Japs Launch Fresh Attack To Crush Chinese Lines

Threat Of Chinese Offensive Looming; Warnings Issued By Defenders For Foreign Ships

Japs Throw All Available Men, Tanks, Guns And Planes At Tenacious Army Of China; Mass Attack At Hongkew Now Expected; Heavy Artillery Barrage Makes Going Hard

SHANGHAI, Feb. 25.—(Thursday) (AP)—Threat of a Chinese offensive to smash Japanese lines and block the landing of more troops from Japan drove the Nipponese forces against the massed defenders of Kiangwan today in redoubled effort to gain the upper hand.

The Japanese threw all available men, guns, tanks, and airplanes into the attack without waiting for their fresh soldiers to aid them in the push that has been turned back for the last five days.

The Chinese today warned foreign shipping away from the Japanese military base on the Whangpoo—a step that was taken as notification that they were determined to stop with guns the Japanese effort to land two divisions of army reinforcements.

Some military observers expected that the Chinese would seize the offensive with a mass attack on the Japanese positions in Hongkew, hoping to clean them up before the enemy's strength was doubled by incoming units already reported on the way.

Consuls Are Warned

All foreign consuls were asked by the Chinese authorities to get their nationals out of all sections of Shanghai close to the Hongkew strongholds without delay.

Taking no chances about possibility the Chinese were concentrating for an assault, the Japanese laid down a terrific bombardment in Chapei before dawn broke.

The shells started numerous fires and soon there was a tremendous conflagration which raged unchecked, lighting up the horizon north of the settlement. The flames consumed numerous buildings over a wide area.

Meanwhile in the Kiangwan-Miachangchen sector both Chinese and Japanese worked feverishly to strengthen their entrenchments. The Chinese machine gunners and sharpshooters stationed in the village of Kiangwan appeared to be sending up signals for food and ammunition.

Prisoners Taken

Both the Chinese and Japanese on this front apparently awaited reinforcements before they started anything.

The Chinese triumphantly issued a communique asserting that during yesterday's action they took a number of prisoners and one of them was .. battalion commander.

The action of the Chinese in requesting foreign consuls to move their nationals away from the vicinity of Hongkew was accepted as another indication a drive was to be started to clear out the area before

Farley Ousted As Sheriff In New York City

Powerful Tammany Chief Gets Walking Papers; Roosevelt Defies Political Group In Making Decision

(By The Associated Press)

ALBANY, Feb. 24. — Governor Franklin D. Roosevelt ousted Sheriff Thomas M. Farley of New York today holding a sweeping statement on the stewardship of public office that the Tammany hall leader had failed to explain satisfactorily bank deposits in excess of $350,000.

The governor, who is a candidate for the presidency, removed Farley, kingpin in the organization controlling almost half of New York's Democratic convention delegation, on the basis of one of several charges brought by Samuel Seabury.

The accusations of Seabury, an independent, arose from Farley's testimony before the legislative committee investigating the municipal government of New York City. Seabury is counsel to the committee.

Must Give Proof

In a broad pronouncement Roosevelt said it is in the true spirit of a public trust for office holders to give, when personally called upon, public proof of the nature, source and extent of their financial affairs.

At another point he said one of their (public officers,) "deep obligations is to recognize this, not reluctantly or with resistance, but freely.

Seabury branded Farley a grafter and last week presented evidence of a hearing before Gov. Roosevelt to show that the sheriff in five years had deposited $362,500 in various banks.

Famous Flier Sets Trim Ship Down At Local Port

Wiley Post, Round-The-World Flier, Pays An Unexpected Overnight Call In City

BY BOB McCALL
Avalanche Staff Writer

WHEN a trim scarlet biplane set down at Lubbock municipal airport Wednesday afternoon, its tail-skid kicking up dust-clouds, none of the spectators or flying field attendants suspected the arrrival of Wiley Post, stocky member of the Post - Gatty round - the - world team. Post and two friends, one a son-in-law of the Oklahoma oil operator who financed the globe-girdling flight, climbed out of the ship.

WILEY POST

The short, almost portly pilot squirmed out of a light brown overcoat, after lifting off helmet and goggles, and walked slowly to the airport. He and the two younger men talked of wolves seen from the air.

"That one was a fox," the flyer corrected.

Soon the heavily set man had registered as "Wiley Post, Oklahoma City," not troubling to fill other blanks, except to write "same" for the plane owner's name. Persons who felt they had recognized a familiar something about him pointed to the angular signature and other bystanders hawked forward.

Hair Is Graying

Post wore a brown suit, a blue shirt with white pin-stripes, a dark blue polka-dot tie, and black oxfords. His tousled shock of brown hair had a trace of gray, his fleshy face was ruddy, retaining creases from the goggles, an done brown eye was cocked irregularly. The flyer was an oil field worker when an accident caused its loss of sight. His mustache was Chaplin-like. His hearing possibly had been affected by a motor's drone.

Post and Harold Gatty flew around the world in 8 days 15 hours, 51 minutes in 1931 in a Lockheed-Vega monoplane. Their total flying time was 4 days.

The Oklahoman, a former mail pilot, has no particular impression of that record-making trick of winging 'round the globe. He saw much he flew over, "but it was instantly forgotten."

Was Worth It

"I saw more territory, and know less about it, than anybody else in the same length of time," he reflected.

"It was worth it," Post declared, emphatic for the first time, when asked if he had not found success of the flight dull as compared to his hopes.

Words tumbling out, he exclaimed: "I thought it could be done." The fellow smiled like a boy whose spirit shouts "I triumph" and whose mind counsels "be modest."

Evades Questions

Commercial possibilities? Monetary gain? Post evaded those questions like an airman dodges mountain. fog He had made "some" mon-

SIR MALCOLM CAMPBELL
See Story To Right

Campbell Races His Bluebird 253.968 Miles Per Hour

BY TED GILL

DAYTONA BEACH, Fla., Feb. 24. (AP)—Sir Malcolm Campbell of England, today wrote another thrilling chapter to his years of racing history by hanging up a new world's automobile speed record of 253.968 miles an hour over a mile route.

The 47-year-old driver who has been blazing new speed marks down the "roaring road" for a quarter of a century, drove his 12-cylinder Bluebird car twice over the ocean course to surpass by 8.235 miles an hour his former record of 245.733 established in the same car here last year.

Attains High Speed

On his first run, made southward over the beach, Sir Malcolm attained the speed of 267.45 miles an hour. He shot back northward over the beach at a speed of 241.773.

He covered the mile on his first run in 13.46 seconds and flashed across that distance on his second trial in 14.89 seconds for an average time 14.17 seconds for both runs.

In establishing a new record over the mile, Campbell clipped .47 of a second off his old record.

Sir Malcom said he was not satisfied with his new record and that if beach conditions are suitable, he probably will make an attempt tomorrow to boost it even higher. He hopes to be able to make a record of 260 or 265 miles an hour.

Aside from Estacodo this was the only store on the South Plains for several years."

The marble is donated by Marvin Collier and the inscription is signed by R. C. Burns, pioneer Lubbock county resident. The original store was erected on a part of a 100-acre tract, near the headwaters of the Brazos river, now owned by the city. Built in 1877, the store burned in AUSTIN, Feb. 24. (AP) — Texas' right to valuable oil and gas royalties and bonuses in approximately 8,000,000 acres of school land was made secure by the supreme court today.

Man Attacked By A Mexican

Crosbyton Victim States That He Was Beaten By Mexican At Avenue H Underpass; No Arrest Is Made

E. E. Powell, about 40, of Crosbyton was severely beaten about his head late Wednesday by a Mexican, Powell told police after he received emergency treatment at West Texas hospital.

Powell suffered a gash to the skull on his forehead and a deep gash and bruise on the top of his head. The skull was not believed to be fractured. The Crosbyton man told police he was attacked by a Mexican near the underpass on Avenue H. He said the attack was unprovoked. A blunt instrument was used. Police and the sheriff's department reported last night they had arrested no one the injured man was able to identify as his assailant.

H. B. Atkins, a farmer of Route No. 2 Lubbock, was treated at West Texas hospital yesterday afternoon after a 20-foot fall from a windmill tower. The attending physician said Atkins, who struck the ground first with his feet, suffered a separation of his hip and spine. It will be necessary for him to spend six or eight weeks in a brace.

