Cotton Certificate Pool Closes Nov. 10th

Final date for receiving surplus cotton tax exemption certificates for the national pool has been tentatively set for Saturday, November 10, according to county agent Joe Williams. Purchase of certificates from the pool it was emphasized, would continue as long as the pool had certificates on hand.

Members of the county agents office said it was felt that all holders surplus certificates who wish to turn them into the pool will have had opportunity by November 10th. Allotment boards have been organized to assist producers who wish to turn surplus certificates to the pool.

Surplus certificates to cover 15000 have been placed in the pool. It is evident that more certificates will be turned in before the pool closes.

Dawson county was allotted 24,000 certificates under the Bankhead Act. Of the 15,000 bales already in national pool the farmers will receive more than $285,000 at government prices. At this price they will receive a little better than $19 per bale.

We as people have been interested in the peace program as is being carried on by our governments as is recorded in the daily news items in our newspapers. They have been interesting to keep up with and think about.

This will give you a wonderful opportunity to hear what some of the local young people have to say about this subject, and their remarks may be along some line that you had not given serious consideration.

The special numbers that are to be rendered are above the average and we feel that they can not be best by young people anywhere.

Why not give these young people our future citizens, statesmen, and leading ladies of our county and state our support by attending this program.

Lamesa Pays O'Donnell A Visit

Lamesa paid O'Donnell a goodwill visit Wednesday night and was served a most excellent chicken dinner by the O'Donnell P. T. A. Ninety-two people including the Municipal band led by Conway King were in attendance from Lamesa, while forty were present from O'Donnell.

Carol Baldwin displayed his usual adeptness at wedding the toastmaster's gavel. A sing song was led by Owen C. Taylor of Lamesa. The welcome address was given by Mr. Gilbreath of the O'Donnell schools. The invocation was given by an O'Donnell pastor. Response to the welcome address was made by J. D. Dyer postmaster of Lamesa. Mrs. Matt A. McCall and her high school quartette entertained with two good numbers and W. K. Crawley and his Calif Rib boys also displayed vocal possibilities.

Miss Billie Ruth King gave a very interesting reading which was thoroughly enjoyed. A cow calling contest was enjoyed, but C. E. Martin and W. D. Arnett went down to defeat and the award went to O'Donnell and especially to Mr. Caffey as the best cow callers. Bryant Link Company here presented Mr. Caffey with a valuable gift.

All who made the trip thoroughly enjoyed it. O'Donnell and Lamesa are friends and good neighbors. They have always been and since the meeting Wednesday night they are better friends and neighbors.

One thing that took the eyes of Lamesa in O'Donnell was the fact they have a real school system with live wire heads and one of the best and widest awake P. T. A. organizations in the country. Now O'Donnell you come to see Lamesa.

Train To Leave Lamesa at 12:30 p. m.

There may be other and bigger games scheduled in the State of Texas or on the South Plains Monday afternoon, but for the football fans of Lamesa and Dawson county there is only one game that really matters and that is the annual game between the Lamesa Golden Tornadoes and the Slaton Tigers. The game is to be played on the Slaton gridiron and is called for 3:30 P. M. Monday, November 12.

A special train of ten coaches carrying the Lamesa team, pep squad and fans is scheduled to leave Lamesa at 12:30 Monday to arrive in Slaton in plenty of time for the game. Ticket sales forecast a crowd of several hundred people to ride the special while hundreds of others are planning to attend the game, driving through in their automobiles.

Slaton officials are predicting a crowd of several thousand people and are preparing to handle a capacity crowd.

Both the Tornadoes and the Tigers are undefeated this year in conference play and while Lamesa defeated the Snyder team and Snyder defeated Slaton the Tigers are improving fast and predictions are that the game will be a closely contested affair. On strength of pre-game showings the Tornadoes rule a slight favorite but as everyone knows that in a Lamesa-Slaton game anything is liable to happen, it is hard to predict a victor.

Coach F. T. McCollum of the Tornadoes reports his team in the best of condition with all injured members of the squad completely recovered and rarin' to go. No scrimmage has been indulged in this week by the first string players so as to take no chances on others getting hurt.

The Slaton team is prepared to put up a real battle and have been pointing toward this game all season. It is expected that they will shoot the works as the saying goes to try to win. Lots of fireworks are expected to take place with both teams playing heads-up, wide-awake football.

The winner of the Lamesa-Slaton game will meet the winner of the Ralls-Crosbyton game on Thanksgiving day to determine the champions of District 3 B.

