Two Pampans Re-Elected To Road Group

Two Pampa men were re-elected to their offices of president and secretary of the Texas Branch of the U. S. Highway 60 Association during the branch's annual meeting Thursday in Pampa.

Harold Barrett was re-elected president and E. O. Wedgeworth, secretary.

Other officers elected were Russell Landers of Higgins, first vice president and Lyndal Allred of Hereford, second vice president.

During the meeting, the group approved a $1,800 budget for 1967-1968. Most of the funds will be used to support a new brochure program for the national association, Wedgeworth said.

The group passed a resolution recognizing the service of G. K. Reading to the highway association. Reading, the resident engineer here for the Texas Highway Department, retires, effective tonight.

T. R. Kelley, senior resident engineer here, will be the new resident engineer.

The group also authorized printing of a new vacation brochure of things to see and do from Higgins on the east end to Farwell on the west. The brochure will be distributed to tourists.

Howard Buckingham of Pampa, national association president, said he and five other Pampans will attend the national convention April 13-15 in Riverside, Calif., and requested other Texas towns to send delegates to the national meeting.

Others from Pampa attending the national session will be Mr. and Mrs. Wedgeworth, Mrs. Buckingham and Mr. and Mrs. Barrett.

Texans to Face More Amendments in '68

AUSTIN, Tex. (UPI) — Chances appeared good today that Texans will again face a long list of constitutional amendments when they go to the polls in 1968.

Before adjourning for the weekend, the House approved constitutional amendments that would make the legislature meet every year, allow cities and counties to give financial aid to industries, and give the governor and other state officials four-year terms.

If the Senate concurs, all the amendments will go on the ballot in 1968. And, this is just the start. The House is considering or will consider 61 separate proposals.

Sponsors of the annual sessions amendment, Reps. George Hinson of Mineola and Ralph Wayne of Plainview, won easy approval by a vote of 133-13.

It calls for the regular 140-day regular session in odd-numbered years and a new 60-day fiscal session in even-numbered years.

After a short debate, Hinson and Wayne agreed to limit the fiscal session to appropriations, taxes and emergency matters submitted by the governor.

They deleted a provision that would have allowed consideration of any subject by a four-fifths vote. Rep. John A. Traeger of Seguin warned that it would become a loophole and destroy all the limits on the fiscal session.

Bombers Strike Steel Factory

SAIGON (UPI) — American bombers streaked past deadly delta-winged Communist MIG21 jets and struck North Vietnam's greatest steel works, U.S. spokesmen said today.

Camouflage-painted Air Force F4C Phantoms Thursday bombed the sprawling Thai Nguyen plant, ravaged in previous raids on the industrial heartland near Hanoi. The spokesmen said two MIG21s appeared in the skies but shied from combat.

In South Viet Nam, fierce fighting erupted today in the Cambodian border area where last week a record 600 to 900 Communists were killed. U.S. commanders threw more troops into the new battle.

In other action, a Marine F8 Crusader jet missed its targets and its rockets slammed into a Leathernack position near Quang Ngai City on the coast, U.S. spokesmen said. Four Marines were killed, and 18 wounded in the accident.

Col. Robin Olds, 44, of Washington, D.C., architect of the Jan. 2 "sucker play" that sent a record seven MIGs crashing to earth, personally led the Thai Nguyen assault Thursday. Apparently the raid was intended to finish off the sprawling site of most of North Vietnam's steel and iron production. He reported success.

"We put 100 per cent of the bombs on target. The entire area was engulfed in smoke and dust," he said.

Capt. Gerald L. Finton, 28, of Peoria, Ill., and Maj. Philip P.

Combes, 37, of Norwich, Conn., dive-bombed and destroyed the massive blast furnace, heart of the plant 36 miles north of Hanoi. They said they "walked the bombs across the target."

The raid was one of 95 missions flown against North Vietnam by American pilots Thursday.

Today the war action centered on the Cambodian border northwest of Saigon where the Communists suffered their worst loss of the war a week ago.

It began with a Viet Cong mortar barrage Thursday night that wounded 19 men of the U.S. Army 1st Infantry Division's Second Brigade. Today a U.S. battalion of about 800 men met the Communists head on.

The fight proved so big the battalion called for aid. U.S. commanders sent air strikes pounding the Communist position. Artillery boomed. Helicopters whirled in reinforcements.

It was not immediately clear how many Communist troops were involved. The battle raged in War Zone C, site of the 50,000-man U.S. Army operation Junction City.

Price Plans Talks Here

Rep. Bob Price of Pampa will be here today and tomorrow for two luncheons with Chamber of Commerce groups, a meeting with the Water Advisory Committee and visits with area residents.

The first meeting on his agenda was today's luncheon with members of his 18th district CoC advisory committee.

Price formed the group composed of chairmen of the Legislative and National Affairs Committees of all chambers in the district.

The second meeting was scheduled for 3 p.m. today with the 10-member Water Advisory Committee he appointed two weeks ago.

Price's Saturday schedule includes the visits with area residents in his Pampa office, 800 N. Sumner, from 11 a.m. to noon.

At noon tomorrow, he will speak at a luncheon at the Coronado Inn with CoC officials and discuss legislation pending in Congress.

After the CoC luncheon in the Coronado Inn tomorrow, Price will attend the Amarillo AFB 25th anniversary celebration sponsored by the Military Affairs Committee.

Lurleen Defies Court's Desegregation Rules

Legislature Cheers Rebellious Speech

MONTGOMERY, Ala. (UPI) — The federal courts had the word from Gov. Lurleen B. Wallace today: "They have made their decree, now let them enforce it."

In a defiant speech wildly cheered by a joint session of the Alabama Legislature and carried live on television throughout the state Thursday night, Mrs. Wallace pledged to use all her powers as governor "to prevent the destruction of our public school system."

Gov. Wallace's speech came a day after a federal appeals court decision requiring total desegregation of schools in Alabama and elsewhere in the South by next September.

She asked the Legislature to consider giving her or sharing jointly with her, control of the state's public schools if an appeal should fail.

While not specifically spelling out what ultimate actions she might take, Mrs. Wallace asked for authority to invoke "the police powers of the state" and for the Legislature to consider increasing the number of state troopers.

"I ask you, in the event a stay is not granted, or an appeal be unsuccessful, to consider placing in the governor of the state of Alabama or in the governor and the Legislature, all powers heretofore vested in the state superintendent of education, including, but not limited to, supervisory control with regard to our various local boards of education," she said.

The governor asked the legislature to meet as a committee of the whole and hear testimony from educators and parents whom, she said, had not been given an opportunity to defend themselves in federal court.

The proposed committee-of-the-whole would afford them an opportunity to present their case and you an opportunity to determine whether this legislation is warranted," she said. "I ask you to determine what additional action may be required."

She also asked the Legislature to issue an order telling the three federal judges who issued the order that their actions are "beyond the police power of the state."

Pampans Warned Of April 1 Pranks

If you see a billboard lying on the sidewalk in Pampa tomorrow, beware of picking it up. It may be attached to a string and a bucket of water — known as a standard April Fool's Day prank.

Pampa residents will spend April 1 in several ways, registering for car tags until noon, voting for school board trustees, working, taking the day off for fun in the sun, or pulling a few tricks.

GRAY COUNTY UNIT

Cancer Crusade to Begin Here

Some 500 volunteers in Gray County will join with more than two million volunteers across the nation tomorrow in launching a new attack on cancer.

Locally and nationally, according to Don R. Lane, 1967 Crusade Chairman of Gray County Unit of the American Cancer Society, Texas Division, the attack promises to be the largest ever undertaken against the second most fatal disease in the United States.

The ACS begins its annual educational and fund-raising crusade with the start of Cancer Control Month tomorrow.

"The build-up for this year's attack on cancer demonstrates the growing public awareness of the urgency of the problem," Lane said. "We have a strong organization, an enthusiastic and determined group of trained volunteers. Assignments have been made."

"I believe records will be established this year. More people will be reached than ever before with life-saving educational material. More funds will be raised — funds greatly needed for expanded research, education and service."

Pampa Soldier Is Badly Wounded

News has reached Mr. and Mrs. Pedro Martinez, 721 Malone, that their son, Staff Sgt. Jesse O. Martinez, 27, has been seriously wounded while serving in Vietnam.

Martinez was wounded in the head by metal fragments, according to information received from the Department of the Army, on March 29.

He was on a combat mission at the time he was hit, a spokesman for the department said in a telegram to the family.

The wounds are of such a nature that the attending doctor said that Martinez's condition "is of such severity that there is cause for concern."

Newspaper Strike Threat Hanging Over New York

NEW YORK (UPI) — The threat of a newspaper strike hung over New York City today. Talks continued in hopes of keeping the presses rolling.

