich) and Senator Lodge (R-Mass).

The Army secretary testified yesterday that unless the recovery plan is accepted, the Army and its budget will have to be "measurably and immediately" increased.

Asked how this can be accomplished, Royall said either through an increase in voluntary enlistments, which he said is doubtful, or "some method of selective service."

If we assume that voluntary enlistments have not produced as many men as necessary, that leaves only the draft, Lodge commented.

Royall replied that this is correct.

In other words, Lodge said, we have the alternative of the European Recovery Plan, or "else going back to the draft."

Royall said this is the "logical conclusion" unless some ways can be found through increased compensation or some other means.

Secretary of Defense Forrestal meanwhile told the House Foreign Affairs Committee, "neither this program nor our national defense expenditures are designed as a threat against any nation nor as an effort to restrain any nation nor as on effort to restrain any nation or toa dominate a group of nations."

Senator Ball (R-Minn.) predicted Congress will make a "sizable" cut in the $6,800,000,000 asked by the administration for the first 15 months of operation.

Ball said he thinks most Re-

Group to Deliver 'Traveling Gavel'

About 55 Kiwanians from Pampa, Borger, Stinnett and Sanford will go to Guymon, Okla., tonight to attend the Kiwanis Club meeting there. The delegates will travel in two Panhandle Trailways buses.

About 30 or 35 will go from Pampa. They will be headed by Pres. Lieb Langston. The reason for the trip is to present the "traveling gavel" from the Pampa Club to the Guymon club.

The local trip was arranged by a committee headed by Jack Nimmo, who will present the gavel. The gavel will later be presented by the Guymon club to some other club in District 6, Kiwanis International.

The Borger group will be headed by the club president, Bill Siemsen; the Stinnett club by Pres. Orin Goins; the Sanford club by Pres. Carl Williams.

Name of Solon's Wife on Second List of Traders

WASHINGTON — (AP) — The name "Mrs. Edith Thomas" turned up on a new list of 5,651 cotton traders today as senators investigating commodity speculation continued their study of transactions by Senator Elmer Thomas (D-Okla).

The senator's wife is named Edith. When the same name appeared on a similar list last week Thomas said his wife has her own money and trades in commodities.

He said he, too, has dealt in stocks and commodities but has never used any "inside" government information.

Mrs. Thomas declined to comment.

The committee has taken secret testimony from several men who said they were commodity traders and friends of Thomas.

The only open hearing now scheduled is on Jan. 23, when Republican presidential aspirant, Harold E. Stassen, and Edwin W. Pauley, special assistant to Secretary of the Army Royall, are slated to be heard.

The committee made public late yesterday the record of its closed door investigation of trading by John Kerr Rose, a Library of Congress employe who helped write a world food report for the special House Committee on Foreign Aid.

Rose said he made a dozen or more transactions in the commodity markets in 1947, most of them in oats futures, and he said he suffered a net loss of $1,744.75.

Rose said government crop estimates and data on purchasing programs were not available to him.

The new list of cotton traders made public by Secretary of Agriculture Anderson contained the names of 5,651 persons and firms who were active in the market Oct. 15-18, 1946, a period marked by a sharp price break.

On the new list also was J. E. McDonald, of Austin, Texas, with 300 bales "long" in the specula-

Texan Testifies In Own Behalf

SEATTLE —(AP)— Orbin Basin Smith, 29, Longview, Texas, charged with murder in the shotgun slaying of Clayton W. Stockberger, a shoestore manager, during a holdup attempt here Dec. 13, 1945, will take the witness stand today in his own defense, his defense counsel said.

The state rested its first degree murder case yesterday.

Richard C. Britton has already been convicted of first degree murder for his part in the crime and has had two reprieves from hanging. Smith was arrested in California last year and Britton was arrested at Denison, Tex.

A series of eyewitnesses gave conflicting accounts of the slaying as the state wound up its three days' case.

Asked if he recognized Smith, Alton W. Whitson, 70, a shoe clerk, testified:

"I do not."

He said Britton was the man he was fitting to shoes.

"The other man stuck a gun in my back," Whitson said. "It looked like a sawed-off shotgun. That was the man who shot Stockberger."

Two customers in the store could not "positively identify" either Britton or Smith. Lt. Ray C. Harding, a Navy personnel officer, said he was looking in the window when he "heard an explosion inside."

"The man I saw with the gun was Britton," he said. "It was a revolver or pistol. I am positive it was not a sawed-off shotgun."

Under Washington state law, any participant in a robbery where death occurs may be convicted of murder even though his act did not directly cause death.

Man Is Sentenced On Assault Charge

PHILADELPHIA —(AP)— Elrod R. Bell, 19 Calveston, Tex., was under a one to two-year sentence in the county prison here today for conviction of the Christmas morning assault of a 60-year-old man en route to church.

Bell was found guilty of armed robbery and aggravated assault and battery in quarter session court here yesterday.

$900 Top Price in Sale of Herefords

HENRIETA —(AP)— Top price of $900 in the 10th annual sale of the Clay County Hereford Breeders Association here yesterday went for Crown Prince Colvert 1st, a bull consigned by Paul Convert of Mill Creek, Okla.

The sale brought a total of $17,395 for 44 animals, an average of $395.3.5

GOP Calls Hearing For Own Tax Slash

WASHINGTON—(AP)—Republicans today pasted a "file and forget" tag on President Truman's proposal for a "cost of living" cut in income taxes balanced by a new excess profits levy on corporations.

With even key Congressional Democrats showing little enthusiasm for the White House plan, the majority leadership signaled instead for action on a measure by Rep. Knutson (R-Minn.) to reduce income taxes $5,600,000,000 a year, mainly on a percentage basis.

The House Ways and Means Committee, which Knutson heads was summoned to take up his bill tomorrow. Secretary of the Treasury Snyder was invited as the first witness.

The President's proposal went before Congress late yesterday.

The measure would:

1. Give each taxpayer a flat $40 a year reduction for himself and each dependent dated back to Jan. 1. This would remove 10,300,000 persons from the tax rolls and reduce the taxes of 44,005,000 others.

2. Recoup the $3,200,0,00 loss of federal revenue by a new 75 percent excess profits tax on corporations. Corporations with profits of $50,000 or less would be exempt. Others would receive an exemption of 135 percent of their average 193-539 profit plus $50,000.

Taxes on profits of new corporations would be measured by a capital investment formula.

Rep. Dingell (D-Mich.) said he would offer the Truman proposal as a substitute when the Ways and Means Committee votes on Knutson's bill early next week. One Democrat said privately he doubrs that more than half of the ten Democrats on the committee will support the President.

House Democratic Leader Rayburn of Texas probably will offer the President's plan as a substitute again when the House votes, but some Democrats conceded it will not have a chance.

Knutson's measure would remove 7,400,000 low income and rolls.

It would also:

1. Raise the personal exemption from $500 to $600.

2. Apply to all states the community property principle under which husbands and wives can divide their income equally for tax reporting purposes.

3. Grant additional cuts ranging from 30 percent in the lowest income bracket to 10 percent in the higher brackets.

Texas Democratic Committee Enters Tidelands Fight

AUSTIN—(AP)— The Texas Democratic Executive Committee met here today to put in motion a state campaign for funds with which to press the tidelands fight.

The committee was expected to make plans for "local action" through the State Democratic Party organization.

A resolution has previously been introduced in Congress which would quit claim tidelands to the coastal states. Gov. Beauford Jester has called for a special session of the legislature to meet Monday.

Jester said the call was issued after a conference with Democratic leaders in which it was decided that a special session of the legislature should be called in order to organize and finance Texas' campaign for favorable Congressional action on the resolution.

Direction of the fight by the State Democratic Party would place the campaign in the field of "non-partisan political action" and therefore should cause embarrassment to no one "who wishes to contribute," Jester said recently.

Today's meeting, called by Chairman Robert Calvert of Hillsboro, followed by little more than a month the meeting at which the Texas Democratic Committee assailed National Democratic Chairman Howard McGrath's stand on the tidelands issue.

The committee at that time unanimously adopted a resolution deploring McGrath's action as national chairman in expressing the opinion that a resolution urging federal legislation quitclaiming the tidelands was "improper and objectionable" for the National Convention of Young Democrats.

Texas and other coastal states with oil-rich tidelands are asking Congress to re-assert state ownership of marginal lands to offset the threat seen in a United States Supreme Court decision relating to California's tidelands.

The Supreme Court held that the federal government has a paramount interest in such lands.

Forty Louisiana Men Sentenced

DALLAS —(AP)— Forty Louisiana men today were in the Seagoville Federal Prison near here serving sentences accidental for violation of the Federal Anti-Racketering Act during a Louisiana milk strike last spring.

The prisoners are the bulk of 52 defendants, all of whom pleaded guilty to taking part in the strike.

The strike resulted when dairy farmers in the Amite, La., area protested prices paid by New Orleans milk distributors. Milk trucks and trains were halted by armed farmers who poured out thousands of gallons of milk to keep it from reaching the city districutors.

Two Killed as Trains Collide Near Little Rock

LITTLE ROCK —(AP)— Two persons were killed and at least eight others injured today when two Rock Island trains collided headon at the western outskirts of Little Rock.

Dead were W. L. Martin, about 58, North Little Rock, engineer of a westbound passenger train, and an unidentified Negro woman passenger. Martin was scalded to death in the cab of his locomotive.

Grady Herr, Little Rock, engineer of an eastbound freight train, suffered severe burns and G. W. May, 26, North Little Rock, Herr's fireman, suffered the loss of his right leg below the knee. J. C. McDaniel, Martin's fireman, received minor lacerations about the head. Both firemen jumped from their locomotive just before the impact.

The other injured apparently were hurt less seriously.

The passenger train was the west bound Memphis-Californian, en route from Memphis to Amarillo, Tex. The freight was eastbound from Oklahoma City to Memphis.

The trains met on a sharp curve at the foot of a long grade just opposite Little Rock's Riverdale Country Club golf course. A baggage coach, one car back from the passenger engine, was shoved back into a chair car where the most severe passenger casualties were suffered.

The two all-steel cars telescoped and it was necessary to use saws to extricate the injured.

The freight cars piled up like matchsticks behind the freight locomotive, tumbling crosswise the tracks.

Hospitals here reported the following admitted:

Lucy O'Neal, Negro woman, Brownsville, Tenn., a broken leg.

TCU Celebrates Diamond Jubilee

FORT WORTH —(AP)—President M. E. Sadler opened Texas Christian University's Diamond Jubilee celebration here today with a pledge that the school was "fully committed to the maintenance, the enrichment and the expansion of the American democratic way of life."

In an address prepared for delivery at a "75th anniversary" luncheon today, Sadler said:

"Because of unfounded rumors from time to time, let me now state positively what most of you already know to be true. If there should be any person on our staff at any time not in sympathy with this dominant objective that person would be requested to disassociate himself with us immediately. . .

"We are determined to maintain a democratic school for the preparation of citizens and leaders for democracy," the TCU president told approximately 450 Texas Christian Church leaders and officials of the university.

He briefly traced the history of the university from a one-teacher school to a faculty of more than 200.

TCU was founded in 1873 at Thorp Spring, Tex., by Addison and Randolph Clark. The school moved to Waco in 1895 and to Fort Worth in 1910.

Sadler said that TCU's enrollment had increased 344.1 percent since 1941 and "during this current fiscal year we will have at least 6,500 separate students enrolled."

An announced building program of $8,985,000 would provide for a new science hall, a new auditorium and fine arts building, a new major academic building, a new field house, a student union building, enlargement of the library, an apartment dormitory, and reconditioning of current buildings.

"We have no desire to become the largest school in Texas," Sadler said. "We couldn't do it if we wanted to. But we don't want to. Our supreme desire is to build a quality program. We would like to become not a big school, but a great school."

President Sadler asked officials and supporters of the school for at least 500 endowed scholarships and fellowships, $50,000 additional annual revenue for maintenance, and additional general endowment of at least $6,000,000. He said these items would give TCU total endowment resources of $17,000,000.

Today's luncheon was the first in a series of Diamond Jubilee events to be held by TCU between now and June 6.

Your Guess on Republicans Is Just as Good

By JAMES MARLOW

WASHINGTON —(AP)— This is th eelection year of 1948 but, if you run into someone from Washington, don't ask him:

"Who's going to get the Republican nomination for president? Taft? Dewey? Stassen? Who?"

How would anyone here know the answer to that one?

The Republicans themselves—and that includes Stassen, Dewey, Taft and anyone else you can think of—don't know.

Travel away from here, and you're bound to run into someone who asks:

"You think Taft has a chance? How about Stassen? Now, I hear that Dewey—"

Baloney. The Republicans from all over the country hold their convention in Philadelphia next June to choose a candidate.

Between now and then a lot of things may happen, enough in one direction to make one of the candidates a cinch to get the nomination.

Or, between now and then, one of the candidates may be able to line up enough convention delegates to make his nomination in June pretty sure.

That hasn't happened yet, so far as the people working here know. If it has, it's a well-kept secret.

The race is so wide open that if you're living in some little old whistle-stop near Keokuk, you know as much as the people here.

If you're a newspaperman working around the Capitol, you get to know a lot of Congressmen on a first-name basis.

In the afternoon when the day's grind is over, you can drop around to the office of one of them for a few words, or a few thousand.

He'll tell you what he's heard. The trouble with that is: What he's heard he's heard from someone else who's heard it from someone else.

Drop around next week and he'll tell you what he's heard again. It'll be a little different from what he's heard this week.

So, if you run into someone from Washington and he tells you he knows positively who's going to get the Republican nomination, scratch him off.

It's different with the Democrats.

It's pretty well taken for granted that President Truman will be nominated to succeed himself when the Democrats hold their convention in Philadelphia in July. Nobody else is being mentioned as a rival.

Prices on Black Market Are Out Says Commission

Taxpayers' money will not pay for black market pipe, fittings, or valves in future additions built in the city, a resolution passed yesterday afternoon by the City Commission indicated.