Library Sponsors Play Nov. 13-14

A big musical comedy will be presented at the High School auditorium Tuesday and Wednesday nights, November 13th and 14th, under the direction of the Lamesa Public Library.

Miss Ruth Reed, director for the Wayne P. Sewell Producing Company of Atlanta, Ga., is promoting the show, and she assures that the show is one of the peppiest, most colorful, most tuneful, most hilarious and most original of any musical comedy off the regular vaudeville circuit.

Besides an all star cast of popular local people, the production features a children's chorus, a mixed chorus, a group of regular dancing girls with different costumes for each of their delightful numbers.

Everybody loves music, and everybody loves comedy with music in just the right places. You will leave the auditorium whistling one of the snappy tunes from this production. There are ten of these and each is on a par with any popular tune of stage and screen. The "Rita" chorus has all the snap and fire of the Spanish tango without being in anyway an imitation and the beauty of the "Waiting With the One I Love" will simply take your breath away.

The finale with the entire company is worth waiting for.

The scene of the play proper is the sun room of a fraternity house at Lincoln College. Bob Davis, popular College Sheik, has invited his brother Dave, to come to the college dance dressed as a Spanish show girl. Dave is away, but his sister Wilhelmina, decides that she will pull the stunt.

Bob turns her over to his bashful chum, Steve Crandall, who make violent love to her under the impression that she is Dave. In the meantime Dave arrives on the scene in the Spanish make-up and many hilarious situations arise.

We could tell you more about it, but we don't want to spoil the fun for you. Tickets will be sold in advance, so be on watch.

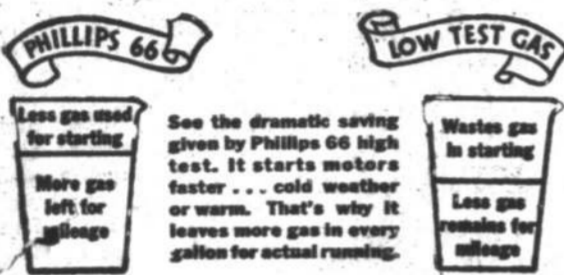

Hold everything for "Oh Professor!" It looks different! It sounds different! It is different.

Tax Blanks To Go To Farmers

College Station, November 3.—Cotton tax exemption certificates for 78,000 Texas applicants will be issued beginning next week, E. R. Eudaly, chairman of the Texas cotton allotment board, announced. These applicants have claims against the State reserve of ten per cent amounting to 99,007,000 pounds. From this reserve, certificates exempting 18,725,000 pounds of cotton from tax have been issued to 18,814 persons who produced cotton for the first time in 1934, and 31,111,000 pounds have been exempted for 14,314 who began producing in 1933. One million seven hundred and eighty nine thousand pounds have been exempted for those who had planted cotton one or more years prior to 1933 but whose applications were not received in time to go thru with the regular routine issuance of certificates from 80 per cent of the state allotment to regular producers. These amounts are in addition to the 1,396,000 pounds exempted from the regular cotton producers from the 90 per cent of the allotment set aside for this purpose. A reaudit of the receiving files shows that to date 345,250 applications have been handled since the board began work in August.

Surplus Cotton Exemption Certificates To Be Replaced

The Agricultural Adjustment administration has announced that all surplus cotton tax-exemption certificates outstanding at the end of the cotton ginning season will be recalled and in their stead new certificates of a different color and appearance will be issued for use next year provided the Bankhead cotton control act is made effective for 1935. The decision to reissue surplus 1934 cotton tax-exemption certificates in a style different from that used this year was reached after reports of illegal trading in the certificates had been received from the cotton belt and in order to avoid confusion.

When the re-issue is made, the new style certificates will be sent to the owners of the original certificates or to those persons who have come into legal possession of the certificates by purchase from the national cotton tax-exemption certificate pool or who have secured certificates through legal transfer within their own county.

This decision does not in any way affect the right of a producer to use his surplus certificates in the event that the Bankhead act is effective next year as he will be reissued new certificates to the exact amount of his unold surplus.

It is designed as merely a precautionary measure to make certain that if need arises the rightful owner of surplus 1934 certificates will have the use of this excess in 1935.

November Ushers In Inclement Weather

That we will have plenty of winter weather was prophesied in no uncertain terms as November roared in last Thursday. A decided drop in temperature was accompanied by an unpleasant sandstorm part of the day which made it hard on first-of-the-month bill collectors.

Friday saw one of the worst sandstorms which has visited the South Plains since that terrible one on Thanksgiving 1928, and fans who attempted to see the football game that afternoon agree that it was indeed as disagreeable a day as they had seen.