Contracts between five major dailies and 10 unions expired at midnight Thursday. Although some progress was reported in negotiations, several unions said they were prepared to strike at a moment's notice.

A walkout would be the fourth major newspaper strike in New York in the past five years.

Two minutes before the midnight deadline, the deliverers union agreed to "stop the clock" and continue negotiations. More bargaining sessions were scheduled for later today and tonight.

At 2 a.m. EST today the printers union held a "chapel meeting" of about 300 members in the composing room of the Daily News. They all stopped work and heard a report from union leaders.

The meeting—in effect a work stoppage — immediately interrupted the setting of type for advertising copy scheduled to be run in Sunday's bulky edition of the News.

This morning's meeting had no effect on today's editions of the News.

Bertram A. Powers, president of Typographical Union No. 6, told his members that another "chapel meeting" would be held this afternoon. This would affect production of the News Saturday editions.

Powers left no doubt that the meeting were called to put pressure on the negotiations.

Travis School May Be Pilot For New PESO Progress Plan

School may be considered a pilot school for a new educational project, the continuous progress program for first, second and third graders.

Dr. John Damron, school superintendent, said in a meeting at the school last night, that the continuous progress program could be "something that affects more than just one elementary school."

After talks by three Title III elementary specialists of the Panhandle Educational Services Organization (PESO), from Amarillo, who explained the program to parents, teachers, board members and other guests, Damron said the program may be presented to the school board in May.

"If all of the parents and teachers of Travis School want to go into this program and want to work at it, we think this could be one way to solve some of the problems we have always had with the current program," he said.

Mrs. Perry Gaut, elementary education consultant here, said the topic was being discussed because "Travis teachers and the principal, Dan Johnson, are looking for ways to help each individual child learn to his fullest capacity."

Mrs. Hazel Strickland, one of the PESO representatives, described the continuous progress program, or non-graded program, as it is also called, as a way to "take away the formal grade names of first, second and third grade and substitute the term level."

"We divide the year into these levels of continuous progress. This describes the way we want the child to learn. We want him to continually succeed. He does not fail at the end of the year, but he continues on to the next level of work," she said.

The term level means unit of achievement. The graded system means a unit of time, she explained. A level is a certain set of skills that a child is asked to learn.

If, at the end of the school year, a child has not completed all of the skills required for that term, he will be sent to a different level the next fall, but he will be taught the same skills in different books, so he does not repeat the materials, Mrs. Strickland said.

In explaining how a child is placed in a certain level, Mrs. Strickland and others on the panel agreed, that his placement is determined by tests, judgement of teachers, his principal and possibly the school nurse and counselor.

When a child's level is changed during the school year, parents are contacted for a parent-teacher conference to explain how the child is progressing and why he needs to be changed.

In the continuous progress program, only the reading and mathematics skills are non-graded.

Other panelists who explained the advantages of this program for the child, the teacher, his parents and school administrators, said it will not solve all of the problems of dealing with children, because children are different and constantly change as their home, and community environment changes.

The speakers agreed that "this (See PESO, Page 3)

Dear Abby... Lady Friend Needs Professional Help

DEAR ABBY: I am new in this community and have made many lovely new friends. I met a lady at church and invited her to my home for coffee and cake. It was then that I discovered that she is either a thief or a kleptomaniac, for when I went into the kitchen for a moment, and suddenly returned, I saw her open her large purse and drop my silver spoon and fork into it.

You can't imagine how shocked I was! Now I do not want to make a big issue of it by preferring charges against her, but I do want my silverware back as those pieces are sterling silver and are part of my set. Do I dare ask her to return them?

And if so, how? I have told no one and do not intend to.

MRS. NEWCOMER
DEAR NEWCOMER: You are considerate, compassionate, and wise. Telephone the lady and tell her you saw her take your silverware and would appreciate her returning it. Then tell her that you know there are people who have a compulsive to take things, which is an illness, so you "understand," will tell no one, and hope that she will seek professional help.

DEAR ABBY: I am 14 years old and have always lived in a small town in South Carolina. Last summer my family and I spent our summer vacation in New York and Philadelphia.

Down here in South Carolina everyone is friendly to everyone else and when you pass a person on the street you say, "Hi." This isn't just in our little town, but all over the south.

If you do that up north, the looks and stares you get back show that northerners aren't used to it.

Maybe I'm prejudiced, but I never really appreciated southern hospitality until I went north. I think the north is a nice place to visit, but I wouldn't want to live there. Anyone care to comment?

SOUTHERN GIRL
DEAR GIRL: You have a point about southern hospitality, but don't repeat a mistake some northerners make by judging a whole region by the actions and reactions of a few.

DEAR ABBY: Three years ago I married a fine young woman from a "good" family. She was 22 and I was 26. We are both college graduates. We were "in love," although she proposed to me, and pressured me into marrying her sooner than I had intended to.

Shortly after marriage, I found her to be moody, stubborn, and quarrelsome. If you are guessing that we are not very happy, you are correct. At my insistence we sought help from our clergyman. He gave us some lectures on "trying harder," but it didn't help much. Then we went to a marriage counselor, who suggested a trial separation. This my wife refused to do.

She has been seeing a psychiatrist for five weeks now and she insists that she is "well" now, and all we need to save our marriage is a baby. Abby, I don't want a family until I am absolutely sure that this marriage will last. If I tell her, it might upset her more. What should I do?

YOUNG HUSBAND
DEAR HUSBAND: Have a talk with her doctor and ask him how to handle it.

CONFIDENTIAL TO "HAVE I A CASE?" IN MENOMINEE, MICH.: It is said that "maternity" is a matter of fact; "paternity" can be a matter of opinion. You may have a case. And so may he. See a lawyer.

Science Invades Kitchen To Simplify Life For Housewife

By GAY PAULEY
UPI Women's Editor
NEW YORK (UPI) — The workings of science go on in the home as well as in the laboratory.

Consider why breads rise, why soaps clean, why butterfat doesn't go to the top of a bottle of homogenized milk, why the saying, "the watched pot never boils."

"Science is so much a part of our daily lives we all should know more about how scientists work," says Don Herbert, who's a science buff if there ever was one.

Herbert started the award-winning "Mr. Wizard" television show, geared to young viewers. It ran for 14 years. In 1962, he began another project—factual science programs dramatically presented for adult viewers.

This series, "Experiment," is being shown on National Educational Television's (NET) affiliated stations. And he's doing a series of short science color films for classroom use.

Consultant To Show
Herbert acted as consultant and will be a guest on an upcoming special, "National Science Test," which the American Iron and Steel Institute will televise on CBS the evening of April 4. Also on the show are Harry Reasoner and Mike Wallace.

Demonstrations will range from outer space to the kitchen. In an interview, Herbert told of some of the common kitchen sciences.

Bread and cakes using baking powder rise because the powder is in an acid base. Add water and you get carbon dioxide given off; thus the rising action.

"The same principle applies to the bubbles of champagne," he said.

The action of soap or detergent making suds has to do with molecules of both soap and water; the soap molecules break the "surface tension" in the water, so that soap can penetrate to the skin.

Explains Boiling Pot

As for that "watched pot," add anything such as salt to water, Herbert said, and the boiling point is raised.

The first bubbles to appear when water heats do not indicate boil—that's air escaping. Boiling temperature is reached when the bubbling is vigorous. And Herbert said if you don't believe that "watched pot" saying, notice how rapidly a cooking thermometer will reach 210 degrees Fahrenheit and how slowly it seems to go on up to 212, the boiling point.

Herbert, 49, was born in Waconia, Minn., is married to the former Maraleita Dutton, and the couple has three children.

He holds degrees in English and science from La Cross (Wisc.) Teachers College. He's a member of a number of scientific organizations including the American Association for the Advancement of Science.

Hospital Releases Accident Victim

Gayle Ann Johnson, 15, 329 Henry, was treated and released from Highland General Hospital yesterday as a result of injuries she suffered in a two-car collision last night.

Drivers of the two cars involved in the wreck at the intersection of West Decatur and Willis were Barbara Jean Brown, 2113 N. Faulkner, and Robert Lee Johnson, 329 Henry.

Johnson was cited by Pampa police for failure to yield right-of-way.

Miss Johnson was a passenger in Johnson's car which was going south on Willis at the time of the accident.

Former Pampa Resident Dies

Frank Mote, Canyon, 64, resident of the Pampa area several years, died Wednesday in Canyon. Funeral services were at 2 p.m. today at Calvary Baptist Church, Canyon.

Mr. and Mrs. Mote left Pampa about four years ago and moved to Lefors, where they operated a restaurant. They closed the Lefors restaurant after about two years and returned to Pampa, where they operated another restaurant before moving to Canyon.

