Mondale nominated, Ferraro follows

Not Camera Shy

It was a stream of water, rather than the Brand camera, which made these youngsters turn their heads. Seventeen-year-old Mel Ramirez (left), Romeo Ramirez (13, center) and 17-year-old Jaime Ruiz were washing a car when attacked. Firing the hose was Gus Ramirez, 20, brother of Mel and Romeo.

Pair appears underdog now

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Geraldine A. Ferraro will be acclaimed the Democratic vice presidential candidate tonight, adding excitement to the ticket of nominee-at-last Walter Mondale and making history for her country, her party and her sex.

Mondale, triumphant on the first presidential nominating ballot, and Ms. Ferraro stand before the Democratic National Convention to accept their nominations and start an underdog campaign against a popular Republican president.

Mondale started writing his acceptance speech weeks ago, but waited until Wednesday to buy a $415 designer suit to wear when he delivers it. Ms. Ferraro, the running mate he named eight days ago, went to the convention hall after Wednesday's session had adjourned to practice using the teleprompter for her speech tonight. She waved as though a huge crowd were looking on.

In a dramatic gesture of unity — in contrast to four years ago when defeated challenger Edward M. Kennedy gave only a grudging endorsement to a renominated Jimmy Carter — Mondale's two vanquished opponents made their way to the convention podium Wednesday night to offer their support.

Sen. Gary Hart moved to make Mondale's nomination unanimous; the convention roared its agreement. The Rev. Jesse Jackson said: "Together we shall go to higher heights. Our time has come."

Then Mondale came before the delegates and in a foretaste of tonight's speech declared: "We're in this together. And we've got to win it together. We must win this election in 1984, and I must have your help."

Protege of Hubert Humphrey and vice president of Jimmy Carter, Mondale had been scorned by Hart as the captive of special interests and the party's past, but he won with an ease that contrasted with the fight that preceded it.

With even less difficulty, Ms. Ferraro is sure to be nominated tonight as his ticket mate, a New Yorker whose zestiness contrasts with Mondale's caution.

Ms. Ferraro is the first woman ever offered for national office by a major political party in this country, and that's what has excited this convention all week. She's also the first Italian-American on a major ticket, and a skillful campaigner who conveys a relaxed warmth.

Farmer object of unionizer suit

Jesus Moya seeks $25,000

BY KIM THOGMARTIN
Staff Writer

A controversial union organizer has filed suit against a Hereford farmer following an alleged altercation between the two men last Friday morning.

Jesus Moya, 36, who is employed by the International Union of Agricultural and Industrial Workers in Hidalgo, is seeking $5,000 in actual damages and $20,000 punitive damages from John Seiver of 114 Elm Street. The petition was filed Wednesday afternoon in 222nd District Court by Texas Rural Legal Aid attorney Edward J. Tuddenham.

Moya claims that Seiver became angry with him for attempting to speak to around 150 farm workers who were topping onions in a field three miles west of Hereford on U.S. Highway 60. He said Seiver threatened to kill him, then struck Moya with his pickup truck. Moya reported this morning that he was treated last Friday at a clinic in Dimmitt for two injured fingers, a sprained shoulder and an injured back.

The incident is being investigated by the Deaf Smith County Sheriff's Department, but no criminal charges have been filed. Investigator Herman Benavidez said the sheriff's office is not able to make a statement about the case.

"This company is characterized by a very hard position when it comes to the basic and fundamental rights of the workers," Moya remarked. "He (Seiver) was trying to deprive me of the right and freedom to express ideas to the workers. At the same time, it put fear in the minds of the workers."

Friday's incident was not the first between Moya and a local grower. Moya's efforts to correct what he considers unfair labor practices and substandard housing facilities for farm workers have often been met with threats of violence, he said today.

Last summer, Moya led a labor demonstration at the Canyon business of State Sen. Bill Sarpalius, hanging the senator in effigy for his stand on the battle over workman's compensation for farm workers.

Moya said he went to the field after learning that the workers were only being paid 50 cents a bushel for harvesting the onions. He also claimed there was only one toilet facility for the 150 people working that day.

The labor leader said it was his understanding that Seiver was working as a field manager for Griffin and Brand, a local packing shed. A spokesman for the company said this morning he did not wish to comment on the incident nor the nature of Seiver's employment with his firm.

The Brand attempted to speak with Seiver this morning but there was no answer at his residence.

Fund drive for YMCA concludes Saturday

Several activities planned

By SPEEDY NIEMAN
Editor-Publisher

Hereford YMCA has been conducting a "Final Stretch Drive" this week, and the activities will be climaxed Saturday with a number of events planned to put the $925,000 building campaign over the top and end with a victory celebration.

While the "Y" campaign had netted just over $800,000 beginning this week, a challenge grant from the Mabee Foundation for the final $75,000 left the YMCA looking for a $50,000 wrapup this week.

A "Y" board member announced Wednesday that the Saturday goal would probably be in the $30,000 range. Features of the "Final Stretch Day" Saturday include drawings for various prizes for contributors, entertainment, games and, of course, solicitations to put the campaign over the top.

The new facility is already under construction and completion is expected sometime in October. A tour of the partially-completed facility will be conducted at noon Saturday by Rick Brown, president of the board.

Activities have been scheduled from noon to 6 p.m. Saturday at the new Y building. A telephone solicitation committee, headed by Jerry Morgan, will be working from the Plains Insurance Office.

A number of business firms have contributed prizes for the drawings to be held during the day. They include: Park Avenue Florist, plant; Jerry's Exxon, filter, grease and lube, Face Place, tanning series; The Vogue, color analysis; Radio Shak, electronic game; White's Auto, brass headboard; Champion Feeders, one-half beef; Southwest Feed Yard, one-half beef; Deaf Smith REC, electric grill; Western Auto, Cabbage Patch doll; and a quartz alarm clock and a 3-Wheeler. For more information on the drawings, call the Y office.

Entertainment during the afternoon will include the Homer Garrison Quartet, Tracey Coker and Francis Rickenbaugh, Marie Howard, Dee Robinson's Dancers, Nard's trampoline exhibition, Gina Griffin (Miss Hereford) and break dancing.

Weather permitting, hot air balloons will be at the Y building for viewing by spectators, and clowns will be making appearances during the afternoon. YMCA directors will be selling Cokes, helium balloons, and tiles which may be autographed and later installed on an interior wall of the "Y".

Video-taped interviews with YMCA board members concerning various aspects of the new facility will be shown during the day by Hereford Cablevision on Channel 3.

The board of directors recently approved a schedule of membership rates which include a $50 joining fee for those who have not previously contributed $50 or more to the building fund. All contributions made Saturday may go toward this one-time charge. For the various membership rates, contact the "Y" office.

Jail renovation cuts to be examined

Commissioners learn in San Antonio

By REED PARSELL
Managing Editor

Cuts in proposed renovations to Deaf Smith County are being sought by Gondeck and Associates Inc., which drew up plans for and is in charge of the project.

Wednesday, County Judge Glen Nelson and the county commissioners met in San Antonio with Ed Gondeck, president of the architectural firm. It was agreed the company would look into ways the work's cost could be reduced.

Last year, commissioners issued $1.5 million in certificates of obligation to fund both remodeling and addition work at the jail. Changes were requested by the Texas Commission on Jail Standards, which threatened to otherwise close the detention facility or reduce its inmate capacity.

Bids for the project were all more than $300,000 above the anticipated figure. On June 14, commissioners learned the lowest bid for combined detention equipment and general contractor work was $1,827,000.

"I was hoping it would be less than a million and a half on some of those bids," Nelson said after the four offers were opened.

Wednesday's conference was held in the Gondeck and Associates conference room starting at approximately 9 a.m.

"I think we had a pretty productive meeting," commented Commissioner Bill Bradly this morning in a telephone interview. "I think Mr. Gondeck finally understands we're not going to spend more than we started out to."

Diana Bravo, project manager for Gondeck and Associates, today said her firm would examine possible reductions in the next 30 days. The revised plans are to be shown to county officials either here, in San Antonio or with representatives from TCJS in Austin.

The jail commission, Bravo explained over the telephone, must approve any changes made to the renovation plans. Acceptance is usually granted within a few days after drawings are submitted, she said. Bravo did not, though, guess whether any revised Deaf Smith County Jail plans would be found acceptable.

Bravo said there is not much which can be cut from the current architectural plans. Changes in freezing capacity and laundry facilities may be possible, she thought.

Since no preparation of meals beyond heating is done at the jail, Bradly offered, the proposed kitchen work may be sliced. Television-style dinners are the only type of meals served to inmates, he explained.

Thirty-day extensions have been granted by the two lowest bidders for the project, Bradly said. Area Builders Inc. of Odessa offered the smallest charge for general contractor work while the lowest detention equipment bid was turned in by San Antonio's Southern Steel Company.

Should Gondeck and Associates be unable to find enough reductions to bring the project's cost to $1.5 million or less, Bradly said, the process of pinpointing jail changes would have to start again.

Passenger slightly hurt in accident

Thirteen-year-old Debra Carajio sustained minor injuries Wednesday afternoon when a car she was a passenger in skidded off the road, Hereford police reported this morning.

The vehicle, driven by a 12-year-old, was in the 400 block of Maple Street when the accident occurred. Carijio, who lives at 103 Country Club Dr., received minor cuts and abrasions, according to the police report of the accident.

There were two other vehicle mishaps within city limits Wednesday, neither involving any injuries.

In other police matters Wednesday, one person was arrested for driving while license suspended. Investigated were one incident apiece of civil dispute over property, domestic disturbance, harassing telephone calls and vandalism.

'Rebounding' speaker returning

An exercise enthusiast who spoke last month in Hereford will be "back by popular demand" Tuesday night.

Margie Daniels of the Hereford Senior Citizens Association said Leon Hiett of Plano will present a rebounding demonstration at 7:30 p.m. in the "Flame Room" of the Energas building. The public is invited to attend at no charge.

Hiett promotes rebounding as an effective tool in the control of rheumatoid arthritis, high blood pressure, shortness of breath and leg and foot cramps. He is host of the cable television program "Feelin' Good."

Phillips given Wayland award

Dallas Phillips, a 1984 graduate of Hereford High School, has been selected for the Pioneer Scholar Award from Wayland Baptist University in Plainview.

Phillips was named to the honor for a superior score on the ACT college entrance examination, and will receive one-third of her tuition costs for the coming school year.

The college said she will retain the scholarship as long as she maintains at least a 3.25 grade point average on a scale of 4. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Dallas Phillips of Hereford.

WEDNESDAY'S HIGH: 88 (normal high this date: 92 record: 102 (1936))
OVERNIGHT LOW: 62 (normal: 67 record: 59 (1947))
OUTLOOK: Partly cloudy tonight with the possibility of rain less than 20 percent. The low is expected to be in the middle 60s with southerly winds of 5 to 10 miles per hour. Friday is to be fair, have a high near 95 and winds of 10 to 20 miles per hour from the south.

