Young Kennedy Among Hijacked Jet Hostages

BEIRUT (AP) — Arab hijackers held the oldest son of the late Sen. Robert F. Kennedy with 135 other men aboard a West German jumbo jet in Aden today.

The hijackers described themselves as members of the Palestine Liberation Force, the government of India reported. The plane had taken off from New Delhi.

The Iraqi news agency reported from the capital of Southern Yemen that three Arabs have planted explosives in the plane to keep police at bay.

The United States appealed to the International Red Cross and the British government to seek release of the passengers.

Joseph Kennedy, 19, was flying home after a visit to Bangladesh with his uncle, Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass. He remained in India after the senator had left.

Mahmoud Aras, director-general of civil aviation in Southern Yemen, denied reports that all passengers except Kennedy had been released from the plane. He said: "The situation at present is that nobody is allowed to approach the aircraft except myself."

Egypt's Middle East News Agency later reported from Aden that there are five hijackers aboard the plane, not three as previously reported.

Diplomats in Beirut said the hijackers were demanding the release of four Palestinians on trial in Cairo for the assassination of Premier Wasfi Tell of Jordan.

A Middle East News Agency dispatch said the leader of the hijackers, Yousef Khatib, is a professional pilot. The agency confirmed that women and children among the 172 passengers aboard the Boeing 747 were allowed to leave at Aden.

Southern Yemen's foreign minister, Mohammed Saleh Awlaki, was reported by the Egyptian agency to be negotiating to insure the safety of the 119 male passengers and 16 crew members.

The plane was hijacked one hour out from New Delhi on the flight to Athens and Frankfurt. The flight originated in Tokyo.

Aras, the South Yemen aviation official, said passengers who remained on the aircraft had received food and drink. He reported:

"The hijackers agreed to allow provisions onto the aircraft. Myself and three servants took it out. I was allowed to take it on board the aircraft. Everyone on board appeared to be calm and everything appeared as normal. Nobody has been harmed."

"But the hijackers have planted explosives on the aircraft. There are some by the doors," he said.

Apparently the hijackers gave no indication whether they had known Kennedy was on the plane.

Khatib told passengers over the Lufthansa plane's public address system his organization "rejects all forms of surrender."

"The Fascist state of Israel will not weaken our determination to liberate our land," he declared.

Leonard Lefkowitz, U.S. Embassy press attache in New Delhi, said young Kennedy had been traveling around India on a motor bike.

An embassy driver took Kennedy to the airport and saw him enter the terminal.

Joseph III, one of 11 children, is named for his late grandfather, the family patriarch who was U.S. ambassador to Britain when World War II started.

Last summer, on horseback in Kenya during the filming of a wild animal roundup, the 6-foot youth was charged by an antelope. Describing the feeling afterward, he said:

"It's like clinging to the side of a mountain, sailing across the ocean or fighting an angry bull. Some people don't like the feeling. I happen to love it."

Richard Kleindienst's Confirmation Seen Certain

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate Judiciary Committee opens hearings today on the nomination of Richard G. Kleindienst as attorney general. Liberal Democrats are expected to use the occasion to attack Nixon administration law-and-order policies.

Regardless, all signs point to overwhelming committee approval and Senate confirmation of the conservative 48-year-old Arizona as successor to Atty. Gen. John N. Mitchell.

Mitchell is leaving March 1 to direct President Nixon's re-election campaign.

As Mitchell's deputy, Kleindienst has been an outspoken champion of such Justice Department anticrime measures as preventive detention, no-knock searches and wiretapping, and of mass arrests during last year's May Day antiwar demonstrations in Washington. Those policies and actions have come under liberal attack.

Kleindienst also is expected to be questioned about the Justice Department's enforcement of the Voting Rights Act and other civil-rights measures.

Tests Won't Threaten Students For Holidays

Students will be able to enjoy their Christmas holidays this next school year without the threat of semester tests facing them.

Under the new school calendar adopted by the Pampa school board Monday night, the first semester will end with semester tests being given Dec. 18-21. Then the students will adjourn for the holidays.

Classes for the new year will begin Aug. 21 and end on May 25. The second semester will begin on Jan. 2.

The calendar calls for 182 school days and 10 in-service days for the teachers. Two snow days are included in the 182 days. If they are not used, the second semester could end earlier.

Students can expect at least 14 days out of school for the holidays, not counting weekends. Three to five days will be missed because of teacher in-service days.

Holidays scheduled are Labor Day, Sept. 4; Thanksgiving, Nov. 23-24; Christmas, Dec. 22 and Dec. 25-29; New Year's Day, Jan. 1; and Easter, April 16-20. These are without the concurring weekends.

The calendar was drawn up by a Pampa Classroom Teachers Association committee headed by Bill Potts.

Dr. James F. Malone, school superintendent, said the school offices had considered a quarter semester system. But the state agencies have not set up accreditation standards for all courses yet. He added that the system may come up for consideration later, perhaps for the 1973 school year.

Under the new calendar, six-week tests will be held during Sept. 25-29, Nov. 6-10, Feb. 12-16 and April 2-6. Semester tests are slated for Dec. 18-21 and May 21-25.

Barnes Starts His Campaign Tour By Train

AMARILLO, Tex. (AP) — Lt. Gov. Ben Barnes started a three-day whistle stop train tour of Texas today with the claim that his opponents are trying to bad-mouth him to defeat.

The other major candidates in this race for governor seem to be holding a contest to see which one can call me the worst names," Barnes said in a dawn rally for his Panhandle supporters.

"Well, I am going to award the prize—the day after I beat all of them in the Democratic Primary. It is my intention to stay on the high road in this campaign. I don't think a candidate builds himself up by tearing down his opponents.... I am going to tell it like it is—throughout this train trip and throughout this campaign."

In a pre-trip rally at Amarillo Monday night, Barnes, his voice hoarse from an undiagnosed ailment, introduced four professional football players as volunteer campaign workers.

"I just want to get behind Ben Barnes," said Walt Garrison, Dallas Cowboys running back. "I don't like professional politicians but I like Ben Barnes."

The Barnes special train pulled out of Amarillo Tuesday morning for the 750-mile political odyssey.

Rohde Seeks Re-election In Ward Four

Arthur J. Rohde Sr., city commissioner from Ward 4, today filed for re-election to the post.

Rohde currently is completing the second year of his first term on the city commission. He is the first candidate to file for a council job.

Only two vacancies will be filled in the April 4 city election. The other will be the Ward 2 commission seat now held by R.D. Wilkerson.

Terms of Mayor Milo Carlson and Commissioners George B. Cree Jr. in Ward 1 and Leo Braswell in Ward 3 do not expire until April 1973.

The election of the two city commissioners on April 4 will call for city-wide balloting.

Court To Review Default Judgment Against Hughes

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Supreme Court today agreed to review a $165-million default judgment against the Hughes Tool Co.

The court acted on an appeal by Hughes Tool, which is owned wholly by Howard R. Hughes, the reclusive industrialist. The award, to Trans World Airlines, is more than 30 times larger than any other judgment in an American court.

Hughes Tool and Raymond M. Holliday, an executive, appealed Dec. 23 for a hearing. They were granted one, to be held next term, without comment on any of the points raised by their attorneys.

The damage judgment was recommended in 1968 by Herbert Brownell, a former U.S. attorney general who acted as a special master in the case, now more than 11 years old. He concluded Hughes Tool violated antitrust law because of its failure to purchase jet aircraft for TWA in the 1950s.

Hughes Tool then owned more than 78 per cent of TWA stock. Brownell's judgment was confirmed in 1969 by U.S. District Judge Charles M. Metzner of New York and last September by the U.S. Circuit Court in New York.

The award results from a default judgment entered against Hughes Tool in 1963 when it disobeyed a court order to make Hughes available as a witness and produce certain documentary evidence.

President Nixon, Chou Hold 2nd Summit Talks

Conference Lasts Over Four Hours

PEKING (AP) — President Nixon and Premier Chou En-lai conferred nearly four hours today, apparently sounding out each other on the problems that separate their two countries.

In the evening, President and Mrs. Nixon, accompanied by Mme. Chiang Chung, wife of Chairman Mao Tse-tung, attended a modern revolutionary ballet in the Great Hall of the People.

Unlike the largely ceremonial meeting Monday, Nixon and Chou sat down in the Great Hall of the People with only close advisers present. This indicated that they were buckling down to the hard questions of where they disagree.

Chou's remarks of the first day, suggesting a normalization of relations, gave hope that something concrete may emerge from Nixon's visit to China.

For the first time, the Chinese press gave extensive coverage of the visit with pictures of Nixon with Mao and with Chou.

Their meeting room today was small and conducive to an exchange of opinions. Instead of the line of easy chairs in which they posed for photographers Monday, they faced each other across a rectangular table only a few feet wide and with only a few aides and interpreters present.

Henry A. Kissinger, the President's adviser on national security, was at his right and Secretary of State William P. Rogers was at his left.

The atmosphere at the outset was jovial and friendly, and all laughed with relish during the brief picture taking before the leaders got down to business.

Meanwhile, Mrs. Nixon began her sightseeing with a visit to the kitchens of the famed Peking Hotel, a citadel of Mandarin cuisine. She displayed obvious pleasure at everything she saw and everything she tasted.

Later, the First Lady paid a surprise visit to the Peking zoo.

The local press and radio had ignored the arrival of the presidential party on Monday, but today the American visitors were the big story.

"Chairman Mao Meets President Nixon" said the headline across the top of the front page of the Peking People's Daily, the newspaper of the Communist party and China's most important journal. And beneath that headline the entire front page was devoted to the meeting between Nixon and Mao Tse-tung and the other events of the President's first day in China.

There were three pictures on the front page and four more inside of Nixon with Mao, Nixon with Chou and the banquet which Chou gave Monday night for the Nixons and most of the Americans who came with them.

The People's Daily also ran the texts of Chou's toast to the President at the banquet and Nixon's reply.

Reagan Exchanges Views With Local Republicans

By JANE KADINGO

Dave Reagan of Sherman, Republican candidate for the nomination for governor, says he is the only candidate with a "forward-looking" or positive platform. Reagan made the statement at a coffee in his honor Monday afternoon, given by Gray County Republicans in the home of Dr. and Mrs. Julian Key, 1840 Fir.

