KIRVEN NEGRO WAR DENIED

Mayor and Klansman in Sensational K. K. K. Debate

RIFF RAFF CAN NOT JOIN KLAN SPEAKER SAYS

"They Should Take Off Mask" View Of Opponent

By Associated Press.

KANSAS CITY, Kans., May 7.—Merits of the Ku Klux Klan were debated at the London Heights Methodist Episcopal church here this morning by Dr. Harry Graham, Boston, Mass., announced as an international organizer of the Ku Klux Klan and Mayor Harry B. Burton of this city, an announced opponent of the organization.

Dr. Graham pictured the klan as working for social purity, while supremacy, the welfare of the nation and upholding the constitution of the United States.

Mayor Burton declared the klan was un-American, cowardly and oppressive, and that its members might "better be co-operating unmasked with the law" than marauding around, and punishing in defiance of the law.

Dr. Graham said that since the war public morality had slumped greatly, and that this let-down in public morals "threatened the supremacy of the white race."

Mayor Burton asserted that the supremacy of the white race was a matter to be proven by its own actions; that there was no guaranty of "white supremacy" in the constitution of the United States, which guaranteed equal rights to persons of all colors and of all religious beliefs.

The Ku Klux Klan, the mayor asserted, has levelled "its activities against the Roman Catholic, the Jew, the alien and the negro."

Graham Reads From Bible.

Doctor Graham, who spoke first, was dressed in ordinary business clothes. Standing in the pulpit, he read several verses from the Bible, ——"and God said let there be light, and there was light;" "that which hath been is now; * * * and God requireth that which is past."

"I know thy works that thou are neither cold nor hot; I would thou wert cold or hot. So then because thou art lukewarm, neither cold nor hot, I will spew thee out of my mouth."

Turning to an American flag, which stood behind him in the pulpit, Graham, declared:

"I love this flag and nation and am willing to lay down my life for it. Accusations the organization I represent are false."

The organizer said he spoke as a medical man and as a scientist. Seventy thousand illegitimate white children were born in the United States in the last year, he said.

"The man who does not keep his marriage vows is not a citizen. I

Capper of Kansas—And War Debts—Do Not Mix—

By H. N. F.

SENATOR ARTHUR CAPPER OF Kansas is chairman of the farm bloc in congress. He says the bloc as an organization is not participating in tariff legislation and "there is not truth in the report that the farm bloc is participating," regardless of what the propogandists may say. Senator Capper is an editor. He owns a chain of weekly farm papers. According to the Kansasan it takes $38,380,000 a day to pay interest on the war debts of the nations which took part in the great war, and the total war debts of the nations are placed at $354,000,000,000. Senator Capper has discovered something else.

THE NEW YORK RESERVE Bank pays more than one-half million dollars a year in salaries to its forty officials and $4,500,000 to its 3,047 employees. Nine of the officers of the bank are paid more than the chief justice of the United States; eleven receive more than an associate justice of the supreme court; thirteen are paid more than any cabinet officer and yet says Senator Capper they are supposed to be serving the same government and the same people.

THE GOVERNOR OF THE NEW York bank has an annual salary of $50,000; its federal reserve agent, $30,000; two of its deputy governors $30,000 each and two $25,000 each. This is not all that Capper says. At least a dozen officers in the New York Reserve Bank had been employed at salaries at $1,320 to $9,500 prior to entering its service. They now are drawing salaries ranging from $10,000 a year up to $30,000 and one of these salary increases ranged as high as 423 per cent.

This does not appeal to Senator Capper. He insists that a federal board which has the power to affect prices and the credit of the country should not be a board of bankers and economists merely but should have an agricultural member on its directing staff. Republicans control the senate; they control the house. Senator Capper should tell it to President Harding and the congressional leaders of his party.

WALL STREET SAYS THAT Henry Ford and Andrew W. Mellon are running fifty-fifty as the second richest American. John D. Rockefeller has second place. He made it with oil. He has given away $600,000,000 and his fortune is estimated at $1,200,000,000. There were some losers in 1921. The Armours say they lost $32,000,000. There were some winners. The United States Steel Corporation closed the year with a profit of $93,000,000. In the faded year there was more money in steel than there was in meat but the oil king gathered his in and never blinked an eye. How would you like to be a billionaire—and 82.

WHAT IS THE MATTER WITH Kansas? Senator Arthur Capper says the New York Reserve Bank is planning to build itself a $25,000,000 home that would make King Solomon's temple look like a shack. Uncle Sam has gathered in two-thirds of the gold of the world. Why shouldn't one of his banks have a $25,000,000 temple? Senator Capper is short on sentiment. He is too old fashioned.

IT IS SAID THAT THE SHELL and Royal Dutch Oil companies have signed a pact giving them extensive concessions in Russia and it

"How much did you lose Jack," he was asked. "Thirty francs" replied the fighter, without a smile.

KLANSMEN APPEAR AT HOME OF DEAD MAN HERE

Robed Figures Place Boquet on Coffin and Leave Card

At 5:45 Sunday afternoon, four klansmen, dressed in the white robes of the order, arrived in a car at the home of C. S. Bennett, 707 Burnett street, whose death occurred at 7:30 Sunday morning.

The four robed figures alighted from the car and silently entered the house and went into the room where the deceased lay. The leader placed a cross upon the coffin of the deceased, and as silently as they came, the four left the house, entered the car awaiting there, and drove away.

Neighbors of the Bennett family were on their porches and witnessed the scene. The card on the coffin bore the statement, "From Wichita Falls Klan, No. 195."

As far as is known, this is the first time the clan has publicly appeared in the robes and the regalia of the organization. Neighbors who witnessed the scene say the masked figures were robed in white, with white masks and a tall cone-shaped white cap, tipped with a red tassel. Over their left breast was the insignia of the order, worked in a black and white pattern.

The license number on the car in which they arrived was completely covered by black cloth.

The deceased, C. E. Bennett is an old resident here. His remains were shipped to Fort Worth for burial late last night.

CHAMBERS DOES TWO MILE JUMP FROM AIRPLANE

Air Circus Crowd Sees Champion In Action

Thousands gazed skyward as an airship colored olive-drab thundered upward until its Liberty motor could not be heard again.

Every person on the ground at Call field kept an eye on the machine, for in it rode a famous parachute jumper.

It was the feature of the afternoon of a long list of thrills in a successful aviation meet—Sergeant Encil Chambers, world's champion altitude diver, was soon to plunge 13,000 feet headfirst toward those who watched him.

Chambers stated before his plane went up that he would not be able to attempt to break his former record due to the high winds.

Sgt. Colby is Pilot.

Driven by Sergeant C. F. Colby of Post field, Fort Sill, Okla., in a big DeHaviland, Chambers soared to the dizzy height within a short time, and the plane soon became the size of a bird against the clouds and streaks of blue sky. As he left the plane, his parachute resembled a paper sack and Chambers' decent was slow.

Six minutes and almost 50 seconds were required to make the landing, and several times as the famous parachute artist neared the earth it appeared to those who looked on in anxiety as if his parachute would crumple, fold, and that he would be plunged head-first to an instant death.

He tugged and pulled with all his strength on the silken cords of his air-support.

Landing in a strange current of atmosphere, his body dangled and twisted, and his parachute all but toppled over twice. He seemed to hang there in the air for just a minute, and then he pulled one string, another and another and shot beneath the current.

Lands Outside of Field.

The sergeant passed over the landing field and on beyond the hangars of the former post, landing beyond a railway track, his parachute catching to a fence and saving him injury.

Carried back to the flying field in an automobile, his silk "air-pocket" tucked under his arm, a broad smile across his face, Sergeant Chambers was repeatedly snapped by Fox film machines and newspaper photographers, and willingly unstrapped his headgear for the cameramen.

An hour later, he was soaring northward to Fort Sill to narrate his jump.

SHIPS SHELLING CHINESE ROAD

Yank Forces Ready For Emergency

By Associated Press.

TIENTSIN, China, May 7.—A critical situation is developing on the railway between Tientsin and Shanhaikwan on the Manchurian frontier. About 20,000 of the defeated troops of General Chang Tso-Lin are being held up at Tongshank, Kuyeh and Lanchow where there are valuable Anglo-Chinese coal mines.

Frantic appeals reached Peking yesterday from the Linsi mines, where the foreign staff was reported to be in a desperate situation.

Twenty British volunteers were sent there Saturday night.

The gunboats of General Wu Pei Fu have appeared off Shanhaikwan and shelled the railroad, but without results.

It is not known whether General Chang is endeavoring to make his last stand at Lanchow, midway between Tientsin and Shanhaikwan or whether the Chili troops of General Wu from Kaping have appeared to Chang's rear. The van guard of the Chili army reached Tientsin Saturday evening, after having scattered the remnants of Chang's troops in this vicinity.

American outposts were doubled Saturday evening. They encountered and turned back some of the Mukden troops.

The British cruiser Curlew reached Taku today. She is prepared to land men and machine guns if necessary.

The danger in the region of Tientsin now is over, but there is apprehension regarding the safety of foreigners between here and Shanhaikwan.

Young Cul'lud Gentleman Turns Snow White When He Dives Headlong 1,500 Feet From Racing Airplane Here

Men turned gray-haired in "no-man's land" in 12 hours during the world war, but a negro turned snow-white in 12 minutes in Wichita Falls Sunday.

But even at that, Dewey Holt, 22, set a pace for his own race yesterday when he dived head-first out of a moving plane from a height of 1,500 feet to the earth below, during the aviation meet at Call field.

It was the first negro on record to make a parachute jump from an airship, and unquestionably the first to ever participate in an aviation meet in such a stunt.

Everyone doubted that Dewey would agree to be "kicked off" at such a dizzy height, but the "brownskin" favored the waiting crowd and executed the trick that many of those who looked on would not dare do.

Waving his hands in the glee of his supremacy, the negro seemed to linger on the edge of the plane just a second, then he plunged earthward and landed his parachute, laying it out in folds on the ground like a professional.

"It was lot's of fun, boss," he said when he had landed safe, and there's little doubt but that Dewey told the tale over and over in darktown Sunday night.

Holt is a mechanic helper at the Security Motor Sales company; he lives at 1614 Tenth, and said he came here from Little Rock, Ark.

BUDGET SLICES BILLION, HALF FROM PAYROLL

Dawes Shows Where Savings Are Made For Year 1922

By Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, May 7.—Government expenditures for the fiscal year 1922 will show a reduction of more than $1,600,000,000 from the actual expenditures for the preceding fiscal year, 1921 according to the report of Director Dawes of the budget on economies and savings in governmental business.

Director Dawes estimated that government expenditures for the current fiscal year which were given in the December budget estimates as $3,967,922,366 will be at least $45,550,336 less, or approximately $3,922,372,030.

As compared with 1921, he continued, there has been a reduction of $907,500,000 in expenditures for the operation of the routine business of the government subject generally to executive control. Of this sum he attributed $250,000,000 to the imposition of the executive plan and pressure on the routine business organization of the government under the new system inaugurated by the budget bureau.

House To Get It.

The report of Director Dawes will be submitted to the house appropriations committee today by the president in connection with a pending resolution by Representative Byrns, democrat, Tennessee, asking the president to inform the house in what ways direct savings of $32,000,000 and indirect savings of $104,000,000 previously announced by the president as accomplished by the budget bureau during its first six months of operation had been made.