Former professor denies tenure

STEPHENVILLE, Texas (AP) — A former Tarleton State University professor who is suing the university and the Texas A&M System was denied tenure because there were doubts about his his professional competence — not because he is black, school officials say.

Dr. James W. Shores, described in the suit as Tarleton's "first black full-time faculty member," contends he was denied tenure in May 1983 because he is black and because he opposes a "prejudiced" secret student organization.

Shores filed the suit against Tarleton and the Texas A&M system Friday in Fort Worth federal court.

An assistant professor of criminal justice for four years, Shores said he was not granted tenure because of his advocacy of black students and his opposition to the Purple Poo, a campus organization formed in 1922 whose members wear purple, hooded robes to mask their identities.

The lawsuit claims the purpose of the Poo is to "advertise the university was a school for whites and to discourage black participation in the university, including black membership in its tenured faculty."

Rule will cost her job

PASADENA, Texas (AP) — A policewoman says she expects to be fired because she will wed her patrolman fiance despite a city rule that bars married couples from working for the Pasadena police department.

U.S. District Judge Norman Black upheld the regulation Wednesday, although he commented, "It's a harsh rule."

Gail Mahaffey, 31, a personnel and training officer in the Pasadena police academy, wept outside the courtroom after the decision in the one-day trial.

"Obviously I'll get fired, because we're getting married," she said.

Her fiance, motorcycle patrolman Larry Kello, 36, looked grim as he agreed.

"We've already canceled one wedding date," he said. "We're disappointed because we wanted the rule changed so bad. It's obvious the judge thinks it's unfair, and everyone else does, too."

Miss Mahaffey is a six-year veteran and Kello a nine-year veteran on the Pasadena force.

PUC chairman resigns

AUSTIN (AP) — Public Utility Commission Chairman Al Erwin, who leaves office Friday, says Texans should not expect the three-member panel to "insulate" them from rate hikes.

But Erwin, who is quitting five years before the end of his term, said in his resignation speech Wednesday that the commission has laid a heavier "burden of proof" on companies looking for more money.

"I say to consumers that this commission cannot insulate the state from utility rate increases. We can tell you that increases that have been approved and will be approved in the future will be only those absolutely necessary for utilities to meet their financial obligations and to cope with growth, no more, no less," he said.

Gov. Mark White said he would appoint a replacement for Erwin next week.

"Under his leadership the PUC has moved to safeguard the interests of ratepayers and telephone customers in landmark cases including the rate case growing out of the divestiture of AT&T," said White.

The commission in May approved a Southwestern Bell rate hike that added 30 cents a month to monthly home bills. Bell wanted to double those bills.

Protein may cause leukemia

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Scientists today announced the discovery of a new protein and its possible role in causing a common form of leukemia, and experts hailed the latest "breakthrough" in learning how cancer may be triggered by genes.

The study by researchers from the University of California at Los Angeles shows how a genetic change may cause a common type of leukemia in adults called chronic myelogenous leukemia, or CML. The disease strikes an estimated 10,000 new victims each year in the United States.

Genes, the basic units of heredity, control characteristics of all living things and direct the growth and development of normal body cells and tissues. But scientists have identified 20 to 30 genes — called oncogenes — that they believe sometimes cause cells to become cancerous.

The UCLA study demonstrated for the first time how a suspected oncogene called "abl" produces a previously undiscovered protein that functions abnormally.

Sandinistas celebrate anniversary

MANAGUA, Nicaragua (AP) — The leftist Sandinistas today celebrate the fifth anniversary of their rise to power, but opposition groups and the Reagan administration used the occasion to assail the ruling junta.

Sandinista officials said they expected 150,000 people to turn out today for a rally marking the anniversary of their overthrow of rightist President Anastasio Somoza in 1979 after a guerrilla war.

However, opponents of the government predicted the crowd would be only a third of that size, and they again threatened to boycott elections scheduled for Nov. 4 unless the Sandinistas ease restrictions on freedom of press and other liberties.

Today's celebration in Managua was to be highlighted by a speech by Daniel Ortega, coordinator of the Sandinistas' junta and their candidate for president in the Nov. 4 elections. Festivities were scheduled for a $25 million redevelopment project under construction on the shores of Lake Managua in front of a mausoleum that will hold the bodies of Sandinista revolutionary heroes.

Communists drop out

PARIS (AP) — The French Communist Party announced today that it was quitting the government of Socialist President Francois Mitterrand, but that it would continue to support his majority in the National Assembly.

The Communists made their announcement after talks on Wednesday with newly appointed Premier Laurent Fabius, who was putting together a Cabinet to replace the one headed by Pierre Mauroy which resigned Tuesday.

Fabius, the architect of several government austerity programs opposed by the Communists, was expected to announce the make-up of the new Cabinet later today. The Communists, who as junior coalition partners held four of 41 seats in the old Cabinet, have been urging a change in economic policy that would focus on growth and attack unemployment.

During killing spree

Gunman slaughters 20 people

SAN YSIDRO, Calif. (AP) — A fired security guard shouted "I've killed thousands and I'll kill thousands more" as he turned a McDonald's into a slaughterhouse, shooting 20 people to death before police killed him. It was believed to be the worst one-day massacre by one man in U.S. history.

Twenty others were injured, four critically, in Wednesday's rampage, which lasted 90 minutes before a police marksman felled the gunman, James Oliver Huberty, 41, authorities said. His targets ranged from an infant girl to a 60-year-old woman.

Huberty, clad in jungle fatigues and a black T-shirt, burst into the border-town restaurant with a semi-automatic rifle, a shotgun and a handgun and began methodically firing at diners, employees and passers-by, pausing to reload each time his weapons were emptied, authorities said.

When he died, he still had a shoulder bag full of ammunition and "more ammunition out in his car.... If he had not been shot, he would have injured a lot more people," said San Diego police Lt. Paul Ybarrando.

Police sharpshooter Charles Foster was able to pick the gunman off as he wandered zhrough the bullet-riddled, blood-splattered restaurant.

"It's a slaughterhouse. They're just executed," said Lt. Bill Nelson.

Authoriies knew of no motive for the shootings.

Huberty lived with his wife and daughter in an apartment 200 yards from the restaurant and had moved to the San Diego area seven months ago from Ohio, Ybarrando said. He was fired last week from his job at a security guard at a condominium project, Ybarrando said, describing Huberty as "possibly psychotic."

A neighbor told The Los Angeles Times that Huberty's daughter said her parents had fought earlier in the day. Other neighbors said Huberty was a reserved but angry man and recalled incidents in which he had fired guns.

He was "a quiet man who seemed like he was always mad at somebody. He was always frowning," said Sandra Martinez, assistant manager at the Cottonwood Apartments, where Huberty lived.

Another neighbor said Huberty had once fired a shot to scare off someone he thought was trying to steal his motorcycle.

More than two dozen customers and employees were in the McDonald's on busy Interstate 5 when Huberty entered and began "shooting everyone in sight," both inside and outside the restaurant, police Commander Larry Gore said.

Motorists jumped from their cars seeking cover, and the freeway was closed, as was the San Ysidro border crossing to Mexico, one mile away.

Oscar Mondragon, 27, a customer who escaped the gunfire by hiding with a companion under a table and then dashing to safety when the gunman's attention was diverted, said they had just finished their hamburgers when Huberty entered, yelling "Everybody down!"

"I've killed thousands, and I'll kill thousands more," Mondragon quoted Huberty as saying.

"He came in and just said, 'Freeze,' and then he just started shooting," said a teen-age employee who hid in the back of the restaurant.

"If anybody moved, he just shot them," another employee said.

Seventeen people, including the gunman, died inside the restaurant, and four more were killed outside, Ybarrando said. Ten people inside the restaurant escaped without injury.

"There are two kids who just rode up outside and they were killed instantly. There was a man and a woman walking up to the door, and they were offed just like that," Nelson said, snapping his fingers.

Off-duty police Officer Juan Echavarria, who lives near the restaurant, was driving by and tried to help three injured youngsters he saw outside.

"I got out of my truck and started to go toward them, and one kid, the one sitting down, he says, 'Please help us,'" Echavarria said. But as he tried to administer first aid, "I heard glass breaking and ... I just started running."

The three boys were later pronounced dead at the scene, lying near their bicycles.

The shooting left the restaurant windows shattered and bullet holes in a nearby fire truck. Bloodied bodies remained outside the restaurant as night fell, and later were wrapped in yellow plastic and carted away.

Among the wounded was a 6-month-old girl who witnesses said was passed to bystanders by her mother, one of the shooting victims, with a plea to "take care of her." The infant was in critical condition after undergoing surgery Wednesday night; the fate of her mother was not immediately known.

Huberty also fired on police and fire vehicles when they arrived at the scene, said police spokesman Bill Robinson. "He continued firing alternately from a rifle and a handgun, reloading one when the other ran out," Robinson said.

After 90 minutes, police sharpshooters were able to get a clear aim at Huberty and fired a total of five times, striking the gunman once, Ybarrando said.

Mondale wins his long-sought prize

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — As Walter F. Mondale said, he's paid his Democratic dues. At long last, he is collecting on the investment.

He comes to accept his hard-won presidential nomination tonight in the grand finale of the Democratic National Convention, a loyal soldier of the liberal establishment, now in command.

"I come to you today because I've paid my dues," Mondale told a caucus of black delegates on Wednesday. "I've paid my dues."

But an early campaign strategy built around long service, past favors and old loyalties almost proved his undoing, for it left him vulnerable in a party that was changing all around him.

Sen. Gary Hart spotted the opening, and seized the opportunity. He battled Mondale to the end, taunted him to the eve of the nomination. "The nomination of this party is not a gold watch to be given out for faithful service," Hart said.

In his front-running days, the cautious man from Minnesota didn't see it coming. He campaigned at first as though he not only had earned the nomination but as though he already had it. He acted as though his seven challengers were an inconvenience, not real threats.

The Democratic trenches were not for him; he was the front-runner by far, and he would spend the primary election season campaigning against the real target — President Reagan.

He'd been the logical, leading Democrat since Sen. Edward M. Kennedy took himself off the list of prospects on Dec. 1, 1982. Mondale methodically collected endorsements from governors, senators, House members, mayors. The AFL-CIO endorsed him for the nomination.

Those were boom times, on paper. It was all over but the voting. Then the bust, for the voters did not follow his script, and suddenly the front-runner was a loser. Hart trounced Mondale in the New Hampshire presidential primary on Feb. 26.

The front-runner strategy no longer fit. Mondale would have to earn the right to campaign against Reagan by confronting his Democratic rivals head-on.

The comeback was slow, agonizing and expensive. Narrow primary election victories that would have been a disaster for the old Mondale were good enough for the new Mondale.

Ironically, the big labor endorsement that had seemed such a boon became a problem as Mondale's opponents cast him as a candidate too beholden to too many interest groups.

But Mondale managed, where front-runners before had fallen not only from the lead but from the field. The classic case was that of Sen. Edmund S. Muskie in 1972. Muskie, rated far ahead of the field, took some early setbacks and dropped from contention. No candidate before had started so high, fallen so fast, and recovered as Mondale did.