Tech Regents Busy All Day In Meet Here

Committee Is To Confer Soon With Board Of Education To Uphold School's First Rank Among State Institutions

Probe Is Deferred

Campbell Charges To Come Up When Hulen, Investigation Chairman, Can Be On Hand; Congress' Aid Sought

WELCOMING an opportunity which will soon be accorded them to appear before the State Board of Education, in the belief that they may then refresh the state's mind of the fact that Tech is a college of the first rank and completing various other tasks which confronted them, members of the Board of Regents of Texas Technological college held an all day session here Wednesday.

The board decided that a committee, to be headed by Chairman Clifford B. Jones, Spur, and President Paul W. Horn, would be appointed to confer with the Board of Education in Austin, at which time discussion will cover the relative standing of Texas Tech in comparison with other state institutions of higher learning.

To Impress Citizenship

At that time the committee will seek to impress Texas citizens with the fact that the bill establishing the college here specifically set Tech forth as a school of the first rank, serving all the state especially in providing the highest type of technical training in the manufacture of textiles and the turning of Texas' raw materials into manufactured products, in instruction of engineering; to train students in the handling of agricultural problems of West Texas; and to generally educate the youth of this area.

Charges recently made against certain college faculty members by Rev. R. C. Campbell, pastor of Lubbock's First Baptist church were not heard by the regents in their session yesterday. Major General John A. Hulen, of Ft. Worth, head of a regents committee named to investigate the pastor's allegations, was absent and action on this matter was deferred.

Investigation Soon

Until two days ago it was thought that General Hulen could be at the meeting, at which time he and the other two members of the committee John W. Carpenter, Dallas, and

Damages Of $2,000 Awarded To Pair By Court In City

Damages amounting to $2,000 were awarded by a jury in 72nd district court Wednesday afternoon to Mrs. Maggie Hale and her husband, J. M. Hale, who had brought suit for $2,500 against the Western Union Telegraph company after alleged delay of a telegram in May, 1930.

The verdict was based on special issues. Judge Homer L. Pharr read the charge to the jury late Tuesday and attorneys' arguments were heard Wednesday morning, the case going to the jurors at about noon. The message alleged delayed was in reply to a death message, Mrs. Hale claiming the delay of the telegram resulted in her not being able to attend the funeral services for her father near Mineola.

College Co-Ed Is Found Dead By Two Youths

Body Stripped Of All Clothes Except Narrow Band Of Silk Across Back; Missing From Home 24 Hours

(By The Associated Press)

PHILADELPHIA, Feb. 24.—Missing 24 hours, Miss Else Flothmeier, 22, college student and daughter of a minister, was found dead today in a field in the extreme northeast section of the city.

Police were unable to determine immediately how she had met death.

Stripped of all clothing except a narrow band of silk across her back, the body was found in a shallow ditch by two boys who were aiding police in a search for the young woman.

Miss Flothmeier disappeared yesterday afternoon soon after she left her father, the Rev. Frederick Flothmeier, pastor of the Tabor Lutheran church, to take a walk through a small park nearby. The spot where she was found is half a mile away.

Clothing Is Found

Her clothing was found hanging on a bush about 200 yards from the body. The back showed scratches, indicating, police said, she may have been dragged over the frozen ground.

Police said their theory she was attacked and slain was strengthened by information given by Mrs. Helen Soiters, whose home is about 200 yards from where the body was found.

"About 7 o'clock last night," she said, "I distinctly heard a woman's scream and then another sound that might have been a man's voice. It seemed to come from the direction of the field, but it was so dark I decided not to investigate." Other members of the family said they also had heard the noises.

REDUCTION ORDERED

WASHINGTON, Feb. 24. (AP)—Because of the emergency situation facing stockmen, Secretary Hyde today announced a 50 per cent reduction in grazing fees in national forests in 1932.

Bandit Guns Spout Death But Officer Slays Two Before He Falls; Dies En Route To City

Two Purported Members Of Oklahoma Desperado Gang Killed And J. M. Clifton, Lea County Deputy, Dies In Plane On Way To Lubbock; Wife Is Unaware Of Fatal Outcome

A COURAGEOUS, straight-shooting New Mexico peace officer exchanged his life for those of two purported members of Charles (Pretty Boy) Floyd's Oklahoma bandit gang in a gun battle near Cross Roads, N. M., fifteen miles north of Tatum, shortly before noon Wednesday.

Twelve hours after Deputy Sheriff J. M. Clifton, 28, of Lea county shot to death Walter Carlocke, Healdton, Okla., and John O'Dell, Hobbs, N. M., the officer died in an airplane en route from Tatum, N. M. to Lubbock. Two planes from the Lubbock municipal airport and a third from Roswell figured in the desperate effort to save Clifton's life.

Late last night Mrs. Clifton, with friends, was enroute to Lubbock, unaware of her husband's death. Mrs. W. D. Jacobs, Bledsoe, her mother, was at Lubbock airport when Pilot J. C. Barnett landed the plane here last night.

Were No Witnesses

There are no surviving witnesses to the triple slaying. Clifton it was learned here, was following Carlocke and O'Dell, whom he believed to be men who robbed a Lovington hardware store Tuesday night.

He caught up with them at Cross Roads, and after forcing their car to the roadside, stepped from his car. When the officer had disarmed one of the desperadoes, the other opened fire. He returned the gunfire and killed them both before he collapsed at the side of his automobile. Clifton fired three times—each taking effect in vital places.

Carlocke, Sheriff Beverly of Lea county said last night, was wanted for a Waurika, Okla., bank robbery, and O'Dell is believed to have been an escaped convict from an Oklahoma penitentiary. Both men are known by Lubbock county sheriff's department.

Wounded Three Times

The officer was wounded three times—twice through the left arm and once through the stomach. Shock and hemorrhages from this last wound caused his death, said Dr. F. C. Scott, Lovington, who accompanied him here. The bullet entered Clifton's abdomen slightly to the right and about two inches below the center of the stomach. It lodged just beneath the skin in the back.

Clifton was conscious to the last, said the physician. About 30 minutes after he was wounded, he received first medical aid. Efforts to save his life continued until

WIDOW ARRIVES

Mrs. Clifton arrived here at 12:45 a. m. this morning to learn her husband was dead. Members of her party first inquired at Lubbock sanitarium, where they had hoped to find the peace officer undergoing treatment.

May 11 Date Set For Ruth Judd's Death

Convicted Slayer Is Denied A New Trial; Holds Composure But Declares That Two Were Not Murdered

(By The Associated Press)

PHOENIX, Ariz., Feb. 24. — Mrs. Winnie Ruth Judd must hang.

Superior Judge Howard Speakman, denying her a new trial, today passed the sentence of death made mandatory by a jury which had convicted her Feb. 8 of the murder of her former friend, Agnes Anne Leroi. He set May 11, as the date of execution.

"Have you anything to say before sentence is pronounced?" Judge Speakman asked the slender defendant.

Something To Say

"Yes," Mrs. Judd exclaimed sharply, springing to her feet. "Yes, I have something to say.

"Those girls were not killed in their beds. There was no anger, no premeditation.

"And I have this to say: Mr. Dan Kleinman emphatically went into the jury saying things about me. He called me names, vulgar names. He went in there with a feeling of vengeance. He told other people on the jury, 'We will hang that woman or make her talk. I have a friend on the pardon board, and if we give that woman the death penalty, she will talk'."

Eyes Are Flashing

"The time to discuss that has passed," said the court.

Mrs. Judd's eyes flashed. "The county attorney has not presented all the evidence," she charged. "There are things the jury did not know—"

The court ordered her to be seated. But a moment later she again stood before him with impassive face, but nervously fluttering hands, as he intoned, "you shall be hanged by the neck until dead, and may God have mercy on your soul."

Musical Tea And Meeting Of Federation Of Interest To Club Women

The Woman's Angle

BY BLANCHE E. BEAN
Avalanche Woman's Editor

WHILE there is nothing more welcome than letters over here in the woman's department, it hasn't been necessary yet to hire an extra postman to carry the excess mail. Perhaps the invitation hasn't been stressed enough, so this becomes a formal invitation to would-be authors to write out their opinions for publication. If enough write in, this column can be filled with a minimum of effort. You do the writing, I pay the Avalanche-Journal a weekly stipend for the privilege of running it under my cognomen.