If the temper of the first winter month can be taken as an indication of the remainder of that season, we had all better get out our heavies and turn up our collars.

Mrs. J. W. Small underwent major surgery early Sunday morning at a local hospital. She is doing nicely.

FINEST HERD OF BUFFALO IN THE WORLD ON THE GOODNIGHT RANCH

Goodnight, Texas, Nov. 6. (Special)—Visitors to Texas during the Centennial year of 1936 doubtless since childhood would have heard of the buffalo, which once roamed this State and others of the West, but today they will find that few of the former "Lords of the plains" survive. In this connection, it might be well to remember that although Col. Charles Goodnight, plainsman and Texas Ranger, made many contributions to the colorful life of the South west, which will be memorialized by forthcoming celebrations at San Antonio, Houston, Goliad, Benham, Nacogdoches, Huntsville, Gonzales, Galveston, Dallas and other cities, it is the fact that he preserved the buffalo from extinction that has brought him the most renown among people of the present day. On the ranch, which he founded in 1887 at Goodnight, near the Palo Duro canyon, there is at present the finest herd of buffalo in the world. The owners of the ranch are continuing after Colonel Goodnight's death to maintain the herd, and the place attracts many visitors.

The love of scouting and the technique of plainscraft were the breath of life to Colonel Goodnight, and so doughty and clever was he that his name had become a household word along with those of other great frontiersmen, who scouted the length and breadth of Texas and left accounts of bloody warfare with outlaws and Indians, hunger and thirst. After the establishment of the Republic of Texas, the bloody attacks of Indians in the west caused outposts of white settlers to be driven back until they rested again in the shelter of the timbered zone. So in 1862 the State of Texas attempted to stem the backward movement of the frontier by the organization of the Frontier regiment of Texas Rangers. Its scattered squads were stationed along the outside of the frontier settlements from the Red River to the Rio Grande.

A company of these under the command of Capt. J. J. Cureton was stationed at old Fort Belnap and one young member of it was Charles Goodnight. They protected the settlers from marauding Indians and outlaws coming from the vast and unexplored plains country.

From the Rio Grande north to the northern edge of the plains, the rangers generally found water and game. But beyond that, to the north, only a scout who knew the land as only those with uncanny instinct of the plains knew it could expect anything but death. Colonel Goodnight was one of those scouts who knew the plains to the grassroots.

The Indians were clever fighters and no system of patrolling the frontier could on all occasions save the settlers from their raids, so the Rangers, during the War between the States, decided not to wait for the Indians, but to do battle themselves. Thus the frontier was gradually pushed to the West.

After his career as a scout and Ranger, Colonel Goodnight became a rancher. He lived at Goodnight until his death in 1929.

Fourth Test In Andrews Planned

A derrick is going up in section 11 block A35 for the fourth test of the Humble Oil and Refining Company in the new northern Andrews county field.

The Humble Company's No. 2 R. M. Means, three quarters of extension to the discovery well in the field, has plugged off sulphur water encountered in soft lime 4,625 feet.

The well was put on the swab Monday afternoon showing oil free of water, indicating water at the bottom of the hole had been cut off.

The company shot the well with 100 quarts of nitro-glycerine Tuesday afternoon at a depth from 4,445 to 4,565 feet. The shot caused the well to bridge and considerable cleaning out will be necessary before any definite test can be had. The well made several heads during the night showing an increase of both gas and "Why ...

I never knew that before!"

Scarcely a day passes that we do not hear this or some similar expression of complete surprise when some feature of the Gas Radiant Heater is demonstrated. Many, for instance, are astonished at its amazing efficiency... how it utilizes and consumes every particle of gas; leaving not even the slightest trace of odor... how it sends an instant flood of glowing heat to the far corners of the room... how simply and easily it may be adjusted to whatever room temperature is desired at the moment.

There are styles and colors to suit any decorative scheme. See your gas appliance dealer.

Should Prevent Spread of Disease

Austin, Nov. 6.—Speaking of the precautions that should be taken in households, during and at the close of an illness from any of the "catching" diseases, which are prevalent at all seasons, Dr. John W. Brown, State Health Officer, said recently: "Any plan for the prevention or control of this sort, depends upon the intelligent cooperation of individuals and communities with the medical profession and the health authorities for its success."

"Those who are in charge of persons suffering from influenza, pneumonia, tuberculosis, scarlet fever, measles, infantile paralysis or any other of the diseases spread by discharges from the nose or throat are warned that those discharges are sources of great danger, and are urged to have the patient use paper handkerchiefs or soft cheesecloth, that can be disinfected or burned or otherwise safely disposed of."