"It wasn't easy," Mondale said Wednesday. "It was tough."

It left scars, for all the pledges of unity sounded by Hart and Jesse Jackson.

mate seemed academic, idealistic and remote two weeks ago, even though women's groups were pushing for it. Eight days ago, Mondale decided, against the advice of some male advisers, to take the gamble.

Pollster George Gallup reported that a survey completed Sunday shows that with Ms. Ferraro, Mondale does a shade better in a race against President Reagan than he would otherwise.

But even Mondale-Farraro trails Reagan-Bush in Gallup's sampling by some 15 percentage points.

In the steamy convention hall, the delegates snubbed their fancy computer termnals and — yielding to the requests of state delegation chairmen yearning for television exposure — voted in thle old-fashioned way, ste by state, by voice, with chairmen offering small speeches of boosterism.

This is a relished relic of the old days when conventions truly selected nominees, and when the outcome was often in doubt.

It wasn't here.

Mondale needed 1,967 delegate votes to win, and the final tally stood this way:

—Mondale, the victor, 2,191.

—Hart, his dream deferred, 1,200.5.

—Jackson, the first black to raise a major party presidential challenge, 465.5.

—And a scattering of others.

Thus, Mondale won on the first ballot — just as has every presidential candidate of either party since 1952, when three roll calls were taken to select Adlai E. Stevenson of Illinois.

In his hotel, Mondale, in shirtsleeves, and his family were joined by Ms. Ferraro and her family to watch his triumph. There was no privacy to the moment; television cameras watched.

To unify party

Mondale acting swiftly

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Walter F. Mondale, even as he prepares to accept his hard-won presidential nomination, is acting swiftly to pull the Democratic Party together for his campaign to oust Ronald Reagan from the White House.

The Democratic presidential nominee planned to take time out from polishing his acceptance speech to attend a victory luncheon today with Senate and House Democratic campaign officials as part of his effort to achieve cooperation among party candidates at all levels.

In his post-victory visit to the convention hall, Mondale reached out to supporters of Sen. Gary Hart and the Rev. Jesse Jackson.

"I also want to say a word to those of you who supported other candidates," he said, appearing on the podium less than an hour after his first-ballot victory. "Sometimes it doesn't feel very good to lose. I know, because it's happened to me in the past."

The night he became his party's presidential nominee was a moment Mondale had fought for years to achieve.

Wednesday night, as he reached his goal, Mondale sat with his family in a 35-floor hotel suite that looked down on the Moscone Center.

Four television sets were stacked, two-by-two, on a table in one corner. A few feet away, Mondale and his wife, Joan, sat on a couch; their sons, William and Ted, were seated nearby. Later, daughter Eleanor Mondale, joined her parents on the couch.

They watched the roll. "Alabama ... Alaska ..." All good states for Mondale.

But it was Illinois that brought the first loud cheers and applause from the Mondale family, as Rep. Dan Rostenkowski, announced the state had given 39 votes to Jackson, 41 to Hart and 114 to Mondale.

That put him back in front of Hart, and he never again fell behind.

When it was New Jersey's turn, Rep. Frank Guarini, was seen stepping to the microphone.

"He's going to pass," said John Reilly, a Mondale political adviser. Sure enough, Guarini said his state wasn't ready to announce its vote, which was heavily for Mondale.

Also in the room were Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Krim. While campaigning in New York, Mondale stayed in Krim's home.

When the New York delegation gave Mondale 156 votes, he turned to Krim and said, "Arthur, that all came out of your apartment."

Mondale aides laughed when the Ohio delegation gave Mondale 84 votes and Hart 80, despite the fact the Coloradan won the primary.

The roll call was droning on when someone brought in a San Francisco newspaper with the headline, "MONDALE WINS."

Mondale laughed and held up the paper. Eleanor tried to stop him.

But then Guarini was back at the microphone and New Jersey's votes soon sent Mondale's total over the 1,967 he needed.

He turned to his wife and they hugged each other. They stood and there was another hug for Eleanor and handshakes for his sons and staff aides.

"Why don't we go over to the hall and thank folks," he said, and moments later they were on their way.

Summertime means swimming, riding bicycles and other outdoor activities for Amy and Mike Schumacher and their family. They enjoy camping and sports, and like to visit new places. They are looking forward to seeing the balloon races in Longview later this summer.

Both have resided in Hereford all of their lives, and they have been married nine years. Their son, Cory, is 5 years old and daughter, Christy, is 3.

Mike is employed by Town and Country Irrigation, putting in sprinkler systems, and Amy works two days a week at the First National Bank.

"I started working at the bank as a VOE student when I was in high school," noted Amy. She was employed full-time until Christy was born, has worked in several different departments, and is currently a teller at the drive-up window. "I really like my job," she said.

Amy Schumacher
...Christy, 3, and Cory, 5

Both of her children go to the day care center the two days she is at work. Cory attended First Baptist Kindergarten three days a week last year and will go five days beginning in the fall. He likes sports, especially basketball, and Christy loves to sing, enjoying children's choir at church.

Mike and Amy have been working with the teens on Wednesday nights at the Church of the Nazarene for about two years. "We really enjoy it – they are such super kids," smiled Amy. "We've probably learned more from them than they have from us."

The couple also play volleyball with the church league.

Amy enjoys doing needlework and likes to cook, preferring easy recipes. "The kids love tuna casserole," she said, adding that the other three are also favorite recipes which she likes to make.

TUNA CASSEROLE

12 oz. can tuna
1 can cream of mushroom soup
1 can cream of chicken soup
1 can chopped green chilies
½ c. water
Grated longhorn cheese
12 oz. pkg. small noodles

Mix together all ingredients except noodles and part of cheese. Cook noodles according to package directions. Mix noodles into mixture. Sprinkle remaining cheese on top. Bake 30 minutes at 375 degrees.

GREEN BEAN SUPREME

Warm a can of green beans with a bit of dill seed and dry mustard; drain. Add six slices of crumbled bacon and one-half pound cubed Velveeta cheese. Bake 12-15 minutes at 375 degrees, stirring once.

EASY BAKE CINNAMON ROLLS

1 can biscuits
½ c. butter (stick is better)
¼ c. brown sugar
¼ c. white sugar
½ Tbsp. cinnamon
¼ c. nuts

Cut each biscuit into fourths. Melt butter and stir in sugars, cinnamon and nuts. Drop biscuits in and coat. Cook in ungreased pan 20-25 minutes at 375 degrees.

TOPPING

½ c. powdered sugar
1 Tbsp. milk
1 Tbsp. melted butter
Vanilla to taste

Drizzle over hot rolls.

COOK WHILE YOU SLEEP COOKIES

2 egg whites
Pinch of salt
⅛ tsp. cream of tartar
Two-thirds c. sugar
¼ tsp. almond extract
1 c. pecans
1 c. chocolate chips

Combine egg whites, salt and cream of tartar; beat until stiff. Slowly add sugar; beat until stiff. Add almond extract, pecans and chocolate chips. Drop by spoonfuls onto foil-covered cookie sheet.

Put in preheated 350 degree oven. Turn off oven. Go to bed. Take out the next morning.

Concert, hayride scheduled Friday

Junior high and high school youth and singles are invited to a concert and devotional at 7 p.m. Friday at Westway Baptist Church, located seven miles west of Hereford on the Harrison Highway.

Gary Hagler from Amarillo is to address the group, and a hayride will follow. For further information contact Ken Varner, music director and singles teacher of Westway Baptist, at 364-5092.

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP) — The first $100,000 Prix de West recently was presented to Wilson Hurley of Albuquerque, N.M., for his painting "Los Alamos Country" by the National Cowboy Hall of Fame.

Hurley was the 12th artist to receive the honor but the first to get the $100,000 purchase award.

His painting will become part of the hall's permanent collection.

Ann Landers

Illness exposes phonies

DEAR ANN LANDERS: My parents (now in their early 70s) worked hard all their lives and put their dreams of retirement on hold. Dad is in good health but Mom has Alzheimer's disease. She cannot be left alone even for a short period of time. He refuses to leave her with "strangers."

Dad has no time for himself or any of the things he used to enjoy. They live 40 miles from me, in a small town with no support groups. I am a working wife, the mother of three small children, but I manage to go see them every weekend so Dad can buy groceries. My husband is very understanding but I feel guilty leaving him to care for the young ones.

It is heartbreaking to see Dad wearing out his health and getting no thanks from Mom. (She is often abusive and obstinate.) What bothers me most is the way their friends have deserted them. When we were growing up, my mother "did" for everybody. She shared everything we had, even when we had very little.

When I telephone her friends and ask them to please stop over and give Dad a little help, they say, "It is heartbreaking to see your mother so changed. Besides, she wouldn't remember we were there anyway." Dad says I shouldn't beg–that he'll manage somehow.

I am surprised at how angry I am. I guess that's what we need you for, Ann Landers. Everyone needs someone to unload on. I don't have the time or money for a therapist, so thanks for listening.–Lou A., Pueblo, Colo.

DEAR LOU: I'm glad you wrote. Do so again if you feel like it.

Alzheimer's is one of the cruelest of all diseases, and as yet there is no cure, but researchers in many centers are working on it.

Bless you and your wonderful father for your kindness and devotion to your mother. Those so-called friends are showing their true colors. Nothing exposes the phonies like sorrow or sickness.

One suggestion: Don't leave your husband on weekends. Insist that he and the kids go with you.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Your column on breast-feeding surprised me. I can't understand why people think it's wrong to nurse a child in a restaurant. It seems like the most natural place in the world to me. I have nursed my infant:

In the hardware department at Sears; on a New York City bus; at the Howard Johnson's across from Grand Central Station; in a supermarket checkout line; in an airport waiting area; at the movies, in church.

You know what people say to me: "My, what a happy baby!" I wear a loose sweater, and no one sees any part of my breast. It's easy to be discreet. As for going to the ladies' room, would YOU go there for lunch?–Joshua's Mom In Newburgh, N.Y.

DEAR NEW: Touche! Mark one up for our side!

Bridal shower honors Margo Davis Tuesday

Margo Davis, bride-elect of Danny Miller of Oklahoma City, was honored with a miscellaneous bridal shower in the home of Sarah Goodfellow on Tuesday evening.

The serving table was centered with an arrangement of roses and hollyhocks in an antique milk glass epirum. Silver appointments were used to serve the guests assorted tea cookies, mints decorated with the bride's chosen colors of pink, yellow and lilac, and punch.

In the receiving line were the honoree; her mother, Mrs. Earl Warrick; and her grandmother, Mrs. Lelah Gardner. Each was presented with a corsage of silk flowers combined with a kitchen utensil.

The hostesses were Oneida Davidson, Mary Jo Hamman, Billie Jo Gee, Jerri Jackson, Ms. Goodfellow and Dorothy Musick of Dimmitt. Thirty guests called during the tea hour.