So far, most of my correspondents have been without names. However, that probably isn't their fault, it being the privilege of the previous generation to hang titles on the current one. Or perhaps Anonymous is as common here as Jones and Brown!

That old favorite "Rocks and Posies" was considered as a title to displace The Woman's Angle, but after serious thought and considerable debating among staff members, it has been decided that the thing shall simply have a sub-title of The Rockery. The first stone has been cast. The over-worked postman lugged it in with the morning exchanges and it has been duly reproduced. The capitilization is the idea of the author, who writes as follows:

"Dear Miss Bean: Mrs. Anonymous has surely proved a blessing in disguise, she gave you something to "angle" about besides YOURSELF! In the name of SOCIETY rescue the perishing and give the public readable NEWS. Pity the egotism of some newspaper-folk anyway. At last, all have it straight that you are a "spinster" by your choice; an-ex-grad of C. I. A.; a bridge fiend and furthermore, a cub-reporter in the year 1891. Having that matter settled for all time, the public would like to have you and the EDITOR please favor it by columnizing and editorializing on subjects which deal not with I, MY or ME. This will give your distress column another daily filler."

"Call on readers for daily COLUMN (NEWS) donations, whenever favorites fail to send pictures or their personal news scoop. Above all, give POLITICRATS a square deal, they're most all publicity eaters like yourself. Please let us hear if this immunizes you from further attacts of EGOTISM, we'll feel repaid for the effort. Your Batchelor of Arts, Pinto Lentil Legume."

There is a post script: "Kindly pardon this note and will write you a letter next time if this card breaks into print. Also, borrow a paper as it thrills us to read your daily column. You tell us how hard you labor to think up smart news, and tell us you are a BUSINESS WOMAN. Thanks a lot. P. L. L."

Oh, yes, I know, Pinto. There is a lousy column among the exchanges that I read every day just to convince myself it is as lousy as usual.

As to the egotism: Following that Valentine there came an admonition to dispense with some of my cynicism and the police reported a case of mistaken identity that entirely crushed the dear old ego. It seems that the man had read harangue one day and set out to murder me as a protection to the reading public. He got the wrong woman, however.

ALL of this week's contributions were not stones. Thanks are due Garnet Reeves for sending in that cartoon entitled "Us newspaper women don't have it so soft, do we, dearie?"

There was the teacher too, who is reminded of that novel, "Lavender and Old Lace," when she reads these angles.

And the distress note from A. E. W. wanting to know how one becomes charming and gets a husband. Heavens, A. E. W., if I knew .... But oh yes, I remember Pinto's impression that I am a spinster by choice. Honey, I'll hold your letter for Mrs. Anonymous. She speaks from experience and, even though I know all the rules, it isn't ethical for me to pass them on since I can't endorse them with experience.

By the way, Pinto, I'm looking for that promised letter.

The motion for continuance, on the grounds of absent witnesses, was granted by Judge Hosey after the defense had lost its opening skirmish to delay the trial when a motion for severance was overruled.

Here Is One Coffee That IS Different—Grown In a Different Producing Country Where Nature Gives It Twice the Richness and Flavor

ARE you changing from brand to brand, trying to find the kind of coffee that "makes" a meal?

There's a peculiar reason for so many coffee disappointments. It lies in a simple fact about coffee that scarcely one woman in 50 knows.

Here it is:

Almost 70 per cent of all coffee you get in stores today is actually one common kind. It's grown in the same producing country. And has exactly the same kind of taste. Though it's sold under all different kinds of "brands" and in different packages.

That's why you must do more than change brands if you want better coffee.

Try An Entirely Different Kind of Coffee

From certain tiny mountain districts along the West Coast of Central America, we procure coffees entirely different in flavor and richness.

Rich volcanic soil, brilliant mountain sunlight, steaming tropic rains give these coffees a rare tang and full body, unduplicated, experts concede, by any other region in the world.

These are the rare coffees, different from any you have ever tasted, that you get in Folger's.

To let you taste them without delay. To quickly settle any doubts, we make this unique suggestion.

3 Days' Test—At Our Risk

Go to your grocer today. Buy a pound of Folger's Coffee. Drink it tomorrow morning. Next morning drink the coffee you have been using. The third morning serve Folger's again. Then decide which you like best. If you decide against Folger's, your grocer will refund your money.

But if you do as 8 in 10 people do, however, you'll never go back to less flavorful coffees.

Try this experiment. You'll be glad you did! 132

NEW ORLEANS COTTON

NEW ORLEANS, Feb. 24. (AP) — As today was notice day for March in both the large Boston markets, the final liquidation of that month commanded most attention during the session. After losing 3 points early when it became known that the notices here totaled 23,000 bales, the market later rallied when the notices were stopped. March gaining 13 points from the early low while other months recovered 7 to 8 points from their lows. The close was steady at or near the best, the late gains being helped by former stocks. The general market showed net gains for the day of 7 to 10 points.

Liverpool cables came in 1 to 3 penny points better than due but the market paid little attention to the cables.

"No—not right away, anyhow," he answered a reporter's question: "Thinking about another long flight?"

"I fly for fun," he explained simply.

The feature of the hop from Oklahoma City to Lubgock seemed to be the sight of wild creatures racing from the zooming monster above. That's Post. His companions were Leslie Fain, son-in-law of F. C. Hall, backer of the round-the-world flight, and Harry Frederickson. They were taken to the Lubbock hotel.

Lubbock has a "fine" airport, Post opined.

"This country is lucky when it comes to developing airports," he observed. "Just go out and stake it off and you have one."

Stocks Take Distinct Upward Slant And Close Shows A Margin Of Gains

BY JOHN L. COOLEY
Associated Press Financial Writer

NEW YORK, Feb. 24 (AP) — Stocks took a distinct upward slant today and although they closed under the top, due to late selling, there was a comfortable margin of net gains.

The small turnover somewhat dimmed the performance, but many brokers saw little reason to look for anything but dull markets until there is a more definite change in basic influences. From the technical viewpoint the list acted well, for at last night's close it had lost about half of the last advance and the prompt appearance of support, after a slight setback at the opening, gave encouragement. Sales totaled 1,085,640 shares, or some 200,000 under Tuesday's volume. With a few exceptions, net improvement in principal issues ranged from a major fraction to 2 points.

Tech Regents

Roscoe Wilson, Lubbock, intended to go into the case. When General Hulen was unexpectedly called to Chicago, the board decided that the investigation would hold over until his return to Texas. The General intends to come to Lubbock within the near future and, with Messrs. Carpenter and Wilson, fully investigate the Campbell charges as well as other rumblings directed against faculty members during the past year.

The board also turned its attention to student affairs, calling before it the presidents of the various college classes and other student leaders for general conference. At the conclusion of the meeting the board asked publication of the fact that it "is amazed and chagrined to learn that, although the college enrollment has grown appreciably, sale of student activity tickets has fallen off to a marked degree. The board is especially surprised to note that it is apparently the upperclassmen, not the freshmen and sophomores, who have failed to support college athletics."

Student Commended

Charles E. Houston, engineering student, received a vote of commendation from the regents for his winning first prize in the collegiate division of the American Society of Electrical Engineers at Kansas City recently. A telegram of congratulations was also sent former Governor Pat M. Neff upon his appointment as president of Baylor university, Waco. In the wire the board pointed out that the appointment was particularly fitting, in-as-much-as Governor Neff had shown his interest in and friendship for higher education in Texas by signing the bill establishing Texas Tech.

Attention of the Congress of the United States will be called to the need of reapportionment of funds used in agricultural research and Speaker John Garner and Congressman Marvin Jones, head of the house agricultural committee, will present the project to fellow solons. It will be pointed out that at the present time the government allows an expenditure of 19 cents per farm for agricultural research, while $22 per farm is available for the same work in tiny Rhode Island.

Summer Pay Set

Decision was made to employ faculty members to teach in Tech's summer school at the rate of 70 per cent of their regular monthly salary for each month of summer instruction. The board's executive committee will meet in Dallas soon to name summer faculty members.