The couple also lived in Mobeetie and Wheeler. Mr. Mote also worked in the maintenance department for Pampa schools while living here.

"Because he learns at his own speed, he understands his classes better and is better equipped to face any classroom situation, either nongraded or the current graded system," they explained.

Other panelists were Mrs. Alta Smith and Claud Zevely, PESO elementary specialists of Amarillo, and O. C. Spears, a Dumas elementary school principal of a non-graded school.

Johnson, Travis principal, co-ordinated the program. Another Pampa educator participating was McHenry Lane, curriculum coordinator.

Selecting Right Rod is Important

Length, Weight or What? The rod is either too stiff or too short for the weight of lure you are accustomed to using. However, it is often difficult to determine by just flexing a rod in the store if you and the rod will form a happy association.

Selecting the right rod depends upon several factors, advise the fishing authorities at Mercury outboards, length, action, line weight, lures, fishing conditions and the individual angler are all to be taken into account.

Generally, you can get a good idea of a rod's suitability by making the following in-store test:

1. Rig up the rod with your favorite reel and line. Snap on a lure of the same weight you normally use. Make a few casts.

2. If the plug lifts straight to the ceiling or mushes out in an abnormal arc, the rod is too long or possesses an action that is too soft for you.

3. If the lure snaps off the tip and shoots downward to the floor, catch more fish.

4. The proper outfit will perform smoothly and without effort, and can be quickly recognized as the one to buy.

Often, fishermen possess several good rods that seemingly fail to deliver as well as they should. Consequently, they are shunted aside. An afternoon of lures and lines may produce the right combination that returns a discarded rod to favor.

As general guidelines, the Mercury lads suggest these balances: 1/4-oz. lure, 5- to 5-ft. rod, extra light action, 6-lb. or less line; 3/8-oz. lure, 5 1/2- to 6-ft. rod, light or extra light action, 9- to 12-lb. line; 1/2-oz. lure, 4-oz. lure, 5- to 6-ft. rod, light or medium action, (depending on length), 12- to 15-lb. line; 3/4-oz. lure and over, 4 1/2- to 5-ft. rod, medium to heavy action, 5- to 30-lb. line.

Find the combination that meets your needs and you'll shoot more fish.

Local Boat, Ski Club One of Best

The Pampa Boat and Ski Club was organized about 10 years ago for the purpose of furthering the sports of water skiing and boating in the local area.

Since that time, both water skiing and boating has advanced to a remarkable degree. Skiers are becoming more skillful, boats are advancing to the luxury level, motors are increasing in size and power, and lakes are becoming more plentiful.

Pampa skiers are among the finest in this region, if not the entire state. One of the most important aims of the Pampa Boat and Ski Club is advancing its members to top tournament and competitive levels. Another equally important task is the teaching and development of water skiing among young people.

Naturally, the youngsters progress more rapidly than the adults and have more time to spend in the practice which makes perfect. Since water skiing is healthful as well as enjoyable as an outdoor sport the combination makes for great pleasure among the young set and at the same time provides them with an opportunity to develop a physical skill to be proud of.

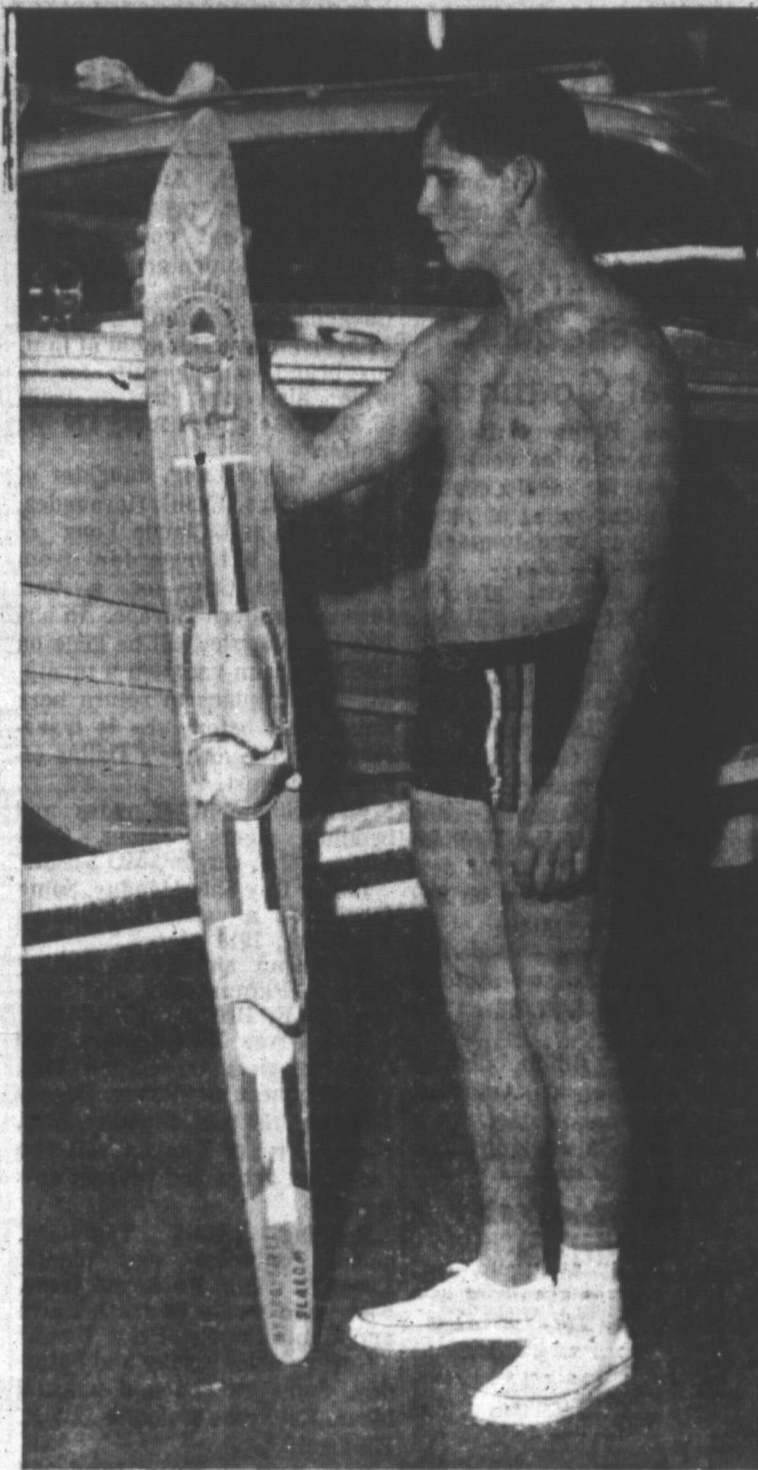

We, the Boat and Ski Club, want to encourage young people (and old alike) who have a desire to become an accomplished water skier, or those who have a desire to learn this sport, to contact any of our club members for assistance.

We are always enthused when we find someone to teach the fundamentals or someone who wants to learn the more skillful forms of water skiing.

The PBSC offers some excellent instructors for beginning skiers of all ages, as well as qualified instructors to help those on their way to competitive skiing. For those who are sincerely interested, these offers of help are free. As with any organized sport, we place great emphasis on water safety and try to instill good water safety rules into our youngsters at the earliest age possible.

Remember, water skiing is FUN, especially when everyone remembers the rules of safety.

BOATERS crossing the wake from another boat will find the crossing relatively smooth if it is approached at a 45 degree angle.

TOP SKIER — Wayne Caswell has been one of the top skiers in the Pampa Boat and Ski Club for several years. Wayne, also a Pampa Harvester football player, has qualified for the nationals the past four years, but other commitments have kept him from participating.

Best Check the Outboard Before Running Your Boat

Despite warnings to the contrary, many outboard owners start out a new season without a glance at the engine.

The result is usually frustration. Any mechanical device, subject to long periods of storage, is equally subject to problems. In fact, Bill Spaeth, manager of engineering at Evinrude Motors, states that improper storage can cause more damage to an outboard than several seasons of rugged use.

If you find yourself stranded at the dock, don't give up the ship. A careful reading of your owner's manual and a few simple tools can help you save the day.

Spaeth made special mention of the owner's manual. This handy booklet, packed with every new engine sold, will explain proper corrective measures for all minor problems.

Here's a list of the most common early season problems. Check through it and then refer to your owner's manual.

The motor won't start. Look for the easy answer first. Check your fuel supply; proper fitting of connectors at the engine and tank; pinched fuel line; or fuel filter or line obstruction.

If the engine does start, many times the idle is rough. It could mean a needed adjustment of the carburetor setting; fouled spark plugs; or improper fuel mixture.

