TESTIMONY HAS BEEN COMPLETED

ALL THE EVIDENCE IN THE AL HARD CASE HAS BEEN TAKEN.

ARGUMENTS BEING MADE

Expected That The Case Will Go To The Jury Some Time Tonight.

Special to The Times

Vernon, Tex., Feb. 16.—That a blow such as Hard's father testified the defendant had received when a child twenty months old might result in insanity more than thirty years later and that the acts and condition described by witnesses, in his opinion were undoubted symptoms of insanity, was the opinion of Dr. D. C. Darnell, a Vernon physician who was placed on the stand by the defense in the trial of Al Hard yesterday afternoon.

Dr. Darnell was placed on the stand after Hard's father, Fireman Homer Tidwell and Conductor W. F. Carter had testifed. Hard's father testified that Al Hard had been struck by a swing when he was about twenty months old rendering him unconscious fors everal hours and leaving a scar across the side of his head which was plainly discernible to this day.

Homer Tidwell, who was fireman on Hard's engine, testified that until the few weeks preceding the homicides Hard was a careful engineer and had been regarded as one of the best and safest on the road. He said that within the last few weeks that he was on duty he seemed to be studying about something and was reckless in handling his engine; that he complained of his head hurting him and that he had gone bareheaded in his cab for the past six or seven months.

W. F. Carter, engineer, testified practically the same facts and said that Hard who had formerly been companionable in the last few months had held aloof.

H. H. Schewnd, constable at Henrietta, who was acting as jailor while Hard was confined there, testified that the defendant appeared nervous and emaciated at times and that he complained of pains in his head. He said that at Hard's request while the defendant was in jail at Henrietta, he had gone to a doctor to get a drug for Hard to take on account of these pains. On cross-examination Mr. Schewnd, however, would not state that he thought Hard was irrational.

Following the examination of Schewnd, Attorney Taylor propounded a lengthy hypothetical question to Dr. Darnell. This question embraced points in the testimony of the preceding witnesses and that of Mrs. Harry Brown and Mary Hard. In answer to this question Dr. Darnell gave it as his opinoin a man having such symptoms was undoubtedly insane. He said that a wound such as sustained by Hard might after many years cause an obstruction of the free circulation of the blood in the brain, producing a bodily toxine that might suddenly become manifest in insanity. On cross-examination Dr. Darnell gave it as his opinion that an insane person might recover their insanity partially or even completely within six hours.

The defense objected to some of the questions propounded by the State to Dr. Darnell and the jury was sent out while the matter was argued. While the jury was out the State explained that they would attempt to show that immediately following the killings Hard's actions were those of a sane man. The defense rested following the testimony of W. H. Huggins a bank teller who testified as to Hard's good character. Court was then adjourned until this morning.

The state this morning had four Vernon physicians subpeonad to testify concerning Hard's alleged insanity and it is expected that they will be placed on the stand this afternoon. The state expects to show by these physicians that Hard was not insane when he killed Brown and Staley.

Will Allen who helped to take Hard to jail and accompanied him to Henrietta, testified this morning that he believed from Hard's actions and conversation that he was sane.

J. W. Clasbey of Wichita Falls said that he had noticed nothing peculiar about Hard; said that he saw Hard about 1 o'clock on the afternoon of the killing and that Hard seemed worried over business transactions with him. He said that Hard was sober, peaceable and industrious.

The state this morning introduced witnesses in an effort to impeach the testimony of Mary Hard and Mrs. Harry Brown, who yesterday testified they had not told anyone that "Whiskey did it" "Al didn't do it," immediately after the murder. Witnesses were also examined in an effort to show by his actions and his conversations previous to the homicide that Hard was not insane.

George Dobzon, testified that he had taken Mrs. Hard in a buggy after the killing of her father to find her mother. He said that she told him "Al didn't do it, whiskey did it," and that she further said that when he was sober there wasn't a better man in Wichita Falls than Al and that she hoped he got away and wasn't caught.

B. D. Donnell testified that following the killing of Staley, Mrs. Hard in the presence of Mrs. Brown told him "Al didn't do it, whiskey did it."

Policeman A. J. Humphries who saw Al Hard taken from the yard following the killing of Staley and heard him talk said in his opinion he was sane.

Fred Carter testified that Hard's quietness was such as to cause notice and that he did not now look like he did several years ago.

C. P. Yeary testified that in his opinion Hard was not insane and that his acts at and immediately following the arrest were those of a sane man.

