John Gollighugh Dies Suddenly at Work Tuesday

John Gollighugh, 62, a lifelong Collingsworth County resident, died about 4 p.m. Tuesday, June 3, at the Wilbur DePauw farm at Quail, where he was delivering commercial fertilizer.

He was a long-time employee of Singley Mill and Elevator. Justice of the Peace Claude McKinney was called to the scene and said Wednesday morning that his investigation of the death is continuing.

Funeral services will be conducted at 10 a.m. Friday in Trinity United Methodist Church, with the Rev. Loyd Futch, pastor, officiating. Burial will be in Memorial Gardens under the direction of Kelson Funeral Home.

Mr. Gollighugh was born Nov. 24, 1906 in the Salt Fork community, the son of the late C. W. and Anna Lee Davidson Gollighugh. He grew up in that area and attended the Salt Fork Schools.

He was a long-time member of the Methodist Church. He was married to Miss Marie Harris on Dec. 22, 1929 in Wellington.

3 Methodist Pastors Returned to County

Collingsworth County's three Methodist clergymen have been returned to their charges for the 1969-70 church year. The appointments were read at the close of the annual Northwest Texas Conference in Lubbock late last week.

The Rev. Raymond T. Dyess is pastor of First United Methodist Church, Wellington; the Rev. Loyd Futch, Trinity United Methodist Church, Wellington; and the Rev. C. R. Hankins, Glen Davis Memorial United Methodist, Dozier.

Rev. Dyess and Rev. Futch are beginning their second year here; Rev. Hankins, who was Hardy Kiet of Hollis, who farms south of Dodson, delivered 305 bushels to the Dodson Farmers Co-op Enterprises, Raymond Cearley, manager, reported.

By Tuesday afternoon, he said that approximately 30,000 bushels had been delivered to that market.

Bobby Tabor of Dodson brought in Wellington's first wheat, delivering 200 bushels to Warrick Feed Store Sunday afternoon. He will receive a premium on the load, according to Velman Warrick, owner.

On Monday, Hershel Tabor also of Dodson, brought a load to Singley Mill and Elevator, Jones Singley said.

He delivered approximately 1200 bushels, which was a yield of about 20 bushels per acre of No. 1 wheat that tested 63.

"It was good and heavy. It's going to be heavy grain this year," Mr. Singley said.

Most farmers in the Dodson area will sell their wheat, Mr. Cearley believes, and the market was $1.20 per bushel there Tuesday afternoon.

Some of the Wellington growers will put their wheat in the government loan, hoping to sell for a higher price later on, elevator operators say.

All wheat so far has been No. 1, testing 61 to 63, and of low moisture content.

Several farmers in the Dodson area have finished harvesting, including Art Kane, Fred Covey and R. T. Jameson, and at mid-week combining will hit its peak. Most of the wheat will be out within a week or 10 days if good weather holds.

Wheat in the Wellington and Dodson area is making from 15 to 26 bushels, and some yields will go higher than that.

Among the early deliveries in Wellington were those of Jim Wood, A. O. Brown of Vinson, R. T. Jameson, R. L. Mabery, and Leslie Moore.

Harvesting north of Salt Fork is still about a week away.

As yet, none of the elevator operators will guess the number of acres that will be harvested in Collingsworth this season, but the damage by green bugs this spring was heavy, and other growers grazed out their wheat.

The county's wheat allotment for the 1969 crop was 23,165 acres, but enough was signed with the ASCS as diverted acres to lower the acreage to 14,468.

Wheat acres reported to the ASCS as grazed or destroyed by green bugs has not been tallied, and any estimates of the amount that will be harvested ranges from 7,500 to 10,000 acres.

This is the smallest amount of wheat the county has harvested in many years.

Corps of Engineers Studies Flood Control Project Here

The Corps of Engineers is making a study of the area north and west of Wellington to determine damage from the July 1968 floods, and to estimate the control measures that would be needed to prevent its recurrence.

Leffie N. Snider, an engineer out of the Tulsa office, arrived Tuesday to begin work on an estimate of the amount of flood damage incurred. Mr. Snider is an engineer out of the project evaluation section.

The study is being made on a request by the City of Wellington shortly after the flood occurred. Actual work began about two weeks ago when Bill Wilson of the Hydrology Department made on-the-ground studies that will enable the Corps to estimate the size of a structure needed to divert water around the town.

Jim McCoy of the Planning Department also was here to begin computation of the cost of such a project.

A preliminary report should be ready within the next month, Mr. Snider said, and if a project by the Corps of Engineers is justified, its representatives will meet with the City Council to discuss plans and costs.

At that point the city can accept the project or turn it down, Mr. Snider said.

Work being done now is just the beginning, he pointed out.

The hydrological study will give the flood frequency curve to help compute annual loss from floodwaters—losses which would become benefits if the Corps comes in with the project.

At the July 1968 meeting of representatives from the Corps of Engineers with the City Council and representatives of the Commissioners Court, it was brought out that a flood

The Vacation Bible School is for all children of the town who are interested in attending, and the public is invited to the closing program Sunday, June 15, said Rev. Gaston.

Arnett Elects Mrs. Roberson

Mrs. Lonnie Roberson, a member of the Dodson High School faculty this year, has been elected to teach commerce in Arnett High School, Supt. Bob Copeland has announced.

She is a graduate of West Texas State University and has taught five years at Wellington and Dodson High Schools.

Hospital's Financial Needs Are Set Out

The financial problems facing St. Joseph's Hospital cannot be solved by one fund-raising campaign conducted this year. They are before the hospital and before the county for all the foreseeable future.

