Tornado kills one

From Wire and Staff Reports

SWEETWATER — A tornado spawned by a fast-moving line of thunderstorms hit the southern edge of this West Texas city early Saturday, causing at least one death, 80 injuries and an undetermined amount of damage, authorities said.

The Texas Department of Public Safety said at least one person died when a twister struck homes on the outskirts of Sweetwater about 7:30 a.m. and cut power and some communications in the city.

The storm fatality was Henry Earl Tatom, 87, who lived at 610-A Jack Lambert Drive. Tatom's residence was said to be located in a section of the city hardest hit by the twister.

The injured were taken to Rolling Plains Hospital in Sweetwater and Hendricks Medical Center in Abilene. Six persons were taken initially, and two more were transferred by DPS helicopter mid-morning Saturday.

Authorities were "beginning a house-to-house search for possible trapped victims," said Wendell Rehm, DPS spokesman, adding he did not know how many houses were hit.

The tornado was first spotted near Lake Champion, preceded northwest in the southern portion of the city, crossed I-20 just west of the Holiday Inn and other motels, and then followed a northeast direction across an approximate three-mile path.

Five of the injured taken shortly after 9 a.m. to Hendrick, and a spokeswoman, Jo Thompson, said they suffered head lacerations, fractures and other injuries. The two transferred by helicopter was said suffering from severe back injuries.

The hospital sent a medical team to Sweetwater, where officials from Rolling Plains hospital also set up two areas to treat victims, said Kloyece Irvin, nursing administrator at Humana Hospital in Abilene.

Second resigns at city

A second vacancy on the Snyder city council occurred Friday with the resignation of Mickey Nunley. He served in the place 5 council seat.

Nunley, an owner of Line and Line Oil Co., cited business reasons in his letter of resignation to Snyder Mayor Rod Waller.

Nunley said his company had taken on service of territory in Oklahoma and his increased work demands would require him to frequently be out of the city.

He was first elected to the council in April of 1983 — winning from a field of two candidates.

He was unopposed for a second term in April of 1985.

August vote possible

By DONNY BROWN

Attorneys for the city and school in the lawsuit which challenges each's "at-large" election process say an August ballot to name new boards is a "viable date."

U.S. District Judge Halbert D. Woodward has now officially rescheduled the spring elections for both entities for August.

Friday, Brian Quinn, an attorney with the Lubbock firm of McWhorter, Cobb and Johnson, said he believes the lawsuit might be settled in time for such a ballot.

Woodward's action setting the August date came with a ruling granting an injunction against future city and school elections.

That injunction was sought with the initial filing of the lawsuit which challenges the at-large method of electing both city council members and trustess to the Snyder school board.

Filing that lawsuit Oct. 18 were seven county residents working in conjunction with the Southwest Voter Registration and Education Project (SVREP), a San Antonio-based group active in the effort for greater minority representation throughout West Texas.

Prior to the judge's injunction ruling, both the city and school had agreed to "freeze" each's current boards. In line with this, no city or school ballot was conducted this past April 5.

City officials note the injunction will also likely take precedent over a city charter requirement which calls for a city election if more than two council seats come vacant within a 45-day period.

Quinn said Friday, "That's something we're talking to the plaintiffs about now."

Two places have come vacant on the council during April as both Truett Bryan and Mickey Nunley have submitted resignations due to increased work loads at each's respective business.

City Manager John Gayle said Friday the plaintiffs in the election process are aware of the resignations. He said the current indication is that appointments made by the council for the two

Sales tax holds during February

Sales in Snyder during February — a time when the sudden decline in oil prices was just beginning — indicate a slight increase over figures totaled for the same time last year.

For the month, sales tax rebates held at just over $52,000 compared to some $48,000 last year. Exact figures were $52,282 and $48,653 respectively.

This helped keep the year-to-date total for the city at a plus 6.9 percent.

With four months counted, Snyder's total is now in excess of $285,000. This time last year, the figure was just over $267,000.

Exact figures for each are $285,521 and $267,066 respectively.

The statewide sales tax report indicated many of the state's major cities were running at levels below last year. This includes the two largest, Houston at a minus 1 percent ($47.1 million total) and Dallas at minus 4 percent ($33.6 million total).

In the surrounding area, cities both larger and smaller than Snyder reported mixed sales tax results for the year-to-date. The latest figures for these include:

—Lubbock: plus 2 percent with $4.3 million reported compared to $4.2 million last year.

—Abilene: minus 1.8 percent with $2,604,930 reported compared to $2,653,880 last year.

—Odessa: minus 5.8 percent with $2.4 million reported compared to $2.6 million last year.

—San Angelo: plus 4.3 percent with $1.7 million reported compared to $1.6 million last year.

—Big Spring: plus 4.1 percent with $488,357 reported compared to $468,785 last year.

—Snyder: plus 6.9 percent with $285,521 reported compared to $267,066 last year.

—Sweetwater: minus 2.8 percent with $223,786 reported compared to $230,429 last year.

Monday holiday due to note independence

City, county and state offices will be closed in Snyder Monday in observance of a Texas Sesquicentennial holiday, San Jacinto Day.

In addition, classes will be dismissed for public school students at Ira, Hermleigh and Snyder as well as college classes at Western Texas College.

Federal offices will remain open, however, to include all county post offices. Mail will be delivered on a normal schedule.

The Ag Service Center, which houses both the ASCS and SCS offices, will be open also.

Other closings will be noted at the Scurry County Museum on the campus of WTC and the Senior Citizens Center.

State offices to be closed include the driver's license office, the Texas Employment Commission and the Department of Highways and Public Transportation.

In addition to the courthouse, the related county facilites will be closed to include the library, county health unit and welfare offices.

Snyder city hall will be closed also.

Snyder financial institutions will be open, however.

The day will be observed across the state as one of six "bell ringing" days celebrating the Sesquicentennial. The city siren system will be sounded at noon here.

San Jacinto Day is observed as the day when General Sam Houston captured General Lopez de Santa Anna's troops.

The SDN Column — By Roy McQueen

The feller on Deep Creek says, "Folks are more apt to swallow what you say if it's served with a spoon instead of a pitch fork."

From all indications, it appears that the Western Texas College trustees will pick up steam in their search for a new college president.

A change-in-command always brings about some apprehension, but the apprehension has been enhanced by the state-wide talk of budget cuts.

But there has been belt-tightening before. There is a story about a college president who was as tight-fisted as they come. He always kept his eye out for ways to cut corners and for bargains when he deemed a purchase absolutely necessary.

It is said the administrator found 40 manual typewriters at a surplus property sale. They appeared to be in mint condition, and he concluded the $10 price to be more than reasonable.

He also knew that many of his associates still preferred the manual typewriter to the new electronic models. None of the machines was equipped with a ribbon, but he tried the keys and they struck perfectly.

He bought all 40. Then, back at the campus, he discovered why the typewriters had been displayed without ribbons--they wrote in Russian.

A real innovative administrator would just offer a new course--Russian typing.

Speaking of education, a wide gap in instructional philosophy surfaced at a recent meeting of the National Council of Mathematics Teachers.

One group protested a recommendation that youngsters be allowed to use calculators as early as first grade. Others argued that kids ought to exercise their brains before pushing buttons for correct answers.

We agree with one observer who said, "We're probably old-fashioned, but we vote for at least getting them through the multiplication tables."

Like the ole-timer said: "Progress was all right once, but it went on too long."

Q. — Are there any ski resorts still open in New Mexico or Colorado?

A. — All of the New Mexico ski areas are closed, but several in Colorado were still operating as of Friday but were expected to close after this weekend. Projected closings beyond this date include Arapahoe Basin (mid-June); Berthoud Pass (June 6); Copper Mountain (April 27); Eldora (April 27); and Loveland Basin (May 4).

Store break-in

A Snyder jewelry store was burglarized sometime after midnight Friday.

To gain entry, police say a rock was thrown through the front window of McLeod's Jewelers in the Snyder Shopping Center. The broken glass was reported to police shortly after 7 a.m. Saturday.

The initial indication is watches and rings were stolen, police say.

ISD transfers

Students who do not reside in the Snyder Independent School District, but who wish to attend public school here during the 1986-87 school year must complete this transfer before the end of this month.

Those transferring after April 30 will be required to pay a tuition fee.

Parents may file for student transfers at the school administration building, 2901 37th St., any weekday from 8 a.m. until 4:30 p.m.

No. 2 man in Libya claims U.S. wants to kill Khadafy

TRIPOLI, Libya (AP) — A top official accused the United States of bombing Libya because alleged U.S.-sponsored attempts to kill Col. Moammar Khadafy with poison had failed, and implied Khadafy had been a primary target for the raiding jets.

"We warn and hold the U.S. administration responsible for the gravity of this action," Staff Maj. Abdel-Salam Jalloud told an hour-long news conference at the Foreign Ministry on Friday.

Jalloud, the No. 2 man in the Libyan leadership behind Khadafy, said 37 people, including one soldier, were killed and 93 wounded in the Tuesday air raids by U.S. warplanes in and around Tripoli and Benghazi.

Western diplomats, however, have estimated that at least 100 people died. Libyan officials told reporters earlier Friday that at least two soldiers were among the 19 victims of the raid buried that day in Tripoli.

In the Libyan capital, tensions eased Friday and traffic returned to normal for the first time since the air strike. Resumption of normal flights at Tripoli airport had resumed the day before.

The official Libyan news agency JANA said the Binina International Airport, near Benghazi, had also resumed normal operations Friday after the "savage and failed aggression" had led to its closure.

At his news conference, Jalloud asserted that the United States had previously enlisted the Moslem Brotherhood, a fundamentalist organization which operates all over the Arab world, to assassinate Khadafy with poison.

"It is conspiring against him by means of the reactionary forces in the region. And when all this failed, (President) Reagan decided to undertake his act of terrorism (the bombing raids)," Jalloud said.

The Moslem Brotherhood, composed mainly of Sunni Moslems, advocates strict adherence to Islamic law. It is outlawed in Syria and Khadafy has tried to wipe it out in Libya.

Jalloud indirectly accused the United States of targeting Khadafy in the air strikes.

"His tent and his house were attacked in a concentrated operation. This is an uncivilized action. This operation has finished Reagan morally and the American people should be ashamed of that," he said.

The Washington Post reported Friday that National Security Council officials had drafted a statement that would have described Khadafy's death as "fortuitous," but withheld it after learning that Khadafy survived the raid.

As he left the White House Friday, President Reagan said, "We weren't out to kill anybody."

Reagan has said the raids were launched because of evidence that Libya was involved in the West Berlin discotheque bombing that killed an American soldier and a Turkish woman on April 5.

But Jalloud claimed the U.S. air raid had been planned "months and years before."

He also said the bombs missed their targets, and denied British charges that Libya played a role in the kidnapping of two Britons in Lebanon who were found slain along with an American, Peter Kilburn, 62, on Thursday.

In losing his 12-inning perfect game in the 13th inning in 1959, Harvey Haddix gave up only one hit, Joe Adcock's homer. The winning pitcher in the 1-0 victory for Milwaukee over Pittsburgh, Lew Burdette, allowed 10 hits.

Local car dealers participate in new bumper sticker plan

An unique promotion to call attention to the benefits of shopping in Snyder has been adopted in a cooperative effort of Scurry County new and used car dealers.

Bumper stickers proclaiming, "I Got Mine in Snyder" have been purchased and will be placed on all cars purchased from Snyder new and used car dealers.

Bill Wilson Jr., owner of Wilson Motors, said he got the idea after attending a recent community-wide meeting concerned with industrial development.

Wilson said he was motivated by a statement made at the meeting that the fastest economic boost to the community would be for residents to shop in Snyder.

Last year, approximately 52 cents out of every dollar were spent at home. It was suggested at the meeting that businesses should make every effort to improve that percentage.

Chamber officials have suggested that every dollar spent in the community turns in the economy approximately seven times.

Wilson said there are five new car dealership and 12 used car dealers in Scurry County. Wilson estimated that over 100 persons are employed by these 17 firms with a combined payroll of more than $2 million.

Based on the assumption that the dollar turns seven times, jobs provided in the automobile industry puts $14 million into the local economy.

Wilson also noted that these employees are homeowners and taxpayers. In addition, these firms and other business firms in the community contribute to the many civic and youth projects.

"The bottom line is the more business done in Snyder, the more jobs that are available," Wilson said. "Seeking industry is seeking jobs, and increased business for any kind of Snyder firm means more jobs."

The bumper stickers are blue with white lettering and are of a vinyl that can easily be removed if so desired.

Performance overwhelms Soviets

MOSCOW (AP) — Soviet music lovers were overwhelmed by pianist Vladimir Horowitz' first performance on a Moscow stage in 61 years, even though the appearance was only a rehearsal.

Hundreds of officials and celebrities who had tickets, and dozens of students and music lovers who didn't, jammed the Great Hall of Moscow's conservatory Friday to watch Horowitz rehearse for his Sunday performance.

Horowitz opened with three sonatas by Scarlatti, then Mozart's Sonata in D major and two Rachmaninov preludes. Overwhelmed by the second half of the program — Schubert, Liszt and Chopin — the crowd gave Horowitz a standing ovation.

"I think he will remember this concert until the end of his life," said composer Sergei Chebotarev, one of the dozens who got in without a ticket. "And we will, too."

Jesse Jackson criticizes raid

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Rev. Jesse Jackson is staking his claim for the support of the left in American politics with an attack on the U.S. bombing of Libya and an appeal to the economically distressed to unite under the banner of his Rainbow Coalition.

In a speech to the coalition convention Friday night, Jackson denounced the attack on Libya and said, "We are going to war with the world and bombing ourselves into a corner."

He noted that of the NATO countries, only Great Britain supported the bombing raid.

"We are further isolated in world opinion," he said.

The Rainbow Coalition was winding up its three-day convention today.

Town regroups after violence

HOLLIDAY, Texas (AP) — Citizens have collected at least $4,500 in reward money in the wake of violence apparently directed at law enforcement and judicial officials, authorities said.

The reward will be offered for information leading to the arrest and conviction of anyone involved in the Thursday morning firebombing of Tanner's Kuntry Store and Wanda's Restaurant, police chief Juel Colbert said.

"We're having a little terrorism here. Our people are concerned and they're ready to fight back," said Colbert.

Colbert said it is difficult to tell if police have enough evidence to make an arrest.

"It's a little early yet, because we haven't got it all compiled," he said. "What we've got now is at least something to go on."

It appeared the bombings and tire slashings were done by the same person or persons, said Colbert, who declined to elaborate on his leads.

The town of 1,500 was quiet Thursday night, city administrator Brown Hudson said Friday, with as many as six officers patrolling the streets at any one time. The Texas Rangers, county deputies and Texas Department of Public Safety troopers aided Holliday's two-man force.

The City Council Thursday declared a state of emergency, which allowed the council to meet immediately and the mayor to deputize citizens.

The patrols will probably continue nightly until the investigation into the violence is completed, Hudson said.

Hudson said he was worried about how the violence might alter the town's image.

"There is good as well as evil in this community," Hudson said. "There is a strong church influence here. Most of the people in Holliday just want it to remain a peaceful bedroom community for Wichita Falls, a place where they can raise their children."

Tanner's Kuntry Store, owned by Justice of the Peace Bettye O. Tanner, was gutted by a fire started by two small firebombs about 3 a.m. Thursday.

The store was damaged by fire Jan. 31, and construction work was nearly completed on the second stored when it was destroyed Thursday.

"They're not going to scare me off, and they're not going to intimidate me," Ms. Tanner said. "I won't have it. But it's a serious situation. We're all scared."

Hello,

My name is Penny Clark. I am a Republican candidate for Justice of the Peace, Precinct I of Scurry County, which encompasses all of Scurry County except Hermleigh

Saving money in today's economy is a prime concern of every taxpayer in Scurry County. As your Justice of the Peace, I can put my clerical skills to use, saving you, the taxpayers, over $25,000.00 a year. No other candidate can make and fulfill this promise.

The last seven years I have managed a law office. I have extensive training in researching criminal and civil law as well as knowledge of the law and preparation of legal documents. I have worked in the Justice Court and I am familiar with the jurisdictional limits and procedures. I have worked with the general public on a daily basis and have developed a well controlled rapport with people who have dealings with the law.