The resolution formed the formal adoption for refunding of sewer and water mains in new additions of the town and calls for the payment to promoters in the following manner:

Where new additions are built the sewer and water lines may be installed by the promoter at his own expense. The city engineer will then determine what the cost would have been had the city put in the lines and the refunding will be made on that basis. When the property develops and houses are tied on to the lines, the revenue to the city from water bills and sewage charges in that addition will be set aside for refunding purposes on an annual payment plan. If the addition does not develop within five years a depreciation of ten percent per year will be placed on the lines for the following ten years. The lines will be considered city property at the end of 15 years. Refunding of each new addition is not expected to take longer than five years after the first development of the addition appears.

The resolution completely eliminates taxpayers from paying for black market pipe, that private builders are sometimes forced to buy, by the refunding of only that amount it would have cost the city to lay similar lines.

Both the Sone-McCoy and Hall Additions are under the above plan while the Fraser Addition was excluded since it was built several years ago under a different plan.

Gray Commissioners Okay County Salaries

Gray County Commissioners have set the following employment and salary schedules in county offices:

Monthly salaries of the sheriff, county judge, district clerk, county attorney, county clerk, and tax assessor-collector were set at $312.50.

Salaries of the county commissioners were set at $250 monthly, with the county health officer's salary set at $200, and the county treasurer at $237.50. The annual salary for the constable was set at $1,750.

Approval was given to an application by the sheriff to keep the same number of deputies at the same salaries.

Salaries of the justices of the peace were set at $1,750 annually.

'Trim Trees or Else' Says City

An informal ultimatum to property owners to trim off low hanging tree limbs of their own volition "or else," was made late yesterday afternoon by the City Commission during a two and one-half-hour tour of the city inspecting sewer lines, water mains, paving projects, and the condition of the city in general.

The commissioners saw, first hand, the source of many complaints coming to them from postmen, and deliverymen, of practically every service phase in town, that low hinging limbs are making them duck, twist, wriggle, and turn in the residential sections when they attempt to walk down sidewalks or approach homes to make deliveries. The same condition was reported b ordinary pedestrians who have been slapped in the face by a wiry twig or branch. Truck drivers and auto drivers have brought in similar complaints to the city.

The commission agreed they would first request all property owners publicly to trim their trees both on the sidewalk and street side of low hanging limbs, then, if cooperation is found to be lacking an ordinance with "teeth in it" will be passed as an emergency measure.

Chinese Say 'Americans Must Die!'

CHENGCHOW, China — AP — Transport planes sped the evacuation of missionaries from the Communist-menaced center today. Civil war fighting, however, hid the fate of an unknown number of Americans and others who had sought safety in Laahokow to the southwest.

Four have been killed in recent days—three of them slain by armed Chinese who shouted "Americans must die!" and the fourth was fatally injured by a grenade explosion in Communist-government fighting.

As missionaries and other foreigners gathered at the busy Chengchow Airport, one American said the spread of civil warfare and of anti-foreign sentiment had convinced him: ". . .it's time for us all to get out of China again." (There are more than 500 in danger spots, mission leaders said.

A missionary for many years, he lived through the 1927 flareup of anti-foreign violence, when 6,000 endangered missionaries were evacuated.

Communists were reported within three miles of Chengchow, but this rail city 300 miles north of Hankow is strongly defended. Laohokow, 200 miles northwest of Hankow, was at last reports under increasingly heavy Communist pressure and evacuation-plane pilots said they could not land there without ground communications.

Laohokow is near the scene of the three missionary murders Jan. 7. Assailants who Chinese witnesses said appeared to be Communists stopped a bus and shot down Miss Martha J. Anderson, Minneapolis, Miss Esther Victoria Nordlund, Chicago, and Dr. Alexis Friedrich Berg, Helsinki, Finland.

The fourth death was reported Tuesday; that of American Mennonite Missionary Miss Elizabeth Degarmo, 60, Wauteta, Neb. It was believed an accidental result of Communist-government fighting.

(There are also reports—unconfirmed—that one of five American Marines missing in a Communist sector of North China was killed in a clash with the Reds. The five disappeared while on a Christmas-Day hunting trip.)

Commercial planes are taking out some of the Chengchow evacuees, and the Lutheran Mission Plane "St. Paul" is beginning the 12-trip job of removing a 100-bed hospital. Equipment as well as the staff of the big Southern Baptist Hospital here will be flown to Hankow for rail shipment to Kweilin, 405 miles farther southwest.

The staff of a Lutheran hospital at Koshan, midway between Chengchow and Hankow, escaped after government troops beat back Chinese Communists who had reached the hedges surrounding the institution. Residences and hospital buildings were badly damaged by rifle and artillery fire

Enlargement of Schools Planned

Enlargement of facilities of the Pampa Independent School District, as planned currently by the Board of Education, was explained to members of the Rotary Club yesterday in the Palm Room, City Hall, by Superintendent of Schools Knox Kinard.

The school head told Rotarians the city school system had now reached its saturation point with the elementary schools having to use their auditoriums for classrooms and the increase of births in Gray County from year to year will eventually be too much for the present buildings to handle. He added that even now the High School gymnasium was far too small to adequately accommodate physical educational classes, and boys wanting to take woodwork in the shops are hampered by overcrowded conditions.

Kinard informed Rotarians that the Board of Education was also planning an enlargement of school housing for Negro children and have included a larger building.

Ray Evans, president of Rotary announced the Borger-paid feed would be held in the Palm Room on Tuesday night, Jan. 27, and that it will be a stag affair.

The club's new junior Rotarian, Don Lane, was introduced by the president during the introduction of guests and visiting Rotarians.

George Newberry served as program chairman and Virgil Mott led the club singing.

Dr. Ballard Heads Panhandle Society

Dr. William R. Ballard of Pampa was elected president of the Panhandle Osteopathic Society of Proctology at a meeting held Tuesday night at the Amarillo Osteopathic Hospital.

Other officers elected were: Vice president, Dr. Don Hackley of Dumas; and secretary-treasurer, Dr. Bob Vick of Tulia.

A surgical clinic was held at the meeting.

Leaves From a Correspondent's Life Note Book

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK —(AP)— Notes on a changing world:

If paying bills is a sign of character then college kids have plenty.

Most large schools now have special loan funds to help students in straitened financial circumstances finish their education. Since 1913 the University of Missouri has advanced $1,018,499 to more than 8,300 students, and its vice president, Leslie Cowan, says that only $5,500 has had to be written off as lost.

The students have paid back the loans 99 1-2 cents on every dollar.

Continuing our explorations into the academic life, we report that a housing survey by the City College School of Business here came up with this interesting conclusion:

Of the landlords interviewed 75 percent said they preferred college instructors as tenants because of their "restrained type of living, their stable intelligent associates and their tendency toward care and respect of living quarters."

This was all flattering to professional vanity—but the survey still failed to locate enough apartments to care for the teaching staff.

There is a shortage of ivory towers, too.

Texas Today

By CLAYTON HICKERSON
Associated Press Staff

Each year about 10,000 or more yearbooks of the Department of Agriculture are given to Texans by their representatives and senators in Congress. It is a part of the service he renders the voter.

At government printing office prices, this means about $20,000 worth of free books.

If there is a book published by the government, or a set of books, or a map of any particular state, or body of water or section of that body of water, or a pamphlet, or a report or hearing text that you want. . .

Write your Congressman.

He will send it to you with his name stamped on it. More than likely it will not cost him anything. But if it does, he'll probably send it anyway rather than risk incurring your wrath.

Congressmen have thousands of copies of such publications allotted them each year to distribute as they choose.

The government printing office prints about 30 catalogs listing these publications in small type. Each catalog contains up to 30 or 40 pages.

The Interior Department allots wall maps of the United States to each Congressman. The Coast and Geodetic Survey will give them maps of lakes, rivers, coastlines. Some of them look good in your den, and others are useful for fishermen.

You can get them by writing to the man whose name appears in the upper right-hand corner, in lieu of stamps, of all those envelopes you get around election time. That's your Congressman.

Congressmen guard closely their "folding room accounts" where their publication allotments are kept. And they watch closely to see that they go, properly stamped with their name, to people who vote in their districts.

When new editions of the USDA yearbooks come off the press, Texas Congressmen usually enter into spirited bidding with members from more urban centers like Chicago and New York City.

One Texas Congressman, when the 1947 book was published, gave his option on five Army-Navy football tickets to David Potts (R-N.Y.) for 100 of the volumes. Potts with many constituents who wanted to see the game, could use the tickets easily. The Texan needed the books for his rural constituents.

Lubbock Campus Life Is to Be Filmed

LUBBOCK — Shooting of a technicolor sound movie showing campus life at Texas Technological College, is scheduled to begin Feb. 6 during registration for the spring semester.

Designed to give an overall picture of academic and social activities at the college, the movie is being made as the 1948 project of the Tech Chamber of Commerce, a student organization. When it is completed, the movie will be available for showing to any interested group upon request. Seeking to show representative year-round events, the Chamber of Commerce expects to take about 12 months making the movie.

Tucker Band to Be at Wheeler

WHEELER — The West-Passons Post No. 138 of the American Legion at Wheeler will put on the biggest show ever offered in Wheeler when they present Orrin Tucker and his orchestra in a dance at their new Legion Building next Thursday night.

Wheeler Legionaires have just completed this spacious new hall which would be a credit to a town much larger than Wheeler which has a total population of less than 1,000 people. The new building has one of the finest dance floors anywhere in the Panhandle in its main auditorium, and in addition has an office and reception room on one side, kitchen, rest room, ladies lounge, basement and meeting room on the other side.

The appearance of Orrin Tucker will mark the first time that any sort of big name band or show attraction has ever been billed in this inland county seat.

Tucker is currently playing at the Stevens Hotel in Chicago, and has performed at the largest hotels and theatres in the land.

The appearance at Wheeler will be Tucker's only appearance in the Panhandle of Texas.

Increase in Marriages Noted as Favorable Sign Of Continued Prosperity

NEW YORK — There were about two million marriages in the United States in 1947, a total second only to the all-time peak of about 2,285,000 marriages in 1946, according to the statisticians of Metropolitan Life.

"The high postwar marriage rates reflect not only the return of millions of young men to civilian life, but also the prevailing high level of employment and general prosperity," the statisticians note.

The relative decrease in marriages between 1946 and 1947 was countrywide. The setback was smallest in the northeastern area of the country and largest in the West and the South. For the five leading cities with respect to population—New York, Chicago, Philadelphia, Detroit and Los Angeles—the relative declines were smaller than for the remaining cities of 100,000 and over.

"It is expected that the downward trend in marriages will continue into 1948, one reason being that the unusually high marriage rates of the past two years have already appreciably reduced the ranks of eligible men and women," the statisticians conclude.

80 Percent Men Riding Planes on Business

HOUSTON — More than 80 percent of male passengers travel the airways on business, but only 27 percent of the women surveyed give that reason, Robert J. Smith, Pioneer Air Lines president, announced.

Smith said Pioneer conducted a survey over a 30 day period and of the 3,000 passengers questioned, 72 percent were men and 28 percent women.

Of the 3,000 passengers, 13 percent said it was their first airplane ride; 41 percent said they had flown fewer than five times and 13 percent had flown more than 10 times, Smith said.

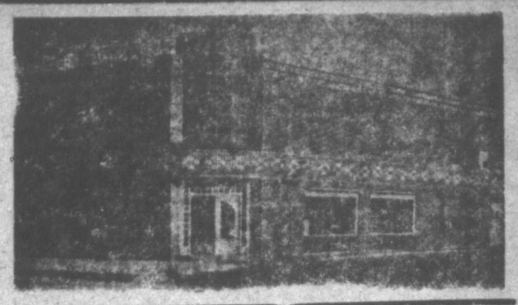

The breakdown of the reasons for flying showed that 81 percent of the male passengers were on emergency flights and only six percent on recreation. The women answered that 27 percent were flying on business, 57 percent for pleasure or recreation and 14 percent on an emergency.

Search Continues For Six Escapees

ANGLETON —(AP)— Peace officers throughout Texas today were still looking for six convicts who escaped from the Darrington Prison Farm near here Tuesday afternoon.

Yesterday brought a reorganization of control at the prison farm as a result of prison breaks but little news of the escaped convicts.

Five of the original 11 prisoners who overpowered Guard Luther Dowell in a bid for freedom were captured Tuesday night in Nacogdoches.

O. B. Ellis, prison system manager, announced yesterday that Dowell had been dismissed and that Warden David Coers transferred as a result of the break.

Coers was shifted to the Eastham Farm and was replaced at Darrington by Eastham's warden, R. R. Miller.

Ellis blamed the escape on "nothing but carelessness."

Four of the six convicts who have eluded capture were reported yesterday at Hillsboro, about 200 miles north of the farm. They took a pair of overalls from a farmer after he told them he did not have any money.

Officers have had no reports on the other two escapees.

tive market. The Texas agricultural commissioner acknowledged after publication of the previous list that he had been trading in cotton.

Publication of names of market traders is being carried out under a Congressional investigation to determine whether "government insiders" have made profits by speculating in commodities.

There is nothing illegal in commodity speculation, although it has been denounced by President Truman as a factor in the high cost of living. Many commodity exchange officials disagree with him.

Mexico's Social Security in Red

MEXICO CITY —(AP)— Mexico's Social Security Institute in four years has run up a deficit of [illegible] $21,600,000 pesos (about 200,000) by granting maternity and general medical benefits because [illegible] such services, Excelsior reported today.

The newspaper reported an interview with Social Security Director Antonio Diaz Lombardo in which the official said the government was planning to wipe out the deficit by increases in social security payments by employers, workers, and the government.

Diaz Lombardo pointed out that the institute's reserves for professional injuries, old age pensions, and life insurance totalled 110,000,000 pesos (522,000,000), but that under present laws this cannot be used against the deficit.

The Social Security Law originally was drawn up to include only the latter benefits, but later was amended to provide general medical service without an increase in contributions.

Services Tomorrow For Henry H. Hutchens

Henry H. Hutchens, 75, of 845 Campbell, died early today in a Pampa hospital.

Mr. Hutchens, a retired carpenter, was born on May 2, 1872, in Centralia, Mo., and came to Pampa in 1923.