In an informal question-and-answer session, Reagan stated he felt most candidates look for something to oppose, while his platform is a positive one for reform in state government.

"I really believe in state government," he said, adding that the federal government is too centralized and has too much power. "I believe we ought to try to solve our problems at the state and local levels."

He explained what he called the "Democratic outlook" as turning to the federal government to solve state and local problems, an "outlook" he believes has "over-centralized the federal government."

Reagan predicted that, following the 1972 elections, 65-75 per cent of the seats in the Texas legislature will be filled with new people, due to the recent stock fraud scandals. He also predicted that approximately 30 of the seats will go to Republicans, making it "the first time in Texas history the state legislature will be organized into major and minority parties."

He blamed apathy toward state and national politics for "putting us in the mess we're in," adding that "the people are going to have to speak out."

"Corruption is rooted in the system," he said, "and we must change the system and it will take a Republican governor, working with the conservative Democrats, to do it."

He said a Republican governor would be a "major step toward a true two-party system in Texas."

Other topics discussed included auto insurance, with Reagan favoring "some kind of no-fault" insurance, which he said "seems to be the wave of the future." He favors equal rights for women, plus equal rights for the newly-enfranchised 18-21 year olds.

On the water situation, he advocated a plan "now" to avert a crisis at the turn of the century. If elected governor, he said he would use the prestige of the office to help educate the people and Congress on the need for a state-federal cooperative water program for Texas.

An associate professor of government, with a specialty in state government at Austin College, in Sherman, Reagan is a native Texan reared in Waco. He received his bachelor's degree from the University of Texas and his graduate degree from Harvard.

He has been a Fulbright visiting lecturer in international law and politics at the University of the Philippines and has lectured throughout Southeast Asia on American foreign policy.

Board Approves Building Site, New Calendar And Other Plans

By LARRY D. HOLLIS

Pampa school board members had a busy time last night as they set the place and time for the school trustee election, adopted the school calendar for the next school year, gave formal approval to the location of the vocational-technical school building and discussed the use of computer services at Pampa High School.

The school trustee election for a new member of the school board was set for April 1, with balloting in the Music Building at Pampa High School.

Absentee balloting will be conducted from March 13-23 at the school business office, 126 W. Francis.

A committee from Pampa Classroom Teachers Association, chaired by Bill Potts, presented a school calendar calling for the first semester to end before the Christmas holidays. The board approved the plan.

Under the new calendar, classes will begin on Aug. 21. Students will begin the Christmas vacation on Dec. 22 and return for the second semester on Jan. 2. The regular school year would end on May 25.

The board formally approved the location of the vocational-technical school at the corner of Decatur and Charles in the northwest section of the high school parking lot. The location had already been strongly recommended by L. B. Ballard, director of public school operations for the Texas Education Agency.

Plans for the building are being drawn up by the school architects and board members are hoping to have schematic drawings by Thursday.

The use of computers for class scheduling, grading and attendance service at PHS was discussed by the board. Dr. James F. Malone, superintendent, sought the consensus of the board to investigate the possibility of using a local firm for the program.

John Gikas, board member, voted no to the proposal. He said the plan leads to centralization of student records in an agency outside the school system and thus is an infringement upon the rights to privacy of the students.

Other board members gave Dr. Malone the go-ahead to continue investigating the program, particularly in seeking matching funds for a local firm. The program is currently operated through the Panhandle Educational Services Organization in Amarillo.

The board delayed action on a revision of board policy on leave of absence for teachers. The proposal was presented by Mrs. Ellen Warner, chairman of a PCTA committee to clarify the position of the teachers in regard to returning to work in the Pampa system.

School Board Election Set For April 1

The election for the Pampa Independent School Board seat to be vacated by Dr. R.M. Hampton has been set for April 1 in the Music Building at Pampa High School.

As of this morning, Rev. Sam B. Hulsey, pastor of St. Matthews Episcopal Church, was the only one to file for the seat. Deadline for filing is midnight on March 2.

The date, place, judges and procedures were approved by the school board at its meeting last night.

Absentee ballots may be obtained at the school business office in the basement of Pampa Junior High from March 13-28. Business hours are from 8 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. Monday through Friday.

Candidates may also file at the business office or with Ben Sturgeon, board secretary.

The election will be held from 8 a.m. to 7 p.m. Election manager is Ralph Dunbar. Election judges are W.A. Rankin and George Scott. Clerks will be elected by Dunbar.

Judge for the absentee election is Homer L. Craig, with Mrs. Sue Van Sickle and Mrs. Margaret Washington as clerks.

The proposal will be considered again in March. Ben Sturgeon, board member, asked that there be some statement that the returning teacher should maintain the same moral and physical standards so as not to inhibit teaching ability. Mrs. Warner wanted clarification as to what all leave of absence entails.

Sturgeon also asked the board to put the teacher contracts on the agenda for March. Dr. Malone said he hoped to be able to do so, but that it may be delayed by inaction in the state offices.

In other business, the board approved bills, set an executive session for 7 a.m. Monday to consider selection of a new football coach, discussed environmental laboratories for the elementary schools and Lee Junior High, considered the use of telephones in the schools and mentioned the possibility of having student accident insurance.

Houston Group Attacks School Integration Plan

HOUSTON (AP) — Some black and Mexican-American leaders blasted court-ordered integration of Houston schools at a public hearing held Monday night by the Houston School Board.

The Rev. William A. Lawson, local coordinator of the Southern Christian Leadership Conference, told the board in its first hearing held on integration since 1956, that integration has been a failure.

Lawson, pastor of the Wheeler Ave. Baptist Church, said, "We could care less that (integration) is court-ordered. Lynching was once accepted by the courts."

"Having seen the synthetic integration of Houston schools and having seen the damage it has done our children... we call for a stop to the present plans."

But Weldon Berry, a local lawyer for the NAACP Defense Fund which was the plaintiff in the suit which brought about faculty and pupil integration, said no degree of frustration or despair over the low percentage of pupil integration is good cause to drop faculty integration.

"We must remember the presence of a representative number of black teachers on erstwhile lily-white faculties and lily-white schools create a beneficial image," Berry said.

"For example, the opportunity for the affluent white siblings of southwest Houston to see blacks perform in a role other than that of the maid or yardman."

Abel Alvarez, chairman of a chicano group, Barrios

Unidos, said he had come to the meeting to "tell all you people to go to hell."

He said he had read that desegregation is the will of the courts. "But as I walk through Denver Harbor (one of 22 elementary schools paired under the plan) all I've seen is black and brown faces. Unless the pairing plan includes students and schools in the southwest part of town, we will continue to fight."

Alvarez said that if there is to be a desegregation plan it should be tri-ethnic, including Mexican-Americans as well as blacks and whites.

Lawson called for creation of an impartial study team containing no school district employees to scrutinize the progress of integration. "Such scholars are in Houston in our own major colleges and universities," he said. "We need no help from other states to determine what needs to be done in Houston."

The chairman of a federal court-appointed school desegregation committee set up to oversee desegregation, Francis Williams, said the Houston School Board, if given the chance, will provide quality education for every child in the district.

He said he did not want to see the school board pushed into going back to a segregated school system.

Berry, who was one of 40 persons to speak at the meeting, said, "Despite the desirability of integration in both principle and practice, there is increasing talk of separatism from both whites and blacks alike."

Florida's Demo Primary Seen As Political Crossword Puzzle

MIAMI (AP) — Florida's Democratic presidential primary is a political crossword puzzle, and the key to solving it is a seven-letter word meaning governor of Alabama.

In an 11-way contest, where constituencies are crossed and contested, Gov. George C. Wallace is leading and gaining strength in the candidate polls, playing to packed houses in his self-described "candidacy against the establishment."

The candidate who can push his showing significantly past the 30-per-cent level can win in Florida, and at the moment, only Wallace approaches that kind of strength.

The pollsters rate Wallace, who rose to power in Alabama as an ardent segregationist, well ahead of Sens. Edmund S. Muskie of Maine and Hubert H. Humphrey of Minnesota, the two entries now leading the balance of the field.

Wallace tells his campaign crowds the national Democratic leaders have the shakes over his candidacy because "they know what they might do in a race where there are 10' rival contenders dividing the vote in a contest decided by a plurality. Some see it as simply Wallace against the field—a major plus for him.

Wallace hopes to take advantage of crowded primary ballots in other states later. He is meeting tonight with supporters in Annapolis, Md., to begin organizing his campaign for the May 16 Maryland primary—one of at least 10 he plans to enter.

There is a 12th entry on the Florida ballot, and it could be crucial on March 14, when voters will be asked to register opinion on the question of compulsory busing of schoolchildren for purposes of classroom racial balance.

That vote will have no legal standing, but the political fallout is likely to benefit Wallace, helping to turn out his supporters, and keeping the issue paramount.

"If I were running the Wallace campaign, that's just what I would want," said Humphrey.

"The busing issue is the predominant issue," said Sen. Henry M. Jackson of Washington, who is pushing it hard, sponsoring a constitutional amendment to forbid the practice.

Jackson argues the referendum will give voters an opportunity to oppose busing without backing Wallace.

Muskie doesn't talk about busing in his campaign speeches, which often take the tone more of the sermon than the political stump—until he comes to Wallace.

U.S. Senate May Okay Equal Employment Bil

WASHINGTON (AP) — After five weeks of Southern-dominated debate, the Senate is headed toward passage of a bill to strengthen the federal ban on discrimination in employment.

Senate leaders predicted debate on the bill would be cut off today, although two earlier efforts to obtain the necessary two-thirds majority failed by nine and six votes, respectively.

The stage was set for the debate-ending vote by the filing Friday of a petition signed by 53 senators, two more than a majority.

Senate leaders expressed confidence that amendments could be disposed of and the bill passed quickly after debate was ended.

Remaining amendments include a possible modification of the Senate's decision last Tuesday to deny the Equal Employment Opportunity Commission the power to issue its own cease-and-desist orders against discriminatory practices, but allowing injunction suits in federal courts.

Sen. Jacob K. Javits, R-N.Y., said he is working to clarify authority of U.S. court to appoint special masters to try job discrimination complaints.

Specifically exempted would be state and local elected officials and legislators and their personal assistants and immediate advisers.