Director Dawes presented in detail with accompanying tables and statements the comparative expenditures for the past and present fiscal years divided into items representing those which were charged to executive control and others such as public debt and similar accounts which were considered as apart from the subject of routine government expenditure. He also submitted exhaustive reports of the governmental savings accomplished through inter-departmental transfers of surplus supplies and other economy methods put into effect by the budget bureau, itemizing thousands of transactions involving ships, shoes, sealing wax and all the many articles and commodities utilized by the

Church Congregation Applauds McCormick As He Is Introduced

Chief Stands up With Fitts After Pastor Commends Pair for Their Clean-Up

Spontaneous applause was given Police Commissioner Fitts and Police Chief McCorraick by the congregation of the Floral Heights Methodist church Sunday night when the pastor, Rev. J. H. Groseclose, in the course of a sermon commending the work of the police department, asked then to stand and introduce them to his congregation.

Rev. Groseclose read the police blotter records of arrest in connection with the "cleanup" being conducted by the department, and praised its record highly.

In the course of his sermon, which was announced just before the fatal shooting of Bud Ballew by Chief McCormick last Friday, the pastor referred only generally to that occurrence.

Commends Department.

In this announcement the pastor expressed the hope that the crusade would extend to the owners of the "bad houses" and "joints" which had been raided.

"All these places have owners," he said, "and I think they should be arrested and punished. Their conniving at the breaking of the law is itself against the law, and they merit punishment."

The services was attended by a large congregation, which showed the closest interest throughout the sermon.

REAL WHISKEY TAKEN IN RAID

Sleuth Carry Off $1,680 Worth

All the real whisky in the world isn't gone yet.

There's still some left in Texas.

Chief J. W. McCormick of the police department proved that fact Sunday morning when he took possession of 84 quarts of Gordon Gin in a local hotel, and placed several occupants of the hostelry under arrest for further investigation.

Several armloads of the intoxicating fluid—valued at $20 per bottle, or better than $1,680—were carried from its hiding place to the police station early on the Sabbath morn.

Yesterday afternoon, Will Goodwin and Andy Avenger were released on bond of $500 each by United States Commissioner J. A. Lantz pending the action of the grand jury. John Crain, who was also taken with the party, had not made bond late last night.

The three men were arrested by the police department soon after the large quantity of booze was confiscated, and all three are charged with having "intoxicating liquor in their possession."

According to the authorities, part of the 84 quarts was discovered on the lower floor of the hotel in a back room, while part of it was found in a locker.

It is the largest haul of intoxicants that has been made in Wichita Falls since the authorities found 1,800 quarts of "bottled in bond" whisky in a load of shingles here April, 1921. The array of "real stuff" recalled to the minds of many Sunday morning the finding of the whisky on Lamar street nearly a year ago.

The 84 quarts were turned over to the federal authorities.

BLACK ATTACK ON TOWN FAILS TO MATERIALIZE

State Troops Are Called Out on False Report

By Associated Press.

FORT WORTH, May 7.—In a long distance conversation with the Associated Press correspondent at 9:15 o'clock tonight the manager of the telephone exchange at Kirven, Texas, said that the mob of 300 negroes, reported marching to Kirven to "wipe out the town" to avenge the burning of three negroes there last week, had dispersed and that state troops from Wortham have gone back to headquarters. The negroes had gathered during the afternoon but dispersed quickly he said.

MARSHALL SAYS THERE IS NO MENACE

KIRVEN, Texas, May 7.—Despite rumors from various towns in his vicinity that armed negroes were marching on the city to avenge the burning to death last Saturday of three negroes accused of the assault and murder of a 17-year-old white girl, the town was quiet tonight with no indication of trouble, according to O. C. King, city marshal.

Marshal King said he had investigated several reports of negro gatherings but that in each case these reports proved false.

A religious gathering of three score or more negroes near here this afternoon dispersed when advised that their meeting might possibly be misconstrued.

A report from Corsicana that 300 negroes were enroute here also proved without foundation. City marshals along the highway between Kirven and Corsicana report that negroes in their respective sections are quiet and that no band of negroes have been seen in this vicinity.

ALARMISTS CALL OUT OFFICIALS.

By Associated Press.

MEXIA, Texas, May 7.—Although there has been a good sized crowd on the streets of the little town of Kirven all day and is still there tonight, there appears to be nothing more than a high nervous tension existing after yesterday's lynching of three negroes, close on the heels of the brutal murder of 17-year-old Eula Awsley and the subsequent man hunt by a posse of 500 men.

Rumors have spread all over the several counties in this vicinity today but all have proven without foundation thus far. Kirven is quiet and the few negroes living there are very inconspicuous.

The greatest anxiety at the town of Kirven tonight is that in some isolated case or two, negroes will "get in their dirty work." In the words of natives of the little towns.

Several times today the local police force has been called upon by alarmists to rush to the scene and once several automobiles loaded with officers went to the scene of the crime with arms and a machine gun but found nothing but a nervous reaction from the horrible murder, the strenuous man-hunt and the ghastly triple lynching.

ELECTRA WILL GIVE BIG PICNIC

Jennings, Douglass To Entertain

Special to The Record News.

ELECTRA, Texas, May 7.—Jim Jennings and L. P. Douglass are feeling their oats. And well they have the right to feel them.

Jim Jennings is owner of acreage on which a big gusher has just been completed on the outskirts of this city and L. P. Douglass, is the mere owner of several sections of promising oil lands some of which adjoins the Jennings holdings.

So happy do these two royalty owners feel over the prospects of opening a big field on their land that they have opened their hearts and are planning for a big free barbecue which will be held on the Douglass lease adjoining the Wichita Falls-Electra highway at the outskirts of the city, in celebration of the well.

Everybody is to be invited. All the oil men who have been connected with the drilling in of the Jennings well will be given seats of honor at the banquet table. The mayor will be much in evidence and the feast will be one long remembered in this city.

Many oil men from Wichita Falls, Fort Worth and Dallas signified their intention of being present at the feast.

The picnic will be held at 5:00 o'clock Tuesday afternoon.

Officials of the Gulf company throughout this district will attend, according to information here today. Other prominent oil men also will be present.

LEASES SELL AT ELECTRA

Special to the Record News.

ELECTRA, Texas, May 7.—Leases are turning in all directions from the Jennings well in the east outskirts of the city. The Humble Refining company closed a deal with Charles Kolp the latter part of the week for 30 acres offsetting the well on the west, the purchase price, according to reliable authority being $800 per acre. J. H. Howell closed a deal with W. T. Parker, of Wichita Falls in which Howell sold one-eighth interest in an acre lease on the Gibson survey nearly a mile south of the Planet lease for $5,000, which makes the acreage figure at $500.

L. P. Douglass stated late Saturday afternoon that he had disposed of practically all nearby acreage. The Gulf Production company purchased a good portion of the Douglass property and late Saturday were hauling out a derrick for their first well on this property. The Griswold Oil company has erected a derrick for their initial test on the Jennings a quarter of a mile south of the well which has just been completed.

MARRIED IN AIR

Top, where the marriage took place; center, the principals, Miss Sarah Cockefair, Albert P. Schlafke, Mary Louise Bobb and Belvin W. Maynard; below, guests, listenining in on marriage vows.

"Start married life on a high plane'.' That was the slogan of Miss Sarah Cockefair, Brooklyn nurse, and Albert P. Schlafke, athletic director of the Veterans' Mountain camp. So what was more natural than that they should pick out the plane of the Rev. Belvin W. Maynard, the "flying parson" for the starting place. Guests invited to the wedding heard the marriage vows made in the plane, a thousand feet above the ground, by radio.

RIFF RAFF—

hope some day the mayor will be able to take the step that I have taken in joining this organization.

"We don't want riff-raffs. We investigate candidates for membership and take only men of high Christian principles.

"Men in Washington have told me it will not be more than ten years before civil war breaks out in this country. Our organization is riding the waves. The more is said in the press against us, the more men come to us to join.

"There isn't a secret service in the world as large as this one. Thousands of eyes are watching your every move. We have been criticised for secrecy. That is all right. Secrecy was essential to the preservation of Christianity in the early days of Roman persecution.

"Our organization upholds the tenets of the Christian religion, stands for white supremacy, better relations between capital and labor, pure womanhood, the prevention of mob violence; the prevention of strikes caused by foreign labor agitators and upholding the constitution of the United States.

"If a klansman is shot down, we step over his dead body and go on with our great work. That white robe I wear is a symbol of purity.

"The flaming cross is the symbol of Christianity.

"The city of Tulsa, Oklahoma, has been a cleaner city than ever in its history since the work of the Ku Klux Klan.

"Some things have been said against us by Governor Robertson of Oklahoma. If he hadn't done some wrong, he wouldn't fear the klan. When he comes up for trial in June, 200 klansmen will act as his body guard.

"They have never been able to connect the Ku Klux Klan with any criminal act. The papers didn't publish the facts about Englewood, California.

"If you don't want the white race superseded, you must stand for the things this organization is working for."

Mayor Invited To Join.

Mayor Burton began by announcing that he had never requested membership in the Ku Klux Klan and never expected to do so. He said he had been invited to sign a card applying for membership, and had declined.

"This is an organization absolutely un-American, instead of 100 percent American," the mayor declared. "During the world war we heard nothing about white supremacy. There was no question then as to whether a man was a Jew, a Roman Catholic, or a negro—all that was asked of him was service. How much we could do for the world if we were willing to go ahead on that basis today. This is a country dedicated by its constitution to religious freedom.

"Regardless of how you feel about it, white aspremacy is unconstitutional. It is up to us men of the white race to show our superiority.

"If the good these men (the klansmen) do is worth while, why do they hide their faces?

"We teach our children to bare their heads in the presence of the American flag.

"This organization covers its face, its body and its head in the presence of the flag, during its parades, and calls itself 100 per cent American.

"It is accused—I hope it is not true—of forcing marriages, disrobing and whipping women, participating in murders and mob violence. These things are un-American.

"It is un-American to adopt such robes. Any red-blooded Christian gentleman stands for the defence of the weak and for pure womanhood, on which the klan, in its public declarations lays such stress. It is not necessary to go around in a mask to defend those things. If public officials fail to do their duty, there are legal ways of getting them out of office.

"If these people would teach their members to exercise the right to vote to take an intelligent part in good citizenship, they would do far more good than they are accomplishing with all these rights and mystery. The people who pay least attention to their civic duties are the ones who are caught quickest by this prating and mystery.

Denies Congressional O. K.

"These people say that congress has endorsed them. That is not true. Congress investigated them and finally dropped the investigation. It never endorsed the Ku Klux Klan.

"Incidentally, it was brought out in the investigation before congress that of the $10 initiation fee exacted from new members,

"Four dollars goes to the organizer.

"Five dollars to the national organization.

"One dollar to the 'Imperial Wizard.'

"No matter what you think of some of the persons who have been punished, they have a right to their day in court. This organization in its marauding around—what does it go for? to frighten. That's illegal. To punish. That's illegal. Criminals cannot be bluffed by a white robe. The most reprehensible thing about the Ku Klux Klan is that, by its masking and robing, it has made it possible for criminals to commit crime under the same sort of robes. And doubtless, they have."

Doctor Graham, in a brief rebuttal, said that the klan stood first of all for morality.

"Six hundred ministers of the gospel in Oklahoma belong to the Ku Klux Klan because they can't get justice without it," he declared.

POLICE CHIEF COMMENDED

"Out of all the towns I make in 61 counties in Texas, I have never found a town where law is more enforced than it is here.

"I think Wichita Falls is to be complimented for having an officer like Chief J. W. McCormick at the helm to enforce the laws of this city and clean up the town like every clean place ought to be."

Cam H. Murray, state inspector of weights and measures of Austin, a man who has spent many years of his life as an officer, made those statements Sunday morning as he conversed with friends.

