Expansions mean 141 new jobs

Western Container gearing for plastic pop bottle boom Council, Mid-Tex agreeing to build third prison unit

By PATRICK DRISCOLL
Business Editor

Forty-one jobs with a $1 million annual payroll will be created with expansion of Western Container Corp. in Big Spring McMahon-Wrinkle Airpark, it was announced Monday.

The manufacturer of plastic Coca-Cola bottles for the Western United States currently employing 59, is gearing up for increased popularity of plastic over glass, as well as a 20-ounce Coke bottle introduced a couple years ago, said Chief Financial Officer Greg Broch. New equipment worth $9 million should be in place by spring.

"We have growth and new products," Broch said. "We've seen considerable growth in all markets."

The Big Spring City Council on Monday

agreed to finance construction of a 70,000-square-foot building as an addition to the 190,000-square-foot building Western Container leases from the city. The city would be reimbursed the $1.4 million cost plus 5 percent interest annually through a 12-year lease agreement. City cash investments currently collect less than 4 percent annual interest.

"The addition of this new facility is a big plus for Big Spring," said Mayor Tim Blackshear. "Western Container has been an excellent employer in Big Spring."

Western Container jobs require skills but on-the-job training is provided, Broch said. A majority of new jobs are expected to be filled with applicants from the area. "Easily 85 percent of them are going to come from just the immediate area," he said.

Eighty to 100 jobs are expected to be created with the third expansion of the city's federal prison, announced Monday. Payroll would double to $4 million annually.

Mid-Tex Detentions Inc., which employs 151 now, is investigating the possibility of adding 500 prison beds to 785 beds now operated under contract to the city. The addition will be on 25 to 30 acres at Big Spring McMahon-Wrinkle Airpark.

"We think the market's right, we think the time is right," said Johnny Rutherford, chief financial officer for Mid-Tex. "We don't have too much hesitation to committing."

"I feel like they'll have no problem at all in filling this new unit," said Mayor Tim

Blackshear. "They're an excellent employer for the city of Big Spring."

Under a preliminary agreement, the city will back a $2 million loan, provide utilities, lease the building for $140,000 a month using federal payments for prisoners, and pay Mid-Tex $100,000 annually for management, bringing management fees to $300,000. Details are being negotiated.

Mid-Tex would build a $6 million to $7 million building across from Building 1106 where the council meets. Construction is scheduled to begin in January and would take 10 months.

The new facility would handle medium-security prisoners, mostly illegal aliens. The other two facilities also handle mostly illegal aliens. One opened in April 1989 at Interstate 20 and Andrews Highway. The

Cotton's bringing 'chord approach' to Howard College

By JANET AUSBURY
Staff Writer

Clay Cotton's chord approach to piano made him good enough to play alongside some of the most famous musicians of the last 30 years. Now, his Chord Approach to Piano workshop passes his musical secrets and technique along to anyone with access to a keyboard and a cassette player.

Cotton, 45, will present his three-hour workshop at Howard College on Tuesday, Nov. 16. Attendees need not be proficient on the piano; the workshop is targeted toward those who would love to play rock 'n' roll but did not do well with traditional piano lessons.

"This is how the professionals do it," Cotton said of his chord approach to playing and teaching. "All professional piano players — Little Richard, Elton John, Billy Joel, Jerry Lee Lewis, Fats Domino — do it this way. I don't know why more people aren't taught this way."

He demonstrates the method using tunes from some of those artists, and students take home cassettes which feature similar examples for practice.

Cotton briefly took traditional piano lessons as a youngster but was disappointed at having to learn scales and drills instead of the rock 'n' roll he wanted to play. He taught himself to play by imitating those whose music he enjoyed, such as Fats Domino.

Four years later, Cotton found a jazz piano teacher who taught him chords. "It all comes down to the chords," said Cotton. "If you know your chords, your spirit can be free to express yourself with feeling."

Cotton has been playing in bands since he was 13. He has jammed with and accompanied such musicians as Boz Skaggs, Etta James, Carlos Santana, Bonnie Raitt, Frank Zappa, Huey Lewis, Steve Miller, Chuck Berry, Janis Joplin, Charlie Daniels, B.B. King, The Allman Brothers and even Jimi Hendrix. "Most of the big names I played with were before I was 25," said Cotton.

Blues musician Robert Cray nearly became another celebrity name on Cotton's resume. Most of Cotton's former band went on to become Cray's band. Cotton opted not to join them.

"I've bowed out of being a side-man," he explained. "I get more reward out of teaching. It gives people a little lift in their lives to hear me play, and then it's gone. But if I can teach them to play, it gives them a lift that they can take home and keep going."

Cotton enjoys hearing from students and workshop attendees who have learned to play piano by using his methods. "Some people say they've had a personal renaissance from this class. People think they're not cut out to be musical, and what a shame that is. I teach them the shortcut. I help them free the musician within."

Simple books that do not emphasize sheet music reading, as well as the cassettes, form the basis of Cotton's teaching method. Cotton uses teacher Robert Laughlin's series of cassettes, as well as cassettes featuring Cotton himself.

"Robert Laughlin really captures the essence of pop piano playing," he said about the cassette courses. "I wish I'd authored them myself."

TU Electric eyeing options to limit needs

By JANET AUSBURY
Staff Writer

TU Electric is considering the use of renewable energy resources, as well as expansion of programs to limit increases in demand, as part of its plan to meet customers' future electrical needs.

The company is requesting proposals from companies supplying electricity generated by solar technology and wind turbines. Companies interested in providing "demand-side management" services or technologies are also being considered.

"In the future, these new technologies potentially can help us further diversify the resources available to serve our customers," said Tom Baker, TU Electric executive vice president.

TU Electric provides electricity to more than 6.5 million people in 88 counties of West, North Central and East Texas.

The new options and other alternatives are being considered as part of the company's Integrated Resource Planning process. TU Electric uses this process annually to assess customers' needs for electricity during the next 10 years. The company then plans the most reliable and cost-effective resources to meet those needs.

TU Electric is the first investor-owned utility in the state to include formal input from a cross-section of customer interests in its Integrated Resource Planning process.

A new Service Area Advisory Group, consisting of about 30 representatives of varied customer interests, has been formed and is participating in the development of TU Electric's Integrated Resource Plan.

"Today, we are seeking new cost-effective ways, beyond traditional demand-side management techniques, to meet the needs of our customers. Therefore, we are looking for proposals from groups outside the company who may suggest new and innovative ways to increase efficiency in the use of electricity," said Baker.

Demand-side management programs are used to promote greater efficiency in using electricity and decrease the growth in demand for energy, thereby reducing the need to build new power plants.

"TU Electric has had a successful and nationally-recognized demand-side management program since 1983," Baker said. "The program already has reduced growth in demand for electricity by enough to defer construction of two large generating plants."

TU Electric is developing a new Energy Park north of Dallas-Fort Worth Airport. The park will include further development and demonstration of renewable technologies and energy use management.

"In the future, these new technologies potentially can help us further diversify the resources available to service our customers. By acquiring some renewable generation for demonstration purposes, we hope to contribute to the ability of suppliers to build generating installations, which could encourage mass production and lower costs," said Baker.

Pregnant cheerleader ban reversed in Hempstead

The Associated Press

HEMPSTEAD — After spending weeks in the national spotlight and facing the threat of lawsuits, Hempstead school trustees have reversed a ban on pregnant cheerleaders.

The board adopted a policy Monday to look at each situation on a case-by-case basis.

"But in no case will a decision be imposed upon a student if, after consultation with the district's attorney, the decision would violate the law," the statement said.

Hannah Riddering, an Austin leader of the National Organization for Women, warned the board it was jeopardizing its federal funding by continuing to bar pregnant students or fathers-to-be from holding elected school office.

NOW had filed a formal complaint with the U.S. Department of Education civil rights section after the board's Sept. 28 vote to cut three pregnant students from the cheerleading squad.

Federal civil rights laws entitle pregnant students to the same courses and extracurricular activities available to all students.

A fourth cheerleader had an abortion, which allowed her to return to the squad, although she has not done so. None of the three pregnant students has sought to rejoin the squad.

The board had been scheduled to hear public comments on several issues dealing with its pregnancy policy and sex education in the schools. The members adjourned into closed session and emerged with the resolution, which surprised many of the 60 attendees in the Hempstead High School auditorium.

Trustees said they were reversing the policy only under legal pressure.

"The board believes that the federal government is wrong in robbing local communities of the power to deal with the incidence of unmarried students becoming pregnant," the resolution said.

Trustees also said they still believe their earlier policy was reasonable and necessary.

"The board wishes to make it clear to its community that it has fought hard for values that are held by a majority of the citizens of the community, and would continue to fight if it had the financial wherewithal," the resolution said.

Melanie Hudspeth, a parent and 1980 Hempstead graduate, called the original board policy ill-conceived and without merit.

Executions delayed

HUNTSVILLE — Convicted killer Richard Jones avoided execution scheduled for early today when a Tarrant County judge issued a reprieve about nine hours before Jones could have been put to death for a murder more than seven years ago.

Jones, 33, had faced lethal injection for the February 1986 abduction and stabbing death of Tammy Livingston, 27, of Hurst.

State District Judge C.C. Cooke in Tarrant County issued the reprieve and set a Dec. 28 evidentiary hearing in the case.

Jones was among three inmates scheduled for execution this week. The punishments in the other two cases were put off as well.

Jones was on parole for about four months after serving some two years for aggravated robbery and for being

Case against West Texas chemical firm goes to trial

The Associated Press

AMARILLO — Plaintiffs of a lawsuit against a chemical plant west of Pampa say their health has been damaged after exposure to the plant's emissions.

More than 800 plaintiffs will be represented in court today as the so-called "toxic tort" lawsuit against Hoechst Celanese begins in Houston's 215th District Court, the Amarillo Globe-News said.

Only three plaintiffs and their families were selected from the large group to actually be included in the trial, which is expected to last two to three months.