President Taft has commuted the sentence of Fred D. Warren, the editor of Appeal to Reason, a socialist newspaper. Warren was sentenced to six months imprisonment and fined $1,500. President Taft remitted the sentence and reduced the fine to $100, to be collected by civil process. Warren refused to appeal to the President for a pardon and Congressman Campbell, Republican, of Kansas, made the appeal without the advice or consent of the editor. Warren is a rabid socialist. His paper is rabid, but he has told many truths and as many glaring and glittering absurdities. Call them by another name if you will. His case should have been disposed of by the Supreme Court of the United States. If guilty he should have been punished; if innocent he should have been vindicated. In the Pettibone-Moyer case the Supreme Court held that kidnapping was not crime. When Warren advertised in the Appeal to Reason for men to kidnap and return to Kentucky ex-Governor Taylor, (accused of the murder of William Goebel), the crafty socialist laid a trap for the Supreme Court. It was a socialist vote making scheme. Now President Taft has liberated Warren and the Supreme Court has been relieved of the responsibility of reversing itself. Wily, indeed, is the editor of the Appeal to Reason, but President Taft has robbed him of his halo of

SUBMITS MESSAGE ON SUBJECT TO THE LEGISLATURE TODAY.

WOULD SELL RAILROAD

Declares It Is Being Operated at a Loss of Thousands of Dollars Monthly.

By Associated Press.

Austin, Texas, Feb. 16.—Governor Colquitt today submitted to the legislature a special message dealing with the penitentiary question and embodying his recommendations as to needed legislation on this subject.

He recited the fact that the penitentiary properties, exclusive of the state railroad, were valued at $3,258,225, the valuation of the railroad property being given at $509,061. In the face of the fact that finances were low, he said it would require $258,688 during the next six months to meet the running expenses of the penitentiary system and will cost almost $300,000 to operate the system under the new law, unless that law is changed.

In this connection the governor recommended the buying or leasing of state convict farms, and disapproved the practice of share farming. He also recommended the repeal of the provisions for fire proof buildings and iron cells for convicts.

The message called attention to the fact that the ten cents per day pension for convicts will cost the state $120,000 annually and the governor recommended their abolition. He is opposed to convicts testifying before grand juries unless citizenship has been restored and in that event only where the testimony is of great importance.

The sale or lease of the state railroad was recommended, because, as the governor explained, it is now being operated at a loss of thousands of dollars monthly.

Body of Lincoln's Slayer Said to be Held at Enid

Enid, Okla., Feb. 16.—(Special).—During the past eight years a dried-up mummy, on a shelf in an undertaking establishment in Enid has been one of the main objects of curiosity in the entire southwest, because of the fact that just prior to death the man claimed to be John Wilkes Booth, assassin of Abraham Lincoln. Not a day has passed since the death occurred but from one to a score of persons have called at the morgue to see the mummy, and W. B. Penniman, the owner of the establishment who embalmed the body, is kept busy relating the story to many visitors, even from other states, who have made the trip to Enid purposely to see for themselves. Many who knew Booth in his lifetime and who have seen him both on and off the stage, have called and none ever denied the resemblance between the dead man and the actor.

David E. George, by which name the man was known in life in both Enid and El Reno, committed suicide at the Grand Avenue hotel, in Enid January 13, 1903. After taking the poison which ended his life, George made a deathbed statement that he was John Wilkins Booth and outlined his life since the assassination of President Lincoln. The statement was made to Mrs. Hammer and Mrs. Simmons of Enid and was published widely at the time, creating a sensation throughout the entire country. George first came to Enid on December 3, 1902, and remained at the hotel until his death. Prior to that time he had lived about a year in El Reno and Hydro, where he did odd jobs as a painter. At El Reno he was asked to participate in some amateur theatricals performances having shown a knowledge of such things, and, in fact he did rehearse the persons who appeared in the plays.

George's first appearance in Oklahoma was in 1901, shortly after the opening of the Kiowa and Comanche Indian reservations to settlement. He homesteaded a claim near Hydro, in Caddo county, did painting around town for a livelihood. Prior to going to El Reno he sold his claim for $1,300. The people of Hydro remember him as a very eccentric man. To Editor Williams of the Hydro Review he made a positive statement that John Wilkes Booth, who assassinated Abraham Lincoln, was not dead; and that when the barn in which Booth was supposed to have taken refuge, was burned, Booth was not there. George was very emphatic in his statement, although but little attention was paid to him at the time.