"McCormick is an officer of the law through and through; you can't buy him. I never knew a state ranger who held a better reputation than Mac. No ranger ever had more friends; no man in West Texas has more friends than he has.

Lauds Chief.

"Wichita Falls has a pure, straight chief of police, and the citizenship is fortunate in selecting him.

"There's many a town in Texas that needs law enforcement that hasn't had the privilege of selecting a man like him."

Touching on the recent killing of "Bud" Ballew, Mr. Murray said:

"Chief McCormick didn't go in Adams' place with his gun drawn because he's clean and he wants to give every man a chance. I never heard of 'Mac' going after a man with his gun drawn.

"He always makes his arrests without making any display unless it becomes necessary."

It was the visitor's statement that Chief McCormick has the reputation among state rangers of being the most cool-headed and as one of the bravest of them all.

He said he had known Chief McCormick six years.

VAN HOUTEN GETS HENRIETTA OFFICE

Special to the Record News.

HENRIETTA, Texas, May 7.—Word has come from Washington that of the several candidate applicants for the Henrietta postoffice, President Harding has selected Joe M. Van Houten. The routine of confirmation by the senate, and perhaps a few other details are still to be considered, but within a few weeks more or less the new postmaster will be in the cage. Mr. Van Houten, who is also "Joe," is a Clay county native who discovered America on the farm west of Bluegrove. That event took place some time ago, and he has since been through the school and good and plenty of travel and business experiences that have fully sounded out the business man. He is a lifelong republican.

COTTON HOLDS TO ALL GAINS

Weather Takes Turn At End of Week

By Associated Press.

NEW ORLEANS, May 7.—Throughout the week the cotton market stood at the advance, rising to its highest levels at about the middle, and holding its gains fairly well thereafter, in the face of considerable realizing from the long side.

At its best, the active positions were 142 to 161 points higher than the close of the preceding week with July up to 18.70. The close was at net gains of 98 to 126 points with July at 18.23. In the spot department middling gained 112 points in the net results, closing at 18.12 cents a pound against 11.88 on the close of the same week last year. The demand was encouraged mainly by the unfavorable weather conditions over the greater part of the belt during the early days of the week.

Toward the end of the week, the weather took a turn for the better and this stimulated considerable realizing on the long side. Reports from sections of the Carolinas were that some mills were running full time with a few mills working nights. Liverpool messages to local brokers noted more inquiry for cloths and claimed that trade was being done, in a moderate way by Manchester with all parts of the world which was accepted as meaning that confidence gradually was being restored.

At the same time the cotton trade generally saw little that was constructive in the developments at the Genoa conference.

WRITES ESSAY WHILE DYING IN HOSPITAL

WORCESTER, Mass., May 7.—Dying in the City Hospital from pneumonia, Philip G. Abisamra, seventeen-year-old student of the High school of Commerce, propped himself up on his pillows and wrote a four-page composition on "The Storm." He did this in an attempt to keep up his standing in class. Three hours after finishing the composition, he died. School teachers say his work was exceptional.

WEST VIRGINIAN, 68, FINISHES IN SCHOOL

POINT PLEASANT, W. Va., May 7.—Del Upton, aged 68, school teacher, Baptist preacher and prohibition stump speaker, will be graduated as an honor pupil from the Point Pleasant High school this year. He is probably the oldest student attending a school in West Virginia. "A man is never too old to be a student," Mr. Upton says. "When he gets too old to learn he is not fit to live." Upton is the father of five children.

QUANAH MAN PICKS BRIDE AT VERNON

Special to the Record News.

VERNON, Texas, May 7.—H. N. Bridendall of Quanah and Miss Ruby Sneed of this city were married Wednesday night at the Baptist parsonage with Rev. W. T. Rouse officiating. The bride is a daughter of P. L. Sneed and was born and reared in Vernon. Mr. Bridendall is a resident of Quanah and is employed in the postoffice there. The couple left on a honeymoon trip to Wichita Falls and Quanah and will make their home in Quanah.

"MARRIED"

Mme. Mimi Constantineau.

BOSTON, May 6.—"Married" for ten years and still unmarried. Such is the plight which Mme. Mimi Constantineau, Boston prima donna, claims to be in.

She charges that Lewis K. Marr, assistant superintendent of the Pennsylvania railroad, is the "husband" who isn't a husband.

And because he refuses to become a regular, conventional husband, she is suing him for $150,000. The opera star wants just $15,000 a year for paying wife to Marr, according to her complaint. She says she lived with him for ten years.

Mme. Constantineau charges that Marr promised to marry her as soon as possible, after the death of his legal wife, but he never did.

Her complaint further charges that he succumbed to the attractions of a lunch counter girl and now refuses to marry her.

Breach of promise and non-support are the alleged grounds for her suit.

BUDGET—

government together with the amount of saving realized in each case.

Only Real Savings Included.

The budget director further reported that the savings reserve against current appropriations of $112,000,000 set up by the departments and establishments in August, 1921, in response to executive request, had been increased, notwithstanding reappropriations by congress of more than $7,000,000 of this reserve for other purposes, to the approximate sum of $136,000,000. Only such part of these reductions as are real savings and not postponed expenditures were included in the general estimate of savings he added.

As a still greater reduction, Director Dawes declared that the present estimated expenditures for 1922 for the operation of the routine business of the government, after eliminating expenditures of $7,500,000 authorized by congress after the submission of the budget providing for representation of the United States at the Brazilian centennial exposition, seed loans, and fulfillment of the treaty with Colombia, as compared with the December budget estimates, showed an excess of only $25,767,457 on a total of $1,758,375,672 or a discrepancy of only about 1 1-2 per cent.

Calls It Impersonal.

The report was described by Director Dawes as an effort to determine what the real savings of the government had been during the current fiscal year.

"The bureau of the budget is an impersonal, and nonpartisan business agent," said Mr. Dawes. "In this particular report where its estimates may become a basis of contention in an approaching political contest, its figures should be conservative and meet the test of examination, not only in the present but in the future when existing partisan differences are forgotten and the record for impartiality and nonpartisanship of the budget bureau is considered in retrospect by the unprejudiced mind of the government economist and student."

Field Marshal Joffre—he who held back the Germans at the Marne—is about to leave New York on the last lap of his trip around the world. Joffre recently landed in Seattle and has spent several weeks stopping off at various cities on his way east. He will sail for France shortly.

HOW HE GOT OUT

CHICAGO, May 7.—David Wolman liked the Navy so well that he even consented to pose as a deserter to get back in it after being honorably discharged back in May, 1921.

Dave is still in the navy—with reservations.

Finding the life of a landlubber distasteful, especially with jobs scarce, the one-time jolly tar had a friend "capture" him as Mike McCarthy, deserter, and collect a $50 reward.

In his ingenuous way, Dave got just what he wanted—a two-year sentence in the brig after his court-martial in January. But month the sailor charged his mind about the succulence of prison fare and wrote the Secretary of the Navy about the deception.

LANSING BACKS HAITIAN MOVE

Troops Sent to Stop German Designs

By Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, May 7.—American intervention and administration in Haiti were defended by Robert Lansing, former secretary of state, in a letter to Senator McCormick, republican, Illinois, chairman of the senate committee investigating Haitian affairs, made public today.

Establishment of peace and prosperity in Haiti and blocking of German designs and aggression threatening the United States and the Monroe doctrine were declared by Mr. Lansing to be the motives behind the American policy. The two dominating ideas of the American procedure, Mr. Lansing said were:

"1. To terminate the appalling conditions of anarchy, savagery and oppression, which had been prevalent in Haiti for decades, and to undertake the establishment of domestic peace in the republic in order that the great bulk of the people, who had been down-trodden by dictators and the innocent victims of repeated revolutions, should enjoy a prosperity and economic and industrial development to which every people or an American nation are entitled.

"2. A desire to forestall and attempt by a foreign power, to obtain a foothold on the territory of an American nation, which if a seizure of customs control by such a power had occurred or if a grant or a coaling station or naval base had been obtained, would have most certainly been a menace to the peace of the western hemisphere, and in flagrant defiance of the Monroe doctrine."

Landing of American naval forces in Haiti in 1915, Mr. Lansing stated, was an "urgent necessity," as, he said, "anarchy and revolution" was in full sway with Americans imperilled and the French legation violated by a mob, which captured and murdered former President Cam. If the United States had not intervened, other foreign nations would have done so, Mr. Lansing said, and to have permitted such foreign intervention would have meant abandonment of the Monroe doctrine.

HENRIETTA IN SOCIAL WEEK

Many Affairs Given In Past Few Days

Special to the Record News.

HENRIETTA, May 7.—The Woman's Missionary society of the Methodist church, met Monday with Mrs. Les Bramer as leader. The subject "Brazil" was very interesting. About 16 members were present in spite of the rain.

Mrs. G. P. Jones conducted the "Training For Service Class" at the Baptist church Monday afternoon.

The Missionary society of the Christian church met Monday afternoon. The subject was "Latin America" with Mrs. M. B. Powell as leader. At a business meeting preceding the program, a social meeting was planned for the first Monday in June at the home of Miss Nellie Bates. The society also planned a market for the near future, the proceeds of which will go to the T. C. U. Emergency Fund.

Mrs. F. O. Moore and Mrs. Louis Ikard planned a very pleasant surprise Tuesday afternoon when they asked the Unitey club to be their guests at the home of Mrs. Moore. The house decorations were blue cornflower and yellow poppies. The program, a resume of the year's work "The Recent Novel" was ably conducted by Mrs. D. B. Walker. After the program, a handkerchief shower was given Mrs. Walker who left Wednesday to make her home in Fort Worth. Delightful refreshments were served to the following members and guests. Misses Nellie Bates, Jessie Chesnutt, Lula Johnson, Mesdames W. S. Culwell, Frank Holaday, S. B. Holly, Lon Kelly, C. M. Worsham, W. L. Mount, C. B. McDonald, A. B. Staggs, Roy Snearley, T. K. Jones and Mrs. Percy Neville.

The marriage of Miss Mary Opal Cole and Mr. Homer D. Jones was solemnized at High noon April the 29th at the home of the bride's uncle, Mr. L. R. Hamm. Miss Cole has visited here often, is the daughter of a cattleman of Denton, but has been teaching in the schools of Electra. The groom is a prosperous young business man of Electra.

The bride wore a charming one-piece dress of tan liberty satin with hat and gloves to match and carried a shower boquet of brides roses. They were attended by Miss May Jones, sister of the groom and Homer Hamm, cousin of the bride. Rev. J. N. Hunt, officiated.

After congratulations, the young people left for a short stay in Fort Worth, after which they will reside in Electra.

A large and enthusiastic crowd attended the mass meeting at the courthouse Tuesday evening. The meeting was called by the Parent Teachers' association for the purpose of explaining the condition of the public schools of the city and to ask for a raise of taxes of 50 cents on the $100 of property valuation. The election was called for the 20th of May.

The Civic league met Friday afternoon at the courthouse restroom for the purpose of electing officers for the coming year. Mrs. W. H. Meyers was elected president; Mrs. R. J. Brown, first vice president; Mrs. Louis Ikard second vice president and Mrs. Frank Buntine third vice president. Mrs. J. O. Gilliland secretary; Mrs. E. C. Carter, treasurer; Mrs. St. Anthony Meyers, corresponding secretary and Mrs. C. M. Brown press reporter.

Special to the Record News.