They were chosen to test the facts of the civil lawsuit, which was filed in January 1988 following twin explosions that ripped through the Celanese plant in November 1987, killing three and injuring 40.

The plaintiffs include employees, past and present, of Santa Fe Railway, construction contractors who worked at the plant and children born with birth defects. All lawsuits allege that exposure to potentially harmful emissions from chemical spills, vapor ventings and solar evaporation pond emissions at the plant damaged their health.

Plaintiffs are asking for unspecified monetary damages, said Amarillo attorney Tom Upchurch, co-counsel for the plaintiffs.

Upchurch and Celanese officials said the two sides agreed to test the case using three select plaintiffs because this is not a class-action lawsuit, and the remaining lawsuits will not be affected by the outcome of this trial.

"We have a special agreement that leaves the defendants and plaintiffs free to go forward with the other cases as they choose," Upchurch said. "It is one way to test the facts of the case without the expense and time of a jury hearing all of the cases. And this agreement guaranteed we would get a trial without any further delay."

Both sides said they hope to use this trial to formulate strategy for the remaining cases.

Railroad workers, contractors or people living near the plant have not been harmed by plant emissions, said Doug Gordon, vice president and general counsel for Hoechst Celanese Chemical Group.

Gordon cited a mortality study released last week by Celanese as proof of the plant's safety measures. Celanese commissioned the study for use in the trial.

The study examined causes of death for 1,359 former employees of the Celanese Pampa plant from 1952 through 1991. The study found that the number of employee deaths caused by heart disease and most cancers was lower than the regional, state and national averages. The study said the rate of death by prostate cancer among male employees was significantly higher than the state and national averages, although a Celanese news release said there is no known relationship between prostate cancer and chemical exposure.

"We think it is important that the (three select) plaintiffs were only at the plant intermittently, a few hours at a time, maybe 50 or 60 times over a period of years," Gordon said. "Since we don't see any problems showing up in our work force, we think it's highly unlikely that their (the plaintiffs') illnesses are the result of something at the plant."

Bad weather devastates peanut crop

FORT WORTH, Texas (AP) — After heat and arid winds swept Central Texas' peanut fields this summer, Mother Nature dealt farmers another blow during the weekend with a hard freeze.

With yield estimates down substantially, thousands of acres are destined to be declared "disaster" crops, agriculture officials and farmers say.

Except for 500 to 600 acres south of Tolar that received at least one heavy rain during the summer, peanut farmers in Comanche, Eastland, Erath, Hood, Somervell, Brown, Wise, Jones and Parker counties are bracing for lean harvests and slashed incomes, said Raymond Lopez, executive director of the Agriculture Department's Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service for Hood and Somervell counties.

"I'd say the majority of the fields are going to be declared disasters and abandoned," Lopez said. "Not because the farmers want to, but it's just not feasible for them to go in and harvest them. Most of them are telling me their crops aren't worth it now."

Farmers agreed with Lopez.

Model company reproduces spy plane

FORT WORTH, Texas — A leading manufacturer of model airplanes says it has uncovered a classified Air Force program to develop a next-generation spy plane, according to a published report.

Using evidence that includes unusual vapor trails in Texas, unexplained sonic booms in California and a reported sighting off the coast of Scotland, some aviation watchers have concluded that the Defense Department is testing a replacement for the SR-71 Blackbird. That spy plane was retired from service in 1990.

Testor Corp.'s new model, the SR-75 Penetrator, puts aerospace enthusiasts' speculation into a three-dimensional form, the Fort Worth Star-Telegram reported in Monday's editions.

An Air Force spokeswoman dismissed the company's theory. "No such aircraft exists," Maj. Monica Aloisio said. "Someone's making a lot of money off something."

but it certainly is not an Air Force model or program."

Prison chief to vacate state-provided mansion

HUNTSVILLE, Texas (AP) — James Lynaugh, former executive director of the Texas prison system, will soon be moving out of the prison-owned mansion he has been living in rent-free, officials say.

Texas prison officials announced Monday that Lynaugh, who has continued to live in the mansion even though he quit the department, will be vacating the premises in about a month.

"It is not, nor was it ever the intent of Mr. Lynaugh or this agency that he continue to reside in the executive director's residence indefinitely," said James E. Riley, the department's interim executive director.

On Oct. 1, Lynaugh stepped down as head of the Texas Department of Criminal Justice to take a $130,000-a-year job with the University of Texas Medical Branch at Galveston and Texas Tech Health Science Center.

The Houston Chronicle reported last weekend that despite his departure, Lynaugh, 53, continued to live at his state-paid Huntsville home across the street from the Walls Unit prison.

Judge orders Texas to negotiate tribal casino

EL PASO, Texas (AP) — The state plans to appeal a federal judge's ruling ordering it to negotiate an agreement which will allow an Indian tribe to operate Texas' first casino.

U.S. District Judge Lucius Buntun ordered the state Monday to conclude the compact with the Tigua Indians as provided under the 1988 Indian Gaming Regulatory Act within 60 days.

The federal act says tribes can operate untaxed versions of any gambling contests that are legal in the state. The Texas lottery, which allows games of chance, opens the door for the Tigua's proposed gambling operation, according to Buntun's ruling.

Margaret Justus, a spokeswoman for the governor's office, declined to comment on Buntun's order beyond saying that it would be appealed "as quickly as possible."

The state has up to 30 days to file its appeal with the 5th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals, said Patricia Guillermo, a spokeswoman for Texas Attorney General Dan Morales.

Jewish settlers continue rampage

The Associated Press

BEIT EL, Occupied West Bank — Jewish settlers blocked roads and torched an Arab classroom on Monday, in the fourth day of defying a government they say has sacrificed them for peace with Palestinians.

The rampage erupted Friday when Muslim militants killed a settler. The settlers also took over some vacant government homes, proclaiming themselves squatters.

The scope and intensity marks a turning point in the settlers' resistance to the Israel-PLO negotiations and underscores how easily extremists on both sides can upset the peace agreement.

"Every crazy settler and every crazy Muslim fundamentalist can spoil everything in a minute," said Israeli journalist Danny Rubinstein, a veteran observer of the occupied lands.

Extremist violence appeared more likely with every report on progress in the negotiations on partial Palestinian self-rule. A majority of Israelis and Palestinians support the talks, which resumed in Egypt on Monday, leaving opponents in both camps isolated and feeling they have little left to lose.

In Damascus, meanwhile, state radio said settler attacks on Palestinians proved that both groups can't live together, and said the only answer was for Israel to leave all occupied lands.

Syria, a pivotal player in the Middle East peace process, is unhappy about the PLO-Israel accord because PLO leader Yasser Arafat broke Arab ranks to negotiate it in secret behind Damascus' back.

In Beit El, a settlement of 3,000 about 10 miles north of Jerusalem, residents said Monday they felt the government was no longer protecting them.

"The people here have decided that the rules of the game have changed," said Brunia Youngshtein, 21, cradling her 9-month-old son. "We will make a Jewish uprising here until the government understands us."

Every day since the death of Beit El resident Haim Mizrahi, 30, settlers have blocked roads with burning tires and stoned Arab-owned cars and houses. On Monday, about 50 men from Beit El smashed school windows and torched an empty classroom in the nearby Palestinian refugee camp of Jalazoun. The children were not in school at the time.

In another show of defiance, Mrs. Youngshtein and her husband Moshe, 24, were among eight families who moved into vacant settlement homes as squatters.

The homes, like some 1,500 elsewhere in the West Bank, were begun during the construction boom under the previous right-wing government and reluctantly completed by this administration. But they were not sold in order to slow the growth of the settler population.

"This is a test case," settler spokeswoman Aliza Herbst said of the squatters. If the government doesn't evict the families in Beit El, others would follow elsewhere, she said.

Today, about 125,000 settlers live among 1.8 million Palestinians in the occupied lands.

Mrs. Herbst said the squatter action was a direct response to the stabbing death of Mizrahi. He was the first settler killed since the accord with the Palestine Liberation Organization was signed Sept. 13.

Settlers believe Prime Minister Yitzhak Rabin has abandoned them and treats them as outcasts.

"The government has put us in a position of having no choice, it has delegitimized us," said Mrs. Herbst, formerly of San Antonio, Texas.

Deputy Foreign Minister Yossi Beilin showed little sympathy for the settlers.

"I believe they made the agreement with the Palestinians much more complicated," Beilin said Monday. "But we will have to insist they remain even after a (troop) withdrawal and they will have to choose whether to remain there under Arab sovereignty or move back to Israeli sovereignty."

Rabin has promised that settlements won't be uprooted during the next five years, when a final agreement is to be negotiated. But he won't commit beyond that.

Senate debates whether to enforce subpoena for Packwood's diaries

The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Sen. Bob Packwood, accused of sexually harassing more than two dozen women, is portraying himself as the victim of a witch hunt. But a female lawmaker says Senate refusal to enforce a subpoena for his diaries would show American women "the cards are stacked against you."

"A vote against this resolution (seeking a court order against Packwood) sends a clear message to every woman in this country: If you are harassed, keep quiet, say nothing," freshman Sen. Patty Murray, D-Wash., said Monday in a forceful speech on the Senate floor.

Senate Majority Leader George Mitchell said the Senate would resume debate today on whether to ask for a court order enforcing the subpoena for the Oregon Republican's diaries.

The Senate Ethics Committee has demanded more than 8,000 pages of Packwood's writings as part of its investigation into allegations that the veteran lawmaker sexually harassed more than two dozen women over the years and used his staff to try to intimidate them into silence.

Murray, one of the Senate's seven female members, said the debate reminded her of watching Anita Hill's testimony concerning alleged sexual harassment from then-Supreme Court nominee Clarence Thomas.

"I remember thinking, 'Why don't they get it?'" Murray said about the 1991 televised hearings. "Why don't they understand women who have been victims of sexual misconduct are watching?"

"Even here today I am shocked and surprised that through the nature of this debate, it appears to portray the senator from Oregon as the victim," Murray said. "I remind my colleagues, more than two dozen women have brought their allegations to this body. Clearly they see themselves as the victims in this debate."