Surviving are: his wife, Mrs. Anna Hutchens; three sons, John and Wayne, Pampa, and Lee, stationed with the U. S. Army at Fort Benning, Ga.; four daughters, Mrs. Roy avis, Omaha, Neb.; Mrs. Jack Boyd, Kellerville, Mrs. T. L. Smith, Pampa, and Mrs. Robert Tyne, Indianapolis, Ind. Eight grandchildren also survive.

Funeral services will be held at 2 p. m. Friday from the First Christian Church, Pampa, with the Rev. James Todd, Panhandle, officiating. Burial will be at Fairview Cemetery. Funeral arrangements will be made by the Duenkel-Carmichael Funeral Home.

San Antonian Named Oil Company Official

TULSA— (Special)— Don O. Chappell, division geologist for Sunray Oil Corporation, San Antonio, Texas, has been named a vice president of the company, and will direct a new department of exploration, according to an announcement by C. H. Wright, Sunray president.

The appointment of Chapell to this new position in the Sunray organization is the company's first step in a new program of activity and expansion which Sunray plans in the mid-continent states and in California. Chapell will move to Tulsa and will set up his new office here. H. S. McClintock, vice-president, will continue to direct Sunray's land department. Sunray now maintains land and geological offices in Wichita, Kansas, Shreveport, La., Oklahoma City, San Antonio and Midland, Texas, and Los Angeles, Calif.

Strike of Customs Agents Is Settled

JALAPA, Mex. —(AP)— Veracruz State Governor Adolfo Ruiz Cortinez last night announced settlement of a strike of Customs House agents at Veracruz which tied up most shipments through the port for two weeks.

The governor said the 130 employes of 31 customs brokers had agreed to accept 15 percent wage increases instead of the 50 to 250 percent they asked. They agreed to return to work today, he said. They struck Dec. 31.

'47 Mineral Production In U. S. Tops '46 Total

WASHINGTON—(AP)—Toiling at a record-breaking pace, the U. S. produced 13 percent more minerals and mineral products in 1947 than in 1946—and the value was 40 percent greater, the Bureau of Mines said Saturday.

The total quantity of minerals produced, according to the bureau's estimate, was 5 percent above the wartime peak of 1944.

At the same time, Secretary of the Interior Krug cautioned that the nation's rate of mineral discovery is not keeping pace with the rapidly-rising output.

Current production of petroleum, he said, is virtually at the maximum rate at which developed reserves can be worked efficiently.

Production of copper, lead and zinc—minerals in which the nation was self-sufficient before the war—was substantially below domestic requirements in 1947 and large imports were required, Krug added.

"These simple facts," he said in comment on the Bureau of Mines production report, "emphasize the need for vigorous national action to promote all practical conservational measures, to stimulate the search for additional domestic deposits, and to assure adequate supplies from abroad of minerals that cannot be produced in sufficient quantities at home."

The bureau estimated the total value of 1947 minerals and mineral products at the all-time high of $12,400,000,000. The 1946 figure was $8,859,000,000.

The bureau said a third of the rise in value was due to a production tonnage increase, and the remainder was the result of higher commodity prices.

Of the three major classes of mineral products, the greatest gain in 1947—65 percent—was made by metals, production totaling $3,000,000,000.

The value of fuels produced increased 36 percent to $7,800,000,000 due largely to record-breaking pumpage of crude petroleum and natural gas.

Non-metallic minerals, other than fuels, gained 22 percent in value of production, and had a total value of $1,600,000,000.

Air Search Continues For Missing Plane

FORT WORTH —(AP)— An air search continued today for the light plane of Eugene Holstein, 29, Dallas, which disappeared Dec. 30 after fog closed in the Houston Airport.

Eleven planes were put in the air yesterday from the Fort Worth Air Field after the 62nd U. S. Air-Sea Rescue Unit at Biggs Field, El Paso, requested assistance of the 8th Air Force and Air Reserve.

The Fort Worth planes are searching an area bounded by Mineral Wells, Lampasas, Waco and Palestine.

From where I sit ... by Joe Marsh

Who Are We, Anyway?

Subject came up at Bill Webster's, the other day, as we were chatting over beer and pretzels. Just who are the folks who make up our town? Where'd they come from?

Well, Doc Hollister's Scotch-English ancestry; Will Dudley's folks were mining stock from Pennsylvania; Skip Powell's family were brewers back in Holland.

Guess our bloodstream's got a bit of every country of the globe—and every section of America. We've still got differences in taste and background—whether they apply to music, history, or beer. Only those differences don't matter—because we're self-respecting people, in a free, united land.

And from where I sit, that's what makes our towns and cities—our America—so strong, progressive, tolerant. Our championship of individual liberties has brought us people from all faiths, all lands—to prove that respect for one another's rights is the greatest bond humanity can know!

Wrestling Card To Feature Five Man Battle Royal

What might be considered the best in wrestling entertainment will be seen at the Sportatorium tonight on Promoter Vic Burnett's card, when five men and a referee step into the middle of the ring and from the word "go" nothing short of riot can one anticipate to witness in this five-man wrestle royal.

The gladiators appearing in what is to believed the only form of legal bedlam known to man kind will be Dory Funk of Beaumont, Ind., Olan Boynton of Amarillo, Johnny Corlin of Tampa, Fla., George Lopez of Tampico, Mex., and Cliff Benton of Edmonton, Alb. Dutch Jones of Borger will be the referee.

The second and third men eliminated in the battle royal will return to the mat for a semi-final best two out of three with a 45-minute time limit, while the last two gladiators surviving the five-man slugfest will be matched in a two out of three fall event with a one hour time limit.

Babe Voted No. 1 Woman Athlete of The Year in Nation

DALLAS — (AP) —Two Texas women athletes were among those named in a poll to decide the woman athlete-of-the-year in the nation.

Mildred Babe Didrikson Zaharias, former Beaumont High School girl athlete who became an olympics track star, an All-America basketball player and finally a champion woman golfer, was No. 1.

Tied for last in the national poll conducted by the Associated Press was Frankie Groves, 16-year-old girl who played nine minutes at tackle on the Stinnett High School boys' football team.

Richmond Open Begins Today

RICHMOND, Calif. —(AP)— A crack field of golfing stars opens the first round of the four-day 72-hole $10,000 Richmond Open Tournament today.

Most of this country's leading professionals and stars from South America, Australia, Canada and South Africa's Bobby Locke will compete, as well as a number of amateurs.

The . . . WAY it LOOKS to Bill Behrman

Maybe Putt Powell has just the sense of humor that I can't understand. Anyhow, Mr. Powell came out in his column "Putting Around" Tuesday night to the effect that in a recent column of Deskins Wells of the Wellington Leader, he (Powell) was accused of trying to run the Texas Interscholastic League. Powell wrote he had never even had the idea before this writing, but that he has now gone to work in earnest toward that end.

In Powell's next paragraph he says Lewis Nordyke is going to run for governor in 1950. To me, that is like comparing an elephant with a flea. Mr. Nordyke from all Pampa indications is very well liked, and is a competent man but Powell, if the job he is contemplating was a political job, I would be willing to wager, wouldn't carry over 25 percent of the Panhandle, which would include his home town, Amarillo.

The Texas Interscholastic League has done a wonderful job of promoting amateur sports in the state of Texas. Many coaches, fans, and I disagree with many decisions, plans, and rulings, but we don't believe there are many states whose interscholastic program would compare with that of the Lone Star State. So please, Putt, leave 'em alone.

Many of you may be wondering why we are picking on Mr. Powell, who has been writing Amarillo sports for numerous years. No, it's not because he is from Amarillo. There're thousands of good people in Amarillo—just ask anybody.

Two weeks ago, Putt represented District 1-AA in San Antonio when the Texas Sportswriters Association selected its all-state high school teams.

We went into a long discussion why we thought that Carl Mayes from Pampa should have been listed, at least as honorable mention when the writers voted. We concluded by asking Powell to list eight backfield men that he saw play this year who he thought were better than Mayes. Well, they say evading the issue is a sure sign of guilt, and that's why we're picking this bone with him.

Surely, we are not stepping too far out of line with our gripe, when Plainview made mention of it, as did 90 percent of Pampa's football fans.

American homes contained 34,000,000 radio sets in 1945.

Coach McNeely

Clifton McNeely came to Pampa January 1, taking over the Pampa Harvester basketball quintet the day before they left for Spearman to participate in that city's invitational basketball tournament. Coach Dick Livingstone turned over to McNeely a squad that had won eight straight ball games and since that time the former Texas Wesleyan star has doubled this number of wins, and the team has come out as the number one team in both Spearman and Childress invitational Basketball Tournament, with a record of 16 wins and no defeats.

McNeely, 5 feet, 10 inches of basketball dynamite, scored 725 points in 33 games averaging 22 points per game in his last season at TWC last year to lead the nation's scorers in collegiate basketball circuits.

He made the Helms Athletic Foundation 1947 All-America basketball team. This poll was supervised by W. J. (Bill) Schroeder, one of the nation's foremost authorities on basketball.

Johnny Edwards, basketball coach at TWC said of McNeely "He is one of the best offensive players I have ever seen. He has a fighting spirit that likes to win and he is an aggressive ball player."

Spider's Victim Worries Over Spider!

SAN FRANCISCO —(AP)— Eleven year-old Edward Laidlaw Smith began his nature studies at the age of three. So when one of his black widow spiders bit him he was more concerned about their fate than his own.

The son of Dr. Charles Edward Smith, president of the California Board of Health, was reported in satisfactory condition at Stanford Hospital.

The elder Smith gave a hyper-immune serum to Edward, who suffered shooting pains and nausea resulting from the bite. The father hadn't made up his mind whether to kill the six spiders.

Sisco Says It's Time to Do Some Clearing Up

WACO, Tex. —(AP)—Jack Sisco, the football official who was the target of a bottle barrage at the Texas-Oklahoma football game and punched a spectator after the Southern Methodist-Arkansas game for cursing him, lays the blame for such conditions to gamblers, drinkers, proselyters, coaches and parents.

The Southwest Conference official who was named "Southwesterner of the Year" by the Texas Sports Writers Association because of his public utterances against gambling and drinking and for his contribution to sports, declared last night that "it's a time the right thinking 98 percent who love the game for what it should be did some cleaning up."

Speaking at the annual Waco High School banquet, Sisco said "when a large university bids $5,000 for an athlete and then doesn't get him, it's time to find out why such offers have to be made to boys in the first place. Educational standards should be such that a boy wants to go to college for what he can learn rather than for the financial benefits."

Something is wrong with a school, he continued, which allows the alumni to hire and fire the coach when it should be done by the president. "The president is the one who should be fired if he permits such a thing," Sisco asserted. "He is put there to run the school and should run it. No business man would let an outsider tell him how to run his business."

Leveling his criticism at gamblers and drunks he said: "When it reaches a point that a gambler or drunk is allowed to attack a coach or an official for doing his job, the game loses its purpose, that of building character and furnishing wholesome contact which is so badly needed in these unstable times."

Parents came in for criticism like this: "When a 10- or 12-year-old child calls an official 'a lousy bum or a robber' and the parents laugh and think it's clever, something is wrong."

He termed gambling as probably the worst of all evils. "One athletic director told me he didn't know what to do," said Sisco. "Football cards were being passed out by students on the campus and one coach said that a player on his team had been keeping an Eastern syndicate posted on the physical and mental condition of all the players every week. This player told the coach about two weeks before the season was over that he had been paid $7.50 a week for his information."

Coaches are not without blame, he declared. "Some of them run up and down the sidelines like yell leaders to get the fans excited and they often take it out on the officials. A coach who can't teach his boys manners and good behaviour as well as how to block and tackle is being overpaid."

It was a sort of homecoming for Sisco, who back in the early twenties was a star lineman for Waco High School.

With 16 victories in as many starts the Pampa High School Harvester basketball team opens its District 1-AA conference play tomorrow night when the Harvesters meet the Borger Bulldogs in the Junior High School Gymnasium. The varsity game is scheduled for 8 o'clock, while the B teams from the two schools will meet in a preliminary contest at 7 o'clock.

Tickets for the Harvesters' home conference games are on sale in the school business office in the City Hall. This book of five reserved seat tickets are good for the locals' home contests against all of their conference foes, Borger, Brownfield, Plainview, Lubbock, and Amarillo. However, tickets for the Borger game will be obtainable at the gym at game time tomorrow.

Led by their new coach and former All-America in his last season at Texas Wesleyan College last year, Clifton McNeely, the Harvesters have the added accomplishments of title-holders in both the Spearman and Childress Invitational Basketball Tournaments. Both of these tournament victories have been since McNeely took over the team, Jan. 1.

The Harvesters hold a 57 to 54 victory over the Bulldogs gained in the Spearman tournament. Although the Bulldogs were entered in the Childress tournament the teams did not meet. The Bulldogs lost their opening game in this tournament to Wichita Falls, and then came through with flying colors to down Nocona in the finals of the consolation round.

The Green and Gold squad holds three victories over Childress, which includes the finals in the Childress tournament last week, three wins over Stratford, two over Panhandle, two over Phillips, one over Booker, Electra, Hollis, Okla., Vernon and Spearman.

Derrell Davis and Raymond Hernandez—Davis the Harvesters' scoring ace and Hernandez, one of the best defensive ball players seen in the locals' 16 games—were both voted on the all-tournament team in Childress last week.

The probable starting lineup for the Harvesters tomorrow night will be King and Miller, forwards; Davis, center; Hernandez and Latfoon, guards.

Razorbacks and SMU Open Crucial Series Tomorrow

By the Associated Press

Arkansas and Southern Methodist open a crucial series at Fayetteville tomorrow night in the Southwest Conference basketball race.

It is the first major test for the Razorbacks, who are co-leaders of the race with two victories against no defeats. Southern Methodist, loser by one point to Baylor, must win both games to stay in the title chase.

From Fayetteville comes reports that the Porkers are worried over the impending series. Arkansas had trouble beating Texas A&M in a couple of games last week and Southern Methodist licked the Aggies 47-30 two weeks ago without the services of ace Guard Bob Prewitt. The showing of the Methodists against Baylor, whom they played to a virtual standstill, also has added to the Arkansas worries. Baylor is rated with the top four of the race—Texas, Arkansas, Baylor and Southern Methodist.

Rice and Baylor will play at Houston tomorrow night and Saturday night Texas entertains Texas A&M at Austin.