I am a concerned, capable citizen who feels the need to devote the next four years to the upgrading of the Justice Court in Scurry County.

Yourvote for me, Penny Clark, in the Republican Party Primary on Saturday, May 3, at West Elementary School will show your concern for Scurry County.

Thanking you,
Penny Clark

Mistrial declared in murder case of one hospital nurse

GAINESVILLE, Texas (AP) — As a tearful and exhausted jury watched, District Judge Frank Douthitt declared a mistrial in the murder case of Danny Wayne Laughlin, with the panel only one vote away from acquittal.

Jurors had deliberated for more than 14 hours over two days, trying to determine whether Laughlin had stabbed Wichita General Hospital nurse Toni Jean Gibbs to death on Jan. 19, 1985.

After the mistrial was announced Friday, court-appointed defense attorney Roger Williams claimed a partial victory for his client.

Prosecuters Jack McGaughey and Barry Macha said that although they had presented all the evidence possible, they will probably file for a new trial.

"Barry and I will need to talk about it," McGaughey said. "I think we uncovered everything possible we could uncover. If there's any other evidence, we don't know what it would be. Neither does anybody else."

Upon learning after the trial that 11 jurors sought a verdict of innocent, Laughlin's mother, Wilma Hooker of Arizona, burst into smiles and tears.

The 25-year-old defendant, who is serving prison sentences for burglary and aggravated perjury, calmly said he was thankful to the jury for their work.

The five-man, seven-woman jury began deliberating at 3:27 p.m. Thursday, and sent Douthitt a note at about 12:15 a.m. Friday that they were deadlocked.

Douthitt allowed jurors to retire for the night, and they reconvened at 10 a.m. Friday.

Early in the afternoon, the jury reportedly was deadlocked at 10-2. At 5:05 p.m., shortly before Douthitt was preparing to summon the panel back into the 235th District courtroom, the jury foreman told the judge they were unable to reach a verdict.

In his note, he underlined the word "unable." Shortly after that, the state moved for a mistrial. It was granted over the objection of Williams.

Airline crews call security training 'boring, unhelpful'

DALLAS (AP) — A captain for a major airline said valid information at a recent mandatory anti-terrorist training session was "so few and far between" that few of the pilots and flight attendants paid attention, the Dallas Morning News reported Saturday.

His instructor for the eight-hour course entered the room only to change videotapes, the News quoted the captain as saying.

"People were talking, they were doing other things ... including reading the paper," said the captain, who was not identified. "I'd leave for 20 minutes at a time and take care of business. I'd come back into a bull session, with tapes running."

The training is required by the Federal Aviation Administration this month, for the first time, "to protect U.S. civil aviation against international terrorism." The new training requirement was ordered last July after the June 14 hijacking of TWA Flight 847 in Athens.

The newspaper said it interviewed a number of pilots and flight attendants who said they doubt they are now better prepared to handle such a crisis. They described the training as boring and unhelpful, the newspaper said.

Of his recent training session, Braniff pilot Bill Burke said, "It was just kind of an insult when you've been flying for 28 years and somebody says, 'If you see someone with a gun coming down the ramp, don't let them on the plane.' Well, there's not a great deal you can do to stop the dang thing. You say, 'My gosh, what am I doing, sitting here and getting this kind of nonsense.'"

Frontier Airlines captain Roger Brooks said captains are supposed to be the in-flight security coordinator and give a briefing to flight attendants. However, "I don't even know what to tell them," Brooks said. "It's a poor deal."

At her anti-terrorist training course, a senior flight attendant remembers, colleagues did needlepoint as some videotapes on terrorists from the early 1970s rolled.

"It was kind of like sitting in your living room watching your favorite TV show. You could be doing your nails, you could be doing your needlepoint, or you could be reading a book. It's kind of sad, isn't it?" she said.

One flight attendant for a major airline said her anti-terrorist training session "was without a doubt the worst class in any area in any subject I have ever had. I am a college graduate and that was the worst thing," she said.

Jury assesses life sentence in murder of Dublin minister

WEATHERFORD, Texas (AP) — Dale Arthur Carrasquillo received a life sentence after he was convicted of capital murder in the 1984 slaying of a Dublin minister.

The jury of eight women and two men took almost seven hours over two days to reach a guilty verdict about 9:15 a.m. Friday, then needed only 40 minutes to hand down the life sentence shortly before noon.

As the guilty verdict was read, at least two women jurors wept and looked at the floor.

Carrasquillo robbed and killed the Rev. John H. Basham Feb. 7, 1984, the jury agreed.

Basham's beaten, stabbed and strangled body was found inside his Volkswagen van on Feb. 9, 1984, along Interstate 20 in southern Palo Pinto County, about 50 miles west of Fort Worth and about 25 miles north of Dublin..

Carrasquillo acted calmly as District Judge Jim Mulling read the verdict and sentence.

His only show of emotion came during the punishment phase of the trial when he made an obscene gesture at prosecutors and glared at them during arguments.

"Some of the jurors saw that," said special prosecutor Mac Smith. "They thought it was in poor taste."

Carrasquillo wasn't given the death penalty because the jury couldn't agree on whether he would be a continuing threat to society, Smith said.

"It was close. The vote was 10-2 in favor of death," Smith said. "There were two that just weren't going to kill him."

One thing that hurt prosecutors, who sought the death penalty, was that they couldn't find a witness who allegedly was raped by Carrasquillo and two other men while in the Palo Pinto County Jail, Smith said.

Carrasquillo has been indicted on a charge of sexual assault, but "we were unable to find that man and subpoena him to testify. That hurt us," Smith said. "That's the only thing in this lawsuit that pains me and bothers me."

Robert Michael Purtell, who Carrasquillo called his partner, received the death penalty April 23, 1985, for his part in Basham's slaying.

Purtell assured his own death sentence, Smith said, by testifying in his own defense and by his three outbursts in court, one witnessed by the jury.

Defense attorney John Moore said he was "tickled with the life sentence. But, of course, we were not happy with the capital murder conviction."

Moore agreed with Smith that Purtell testifying in his own defense led to the death penalty in that case. The defense had considered having both Purtell and Carrasquillo testify.

Slaying of hostage marks aftershock of raid on Libya

WASHINGTON (AP) — Aftershocks from the U.S. bombing attack against Moammar Khadafy's strongholds continue, with the discovery of a slain American hostage in Lebanon and suspicion he was killed in retaliation for the raid.

The remains of Peter Kilburn, 62, a librarian at the American University in Beirut, who disappeared Nov. 30, 1984, were identified Friday by friends as one of the three bodies found in the Lebanese hills earlier this week.

Kilburn had apparently been misidentified the day before as a British journalist missing for a year.

The Reagan administration, which for months has been warning the kidnappers of Kilburn and five other Americans in Lebanon against harming the captives, reacted cautiously to the discovery.

State Department spokesman Bernard Kalb said that pending a forensic examination, the United States could not confirm Kilburn's death. The body was being flown to a U.S. facility in West Germany — officials would not specify which one — for further tests.

Nor would Kalb comment on a statement by British Foreign Minister Geoffrey Howe that his country had "firm evidence" of Libyan involvement in the kidnapping of two British victims whose bodies were discovered with Kilburn's.

When all three men were found, anonymous callers said they were killed in retaliation for the U.S. attack on Tripoli and Benghazi Monday night.

Reagan administration officials said they wanted to examine that evidence before contemplating any further moves. Nevertheless, they reaffirmed the principle of responding to terrorist acts.

"We have made it clear repeatedly that those who hold our hostages are responsible for the safety and lives of the hostages," Kalb said.

Attorney General Edwin Meese said the United States "will look at the evidence" behind the killings in Lebanon. "But I think we won't announce in advance what we're going to do."

Pentagon officials, speaking on condition they not be identified, said the U.S. 6th Fleet remained "at a high state of readiness," steaming in the central Mediterranen north of the Libyan coast. But the sources added that the fleet, led by two aircraft carriers, had not received any orders to prepare for combat.

Relatives of the hostages were critical of the administration's policies.

After being notified by the State Department, Kilburn's nephew, Tim, said in Aptos, Calif., "We're on our way to war, as far as I can see. The United States government's answer to problems is to drop bombs."

Peggy Say, sister of Associated Press reporter Terry Anderson, one of the hostages, told CBS she did not believe Reagan had sufficiently considered the fate of the Americans held in Lebanon when he ordered the raid on Libya.

There was other fallout from the assault on Libya.

About 175 U.S. diplomats and dependents began leaving Khartoum, Sudan, in response to terrorist threats from Libya and an anti-American atmosphere in the city.

A chartered jet took most of the evacuees to Nairobi, Kenya.

CRMWD is said on track

BIG SPRING--The Colorado River Municipal Water District is on track through the first quarter at 1.71 percent over income and one percent under expenses.

Of the 3,000,230 revenues, $2,957,965 came from sale of water. Expenses for the first quarter aggregated $1,576,045, of which $1,330,144 was for operation and maintenance. Electric power charges of $926,260 accounted for most of the operations costs and it was about $49,000 under budget projections.

Most of the water delivered during the initial quarter came from Lakes J. B. Thomas and E. V. Spence. These totaled 3,656,431,120 gallons, or 87.72 percent of total deliveries of 4,168,400,580 gallons. Diversion works accounted for 450,048,080 gallons, or 10.77 percent. Wells, getting a good rest during the winter months, yielded only 61,921,300 gallons, or 1.48 percent.

During the first quarter, 11,221 ac. ft. of water was withdrawn from the two lakes, and there was no inflow. Together they had combined storage of 214,572 ac. ft. or 30.58 percent of capacity. At elevation 1868.96, Lake Spence was 29 feet below spillway and 38.69 percent of capacity. At elevation 2219.24, Lake Thomas was 38 ¾ ft. below spillway and 12.17 percent of capacity.

Sentencing set next week

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — A 49-year-old man faces up to five years in prison, a $2,000 fine and seizure of his automobile after being convicted for the 21st time of driving while intoxicated.

After a one-hour trial on Friday, State District Judge Jon Wisser found Joe Louis Alexander guilty of felony DWI and set sentencing for next Friday.

In addition, the district attorney's office has asked that a never-used, 2-year-old law be used to require Alexander to forfeit his car. Alexander is a resident of Smithville, which is about 30 miles southeast of Austin.

Alexander has 20 previous DWI convictions dating back to 1962. He was charged with DWI on two other occasions, but one of the charges was dropped and he was acquitted of the other.

On Sept. 13, 1984, after his 20th conviction, Alexander was sentenced to four years in the Texas Department of Corrections. He was released from prison last Jan. 2.

On Feb. 23, less than eight weeks after Alexander's release, a Department of Public Safety trooper was patrolling Martin Luther King Boulevard east of Austin when he was nearly hit by a car driven by Alexander. The trooper, Dana Moore, pulled Alexander over.

At the trial Friday, Moore testified that Alexander had a "glazed look" on his face.

Rap 16 basehits...

Tigers slug 'Stockton, 15-4

Snyder's Tigers brought their sticks to Mofiett Field here Friday night, shelling Fort Stockton for 16 hits enroute to a quick 15-4 victory.

The win, Snyder's seventh in a row, came about in five innings via the 10-run rule. It left Coach Albert Lewis' bunch at 14-7 for the season and, more importantly, 5-0 in District 2-4A play.

Lewis was especially pleased with Snyder's hitting, mainly because of who was doing the bulk of it.

"Our third and fourth hitters hadn't been producing as often as we need them to and tonight they showed they could," said the coach.

He was referring specifically to Justin Webb and Jimmy Velasquez and he was right when he said they produced.

Webb was a flawless four-for-four with a triple, two doubles and a single. Velasquez was two-for-three with a three-run home run, a single and a RBI sacrifice fly.

Ricky Hunter also tapped a home run - his third of the season - in a two-for-four effort. Steve Parker and Mike McWilliams were two-for-three and Brad Holcomb was two-for-four.

Parker's effort was especially commendable because it was his first time back at the plate following a recent spendectomy.

"I was a little nervous but that's all," said the senior who served as designated hitter. "I was glad to be back. It wasn't any fun sitting there watching."

He has lost weight because of a ruptured appendix and the surgery but said it was a help to him.

"I think losing weight helped. I guess I was putting on too much weight. I think I'm quicker with the bat now. But that's a hard way to lose weight," he grinned.

While Snyder's bats were cracking offensively, Don Osborn was winning his third straight game on the mound. He was also backed by errorless fielding.

Fernie Gomez tagged Osborn for Fort Stockton's big hit of the evening, a one-out, two-run homer in the first inning after Eddie Leyva had walked. The Panthers got two more singles in the stanza but were unable to produce another run.

It didn't take long for the Tigers to retaliate in a big way. Hunter got Snyder started when he rocked starting pitcher Leno Rios for a triple. He was followed by Parker, who cracked a single to account for the home team's first run of the night. Webb then powered a double and Velasquez backed him up with a three-run triple over the left field fence.

It was Velasquez' second home run in as many games and brought his total to eight for the season.

Osborn, after giving up three hits in the first inning, settled down in the second, third and fourth. He got Fort Stockton three-up, three down in the second.

Snyder got what would be the winning run in the bottom of the second on a solo home run by Hunter that cleared the left-centerfield fence at the 346 sign. His shot made it 5-2 and brought Gilly Trevino to the mound in relief of Rios.

Trevino fared no better, however. He hit Parker with his first pitch of the game, then gave up a double to Webb to chalk another Tiger run. Velasquez followed with a single and Holcomb cracked a two-out basehit to score Webb. Still later, McWilliams punched a perfect bunt down the third base line to send Velasquez scampering home with Snyder's eighth run of the ballgame.

Osborn produced another three-up, three down inning in the third, thanks to a strike out and a fine running catch by centerfielder McWilliams.

The Tigers also added three runs in the stanza. Hunter reached on a throwing error by second baseman Garcia. Brad Gartman came in to run for the Tiger catcher.

Next-up Parker singled and was replaced on the basepaths by Michael Carter.

That brought Webb to the plate once more and the hard-hitting senior rapped Trevino for a single to score Gartman. The runners then advanced on a passed ball.

Carter got Snyder's 14th run of the game when Trevino tried to catch Webb at second base and instead threw the ball into centerfield. Snyder's 15th score occurred when Webb ran home on a sacrifice fly by Velasquez.

Fort Stockton managed two more runs in the top of the fifth when Osborn began to tire. He got two outs but three walks served to load the bases. Holcomb came to the mound from short stop and was greeted by a single from Omar Calderon. The relief pitcher issued another run-producing walk before striking out Trevino to end the game and earn a save.

Osborn, 3-0 now, struck out five batters and allowed four hits in taking the victory. Rios, 2-4, was the loser.

Golfers fire 287 for second place

ODESSA — Co-captains Pat Fitzpatrick and Bo Kay led Western Texas College to a second place finish in the fifth Western Junior College Athletic Conference Golf Tournament here Friday.

Fitzpatrick shot a two-under 70 and Kay a 71 to help Western Texas to a 287 in the 18-hole tournament.

Odessa's Wranglers, led by Andrew DeBusk's outstanding 67, won the event with a 280. New Mexico Junior College shot a 288, New Mexico Military Institute a 293, South Plains a 297 and Midland a 301.

"That's the kind of play we've been looking for," said Coach Dave Foster. "That ought to help us going into the regional tournament next week."

The Region V Tournament will begin Thursday at Hobbs, N.M. Teams will play 36 holes the first day and 18 more on Friday. The first 18 holes will also serve as the final WJCAC golf tournament of the season.

First and second place teams at the regional tournament will advance to the national tournament.

"A 287 is a good score at Odessa. It's one of the harder courses in the conference," said Foster. "We've been playing well recently but we haven't shot quite low enough consistently. If we could have three rounds like we had at Odessa, we'd be going to nationals."

Others playing for Western, all freshmen except for the co-captains included Frank Schuster and Matt Smith, who turned in 73s, Mike Harrison, a 74, and Ken Livingston, a 76.

The victory kept Odessa atop the WJCAC standings with 24 points. The Wranglers are followed by NMJC with 20, NMMI with 18½, Midland with 18, WTC with 14 and South Plains with 10½.