Some of Packwood's colleagues in both parties raised questions about the scope of the Ethics Committee's inquiry. And three Republican mem-

No apparent position by Texas senators

The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — A trip to Colorado spared one Texas senator from the painful and sometimes heated debate Monday over Sen. Bob Packwood and his personal diary.

But it appears Republican Sen. Phil Gramm will be able to vote with his colleagues today on whether Packwood should be forced to turn his writings over to senators investigating allegations of sexual harassment.

Gramm was one of 10 senators who missed Monday's debate over the Packwood diary. Senators, who expressed a clear reluctance to take on the charged issue, were placed on notice last week that they would be called to the floor to witness the entire debate.

Gramm's press secretary, Larry Neal, said the senator was in Denver on Monday for a health care town hall meeting that had been scheduled weeks earlier.

Asked why the meeting Gramm hosted with Arizona GOP Sen. John McCain wasn't postponed, Neal said: "You've got an audience of several hundred people who have been invited."

Neal said he didn't know whether

Gramm would vote for or against a motion to compel Packwood to turn over more than 8,000 pages of his personal writings to the Senate Ethics Committee.

"His view is he wants to listen to the facts," Neal said. "The reality is we don't know exactly what's going to be requested of the Senate."

Fellow Texas GOP Sen. Kay Bailey Hutchison was in the Senate chamber Monday as the Packwood issue was debated. Spokesman Nick Voinis said he couldn't say how Mrs. Hutchison would vote.

"It's unfolding while we're watching," he said.

Sen. Richard Bryan, D-Nev., the committee chairman, said no senator under investigation by the Ethics Committee "has ever in the history of the committee refused to comply with a document request."

bers of the panel said they disagreed with the investigators' tactics.

But no one stood up to say they would vote in favor of Packwood's position that he should escape full compliance with the subpoena, which the committee maintains would shine light on potential criminal violations beyond an initial probe of sexual harassment.

'They' misled us into a permissive society

"They" told us if we'd relax about sex, take our clothes off and not get all uptight about it that there would be no more sex crimes.

So we let it all hang out — and the incidence of rape has increased 1.2 percent in one year!

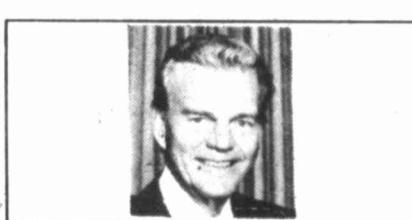

Maybe we'd better question some of the other advice "they" have given us.

"They" told us we'd been too tough with criminals, that we should go easy on them. So we went easy on them — and the rate of violent crime has increased 40 percent since 1983.

"They" told us to be more generous with poor folks. So we were. Now the Census Bureau says there are more "poor" than ever!

"They" said that churches were "old-fashioned," that they must modernize, liberalize, rationalize, compromise.

And those that compromised most are shrinking fastest.

Paul Harvey

If it is appearing up to here that "they" gave us some awfully bad advice, they did.

"They" insisted that our schools must boot God out and rely on enhancing Junior's intelligence.

So we graduated a generation of Juniors with refined intellects and undisciplined emotions — so school-age suicides have increased.

"They" told us alcoholism and drug addictions were sicknesses, not crimes. Now we're gagging, choking, strangling on forbidden fruit.

"They" said informal marriage was enough, so now the odds are 5-to-4 your rapture will be ruptured and 2-in-7 that the next baby will be born illegitimate.

Who are these "they" who've been thus misleading us?

"They" are the materialists who deify the finite sciences.

"They" meant well, but their intentions are paving the road to hell.

Now, Paul Harvey, you've quit commenting and gone to preachin'. I don't mean to. But I can't separate goodness and badness from today's news and explain it.

Every ugly headline in today's newspaper — and yesterday's and tomorrow's — is because somebody's emotions got out of whack.

He might be as smart as all get out, but if he's emotionally colorblind, he is an unguided missile destined inevitably to self-destruct.

Spaceship Earth came with a book of instructions; let's see what it says.

It says we should not be slothful in business. In fact, it says, he who does not work — let him not eat.

It says women should wear modest apparel.

It says don't steal anything — ANYTHING!

It says don't get drunk — period.

It says you sleep only with your own wife.

It says you don't do what you "want," you do what you "ought," and for those whose consciences are anesthetized, it specifies which is which.

In other words, if that rule book were not divinely inspired, it would still be the best blueprint for an orderly existence.

If it did not promise life hereafter, it would still contain the best formula for a good life here.

Howard College continues to meet our specific needs

We are sometimes remiss, it seems, and forget when discussing getting value from our tax dollars, the virtual bargain Howard County residents get from Howard College.

All this was brought to mind recently when the college's computer department conducted an open house that showcased a new networked computer lab that opened the week before fall classes started.

The lab, school officials said, cost about $25,000 and featured new computers and printers using the latest in networking software. Plans call for the network to eventually expand to involve the entire campus.

Several popular software applications — Word Perfect, Windows, Lotus 1-2-3 and Paradox — have been installed in the network and are taught in special five-week classes that earn students credit.

The important thing, however, is that the college's decision to offer the new classes and put together the new computer network were primarily the result of a survey taken last summer.

Local employers were asked what their most important computer training needs were, and they answered that training in software applications, PC maintenance and the Windows system were of primary importance.

While the college has long offered traditional computer programs, the new network and classes are an example of what not only Howard College, but all the state's community colleges attempt to provide — specialized programs meeting the local community's needs.

Granted, the new computer offerings are not the first, nor will they be the last examples of the very unique value community colleges provide. It is just the latest reminder of Howard College's sensitivity to this community's needs.

As a result, the college's administration and staff are again to be congratulated, with a healthy "thank you" added for good measure.

Election reflections

The Associated Press

Never mind that the source is that old warhorse of the British left, Anthony Wedgwood Benn. The advice to public servants — proffered, says our informant, in a lecture on democracy on BBC TV — is so imbued with the freshness of common sense that we can't resist recycling it for benefit of this week's newly minted officials.

Every elected leader, Benn said, should contemplate five questions:

1. What power do you have?
2. Where did you get it?
3. In whose interest do you exercise it?
4. To whom are you accountable?
5. How can we get rid of you?

We agree, not out of any cynical assumption that all politicians are more interested in perks and fame than in doing their job. Instead, simple realism about human nature — about the great discipline and clarity it takes to faithfully serve the interests of others — suggests the need to keep sight of the democratic delegation of authority.

Benn's admonition should be extended, though, to appointees and bureaucrats as well as elected officials. With their lesser visibility and, in the case of civil servants their job security, they may be just as tempted as politicians to act like masters of their public clientele instead of hired hands.

Whether it's assistant secretaries funneling lucrative public contracts to friends and relatives or, at the opposite extreme, lowly clerks at the Department of Motor Vehicles showing no mercy to the miserable citizen honestly unable to decipher the instructions on a form — grand or petty, the arrogance of power violates the essence of popular rule.

Reading recently about the callousness with which federal bank liquidators have been dispossessing borrowers who never missed a payment on their loans, it occurred to us there ought to be a regulators' creed, a companion to Tony Benn's five humbling questions for elected officials. A kind of super-regulation ought to state that no public servant will enforce any rule that requires him to treat any American with blatant injustice.

We writers have such a principle: Bend any law of grammar or good usage if you must to avoid being outright awkward or obscure. That spirit seems to animate Vice President Al Gore's "reinventing government" report, which vows to make public agencies "customer friendly."

Success, then, to Gore and to all those conscientious souls chosen by the voters — and to those they in turn will choose — to do our often thankless public work.

Mob fever: Catch it and go free

It's surprising that so few people see the bright side of the powder-puff verdicts in the Reginald Denny skull-crushing case.

All I've been reading are the groanings of legal experts, media commentators and regular folks who say they can't understand how that Los Angeles jury could have been so lenient toward the two thugs.

They say things like this: The jurors repeatedly viewed the horrifying videotapes. Didn't they believe their own eyes when they saw Damian Williams take aim and bounce a brick off Denny's head, then do a joyous end-zone touchdown dance?

Didn't they see Henry Watson place his foot on Denny's throat as if stepping on an insect or some other lower form of life?

If bashing a skull and stepping on a throat aren't serious crimes, what the heck is?

Well, as regular readers of this column know, I always try to look at the bright side of things. As the old song goes, I accentuate the positive and eliminate the negative.

And I try to look at the big picture. And in this case, the big picture is what counts.

Apparently this jury believed that Williams and Watson really weren't responsible for their own actions because they kind of got caught up in the spirit of the moment, which was to go out and bash some white person because the cops had been acquitted of flogging Rodney King.

One of the jurors admitted as much in an interview with The New York Times. The woman, 22, said:

"They (Williams and Watson) seemed just like anyone, just like you and I. I see them just as two human beings. They just got caught up in the riot. I guess maybe they were in the wrong place at the wrong time."

How true. Had they been on a cruise ship in the Caribbean, in a

FRIENDS, I'M RUNNING FOR GOVERNOR NOT BECAUSE OF WHO MY FATHER IS, BUT BECAUSE I CARE ABOUT MY CHILDREN'S FUTURE...

Mike Royko

Paris bistro, or at Disney World, it's certain that they wouldn't have engaged in any Denny-bashing.

Instead, it was their bad luck to be in that part of Los Angeles when the King verdict spread a riot virus. And being mere human beings — "just like you and I" the juror said — they were swept up in the feverish need to rush into the streets and mutilate strangers.

Try thinking of it as a sudden case of flu. When the flu bug bites, can any human being be blamed for running a high temperature and suffering aches and pains?

It's sort of like saying, "The devil made me do it." Or the traditional plea of a mother to a judge before her son is sentenced: "Your honor, he's a good boy but he fell in with a bad crowd."

Most judges and juries don't buy these excuses. But this jury appears to have accepted mob fever as a valid reason to stomp total strangers.

And that's what I see as a bright side.