"The sterilization of dishes and utensils used in the sick room, by boiling after each use of them, and of the patient's clothing, sheets, towels, and pillow cases are equally necessary. Then, at the close of the illness, a thorough cleaning of the room, bedding and personal belongings of the patient, scrubbing the floors and woodwork, and opening the place to the fresh air and sunlight, are urged as a final precautionary measure."

"Fortunately, the best disinfectants yet discovered are within the reach of everybody. They are plenty of hot water and soap, fresh air and sunshine."

Tornadoes Swamp Tahoka 59 to 0

The Golden Tornadoes hung up their seventh consecutive victory of the season last Friday afternoon when they pummeled a resounding 59-0 defeat on the Tahoka Bulldogs in a game played at Tahoka.

The game was played during a heavy sandstorm and that combined with the dust flung up by the high-flying Tornadoes really made a bad game of it for the Bulldogs.

Scoring 14 points in the first two minutes of play when the Tornadoes blocked a Tahoka punt for a touch-down and on the next kick-off recovering the kick-off for another score, the Tornadoes were never slowed down. The Tornadoes scored twice more in the first quarter, and then proceeded to play straight football the rest of the game to score the rest of their points.

The second string played practically all of the second half.

The Tornadoes played with their full strength for the first time this season in this game and their showing was indeed a pleasure to the few Tornado fans who braved the hard winds and sand to see the game.

The Tornadoes will engage the Slaton Tigers in a game Monday afternoon that will probably decide the championship of this district.

When the Fair president, Rufus Dawes, threw a switch at midnight last Wednesday, October 31, the Century of Progress Exposition closed a regular Fourth of July blaze of glory.

As he threw the switch, the vivid colors which started the country at first sight of the World's Fair blinked out, and a half million pieces of fireworks hung a dazzling curtain between the Fair and Lake Michigan.

That was the closing spectacle of the exposition's two years' run. During that time more than 38,565,000 persons visited the Fair, and approximate cost of the entertainment was $88,000,000.00.

A Few Are Still Cutting Weeds

Still a few of our people are cutting weeds on vacant lots. More weeds ought to be cut. If every person in Lamesa had hay fever they all would be out after these weeds. Think about your neighbor and cut the weeds. If you are not in financial position to cut your weeds ask the city. They have a plan whereby every weed in the city on vacant lots can be cut and they will be glad to explain it to you.

DO YOU WANT TO WRITE?

If you have a longing to write short stories the United States government is prepared to help you develop your talent as a story writer in a way never before offered. Our government has launched a program of adult education for every one who may be interested in taking one or more of the courses offered. These courses are free to all as the government courses are free to all as the government only cost per pupil being the price of a textbook and in the short story writing course, paper and pen. Some people think these government sponsored courses are for those on the relief rolls only, but this is a mistake; anyone over 18 years of age who wishes to do so may enroll for one or more of these courses.

Mrs. Eaidie L. Slover, the author of numerous published stories, articles and poems, will teach the short story, its history, form, structure and writing for Dawson county providing a sufficient number of adults can be interested to justify the government in establishing this department.

Mrs. Slover is able to help develop your talent for writing, and as soon as you write a salable story she will advise you how and where to sell it. If you think you would like to write, this course may be of great value to you. When the nation sheds its shabby old coat of depression there is going to be a greater demand than ever before for magazines and newspaper stories and articles. Pre-

DELPHIAN SOCIETY

Delphian Club Has Interesting Meeting About Indians

The regular meeting of the Delphian Club was held Tuesday evening at 7:30. Various business was attended to. The Delphians voted to sponsor a flower show next year in connection with their annual observance of Art Week. Mention was made of a letter of appreciation from Mrs. Volney Taylor, State Club president, saying that the song written by Mrs. E. R. Yates would be used at the state meeting by the Junior Delphians.

The program topic for the meeting was "The Indians of Texas". Indian dances directed by Loretta Rainey Travis and accompanied by Mrs. Russell Clark were an exact reproduction of Two Dancing Doves in the Indian pageant at Albuquerque, N. M., in 1932. The dance is an important part of the Indians religion. He dances for rain, hunting and war. By analyzing these dances one is able to see a great deal of meaning. The War and the rain dances were done by Katy Lee Bandle, Paula Vaughn, Kent Morgan, Russell Clark, and the chief, Charles Jacobs. The costumeing effectively took the guests back to the camp fire where the noble chieftains once sat in counsel.