Arkansas, Texas and Baylor each has won two games and lost none.

Rules Group to Take Final Vote Today

SAVANNAH, Ga.—(AP) — With preliminary discussions out of the way and test ballots taken on all proposals, the National Football Rules Committee prepared today to take a final vote on regulations which will govern next fall's collegiate competition.

Very few changes in last year's code are expected to be announced by Chairman W. J. Bingham of Harvard. In view of advance predictions and from all indications.

All members of the eleven-man committee, together with ten athletic officials and coaches who have attended the two-a-day sessions as advisors, were pledged to silence beforehand, and nothing has seeped out of the meetings.

Reapers Split With Sam Houston Teams

The Pampa Junior High School Reapers fell prey to Sam Houston Junior High School in Amarillo last night coming out on the short end of the 17 to 15 score in the Reapers second conference clash.

However, the B game was a different story as the Reaper B squad walloped the Sam Houston B team 27 to 10.

Tony Jones of the Reapers led the scoring in the A game with seven points, while Marvin Bond scored 17 points for the Reapers in the B game to lead their scoring attack.

Lujack Named Male Athlete Of the Year in Annual Poll

NEW YORK — (AP) — Johnny Lujack, Notre Dame's All-America quarterback, today was named male athlete-of-the-year for 1947 in the annual Associated Press yearend poll.

The 22-year-old star, winner of the Heisman Memorial Trophy and named the standout player of the Jan. 1 East-West Shrine game at San Francisco, drew almost twice as many first place votes from the nation's sports editors as his nearest competitor.

Fifteen thought Lujack was the No. 1 man and eight voted for runnerup Jack Kramer and eight for Joe DiMaggio, on a point basis, with five for first, three for second and one for third, Lujack piled up 116 credits to 78 for Kramer, the national tennis champ, and 49 for DiMaggio, flashy centerfielder of the world champion New York Yankees.

Jackie Robinson, Brooklyn's first baseman who was the first Negro to play in the big leagues in modern days, drew considerable support. So did Doak Walker, Southern Methodist's All-America halfback.

But Lujack was the winner by a comfortable margin on the strength of his play for the unbeaten, untied fighting Irish.

The Notre Dame passing star succeeds another football player, Glenn Davis, who won the award last year while rounding out his brilliant career with Army. DiMaggio was the only previous winner who drew any votes, Joe Louis, the runnerup in 1946, being completely overlooked after his fight with Jersey Joe Walcott.

Baseball dominated the first 10 although a football ace was the winner, DiMaggio was third Robinson finished fourth, Ted Williams of the Boston Red Sox was fifth, Ewell Blackwell of Cincinnati was eighth and Joe Page of the Yankees was ninth. Doak Walker, who finished sixth and Lujack, were the only footballers. Golf was represented by Bobby Locke of South Africa in seventh place and Jimmy Demaret the no. 10 man.

Disqualification of Ranger for 1948 Season Ordered by League

AUSTIN — (AP) — Disqualification of Ranger High School for interscholastic league honors in the 1948 football season was ordered yesterday when the league's state executive committee found that school guilty of recruiting players from smaller Gordon High.

Gordon school officials filed a complaint with the league last fall, accusing Raymond Lingle, president of the Ranger Quarterback Club, and coach O. C. (Stubby) Warden of Ranger of recruiting three Gordon players, league director Roy Bedichek reported.

He said investigation showed that Warden was with Lingle when the latter offered "at least two of the three boys room and board" to come to Ranger.

Only one of the three boys stayed in Ranger more than "a day or two," Bedichek said, adding that all three would remain eligible to play for Gordon, a class B school, next season.

The three would have had to live at Ranger this current school year to satisfy the transfer rule as it applies to eligibility.

Bedichek described the disqualification for honors as the lightest penalty which the league imposes for such an infraction of rules.

Ranger will play its schedule and games it wins will count against opponents. If the Ranger team establishes the best record, the district runner-up will be certified as champion and will enter the bi-district playoff. Ranger was in district 9-AA this fall but has elected to drop district 8-A for the 1948 season.

The executive committee also ordered Pottsville to forfeit its six-man football bi-district championship to Richland because Pottsville was found guilty of using an ineligible player against Richland in the playoff.

Bedichek said representatives of the recently established big city division might meet with the committee today, but he did not know what subjects were scheduled for discussion.

Hagen-Jones-Sarazen Period Produced Best Golfers'--Farrell

DALLAS—(AP)—Johnny Farrell, the gold great of another era, disputes any contentions that the linksmen of today are better than those of the Hagen-Jones-Sarazen period and he also wants you to know those fellows made plenty of money and made it easier.

Here on a combined business-pleasure trip, Farrell played the Dallas Country Club course yesterday and planned to go to Fort Worth today to drum up a match with Byron Nelson, who also has virtually retired from tournament play but belongs in the present era of stars.

"We played only about four big tournaments a year," Johnny recalled, "spending the rest of our time at our clubs or in exhibitions. But we made good money out of tournaments we played, good money out of the exhibitions and good money from testimonials. Walter Hagen used to make $100,000 a year. You don't find exhibitions and testimonials so profitable now as then because you have too many big names in golf."

Farrell declared that Hagen was the greatest of them all, because he was a great competitor and had the proper temperament and he also said the players of Hagen's time had more color and showmanship.

"Golfers today burn themselves out with the terrific grind of year-around tournament play aiming at the big money," said Farrell. "Take Hagen: he was a top winner for 15 years; Nelson lasted only about four. The tension of present day golf is too great for the human make-up to endure over a long period."

Farrell, now 46 and located at Baltusrol Country Club in New Jersey, started playing tournament golf in 1918 and was in his first national open in 1920. He has missed only two of them since that time. He still plays some along the tournament trail but wouldn't dream of following the touring golfers an entire year.

Back in 1927 Farrell won eight open tournaments in a row, a record stood until 1945 when Nelson beat it. He won the national open 20 years ago, defeating the great Bobby Jones in a 36-hole play-off for the title.

Marshall Plan

publican lawmakers share this view despite Secretary of State Marshall's insistence that the amount is a "precision" figure.

Criticizing what he termed the cabinet officer's effort to assume a "mantle of infallibility," Ball, a member of the Senate Appropriations Committee, told reporters it is generally conceded that Marshall "is a good soldier."

"But," Ball added, "his infallibility as an international strategist might be questioned in view of the fact that he was one of the top advisers in the Yalta, Teheran and Potsdam (Big Three) Conferences, where many of the blunders which have contributed to the present international crises were made."

Ball said he hopes the State Department will submit "more specific projects designed to increase Europe's production of coal, steel, food and transportation—and place less reliance on the personal assurances of individuals that in their opinions expenditures of these huge sums will bring about recovery in Europe."

No State Department witnesses were on tap today, however, before either the Senate committee or the House Foreign Relations Committee.

Man With Wooden Leg Will Accept the $96

BROWNWOOD, Tex., —(AP)— A man who had hidden a $100 bill in his wooden leg, only to have it stolen, was willing to get $96 back from the thief.

Sheriff Otis Shaw and Police Chief M. O. Eidson became suspicious when they found $96 on a man they had arrested on a hot check charge.

They found out he had cashed a $100 bill. The suspect later admitted taking the bill from the wooden leg and was jailed on the misdemeanor check charge when the loser refused to prosecute.

Marine Corps Offers Booklet on Flag

A limited number of copies of "History of Our Flag," a 32-page booklet published by the U. S. Marine Corps in color, are available to interested persons without charge, T-Sgt. Leonard V. Smith, Amarillo, Marine Corps recruiter, said.

This booklet, he said, will be of interest to instructors and students alike in the schools and to all citizens. Included are the methods of correct display of the flag.

The booklet may be secured by writing the U. S. Marine Corps Recruiting Station, 208 Postoffice Bldg., Amarillo, it was said.

New Pickup Service—For Humans

Change of Leadership In Moscow Now Might Endanger World Peace

By DEWITT MACKENZIE
AP Foreign Affairs Analyst

Moscow denials of rumors that Premier Stalin is dead will, one suspects, be received with relief in the capitals of the western democracies against which the Soviet Leader is directing the Communist assault.

Such a statement seems to contain conflicting thoughts. However, it strikes me that we are dealing with an idea which at first blush seems absurd and yet actually is correct—in short, with a first class paradox. My reasoning is this:

The conflict between the Russian bloc and the western powers is in such a dangerous state that a bad misstep could produce another world war. Both sides recognize this and are proceeding with care because neither wants to see a third global upheaval. Thus so long as steady hands remain in control in each camp, the likelihood of a major explosion in the near future isn't great.

Stalin's word is supreme and final in Russia. For more than a score of years his policies have dominated both home affairs and foreign relations, including the Bolshevist spread of communism. His foreign policy, while going the full limit of daring in the interest of Soviet expansion, apparently has been aimed at avoiding major warfare.

So if Stalin's control suddenly were removed, and affairs were placed in charge of less dominant and shrewd men, a disastrous situation could arise. For example, an over-ambitious decision in Moscow regarding the fiery Balkan situation might touch off the powder keg—and that's only one of many zones which are on the danger list.

No, I think that right now western diplomacy would prefer to see Stalin at the wheel in Moscow, and this despite the fact that he probably is regarded generally by opponents as being the most dangerous man ever pitted against our way of life. It isn't that democracy loves Stalin the more but that it likes the idea of possible hot-headed instability in Moscow the less.

There are many observers who believe that when Stalin does give up the helm of state, the succeeding regime may be comprised of individuals who may sacrifice discretion to ambition and that thus communism will be weakened. Obviously that's a bit of wishful thinking which is on the knees of the gods.

In any event, the known qualities of Stalin as chief of state would seem to be preferable to uncertainties in these perilous days when the world is just beginning to emerge from the Hitlerian catastrophe.

Pilot Runs Second Best to Buzzard

CENTER —(AP)— A Joaquin, Tex., pilot flying a light cub-type plane came off second best in an aerial collision with a large buzzard Saturday.

Lee Cross, flying from the Logansport, La., Airfield, said that his plane plowed into the buzzard, breaking the propeller and his windshield. Cross succeeded in landing the plane in a field seven miles east of Tenaha, with slight damage to the tail assembly, he reported.

'Blacklist' Ban Not Worrying Commission

AUSTIN —(AP)— The Good Neighbor Commission is not concerned with the Mexican government's "blacklist" ban against the importation of Mexican laborers into Texas, Tom Sutherland, the commission's executive secretary, reported S[illegible]y.

He said [illegible]was the viewpoint expressed E. (Bob) Smith, chairman, when the two conferred Friday in Houston. It was the first conference between the two men since Sutherland assumed his duties with the Commission Jan. 1.

Sutherland said Smith told him the commission was concentrating on its job of eliminating unfriendly attitudes leading to unfriendly acts on the part of either Anglo-Texas or Latin Americans.

Dalhart Plane in Distress Is Helped to Safety by a Seymour, Texas, Undertaker

BY ROBERT E. FORD
Associated Press Staff

Otho Harrison, Seymour undertaker, tells of a Saturday night incident that had the strange qualities mystery story writers like, and which persons who believe in mental telepathy make much of.

The night was dark and foggy when Harrison quit work at the Harrison Hardware Store. He decided to take a drive on a highway out of town—something he'd seldom done merely for pleasure.

About three miles out he heard a plane, apparently in distress. He stopped his automobile, the headlights shone down the highway. Harrison got out to watch the plane.

Another car approached. This was all the distressed pilot needed.

Aided by the car lights, the pilot settled his plane on the highway in front of Harrison's parked car.

Four men crawled out, one of them still trembling.

The men were from Dalhart and included the pilot, a highway patrolman, the Dallam County sheriff and a passenger who was ill and was being taken to Fort Worth for treatment.

The weather had been clear when the plane took off from Dalhart, but by the time it reached Seymour it was in a pea soup fog. The radio was out, the compass jammed and the pilot had only a hazy conception of distance and direction. The ground was not visible. Gas was low.

After writing a note and placing it in a fire-proof container, the four had resigned themselves to fate. But then they saw the welcome lights of the two cars below.

The pilot, now safe on the ground, asked Harrison how he happened to be out at that time of night and Harrison, a deacon in the Baptist Church, said "The Lord must have sent me."

The men said they'd never seen such fast service—a distressed plane met by an undertaker. The next morning the party continued the flight to Fort Worth.

SOCIETY

Mrs. Osborne Is Hostess to Club

The Wayside Home Demonstration Club met last Friday in the home of the president, Mrs. Harold Osborne, who conducted the business.

Mrs. Lowell Osborne had charge of the recreation on standard measurements.

Yearbooks were issued to the members and roll call was answered by each member naming one inconvenience in her own kitchen.

Mrs. Wood Osborne was leader on the program on parliamentary rules. She conducted a ten-minute true-false drill.

Miss Ann Hastings, home demonstration agent, spoke to the group and gave a demonstration on kitchen planning and arrangement. She pointed out that no matter what kitchen plan is used that the three working units, refrierator, stove and sink, should be grouped according to the same general principle, namely that both the cooked food, when ready to serve and the place for stacking the soiled dishes should be near the dining area. The kitchen should be so arranged that it is as easy to eat in the main dining room as in the nook in the kitchen.

Miss Hastings also suggested simple means of serving food in the kitchen if there is no nook.

The next meeting was announced for Friday, Jan. 16, in the home of Mrs. Robert Montgomery.

Fourteen were present.

Uranium was discarded as a useless byproduct of radium in America during World War I.

Life Begins at Forty, Speaker Tells Members Of Twentieth Century Club in Health Talk

The members of the Twentieth Century Club met in the home of Mrs. F. M. Culberson last Tuesday and answered roll call by naming a topic of current interest in medicine or hygiene.

Mrs. R. E. McKernan, acting as leader of the program, in the absence of Mrs. J. W. Howze, introduced Dr. Julian M. Key, the guest speaker.

Dr. Key, using "Life Begins at Forty" as the title for his talk said, "The past decade has seen the statement, 'Life Begins at Forty,' become more and more an established fact. Because of increasingly successful methods of treatment and prevention of infectious diseases more people are reaching the age of forty in good health and with a useful life expectancy of 25 to 30 more years.