This fact was laid before a small group in a public meeting Thursday morning, May 29, called by St. Joseph's Hospital Auxiliary to acquaint the public with the hospital's need.

The problem is not caused by the administration of the hospital, it was further brought out. It would exist regardless of the type of hospital the city had.

Present at the meeting were representatives of the Commissioners' Court, the City Council, and the Hospital Board.

At the end of the discussions, a committee was named to work with the hospital and with the Commissioners' Court toward a feasible solution.

The members are Mayor John Coleman, C. T. Hubbard, Mr. and Mrs. Jeff Wilson, Deskins Wells, Mrs. Wayne Cudd, and Dan Henard.

Mr. Wells opened the meeting by reviewing the points agreed upon by a group of local citizens and the Mother House of the Dominican Order which enabled the nuns to continue operation of St. Joseph's. A major point was the purchase of a new x-ray and certain improvements to the hospital building.

Sister Mary Perpetua, hospital administrator, explained that certain costs of hospital operation are fixed. Sixty-nine per cent of all expenses go for salaries, she said, and this is true whether there are five patients or the full capacity of 30 adults and six infants.

Cliff Campbell, a member of the Childrens County Commissioners Court, explained the operation of a hospital district, under which that county operates and has under construction a new hospital.

The Hospital District now levies taxes of 42¢ per $100 valuation and can go up to 75¢, he said, adding that "a hospital can be a pretty expensive item to a county."

Contributing to the financial problems of St. Joseph's Hospital are the county's decline in population; the aging of those who remain; and the Medicare program, it was brought out in discussion.

Medicare does not pay the full cost of hospitalization for its patients, Sister Perpetua explained. It is written into the program that the hospital must absorb 15 per cent of the cost, and the hospital cannot collect it from the patient, the administrator said. Only if a Medicare patient voluntarily pays this 15 per cent can the hospital get the full cost of his hospitalization.

The hospital must make up for this by increased rates to private patients, or from some other source, Sister Perpetua said.

County Judge Zook Thomas said that this year the Commissioners Court has paid the hospital $1,240 for indigent care and a few minutes later he said that if the people of the county will back up the court, it will do everything it can to help the hospital.

Several of those present asked if the Commissioners Court could explore further to determine if a tax can be levied similar to the 30¢ road tax now in effect so that a hos-

Baseball Play Opens Here With Childress

Baseball opens in Wellington Friday, June 6, when the Pony League meets a team of 13-to-15-year-old boys from Childress, Chairman Raymond Hodges announced this week.

The game will be played at Marian Airpark Diamond, beginning at 7:30 p.m.

The Wellington team has scheduled their second game, traveling to Childress Saturday evening to meet another team in that town. Game time will be 6:30 p.m.

Eighteen boys have reported for Pony League practice under the coaching of Mr. Hodges and Paul Hawkins. Playing assignments will be made Friday, but it now appears there will be four strong pitchers.

Pony League players practice each Tuesday and Friday at 7 p.m.

Two teams of Peeewees, the youngest players, have been practicing each Monday and Thursday under Charles Darter and Dan Guthrie. Approximately 25 boys have said they want to play.

Two teams of Little League players will be formed, with Jack Neeley, Gaylord Cook and Bud Higginbotham coaching.

Thirty boys have signed up, Mr. Hodges said, and they give every indication that both will be lively teams.

These teams will receive assignments and their players will be picked this week. Besides playing each other, the Little League teams probably will play teams from surrounding towns a little later in the season, the baseball chairman said.

Mrs. Yvonne Brewer is in charge of concessions at Marian Airpark Diamond this year, and she has called for volunteer workers. These may be mothers of players, or they may be girls in high school or junior high, she said.

Capt. Dennis Cudd

Capt. Cudd Wins Wings as Army Aviator; Now on Leave

HUNTER ARMY AF, Ga. — Army Captain Dennis E. Cudd, son of Mr. and Mrs. Hiram L. Cudd, Wellington, received the silver wings of an Army aviator upon graduation from the Army Aviation School at Hunter Army Airfield, Ga., May 6.

Capt. Cudd is now on leave prior to reporting later this month for his second tour of duty in Vietnam. He and his wife, Judy, are visiting his parents in Wellington, and with her father, C. A. Crawford, in Amarillo. She will make her home in that city while he is overseas.

Prior to going to Hunter Army Airfield, Capt. Cudd was stationed for four months at Fort Wolters, Mineral Wells.

During the 16-week course at Hunter AF, he was taught various fire techniques and tactical maneuvers for helicopters supporting ground troops in combat. He also received instruction in maintenance and survival techniques.

Capt. Cudd received a BS degree in mathematics in 1966 from West Texas State University, Canyon. He received his commission through the Reserve Officers' Training Corps program. He holds the Army Commendation Medal, Purple Heart, and two awards of the Bronze Star Medal.

Originally a corn was any small substance, especially a seed or kernel. When beef was laid in brine to cure, it was sprinkled with corns of coarse salt. The process came to be known as "corning" the beef.

All-Cotton Shirts to Make Comeback in Men's Stores

STAMFORD.—Have you tried to buy an all-cotton shirt only to be offered a man-made fiber substitute or one made of cotton adulterated with a synthetic?

Frustrating, isn't it? But, according to Charles W. Stenholm, Stamford, trustee of Cotton Producers Institute, relief is on the way.

"One of the top three shirt manufacturers (Manhattan) is making cotton the No. 1 object of a national sales effort," Mr. Stenholm explains.