A deeper interest as well as a greater appreciation of Texas History was developed by Mrs. Zachary Davis, whose subject was "Spanish Attempts to Civilize the Indians." and Mrs. A. E. Jacobs with "Indians around San Antonio. Two readings of Indian history were given by Mrs. Eldrid Travis, "Eulogy of Flaco" by Sam Houston and "Yo Konah" by Faie Baker Daiden.

The club house was decorated with Indian relics and pictures. An especially interesting Indian costume owned by Mrs. Davis was bought in Guatemala. A beautiful Indian blanket was displayed by Mrs. E. F. Cole. Mrs. Jacobs furnished an Indian woven pillow and painted jar for the occasion. The pictures were supplied by Mrs. Yates and Mrs. Davis.

Hallowe'en Party At Goldsmith School

The Goldsmith community was entertained last Tuesday evening with a Hallowe'en party given at the school house with Mrs. Stanton Brunson hostess.

The Hallowe'en theme was beautifully carried out in the decorations of the rooms, and gypsies, pirates, witches, and ghosts lived again in costume. "Bobbing" for apples was new again and a treasure hunt caused much merriment. Several games were played and a ghost story was read. Fortunes were told by a weird looking witch, who stirred them from a black pot. Tragedy had been enacted on the way to the party when a cat was run over and completely torn up and the parts had to be identified, causing laughter and merriment.

Delicious pie and cocoa were served. Dainty favors were pumpkin cut outs on toothpicks.

Guests from out of the community were Wm. E. Denton of Stanton, Mr. and Mrs. Dewey Gilbert and children and friends of Moores Hill and a group of young people from the Hagen community.

ROBBERS' ROOST

Jack's table of cottonwood poles. Jim had separated his money into two parts—one consisting of the bills of large denomination, and the other of small. The latter he kept out for gambling, intending to quit when it was lost.

But fortune was fickle. He did not lose it. Instead, he won, steadily. There was no hope of his getting out of the game so long as he was ahead. He wanted to watch, think, plan. Luck changed eventually, and he lost all he had won. Then he ceased for a day, before he struck another streak of losing, and lost everything.

"I'm cleaned," he said, rising. "But, by gosh, I gave you a run."

"I'm way ahead. I'll lend you some," offered Hays.

"No, thanks. I'm glad to get off this well. I'll go up to the rock and send Mac down. From now on I'll do most of the lookout work. I like it."

Jim was glad this phase of his connection with the outfit was past. He had played for days, won and lost, all in the interest of the scheme fermenting in his mind. He wanted to be alone. If nothing else intervened, this gambling would lead to the inevitable quarrel. Whether Hays won all the money or lost what he had, there would be a fight.

At once a restless, baffled, harried condition of mind seemed to leave Jim. To face those men-hour after hour, day after day, hiding his thoughts, had engendered irritation. When the split came and the shooting began Jim wanted to be around. He would help it along considerably. One day, when he was returning to camp, somewhat before sunset, he heard a shot. He listened for others. None came.

The moment he entered the oval, to see Hays striding for the cabin, his hair standing up, and his men grouped outside of the camp shelter, Jim knew that there had been trouble!

"What now, Smoky?"

"Hank did for Brad."

"How? Why? . . . You don't mean Hays beat Lincoln to a gun?"

"He did, Jim," ejaculated Smokey. "He bored Brad. I was the only feller who seen it. The rest was duckin'."

"What was it about, Smoky?"

"Wal, Brad has been gettin' sorer every day, an' today we cleaned him. Brad opened up on Hank, no doubt meanin' to call him fer fair. But Brad didn't git goin' good before Hank went for his gun."

"Smoky, he had his mind made up," declared Jim, tensely.

"Shore. That's the queer part of it. Hank was not goin' to let Brad spit out much. . . . An' friend Jim, that's a hunch fer us."

"Hays can't beat me to a gun," rejoined Jim, with a cold ring in his voice.

"Nor me either. That's a safe bet."

They reached the camp. Lincoln lay face down over the table, his right arm hanging low, his gun lying near his hand.

"Lend a hand, some of you," ordered Smokey, peremptorily.

They carried Lincoln, face down, across the oval to the lower side of the cottonwood grove, and in half an hour he had been consigned to earth, and his possessions divided among the men who had buried him.

"Grave number two!" speculated Smoky. "Fellers, it runs in my mind that Robbers' Roost in these next twenty years will be sprinkled all over with graves."

"How so, when nobody has any idee where it is?"

"Hessman will find it, an' Morley, an' after them many more," concluded Smokey, prophetically.

"Let's rustle out of the hole," suggested Bridges.

