Second Winter Storm Blitzes Region

The second major winter storm of the season swept into Deaf Smith County Monday morning and while early snowfall was of a gentle and generally beneficial nature the latest visit of Old Man Winter took on the full-blown proportions of a norther last night and set the white powder to drifting in the wee hours of Tuesday.

Snow drifts and icy streets snarled traffic in Hereford this morning but Hereford schools remained open despite late schedules for buses.

A combination of a low-level pressure system and highs aloft triggered the latest round of snowfall here, which came while drifts from a blowing snowstorm of just over a week ago were still melting.

Large snowflakes began drifting down in the county shortly after 10 a.m. Monday and wet snow fell steadily until about the noon hour yesterday.

That snow melted as it fell and was probably of the most beneficial nature for the local wheat crop.

Snow was falling steadily in Hereford prior to 9 o'clock this morning as a stiff and frigid north wind continued to push the powder.

Snowfall caused hazardous driving conditions throughout the Panhandle and South Plains and much of the western portion of the state.

Early morning lows in the Panhandle dropped to a frigid 24 degrees as up to four inches and more of the white flakes piled up locally.

Moisture content of the snowfall is expected to amount to only about .25 inches.

Hereford police and volunteer firemen were out in force this morning helping to clear tangled traffic lanes of stalled vehicles.

A police spokesman reported that about 8:30 this morning cars were stalled all the way from the Highway 60, Highway 385 intersection to "the top of the hill" on South Highway 385 near the San Jose labor camp.

Other vehicles were reported stalled on South Highway 385 near Dimmitt, and traffic was also stalled on West Highway 60.

Interstate 40 west of Amarillo was also presenting travel problems in a pattern smilar to the first major snowstorm of the season during the Nov. 15-16 weekend.

Snowfall ranged over much of the South Plains with particular buildups in the Plainview area in Hale County and additional powder was reported on the Rolling Plains, notably in the Paducah area.

A winter storm warning remains in effect for the mountains of Southwest Texas tonight with additional accumulations of snow of from two to four inches expected in that area tonight.

Snowfall is expected to end in Northwest Texas tonight with additional accumulations of from two to four inches in Southeast Texas likely tonight.

Decreasing cloudiness is expected for most sections of West Texas on Wednesday with lows in the Panhandle tonight expected to plummet to 18.

Highs Wednesday are expected to reach 38 in North Texas.

The extended forecast for West Texas calls for partly cloudy and continued cold conditions for most sections through the latter part of the week.

Highs for the latter portion of the week are expected to be in the 30's for the northern portion of the region and the upper 40's in the southeast with lows in the teens for the northern region and in the 30's for the south.

A traveler's advisory remains in effect for northwestern Texas tonight and local officials are discouraging all travel with the exception of that which is essential.

Snow-packed, icy streets are expected to present a driving hazard here through Wednesday.

City crews were busy attempting to clear streets this morning in the wake of the blowing snow with state highway crews also working thoroughfares in the area.

Scamper for the Schoolhouse

Spitting snow swirled by a gusty north wind made for frigid conditions this morning as Hereford youngsters braved the weather to make it to classes. Here, Dwight Turner helps five-year-old Kasey Ann Nunley onto the sidewalk on the south side of Northwest Elementary after providing taxi service for the young kindergarten student. At the right of the photo another Northwest Elementary student gallops through the slanting snow, not averse to the sport of moving fleet-of-foot among the flakes. Despite gusting winds and drifting conditions, Hereford schools remained open today. The latest round of snowfall in the area was expected to end this evening, leaving accumulations of up to six inches of the powder. A "kazoo band," picked from the audience, helped lead the singing of "Jingle Bells" and "Rudolph the Red-Nosed Reindeer." Special entertainment was provided by the "Chamber Pot Singers," a group of ladies who sang two unique Christmas carols.

A number of persons made announcements concerning upcoming community events and programs. These included: Betty Lady--Christmas lighting ceremony, sponsored by the Women's Division, at the courthouse lawn on Dec. 1; LaJean Henry-Tour of Homes, sponsored by La Madre Mia, Dec. 7 from 2 to 5 p.m.;

Use of Central School Basement Discouraged

By JIM STEIERT
Managing Editor

Deaf Smith County commissioners heard commentary from City Fire Marshal Jay Spain and City Building Inspector Bill Phipps discouraging the use of the basement of the old Central School by the county for office space during a regular commission meeting Monday.

Both Spain and Phipps cited data from an engineer's report on the Central School structure, which is now over 70 years old, pointing up weak areas of construction and other potential hazards.

Phipps asked members of the county commission if proposed plans for remodeling the basement area of the old school to provide office space for the Department of Human Resources have been made known to the State Board of Control.

He was informed that such notification has not been made.

"Considering the cost of bringing the building into compliance with standards I don't think it would be wise to use the basement area. Also, you would need a long-term lease. Requirements for facilities for the handicapped and other considerations would have to be met and the cost of renovation would be prohibitive," said Phipps.

"As we see it now, trying to renovate the area would be just like pouring money down the drain," Spain commented.

"This is the case with the old part of the building and the basement in particular. A citizen's panel of 30 people concluded several years ago that the old Central School should be torn down. On April 26, 1972 a report was issued stating that the wiring was poor and that the floors were oil-soaked and presented a fire hazard. That report showed that some of the wood in the building was rotten and that bricks were loose," said Spain.

We have let eight years elapse since that time and the building hasn't been properly maintained during that time period. Frankly, I feel like the people voted to tear it down, especially the old part," he added.

Phipps then reported that the engineer's report on the old Central School condemned the building.

"My recommendation is don't use it," Spain stated emphatically.

"At today's prices you could build a new steel building and bring it into compliance with standards at far less cost," Phipps commented.

Spain then stated once again that "the old part of the building needs to be torn down. You might get some use from the wings. The plumbing is probably the worst thing about the wings."

It was then pointed out that the Central School area occupied by the Senior Citizens was completely renovated, including new wiring and piping, thus providing vastly improved facilities in that area.

Spain cited the potential hazard of having women and children in the basement area of the structure if the HDR offices were located there, pointed out that access to the area would be complicated.

County commissioners, who had sought commentary from Spain and Phipps on the Central School basement as an office location, will take the commentary of the two officials under advisement in considering new office sites.

Bruce Coleman, who is chairman of the County Tax Appraisal Board in addition to Pct. 3 commissioner explained that the comments on the Central School building should have no bearing on the location of the central taxing office at the old school building, as the HISD will have responsibility for bringing facilities for the tax district into compliance with standards.

The tax district will be renting the facility from the HISD after renovation by building trades students is done at the school this spring and summer.

"The reason we went with the school was because after five years we'll have free rent," said Coleman.

Members of the 4-H Parent-Leaders Association met with commissioners Monday to discuss concession stand equipment at the Bull Barn and posted a request that the commission consider purchasing an ice machine and other items of concession stand equipment for the Bull Barn.

Sue Powell, Martha Shire and Marci Hughes informed commissioners that operation of the concession stand at the Hereford Young Farmers junior livestock show represents a major fund-raising project for the Parent-Leaders Association each year and pointed to a need for various items of concession stand equipment for the Bull Barn concession area.

The delegation of 4-H supporters informed commissioners that an ice machine would cost approximately $1,700 and that an ice machine, fry layer and bun warmer would cost $2,400.

County fathers expressed a certain degree of reluctance to enter into the concession stand business however, and members of the commission cited alternatives to the 4-H delegation, pointing out that the Hereford Lions Club would probably allow the 4-H supporters to use most of the club's concession equipment for their needs, and adding that ice could be purchased in bulk from a supplier in Plainview at only minimal cost.