The L.A. riot wasn't the only instance of mob violence in our society. Besides our occasional urban riots, we have gang rapes and gang murders. Mobs of racist whites have attacked unfortunate blacks who wandered into their neighborhoods. Mobs of racist blacks have done the same to unfortunate whites.

Cops have been known to lose their tempers en masse when a fellow cop is killed and to get in some extra whacks after they catch the cop-killers. In fact, a high-ranking

I'M RUNNING ON THE ISSUES, NOT BECAUSE MY FATHER WAS PRESIDENT OF THE UNITED STATES... NOT BECAUSE MY FATHER IS GEORGE BUSH...

Chicago cop was recently fired for mistreating cop killers and other felons.

All of these offenses — group actions of one kind or another — add to the strain on our law enforcement system. People have to be arrested, processed, put on trial and sometimes sent to prison.

We know our justice system is already overburdened. Too many criminals and not enough cops, prosecutors, judges and prison cells.

So along comes this jury to show us a way to relieve the legal system of much of the burden.

"True, my lout of a client bashed that fellow with a brick, but he was just caught up in the riotous mood of the moment. Wrong time, wrong place. I mean, hey, everyone was doing it..."

"Ladies and gentlemen of the jury, while the evidence shows that my boorish client took part in that gang rape, what choice did he have? He just got caught up in the group spirit. Wrong time, wrong place. Everyone in the alley was doing it..."

"Jurors, I concede that my client, this slack-jawed racist skinhead, did take part in murdering that minority fellow. But we hope you consider peer pressure. He was just caught up in group hatred. He's only human. It could happen to anyone. And if he had been on a gondola in Venice, it wouldn't have happened in the first place."

So if we start looking at mob-related crime the way the jury in the Denny case did — that individuals aren't necessarily responsible for their own actions — we can avoid the bother and expense of putting a lot of people on trial and locking them in prisons.

Group-induced stupidity. It's a fascinating legal concept.

And the Denny jury itself is a perfect example.

Imagine ... one right that counts

WRITER'S NOTE: As I read my column in yesterday's paper, shock gave way to dismay. With the dropping of a line in the transcription process, my message against senseless violence had been changed into a tirade against white violence. The editors have agreed to reprint the column.

I attended church in Snyder a few weeks ago. The young minister delivered a sermon, which in light of all the debate surrounding the Denny verdict, I thought it worth sharing.

He stated, "There is only one right that ultimately counts, and that's what is right in the sight of God."

What? You mean to say there's only one right and one wrong? That right is not based on skin color or jury decisions? That it is not right to beat another human being and take obvious pleasure in it? That it shouldn't matter if your name is Powell, Koon, Williams or Watson? That right isn't based on whether the person you're beating is an African-American ex-convict named King or a hardworking White truck driver named Denny?

For most decent, moral Americans, the answer is a resounding "Yes."

Just so there is no confusion on how I feel, if it had been left up to me, I would have put Powell and Koon (the two white police thugs) in the same cell with Williams and Watson (the two African-American thugs). I'm sure they have a lot in common, because underneath the clothes and the jobs and the skin color, I bet they all smell the same — rotten.

This date in history

Brenda Brooks

So, with that out of the way, I'd like to deal with a common misconception running rampant in America. That is that this type of behavior is peculiar to only certain segments of our society. Mobs are not new. President Dwight Eisenhower said in 1957 "Mob rule cannot be allowed to rule over the decisions of our courts."

He made this speech when he announced he was sending paratroopers into Little Rock, Ark., to control the mobs of whites who were rioting outside of Central High School.

Why were they rioting? Because nine black students had been allowed to attend school. A African-American ex-Marine was beaten unconscious with a brick.

President John Kennedy said, "No mob, however unruly or boisterous, is entitled to defy a court of law."

On the same night, mobs of whites rioted at the University of Mississippi during which 35 federal marshalls were shot and two members of the press killed. What had so enraged the mob? An African-American James Meredith had enrolled to attend classes.

During the early '70s, a passing black motorist was dragged from his car and beaten by a mob in South Boston. Television cameras recorded the event and you can see the glee on the face of one thug as he beat the motorist with a bat.

I'm not trying to imply that whites are more violent than African-Americans, just reminding everyone that violence is an equal opportunity killer.

Looking back at the past, it obvious that we as a country have not addressed the nature of the beast that threatens to consume our society. The voices we listen to are not the voices of reason, compassion and justice.

We hear with our racial emotions on our sleeves and wear a collective chip on our shoulders. We're manipulated by various factions of our society into believing we should fear, resent and hate other human beings.

They prey on our fears of others, and in doing so, get elected to public office, make millions of dollars writing books or host talk shows. Why do we listen to people who appeal to those less noble human emotions?

It is time for decent, moral people to take back our country and ourselves from those people who don't understand.

In order for us to survive, we must realize that violence and moral decay is a disease. A disease which respects no racial, class or social boundaries.

One last thought: Marian Wright Edelman said in a recent address to SMU students, "Don't give anybody the proxy for your conscience. You're going to be accountable to God."

Legislature discovered dangerous

God bless the Texas Legislature ... nobody else is going to.

Yours truly was sitting at his desk, pondering just what to write this column about when an interesting news item crossed the Associated Press wire Monday afternoon.

That's right. They've gone and done it again ... shot themselves (or someone else) in the foot with a seemingly unloaded shotgun.

Seems the state higher education commissioner has asked Texas public colleges and universities to ignore a new requirement that would have eliminated tuition and fee breaks to some 2,500 military veterans.

Ignore a law passed by the Texas Legislature and signed into law by our governor?

Now, quite a few of us have been guilty of a transgression here and there where the state's motor vehicle code is involved, and some of us were even guilty of trifling with the state's minor in possession law.

But this is serious. We're talking about playing fast and fancy with a state law involving millions of state dollars.

The memorandum issued by Commissioner Kenneth Ashworth follows a flap over a new provision in a law that, it turns out, threatens tuition and fee waivers for veterans.

The provision was intended to expand the Hazelwood Act to cover children whose parents were missing in action or died as a result of military service, including deaths due to the chemical defoliant Agent Orange.

Not a bad idea. If the veteran can't take advantage of his benefits, it would be nice if his children could.

That, of course, was before some well-meaning legislator brainstormed an amendment to originally proposed legislation.

The amendment, tacked onto the bill by state Rep. Warren Chisum, D-Pampa, requires all veterans who receive aid to prove financial need.

Only in Austin could such a knee-jerk reaction on the part of one legislator get passed by the entire legislature and wind up going so seriously awry.

Chisum, of course, had no idea his amendment would have such an effect. He says he thought the amendment would require veterans' children to prove financial need.

The Higher Education Board estimated that 2,500 of the 9,784 Texas veterans receiving tuition and fee waivers would lose their eligibility, as a result of the amendment.

In his memo to state colleges and universities, Ashworth asked the schools to essentially ignore the new provision until Texas Attorney General Dan Morales issues an opinion.

Now, it's not likely that the attorney general is going to rule that veterans have to meet eligibility requirements.

At least not at the same time the state's voters are being asked to approve Proposition 10, which would authorize the sale of $750 million worth of state general obligation bonds — $500 million for the Veterans' Housing Assistance Program and another $250 million for the Veterans' Program.

We Texans, for the most part, are pretty proud of our veterans. Tend to try and do nice things for them and help them make the most of their benefits.

The really scary part of all is that Morales could do the unthinkable and uphold the law.

He might not have any choice. What the Legislature did is probably legal and might very well be constitutional.

That, of course, would mean the Legislature would have to pass another law, changing the rules currently on the books.

And who knows just how convoluted that could get.

Rotary seeking professionals for exchange

By GARY SHANKS
Staff Writer

Rotary District 5730, which includes Big Spring and its two Rotary Clubs, are asking professionals to apply for membership in a cultural exchange trip to Brazil.

The Group Study Exchange (GSE) is one of several international Rotary programs designed to promote good will and understanding between peoples of different lands, according to Rotary officials.

District 5730 includes the Texas Panhandle area and extends south to include the Permian Basin. From Rotary clubs in this region, five non-Rotarian GSE members will be selected for the trip.

According to Rotary International literature, the team consists of these five members, who cannot be Rotarians, and one team leader, who is a Rotarian.

All travel expenses to the host country, in this case Brazil, will be paid by the local Rotary District and the sponsoring club. The host country will provide travel and lodging within the country. GSE members only need to provide funds for personal spending within the host country.

GSE team members must be established within their professions for at least two years, must live within District 5730 and must not be a member of any Rotary club.

To apply for membership in the GSE program, call Paul Nabors in Big Spring at 267-3014.

Team members will have to take time off from work, from May 25 to June 30, 1994. Applications will be accepted until Jan. 15. A course to teach basic communication in the native language may be required prior to departure.

During the trip, GSE members will stay in the homes of Rotary members in Brazil. A team of Brazilian GSE members will spend the month prior to this trip in Texas, staying in the home of Rotarians in various cities in West Texas.

The objective of the GSE tour is to provide an educational opportunity for outstanding professionals and business people to visit another country and learn of its institutions and culture through contacts with Rotarians and their families in that country, Nabors explained.

District 5730 participates in one of these events each year. This year's team spent six weeks in South Africa. In 1992, an exchange was made with a Korean Rotary district. Paraguay and Argentina was the destination in 1991 and before that, a team spent time in Belgium.

Alvarez gets 25 years in sexual assault case

By JANET AUSBURY
Staff Writer

Susanna Heredia Alvarez, 31, of 913 1/2 Scurry Street, was found guilty of aggravated sexual assault of a child on Tuesday, Oct. 26, and sentenced to 25 years in the Texas Department of Criminal Justice prison in Huntsville.

Alvarez was arrested June 15, four days after the assault on his 7-year-old daughter. The Big Spring Police Department transferred Alvarez to the Howard County Jail, where he has been held in lieu of bond.

The jury deliberated six hours before finding Alvarez guilty and deciding on punishment. Assistant District Attorney Dale Dupree, who prosecuted the case, said, "I'm comfortable with it. The jury did a good job."