Following the suicide of George in Enid, the mayor of El Reno received a letter asking for further particulars regarding the suicide. The letter was signed "Mrs. Charles Levine," and she claimed that Booth was her father. From what could be learned at the time she was a vaudeville actress. In Nashville, Tenn., Mrs. Levine afterwards told the story as in her letter to El Reno. She said her mother was Mrs. Louisia Booth formerly Payne, of the Cumberland mountain section of Tennessee. She married a man, named John Wilkes Booth, as she claimed the family record would show in 1872. They went to Sewanee and from there to Memphis, where finding the detectives on his trail he disappeared. About five months later a daughter was born, being named Laura Ida Booth, now Mrs. Levine. She went on the stage as a child and did not know until the suicide of George at Enid was published that she was a daughter of Lincoln's assassin. Relatives in Tennessee sent her clippings of the suicide in Enid, telling her that George was her father, being the man who had married Louisa Payne. Mrs. Levine then began an investigation and became convinced htat John Wilkes Booth and the suicide were the same man.

F. I. Bates, an attorney of Memphis, Tenn., who assisted Mrs. Levine in her investigation stated to her in letters that he had represented John Wilkes Booth as his attorney on several occasions since 1870, knowing him intimately for years after that date. Bates came to Oklahoma at the request of Mrs. Levine, and identified the Enid suicide as the man whom he had represented in the courts. Another person to back up the matter came forward at the same time in Mrs. Martha J. Payne of Tullahoma, Tenn., who says that she was aware that her daughter's husband was John Wilkes Booth. At the time of George's death in Enid, Mrs. Levine was filling an engagement in New York as Miss Ida Booth.

JOHN REDMOND.

Today from on end of the British isles to the other, the name of John Redmond is foremost on the lips of everyone. He is looked to as being the man who is to win the great fight for home rule. He is the leader of the great national cause which just now is uppermost not only among the Irish tenants and the people of Ireland, generally, but as well in the House of Lords and House of Commons in England.

Should John Redmond win a victory his name will go down in history as one never to be forgotten. He is fifty five years old, an eloquent speaker, a tactician of the highest order, a man of marked learning and wonderful self control. His career in Parliament began at an almost youthful period in his life. His father, Mr. Redmond, Sr., had often spoken boldly upon the floor of Commons against British misrule in Ireland. John Redmond was educated by the Jesuits at Clongowes Wood College and at Trinity College in Dublin, when he had a distinguished career, for three years after his departure from college he regularly practiced law as a barrister, and it was during this period that the first incident happened in the life of the young man that portrayed his feelings of sympathy that has ever made him beloved not only by the leaders of the Irish party to which he belongs, but by the thousands of poor tenants in Ireland. It was during his second year's practice as a barrister that he was sought by a solicitor to defend such Irish tenants in case of eviction. Mr. Redmond took the case and won it. A few days later he received from the solicitor a check for $2,000 for his own two days' work upon the case. Redmond opened the letter, looked at the check; then he immediately enclosed it another envelope and returned it to the solicitor with the order that the money be turned over to the organization that had defended the tenants.

Only a few yearse later his leaving college he took his seat in the House of Commons. During his service there he stood for a division in Liverpool in '85 but was defeated. From the time of his appointment he represented North Wexford until 1891. He then resigned and stood for Cork, and was the same year elected from Waterford city. Above all things as the paramount influence of his life, stands his love for Ireland and all things Irish. He was a patriot before he was a politician. Those long roamings of his boyhood by the Wexford cliffs near the old Tumily seat, Ballytrent House, influenced him more than anything else. He has made several trips to the United States and Canada, in the interest of the United Irish League. Mr. Redmond always receives a warm welcome in America.

Fans Flood Morris With Names for Park

Fort Worth, Texas, Feb. 16.—Morris' offer of a season ticket to the person sending in the most appropriate name for the new ball park, published in the Star-Telegram Sunday has met with the approval of fans generally. Fort Worth baseball headquarters was fairly deluged with letters Monday and Tuesday.

To read the letters of some of the fans is a rare treat. Every variety of name under the sun has been suggested. It appears that the ancient and modern lexicons of nomenclature have been ransacked in the mad search for names.

The first letter opened Monday contained a classic suggestion. The writer was evidently somewhat familiar with the history of old Attica, the story of the Olympic games and the most prominent of the Greek gods, Zeus. The title suggested was "Zeus Olympus."