The delegation asked county commissioners to consider possible purchase of an ice maker for the Bull Barn as a matter of convenience and service to various users and commissioners indicated that the matter would be taken under consideration.

The county's contract with the Deaf Smith County Tax Appraisal District was considered by county fathers who granted their approval to the budget.

The county share of the budget amounts to approximately $54,000 to be paid in

Fire Destroys Assembly Plant

CHILDRESS, Texas (AP) — Officials of Lancer Homes ordered double shifts and studied other ways to keep layoffs at a minimum today after a fire crippled a production facility at Childress County's largest employer.

Keith Finley, general manager of the mobile and modular home builder, said a fire roared through a large steel and metal siding building where mobile homes were built Monday.

The blaze destroyed production equipment and ten homes that were under construction, Finley said.

Finley said the plant's 420 employees would go to double shifts in the modular home building which was not affected by the fire. He said the company hoped to keep layoffs at a minimum.

Lancer Homes is a division of Lanchart Industries Inc. of Wichita Falls.

Gas Explosion Kills 97

ANKARA, Turkey (AP) — A leaking tank of liquefied gas exploded at an engagement party in a rural village near Ankara Wednesday night and at least 97 people were killed, provincial authorities reported.

They said many of the victims were children trampled in the panic to escape.

An initial investigation indicated that one of several small tanks of gas used for cooking exploded and the others then blew up in a series of blasts that demolished the complex of rooms used for the party, the officials said.

According to customs still followed in rural Turkey, the women and children were segregated from the men and the groups were just sitting down to eat when the explosions occurred, followed by a fire, according to investigators.

Girl Slain As 'Evidence Disposal'

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — A high school sophomore grabbed from her bicycle last summer was raped and then killed "after things got so bad they decided to dispose of the evidence," a police source said.

The decomposed body of Elaine McCuistion, 16, was found off a popular lover's lane in McLennan County last August. An autopsy revealed she had been shot once in the back of the head with a .38-caliber pistol.

Five Austin teen-agers, including two juveniles, have been jailed here on aggravated kidnapping charges in the case.

A police source told the Austin American-Statesman that at least one of the teen-agers has given police a statement describing the abduction and slaying.

The young girl's abductors "pretty much grabbed her off the road and took her to one of their homes where she was raped," the source told the newspapers.

Toxic Chemical Bill Goes To House

WASHINGTON (AP) — A drastically scaled-down version of legislation to make the chemical industry finance most of a multibillion-dollar fund to clean up toxic chemical wastes is on its way to the House — and an uncertain future — following Senate approval.

Senate proponents of the fund had been holding out for a $4.2 billion proposal but settled Monday, in the face of a Dec. 5 congressional adjournment, for one totaling $1.6 billion.

The compromise measure, approved on a voice vote, was shorn of requirements that citizens be reimbursed for injuries or loss of income or property resulting from abandoned toxic chemical wastes.

But even supporters of the stricter version said the compromise begins to address a critical national problem of cleaning up the hundreds, perhaps thousands, of sites where toxic chemicals are seeping into the nation's land and water.

And, they added, a more ambitious bill would never have had a chance on the Senate floor.

At the earliest, the House will take up the bill next Monday; the chamber is in recess this week for Thanksgiving. If the House does not accept the Senate bill — which differs in several respects from the version passed earlier by the House — it can demand a conference committee to resolve differences.

But a conference committee is something Rep. James Florio, D-N.J., principal sponsor of the House version, hopes to avoid. Such a time-consuming move, he said Monday, could delay final action and thus kill the measure.

Florio said his staff was studying the Senate version to see if it might be acceptable to the House.

Breaking Ground

Gang of Four Trial Shifts to Murder Plot

PEKING (AP) — The Gang of Four trial shifted today from a plot by Mao Tse-tung's widow Jiang Qing to block Deng Xiaoping's return to power to Defense Minister Lin Piao's plot to kill Mao.

The Foreign Ministry announced that the trial resumed at 3 p.m. and "continued to investigate facts of offenses of the conspiracy of the Lin Piao counter-revolutionary clique to murder Chairman Mao and engineer an armed coup d'etat."

The special tribunal was to examine three elderly ex-generals from among the 10 defendants: Jiang Tengjiao, former political commissar of the air force units in Nanjing; Huang Yongsheng, former army chief of the general staff, and Li Zuopeng, former navy political commissar.

The official media said the assassination plot was hatched after Mao's objections blocked the elevation of Lin Piao to succeed Liu Shaochi as head of state in 1971. Liu was purged during the 1966-76 Cultural Revolution and died in prison in 1969.

The media gave this official account of the murder plan:

The plotters formed secret organizations around the country, including a "dare-to-die" corps in Shanghai, and planned to kill Mao while he was making an inspection tour of south China in September 1971. The operation was given the code name "571," a pun in Chinese which can mean "armed uprising," and Mao was dubbed "B52" after the giant American bomber.

Lin and his generals then planned to fly to Canton, in south China, and set up their own party central committee and a separate government. Lin wrote: "Diplomatic relations will be established with the Soviet Union and other countries and a pincer attack will be launched from north and south in alliance with the Soviet Union should fighting be necessary."

That plan was foiled when Premier Chou En-lai got wind of it. Then Lin and his confederates planned to fly north to Irkutsk, in the Soviet Union. That, too, was discovered, and Lin fled to the airport at the seaside resort of Beidaihe, pursued by troops loyal to Chou and Mao. Lin's plane took off at 2:30 a.m. on Sept. 13 and crashed in Mongolia, a Soviet satellite between north central China and Soviet Siberia.

The trials of the Gang of Four — Jiang Qing and three other radical leaders accused with her of responsibility for the excesses of the 1966-76 Cultural Revolution — and six of Lin Piao's alleged accomplices opened jointly last Thursday before a special tribunal of the Supreme People's Court. But the cases between the two groups are being presented separately in alternate court sessions.

Commissioners gave the nod of approval to making a formal request that a resolution already approved by the Texas Association of Counties be placed on the agenda of the resolutions committee for the 1981 National Association of Counties convention. The resolution, approved by the county commissioners some time ago, calls for a local governing board in keeping with charter rules of Texas Rural Legal Aid, and for a funding cut for TRLA's parent organization, Legal Services Corporation.

Commissioners established county holidays for 1981, which will give county employees a total of 8½ days off.

County fathers approved a motion to pay dues of $540 to the Texas Association of Counties and accepted a proposed public weigher for Precinct 1.

County commissioners also granted permission for use of the stairs and balcony on the south side of the courthouse for staging of a Christmas lighting ceremony by the Chamber of Commerce on Dec. 1.

Consideration of a telephone system for the courthouse was tabled by commissioners pending further information and figures on alternative systems.

County fathers approved granting rights-of-way in Precinct 1 for replacing a gas line by Pioneer Natural Gas Co. and in Precinct 3 for a water line for Barrett-Crofoot.

Expenditure of up to $5,000 was approved for the purchase of a pair of tornado warning sirens to serve the south end of Hereford and the San Jose labor camp area. The sirens will be tied into a system currently being revamped by the city.

In an emergency session scheduled Monday afternoon commissioners opted to advertise for bids for a pickup for Precinct 3 and also discussed applications for the manager's position at the Bull Barn prior to approving a motion to employ Richard Mickler.

Death Toll Soaring In Italian Earthquake

NAPLES, Italy (AP) — The official death toll in Italy's worst earthquake in half a century reached 1,012 today, but officials feared hundreds more bodies were buried in the rubble of isolated villages in the mountains behind Naples and Salerno.