'Final Stretch Day' scheduled Saturday

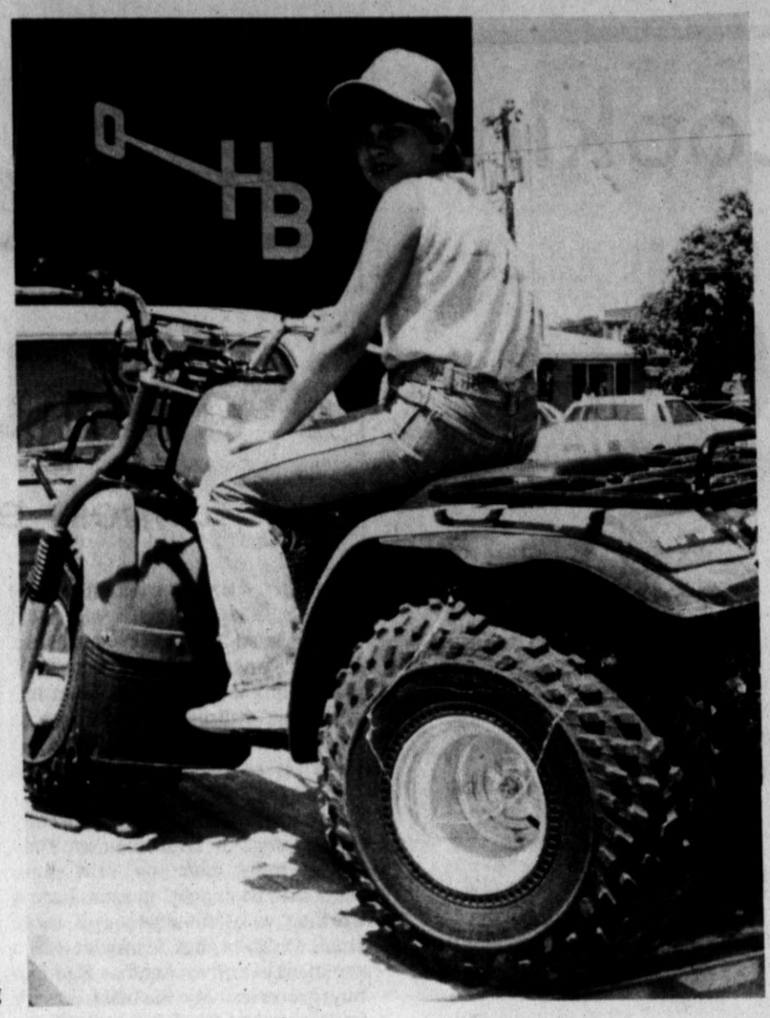

The new YMCA Building on 15th St. east of Highway 385 is to be the site of "Final Stretch Day" activities on Saturday and hopefully a victory celebration concluding this week's final stretch promotion to raise the final $50,000 needed to receive a $75,000 Mabee Foundation grant for completion of the facility.

Tours of the building, which is expected to be completed in October, will be conducted beginning at noon Saturday. Live entertainment, drawings for prizes donated by local businesses, and a "Cow Patty Cakewalk" are scheduled during the afternoon, at 15 minute intervals, concluding at 6 p.m.

Clowns will add to the festive atmosphere, and hot air balloons are to be on hand if the weather permits. The "Y" board will be selling tiles which may be autographed and placed on an interior wall of the new building, as well as helium balloons and Cokes.

Video taped interviews with YMCA board members concerning various aspects of the new facility are to be shown during the day on Cable Channel 3. A telephone committee also plans to conduct a final phone drive to obtain pledges and contributions on Saturday.

The public is encouraged to attend the festivities, and all those making donations to the "Y" on Saturday will be eligible to receive prizes. These contributions may also be applied to a one time joining fee of $50 which is to be charged to prospective members who have not previously donated $50 or more to the building fund.

YMCA Donor Prize

Travis Mize, 12, sits atop a three-wheeler which the Hereford YMCA will give away Saturday as one of the features of the "Final Stretch Day." The "Y" hopes to reach its $925,000 goal for the new building Saturday, and a number of events are planned during the day. For details on the 3-wheeler give-away, call the "Y" office.

Hereford chapter to host family dinner

The Hereford Chapter of Full Gospel Business Men's Fellowship International will host Ron Weber of Broxton, Okla., at a family dinner on Saturday evening in the private meeting room of Caison's Restaurant. The meal is to be served at 7 p.m., with the meeting beginning at 7:45 p.m.

Weber has been active in Mt. Zion Christian Church in Broxton since 1961, serving as a teacher in the young people's and men's class and Sunday school superintendent. He is president of the Anadarko FGBMFI Chapter.

An all-state baseball player in 1958 and runner-up to Oklahoma's Outstanding Young Farmer in 1974, he is a popular speaker at FGBMFI Chapters and churches. He suffered a serious eye injury in 1977. When his doctor gave up on his eye, the scripture, "faith of a mustard seed moves mountains," became a driving force in his life. His wife, Neva, shares in his testimony.

Interested persons are invited to the dinner, as well as to a luncheon and prayer time from 11:45 a.m. to 1 p.m. Tuesday in Caison's private meeting room.

For further information about the local Full Gospel Business Men's Fellowship contact President Richard Schlabs at 276-5332.

Freezer living recommended

PITTSBURGH – Today's more active, health-conscious lifestyle has changed the way people view shopping and food preparation.

Working mothers and full-time homemakers who cook for the family are all looking for new ways to cut down their time spent in the kitchen while, at the same time, continuing to serve nutritious, gourmet-quality meals.

"Freezer living lets you have it all – convenience, economy and nutrition," according to Janet K. Felmeth, director of the White-Westinghouse-Kelvinator Appliance Company Home Economics Institute.

If time is considered to be the most important factor, owning a freezer can save time in both shopping and meal preparation.

Felmeth said an average family of four consumes 2½ tons of food annually. "Without a freezer, that could mean up to 208 shopping trips each year, counting those short runs for milk and bread," she said.

All of these trips take away from your leisure time.

"Owning a 16 cubic-foot freezer can cut shopping trips down to one a week, perhaps even fewer with careful planning," she claimed.

Two hours saved in meal preparation could mean a couple of sets of tennis, making a PTA meeting on time, or enjoying more time for other stress-free, leisure activities.

"A significant amount of time can be saved in day-to-day meal preparation," observed Felmeth. "By cooking and baking in double quantities and freezing the second batch to be enjoyed later, you've cut your time in half. Make it a habit and you'll have some extra time on your hands.

"Today, there is a limitless variety of commercially prepared frozen foods and even self-contained meals that can make nutritious, low-calorie, flavorful meals fast and easy enough for any adolescent or adult family member to handle," she added.

Convenience is also gained in entertaining. Ice cubes, frozen desserts, hors d'oeuvres and even entrees can be made well ahead of the party to allow time for cleaning, flower arranging, and less-frenzied activity on party day. A freezer can also bail-out the host who gets unexpected company.

Felmeth makes a strong case for using a freezer to reduce the family food budget. "The money saved by buying bulk produce and large quantities of sale-priced meats, bakery and prepared frozen foods can significantly reduce the grocery bill," she said.

"Also, families who have their own backyard garden do so equally to save money and for the joy of eating fresh produce," continued Felmeth. "Most active families do not like the hassle of canning and the flavor loss that results in this process. A freezer enables them to safely store the harvest with minimal effort, and freezing will maintain the garden-fresh taste of most produce items, even when served six to eight months later."

The third benefit of freezer living is nutrition. The convenience gained by owning a freezer encourages serving more nutritious, well-balanced meals instead of eating "fast" or "junk" foods.

According to Felmeth, the freezing process, itself, is a more nutritious method of preserving and storing food than other processes. "Freezing does not destroy essential vitamins and minerals, such as Vitamin C, B1 and Riboflavin, which are eliminated using other processes," she said.

"In fact, The American Medical Association reported that commercially frozen foods are more nutritious than many fresh foods purchased at the market. The reason is that fruits and vegetables to be shipped to market are picked a little green and allowed to ripen during shipment. They may lose as much as 65 percent of their vitamins in the process.

However, foods tagged to be commercially frozen are allowed to ripen in the field, then hurried to nearby processing plants and flash-frozen to temperatures of -30 to -50 degrees in a matter of minutes.

Membership pins presented during auxiliary meeting

Dora Lee Howell was presented a 10-year membership pin and Leone Buckley received a 20-year pin during the Monday meeting of the Ladies Auxiliary to VFW 4818.

President Marta Williams conducted the business meeting. The date of the bake sale was changed to July 28 at Sugarland Mall, and it was announced that the two donated afghans are to be given away Sept. 17 (no need to be present). The public is invited to the sale, which will benefit the veterans at the VA Hospital in Amarillo.

Others in attendance were Betty Boggs, Marie Goheen, Frances Green, Maisy Heath, Essie Martin, Erma Murphy, Lillian Miller, Edith Richardson and Mabel Yocum.

The next meeting is scheduled Aug. 6 at the VFW Clubhouse.

Porter paces Cardinal win; Mets top Astros on homer

By BEN WALKER AP Sports Writer

Darrell Porter, tired of arguing, let his bat do the talking.

With two out in the bottom of the 11th inning, Porter belted a grand-slam homer Wednesday night to power the St. Louis Cardinals past the San Francisco Giants 8-4.

The slam, the sixth of Porter's career and his ninth home run of the season, came after a disagreement with San Francisco Manager Frank Robinson.

In the eighth inning, Brad Wellman collided with the St. Louis catcher in front of the plate on an attempted sacrifice bunt. Plate umpire Bob Davidson called Wellman out because of interference, prompting Robinson to argue and play the game under protest.

In the top of the 11th, Johnny Rabb led off with a single and took second on a sacrifice. Manny Trillo then singled and Rabb tried to score, but Porter took the throw from center fielder Andy Van Slyke and tagged out Rabb — twice.

"Frank asked Bob on the play if I had tagged the runner coming and why I tagged him twice," Porter recounted. "I said, 'Frank, sometimes the umpire's going to miss the first tag.' He said, 'You have no business talking to me.'

"It was really strange," Porter said. "I hate to admit it, but after all that took place, I was a little more contented than I would normally be."

In other NL games, Atlanta nipped Montreal 3-2 in 10 innings, Pittsburgh stopped Los Angeles 5-2, Philadelphia beat Cincinnati 7-5, New York downed Houston 3-1 and Chicago defeated San Diego 4-1.

Phillies 7, Reds 5

The last time the Philadelphia Phillies had swept a three-game series in Cincinnati was July 1956, when the Reds played in Crosley Field.

But Mike Schmidt drove in four runs with a pair of homers and a bases-loaded single to give the Phillies their first three-game sweep in the 14-year history of Riverfront Stadium.

Schmidt's two-run single came during a burst of six straight singles with two out in the third inning off Jeff Russell, 4-11.

Braves 3, Expos 2

Dale Murphy, known for his slugging, won the game for Atlanta with his baserunning.