BURKBURNETT, May 7.—The Free Dental clinic covering two forenoons, Wednesday and Thursday, of this week, in the office of Drs. Cooper and Haynes, reported 40 corrections, serving 17 children, all under the direction of Miss Dorpat, the county Red Cross nurse for this city. The next month clinic will be held on the mornings of June 7th and 8th. Where financial conditions will permit, part payments are being made by the parents of the children treated.

Interest In Revival.

The Flowers revival services, at the Methodist church, is advancing with interest and "many are added to the church daily," numbering to date about 45 new members. Others have given their names to be turned over to the pastors of other churches in the city.

The attendance at the special service for children reached the 200 mark today. Mrs. Flowers, a speaker of unusual power in the pupil, addressed several hundred women this morning; a large number among them professed religion and joined the local churches. The general revival services by Rev Flowers and his singer, Rev. Bonney each evening are attracting vast crowds of people at the open air meeting in the tabernacle.

MAY FETE GIVEN AT HENRIETTA SCHOOL

Special to The Record News.

HENRIETTA, Texas, May 7.—The May Fete given at the school building Friday afternoon under the supervision of the grade teachers and Miss Hall and Mrs. Maxwell was quite a success. Miss Dorothy Dale was the Queen of May and rode to her throne in a pale green chariot drawn by a white pony. Preceding her were the couriers on black ponies followed by twelve tiny flower girls strowing rose petals. The Queen's attendants were Misses Manrice Mount, Allene King, Lena Derzapf, Eva Bullenger, Naomi Townley and Irene Shaw.

After the crowning of the Queen the following program was given: Butterfly Dance, Ida Katherine Neville; Dutch song (in costume), by pupils of the 1st grade; Indian song (in costume), by boys of the 3rd grade; song, sailor drill; Virginia Reel, by pupils of 3rd and 4th grades; Pantomime of the Nations, Maypole dance.

SPIRIT OF AGES SHOWN IN MODERN BRIDAL GOWNS

The bride of today dips into the past to find inspiration for her wedding gown. From some long ago mode she gets her basic idea upon which she constructs her modern gown. The result is a creation that is a harmonious combination of the past and the present, in which she appropriatly passes under the church portals to that future in which she is to live happily forever after—

The bride of this season seems to wish above all, to appear stately. So the favorite period from which she draws her models, is the moyenage, which gives the straight, simple, long gown. Being stately, by the way, is not so much a question of height, as it is of carriage and the lines of the dress. Gloria Swanson, the Paramount star, for instance, is a trifle below medium stature, but she has the graceful and stately type of beauty that is usually only attributed to much taler women. She achives this effect largely through the choice or proper lines. This point is demonstrated in the photo of her above. It shows a moyenage model of straight lines, narrow, and long-trained; the design in the material likewise tends to give height, for it is of gold threads in long perpendicular waves running through the white satin. The veil is of real lace, and falls from tulle that is swathed about the face in true medieval fashion. This lovely creation was especially designed for Miss Swanson to wear in her picture Beyond the Rocks."

A Wife or a Profession?

Chapter LXX.

That night Annetts slept peacefully as a child, but Howard lay wide awake the whole night through. He could not yet realize all that had been told him, that all he supposed he had given up forever was his again. Slowly as the night wore away all the old bitterness left him, and in its place came resolves to make up to Annette by his devotion for all she was doing for him, to make up to Dr. Campbell for the disappointment he had caused him, and to give the poor unfortunates with whom he came in contact the best there was in him.

He did not minimise the fact that his life of ease and indolence would make steady application difficult at first, neither did he think that Annette would be entirely changed. She had told him she probably would be jealous of both his patients and profession because they would take him from her. But now she would be amenable to reason, would see his point of view where before she had seen only her own.

"Is it so late," she raised herself on her elbow.

"Not too late, dear. But you said the vans were to be here at 9, and I want you to be out of the house when they come. Then I wanted you to tell me I had not dreamed all the wonderful things you told me last night."

"They are all true as true!" Annette happily responded, "especially that I love you."

"That is best of all dear. The rest would mean little if your love had not inspired you. Now, come, eat your breakfast. I hear Claire down stairs and will send her up."

"So you have told them! Bully for you! I always knew you were good stuff, now I'll tell the world you are!" Claire said slangily as she came into the room. "I never saw such a change in any one as there is in Howard. One could scarcely believe it possible. He looks twenty years younger since yesterday, and is more like he used to be than I have seen him in years. He joked with me, really he did! And Annette, you look younger and better, too. Isn't it fine to think I have two such wonderful friends?" She did not add what she had said to Howard when he told her the news. Part of which she already knew. She had told him:

"Howard, I am proud of you! I love you better than ever and I shall never again feel you were wholly to blame. Annette has told me many things. I did not quite understand."

"Thank you, Claire. I think the knowledge that you were ashamed of me has been one of the most distressful of my many unhappy thoughts, perhaps because I knew you had the right, that I was something to be ashamed of."

"That is all past now, Howard! We'll never think of it again. It is the future that holds interest ,that and Annette. We must see that she never regrets her generosity.

"She never shall if I can prevent it."

After this talk Claire had hurried up to Annette. She helped her dress and they went out, leaving Howard and the servants to attend to the moving.

Annette kept up bravely, although she wiped her eyes as she looked back at the place that had so long been home to her.

"I have been very happy there, Claire," she said, "and so I love to think has Howard. He has been miserable at times, but not all the time. And now it is his to do just what he likes with. I expect he will fill it with poor children, injured veterans, and the sort who can't afford to pay. But there is money enough to carry it on even if he does. I never told you, but I used almost to quarrel with him in Clarkstown because he insisted upon leaving me alone and going out at night or in the rain to doctor Pat Mulligan's children and the children of many others who never paid him a penny. I was pretty horrid, I guess."

"You are pretty wonderful now, Annette, and so marvellously generous. Not many women, even with as much money as you have, would do as much. And you do it so splendidly. There is no 'it is my money about it,' never has been, I know."

"Why should there be? I love Howard. Why should I have anything he doesn't share equally with me."

"He'll get the lion's share now I am thinking."

"Perhaps."

It was a marked yet subtle change that had come over Annette, yet she seemed to be almost unaware of it. Now when she talked to Claire she invariably put her wishes for Howard before thought of self. In the olden days it had been the other way around. She still spoke of love as being all she lived for, but it had ceased to be so selfish a love and Claire hoped, she almost knew, that gradually love of humanity, love for those Howard would try to help would come to her. In talking of it, Claire said:

"That kind of love, Annette, is all that makes this old world an attractive dwelling place for nice people."

TEXAS EGGS TO PUT THOSE FROM PACIFIC COAST IN SHADE

Special to The Record News.

BROWNWOOD, Texas, May 7.—"Nu-laid" eggs of California co-operative egg associations will be "old laid" hen fruit when the co-operative marketing association of Brown, Comanche, Mills, McCulloch, Coleman, Tom Green, Runnels and Concho counties begins to function.

These counties have adopted the system now in vogue in Petaluma, California. The system has been found applicable here. The West Texas egg is to surpass the California article by reason of its proximity to market and being in a superior poultry territory. West Texas eggs will reach the New York market long before the California fruit gets well on the way.

VERNON BRIDE LUNCH HONOREE

Miss Hiatt to Wed Wichita Man

Special to the Record News.

VERNON, Texas, May 7.—Miss Helen Hiatt, whose marriage to Eugene Berry of Wichita Falls occurs May 7, was the honoree at a dainty luncheon Wednesday afternoon at the home of Miss Lucile Holt on West Wilbarger street. Guests were greeted at the door by the hostess and were met in the carnation decorated hall by Miss Charlie May Northcraft who ushered them into the dining room. The table was decorated in the bride-to-be's favorite colors of pink and orchid. This color scheme was carried out through the four courses.

Rose shaded electric candles lighted the table. In the center of the table flowers and ferns were the decorations and crowning this center piece was a miniature bride dressed in a beaded white satin gown with train and filmy bridal veil. On this figure, symbolic of the occasion, a reflector played and also lighted up the sentence announcing the approaching nuptials of Miss Hiatt and Mr. Berry.

After the luncheon the guests hemmed tea towels which were presented to the prospective bride. The following guests were present: Miss Helen Hiatt, the honoree, Misses Vera Harrington, Esther Swartwood, Johnny Mallow, Beulah Ladd, Charlie May Northcraft, Ruth Batchelor, Woody Dixon, Mrs. Dan Sumner and the hostess.

Church Entertainment.

A novel means of supplying money for the pipe organ fund at the Methodist church has been undertaken by a committee composed of members of the congregation in conducting a "Trip Around the World" Friday, May 12. Cars or "trains" as they have been designated, will leave the church at 7:30 p. m., on that date, and occupants will be escorted to four homes of the city where entertainment and refreshments will be furnished.

May Festival.

One of the most attractive events in years was presented Thursday night to an audience of more than 1,500 persons at Allingham Park in a May festival staged by pupils and teachers of the Central school. Dressed in quaint court and fairy costumes of bright and varied hues, the children proceeded faultlessly with their program underneatheh a bower of lights framed by the dark foliage of the park's beautiful trees.

Music throughout the occasion was furnished by Goetze's band which played almost continuously through nearly two hours. Access by automobile to even the vicinity of the park was barred for several blocks by hundreds of cars belonging to those attending the program. Miss Ruth Aleene Sewell was queen of the May, and sat in great state upon a huge throne around which were grouped her ladies in waiting. The production was planned and directed by Miss Leola Smith.

The smoke problem is nearly as old as civilization itself, for coal was being mined in Great Britain about the tenth century. In 1306, Edward I issued a proclamation prohibiting the burning of coal in the city of London, because of the "vulgerous smoke and savour of the firing."

FASHIONS

This Dainty Lace Dress Is Simplicity Itself.

Many of the frocks now being displayed for afternoon or evening wear during the summer season are so dainty as to be almost picture book affairs, as the one illustrated in today's sketch helps to prove. This dress was developed in a rich golden brown lace, and net of matching shade over a henna colored silk, the two colors blending most pleasingly. A soft henna colored ribbon sash girdled the waist. The ruffles are so arranged as to effect an uneven hem line, and the waist is of the surplice type and sleeveless.

The dress would be charming in either all white or all black, or white over a pastel colored silk would be effective.

Lace dresses are in high favor just now, with blacks and whites sharing honors with the laces dyed in pop'ar colors such as brown, henna, navy, taupe, etc.

The vogue for picturesque apparel is also evidenced by the displays of summer millinery. Never have the large, picture hats been so seely as they are this season, and never has the trimming been so varied. Ostrich is holding its own well, used in various ways, and the flowers shown are a veritable riot of color. The usual roses, cornflowers, lilies, etc., are in evidence, and many flowers that are not ordinarily reproduced for millinery trimming purposes.

A gorgeous hat recently seen was trimmed all about its crown with hyacinths, the stems of the flowers lying flat on the brim. Another was trimmed in fuchsias and another in multi-colored tulips. Ascension lilies trimmed another wide brimmed chapeau.

Along with the lace or lace trimmed frocks and picture hats of light fabric and gorgeous colorings there are also shown fascinating sun shades. Organdy has been found desirable as a parasol fabric, one dainty model seen being of white organdy bordered in yellow centered daisies. A particularly lovely silk parasol was lined with white lace, and another of pastel colored silk was draped all over with gay flowered chiffon.

Parasol handles are as varied and interesting as the covers, some being hand painted, many hand carved and some studded with semi-precious stones.

"Here Come the Elephants!"

DO YOU remember how you used to be on the job bright and early to see the circus parade? Remember how you thrilled as the lions, tigers, and the big, lumbering elephants passed in review? How the horses, the blare of the bands, the antics of the clowns, and the glitter of it all inspired you with a fervid determination to see the real show—the big performance in the tent?