The Interior Ministry said there were several thousand injured and 100,000 homeless.

Residents of Laviano, Santomenna and other towns dug through the ruins with their hands in search of husbands, wives, children or other loved ones.

Exhausted rescue workers were short of bulldozers and other equipment to clear the rubble. It was difficult to get the large vehicles available up the narrow roads in the impoverished region.

"I couldn't even get a chain saw to save my wife who was trapped under a pile of logs," said Alfonso Mignone, a lawyer in Sant' Angelo dei Lombardi. "I had to work with my fingernails."

Fragmentary reports indicated hundreds more dead were still to be counted in Teora, San Mango, Lioni, Laviano and Calabritto.

Teora, a town of 3,000 was reported leveled, but there was no casualty report from it yet.

Bodies were collected in schools or on sidewalks. Blankets covered them until coffins could be brought in.

Pope John Paul II planned to tour the stricken region by helicopter today. Press reports said he would stop in Naples, Potenza and the village of Balvano, where 100 or more people were killed when the quake occurred during Mass Sunday night and the walls of the Church of Santa Maria Assunta collapsed on them.

President Sandro Pertini and Premier Francesco Cossiga visited victims of the quake Monday, which was declared a national day of mourning.

The government ordered 10,000 troops and 1,500 firemen to rescue work. Railway sleeping cars were moved in to provide temporary housing.

Domestic Quarrels Abound

Hereford police encountered a hectic weekend of activity which had been preceded by a relatively quiet period.

Officers arrested a suspect on charges of public intoxication and child abuse following an incident Sunday morning at 228 Ave. A in which a 19-year old man allegedly choked a four month old baby.

David Zambrano, 19, was arrested after officers were summoned concerning a family disturbance about 3:30 Sunday morning.

The suspect was reportedly involved in an argument with his wife at the address. Zambrano reportedly left the scene of the incident once and upon returning, police were summoned again and made an arrest.

A man and his wife were also arrested for public intoxication outside that address.

According to investigating officers a man and his wife were involved in that argument.

Police advised the man to leave until heated tempers could cool.

While leaving, the man, 31, reportedly struck a police car with his vehicle, knocking a bumper form the police unit. The suspect then reportedly fled the scene with police in pursuit.

The suspect was arrested and jailed on charges of destruction of city property and leaving the scene of an accident.

White Auto reported that a 20 gauge shotgun which had been placed in lay-away was found missing Friday.

Possible charges of assault with a deadly weapon are pending following an incident Sunday evening at Blue Water Gardens Apartments in which two women were involved in an argument.

Police reports indicate one combatant allegedly struck the other and then pulled a knife.

A 15-year-old girl was placed in a foster home Sunday pending investigation of an alleged assault incident involving the girl's stepfather.

The placement came after the girl was reported missing from her home in the 200 block of Whiteface Drive.

Still another domestic distubance call occupied police Sunday afternoon in the 200 block of Ave. D as a woman reported that her husband allegedly twisted her arm in the course of an argument. Possible charges are pending.

Robert Treadway of 830 Blevins reported that sometime Sunday night or early Monday the lock on the toolbox of his pickup was cut and several hundred dollars worth of tools, a carbine and ammunition were stolen.

Shook Tire Co. of 600 West 1st was the scene of an apparent attempted break-in Saturday night as officers discovered that some sheet metal covering a window had ben pried away from the structure. No losses were noted.

Joyce Brown of 404 Brevard informed police that someone entered her home and stole clothing Saturday night. Police have a possible suspect as the investigation in the incident continues.

Walter Mabry, 37, of Blue Water Gardens apartments was free on $10,000 bond Monday after he was arrested at merchants Freight Co. on South Highway 385.

According to McPherson, someone had reported the presence of a suspicious car to a deputy Saturday and upon responding to the report the deputy found the suspect at the location.

McPherson reported that a break-in had occurred at the same business about a week ago.

During the weekend city police made five arrests for public drunkenness, one arrest for paint sniffing and one arrest for DWI.

U.S. on Hold Over Hostages

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Carter administration, "holding and circling" in the give-and-take over release of the 52 American hostages, expects more questions than answers in the message arriving from Tehran today.

At best, officials here said, Iran's response to the U.S. response to its demands is no more than a maybe.

The reply is being delivered by a three-member Algerian delegation, which returned from Iran on Sunday and was due in Washington late today. State Department spokesman John Trattner said the group will meet with U.S. officials' Wednesday.

The official Algerian news service said the Iranians are asking for a further explanation of the U.S. position.

"We know they want some information external to the (U.S.) proposal itself," Secretary of State Edmund S. Muskie said Monday. "We know there are some five lists of information in their request."

The Washington Post quoted unidentified officials today as saying the Iranian prime minister's office is seeking details of benefits that would flow to Iran after the hostages are released.

That all means, Muskie said, no immediate breakthrough is likely in the diplomatic effort to end the standoff now 387 days old.

"Our posture now is that we are holding and circling....We are going to be holding for a while," he said.

"Each day's wait is a disappointment," Muskie added. "I think it would be very nice to expedite it, but I don't see any way of doing so beyond what we are now doing. We don't waste time. We have to wait for responses. This indirect method of communications is, of course, time-consuming."

The negotiations over conditions set by the Iranian Parliament on Nov. 2 are being conducted through the Algerians because diplomatic relations between Tehran and Washington were broken last spring.

The terms included a U.S. pledge not to interfere in Iranian affairs, cancellation of all American claims against Iran, release of more than $8 billion in frozen Iranian assets and return of the property of the late Shah Mohammad Reza Pahlavi.

Muskie said the U.S. response, delivered through the Algerians two weeks ago, was "yes or no to a number of conditions and some maybes."

While he refused to elaborate, sources reported previously that the administration agreed to a non-intervention pledge but said the president had no authority to abrogate suits by American businesses.

Ann Landers

Physician Scared of Suit

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I was on a plane between San Francisco and Chicago recently. The gentleman seated next to me was pleasant and friendly. Shortly after take-off we began to chat, and I learned he was a physician.

An hour into the flight there seemed to be some commotion in the back section of the plane. Several flight attendants hurried anxiously in that direction.

After a few moments the captain's voice was heard: "Is there a physician aboard? Please put on your call button. We have a sick passenger who needs attention."

The man seated next to me continued to read his magazine as if he hadn't heard a thing. I waited a few moments and finally asked, "Did you hear the captain's announcement? The doctor replied, "Yes, but I choose not to get involved. Two years ago a cardiologist friend of mine was sued to hell-and-gone for being a Good Samaritan. The woman he pulled out of the wreckage on a highway died, and her family really took the poor fellow to the cleaners."

My curiosity finally got the better of me. I went back to see what was going on and saw two rather young men assisting the patient. I learned they were medical students. An ambulance met the plane, and I have no idea what happened after that.

When I said adios to my seatmate, I confess I had lost a lot of respect for him. What are your views on this subject?–Clouded Vision

DEAR CLOUDED: Many physicians are scared green of being sued for malpractice. They refuse to take chances. I feel, however, that a dedicated physician will not hide his nose in a magazine when he knows a sick person nearby needs attention. If MY doctor did that, I would be extremely disappointed.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I need help with my 15½-year-old daughter. She works in a fast-food restaurant and makes $3.10 an hour. So far the girl has made over $900. She has bought herself four outfits and an expensive swimming suit. The rest she spends on movies, trinkets for her friends and doo-dads.

We live 24 miles out of town, so this means a 48-mile ride for me to take her to work in the morning and go and get her at night. Sometimes I pick her up as late as 11:30 p.m. By the time I get home it's after midnight. I must get up in the morning at 5 a.m. to get to my own job on time.