Direct enforcement of the bias ban by the EEOC was sought by civil-rights groups. But court enforcement was supported by the Nixon administration and adopted in the bill passed by the House last September.

Mr. Prime to thank you for your gracious remarks.

President Nixon's Text Of Remarks At Banquet

PEKING (AP) — Here is the text of President Nixon's remarks in response to Premier Chou en-lai tonight:

I wish to thank you for the incomparable hospitality for which the Chinese people are justly famous. I particularly want to pay tribute not only to those who prepared the magnificent dinner, but also to those who have provided the splendid music I heard. I have never heard American music played better in a foreign land.

Mr. Prime Minister, I wish to thank you for your very gracious and eloquent remarks.

At this very moment, through the wonder of telecommunications, more people are seeing and hearing what we say than on any other such occasion in the whole history of the world. What we say here will not be long remembered. What we do here can change the world.

As you said in your toast, the Chinese people are a great people. The American people are a great people. If our two peoples are enemies, the future of this world we share together is dark indeed. But if in the future we can find common ground to work together, the prospects for world peace are immeasurably increased.

In the spirit of frankness I hope will characterize our talks this week, let us recognize these points. We have had great differences at times in the past. We have great differences today. What brings us together is that we have common interests which transcend those differences.

As we discuss our differences, neither of us will compromise our principles. Although we cannot close the gulf between us, we can try to bridge it so that we may be able to talk across it.

And so let us in these next five days start a long march together. Not in lock step but on different roads to the same goal: a goal of building a world structure of peace and justice in which all may stand together with equal dignity, in which each nation, large or small, has a right to determine its own form of government free of outside interference or domination.

The world watches, the world listens, the world waits to see what we will do.

What is the world? In a personal sense, I think of my eldest daughter whose birthday is today. And as I think of her,

I think of all the children in the world, in Asia, in Africa, in Europe, in the Americas, most were born since the date of the foundation of the People's Republic of China.

What legacy shall we leave our children? Are they destined to die for the hatreds which have plagued the world? Or are they destined to live because we had the vision to build a new world?

There is no reason to be enemies. Neither of us seeks the territory of the other. Neither of us seeks domination over the other. Neither of us seeks to stretch out our hands and rule the world.

Chairman Mao has written, "So many deeds cry out to be done and always urgently." The world rolls on. Time passes. Ten thousand years are too long. Seize the day. Seize the hour. This is the hour. This is the day for our two peoples to rise to the heights of greatness from which we can build a new and better world. And in that spirit I ask all of you present to join me in raising your glasses to Chairman Mao, to Prime Minister Chou and to the friendship of the Chinese and American people which can lead to friendship and peace for all people in the world.

Amarillo Group Formed To Help Barnes Campaign

AMARILLO — At a reception Monday for campaign workers and the press, Wales Madden, Jr. announced the formation of the Amarilloans for Ben Barnes Committee.

Madden, Chairman of the Committee, told Barnes that "This is the largest, most distinguished and representative group of local citizens ever recruited to work in a political race in Amarillo. Governor Barnes," Madden continued, "we appreciate all you have done for our State and the Panhandle. We think this Committee consisting of more than 100 of our leading citizens demonstrates the enthusiasm we have for your campaign and we are going all out to win this election."

Barnes, speaking to the group, indicated he was "delighted with the formation of the Committee and highly flattered that so many key Amarillo citizens would unite in his campaign effort. With people like you helping us," Barnes said, "I don't see how we can lose."

President Signs Legislation Halting Future Dock Strike

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon, while in Peking signed legislation to end the already-ended West Coast dock strike, coupling the largely symbolic act with a renewed call for congressional action on broader legislation to prevent future transportation tie-ups.

In a statement relayed from China, Nixon hailed settlement of the nation's longest dock strike.

"For thousands of Americans whose livelihoods have been threatened," the chief executive said, "this strike has been a painful experience and its end is most welcome."

Nixon said he had delayed action on legislation to end the strike by arbitration "in hopes that the pending legislation would encourage the parties to reach a voluntary accord."

arbitration machinery will no longer be needed."

Labor Secy. J. D. Hodgson was asked why Nixon signed the bill if it has no effect. The labor secretary responded, "it just seemed appropriate... for him to sign it" since he had pressed for the measure.

He described the President's action as "a largely symbolic act" and said "unless unknown or unexpected developments occur it will have no force and effect."

The agreement between the longshoremen's union headed by Harry Bridges and the West Coast shippers is a two-year pact calling for a 32 per cent salary increase, Hodgson said. The contract still is subject to Pay Board approval.

Asked whether the arbitration procedures could be invoked if the Pay Board rejected the contract and another strike ensued,

Hodgson said, "anything that should result from Pay Board action clearly would not be covered by this legislation."

The settlement far exceeds the Pay Board's 5.5 per cent guideline, but Hodgson declined to predict whether the board would act favorably on it.

Hodgson said the congressional action on the West Coast strike enhanced chances that Congress will act, too, on Nixon's proposed Crippling Strikes Prevention Act.

In his statement hailing the West Coast settlement, Nixon said "I must point out, however, that our agenda on transportation strikes is not yet clear. Repeatedly over the past two years I have urged the Congress to act on a comprehensive measure to avoid future strikes of this kind, and yet the... act still awaits action."

Over Six Million Chevrolet Cars To Be Recalled

DETROIT (AP) — Chevrolet Division of General Motors Corp. has begun a massive recall which ultimately will involve over six million cars with potentially defective motor mounts.

It is the largest recall in the history of the auto industry. The repairs will be made at no cost to owners.

Chevrolet announced today it has begun mailing certified letters to nearly 1.3 million owners of 1968 Chevrolets, Camaros and Novas equipped with V-8 engines.

The owners are being told to take their cars to Chevy dealers for installation of engine restraints.

Chou En-lai's Speech At Peking State Dinner

PEKING (AP) — Here is a partial text of the remarks of Premier Chou En-lai at a banquet tonight for President and Mrs. Nixon in the Great Hall of the People:

First of all, I have to say on the behalf of Chairman Mao and the Chinese government to extend our welcome to President and Mrs. Nixon and to our other American guests. I also wish to take this opportunity to extend on behalf of the Chinese people cordial greetings to the people on the other side of the great ocean.

President Nixon's visit to our country at the invitation of the Chinese government provides the leaders of these two countries the opportunity of meeting to seek a normalization of relations between the countries and to exchange views on questions of concern to both sides.

This is a positive move in conformity with the desire of the American and Chinese people and is an event unprecedented in the history of relations between the United States and China.

The American people are a great people. The Chinese people are a great people. The people of our two countries have always been friendly to each other, but owing to reasons known to all, the contacts between the two peoples were suspended for over 20 years.

Now through the common efforts of China and the United States, the gates to friendly contact have finally opened.

At the present time there is a strong desire on the part of the Chinese and American people to work for the relaxation of tensions. The people and the people alone are the most important motive force in making world history, and the day will come when this common desire of our two peoples will be realized.

The social systems of China and of the United States are fundamentally different, and there are great differences between the two governments. However, these differences should not hinder China and the United States from establishing normal relations on the basis of the five principles: 1 of mutual respect for the sovereignty and territorial integrity of nations, 2 of mutual nonaggression, 3 of noninterference in internal affairs, 4 of mutual equality, and 5 of peaceful coexistence.

As early as 1955, the Chinese government publicly stated that the Chinese people do not want war with the United States, and the Chinese government was willing to sit down and negotiate. We have pursued this...

We hope to gain a clearer insight into the American way of thinking. And with this a new start can be made in relations between our two countries.

In conclusion, I propose a toast to the health of President and Mrs. Nixon, to the health of our other American guests, to the health of all the American people, and to friendship between the Chinese and American people.

MELODY'S NO MECHANIC—Even the hat can't make SIX FLAGS Over Texas hostess Melody McGee look like a bona fide mechanic, but it gets the message across. The big theme park at Arlington, midway between Dallas and Fort Worth, is getting a complete refurbishing in preparation for the 1972 season which begins March 25. SIX FLAGS Over Texas will be open daily during the week preceding Easter, and will return to a weekend-only schedule for the remainder of the Spring season. Some million persons are expected to visit the family entertainment center this year.

Internal Revenue Agents To Watch Stores Closely

WASHINGTON (AP) — Internal Revenue Service agents will begin checking retail stores closely next week for violations of rules requiring freeze-period price ceilings to be posted prominently.

"We will vigorously enforce this regulation," an IRS spokesman said. "These directions have gone out to the field."

Enforcement will be concentrated in big chain stores, those with annual sales of $100,000 or more and subject to a government regulation requiring prior approval of price increases, the spokesman said.

In many cases, retailers have asked and received approval from the Price Commission to boost their prices beyond this limit. As a result, the freeze-period price is intended only as a rough guide for consumers.

There's one general rule, however, that government regulators informally pass on to consumers: If the price increase on a given item exceeds 2.5 per cent, ask the retailer for the new ceiling price.

Although 2.5 per cent is a general target, the government has approved many price increases higher than that.

A retailer with annual sales of more than $100,000 a year must post the freeze-perk ceiling prices on, at most, items in each department of his store. The items covered are the ones he sold most during the last fiscal year. (He may post prices only on items that accounted for at least half of total dollar sales in each department.)

Car Owners Need Watchdog Today

WASHINGTON (AP) — Car owners need a watchdog to protect them from high-priced incompetence in the auto dealer's repair shop, presidential adviser Virginia H. Knauer said.

Mrs. Knauer, President Nixon's adviser on consumer affairs, proposed creation of an objective review board to inspect and grade dealer service.

"Too many consumers have found out that the lowest price in town can be a bad bargain," Mrs. Knauer said in letters to auto and consumer organizations soliciting their support for her idea. "Too many consumers have paid for unnecessary repairs."

"And too many consumers have had repairs made with unsatisfactory results. I am sure you will agree with me that these experiences, on the part of many Americans, are intolerable."

Mrs. Knauer said she first proposed creation of the review board in letters Oct. 1 to major domestic auto makers and to the National Automobile Dealers Association.

In replies Mrs. Knauer made public, General Motors, Ford, Chrysler and American Motors asserted that their own watchdog plans to some extent already provide the monitoring Mrs. Knauer wants.

The NADA endorsed some features of the proposal, and Ford and American Motors indicated willingness to explore the idea further.