He added, "Juries are fed up with that kind of conduct and they won't put up with it any more."

Attorney Don Richard, who represented Alvarez, was disappointed with the verdict and the length of the sentence. "Juries always speak and we have to listen," said Richard. "The jury has a collective, 12-heads-better-than-one perspective, and we have to do what they tell us to."

Richard added that he and Alvarez may appeal the verdict.

Alvarez remains in the Howard County Jail awaiting transfer to Huntsville. He will receive credit toward his prison sentence for the jail time he has already served.

Cotton not only seeks to teach piano to students, but to change the way they feel about playing music. "I make sure I answer all questions and clear up all the old baggage they might have," he said. "I sometimes think of myself as a musical healer. I try to get it through their heads that this will work for them."

Performing on stage is rare for Cotton now. However, restaurants in his home city of Sedona, Ariz., often request that he play for them.

"Some of the food is really good, so I just might do it," he said, laughing.

For now, teaching is Cotton's pas-

Students cook up some life lessons

By DEBBIE LINCEUM
Features Editor

Each student ties on an apron, washes up, and dives in to the recipe.

Carefully they measure out flour, shortening, eggs and sugar. The class project is making chocolate chip cookies.

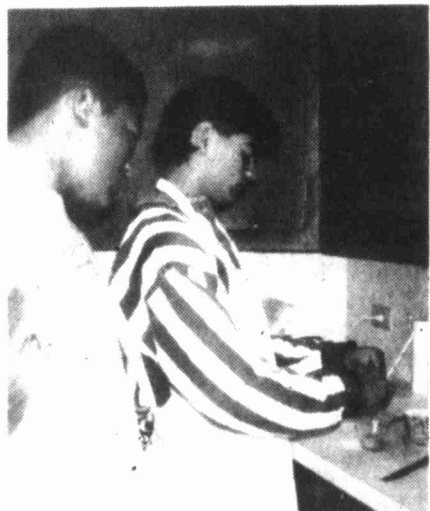

"Don't pack the flour," Big Spring High School home economics teacher Alma Wrightsil reminds them. They've heard all this before, but they forget.

"Most of the time, this is a fun class," said Fulani Williams, mixing dough. "It's not that hard work, but you learn about food and stuff."

"You need this later in life," said Jody Bennett. "Your wife's not going to be there. She'll probably be working late."

Wrightsil's students work in teams. After a couple of months, she will switch some of the members, encouraging them to learn to work with others.

"That's very important, learning to work with people who aren't your best friends," Wrightsil said. She wants her class to leave with more than just cooking skills. "Manners are an important part, too," she said. Wrightsil teaches the students how to set a place, rules for serving and table etiquette.

In some cases, she helps them improvise. Table 7's sugar cookie recipe, for example, had to be altered slightly because they lacked an ingredient. When they decide to mix chocolate chips in with the dough, "Put an egg in there," Wrightsil tells them.

"We're experimenting," she explains to a visitor.

A few minutes later, Table 7's new computerized oven won't stay on, so while everybody else is enjoying the fruits of their labors, the group of girls is waiting. Eventually, they borrow another team's oven and get the cooking started.

Wrightsil has seen just about every near cooking disaster.

"I had one student put a half-cup of baking soda in a recipe," she laughed.

"And they always seem to get baking soda and baking powder mixed up. I tell them about the box and can, about the different colors, but they still do."

"I never cooked anything until I got in here," explained Toby Cerda. Wrightsil said he is not rare among her students.

"I wish more parents would get their kids in the kitchen, teach them a few things," she said. "Some of these kids have never been allowed in the kitchen."

In this class, the students will compile recipes, cook and serve an entire luncheon - then eat it themselves. That's part of the fun of home economics.

Cerda and Randy Ortega were absent during the day table partners chose duties for the cookie-making day. So the two have been assigned to wash dishes.

Wrightsil sees them sitting forlornly, however, and that changes.

"Come over here," she tells them, and gives them a bowl and starts them making a batch of cookies. Their faces light up with the responsibility.

Back at Table 7, disaster seems imminent.

"Ours are sizzling," Alma Cervantes tells the teacher. Wrightsil hurries to the oven, peeks inside and pronounces everything all right.

Cookies are shared all around, with each one tasted by Wrightsil for her final approval. Table 7's strange concoction even tastes good.

Wrightsil, wrapping up some of each table's cookies to save for the custodians, called the lesson a great success.

"We try to share and work together," she said. "They're going to learn things here they can use later in life."

How Can You Tell the Age of a Rattlesnake?

Can you tell how old a rattlesnake is by counting the beads on its rattle?

Who wants to get close enough to find out!

Actually, a snake's rattle is a clue to its age. A young snake starts out with one bead on its rattle. As the snake grows, it sheds its skin. Every time this happens, a new bead is added to the rattle.

You can't use the beads to tell the exact age, however. For one thing, a snake sheds its skin three or four times a year. It all depends on how fast it's growing. If that weren't confusing enough, there is the "old age" problem. After a few years, a rattler's beads start to get old and brittle. Some of them fall off.

So, a snake's rattle can only tell you two things for sure: the first is that the snake is a rattler. And the second? Stay clear!

Joey gets 2nd chance

By THERESA TIGHE
St. Louis Post-Dispatch

ST. LOUIS — This is the story of Joey, a dog who once seemed destined to spend his life behind bars. Instead he got a job.

Two years ago, his bad habits landed him in the pound. He wasn't housebroken. He jumped fences and loved to knock people over.

This year, Joey jets to conventions as a role model for other pooches. What transformed him?

"I think he just needed something to do," said Joey's mistress, Susan Duncan, as she scratched the mutt's great brown and black head. "Something no one would yell at him for."

Duncan, 37, has multiple sclerosis, a degenerative nerve disease. Sometimes, a cane is all Duncan needs for support. On other days, she can't get out of bed.

She sprang Joey from the Bellevue, Wash., animal shelter. She trained him to use the power that once sent people sprawling to help her stand. With her right hand on her cane, she pushes herself up. As she rises, she holds onto a backpack on Joey's shoulder. She rocks forward. He places his head under her chin and helps her push up.

His unbounded energy also tracks down her children, opens and closes doors and helps load and unload the laundry.

The twosome were in St. Louis recently for the national Delta Society convention. The society works to improve human health through animals and nature. Delta named Joey its service dog of the year.

Fame doesn't seem to faze Joey, 5. A yeoman, he sat quietly at Duncan's side.

Duncan thinks Joey earned the award.

"I respect him," Duncan said. "We go through life together, step by step."

Duncan realized how much a dog could aid her about four years ago. She fell and couldn't get up. Casper, the family's first pound puppy, trotted over and began helping her.

She began training Casper. And she did more herself, her confidence bolstered by the dog's presence.

But within a few months, Duncan had to put Casper to sleep. The dog had cancer. Surgery wouldn't help. She was at Casper's side when the vet injected him.

A short time later, Duncan went looking for another dog. She was first attracted to the wayward Joey by his size.

She wanted a dog to be her muscles. At 2 feet tall, 115 pounds, Joey could support her. Duncan is about 5 feet, 100 pounds.

Joey did some other things right in the interview. He was gentle — not a snap, shove or growl — with her daughters.

To cinch the deal, when she looked into Joey's eyes, Duncan could sense intelligence. She claims he seemed to be saying: "Give me a job. Give me job."

Golden Books, one of the most well-known lines of children's books in the country, has been a staple of childhood reading for over 50 years.

Far from being old-fashioned, Golden Books has kept up with the times by releasing books in Spanish to meet the requests of Hispanic communities nationwide.

This year, Western Publishing Company, Inc., publisher of Golden Books, released 38 Golden Books titles in Spanish. The books include classic fairy tales as well as modern stories with characters such as Mickey Mouse, and Big Bird. More titles will be released next year.

Kim McLynn, public relations manager at Western Publishing Company, Inc., said the line of Golden Books, one of the best-known lines of children's books, has made some of their most popular titles available in Spanish. More Spanish Golden Books will be published next year.

Spanish-language books was created to fill a growing need in the country.

"Hispanics are the fastest-growing group in the country," she said. Bilingual Golden Books have been on the market for quite some time, but increasing requests for Spanish-only versions prompted Western Publishing to develop the new line of titles. McLynn was not sure how many new titles would be released in 1994, or whether all Golden Books will eventually be available in Spanish.

"We're going to see how successful this first line of books will be," she said. "We're taking it one step at a time."

Spanish-language Golden Books are available at select Toys "R" Us,

K-Mart, Wal-Mart, Service Merchandise, Waldenbooks, and Venture stores. The Big Spring Wal-Mart does not currently carry the Spanish line of Golden Books but is checking into their availability.

Dog team pulls Alaskan's wheelchair

By The Associated Press

NORTH POLE, Alaska — When Cyndi Irish wants to go out traveling she does like many Alaskans, hitching up her dog team and enjoying the wind in her face.

But instead of a sled, she hitches her team of Girl Dawg and Max to her wheelchair.

"I'm not a fixed object," says the 31-year-old Irish, who has used a wheelchair since she broke her back in a 1982 motorcycle accident. "I do the best I can with what I've got."

In snowy weather in North Pole, about 260 miles north of Anchorage, she attaches miniature chains to the wheels for traction.

She has had Max, a black German shepherd, and Girl Dawg, a mixed-breed brindle-colored husky, as a team since summer. Max was her main dog before that, but he hasn't been able to pull solo since he was wounded in a shooting accident.

Local dog trainer Karen Piper educated Girl Dawg and offered the animal to Irish.

"She took to pulling Cyndi in her wheelchair like she'd done it all her life," Piper said.

Irish, who worked on Alaska fishing boats before her injury, says life in a wheelchair has changed her perspective.

"You get the cold reactions. You get the ones who want to do something for you, and those who don't know what to do with you," she says. "A lot is up to me."

Happy Birthday,

Smokey Bear

I bet you know Smokey's slogan.* Write it here!

The first Smokey poster was made during World War II. Wood was really needed for our war effort.