A vote of thanks was tendered E. S. Mayer, of San Angelo, president of the Lone Star Wool and Mohair association, for a gift of 200 pounds of mohair to be used in experimental work at Tech. Upon conclusion of the meeting each regent was presented with a handkerchief in Tech colors, Red and Black, on a white background, made of cotton from Tech farms, spun on Tech looms and hemstitched by co-eds in the department of home economics.

Jones Re-Elected

Chairman Jones was selected to appear before faculty members in a special meeting to be called on March 1, at which time he will address instructors on the subject "Responsibilities of Leadership in Outside Activities."

Directors of the West Texas Chamber of Commerce will be invited as honor guests at the college commencement program, at which time Senator Morris Sheppard will deliver the principal address and Dr. George W. Truett, Baptist leader residing in Dallas, will preach the baccalaureate sermon.

In the annual election, Mr. Jones was re-elected as chairman; Roscoe Wilson was named vice-chairman and Houston Harte, of San Angelo, was selected as treasurer. Other regents present at the session were John W. Carpenter, Dallas; Riley Strickland, Amarillo; and Thomas Johnson, McKinney.

The meeting got under way at 10 o'clock Wednesday morning and was not completed until after 6 p. m.

Japs Launch A Fresh Attack Trying To Crush Lines; Counter Is Feared

it was swarming with new Japanese troops.

The Japanese flagship Idzumo, headquarters of Vice-Admiral Kichisaburo Nomura, is moored alongside the Japanese consulate which is in the Shanghai bund just above the point where the Soochow creek runs into the Whangpoo. It is the center of the area in which the Chinese announced it would be dangerous for foreign ships to anchor. The consulate is less than two miles from strong Chinese gun positions in Chapei.

Japs Letting Up

It was in this section of the Whangpoo that two army divisions were landed by the Japanese early this month when they found it necessary to reinforce the bluejackets who were repulsed in the original attempt to drive the Chinese out of Shanghai. But on that occasion the Chinese did not attempt to break up the landing movement with gunfire.

Indications of an impending Chinese offensive came as observers agreed the Japanese were attempting to allow things to simmer until their two new divisions arrived.

Finally blocked in their effort to smash the center of the Chinese line at Kiangwan, the Japanese shifted their attack late Wednesday to the Chapei front. Foreign military observers looked upon this as a "demonstration action" to keep the Chinese occupied pending the arrival of help.

The Japanese bluejackets saw considerable fighting during this activity in Chapei. A landing force was put ashore from warships in the river for an attack along the northern section of the war torn area, and the battle raged all afternoon. There was no apparent shift in positions.

Casualties Listed

Japanese military headquarters said their casualties during the last three days totalled 500, but officials declined to say how many of the 500 had been killed.

General Tsai Ting-Kai, the youthful and poetic military man in command of the 19th Chinese route army said that in the last four days his losses had been 1,700 killed and wounded.

Since the outbreak of the Shanghai hostilities January 28, the general asserted the army has suffered 2,200 killed and wounded and in the same period Chinese civilian casualties have totalled 5,550.

The Japanese authorities prepared a protest to the United States government on the ground that Robert Short, American airman killed Tuesday at Soochow, was serving with the Chinese army.

The Chinese made Short a national hero. The vernacular press lauded him as "a great friend of China seeking to assist her against Japanese aggression."

Three Are Killed In Gun Battle In New Mexico; Officer Dies In Plane

death won the desperate attempt. The two men slain were struck by three bullets from the peace officer's gun. Carlocke was shot through the heart and through the right lung. O'Dell died of a wound just below his heart.

Pilot Ben Branson hopped off from Lubbock airport field at 2:10 o'clock Wednesday afternoon for Cross Roads to bring the wounded man here. Magneto trouble forced his Waco three-place plane down 12 miles southeast of Bledsoe and within a few miles of his destination.

Second Plane Starts

Airport Manager W. C. Breedlove at 5 o'clock took off in the only available plane—a light Aeronca two place job—searching for Branson, who had repaired his plane and flown on to Cross Roads. So critical was Clifton's condition that physicians would not allow him to be moved in the open ship. Branson returned here last night.

J. C. Barnett's cabin plane was ordered from Roswell to Tatum, where the wounded man had been moved by automobile. The trio left Tatum in the rush to Lubbock at 8 p. m. (9 p. m. CST) and arrived here at 11:10 p. m.

About 40 minutes later, the officer died.

Bodies In Lovington

The bodies of Carlocke and O'Dell are in Lovington and their relatives have been notified of their deaths. O'Dell's parents are reported to live in Hobbs. Carlocke has relatives in Healdton, Okla.

At the time Clifton began following the pair, the men were in a light coupe. Police said an examination of the car yielded no evidence to show they were connected with the robbery of the Lovington store, from which a few articles and no money were stolen. Three guns were said to be in the possession of the desperadoes.

A rancher who heard the shooting and was the first to reach Clifton rushed him to Cross Roads. The peace officer had held a deputyship about one year. He is survived by his widow and several children.

Many spectators went to Lubbock airport yesterday afternoon when it was learned Branson had gone for the wounded officer. A Rix ambulance went to the port and remained until the ship finally arrived. A doctor was ready to give first aid treatment. Body of the officer was taken to the Rix funeral home.

West Texas' Own Rights

ONE of the first—if not the very first—to take up the cudgel against the past legislature for its unfair refusal to attend to Congressional redistricting as according to law, The Morning Avalanche is glad to see other West Texas newspapers get on the firing line in this important regard.

Another defender of the rights of this territory is The Abilene Morning News, which comes to the front with editorial comment entitled "Cheating West Texas," as a new problem concerning Congressional representation pops up from the bullrushes.

Says The Morning News:

"Albert Sidney Johnson, secretary of the State Executive committee, said yesterday that there is a possibility Texas might be deprived of the three Congressmen-at-large to whom she is entitled under the 1930 census, due to a technicality in the election law.

"The dispute, we gather from Mr. Johnson's brief statement, hinges on whether or not the executive committee shall order the various candidates for Congressman-at-large to run for a specific place—such as Places 1, 2 and 3—instead of bunching all together and picking the three high men.

"West Texas has not been sympathetic toward the suggestion that candidates be required to announce for a specific position. Such a compulsion would inevitably mean that West Texas, instead of electing possibly one of the two new Congressmen to whom she is entitled, would elect none. The more thickly settled portions of the state would pick all three, thanks to voting power.

"By requiring Congressmen-at-large aspirants to announce for a specific place, this could—and conceivably would—happen: Dallas could put into the race three candidates, one each for places 1, 2 and 3. By giving each of them her full voting strength, Dallas could gain all three positions, two of which by rights belong to West Texas. In effect, it would mean three separate and distinct elections for congressman-at-large—and the heavily-populated counties would pick each of the three winners.

"It is too bad the legislature chose to ignore the constitutional mandate relating to redistricting. It cheated West Texas out of a couple of Congressmen when it failed to do what the constitution says it must do."

By its remarkable growth in population during the past decade, West Texas proved its right to two new Congressmen. As the most rapidly growing section of West Texas, the South Plains likewise proved its right to a Congressman all its own.

It is bad enough and unfair enough to have to go before the entire state electorate in an endeavor to get what's rightfully ours. Introducing technicalities to frustrate our efforts is even worse.

MR. BLANTON'S IDEA

Congressman Tom Blanton, of Abilene, falls far short of our conception of an A No. 1 representative. In fact, The Morning Avalanche has disagreed with Mr. Blanton in many of his acrobatic stunts under the capitol dome. But in his latest suggestion we are moved to appreciation. We'd like to see him score a tally on it.

In an effort to stop the wholesale importation of Mexican labor along the Rio Grande, Mr. Blanton urges his colleagues to exclude all aliens for a period of five years. We consider the idea a good one; we hope Congress will agree to it.

While there is no alien problem in this country, the northern and eastern parts of United States do have a serious one. The Eastern seaboard and the middlewest have passed the saturation point as far as foreign citizens are concerned and, from all appearances, it will take more than five years to assimilate those we already have.