"This is a result of a push by the Cotton Producers Institute and the National Cotton Council and is aimed at increasing availability and sales of 100% cotton durable press and pure-finish shirts."

The manufacturer earlier had decided to discontinue its all-cotton durable press shirt. Now it not only is going to keep this shirt but also is going to: (1) add two new lines of pure-finish cotton shirts, and (2) unite its promotional and sales resources with those of the cotton industry in a national selling campaign.

Buyers for retailers across the country learned of the new shirt lines through a series of full-page ads in key trade papers last month.

"Newspaper advertising will help put the shirts on the backs of consumers in 141 markets this fall. Space costs will be shared by local retailers and Cotton Producers Institute. National magazine advertising in full color also is scheduled," Stenholm says.

Maize dwarf Mosaic virus, a disease in sorghum and corn, is becoming more of a problem each year and all precautions should be taken to keep this destructive disease down.

Control of Johnson grass in and around your fields may be the most satisfactory means of control of the maize dwarf mosaic virus.

MDMV overwinters in rhizomes of Johnson grass. As the young shoots emerge in the spring, aphids begin feeding and acquire the virus. They then transmit the virus to susceptible corn and grain sorghum.

Symptoms vary depending on the type of host plant and its stage of growth. Most plants show a mild chlorotic mottle which gives the leaves a mosaic look. Grain does not develop normally in virus - affected plants. On corn only a few grains may form on the cob, while grain sorghum heads may be practically sterile. The virus can also be controlled by the use of resistant or tolerant hybrids. Some hybrids can tolerate infection quite well, while others are severely damaged. Losses will be dependent upon the percentage of infected plants and upon the susceptibility of the hybrid to the disease.

Cut hay while it is young and tender. Young plants are palatable and highly digestible, but become tough and stemmy when they approach maturity.

For sudan-sorghum hybrids, Johnson grass, native grasses and similar plants, cut them in the boot stage or just before the seedheads emerge.

Most spring hay crops contain high amounts of moisture when cut at the preferred stage.

Too, the weather is often rainy, cloudy and cool and the ground moist; thus, creating curing problems.

There is not much you can do about the weather but something can be done about maintaining the quality of the hay. The use of hay conditioners reduces curing time as much as half; thus, the crop can usually be cut and cured at the right time with little or no damage from rain.

The fertilizer should be applied after each cutting, especially nitrogen. If production from the first cutting is fairly high, phosphorus may also be needed.

Hay producers should take a soil sample before harvesting so fertilizer recommendations will be available for fertilizing immediately after harvest.

Former County Couple Observe 50th Wedding Anniversary at Austin

A couple who formerly lived here, Mr. and Mrs. Travis Baumgardner, observed their fiftieth wedding anniversary Sunday, May 25, at their home, 2007 Elton Lane, Austin.

Because he is recovering from a recent heart attack, there was no celebration, but on the following Sunday, June 1, their sons, James Baumgardner of Tulsa, and Joe Bill Baumgardner of Houston, and their families came to be with them.

Relatives here could not attend: her sisters, Mrs. Bill Metz and Mrs. Betty Coker, and her nephew, Mr. and Mrs. Sandy Parsons; Mr. Baumgardner's sister, Mrs. Olean Leggett, was with him after his heart attack.

Mrs. Baumgardner is the former Etta Susan Sledge, the daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. T. B. Sledge. The couple was married in Wellington May 1, 1919. A member of the family noted that he was not quite 19 years old.

They lived here the first few years of their marriage, then with their older son, James, moved to Shamrock in 1924. Joe Bill was born there the following year.

Mr. Baumgardner was in the construction business and farmed some in and around Wellington and Shamrock for a number of years.

They lived in the Panhandle area—Wellington, Shamrock and Lubbock—until 1940, when they moved to Austin, where he has had a real estate and insurance business.

The couples' families, each of which had seven children, came here during a period of Collingsworth County's greatest growth. Travis Baumgardner was about 16 when his parents, J. F. and Ida Baumgardner, brought their family in 1917 from Atlanta. Travis had been born near McKinney. He finished high school in Wellington and served in the army in World War I.

The Sledge family came about 1908, from Memphis, where they had moved only a few years earlier from Whitesboro. Etta Sledge was graduated from Wellington High School and attended West Texas State Teachers College, as the Canyon school was then known.

Only Mrs. Leggett and Mr. Baumgardner survive of that family. The other children were the late Maurice Baumgardner, Joe B. Baumgardner (father of David Baumgardner), Mrs. Celina Branch, Mrs. Eunice Lucas, and Mrs. Grady Nolan.

Mrs. Baumgardner's brother and sisters are John Sledge of Midland; Mrs. Jessie Metz and Mrs. Betty Coker of Wellington; Mrs. Katy Higgins of Littlefield; Mrs. Tom (Teresa) Campbell of Lubbock; and the late Mrs. Sandy Parsons Sr.

There are now six grandchildren in the Travis Baumgardner family. The James Baumgardners' daughters are Susan, 14, and Amy, 12.

The Joe Bill Baumgardners have four: Steve, 21, and in SMU; Sally, 16, Jim, 12, and Ellen, 5.

Both the Sledges and Baumgardners were lively, active families who have left their mark on the Wellington area.

Travis Baumgardner has just completed for publication a genealogy of his family, which of course includes some interesting facts of their life in Collingsworth County.

Innovations are lighting up the appliance market.

Blenders, irons, alarm clocks and even pots and pans have taken an air of sophistication.