If the motor starts but then loses power, look for fouled spark plugs; restrictions in the fuel system or contaminated fuel.

Feel a Lure Before You Buy One

Selecting lures has long been a matter of considering shapes, colors and action, then hoping they will produce results. As any old-timer knows, it's an expensive process to always have the right combination at a given time.

Now to complicate matters a little further, another factor has been introduced — FEEL.

Plastic lures, note fishing experts at Mercury outboards, are either a boon or a bane, depending on the point of view. While they're likely to arouse the disdain and fighting instincts of a dyed-in-the-wool plug caster or fly fisherman, the flexible, many-hued imitation of worms and eels are just about the hottest "fish-getters" on the market today.

To analyze why these bits of plastic are so effective might require volumes, and it's probable the fish would make lies out of any conclusion that might be reached. But certain facts seem apparent.

The pliable nature of a plastic bait gives it a more natural action when cast or trolled, and it can be fished at any speed and depth. Fish fond of mouth-ing a bait are more apt to be fooled by the softness which closely resembles their natural foods.

The big reason, we suspect, that makes the flexible worm so popular is the fact that it has virtually liberated man.

Endurance Record Set

A new barefoot skiing endurance record of one hour, seven minutes and 15.2 seconds was established October 1 by 17-year-old Stephen C. Northrup of Pensacola, Fla., in a run on Bayou Texar that eclipsed the established October 1 by 17-year-old world mark of one hour and eight seconds held by Harold Miller of Australia.

Steve's performance also more than doubled the old American record of 33 minutes, 3.2 seconds, set in 1963 by Don Thomson of Lee's Summit, Mo. A member of the Tassar Ski Club, Steve began pointing toward his record run after winning the barefoot event in the Playground Ski Club tournament at Ft. Walton Beach, Fla., on September 3. His winning mark at that time was six minutes, 48 seconds, but it was enough to encourage him to train for a crack at Thomson's American record.

Two weeks later, he barefooted 38 minutes in a practice session so he set his sights on the world record. Here is Steve's own account of his feat:

"We decided on October 1 as the day to make the try because the boat and driver, Ricky Burgess, would be available, as well as Barry Bonifay, an A.W.S.A. judge, who agreed to time the run. The boat and driver are very important because a steady speed must be maintained, and the driver must choose the calmest water, avoiding his own wake and any other obstacles. Ricky is an excellent driver and a lot of the credit for my successful run goes to him. With colder weather coming on, we didn't feel we could delay the attempt any longer since cold water makes your feet grow numb faster.

"The night before, we checked the boat and all equipment. I got up at 4:45 a.m., dressed and had a glass of orange juice, two aspirin, and a chocolate bar. We then taped my ankles and back, and taped foam rubber pads across the palms of my hands.

"I went down to the beach where about 25 friends had gathered to wish me luck and watch my run. I stepped off my starter ski at 5:56 and was off!"

"At 67 minutes, and 15.2 seconds, we crossed a boat wake and my feet were numb to make it.

Among Steve's other barefoot accomplishments, he does the deepwater start and beach start, the one-foot barefoot and has just gone over a 2½ foot jump ramp successfully on his bare feet.

Steve is the oldest of five children of Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Northrup, all of whom enjoy skiing.

He and his family reside in Pensacola, Florida.

YEARS AGO the best selling fishing line tested over 14 lbs. However, with the advent of synthetic material, the most popular lines sold today are 8- and 10-lb. test.

Modern Kite Flying Is Making Boaters Happy

More than anything else, the dimensions of modern kites are related directly to the weight of the skiers using the kites. Heavy skiers (over 180 pounds) require a larger kite to fly at safe speeds and youngsters (less than 110 pounds) should use a smaller than normal kite to maintain easier control on the water (taxing) and in the air. The average sized kite is 14' long and 12' long.

And although kite flying is still not for the timid soul, this thrilling and admittedly hazardous sport has progressed to the point where any fairly well coordinated skier with proper instruction and equipment can fly successfully on his first attempt.

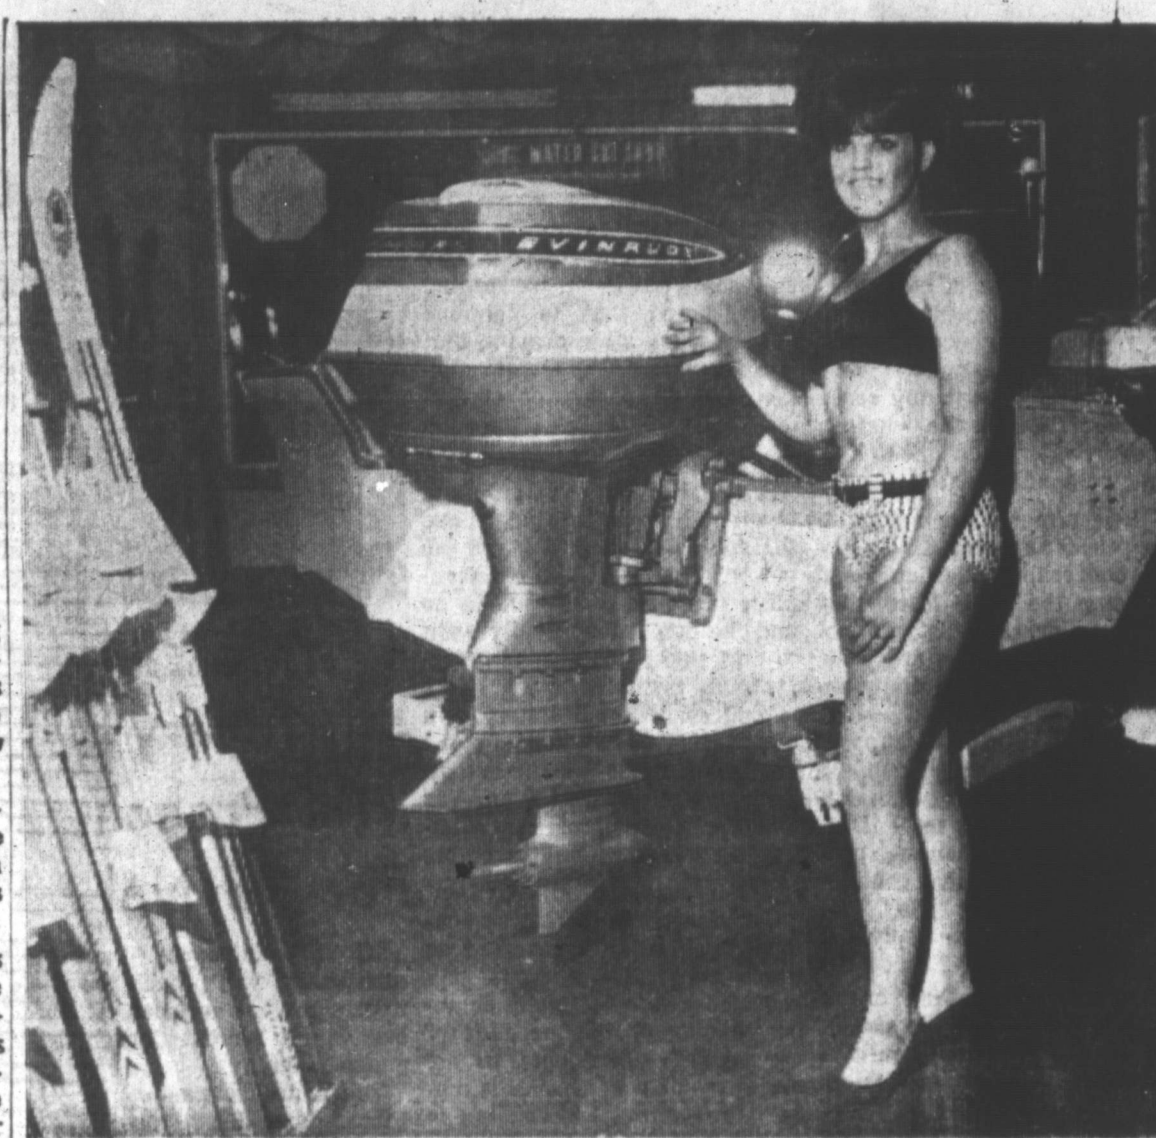

The early kite fliers in the 1950's were plagued with accidents because their equipment and flying techniques were entirely experimental, they were pioneers and had nothing to guide them except their ingenuity and resourcefulness.

Now, with most of the trial and error phase of kite flying recorded in the past, more emphasis can be placed on refinement of already proven equipment and techniques, and of course, safety in kite flying.