This girl tells me she shouldn't be asked to pay for gas because I am supposed to "raise her" until she is 18. If her girlfriend takes her to work, she pays her $2.

Do I owe my daughter free transportation? We have had many arguments about this, and I want to do the right thing.-A Tired Mother

DEAR TIRED: A girl who makes $3.10 an hour and has already pulled in $900 is pretty much "raised." Too bad you are allowing her to fritter away the money instead of insisting that she bank at least 50 percent for college or trade school.

As for gas, you're darned tootin' she should pay you for it. Isn't it enough that she's getting portal-to-portal transportation and at a personal sacrifice on your part? Tell her the joy ride is over, and from now on you expect $4 a round trip. (P.S. That girlfriend who drives her 48 miles for $2 must have a screw loose.)

Are your parents too strict? Hard to reach? Ann Landers' booklet, "Bugged By Parents? How to Get More Freedom," could help you bridge the generation gap. Send 50 cents with your request and a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope to Ann Landers, P.O. Box 11995, Chicago, Illinois 60611.

Chamber Schedules Lighting Dec. 1

The annual lighting of the Community Christmas tree has been set for Dec. 1 at 7 p.m. at the Deaf Smith County Courthouse.

The Christmas Committee of the Women's Division of the Chamber of Commerce has chosen a tree on the southwest corner of the courthouse lawn for this year's event.

The Hereford Chamber Singers and the First United Methodist Ladies Handbell Choir will be at the lighting to provide musical entertainment.

Students of the First Baptist Church kindergarten class are making ornaments to hang on the tree.

A visit from Santa Claus to talk to children of all ages will highlight the tree lighting.

Betty Lady, chairman of the committee, is urging all residents to attend.

Horse Backpacking Hints Guidelines Given

By ROBBY VANN
County Extension Agent

Horse backpacking provides a great opportunity to get back to nature. However, basic skills and knowledge can make it a more enjoyable experience.

This is where the 4-H horse program conducted by the Cooperative Extension Service and supported by the American Quarte Horse Association and the Insurance Company of North America comes in.

4-H members in the horse program suggest these guidelines for planning a horse backpacking trip:

Begin with essential equipment until you become an experience packer. A pack saddle, good quality pad or blanket and panniers are the foundation of a pack. Remember, keep weight in saddle bags to a minimum, rarely exceeding 10 pounds.

Feed pack horses daily. Feed can be carried in the bottom of each pannier to keep the load's center of balance as low as possible. If pack trips are planned for relatively open spaces, ample amounts of grass may be available for grazing.

Make sure water will be available for your horses. Hard-working horses need up to 10 gallons of water a day. For each rider, carry at least one quart of water, preferable two.

The type of food carried depends on length of the trip. Use most fresh foods within 48 hours. Canned foods combined with nonperishable products, like biscuits, pancake mix, dried rice and dehydrated products is suggested.

Make sure cooking and eating utensils are lightweight, versatile and durable. Remember to pack matches, liquid detergent, can openers and disposable products like paper towels and toilet paper. Also, carry an axe, shovel and cooking grates.

Be sure there's a bedroll for each packer, including some kind of mattress or pad for the sleeping bag.

Select pack horses that have good confirmation and are interchangeable with those that are ridden. Pack horses should have quiet temperamanent, be well-trained, strong, surefooted and particularly sound in their feet and legs.

Horse backpacking is one of many activities for 4-H'ers in the horse program. Other projects include participating in horse drill teams and horse shows.

Members who excel in the program can earn awards donated by AQHA and INA and arranged by the National 4-H Council. AQHA annually provides medals of honor to four members in each county and trips to the National 4-H Congress in Chicago for six national winners and to some state winners through state Quarter Horse associations. INA presents $1,000 scholarships to the six national winners.

Boys and girls 9-19 years old can obtain more information about the 4-H horse program as well as other activities from the county Extension office.

SLOW DOWN

THEY DEPEND ON YOU

At Wits End
By ERMA BOMBECK

Birthdays are getting a terrible reputation in this country. Six of them have already been declared "milestones" and several others are under consideration.

I'm not really sure what this means except when you hit a "milestone" your mind shifts gears, your new age doesn't fit any part of your body, and your sense of humor goes underground.

What made me think of this was a letter from a girl named Charlotte who goes to college in Virginia. She wrote to ask why everyone thought her 18th birthday was a big deal. Her friends treated it like a timetable. According to them, age 18 is jump-out-of-the-cake time. Time to buy beer, watch X-rated movies and swing whether she wanted to or not. As everyone pointed out, "You're only 18 once."

I think I've hit most of the milestones and I've always been intrigued with the myth surrounding them vs. the reality.

Take age 21. Everyone said, "It's the best year of your life." The reality: I hadn't finished college, didn't know where the tuition was coming from and according to my vocational guidance scores had a big future in license plates. My wisdom tooth was coming in weird, I was the only girl in North America who wasn't going steady, and my mother said you're not getting any younger.

At age 30 I was told, "These are the years you'll look back on and want to relive." The reality: My husband worked from daylight until dark and the baby wore orthopedic shoes that cost $34 a pair and were outgrown every three weeks. I got a water heater for my birthday. I wanted long fingernails and a dinner ring. I saved money for three months to have my hair frosted. Age 40: Everyone said, "Next week you won't even remember hitting 40." The reality: These stupid remarks were made by well-meaning people who were only 31 at the time. I remembered them every time I saw my mother's hands coming out of my coat sleeves. Every time I used Erase for my wrinkles and my entire face disappeared. I remembered every time I ate lunch and had to rest while it digested. I remembered every time I spent $30 to cover God's frosting.

Age 50: Everyone said, "You got it made. Just sit back, relax, and enjoy it." The reality: We installed a revolving door in the house for the returning children. The dress I could afford now only comes in size 10. And the idiot who said, "You're only 50 once," didn't know about women.

I have not hit the last "milestone" yet, Charlotte, but I'm like you. Don't tell me what to expect. Just let me be surprised.

Borger Sends Whiteface Squad to 0-3 Mark

Troubled Herd Drops Another Game

By MAURI MONTGOMERY
Brand Sports Editor

Who could blame a head mentor for being a little angry and disappointed following his squad's third straight defeat in as many games?

That was the disruptive season mark the Hereford Whiteface varsity cage squad had come to rest at, following a generally one-sided 71-53 decision handed out by the currently unbeaten Borger Bulldogs here Monday night.

And to say the least, first-year helmsman Dan Giliuson incorporated both of those emotions after his squad, as he prefered to explain it, "Never did execute a game plan the whole night."

"I'll tell you what, I really don't know what the trouble is out there," he said after his virtually new crew had been dismantled in every quarter of the clash. "There wasn't any great revealation made here tonight – we lost the game through all the turnovers we created for ourselves, but that's something we've worked on this whole week in practice."

"I don't think I would have been as disappointed in our effort if we hadn't worked on our passing in the fast break and full-court press setups, but we spent more than half of our workouts this week on just that aspect alone," he said. "And we still are making the same mistakes we have in the past two games this year."

The Whiteface crew, almost deceptive in its ability to lash out quickly with scoring sprees – only to flounder later as a result of arid shooting spells and miscues, lost control of its only advantage of the tilt (a brief four-point upperhand early in first quarter play) as a missed scoring opportunity and double-dribble call yeilded the way for two unanswered BHS field goals.

Borger's Scott Hunt (finishing out BHS's onslaught on the night with a tally of 16 total points as one of the Bulldog's leading scoring threats) jabbed in 20-footer with just over three minutes remaining in first quarter play to give Borger a 5-4 lead.