Pots and pans now come in strong colors: bright red, yellow, orange, deep blue, green, chocolate, avocado and paisley pattern. One company will supply cookware with a monogram baked on. Plastic dishes come in mix-and-match sets with contrasting designs or reversed colors.

One blender comes with 16 push-button speeds. Simpler ones are priced low to attract customers, but the top models remain expensive.

Coffee pots have new styles. One make promises the perfect cup of drip coffee because of a special water flow system that is said to allow the brew to steep just the right length of time.

Irons are slimmed down and have donned handy features. One has a special heel rest to prevent it from tipping. Another takes its own temperature and displays it on the top. It is scorch proof!

There is a battery-powered bathroom scale that features a raised black screen on which over-sized numbers light up to show your weight. Many others come in different styles, including the latest butterfly shape.

A "his and hers" electric alarm clock with two faces and alarms lets "him" get up early and "her" sleep on until the second alarm. A lamp-clock-radio is new, that wakes you in stages: first the light and radio, then the alarm.

What is in the future for appliances? Here are some items that are not due on the market for at least five years: a thermo-electric steam iron powered by a re-chargable fuel cell, will collect moisture from the air, provide instant heat, and remove spots. An ultrasonic blender, also powered by a fuel cell, will be self-cleaning and silent in operation.

An automatic can opener will cut metal with a laser beam. A computerized beverage center will dispense hot or cold drinks at the touch of a button, automatically adjusting the liquid to the height of your cup or glass.

Food Store Dollar

How does the food store dollar divide? According to U.S. Department of Agriculture statistics, meats accounted for 20.4% of your dollar in 1967. Poultry took 3.7%, fish 1.6%, eggs 1% and dairy products 6.8%.

Fruits and vegetables in both fresh and processed form won 17.7 cents of the sales dollar; cereal and bakery products 9.1%, foods such as frozen prepared products, baking needs, sugars, jams and dressings made up 8.1% of sales.

Supermarkets take in as much money from non-food items as from their whole meat department.

Strawberry Dumplings

The June issue of "Better Homes and Gardens" has several good strawberry recipes. One of the best is Strawberry Dumplings.

A fresh berry dessert crowned with rich dumplings wins Cook of the Month honors for Fast Strawberry Desserts—

1/3 cup sugar
2/3 cup water
1/2 t. vanilla
1 cup sifted all-purpose flour
2 T. sugar
1 1/2 t. baking powder
1/2 t. salt
4 T. butter or margarine
1/2 cup milk
1 pint (about 2 cups) strawberries, hulled
1 T. sugar

In a saucepan, combine the 1/3 cup sugar and the water. Bring mixture to boiling; reduce heat and simmer, uncovered, 5 minutes. Stir in vanilla. Sift together flour, the 2 tablespoons sugar, the baking powder and salt. Cut in butter or margarine till mixture is crumbly. Add milk and stir just till well combined. Place berries in a 1 1/2 quart casserole; pour hot sugar mixture over. Immediately drop dumpling dough in 8 to 10 spoonful over berries. Sprinkle dumplings with the remaining 1 tablespoon sugar. Bake in a very hot oven (450) for 25 to 30 minutes, or till the dumplings are done. Serve warm from casserole into individual dessert dishes. Makes 4 to 5 servings.

Trio Selected for Texas Girls' State

Three girls who have completed their junior year in high school will represent Collingsworth County at Bluebonnet Girls' State, to be held this year from Wednesday, June 11 through Friday, June 20, at St. Edwards University, Austin.

Susan Oney, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Oney, was selected from Wellington, while the Samnorwood representatives are Ruth Dwight, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Dwight, and Laura Whitson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Tom Whitson. They will leave Tuesday, June 10, for Austin, along with other girls from the 18th District.

More than 8,000 young Texans have been trained in city, county and state government and democratic processes in the 25-year history of Bluebonnet Girls' State. From the program's inception, except for two years, it has been headquartered in Austin.

Sponsored by the American Legion Auxiliary, it has some additional backing from various local civic clubs. These "citizens" return to their home high schools to spread the beneficial knowledge they have gleaned from this two weeks' experience.

Miss Frances Goff, special products supervisor for the University of Texas M. D. Anderson Hospital and Tumor Institute at Houston, is the volunteer director. She has served in this post since 1952.

Citizen representatives are selected by various approved procedures after being recommended by their schools on the basis of leadership, character, scholarship and physical fitness.

The more than 450 girls who attend the '69 session will study and actively participate in the processes of city, county and state government, as these are structured through Texas by Texas statutes. The citizens are divided into two political parties in order that they may learn about the American democratic system.

After the citizens have chosen their form of government, they then file for city, county and state offices. Upon election the state officials are "inaugurated" at the Texas Capitol, where their real counterparts will escort them to their inauguration.

City and county "officials" visit the Austin City Hall and the Travis County Courthouse. The entire assemblage will tour the state legislative chambers and the governor's mansion. During one day, the citizens will conduct their own legislative sessions within the Capitol chambers.

Degers Receive Degrees at SWT

A former Collingsworth County couple, Mr. and Mrs. Joe Deger, were among the more than 900 candidates for degrees awarded in commencement ceremonies at Southwest Texas College Wednesday, May 28.

Mrs. Deger, the former Reba F. Scarberry, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lee Scarberry of Wellington, received a bachelor of science degree in mathematics.

Next year she will teach math in the college and continue her work toward a master's degree.

Mr. Deger received his master's degree in physical science. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Jess Deger of Samnorwood, and was graduated from high school there. He now teaches at the Gary Job Corps Center.