There are accounts of human beings lifted to high altitudes over land to act as observers in military operations many years ago, through the use of very large kites guided from a stationary point. However, the earliest records of kite flying on water skis in this country that we know about are the flights of Paul Opyke and Vern Cray at the Sacramento State Fair in 1951 where they rose to an altitude of about 25 feet and traveled a distance equal to the length of a football field.

The lifting force derived from a ski kite is much the same as the driving force created by the sail of a sailboat, where a semi-flexed sheet of cloth diverts or deflects air currents to create a more or less controlled difference in pressure on the opposite sides of the sheet.

GIRL AND MOTOR — Debra Huff, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Chester Huff, 1910 Christine, displays one of the makes of motors that will be on display at the Pampa Boat and Ski Club Show.

BALANCING the weight in a boat is essential for safety and comfort. The boating authorities at Mercury outboards say that if the bow tends to plow through the water, the load is too far forward, and if the bow tends to be high, the load is probably too far aft.

BOATERS WHO are in the process of refinishing their craft are reminded not to forget the registration number. The boating authorities say that the letters should be clearly separated from the numbers and the solid part of the letters and numbers should show plenty of contrast with the color of the hull.

MANY CASES of broken lines can be traced to cracks or nicks on a fishing rod's guides or tip-top. The fishing authorities at Mercury outboards recommend the use of a magnifying glass to inspect all such points.

IF AN ANCHOR chain scrapes on a boat's gunwale, slip a length of bicycle inner tube over it.

Some Tips to Keep the Boat Clean

Seat cushions and life preservers should also be washed and thoroughly dried. Repair or replace any damaged cushions. Just to be on the safe side, make sure the life preservers are approved by the U.S. Coast Guard. A tag on the cushion will carry this information. If not, replace them immediately. Mooring and anchor line should also be inspected. If it's frayed, replace it. Loose ends should be "whipped" to prevent unraveling.

Organize a small tool kit so you know where everything is. The kit should contain your owner's manual, spare spark plugs and plug wrench, adjustable wrench, pliers, screwdriver, spare propeller, shear and cotter pins and electrician's tape.

Writer Describes Method to Avoid Conflicts of Double Standards

By RALPH W. LOEW, D.D.

Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

We are a bundle of contradictions and honest people know it. Our real tragedy occurs when we simply accommodate ourselves to life without any sense of conflict. From the vantage point of Easter we ought to look at our contradictions:

—Honest men have adamantly opposed any changes in the laws concerning abortion and yet, using the same logic, they bless war or, at least, do not oppose it. How do you apply the standards concerning the sanctity of human life?

—There is a general support of any attempts which can encourage reduction of governmental expenditures until it affects us locally. Then we protest, even though the continuance of the project may be wasteful. How do we apply the standards of honesty?

—We deplore growing crime rates and yet we tolerate slums, inferior housing and continue the conditions of poverty. How do we apply the standards of concern for our neighbor? And who is my neighbor?

A few years ago a national convention of one of our larger religious denominations was delayed in its discussions for several hours because of a debate which arose out of one of its reports. The framers of the resolution had said that if a churchman prayed on Sunday that he should be rid of all hatred and prejudice and then went out of the church continuing the same prejudice as before, this prayer was blasphemy. The use of that word touched off the heated debate. Finally, the matter was resolved by a rewording which stated that to continue the prejudice after praying that it be removed was a contradiction. So, blasphemy or contradiction, the issue is before each person.

St. Paul stated it in practical terms: "I often find that I have the will to do good, but not the power. That is, I don't accomplish the good I set out to do and the evil I don't really want to do I find I am always doing. . . . In my mind I am God's willing servant but in my own nation am bound fast to the law of sin and death. It is an agonizing situation!" Paul has found a way out of this situation by the very nature of his faith.

Our danger is that these contradictions will be accepted as normal. When we erode any consciousness of struggle or understanding of this paradox of our values, we've come to the place where there is moral breakdown. Then sin is only a word and morality only a consensus of behavior.

Recognizing this, those who proclaim the importance of a faith which produces a new way of life have to take a look at the contradictions we tolerate. We may not rule them out of life. We can know the tension of the struggle, for the awareness of that tension can be the beginning of a new way of life. We won't be satisfied with the contradictions.

Former Pastor To Preach Here

Members of the First Baptist Church here will hear the Rev. Dr. C. Gordon Bayless, former pastor of the church, during both worship services Sunday. The pastor, the Rev. Dan B. Cameron, is preaching a revival at West Point, Miss.

Dr. Bayless has chosen "Results of the Resurrection" for his 11 a.m. sermon. Hoyte Phillips will direct congregational singing and present Mrs. Harold Craddock, who will sing a soprano solo.

Miss Eloise Lane, organist, will play "Be Thou My Vision," an Irish hymn, for the offertory.

Dr. Bayless will preach on the topic "Fall and the Return" in the 7 p.m. service. Jim Johnson, tenor, will sing a solo. Miss Lane will play "Hosannas" for the organ offertory.

Other services are planned for 9:45 a.m., Sunday school, and 6 p.m., training union.

Latter Day Saints Schedule Speaker

Rev. Sanford W. Ellison of Dallas, president of the Texas mission of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints, will speak during a group meeting at 7:30 p.m. Monday at the church, 731 Sloan.

Pres. Ellison will speak on the Book of Mormon during the missionary meeting. Missionaries of the Pampa church are Elder Kay Garrett and Elder Keith Green.

SOME JOKE

WIDNES, England (UPI) — Three women hikers huffed and puffed for three miles, stooped under the weight of their knapsacks. Then they looked inside.

Practical jokers had slipped 18 pounds of bricks in each knapsack. "We thought it was our canned beans," said Miss Sheila McHale.

C. L. CULPEPPER
... Preaches here

Missionary Will Preach For Revival

C. L. Culpepper, retired missionary, will preach for the week's revival services of Hobart Street Baptist Church, beginning Sunday.

The church's pastor, A. G. Purvis, will direct music for services which start at 10 a.m. and 7:30 p.m. during the week. Sunday services will be held at 9:45 a.m. Sunday school; 11 a.m. and 7 p.m. worship and 6 p.m. training union.

A missionary for 42 years, Culpepper went to China in 1923 and served there 29 years. He was forced to leave after the Communists took control and was reassigned to Formosa, where he served 13 years.

During his service as a missionary, he was president of three seminaries, two in China and one in Formosa, and did field evangelism work in the seminaries.

Culpepper spoke here in January during the area evangelism conference at Central Baptist Church when he reported on the Shanghai revival in China. He will repeat the story again during the services Monday night.

Interim Minister Plans Message

John's Gospel is the scripture text for the Rev. Frederick H. Dawson's sermon entitled "Exalting Jesus Christ" at both First Presbyterian Church services Sunday.

Tommy Neugent will direct the church choir in the offertory anthem "Litanies for Easter." Choir practice for all members and prospective members is set for 7:30 p.m. Wednesday.

The Junior High Fellowship group will meet at Mr. and Mrs. Bill Gething's home, 1717 Mary Ellen St. at 5:30 p.m. Sunday. No junior high choir is scheduled.

The Mariner's will present a film "Parable" from the New York World's Fair, at 7:30 p.m. Thursday in the auditorium.

Christian Scientists Plan Lesson-Sermon

Christian Science Church members will hear a lesson-sermon on "Unreality" in the 11 a.m. services Sunday.

Bible verses will include scriptures from I Corinthians: "And my speech and my preaching was not with enticing words of man's wisdom, but in demonstration of the Spirit and of power: That your faith should not stand in the wisdom of man, but in the power of God."

Weehawken, N. J., was the site where Aaron Burr mortally wounded Alexander Hamilton in a duel on July 11, 1804.

A galero is a broad-brimmed, golden-tasseled hat placed by the Pope on the head of a new cardinal.

Rev. Woods Slates Conference Report

The Rev. Monroe Woods Jr., a Pampa pastor, will attend the annual meeting of the North West Texas Conference of the Texas Council of Churches Aug. 8-13 in Abilene.

During the conference, he will report on the recent TCC annual assembly in Austin, in which he represented the TCC's Northwest Texas Conference.

The Rev. Mr. Woods is pastor of St. Mark Christian Methodist Episcopal Church here.

During the TCC meeting, an ecumenical communion service was held with Bishop Norris S. Curry of Dallas, pastor of the Christian Methodist Episcopal Church and bishop of Texas, the eighth Episcopal district, presiding.

The conference's March theme was Why Crime and Delinquency in Texas? Speakers included Ramsey Clark, acting attorney general of the United States; Gov. John Connally, Judge Keith J. Leenhouts, of Royal Oak, Mich.; Bert Kruger Smith, sociologist and Prof. Fred Cohen, University of Texas Law School.