Mrs. Knauer now has asked the Transportation Department, the Center for Auto Safety, the American Automobile Association, Consumers Union, the Consumer Federation of America and individual dealers for suggestions to implement her idea.

Bulletproof Caddy Sold

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont. (AP) — A bulletproof Cadillac sedan, once owned by gangster Al Capone and later used by President Franklin D. Roosevelt, brought $37,000 at an auction of antique automobiles here.

The car with a quarter-inch-thick boiler plate today and one-inch-thick windows, was among 43 old-timers sold Saturday by the Antique Auto Museum, which is going out of business.

The second highest price—$29,000—was paid by a private collector for a 1963 Lincoln Continental used by the late President John F. Kennedy. Roosevelt used the big Cadillac once owned by the mobster because of its safe features, which included air sealing tires and tubes.

In rhyming line or two here's hot retort for you

By Abigail Van Buren

(© 1972 by Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd., Inc.)

DEAR ABBY: The letter from that girl who didn't want to get too chummy with a young man for fear of what he'd say behind her back reminded me of something that happened to me back in 1912.

I saw a pretty little girl at a country dance who interested me, so I asked a friend of mine what "kind" of girl she was. I've never forgotten his reply:

"The grass grows green in Ireland
The flames are hot in Hell,
And damn the guy who'd kiss a girl
And turn around and tell."

LAUDERDALE

DEAR LAUD: Your friend practically damned the poor girl with his poem. A true gentleman would have said:

"Don't ask a guy about a gal
If you want no illusions,
Just take her out yourself, my friend,
And draw your own conclusions!"

[VAN BUREN]

DEAR ABBY: Thanks a million for your answer to that pastor who, for safety's sake, objected to throwing rice in or around the church. He said, "If the bridal reception is at the country club, great, throw rice everywhere!" [You said, "So if somebody falls down and breaks a leg at the country club, it's better?"]

I manage a country club in Indianapolis, and I am also safety-minded. Furthermore, have you ever seen a nicely polished hardwood floor after rice has been thrown, and guests have walked on it? It ruins the floor!

One bridal couple had rose petals thrown at them instead of rice. That was worse! The rose petals stained our carpet. Why don't we give up the pagan rite of throwing rice, flower petals or confetti?

G. M. GRADY

DEAR MR. G.: I'm with you all the way. If people want to throw something after a wedding, why not be practical and throw money? [At the bride's father. He can probably use it.]

DEAR ABBY: I am writing this in regard to "Neat and Orderly," the 28-year-old bachelor who is concerned about his being such a perfectionist.

I am an 18-year-old college freshman with the same problem. For instance, not only are the bills in my wallet arranged in descending order, the bills range from the oldest to the newest, the oldest being foremost so as to spend them first.

The clothes in my closet must all be facing the same way, and each article of clothing must be equally spaced from the next. [And I won't have a hanger in my closet that is even slightly rusted.]

So many people have told me that there must be something wrong with me, I started to believe them. But everybody's compulsive about something, and I am compulsive about orderliness, and there are worse things a girl could have. Right, Abby? "ANOTHER PERFECTIONIST"

DEAR ANOTHER: Right. And one of them would be for a girl like you to marry a slobsish man.

CONFIDENTIAL TO "GYPPED IN BUFFALO": One usually gets what he pays for. The inconvenience of poor quality lingers long after the thrill of a bargain is forgotten. Sale merchandise marked "not returnable" is not returnable.

What's your problem? You'll feel better if you got it off your chest. Write to ABBY, Box 69700, Los Angeles, Cal. 90069. For a personal reply enclose stamped, addressed envelope.

Phi Sigma Alpha Hosts Two Amarillo Chapters

Texas Delta Alpha chapter of Phi Sigma Alpha held its February social in the Reddy Room of Southwestern Public Service company. Special guests were members of Texas Gamma and Texas Gamma Gamma chapters, both of Amarillo.

Mrs. Fred Symonds, president, welcomed the guests and prefaced the program with quotations on friendship.

Mrs. Harry Cook, program moderator, introduced Mrs. A.C. Todd who gave a demonstration of Yoga exercises. Mrs. Todd stressed the physical, rather than the spiritual, aspect of Yoga. As she enumerated the purposes of this discipline, such as proper breathing, body control and total relaxation, she did the exercises that accomplished each purpose. Mrs. Todd cautioned the audience that results from the exercises are not sudden and dramatic. She did say, however, that conscientious practice would definitely bring about better mental and physical health and an increased zest for living.

Mrs. Bernard Organ, extension officer, announced that Jeanne Black of Tyler, Texas Phi Sigma Alpha representative, would be in Pampa for the spring preferential tea April 9th. She extended an invitation to the two Amarillo chapters to attend the tea and hear Mrs. Black's report on her recent trip to the International headquarters.

Mrs. Ruth Martin, president of Gamma Gamma, and Mrs. Lenora Dickens, president of Gamma, each made a response to Mrs. Symonds welcoming speech.

Another guest was Mrs. G.B. Hogan of Pampa. Other members attending were Mmes. Kurt Griffin, Tom Dunn, Felton Webb, Marvin Sillyman, B.F. Dorman, Hugh Peeples and Lonnie R. Kenney.

chapter vice president; Mrs. Garvin Elkins of Amarillo; Mrs. Joel W. Griffith, Amarillo; and Mrs. L.C. Dewey, Amarillo. Seated are, from the left, Mrs. Curtis Griffin of Pampa, vice-president; Mrs. Herbert C. Martin of Amarillo, chapter president; and Mrs. Fred L. Symonds of Pampa, president.

Baptist Study Group Meets

A Bible study group of First Baptist Church met in the home of Mrs. Hugh Ellis, 1609 Hamilton. Mrs. Ruth Tarpley read the prayer calendar and led the prayer for missionaries.

Mrs. Ed Schneider taught the lesson, "Mission of the Church." She pointed out that ministry is an absolute essential for the Christian.

Those present were Mmes.

65th YEAR

Your Horoscope

By Jeanne Dixon

WEDNESDAY, FEB. 23

Your birthday today: Conversion of resources into usable form is the main line in your coming year's work. This may take the form of rehabilitation, conservation, retraining. Review of traditional methods is part of the research for progress. Personal relationships drift toward abstract, less visible expressions. Today's natives are fond of pleasure, food, conversation, but often shy at taking initiative socially.

Aries [March 21-April 19]: The tendency is to blurt out dramatic outlines of a wild story, leaving out the context along with the extenuating circumstances. Let others do the talking.

Taurus [April 20-May 20]: Accept an uphill spell as hindrances are probable in financial matters, not to be taken personally, but as a general condition. It isn't permanent.

Gemini [May 21-June 20]: The way you speak of yourself, the presentation of your work makes the difference. Disregard quibbles of friends, low levels of family cooperation—they will pass.

Cancer [June 21-July 22]: Revise activities, budgets; make definite campaign plans to get what you have to offer onto market.

Leo [July 23-Aug. 22]: Pull in your horns a little to avoid needless clash with friendly rivals or serious competition.

Don't do what others are doing for the sake of conformity.

Virgo [Aug. 23-Sept. 22]: Friends divulge your secrets to the most unlikely listeners. Cope with self-important people by projecting serenity.

Libra [Sept. 23-Oct. 22]: Strive for prudence in today's contrary currents. Any error has far-reaching echoes. Take the day off if you can manage it.

Scorpio [Oct. 23-Nov. 21]: Friends who suggest complex ventures aren't prepared to pay the tab; that's your chore if talked into a fling. Nothing is certain where people's feelings are concerned.

Sagittarius [Nov. 22-Dec. 21]: Overlook casual provocations. Cope with your own temptations; those of others are not your problem.

Capricorn [Dec. 22-Jan. 19]: There is more than expected involved in your plans, extra personalities. Be calm, detached. An immediate response isn't very helpful.

Aquarius [Jan. 20-Feb. 18]: Gaps in your schedule fill up as you find targets for your efforts, channels for self-expression, people to cooperate in larger enterprises.

Pisces [Feb. 19-March 20]: Being a busybody oomes almost first nature today. If somebody is doing a job, let him do it!

The Worry Clinic

By - George W. Crane,
Ph. D., M.D.

Jane knows 1,000 Americans die of cancer every day! Even in spite of our best hospital treatment by surgery, X-ray and cobalt! Yet the FDA viciously attacks Dr. Ivy though it admits it has never even tested Carcalon on a cancerous mouse or human!

CASE T-509: Jane X., aged 42, just telephoned me from Charlotte, N.C.

"Dr. Crane," she spoke in a surprisingly cheerful voice, "I just read your recent column about Dr. Ivy's hormone treatment of cancer."

"And I am doubly interested for I have cancer in both lungs, as well as the liver and colon!"

"Since I am thus apparently a terminal case, I am naturally grasping at straws. My cheerful exterior is to fool my family!"

"How does Dr. Ivy's treatment differ from the usual hospital surgery, X-ray and cobalt therapy?"

DR. IVY'S CARCALON
First, Dr. Ivy's method also attacks any hidden cancer cells that may have spread from the original cancer.

Thus, liver cancer generally means a floating cell from the original cancer of the lung, stomach or colon has got into the blood stream.

Cancer cells are much larger than blood corpuscles so when they enter a capillary bed where the capillaries are so small they permit only a blood corpuscle to get through, the cancer cell gets stuck.

The main capillary beds are liver, lungs and groin, which is why metastatic cancer (spread from the original site) shows up there most often.

Suppose a woman finds a small lump in her breast and at the hospital, it is removed; then examined under the microscope.

If it is cancerous (malignant), the surgeons usually do a radical mastectomy, meaning, they remove that breast and underlying muscles, plus the lymph nodes of the nearest armpit.

For the lymph drains toward the armpit.

Dr. Crane, let's inject Carcalon from a healthy animal, such as the horse, and restore our reduced immunity to its original 100 per cent.

But the FDA is insanely jealous of Dr. Ivy's Carcalon and restricts it to Illinois alone, meanwhile asking Nixon for $100 million of taxes for new cancer research! (Always write to Dr. Crane, Hopkins Bldg. Mellet, Indiana 47958, enclosing a long stamped, addressed envelope and 25 cents to cover typing and printing costs when you send for one of his booklets.)

Even if the lump was only as large as her fingernail, then in one woman out of every three the cancer has already spread elsewhere.