CHAPTER IX

It was dark by the time Happy Jack called them to supper. Jim carried over an armload of brush to make a bright fire. By its flare Hays was seen approaching, and when he drew near he said: "Jim, did they tell you straight how I come to draw on Brad?"

"Reckon they did," replied Jim, coldly.

"Anythin' to say?"

"No. I don't see how you could have acted any different."

"Wal, you've coppered it with the ace. The second Brad jumped me I seen in his eyes he meant to egg me on to draw. So I did it quick. . . . Jack, what you got for supper?"

By tacit consent and without a single word the men avoided Happy Jack's table that night and ate around the camp fire. Hays stood up, Smoky sat on a stone, Jim knelt on one knee, and the others adopted characteristic poses reminiscent of the trail.

"Cool after the rain," remarked Hays, after he had finished. And he took up a blazing log of wood. "Reckon I'll make a little fire fer my lady prisoner."

He stalked away, waving the ragot to keep it ablaze.

"I seen her last night when he called me to fetch her supper," said Jack. "Fust time I'd had a peek at her face lately. Seemed a ghost of that other girl."

"Yes, and you fellows saw only a ghost of the money Hays got from the Herricks," retorted Jim, dividing the moment for revelation had come.

An angry roar arose. Smoky threw up his hands and left the camp fire. Then Jim, in brief, cold terms, exposed the machinations of their chief. After the first outburst they accepted the disclosure in astounded and ominous silence. Jim passed off into the darkness.

Some time during the night he was awakened. As he lay there, eyes open, a soft hand touched his cheek and a whisper brought him wide awake, transfixed and thrilling.

"Jim! . . . Wake up. It is I."

Helen knelt beside him. Jim sat up with a violent start.

"You! . . . What is it? Has that devil—"

"Hush! Not so loud. Nothing has happened. . . . But I couldn't sleep—and I must talk to you—or go out of my mind."

In the starlight her face had the same pearl-white tint as the clouds.

"All right. Talk—but it's risky," he whispered huskily. His hand rested upon the blanket.

She bent lower, so that her face was closer, and she could whisper very softly:

"First I want to tell you how cruelly it has come home to me—my ignorance, my failure to believe and trust you, even after you—so rudely insulted me that day up on the mountain trail. If I had only had faith in you then! It's too late. But I want you to know I have the faith now. Only the fear and the suspense are wearing me out."

"But you are well—all right still? He has not harmed you?"

Helen:

"No, he has not harmed me, and I am not ill. I'm losing flesh because I can't eat. But that's nothing. . . . Lately I don't sleep because I'm horribly afraid he will come—and smother me—or choke me—so I can't cry out. I've slept some in the daytime. . . . Jim, the thing is I—can't stand it much longer. I think I frightened him. But I can see—I can feel—Oh, Jim, for G—d's sake, do something to end—this horror—"

She leaned or fell forward in the weakness of the moment, her head against him. He stroked it gently, his reaction as far from that passionate and mocking embrace at Star ranch as could have been possible.

"Helen, don't—give up," he replied. "You have been brave. And it has gone—better than we could hope. . . . Only a little while longer!"

"We might steal away—now."

"Yes. I've thought of that. But only to get lost and starve—or die of thirst in these brakes."

"That almost—would be better—for me."

"If you can't stick it out we'll plan and go—say tomorrow night. We must have food, horses. . . . It's honest, though, to tell you the chances are a hundred to one against us. . . . We've got an even break if we wait."

"How can you—think that?"

"This gang is about ready to go up in smoke. There'll be a terrible fight. Hays surely will be killed. And just as surely, more than he. That will leave a proposition I can handle without risk to you."

"Even then—we still have to find a way out of this awful place."

"Yes, but I'd have time, and I could pack water and food. . . . Helen, trust me, it's the best plan."

"If you take me back to my brother, I'll give you the ransom."

"Don't insult me," he replied, bitterly.

At that she drew up suddenly, and threw her hair back from her face.

"Forgive me. . . . You see, I have lost my mind. That never occurred to me before. But I'll reward you in some way."

"To have saved you will be all the reward I ask—and more than I deserve. . . . You have forgotten that I love you."

"Yes—I had," she whispered. Her great eyes studied him in the starlight as if the fact had a vastly different significance here than it did had at Star ranch.

Suddenly she stiffened, no doubt at the slight sound that had checked her speech. She put a hand over his lips and stared at him with wide vague eyes.

Over her shoulder Jim's eye was arrested by a glint of starlight upon a bright object on the ground. Above and behind it a shape darker than the dark background, gradually took the outline of a man on hands and knees. Cold terror assailed Jim Wall, despite his iron nerve. That was Hays crawling upon them with a gun in his hand.