"Most of the speakers agreed the church should become more concerned about crime in America. Atty. Gen. Clark said spending more money will not cause crime to decrease and expanding jails will not decrease crime.

"We believe church leaders and educators are in a position to help shape the characters of Americans by becoming more involved and more committed to the cause of Christ," the Rev. Mr. Woods said.

Judge Leenhouts, recognized for his rehabilitation work, for juvenile delinquents, explained his program works because he uses large-scale volunteer help.

The Rev. Mr. Woods is expected to return this week from the spring convocation in Houston for the eighth Episcopal district.

During the spring meeting in Houston Wednesday and Thursday, George Washington grew rye at Mount Vernon especially for distilling.

The Weekly Message Of Inspiration

Rev. Joe Hown
Calvary Baptist Church

"He saith unto them, but when say ye that I am? and Simon Peter answered, Thou art the Christ, the Son of the living God."

Matthew 16:15,16

Christ was more concerned with the attitude of his followers toward him than he was about that of the rest of the world. It is the same today. His concern for the world was demonstrated at calvary but his concern for his followers is evident from the coming of the holy spirit to lead and companion with us as we follow Jesus Christ today.

Jesus is concerned today with our attitude toward him and with our attitude toward his church. He asks us today the same pertinent question quoted above. He wants to know what we think of him. He does know this; both by our personal lives, and by our participation in the work of his church in its world redemption program. There are three indications which tell him as well as the world of our attitude. These are; A. Our prayer life; B. Our bible study and; C. Our church participation.

We learn from the scriptures that Jesus was well versed in the Old Testament writings; that he spent a great deal of time in prayer; even arising very early in the morning, or remaining through the night; and that he was accustomed to regular worship in the Synagogue. All of these combined to tell us of his love for the Father and his concern for his Father's work.

The devil; the world; and God can tell of our attitude toward Christ: Whether it be good or bad; by observance of these three characteristics. If we would be strong in our christian lives we must not neglect these things. No one of them is adequate to equip us to meet the world in mortal combat and emerge in victory. Both our lives and our witness will raise or fall as we study God's word, pray, and "forsake not the assembling of ourselves together."

WILL GOD AND THE WORLD SEE YOU IN CHURCH SUNDAY?

The Pampa Daily News

A Watchful Newspaper
EVER STRIVING FOR THE TOP O' TEXAS
TO BE AN EVEN BETTER PLACE TO LIVE

The Pampa News is dedicated to furnishing information to our readers so that they can better promote and preserve their own freedom and encourage others to see its blessing. Only when man is free to control himself and all he produces, can he develop to his utmost capabilities.

We believe that freedom is a gift from God and not a political grant from government. Freedom is neither license, nor anarchy. It is control and sovereignty of oneself no more, no less. It is thus consistent with the Human Relations Commandments, the Golden Rule and the Declaration of Independence.

Here's a Bill That Needs Support

There's a bill pending in the Texas Legislature that deserves the support of the public — unless the public prefers to sit idly by and be "taken."

By support is meant that everyone should write to his senator and representative down at Austin and urge passage of the bill.

The legislation is SB 423, introduced by Sen. George Parkhouse of Dallas and Sen. D. Roy Harrington of Port Arthur. Senate Bill No. 423 simply would permit optometrists to have the right to continue to advertise. It has been made necessary as a matter of self-preservation by optometrists who believe in and have experienced the value of advertising to their business and to their customers.

In fact, government—local, state or federal—should not usurp power and deny the right of anyone to advertise in any medium he wishes.

Neither should any board — such as the Texas Board of Optometry — have the right to "outlaw" advertising nor the authority to close long-established firms unless the firms adhere to the no-advertising edict.

But, a recent court ruling permits the board to do just that. Unless the Parkhouse-Harrington bill passes and enables the advertising firms (all of which employ licensed optometrists) to keep their doors open, the general public will be paying through their noses for their eyeglasses.

'Generous' Congress

It is said in the taxpayer's wounds to mention the congressional payroll. By this is meant not alone the salaries of the membership, but the total spent on all congressional hired hands, from page boys and typists to such lofty personnel as head doorkeepers and sergeants-at-arms.

Let none look askance at such a description of these functionaries. The top salary in these positions for parliamentarians — whose skills may warrant it — is $28,500 a year. That seems lofty enough to the average wage earner, not to mention a goodly number of business and professional men.

Congressional generosity does not end there. Chaplains whose only duty is to prepare and deliver a prayer to open each day's session in House and Senate receive more than $15,000 annually. Though no one would be so crass as to calculate this at hourly rates, it can be seen that Congress does not stint. This impression is reinforced by word that even the clerks who call the roll and intone the titles of bills get a tidy $19,000 to keep body and soul together.

Every now and again, some aspect of this congressional largesse goads a member to cry shame. The latest to do so is Sen. Pastore of Rhode Island. Though he couched his objections in terms that some might consider partisan — he chided his colleagues for demanding budget cuts even while fattening their own payrolls — the gist of his complaint is valid without regard to partisanship.

Over the past decade, payrolls have risen 81 per cent in the Senate and 84 per cent in the House. Further increases have just been made, though there is much talk in Congress of the need for greater economy in government. This led Pastore to remark: "I say that we are working under a double standard." He has a point.

Regulations Can Curb Jobs

"I feel very proud — proud I could do my job. I've always tried to do my job. I'm proud to be able to serve."

The mid-mannered Army medic who spoke those words had just received the Congressional Medal of Honor from President Johnson in a recent ceremony on the south lawn of the White House. Before an honor guard representing the Army, Navy, Air Force, Marines and Coast Guard, he was accorded homage normally reserved for visiting heads of state.

The job that Spec. 6 Lawrence Joel was proud to do was to drag himself in agony among other wounded U.S. soldiers on a blazing Vietnam battlefield for more than 12 hours, binding up their wounds and shouting encouragement as he ignored his own excruciating pain.

And he wouldn't quit until he was ordered to.

Spec. 6 Joel is 39 years old. He is a native of Winston-Salem, N.C., where he once worked on a truck, selling firewood in the city's slums. He is currently stationed at Ft. Bragg, N.C. He is a Negro.

There will be those who won't understand why he did what he did. But most Americans will. They know he did it because he is a brave man and a patriot — and proud.

As long as there are men like him in this country, America will stand tall and strong. Thank you, Spec. 6 Joel. We are proud that you are proud.

Not Poor in Logic

A U.S. Senate subcommittee is investigating the government's war on poverty, including a proposal that everyone be guaranteed an income, regardless.

The subcommittee decided to call in representatives of the poor and hear what they thought about this proposal.

A disabled Kentucky miner had this to say: "A lot of people, if they know they are going to get a certain amount of money, they are not going to work."

It will be interesting to see if proponents of the guaranteed income can come up with rebuttal anywhere near as brief, succinct and persuasive. Not to say sensible.

Guess What Day Tomorrow Is

The Doctor Says:

By DR. WAYNE BRANDSTADT

'Abdominal Gurgling' Is Common Condition

A reader writes that her daughter, 41, has a splenic flexure syndrome and that the associated abdominal gurgling is very annoying. She would like a rundown on this rather common condition. The splenic flexure is the sharp turn the colon makes just over the spleen in the left upper quadrant of the abdomen. When it becomes greatly distended with gas one is said to have splenic flexure syndrome.

This is caused by anything that favors gas production in the colon — emotional disturbances, taking laxatives and eating large amounts of gas-forming foods. All foods, however, if they are swept from the small intestine into the colon so fast that they have not had time to digest and be absorbed into the blood.

That is because when the undigested sugars and starches contained in the foods reach the colon they are met by fermentative bacteria. The resulting fermentation produces gas and other irritating by-products. If the process is repeated often enough a chronic mucous colitis is the result.

In persons with splenic flexure syndrome the symptoms are usually most noticeable 20 to 30 minutes after a meal. There may be pains in the abdomen, chest or left shoulder, palpitation or even shortness of breath. Because the condition often has some of the features of peptic ulcer, hiatus hernia or coronary heart disease, a snap diagnosis should not be made.

If it is determined that splenic flexure syndrome is indeed the trouble, a short course of treatment with dicyclanil or belladonna or a similar drug should help. For the long pull, the following measures are essential. Avoid laxatives, eat a bland diet omitting such gas-formers as potatoes, peas, corn, beans and rice and get rid of sources of emotional turmoil if possible.

Q—My doctor says I have the Boston virus. What is it? Is there any cure for it?

A—The viral disease known as Boston exanthem has been recognized for only eight or nine years. It affects persons of all ages but chiefly children under two. It starts with a fever of 101 to 103 degrees that lasts for one to four days and a rash all over the body that clears up in one to five days. The victim often has a mild sore throat. The cause is ECHO virus, type 16. There is no specific treatment, but complete recovery is the rule.