We would go Mr. Blanton one better in his suggestion. That is, we would urge more use of the deportation laws to apply to those aliens who blandly break our laws and who strike at our form of government at every opportunity. We do not mean to imply that all aliens are bad or destructive. Not at all, for such is not the case. But we do mean that it is time to put the bars up and to Americanize those who are already with us and deport those who cannot be Americanized before welcoming any more newcomers to our shores.

Twenty years ago the automobile had no accessories. Those were the days when a man told a girl they were out of gasoline she had to believe him.

Practical Health Problems

HOW TO CARE FOR BABY'S TEETH

EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the third of three timely articles on Baby Teeth by Dr. Fishbein.

By DR. MORRIS FISHBEIN
Editor, Journal of the American Medical Association, And of Hygeia, the Health Magazine

THE chief reason for preserving the baby teeth is to keep the mouth in the right shape for the second teeth.

All of the 20 teeth that are called temporary teeth are usually in the mouth by the time the child is three. Behind the first set is the second set. In order to have the second set properly developed, the food must be right and the mouth free from infection. The only certain way to control infection is to have dental care when it appears.

The most important permanent tooth comes in between the fifth and sixth year of life and is known as the six-year molar. It comes in six teeth back from the one in the front of the mouth in the center.

There are four six-year molars, one on each side of the upper and lower jaws. They should have the most careful attention. Once gone they are not replaced except with artificial teeth. If they decay and are removed without proper dental attention, the entire expression of the face and of the mouth may change.

In the absence of the proper molars, food is not sufficiently ground before entering the stomach.

EVERY CHILD should see a dentist following the appearance of the six-year molars. Only a generation has passed since dentists first began to give special attention to the teeth of the child.

Now the subject is so important that there are many dentists who specialize exclusively in children's teeth. They are concerned with seeing that all of the teeth are straight, that they fit properly against the opposites in the other jaw, that they do not grind off surfaces that are meant to stand, and that they remain firmly and are not pushed into the wrong positions.

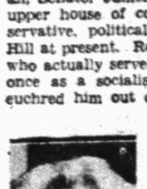

With the help of the X-ray, the dentist is able to see that the teeth are sound at their roots. By personal inspection he finds tiny spots which indicate the beginning of decay. These can be filled and polished and their decay stopped.

The additional cost of the X-ray pictures means future saving. Preventive dentistry done early is cheap. Curative dentistry, done after decay has proceeded far, after the teeth have gotten into wrong positions, after some teeth have been lost, may be expensive and can be prevented.

Appointment Is Popular

By CHARLES P. STEWART
Central Press Staff Writer

WASHINGTON, Feb. 24.—Taking him for all in all, Senator James E. Watson, G. O. P. leader in the upper house of congress, probably is the most conservative, politically orthodox statesman on Capitol Hill at present. Representative Fiorello H. LaGuardia, who actually served a term in the national legislature once as a socialist, his district organization having euchred him out of the regular Republican nomination, undoubtedly is the most radical.

Who could have foreseen that these two ever would agree upon any subject more controversial than, maybe, the weather!

Yet they did agree the other day, and it was upon a subject of nearly as much importance as the selection of a president.

They agreed that Mr. Hoover's choice of Chief Judge Benjamin Nathan Cardozo of the New York state court of appeals, for a seat on the federal supreme bench, succeeding Justice Oliver Wendell Holmes, recently retired, was ideal.

Lawmakers of every shade of opinion between them concurred in this verdict.

Had the contrary not actually been demonstrated, one surely would have believed it impossible for a single individual to possess qualities mixed in such fashion as to meet the approval, alike, of legislators as far apart as Senator Watson and Representative LaGuardia, not to mention all the intermediates—such as Senators David A. Reed and Cordell Hull, Arthur Vandenberg and George W. Norris, George McGill and Robert M. La Follette, James Cousens and William H. King, William E. Borah and ex-Justice Holmes himself; an extraordinary assortment.

THE HONEST FACT is, it IS impossible that the ultra-conservatives are as well pleased as they pretend to be.

Justice Cardozo was so plainly indicated by every rule of suitability for the vacancy created by Justice Holmes' resignation that he simply HAD to be named. Any other selection (even, in itself, an excellent one) would have disappointed folk, by comparison.

It was a peculiar situation.

Justice Holmes was regarded for a generation as the spokesman of the common people in a generally reactionary body.

The truth is that Justice Louis D. Brandeis is equally a liberal (in some respects his views are more advanced, indeed, than the old New Englander's) but he has served barely half of Justice Holmes' years on the bench, is less spectacular and consequently never has had the advertising of his senior.

Justice Holmes had a really popular reputation.

The moment his resignation was announced, a kind of sigh went up—

"And so the voice of progress is silenced in the supreme court chamber!"

IT IS SURPRISING how quickly what would be called a "boom"—were it permissible to use that term in connection with a supreme court justiceship—developed for Judge Cardozo.

That he was widely known outside New York state was the last thing that had been surmised in Washington, but apparently the news travels like a prairie fire that here was a possible appointee who could be relied on to continue the Holmes tradition. As to just who he was the country probably had no accurate notion, but the demand for him was unmistakable.

It can hardly be stated that President Hoover yielded to it readily.

Maybe he desired to do so and his admirers tried to talk him out of it. Maybe he was opposed to doing so and they finally talked him into it. Or maybe all hands merely were thinking the matter over.

They thought it over for quite awhile anyway.

Ordinarily, no sooner has a new supreme court justice been confirmed by the senate than the powers which are especially interested in the type of men who make up the federal judiciary have decided on the next one.

Seldom does more than a day or two elapse between the death or retirement of a member of the highest tribunal of the republic and announcement of the appointment of his successor. In the present instance the delay ran into weeks and was beginning to be commented on curiously.

WHEN, HOWEVER, the decision at last was forthcoming, it is fair to recognize this:

It not only was a good appointment; it was good politics.

It by no means can be cited in support of the complaint, so often made against the White House during Mr. Hoover's incumbency, of a persistent disregard of public sentiment or ineptitude in reading it.

A judicial nomination followed by a senate rejection, as in the case of Judge John J. Parker two years ago, or followed even by a vigorous fight, as in the case of Chief Justice Hughes a few months previously, would have been highly injurious to the presidential prestige, at a juncture when the executive mansion's tenant can least afford to lose any—and an indifferently popular nomination at best would not have added to it.

The Cardozo appointment unquestionably HAS added to it, perhaps very generously.

MAD MARRIAGE

by LAURA LOU BROOKMAN "Author of "HEART HUNGRY," etc.

©1931 BY NEA SERVICE INC.

BEGIN HERE TODAY

GYPSY McBRIDE, 19-year-old New York typist, marries JIM WALLACE the day after she meets him at the home of her wealthy cousin, ANN TROWBRIDGE. Gypsy has been jilted by ALAN CROSBY, just returned from a year and a half in Paris studying art. Wallace's fiancee has broken their engagement to marry a richer man.

Jim and Gypsy go to Forest City where Jim has a thriving law practice. His relatives snub Gypsy. Alan Crosby writes to her but she returns the letter unopened. MARCIA LORING, Jim's former fiancee, marries BROCK PHILLIPS, millionaire's son.

Months pass and Brock Phillips is killed in a fall from a horse. Marcia returns to Forest City. She consults Jim about financial affairs and later tells him her marriage to Phillips was a mistake. She declares she cares only for him. Jim tries to remain loyal to Gypsy but sees Marcia frequently. Gypsy worries. She sprains her ankle in an automobile collision and during the days while the sprain is healing Jim is unusually attentive.

Alan Crosby comes to see Gypsy and tells her he loves her. Jim's arrival interrupts the interview, Gypsy meets Alan a second time and sends him away, telling him she is in love with Jim. She goes home to tell Jim she has been cured of the old infatuation. He arrives and asks her to divorce him.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER XLVI

Gypsy could not believe that she had heard the words correctly. "You want what?" she asked, leaning forward.

"I want you to free me. Bring an end to this farce that is supposed to be a marriage. Break it off. We both should have known better in the first place than to try such a crazy thing. I think it's time we became sensible—"

"Oh!" the girl interrupted him. "Oh, I see! You mean you want me to divorce you. Go away. That's what you mean, isn't it?"