Region's all-around leader...

Mayhan just does his best - every time out

By BILL McCLELLAN
SDN Sports Editor

He's on the quiet side. Slender, not tall. He wears jeans and long sleeved shirts and, of course, he keeps a hat on his head most of the time.

You wouldn't make a commercial with Bliss Mayhan because he's not the rugged-looking, muscular type that film studios like to use to portray rodeo competitors. He looks more like a Hank Williams than a Burt Reynolds but music or acting isn't his specialty. It's bull riding. Bareback riding. Saddle bronc riding.

"...But mostly I just try to do the best I can. That way I know I'm a winner. No matter how I do I'm still a winner in my own mind and in the Lord's." - Mayhan

And he's one of the best.

He started competing in Little Britches rodeos when he was 6 and "about 13 I started doing pretty well," he says. He was World Junior All-Around champion at age 14 and age 16. He competed in the National High School Finals Rodeo four straight years.

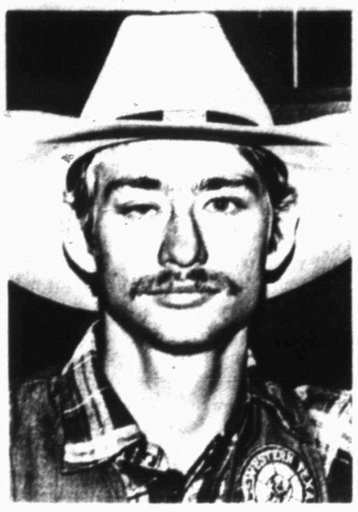
Today, he's a major reason the Western Texas College rodeo team is in a close fight for first place in the Southwest Region. He leads the all-around competition, is first in the saddle bronc, second in the bull riding and fifth in the bareback. Oh, and he occasionally competes in team roping.

"It's a combination of things," he'll tell you, if you ask to describe his formula for success. "I think it's more of a reflex than anything. When I'm making a ride, I don't think about what I need to do. It takes too long. By the time you think about what to do, it's too late, you're bucked off. So the bull or horse acts and I react."

Mayhan tied for second place in the region last year and finished was in the top 10 nationally. This year, he's off to an even more impressive start.

The Kim, Colorado, native says he's done better because "I've drawn better and I'm healed up a little more." He lived with the pain from broken ribs and an injured knee last season.

The Western Texas College Rodeo this weekend will be his first competition in two weeks after suffering a dislocated knee at the Howard College Rodeo.



BLISS MAYHAN

"It's just one of those things that happens when I land on it wrong. After nationals and a few other important rodeos this summer I'm going to have to go in and have them tie the ligaments back."

He is anxious to compete again, and says the leg won't bother him.

"No, I won't even feel it at all. Not while I'm riding," he said. "If anything this (being out two weeks) has made me more anxious. I'm looking forward to it."

"Injuries are part of the game," he pans. He should know. He has broken both ankles, both collarbones, an arm and ribs. He has also suffered severe whiplash and has "bad knees."

Despite all of that, he doesn't worry about injuries.

"That's where my faith in the Lord comes in. I know He'll protect me. I don't worry about it. If you worry about things like that then that's when they start happening."

In the same way that he ignores the possibility of injuries, he also doesn't worry about success.

"I'd like to have won the region and and the all-around. I'd like to win the nation. But mostly I just try to do the best I can. That way I know I'm a winner. No matter how I do, whether I get bucked off or make a good score, I'm still a winner in my own mind and in the Lord's."

Positive thinking is obviously a part of Mayhan's philosophy. And like many athletes, he uses the technique of mentally seeing himself succeed.

"I ride bulls and horses in my head all the time. I feel like it really helps me," he says, looking at you as if he knows you're thinking he's crazy. "Of course, sometimes I have trouble keeping my mind on my courses," he laughs.

Mayhan is known as a very low-key individual. Coach Bob Doty admits it's hard to tell whether the sophomore athlete has scored a 75 or just been bucked off. He doesn't seem to get excited.

Still, Mayhan will confide that the thrill of the sport is a big attraction for him.

"Yeah," he grins. "That's part of it. It's like that song says, "grabbing a handful of suicide", he says, referring to a Chris LaDouxe song, "Joey Cy".

But his friends rarely see his emotions.

"It is an inward thing. But sometimes I get so excited I've got to watch myself and concentrate on what I'm doing.

"I love to do it and I feel the Lord wouldn't have given me the ability if He didn't want me to do it."

Hecksher takes over lead in bareback competition

Western Texas College's Tony Hecksher scored a 71 here Friday night to take over the lead in the bareback competition at the Western Texas College NIRA Rodeo.

Friday's performance saw a number of leadership changes as contestants battle to qualify for Sunday's short-go.

The four-day rodeo was to continue with performances at 2 and 8 p.m. Saturday and 2 p.m. Sunday.

While Hecksher took over the lead in the bareback, Adam Brewster's 53, good enough for second place after the first show, tumbled to seventh place following Friday's performance.

New Mexico's Riley Henson took over the lead in the saddle bronc event with a 72. Jim Sharp's 71 is holding down second.

Western Texas cowboy Bliss Mayhan, competing for the first time in two weeks, received a no-score in the event.

Vernon's Johnny Emmons showed his expertise in the calf roping. The Southwest Region's leader in the event, he clocked an 8.7 Friday.

Hermleigh native Kenny Riley, competing for Tarleton State University, moved into second place in the steer wrestling with a 5.3. Western Texas also moved into position to make Sunday's finals with Jim Smith's fourth-place time of 6.1.

Cathy Conklin of Texas Tech continues to lead the goat tying with an 8.2. Western's Tana Whatley is in second with an 8.6 and teammate Mistri Davis moved into third place Friday with an 8.9.

Jim Bob Haley of Abilene Christian and Shane Hudman of Odessa lead the team roping with a 6.5.

In other action, WTC's Davis is in fourth place in the barrels with a 13.77 and Tobin Tate is tied for fifth in the bull riding with a 67.

The calf dressing competition was won by the firemen. Kyle Cox, Darrall Craig and Walter Banks turned in a 47.24 to defeat Thursday's winners, the WTC exes.

Thousands attend funeral in Libya

TRIPOLI, Libya (AP) — Thousands of angry Libyans, shaking their fists and chanting "We will destroy America," surged into the streets outside a mosque Friday for the funeral of 19 people killed by U.S. bombs.

Libyan leader Moammar Khadafy apparently did not attend the tense, emotion-filled service, marked by chaotic shoving and shouting among the estimated 4,000 people who heard a funeral oration in which the assistant chief of the general staff called for Jihad — a holy war.

"Libyan Arab people, Arab nation — the time has come for us to raise the banners of Jihad. ... Let the world witness and condemn the official American terrorism led by Reagan, the arch-terrorist," Maj. Khuwayldi al-Humaydi said at the burial service.

Humaydi denounced the United States and said "senile Britain" had become like a "rabid dog running around in fright."

At the end of the funeral and burial service, two soldiers fired automatic weapons into the air to commemorate the two soldiers who were buried along with 17 civilians killed in the pre-dawn air raid Tuesday.

The round of gunfire for the soldiers sent a rain of spent bullet casings onto the heads of spectators, most of whom had stood for more than two hours in the blazing sun and were covered with a fine layer of sand whipped up by a strong wind.

Officials said all 19 of those buried Friday came from the Tripoli area. There has been no Libyan estimate of the number of people killed, but Western diplomats said at least 100 people, and probably more, died in the air raid.

President Reagan said he ordered the attack because of evidence of Libyan involvement in a West Berlin nightclub bombing that killed an American GI and a Turkish woman. Some of the U.S. warplanes flew from Britain, and others from U.S. aicraft carriers in the Mediterranean.

"Holy war! Martyrdom!" shouted the crowd outside the Martyrs of al-Hani mosque. "We are a storm, we will destroy America!" they shrieked.

The coffins were brought to the mosque, where they were buried, after being carried on the shoulders of mourners along a two-mile route from the Libyan capital's main mosque.

All the coffins were draped with the green flag of Khadafy's 17-year-old revolution, and the coffin of a young Lebanese woman also was covered by Palestinian and Lebanese flags. Many in the crowd wept as the cortege passed, led by a man sitting atop a van who chanted "God is great" in Arabic.

Women mourners, dressed from head to foot in white, ululated, sending their piercing wail over the crowd, while sharpshooters stood on the roof of the mosque. Hundreds of revolutionary guards circulated among the mourners carrying AK-47 assault rifles.

Najib Mizrati, a 9-year-old girl who had an inch-long wound on her cheek that had been stitched together, raised her fingers in a "V-for-victory" sign as she sat on her uncle's shoulders.

Her uncle said the girl had been injured by the American bombs, and her father was killed and her mother injured. "Look what America did," he shouted.

Bomb defused outside bank

ANKARA, Turkey (AP) — The interior minister said a bomb was defused safely Saturday outside an Istanbul bank that has American ties, and police said they were holding four Libyans in connection with an apparent attempt to attack a U.S. military officers' club.

U.S. officials today advised Americans not to leave their homes unnecessarily.

Interior Minister Yildirim Akbulut said the bomb was found at the entrance of the Koc-American bank, a partnership between American Express and Turkey's Koc Holding company. He said police did not know who placed the bomb.

The semi-official Anatolia news agency reported that police Friday detained two Libyans who were carrying a bag filled with hand grenades and explosives near the club, in Ankara's wealthy Gaziosmanpasa district.

It said two other Libyans later were taken into custody, apparently based on information obtained from the first pair. The four have not been charged.

Reporters today asked the chief of Turkish police, Saffet Arikan Beduk, if it was true the four men were Libyans.

"Yes, that's right. But don't ask me to give any names," Beduk said.

Akbulut said one of the Libyans was a teacher and one was a student. He said they were being questioned, but refused to elaborate.

Anatolia said police tightened security at the officers' club after receiving a warning at 7:45 p.m. Friday it would be attacked.

It quoted Beduk as saying that about an hour later, "two people disregarded a warning from police to halt" when they approached the club. The pair threw a bag that landed on a parked van and started to run.

Beduk was quoted by Anatolia as saying police found six hand grenades and other explosives in the bag and that another police team in the area caught the two suspects. The explosives were defused safely.

Beduk later told the AP the Anatolia account was correct.

The independent news agency Hurriyet said today that six other suspects, believed linked to the four detained in Ankara, were detained by police in the Aegean port city of Izmir. The dispatch did not give the nationalities of the six, and police in Izmir did not immediately comment on the report.

The Libyan mission in Ankara, the capital, said in a statement, "Foreign powers hostile to Libya are involving fugitives from Libya in a series of actions in order to blacken the name of the Jamahiriyah (Libya) and stamp it as terrorist."

U.S. Embassy spokesman David Arnett told The Associated Press that as of today, "Americans are being cautioned to take extra precautions and not be going out unnecessarily — but there is no order that indicates that people must stay in their homes."

An estimated 10,000 Americans live in Turkey, most of them members of the military and dependents. The United States has five major military installations in Turkey and several support stations.

Fire reported

The Snyder fire department responded to a reported transformer fire Saturday around 9:11 a.m.

The fire's location was said at U.S. Hwy. 84 and College Ave.

6 are charged

Six arrests were reported by Snyder police Friday, all involving misdemeanor charges.

A black female was charged with shoplifting at Kmart around 2:28 p.m.

Between 10 p.m. and 12:19 a.m. Saturday, five other arrests were made — four of these alcohol related. One suspect was instantered by police for having no drivers license and no liability insurance.

The four alcohol-related charges include male suspects arrested for DWI, public intoxication, being intoxicated on a licensed premises and a fourth individual charged with both DWI and being in possession of a firearm without a license.

College Ave. wrecks reported

Two College Ave. wrecks were investigated by police Friday.

At 1:10 p.m., a 1978 Buick driven by Ileta Hall of 1710 37th St. struck a parked 1985 Dodge pickup owned by Leland Kaser of 3610 Hill. The mishap occurred in the 2400 Block of College Ave.

At 3:52 p.m., two vehicles were in collision in the 4000 Block of College. Involved vehicles were a 1986 Caprice driven by Joe Franklin Dudley of 1803 38th St. and a 1973 Chevrolet driven by Joe Cornelius Botts, who listed a post office box address.

A third accident was investigated by police Friday, this one occurring at 11:31 a.m. in the 3700 Block of Austin.

It involved a 1977 Chevrolet van driven by Eva Hernandez of 4396 Lubbock, which was in collision with a 1982 Ford driven by Denise Renee Landrich of Rt. 3.

posts will be satisfactory until the legal questions brought by the lawsuit are finalized.

Mayor Rod Waller has said these appointments will be considered at the May meeting of the council.

Regarding the status of the lawsuit, Quinn noted both sides are currently preparing proposals for redistricting the city — an action which would allow board members to be elected to represent specific districts.

The proposal which would come from the two Snyder entities will first have to be approved by trustees and council members.

Attorneys for both sides are preparing these now based upon demographic information regarding the ethnic breakdown of the city's residential areas.

Interracial family target of threats

LOS ANGELES (AP) — An interracial couple living in a predominantly white neighborhood say they have bought a gun and installed an alarm system after a steady stream of hate messages and the killing of their son's Easter bunny.

Tori Dufau, a black school nurse, said the shooting of the 5-year-old boy's rabbit this month was the final straw for her and her husband, Robson, a 23-year-old white hospital worker.

"I wasn't really scared until that happened," Mrs. Dufau, 25, said Friday.

The family, which also includes a 1-year-old son, moved in October to Westchester on the city's west side. The next month, they found literature with a swastika, a picture of Adolf Hitler, and the initials for White Americans Organized Against Blacks deposited in their mail box.

"I almost threw it away," Mrs. Dufau said. "I thought, 'Big deal.' Maybe it's a joke. Maybe a kid did it on a dare. I didn't think anything about it."

In January, the family found a newspaper from the National Socialist White America Party on the front porch. An article in the paper said "all non-whites have to be deported to reservations or Third World countries."

The harassment stepped up, including handwritten messages, eggs thrown at their house and car and letters in the mail.

"I am writing you to inform you that the community you presently live in has contacted us in complaint of the situation," said a typed note mailed in February. "Why not be wise and move out? You would be better with your own kind. And you thought the days of the KKK were over."

The Dufaus' elder son feels threatened and has told his parents he wants a "white mommy" so the trouble will end, Mrs. Dufau said.

"I don't get very good sleep anymore," she said. "My son's teacher has noticed a personality change. She says he's not as bubbly and he's having trouble doing work that requires concentration."

59 pilots have been grounded

WASHINGTON (AP) — Fifty-nine co-pilots at Britt Airways, one of the country's largest commuter airlines, have been grounded by the Federal Aviation Administration because of concerns they may not be qualified to fly.

A spokeswoman for the Indiana-based airline, which serves 26 communities in Indiana, Illinois, Kentucky, Missouri and Iowa, said the order would not affect the carrier's schedule.

The airlines' captains and any co-pilots trained more than 12 months ago are not affected by the order, which was sent to the carrier Friday, said FAA officials.

The airline, which operated for 17 years under family ownership, was bought earlier this year by People Express, which began inter-connecting service with the commuter carrier in February.

FAA spokesman Stephen Hayes said the FAA notified Britt that 59 of its 90 co-pilots would have to stop flying immediately and be retrained after a spot check of nine co-pilots resulted in six of them failing their flight checks.

But Pam Law, manager of consumer affairs for the Terre Haute-based airline, said the actual figure was "between 110-130" co-pilots, with an equal number of pilots.

"The number of pilots not flying are a very small portion of our first officers," said Ms. Law. "We will maintain our schedule with the number that we do have."

Cops say woman was 'troubled by violence'

HOUSTON (AP) — A woman who threw six of her seven children into a bayou, killing one and critically injuring another, also planned to kill herself, but passersby intervened and helped rescue the youngsters, authorities say.

"She said she didn't want her babies to live in this bad world anymore and that she was going to jump in after them and kill herself, too," said Capt. M.C. Simmons.

"She wanted to throw us in because she didn't want my father to keep hitting us," the woman's 9-year-old daughter said as she sat shivering near the bayou. "She wanted to kill all of us because she didn't want us to live anymore. She said my daddy didn't want us anymore."