If the lump was as big as her thumb nail, then in two women out of every three the cancer has already spread to the liver, lungs, etc.

Use of X-ray and surgery on a cancer thus demonstrates the "focal" method of treatment.

For it focuses on the known, cancer but doesn't destroy hidden cancer cells that may have floated elsewhere!

Dr. Ivy's method illustrates the "systemic" treatment, where the hormone works on all parts of the body.

I have personally seen bona fide, terminal cancer patients, (given up to die, with maybe but 6 weeks to live) who are now alive and apparently well, even after 18 years.

But they require weekly shots of Dr. Ivy's Carcalon to keep their cancer immunity up to 100 per cent, much as the serious diabetic needs his daily injection of outside insulin to bring his internal diminished insulin supply back to 100 per cent.

Dr. Ivy's theory is now supported by our leading cancer researchers.

It maintains that our bodies in youth normally manufacture an adequate anti-cancer hormone (the names it Carcalon), but by middle age one out of every four of us fails to produce enough inner Carcalon to keep cancers from sprouting.

So, says Dr. Ivy, let's inject Carcalon from a healthy animal, such as the horse, and restore our reduced immunity to its original 100 per cent.

Viruses Believed Playing Role In Deadly Diseases

EDITOR'S NOTE—Laboratory work around the world is producing evidence that the virus—which causes such commonplace illnesses as the cold and the flu—may be the deadly enemy responsible for a host of man's most lethal diseases, including cancer. Here is the first of two articles detailing the place of the virus in disease and what is being done to combat it.

By BRIAN SULLIVAN
AP Science Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — The virus infections mankind knows best—colds, influenza, even polio—may be only the tip of the iceberg.

Beneath the surface, the suspicion is growing that viruses may play a vital role in a broad range of diseases, many of them the most serious of man's ills.

And further, it may be that some viruses are part of our normal genetic equipment, rather than an outside invader.

Here are two major aspects of the virus story:

—Some scientists think they are closing in on detecting a human cancer virus. And there is an important theory that we are all born with seeds of this virus as part of our natural inheritance.

—A leading heart expert has said that viruses may do the original damage to children and young adults that eventually results in heart attacks and arteriosclerosis.

These two diseases, heart disease and cancer, are the No. 1 and No. 2 killers of Americans. Now add to them these serious diseases, all of them suspected by some scientists of being linked to viruses:

Arthritis, diabetes, Hodgkin's disease, juvenile arthritis, perhaps immunological and degenerative diseases of the central nervous system.

There has been a burst of activity in the virus field recently, most dramatically in the suspected link between viruses and cancer.

At the heart of some of the research is the striking theory that every cell contains the seeds of cancer, that we are born with these seeds in us in the form of genetic ingredients.

The genetic ingredient would be a gene, the unit of heredity, that is coded for the production of a cancer virus. Normally, some cellular mechanism, a repressor, keeps this gene in check. Then something triggers the gene, the virus is produced and the end result is cancer.

A virus itself is a nucleus of RNA or DNA, both nucleic acids, surrounded with a coat of protein. It cannot exist apart from the cell it infects, unlike bacteria. Viruses seems to be on the border between living and nonliving things.

The theory is called the "oncogene theory," from the word oncology, the study of tumors, and the word gene. It has been put forth by two scientists at the National Cancer Institute, Dr. Robert J. Huebner and Dr. George J. Todaro.

Up to now, various laboratories have reported associations between viruses and such cancers as cancer of the breast and cervix, leukemia, Hodgkin's disease, sarcoma—a form that primarily affects connective tissue and bone—and Burkitt's lymphoma, found widely among children in Uganda, Africa.

Part I: Africa. In recent weeks and months scientists at a number of institutions around the country have reported finding what could prove to be a human cancer virus, but there is robust disagreement among the scientists about the various claims.

But Todaro, for one, is skeptical about many of the claims, noting at an international virology meeting that cancer viruses "come and go." Todaro and others cautioned against any impression that a cure for cancer was on the horizon.

The work suggests that if cancer is ultimately to be controlled, some way will have to be found to interfere with the mechanism that switches on the oncogene, a way to manipulate the gene to keep the body's natural defense mechanism, its immune system, working correctly.

Business Mirror

By JOHN CUNIFF
AP Business Analyst
NEW YORK (AP) — One of the potentially more meaningful experiments in industry today in the four-day week, whether it be for the usual 40 hours or for some lesser amount.

Hundreds of companies, large and small, have at least tested the idea and most employers and workers, judging from reports available, are happy with it.

Workers say it gives them more time with their families, an opportunity to take mini-vacations, a greater chance to develop leisure skills. Some even say it enables them to take on a second job.

Employers claim productivity sometimes increases because of a happier work force and because of more efficient utilization of facilities, such as a reduction in the number of costly startups.

Not all the experiments have turned out well, however.

One company laments that "engineers who tended before to work late and come in on Saturdays... suddenly changed their pattern... They found themselves reoriented and thinking in terms of leisure time instead of their work."

Riva Poor, a Cambridge, Mass., consultant who publishes Poor's Workweek Letter, has been one of the chief researchers and publicists of the movement. She insists that she provides both pro and con on the subject.

Nevertheless, judging from comments and actions, some observers appear to think that the notion may be overblown. At any rate, negative attitudes caused Mrs. Poor to ask recently: "What the heck is going on?"

Her ire was aroused, it seems, mainly by a high U.S. Labor Department official who cracked at a large business meeting that the only significant thing about the movement is that Mrs. Poor has become Mrs. Rich.

She also wonders why the Labor Department quotes her figures for the number of companies using the four-day week but omits growth rate figures, which leaves some readers with the impression that the movement "is a minor happening."

Moreover, a columnist except to say he "has had an adventuresome career with some major unions" has implied that progress of the four-day week is a function of Mrs. Poor's sexiness.

People In The News

SINGAPORE (AP) — Queen Elizabeth has ended a three-day state visit to this former British crown colony, sailing to Malaysia aboard the royal yacht Britannia.

The Queen held a black tie dinner aboard the ship attended by President Benjamin Sheares and Prime Minister Lee Kuan Yew before the Britannia cast off for Port Klang Sunday night.

The Queen, Prince Philip and Princess Anne will spend three days in West Malaysia before flying to Borneo and the Malaysian states of Sabah and Sarawak.

the spacecraft and landed in the Atlantic Ocean 4 hours, 55 minutes after leaving the earth.

The anniversary celebration was delayed until Tuesday because of the Washington's Birthday holiday.

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (AP) — California's first lady says she won't watch any X-rated films, even if they're award winners.

"No," Nancy Reagan said Sunday in her weekly column published by The Sacramento Union in response to a reader's question if she would attend one.

"I don't think anyone wants censorship," the former movie actress said "but I'm afraid if the picture business doesn't start to censor itself as it used to, that's exactly what will happen."

"The strange part is the very people who decry it (censorship) the most will be the ones to bring it about," said the pretty wife of Republican Gov. Ronald Reagan.

NASSAU, Bahamas (AP) — Officials at the Britannia Beach Hotel say singer Frank Sinatra has rented a suite that comes with a pretty good recommendation. For 14 months it was the hideaway of billionaire Howard Hughes.

Hotel officials said Sinatra would take over the two-bedroom suite soon, but the exact date was not announced.

Hughes gave up the luxury ninth-floor accommodations last Wednesday after four members of his staff were ordered to leave the Bahamas because they did not have work permits.

Television And Radio

NEW YORK (AP) — Live television coverage of the arrival of President Nixon and his party in Peking had for the American viewer Sunday night a little of the quality of the first moon landing coverage—an electronic marvel and an extraordinary event wrapped up in one.

For the American viewer too, came the unmistakable impression of a formal and correct greeting. There was an honor guard at the air field.

but it was a small greeting party. There were no crowds to generate a feeling of excitement. Street scenes showed Peking's residents going about their business, not seeming to know or care about the visitor being driven through Tien An Men Square. No crowds lined the route from the airport.

It also appeared that the broadcast journalists knew comparatively little about the plans of the visit and sometimes seemed hard-pressed for something to talk about—two NBC reporters broke in to describe what they had eaten for breakfast.

Pooled coverage by satellite resulted in clear pictures and excitement of the assignment will pick up as the visit continues.

The weekend entertainment fronts were rather slow-moving, too. The cream of the made-for TV features was a pilot film for a series reviving that old dime-novel sleuth, Nick Carter.

Nick, as played by Robert Conrad, was a turn-of-the-century New York private eye. The only thing that made it at all different from run-of-the-mill private eye series was the period—horses and buggies, horseless carriages, and Victorian decor. Plus Nick's penchant for disguising himself while detecting.

His pursuit of a killer led him into the family of a robber baron.

District Play To End With Borger

By RICKEY WRIGHT
News Staff Writer

The fighting Harvesters of Pampa High School are to wind up their eager season tonight in Borger against the Bulldogs.

The only chance the Harvesters have at getting the title now is Amarillo High beating the Palo Duro Dons tonight. If that happens Pampa and Palo Duro will have the same district standing and it will result in a play-off.

The Harvesters have lost two games during district play: the first in the primary half against the Tascosa Rebels, the second in the secondary half of play against the Dons of Palo Duro.

Associated Press

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — Mixing turn-around jump shots with lay up feeds by his teammates, Utah Stars' eight-year veteran Zelmo Beaty established a new individual scoring record with 63 points Monday night in the Stars' American Basketball Association win over Pittsburgh, 149-140.

The old record of 62 points was set a year ago by Stew Johnson formerly of Pittsburgh and now with Carolina.

"I knew I was within reach of the record when they started passing up good shots to get me the ball inside," a jubilant Beaty said after the game. "That's the kind of team this is. I don't think I would have broken the record if my teammates hadn't pushed me into it."

On his way to the record, the 6-foot-9, 235-pound Beaty hit on 24 of 31 attempts from the floor and 15 of 15 from the free throw line. He also pulled down 15 rebounds in leading the Stars' attack.

In Monday's other American Basketball Association game, New York downed Dallas 104-95.

In the only National Basketball Association game, Baltimore shaded Philadelphia 102-101.

Condor coach Mark Binstein said after the game that his team tried every defense imaginable to stop Beaty.

The Harvesters stand with 14-6 overall season.