With two out in the 10th inning, Murphy singled off Bill Gullickson, 6-7. Ken Oberkfell then hit a grounder that Montreal second baseman Doug Flynn reached in short right field but could not hold. When Flynn retrieved the ball and threw to second, trying to get Oberkfell, Murphy sprinted home with the winning run.

Gullickson had a perfect game going through six innings. Gerald Perry stroked Gullickson's first pitch of the seventh into right field for a single.

Gary Carter hit his 17th home run in the first inning to put host Montreal ahead 2-0.

Steve Bedrosian, 6-6, pitched two innings for the victory.

Mets 3, Astros 1

New York managed just three hits, but one of them was a two-run homer by Keith Hernandez that capped a three-run uprising in the fifth inning.

Hernandez smacked his ninth home run of the season with two outs following an error by Houston hurler Nolan Ryan. The error made all three runs unearned.

Ryan, 7-6, went seven innings and gave up all three Mets hits.

Walt Terrell, 8-7, and Jesse Orosco, who got his 19th save, combined on an eight-hitter at the Astrodome.

Pirates 5, Dodgers 2

Larry McWilliams allowed six Los Angeles hits and issued seven walks, yet he improved his record to 6-8 with the help of two double plays and a fine throw by right fielder Doug Frobel.

Jerry Reuss, making his first start for the Dodgers in seven weeks because of elbow problems, retired just one batter as he was roughed up by the host Pirates.

Jim Morrison cracked an RBI double and Tony Pena and Brian Harper had run-scoring singles as Pittsburgh took a 3-0 lead in the first inning.

Pena's single off Reuss, 2-4, extended his hitting streak to 16 games.

The Pirates led 5-0 in the fifth before the Dodgers loaded the bases with two out. R.J. Reynolds singled home two runs, but Steve Sax was cut down by Frobel while trying to go from first to third.

Cubs 4, Padres 1

Rick Sutcliffe pitched a strong six-hitter and helped his own cause with two singles. The right-hander, 6-1, struck out six and walked one.

Chicago took a 3-0 lead in the first inning in chasing San Diego starter Ed Whitson, 10-5.

Bob Dernier led off the Cubs first with a single and scored on Ryne Sandberg's 12th triple of the season. Leon Durham doubled home Sandberg and Jody Davis added an RBI single.

Carmelo Martinez homered, his 12th of the season, for the Padres' run in the seventh.

Blyleven, Butcher, Leal show way with sparkling mound jobs

By BARRY WILNER AP Sports Writer

Bert Blyleven showed once more why he owns the Kansas City Royals. John Butcher did the same against Baltimore. And Luis Leal showed the California Angels stuff they'd never seen from him.

Blyleven, Butcher and Leal each hurled their teams to victory Wednesday night. The Cleveland Indians got a solid 7 1-3 innings from Blyleven in a 2-1 decision over Kansas City. Butcher posted a six-hitter to guide Minnesota past Baltimore 3-1, while Leal hurled a five-hitter in Toronto's 8-2 shellacking of California.

Elsewhere in the American League, it was Chicago 10, Detroit 6; Oakland 7, Boston 2; New York 3, Texas 1 and Milwaukee 5, Seattle 2.

No pitcher in the 15-year history of the Royals has been more devastating against them than the red-hot Blyleven. The veteran curveball specialist notched his fifth straight victory this season to up his record to 9-3. Blyleven is 23-14 lifetime against KC, including 4-0 this year.

Yankees 3, Rangers 1

New York won its seventh game in eight starts since the All-Star break as Don Baylor homered and Ron Guidry combined with Jay Howell on a six-hitter.

The visiting Rangers' only run came on Ned Yost's home run in the second inning.

Guidry has won two straight decisions to up his record to 8-7 in what has been the worst season of his nine-year career.

"I was rushing myself and losing the good fastball," said Guidry. "If I just relax and throw with a nice, easy motion, my fastball explodes. I needed to get back to that."

Brewers 5, Mariners 2

Ted Simmons had three hits and drove in a pair of runs at Seattle. Don Sutton evened his record at 8-8 as he surrendered seven hits, struck out four and didn't allow a walk in eight innings. Rollie Fingers pitched the ninth to earn his 20th save.

White Sox 10, Tigers 6

Greg Luzinski, who is having a rough year, poked four hits, drove in a pair of runs and ignited a three-run fifth again Detroit ace Jack Morris with a leadoff double.

"Once you win everybody forgets what kind of season you had," said Luzinski, who is batting .236. "I just want to contribute to a winning team. People remember you as winners."

Morris no-hit the White Sox April 7 but has a 7.64 earned run average in his last five starts.

A's 7, Red Sox 2

Oakland, which scored nine runs during a five-game losing streak, jumped to a 5-0 lead in the first inning and cruised past visiting Boston.

Leadoff batter Rickey Henderson walked, Tony Phillips doubled and Dwayne Murphy had an RBI single. Dave Kingman followed with a sacrifice fly, Carney Lansford ripped a single, sending Murphy to third, and Murphy scored on a grounder by Bruce Bochte. Then Mike Heath belted a two-run homer to end Dennis Boyd's pitching day.

Kingman, who leads the majors with 26 homers and 82 runs batted in, connected in the bottom of the seventh, soon after Tony Armas of Boston hit his 25th homer in the top of the inning.

"They were tied about eight minutes," noted A's Manager Jackie Moore.

Twins 3, Orioles 1

Butcher won his fourth game of the year against Baltimore — clinching the season series 7-5 for Minnesota, the first time since 1976 the Twins have mastered the Orioles. It was his fifth consecutive victory against Baltimore.

"I don't know what it is," said Butcher, who is 18-23 lifetime. "I just throw strikes and they're swinging away, hitting my sinker. I don't do anthing differently. I pitch the same way against them as I pitch against any club.

Blue Jays 8, Angels 2

Leal, 11-2, leads the league in winning percentage. But his record against the Angels was 1-7 — 0-5 in Anaheim — before Wednesday.

The right-hander from Venezuela took care of that streak in style and was helped by Toronto's five-run second inning, in which the Jays bunched four singles.

"I'm very happy because I've had a tough time out here," said Leal. "It feels good to beat the Angels here and not have to face them anymore this year."

YOU AUTO KNOW
Don Henslee

Q. I'm going to buy a new car this summer, and don't want to have it rust out from under me. What precautions should I take? A. The only time for rust prevention is when the car is new. If a car has been exposed to salt and water just once, prevention is nearly impossible. Having the car undercoated is the first step. Then comes rust-proofing which can be done either commercially, or by yourself with do-it-yourself rust-proofing kits. Next, washing. How often? Every time it needs it - when it needs it. But, don't just spray. Wash it, spray it (including under rocker panels, fender wells) wipe it down and wax it with a good quality wax at least twice a year. Even if salt isn't prevalent in your area, chances are it is in the next county or state - and a little care will help prevent what has been called "automotive cancer."

19 Hereford youth qualify for state

Nineteen youngsters from the Hereford Track Club have qualified to compete in a state track meet to be held in Brownwood Aug. 3 and 4.

The youths advanced to Brownwood by finishing first or second at the Texas Amateur Athletic Federation meet which took place Saturday in Lubbock.

Hereford will have representatives in six divisions, bantam, midget, junior, intermediate, senior and open.

Members of the club meeting Monday, Wednesday and Friday afternoons for practice.

The city could have been represented by more young athletes but state tournament baseball action coincided with Lubbock's qualifying meet and many could not take part in track.

In the following results of Saturday's meet state qualifiers are printed in bold.

Tennis

BROOKLINE, Mass. (AP) — Guillermo Vilas says he's ready to battle to resurrect his once brilliant tennis career. He had to battle simply to stay alive in the U.S. Pro Tennis Championships.

"The only thing I have to do is win," said Vilas, a first-round loser in five of his previous seven tournaments this year. "I've been in bad shape other times. I had to fight. I'm used to fighting. I've never had it easy."

It certainly wasn't easy Wednesday night when the Argentine barely survived a stiff challenge from Pedro Rebolledo of Chile to escape with a 3-6, 6-1, 7-6 victory in the second round of the $200,000 U.S. Pro event at the Longwood Cricket Club.

In the only other match Wednesday night, top-seeded Jimmy Arias needed just 52 minutes to crush unseeded Terry Moor, 6-2, 6-3, in the second round. Nine singles and nine doubles matches were postponed by an afternoon rain and rescheduled for today.

"It was very important to win a tight match," the fifth-seeded Vilas said of his victory over the unseeded Rebolledo. "I had the match in my hand, then he had it, then I got it back, which is very good because it's like several matches in one."

Rebolledo, who is tied for 80th in the world rankings, won the first two games of the final set, but Vilas, ranked 14th, charged back to win the next four and gain three break points in the next game.

Newhouse fifth Cowboy to retire since close of '83 season

By DENNE H. FREEMAN AP Sports Writer

THOUSAND OAKS, Calif. (AP) — Veteran fullback Robert Newhouse has become the fifth Dallas Cowboy to retire since the close of the 1983 National Football League season.

As a result, Coach Tom Landry will be missing 71 years in experience from last season's team. Three other players left for the United States Football League and Butch Johnson was traded to the Houston Oilers.

"I don't know how we will replace all that experience," Landry said Wednesday night after learning of Newhouse's decision. "It's a season of challenge for us."

Although the stumpy Newhouse, 34, had played sparingly in recent seasons, Landry was counting on him as a backup to Ron Springs and Timmy Newsome.

"I didn't expect it," said Landry. "I really thought Robert would play this season."

"I've done evertying I could in football," said Newhouse who telephoned the news of his retirement to Landry from Dallas.

Newhouse, who played collegiate ball at the University of Houston, was a second-round draft choice in the 1972 NFL draft. He finished his 12-year career with the Cowboys as the team's fourth all-time leading rusher.

Newhouse said his pro career "was really enjoyable," but he had decided it was "time to get on with the rest of my life.

"Everything was sort of repeating itself. I've been through it all. I've been to Super Bowls and I've been through seasons like last year that saw a lot of unrest.

"Last year was too much," he said.

Landry said Newhouse "did everything you expected of him, even playing on special teams, which spoke well of his charachter."

Asked to describe Newhouse's running style, Landry said, "He was like a big ol' bowling ball. He was steady but not spectacular but, boy, was he hard to bring down."

Newhouse said he planned to concentrate his time on "a couple of businesses." He added that he would be looking for an opening in football administration.

However, Newhouse said he wasn't interested in coaching.

"I guess I've been a player too long to be a coach," he said.

Newhouse led the Cowboys in rushing in the 1975 Super Bowl season with a career-best 975 yards. One of the most memorable moments of his career took place in the 1978 Super Bowl, when he tossed a 29-yard pass to Golden Richards to seal Dallas' victory over the Denver Broncos.

He played in 96 straight regular-season games for the Cowboys during the 1970s, a streak that ended when he suffered a broken leg against New Orleans in 1978.

Newhouse's biggest day in a Cowboy uniform was against St. Louis in 1979 when he gained 124 yards.