The children range in age from 1 to 11.

A 4-year-old girl and a 7-year-old boy were pulled by police divers from the Buffalo Bayou on Friday after being under water for 30 to 40 minutes, said Lt. R.H. Bielstein. The girl died hours later and the boy was in intensive care at St. Joseph Hospital, said spokeswoman Debbie Purrazzella.

No charges were immediately filed against the 29-year-old Hispanic woman and the case was still under investigation, said homicide Sgt. A.T. Herman. Investigators were searching for the father, he said.

Police said Chris Sweet, a computer programmer for the city, was walking by the bayou and jumped into the water when he realized what was happening.

"I saw one little boy screaming," Sweet said. "I saw the mom actually physically throw the kid into the water. At that point, I knew it was time to get some help or help out. They were just laying in the water. A few were face down."

One dead, 80 injured, damage extensive in early-morning Sweetwater twister

The Sweetwater hospital was operating on auxiliary power and crews from Texas Electric Service Co. were expected to restore power to the hospital by noon Saturday. City officials were also working to restore power to the water treatment plant. Residents were asked to curtail water consumption with storage tanks only half filled.

"There've been business structures; there've been single-family dwellings; there've been multi-family dwellings," Nolan County sheriff Jim Blackley said. "At this time, some of the apartment complexes that were built on the east side of town have been completely destroyed."

A Nolan County sheriff's officer in Sweetwater said emergency crews were hampered by disrupted power and communications.

"... It was a total surprise. I believe as it was going down, we received a call from the national weather bureau in Abilene, telling us that there was a tornado over Sweetwater," Blackley said. "But it was already in progress and tearing things up at that time.

"There's debris everywhere. The windows are out, buildings are torn down, houses have some of the roofs off them, there's debris in the streets."

An undetermined number of homes were without power in a 12-block area of the city and water service was cut, officials said.

The area of damage included a mobile home park, a senior citizens' housing project and a subdivision. Lumber companies opened their yards to help residents board up their windows, officials said.

The National Weather Service reported another possible tornado in Throckmorton, to the northeast, but a sighting had not been confirmed, authorities said.

"Our electricity is off and communications are locked down," said Marvin Cole, Nolan County deputy sheriff. "When it hit, it caused quite a bit of damage and numerous injuries.

"We are working but we are in the dark," he said. "All our phone lines are tied up."

He said two inches of rain preceded the tornado.

Barbara Russell, a Jones County sheriff's dispatcher, said the storm caused damage to a mobile home park in the southwest part of Sweetwater.

She said reports of a possible funnel cloud near the community of Truby had not been confirmed.

The National Weather Service said the storm at the Fisher-Nolan county line moved east-northeast, about seven miles northeast of Sweetwater. The path of the storm was across the southeast corner of Fisher County into southwest Jones County.

Radar indicated a possible tornado in southern Throckmorton County moving northeast at 40 mph, the weather service said. But Debbie Weaver, a Throckmorton County sheriff's dispatcher, said no funnels had been spotted.

A large area of West Texas, including Scurry and Mitchell counties, were under a severe tornado watch until 4 p.m. Saturday.

Emergency shelters in Sweetwater were set up at the Lamar Street Baptist Church, Broadway Baptist Church and the Sweetwater Middle School.

An emergency command center was established at the DPS headquarters, and media representatives were working out of an automobile dealership.

A group of Snyder Girl Scouts were in Sweetwater camped at Camp Boothe Oaks during the storm.

Peggy Vernon, Girl Scout leader, called local parents Saturday morning to report all of the troop members were fine.

She indicated there was no violent weather in the area of the campground and the scouts were to continue their campout Saturday.

Local agencies responded to the storm as a unit of Aid-Ambulance from Snyder was dispatched to the scene to aid with the transportation of victims.

Many volunteer firemen also went to the scene to aid with work in the storm's aftermath.

The emergency room at Cogdell Memorial Hospital was put on alert for possible accident victims when initial reports indicated as many as 300 were injured. None of the storm's injured were sent here, however.

The storm which produced the twister was part of thunderstorms which moved into Snyder early Saturday morning, depositing nearly an inch of moisture here.

There were reports of golf-ball sized hail inside the city.

The official rain total was .95 of an inch. Some local guages indicated up to 1.25 inches.

The rest of Scurry County received scattered amounts. Polar in Kent County recorded 1.07 inches and there were reports of heavy rainfall at Jayton.

Other rain totals were Lake J.B. Thomas, .06 of an inch; Hermleigh, .35 of an inch; Fluvanna, .50 of an inch; east of Snyder, .05 of an inch; west and north of Snyder, .08 of an inch each.

Both Ira and Dunn reported a trace of rain.

In the city, the official rain total for the year now stands at 1.83 inches.

EDWARD JAMES NEILLY

Con artist sought by U. S., Canada

HOUSTON--Edward James Neilly is considered a slick con artist. He is wanted on outstanding warrants in Canada, his native homeland, and in the United States on charges ranging from theft to fraud.

He is described as a white male, 6-1, 180 pounds, with brown hair and gray eyes. He usually wears a mustache.

This week Neilly has been added to the Texas Most Wanted list.

A $1,000 reward is being offered by the Governor's Office for information leading to his arrest.

Anyone who might have information concerning Neilly's possible whereabouts is asked to call the Texas Crime Stoppers Advisory Council toll free at 1-800-252-8477 or their local Crime Stoppers program.

In all cases, callers do not have to reveal their identities.

Contributions to be recognized

PASADENA, Texas (AP) — For the first time in 150 years, Texas will officially recognize blacks' contributions to the fight for independence with a two-day Sesquicentennial celebration beginning Sunday at the San Jacinto Battleground.

State Rep. Al Price of Beaumont proposed the special program be part of the official state celebration after he read "Black Texans" by Alwyn Barr.

Price said that throughout his schooling he remained unaware of the contributions of blacks to the struggle for independence from Mexico.

"Young people, regardless of color, have been led to believe that blacks never contributed anything," he said. "There has been an awful lot of damage to the psyches of black kids whose ancestors' accomplishments never have been recognized."

Price, who will be the master of ceremonies during the tribute to 20 blacks Sunday, said he wants blacks to receive their fair share of recognition.

"It's harder to confer second-class status on someone who has fought," he said.

It was on the San Jacinto battleground that Texans defeated Mexican forces on April 21, 1836 to gain their independence.

Hated pass laws suspended

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (AP) — The government said Friday it will stop enforcing pass laws, the hated cornerstones of apartheid that keep blacks out of white areas, and will release people jailed for violating them.

President P.W. Botha told Parliament a moratorium on pass-law arrests will begin Wednesday, when he proposes a new law providing common identity documents for all races. He said anyone in jail for pass-law offenses would be freed and all pending charges would be dropped.

The laws, formally called "influx control," are one of the sorest points in the official race policy with which South Africa's 5 million whites maintain supremacy over the 24 million voteless blacks. More than 2.5 million blacks have been arrested in the past decade for being outside tribal homelands without the right stamp in their passes.

Critics of apartheid applauded the suspension of enforcement but said they feared Botha might produce an alternative form of control.

Desmond Tutu, the black Anglican bishop who has just been elected archbishop of Cape Town, said the moratorium "can only be welcomed. However, I hope there is not a sting in the tail. One has to be very careful that they are not going to find another way of harassing blacks."

Muntu Myeza, spokesman for the militant Azanian People's Organization, said it was "about time," but added: "The removal of one area of repression — the pass laws — comes too late. What we want now is ... the establishment of a fully democratic and just society."

Another cautious assessment came from Sheena Duncan, a white leader of the Black Sash women's group that helps blacks with pass problems: "All of a sudden to be able to be free to live and work where you want, if it really happens, would be of great significance. You'd have a tremendous explosion in growth and excitement and job creation.

One law bars blacks from staying in white South Africa, including the cities, for longer than 72 hours without permission. The other requires blacks to carry passes with the required permit.

Libya kidnapped murdered Britons

LONDON (AP) — Britain accused Libya on Friday of direct involvement in the kidnap and murder of two Britons in Lebanon and said their deaths are an example of "Libyan state-directed terrorism."

Foreign Secretary Sir Geoffrey Howe indicated evidence of Libyan involvement contributed to the government's decision to allow British bases to be used as a launching pad for U.S. bombing raids on Libya. Libya has denied it was involved in the hostages' deaths.

In a statement, Howe did not provide any details of Libyan involvement in the kidnapping of teachers Leigh Douglas and Philip Padfield.

"For some time we have had firm evidence of direct Libyan involvement in the kidnapping of Mr. Douglas and Mr. Padfield, and we have good reason to believe they were in Libyan hands," the statement said.

"Although we decided not to publicize it because of the risk to their lives, this was part of the evidence we had before us of Libyan state-directed terrorism."

In the Libyan capital of Tripoli, Col. Moammar Khadafy's deputy disclaimed any role by his country in the killing of the hostages in Lebanon.

"We don't know anything about these incidents. I cannot talk about anything I don't know about," Maj. Abdel-Salam Jalloud told foreign reporters.

Howe's accusation of a Libyan connection was made as the opposition renewed its attack on Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher, accusing her of putting innocent victims in the front line against terrorism. Two-thirds of Britons polled in public opinion surveys have called Britain's involvement in the U.S. raids a mistake.

Strict security measures were in effect at British government buildings, airports, diplomatic missions abroad and military bases in Cyprus and Gibraltar. Security guards at buildings in Whitehall, the government district of London, used mirrors on poles to check for explosives under cars.

Ali Treiki, Libya's ambassador to the United Nations, denied his country was involved in the deaths of the Britons. "We had nothing to do with them," he told NBC-TV network's "Today" program.

Rocket blast looked like atom bomb

VANDENBERG AIR FORCE BASE, Calif. (AP) — The second explosion of a Titan rocket in a year, coupled with the grounding of the shuttle fleet following the Challenger disaster, imperils the military spy satellite program, experts say.

The Titan 34D rocket, which can lift a heavy truck into orbit, exploded in a huge orange cloud five seconds after liftoff Friday.

The blast "looked like an atom bomb, a mushroom like the bomb that was dropped on Japan," said art gallery owner Ralph Waterhouse, who was driving on Highway 154 about 25 miles from the blast site.

Fifty-eight people in the area were treated at the Vandenberg hospital for skin and eye irritations from a toxic cloud from the explosion. Three people were admitted, but the nearby community of Lompoc was not endangered, the Air Force said. The toxic cloud was pushed out to sea by the wind.

Numerous grass fires caused by falling debris sputtered around the launch site for hours, but none was serious, base officials said in a statement. The only on-base evacuation was of 173 people initially pinned down at the site.

"This will create major problems in the photographic reconnaissance program, in our confidence in monitoring Soviet military activities at a critical time," said Paul Stares, a military space expert at the Brookings Institution in Washington, D.C.

In 1985, space shuttles and Titan 34Ds accounted for two-thirds of satellite launches, the Air Force said.

Although the Air Force said the payload was classified, the Titan almost certainly carried either a highly classified KH-11 photo reconnaissance satellite or a new, previously unknown spy satellite, said Stares and Jeffrey Richelson, a military reconnaissance expert at American University in Washington.

In the past, KH-11s have been the only satellites launched from Vandenberg on Titan 34D rockets, Richelson added.

The Air Force was conducting an investigation into the cause of Friday's explosion, said Lt. Gen. Jack L. Watkins, the base commander.

Investigators of the Challenger disaster have speculated that failure of the O-rings caused the shuttle rockets to explode.

Thank You

To the host of friends who came to us with love and sympathy, to those who could not come but sent flowers or messages of condolences; we want to express our deepest appreciation, we are indeed grateful for the beautiful flowers and for the food that was served. A special thanks to Dr. Miller, Dr. Burleson and The Staff at Snyder Oaks. May God's blessing be upon you is our prayer.
The Family of Owen Miller

To the host of friends who came to us with love and sympathy, to those who could not come but sent flowers or messages of condolences; we want to express our deepest appreciation, we are indeed grateful for the beautiful flowers and for the food that was served. We covet your prayers. May God's richest blessing be upon you is our prayer.
The Family of Sara Kruse Lomax

Thank You

To all our many friends, patients and associates who telephoned and sent cards and flowers during my recent hospital stay in Ft. Worth Osteopathic Medical Center for Surgery.
Again, my sincere Thank You.

Scurry County Folks...

By Vicki Brown

Balancing time for studies with a rigorous sports schedule can pose difficulty for even the most organized college student.

Western Texas College freshman GiGi Robinson has managed to adapt, not only to the fast pace set at school, but also to demands on her time as a wife and mother.

Married three years ago while still in high school, GiGi thought her basketball career had come to an abrupt halt. "Playing college basketball had always been a dream, a goal to work for," she said. "I thought that getting married would put an end to it."

Her mother also shared the dream. "Before she passed away, my mother's dream had always been to see her daughter play college ball," she explained.

Husband William, though, seems to understand — supporting her efforts through two high school seasons and her first year at WTC. "I think he understands because he played baseball at Hardin-Simmons (University in Abilene)."

Self-employed as a farmer, William often juggles his own schedule to accommodate GiGi's workload. Although they have hired a babysitter to care for son Jaime, William tends to his needs during long evening games or road trips.

"William is very supportive," GiGi smiled. "He helps with Jamie and doesn't seem to mind when I'm late. Even the week or two at a time we have to spend on the road is not a real problem. He knows what to do and how to attend to Jaime. He understands

The Scurry County Extension Office is co-sponsoring a Pecan Tree Shortcourse on April 29. The shortcourse is co-sponsored with Borden, Dawson and Lynn counties. The shortcourse will be held at the Dawson County Community Building in Lamesa. The shortcourse will begin at 2 p.m. and should conclude around 5 p.m.

The shortcourse will be presented by Dr. George McEachern, extension horticulturalist. Dr. McEachern is located at Texas A&M University.

The shortcourse will include many aspects of pecan tree management. Some of the areas included are planting techniques, training of young trees, water and fertilizer needs, herbicides, and insect and disease control.

The shortcourse will also include a tour to a pecan orchard. Demonstrations on pruning and grafting will be given during the orchard visit.

All interested persons are welcome to attend. For more information contact the County Extension Office at 573-5423.

ART AND SPORTS

SEOUL, Korea (AP) — A total of 388 different postcards are scheduled to be issued for the Seoul Asian Games, Sept. 20-Oct. 5, 1986, and the 1988 Seoul Olympics.

The official postcards, produced by the Seoul International Fine Arts Center, under contract with the Seoul Olympic Organizing Committee.

Nguyen, Smith wed

Ha Nguyen and Wesley D. Smith exchanged vows April 5 at St. Thomas the Apostle Church in Amarillo. The ceremony was held at 2 p.m. with Rev. Aram Berard officiating.

Parents of the couple are Mr. and Mrs. Sac Viet Nguyen of Amarillo and Mr. and Mrs. Bobby K. Smith of Amarillo.

Grandparents of the groom are Ona Mae Spence of Snyder, Leonard W. Spence of Mesquite, and the late Mr. and Mrs. Roy E. Smith of Hermleigh.

Vows were exchanged before two brass fan candleabra used as a background for the altar. They were flanked with white wicker baskets of silk foliage. Cascades of white orchid vines, greenery and white satin bows with white feathered love doves perched on each bow, marked the family pews.

Special music was provided by the Sisters of Charity of Amarillo. They were Sisters Andrea, Ann Marie, Mary Ann, Judith and Mary Teresa. Songs featured as a prelude to the service included "Gift of Love," "Sunrise-Sunrise," and "There is Love." During mass the songs were "Sing to the Mountain," "Set me Like a Seal," and "Wherever You Go."

Given in marriage by her father the bride wore a traditional gown of white bridal satin. The gown featured a sweetheart neckline with sheer netting extending into a high neckline The fitted bodice extended into points at the waist, front and back. The bodice was enhanced with French alecon lace emboidered with pearls.

Fitted sleeves of netting were complemented with a second short puff sleeve of sheer organza. Sleeves were accented with lace and pearls. The full skirt cascaded into a chapel length train with the skirt edge outlined with beaded lace. Lace appliques were scattered throughout the skirt and train.