A woman fan suggested that it be called the Panthers' lair if the pennant be won this year, and if the Panthers do not win, let the park remain without a name.

At least a dozen persons suggested that it be called the Morris Park. One fan said this would be appropriate because of the Panther owner's hustling ability.

One fan thought it should be called Paragon Park because of its excellence; another that Sylvia would be the proper title because it was near a beautiful bit of woodland.

Among a few of the other names turned in are Washington, Delmar, Ford, View, Swastika, Midway, Riverside, Central, Athletic, Hyde, Northfield, Southland, Lorena, Fields, Corral, Sport's, Beechwood, Spearmint, Megaphone, Cotton Belt, Dusty Road.

Three Thousand Graduates.

Three thousand persons have graduated from the University of Texas since its beginning in 1883. These men and women are occupying prominent positions throughout Texas and the United States. For example, seven will be in the next United States Congress. In the teaching profession University graduates are holding positions now on the faculties of the University of California, the University of Michigan, the University of Wisconsin, Chicago University, the University of Missouri, Northwestern University, the University of Virginia, Johns Hopkins University, Princeton, Cornell University, the University of Pennsylvania, Bryn Mawr College, Massachusetts Institute of Technology, Harvard University, and other great educational institutions. A prominent citizen of Oklahoma estimates that not less than 500 graduates and ex-students of the University of Texas are now residents of that State, and assert that they have played a most important part in the development of the new State. In Texas, of course the influence of the institution is felt most vitally. A single instance of its activity must suffice: Last year the Appointment Committee found places for 135 of its graduates to teach in the public schools of Texas during the present session. These positions paid an aggregate salary of more than $100,000.00.

FREE LECTURE TO RAILROAD EMPLOYES

During the past few years the number of fatalities from explosions has attarcted the attention of government officials and transportation companies and rules and regulations have been promulgated by the Interstate Commerce Commission and the railroad companies governing the transportation of explosives which rules require every precaution possible be taken from a standpoint of safety in the way of proper packing for shipment, loading and handling in proper cars separate from other explosives or inflamable, etc. This is a matter that not only deeply concerns the railroad companies, but all persons who handle and ship explosives and the public in general. The Bureau of Explosives has regular inspectors who are thoroughly informed in regard to the handling as well as the manufacture of explosives, who visit stations where such commodities are handled to see that instructions are complied with on the part of shippers and railroad companies and who also give lectures for instruction of railroad employes. These lectures are not only instructive but very interesting to railroad employes and the public generally. Arrangements have been made by the M. K. & T. and F. W. & D. C. jointly for a lecture to be given by Assistant Chief Inspector G. E. Carleton on the subject of the safe transportation of explosives at Wichita Falls on Saturday, February 18th. A suitable hall, the location of which will be announced later, will be provided for this lecture. It is desired that all railroad employes whose headquarters are at Wichita Falls make it a point to attend this lecture, particularly station and train men who have to do with the handling of explosives. Wholesale and retail merchants who are interested, as well as the public, are invited to attend the lecture also.

Frederick White.

Lieut. Col. Frederick White, Commissioner of the Northwest Territories of Canada and for many years Comptroller of the Northwest Mounted Police, was born in Birmingham, England, Feb. 16, 1847, and received his education in his native city. As a young man he emigrated to Canada and was first employed in railway work in Montreal. In 1869 he removed to Ottawa, where he was appointed to a clerkship in the Department of Justice. In this position he was entrusted with administrative work in connection with the raising of the Royal Northwest Mounted Police, of which organization he was made chief clerk in 1878 and comptroller a short time later. From 1880 to 1882 he served as private secretary to Sir John A. Macdonald. In 1901 he was accorded the rank of lieutenant-colonel in the militia in recognition of his services in connection with the raising equipment of the Canadian troops for the war in South Africa. In 1905 Lieut. Col. White was appointed Commissioner of the Northwest Territories.

Unfortunate many persons always think that the Promised Land is located in some other state.

INSPECTION TO BE RIGID ONE

LEGISLATORS WILL LOOK THOROUGHLY INTO THE NEEDS OF THE A. & M. COLLEGE.

COMMITTEE IS AT WORK

Will Study Conditions in Order To Provide Maintenance for Ensuing Term.