A bursting tide of blood through Jim's veins paralleled the lightning flash of his thoughts. Death for both of them was terribly close. His gun was under his pillow. Helen knelt between him and the robber. A move of even the slightest kind would be fatal. Canning must take precedence of action.

"It's Hays," he whispered, scarcely audibly. "Follow me—now." Then, exerting all his will to speak naturally, he said aloud: "No, Miss Herrick, I'm sorry, but I can't oblige you. I don't approve of Hays' kidnaping you, but it's done. And I'm a member of his band. I would not think of going against him, let alone trying to run off with you."

There was a tense silence, fraught with much apprehension for Jim. Would she be able to play up to him? There was just a chance that Hays had not heard any of their whispers, in which case it was possible to deceive him. Helen comprehended. It was Jim Wall's privilege then to see the reaction of a woman at a perilous moment.

"I'll give you the ransom money," she said, quite clearly, and certainly most persuasively. "My brother will reward you otherwise."

"You can't bribe me," he rejoined. "And I wouldn't advise you to try it on Smoky or any of the others."

"Hays may have had only money in his mind at first, but now—"

"Don't move, Jim!" came a low, hard voice from the shadow.

Helen gave a little gasp and sagged on her knees. Jim waited a moment.

"I won't, Hank," he replied.

Then Hays' tall form loomed black above the rise of ground. He strode forward. If he had sheathed his gun, Jim would have made short work of that interview. But he held it half leveled, glancing darkly in the starlight.

The robber chief razed down upon Jim and Helen. His features were indistinguishable, but the poise of his head was expressive enough. Still Jim sensed that he had been misled.

"You cat!" he declared, roughly. "If I ketch you again—tryin' to bribe any of my outfit—I'll treat you so you won't want to go back to your baby-faced brother. . . . Now you git to your tent!"

Helen rose unsteadily and vanished in the gloom.

"Jim Wall, you ain't been with me long, an' I don't know you, but I'm takin' this deal to heart," Hays said slowly. "I'm much obliged. I reckon you're the only man in the outfit who could of withstood that woman."

"No, you're wrong Hank. Smoky wouldn't have listened to her. And I'm sure the others would have stood pat."

"My faith was near gone."

"That's in you, Hank. You've no call to lose it. You've about split your gang over this woman."

"Wal, I'm not askin' judgments from you or any of the outfit," growled the chief gloomily. "You'll all be good an' glad to git your share of the ransom."

"The thing is—boss—will we get it?"

Hays made a violent move like a striking snake. "What you mean by that?"

"I'm askin' you."

"Air you insinuatin' you mightn't git yours?" demanded Hays.

"No. You might say I was askin' for all of 'em," replied Jim curtly.

"Wal, I'll git 'em together an' do some—air—myself."

"If a good idea, it might prevent the split—provided you divide the money you stole from Herrick."

"I'll bring that white cat's neck hissed the robber."

"You're wrong boss. She didn't tell me. She doesn't know you robbed her brother. Sparrow confessed before he died."

Hays swore a mighty oath. "An' he squealed!"

"Yes. To Smoky an' me. We kept it secret until we had to tell. They knew somethin' was wrong."

"All the time you knowed!" There was something pathetic in the falterin' chief's shame and amazement. By this time he seemed to realize his crime.

"You see, Hank, how your outfit has stood by you, even in your guilt."

"Abah! . . . If it ain't too late—"

Mr. King and the band performed in their uniforms Tuesday morning in the assembly period.

For the Wednesday assembly program, Rev. Surface substituted for Rev. Thomas, who found it impossible to appear at that time. Rev. Surface gave a very interesting address on Halloween, giving its history and significance.

The Sophomore class presented a negro wedding as their monthly program Thursday morning. The characters were: Minister, Perry Cox; Bride, Kathleen Webb, groom, Johnnie Smith; best man, Earl Jacobs; groom's man, Victor Crawley; brides maid, Mary Jo Forrest; bride's father, Homer Simpson; ring bearer, Harold Williams; flower girl, Maxine Speck.

The band played and the pep squad yelled and sang Friday morning.

Mrs. J. R. Flanniken presented her pupils in a piano recital Saturday night in the Elementary school auditorium. Several high school as well as several elementary school pupils appeared.

October was Fire Prevention month, with a certain week for detailed fire prevention work. A portion of the student body made posters, wrote stories, and wrote poems with "Fire Prevention" as their theme.

Next week has been designated as Education Week over the nation. Appropriate programs will be given in the community, elementary school and High School.