He has a bachelor's degree from West Texas State University and taught in Amarillo two years and Lubbock one before going to San Marcos about four years ago.

The couple has three children, Gayle, 16; Dale, 14; and Danny, 11.

The January and May graduates receiving diplomas heard an address by Houston attorney Roy Wilberm, president of the SWT Ex-Students Association. About 850 of the graduates earned bachelor's degrees and around 60 received master's.

with material about long, raging court battles, love triangles, vigilante hangings, the Civil War and the coming of the Iron Horse.

Miss Oppenheimer and Bowers wrote about the man wanting the malaria pills, as well as chewing tobacco, with the slogan, "Chew Star Navy, Spit Ham Gravy"; the library on which Andrew Carnegie lost money; Dalby Springs with its healing waters; debates between Baptists and Campbellites; and the numerous river journeys on the Red River.

In an introduction to "Red River Dust," Dr. Frank X. Tolbert, columnist for the Dallas Morning News, says "A good book ... one that should have been written."

New Book Tells Fascinating Story of Early NE Texas

A book that tells the story of the man who traded a thousand acres of the richest Red River blackland for a thousand boxes of malaria fever pills has now gone into its second printing.

"Red River Dust", written by Eugene Bowers of Clarksville and Evelyn Oppenheimer of Dallas, is a fascinating book about the frontier Red River country. Word Books, of Waco, Texas, is the publisher.

Bowers, district clerk of Red River County for more than 20 years, began collecting interesting tales about the settling of the area many years ago. He asked Miss Oppenheimer, well known as a literary critic and radio commentator, to work with him in preparing a book about the half-forgotten names and places around Clarksville.

The co-authors went through court records, newspaper files, old diaries and personal letters to find stories of human drama and humor for "Red River Dust." They came up

Wellington Looks Good When It Is Flying Its Flags

Not many United States Flags waved in downtown Wellington on Memorial Day, yet when all business houses do let out their flags, it is impressive indeed.

American flags rippling in a Collingsworth breeze are an outward and visible symbol of our strong pride and trust in our country — and no other part of America is more deeply and realistically patriotic than this section of the Southwest.

Our flags dress up our town. Visitors often remark what an attractive town Wellington is, and this can help us enhance our good looks.

We will have an opportunity again soon to fly our flags — Flag Day on June 14. This one of the special occasions on which we can make Wellington a handsome and proud town indeed.

Mail Sales? Let Senders Beware

Say that you've received, unordered, a set of carving knives, a book on chinchilla raising, or an "imported" table cover—plus an invoice for the items in question. If a bill introduced in the North Carolina General Assembly wins a legislative nod, you won't have to send the stuff back, or pay for it, or even acknowledge receipt.

Let the sender sue if he wishes. The measure provides that "In any action for the return of merchandise, or for payment for merchandise, it is a complete defense that the merchandise was delivered unsolicited . . . The recipient shall be entitled to keep such merchandise."

Small bill, big potential. Deserves passage.

Inflation in College . . .

In the depression years of the early and middle 1930's, a college education was a privilege, often reserved for those with the stamina to work and go to school at the same time. It is exceedingly difficult for people of that generation to view with a great deal of tolerance, the riots and vandalism that are making a shambles of college campuses today—a condition that seems to go along with the assumption that higher education is an inalienable right. How inalienable this right remains may depend on the course of inflation.

The cost of going to school is soaring, and education is among all the other fine social goals threatened by the declining value of the dollar. Rising costs of operating the institutions of higher learning are reflected in higher tuition fees and other college expenses.