"As middle age approaches, the so-called degenerative diseases make their appearance. Many of these diseases are not caused by specific germs; instead, they result from processes in the body's actual wearing out. Often they are penalties demanded of persons whose physical systems were designed in early life by one of the acute infectious diseases such as diphtheria or scarlet fever. These diseases in the main include cancer, diabetes, diseases of the heart, arteries and kidneys. This group of diseases has become alarmingly prevalent in the older age levels of the population in our cities. This increase arises partly from the decreased mortality rate in the early age groups, but this does not account for the whole situation. Degenerative diseases are increasing at a more rapid rate than is the older population. Among a thousand older persons, cancer and diabetes, for instance are far more prevalent today than they were in a similar ago group a half century ago."

Dr. Key stated that this is a disturbing suitation. He pointed out that prevention remains in the hands of the individual by devoting some time to personal hygiene and periodic health examinations. Upward from age 35, he pointed out, diseases of the circulatory system are the chief causes of death. Heart diseases lead and, as the population grows older, heart diseases take an ever increasing toll.

He named the classes of heart diseases, congenital, thyroid, rheumatic, and degenerative. He commented that heart diseases can sometimes be checked but that the only sure way to combat heart disease is to prevent it by protecting the body from infection and by leading a safe, sane, and healthy existence.

He stated that arteriosclerosis, or hardening of the arteries is associated almost entirely with middle and later life; as a cause of death it is outranked by chronic heart diseases, nevertheless it is so prevalent as to be a serious problem.

Chronic kidney disease is definitely related to chronic infections, overweight, and excessive use of stimulants. Diabetes results from the body's inability to use sugar.

Dr. Key also pointed out the serious effect of worry and nervous strain, but that this, though almost as destructive, is often less curable than any disease. It is easy to say, "Don't worry" but he recognized that to quit worrying is one of the most difficult things to do. To help this he said that the only way was to realize that worry helps neither us nor our loved ones.

Dr. Key closed his talk by saying, "Such, then, are the dangers we face as we grow older. In every instance we see the need for wise and moderate living. In every instance we see the value of and importance of periodic health examinations. Early diagnosis is so often the only hope of cure; and these diseases do not produce symptoms in the early stages. The illnesses which meet this period of life can best be met by a simple healthful life as free from worry as possible and regulated by the supervisory check of the health examination.

"Your responsibility," he told the club members, "consists in so living that the state of your health will be an asset rather than a liability to yourself and your community at large."

At the close of the formal talk Mrs. C. E. High, president, conducted a short business meeting. The following officers for next year were elected: president, Mrs. J. W. Garman, Jr.; vice president, Mrs. Guilford Branson; secretary, Mrs. George W. Scott; treasurer, Mrs. Raymond Harrah; Mrs. C. E. High; reporter, Mrs. council of clubs representative, Bob Sanford; critic, Mrs. Paul Kasishke; and parliamentarian, Mrs. L. M. Hicks.

Refreshments were served to 18 members.

Simon's Program Will Include Improvisations

When the 26-year-old pianist Abbey Simon was only a 12-year-old prodigy attending the famous Curtis Institute of Music in Philadelphia, he was invited to a party given in New York by the late Leonold Godowsky at the home of his son-in-law, David Saperton. The party was in honor of the late George Gershwin, and the cream of New York's musical elite—Albertina Rasch, Josef Hofmann, Mischa Elman and many other well-known musicians—were present; young Abbey astounded the crowd by playing his improvisations on themes suggested by guests of the party. Abbey himself wa snot at all impressed by the assemblage, and offended Godowsky with the announcement that "Anybody can improvise the Russian style," and further exasperated his host by asking: "Isn't he (meaning Gershwin) ever going to come?" Gershwin never did. Simon is sorry to say.

Part IV of Abbey Simon's program here tonight will be "Improvisations." The great masters of the keyboard in the past century, such as Liszt, were famous for this unique art. Frequently, these masters would give entire programs of improvisations on themes or notes called by the audience and sometimes two great artists would appear on the same program challenging each other's imagination and creativeness. Mr. Simon is said to be the only pianist in the serious music field who possesses this gift in reviving a lost art.

The Pampa Community Concert Association takes pleasure in presenting this accomplished pianist, musically fluent, direct, and conscientious.

WE, THE WOMEN

By RUTH MILLETT
NEA Staff Writer

She selects her friends as carefully and calculatingly as she does her clothes.

She can always count on good old Marge to fill in at a party at the last minute or to keep the children when there's baby-sitter trouble. She couldn't any more get along without Marge than without her everyday tweed suit.

Then there's Julie. Julie is substantial, like the basic dress that is the backbone of her wardrobe. Julie is charming and her background is impeccable. Julie is useful in many, many ways—her basic friend.

And there's Anne. Anne is for important occasions, like her best dinner dress. She trots Anne out when she really wants to impress someone. Anne isn't for every day, but perfect for a party.

There are quite a few others—mostly fill-ins. Like the clothes she has bought from time to time. You probably know at least one woman like her.

DON'T BE USED

But don't let her make you a part of her social wardrobe. It's foolish to let a calculating woman use you.

And, yet, strangely enough, such women never have much trouble keeping up their social wardrobes. They shop around and choose, but the Marges and Julies and Annes never suspect. Yet, they are merely there, like clothes, for what they are able to do for her.

HAVE A GOOD LUNCH

A woman who has done household work all morning needs a good, nourishing lunch. Such a noontime meal does a great deal to ward off any danger of "midafternoon slump."

Know Your STUFF

About Work Shirts—If you know your stuff about work shirts, you'll look for fabric facts on the label before you buy a shirt for men or boys.

Shirting fabrics should be sturdy, of a weight and texture suited to the climate, and easy to wash clean. For mild weather, firmly woven chambray is a good choice. It screens out burning rays of the sun and still is lightweight for coolness. Coverts and warmer cottons are better choices for cold weather. Some materials such as khaki and jean make durable and heavy cold weather shirts but are difficult to launder at home.

If the label says "full shrunk" without designating any part of the garment, the shirt should not shrink at all when laundered. The term "preshrunk" offers the same guarantee unless it is qualified by a statement as "will not shrink more than — percent." However, should the label state only "collar linings pre-shrunk," it may indicate that the body of the shirt has not been treated and will shrink badly when washed.

The term "vat-dyed" on the label of a colored shirt tells you that the color is fast to light and laundering.

The Jack Russells Are Dinner Hosts

A surprise party was held in the form of a birthday dinner in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Jack W. Russell at 440 N. Ballard, last Tuesday evening, honoring Mr. D. Russell.

The dinner was served buffet style in candlelight. The three-tiered birthday cake was decorated in rose design.

Other guests were Mr. and Mrs. E. J. Rupp, Jr., Mr. and Mrs. Brooks Hubbard, Miss Donna Jo Dixon and the honoree's wife, Mrs. D. Russell.

Piano Concert

For the second time in one week music lovers in Pampa will have an opportunity to hear a piano concert. This evening Abbey Simon will play in the Junior High School Auditorium under the sponsorship of the Pampa Community Concert Association.

One part of the program will consist of improvisations. Simon is said to be particularly skilled in this phase of musicianship.

Market Briefs

WALL STREET

NEW YORK, Jan. 14—(AP)—Moderate demand lifted oil and aircraft issues above a narrowly irregular stock market today.

At the final bell gains and losses were in close balance. Most price changes were fractional, with a handful of issues rising 1 or 2 points. Business dwindled after a airly lively start.

Volume was around 900,000 shares.

Follansbee Steel was a selling target through the day, at times losing more than 3 points. Widespread theorizing revolved around the full story behind an offer by unidentified interests to purchase the company's stock at a price well above the going quotation.

Moving ahead were Boeing, Douglas Aircraft, Lockheed, Pacific Western Oil, Mission Corp., Plymouth Oil, U. S. Steel, Chrysler, Goodyear, Woolworth, Allied Chemical, Dresser Industries (at a new 1947-48 high), and Southern Railway.

Superior Oil of California struck sharply against the trend among oils with a sizable decline. Also lower were American Telephone, Kennecott, International Paper, Union Pacific, and Consolidated Natural Gas.

Rails tended a bit lower in the bond market.

Higher in the curb were Kaiser-Frazer and United Aircraft products.

CHICAGO GRAIN

CHICAGO, Jan. 14—(AP)—Corn and oats set new record highs on the board of trade today. Gains were not particularly large.

Cold weather in the mid-west, expected to increase farm consumption of feed grains, aided both corn and oats. Wheat firmed in sympathy with the feed grain upturn.

In the last few minutes of trading, prices fell back sharply with wheat leading the downturn.

The record for corn was $2.69⅝ and for oats $1.38¼.

Wheat closed 1¼ to 2 cents lower. May $3.05½-03.02, corn was 2⅝ lower to ⅝ higher. May $2.67¼-½, oats were ⅝ lower to ⅛ higher. May $1.27½-⅝.

Illness of Defense Witness Delays Trial

BROWNWOOD —(AP)— The illness of a defense witness yesterday resulted in continuance of the trial of Jesse Lee Reneau, 38, charged with arson.

He was indicted on five counts of arson following fires Dec. 2, in the Byrds Community which destroyed a store and postoffice, a house and two tourist cabins.

He was arrested at Weatherford the following day.

Reneau is at liberty on bond.

Mrs. Jennie Wallace was listed as the defense witness who is ill.

West Texas Chamber Head Sees 1948 As Most Successful Year for Area

ABILENE — That West Texas will face its best economic year in 1948 is the belief of D. A. Bandeen, general manager of the West Texas Chamber of Commerce. Bandeen bases his opinion on the economic indices of the nation, together with the possibility of heavy crops, continued oil drilling activity, and construction projects already on the 1948 calendar.

Despite early indications of an unfavorable winter grain crop, rains in recent weeks give indication of excellent moisture for all grain, including sorghum and early maize. The Abilene Weather Bureau gave Bandeen figures that would indicate that the rainfall for the last three months of 1947 was practically double that of 1946. While the figures were for the Abilene area, it was believed they generally applied throughout the more than 100 counties covered by the West Texas Chamber of Commerce. This same season likewise will be of a great deal of benefit to the cotton crop in 1948, it was said.

"Cotton is out of the dog house for the first time in 15 years with the big surplus now gone," Bandeen said. "Our cotton situation is now subnormal, and it is possible that a false economy will be developed because of the lack of cotton, but this will put more money in the pockets of the farmers. There is no question about the grain price holding its own this year, and with favorable season in the ground, the industrious farmer who will work his available acreage should bank more money per acre in 1948 than in any other year in the history of West Texas."

At the same time, Bandeen warned that farmers must prepare to pay more for the things they buy but that, with so many farms now completely paid for, the farmer should be in a much better financial condition at the end of this year. Bandeen likewise pointed out that livestock prices are at least 25 percent higher at the start of this year and that prices probably will be maintained at a level not too far below the current prices. He also pointed out that the feeding element is much better in hand now than in previous years, with ample proteins available.

"While the oil price increase has been helpful, oil has not yet attained its full parity in price," Bandeen said. "New pools, wide exploration, and tremendous drilling campaigns will put oil in the topmost picture in West Texas economy this year.

"Another element that should be very helpful is a new trainload rate inaugurated last year by the Texas and Pacific. Large amounts of crude oil now escaping West Texas will be utilized. This new rate may make it possible for small oil refineries to operate successfully without having to go into the pipeline business. At the same time, it will mean that production from new fields can go into the refineries without the necessity of first constructing long and expensive pipelines into the present system which is already overcrowded."

Conservation will be the major project of the West Texas Chamber of Commerce in this area for 1948, Bandeen stated. This program will cover two of the most important problems of West Texas —water development and soil conservation. In the 1948 work program of the West Texas Chamber of Commerce, special commissions were appointed to carry out the work on these two projects.

Bandeen also sees an increased economy in West Texas this year through freight rate parity.

"Factors are at hand in which we can get full parity in rates," he said. "That does not mean that rates will go down. There probably is as much justification for higher rail rates now as for increased prices on any other commodity, but for the first time in the history of West Texas, parity can be attained and producers will have to pay no more for each haul than producers elsewhere."

Bandeen warned against the danger of town inflation where there is not sufficient industry in addition to agriculture and oil to support these towns with a sound economy. He urged chambers of commerce of the area to evaluate their budgets and obtain increased funds necessary to carry out the program of industrialization in the area to augment their agricultural and petroleum resources.

Lonely Dog Will Fly to His Master

SANTA MONICA, Calif. — (AP) — Tony, a collie dog, is about to take off on a 300-mile airplane flight to the soldier-master for whom he is pining.

Tony went into a decline after Robert Strt mann of Santa Monica reenlisted in the Army and went to Fort Ord, Calif., last Monday. The three-year-old dog wouldn't eat, moped about, looked forlorn and finally acquired chills and fever.

Whereupon the Army Recruitment Service, discovering there's an Army plane going to Fort Ord soon anyway, arranged to have the lonely dog put aboard.

Flying Farmers To Hold Meeting

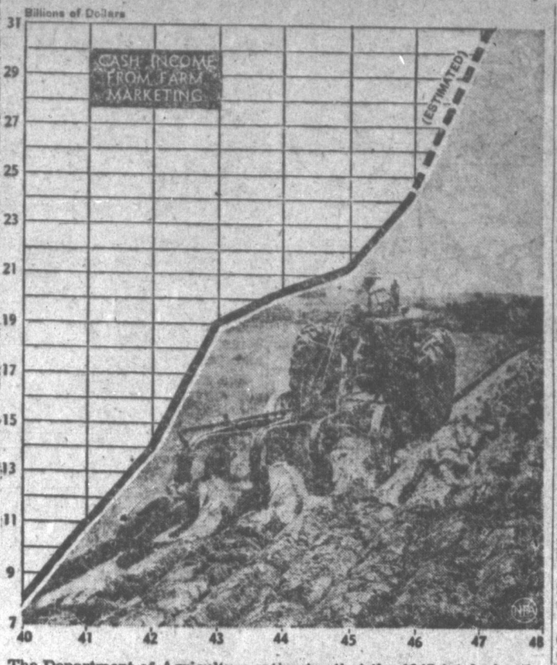

DALLAS — (AP) — Some 60 flying farmers and their wives were due here today for a meeting of the directors of the National Flying Farmers Association today and Friday.