Defensive end Harvey Martin, tight end Billy Joe DuPree and offensive tackle Pat Donovan retired before training camp began. Wide receiver Drew Pearson announced his retirement recently after being told by doctors that a liver injury he suffered in an off-season traffic accident had not healed.

Three other Cowboys — quarterback Glenn Carano, defensive lineman Elvin Bethea and linebacker Bruce Huther — jumped to the USFL.

'Guts' early favorite in Meadowlands Pace

EAST RUTHERFORD, N.J. (AP) — Driver Bill O'Donnell and Barry Abrams have Guts, and that could get them a piece of the $646,500 first prize in Meadowlands Pace Friday night.

Last Friday, Guts made a trip around the Meadowlands' one-mile oval in 1:53 1-5 to beat nine rivals in an elimination heats. His winning margin was three lengths over Farmstead's Fame.

The colt is the early 2-1 favorite, but Friday night his opposition should be tougher than it was the previous week. His 11 opponents will include Andrel, On the Road Again and Jariz, who all were timed in 1:53 in finishing 1-2-3 in another elimination heat.

The first three finishers in four elimination heats qualified for the final.

"He's won't get through as easy as he did last week ... probably," said O'Donnell. "But they'll know he's in the race."

"He's getting better by the week," said Abrams. "Post position decides who's the favorite. But the odds don't mean a thing."

On The Road Again, who has won 11 of 15 starts, including the Cane Pace at Yonkers Raceway, and $706,250 this year, was made the early 5-2 second choise after drawing the No. 10 post. This means the colt driven by Buddy Gilmour and trained by Harry Pulton, will start in the second row with Nero's Bred, who drew the No. 9 post. Guts will start from the No. 7 post.

But Guts has more going for him than just post position.

The son of Raven Hanover-Majoracan, owned by Stuart Garawitz, Harvey Schwartz and Ralph Pocaro of New Jersey, has won 11 of 16 starts this year, with two seconds and two thirds.

Watson takes aim on British Open

ST. ANDREWS, Scotland (AP) — Tom Watson arrived at the historic fairways of St. Andrews for the 113th British Open golf championship with his sights set on a record-tying sixth title.

"This place has a special meaning for me," Watson said Wednesday as he prepared to open defense of his title today in the chase for the $65,000 first prize.

"It is the most important place of all to win the Open championship. When people think of golf in the United States they think of Pebble Beach," he said referring to the California golf course. "Over here, it's St. Andrews."

Watson, listed as a 5-to-1 favorite to equal Harry Vardon's 60-year-old record of six British titles, entered the British Open with three 1984 victories, including the Western Open — his last tournament before St. Andrews. He currently leads the PGA Tour's earnings list with $426,959.

"Right now, I'm playing well enough to win. But there are a lot of good people standing in my way," Watson, 34, said.

One of those considered a threat is Watson's playing partner today, hard-hitting Australian Greg Norman, recent winner of the Canadian Open.

Norman has yet to win a major tournament but he lost the U.S. Open last month in an 18-hole playoff to Fuzzy Zoeller and is considered by his peers, including Watson, asd being ready to break through here.

Norman has won 31 tournaments worldwide and has been the hottest golfer in the United States in recent months, winning two of his last five starts and coming desperately close to capturing the others.

Watson and Norman were scheduled to play alongside West Germany's Bernhard Langer.

Jack Nicklaus, having dispelled British press reports that he could miss the tournament because of illness, said he had gotten over a cold following a good night's sleep and that he played "reasonably well" during his final practice session on Wednesday.

Nicklaus says old course is difficult

ST. ANDREWS, Scotland (AP) — To know the Old Course at St. Andrews, says Jack Nicklaus, is to know the impossible.

"You have to realize," he says, "that you don't have a clue as to what is going to happen."

Nicklaus, 44, today began the quest for a third consecutive British Open Golf Championship on this historic course, recognized as the cradle of the game.

"I've loved this course since I first set foot on it," said Nicklaus, who won the British Open here in 1970 and 1978. "I love it for what it is. It's 300 years old and yet it withstands modern golf."

Nicklaus has a record 17 major professional titles, including four U.S. Opens, five PGAs, five Masters and three British Opens. In addition to the two triumphs at St. Andrews, he also won at Muirfield in 1966, has been second in the British Open a record seven times and has finished third twice and fourth on two other occasions.

Now, obviously in the twilight of an unmatched career, he's attempting to add still further to his record.

After completing a last practice round — and shrugging off reports of his ill health — he answered prevalent rumors that, should he win this tournament, he would retire.

"A lot of people have asked me if I win here, would I retire," he said.

"I don't think I'm that smart."

Then he smiled and added: "I'd just like, on Sunday, to have that option."

Nicklaus, winner of his own Memorial Tournament earlier this season, said he has played "reasonably well, not great, but reasonably well" in his practice sessions.

A recent cold will not be a factor in his performance, he said. He skipped a dinner for former champions early in the week, which prompted reports he was seriously ill and may be forced to withdraw.

"I'd had a cold. I had a headache. I'd had a busy schedule. I just decided I needed a night's sleep. I'm fine now," Nicklaus said.

Nicklaus said that under inopportune conditions, the Old Course itself can cause a lot of headaches.

"The weather, and the wind, can change it drastically," he said. "Even if the weather is fairly gentle, you're still going to get a lot of awkward shots.

"You can have conditions where there are three or four holes where you don't have a place to play. And those holes change from day to day. They can be any three holes. It depends on the conditions."

Four teams tie in city scramble

Four teams carded a 27 over nine holes in the weekly City Golf Scramble at Pitman Municipal Course Wednesday afternoon.

The merchandise prizes will increase and carry over to next Wednesday. Two teams had tied last week to produce a carry-over situation this week. When there is a tie for low team score, the merchandise prizes are increased and the entire field vies again the following week.

Bicycle races set at Buffalo Lake

Bicycle road races are scheduled at Buffalo Lake near Umbarger Saturday, and the competition is open to area biking enthusiasts.

Two races–31 and 62 miles – are to be held beginning at 8:30 a.m., and the public is invited to attend. The races are sponsored by the Flatlanders Bicycle Club of Amarillo.

A hamburger and hot-dog fry is also scheduled. For information on entering the races, contact Jerry Sena, 364-0931.

Garden's 'gofer' dies at 88

By HAL BOCK AP Sports Writer

The obituary pages routinely noted the passing the other day of Morris Ladisky, 88, who was retired for some years from the business of boxing.

His associates might have missed it though, because they never knew him by the name Morris Ladisky.

To them, he was Mushky Jackson, raconteur, man about town, master of the malaprops, and genuine Broadway character.

If he hadn't lived, Mushky would have to have been an invention of Damon Runyon or Ring Lardner. He was their kind of guy, a court jester complete with a profile that looked like an old glove, a man who massaged the English language in a a raspy voice that sounded like two pieces of sandpaper being rubbed together.

Jackson referred to himself as a "Publicity Assistant," for the boxing department at Madison Square Garden. Less kind observers would describe him as the Garden's gofer. He would provide anything you needed, from philosophy to fighters.

Once, sitting in the Garden's boxing office, Jackson was listening to a discussion involving the misappropriation of a rather large sum of cash by some neighborhood ne'er do well.

"He swindled $250,000," one man said.

Always a student of economics, Mushky's ears perked up at the number.

"When did it happen?" Jackson asked.

"Five years ago," he was told.

"Ahhh, he's all right then," Mushky decided. "The Statue of Liberty's run out."

Before turning to philosophy, Jackson managed a stable of less-than-outstanding boxers. One of his guys was Stanley Poreda and in 1934, during the depths of the Depression, Jackson escorted Poreda to Chicago for a bout against a young heavyweight named Joe Louis.

They were traveling by air on what might be described as a tight budget and each time a stewardess came by with a meal, Poreda and Jackson sat frozen in their seats.

Finally, the stewardess asked if they wouldn't like something to eat. "It's compliments of the airline," she explained.

"You mean it's free?" said Jackson.

"Yes," she replied.

With that, the manager elbowed Poreda in the ribs and said, "Eat, Stanley, eat!"

Another time, Jackson got an urgent call from a local boxing club in New York. The arena was desperate for a heavyweight to fight a four-rounder that night. It was short notice but the purse was $25 and for that kind of money, Jackson knew where to look.

He rushed over to a local restaurant, which employed a 6-foot-6 doorman. "When's your supper hour?" Jackson asked.

"Eight o'clock," the doorman replied.

"Come with me," Mushky commanded.

The doorman followed obediently, took a quick dressing-room boxing lesson from Jackson and arrived in the ring. One punch later, he was on his way back to the restaurant.

Later that evening, when members of the boxing community rendezvoused at the restaurant for nightcaps, they thought they recognized the doorman.

"Naaah," advised Jackson, "you ain't never seen him before."

For his trouble, the doorman had earned $5. The other $20 went to Jackson. Call it a finder's fee.

Wisconsin 4-H members to visit county

A group of ten 4-H members and two 4-H chaperones from Shawano County, Wis., are scheduled to arrive in Hereford Friday evening to participate in a new county 4-H exchange program sponsored by both states' Agricultural and Cooperative Extension Services.

The 4-H'ers will be participating in several group and county-wide activities during their stay in Deaf Smith County July 20-26. The exchange is designed to allow 4-H'ers from both states to visit and compare various aspects of family life, agriculture, economics, social culture, geography, schools and 4-H programs in their respecitve states, explained County Extension Agent Susan Raney.

The Wisconsin 4-H'ers, who are from a county heavily involved in dairy production situated in a region near Green Bay, are to stay with several host families who are involved in the county 4-H program here.

Host families include Messrs. and Mmes. Eddie Derr, Marvin Finley, Bob Hicks, Mark Hicks, T.L. Kemp, Bill Lookingbill, Frank Robbins, Tony Urbanczyk, Bill West and Dennis Newton. Their respective Wisconsin 4-H delegates includes Tammy Ann O'Niel, Dawn Dallman, Lori Krueger, Greg Tauchen, Kay Rosenow, Jodi Kucksdorf, Douglas Pahlow, Peter Jung, Dustin Zernicke, Kelly Uelmen, and their sponsors, Al and JoAn Fehrman.

Among the activities planned for the exchange are a swimming party and ice cream social, tour of the West Texas State University Panhandle-Plains Historical Museum, a visit to scenic Palo Duro Canyon and the outdoor musical, "Texas," and various agricultural tours in Deaf Smith County.

Free time will be spent with host families in their homes and on their farms just getting acquainted with the Panhandle way of life.

For further information on the county 4-H exchange contact Raney at the County Extension Office.

Educational programs sponsored by the Texas Agricultural Extension Service serve all people regardless of age, socioeconomic status, race, religion, sex, or ethnic background.

Today in History

Today is Thursday, July 19, the 201st day of 1984. There are 165 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:

On July 19, 1848, a pioneer women's rights convention called by Elizabeth Cady Stanton and Lucretia Mott convened in Seneca Falls, N.Y.

On this date:

In 1553, Lady Jane Grey was deposed, and King Henry VIII's daughter Mary was proclaimed Queen of England.