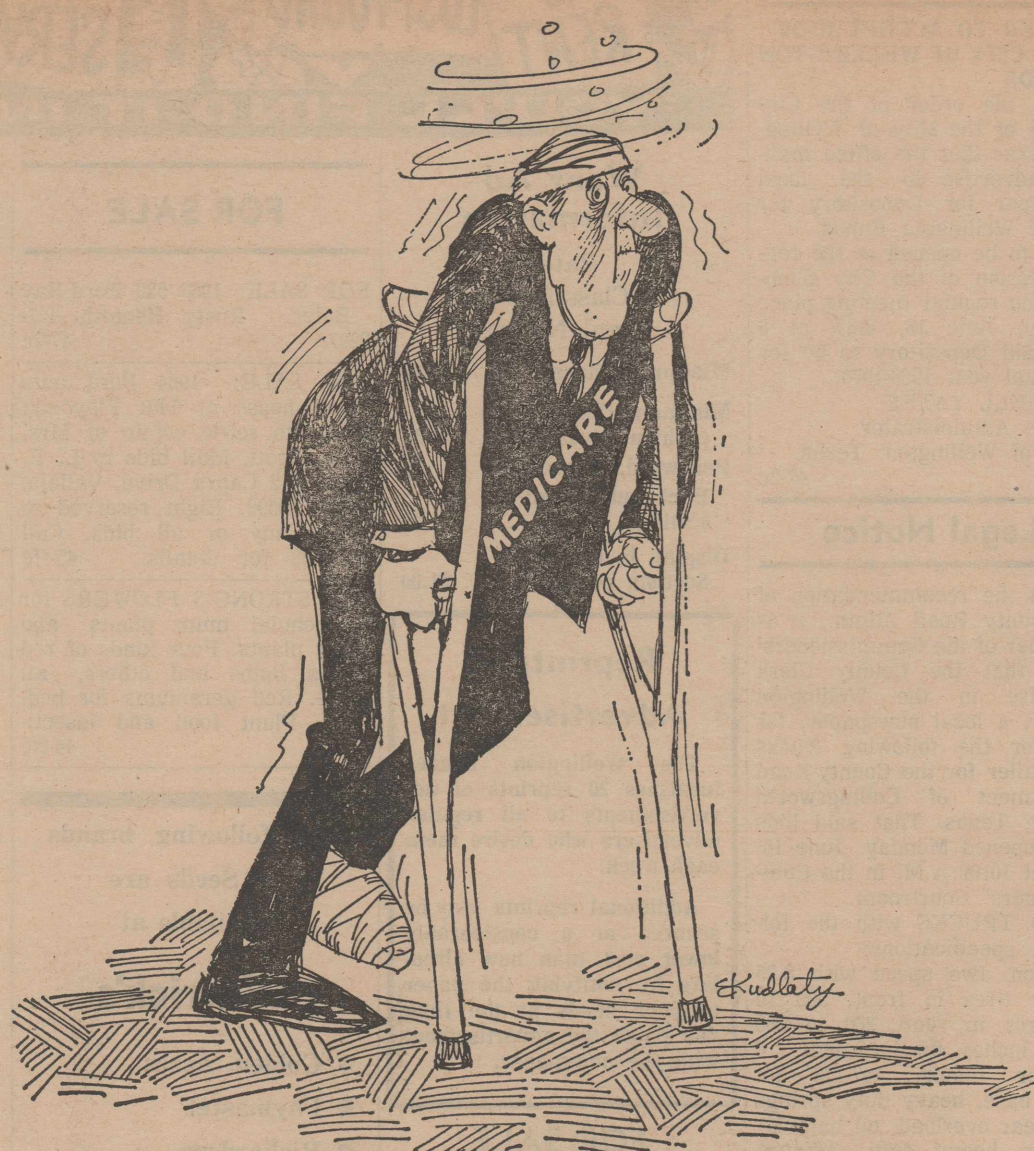

Persent day affluence may partially explain the generation gap we hear so much about. But, rising costs of inflation may help close that gap as young people begin to learn that a college education is something to be respected, treasured and earned — not taken for granted.

In Bad Shape

AUSTIN. — Texas lawmakers have written the record of the 61st regular session, but their toughest job—levying the taxes to pay for what they have ordered remains to be done.

In adopting a $2.8 billion one-year budget (for 1970), they invited a special session to complete appropriations for 1971 and to decide on the inevitable major tax bill. Legislative leaders, Lt. Gov. Ben Barnes and House Speaker Gus Mutscher, claim the latter will be smaller if the finance showdown can be delayed until next year.

Gov. Preston Smith, who holds the key to the timing of the special session, has made clear from the start that he feels the Legislature should face up to a biennial budget and the raising of needed revenue. He could veto the single-year bill and call for another session immediately—or accept it and schedule the remaining financial work whenever he pleases.

Many all-time legislative records have topped at this session. Certainly, the 61st session passed more legislation than any before it, and it was committed in advance to spending more money.

A multitude of laudable ends were attained. Giant strides were made in the field of education. Teachers got a $61.9 million pay raise. Overhauls were ordered in the field of vocational and technical education. Three new medical schools, a dental school and two new nursing schools were authorized. Also, three new universities, plus an experimental upper level branch college in Laredo. Never have so many new higher educational facilities been launched in a single session.

A master water plan got all the legislative support it could expect. Workmen's compensation laws were updated. Sweeping controls were approved over air and water pollution. A constitutional amendment to legalize the sale of liquor by the drink was submitted, along with many other proposed changes in the Constitution. State employees got a 6.8% pay raise.

Texas' 61st Legislature was a busy, productive session. It was a liberal-spending one with the bills yet to be paid.

"The citizenship of Texas will applaud our work at this session and give us their full support when we return to appropriate and finance the second year of the biennium," concluded Speaker Mutscher.

Law Enforcement Plan

Texas' new State Criminal Justice Council has recommended a comprehensive $1.1 million law enforcement plan that covers a wide scope of activities.

Gov. Smith will analyze it before it goes to the U.S. Department of Justice for approval and funding under the Federal Omnibus Crime Control and Safe Streets Act of 1968. Funds for a two-year operation must be committed by June 30.

Texas received $234,000 for riot control and $830,350 in planning money six months ago.

Council voted priority funding to these programs: Prevention of juvenile delinquency, education and training in all elements of the criminal justice system, regional and statewide information and communication systems, community relations programs, experimental and demonstration projects to test and evaluate new approaches to solving problems in criminal justice system.

Approved funds will be disbursed to 21 geographical planning regions of the state. Congress now is considering funding which would provide Texas more than $11 million in action money, plus planning aid for next year to develop a long-range plan and begin putting it into effect.

Beautiful, Beautiful Texas

Gov. Smith will keynote a one-day workshop June 11 to stimulate the preservation and enhancement of natural beauty in Texas. This second annual clean-up and beautification conference of the Beautify Texas Council will be held at Villa Capri Motor Hotel in Austin.

Beautify Texas Council was organized in 1967 to combat the litter problem and to advise and act as a coordinating agency through which business and industry, government, public and private organizations may work together to solve the problems of Texas beautification.

Attorney General Rules

A person not registered as a voter is ineligible for election or appointment as an independent school district trustee. So advises Atty. Gen. Crawford Martin in ruling on a Spring Creek School election issue. A similar opinion was returned earlier following a Honey Grove controversy.