Smokey's birthday

Smokey first appeared on this poster on Aug. 9, 1944.

The U.S. Forest Service wanted to come up with an animal to be a symbol of fire prevention. He was named after a fire chief in New York City, Smokey Joe Miller.

Smokey and Woodsy have been visiting classrooms for years. Each carries an important message.

One of Smokey's friends

Woodsy Owl teaches kids how to care for the world around them. His motto is "Give a hoot, don't pollute." He and Smokey often visit classrooms, teaching students to protect forests.

Smokey's living symbol

In 1950, a badly burned bear cub was discovered after a forest fire in New Mexico.

He became the living symbol of Smokey and forest fire prevention. He was moved to the National Zoo in Washington, D.C. When he died in 1976, another bear took his place. When this second Smokey died, it was decided it was best not to have a living symbol of Smokey any longer.

A vet examines the cub that became the first living Smokey.

The minute most of us see Smokey in his blue jeans and special hat, we know who he is and what he stands for: fire prevention.

Smokey Bear is one of our country's best-loved characters and one of the most successful symbols ever.

Smokey works with the U.S. Forest Service.

He is so important that we will be celebrating his 50th birthday for a long time ... from now until August of 1994!

Slogan: Only you can prevent forest fires!

Lady Hawks whip LCU in opener

By STEVE REAGAN
Sports writer

Loaded with questions about his young team, Howard College Lady Hawks coach Royce Chadwick found at least a few answers during the Lady Hawks' 75-61 victory over Lubbock Christian University Monday at Dorothy Garrett Coliseum.

Perhaps the biggest question Chadwick had was who was going to replace departed All-American LeKisha Wiley at point guard. In this case, the coach found two answers: freshmen Eureka Ray and Cathy Grice.

The speedy duo consistently were able to penetrate Lubbock Christian's defense and ended the evening combining for 15 assists. The main beneficiaries of those dish-offs were post player Annette Robinson, who had 15 points, and shooting guard Becky Barnes, who added 12. Grice and Angel Spinks each had 10 points for the Lady Hawks (1-0).

Joetta Sailors had 15 points and Beth Capps 10 for the Lady Chaps (0-1).

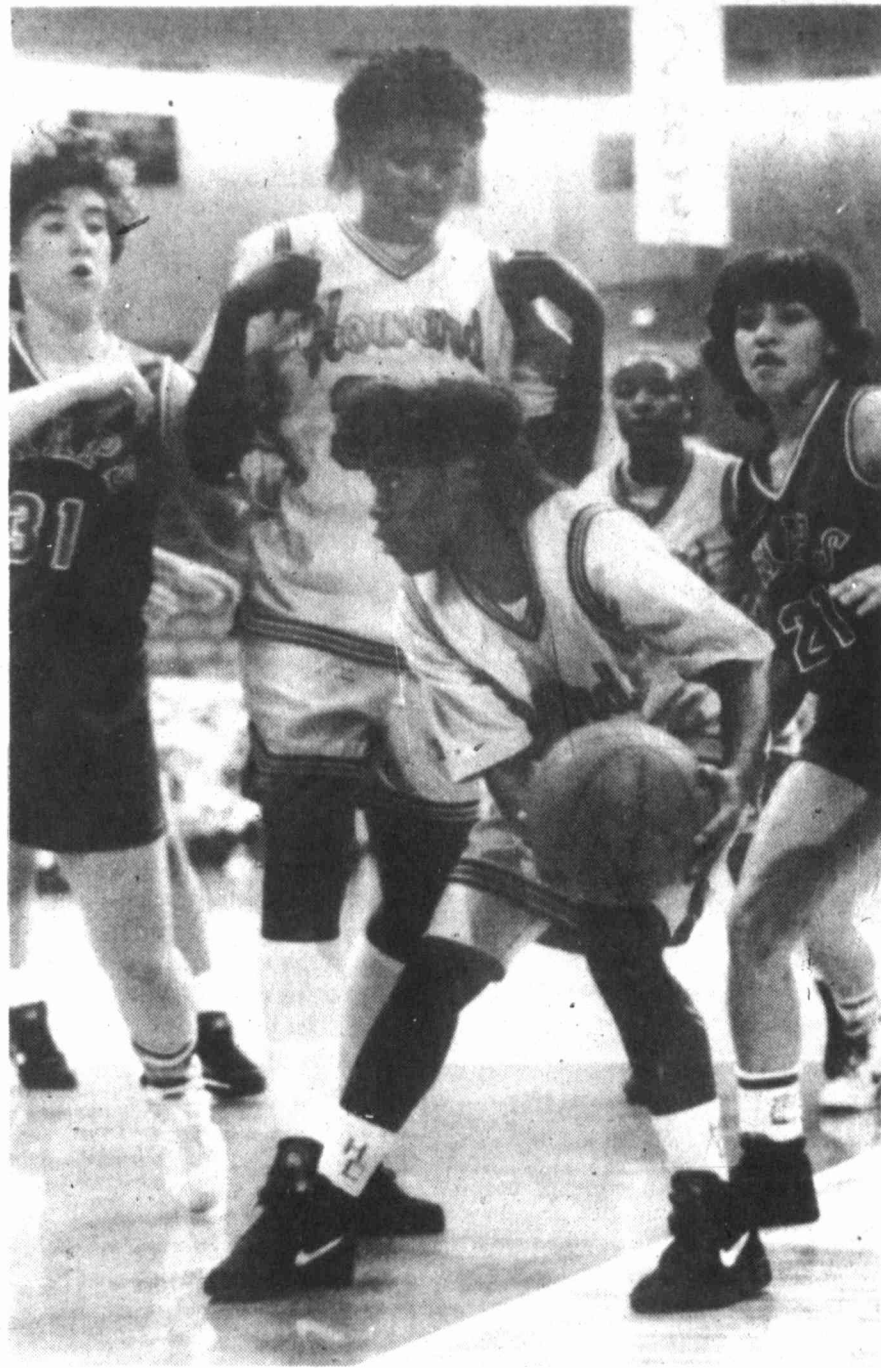

"Cathy is going to be the best point guard who's ever played here — unless Eureka beats her to it," Chadwick said after the game. "Cathy has all the tools. She just needs to keep improving."

Aside from the point guard situation, however, Chadwick wasn't overly pleased with the play of his team.

"The point guards are going to be OK, but I wasn't real pleased with our guard play off the bench," he said. "Those girls are a lot better than they showed tonight."

The Lady Hawks took control of the game about five minutes deep into the first half. With Howard leading 10-9, reserve post player Joy Bass sank a pair of free throws, then followed that with a short jumper to key a 26-7 run that ended with Howard holding a 36-16 advantage with 4:53 left in the half.

reserve Amber Lacey responded well on defense. Lacey finished the night with 12 rebounds, while Bass added seven before sitting most of the second half with foul trouble of her own.

"Amber had a lot of defensive boards in the first half," Chadwick said. "I wasn't too pleased with her offensive board work, but all of our post players had foul trouble, so we had to keep her in there."

After Howard attained its 20-point cushion, the rest of the first half and most of the second resembled a free-throw shooting contest (the teams combined for 69 fouls).

"I thought we executed real well in the first half; we were very aggressive," Chadwick said. "But we've got a lot of young kids, and they CHADWICK lost their concentration at the half, and we never got it back completely."

LCU coach Dave Carter agreed that the first half was the difference in the game.

"I would say we were extremely tentative in the first half, and Howard just took it to us," he said. "I felt in the second half, we came back with a little more intensity."

The Lady Hawks return to action Friday when they open play in the South Plains College Classic in Levelland. Howard plays Weatherford at 5 p.m. Friday, before taking on Panola at 4 p.m. Saturday.

The Lady Hawks' next home game is against Ranger Junior College Monday at 7:30 p.m. in Garrett Coliseum.

Bills batter 'Skins, stay atop AFC East

By The Associated Press

ORCHARD PARK, N.Y. — Beating their three Super Bowl conquerors only means something to Buffalo Bills guard John Davis "if they're going to give us a ring and a Lombardi trophy."

Davis and the rest of the Bills got neither after completing a season sweep of their Super Bowl opponents with a 24-10 victory over the Washington Redskins Monday night.

Instead, they have to be satisfied with the fact that while the Redskins have fallen on hard times since their 37-24 victory over Buffalo in the Super Bowl two seasons ago, the Bills haven't.

"I think one of the most important things that we look at is that even though we've lost three Super Bowls, we haven't had a downfall, we haven't had a decline," Thurman Thomas said.

The Bills (6-1) continued their quest for a fourth Super Bowl appearance by once again combining an opportunistic defense with a grind-it-out offense that Thomas said shows "power football" isn't limited to the NFC.

"Power football is saying, 'Come out and stop us,'" Thomas said.

The battered Redskins, who dropped to 1-6, couldn't.

For the second week in a row, the Bills moved the ball easily. They churned out 402 yards of offense — an average of 6.1 yards per play — on a field that was frozen slick.

As usual, Andre Reed was the centerpiece of the passing game. Reed had complained loudly about not getting the ball much earlier in the season. The Bills apparently listened.

"It seemed like I was overdue, but you've got to be patient," said Reed who caught seven passes for 159 yards, including a 65-yard touchdown.

What Reed did for the passing game, Thomas did for the Bills' running game.

He ran inside and outside. He ran through big holes and small cracks. When it was over, he had the 33rd 100-yard rushing game of his career with 129 yards and a touchdown on 28 carries.

The Redskins had no trouble running against Buffalo, either. Reggie Brooks took advantage of excellent blocking from a banged-up offensive line by running 24 times for 117 yards and a touchdown.

The Bills' four interceptions — three by defensive backs — took the Redskins out of a game in which they only trailed 14-10 at the half.

Mark Rypien, whose passing tormented the Bills in the Super Bowl two years ago, accepted the blame for all four interceptions.

"I really feel like I let this team down today," he said. "It was a game where we had some chances and some opportunities and we needed somebody to make some plays."