And after two consecutive HHS turnovers combined with a Alan Wartes foul on Greg Belton, the Bulldogs ebbed their way to a five point advantage. That thrust from rags to riches was extended to a seven point lead after Quintin Shepphard (shared high-point honors with Hunt in the 16-point shooting display) punched in two mid-key shots in the wanning seconds of opening play.

But the BHS tally was narrowed at the close of first period play after Gary Parman (hit his mark for 11 points in the affair to lead all other HHS members in scoring with the exception of Chris Schumacher who also netted 11) split Borger's zone defense down the middle and hit a shot from the top of the lane to put Hereford within five points (13-8).

The meager five-point deficit, was seemingly within easy reach of the Herd, but as had been precidented in the past – The Whitefaces literally fell apart in the second quarter.

At that point, Hereford faced a 21-10 margin, and two minutes passed before the squad could complete the task of hitting the bucket.

After nine attempts at the board, the Whitefaces finally scored – those two points coming only in the form of Harold Terry's two free-throw shots following a Shepherd foul.

And even though Hereford's dry spell was soothed some in the waning minutes before intermission, it was never totally healed.

Borger retaliated with every HHS score as the two team's closed play at halftime 32-20.

"We just gave up too many scoring opportunities and turned over the ball to many times to ever get anything rolling," Giliuson said. "Some of our players just aren't performing like they are capable of. When we went into the season, we were counting on several of our individuals to carry us until we could establish our game and they haven't been doing that. They've got the talent, but they're not utilizing it and its hurting us."

The Herd's intermission stop did little to change the overall spectacle in the second half as Borger went on to out drill the Whitefaces 21-17 in the third quarter and 18-16 in the final period of play.

"I really don't know what to think," Giliuson said pacing the lockerroom floor. "They look like they've got it in practice and then when it comes game time they look like they've forgotten everything. I guess it's just that we're still an essentially young team – it's hard to be patient though."

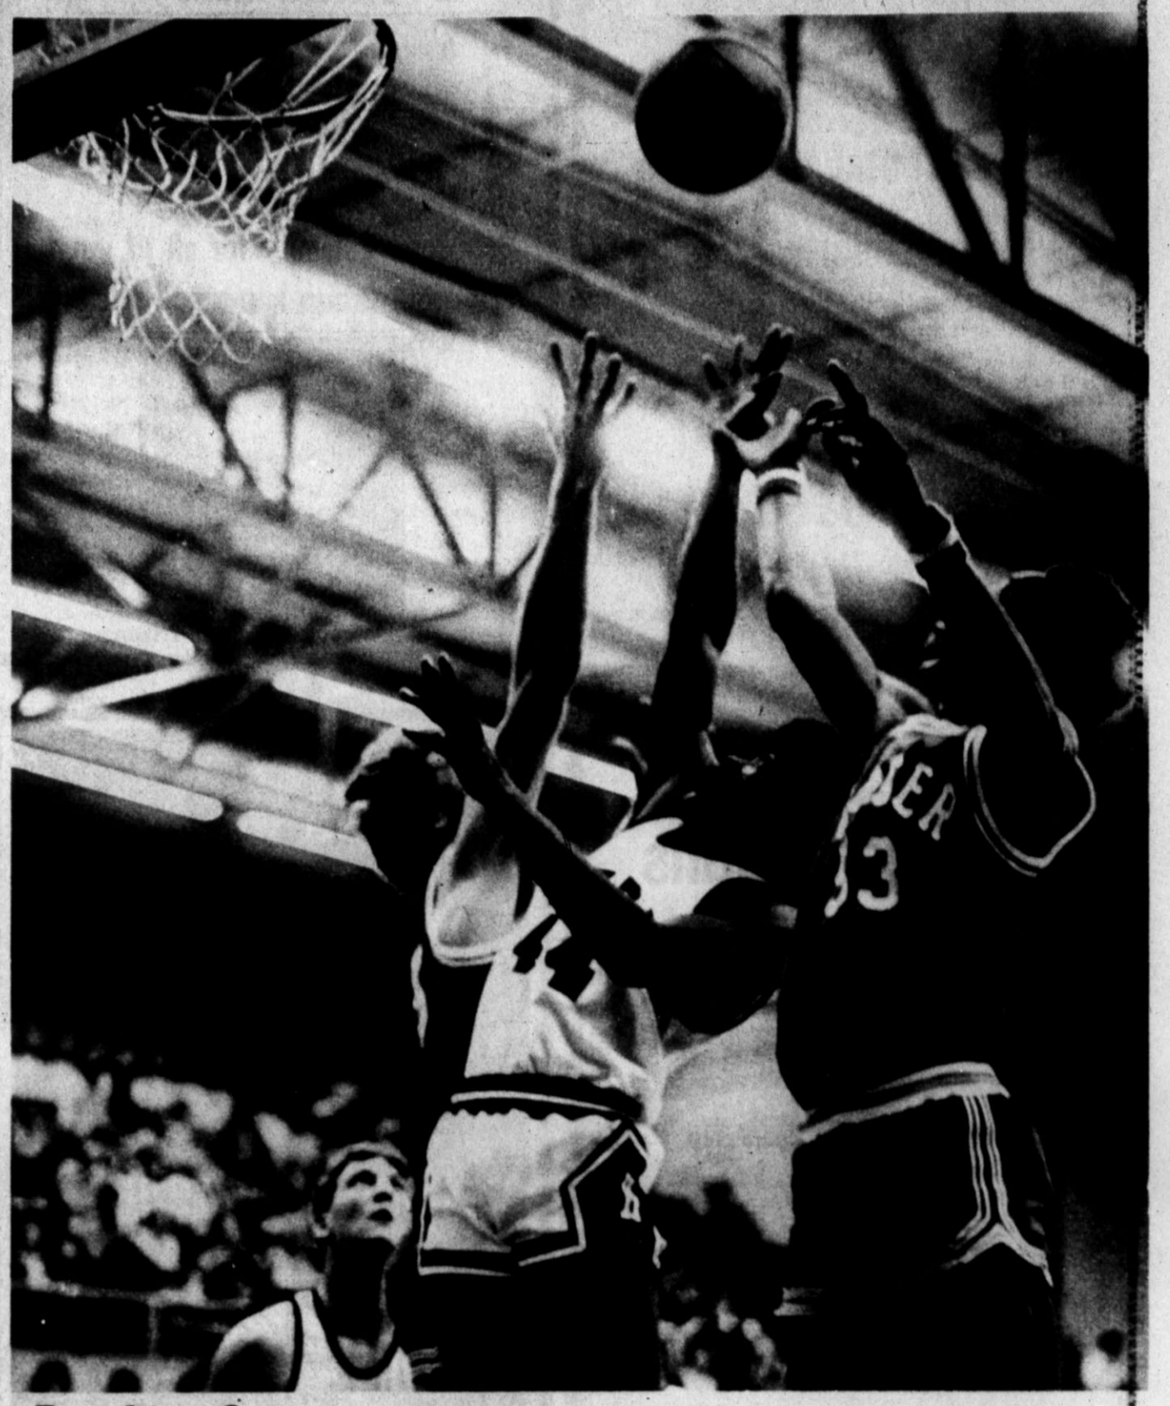

The Whitefaces will have one of their longest periods of potential workout time this week in preparation for their first road game against the Pampa Harvesters Saturday in a clash set for 7:45 p.m.