You didn't realize it then, but you were getting a lot out of an attractive advertisement.

Perhaps you don't realize it now, but other advertisements, just as attractive, just as interesting and far more valuable to you, parade daily before you in the columns of this paper.

The merchants and makers of everything you want or need, here display before you their most attractive wares. It is truly "the greatest show on earth."

The whole purpose of any advertisement is to excite your curiosity, gain your interest, arouse your desire; to tell you something you don't know; to remind you of something you have forgotten; to convince you of something over which you have been hesitating.

In short, the purpose of an advertisement is, in one way or another, to make you happier.

Read the advertisements and see if that isn't so?

CHAMPION OF SALES TAX.

ALBERT J. Beveridge, the winner of a senatorial nomination in Indiana, never evaded an issue. He said in all his speeches that taxes were too high and would have to be reduced and also redistributed. He went out in the country districts and told the farmers he favored a sales tax, when advocacy of a sales tax was supposed to be political suicide in an agricultural community. He told labor he believed the Adamson law was a mistake. He also said railroad rates would have to come down. And the farmers and the workingmen voted for him. He did not have an organization. All the federal and state officials fought him to a finish. Every vestige of machine power was for New. Men who said that the sales tax proposition was dead were false prophets. Beveridge championed the proposition and Beveridge was given the nomination.

HAMMERING THE RAILS.

HOW would you like to be a railroad magnate? How would you like to be a railroad builder? How would you like to invest your money in railways? How would you like to own railroad stocks or bonds? Most of the candidates for congressional honors as well as the candidates for senatorial honors are pounding the railways. This is what Judge S. A. L. Morgan said at Vernon, "I am opposed to a guarantee by the government of a fixed return to the railroads. No such guarantee is made to the producers of cotton, grain, hogs, cattle and other products which make up the bulk of the freight transported by the railroads and the shipping interests. There is no justification in favoring railways as against the producers." Well, why not go back to the ox-cart period of civilization? Why not go back to the pony express rider? Why not go back to the stage coach? But if there is to be a guarantee by the government of a fixed return on capital invested, give the publisher a chance. He is a benefactor, too. He takes large risks. If he gets no return why he grins and bears it.

NAT GOLDSTEIN'S POST.

NAT Goldstein is a power in the Republican politics of St. Louis. He is one of the three Republican bosses of St. Louis. President Harding has appointed him collector of Internal Revenue for Eastern Missouri. He is circuit clerk of St. Louis and will be compelled to surrender one fat job to accept another. Goldstein has a past. Just before the Republicans held their convention in Chicago a senate committee investigated the expenditures of Frank O. Lowden, General Leonard Wood and other aspirants for presidential honors. Goldstein testified that he had received $2,500 from the Lowden $38,000 that had been sent to Missouri and that his fellow district delegate, Robert Moore of St. Louis received a like sum. Goldstein and Moore were referred to as the $2,500 beauties in the senate discussion of campaign funds. Politicians say that Goldstein's testimony destroyed Lowden's chance of winning the presidential nomination. Neither Goldstein nor Moore sat in the convention. They gave up their seats to their alternates. Later in the campaign they returned the money to Governor Lowden's campaign manager. Now Goldstein is a federal collector of internal revenue. He should at least appoint the other "$2,500 beauty" his chief clerk.

PLAYING SAFE.

CONGRESSMAN Nicholas Longworth of Ohio will not be a candidate for United States senator but will seek nomination as representative of the first district. He is the husband of Mrs. Alice Roosevelt Longworth and she is the widely known and accomplished daughter of a distinguished father. A congressional bird in the hand is better than a thousand senatorial birds in the brush. Thomas Lynn Blanton had the fever but he came to the same conclusion.

Senator Arthur Capper of Kansas says a citizen of New Castle, Colorado shipped a car of salt from Kansas City to his home town. He paid $150 for the salt at Kansas City while the freight at New Castle came to $501. Some velvet.

DR. CRANE'S EDITORIAL

MARBLES.

THIS is a day of sports.

The average man is tired of international politics and of the boresome problems of religion and public welfare. What we are interested in now IS baseball, horse racing and long distance running.

The other day John O'Connor, who had been entombed overnight behind a fall of over a thousand tons of debris, was rescued from a mine in Bargoed, Wales. The first question O'Connor asked on reaching the surface was, "How did Ireland and Wales get on yesterday?" referring to the football match at Swansea between the Irish and Welsh teams.

There is also a story of a man who died and went to heaven. When he reached the gate St. Peter asked him where he came from. He replied that he came from Chicago.

"What time did you leave?" asked St. Peter.

"About 6 o'clock," said the man.

Whereupon St. Peter eagerly leant forward and inquired, "What was the score?"

In this condition of the Zeitgeist it would seem about time that more attention was paid to the game of marbles.

Marbles probably occupy more thought in these United States during the early summer months than any other one subject, and the newspapers are shamefully neglectful in the matter of giving us due information concerning the game.

They tell us about tennis scores, and golf matches, and horse races, and even bridge games, but all these things interest only grown people, who will all be dead in a few years, anyway.

Why is it that we have no information about Bud Hopkins, the champeen marble player of the Third Ward School, who won 2 cornelians, 3 agates, 5 chinas, 12 whites, and 15 commies from Bill Kelly and Fatty Grubs last Saturday afternoon over behind Headley's Barn? Fifty boys were present. There was great enthusiasm and six fights. The preacher's boy, Wilbur, licked the butcher's son, Charlie Goldschmidt, because he said Bud Hopkins cheated. Wilbur only lost one tooth, but that had been loose anyhow.

Then there was the exciting game over in Middlesworth's Barn after school on Wednesday. It almost resulted in a race war, as Cicero Brown, the colored boy, won the game. Beter counsels prevailed, however, and trouble was averted; although it was whispered among the sports on the way home that Cicero had fudged.

No attention is paid in the papers either to the fact that the commies sold at Hardcastle's grocery are bumpy. Teddy Johnson tried to return those he bought and to get his 10 cents back, but old man Hardcastle refused.

The subject is an inviting one and items of interest are multiplied.

Isidore Stumsky lost a big crystal down the sewer hole.

And so on.

We submit that in the interest of true sport more attention should be paid to marbles.

Little Stories for Bedtime

By THORNTON W. BURGESS

(Copyright by J. G. Lloyd)

The four babies of Danny and Nanny Meadow Mouse grew very fast, and four very lively babies they were. It was some time before Danny could tell them apart. You see, when they were very, very little, before they had any clothes at all, they looked exactly alike to Danny. He didn't pretend to tell them apart then. He said they were as much alike as four blades of grass from one stem, and for his part he didn't believe that there was the teeniest, weeniest difference.

Nanny was indignant. "There is, too!" she asserted. "They are wrinkled differently; so now!"

Danny smiled. They were wrinkled. There was no question about that. He was quite willing to take Nanny's word for it, that the wrinkles were different on the four darlings, but, as he said, what was the use of learning to tell them apart by their wrinkles when they would so soon have little fur coats to cover all the wrinkles. What good would they do then? He would have to learn all over again to tell them apart. But Danny didn't have to wait long for them to get those little fur coats. You see, like a great many little people of the Green Meadows and the Green Forest Meadow Mice have no underwear, and so they wear fur coats even in hot weather; only then the fur coats are very, very much thinner than the ones they wear in winter. Well, when they did get them, Danny was more puzzled than ever, for, of course, they looked more alike than ever.

But when he and Nanny decided to name the babies Danny studied them very carefully, so that he would know which was which. One they named Teeny. Danny was sure that he could remember Teeny by the way in which he kept his ears, all the time wide open, so as not to miss anything. Weeny was the name of another, and Danny hoped he would be able to tell her when he saw her by the twinkle in her eyes, for Weeny was very, very merry. The third was named Midget and Danny was sure he could tell her because she didn't have her ears forever socked as did Teeny, and her eyes were not merry as were Weeny's. The last one of all was named Mite, and Danny was absolutely sure of him, because his tail was shorter than it really ought to have been. Danny though the tails of all Meadow Mice shorter than they ought to be, but this time there was no doubt about it at all. Mite's tail was shorter than the tails of his brother and sisters.

It was the day on which the babies were named that Danny and Nanny had their great fright and were thrown into the deepest despair. No one had found out their secret yet, and they were hoping no one would, anyway—not until the children were old enough to take care of themselves. Then without any warning whatever something terrible happened! Both Danny and Nanny were home at the time. Without the idea winning the whole upper half of that old pile of cornstalks in which they had built their home was lifted off, and there was their home exposed to the view of whoever happened along! Can you imagine anything more dreadful? And Danny and Nanny feared something even more dreadful, for, bending over their little home was—whom do you think Why, Farmer Brown's boy, to be sure! It was he who had lifted off the upper half of the old pile of cornstalks. He was cleaning up, and, of course, he hadn't known anything about that nice home of Danny and Nanny Meadow Mouse.

MOTHERS IN OPPOSITION

Mrs. Duncan sat on the soft. She wore her new hat with its bright little wreath and her best blouse, although most of it was covered by her coat. From the place where her feet touched the worn but neat axminster rug in Mrs. McCall's parlor to the top of her head, invisible under her hat, she throbbed and surged and palpitated. She had come on a portentous mission.

Opposite her in a chair that matched the sofa sat Mrs. McCall. Mrs. McCall was larger than Mrs. Duncan and sallow and she had not dressed for the occasion, but wore simply her usual afternon costume of black skirt and white shirt waist. But she, too, was nervous, and now and then she smoothed back her gray hair with a hand that was shaky.

Mrs. McCall came to the point first.

"I sent for you, Mrs. Duncan, to talk things over," she said. "I thought we ought to get together and tell each other just what we thought."

"I think so, too," replied Mrs. Duncan. She fumbled for her handkerchief, found it in her bag and applied it to her nose, which was already red from previous weeping.

"Jimmy," said Mrs. McCall, "thinks he's in love with your daughter."

"Annette knows she's in love with him," sniffed Mrs. Duncan. "She's never looked at a boy before. I don't know what's got into her."

"She's my boy's first sweetheart," Mrs. McCall paused. "Now, you know as well as I do, Mrs. Duncan, that the first is never the last."

"Mr. Duncan admitted that he'd been in love twice before he met me."

"Um, yes. I never asked Mr. McCall. I thought it wouldn't be of any use. He was a widower."

"I wouldn't marry a warmed-over man for anything!" cried Mrs. Duncan.

"Well, Mr. McCall's made me a first-class husband. And Jimmy takes after his father. But I may as well tell you first as last there's two reasons why he shouldn't marry your girl. One is he's too young, and the other is she isn't the right girl for him."

"He isn't the fellow for her. I know that," Mrs. Duncan spoke rapidly. "I want her to marry Everett Jones. Everett is crazy over her and she used to like him before your son happened along."

"My opinion is that Annette did the happening. She came home with him first time I ever saw her. In my day the boys used to escort the girls. It's the other way now, I notice."

"Now, I don't feel that way about my son," Mrs. McCall spoke slowly. "Training that don't work all the time don't count for much. But we're getting away from facts. You've come, Mrs. Duncan, to talk over with me how we can best break up this match that isn't agreeable to either of us."

"That's it exactly."

"I should suggest that we let 'em have all they want of each other. I'll invite Annette here; you invite Jimmy there. Encourage 'em, let 'em see there's no objection, and the thing will die."

"Mrs. McCall!" The other woman hitched to the edge of her seat. "You must be crazy! Why, if they knew the lid was off they'd be married inside of two weeks. Now, my idea is to keep them apart absolutely."