Question Box

(We invite questions on economic and the proper functions of government which will not injure anyone.)

QUESTION: Can any truly progressive society be built upon a foundation of: (1) Forcing all to do the bidding of either the few or the majority, especially when those vested with this unnatural power naturally become corrupt with the power? (2) Allowing some to create wealth from nothing and permitting their first preference at a debtor's asset liquidation when, admittedly, the asset was brought into being from the lender's ability to assume a liability without benefit of having an offsetting asset at the time of loan to debtor?

ANSWER: 1. We do not believe any true progress can be possible when it is based on coercion. As to the statement about "those vested with this unnatural power becoming corrupt with the power," we remind the questioner of Lord Acton's statement that "All power tends to corrupt; absolute power tends to corrupt absolutely." Therefore it is only natural for those invested with power over the lives of others to become corrupted.

2. We do not know how anyone can "create wealth from nothing." Apparently the question is aimed at the fact that credit is "created" when banks make loans. This is part of the expansion of credit and currency approved by the federal government and its creation, the Federal Reserve System.

If banks were required to redeem their deposits in gold, the people would have some protection against the practice of issuing unbacked credit and currency. A financial institution which purported to issue money or credit, but which was not backed by something of value, soon would go out of business as bankrupt. Depositors and those seeking loans then would patronize only those institutions which established records of maintaining something of value behind their issues.

For a discussion of the banking and money situation, we recommend Murray Rothbard's "What Has Government Done to Our Money?" (Pine Tree Press, Larkspur, Colo.)

Poverty War Imbalance

(Milwaukee Journal)

A recent office of economic opportunity survey reveals a form of racial imbalance in the war on poverty. It found that 57 per cent of the more than 7 million Americans reached by poverty projects last year were nonwhite. Yet more than two-thirds of the Americans living below poverty levels are white.

Several factors cause this. The strongest thrusts of the war on poverty have been directed at the most conspicuous concentrations of poverty, the urban slums, where many Negroes live. Poverty programs also have focused on children and youths. Negroes are comparatively overrepresented in these age groups.

Maintaining a representative balance must be made a real concern in poverty war planning. There already are alarming signs that poverty projects are becoming segregated. Head Start and child care centers that have mostly Negro enrollments have had difficulty getting white parents to enroll their children. Some job corps camps have Negro ratios of two-thirds or more and corps officials report increasing difficulty in recruiting white youths. A recent survey shows that almost one-fifth of the whites who drop out of the corps say it is because too many of their fellow corpsmen are Negroes.

The solution to this problem is not to cut back on poverty programs which reach Negroes. Rather, it is to aim at some large but less accessible groups of poverty victims — groups which include large numbers of whites. Projects reaching the rural poor and aged poor, for example, might be expanded. Both groups include many whites.

the one great North Vietnamese port of Haiphong.

Naval blockade involves no combat at all. Merchant ships sailing toward the blockaded port are simply turned away by warships of the blockading power. Exactly this was done in the Cuban crisis of 1962. Russian ships were turned away by American warships without a single gun being fired.

Land communications in Vietnam, especially with Red China, are so primitive that without a regular flow of supplies through the port of Haiphong, North Vietnam could not possibly continue the war.

There is not a single tenable argument against blockade of Haiphong and every reason for a blockade. It should be begun at once.

DOWN UNDER WITHOUT BLUNDER
For a change of pace in your reading this week, how about a little humor?
"Down Under Without Blunder" is the accounting of an American schoolteacher working in Australia (published by Tuttle Co., Rutland, Vt.; $1.00). Although Americans and Australians share a common tongue, the author found that colloquial expressions there make almost a new language out of Australian.

For example, the principal of the school told author Harvey Ward that one of his students had been "wagging it again." A sports commentator said that a certain player had kicked so many goals and so many "be-hinds," and one young girl boasted about her "glory box."

Many of the misunderstandings involved double entendres over risque matters — but all are cute and done in good taste. A pronunciation dictionary and glossary are included. Some interesting definitions include:
"Die — a period of twenty-four hours."
"Dive — nickname for Dyvid."
"File — what you will do if you do not succeed."
"Lice & ornamental openwork made of thread. The sheila had lice on her panties."
"Mock — place where things are sold."

Drama Students to Enter District UIL Drama Contest

The Pampa High School drama department will present a one-act, tragic-comedy play in the district University Interscholastic League competition at Canyon tomorrow.

Pampa students will compete with 10 other schools from district 3-A, including Lubbock, Borger, Plainview, and Amarillo.

The Pampa play, written by George Herman, a playwright in residence at the University of Minnesota, is the story of a company of traveling actors who try to improvise the history of man.

It has five scenes, with prologue and epilogue. The play is done in the style of an Italian classic comedy of the Renaissance period. The five scenes are creation, birth, adolescence, love and marriage and death.

Cast members for the one act play are Jerry Woodward, Fred Barber, Cherie Akst, David Herne, Susie Root, Beau Bond, Lisa Bossay, Jan Pittz, Mike Hayes and Joyce Fischer.

Crew members are Ann Gage, Gwen Brunson and Jeannie Bell.

"Students designed the costumes and scenery. Our scenery will be only a trunk and six stools, because the UIL officials limit the schools on scenery and do not permit the use of any constructed sets," Mrs. Don Myers, speech and drama teacher at high school, said.

This is actually better for the students because it teaches them to be more creative and imaginative and puts the emphasis on acting," she said.

A trophy will be awarded for the best one act play, medals for best actor and actress and all-star cast. Six students from schools competing will be named as acting," she said.

Pampa High School drama students have won one-act play for the past two years, the best actor award for three years and the best actress award last year.

Students named best actor were Harold Thompson, 1964; Pat Spears, 1965; Doug Altton, 1966 and best actress, Patsy Lou Holloway, 1966.

Officials Turn Down Appeals Of Auto Companies

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The government rejected Thursday a series of appeals from automakers on new safety standards but agreed to hold a hearing on one involving extensive redesign of car interiors.

The industry had asked the National Traffic Safety Agency either to change or postpone 18 of 20 mandatory safety features which must be installed on 1968 models.

Except for the interior redesign, the agency let stand the changes issued in an order on Jan. 31.

The public hearing will give the automakers an opportunity to produce evidence in support of their position that they cannot meet the standard in time for the 1968 models. As proposed by the government, the standards called for the automakers to redesign instrument panels, seat backs, sun visors, arm rests and protruding knobs and handles.

The government said the auto industry appeals on the interior impact standard "have raised issues of material fact which should get resolved in a hearing conducted for that purpose where petitioners and the National Traffic Safety Agency may present evidence in support of their positions."

The government is expected to publish a date and rules for the hearing within 10 days.

Wall Street Chatter

NEW YORK (UPI)—Wright Investor's service says the Federal Reserve Board's move in cutting the discount rate would be bullish for both the short and long term of the stock market but it does not insure against interim price reactions.

The company says the 1967 stock market has recovered much more of last year's losses than the Dow Jones industrial average would indicate. It feels therefore, an intermediate price reaction, particularly in the many speculative issues, would not be surprising before summer.

Standard & Poor's says the easing in the money market and special demand factors may lead to temporary market buoyancy. It feels since the market is poised near its old high and will soon have its digest some poor earnings and possibly some adverse economic news, it would recommend an increasingly selective policy in purchasing stocks.

Stanley Hiler 1 Co. says it believes a bullish approach to the present stock market is warranted only on a technical basis. The company says present economic realism have as yet not shown even the slightest sign of following the expectations of the general list.

VOTE FOR John R. Spearman For Pampa Independent School District TRUSTEE

The most important reason for my interest in Pampa Schools is My family: Margaret a sixth grade student; John Jr., an eighth grade student at Robert E. Lee Junior High; Jay (sitting), a third grade student; my wife Angela, president of Stephen F. Austin P.T.A. and Fine Arts Major of Texas Christian University; and Melinda, a fifth grade student. Margaret, Jay, and Melinda attend Stephen F. Austin Elementary School...

JOHN R. SPEARMAN FEELS...

1. I am willing to serve the Pampa Independent School district in a conscientious manner for all.
2. I believe that the public should be welcome at all school board meetings.
3. I am for enlarging the membership of our school board to seven. All areas of our district would have a better chance for representation. This would require action by the State Legislature.
4. I feel that a good school system is important to our community and especially our children, and I am vitally interested in education. The Pampa school system is very important business in this area with over 450 employees and an annual budget of over $3,000,000. When elected I will work toward improvement of our school for all concerned.