Reds' owner reinstated

By The Associated Press

CINCINNATI — Marge Schott's first day back on the job was full of fun. The rest won't be nearly so easy.

The Cincinnati Reds' staff and a women's booster club threw a party for Schott on Monday, when the team owner returned from an eight-month suspension for using racial and ethnic slurs.

Schott wasn't giving any hints about how she's leaning on the club's unresolved issues, such as manager Dave Johnson and the payroll.

She wouldn't talk about any of those Monday.

When one reporter asked whether Johnson will be the manager next year, Schott replied, "We really do appreciate you coming."

Palmeiro, according to a published report.

The Yankees have Don Mattingly at first base but would consider signing free agent Palmeiro as a left fielder, the Fort Worth Star-Telegram reports.

Palmeiro has been used exclusively at first base during his four years with the Rangers but played left field for the Chicago Cubs during parts of 1986 and 1987.

Palmeiro has said he would be willing to move back to the outfield, depending on what team was interested in him. The Seattle Mariners also have shown interest in pursuing Palmeiro as an outfielder.

The Baltimore Orioles, Florida Marlins and New York Mets are expected to bid for Palmeiro's services. The Orioles, under new ownership, will make a serious run for a first baseman with heavy interest in both Palmeiro and San Francisco's Will Clark, major league officials told the newspaper.

Talks with the Rangers broke off when Palmeiro turned down an offer of more than $26 million for five years. The Rangers rejected a counterproposal from agent Jim Bronner calling for more than $30 million for five years.

Palmeiro, who made $4.55 million in 1993, is coming off his best season, when he hit .295 with a career-high 37 homers, 105 RBIs and 124 runs scored.

Deer season starts Saturday

Land owners and hunters are reminded of the regulation changes for Howard County during the upcoming deer season, which opens Nov. 6 and runs through Jan. 2.

Special antlerless deer permits are no longer required for harvesting doe deer in Howard County. The new either-sex deer season requires that antlerless deer may be tagged with the appropriate tag from the hunting license. Buck deer must also be tagged with the appropriate tag from the license.

The bag limit is two does and one buck for Howard County and does not represent a change from last year's limit.

Bonds named AP Player of the Year

NEW YORK — Barry Bonds took the money and ran — and hit and fielded and scored.

Bonds, who proved his worth in the first season of a $43.75 million, six-year contract with San Francisco, was honored for his outstanding season Monday by being named The Associated Press Baseball Player of the Year.

He is the first player to win the award in consecutive seasons.

Bonds, who led the Giants to a 103-59 record, their most wins since 1962, received 73 votes from a nationwide balloting by sportswriters and broadcasters.

BONDS

Chicago White Sox first baseman Frank Thomas was second with 17 votes, followed by Philadelphia Phillies outfielder Lenny Dykstra, who was third with six votes.

Toronto Blue Jays first baseman John Olerud received three votes, while Seattle Mariners outfielder Ken Griffey Jr. and Atlanta outfielder Ron Gant got one vote each.

The AP began honoring one player in the majors in 1988. Previously, it had an award for the top player in each league.

Bonds, a favorite to win the National League MVP award for the third time in four years, hit .336 with a league-leading 123 RBIs and 46 homers, tying Juan Gonzalez of Texas for the major-league lead.

"They just happened to play one game better than we did," Bonds said. "I tip my hat to them. They're a great ball team. But they know I'm coming. Forever. And as long as they're in this league, and as long as God lets me play this game, they know I'm coming."

Sonics, Pacers complete trade

INDIANAPOLIS — On Monday, the Indiana Pacers traded All-Star forward Detlef Schrempf to the Seattle

SuperSonics for forward Derrick McKey and swingman Gerald Paddio. "I fully expect that the trade will be unpopular," said Indiana general manager Donnie Walsh. "I'm just hopeful the fans will give Derrick McKey a chance."

"We have more than one specific need," Pacers coach Larry Brown said. "Detlef's a great player, but I'm hopeful that Derrick can come in here and play the small forward."

Walsh said the Pacers traded the 6-foot-10 Schrempf for both basketball and financial reasons.

"Detlef was a great player for us. He came here from Dallas as an unheralded player. He became the Sixth Man of the Year twice, was an All-Star last year," Walsh said.

Schrempf can become a free agent at the end of the upcoming season. In the meantime, he returns to the city where he played college ball at the University of Washington.

"To keep Detlef here, I had to feel real deep in my heart that we were going to have him here next year, or else we stood a very difficult chance of losing him for nothing," Walsh said.

Schrempf averaged a career-high 19.1 points last season and led the Pacers with a career-high 780 rebounds.

McKey, a six-year veteran, averaged 13.4 points and 4.2 rebounds as a starter for Seattle last season. In six seasons, he climbed to the top 10 on Seattle's all-time list in 12 different categories. He's ninth in scoring with 6,179 points and 10th in rebounding with 2,299.

Schrempf averaged 17.0 points per game in five years with the Pacers and has career averages of 13.3 points, 6.5 rebounds and 3.1 assists.

The 6-7 Paddio was a third-round draft pick of the Boston Celtics in 1988 from UNLV. He was cut by the Celtics before the season began and played in the CBA and Europe before signing with Cleveland for the 1990-91 season.

He averaged 7.2 points in 70 games with Cleveland and then returned to the CBA for the 1991-92 season. He played in 41 games for Seattle last season, averaging 3.9 points and 1.2 rebounds.

Yankees may pitch to Rangers' Palmeiro

FORT WORTH — The New York Yankees, who have a history of offering lucrative contracts to free agents, have expressed interest in pursuing Rangers' first baseman Rafael

Palmeiro, according to a published report.

The Yankees have Don Mattingly at first base but would consider signing free agent Palmeiro as a left fielder, the Fort Worth Star-Telegram reports.

Palmeiro has been used exclusively at first base during his four years with the Rangers but played left field for the Chicago Cubs during parts of 1986 and 1987.

Palmeiro has said he would be willing to move back to the outfield, depending on what team was interested in him. The Seattle Mariners also have shown interest in pursuing Palmeiro as an outfielder.

Stars tie Maple Leafs

By The Associated Press

DALLAS — For the Toronto Maple Leafs, a loss and a tie qualifies as a slump.

That's what happens when a team gets off to the best start in NHL history with a 10-game winning streak.

"If you can get three goals against a team that plays defense as well as they do, it's an accomplishment," said Dallas left wing Mike McPhee, whose goal with 7:30 left in regulation evened the game at 3-3. That was the final.

Before McPhee scored, the Maple Leafs were on the verge of taking control when they grabbed a 3-2 lead on Wendel Clark's third-period goal, his 10th of the season. Clark also had two assists.

McPhee tied the game when he fired a 10-footer past goaltender Felix Potvin on the glove side.

Toronto's Dave Andreychuk had the best scoring opportunity in the five-minute overtime, but Dallas goalie Andy Moog made a sprawling save with 2:27 to play.

BIG SPRING HERALD BIRTHDAY SWEEPSTAKES OFFICIAL RULES

- The Big Spring Herald Birthday Sweepstakes Contest begins today and will terminate Friday, December 24, 1993.
- Entry forms for the Birthday Sweepstakes Contest will appear in the Herald each day. Additional entry forms will be available at the participating merchants. No purchase is necessary. A person may become a contestant by depositing their entry form with the participating merchants or delivering their entry form to the Big Spring Herald, 710 Scurry St., P.O. Box 1431, Big Spring, TX 79720. All entries being forwarded by mail must bear sufficient postage. The Herald takes no responsibility for any lost or misdirected entries.
- During the first 50 days of the Herald's 54 day contest, the Herald will publish 2 birthday dates as chosen by random draw from all entries received in the advertisements of 2 participating merchants on the Birthday Sweepstakes page each day. The value of each of the birthdates published will be $10.00. The final week of the contest will be known as Grand Prize Week; Tuesday and Wednesday of this week (December 21, 22) the two birthdates published will have a value of $25.00 each, on Thursday (December 23) the two birthdates published will have a value of $100.00, Friday, December 24, the final day of the contest one birthdate will be published. The value of this number, known as the Grand Prize Birthdate, will be $250.
- All entries drawn during the contest, up to and including December 24, will be returned to the draw drum the day following the publication of the birthdate number.
- The holder of the Birthday number published in the Herald's Birthday Sweepstakes Contest from October 24th to December 24th, must call the Big Spring Herald at 263-7331, by no later than 5:30 p.m. on the 7th business day following the publishing of the winning number. Contest Department hours are from 7:30 a.m. to 5:30 p.m., Monday thru Friday. The contest office is not open on Saturdays, Sundays or Statutory holidays. Upon reporting a winning Birthday, the holder of the number will be advised of the steps to follow to claim the prize. Published Birthday numbers reported to the Herald following the close of the contest department on the 7th business day following publication of the number, will not be accepted and will not be eligible to claim a prize.
- The holder of the Grand Prize Birthday number as published on December 24, the final day of the contest, must call the contest department of the Herald at 263-7331 no later than 5:30 p.m. December 31st. Business hours are shown in rule number 5. If the Grand Prize, relating to the birthday plate number published in the Herald on December 24th, has not been claimed by the close of the contest on the 7th business day following publication, a 2nd Grand Prize Number will be published on the 8th business day following the publication of the initial Grand Prize number. This process will be repeated, until the Grand Prize has been claimed.
- If a successful winner receives 6-day home delivery of the Big Spring Herald, by carrier, motor route delivery, or mail, the prize money awarded to that person shall be DOUBLED. The winner must be receiving home delivery the day the winning number appears in the Herald.
- It is not necessary to purchase the Herald to participate in the contest. Live birthday numbers will be posted in the main business office of the Herald, 710 Scurry St., and copies of the Herald are available for inspection during regular business hours.
- Published birthday numbers will not be given out over the telephone.
- By playing Herald Birthday Sweepstakes contest, contestants agree to accept these rules and to allow publication of their name and address and/or picture within the Herald. The decision of the judges appointed by the Herald will be final and binding.
- Anyone 18 years or older can play the Herald Birthday Sweepstakes contest except employees and their immediate families (residing with them) of the Big Spring Herald and Thompson Newspapers Corporation.
- Photo identification is required to collect your prize.