Mrs. McCall laughed. "And they'll love harder than ever."

Mrs. Duncan sprang up. She was angry. "I shall not have Jimmy at my house, I shall not let Annette come here. I—I'll shut her up first. No, ma'am! I'm going to end the thing right here—now!"

"Don't let's quarrel," Mrs. McCall spoke wearily. It's all bad enough as it is without that. Go ahead and have your own way and see how it works. You're like Annette, I see."

Mrs. Duncan jumped to the door. I'm more convinced than ever it would be fatal for my girl to marry your boy," she sputtered.

After she had gone Mrs. McCall went into the kitchen and made muffins for supper. She sighted often and shook her head. By the time the muffins were brown Jimmy entered from his work.

Jimmy was a small, finely built, vividly dark young man of twenty-one. He put his arms about his mother and kissed her.

"Hello! I smell muffins. You're all right, mum!"

"I hope, Jimmy, that when you get a wife she'll know how to make muffins, you're so fond of them," replied Mrs. McCall.

"Oh, I never expect to get a wife that'll come up to you." Jimmy's air was marked by constraint. "By the way, mum, the fat's in the fire. Annette's mother has declared against me."

"Absurd!" Mrs. McCall spoke warmly.

"Isn't it? I just met Annette and she told me. I don't know what we're going to do. We can't walk the streets all the time and there's no decent place like a park for a fellow to take a girl I suppose you draw the line on my bringing her here Sunday afternoons, and like that, mum? Annette's old enough to do as she pleases. She's the same age as I am."

Mrs. McCall hesitated. She foresaw that if she denied Jimmy's request it might force the climax. She did not want her son to marry a girl who thought life should be a commingling of jazz music, chocolates, sundaes and vivid literature. A boy, "her boy," would have no chance with a wife like that. She hated to act in opposition to Mrs. Duncan, but still if she did there could be no doubt what the end would be. Jimmy would marry Annette, and that would be little short of tragedy.

"Sure. Bring her here all you want to," she said. "Go and find her now and ask her to come to supper." She winced at the sight of his brightening face. "And, dear, if you get her, stop at Cassidy's and get a basket of strawberries. I can hull them in a jiffy."

"Mum, you're the stuff!" breathed Jimmy as he sped after his angel.

He returned soon with Annette, a pretty little blonde, powdered, tinted, and exquisitely vaporous as to frock. For the first time in her life Mrs. McCall practiced deception. She smiled down her husband's frank frowns, and all that beautiful May evening she sat indoors while Jimmy and Annette had the piazza.

It took a good many strawberries and muffins in the week following to keep things going for Annette, having acquired a welcome, did not hesitate to take advantage of it. She came as she pleased, and almost every day found her at the McCall's table. It was not very pleasant for her at home just then. Then suddenly she began to stay away.

"Where's Annette?" asked Mrs. McCall.

"Oh, Everett Jones is here in town with his car, and I guess she's going out a lot with him," Jimmy answered.

"Don't you care" Oh, if he did!

Jimmy grinned. "I guess I'll survive. Annette's a nice girl, but she's kinda like strawberries and cream."

"How's that, dear?" his mother asked.

"Why, I'm kinda tired of strawberries and cream. Do you know, we've had 'em twice a day for a week?"

"That's so." Mrs. McCall hid her amusement and relief.

"By the way, mum, I guess I'll go over to Eva Grant's a while tonight. Her brother's home and she said she'd get Mary Homer and we'd play a game of croquet by moonlight. Their croquet ground is right in the open, where it's bright as day."

"Sure. Run along." But Mrs. McCall's reply did not indicate the thankfulness she felt.

Elva Grant was a girl after her own heart.

Bullington Speaks At Henrietta

Special to the Record News.

HENRIETTA, May 7.—The past week has been replete with political activities and speakings in Henrietta. Thursday night Hon. Orville Bullington, independent candidate for congress, spoke to a fair sized audience at the courthouse. The speech of Judge Bullington was confined in the main to the discussion of the tariff issues. "I am the only candidate in the race who is upholding the political record of the late Lucian W. Parrish," declared the speaker. "He voted for the emergency tariff bill and the Esch-Cummings bill and yet the other candidates who aspire to his place are all denouncing his platform. The speech of Judge Bullington was well received.

On Friday night the Hon. S. A. L. Morgan had a rally at the courthouse which was packed to its capacity. Among the other speakers were Hon. M. W. Burch, of Decatur, who made a vigorous speech in Mr. Morgan's behalf; Judge A. H. Carrigan, who is well known here and who has a host of friends. The speech of Mr. Morgan was forceful and elicited round after round of applause as he discussed not only the issues of the day but the positions assumed by other candidates. At the conclusion of Mr. Morgan's address large numbers of people crowded around him and pledged their support.

DEATH CALLS DAVID UTLEY

HENRIETTA, May 7.—David J. Utley, another one of Henrietta's pioneer citizens, passed away Friday, April 28th, after an illness of almost two years. Mr. Utley was born at Concord, North Carolina, August 22, 1846. In 1875 he was married to Miss Sara Howard of Montague county and came to Henrietta in 1876, where they have resided since. He is survived by his wife and three children who are D. H. Utley, Mrs. Hattie Percifield and Mrs. J. T. Petro all of Henrietta.

The funeral services were held at the Methodist church, conducted by Rev. Guy F. Jones. The burial was in charge of the Knights of Pythias of which order Mr. Utley had been a member for 38 years.

By 1977, at the latest, women will rule the world and men will do the housework and care for the children, according to the prohpecy of a professor in the University of Southern California.

Cats Claw Bowman's Back in Final Game of Series

POSSUM MOORE RUINS GOOD BALL GAME

Adams Again Leads Spudder Stick Attack

Special to the Record News.

FORT WORTH, May 7.—When Possum Moore singled to center in the last half of the ninth inning today, sending Phelan in with the winning run, the Panthers took the long end of the series, with a 3-2 game. It was the second game in as many days in which the Spudders have been nosed out in the final round.

Bowman and Morgan both worked well until the eighth when they weakened. The Panther management jerked and the Spudder did not. Therein lies the tale.

Morgan held the Spudders in the hollow of his hand all the way for seven innings. After one run had been scored off his delivery in that round, and two runners put aboard, Paul Wachtel was called in his stead. Bescher was substituted for White at the plate and drove a long fly to right. Kitchens tagged up and came in after the catch with a run which gave the Spudders the lead.

In the last half of the eighth after two hitters had been retired, successive singles by Sears, Calvo and Beck knotted the count. Bowman failed to rally in the final go and after Phelan was hit by a pitched ball, Tavener sacrificed him along and he tallied when powerful Possum welted on into center for a safety.

The series marked the hardest play throughout seen here in years. Each of the four games was won by a single run margin, the Cats taking three, 4-3, 1-2, 1-0, 3-2.

The Spudder hitters connected for only five safeties, one of which was a double by Adams. The shortfielder was the only member of his club getting two, Summa, McDonald and Kitchens obtaining one each.

When the ninth opened, McDonald first up attempted to start a rally by poking a single into right, but Miller forced him at second on an attempted sacrifice.

A count for the Spudders loomed imminent in the first when Adams led off with his double and White walked. Summa advanced both runners with a perfect sacrifice, but a terrific drive by McDonald was grabbed by Kraft and it went for a double play when White could not return.

Four double plays resulted from the fast fielding, three of which were executed by the Spudders. All three were difficult plays, the first being Beck to Adams to Beck, the others Adams to White to Beck and the other O'Brien to McDonald.

O'Brien is rapidly establishing his reputation as the champion gunman of the league, throwing out runners out on the long corners with the accuracy of old. There is not a better throwing arm in the league than O'Brien's.

The northern clubs are priming their guns tonight for the beginning of the northern invasion tomorrow.

JAPS FAVORING CARDS TO WIN SERIES

Faith in Hunter Is Cause of Support

By JAMES M'LAIN

TOKIO, May 1.—The St. Louis Cardinals are favored by a majority of Japanese sport fans to win the next world's baseball series.

The following that the "Show Me" state team has developed in far-off Nippon would surprise not only the other major league teams in America, but Manager Branch Rickey and all of his players—except "Herb" Hunter, the utility man acquired last season by the St. Louis outfit.

Hunter is responsible for the great following developed over here, especially in Tokio, where he is held in high esteem by baseball players and fans alike. He is regarded by both players and fans as the utmost in ball players.

Hunter first came to Japan in 1920 with Gene Doyle of the Boston Post, and his aggregation of professionals. He left the team here, however, and became connected with the Waseda university as a coach. Last Fall he came back and for several months he served not only that university but Keio university as well in developing baseball material from the student ranks. He did a great deal of good, too, and the Waseda team, which attracted so much attention in the United States last summer, is stronger as the result of his visit.

"We'll Be Right There"

It was because of what he has done for these teams and the feeling that all who have met him here have for him that the Cardinals have such a large following in the land of cherry blossoms.

"We'll be right there this year," Hunter said to a group who bade him good-bye when he sailed for spring training from Yokohama recently, and the Japanese believe him.

Hunter will be back in November with a team of big league players, and after a series here he will take them to the Philippines. Agitation now is being started at Shanghai to get him to stop there for a few games. Hunter is bringing the men himself, and in Tokio he has the whole-hearted support and backing of Waseda and Keio universities in the enterprise.

The personnel of the team he will bring was not definite when he left here, but Rogers Hornsby, George Kelley, George Burns, Waite Hoyt, Arthur Nehf, Frank Frisch, Harry Heilman, Herbert Pennock, Earl Smith and Dave Bancroft are among those he named that he hopes to have in his line up.

This will make three American teams that will visit Japan this year, as Indiana university is due here this spring and Pennsylvania university is coming in the summer, both at the invitation of Waseda university. Hunter will return to Waseda after his team leaves for home and will return here again in the fall of 1923 to prepare the Waseda boys for another tour of America.

JOHNSON NEAR CY YOUNG'S RECORD

Senator Hurler Is Closest to Pace Set by Vet

By NORMAN E. BROWN

Walter Johnson is starting his fifteenth full season in the big show. And as he strives once more to help the Washington club to a pennant he hopes to come one year nearer the great pitching record of Cy Young.

The great Denton Tecumseh hung up twenty victories for eighteen years.

Johnson has several years to go yet, but he is the only pitcher in service today who has approached even near that mark of Young's.

Johnson has won twenty victories in each of twelve campaigns. Only one man outside Young has done better than that. Big Six Mathewson won twenty ball games thirteen years. One more good season and Walt will tie that mark. Another group of twenty in a single campaign will place him second to the old Cleveland star.

Johnson has passed the zenith of his career. He probably has lost some of his smoke. But other conditions may equalize this disadvantage. The Washington clubs of the past gave him poor support. Griffith now has a team of good hitting strength and fielding ability. Johnson ought to ease through many games that would be lost to him with the poor support of the past.

Johnson has been hurling big league ball since he joined the Nationals late in the 1907 campaign.

He stands out as one of the greatest hurlers in the game's history and the greatest that ever wore an American league uniform.

Consider that fact. With a team that has traveled in the lower division year in and year out, King Walter up to the opening of this campaign, had won a total of 320 victories and lost but 214 games—a percentage of .593. In other words he has been a consistent winner under all conditions over a span of practically sixteen years.

The King holds five pitching records.

Between April 10 and May 15, 1913 he hurled fifty-six consecutive scoreless innings.

In 1912 he won sixteen straight games, sharing the record with Joe Wood.

That same year he won nine games from one team—the White Sox—equaling Ed Ruelbach's record.