Heretofore, the Lamesa High School has had no representatives in the Latin and Spanish tournaments held each spring in Lubbock. This year, however, Miss Rice has no intentions of sending teams to compete in these two events. There will be two representatives from each class Latin I and II and Spanish I and II. Try-outs will be held here to determine the eight students who will compete.

The Home Economics Department received ten dollars worth of dishes, pots and pans last week.

The graduating class of 1934 provided another trophy case for the Lamesa High School. The first case was provided by the class of 1929 and was thought to be adequate for several years. But the school represents consistently for the past five years that the first case has been completely filled and awards were without display space. The class of 1934 recognized the need for additional space and purchased a case eight feet long, plate glass top, made of natural colored oak wood, with a single shelf in addition to the bottom. The new case is made in proper height and width dimensions to fit in properly and to match trimmings in the auditorium and corridor.

The special train to Slaton is scheduled to leave Lamesa on Monday at 12:30 P. M. and to arrive in Slaton in plenty of time for the game to begin at 3:30 o'clock. Departure from Slaton will be made immediately after the game and the train should arrive back in Lamesa around seven o'clock. The high school and elementary school are buying tickets rapidly and a large number of fans are also securing tickets necessary to ride the special. The football team, pep squad and band will also ride the special.

Mrs. J. H. Pierce, Mrs. Kay Williams and Mr. and Mrs. Harry Beushausen spent a few days this week in Dallas.

Woody Box Supper Nets School $45.00

The box supper at the Woody school last Friday night was a success in that sufficient funds were raised to care for all needed expense, for which the entertainment was given. The money will be spent for athletic awards and supplies, honor awards and Christmas tree expense.

Judge Philip Yonge auctioned the boxes. The Lions Club was represented by Dr. Harrington and the Luncheon Club by Mr. Guy Weekes.

A committee composed of the school board members, Mr. Vinzant and Mr. Morris, has been appointed to interview merchants for the purpose of buying Christmas candies, apples and nuts for the community Christmas tree.

The cooperation of the community in making the box supper a success, shows evidence of a superior community spirit.

Lamesa Ranks Well In Achievement Test

Last year at the close of school, the seventh grade of the Lamesa Elementary School participated in a state-wide testing program in which comprehensive achievement tests were given covering the subjects studied in this grade. Two hundred and thirty-two schools participated in the testing program and the comparative results were disclosed by the State Department of Education a few weeks ago.

The Lamesa school ranked well in most subjects and especially in English, Parts of Speech, in which the local school ranked first out of the 232 schools. Ranks in other subjects were as follows: United States history, sixth; Arithmetic Reasoning, twenty-first; Arithmetic computation, twenty-third; Citizenship, thirty-first and reading fifty-fifth.

Subjects in which our rank was comparatively low were Spelling, Sanitation and Hygiene, Geography, and Correct Use of Words. On the test as a whole, the Lamesa school ranked seventy-fifth.

Schools participating in the testing program ranged in size from the small rural schools to large city schools such as Abilene, Sweetwater, Beaumont, Plainview, and parts of San Antonio. The State Superintendent of Public Instruction desires that this testing movement be continued from year to year. Efforts are being made to strengthen the local seventh grades in those subjects in which they were found weak.

Three Lamesa pupils ranking highest in total scores on these tests were Morris Abernathy, Buddy Glover and Doyle Sears.

J. W. Gates of Coleman was a guest Sunday in the home of Mr. and Mrs. M. Q. Martin.

Local Firm Named by Goodrich to sell their New LIFE-SAVING TIRE

THE B. F. Goodrich Rubber Company has appointed us dealers for the new Goodrich Safety Silvertown Tire. This is the tire with the Life-Saver Golden Ply, the remarkable Goodrich invention that prevents blowouts. Today's high speeds—40, 50, 60 and 70 miles an hour generate terrific heat inside your tires. This heat causes rubber and fabric to separate. A blister starts . . . and grows . . . bigger and bigger—until BANG—a blow-out! And what happens then isn't pleasant to think about.

How New Invention Prevents Blow-outs FREE...

The new Goodrich Life-Saver Golden Ply is designed to overcome this hazard. It resists the most terrific internal heat. Rubber and fabric don't separate. Thus blisters don't form inside the tire. Blow-outs are prevented by overcoming their CAUSE.

This handsome Safety League Emblem with red crystal reflector to protect you if your car light goes out. No obligation—nothing to buy. Just join the Silvertown Safety League at our store.

No extra charge for Golden Ply. Goodrich Silvertown blow-out protection is free.