Tonight the Harvs will meet the Bulldogs of Borger for the second time this season. The first bout had Borger visiting Pampa only for the mean green and gold to show them defeat by a tally of 85-74.

In that bout Borger was not to give up until the end as Mike Burnley led his team with 20 total points. Russell Dixon followed Burnley's example as he came through with 12 points for his team. Jesse Crockett also did his share with 10 points beside his name.

Though the Bulldogs did a fair job on the score board, the Harvesters were more than glad to compare their pointage against Borger's. Richard Buntun was high-point man that night with 23 total points. Mike Edgar was just behind him with 20 points. Don Cain chalked up 15 points for the Harvesters.

Borger and Pampa have been acute rivals in all athletic competition and the Borger gym is expected to be crowded with fans.

Pampa is looking to finish with a two-loss district season as they have no intention of losing to the Bulldogs.

The Harvesters begin their battle at 8 p.m., just after the Shockers finish their battle with the Bullpups.

Earlier in the season the Shockers found themselves victorious over the junior canines by a tally of 60-47.

The Thrashers also played Borger once before as they will again tonight. They also hosted the canines to a loss by a tally of 71-55.

Harvester fans should remember to arrive in Borger early as there will be limited space in Borger's "big barn gym."

Clay Will Fight In 12-Rounder

VANCOUVER, B.C. (AP) — Muhammad Ali gets a second chance to knock Canadian heavyweight boxing champion George Chuvalo off his feet when the two meet in a 12-round bout at Pacific Coliseum March 13.

Promoter Murray Pezim said the two fighters will sign contracts in Vancouver today or Wednesday.

It will be the second meeting between Ali and the Toronto boxer. Chuvalo lost a 15-round decision to the former world champion in a title match March 29, 1966.

Chuvalo was badly outclassed but managed to stay on his feet throughout.

Ali, who will be making his fourth fight since losing the title to world champion Joe Frazier, will receive a guarantee of $200,000. Chuvalo is guaranteed $60,000.

Owens Wants The Pros Kept Out Of Olympics

BOSTON (AP) — If the Olympic Games are to continue "on the premise upon which they were built," then four-time Olympic gold medal winner Jesse Owens says keep the professionals out.

On the other hand, however, Hal Connelly, who won a gold medal in the Olympic hammer throw, says: "Just one washing machine commercial ... would make this task of making the team just a little bit easier."

Owens and Connelly were two of four former Olympians who discussed professionalism in the Olympics on the national education network program "The Advocates," scheduled to be aired tonight.

Joining Owens in opposition to professionalism in the Olympics was Bob Mathias, a two-time gold medal winner in the decathlon and now a congressman from California.

Joining Connelly in favor of allowing professionals to participate was Suzie Chaffe, a member of the 1968 U.S. Olympic ski team.

Owens said letting professionals into the games would destroy "the whole connotation of inspiring a youngster ... to seek an Olympic medal."

"Nobody forces you to compete in the Olympics," Owens said in an interview after the taping of the program last week. "You're there because you want to be. It's a great honor to represent your country."

Mathias did not take as strong a stand as Owens, saying he believed it would be all right for an amateur athlete to be subsidized for his training and equipment, "but not money in the pocket. If he is making a profit in sports, then he is a professional."

Miss Chaffee, who caused a stir at the Winter Games in Japan earlier this month when she circulated a petition to allow all athletes to compete in the Olympics, said the public "has been greatly deceived that amateurism is a good force in the world ..."

She said many athletes who sign the Olympic code have to perjure themselves to compete. One stipulation she pointed to was that an athlete can train only 60 days a year for the sport he is competing in.

Jackson Salary Squabbles Over

Now that Oakland owner Charles O. Finley has satisfied Reggie Jackson, can Vida Blue be far behind?

Jackson, who has had his share of salary squabbles with Finley before, came to terms relatively early this year, agreeing to a substantial raise over the $50,000 he earned last year when he slugged 32 homers and drove in 80 runs for the A's.

Finley has been trying to get Blue, the American League's Most Valuable Player and Cy Young Award winner, for $50,000 which is substantially less than what Vida wants.

Blue was by no means the only big name still unsigned as major league regulars began reporting for spring training Monday.

Among the missing in the Texas Rangers' camp was massive Frank Howard and pitcher Juan Marichal was one of several absent San Francisco Giants.

Marichal is a perennial late signer and the Giants appeared more concerned about second baseman Tito Fuentes, seeking a raise of between $10,000 and $15,000. San Francisco hurried rookie infielder Chris Arnold into camp early so that shortstop Chris Speier would have someone to work with until the Fuentes issue is settled.

Detroit staged its first official workout for pitchers and catchers with left-handers Mickey Lolich and Mike Killebrew among the missing.

Heading the Chicago White Sox list of no-shows is slugger Dick Allen, who has been no easier to sign this winter than he was when he called himself Richie. General Manager Stu Holcomb said he hadn't heard from Allen in two weeks.

Pitcher Carl Morton and outfielder Rusty Staub still haven't signed with Montreal and pitchers Sparky Lyle and Sonny Siebert are still unsatisfied with Boston's offers.

Meanwhile, Milwaukee General Manager Frank Lane announced a get-tough policy with his unsigned players. If they're still not signed by March 1, said Lane, he will subtract $100 per day from his contract offers.

Outfielders John Briggs and Curt Motton and pitcher Bill Parsons are Lane's problems.

Parsons and Briggs both want 80 per cent salary boosts while Motton, a seldom-used substitute at Baltimore, wants a guaranteed minimum number of batting appearances with the Brewers.

Dan Reeves To Hang Up His Pads For Coaching

DALLAS (AP) — "He just simply has the knack for doing the right thing at the right time. It's a gift. Doak Walker had it. Paul Hornung had it."

Those once were the words of Dallas Cowboys Coach Tom Landry about ever-ready Dan Reeves, who in 1969 pushed his bad knees across NFL goal lines four times in a season during which he had only 59 carries.

Reeves said Monday night in Amarillo, where he was touring with a political candidate, that he is hanging up the pads and cleats for a fulltime coaching career with the Cowboys. His playing career began with the Cowboys in 1965.

It may be another case of the "right thing at the right time."

"His potential as a coach is tremendous, in my opinion," said Landry after confirming the Cowboys now are counting on Reeves to be fulltime offensive backfield mentor.

"I anticipate as of now he will be full time," Landry said.

Landry said two seasons ago, when Reeves became parttime player and parttime coach, the thinking at Cowboy headquarters was for the 1972 season to be Reeves' first as fulltime coach.

"I've always tried to learn as much as I could about the game because some day I knew I'd like to coach," Reeves, a product of the South

Trials Set For Boxing

Although the doors to the gym have been closed for this season, workouts will still be held for those qualified to enter the Amateur Athletic Union boxing trials for the Olympics, Pampa Boxing Club coach Bob Wilhelm said Monday.

An AAU tournament will be held in Amarillo next month for all ages.

"If I can enter, anybody who can put gloves on can enter," Wilhelm said.

Junior Olympic contests will also be conducted for age groups 12-13 and 14-15, Wilhelm said.

Winners of the Amarillo contest will go to the 5-day AAU national battles at Las Vegas in April. Contestants will fight twice a night.

Victors at Las Vegas—eight champions in each of 11 divisions—will contend in Fort Worth against boxers from the Golden Gloves association, Air Force, Army, Marines, Navy and the National College Athletics Association. The champion from each division will have the opportunity to represent the United States at the Olympic games in Munich.

Wilhelm said he plans to open the gym at 324 Naida from 7 to 8 a.m. during the week to conduct his workouts. Anyone else qualifying for the contests are also welcome to work out during that time, Wilhelm added.

Grim Thomas Given 5-Year Sentence After Guilty Plea

DALLAS AP — Duane Thomas, a super cog in the Dallas Cowboys' Super Bowl machine, knows today his football talent, with one more slip, can be locked behind prison doors for five years.

But his coach and the North-east Texas judge who heard him plead guilty Monday to marijuana possession have spoken of a brighter future for the quiet, strong running back.

"You are a young person and have the potential of a great future," said District Court Judge Hollis Garmon in Greenville, Tex.

Garmon assessed Thomas, 24, and Thomas' brother Bertrand, 21, five-year probation terms for the felony drug offense. The brothers were arrested Jan. 30 on an interstate highway running from Greenville to Dallas.

Under Texas law, the two also could have drawn a prison term of two years to life for the drug offense.

Prosecutors said officers found 41.5 grams of marijuana in the car they occupied.

The sleek automobile, which Thomas told officers was loaned him as a promotion, was stopped by the officers after a tip it was stolen. The tip proved false.

Thomas promised Judge Gorman he could, as Gorman put it, "disconnect" himself from anyone who might influence him to experiment further with drugs.

"Do you understand that you have to follow the law whether it is a good law or a bad law?" Gorman asked.

Thomas, beardless and stylishly dressed, answered, "Yes sir, your honor."

Thomas also said he would abide by the terms of probation. Violation of any of the terms—including one about reporting to a probation officer—can make Thomas liable for serving the entire five-year term.

After this year's Cowboy Super Bowl victory, Coach Tom Landry described Thomas' attitude as a "disruptive force" on the team. Thomas spent the season in a brooding silence, after being a salary holdout for a time.

But Landry has since told a Dallas Morning News interviewer, "The major hope I had this past season was that he could play and survive the year. If he had not played, I think it would have severely hurt him as a person."

Landry also said, "We've talked and he's indicated things won't be the same again as they were last season."

The Dallas players last season said outwardly they accepted Thomas, as long as he did his job.

Dan Reeves, a fellow Cowboy running back who said Monday he will be fulltime offensive backfield coach this year, said the probation "possibly" will make Thomas a better player.

Washington's Birthday

Although the congressional Holiday Bill moved it to yesterday—today is George Washington's birthday anniversary.

Rather than talk about George Washington, let us listen to a few of the things he had to say.

He had much to say about government.

"The aggregate happiness of society, which is best promoted by the practice of a virtuous policy, is, or ought to be, the end of all government."

"Government is not reason; it is not eloquent; it is force! Like fire, it is a dangerous servant and a fearful master."

"There is a natural and necessary progression, from the extreme of anarchy to the extreme of tyranny; and arbitrary power is most easily established on the ruins of liberty—abused to licentiousness."