Jacqueline Bigar - Horoscope

FORECAST FOR WEDNESDAY, NOV. 3, 1993

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Listen to the ideas of a partner who means well and can help to center you. Be aware of what you need to make your life work. Look to a family member for stability. Tonight: Take a night off.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): One-to-one relating proves successful financially and professionally. Look to new ideas and opportunities. Be willing to take off at a minute's notice. Tonight: Feel inspired.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): A creative idea comes full circle. Be aware of how much another cares about you. Touch base with someone at a distance who has your best interests at heart. Tonight: Watch that phone bill.*

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Much that goes on today is behind the scenes. You are correct in your thinking about a domestic matter. You will notice an increase in your energy level late in the afternoon. Use it to your benefit. Tonight: Smile your way to what you want.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): It's time for you to slow down a bit. You've been looking at a lot of new ideas lately. Recognize that you could have gone overboard. A friend brings you good news. Tonight: "Veg" out.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Zero in on what you want professionally. Don't hesitate to make a point about a financial matter. You will come out on top. You can feel good about options, creativity and a friendship. A co-worker comes through for you. Tonight: Celebrate with friends.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Your willingness to study a crucial issue helps you solve a tricky situation. Realize that the problem is just a challenge dressed up in work clothes. Be aware of another's feelings. Tonight: Work late if you must.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): A partnership has been working out well, largely because you have been open in your dealings. Trust your judgment about a family member and a potential trip. Tonight: Make that phone call.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): You are getting closer to what you want. Don't hesitate to ask for it. Friendship plays an enormous role in communications today as another hears you clearly. Be more loving with a partner. Tonight: The heat is on.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): It is important to charge into work today and get it all done. You will have a strong sense of accomplishment as a result - and your effort will be rewarded financially. Tonight: Now it's pay time.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): It is time to settle down, even though your mind is full of ideas and creativity. Be willing to take a risk, move on and get more of what you want out of life. Put more positive energy into work. Tonight: Work as late as you need.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Your talkative side emerges. Be careful about what you say. Remember your key relationship when you tell something personal to another. Your creativity is high. Tonight: Put on your dancing shoes.

IF NOVEMBER 3 IS YOUR BIRTHDAY: You have drawn a wild card this year and can expect to see new horizons and expanded relationships. A positive attitude will get you far. Luck will be on your side after the new year, and abundance will surround you. If single, hold on tight; you could meet an exotic foreigner. Those who are attached should look to increasing their understanding. Financial matters will improve. Cancer brings out your best side.

Dear Abby - Letters...

Seeking solution to holiday tug-of-war

DEAR ABBY: Last Christmas was my first Christmas as a married woman. My husband and I spent the holidays with my family. It was the first Christmas my husband spent away from his family, and his mom felt a little blue.

Right after the holidays, my parents told me they want us to spend every Christmas with them. I'm an only child, and they think because my husband has many siblings to spend Christmas with his parents, we should spend the holidays with them so they won't be alone.

Abby, I don't want my parents to be alone on Christmas, but I have to consider my husband's family, too. When we got married, we thought a fair compromise would be to alternate between his folks and mine. This is acceptable to his mom, but not to my folks because I am their only child. Our parents live 2,000 miles apart, so there's no way we can split the day between them.

Do you have any suggestions on how we can keep everybody happy? — DREADING THE HOLIDAYS

DEAR DREADING: Your parents should realize that little girls grow up, get married and assume obligations that sometimes separate them from their parents during the holidays.

It's time for them to assume the responsibility of making their own plans for the holidays, because what they have in mind is unreasonable and unfair to your husband and his family. You are going to have to put your foot down and inform them that you now have two families with whom to share your holidays — so from now on, the time will be divided equally.

DEAR ABBY: Here's another one of those, "I never thought I'd write to you, but ..." letters.

In your reply to "Depressed in Denver," you stated that one bounced check years ago for a couple of dollars would probably not cause her any trouble. I agree. What could cause trouble, however, is her being dishonest on her job application.

I have a security clearance for my work in the Department of Defense, and I've been told that security people take a dim view of applicants hiding facts, especially when the facts later surface during an investigation.

From her letter, it appears that is exactly what will happen, and I doubt that the company will be eager to hire her. Your reply could use one additional sentence: "But don't try to hide your arrest from the company."

Your advice is on the mark 99 and 44/100 percent of the time, Abby. Keep up the good work. — RONALD PLANTE, KURE, JAPAN

DEAR RON: Thanks. When you're right, you're right.

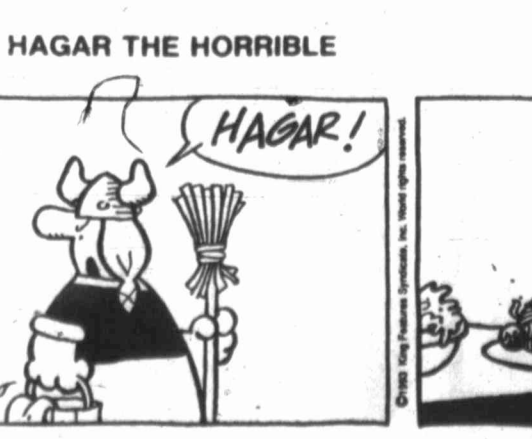

DEAR ABBY: I am a young woman who is physically and mentally mature — but my voice is not. Talking on the telephone is a humiliating ordeal. I sound like a 7-year-old. No one takes me seriously; people always ask me if there is an adult around they can talk to.

How can I lower the pitch of my voice, Abby? Do you — or any of your readers — have any suggestions? — SOUNDS LIKE SEVEN

DEAR SOUNDS: Consult a speech therapist or a voice coach. They can provide you with the kind of help you need.

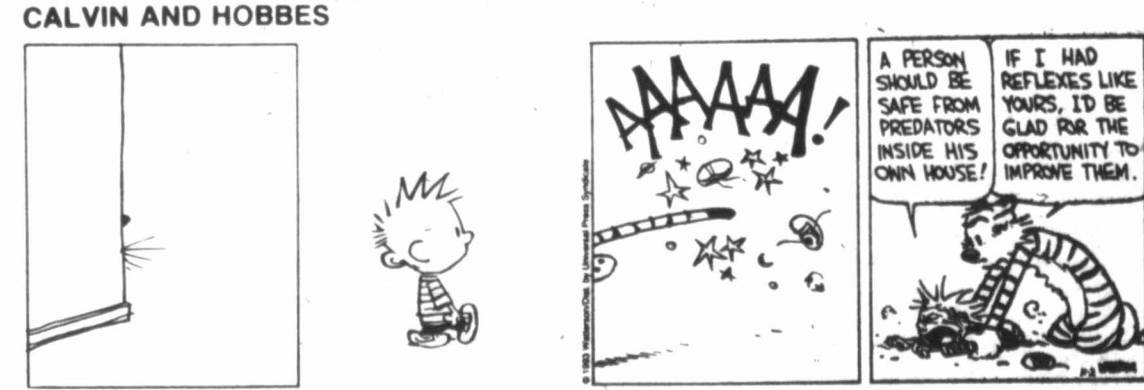

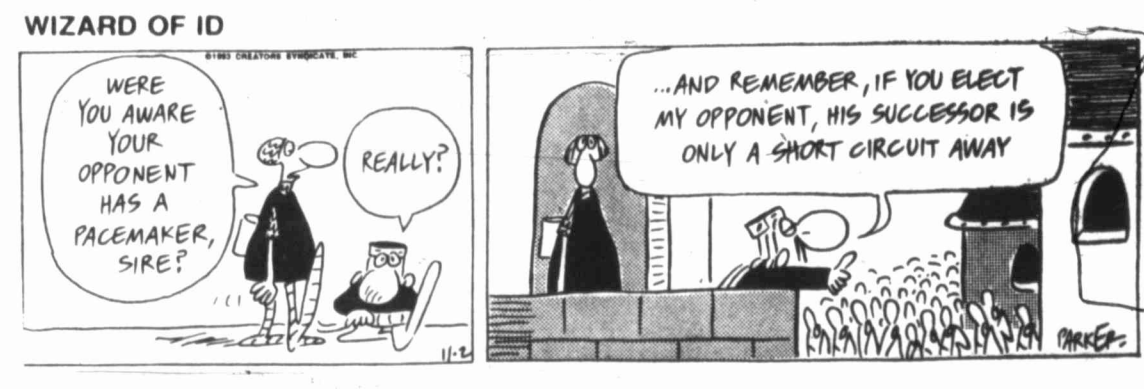

"C'MON, MOM! YOU'RE SWEEPING THE KITCHEN WITH MY HORSE!"

"Peas would be a lot easier to stab if they didn't make them round."

"YOUR LADIES' ROOM DOESN'T HAVE A DOOR!"

PUBLIC NOTICE

REQUEST FOR BIDS ON TEXAS HIGHWAY CONSTRUCTION

Sealed proposals for 1,193 miles of landscape development on BI 20-M from LP 170 to FM 1544 in Sweetwater covered by CLM 6-15-19.

In Nolan County, will be received at the Texas Department of Transportation, Austin, until 1:00 P.M., November 17, 1993, and then publicly opened and read.

Plans and specifications, including minimum wage rates as provided by Law, are available for inspection at the office of Peter B. Krause Area Engineer, Abilene, Texas, and at the Texas Department of Transportation, Austin, Texas. Bidding proposals are to be requested from the Division of Construction and Contract Administration, D.C. Greer State Highway Building, 11th and Brazos Streets, Austin, Texas 78701. Plans are available through commercial printers in Austin, Texas, at the expense of the bidder.

The Texas Department of Transportation hereby notifies all bidders that it will insure that bidders will not be discriminated against on the ground of race, color, sex or national origin, in having full opportunity to submit bids in response to this invitation, and in consideration for an award.

Usual rights reserved.