In other recent opinions, Martin held that:

—An act to prohibit corporations from engaging in farming or ranching (allowing a 10-year period to sell interests) would be constitutional.

—State treasurer must publish information on unclaimed funds over $50 held and owing by life insurance companies.

Financial Facts

THE FAMILY BUDGET

No budget is permanent. You change it, work over it and finally settle on it. You are never fully satisfied with it. One thing you do realize. And that is—there is no steadfast formula.

Let us not look upon budgeting as a system of penny-pinching. It is a planned program of financial management.

Following a strict budget actually helps all members of a family. Thus all members of the family should cheerfully cooperate.

The first step in setting up a budget is to outline goals. The next step is to estimate how much money will be available.

Write down all income you expect to receive. Estimate your expenses. Then set up your plan. This should be based on goals, income and expenses.

FIRST STEP

A technician of the Wellington Soil Conservation Service demonstrates the first step in building a system of parallel terraces southeast of town. Here he "shoots" the elevation to determine the lines of terrace construction.

Adapted to County

115 Miles of Parallel Terraces Built Here

Almost 600,000 feet—115 miles—of parallel terraces have been constructed on farms in Salt Fork Soil Conservation District during the last year, indicating the growing popularity of this newer variation of one of the oldest forms of soil and water conservation.

Approximately 25 farms are involved in parallel terrace construction, according to Gary Reed, work unit conservationist of Soil Conservation Service. Systems will be put on an additional 10 or 12 farms this summer, on land that has been diverted or where small grain was harvested.

"We think this type of terrace is being more widely accepted because of the ease of farming operations, elimination of point rows, and additional water spread," said Mr. Reed.

The 600,000 feet of terraces already built represents an investment of around $100,000 by the landowners in the Wellington area, a sizeable figure in the county's economy, he continued.

There is a broad spread in the cost of parallel terrace construction, ranging from $20 per acre on flatter land up to as much as $60 on rougher farms.

Most of the construction has been southeast of Wellington, principally in the Fresno area, Mr. Reed said, and this section is especially well adapted for this type of terrace. However, parallel terraces are to be found over much of the county, he was quick to add.

Not all the work of building a set of parallel terraces is done on the land. The Soil Conservation Service has invested an average of 10 man days of technical assistance per farm so far, Mr. Reed explained.

And with several SCD co-operators wanting to start construction at the same time, this technical work may take a little while.

The procedure goes something like this: SCS technicians first stake out the entire farm to be terraced, two rows of stakes both ways every 100 feet, then shoot it to determine elevation.

Back in the office, a map is drawn to scale, complete with contour lines.

"And then we have a brain storm to plan his system of parallels there on the map," said Mr. Reed. Next the farmer is called in to go over the plan. Any changes in the system are made at this point.

The landowner then contracts for the terrace construction;

People Buy More During the Summer Months Than Most Other Seasons

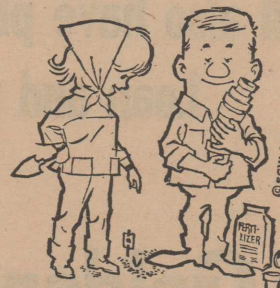

Many of us are accustomed to speaking of the dull summer months which may have been partially true in another day and a different economy; but the actual facts happen to be the opposite.

Year after year, figures released by the United States Department of Commerce show that people buy more during the summer months than almost any other season of the year.

They are buying clothes for travel, luggage for travel and hundreds of other items connected with vacations and summer; but they are also buying items for recreation at home during the long interesting days of summer.

They are buying air conditioners, refrigerators, cook out appliances, lawn and garden supplies and hundreds of other items that are a part of home living during the summer months.

In fact if it were not for the tremendous sales that start in late November and continue through December, the summer months would exceed any other season.

Knowing these facts, forward looking merchants plan their sales promotion in advance and on a stepped up scale at the very beginning of summer. Let us help you in building advertisement that will increase your summer sales.

El Paso Principal to End 45 Year Career in Education

A 45-year teaching career that began in Wellington will close this year.

Frank C. Pollitt, who as principal of Bowie High School in El Paso, has directed the education of more than 10,000 students, has announced his retirement as principal after 22 years. He will move to the Central Office of El Paso Public Schools and a new position as assistant in the purchasing department.

Mr. Pollitt's career in education began in 1924 as a 19-year-old Spanish teacher in the Wellington Schools. He had just graduated from Texas Christian University. During the two years he was here he lived in the home of Mrs. J. L. Burt and the late Mr. Burt.

A few years later, he and his wife, Florence, returned to this part of the state and he was principal and a teacher in the Loco schools several years.

Before arriving in El Paso in 1939, he had served as teacher and principal in six other Texas towns: Palacios, Pecos, Perryton, Miami, Valentine and Alpine.

Mr. Pollitt was assigned to Bowie as an English teacher to a student body that was almost 100% Mexican. Later he served as the school's assistant principal, and he was appointed principal in 1947.

—By Deskins Wells

A&M University reports that Texas is 2,000 short of its need of mechanics capable of repairing agricultural implements such as tractors, combines, etc. The machinery has become too complicated for the farmer to be his main mechanic as was the case in the past. Automobile agencies and other industries have lured the more capable to higher paying jobs. The shortage is acute and A&M indicates that it will become worse before the condition is remedied.

R. G. LeTourneau, a genius in the field of giant sized earth moving equipment, died at his home in Longview this week. His machines are known over the world and his vast plant is the largest manufacturing industry in that part of Texas. He was the inventor of the electric wheel, the bulldozer and the 2-wheeled tractor unit. He never finished high school; but he studied electrical engineering by correspondence.