In 1910 he set a strikeout record of 313 strikeout victims.

In September, 1908, he hurled three consecutive shutout games.

He is a member of the no-hit fraternity, also.

WILD ONION PLANTS FLOODING W. VIRGINIA

CHARLESTON, W. Va., May 7.—Garlic and wild onion plans somewhat similar in appearance, are spreading over meadows in Kanawha county to such an alarming extent that T. Y. CHAMP TAMERS ARE LATEST CLASS

Some Will Never Hold Title Themselves

By NORMAN E. BROWN.

There's a small group of fighters in the ring game today that ought to be organized into some kind of a club. Said club might be called "The Tamers of Champs."

The gents I have in mind are men like Memphis Pal Moore, Johnny Dundee, Harry Greb and Benny Valger. They have never been able to land a real championship of their own, but they have made the champions in their class and classes above them look foolish in the ring.

Pal Moore is the most striking example. He is feared by every bantamweight in the game today. He is not on the calling lists of the various champs as they come and go. Few of the youngsters like to meet him.

Dangerous Fighters Puzzled.

Moore, Valger, Dundee, Greb and one or two others of their general type, have a puzzling style which puts any plain but ordinarily dangerous boxer at a great disadvantage. Consequently especially no-decision bouts, these freak fighters can make better opponents, including champs, look like dubs while not harming them.

Moore is the most striking example. First of all he swings his arms windmill fashion and slaps with the open glove. The average opponent is made to feel that four or five arms and twice as many gloves are coming his way.

In addition Moore has a grass-hopper jump which he uses to confuse an opponent if said enemy tries to bore in.

The champion, whoever he may be, is wisely cautious of walking into these wild swings and finds himself unable to locate the elusive Moore to do any damage.

Greb Toyed With Gibbons.

Harry Greb showed what a puzzling style he has when he made Tommy Gibbons a fast and clever man, heavier than himself look foolish in their recent battle. Greb dances in and out tapping with lightning-like thrusts, but never giving his opponents a chance to retaliate. A champion, or any other man who wants to carry the fight to Greb and possibly land a k. o. finds himself out of luck.

Johnny Dundee has a jumping style something on the order of Moore except that he leaps in such a way that he can deliver a fairly stiff jolt as he goes up. He also has a rugged frame and a good defense, which made it hard for a champion to show up well against him. Ask Johnny Kilbane and one or two other kings.

Benny Valger, New York boy who called himself the "French flash" when he first broke into the limelight, never came dangerously near a title, but in no-decision bouts with Kilbane and other better men he appeared to be a wonderful fighter. He could not come through when a decision would have counted, however.

These men have profited almost as much by their freak style as they would have by winning a title. Champions and leading contenders make the mistake of accepting matches with them and the brilliant showing of the "freaks" in such bouts makes them big drawing cards.

SPUDS RETURN HOME FOR GAMES

Galveston Opens Three-Day Series At 4 o'Clock

By "Spike" Cooper

The northern invasion begins today.

Galveston's Sand Crabs, tenants of the seventh rung in the championship ladder, open a three day engagement in Athletic park this afternoon.

The failure to break even on the recent road trip seems to indicate that it is heredity with Spudder clubs. That feature of the 1921 season cost the Spudders a pennant. However the present aspect does not justify the prediction that the circumstance will continue.

Hub Perdue has been added to the mound staff. Rumors which seem more or less well substantiated promise other valuable additions in the near future. With pitching on par with the other clubs in the loop, the Spudder machine will crush all opposition. The hitting as a whole is satisfactory although two or three members of the team have not yet reached their stride at the plate.

The road trip just ended was disastrous to the Spudder standing. The club left home safely in first place but were overhauled by the Exporters who have been running wild of late.

Shreveport dropped the first series of the home nine's journey to foreign fields. Dallas evened series count with the Wichita club as did the Panthers. Only four of the ten games played were copped by the Spudders. Two of the Gasser games, one in Dallas and one in Fort Worth, are recorded in the won column. Losing six, one to Shreveport, two in Dallas and dropping three to the Cowtown nine sent the Spudders into third place.

Whether or not the strength indicated by the many Exporter wins will be borne out while the Beaumont team is barnstorming remains to be seen. Doubtless the pitching is not far inferior in the lower end of the circuit, and the leading five hitters of the league includes three of the Exporter regulars, two of which are above the .400 mark.

Summa and Adams have rammed out many hits and climbed well toward the top of the league's sluggers. McDonald continues his steady clubbing, nothing sensational, but of the variety that speaks consistency. Miller and O'Brien continue to wield a threatening club. Miller is leading the league both in extra base knocks and total bases. White who has replaced Sorey at the middle station figured prominently in the Spudder attack and has shared honors in the games captured on the road trip. White is also fielding a clean game and turning in more than his share of double plays. Beck and Kitchens have not reached their stride with the stick, but are contributing their share of blows to the club. Bischoff, who has shared equally with Kitchens in mask work is about even with the veteran catcher.

The Pitching Problem.

Pitching has been the problem to date. Darrough has lost a couple of hard fought games, and games that he was entitled to win, except for the breaks. Mokan acquitted himself most creditably in his last time out, turning the Panthers back with three hits. Bowman lost a hard game yesterday which he might have won had he been helped through a little. He weakened in the closing innings and the Cats outcounted the Spudders with clean hitting. Ruth has not been so successful in his tenure of the mound and both Dallas and Shreveport seemed to find a liking to his offerings. Ramsey worked a beautiful game on his last trip to the hill.

Giants Shut Out Athletics Through Vets' Pitching

By Associated Press.

NEW YORK, May 7—Jess Barnes veteran pitcher of the New York Nationals almost duplicated the perfect game pitched by Charlie Robertson of the Chicago Americans just a week ago, when he pitched a hitless game today against Philadelphia, the Giants winning 6 to 0.

Only one base on balls, marred Barnes great performance, Williams being the recipient of the pass and the start of the fifth inning. He was doubled out when Fletcher hit into a double play. Only twenty-seven men faced Barnes, as in Robertson's game of a week ago. Only four balls were hit to the outfielder.

J. Smith, a Philadelphia coach, asked for the ball with which Barnes had been pitching at the end of the Philadelphia half of the seventh. He showed Umpire Hart where there were several cuts in the ball, and Hart threw it out.

BLAME FLAPPERS FOR THIS ONE TOO

(By International News Service)

KANSAS CITY, Mo., May 7.—Don't take your flapper friend into the corner drug store and call for "soda pop."

There's no such thing, according to the Missouri Soda Water Manufacturers' association, which recently met in convention here.

It's "soda water," and there's no "pop" about it.

"Soda pop' was originally a homemade drink, and the formula can be told without fear of "prohibition prosecution," said one manufacturer. "It's principal ingredients were water, vinegar and baking soda, with a fruit flavoring. When the cork was pulled it made a loud 'pop' not unlike the explosion of certain 'home brews,' and from that it got its name.

"There is no soda 'pop' any more. The bottled soda water of today is entirely different, and we have put the name of 'pop' into the discard." 'pop' bottles will continue to be thrown at baseball umpires.

AN INTERNATIONAL FLIRT?

Mrs. Claire Louise Burton

NEW YORK, May 8. — Two weighty decisions must be made by Surrogate Smith of Orange county, and a cool million depends upon them. The dignified jurist first must decide just what constitutes an "international flirt."

Then he must determine whether Mrs. Claire Louise Burton conforms to the specifications.

This is in the fight of Mrs. Burton, widow of Frank Vincent Burton, to break the will of her deceased husband and obtain a share of his $1,300,000 estate.

Executors of the will, which cut her off on the grounds that she had been taken care of in an ante-nuptial agreement, charge that Mrs. Burton is an "international flirt" and have produced some odd 200 letters in support of the charge. One of these contained the following toast:

Here's to your eyes and mine;
Here's to your lips and mine;
The former have met,
The latter not yet—
But here's hoping.

This and other verses, much more intimate and spicy, the executors charge, were enclosed in a letter received by Mrs. Burton from Sam M. Power, 2 Ryder street, St. James S. W., London.

Mrs. Burton denies the charges that she had intimate affairs with various men in Europe and the United States.

DANCE FROCK

By ELOISE.

The flapper may be a very modern young miss, but she is going to look a bit old-fashioned when she wears the new dance frocks designed for spring wear. Taffetas as usual are the mode for spring and black when fashioned in this style is ultra smart.

This model cleverly combines the old and new in dress. The skirt is medium short and bouffant and embroidered in ribbon and chenille. The bodice is tight fitting with a collar running straight around forming a dropped shoulder effect. The collar is also embroidered in ribbon and chenille. A charming innovation is the shoulder straps of flesh colored velvet.

Note the black and gold slippers which complete the costume.

THE FORUM

A CHALLENGE ON THE TARIFF

The Record News:

In view of what many of us consider a partial or one-sided statement of the tariff, in recent speeches at the Wichita theater, I submit the following challenge to debate on tariff issues—any tariff spokesman of either or any party, or group, on any of following:

1. That study of no messages of any president other than recent republicans, indicate that "protected" as a permanent issue was ever intended except incidentally to the raising of revenue, and that messages of either Jefferson or Jackson or both advocated tariffs for revenue purposes primarily, which policy cannot support tariffs that destroy trade.

2. That there is but one logical, philosophical argument for a "protective tariff" and that the military one of making a nation as near self-sustaining as possible in wartime, and that any such policy at present time, is diametrically opposed to Harding or other plan of disarmament.

3. That for the 20 years preceding the Civil War, the "protective tariff" was a "dead issue" and was revived only by appeal to partisan war measures and for special privilege benefit, in similar manner as legislation in favor of exempting bonds from taxes was slipped over during recent war, by appeal to patriotism for ulterior motives, as now revealed when it is too late to act.

4. That equal tariff rates, or any tariff rates on all commodities, cannot afford equal benefit to all people, any more than can existing Esch-Cummins freight rates be supported by the same advocates (or most of them).

5. That the tariff is a mighty expensive collector; that the tariff is a specie of sales tax and equally inequitable.

F. G. SWANSON.

GRISWOLD TOPS ALL OPERATORS

Only Texas Near Their Record

With a total of twelve drilling rigs running in the Electra district, the Griswold Oil company, an independent concern which has played an important part in the recent development of the South Electra pool, is one of the leading companies, in number of operations, in the county today. Their record of drilling strings is equalled at this time by the Texas Company only, which last week made eight new locations.

On the Bryan lease, which the Griswold company recently purchased three rigs are running, one a new test, is starting on the Jennings, the first to offset the Gulf Production company's No. 1 Grace Jennings, a sensation of Saturday.

Two wells are drilling on the Waggoner land, No. 1 Waggoner B. and No. 1 Waggoner C., the former just north of the Griswold's 1900 foot producer, which opened up a southwest extension of the field and the latter a wildcat west of the field. The other new drilling is under way on the Griswold's original Burnett lease, purchased less than a year ago from the Barr Davis Oil company.

The Texas company's new locations are equally divided between inside and outside locations. With the rigs already running these eight new tests bring this company's total up to 12.

PASTOR TALKS ON 'REFORMERS'

Pittenger Takes Text From Ezra

Dr. T. S. Pittenger preached upon the theme of "Religion and Reform Sunday morning and discussed the effect that religion has upon the morals and standards of the individual, family, community and nation. He declared that no practice of religion that is worth while has ever failed to bring reform.

Taking his text from Ezra 8:21-22, Dr. Pittenger showed the development of religion and its customs from the family, through the tribe to the nation and the growth of its customs, declaring that many of the religion customs have been more detrimental than helpful through the ages. God's revelation of His business was a constant revelation for 1500 years and by His revelation He showed a consciousness of His presence in the world.