The airborne agriculturists were due to begin arriving around 4 p. m. at the Luscombe airport and inspect new airplane models there.

Forrest Watson of Thomas, Okla., president of the association, will preside ove rthe business session. Major Gen. Roger Ramey, commander of the 8th Air Force, Fort Worth, will address a Friday luncheon on "the Future of Aviation."

The National Flying Farmers Assocation has a membership of more than 2,000 in 24 state chapters. To be eligible for membership, one must be a licensed airman who devotes at least 51 percent of his time to farming.

High Farm Prices Don't Bring Parity

The Department of Agriculture estimates that the 1947 total of cash receipts from farm marketing was over $30,000,000,000, a record high, as shown on the chart. Nevertheless, the average income of farmers is less than that of city dwellers, and President Truman, in his State of the Union message, urged modernized price supports and extended crop insurance to help equalize the discrepancy.

Management Is Increasingly Important Today

TOPEKA, Kans. — "Warning that 'a potential dust bowl already is in the making" due to the ever-expanding need for food production, Ray Yarnell, editor of Capper's Farmer urged farmers to follow good farm management practices to protect the soil.

"Good farm management has never been more important than it is today," Yarnell writes in the January issue of the farm magazine. "There has been no let-up in the demand for food since the war ended. The 1947 production was at record levels. The Government is asking for as much, even more, in 1948.

"But in continuing all-out production on our farms and even expanding acreage as requested by the Government, we are inviting trouble. A potentital dust bowl already is in the making. Many hundreds of thousands of acres of grass land in the high plains have been plowed up to be planted to wheat."

"Our land is not as good as it was. It needs rest and restoration and protection," he writes.

Yarnell offers these soil management suggestions to get high crop production and protect and maintain the fertility.

1. Stick to a sound production program on your farm.

2. Use fertilizer to increase or maintain production levels. Get more bushels from each acre.

3. Save grain by feeding more pasture, hay and roughage to livestock and by increasing use of protein concentrates.

4 Do whatever is necessary to halt soil erosion and get more moisture from your soil.

5. Get rid of your least efficient livestock. Feed good producers liberally for high production.

6. Maintain rotations that make the maximum use of legumes.

Dairy Herd Improvement Groups Show Big Jump During Past Year

By LOUIS FRANKE
Extension Editor, Texas A. & M.

There are 27 dairy herd improvement associations in Texas—of which 13 were started during the past year.

A dairy herd improvement association, as you probably know, is an arrangement whereby a group of dairymen get together and hire a trained man who comes around, tests the cows, keeps records on milk and butter-fat production, feed costs, breeding dates and all like that.

That way each association member knows which of his cows are making money and which are just boarding with him.

The 27 associations in Texas consist of 268 herds and almost 10,000 cows.

G. G. Gibson, extension dairyman, and his associates in the Texas A&M College dairy husbandry department get out a monthly dairy news letter to county agents that summarizes reports of both herd improvement and artificial breeding associations. In addition, it's full of good hard advice to dairymen. Stuff like:

"Good milkers are not always good mudders; well drained lots and lanes help hold up production

"No other feed beats good grass for milk production." And so on.

Gibson says it's possible to predict what the level of milk production in Texas will be six months from now: on the increase in February, reach its peak in June and hold up pretty well into July. By August, what with hot, dry weather and the end of good pasture, production will be on the skids again and hit the dumps in December and January.

Texas dairy cows produce about two-thirds as much milk as the U. S. average, yet DHIA records show that many Texas dairymen have found it possible to keep up good year 'round production. It's not only possible, but mighty profitable.

Gibson thinks one reason for the big jump in the number of herd improvement associations during the past year is that—the price of milk and feed being what it is—the right kind of feeding and management practices pay off more than ever before.

Comes the day when the price of milk drops, the efficient dairyman will be the one who's still in there pitching while some of his neighbors will be having a hard row to hoe.

Good cows always pay the highest prices for feed and labor.

Checking over bills introduced but not passed as yet—in the recent special session of Congress, I ran across a couple I hadn't heard of which will affect farmers and ranchmen.

There's one that would cut the income surtax to 25 percent on farm sales of wheat and rye in 1947-48 and another which would defer reporting gains on livestock and poultry sales in December to the next tax year.

These—if put on the books—would give agriculture the same advantage of equalizing the tax load from year to year that some industries already have and which business in general gets through capital gains adjustments.

You think there's a shortage of fertilizers? There may not be enough to go around, but that's just because you've been using so much more.

The U. S. supply of the main elements—pure nitrogen, potash and phosphoric acid—will total around 3.56 million tons this year. That's more than double the prewar supply.

Cottonseed Business Reports Large Increase

WASHINGTON —(AP)—The Census Bureau reported today that cottonseed crushed in the five-month period, Aug. 1 to Dec. 31, totaled 2,256,672 tons, compared with 1,756,915 tons in the corresponding period a year ago.

Cottonseed on hand at mills Dec. 31 totaled 1,426,011 tons, compared with 1,035,479 tons in the corresponding period a year ago.

Cottonseed products manufactured in the final months period and on hand Dec. 31 were reported as follows:

Crude oil produced 689,650,000 pounds, compared with 546,354,000 pounds in the corresponding period a year ago; and on hand 109,386,000 pounds compared with 97,569,000 a year ago.

Refined oil produced 544,257,000 pounds, compared with 429,341,000 and on hand 152,916,000 compared with 170,112,000.

Cake and meal produced 1,042,907 tons, compared with 776,103,907 tons, compared with 776,103, and on hand 74,035 tons, compared with 120,182.

Hulls produced 510,877 tons, compared with 404,818; and on hand 71,651 tons, compared with 96,339.

Linters produced 702,223 running bales, compared with 560,737 and on hand 188,851 running bales compared with 100,401.

ACCIDENTAL POISONING

Before the action of radium was well known, women employed in New Jersey watch factories contracted radium poisoning by moistening, with their tongues, bristles of brushes with which they painted watch faces.

A billion-dollar investment is not enough

A personal message from the President of the Santa Fe

Santa Fe's total investment in road and equipment is well over a billion dollars.

The exact figure is $1,341,266,143.94.

But all values are relative. For a small business an investment of a few thousand dollars may be adequate. Larger firms require millions.

A railroad deals in big figures because it must own not only tracks, but the land on which to lay the tracks; it must own not only the engines and cars which comprise the trains, but yards and terminals to handle the freight and passengers it carries.

And we are face to face with the fact that for the Santa Fe today an investment of a billion three hundred million is not enough.

The New Western World

Along Santa Fe lines in the West and Southwest, big things have happened. This territory, long the great American frontier, has always been dynamic in its strength and growth, and has now truly "come into its own."

The states served by Santa Fe lead the nation in growth. In the past seven years the population has shown remarkable increases. Medium-sized cities have become new metropolitan areas, and new towns have grown up in many sections along our right-of-way.

Coincident with this population growth is a great new expansion in agriculture, livestock, lumber, manufacturing and other industries in the West and Southwest. Steel, metal fabrication, chemical, plastics and many other new plants have sprung up. Employment is at an all-time peak.

Santa Fe must expand, too, with the growth of these new developments, because Santa Fe is a very important traffic artery of this territory.

People in the New West

The people of this great New West are not the same people who have always been there. The war changed them. Their needs are different. There are more of them. More of them are new. So the total needs of the territory have grown.

And that means Santa Fe must supply more and more transportation in the modern manner.

The Cost of Progress

Plans for Santa Fe's development with the growth of the territory and for providing modern and efficient transportation services call for large expenditures for additions and replacements. Only by the continued utilization of the best tools and facilities can efficient and economical transportation services be provided.

These are carefully thought-out programs for progress. And you, the American public, have a right to this kind of progress.

Santa Fe now has on order more than $63,000,000 worth of new locomotives, freight cars and passenger cars—and that is in addition to the millions required for improvements in road property and existing equipment.

The cost of modern railroad equipment is approximately twice that of twenty years ago; in some cases it is more than double.

Expansion and improvement programs at today's high costs of capital goods are dependent upon financial stability, of which the first essential is an adequate return on the investment.

There is no secret or mysterious process by which a railroad can secure money. Rates for its services must be sufficient to produce adequate earnings, now and in the future. That is the only way a railroad can pay a fair return to those who already have money invested in the property, and the only way to obtain additional cash or sound credit necessary to carry on its improvement programs.

We have an obligation to expand with the New West. The Santa Fe must go forward.

F. G. GURLEY, President

And the Kings Depart Peaceably

The fall of the Romanian "monarchy" caused only a small, dull thud. People may have wondered idly why Generalissimo Stalin let young Michael keep the title of king as long as he did. But it is evident that the Moscow-controlled regime in Bucharest now considers itself securely in the saddle. So Michael follows Peter, Semeon, Zog and Regent Horthy into the limbo reserved for the former monarchial heads of the Soviet satellites.

About the only other interesting thing about Michael's abdication is the added reminder of the low estate to which the job of being a king has fallen. Before World War I there were kings in Europe who possessed what approached absolute power over their subjects. Today more than half the kings are gone—some by war, some by election, most of them strong-armed off the throne.

Their removal, however, has not removed the ancient evils of monarchy that they symbolized. Absolutism, once the "divine right of kings," remains. It is now the earthly, or perhaps devilish, right of dictators.

Meanwhile, through a long and rather curious political evolution, Europe's remaining monarchies have become the strongest citadels of real democracy there. Greece is a possible exception, but even so the trend seems to be toward more representative government. And, however imperfect the present Geek government may be, it is certainly preferable to what the Communists promise that unhappy country.

The last few years have proved that the royalty of those constitutional monarchies really personify the people's loyalty to their country. Even in Belgium, where the king's personal loyalty was questioned, the crown remains to attract and unite the people above the level of political differences.

Elsewhere, in England, Norway, Denmark and the Netherlands, the reigning monarchs played their wartime parts with admirable courage.

The history books may say absolute dictatorship and aggression remain today, almost as strong as in the days of Hitler and Mussolini. The empire of Soviet dictatorship stretches from the Pacific to the middle of Europe.

Dictators rule Spain, Portugal and several Latin-American countries. Chiang Kai-shek has been called a "benevolent despot" whose dictatorship is necessary, but the fact remains that China's government is undemocratic.

So World War II may prove to be only a violent, terrible crisis in mankind's long struggle for liberty, self-government and individual dignity. Some battles in that struggle have been won by war and revolution; others have been won by reason. It is the world's first job, for a long time to come, to see that further battles are won by reason rathe rthan by bloodshed.

There are examples from the past to lend the world courage for that job. And there is some comfort in the thought that, as the past's despotic kings have departed, so the present despotic dictators may one day travel the same road.

NOT DANGEROUS

Nothing would happen if a comet's tail brushed the earth. This has occurred numerous times, and each time gases of the tail failed to penetrate our atmosphere.

Fair Enough . . . . . by Westbrook Pegler

In the brief hearing in the Federal court which resulted in the naturalization of Isadore Lipschutz, the son and a daughter of Lipschutz's friend, Marie Henrietta Coppens, were held up to public view as children who had made degrading charges against their mother. The Immigration and Naturalization Service was going thru the motions of contending that Lipschutz was not a man of good moral character. Statements were adduced accusing him of carrying on with Mrs. Coppens, the wife of his Belgian friend, Charles Coppens, while Coppens was detained in Belgium by the war. Lipschutz is a rich refugee who runs the nonsectarian anti-Nazi league and the World War III.

The sincerity of the Immigration and Naturalization Service is doubtful, altho there is no question of the sincerity of Mario T. Noto, the naturalization examiner, who stated the government's case to Judge Edward A. Conger. The record reflects an indistinct presentation by Mr. Noto, but he did his best. The Immigration and Naturalization Service is a subsidiary of the Department of Justice. It is polluted with prejudice in favor of refugees who hated Hitler but admire and serve Stalin. Breckenridge Long, as assistant secretary of state, admitted to a congressinal committee during the war that anti-Nazi agitators were given preference by the Roosevelt government to enable them to continue their propaganda in the United States. Fugitive teachers, musicians, actors, writers and other propagandists were favored over unpretentious workers whose lives, it follows, were less precious.

Naturally the whole influx included Communists and moral lepers. In one case, brother married sister.

As all who frequent the courts and the ringside are aware, there are more ways than one to lose a contest with intent but with a seeming of honesty.

The pervading spirit of the immigration bureaucracy is furtive and conspiratorial. Even congressional committees have trouble getting data from this bureau and do not always get all there is.

The service went thru the motions of opposing Lipschutz' petition for citizenship without necessarily putting forth its best efforts. A lawyer of greater experience might have made it impossible for any judge to give Lipschutz the benefit of the doubt without exposing himself to ridicule, contempt and scandal. Certainly the material was there for an insoluble doubt and Lipschutz, by his witnesses, opened the door to inquiry which could have revealed a very questionable political program.

Mr. Noto told Judge Conger that Leo Coppens, the son of Marie Henrietta, herself a refugee with an income of $35,000 a year, had "disclosed" that his mother was having immoral relations with Lipschutz. The whole lot of them were living high in New York. The fact was duly noted that Leo, 22 years old, recanted when he was re-examined in the personal presence of Lipschutz. But Lipschutz, a man of domineering personality, exercised great influence in the Coppens household and disciplined the children. Lipschutz and some of his witnesses said Leo was a youth of unstable and weak personality. This was intended to discredit his accusations but, more likely, it would discredit his recantation. Remember, Lipschutz was there when Leo took it all back. A young man of weak will might flinch in the presence of the man who had moved into his mother's home with his shaving tackle and his clothes. To occupy sleeping quarters and boss the family. Judge Conger deemed it unnecessary to write a real opinion by way of earning his $15,000 a year, so we do not know how he hurdled that consideration on his way to his arbitrary decision in favor of Lipschutz. Leo has gone back to Belgium.

Mr. Noto said that, on second thought, Leo decided he did not know just who was in his mother's bedroom one night when he heard voices and knocked on wall. He now considered that it might have been someone else.