The bride's finger tip length veil was of bridal illusion and attached to a small band of minature roses.

The bridal bouquet was made of pink carnations, white roses and cherry wine rose buds. Ribbon streamers of pink and white cascaded from the bouquet.

Serving as maid of honor was the bride's sister, Phuong Nguyen. Bridesmaids were Jennifer Spence, cousin of the groom from Snyder, and Van Nguyen of Plano.

Flower girl was Vi Nguyen, niece of the bride. She wore a dress with fitted bodice and short puff sleeves with bows on the shoulders and a long full skirt. The waistline of her dress was accented with a sash and bow in the back. She carried a basket of roses and carnations with ribbon streamers.

The bridal attendants wore tea-length dresses of cherry wine taffeta. The dresses had a sweetheart neckline, fitted bodice with short puff sleeves and bows on the shoulders. The bodice extended into points below the waist in the front and back.

The bouquets were similiar to the bride's with accents of cherry wine ribbons.

Serving as best man was the groom's brother, Alan Smith of Brownwood. Groomsmen were David Caldwell of Dallas and Tandy Arrant of Lubbock.

Ushers serving were Son Nguyen and Thanh Nguyen, bothers of the bride from Arlington.

Serving as altar boys were cousins of the bride, Hai and Long Nguyen. Ring bearer was Bryan Spence, cousin of the groom from Snyder.

The groom and ring bearer were featured in long morning coats with the groomsmen wearing traditional black tuxedos. The fathers also wore tuxedos.

The bride's mother wore a pink silk shirtwaist dress with a corsage of carnations and rosebuds. Mother of the groom wore an aquamarine tea-length dress of gorgette with shirtwaist styling. Her corsage was made of pink carnations.

The reception was held following the wedding in the parish hall. Serving the bride's table were Huong Nguyen of Carrollton and Jennifer Smith of Brownwood.

The groom's table was served by Kim Tran, sister of the bride, and Janet Spence, aunt of the groom.

A rehearsal dinner was hosted in the parlor of the church by the groom's parents.

Out of town guests were from Dallas, Lubbock, Odessa, Lamesa, Carrollton, Plano, Snyder, Austin, Brownwood, San Angelo, Mesquite and Houston.

The bride chose a suit of white with a silk blouse of deep rose in which to travel.

Graduating from Texas Tech University in Lubbock, the bride has a degree in computer science and is employed in Irving as a computer programmer.

The groom is a graduate of Texas A & M University and has done graduate work at the Unversity of Texas at Arlington.

The couple will honeymoon in Florida before making their home in Irving.

Ottoman Turkish art acquired

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The Los Angeles County Museum of Art says it has acquired "one of the premier collections of Ottoman Turkish art with the recent gift of 128 rare works from the renowned collection of Edwin Binney III."

The gift includes paintings, calligraphies, manuscripts, bookbindings, textiles, ceramics and metalwork, along with several significant Persian works. Considered one of the most comprehensive groupings outside the imperial collections of Istanbul, the acquisition affords an opportunity to trace the development of Ottoman art.

SCS Notes

BY SAM BUCHANAN
District Conservationist

Texas 1986 farm programs--Conservation Reserve Program and Acreage Conservation Reserve--are not only similar in name, but provide County landowners excellent opportunities to improve wildlife habitiat. Both programs are intended to reduce overproduction of agricultural commodities and protect the nation's soil resource.

The Conservation Reserve Program pays landowners to establish highly erodible, marginally productive cropland to permanent vegetation for at least 10 years. Perennial vegetation is required for soil protection in this program. Plantings of grasses, forbs, shrubs, or trees can improve habitat for dove, quail, turkey, deer and antelope in Scurry County.

The Acreage Conservation Reserve, or set aside acreage, pays farmers to reduce their acreages of selected agricultural commodities--feed grains, cotton and wheat in Scurry County. Acreages taken out of production must be protected from soil erosion, but annual vegetation is permitted in this program. Annual wildlife food plots may be planted on set aside acres.

Permanent vegetation alone rarely provides the habitat needs of wildlife. Annual food plots near permanent vegetation may support less mobile forms of wildlife throughout the year. Highly mobile species, such as wintering waterfowl and dove, will benefit more from annual food plots than areas of permanent vegetation.

The Conservation Reserve Program and Acreage Conservation Reserve can be used in combination to improve wildlife habitat, particularly where habitat is deficient in food and cover for the desired species. The Agricultural Conservation and Stabilization Service (ASCS) administers both programs for USDA. Soil Conservation Service (SCS) personnel will assist landowners to develop Conservation plans that will meet program requirements and provide habitat for wildlife. The SCS and ASCS offices are located at 3423 Avenue T in Snyder.

MAKING SENSE OF MEAT LABELS

The meat in your supermarket may carry names like "extra lean," "gormet lean" and "super trim," on the label. But what these terms mean depends on the butcher.

Because there's no mandatory system for naming beef once it reaches the market, extra lean might mean 85 percent lean to one butcher and 75 percent to another.

But the beef industry does have a voluntary standard limiting lean ground beef to 24 percent fat and extra lean to 15 percent fat.

The only time you can be certain about the names of beef steak and roasts is when they're called "prime," "choice," or "good."

Only meat graded at the packinghouse using U.S. Department of Agriculture guidelines can be labled with these words. Government graders assign these designations on specific criteria, such as age and the degree of fat marbling.

The beef with the most fat marbling tends to be the most tender and is the most likely to be called "prime."

Recent USDA figures show that about half the markets in the country do not use the federal grading terminology exclusively.

If your supermarket doesn't use the federal terminology, become familiar with the labeling terms they do use by asking the butcher what they mean.

Consumers can also get nutrition information on labels or at the meat case in many Texas stores.

Many supermarkets are using "Meat Nutri-Facts," a program supported by the red meat industry to inform consumers about the nutritional composition of meat.

Large Nutri-Fact cards displayed in the meat case show the amount of calories, total fat, cholesterol, sodium, protein, iron, thiamin, niacin and vitamin B-12 contained in a cooked, trimmed, three-ounce serving of a particular cut of meat.

This information can help consumers select meat cuts according to nutrient needs, and may be of great use to shoppers on special diets.

Consumers who pay attention to both the grading of meat and its nutrient content ean make better decisions about getting the most for their meat dollar.

GARDEN WEDDING PLANNED — Ms. Shirley Slaughter announces the engagement and approaching marriage of her daughter, Shonna, to Jay Butler, son of Ms. Kay Dodson Butler. Grandparents of the couple are Mr. and Mrs. Barney H. Guynes and Mr. and Mrs. Wayne N. Dodson, all of Snyder. The couple will exchange vows in the garden of the groom's grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Wayne N. Dodson, on June 21. (Family Photograph) my obligations to the team."

Even in the off-season, she faces a hectic schedule. She noted that the team practices between 10 and 12 hours per week. "Then we each practice on our own as much as possible to work on individual weaknesses," she added.

Although marriage has changed her lifestyle, GiGi believes that fact has not affected her relationship with other team members. "On the court we are all players and nothing else. While in school, we are good friends. They really don't treat me any differently than if I lived in the dorm," she remarked

GiGi plans to continue her education at a four-year college once she completes her sophmore year at WTC. She definitely plans to play basketball too. "I would like to play for (Texas) Tech or a Division I team," she said, adding that she is open to any opportunity to play. "If I keep working hard and keep a good attitude, I think I've got a pretty good chance (of being picked by another team.)"

Once she receives a degree in business administration and establishes herself in a "good job," William will return to college in hopes of becoming a coach.

GiGi offers this advice to other women athletes: "If you've got goals set, try not to hurt anyone to get those goals, but still try to achieve them.

"If I felt like basketball was going to hurt my marriage, I would give it up or I might have chosen not to get married at all."

MAKING FRIENDS--Matthew Shroyer, a three-year-old deaf student of Sharon Crozier, is "talking" with a dummy created by a sixth grade student at West. This particular dummy is telling the little boy "Don't Take Food From Strangers." Students in Elizabeth McCloskey's class made the dummies to illustrate the health and safety tips they have learned this year. (SDN Staff Photo)

6th graders share tips about health, safety

Mrs. Elizabeth McCloskey's sixth grade class at West recently completed units about drugs, alcohol, and safety in the home.

To share their knowledge they prepared stuffed dummies--their "alter egos"--to share safety messages with the school children at West Elementary.

Students and their projects include Bill Vestal, "Exercise For Good Health;" Dusty Sterling, "A Good Tip: Don't Smoke, Don't Start;" Carly Jenkins, "Never Take Presents From Strangers;" Brian Fowler, "The Best Word to Say is No;" Tonya Warren, "Look Both Ways Before Crossing the Street;" and Jennifer Johanson, "Please Be Quiet in the Hall."

These dummies will also visit the next meeting of the American Heart Association to demonstrate the signs of health and safety.

McMurtry wins Pulitzer Prize

By The Associated Press

Winning the Pulitzer Prize doesn't guarantee future success, says author Larry McMurtry, winner of the 1986 Pulitzer Prize for fiction for his novel "Lonesome Dove."

"It doesn't mean I'll be able to write anything good tomorrow," said McMurtry, whose award-winning book was an expansive novel of 19th century life on the prairie.

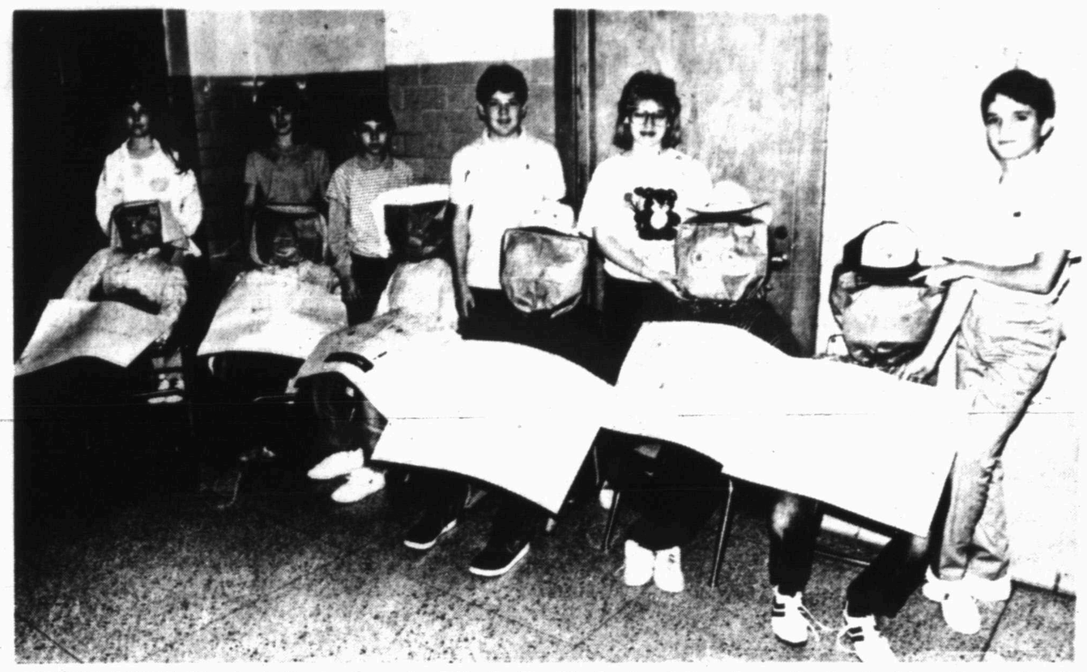
"It's a great honor and I'm very grateful for it."

McMurtry, 49, was born in Wichita Falls and raised in Archer County, Texas. He now lives in Washington, D.C.

McMurtry was en route Thursday evening from a speaking engagement in Uvalde, to another one in Austin. Attempts by the Associated Press to reach him in the capital were unsuccessful.

His mother, Hazel McMurtry, who lives at a retirement home in Wichita Falls, said she spoke briefly with her son by telephone after he learned of the award.

"He never gets very excited, but I think this pleased him," she said. "It's quite an honor for a little boy who grew up in the country."



ALTER EGOS--West sixth graders in Elizabeth McCloskey's class recently made dummies or "alter egos" as part of their imparting safety and health tips they have learned to other students. Oil leases may not be lost if operators halt production

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Reagan administration, trying to preserve some oil reservoirs from abandonment in the face of low prices, told operators of small wells Thursday they could stop production without losing federal leases.

"Continued abandonment of such wells clearly will reduce our ultimate recovery potential" on federal lands, Interior Secretary Donald P. Hodel told reporters, and that loss of productive capacity "no doubt will increase U.S. dependence on imported oil — which is contrary to the nation's interests."

Involved are so-called "stripper" wells, which produce less than 10 barrels per day. Failure to produce from such a well on a federal lease has meant the lease is supposed to be surrendered after 60 days.

Operators now will just have to give the Bureau of Land Management a certificate that they would abandon the well otherwise and the bureau will lift the 60-day requirement, "subject to our right to require production" and payment of $1 per acre per year, Hodel said.

Operators on lands of Indian tribes will have to win approval of the tribe and the Bureau of Indian Affairs as well.

While the action clearly will help some well operators, Hodel repeated the Reagan administration's stance against general aid to the domestic petroleum industry. "We do not favor protectionist activities and we do not favor subsidies for an industry or a sector of an industry," he said.

A bipartisan group of senators led by Sen. David L. Boren, D-Okla., is drafting a bill to aid small producers through a package of increased tax breaks.

Boren's press aide, Barbara Webb, said the bill would embody such principles as an undetermined increase in the stripper well depletion allowance of 15 percent, tax credits to make up the difference between the cost of production and the selling price and purchase of stripper oil for the Strategic Petroleum Reserve.

Joe Lastelic, a spokesman for the industry's American Petroleum Institute, said the stripper-well action "really helps in some ways ... it's a salutary move."

Many operators have abandoned stripper wells, or have announced plans to do so, since crude oil prices went into free fall early this year.

Man's health 'frail'

NEW YORK (AP) — Peter Kilburn was an unlikely pawn in the high stakes game of international terrorism. A quiet man of frail health, his love of books and knowledge was rivaled only by his fondness for the Lebanese people.

"He's just the kind of character who loves to talk to people, to learn about them," said his niece, Patty Little, of Aptos, Calif.

Kilburn was months away from retirement as a librarian at the American University in Beirut when he failed to show up at work on Dec. 3, 1984.

When Lebanon hostage the Rev. Benjamin Weir was released in mid-September, he told of meeting with four other hostages. But he said he knew nothing of Kilburn or William Buckley, a U.S. Embassy official missing since March 1984.

Fears about Kilburn's safety were magnified by his health problems.

He once suffered a stroke that left him partially paralyzed and affected his vision. He suffered from high blood pressure and heart problems.

Kilburn's life was marked by hard times. His father died when he was a child.

Youthful volunteers fix old woman's house

SHERMAN, Texas (AP) — Last fall, Rachel Hill started looking for an elderly or disabled person in need of some minor home repairs. Her motive was simple: She wanted to help.

Last weekend, the energetic Austin College sophomore and about 17 other volunteers roofed a house — much to the delight of its owner Edna Travis.

"I'm as happy as if I had good sense," Mrs. Travis chuckled while admiring the volunteers' handiwork. She has needed a new roof for two years, but lacked the means to pay for it.

"It wasn't leaking — it was pouring," she said, showing her bedroom where broken sheetrock was falling in pieces on the floor.

Mrs. Travis' husband suffered a stroke last year and has been confined to the hospital or Chapel of Care nursing home ever since. There's no money left for roof repairs.

"I do well to pay the utilities," she said.

The roofing project was Ms. Hill's second major volunteer effort. During the previous weekend, workers removed a crumbling garage and porch from Mrs. Travis' home to clear the way for the roofing project.

This weekend, volunteers will paint the exterior of her house.

Ms. Hill, who's considering a career in social work, said she's gratified by the volunteers' efforts.

"A lot of people wanted to help — we just needed to give them a place to do it," Ms. Hill said. "I didn't have to ask anybody more than once."

Her own hands show where blisters formed while removing the garage and porch. Five teenagers from the Fred Douglass School, along with instructor Otto Sladecek Jr., pitched in enthusiastically, Ms. Hill said.