I am a lifetime resident and am engaged in farming and ranching east of Pampa. A graduate of Pampa High School in 1947, where I was a member of the National Honor Society and was voted Best Boy Citizen of my graduating class. A graduate of Texas Technological College with a Bachelor of Science degree in Animal Husbandry and a minor in economics. I am a director in the Top O' Texas Rodeo Association, past president of Gray County Farm Bureau, and a member of the First Methodist Church.

Vote April 1, 1967, at Pampa Junior High Gymnasium.

COMES TRUE
CHICAGO (UPI)—While in prison Gary Carl Horton wrote a novel in which an armed robber died in a gun battle with a policeman.

Wednesday night, Horton, 25, shot a Chicago policeman who later died. As Horton and an accomplice fled down an alley, the dying policeman emptied his revolver. At daybreak Thursday Horton was found dead in a yard nearby.

President Johnson's political troubles would begin to fade away if he suffered something like another Pearl Harbor or the destruction of another battleship Maine.

"Remember the Maine" was a battle cry that ended resident McKinley's indecisive hesitation and sent the United States into the Spanish-American War, a people united in a common purpose. LBJ desperately needs a united people, however, in purpose.

Pearl Harbor was the target of Japan's sneak attack on the U.S. fleet at anchor in Hawaii that day of infamy, Dec. 7, 1941. The Japanese bombs killed divided Americans and President Roosevelt's frustrated purpose to get into the war. There were hawks and doves in the years before Pearl Harbor. FDR was a hawk.

Pearl Harbor ended FDR's cautious indecision. Congress responded instantly to his request that the United States enter the war in the West and in the East. FDR knew he had the people behind him when he went to Congress.

No Solid Support
LBJ has no such solid popular support. He is frustrated now as was Roosevelt in the months before Pearl Harbor and McKinley before the battleship Maine sank in Havana Harbor.

Also within living memory are the chancy breaks that enabled Woodrow Wilson to lead the United States into World War I. Germany proclaimed unrestricted submarine warfare in late January, 1917. The United States broke diplomatic relations with Germany on Feb. 3. U.S. merchant ships were armed against German submarine attack on March 12, 1917.

On Feb. 28 a note from the German foreign office for the Mexican foreign office had been intercepted by the British and delivered to the U.S. government. The German note proposed an alliance with Mexico and that Mexico attack the southwest border of the United States to recover Texas, New Mexico and Arizona.

Congress put the United States into the war against Germany and in alliance with the British on April 6, 1917.

Boodless Triumph
Interception of the German note by the British was a greater triumph than could have been achieved by winning a dozen battles in a row. In his illuminating historical series called, "Our Times," Mark Sullivan relates that Wilson and others feared the British interception of the German note was a propaganda hoax. Investigation proved the note to have been genuine.

The facts relating to FDR's Pearl Harbor never were quite established with the certainty which would forever establish to whom was to blame and, especially, how blame was to be assessed between the big brass in Hawaii and the big brass in Washington.

The investigation was subject to more influence by the Washington brass than by the Hawaiian brass. And might have been expected, the Hawaiian brass took the rap. Adm. Harold (Dolly) Stark was bounced out of his job as Chief of Naval Operations in Washington, but he was the only Washington casualty of the Japanese attack on Pearl Harbor. If there are facts still hidden, perhaps they will be disclosed in time but that is not likely.

By coincidence, the investigation of Pearl Harbor was similar in some respects to the Warren Commission investigation of the assassination of John F. Kennedy. FDR, armed a five-man commission to determine Pearl Harbor guilt. It was headed by Supreme Court Associate Justice Owen J. Roberts. Itchy doubt of that inquiry probably will continue forever.

Foreign News Commentary

By HENRY SHAPIRO
United Press International

MOSCOW (UPI) — Meekly and indirectly, the Romanians have raised the thorny territorial question of Bessarabia, a small area between the Prut and Dniester rivers, which was last incorporated into the Soviet Union in 1940.

Soviet spokesmen, bluntly and categorically, have asserted that Bessarabia always was, is and will remain an integral part of the U.S.S.R., in Soviet Moldavia.

The question has not been posed formally by Bucharest. But it is there. And it is symptomatic of winds of change in Eastern Europe.

No sooner did the Romanians begin to take a politically independent line from Moscow some three years ago than they dug up a statement by Karl Marx in which he condemned the Czarist seizure of Bessarabia from the Turks in 1812.

Early Times
That was long before the United Kingdom of Romania was established in 1876 and the separate principalities now forming Romania were under Turkish rule.

The Russians have been quick to respond that the Romanians seized Bessarabia in 1918 when Russia was preoccupied with and weakened by revolution and civil war.

Regardless of the official posture, the Romanians base their claims to Bessarabia on the ground that the majority of its population is technically and culturally Romanian.

Apparently there is some underground propaganda in Soviet Moldavia, calling for association with Romania.

On Ded Center
There the matter rests, with possession being nine points of the law. The dispute demonstrates another point, though. The new strictly nationalist Romanian leadership is taking an increasingly independent, if not antagonistic course, from the Kremlin's.

But officially to raise the Bessarabian question would open a Pandora's box of territorial problems for Romania. Hungary might reassert her claims to Transylvania and Bulgaria to Dobrogea—areas which Romania has acquired partly with Soviet aid.

Accordingly, the Romanians are content with either barely keeping the question alive or letting the Chinese pull Romanian chestnuts out of the fire.

Astrological Forecast

By CARROLL RIGTER

FOR SATURDAY, APRIL 1 — GENERAL TENDENCIES: Until sundown very difficult aspects are in effect that can cause much difficulty with those in high office or with those who have any control over your personal or worldly interests. However, the evening finds a decided turn for the better taking place and you are able to accomplish much of your pending matters.

ARIES: (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) — Take particular care you do not let others and lower your reputation and then the p.m. is very good from a social standpoint. Make sure your credit is improved, also. Then buy jewelry.

TAURUS: (Apr. 20 to May 20) — Some very ultramodern project is most appealing right now but could prove to be absolutely impractical, so be wary. Plan sensibly for other matters during day. However, do not start wheels in motion until p.m.

GEMINI: (May 21 to June 21) — While you want to delve into some big deal right now, it is best to carry through with obligations you have already made. Get rid of dull duties early. Evening then becomes ideal for romantic feelings.

CANCER: (June 22 to July 22) — Consider well during day how you can get the powerful backing you require from the right persons, but tonight is best time to get wheels rolling. Unpleasantness can be avoided during day. Act sensibly.

LEO: (July 23 to Aug. 23) — Be wise and get all of your obligations out of the way during day and await the evening for fun and relaxation. Buying new articles for your wardrobe is best in the late afternoon. During morning you could use rational judgment.

VIRGO: (Aug. 24 to Sept. 23) — Entertainment is best in the evening since you have many duties to perform during the day. Make your plans early for such, however, so that you are sure to go out for a change of pace. Conviviality will be a tonic for you.

LIBRA: (Sept. 24 to Oct. 23) — Don't try to argue with those at home or with associates during day. Just because they do not see eye to eye with you. By evening all works out just fine, if you keep promises you have made. Be honorable.

SCORPIO: (Oct. 24 to Nov. 23) — During the morning you have to be careful not to get into any accidents and then you can have a wonderful time with good friends. Close ties. Don't be belligerent with anyone. Get into hobbies you really enjoy.

SAGITTARIUS: (Nov. 24 to Dec. 23) — Being careful to invest wisely in very important during day, but tonight you are thinking more sensibly. Be sure you keep within your budget. Avoid those persons who could make you spend extravagantly.

CAPRICORN: (Dec. 24 to Jan. 23) — Be careful not to lose your temper with those around because you feel frustrated or that they are imposing on you. Be sensible. Sociability is OK in the p.m. but should be avoided during day.

AQUARIUS: (Jan. 24 to Feb. 19) — Dull tasks require your time and effort during day, but tonight is ideal for whatever is of a romantic, artistic nature. You need to have the right attitude. Then all works out just fine.

PISCES: (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) — Plan in p.m. to carry through with ideas that will cause your friends to become more cooperative and helpful in the days ahead. Study better social methods. Much can be gained via such avenue.

17 Students Will Attend Press Meet

Miss Elizabeth Hurley, Pampa High School publications sponsor, and 17 high school students will attend the annual Panhandle High School Press Association convention at West Texas State University tomorrow.

Pampa students have sent in five entries in each of the individual student contests in news and yearbook photography, news, sports, and feature writing, and general and sports columns.

The Little Harvester and The Harvester are entered for judging in the newspaper and yearbook contests.

In one of the section meetings, Miss Hurley will speak on editorial writing.

In the general morning session, Bob Izzard, an Amarillo television news director, will speak on his experiences covering the Vietnam war.

In the final session, officers will be elected and awards presented.

Pampa students attending the convention are all newspaper, yearbook, journalism or advertising students.