Jim nodded. "I suppose it would be better of you'd go away. I can if you don't want to Reno is still the quickest place. Of course I'll expect you to bring the charges against me. The usual thing—desertion or incompatibility."

"You want a divorce!" As the girl breathed the words they were barely above a whisper. "It's—Marcia isn't it?" she went on. "You're going to marry her?"

Jim met her eyes steadily. "That isn't quite settled yet. It couldn't be as matters are. I thought you'd be reasonable about this thing. I suppose you'd see it was the best way for both of us."

Gypsy's lips were trembling. "Oh, yes," she said, trying to steady them. "I see that it's the best way".

They heard footsteps and both turned. Matilda stood in the doorway. "Dinner is served, Mrs. Wallace," she announced.

Gypsy glanced toward her husband. "We'll come," she told the servant, and arose. Jim followed her into the dining room.

There was the table with its snowy cloth and the gleaming tapers. Gypsy herself had placed the candlesticks. There was the low centerpiece of daisies and pink asters that she had arranged. There was food on the table but Gypsy knew that she could not eat. Mechanically she sat down as Jim drew the chair out for her.

As long as she lived the girl was never to forget that meal. Jim's face, darkly tanned, and his eyes avoiding hers, directly opposite over that mass of flowers. The outlandish candles, symbols of festivity. The knife in Gypsy's heart that was turning, turning so that she could have cried out from sheer physical pain.

There was so much she wanted to say to Jim. The words tumbled to her lips and then suddenly were silenced. Nothing could be said now. Nothing!

Matilda seemed constantly at her side offering dishes which Gypsy merely looked at and shook her head. Was the meal never to end? Jim made an effort or two at conversation. He was doing it, of course, for Matilda's benefit. To keep up appearances. Gypsy recognized this fact but could not play up to it.

She heard him mention the fact that she was not eating.

"I had tea down town," she told him. How long ago that seemed now. Two hours? It was like a lifetime. At last the travesty of eating was ended.

"There are a few things we ought to talk about," Jim suggested. "I suppose there's less chance of being interrupted in the library."

Gypsy nodded. As she stepped forward one fluttering end of the drappery at the side of her skirt caught in the doorway. She gave a little exclamation. Jim bent down and unfastened the silk.

The girl stifled an impulse to brush her fingers against his soft, sandy hair. She walked ahead of him into the library and sat down on a chair facing the desk. Jim took the desk chair.

"You want me to go right away. I suppose?" Gypsy asked.

"Suit your own convenience. I was under the impression that the sooner affairs could be arranged the better it would be for both of us."

Gypsy nodded. She was looking at the floor. Presently she said slowly, "So it really was true about Marcia after all? I suppose when I was sick you were just—sorry for me and that's why you tried to make me think you didn't care about her. That's why you talked about going away for a vacation—"

"Oh, don't bother to impute high motive to me! I don't deserve that. We tried something ridiculous and it failed. Whether I happen to be in love with some one else or not isn't the question. We made a bad bargain and I'm asking you to let me out of it."

"I'll let you out of it," Gypsy told

Letters To The Editor

Ropes Basketball Fan Disagrees With Mr. Collier Parris

Dear Editor: As a reader and subscriber to your paper, I ask that the letter below be published in the Morning Avalanche under the column headed "Letters to the Editor."

The "Dark Horse" basketball team and the population of this "Tiny Spot" in the southeast corner of Hockley county, "unsung and unheralded" in the language used by your sports writer, are highly enthused and pleased with the winning Saturday night of District 2 championship boys basketball game over the Shallowater Red Devils. Also the winning of the game Friday night over the Plainview Bulldogs, the favorite in the estimation of said sports writer. Therefore, we would like to express some of our feelings in regard to said games.

As stated before, we are highly pleased and satisfied with ou me of this contest, but most of the population of this "Tiny Spot" are provoked with the publicity given our team and school. Had your sports writer cast about a bit before selecting his favorite for his contest, we might not now be carrying the title of "Dark Horse." Personally, I have witnessed most of the games played by this "unsung and unheralded" team, known as the "Dark Horse," and have yet to see them lose. Although they have lost a few times, 95 per cent of the games played this season, or more, have been won by just such majorities as shown in the games with Meadow and Shallowater Saturday morning and night.

Had the Lubbock team been in the place of our team Friday night and had defeated the Plainview "favorites," the news of that game would have been front page items Saturday morning instead of being tucked away in the sport page. Also had your sports writer's "favorite" won this game we would have been hearing his satisfied grunts until the starting of the final game Saturday night. As it was, his article had as little to say as possible about our team defeating his "favorite" and seemed to lament the fact that the victorious team came from a "Tiny Spot" instead from some large and thriving city. We believe in giving "the dog his dues," even if he is a "dark horse" team.

The Ropes high school basketball team is made up of as fine material as there is to be had, they are well and efficiently coached and have the best gym on the South Plains, excepting the new Lubbock High gym, in which to play and practice. Yea, verily, much better than the one in which they won the district championship him. "I—I agree with you perfectly. Will you tell me how I'm to go about it?"

"You'll have to have a lawyer. I'll arrange that." He went on explaining technical details of the divorce. Gypsy tried to listen to what he was saying. She found instead that she was looking at the modeled perfection of Jim's chin.

"I'm afraid I'm not going to remember all this," she told him. "I think I'm tired. We don't have to let anyone here know about the divorce until after I'm gone, do we?"

Jim said that they did not. "About the alimony"—he began.

"I won't accept alimony! I won't have it, Jim. You can't pay me anything for breaking a marriage like this. It wouldn't be right."

"But you'll have to have something to live on. What will you do?"

"Never mind about that. I'll take care of myself. You'll have to pay the expense of the trip and the divorce. I'm going to leave as soon as I can. It—it would be best, don't you think?"

"Then if you don't want alimony I'll make a settlement," Wallace insisted.

Vigorously Gypsy refused to consider this. She noticed the cool, impersonal way Jim talked. Well, why not? The divorce would mean freedom to him, happiness with Marcia.

Gypsy rose to her feet. "You don't mind if I go now, do you, Jim?" she asked. "I'll do just as you say about all the rest. I'm not sure yet when I can get away. Day after tomorrow perhaps."

He said there was no need of rushing away so quickly. He would get in touch with a lawyer in Reno to represent her. It might take a few days. Always his conversation seemed to veer back into legal technicalities which were like a foreign language to Gypsy.

"Will you want to keep the house open?" she asked from his doorway.

"I hadn't thought about it. No, I guess not. What do you think?"

"Matilda's planning on three weeks at her brother's. You might get Cora and Sam to stay here."

Jim announced suddenly that he did not want the house open. He would rather stay at the Carlton.

Gypsy said good night then and turned toward the stairs. She could not endure another moment of that calm scrutiny. How Jim must hate her to be able to look at her like that! How he must loathe her!

Tears were blinding the girl when she reached the top of the flight Gypsy rushed into her room, closed the door and flung herself against it. She wept silently, the great sobs shaking her shoulders. She wept as though her heart would break. Gropingly she turned the key in the lock and sank, face downward, on the bed.

She had no idea how long she lay there. Exhaustion at last stayed her weeping. Moonlight fell across the bed when she finally sat up, white faced, and dried her eyes.

Gypsy heard a sound outside and went to the window. She saw the roadster, long, dark and purring softly, slide down the driveway.

Perhaps Jim was going for Marcia. No, she knew instantly that the thought was unworthy. However Jim had wounded her he was still the honest, dependable, straightforward man she loved. He was not engaged in a cheap intrigue with Marcia Phillips.

Gypsy sat on the windowsill and looked out across the lawn. There was a square patch of bright moonlight bordered by the shadow from the hedge. It looked peaceful, quiet down there. The girl drew back farther into the shadow of the room.

It was strange that she should not feel angry at Marcia. She was not angry at any one. There was no room in her heart for anything except the aching misery of losing Jim. Losing? How could she lose what she had never really had?

She would love Jim always. She was sure of that. The thought of long days of bitter lonliness stretching out ahead frightened her. Gypsy hid her face in her arms and wept silently.

Presently she raised her head. She remembered the evening when she had said to Jim, "If you ever regret our marriage I want you to tell me about it." And he had promised that he would. Little had she realized then what she was bargaining for.