The family, community and nation are under obligation to look after the morals and religious training that the growing children receive, but there will be no religion or religious training carried to the other parts of the world till there comes a consciousness on the part of the individual to bear his responsibility in the worship of God and the rendering of service to his fellowman, declared the pastor. There never was a greater fallacy than to think that the main object in the world is service to God and our fellowmen, and there will be no economic or political justice till the individual feels his responsibility to his fellowman.

Ezra had a plan to reform and readjust the customs and standards among his own people. He did away with the false measures and the idols and readjusted the standards and morals of the people generally.

Does Ezra's plan fit into our own business life and civilization? An inspector comes along and finds that 65 per cent of some of our measures are giving false measures and closes them up till they get true measures. I wonder how many of our people today get their wealth by being a little sharper than the other fellow instead of by honest methods. I guess, when we really know how things are, that we are not much different from the people in this text. Ezra told the people to quit certain customs because God would not be on their side if they kept up those things, and the same is true of us today. We are doing many things in violation of God's law.

Trade Trip Work Begins Today

"Promotion" of the first of the series of summer trade trips planned by the Chamber of Commerce Business Council, a two day trip through Southwest Oklahoma and Northwest Texas next month, will begin at 9:00 o'clock this morning.

Workers to secure the remainder of the trade trip complement, something less than 100, will start from the Chamber of Commerce rooms at that hour, and it is expected that the full quota will be secured before the day is out. A total of 27 reservations were secured Friday when the plans were reported to the business council, an organization of limited membership. Bert Bean is the general trades trip chairman, and J. W. Chatham, Jr., is in charge of schedules and arrangements.

'MIDGET BAR' THING OF PAST

Fifteen Gallon Still Also Retired

No more whiskey will be made in a 15-gallon still which was once secluded in a house on Seymour street. Nor will the "midget bar" as officers called it, ever operate on Tenth street again.

Both were stopped Sunday by the city police department.

The whiskey still: its copper coil, two barrels of mash and half a gallon of "moonshine" liquor were arrested by the officers early yesterday. Clark Pipes was arrested by the department and charged with having the still equipment in his possession.

P. E. Hayes and William Parker were arrested for the possession and sale of whiskey in the Tenth street place, and both were released on temporary bond of $1,000 by United States Commissioner J. A. Lantz, pending their hearing.

Local Flour Mill Inspection Made

Completing his investigation as to the legality of the manner in which the flour and other mills in Wichita Falls are packing their commodities for distribution among the buying public, Roy A. Barbisch, state inspector of weights and measures, markets and warehouse department, departed Sunday night for Dallas where he will resume his work.

Although Mr. Barbisch asserted that he has been here four days probing the manner in which local industries prepare their commodities, he made no statement as to what he had found here. He said he had forwarded his report to Austin, and whether any local mill is short-weighting their customers is not known.

Mr. Barbisch said that a number of the larger industries are testing the law regulating the weights and measures of public commodities and it was his statement that approximately 300 cases are now pending in the courts at Austin.

MINSTREL PAIR IN GOOD ACT

Caldwell and Miss Nolen to Star

W. H. Caldwell and Miss Ruth Nolen are carrying the parts of "gloom" and "imagination" in the Shrine Minstrels here Thursday, Friday and Saturday, and of all the sad speeches W. H's. gets the dog for woe. It is wonderful, have him tell you, in his bass voice that you will all belong to him. And he almost makes his argument stick until "imagination" comes out and puts the sordid creature to flight.

W. H. in everyday life has offices in the First National Bank, and you get no idea of gloom when you talk to him there. He's just a good actor that's all, and this be one of the few chances Wichita Falls has had to see how clever he really is.

Miss Nolen, who persuasively handles the opposite part, is most convincingly beautiful, and if you are unaccustomed to make-believing a few minutes in the spell of her talented delivery will make make you a life member of the society for the Prevention of the Blues.

Miss Nolen and Mr. Caldwell open the show with a most convincing prologue, and those who have heard them in rehearsal say that the chill of dread and then joy take turn about chasing each other up and down the happy hunting ground of the chiropractor.

"Special attention paid to other girls' fellows" is the invitation extended by a New York manicure parlor, in large letters, on a sign that is being carried about the downtown streets.

AERIAL CIRCUS DRAWS CROWD

Legion Labels It Real Success

As successful a meet as ever was held in the southland was the way officials of the Pat Carrigan post American Legion, aviation meet described the entertainment Sunday afternoon following the two-day event.

Thousands of persons thronged the sidelines of the field and gazed on while the flyers competed in the various events.

But there was even a larger crowd on the outside, sitting in automobiles that covered every inch of the space along the highways surrounding the grounds, and from which the legionnaires were only able to draw $20.30.

However, the meet was a success in every respect, and the post more than made expenses, it was stated.

Although no records were broken, the "classiest" handicap race that has ever been staged in the history of flying, according to the judges, was staged yesterday afternoon.

The race, a 30 mile event, was won by Pilot Beach, driving a Laird Swallow, his time being 21 minutes flat. Beech flew from "scratch" and was followed close by Foster, in a Curtiss ship, his time being 21:13; Foster had a handicap of two minutes.

Beech Wins Spot.

Pilot B. Goode of Dallas finished third in a Curtiss, his handicap being 2:10 against which he made a time of 21.18. He was followed closely in the following order:

Garver (Laird), 23 minutes, handicap 5 minutes; Tibbs (Curtiss), 23:12, handicap 2:30; E. M. Laird (Laird), 23:28; handicap 15 minutes.

The spot landing contest was carried off by Pilot Beech, who stopped 15 feet from spot, while Horschem and Ed Williams tied for second honors at 30 feet. On the run-off Horchem won.

Lirette Is Star.

Ed Lirette was a feature of the afternoon's performance, his clever wing-walking attracting much comment. "Daredevil" Ed, as his friends term him, executed a thrilling tail spin standing on the top of his ship. Hanging from the bottom of the plane while it rushed through the air at 90 miles an hour wasn't sufficient a thrill for Ed; he added to his own amusement by hanging upside down on a rope ladder.

Pilots Horchem and Beech tied for first honors in the consecutive looping contests, with 23 loops each. Pilot Merrell made 21 loops and Pilot Parver made 22 in the event.

"Miss Mystery" made a head-first parachute dive from an altitude of 1,500 feet and landed safely, although she suffered slight injuries when her parachute failed to land perfectly. She said she enjoyed the jump and that she "would do it again" if she could.

Peach Crop Total Loss for Texas

Special to The Record News.

AUSTIN, Texas, May 7.—The peach crop of Texas will be almost a total loss, as a result of a peculiar after-affect of the March 1 freeze, according to information being gathered by entomologists of the state. The loss is just now becoming apparent, it is said, and indicate that in many places where peaches are an important money crop and many carloads are shipped annually, the yield this year will hardly be sufficient to harvest.

STUDENTS BACK WITH MEDALS

Scholarships Won by Wichitans

Four silver medals, two bronze medals, a gold medal, a silver loving cup and five scholarships in the University of Texas which Wichita Falls students brought back home as laurels of the recent interscholastic meet at Austin are the trophies of victory that show how Wichita schools were represented in the meet.

With 32 contestants in each track event, the local entries returned home proud of their achievements, they stated Sunday.

Fred Couper won the junior boys' declamatory, Louise Scott took third in the senior girls' declamation contests and Francis Jones and Stelin Winters won second in debates. Ray Bland won in two declamation tests, but was defeated in the finals.

William Powers and Clifton Haynes won second in tennis doubles, while Paul Hines won the preliminaries in tennis singles, but was defeated in the finals.

Leo Baldwin won fourth in the high jump.

The cup which the students brought home belongs to the Alamo school, and will be placed on display there for one year. The medals are individual honors, and will be retained by those who won them.

FISHING TIME IN OLD TOWN

People're Turning Out in Crowds

It's fishin' time around Wichita Falls.

The long-cane fishing pole, the large "sombrero" straw of schooldays, the can of fishin' worms and the drowsy feeling that comes to the true fisherman has already made its debut here.

With Old Sol smiling down on Mother Earth in the rays of sunlight that chases many a fellow in quest of the shadiest and coolest spot, Wichitans poured out in legion Saturday with fishing poles across their shoulders, fishing bait and a good book for the afternoon. Auto loads of citizens paraded up Indiana and down Scott, with fishing poles tied to the sides of their vehicles—everybody was going fishing.

And there is little doubt but that every pool where fish can be found will soon be covered with fishing poles, too.

Like each sport in each sport's season, fishing is a game, and if Sol keeps shining as he has the past two days, there will be as much argument about the place where the fish bite best, who made the biggest catch, etc., as there usually is about who pitches or who bats the best in baseball.

Y. W. C. A. HOME PLANNED HERE

Many Pledges Not Called For

Erection of the Y. W. C. A. home for which a building campaign was started some three years ago, and which was halted on account of general business conditions and belief that the association by waiting would be able to get a great deal more for their money, is a prospect for the next few months, it was learned Saturday.

About 40 per cent of the pledges toward the building fund have never been called for, and it is believed that this amount, with the present cost of building, as compared with that of 1919, will give sufficient funds for the erection of the building. The lot, close in to the business section, is paid for, the paving is paid for, and much of the equipment which will be needed for the building is now being used in the club rooms and cafeteria on Eighth street and in the Charlotte Kemp hall. The plans of the building have also been drawn and paid for.

Some readjustment in the portions of pledges remaining uncollected, due to changes in business conditions, will have to be made, and a committee of business men are now going over this list with this in mind. With the portions of the pledges to be collected, however, it is believed that a sufficient amount to erect the building can be obtained with little supplemental work.

Outlook Pleasing To Bullington

Orville Bullington, independent candidate for congress, feels considerably encouraged with the reception he has been accorded in his campaign through the northern tier of counties in the district, he told local campaign managers Sunday in a message from Gainesville where he spoke Saturday night. Mr. Bullington left here immediately after his opening speech and has spent the intervening time in the campaign through this section.

At one point, Bonita, his trail crossed that of S. A. L. Morgan, the other Wichita Falls candidate for congress. As Mr. Bullington's time in which to make a night engagement was limited, Mr. Morgan allowed him the privilege of speaking first, although his own date was scheduled at the time, in order that he could make his other engagement on time, he said.

Mr. Bullington will spend today in Denton county, speaking at various points in the county during the day, and at Denton at night. He will then double back through Wise, Jack, Young, Archer and Baylor counties before returning to Wichita Falls for the election on Saturday.

CIVIC VIRTUE

MacMonnies' statute of "Civil Virtue" being hoisted to its pedestal in City Hall park, New York.

The much discussed statue of "Civic Virtue" by Frederick MacMonnies, has at last been hoisted to its pedestal in the fountain of City Hall park, New York city. The statute shows a youth armed with a sword, haughtily stepping upon the recumbent bodies of two Lorelei, and many women of the city have taken exception to these symbolic figures, saying it was degrading for women to be stepped on even if only in allegory.

What Co-operation Can Do
To be successful, every business must have pleasant relations with the public.
Particularly true is this of your gas company, which is essentially a public service company, existing not for itself alone but to meet a great public need.
Because of this ideal partnership, it is evident that the measure of our service is the amount of good-will we secure from the public.
And the public, in the last analysis, means you.
We need your co-operation. And you need ours.
By working together to correct misunderstandings, to avoid waste of gas and to get full efficiency from the use of appliances, we can make our service a good service today, a better service tomorrow and the best service anywhere a year from now.