Reaching Out

Hereford's Wayne High (44) reaches out for a handle on the ball between Borger's John Meyer (33) and another Bulldog player as all three go up for a rebound during Monday night's contest here between the two squads. Costly turnovers gave the currently undefeated Borger squad easy access to the bucket as it outscored the winless Whitefaces in every quarter of the contest to eventually claim the victory 71-53. HHS Girls Beat Palo Duro

Overtime victories are something the Hereford varsity girl's team has had little opportunity to witness (the squad basically composed of last year's makeup never saw an OT affair a year ago), but when faced with the chore of overriding the fiesty efforts of Amarillo Palo Duro - the squad managed to hold its own weight.

The Whitefaces cinched what was almost a second deadlock tilt following Stephanie Foster's last second game-winning (78-76) free throw shots with a mere five seconds remaining in the close-quarters ordeal.

"I was very, very pleased with this win," said an elated coach Larry Sowers upon the conclusion of his girl cage squad's third victory of the year.

"We had some very fine performances turned out by members of our bench and it truely made the difference in the game," he said. "Those shots Stephanie came in and made a crucial and to tell you the truth it (her winning free-throw buckets) really did surprise me. She's a very good ballplayer, but most of the younger players you have on a squad can't handle the pressure she faced when she dropped those winning two."

The Whiteface squad came out of the first quarter in a 20-20 tie and fought their way to within a one-point deficit at the termination of second period play. But in the third stanza, the crew bounded to its own one-point advantage before the game concluded into an even 72-72 playoff.

"It was a hard fought ball game all the way through and I think both we and Palo Duro had several chances to win the game outright," he added. "We would slip and lose the lead and then they would slip – both of us struggled at times, but our kids came in and performed when they had too and that's something I'm really pleased with."

"Deborah Rogers came in for Terry Harkins after Albracht got in foul trouble and she hit 18 points like nobody's business. She had a very fine game," he said. "And then Stephanie came into help us there at the last, and she delivered when we needed points the most."

"Palo Duro had a very good team which is exemplified by the narrowness of the game, so I'm happy that we won it – it was a close one which is what we needed and it was our third win on the road. Now we can get down to the business of winning at home because we'll be facing some tough one's here."

The HHS squad, now 3-1 on the year, is scheduled to pair off against Pampa here Saturday night at 7:45 in the La Plata Gymnasium.

Astro Dilemma Resolves Itself

HOUSTON (AP) — The Houston Astros' ownership dilemma has resolved itself without a court fight, and now the spotlight turns back to the man who isn't ready to step to center stage — Tal Smith, the club's former president and general manager.

"I'm just an interested bystander like all the other fans," Smith said Monday. "All I know is what has been reported in the media. No one should read any more into my position than what I have just said."

Limited partners in the Astros' ownership structure won another battle Monday when John McMullen stepped down as general partner and accepted an arrangement that makes him part of a three-man executive committee that will operate the franchise.

McMullen fired Smith Oct 27 in a move that led limited partners to dissolve the partnership agreement and seek reorganization under new leadership.

Jack Trotter and T.H. Neyland, the two men joining McMullen on the executive committee, do not guarantee Smith's return to the Astros, but the odds are in his favor.

Trotter is one of the limited partners who banded together to seek McMullen's ouster. Neyland, formerly an Astros executive but not currently connected with the ownership, is the man who hired Smith as general manager in 1975.

McMullen hired former New York Yankees General Manager Al Rosen to replace Smith. But following Monday's action, Rosen's status was uncertain.

Final Fearless Forecaster Column

AT FIRST GLANCE, THE AWKWARD little man looked as if he was simply picking his nose.

I continued with my work – there wasn't anything particularly intriguing about that task. I had even been known to accomplish it with success on a number of occassions.

But on more careful observation, one got the distinct impression he was flagging me over to to his berth behind the newsroom partition – a four-foot wall allowing only half of the balding little man's unkempt face to appear.

Mauri Montgomery

HE STARED UP AT ME with a perfectly proportionate and matching little crooked smile as I approached his encampment, but never stopped pulling me over with his little accordion index finger.

"Yes sir, may I help you?" I asked trying not to stare rudely at his flexing little crooked finger.

"I BET YOU THOUGHT I WAS PICKING my nose didn't you," he gasped raspily. "You wouldn't be the first to think that you know."

"Oh, no sir. On the contrary, it had never entered my mind. I merely thought you might need someone to help you with something."

"Well, my young sporting friend, I was, in fact picking my nose. What do you have to say about that, hugh!" he sneered.

BOY! IT TOOK ALL KINDS I CONCEDED to myself. Why did I always have to be the one to get caught in conversation with this sort?

I laughed nervously, "Well if that's what you were doing, you were concealing it really well – Gee, I would have never guessed."

The reply sent the grotesque little man out of the office in an outburst of laughter.

I looked around suspiciously – this had to be somebody's demented idea of a joke.

I FIGURED IT WAS ALL IN THE JOB though. Sportswriters get to broach all the more serious issues. At least there was more self-satisfaction involved in this than stockpiling the month's quota of toliet paper. You just did what the task called for – even if it was wasting time on a little man who was proud of the way he picked his nose.

But even more disturbing than the little man himself, was no one on this staff believes that he ever existed. To put it quite frankly, they all think I'm on heavy drugs.

GLANCES OF SKEPTISIM CONTINUE to cascade around the office even though it happened some time ago.

Even so, I'm including the little man in this finale of the Fearless Forecaster columns because I'm not totally convinced he hasn't rightfully deserved an alloted place on the featured panel throughout the whole grid season.

TO SAY HE DIDN'T BELONG WOULD only serve to deny him equal opportunity among the other nose-pickers tacked up on the Fearless Board of Directors each week. And above all else, this paper was an equal opportunity employer.

Actually, we weren't even as accomplished in concealment of the habit as my little friend was.

WE WERE ALL CAUGHT WITH OUR fingers in the attack position this week, so to speak. After four of us posted not-too subtle 13-11 ratios in the predictions, who could possibly claim that our endearment toward the schnozzola took a backseat to a rampant run through the football pickings.

Bob Nigh and I ventured to a stagnated 65 percentile for our forlorn part in the success story while James Stout hugged a 64 percent ranking as one of the more obvious pickers.

Gene Bigham, was our solution to this week's sabotage expert – Double Agent Nose-picker 00 who's function was to seek-out and destroy any advantage the guest forecasters held over the staff.

WE GOT TIRED OF PLAYING FAIR with the guests a long time ago, and Bigham succeeded in dropping them to 67 percent from their previous 68 rating. The only thing was – we all dropped a notch too. Sorry Gene, but you were expendable.