The city of Sherman agreed to haul off the debris.

In addition, she received financial and moral support for the home improvement project from her church, Trinity Presbyterian.

All of the approximately $600 in materials and expense will be charged to the church. The church allocated $100 for the project from its budget and the rest of the money will come from individual donors, including several members of the church.

"My main goal in the future is to make this not a church project, not an Austin College project, but a Sherman project," Ms. Hill said. She wants to organize volunteers to help with similar home repairs each spring.

Volunteer enthusiasm suggests that the project can be expanded.

Deserving recipients are easy to find, Ms. Hill said, and volunteers possess the skills and energy to make substantial improvements.

She first inquired with the City of Sherman's office of community development, where Clay Collins gave her a list of homes that need major repairs. While the city administers federal grants to repair many substandard homes, there's not enough money to fund every qualifying project, Ms. Hill said.

"He said they had about about a two- year waiting list," she explained.

After she checked four houses that seemed in greatest need of repair, she conferred with Mike McCool, a real estate broker, to determine which house would be best suited for the project.

Mrs. Travis' home was selected, and Trinity Presbyterian provided funding and volunteers.

Austin College personnel and students also helped. Hammers and other carpentry tools were borrowed from professors.

What caused her to take on the project?

"That's really hard to explain," Ms. Hill said. "Just a general desire to help somebody."

Mrs. Travis said all of the volunteers seemed happy to help.

"When they got though, they all clapped," she said. "They all acted like they were tickled."

Your Birthday

April 20, 1986

In the year ahead, you will become involved in an organizational activity that will be both pleasurable and materially rewarding. It's something you've always wanted to do.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) When socializing with friends today, don't exaggerate your accomplishments, even if they are doing so about theirs. Fish stories will eventually be measured. Know where to look for romance and you'll find it. The Astro-Graph Matchmaker set instantly reveals which signs are romantically perfect for you. Mail $2 to Matchmaker, c/o this newspaper, Box 1846, Cincinnati, OH 45201.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Gauge the temperament of your household today. Don't do something foolish that will get family members all stirred up. Think before you act.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) You might be a trifle forgetful today regarding your responsibilities. It's best to make notes for yourself to serve as reminders.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) It could later prove unwise if you spend funds today before they are in your bank account. Live within your means and only use the cash at hand.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Be careful today about making rash promises or commitments. Agreements you make in haste will be difficult to unwind later.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Keep a weather eye on anyone performing special work or services for you today. Be sure they're doing the job properly and aren't overcharging you in the process.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Responsibilities shouldn't be swept aside today to pursue pleasure. Duty is bound to catch up with you later and cause greater woes.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) An opportunity will be around you today, but you might not develop it to its fullest potential. Don't let a lucky break go by the boards.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Comments you make to others today will be quoted later. Before passing on any information, be sure you have your facts straight.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Being too curious about a friend's affairs could have expensive ramifications today. Don't let yourself get drawn in as a loan agent.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Usually you're the type who lets others think for themselves, but today you might try to force your views and opinions on your listeners.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Today you may step out of character and not be motivated to help others unless you see something in it for yourself.

April 21, 1986

The year ahead will be an exciting one romantically. Tighter bonds will be welded with one who is already near and dear to your heart.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Usually you're quite pragmatic regarding your commercial affairs, but today you might make some bad moves and buck the odds in hopes of getting a quick profit. Know where to look for romance and you'll find it. The Astro-Graph Matchmaker set instantly reveals which signs are romantically perfect for you. Mail $2 to Matchmaker, c/o this newspaper, Box 1846, Cincinnati, OH 45201.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Try to be methodical and orderly in your home or office today. If you don't put things back in their proper place, you'll not find them when you look for them later.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Guard against tendencies today to talk to the wrong people about things you shouldn't. Don't let your spoken word be used against you.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) You must be value-conscious if you intend to make an important purchase today, otherwise you could be talked into paying more for something than it's worth.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Be complimentary to the deserving today, but do not attempt to use flattery as a tool in hopes of manipulating others. Insincerity will backfire.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Friends or family members should not be expected to bail you out of of a problem of your own making today. You'll have to fend for yourself.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) If you are extravagant or wasteful with your resources today, you are going to regret it later. Spend only for essentials instead of frills.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Your behavior will be closely observed by your peers today. Don't do anything that could reflect unfavorably on your honor or reputation.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Important judgments must not be made in haste today. Initial information and evidence won't tell the whole story.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) It's best today to restrict your business transactions to people you've either dealt with previously or know by reputation to be honest and ethical.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Do not agree to do something today that does not serve your best interests just because you don't want to wound the feelings of a sensitive associate.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Difficult assignments will require your complete attention today. Mistakes are likely if you do one thing while dreaming about another.

Teacher sounds off to White about TECAT

WHITTON, Texas (AP) — As a gospel band played and politicians made speeches, second-grade teacher Sarah Conway decided it was time to confront Gov. Mark White.

White had praised his school reform program as he stood on the front porch of the Whitton Community Center and asked East Texans for their votes. But Ms. Conway, 35, wasn't convinced.

So the soft-spoken Eustace teacher — who describes herself as "very quiet, almost a wallflower" — went one-on-one in a debate with the chief executive of Texas.

She said she's never done anything like that before. She said she had no choice.

"I am soft-spoken and not that political. But he was right there, in my backyard, and I wanted to let him know that all teachers did not agree with the TECAT test," she said.

Like many of her colleagues, Ms. Conway is angry about TECAT — the mandatory teacher competency test required by the 1984 school reform law that White has made the centerpiece of his re-election campaign.

"I am almost a wallflower. I never speak out. But I have seen so many of my fellow teachers demoralized by that test. I know they are demoralized. It hurts me," Ms. Conway said.

"Everywhere we go, people ask us if we passed that test. I can't tell you how humiliating that is. I wanted to tell him that. I'd just heard him say how much good he'd done for education.

"He's done a lot of good things — we appreciate the duty-free lunch and the smaller class sizes — but that test was so demoralizing," she said.

As they stood surrounded by people, Ms. Conway told White, "Our morale is gone."

The governor defended the reforms and insisted he is the teachers' friend.

"You are our future. You are important," White told Ms. Conway. He told her legislators wouldn't have approved a teacher pay raise or other improvements unless the test was required.

Ms. Conway wasn't swayed.

"He's not talking to us. He tells us what needs to be done. He hasn't listened to us," Ms. Conway said in an interview afterward. "I'm not voting for him. I'm working against him right now."

The Navy Department was established by Congress April 20, 1798.

Inquiries on guns increase

HOUSTON (AP) — Interest in machine guns has increased since the U.S. House of Representatives passed and sent to the Senate a bill that would ban the automatic weapons, but some gun dealers say they doubt it will mean more sales.

"There is more interest. I have had more phone calls, but sales of machine guns do not boom because of the complications involved in selling them," said Houston gun dealer Wallace Gorman.

The high cost, lengthy application process and extensive paperwork is enough to put off most of the curious callers interested in buying machine guns, said Houston gun dealer Wallace Gorman.

The proposal now before the Senate calls for the ban of future sales of machine guns, but would allow people already owning registered machine guns to keep their weapons.

"Prices are going up 200 to 400 percent because of this," said Arthur May, a gun dealer.

Newest data from the Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms in Washington indicates 8,316 machine guns were registered in Texas in 1981.

Writing began late

AUSTIN (AP) — Jean Auel, who became a best-selling author after rearing five children and giving up a business career, says she never thought about creative writing until she tried it.

"I was never one of those people who said, 'Someday I'm going to write a book,'" she said Thursday.

Her first two novels, set in the Ice Age, have been top sellers. Ms. Auel was the featured speaker at a seminar entitled "Literature: From Unlikely Places and Unlikely People." She spoke to an overflow crowd at the Lyndon B. Johnson Auditorium at the University of Texas.

Ms. Auel said she didn't know she could write, nor that it could be fun, until she had scribbled the first 10 pages of what became her first book.

"It's not so far-fetched to dream of writing and getting published. But you have to do more than dream," she said.

Her first two books — "The Clan of the Cave Bear" and "The Valley of the Horses" — have sold seven million copies.

The books are part of her series "Earth's Children." The idea, she said, came in 1977 after she had quit her job in credit management for an Oregon electronics firm.

Ms. Auel recalled that she married shortly after high school and had five children before she was 24. She later returned to school and earned a graduate business degree in Portland. She joined her husband in working at the electronics firm.

To: The Yankees who think Texans hope they will freeze in the dark.

From: Those Texans.

Dear Sirs and Madames,

We've noticed you northern states aren't too hot to the idea of an oil import tax. And it's only now we realize a few of you boys are still smarting from some remarks made during the so-called energy crisis of the early 1970s.

We're talking about those bumper stickers which urged us Sun-Belters to drive 75 so as to freeze you Yankee types in the dark.

Hey, we'll admit it. As an idea, it wasn't exactly friendly.

The world has turned a couple of whirls since then, and now you folks in places like Passaic, N.J. are having good sport with oil-rich Texans. Well partner, it's only fair and you deserve your turn to laugh.

That done, you might consider us two parts of the country even-steven again — a situation we've been trying to balance since 1865 and that other tangle we got into.

Now we might consider a little whickerbill called national unity and start over.

There's been a lot of talk about that old oil import tax, but we've had at least one smart fellow tell us it gets to be pretty creaky legislation when you start considering all the loopholes it would have to have.

Not the least of which is some kind of allowance made for companies that sell the oil you Yanks have to burn to keep yourself and your kin warm during those Northern winters.

So it may not be the best plan, but for right now it is the only one we've heard tell of. Shoot, we'll negotiate.

Now, if you yardbirds want to stay puffed up over some silly bumper sticker popular more than 10 years ago, so be it.

Nobody ever said being stupid was hard.

And it's probably true that in your eyes an arrogant Texan may be only slightly less obnoxious than an A-rab shiek.

But you've got to admit you have more in common with us folks than them folks — an equal bite from Uncle Sam's tax boys being just one example.

And it might be time to figure you're going to need our oil somewhere down the highway.

We'll also mention this. If you Yankees have a long memory, the same can sure enough be said about Texans. In fact, we never forget folks who try to pour water down our boots.

So how about less thinking that it's us against you and more figuring that we're all in this old leaky tub together?

And when this thing turns around — and Texas will be back, figure on it — we'll tell the boys down at the Sunday rop'in to speak a little more kindly about our Yankee cousins.

Like Daddy always said, life is full of surprises. And the biggest one comes at the end, when you finally figure out nobody gets out alive anyway.

Country Life

By Deanie Francis Mills

One of the drawbacks of growing up in the city is that you develop a snobbish, cynical, jaded outlook on life that city-dwellers like to call "sophistication." Each city has its own brand. Dallasites think people who live in small towns are hicks. New Yorkers think Dallasites are clods. Parisiennés think New Yorkers are thugs. Londoners think...well, you get the picture.

When I first moved to Snyder, I confess I had a problem with that attitude. For example, when you go on a date in the city, you open up the newspaper to the "Entertainment" section, which may be four pages long.

If you want to see a movie, you decide which one, then choose from one of a dozen locations where it is playing. Or you take in a summer musical and see some of the top Broadway shows with famous casts.

You may go to the symphony or the theatre or a Dallas Cowboys football game, and eat any kind of food in any kind of price range.

Senior proms are held in places like the Windham Hotel or the Galleria, and I understand that, nowadays, if a guy wants to impress a girl, he doesn't borrow his dad's car, instead, he rents a chauffeured limousine.

So, going "to the show" with my husband was a bit of a disappointment, to say the least.

That was twelve years ago. I've grown up a lot since then, and I've learned that bigger is not always better.

When I was 21, I took my baby sister, who was only five, to the Ringling Brother's Barnum and Bailey Circus at Memorial Auditorium. Memorial Auditorium is where all the big rock bands used to perform, like the Beatles and the Beach Boys. They have an open-air facility now, for folks like Springsteen.

The circus was breathtaking, all right, with great precision and perfection in the acts, but in that huge building, everything seemed so far away, as if we were watching in on television. It gave an aura of unreality to it.

Not long ago, a little circus called "Carson and Barnes" came to Snyder. Twelve years ago I might have turned my nose up at it. After all, the lions and tigers didn't behave for Miss Patricia White like they do for Gunther Gebel-Williams. The show girls weren't quite as beautiful, and the trapeze artists missed a few.

But, sitting there with my kids, none of that mattered. It was like stepping back a century. There was an old-fashioned calliope, drawn by a set of huge matched golden Percheron horses. A carnival area with hawkers luring us to view "gigantic snakes and horrible spiders." Animals on display: gawky giraffes, lumbering elephants, gentle llama and bellowing camels. Inside the vast, gaily-striped tent, all the wonders of five rings were close enough to touch.

We crammed salty popcorn in our mouths, melted sugary cotton candy on our tongues, and cracked peanuts. The floor of the tent was grass, and it smelled of animals and anticipation. Even the afternoon sunlight filtering through the tent opening didn't lesson the dazzle of costumes in glittering turquoise and scarlet and purple and sequined black.

We caught our hearts in our throats as the daring young man on the flying trapeze swung so high above us he kicked the top on the canvas roof. We were a PART of it all, experiencing it with the performers. If they didn't make it, we cheered them on to try again and leapt to our feet when they made it.

Such a little circus probably wouldn't even come to a big city.

As I watched the rapt faces of my children, I thought, I'm so glad I'm not sophisticated any more.

FIVE YEARS AGO

More than 2,000 Scurry County residents turned out Easter afternoon — April 20 — for an open house marking the opening of the new addition to Cogdell Memorial Hospital. The $4 million 50-bed wing was completed this month after four years of planning and construction. It brings total hospital capacity to 135 patients.

10 YEARS AGO

Named Mr. and Miss Western Texas College 1976 in ceremonies during the spring formal Thursday evening — April 15 — were Randall King and Cindy Hanson.

Officers of the Scurry County Historical Commission named Tuesday afternoon — April 20 — were Edith McKanna, chairman; Hugh Boren Jr., vice-chariman; and Mrs. Jack McGlaun, secretary.

15 YEARS AGO

Snyder High School cheerleaders for 1971-72 elected this week were Dixie Harrell, Holly Crenshaw, Patty Richardson, Debbie Sadler, Susan Ferrell and Leslie Bilberry.

Mrs. Forest Sears and her daughter Carolyn this week presented Western Texas College with the institution's first major private gift — a $15,000 Americana Carillon system. The 75 note carillon had been deleted from architect's original plans for the college due to expense. It will now be used to signal class changes and to provide music on special occasions.

20 YEARS AGO

Doctors and X-ray technicians from hospitals within a 125 mile radius of Snyder were visiting Cogdell Memorial Hospital this weekend — April 16-17 — to see and work with the new one of a kind Siemens three phase x-ray machine. The new machine is a new design by the West German firm and is the only one of its type currently operating in the United States.

SUNDAY
April 13

A lawsuit expected to be heard by the Texas Supreme Court has challenged the existence of Texas appraisal districts, but local Chief Appraiser Ray Peveler says he believes entities like the Scurry County Appraisal District would continue to exist even if the court ruled for abolishment, it was reported Sunday.

The Snyder High School production of "A Man for All Seasons" and the Borger High School Production of "The Crucible" were chosen as the winning plays in the UIL Area II one-act play contest at SHS, it was reported Sunday.

In addition, Snyder's Brad Vincent who was named best actor of the contest.

The Snyder and Borger student actors will now advance to regional competition in Brownwood April 25-26.

MONDAY
April 14

A 20-year-old Snyder man was given a nine-year prison term in exchange for a guilty plea Monday.

Billy Darin Jones of 302 E 23rd St. entered a guilty plea in 132nd District Court to two counts of delivery of a controlled substance.

He is alleged to have delivered LSD to an undercover narcotics officer on Nov. 9 and Nov. 19, 1985.

An average of 21 possible cases of child abuse per month were referred to the Scurry County Child Welfare Unit during 1985, it was reported Monday.

This included 124 referrals received involving 262 children.

This report was offered Monday night to the approximately 30 people who attended the annual board meeting of the local unit.

A $49,906 low bid from a local contractor was accepted by Snyder school board members Monday to rewire Tiger Stadium's outdoor lighting.