She told herself that she should be making plans, deciding about her future. That would have to wait. What did she care about the future now?

She heard the roadster come back up the drive but did not look out the window. A little later she heard Jim's footsteps on the stairs. Gypsy clasped her two hands tightly, pressing until the knuckles ached as the footsteps neared her door and then passed on. There had been one breathless instant when she thought Jim might knock on the door.

The house became quiet. Gypsy at last undressed. The flowered chiffon which she had put on because Jim admired it was now limp with tears. As she wrenched it to get it over her shoulders she heard the fabric tear. She threw the dress on a chair and left it there, wrinkled heap, instead of hanging it away. Very weary, she drew down the covers and got into her bed. Over and over she tried to tell herself that some time this knife-like pain would cease. She would get used to it. Others had suffered broken hearts and learned to endure it. How literally true the phrase was! A broken heart. Her heart felt as though it were crushed and bleeding.

Pride carried her through the ordeal of the next morning's breakfast, saying "Good morning" to Jim as though he had not suddenly become a stranger, pouring his coffee trying to drink her own steaming cup while he sat buried in his newspaper.

They might have been rehearsing parts in a play. Jim said goodby and added that he would have more information about "that matter" when he returned in the evening. Gypsy nodded instead of trusting herself to reply.

She went about her customary household tasks. So long as she was busy with her hands she could fight off thoughts she did not have the courage to face. She avoided Matilda and Cora, afraid they would notice her rimmed and swollen eyes.

By mid-afternoon Gypsy was trying to find comfort in the thought that out of the ruin of her own dreams Jim would find happiness. Jim's happiness should mean more to her than her own. Then she thought about Alan. Was Alan as miserable as she now that she had sent him away?

On sudden inspiration she went to the telephone. Crosby had told her he was stopping at the Howard, an inexpensive hotel. Gypsy found the number in the directory and called it.

"May I speak to Mr. Alan Crosby?" she said.

Dave Hackney Is Second With Craig Wood Third; The Babe Drops Out In Early Round After Shooting 78

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla., Feb. 24. (AP)—Willie MacFarlane, the veteran Scot from Tuckahoe, N. Y., won the 54-hole St. Petersburg open golf tournament today with a score of 209. He nosed out Davy Hackney of Lowell, Mass., by one stroke, and received $500 top prize. Hackney got $300.

Craig Wood of Deal, N. J., slipped into third place to win $200, with 211 strokes.

MacFarlane's card for the three 18-hole rounds showed 72-68-69—209. His 69 pulled him ahead of Hackney, who slipped to 72 after hitting a course record in the forenoon with 34-32—66.

Densmore Shute of Cleveland, and Clayton Attridge of Tampa tied for fourth place here with 213's. They divided $175. Shute's card showed 72-69-71—213 while Attridge carded 69-72-72—213.

Walter Hagen and Johnny Farrell, former National open champion, finished far down the list with cards totalling 216, and received $25 each. Billy Burke, National open champion, was in a three-way tie for fifth place with 214 strokes. Babe Ruth dropped out of the tournament after shooting 78 yesterday.

Soviet Five Year Plan Is Subject Of Program Talk

"With all due respect for everybody concerned, believe it or not, like it or not, there is a lot of evidence that the plan of Russia is working," Dr. W. A. Jackson, head of the government department of Texas Technological college, declared before Rotary club members at Hotel Lubbock Wednesday. "Its ultimate success is doubtful," he continued.

"Furthermore, even if it does succeed under a communistic regime, it does not follow that it would succeed elsewhere under entirely different conditions and circumstances. The Russian peasants and workers of today and of the future could not be in a worse condition than under the old regime, so under any system, communistic or otherwise, the chances are in their favor.

"It is not any more possible to build an economic structure on forced labor than it is to build a skyscraper on a mud sill," Dr. Jackson said. "Since 1928 the Piatiletka, otherwise known as the Russian Five Year Plan, has furnished a topic for almost unlimited discussion. By some it is regarded as a noble experiment, by others a fantastic dream, while by still others it has been regarded as a manifestation of race insanity.

Depends Upon Government

"The outcome of the plan depends upon the present government to secure capital goods," he continued. "In 1929 its failure was freely prophesied. In 1930 its apparent success was viewed with alarm. In 1931 the killing pace was slackened. Now, 1932, the Soviet leaders freely admit that Russia is at the most critical period of its existence since the beginning of the communistic regime.

"It is claimed that there are many phases of the plan such as spreading communistic propaganda in capitalistic countries, particularly the United States; destroying belief in a Supreme Being; and uprooting the idea of the sanctity of marriage. Even if these things are a part of the plan, it nevertheless remains true that the plan is in the main an economic program.

"It proposes that a checkup be made upon the raw materials of the country, such as coal and iron ore; it calls for machinery for extracting the raw materials; it proposes to put the wind and water to work generating electricity; it proposes to utilize this electricity in chemical plants and huge factories, three hundred miles distant from each of forty two hydro-electric plants the largest of which is to do the work of 18 million workmen; it also calls for the modernization of agriculture, including forestry, dairying and poultry. Finally, it calls for a modern system of transportation including roads, railroads and airways.

"The United States is particularly interested because it is being held up as the crowning achievement of a capitalistic society. On the basis of Communism, Russia proposes to do what the United States has done with individualism and collectivism as a basis.

Forced Labor Weakness

"The chief weakness of the plan is that it involves forced labor. Even with all of the propaganda, holding out hopes of great reward such as a three or five hour work-day, wholesome recreation and a bountiful plenty, there are growing sign of discontent which keeps the Red police ever on the job. There is little evidence that the position or condition of the worker is greatly improved.

"It is constantly being held out to him that he is making sacrifices now for the more glorious future. He is made to believe that communism is now just about ready to capture the world, including the United States, and then his comrads across the sea will extend to him the capital goods which Russia is sorely in need of, favor."

Arthur P. Duggan and Bob McCaskill of Littlefield, H. W. Haylor and son of Birmingham, Ala. Clifford Rankin of Ralls were visiting Rotarians present. Short talks were made by Mr. Taylor and Mr. Duggan.

W. O. Daniels was named chairman of the club's 'On To Mineral Wells' committee. R. C. Smith was program chairman.

Two Coaches Sawed Off Kansas Staff In Expense Slash War

LAWRENCE, Kas., Feb. 24. (AP)—A reduction in the coaching staff at the University of Kansas today marked the latest efforts of the institution's athletic board to curtail expenses.

Members of the present staff retained were Dr. F. C. Allen, director of athletics, and basketball coach; H. W. Hargiss, head football coach; Mike Getto, assistant football coach, Brutus Hamilton, track coach; Forrest Cox, assistant basketball and football coach and Roland Logan, assistant freshman coach.

At the same time the board voted unanimously to vest complete control of the athletic department in Dr. Allen.

Coach Mills Takes District 1 Champions To Amarillo For Saw-Off Games; Winner Will Go To Austin Meet

Coach Gordon Mills and his Ropesville High school basketeers, champions of Hockley county and District 2, left yesterday for Amarillo where tonight they engage the Amarillo High school Golden Sandies in the first of a three-game series for bi-district honors in the Texas Interscholastic league basketball race. The winner of the series will represent this section at the state tournament at Austin.

Ropesville won the District 2 tournament here last Saturday night by defeating the fast Shallowater club, 40 to 26, in the championship game. The Ropes cagers had defeated Plainview, pre-tournament favorite, 24 to 22, in a quarter-final game.

Coming to the district tournament here with a good record, which had been given little publicity, the Ropes cagers entered without any previous ballyhoo as probable winners. Their surprising victory over Plainview, close as it may have been threw them in the limelight and they were conceded a victory over Meadow in a semi-final game. Shallowater, winner of the Lubbock county tournament a week earlier, was expected to prove the undoing of the Ropes team in the final game but it was the other way. Behind, 14 to 12, at the halfway mark the Ropes goalers found the basket for 28 points and victory in the last half. The scoring of H. Payne and Headstream featured the terrific offensive.