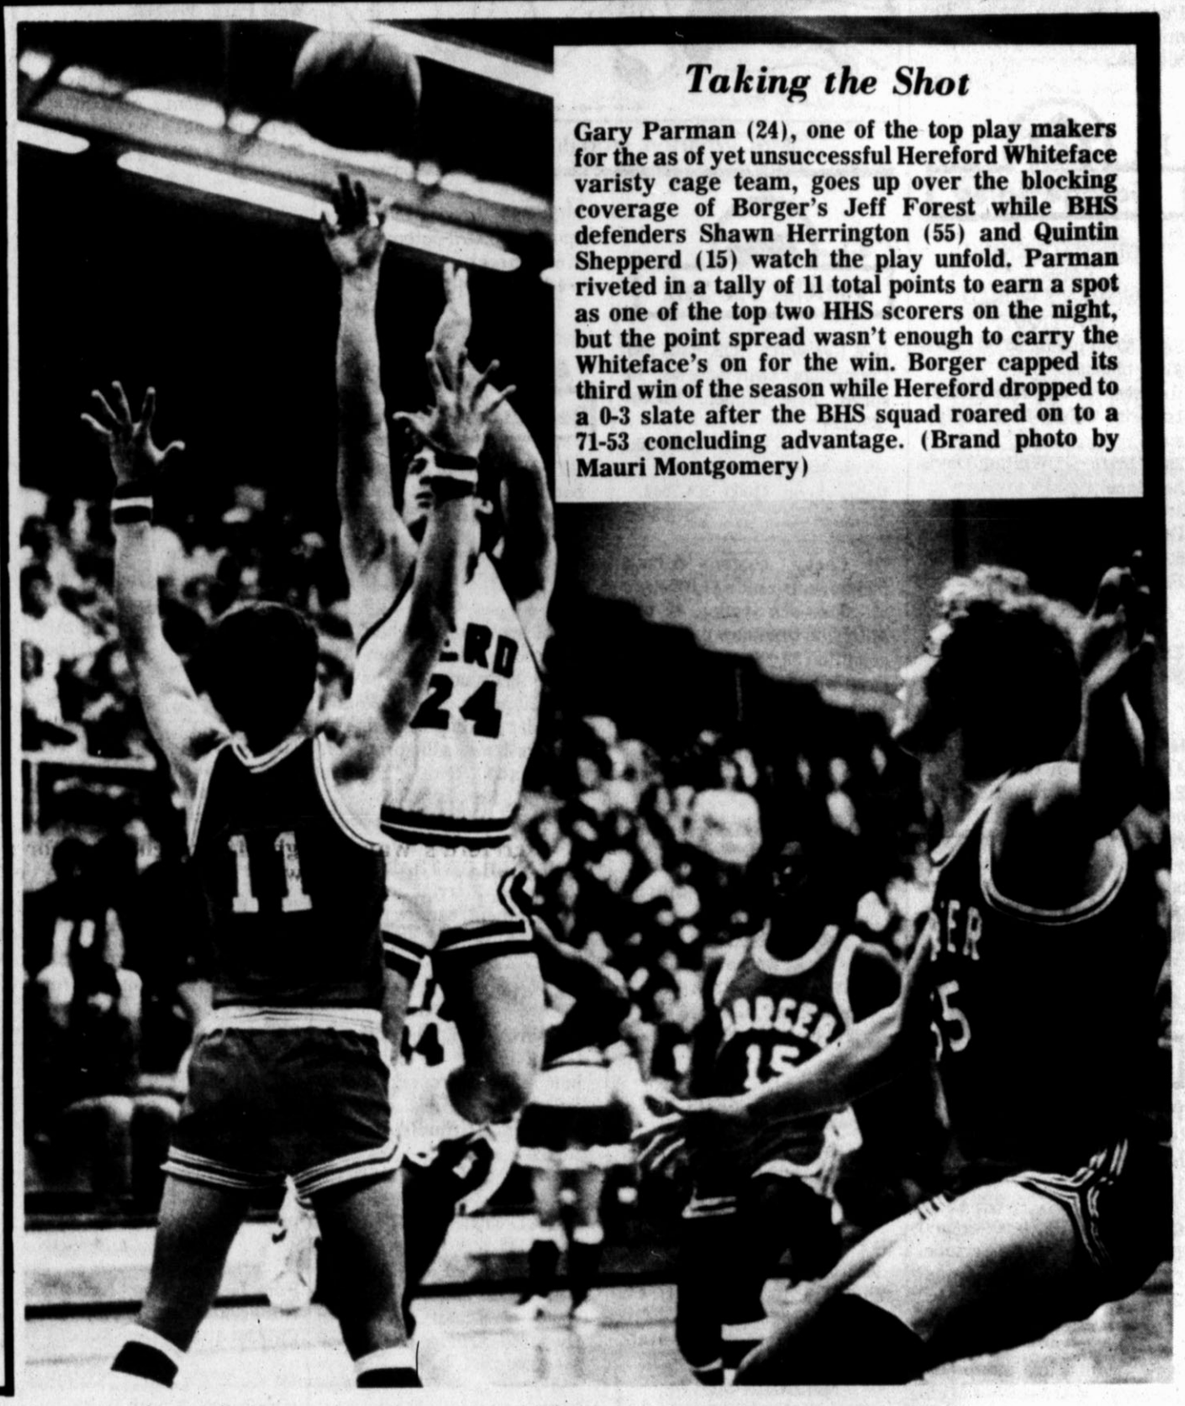

Then there was 12-12 (63 percent) Speedy Nieman – rightfully taking his place as the exalted leader of the crew. Not one of the nose-pickers complained of his leadership – he was the nose-picker who had hired them and it was only right that he be the ruler of the throne.

But if there were any people who never lowered themselves to play the nose game it was the weekly football contestants.

Nine-year-old Jim Hillwig of 323 Stadium Drive missed only six to win the contest in its final week. He became the 14th and final contestant to qualify for the grand prize contest to be competeted for this week.

Ansel McDowell of 207 N. Texas and Doris Bryant barely missed the winning mark after jotting down seven misses apiece. McDowell took second place with a tie-breaker guess of 35 (the correct estimation was 34) while Bryant ended up with third following her choice of 36.

The other qualifiers who will join Hillwig in competition for the grand prize include; Murlene Streun, David Caldwell, Jerry Morgan, Scott Debord, Lela Duggan, Karne Marsh, Armando Alaniz, K. Phommvong, Tracy Shepherd, Susan Crosby and John Keating.

Taking the Shot

Gary Parman (24), one of the top play makers for the as of yet unsuccessful Hereford Whiteface varisty cage team, goes up over the blocking coverage of Borger's Jeff Forest while BHS defenders Shawn Herrington (55) and Quintin Shepperd (15) watch the play unfold. Parman riveted in a tally of 11 total points to earn a spot as one of the top two HHS scorers on the night, but the point spread wasn't enough to carry the Whiteface's on for the win. Borger capped its third win of the season while Hereford dropped to a 0-3 slate after the BHS squad roared on to a 71-53 concluding advantage. (Brand photo by Mauri Montgomery)

Rams Axe Saints, 27-7

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — Dick Nolan knows the ax is a little sharper after his New Orleans Saints bowed 27-7 to the Los Angeles Rams, but somebody else will have to swing it.

"I will not resign," Nolan said after the Monday night game that left the Saints 0-12 in the National Football League this season. "John Mecom (team owner) and I spoke briefly after the game, but I will not comment on the conversation."

The Rams, 8-4, administered an old fashioned country whippin' to the Saints Monday night, outgaining New Orleans 393 yards to 96, sacking the quarterback eight times and allowing the Saints past midfield only twice.

The victory kept the Rams one game back of Atlanta in the NFC West.

"The whole idea in football is to dominate the line of scrimmage," said Rams defensive end Fred Dryer. "If you can do that, you're going to win the football game."

Nolan agreed with Dryer's assessment.

"They were beating us on the line of scrimmage. We couldn't knock them off the line," he said.

The first quarter was scoreless only because the Rams stopped themselves.

A holding call stalled one drive at the New Orleans 36 and Frank Corral missed a 53-yard field goal attempt. The next drive stalled at the New Orleans 17 and Corral was sent back out of the game and told to sit out a play when he was found to have illegal tape on his kicking shoe.

Deprived of the use of their field goal kicker, the Rams had to go for it on fourth-and-four and fell short.

"He had tape covering the laces on his kicking shoe," said Los Angeles Coach Ray Malavasi. "Last week he had the same tape on, and nothing was called. That shows an inconsistency."

The lapses were eliminated in the second quarter and wide receiver Preston Dennard caught two touchdown passes for the Rams. One was a 31-yard halfback pass from reserve Mike Guman, the other a 16-yard toss from quarterback Vince Ferragamo.