The action came during a session which also saw the board reorganize, naming Mike Jordan as its new president.

The bid to rewire the poles and replace lighting at Tiger Stadium was awarded to Southern Electric Inc.

TUESDAY
April 15

Police report 17 recent criminal incidents were cleared Tuesday afternoon with the arrests of two male juveniles, ages 14 and 15.

Offenses attributed to the youth range from burglary to unauthorized use of a motor vehicle with charges of misdemeanor possession of marijuana filed at the time of the arrests.

The Snyder Junior High School eighth grade band continued its winning tradition Tuesday earning sweepstakes honors in Regional UIL competition at Sweetwater.

To capture the sweepstakes trophy, the band earned first division (superior) ratings in both concert performance and sight reading competition.

A "paint-up, fix-up" for the Snyder Chamber of Commerce building and grounds was given tentative approval Tuesday by the chamber board.

The group authorized director Fred Castillo to prepare a detailed proposal for the renovation work. This is expected to be considered at the May meeting of the board.

WEDNESDAY
April 16

The Snyder High School Symphonic Band won the sweepstakes trophy in UIL Concert and Sight Reading contests in Abilene Wednesday.

THURSDAY
April 17

A small but vocal group of teachers asked questions and voiced their opinions on a variety of subjects ranging from the recent TECAT test to documentation of essential element instruction Thursday night at Worsham Auditorium.

The group came to both hear and question Dr. Paul C. Dunn, a Levelland dentist who serves as this area's appointed representative on the State School Board.

Awards were given Thursday to this year's honorees at the Upper Colorado Soil and Water Conservation District's annual Conservation Awards Banquet.

Honored were Morris Head, Conservation Farmer; W.C. Hart, Conservation Rancher; William Fuller and Dick Hart, Excellence in Grazing Management; and Betty Burrow and Virginia Trevey, Conservation Teachers.

FRIDAY
April 18

Some 170 students from Snyder schools were scheduled to tour a wildflower trail at Western Texas College Friday as the first day of Wildflower Day activities began.

Letters to the Editor

To the editor,

I am writing this letter to help clear up potential confusion Scurry County residents may feel because of the growing number of "charities" soliciting their support to fight cancer.

Unfortunately, some of these organizations are cashing in on the public's fear of cancer, taking advantage of its generosity and capitalizing on the names and reputations of established, well-regarded organizations and institutions like the American Cancer Society and the National Cancer Institute.

To set the record straight: The America Cancer Society is a national, volunteer nonprofit health organization with NO affiliation with any other cancer-related, nonprofit fund-raising organization. The Society's programs are carried out locally by an elected board of directors. Local volunteers contribute their time and energy to sponsor educational programs, assist cancer patients and raise money needed to contribute our fight against cancer.

Every year, the American Cancer Society conducts its annual Cancer Crusade during April, which President Reagan has designated as Cancer Control Month. A proliferating number of dubious cancer charities also schedule their fund-raising drives and mail solicitations during March and April.

Some of these groups have similar-sounding names which may confuse the giving public. Others misuse the words "National" or "American" in their titles when their programs are actually conducted in specific local areas. Those headquartered in Washinton, D.C., may be incorrectly linked in the public's mind with the government-funded National Cancer Institute, thereby giving them an "offical" sanction they don't deserve.

The America Cancer Society is

Fourth graders decide to design own flags

Students in Irene Masters' fourth grade class at West Elementary recently decided to design their own flags for an art class project.

"The students were very creative and used various materials and ideas in making a flag that would represent the many things that Texas stands for," Masters said.

Students got the idea after reading a true story about Benny Benson, a fourth grade student, who entered a contest to design a flag for the state of Alaska.

Of all the entries, Benson's was judged the best, and it was chosen as the official state flag in 1927.

To the editor,

To the citizens of Snyder and Scurry County and East Elementary Sixth grade and teachers:

We're in hopes that you will accept this letter as our sincere thanks for your kindness to our daughter, Myste.

Our daughter was diagnosed March 28 with Hodgkins disease. Myste has been in and out of the hospital since that date. Word of her illness reached many of you. You responded to Myste and our family's needs with phone calls, food, numerous gifts, many plants and flowers, cards and visits. Your wonderful outreach has been and will continue to be a witness to our family and those within your lives too.

Myste's illness has been a great experience for us.

On one occasion when Myste was taking a series of test, laying on a table in the testing lab area, was a book entitled, "How You Can Have Something Better Through God's Master Plan" by Rev. Don Stewart. One passage stated, "If you have a need, you can have a miracle. Needs are building blocks for miracles — (the materials are made of). Whenever you find a need in your life it is a signal that God has something better for you, because God's master plan for you is good." Myste, her dad and I, read the passage. Myste then said that she felt God has a special purpose and plan for her life.

Her attitude throughout this experience has been that of an eleven year old and yet, she's been very positive because of her Faith in the Lord.

We tried mailing all of you individual notes of thanks. Once, Myste and I addressed over sixty notes of thanks. Before the week ended, we had many more cards in the mail. We'd like to respond to each of you on a personal basis. However, because of the time on the highway and in the hospital, we're unable to.

Our prayer is that because of your Christian kindness, that your blessing will mount up.

In Christian appreciation,
Albert, Evelyn and Myste Malone

TI needs military electronics

DALLAS (AP) — Texas Instruments, reeling from a worldwide slump in the semiconductor industry, will return to profitability by relying on its defense electronics business and a new generation of integrated circuits, the company's president and chief executive officer said.

"The semiconductor and defense business has accounted for two-thirds of TI's net sales billed," Jerry R. Junkins told stockholders Thursday. "Over the past 10 years, they accounted for three-fourths of the profits.

"TI's future depends upon the future of these products," he said.

Junkins said TI, which lost almost $120 million in 1985, will continue to monitor costs and overhead this year. He told stockholders Thursday that the company showed a small first-quarter profit from operations.

The company, for the first quarter of 1986, posted a net loss of $23.8 million or 98 cents per common share, compared with earnings of $9.1 million or 37 cents per share last year.

"After one year of record sales and earnings in 1984, TI entered 1985 well into a decline in semiconductor orders, a decline which has been the worst recession in the history of the semiconductor industry," he told about 1,300 stockholders at the company's sprawling North Dallas facility.

"This was caused primarily by a sharp reduction in growth in the U.S. computer industry, which created excess inventory," he said at the company's annual meeting. "The combination of higher inventories, lower unit demand and industry overcapacity resulted in a severe erosion of semiconductor prices."

The company, faced with a 1985 operating loss, undertook a strategic review of all company operations, which resulted in layoffs of about 10,000 employees worldwide and plant closings last year.

Consolidated capacity in data systems and other areas and reduced expenses in 1985 resulted in a $20 million improvement from the third quarter, when TI lost $44 million, to the fourth quarter's $24 operating loss, said Junkins.

"Our emphasis on cost reduction has continued in 1986, and contributed to a first-quarter profit from operations of $2 million," he said. "This represents an improvement of $26 million over last year's fourth quarter."

The company's stock on Thursday closed 2¾ points higher on the New York Stock Exchange, at $131 per share.

Junkins said the company's geophysical exploration operation, hard-hit by declining oil prices, posted a first-quarter loss in 1985 and this year.

"TI's 1986 plan comprehended a further decline in oil prices," he said. "But the precipitous decline in oil prices makes it clear we must take a stronger effort than we had planned" on cost reduction.

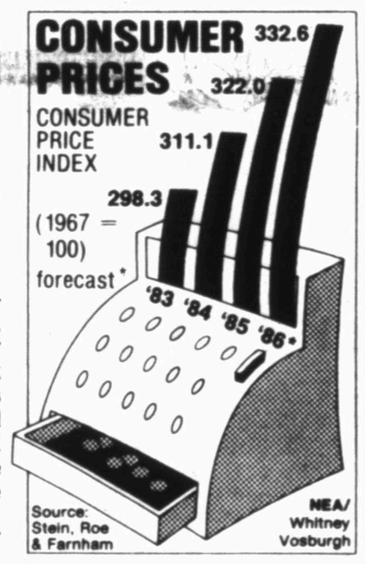
Home-appliance demand hit an all-time high last year, when manufacturers shipped almost 42 million units to retailers — but slight declines are expected for 1986 and 1987.

CONSUMER PRICES



The consumer price index is expected to increase only moderately this year. But goods still cost more than three times what they did about 20 years ago.

White running as incumbent

AUSTIN (AP) — For the first time in his career, Mark White is running as an incumbent. He might feel in this Sesquicentennial year that the 1836 Alamo was a safer place than the 1986 Governor's Mansion.

White-bashing has been as popular with his Democratic primary opponents as with the three Republicans who want to run against him.

They have claimed White lacks competence, leadership and integrity. They say he broke promises, raised taxes and was overly partisan in making appointments.

They have charged him with harboring political ambitions extending beyond Austin and accused him of failing to take charge in the oil-generated budget crisis that has left the state government facing a $1.3 billion shortfall.

"Wasn't it nice when you were a candidate and didn't have to run on a record?" asked Democrat A. Don Crowder at one of two forums where White has appeared with his challengers.

The governor and his loyalists, however, have been shooting back.

White demonstrated he can raise money, bringing in nearly $4 million since last year and spending about $2.1 million, athough most Democrats believe he will win the May 3 primary without a runoff.

He says he has appointed more minorities and women to state boards and commissions than ever, improved highway funding and helped solve the state's water problems.

And then there's the cornerstone of his re-election bid — school reform.

"We're moving toward an education-based economy. We must have an educated workforce in Texas in order to attract the businesses, industry and jobs to our state that are vital to keeping Texas a leading economic force in the country and the world," White said.

"All that we've done and all that we've tried to do is set Texas on a steady course into the 21st century. We're moving in a direction our predecessors never went before," he said.

The primary also has brought something rare to Texas — a campaign season in which the Republicans have drawn the most publicity as White faced a field of Democratic dark horses.

According to most opinion polls, former Gov. Bill Clements leads the GOP pack with his comeback bid. Also running are former congressman Kent Hance of Lubbock, and U.S. Rep. Tom Loeffler of Hunt, the third-ranking GOP member of the House.

Clements, 68, became Texas' first Republican governor since Reconstruction with his victory over Democrat John Hill in 1978. But White ousted him after a single term in 1982.

The millionaire founder of a worldwide oil drilling company, Clements says he has the experience in government and business to lead the state in these troubled economic times.

Hance, 43, a former Democratic state senator and congressman, came within 1,300 votes of being that party's U.S. Senate nominee in 1984. Last year, he said the party had moved away from his conservative philosophy and he became a Republican. He now aligns himself with Sen. Phil Gramm, the GOP candidate he wanted to challenge two years ago.

Loeffler, 39, surprised many Republicans with his decision to run for governor. The four-term congressman's speedy rise to the post of chief deputy whip left many scratching their heads, but Loeffler said he believes "it is time to bring the Reagan revolution home to Texas."

All three have sounded similar themes in attacking White.

GOP candidates meet in debate

DALLAS (AP) — Kent Hance says he has the courage to stand up to U.S. District Judge William Wayne Justice and challenge the judge's controversial rulings against the Texas prison system.

The former congressman, speaking at the second and final televised debate among the three GOP candidates Thursday night, said "we can't let Judge Justice cram things down our throats."

He promised to go back to court to challenge some of Justice's orders that have forced the Texas Department of Corrections to lower its inmate-population ceiling and embark on an early release program.

But U.S. Rep. Tom Loeffler of Hunt, who like Hance claimed to win Thursday's debate telecast by KERA-TV, said Hance's suggestion of using inmates to help build the new prisons Texas needs would lead to "costly mistakes."

Former Gov. Bill Clements, who said he was in no position to say who was the debate's victor, renewed his call for a special legislative session to deal with prison reform and the budget crunch.

All three candidates running in the May 3 primary criticized Gov. Mark White's handling of the state budget and education reform, and Hance maintained that White "didn't plan for a rainy day."

Clements noted that White promised no tax increases during his term but later supported the largest tax hike in Texas history.

"The issue is credibility and integrity," said Clements, a 69-year-old Dallas businessman who lost to White in the last governor's race.

Each candidate said he would target spending cuts and not resort to raising taxes.

"I am the only candidate to have a proven record of spending restraint," declared Loeffler, 39, who said he would set up a commission to review state spending and suggest cuts.

Clements took issue with Loeffler's claim, however, saying he had never voted for a tax increase in his life and that during his administration, he tried to abolish property taxes.

Hance, meanwhile, said it's too early to say exactly where budget cuts should come because of the volatile oil-revenue situation.

VOTE FOR
Jerry House
Commissioner
Precinct 2

A county commissioner has to make many difficult decisions, to provide leadership for the whole county he must be able to listen to both sides and then decide. Everyone knows of the economic problems facing our county. Agriculture has been in bad shape for over five years, the future doesn't look good for a few more years.

The oil industry has taken a very hard blow in the past few months. These two industries are where the majority of the tax dollar comes from. Having interest in both, I know the importance of keeping the taxes at a modest rate, but not letting needs of the people and property be neglected. So for honest and considerate decisions, vote for Jerry House.

Hospital in Texas said out of patients

KOUNTZE, Texas (AP) — Nurses at the Hardin Memorial Hospital have had little to do but answer the phones lately, since the facility has not had a patient spend the night in several weeks.

And most of the calls coming into the 59-bed facility are from creditors.

Two or three nurses are always on duty, but they lock the doors at night. The operating room is padlocked and the hallways leading to the patient rooms are dark.

Despite the lonely duty, nursing supervisor Becky Boudreaux said nurses manage to keep up their spirits, they say. Meanwhile, business office workers are trying to collect overdue bills to bring in money to meet the payroll.

"I'm out of money," said Jack Littell, the Houston resident who last year became sole owner of the company that leases the hospital from Hardin County.

So far, he reports losses of $800,000.

Littell said he wants to sell his lease to a hospital management company.

He said he can't afford to keep patients in the hospital, and if he closes the facility the lease will revert to the county. For now, he said, he would be happy just to stop losing money.

"It's a ghost hospital," said Rick Jacobus, hospital administrator, who insists the hospital's problems are not terminal despite the fact it is short of operating capital and doctor.

"This is a very good hospital," he said.

Hardin County built the hospital in 1953 in Kountze, a town with a population of 2,716, situated about 25 miles northwest of Beaumont in Southeast Texas. Five years ago, the county leased it to a company called Contemporary Health Care.

Hardin County Judge Milton "Pete" McKinney said the county leased the hospital to private operators because it could not afford to operate it.

Littell said he became owner of the company through a series of business deals he doesn't want to discuss.

"I was left holding the bag," he said.

When the hospital stopped accepting indigent patients last month, county commissioners voted to advertise for bids from other companies interested in taking over the hospital.

The bids are to be opened in June unless Contemporary Health Care gets the hospital running again, officials said.

Virginity Is Old-Fashioned But Is Never Out of Style

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1986 by Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: Please keep telling young girls to "hold out" for marriage. Once a girl gives in to a guy, he thinks he owns her. Among the high school crowd, boys still talk about easy girls.

I still remember these lines from a song that was popular back in 1930:

"You're the kind of girl men forget.
"When they play,
"'Here comes the bride,'
"You'll stand outside."

I saved this letter from your column; please run it again. I want my granddaughters to see it.

MILLIE

DEAR ABBY: Every once in a while I see letters in your column concerning the pros and cons of remaining a virgin until marriage.

I'm 27 years old, attractive (or so people say) and I'm saving myself for the man I marry. Outside of the fact that premarital sex is morally wrong, here are a few other reasons:

1. I do not have to worry about getting a disease.
2. I do not have to worry about getting pregnant.
3. I do not have to wonder if a guy really cares for me or if he's just using me for sex.

I have been out with many guys who have tried to get me into bed, and after I tell them I am saving myself for the man I marry, I never hear from them again. This is fine with me. Why waste time on a guy who looks at me only as something to be used?

When I get married, I want to give my husband a very special gift, something I've given to no one else I've ever known. What can be more special than myself?

HOLDING OUT AND PROUD OF IT

DEAR HOLDING: Your reasons for "holding out" are valid, sensible and marvelously refreshing!