Bruce Levitch, now dead, the husband of Henrietta Coppens, daughter of Mrs. Coppens, testified that Henrietta hinted that the relation between her mother and Lipschutz was immoral. Mr. Noto said, too, that Levitch told the immigration service that once, at family dinner, Mrs. Coppens said she had her private life and liked Lipschutz.

Henrietta testified that her mother and Lipschutz had made trips to Atlantic City, to Virginia, Colorado, Lakewood, N. J., and Miami, Mr. Noto said. Mrs. Lipschutz never went along. At one time Mr. Noto said, Henrietta thought "they may have been intimate" but later she too recanted.

Lipschutz himself admitted having slept at Mrs. Coppens' home and having made trips with her, Mr. Moto said. He was therefore, himself responsible for a web of circumstances which impelled the government to disapprove him. Among these circumstances was the purchase of an estate in the rich and socially pretentious village of West Hampton, L. I., not by Lipschutz but by his business firm, and the entertainment of Mrs. Coppens there on several weekends, when Mrs. Lipschutz was not present.

It may be an old Belgian custom of business firms to maintain summer estates for social purposes. For purposes of tax-recking it might be one continental idea worth looking into.

CHRISTIANITY AND GOVERNMENT
(The Daily Oklahoman)

Most of the confusion and dismay that permeates the world today stems directly from lack of clear thinking with regard to Christianity and government on the part of both laity and clergy for the past 25 years.

Jesus Christ never promoted a form of government as Christian because God is a universal diety and not the God of Jew, Gentile, black man, yellow man, red man or white man. He is not the God of monarchists, dictators, democrats or anarchists. Jesus tried to make man Christian regardless of color, nationality, political ideology, education, poverty or wealth. Christianity is measured by the Chistian content of the individual and of individual acts which affect others.

Where Christianity parted with nazism was when it was perverted and out raged by Hitler. Where it parts with communism is when communism rejects God rather than when it seeks under a communal plan, to perfect a Christian order. Where it parts with monarchies is when monarchies fail to operate according to its precepts and not because a people may have, with or without choice, a monarchistic form of government. Where Christianity parts with democracies is when democracies are made up of people who are not Christian in character and where democratic governments are not Christian in operation.

There is no virtue in a form unless there is virtue within the form. Clergymen, who were sympathetic toward the Soviet Union, disregarded the open rejection of God of morality as defined by Jesus Christ. Many of these same clergymen now are openly antagonistic toward the Soviet Union because they have finally seen what should have been obvious long, long ago. This also is true of many laymen, many of great learning and prominence.

Had the churchmen seen communism during the early days for what it was and had begun then to mobilize to advance Christianity freed from the nazi taint and militant against the theory of a Godless state without Christian morality, the church would be much stronger in this critical day.

There is widespread apprehension now about the future. Many declare another breakup of civilization has begun and that world disorder and unrest will continue until out of the ruins of present world civilizations will emerge a new civilization which will be world-wide or composed of different units with unknown character or form. It may be communistic at least for a time, in the opinion of such prophets. This is a form of defeatism which, if accepted, inwestern world enovet qr sures the distintegration of the western world's political and moral being.

On the other hand there is another group, optimistic and courageous. Still another group is puzzled and passive. The future may well depend on which group enlists the puzzled and the passive in our own land. This is a time for great Christian faith and for unspectacular but heroic living.

The Morals Back of Free Trade

In the last issue, I was quoting from "The Philosophical Foundations of Free Trade" or "Commerce A Factor in Civilisation" by Margaret Macpherson. This booklet is in reality a study in the causes that bring about the decline and fall of nations. I want to quote further from this masterpiece. Under the heading of "Civilisations: Their Common Weakness and Decay" the author makes this observation:

"It will go ill with us if we fail to note, and contritely to admit, that the several causes of their (Egyptian, Babylonian, Minoan, Mycenaean, Persian, Hellenic, Byzantine, Roman, Mohametan) decline were all related to one weakness which in spite of the later influence of Christianity, was common to all past cultures, and is now characteristic of our own. That weakness was the lack of any inspiration and aspiration which to a sufficient degree overrided, and lifted them above, the material. When industrious and enterprising peoples launched their ships, and plied their caravans, and bargained in the market-place, and settled new territory, they were heedful of everything but the only thing that really mattered: Professor Whitehead has called it 'the souls of men.' Like a geological fault, this weakness has run through the foundations of past civilisations, undermining and finally bringing down their superstructure. It now runs through the foundations of our own, in visibly widening and gaping cracks.

"The shoring-up of the foundations of our civilisation has become therefore the matter of the most supreme urgency to us: and how best to shore them is, the colossal and primary problem of these times. The danger is that we may now repeat the mistake of past civilisations confronted with the same problem, in failing to realise that the only material on which we can securely and perdurably build is non-material. The very accumulation of goods representing a luxury level of living in industrially developed countries, seems to affect men with a moral myopia. 'Plenty' becomes so easily synonymous with 'progress,' and the 'souls of men' are forgotten.

"So the task before our civilisation—the same that has baffled and defeated every other—is the task of giving legitimate scope to man's natural interest in the acquisition of that modicum of private property without which 'liberty' is meaningless, while at the same time providing both the conditions for, and the incentive to, his self-developme nd self-fulfilment on the intellectual and spiritual levels of his being. But the successful accomplishment of this task depends on our realisation of the fact that, so long as our civilisation continues to see man in a purely economic light as a prospective buyer or seller of goods, or as something tame and taxable, or to look at him in modern fashion psychologically as a bundle of complexes and repressions, or clinically as 'the ingenious assemblage of portable plumbing' which Christopher Morley defined him as, just so long will our civilisation be impeiling its chance of survival. This is to say that somehow, somewhen—but soon, for the sands are running out—the nations must be brought to base their economic workaday life on philosophy and religion: for it is very certain that the first essential of an enduring civilisation is that man be mindful that he has a soul, and that as Socrates said, he should care for it."

Gracie Reports

By GRACIE ALLEN

Well, the Indians certainly are becoming more civilized every day. I just read where a group of Indians from Canada were visiting some of their feathered friends in Massachusetts and the whole party broke up with a free-for-all that included breaking jive records over each other's head and beating one another with beer bottles. The whole thing started over a pretty squaw whose name is Basket of Flowers.

Goodness, I had heard the Indians weren't in very good shape these days, but I didn't dream they'd reached the point of acting like white men. Give me the sweet old-fashioned type of Indian who went quietly about his business scalping settlers with a tomahawk and saying "Ugh!"

But look out for modern, civilized Redskins who scalp each other with crockery and say "It's a long time between drinks."

TROUBLE WITH THE HELP . . . . . by Peter Edson

WASHINGTON—(NEA) — Firing of James M. Landis as Chairman of the Civil Aeronautics Board points up one of the chief problems of running a government. This is the difficulty of getting good men for the top administrative jobs.

President Truman and his cabinet officers are forever talking about how much trouble they have in finding competent help. What they want are $25,000—or $50,000-a-year men for $10,000.

Every once in a while, the President does persuade some thoroughly competent young citizen to take one of these tough but thankless jobs. Some of them are government career boys, like Secretary of Interior Krug and Atomic Energy Commission Chairman Lilienthal. They grow up in the business, know the rackets and can take the punishment.

Landis was something of a government career man himself. He had been Chairman of the Securities and Exchange Commission. During the war he was head of the Office of Civilian Defense for a time, then U. S. economics chief in the Middle East.

He went back to being Dean of Harvard Law School after the war. A year and a half ago, President Truman persuaded him to come back to Washington to be Chairman of CAB, after Welch Pogue resigned to make some money. Landis threw himself into the new job with characteristic energy.

His term was due to expire Dec. 31. Shortly before, he had been assured by the White House that he would be reappointed. Then, without any direct word to him and without any official explanation of whys or wherefores, it was announced he would not be reappointed.

Washington is full of rumors as to why this happened. Because he didn't give the big airlines everything they wanted. Because he tried to keep the airlines free from domination by railroad and steamship interests. Because he put too much stress on the need for air safety. Because he got in the road of certain ambitions to have CAB and the Civil Aeronautics Authority brought more directly under Department of Commerce supervision. Because he was too much of a New Daler.

All these reasons may be wrong. But each of them creates enough pressure to block the desire of an earnest public servant to do an impartial job.

The question which this incident raises is how the Truman—or any other—administration can expect to get first-class executives if it kicks around the good men it does got.

This is the second time in recent months that the President has fired an official on short notice and for causes not stated. The previous incident was the case of Ray C. Wakefield of the Federal Communications Commission. Like Landis, when Wakefield's term of office expired, the President simply did not reappoint him. Instead the job went to Congressman Robert F. Jones of Ohio.

WAKEFIELD GOT AN IMPORTANT RADIO JOB

As evidence of the fact that the Truman administration gave Wakefield a raw deal, it needs only to be pointed out that he has just been appointed U. S. representative, and chairman of the American delegation, to the International Telecommunication convention assembling at Geneva in mid-January for an important two-year job of allocating world radio frequencies.

This business of shooting from the hip to get rid of some appointee has gotten the Truman administration in trouble before. By washing out Will H. Davis's job as Director of Economic Stabilization a couple of years ago, the President left that faithful wartime public servant hanging ungracefully from a limb.

It's because of this kind of treatment that most smart young executives simply won't take government jobs. The result is that these jobs often go to three types of individual. Incompetent hacks, who hang onto their jobs by doing nothing that will offend anybody; Army and Navy officers, who will go where they're sent and do what they're told, efficiently though often unimaginatively; and rich men, who can afford to live off their income.

With a few notable exceptions, a strong case can be made that none of these three types makes a good public servant.

Preparing for the Big November Vote Harvest

NATIONAL WHIRLIGIG
news behind the news

By RAY TUCKER

WASHINGTON — Samuel I. Rosenman did not make any financial sacrifice when he left the New York Supreme Court to become the political adviser and "ghost writer" extraordinary for former President Roosevelt, and now for President Truman.

The leading, literary liberal of both Administrations receives an annual retainer of $40,000 from the Associated Fur Coat and Trimming Manufacturers, according to the latest listing of lobbyists and their salaries with the clerk of the House of Representatives. And that is only retainer money. There is no record of additional earnings.

It is understood that ex-Judge Rosenman was summoned to Washington at the last moment, after reports of Wallace strength among former Democratic voters, to humanize and vitalize President Truman's recent report to Congress on the state of the nation.

The woman who now pay high prices for their rabbit or mink coats may have cause to be grateful to the lobbyist - author, for the speech which he helped to write called for a program that may mean a reduction in the cost of his client's goods.

Incidentally, in view of Mr. Truman's demands for federal invasion of so many fields—housing education, medicine, power, food, agriculture etc.—Mr. Rosenman has done a good turn for his fellow-lobbyists. To advance or oppose the presidential recommendations, the present army of special pleaders on Capitol Hill will receive many new recruits during the rest of the current session.

LOBBYISTS — The New York humanitarian does not top the list of high-priced lobbyists, however. According to the official listing, he ranks fourth among men who seek favorable legislation for such sordid commodities or services as the private utilities and Hawaiian sugar.

The lead-off position now occupied by Purcell C. Smith, who draws $65,000 annually as head of the National Association of Electric Companies. His assistant, S. M. Walter, gets approximately $50,000. Next comes Ernest W. Greene. As representative of the Hawaiian Sugar Planters Association, he earns $45,180 a year.

FEES — Several former members of Congress stand high in the ratings. Clifton A. Woodrum of Virginia receives $36,000 a year from the American Plant Food Council Inc. Wesley E. Disney of Oklahoma draws about $25,000 from mining organizations, and represents others on a fee basis. Robert Ramspeck of Georgia is paid $25,000 by the Air Transport Association of America. Fritz G. Lanham of Texas gets $10,000 from two trade councils.

Ex-Senator John A. Danaher of Connecticut is listed as lobbyist for the Revere Copper & Brass Inc. Although his salary is not given, it is understood to be $20,000.

The official record dissipates the popular idea that lobbyists are get-rich-quick millionaires. Not more than fifty of the approximately 900 individuals listed earn more than $15,000, with the majority getting from $5,000 to $10,000. Even though entertainment and expense money is sometimes concealed, their fees are not fabulous.

CAPABLE — The comparative salary figures, however, do suggest why the so-called "big interests"—banks, railroads, oil, real estate operators, food manufacturers, private utilities etc.—obtain more favorable hearing and action on Capitol Hill. They can afford to employ and pay a larger number and more capable representatives than rival groups.

Although it would be unfair to condemn all lobbyists as "wicked" and "agin the public interest," it is their assignment to work on behalf of the special cliques which hire them. The same is true of spokesmen for the civic or "little fellow" groups—labor, agriculture, consumers, civil liberties, aid-to-Europe, educational and religious.

However, without entering into that politico-ethical question too deeply, here is a summary of the number employed and the total salaries paid by the various "interests," private and public, which feel it necessary to have members in what is fequently described satirically as "the third House of Congress."

LOCUSTS — The Chamber of Commerce of the U. S. lists two men with total salaries of $25,000. when necessary, the utilize business bigwigs for appearances before committees.

The National Association of Manufacturers has six runners on Capitol Hill with total compensation of $85,000. The NAM also engages lawyers, accountants, experts and their own gilt-edged members to make friends in House and Senate.

The so-called real estate lobby has about thirty people who draw $205,710 annually. This figure does not include fees to law firms which are not recorded.

Financial organizations—credit, banking, insurance, stock exchange agencies—admit to twenty men and women with combined salaries of $140,000. Their payments to legal retainees would probably double or triple that amount.

Food lobbyists, particularly at the present moment, are like the the famine days. There are more than sixty of them, with a pay roll of $577,630. Again, several hundred thousand dollars should them pity me. Make it a commonplace story—the story of what happens to thousands of women: "I was in love with a man. I had been in love with him for a long time and we had been engaged for a long time. But he wouldn't marry me until he was making as much money as I was. Then the war came and he enlisted as a pilot. He went overseas and was killed."

I thought that would be enough. I thought he would be satisfied with that.

IN the room behind me, Leiphan made no move. He still waited. As if somehow with some keen sixth sense of intuition he knew there was more to it. He waited and his waiting and the silence and my own guilt dragged the words out of me.