"Republicanism is not the phantom of a deluded imagination.—On the contrary, under no form of government are laws better supported, liverty and property better secured, or happiness more effectually dispensed to mankind."

"Reason and experience both forbid us to expect that national morality can prevail in exclusion of religious principle."

Our country's first president was concerned about the importance of morality and principle not only in government, but also in personal life and in human relations.

"The foolish and wicked practice of profane cursing and swearing is a vice so mean and low that every person of sense and character detests and despises it."

"I hope I shall always possess firmness and virtue enough to maintain what I consider the most enviable of all titles: the character of an honest man."

"The consideration that human happiness and moral duty are inseparable connected will always continue to prompt me to promote the former by inculcating the practice of the latter."

His insistence upon high morality, if you esteem your own reputation, it is better to be alone than in bad company."

"Friendship is a plant of slow growth, and must undergo and withstand the shocks of adversity before it is entitled to the appellation."

From his own words, it is easy to judge that George Washington strove to bring into his personal life the finest qualities in serving and creating the country which was to be the Republic of America. As stated in Angelo Patri's Essays on "The Spirit of America" "B. George Washington's sense of duty made possible the United States of America."

It is important for men to remember the qualities that made Washington the father of our country. It seems even more important not to becloud those qualities by modern day interpretation that our country (Washington, D.C.) is in any sense the father or Big Brother of us all.

The Dream Fallacy

Although many picture the Great American Dream as getting away from it all to a quiet little place in the country. University of Wisconsin sociologists don't believe it.

Few people, say James Zuiches and Glenn Fugitt.

are actually moving to isolated rural areas. In fact, they say, the trend is in the opposite direction.

Basing their statements on data from the 1970 census and a survey of their home state of Wisconsin, the researchers say that most people actually want to live in small towns or rural areas but within commuting distance of a large central city.

"These results do not mean that rural development should be discouraged," Zuiches says, "but if rural development programs are to succeed, they must take into account the features of life that make small towns and rural areas near metropolitan centers the most preferred."

LET THE REDS
PLAY EACH OTHER

The Russian communists and the Chinese communists are stepping up their verbal and diplomatic offensives against each other, a situation which pains the leftist one-worlders who counsel that the U. S. must not let the communist giants fall out with each other at the risk of bringing on World War III. The Russians still control most of the world's communist parties, including the U. S. party, but the Chinese have been making headway which the Russians cannot continue forever to ignore.

Dictatorship, whether in a nation or among communist parties, requires obedience in order to survive. The Russians and the Chinese are natural enemies and the bosses in the Kremlin know that they must act to prevent the Chinese from whittling away at their control of communist parties in various nations around the world.

If the Russian and Chinese communists have to divert much attention to each other, they can give much less attention to subverting other nations.

As long as Reds are flying each other, good citizens of the world can enjoy a little more safety and peace, at least until the communist butchers decide who will be the world's new Stalin to take charge of renewing the Red drive for world government.

Who Gets It In Neck... Criminal Or Victim?

A minute fraction of the felons arrested are ever brought to trial. A major reason is that few victims prosecute. Some are afraid to. Others, like David Carter, do prosecute. But before it's over it has cost the victim more than it's cost the criminal. Carter runs a filling station in the Chicago suburb of River Forest. More than a year ago his Madison Avenue gas station was held up by two armed robbers.

The premises got peppered with bullet holes. The gunmen got away with $115. It has been one year and two months now. And in that time David Carter has lost more money going to court than he did in the robbery. And the robbers, despite Carter's efforts, are still running around loose.

Following the robbery, Carter identified one of the robbers in a police lineup, but the next he heard the robber had been released "due to an administrative error."

Police said this "robber gang" has a pool of money stashed to "help" any member who gets caught.

Cook County court records show that this case—involving one alleged member of that gang—has been continued 15 times since his arraignment.

David Carter says, "Every time I go to court I have to pay extra men to tend my business. I can't afford to keep this up."

"Sometimes," he says, "I sit in court from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. just to hear it's postponed again."

And now a judge has granted a motion by the prosecutor to reduce the charge from armed robbery to "petty theft," which is nothing more than a misdemeanor.

It was explained that the courts "like to reduce cases to misdemeanors; it reduces the backlog."

But the reduction in the charge has not expedited the case.

It will be called again March 3—that will have been about 14 months since the robbery.

My understanding of Illinois law is that when a crime involves the use of weapons—a gunfight—it cannot be reduced from armed robbery to petty theft.

But it was. Anyway, as I say, David is due back in court March 3. Another day in which he will pay another penalty and the alleged wrongdoer will likely get another delay.

This situation is not peculiar to Cook County. Almost everywhere court calendars are backed up by a logjam of unattended cases until, frequently, the complainants give up or witnesses die off or evidence disappears and the case is dismissed.

In New York last year there were 94,000 felony arrests but only 522 ever went to trial.

You can't tell me that the court calendar is so clogged that the city of New York can handle only one case per day! And if it's exasperating for you, imagine the policeman's unhappy lot. He may risk his life to bring in a repeater when the chances are only 1 to 200 that he'll ever go to trial.

New York Police Commissioner Patrick Murphy says, "No wonder professional criminals laugh at us!"

What Becomes of the U. S. Defense Pact with Taiwan?

By ROBERT S. ALLEN

WASHINGTON—Amid the reams of sonorous conjecture and high flown pontificating, and the gales of clanging hoops and fanfare enveloping President Nixon's historic trip to Peking, one stark reality stands out indisputably in the background.

Forebodingly at stake in these discussions is the fate of Nationalist-ruled Taiwan and this country's crucial role in determining that fate.

Tightly interwoven in this complex and momentous problem is the generally little known fact that the U. S. has a mutual defense treaty with the Nationalist Chinese government which explicitly commits this country to the defense and security of Taiwan.

Negotiated and signed in the Eisenhower administration by the late Secretary of State John Foster Dulles, this pact is still fully in effect.

While the existence of this military treaty has been largely ignored in the U. S., the Communist Chinese rulers are acutely aware of it. Repeatedly in recent months, they have been belligerently emphatic in denouncing it.

Premier Chou En-lai has gone so far as to distinctly imply diplomatic relations between Peking and Washington cannot be established as long as this treaty continues. That's what the Senate Foreign Relations Committee was told by John Stewart Service, former U. S. diplomat and Chinese specialist following a recent extended visit there, that included a talk with Chou.

Much the same conclusion was voiced by Harvard professor Ross Terrell, another Chinese authority and author of a recent widely discussed magazine series on conditions in that country based on a long stay there. He told members of the House Foreign Affairs Subcommittee on the Far East.

Taiwan is the crucial question of President Nixon's Peking discussions. Peking wants the U. S. to relinquish its commitments to defend Taiwan, and to reduce its military forces there.

At present, the U. S. has no ground forces on Taiwan. It does have about 5,000 Air Force personnel. Last July, the Pentagon announced that nuclear weapons stored on Okinawa—which was being returned to Japan—would not be transferred to Taiwan.

It was also stated that the two-destroyer patrol off the coast of Red China was being ended, as were air reconnaissance missions over the mainland originating on Taiwan.

Exactly What's Involved An unpublished study in the hands of Rep. Cornelius Gallagher, D-N.J., chairman of the Foreign Affairs Subcommittee, spells out in detail the provisions and scope of the little-known mutual defense treaty between the U. S. and Taiwan.

Prepared by the committee's staff experts, the backstage analysis stresses the following:

While the pact explicitly requires the U. S. to go to the defense of Taiwan and the nearby string of tiny islands known as the Pescadores in the event of armed attack, there is no commitment to do that regarding Quemoy and Matsu. Nationalist strongholds just off the coast of Fukien province on the Chinese mainland. Only in the event their defense is necessary for the protection of Taiwan and the Pescadores is the U. S. obligated to go to their aid.

Last year, the Senate Foreign Relations Committee recommended repeal of the so-called Formosa Resolution voted by Congress in 1955 when Quemoy and Matsu were under Communist Chinese artillery attack. The resolution authorized the President "to employ the armed forces of the U. S. as he deems necessary for the protection of such related positions and territories (Formosa and the Pescadores) now in friendly hands (Quemoy and Matsu)." The full Senate, however, refused to approve the Foreign Relations repeal by a 43 to 40 vote.

Subsequently, however, the State Department in effect abrogated the Formosa Resolution.

This was done by Leo Moser, State Department director of Republic of China Affairs, in an unpublished meeting with Rep. Gallagher's subcommittee. In the following exchange, Moser jinked a 1958 joint communique issued by then-Secretary of State Dulles and Chiang Kai-shek stating, "It is recognized that under present conditions the defense of Quemoy and Matsu is closely related to the defense of Taiwan and the Pescadores."

Gallagher: "Are we now obligated to defend Quemoy and Matsu?" Moser: "No. The mutual defense treaty applies only to the defense of Taiwan and the Pescadores. Circumstances now differ drastically from previously. At the present time, the defense of Quemoy and Matsu does not apply. If you read the text of the mutual defense treaty, there is no question but that the area that is specifically guaranteed is Taiwan and the island group of the Pescadores, and only that area."

The subcommittee study concludes with the categorical assertion, "The threat by Communist China to Quemoy and Matsu has been downgraded by the State Department."

Cited as proof is Moser's declaration, and an earlier one by Assistant Secretary of State David Abshire who told the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, "The specific crisis to which the Formosa Resolution was directed has passed. We do not look upon the resolution as either legal or constitutional authority for either contingency planning or the actual conduct of our foreign relations. Our defense commitment to the Republic of China is set forth solely in the mutual defense treaty."

Quemoy and Matsu are heavily fortified with deep underground defenses. Some 55,000 Nationalist troops are stationed on the islands.

Paper Claims Connection Between Church and Union

DALLAS, Tex. (AP) — Connection between church-paid volunteers and unionizing efforts of Tony Oreindin in the Rio Grande Valley was claimed by the Weekly Texas Methodist.

In a full-page story, Judy Weidman, assistant editor of the 140,000 weekly circulation Dallas-based paper said that a task force of Spanish-speaking churchmen decided over two years ago that Tony Oreindin's plan to reach the poor through a radio program and volunteer service program "seemed to the committee the best existing vehicle for zeroing in on the massive poverty in the Valley."