YOU AUTO KNOW

By Don Henslee

Q. I know that checking antifreeze is a must to prepare for winter driving, but is there anything else which will give me a better-than-even chance of getting through winter with my car, and my nerves, in good condition? A. Checking antifreeze is just a bare beginning. It's a good idea to completely flush your cooling system, then add new antifreeze. At the same time, give your hoses and belts a good check-up. Then, since your car will generally be operating under more severe conditions in the winter, an engine tuneup is not at all out of line, including plugs, points, timing, idle, distributor cap, rotor and carburetor. Your battery is going to be asked to work a lot harder in colder temperatures, so check the water level and charge. If in doubt about your battery, replace it. Finally, check your tires carefully. Bald tires and ice and snow just don't mix.

Georgia, Notre Dame Retain Berths

By HERSCHEL NISSENSON
AP Sports Writer

Georgia and Notre Dame, Sugar Bowl opponents on Jan. 1, held onto the top two spots today in The Associated Press college football poll, while Florida State remained in third place.

Behind the top three, however, there was plenty of shuffling. Nebraska and Ohio State dropped from fourth and fifth last week to 10th and 11th, respectively, while Pitt and Penn State, who tangle on Friday, moved up to challenge the leaders.

Also posting dramatic jumps this week were Oklahoma, Michigan and Baylor.

Georgia, the nation's only unbeaten and untied team, was idle last weekend. The Bulldogs, who will be seeking to nail down their first perfect regular season since 1946 when they meet Georgia Tech on Saturday, received 59 of 66 first-place votes and 1,311 of a possible 1,320 points from a nationwide panel of sports writers and sportscasters.

Notre Dame received three first-place votes and 1,222 points after defeating Air Force 24-10. The Irish have a 9-0-1 record and are the only other undefeated team besides Georgia. They were tied 3-3 by Georgia Tech earlier this month.

Florida State, which hasn't played since Nov. 8, winds up its regular season against No. 18 Florida on Dec. 6. The 9-1 Seminoles received the other four first-place ballots and 1,206 points.

Pitt and Penn State, both 9-1, also had last weekend off. Pitt climbed from sixth to fourth with 1,079 points while Penn State shot from seventh to fifth with 990 points.

Oklahoma's 21-17 triumph over Nebraska vaulted the Sooners from ninth to sixth with 940 points. They close out the regular season on Saturday against Oklahoma State.

Michigan was another big winner, rising from 10th to seventh by virtue of a 9-3 decision over arch-rival Ohio State. The Rose Bowl-bound Wolverines received 902 points.

Baylor, a 16-0 victor over Texas, jumped from 11th to eighth with 863 points after posting the best regular-season record in its history, 10-1. The Bears dropped idle Alabama, their Cotton Bowl opponent, from eighth place to ninth with 784 points. Nebraska rounded out the Top Ten with 728 points.

The Second Ten consists of Ohio State, Brigham Young, North Carolina, UCLA, Washington, Mississippi State, Southern California, Florida, South Carolina and Southern Methodist.

Last week's Second Ten was Baylor, Southern Cal, Brigham Young, South Carolina, North Carolina, Washington, Mississippi State, UCLA, Florida and Texas.

However, Texas lost to Baylor and fell out of the ratings while Souhern Methodist, a 31-7 winner over Arkansas, moved back in after a one-week absence.

Gilmore Named POW

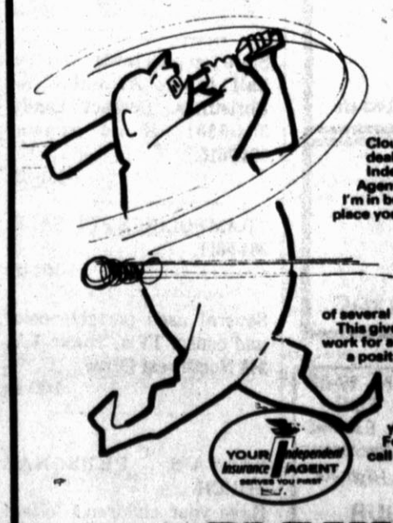

NEW YORK (AP) — Chicago Bulls' center Artis Gilmore, who shot .875 from the field and grabbed 34 rebounds in victories over New York and Washington last week, was named the National Basketball Association Player of the Week for the period ending Sunday.

Gilmore, who leads the NBA in field goal percentage, shot 13-for-15 with 19 rebounds in the Bulls' 130-121 triumph over New York last Friday.

HEALTH

Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

Snacks' psychological effect

DEAR DR. LAMB — What can I eat for quick energy? Are proteins the best food source for quick energy? Some of the girls at the office have a piece of cheese for a quick energy lift. Others have a donut or roll in the middle of the morning. If your nutrition is good otherwise would a candy bar be a good choice for a quick energy boost? Some football players eat steak and eggs before a game. Is that to give them more energy?

DEAR READER — It's true that the energy you get will come from your food or from the breakdown of fat stores developed from food you have eaten before. There is some "animal starch" in the liver, called glycogen, made from glucose molecules.

The mistake most people make about food and instant energy is forgetting about digestion. Food must be digested before it can enter your bloodstream or provide any energy.

Most of the digestion and absorption takes place in the small intestine, none in the stomach with the exception of alcohol. Since solid food remains in the stomach until it is liquified, you can't get any energy from solid food immediately.

Moreover, fats may stay in the stomach for hours. Proteins empty slower than carbohydrates so they are not a good choice for "instant energy." Since a slice of cheese is fat — lots of it — and protein, it follows that it does not provide any instant energy.

Liquid carbohydrates are emptied more rapidly from your stomach than other foods. That is why sugar water, as in a glucose tolerance test, raises the blood glucose within 30 minutes. Solid carbohydrates as you get in a raw apple are emptied slowly from the stomach after they are liquified and do not raise your blood glucose. Those steak and egg pregame meals are still in the stomach at the end of the game and don't help at all.

It is important to understand digestion, so I am sending you The Health Letter number 12-4, Your Digestion: Processing Your Food. Others who want this issue can send 75 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it to me, in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

Most quick energy comes from releasing glycogen from the liver as glucose. Otherwise the snack break effects are mostly psychological.

DEAR DR. LAMB — Can you please tell me what causes warts? My husband has them on his hands. Is it true they come because of a lack of iron as my mother-in-law says? How do you get rid of them?

DEAR READER — They are caused by a virus. And that has a lot to do with why they can spread and are mildly contagious. They are not caused by an iron deficiency. I almost wish they were as it would make treating them much easier.

Some warts disappear on their own. Often a wart or crops of warts may last seven years. Most treatment today still depends upon destroying the wart in some manner, usually with a chemical agent, depending on the location. Your doctor may choose to eliminate a wart on the hand with liquid nitrogen or some other wart-destruction technique. Sometimes treatment is difficult as the wart tends to recur.

The Newspaper Bible

WHO IS MY BROTHER?

I solemnly declare that any sin of man can be forgiven, even blasphemy against My Father,

But blasphemy against the Holy Spirit can never be forgiven. It is an eternal sin."

He told them this because they were saying He did His miracles by Satan's power (instead of acknowledging it was by the Holy Spirit's power).

Now His mother and brothers arrived at the crowded house where He was teaching, and they sent word for Him to come out and talk with them. "Your mother and brothers are outside and want to see You," He was told.

He replied, "Who is My mother? Who are My brothers?"

Looking at those around Him He said, "These are My mother and brothers!

Anyone who does God's will is My brother, and My sister, and My mother."

Mark 3:28-35