"After—he was killed, there was the matter of his estate. His government insurance and all that to be settled. I found out then that he had married someone else just before he went overseas. A woman named Margo. He wasn't mine—even to grieve for."

I whirled around and faced him, and he was just looking at me. Looking at me intently, as if he really were trying to understand.

I cried passionately, "I wasn't crazy when I tried to kill myself. I've never been crazy. There was nothing to live for—that was it. My whole life was tied up in his, and suddenly I found that everything—everything I had built my life on simply wasn't there. You can't understand that, can you? Nobody can."

"Maybe I can," he said. "Maybe I can."

He waited for me to get hold of myself.

He waited and he smiled a little deprecatingly and he lifted his stiff right hand in an awkward gesture. "Maybe this isn't a fair comparison," he said softly. "A hand is just a little thing. But it helps me to understand. I was an artist—a good artist, people said, before this happened. I had a future, too. Now I'm just a cop. Hunting down murderers."

WE stood there looking at each other for a long moment, and I felt my self-respect coming back.

"Then you don't think I'm capable of murder just because I tried to commit suicide?" I said hoarsely.

"Let us say that I don't think you're any more capable of murder than the two men who were here that night," he said succinctly. "Anyone is capable of murder under certain conditions."

And so we were back to that.

"What else do you want to know?" I said slowly.

"How long were you in the sanitarium?"

"Six months."

"There always a certain amount of red tape in a case like that. How did you get out?"

"Max Hoster arranged it. He sold one of my stories to Massive Studios and he put it in the contract that I was to have the job of writing the script. He knew if he could make me go back to writing again that I'd be all right."

"He must be a smart guy—that Max Hoster."

"He is."

Leiphan relaxed a little. He said he was sorry to have given me so rough a time, but that there was nothing he could do about it. There was no doubt, he said, that Avis Vaughn and Art Cleves had died from poison and not as a result of the automobile accident. "They were dead—or dying, when their car plunged into the canyon," was the way he put it.

And that, he said, was all the police knew for sure—yet. And so they had to look for motives in the backgrounds and in the relationships of the people involved. And when they found the right motive, they'd know who the killer was.

The only trouble in this case was that there were too many motives. For instance, he said, and he flushed a little when he said it, Jeff Haverson and I had had the same motive.

Panhandle

PANHANDLE —(Special)— The Girl's Choir of Panhandle High School under the direction of Miss Betty Jo Cone, opened the program for the Carson County Federation of Women's Clubs on Monday afternoon by singing "Bells of St. Mary's" and Brahm's "Lullaby." Betty Naylor was accompanist.

Mrs. J. B. Howe, speaker of the afternoon, in her talk on "Spiritual Life in the Home" said, "The home has a soul as well as the human body, and to build a beautiful spirit in the home, we must have work, play and worship."

She also said, "According to an old proverb, character is caught, not taught, and we find that we must set the example for this in the home, for as the home goes, so goes the nation, and as the nation goes, so goes the world."

In the business session, Mrs. George Hankins was elected corresponding secretary to fill out the unexpired term of Mrs. George Knittel, who has moved to Arkansas. Mrs. C. F. Hood was appointed reporter.

Mrs. J. B. Howe conducted a round-table discussion on "What is Wrong With Our Federation?" And asked members to take the question back to their clubs for further discussion.

Refreshments were served by the Friendship Circle Club, hostesses for the day to representatives of six clubs.

The meeting next month will be by the Erudite Club of Panhandle and the Eleanor Roosevelt Club of Skellytown.

The Altrurian Club was entertained in the home of Misses Mary and Norma Ewing on Thursday evening, with their mother, Mrs. C. E. Ewing, assisting in the entertaining.

A short business session was conducted with the president, Mrs. Elmer Padget, presiding.

Mrs. Letha Gramer gave the program of the evening on "Federation" and gave the meaning of the various parts of the club collect. Afterward, the members memorized the collect.

Refreshments were served to a guest, Mrs. R. E. Byron, and to members Mesdames Gramer, Ernest Roselius, Richard Orr, G. J. Atkins, Judson Skaggs, Howard Lane, A. J. Weiser, Herbert Brown, Merle Lewellen, Herman Lemons, Padget, Mason Lemons, and Harold Knapp.

BAKE CROQUETTES

Croquette mixtures may be baked to save frying in deep fat. They should be dipped in beaten egg and crushed potato chips or buttered bread crumbs, then baked to a golden brown in a moderate oven.

be added for extra-special help in a time of legislative crisis.

ZEAL — Oil, gas and mining corporations employ about fifty people at an admitted salary total of $320,000. The power and communications interests, which includes utilities, railroads, airlines, telephone and telegraph, probably have about a hundred legislative agents at a total outlay of almost $1,000,000.

In contrast to these payments, the lobbies working for the workers, farmers, small business, citizens groups, religious and educational societies and professional people have a small and poorly paid lobby. But they make up in zeal and energy and conviction for their want of material reward.

Experience since enactment of the registration law shows that lobbyists are like the poor. They will be with Washington always, and they can attain their noble or nefarious ends only so long as the people elect national legislatures which will respond to them.

MURDER AT MY HOUSE
By Rene Ryerson Mart
Copyright by NEA SERVICE INC.

THE STORY: Jimmy Peters admits having tried to date Madge Norney but says she is so bound up in her career that she has no time for men. His interest in Avis was rebound. Leiphan comes to see me again, asks about the nervous breakdown that had me in a sanitarium before I came to Hollywood. Jeff Haverson was the only one who knew about that. And now Jeff has told the police. . . .

XXI

A VOICE that must have been mine was answering Leiphan. "It wasn't overwork—" Bitterness at Jeff's betrayal battered down my natural reserve, stung me to reckless lengths of truth. "My agent had me committed to the sanitarium because I had tried to kill myself—twice. He didn't want me to die, you see. Five best-selling mysteries in as many years had been pretty profitable for him. He wanted me to live to write some more."

I was bitter and hostile. Darn this policeman. Darn Max Hoster. Darn Jeff Haverson. Darn everybody to whom my heart had ever gone out seeking love or friendship or just common kindness. It was always like this—it was always thrown back in my face. And I was left alone to pick up the tiny shattered pieces. I was a fool to trust anyone.

Bob Leiphan merely looked thoughtful. "I knew that—" he said. "But why did you try to commit suicide? That's what I want to know. There has to be a reason back of such an act."

I got up and moved away from him. I put the length of the room between us. I turned my back on him and stood at the big studio window and looked out unseeingly over the drive below and the yellow garden wall and the buildings of Hollywood.

"Well—" he said patiently.

I kept my face turned to the window. Tell him then. Tell him in cold, clipped, precise words. Squeeze all emotion out of them. Don't let him pity me. Don't let

Houston Man to Bid for Senate

HOUSTON —(Special)— George E. B. Peddy, Houston attorney and veteran of both World Wars, with three years overseas service, has announced his candidacy for the United States Senate, based on a 6-point program to cope with the vital issues confronting the country.

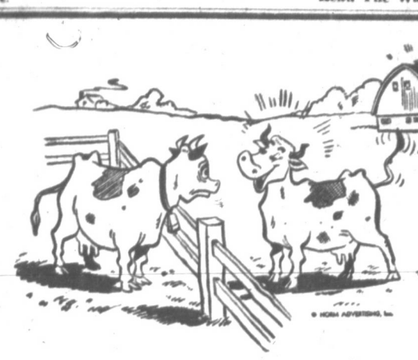

1. World Peace.
2. Universal military training.
3. Halting Inflation.
4. Reduction of government spending.
5. Clearing the state's rights to the tidelands.
6. Proper care of disabled war veterans and adequate housing for veterans and others.

This is the second time Peddy, who served in the 35th State legislature in 1917, has entered the Senate race. In 1922, he was drafted by anti-Ku Klux Klan Democrats to lead a write-in ticket against the Democratic nominee and although defeated, received the surprising total of 140,000 votes.

FALSE TEETH That Loosen Need Not Embarass

Many wearers of false teeth have suffered real embarrassment because their plate dropped, slipped or wabbled at just the wrong time. Do not live in fear of this happening to you. Just sprinkle a little FASTEETH, the alkaline (non-acid) powder, on your plates. Holds false teeth more firmly, so they feel more comfortable. Does not sour. Checks "plate odor" (denture breath). Get FASTEETH at any drug store.

Truman Sets Forth Goals in 'Ten Year Plan' for America

WASHINGTON —(AP)— President Truman called on America in his state of the union message to Congress to achieve in the next ten years five "goals for the future which have the greatest bearing upon the foundations of our democracy and the happiness of our people."

He listed them as follows:

1. "To secure fully the essential human rights of our citizens."

("... .some of our citizens are still denied equal opportunity for education, for jobs and economic advancement, and for the expression of their views at the polls. Most serious of all, some are denied equal protection under our laws.

2. "To protect and develop our human resources."

("We should now extend unemployment compensation, old age benefits, and survivors' benefits to millions who are not now protected. . .Raise the level of benefits. . . .our ultimate aim must be a comprehensive insurance system to protect all our people equally against insecurity and ill-health. . .to provide an adequate education for every person.

3. "To conserve and use our natural resources so that they can contribute most effectively to the welfare of our people."

("We must vigorously defend our natural wealth against those who would misuse it for selfish gain. . .intensify our efforts to develop new supplies and to acquire stockpiles of scarce materials . . .expand our reclamation program to bring millions of acres of arid land into production. . .protect and restore our forests. . .continue to erect multiple-purpose dams.

4. "To lift the standard of living for all our people by strengthening our economic system and sharing more broadly among our people the goods we produce."

(". . .we can increase our annual output by at least one-third. We can lift our standard of living to nearly double what it was ten years ago. If we distribute these gains properly, we can go far toward stamping out poverty in our generation.")

5. "To achieve world peace based on principles of freedom and justice and the equality of all nations."

(". . .so long as there remains serious opposition to the ideals of a peaceful world, we must maintain strong armed forces. . . .early provision for universal training. . .is of world importance. . . .we shall continue to exert our utmost efforts to obtain satisfactory settlements (for Germany, Austria, Japan and Korea). . .we are seeking to restore the world trading system which was shattered by the war . . .our present major effort. . .is to support the program for recovery (Marshall Plan) developed by the countries of Europe.)

Clemency Awards Given Prisoners

DALLAS —(AP)— Thirteen former U. S. soldiers, inmates of the Seagoville Federal Correctional Institution, today had received certificates of recognition and awards of clemency for having volunteered as "human guinea pigs" in mala.ia control tests.

The 13 received the awards in a ceremony in the institution's auditorium yesterday.

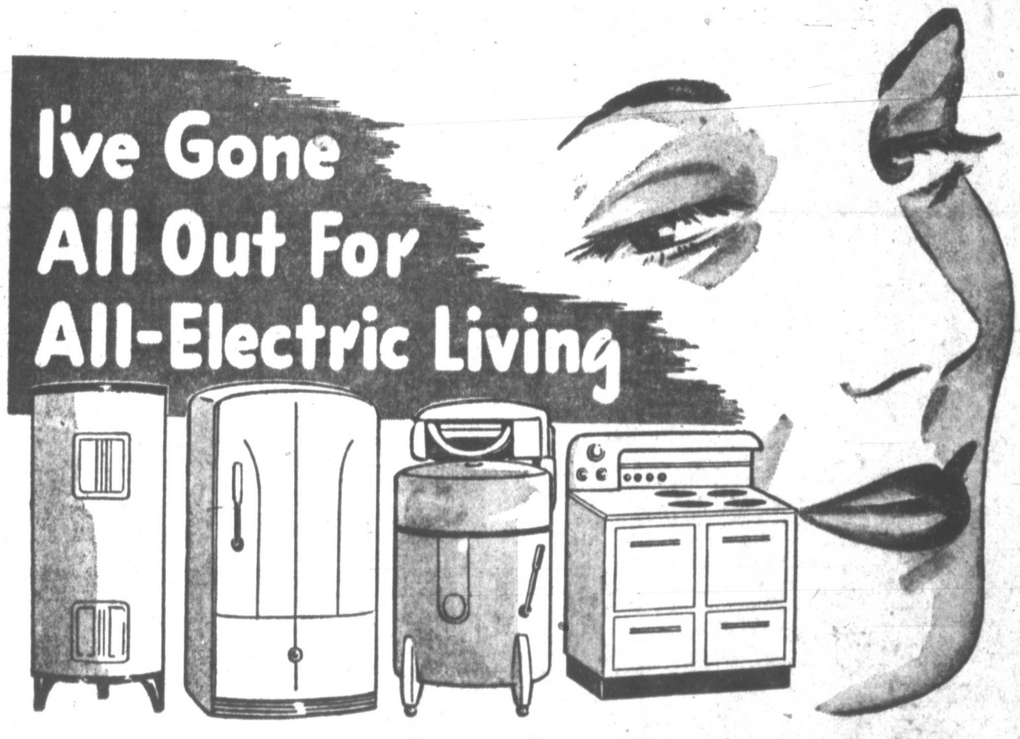

Each of the inmates, who were convicted by courts martial and given federal prison sentences, received clemency awards.

Mrs. Louise M. Anderson, prison record clerk, said several 20-year sentences were reduced to 12 years; a 30-year sentence was cut to 22 1-2 and one life term was shortened to 22 1-2 years.

The men were the first of 133 prisoners to volunteer and had submitted themselves to tests for 18 months.

Federal Judge W. H. Atwell, Harry Withers, Dallas newspaper editor, and Dr. W. Clark Cooper of the National Institute of Health at Washington, were speakers.

Lucky, lucky lady with all those wonderful electric appliances... her electric range, refrigerator, water heater, complete home laundry and other labor saving devices.

And behind these appliances, behind the walls of her home, she has all important Adequate Wiring. She knows that the electric wiring in her home is large enough to provide her with plenty of electric service when and where she needs it.

Call or write your nearest Public Service office now for a wiring check-up by a specialist. There is, of course, no obligation.

Adequate Wiring MEANS:

1. ENOUGH CIRCUITS for serving efficiently and safely all the appliances you have.
2. LARGE ENOUGH WIRE for serving your present and future needs.
3. ENOUGH OUTLETS AND SWITCHES for convenient living.