Oreindin heads the Farm Workers Organizing Committee (AFL-CIO) in the Valley.

Even though no money from the $20 million Fund of Reconciliation has gone directly to Mr. Oreindin or the union, the newspaper said, funds are paid to a local task force for subsistence salaries of volunteers. The volunteers were put at the service of Oreindin as a part of the Fund for Reconciliation's Voluntary Service Program began in 1969, Miss Weidman wrote.

Last September, $15,000 was granted directly to Oreindin through the church's Commission on Religion and Race, she said. These funds came from United Methodists' basic benevolence fund, World Service, according to the church newspaper.

Three months ago the church newspaper was invited to the Valley "to conduct an investigation of the entire matter, and report the truth as we uncovered it to the church," said the Rev. Spurgeon M. Dunn, III, editor of The Texas Methodist. The Rev. Mr. Dunn said the paper would make a full report of the finding to a church meeting scheduled Friday evening in McAllen.

There is little cause to doubt that United Methodist paid volunteers are furthering the cause of the union, while harboring virtually no pronounced commitment to the institutional church, the church newspaper said.

The publication said that national church officials have insisted the program is geared primarily to help the poor. "They concede the union may very well benefit from the arrangement but believe the church can 'profit' by identifying with the poor."

Night Patrol

and two students in the squad car, a situation that usually spells trouble. But in Buffalo, N.Y., it means Pilot 100, a program under which police and students at the state university branch have been getting to know each other in a different way than was the case in campus rioting in the spring of 1970. That upheaval brought police onto campus with riot gear and night sticks and left a residue of bitterness. But the initial resistance on the force to "student peepers" in the cars has largely disappeared since Pilot 100 was launched in March, 1971. Above, student-observers Marilyn Guenther and Alan Koslow do a night tour with Patrolmen Gerald J. Fusani and George J. Admy. Below right, students John Liarakos and Lynda Martz check out confiscated contraband weapons with Patrolmen Thomas J. Juszkiewicz and Paul B. Delano. The program has involved some 500 students.

Europe's 'Value Added Tax' System, If Adopted, May Cause Price To Rise

BRUSSELS (AP) — To judge from recent experience in Europe, Americans can expect one thing if Congress adopts a value-added tax: prices will go up.

When Holland started collecting VAT in 1969, the official price level rose nearly 5 1/2 per cent in three months. That was an average; some increases were much higher. The Dutch government had to order a strict price freeze.

Belgium brought in the new tax in 1971, stiffening its price controls for the shock. Prices last year rose only 2 per cent more than they did the year before, but these official figures are disputed. The Belgian Consumers' Association reported wide swings, from a 30 per cent rise on tires for a small Fiat to a 28 per cent drop for canned crabmeat. There were many more rises than drops. For clothing the group found a 10 per cent average increase.

"Only the price of panties remained stable," it reported. Italy has postponed VAT twice, partly in fear of price rises. It is due to take the plunge July 1, and Britain nine months later.

Prices could be held down in the United States if controls are still in effect. And in compensation for any rise, VAT could prevent American rents, property taxes and income taxes from rising as fast as they otherwise might.

It is not certain that Americans will have VAT, but the White House said Feb. 1 it's being considered as part of a tentative plan to ease local property taxes. The Nixon administration says no new taxes will be proposed in the current year. Suggestions have been heard in Washington that people earning less than a stated amount might receive rebates on the VAT they pay.

Senator Pierre Deschamps, who did a lot to smooth over Belgium's introduction of VAT, has some advice for Americans: "It's better to bring it in when business isn't too good. There has to be a certain reluctance on the part of purchasers, in order to keep the sellers in line."

He explains that in boom times merchants find it easy to add the tax to selling prices and then "round it off" to their advantage. Others set new prices without passing on to purchasers the deductions that the law allows them to make. Some do both.

In Europe, VAT seems to work out most favorably for people who are very well to do, in the export business, or are tax experts.

Government planners welcome it as a tool for molding business in the interest of the country as a whole.

It hits hardest at people who live on regular incomes, spending nearly all they get: The man with a regular wage or salary, the old-age pensioner.

"I pay it on the grocery bill, on the laundry bill, on the rent for my wife's piano," one Brussels resident grumbled. "But you don't pay it if you buy a country estate, fill it up with antiques and hire a butler."

VAT could work out differently in the United States, depending on the form. It can apply to any kind of transaction and is usually included by the retailer in his price to the customer—not paid separately.

But the customer pays. In Belgium he pays 6 per cent on food, 14 per cent on clothes, 25 per cent on autos. He pays on the rent of a car but not on the rent of a house, on a trip within the country but not on a trip to the United States, on a television set but not on a newspaper.

The name "value added" describes the way the tax is figured, on the value each businessman adds to a product.

For example, suppose your little boy buys $2 worth of lemonade mix and maraschino cherries at the supermarket, borrows some glasses from his mother and sets up a stand in the front yard. He mixes the lemonade and sell $10 worth by the glass, a cherry in each glass.

His work and his sales effort have earned him $8. This is the value he has added.

Under VAT he should pay a tax. But he would be entitled to a deduction for the tax already paid by the market and included in its selling price. Suppose the market, at the 3 per cent rate, had paid three cents in tax. Johnny would owe 21 cents on the other $7 he made.

The government would add to the market's three cents and Johnny's 21 cents a similar cut on all or virtually all the business transactions that take place every day among individuals, partnerships and corporations.

It makes a lot of bookkeeping. European businessmen are used to it because they have been paying similar taxes for years. Many American firms might have to take on help in the accounting office, especially those which have no retail business in sales tax areas.

VAT is also complicated to collect. Tax authorities have hired 800 new employees in Belgium. The United States has 20 times as many people as Belgium, and they do 50 times as much business a year.

What are the advantages?

It would be fairer to American children than the property tax that now provides much of the financing for schools. Possibly the same amount of money could be made available for each child, regardless of whether his school district included a lot of valuable property or not.

Proponents say VAT should improve the U.S. balance of international trade. Efforts to strengthen the dollar need more exports and fewer imports. U.S. firms could deduct VAT from export prices, giving them an incentive to sell abroad rather than at home. VAT can be applied to imports, making them more expensive.

Businessmen may prefer VAT to increases in income or corporation taxes because they don't pay it—the consumer does.

VAT is flexible. President Nixon thinks U.S. business is not investing enough in capital goods. VAT can be applied to encourage investment. Rates can also be adjusted for other purposes—to discourage businesses responsible for pollution, if Congress so decides.

VAT is harder to evade than the simpler tax on retail sales. Each businessman can deduct from his taxable turnover the tax already paid. So his return gives the government a way to check whether his suppliers have been hiding any transactions.

Ireland In Agony Remember And Hate

By FRED KENNEDY
BELFAST—(NEA)—Graffiti scrawled hurriedly on the crumbling walls of Belfast's slums vocalize the sentiments of a city at war with itself.

Whether it concerns the Pope or the Queen, the obscene rhetoric always truces passersby to remember and to hate. Young children take it in with their milk.

The root causes of the unrest here and throughout Northern Ireland (Ulster) are social and economic inequalities but sectarian warfare has increasingly come to manifest itself in religious terms, the Protestants of the Northern Ireland provincial government supported by Great Britain, against the Catholics of the rebel Irish Republican Army, (IRA), supported by Ireland.

Mixed areas here that used to encourage some sort of stability have now been rapidly re-segregated into religious communities. Protestants have headed for newer housing areas at the edges of the city, where they form vigilante patrol groups for protection against the Catholics. And the Catholics, crowded into the center of the city, tighten their grip on their own schools, their own streets and their own prejudices.

With the recent upsurge in fighting, the city has been hit by new techniques of urban violence marked by the weapons of the urban guerrilla, bombs of all sizes that are no less deadly because they are improvised from common consumer products.

Incendiary bombs—made from weed killer and sugar—nail bombs, pipe bombs and suitcase bombs have been used by the IRA against British troops. And when Catholic families move into a previously Protestant area or Protestant families move into what used to be a Catholic neighborhood, they search their new home carefully before settling down. That old pack of salt left in the kitchen cupboard could be there for a purpose: it could be a boobytrap rigged to explode when the new family touches it.

An already tense situation was made worse last August when the Northern Ireland government instituted its policy of internment suspected rebels without trial. Internment has profoundly worsened the crisis by undoing all hope of isolating the IRA from the Catholic community.

The Protestant fear of drowning in a sea of Catholicism, meanwhile, is coming more and more to the surface, mostly stridently in the person of the Rev. Ian Paisley, the most volatile catalyst in the anti-Catholic chemistry of Northern Ireland.

"This is no time for compromise," Paisley shouts to his supporters. "I ask you today: Are you going to stand for Ulster? Are you going to defend your heritage? Are you going to hand on to your children, and your children's children, the glorious heritage of the past?"

"The government can't go back (on internment), but what the government has to do...it has to follow it up, and the only way it can follow up internment is by curfew."

British Maj. Gen. Robert Ford sees another way out.

"We spend a lot of time and energy setting up a really comprehensive intelligence organization, and as the weeks and months go on I see us accumulating more information, and I see us reaching the stage when the IRA will not know who in their midst is friend, and who is foe."

Other, less militaristic proposals for ending the crisis range from calls for direct rule by London to the urgings of disillusioned Britons who want to withdraw the British army altogether and leave the Irish civil war to the Irish.

But all evidence indicates that the solution, however patchwork, will be found within the present constitutional framework. Most hopes are pinned on proportional representation that would give Catholics a larger voice in the government, though, and to effect this step Catholic politicians must replace the IRA as the dominant influence in the Catholic ghettos.

Blanche Kelso Bruce, U.S. senator from Mississippi, in 1880, was the first Negro candidate for the vice-presidential nomination of a major political party.

And that can only happen if the Catholic politicians are given real and demonstrable power in the Northern Ireland government—something they've been denied for more than 50 years.

'Teddy Bears'

While on a hunting trip Theodore Roosevelt refused to shoot a small bear. C.H. Berryman, famed cartoonist immortalized the incident in toy bears, then new to the market, soon became known as "Teddy bears."

'Old Whitey'

The horse "Old Whitey" associated with President Zachary Taylor. When Taylor moved into the White House he had his favorite mount, Whitey, accompany him. When Taylor was buried, Old Whitey followed his master's body in the funeral procession.