These two unrelated news items may not be of any great help to a high school graduate who is trying to plan a career. They do illustrate that the need for specific skills not connected with academic learning were and still are enormous. The need for people who have the knowledge and the ability to do things with their hands, or rather with their brain, hands, feet, eyes, ears, nose and instinct is greater today than it ever was in the history of mankind.

The man who can cook a hamburger better, drive a truck, repair a tractor, wire a house or do any other of a hundred things is in demand. There has always been a demand for these kind of skills. Henry Ford was a mechanic. Howard Hughes' father was trained as a lawyer; but he started the Hughes empire as a blacksmith by inventing a different kind of oil tool bit. LeTourneau was known to put in a 12 to 14 hour work day when he was in his seventies and Thomas Edison's normal work day was 16 hours. This is not to say that everyone should be a mechanic or an electrician or work 12 hours a day; but it is an observation of one thing these men of great accomplishments and great wealth had in common.

Parents with small children who ride bicycles on the city streets should instruct them in the safety rules concerning these vehicles. Three times in this first week since the close of school there have been three incidents involving small children on bicycles. In each of these cases it would not have been the fault of the driver of the car if an accident had occurred. Quick action on the part of the driver of a slow-moving car was all that saved one child who dashed out of the alley on her bike almost in front of the car.

For the Record: The temperature in Wellington was 60 degrees at 7 a.m. on June 2, 3, and 4, 1969 with some people reporting 58 for Tuesday, June 3.

The Armadillos are moving northward. Last week Ralph Owens saw a dead one on the Hollis highway west of Buck Creek and this week Gene Morrow noted one on Highway 83 three miles south of Wellington. It was not so many years ago that a person had to drive nearly to Abilene before seeing Armadillos.

It is said the flesh of the Armadillo makes good eating, tasting very much like pork. And that brings up the tale about the South Texan who took his friend from Louisiana hunting. They became separated and near the close of day the South Texan returned to camp to find his friend with an Armadillo cooking in the big pot.

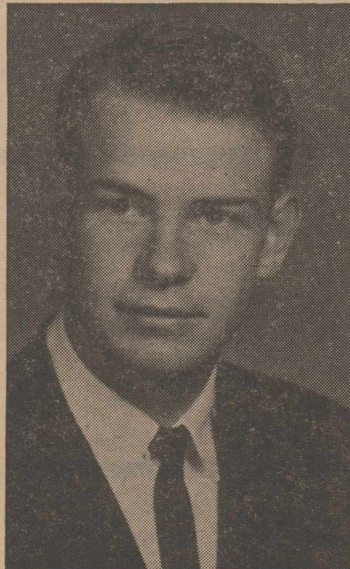

"Are you going to eat that?" he asked.

"Sure am," his friend replied. "That is the first hard-shell possum I ever killed."

His present plans are to teach or enter the armed forces.

Attending the graduation were all members of his family: his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Phipps; Marine Lance Corporal and Mrs. David Phipps of Dallas; Miss Gay Phipps of Lubbock; Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Daugherty and children of Amarillo, and Mr. and Mrs. E. C. Riley and children of Boys Ranch.

pital item can be set up as a regular part of the budget.

As Civil Defense Director for Collingsworth County, Judge Thomas stressed the value of the hospital and its trained personnel in case of a disaster.

Dan Henard, a member of the RC&D board which has just completed a survey of this and other nearby counties, pointed out that the average age of all Collingsworth County residents is 57 years.

"What are we talking about in dollars and cents?" County Commissioner W. R. Breeding asked Sister Perpetua.

The hospital's biggest need, she said, was for a central air conditioning and heating system, which with the separate units for the operating room and isolation section would be around $19,000. Replacement of worn out and obsolete furniture and equipment would bring the figure to approximately $25,000. This can be spread over a period of several years by installment payments.

This will be a return game of one played here on June 1, when Wellington won 17 to 7.

The team is made up of young men of the community who are interested in baseball, and who consistently win a majority of their games.

Veteran Coach Shamblee has had a team here almost every year for approximately 35 years and during this time he has worked with both adults and boys.

As wear and tear and loss of uniforms for the last two or three seasons had left the team without, Shamblee secured figures on the cost of shirts, pants, caps and socks and presented them to his friends in the business community.

Some bought full uniforms, and others contributed in varying amounts.

Jane Thomas, Ann McLain Get Degrees

Jane Orr Thomas and Ann Orr McLain, twin daughters of Dr. and Mrs. J. M. Orr, received degrees from the School of Education of Texas Technological College this spring.

Ann, the wife of Lynn McLain, was an elementary education major and plans to teach in the Lubbock area while her husband completes his studies in architecture at Tech.

Jane, who is married to Glenn Thomas, is an art major on the secondary school level. She also plans to teach, but at present she is with her husband who is stationed with the armed forces in Maryland.

They were among the more than 2,000 to receive degrees at Tech this spring.

After graduating from Wellington High School, both girls attended Stephens College in Columbia, Mo., for two years, then entered Tech.

School Transfer

Since both the school superintendent and parent of the child must sign the transfer application, a revised application should be mailed to the parent or guardian applicant for signature, with a request that it be returned to the school district, according to Leon R. Graham, assistant commissioner for Administration of the Texas Education Agency.

Another method by which this may be done is for the receiving district to notify in writing transfer applicants previously filing transfer forms with the county superintendent to personally appear at the school district office to complete the new form.