In 1870, the Franco-Prussian War began.

In 1918, during World War I, German armies began a retreat across the Marne River in France, following the failure of their last big offensive on French soil.

In 1943, Allied air forces raided Rome during World War II.

In 1969, Apollo Eleven — carrying astronauts Edwin Aldrin, Neil Armstrong and Michael Collins — went into orbit around the moon.

Ten years ago: Both the Democratic and Republican senior counsels to the House Judiciary Committee urged the panel to recommend the impeachment of President Richard Nixon.

Five years ago: The shake-up of President Jimmy Carter's cabinet continued with the resignation of Attorney General Griffin Bell and the firings of Treasury Secretary Michael Blumenthal and Health, Education and Welfare Secretary Joseph Califano.

One year ago: President Reagan named the members of a bipartisan commission to study U.S. policy in Central America.

Today's birthdays: Former Sen. George McGovern is 62. Actress Helen Gallagher is 58. Singer Vikki Carr is 42. Actor Dennis Cole is 41. Actor Peter Barton is 25.

Thought for today: "One is not born a woman, one becomes one." — Simone de Beauvoir, French author.

Hightower raps President Reagan's policy

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Because of the severity of economic problems now plaguing American family farmers, Depression-era action is necessary to save them, Texas Agriculture Commissioner Jim Hightower says.

In a Democratic National Convention speech punctuated by one-liners about President Reagan, Hightower on Wednesday urged Democrats to back a moratorium on farm foreclosures by government lenders.

"The Democratic Party must now step forward — just as it did under Franklin Roosevelt 52 years ago — to save the independent family structure of American agriculture," Hightower said.

President Reagan has no idea what to do about the problems, Hightower said.

"Ronnie Reagan's idea of a good farm program seems to be 'Hee Haw.' But the joke is on you and me because ultimately we are the ones who are going to pay the price at the supermarket check-out counter."

Hightower, who chaired the party's national agriculture council which held hearings across the country this year, said Reagan's road to economic recovery hasn't reached the nation's farms.

"The farm economy is now in a raging, full-fledged depression," he said.

"These hard-hit, hard-scrabble families are desperate, depressed, angry, hurt and resentful ... Bankruptcy has become commonplace in rural America since Reagan took the reins. Every week that Ronald Reagan has been in office, more than 1,000 good, productive farmers have been squeezed out of business."

More than 200,000 farmers have lost their land and 1 million more now are near bankruptcy, he said.

Economic disaster on the farms means wider trouble and higher food prices for all, he added.

"When farms go, businesses go. People go. Banks go. Whole towns go. What we are seeing is the collapse of an entire economic structure.

"If we don't respond, the same kind of conglomerates that bring you your utility bill will soon be bringing you your grocery bill."

Hightower urged the Democratic Party to emphasize the farm problems in the presidential campaign and not ignore them, as has sometimes happened in the past.

"The emergency is now. The change must come now. We cannot wait for another election," he said.

Hightower, a vice chairman of the party's platform committee, said the Democratic farm program will include calls for:

— A moratorium on farm foreclosures by government lenders so farmers can have a chance to restructure and repay their loans.

— Farm legislation targeting benefits "specifically to the small and medium family farmers" rather than large conglomerate operations and tax-loss ventures.

— Establishing floor prices for farm commodities that at least meet the cost of producing them.

— Adjusting supply to meet world demand.

— Demanding effective, locally controlled soil and water conservation practices.

Hightower placed the blame for farm troubles directly on the president.

While the administration has refused to change the farm credit system to help financially troubled farmers stay in business, he said, it has been quick to give money to defense contractors and foreign governments.

"If you're a military contractor who wants to sell a 37-cent widget to the government, no problems — here's a thousand dollars from Reagan's administration. Keep the change. If you're any right-wing Latin American dictator with a pair of sunglasses, you can get enough money from this administration to burn a wet mule.

"But if you're just a dirt farmer, needing some extra time on your little farm loan because the prices you're receiving don't even meet expenses, this bunch slams the door of your own government in your face."

Hightower recalled a statement by Democratic President Harry Truman, who once declared, "No man should be allowed to be president who doesn't understand hogs."

"Well, I'll tell you what," Hightower said, "we've got a guy in the White House right now who doesn't know a hog from a hand grenade."

Reagan, Hightower told Democrats, has turned the White House "into a private club for a bunch of Gucci-wearing, Cabernet-sipping, globe-hopping Hollywood plutocrats. And it's our happy duty to throw the rascals out."

Delegation supports Mondale

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Walter Mondale's first-ballot nomination as the Democratic presidential candidate was harmonious and puts the party in good shape for the November elections, Texas Democrats say.

"I feel very good about it. I feel much better than I did six months ago," said Millie Bruner of Grand Prairie, a Democratic national committeewoman.

The Texas delegation to the Democratic National Convention overwhelmingly supported Mondale on the first ballot Wednesday night after state party chairman Bob Slagle nominated him and state Treasurer Ann Richards gave an empassioned seconding speech.

Of Texas' 200 delegates, 119 voted for Mondale, 40 for Sen. Gary Hart, 36 for the Rev. Jesse Jackson and two for Ohio Sen. John Glenn, who dropped out of the presidential race months before the convention.

Three Texas congressmen — Ralph Hall, Chick Kazen and Charles Wilson — failed to attend the convention. Because they were chosen from Congress, they could not be replaced under party rules by alternates.

Ms. Bruner said she believed supporters of Hart and Jackson will quickly rally to Mondale. And she contrasted the vote Wednesday with President Carter's renomination four years ago after a bitter fight with Sen. Edward Kennedy.

"It's so much different than in (the) New York (convention) in 1980. When that was over, Kennedy people were angry," she said.

Ms. Bruner said she believes Jackson's campaign brought new, enthusiastic people into the party and that Hart backers, too, will unite against Reagan as the candidate asked them to do.

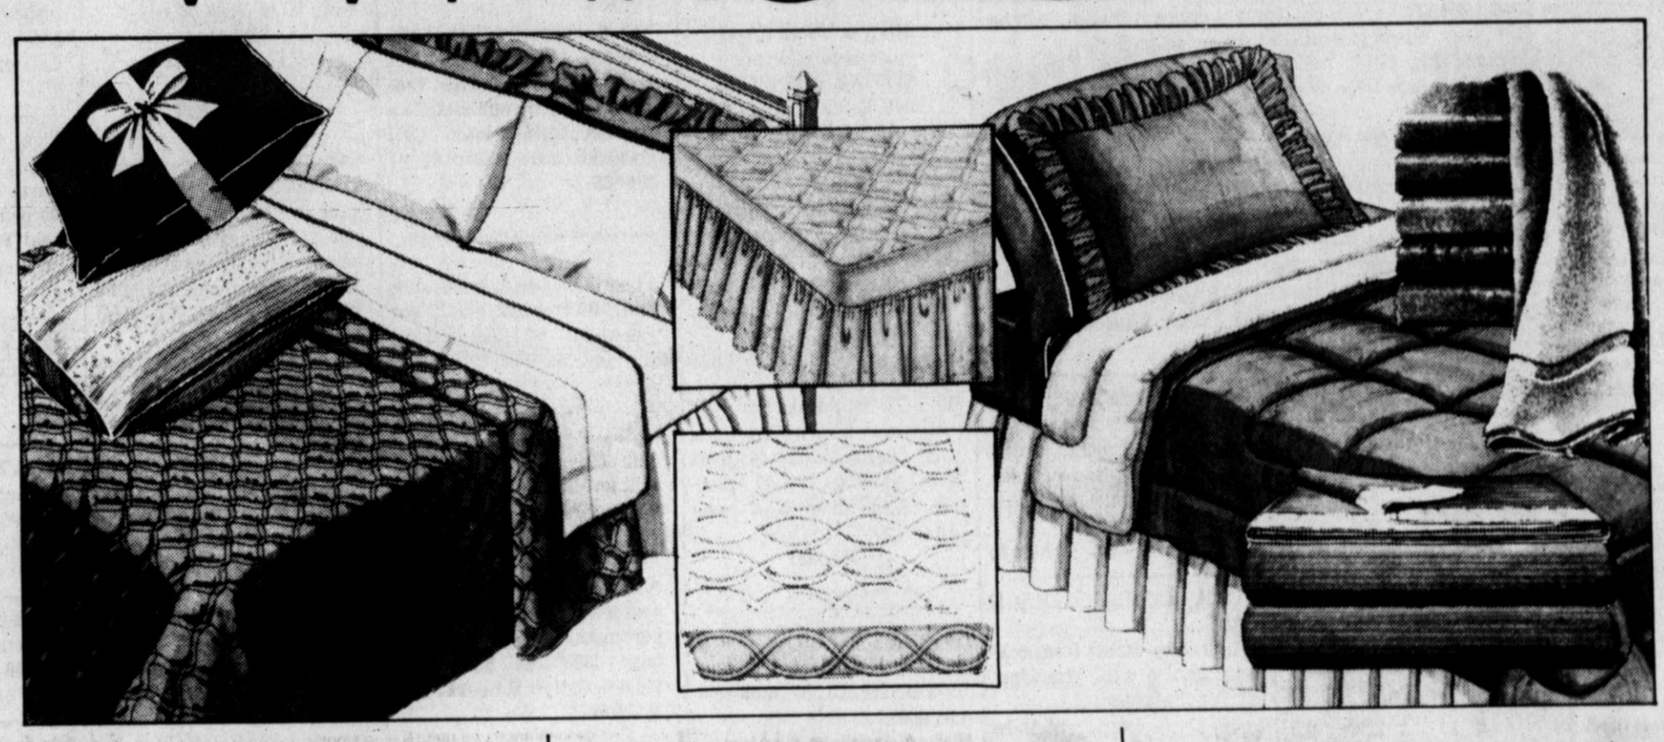

Others agreed.

"There's no problem (with unity)," Slagle said.

"The Texas delegation is not going to get mad at each other because of presidential preference. We've worked together before this convention and will work together after."

Railroad Commissioner Buddy Temple, a co-chairman of Mondale's Texas primary campaign, said he believes Mondale and his running mate, New York Rep. Geraldine Ferraro, can carry the state.

Police officer helps children

CORSICANA, Texas (AP) — The telephone rings.

"Hello ... can you tell me what happened to you."

Silence.

"Did someone hurt you?"

The child — a victim of incest brought to the police station for questioning — holds one end of a plastic toy telephone and looks up into Don Hudson's eyes, crying.

"Why don't you tell me about it and I'll try to help you," he says.

Hudson's office is filled with soft furniture, elegant pictures, stuffed toys and a couple of play telephones that he uses in dealing with children who are too frightened to talk to him.

Hudson, the Corsicana Police Department's youth officer who sees an average of 15-20 juveniles a week, uses a fatherly approach in dealing with Corsicana's troubled youngsters, hoping to help them cope with their problems.

"You have to build up a trust between yourself and the child," said Hudson, who handles juvenile cases of rape, burglary, theft and vandalism. "Then they will talk to you about their problems."