Played Here Before

Coach Mills' team proved dangerous here several weeks ago when they entered the Lubbock High school invitation tournament. It won first and second round games and appeared destined for the finals when Monroe knocked out the props in a quarter-final setto. Between that tournament and the district joust the Ropesville boys were busy beating nearly every other team they faced in interschool contests, winning the Hockley county tournament a week prior to the district meet.

Amarillo is also a district champion of the "dark horse" variety, having been listed as a probable "also ran" at the start of the District 1 tournament at Canyon last week-end. The Sandies met and defeated Quitaque in the final game.

With his regular lineup, consisting of Hitt and H. Payne, forwards; Headstream, center and Moore and V. Payne, guards, in fine condition and his reserves in similar shape, Coach Mills departed toward Amarillo confident that the Sandies would be the next to fall before his sharp shooters. One of the few coaches in the business who look with optimism toward a contest, Coach Mills has reason to be confident and his reasons are forwards, centers and guards. Among the substitutes making the trip were Morgan and Bagley, forwards; Evans, center; Timmons and Berry, guards.

Two Lodged In County Jail; Fail To Make Bonds; One Confesses Forgery

E. D. (Ernest) Jenkins, former Centenary college student who is charged with attempting to pass a forged check, and W. L. (Dick) DeShazo, charged with automobile theft, remained in county jail late Wednesday in lieu of bonds set at $500 each by Justice H. K. Porter.

Failure to realize "until it was too late" that he was committing forgery, and a desire for $10 to pay for a correspondence course led Jenkins, whose parents live near Floydada, to attempt to pass a worthless $30 check at a local department store Tuesday, the youth indicated in a signed statement in examining trial before Judge Porter yesterday.

DeShazo also made a signed statement at an examining trial yesterday. The inquiries were conducted by William H. Evans, assistant county attorney.

Jenkins said, in the voluntary statement, that he presented a $30 check bearing the signature of "J. B. Jenkins" in payment for a pair of boots costing $18.85. He could sell the boots for $10, cost of the correspondence course, he explained. The young man added he did not expect the Floydada bank, on which the check was drawn, to honor it, but that, on its being returned, he intended to explain to the store that he accidentally had used the wrong initials, "J. B." instead of his father's, "J. D." He planned to take up the check then.

Four other allegedly forged checks, ranging from $20 to $30 each, were found on him when he was arrested, authorities said. He admitted this morning that they also were forged.

DeShazo confessed he took an automobile owned by Garnet Reeves from its parking place in the 1100-block of Avenue K the night of February 11, drove it about town, left it locked in a garage at a vacant house on Twenty-fourth street, and closed the doors of the shelter. He did not intend to go to the machine again, he said. Police recovered the car and arrested DeShazo two days later.

Stanford Backfield Coach To Accompany Warner

Winterburn To Help In Demonstrations With Warner

Charles Winterburn, who attained fame during collegiate days as a star backfield gridster at Stanford University and who is now backfield coach at Stanford, will assist in the field demonstrations and in teaching backfield technique in connection with the second annual Texas Tech coaching school here this summer.

A message yesterday, in which he expressed considerable enthusiasm over the coaching school and his visit to Lubbock, from Glenn S. "Pop" Warner to Coach P. W. Cawthon of Tech indicated the plans to bring Winterburn here. Warner, who will divide time with Heartly "Hunk" Anderson of Notre Dame in teaching and describing football theories at the school here, will also be accompanied by his line coach, Claude "Tiny" Thornhill, former University of Pittsburgh all-American lineman.

Coach Cawthon expressed the belief that the lineup of coaches who will be here to conduct the school will be the greatest array of athletic instructors ever assembled as a faculty. In addition to Anderson, Warner, Thornhill and Winterburn, the football faculty will include Jack Meagher of Rice Institute, former Notre Dame gridster who learned his football under Knute Rockne, and Marchmont Schwartz, all-American halfback last season for Notre Dame. Meagher will teach blocking tactics and Schwartz will assist in backfield demonstrations.

Allen and Littlefield Too

Clyde Littlefield of the University of Texas will be here to instruct a department of track. Littlefield coaches football and track at Texas.

The services of Dr. Forrest C. "Phog" Allen, director of athletics at the University of Kansas, have been procured during the summer school, July 11 to 23. Allen will head a course for basketball coaches and will present a series of lectures and demonstrations relative to the treatment of injuries and training of athletes.

Dates for the school were moved up to July 11-23 from July 18-29 in order that visiting coaches might conclude the courses in time to reach Los Angeles for the 1932 Olympics.

Attendance at the first Tech coaching school, conducted by Jimmy Phelan of the University of Washington and Wallace Wade of Duke surpassed all previous marks in Texas and was greater than any at any place in the United States last year. A total of 321 registered for the courses last year. S. D. Burton of West Texas Teachers and Jimmie Kitts of Athens High school taught basketball theories.

Debate Scheduled In City Thursday

Boys and girls debate teams of Littlefield high school will be matched against Lubbock high school teams here this evening at the school at 7:30 o'clock The debate will be held in the music aduitorium.

The question to be discussed is the Interscholastic League subject, "Resolved: That lobbying as practiced in this country is detrimental to the best interests of the people." The local speakers have the affirmative. In an engagement at Littlefield last Thursday night, the local teams lost both decisions.

Frances Nunley and Glayds Howell are members of the girls team to speak tonight and Billy Crenshaw and Alton Hankins are members of the boys team. J. W. Reed, forensic sponsor, is planning to send his first teams to Floydada next Friday and Saturday for an invitation tournament.

First team members are Frances Nunley and Wildring B. Sherrod, girls, and Alton Hankins and Buster Moxley. Second teams are composed of Glayds Howell and Frances Simmons and Billy Crenshaw and Horace Gore.

23 Holes Are Needed Before Match Settled

John Dawson Of Chicago Stays In Houston Meet While Mate Presents Mental Hazard In Putting On Extra Holes

HOUSTON COUNTRY CLUB, HOUSTON, Feb 24.(AP) A fine indifference to mental hazard kept John Dawson of Chicago in the running late today in the Houston Country club's 18th annual invitation golf tournament.

Dawson went into the quarter finals, which begin tomorrow, by defeating Glenn Crisman of Houston, one up in 23 holes. Crisman's putting on the first four extra holes would have unnerved many a seasoned player.

It was the longest extra hole match ever played in the history of the tournament.

While Dawson and Crisman were struggling up and down the fairways, Gus Moreland of Dallas, the defending champion, was having relatively easy going in his second round match to enter the quarter finals, defeating A. L. O'Leary of Houston, 4 and 3. The Dallas youngster had a close call this morning, however, 15 year old Freddie Borsodi of Houston taking him through 20 holes before Moreland won one up. Borsodi lost the last hole with a bad drive.

In the other second round matches Edwin McClure of Shreveport beat Charlie Dexter of Dallas 2 and 1; W. C. Hunt of Houston turned back Joe Russell of Houston, 4 and 3; E. J. Rogers of Oklahoma City defeated Ben Calhoun of Houston, 2 and 1; Jack Dold of Houston defeated I. S. Handy of Houston, 7 and 6; Reynolds Smith of Dallas beat Dick Nauts of Houston, 2 up, and Willie Maguire, jr., who tied with Moreland for medal honors, had an easy time most of the way with W. A. Stone of Houston, winning 5 and 4.

Letters To Editor

Saturday night. We are not asking the sports writer to pick our team as his "favorite," but we do ask that it be given the same publicity and support that would be given Lubbock or Plainview had they the chance to play in the coming bi-district games.

We are not picking "favorites" or "underdogs" in the bi-district games, but we will have this to say: If the so-called "Dark Horse" team is defeated in this contest, the winners will all vouch for the fact that they have been in a "ball game."

Yours ruly,
A Fan and Subscriber to Your Paper.

(Dear Fan: Thanks immensely for your letter. I salute the champions and hope they win the state championship. In fairness to our sports editor, however, permit me as a former sports editor to disagree with you. In picking a 'favorite' a sports writer bases his opinion on records and statistics, not on the team he'd like to see win from a personal standpoint. In this case our Mr. Parris merely guessed wrong—a habit with sports editors everywhere! Also permit me to correct you on one statement; no matter what team had won—whether it was Lubbock or who — the story would not have been front page news. It was and is sports page news. Write again. We welcome all views of our readers. The Editor.)