* * *

DEAR ABBY: Here's our problem: My 92-year-old aunt is living with my husband and me, and we'd like to get away for a weekend. One of my nieces is willing to take her, but Auntie raises a fuss, saying she will have trouble sleeping. Abby, she has gone on trips with them and other relatives, staying at different motels, and she's never had a problem sleeping then.

My husband is mad. He says my aunt is being selfish and stubborn. Have you a solution?

HERE'S HOPING

DEAR HOPING: Ask a relative, neighbor or friend to move into your home in your absence and stay with Auntie. She will have no trouble sleeping. And neither will you.

* * *

DEAR ABBY: I have some friends who are champion braggers. They brag about their children and their grandchildren, and as if that's not enough, they carry pictures of their cars, their homes and their boats!

There are other ways of bragging. Some folks "complain" about how much income tax they have to pay. Then there are mothers who "complain" that their telephones ring constantly because their kids are so popular!

Some social types "complain" about being "exhausted" from all the parties they have to go to. (Can't they say no?)

I think there's a lot to be said for modesty. If something worth bragging about happens to me or my family, I just keep quiet about it and let somebody else advertise it.

Oops, I'm sorry. Am I bragging because I don't brag?

MINNESOTA BRAGGER

DEAR BRAGGER: Go ahead and brag about not bragging. You'll not offend anyone—except maybe a few braggers.

Hobby's challengers having 'tough time'

AUSTIN (AP) — A perfume salesman, a man who founded his own church and a challenger never seen by his opponents are among the candidates for the lieutenant governor's job now held by a colossus in Texas politics — William P. "Bill" Hobby.

Hobby, 54, has held what some consider the most powerful position in state politics for over 13 years — a record — and rates as an odds-on favorite to win reelection in November.

His apparent popularity chased off all possible Democratic challengers except David Young, a 41-year-old Austin salesman who is making his third statewide race in six years but remains relatively unknown.

Young said he could capsule his campaign with one theme: "We don't have government of the people, by the people, for the people. Texas government is too much government by the lobbies, of the Hobbys and for the snobbies."

Hobby's campaign manager, Barbara Stanley, said Hobby's supporters are only semi-serious about the May 3 Democratic primary campaign because Young "hasn't exactly caught on fire."

Republican candidates include David Davidson, founder of the non-denominational Emmanuel Fellowship Church at Gonzales, where he was pastor for 11 years; State District Judge Virgil Mulanax of Gilmer; Glenn Jackson of San Antonio, a self-employed instructor of applicants for real estate and insurance licensing exams; and Aaron Bullock of Kingwood, who appears to be a mystery candidate.

All except Bullock, who did not comment, agree that taking on Hobby is a formidable task. Hobby is seeking a fifth term, which would extend to January 1991.

Young lost Democratic primary races for governor in 1982 and the U.S. Senate in 1984, collecting 1.9 percent and 3.2 percent of the total vote.

"Hobby's not so popular but he is powerful," said Young, "and I feel whether he's beatable or not, it's healthy for Democrats to have a meaningful choice."

Mulanax, 48, also has statewide political experience, losing a close race two years ago to incumbent Sam Houston Clinton for the Texas Court of Criminal Appeals.

He said Hobby is vulnerable because of his leading role in passage of controversial public education reform legislation. He also said the indigent health package, which Hobby supported, did not take into consideration how local governments might be affected.

Jackson, 47, said he last ran for office in 1972, when he was elected the first Republican mayor of Missouri City in Fort Bend County. He also has served briefly as city councilman.

Pets, people are matched up

EDITOR'S NOTE — People and pets don't always get along, as evidenced by how many animals are turned over to the humane societies each year. That's why a group called PACT takes special pains in locating the proper pets as companions for old people living alone.

By MAUD S. BEELMAN
Associated Press Writer

STATE COLLEGE, Pa. (AP) — Dan Lago is a matchmaker with academic credentials, looking for the right companions for old people.

Pets are his project.

Lago, a professor of gerontology at Pennsylvania State University, first became interested in the effect pets had on older people while working on his doctorate on loneliness. He was struck by how often during an interview an older person would call a dog to sit in on the conversation.

That led him to found PACT — People and Animals Coming Together — a private, not-forprofit organization that takes a scientific approach to finding the right pets for people 55 and older who are living alone.

One thing that sets PACT apart from similar organizations is that each recipient of a pet is assigned a permanent volunteer or sponsor who helps with the care of the pet and will take the animal back if things don't work out.

Lago says pets and people don't always get along.

"All you've got to do is look at the figures on animals that are turned in to shelters every year to recognize that the human-animal bond, however desirable and powerful it might be, doesn't occur automatically in every relationship with an animal," he says.

But for many elderly people, says PACT volunteer coordinator Diane Timblin, a pet offers love and companionship.

"For people that are housebound, without much human contact, they're the difference between happiness and real unhappiness," she says.

Dora-Mae Andre, a 77-yearold PACT member with a Pekingese named Mandy, agrees.

"She's just like part of the family. I'm alone, I live alone and she really, really is an awful lot of company."

And taking care of Mandy helps Miss Andre remember to take care of herself, she said.

Drugs may not be the answer

By Peter H. Gott, M.D.

DEAR DR. GOTT — Due to a series of very stressful events, I am experiencing reactive depression. Every medicine I try (Lithobid, Inderal, Desyrel, Xanax, Valium, Centrax, Pamelor) makes me feel ill. I just don't seem to be able to tolerate the medications well enough to be helped. Could you give me some direction?

DEAR READER — Feelings of hopelessness and unworthiness are common consequences of stressful situations. We say we feel depressed when we emotionally react to unpleasant events that threaten us. Often, depression slips in when we realize we cannot control events in our lives. Grief and a sense of loss seem to be particularly prevalent causes of reactive depression.

Very often, people can be helped with their depression if they recognize that there are options, other than depression, to be explored. This experience can produce an opening-up of life, rather than a closing-down. Therefore, I recommend you seek counseling with a psychologist, psychiatrist, social worker, pastor, doctor; even a good friend with common sense and perspective is a resource for you to consider. In the case of reactive depression — the type that occurs as a result of external factors — medicine is unlikely to be of help; a better approach would be to obtain help in examining the problem that causes it and discovering methods by which you can alter it — or your attitude. I have found that patients will throw off depression much faster when they go after the source, in preference to covering up feelings with medicine. The fact that you have taken the time and trouble to write indicates to me that your mind realizes that a direct approach, rather than drug treatment, will provide more satisfactory answers for you.

Again, this advice is not appropriate for all depressions. For example, endogenous depression — the type that occurs irrespective of external factors — is not usually due to stressful events; it can be helped by antidepressant medication.

DEAR DR. GOTT — My husband has been told he has an enlarged heart. Is this a serious matter? I worry when I see him working hard or lifting things.

DEAR READER — As a general rule, an enlarged heart means that a person has heart trouble; the heart enlarges in its attempt to work harder. A failing heart can dilate. Hypertension can cause cardiac enlargement, as can disease of the heart valves and muscle. If possible, the cause of heart enlargement must be treated. For instance, when high blood pressure is brought under control, a previously enlarged heart may resume its normal size; the stress has been relieved.

A large heart is a completely normal finding in well-trained athletes. However, for the average adult, heart enlargement indicates the need for a thorough medical evaluation.

DEAR DR. GOTT — In one of your columns, a radiologist challenged you about the conclusions you reached in a previous column about low-level radiation. I was disappointed, however, that you used as a reference the grossly inflated estimates of such a discredited "expert" as Dr. John Gofman. As a doctor, you should be familiar with scientific determination and objective statistical evidence and data to suit one's prejudices. You owe the radiologist a retraction. I hope you will be honest enough to give it.

DEAR READER — Thanks to you and other readers, I have learned that Dr. Gofman's testimony (before Judge Patrick F. Kelly in the case of Johnston vs. United States) was rejected because, in part, it failed to represent "the views of the vast majority of competent, respected scientists in the field." I accept the fact that Gofman takes a minority view that disagrees with conventional wisdom regarding the hazards of radiation.

There is more to the issue than Gofman's credentials and conclusions, however.

As I write this reply, I have on my desk two news items from The New York Times.

The first indicates that G.D. Searle and Co. has stopped selling intrauterine devices (IUDs) because of product liability. The A.H. Robins Company, maker of the Dalkon Shield, recently filed for bankruptcy after more than 14,000 women sought damages for complications attributed to the shield. Although Searle's IUDs have generated only 775 suits, the company doesn't want further legal exposure that is costly and reduces profits. The product just isn't worth the bother.

The second article is titled "Downwind from the Bomb." It explores the high cancer rate among people who lived downwind from the 1950s atomic bomb tests in Nevada. "In the 1950s, the government said its atomic tests in Nevada were safe. Did Washington lie?" the article asks.

Thirty years ago, respected scientists proclaimed that atmospheric A-bomb tests caused no public danger. Nearly 100 tests were carried out in the Nevada desert. Children ate and breathed fallout. When livestock died of radiation toxicity, government attorneys successfully argued that "inadequate feeding, unfavorable winter range conditions and infectious diseases" caused the animals to die.

What can we learn from this tragedy? Well, I conclude that radiation is harmful and that scientists and federal authorities did not know this — or did not tell the public.

Similarly, IUDs were scientifically checked and pronounced safe when they were first marketed in the 1960s. We now know that some, if not all, are hazardous. Yet doctors and female consumers accepted IUDs as a harmless method of birth control; scientists assured us there was little risk.

The list of modified scientific conclusions is endless: Children no longer are required to have annual tetanus boosters (one every 10 years is enough; more is dangerous); the routine chest X-ray has been banished (largely because of cost ineffectiveness, but also because of unneccessary low-level radiation). Today's dogma may be incorrect; it can provide the basis for tomorrow's lawsuits.

Despite Dr. Gofman's apparent fall from grace, I believe that radiation is dangerous — even in small quantities. Therefore, I will continue to caution and cajole patients in my column. As a patient advocate, I will persist in encouraging people to refuse X-ray studies unless there are compelling medical reasons to have the tests done. If common sense is at odds with the currently-popular government/corporate/scientific consensus, so be it. Better to be overly cautious than to invite future harm and disease.

In 1980, Dr. Lauriston S. Taylor, past president, National Council on Radiation Protection and Measurements, stated that "today, we know about all we need to know about adequate protection from ionization radiation." Maybe, maybe not. However, I'm not putting my child's health on the line because of this scientific pronouncement. In my opinion, we do not, yet fully appreciate the dangers of low-level radiation. Until we do, I'm playing my cards close to the chest.

Couple invent machine

By GREG ABBOTT
Roseburg News-Review

CANYONVILLE, Ore. (AP) — Flossie Cubbison never really liked going with her husband on gold-panning excursions near Portland because all the bending over to dredge the water hurt her back. One day she told her husband, Wilbert, that if he didn't make a machine to use for panning, she wasn't going to go with him any more.

Cubbison went down in the basement and came up with his model for an automatic goldpanning machine. With that machine and some help from his wife's brother-in-law, Ed Faulkner of Canyonville, they came up with an idea that may be worth its weight in gold.

When Faulkner designed a special bowl to increase the efficiency of the device, the automatic gold-panning machine caught on and Faulkner and his wife Lela started making and selling the product in their garage in 1980.

The bowl is made in an injection mold with double-angle progressive riffles that catch different sizes of gold flakes and carry them up to a container. A 1985 efficiency test gives the device a 90 percent to 95 percent efficiency rating that far exceeds other panning devices.

The garage has grown into the business Gold Genie Worldwide Inc., and sales representative James Thomas said the business catered to people involved in what he calls a gold rush.

"We are in a second gold rush that has people interested in panning the river as serious prospectors, as a hobby or for recreation. One indication is to look at Roseburg. There are more than 1,000 mining claims in that city alone," he said. Sales of the gold-panning machine seem to back his statement.

"What we usually do to sell our device is to take the sand left over after it is run through a competing panning device and run it through the Genie," Thomas said. "Each time we pick up gold flakes that the others didn't get."

He says the reason for the high efficiency is in the construction of the bowl with its progressive riffles.

UIL WINNERS--These Hermleigh students competed in UIL contests at Forsan. Those pictured are (seated) Lucy Mireles, 9th grader; Lori Tate, 10th grader; Eva Romero, 10th grader. Those standing are Jill Roemisch and Tim Kotrla, both 11th graders; Beverly Sandefur, 9th grader; Hal Turner, 10th grader; and Patricia Romero, 12th grader. Tate won second in poetry and third in news writing and will advance to regional. Kotrla won fourth in science and will be the first alternate to regional and sixth in literary criticism. Romero placed third in headline writing and will advance to regional. Those not pictured are RexAnne Reynolds who earned fourth in news writing and fifth in poetry. In news writing she is the first alternate to regional. Danial Ramey, 9th grader, who made sixth in spelling, Patricia Jones, 12th grader, and Billy Jo Gannaway, 9th grader, are also not pictured. More discussion is needed

By DOUGLAS KREUTZ
The Tucson Citizen

TUCSON, Ariz. (AP) — Doris Portwood says suicide may be the answer for some people.

Portwood, 72, a winter resident of Tucson and the author of a book called "Common Sense Suicide, The Final Right," says she treats the subject in a matter-of-fact way because she believes it's time society recognized that people should have the right, under some circumstances, to put an end to their own existence.

"I might commit suicide if I went blind or had to be dependent on other people," she explains. "If I was in great pain with cancer, I would commit suicide. But I would never turn to suicide out of simple depression.

"Suicide needs to be discussed openly in our society, and the elderly who end their lives should be understood," she says. "One of the saddest aspects of many suicides is the mystery that surrounds the mood of the person who chose to give up life."

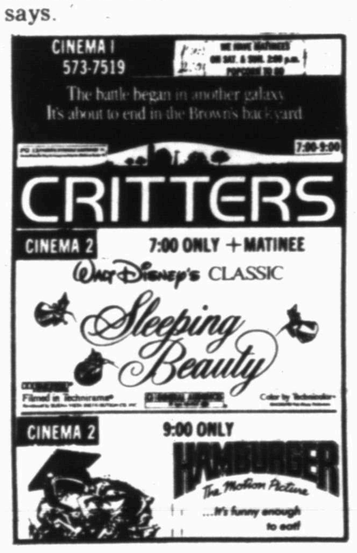
Portwood, a recent guest speaker at a conference sponsored by Tucson's Hemlock Society, an organization advocating voluntary euthanasia for the terminally ill, believes suicide is sometimes a reasonable alternative to life — especially for elderly women.

"If you have alternatives to suicide," she says, "by all means, exhaust them in every possible way. Young people, for example, have alternatives — if not today, then next week or next year. I don't advocate teen-age suicides or cult suicides.

"But if a person is of responsible age and is terminally, irreversibly, physically ill, or if the person is (hopelessly) mentally impaired — if this sort of person wants an assisted suicide and requests it, I think they should have it."

Portwood says women perhaps more often are candidates for suicide because they generally outlive men.

"In the over-65 age group, about two-thirds of the population is made up of women," she says.



Parents are playing role in kids' school success

WASHINGTON (AP) — Parents who know how to move through the school system can help their children become "smart students" who are "primed" for college, says David Baker, who believes that fostering effective parent involvement may be as important as lobbying for funds to improve education programs.

"Despite a child's abilities, college-educated mothers tend to know how to help a child get the most from school," adds Baker, a sociologist at The Catholic University of America's National Center for Family Studies. "Parents who oversee their children's academic careers are effective school career managers."

Baker and David Stevenson, a sociologist at Oberlin College, studied mothers from various educational backgrounds. They found that college-trained women knew more than other mothers about preparing and guiding their children toward higher education.

These mothers' experiences enabled them to manage crises, plan transitions and effectively move children through school, they explain.

"College-educated parents are better at managing the details of a child's school career than less educated ones, regardless of the child's talent," Baker says.

EMPHYSEMA
There's no longer any doubt - smoking causes emphysema, so states Dr. Robert Sandhaus, Denver emphysema specialist, testifying before a US Senate Committee. There is scientific proof that oxidizing agents in cigarette smoke disturb the delicate balance among lung emzymes, allowing one enzyme to wreak uncontrolled damage to lung tissues, he testified.