He's a father himself — his daughter Sarah is 7 years old — and he says he tries his best to be a father-figure to the frightened children who are brought to his office.

Hudson says he believes that all youngsters are good people.

"They were just steered the wrong way and didn't make the right choices in life," he said.

Brought up in what he called the ghetto of Houston, Hudson says he remembers when he was 6 years old and part of a street gang that did nothing but get into trouble.

"We even busted out the windows of a police car once," he said.

In 1964, Hudson moved to Mexia and met a man who turned his life around by preaching the gospel to him.

"He took an interest in me and made me realize that I wasn't all bad just because I had made a few mistakes," said Hudson. "That is the type of reinforcement I try to give these kids; otherwise they won't be able to cope with life and they won't trust anyone."

Trust is a feeling children can lose after repeated neglect by their parents, said Hudson, and he tries to restore that temporarily by offering the children advice.

"I believe that God gave us all free will," said Hudson, "and choosing the right path is something I try to drill into these kids' heads.

"Johnny has a choice in life," he said. "We need to, as parents, give him more of the right ones."

Ten years ago, Hudson joined the Corsicana police force with a love of children and hopes of attaining the position he has today. He was named youth officer last year, and recently has been named policeman of the year by several service groups.

"My job, as a police officer, is to send the child to prison where he belongs," Hudson said, "but my first duty, as a Christian, is to try and help the child like himself more and help him or her build up a good self-image.

"I let them know that there are God's laws and then there are man's laws and both have to be abided by."

His curly brown hair, enchanting smile and jolly laugh could lure any child into trusting him, but Hudson wants the child to know that he won't lie to him or her.

"I tell them the truth," said the officer. "If they've committed a crime, I let them know they are going to pay for it, but I also let them know they can turn their lives around and live a better life in the future."

It's a tough job for Hudson, but he believes he's the best one on the force to fill it.

"There are nights that I can't sleep," said Hudson, who says he is torn most every day by the sight of wounded and neglected children. "I can't save Corsicana single handedly but I can give it my best shot."

Hudson says he believes the community needs help combatting drug abuse and vandalism. He is looking into a program for kindergarten through sixth grade students in area schools that will teach children how to report crimes to the police and be able to talk to police officers.

"Kids in Corsicana need a place to go with a good atmosphere, plenty of friends and no alcohol or drugs," said Hudson.

"When I was growing up, the YMCA was the best place to go, and here we have the YMCA and will soon have a youth center, which will be good," said Hudson.

The Corsicana YMCA does provide a "Friends of Youth" program for children in the eighth grade and below, said Dave Jezek of the Y.

And Navarro County Drug and Alcohol Abuse Committee is well on the way toward getting a long-planned youth center operating here.

Hudson believes he does not have the "bad guy" image that many police officers do.

"One boy told me the other day that I made him feel cared for and that I was fair and objective," he said. "They understand my position and I have to make them understand that I'll give them what they deserve."

Hudson and his wife, Linda, have reared their daughter the same way, he said.

"I don't know if I qualify as a father-figure," said Hudson, "but my little girl says I'm the best daddy in the world, and I believe her."

Involving sinking ship

Briton admits part in alleged theft

HOUSTON (AP) — A Briton who admits he lied to a grand jury to help a Mercedes dealer cover up the alleged theft of $56 million in crude oil by sinking a tanker in 1980 was desperate for money, his attorney says.

James Hillary Shorrock pleaded guilty Wednesday to a single count of conspiring to obstruct justice by lying to a grand jury. Shorrock, who prosecutors say acted as a broker in Soudan's dealings to procure oil for the embargoed South African government, set the stage to testify against two other men in a trial set for Aug. 6.

U.S. District Judge Carl O. Bue deferred Shorrock's sentencing until after his testimony in the upcoming trial. Shorrock could get five years in prison and a $10,000 fine.

Defense attorney Tom Berg said Shorrock was a "financially desperate man" who was conned by Frederick Ed Soudan and Soudan's brother-in-law, Abdul Wahab Al Ghazou.

Soudan, 40, a Missouri City, Texas auto dealer, is the alleged mastermind of the scheme, which prosecutors charge involved sinking a tanker off the coast of Senegal Jan. 17, 1980.

Soudan's role in the incident, which cost the South African government and Shell International Trading Co. millions, has been continuously investigated by several governments. He was indicted May.

Soudan and Ghazou, charged with numerous offenses, remain jailed in lieu of bond.

Berg said Shorrock was a victim of Soudan's double-dealing and that Soudan contracted for his help in setting up contracts, then refused to pay him.

Berg said Shorrock was desperate to recoup about $240,000 owed his company by Soudan, so he agreed to lie on behalf of Soudan in grand jury proceedings.

According to court papers signed by Shorrock, he was instructed by Soudan to tell the panel last February that Soudan paid him $650,000 in commissions.

Soudan produced invoices and other documents to make it appear so, according to Shorrock, but in reality, that money was routed through Bahamian banks to Soudan and Ghazou.

The grand jury was looking into possible tax violations by Soudan connected to the ship-sinking scheme.

Juarez businessmen protest dump site

CIUDAD JUAREZ, Mexico (AP) — Business leaders in this border city are worried that the Mexican government's plan to dispose of radioactive materials at a site 21 miles south of the city will scare off new industry and hinder growth.

"To locate the dump in the middle of the path of growth is not thinking over the long term," said Gustavo Elizondo Aguilar, the director of the Centro Empresarial, a voluntary association of 320 Juarez business owners and managers. "It's trying to resolve the problem in the short term."

Elizondo was one of several business representatives who voiced their opposition to the proposed dump site at a Tuesday night meeting with Mexican federal health and nuclear officials.

The controversial dump site is to be used to dispose of radioactive material — including pieces of scrap metal, radioactive pellets, dirt, reinforcement bar and concrete — that came from the accidental release of cobalt 60 pellets from a stolen cancer-treatment machine.

The pellets were scattered about a Juarez junkyard last winter and mixed in with scrap metal that was sold to two Mexican foundries and melted down for use in various steel products.

The tainted steel products were found after thousands of tons of steel had been distributed throughout Mexico and the United States.

To reassure business leaders that the proposed dump site is safe, Jose Raul Ortiz Magana, a federal nuclear official, said, "I could put my house there and live there happily for 10 years."

But Guillermo Ochoa, the director of the Antonio J. Bermudez Industrial Park said, "Perhaps the psychological aspect is the most important. There aren't many people who can handle these concepts. Nobody is going to want to put a factory or a house there."

Mattox sues clerk in filing dispute

HOUSTON (AP) — Texas Attorney General Jim Mattox has sued Harris County's district clerk over his refusal to file child support enforcement cases under terms dictated by the state.

Mattox filed suit in the 55th state District Court in Houston Wednesday. He sought a writ of mandamus that would compel Ray Hardy to accept child support enforcement cases without Texas paying the filing fee at the time the cases are filed.

"I'd like to get this over with — the sooner the better," Hardy said. A hearing is scheduled Aug. 2.

Hardy says Texas statute requires him to collect the average filing fee of $106 up front, but Mattox says the fee is security for court costs and therefore is not due until the case is resolved.

At issue is about $5,000 in filing fees owed Harris County by Mattox's local office for child support cases filed the past six months.

A trillion dollar bills laid end to end would circle the world 3,882 times.

Rogers presents program for local Rebekah Lodge

Twenty members were in attendance as Ruth Rogers presented the "Light of Faith" altar program at the Tuesday night meeting of Hereford Rebekah Lodge No. 228.

Noble Grand Lydia Hopson presided as reports were made concerning sick members. Thirty visits to the sick and nine cheer cards were reported.

Lodge Deputy Ada Hollabaugh installed Levita Fitzgerald as right support to the noble grand.

It was announced that plans are underway for a cookbook. All members and friends are invited to turn in favorite recipes.

Peggy Lemons served as hostess to Anna Conklin, Ben Conklin, Karrol Rettman, David Rettman, Susie Curtsinger, Nellie Beauford, Robert Combs, Elmer Combs, Irene Merritt, Sadie Shaw, Edna Mathes, Kee Ruland, Faye Brownlow, Thama Pearson, Ola Hacker from Westgate Nursing Home, Estelle Hopson, a member visiting from Sturgis, S.D., and Mmes. Rogers, Hopson, Hollabaugh and Fitzgerald.

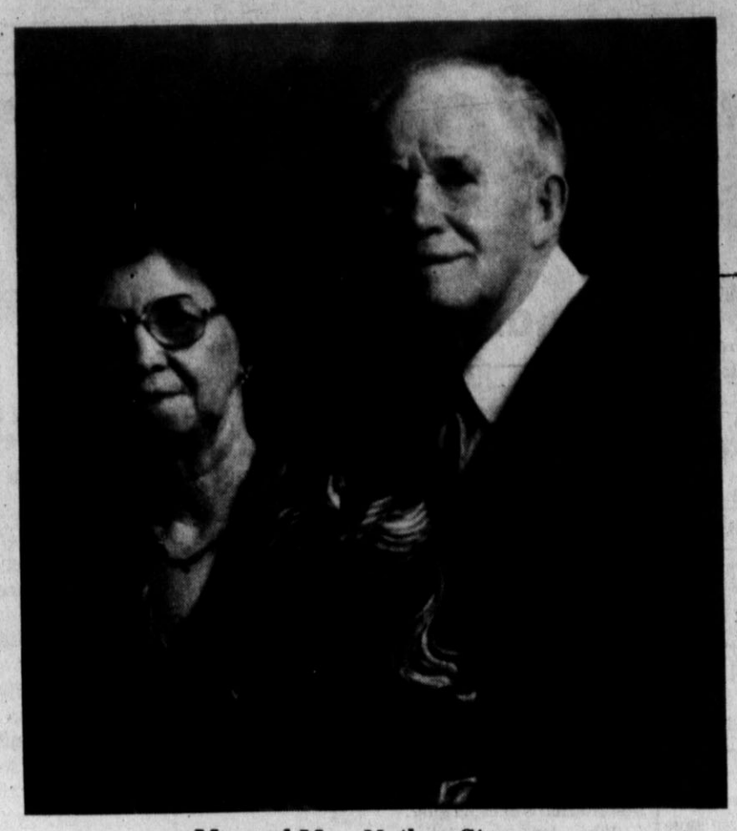

UNITAS STREAK

CANTON, Ohio. (AP) — One of the latest exhibits at the Pro Football Hall of Fame deals with the record of 47 straight games with at least one touchdown pass established by Johnny Unitas of the Baltimore Colts.

The streak began in the ninth game of Johnny's rookie season in 1956 when he passed for a six-pointer against the Los Angeles Rams. Curiously enough, it was those same Rams who broke the streak 11 games into the 1960 campaign, four years later.

In those 47 games, Unitas completed 697 passes for 10,645 yards and 102 touchdowns. He had four scoring aerials in seven of the games and pitched for three scores in nine other contests.

U.S. inventor Lee De Forest pioneered development in wireless telegraphy, sound pictures and television.