College Station, Tex., Feb. 16.—Never before has such a thorough investigation of the needs of the Agricultural and Mechanical College of Texas been made by a legislative committee as has been the case this year, and never before have men gone from this institution so impressed with the crisis that exists at this time in the affairs of the institution.

The subcommittee of the House committee on appropriations, consisting of Colonel Louis J. Wortham of Tarrant County, J. H. Woods of Navarro, Brown F. Lee of Tom Green and C. M. Cureton of Bosque, began the investigation Sunday morning. With them came also Hon. Jeff D. Cox of Rockwall County, chairman of the general committee on appropriations, his attendance here being an evidence of the strong interest being taken in the affairs of the college by the present Legislature.

Colonel Milner took the gentlemen about the property of the institution. They were not satisfied to sit in the comforts of the apartments provided for them and hear second-hand the arguments in favor of better facilities for teaching the boys of this institution, but they went out in the cold, drizzly rain, suffered the discomforts of the bad footing on muddy streets, and went from one department to the other. Stenographer Harmon of the House clerical force took down the comments of the members of the committee at every point. They went through every department, saw the cracked walls of old buildings, the crowded condition of the various departments of instruction, learned of the lack of equipment.

Monday morning the entire student body was assembled in the chapel and Colonel Wortham made an address. He said that when he was appointed on the committee to visit the various State institutions and ascertain their needs that he had no idea that he was wanted as an expert in architectural engineering. Since seeing the buildings at other State institutions and at the Agricultural and Mechanical College he is convinced that instead of being an architectural expert he was sent out as an expert on "ancient ruins."

He said: "I have been convinced for many years that this institution among the rest under the guardianship of the State was inadequately provided for. Since I have been here that impression has become a conviction. I want to say to you that in my humble capacity as a legislator, if by voice and vote I can relieve these conditions, that I pledge you here and now the best energies of my heart and mind. They tell me that in my advocacy of the State institutions of higher learning and those institutions which have to do with the teaching of industrial arts, that I am departing from the policy of conservatism. In answer to my critics I say to them that conservatism never found a great institution. Conservatism never constructed a railroad into the undeveloped portions of the country in order that man might bring about the developments of the resources which nature had placed there for him. Conservatism never opened the door of opportunity to men that they might increase the wealth of the State and the nation and conservatism never won a great battle on the field of blood and war and carnage. It is the 'dreamer' who builds the empire. It is the dreamer who builds in new places. When they tell me that I must not do anything to increase the ad valorem taxrate of this State, I say that it is the duty of every patriotic citizen to do that which will increase the importance and value to the people of every State institution. The things which are taught in this college are the things which are absolutely necessary to the development of the State of Texas. They say this is an agricultural State.

"Thus it is, but it is also a factory State, or can be made one. About the fourth industry in importance, or may be the third, in this State is the cattle industry. There are 9,000,000 head of cattle in this State below the quarantine line. It has been demonstrated that below the quarantine line is the finest breeding ground for cattle in the United States. No sane man will tell me that this State should halt a moment in taking the proper scientific means of stopping charbon, anthrax, Texas fever and cholera in hogs. Texas cattle have taken the prizes at the Royal show in Kansas City, at the International Livestock Exposition in Chicago and at that great Louisiana Purchase Exposition in St. Louis, which commemorated Thomas Jefferson's acquisition of the territory that was ceded by France. Texas cattle won the prizes that proclaimed them the best in the land. I want to see this great college build a department here devoted to veterinary science that will be an honor to the institution and an honor to this State. You teach veterinary science here to your agricultural students, but it ought to be so that you can confer the degree of doctor of veterinary medicine upon those who take that course. Texas should equip the men who will protect the livestock industry from the ravages of the disease, and I want to say farther, that it is imperatively incumbent upon the State of Texas to develop the hog industry. Of the 5,000 hogs which were sold to the packers in that magnificent city of Fort Worth last year 3,000 of them came from the State of Oklahoma. My idea is that the State of Texas should be exceedingly generous in appropriations for this institution. To my mind the Legislature has followed a mistaken policy in regard to the University of Texas, the Agricultural and Mechanical College and the experiment stations for years.'

Colonel Wortham paid a high tribute to the student body, and said that if Sam Houston had marched against Mexico with such a body of young men, Santa Anna would never have been captured, but that these boys would have mowed down that Mexican army like chaff before the reaper.

The members of the committee were very much impressed with the work of the college. They knew of what the college could do, but they were not so well informed about conditions. Col. Wortham has a son who finished at the college and is now engaged in agricultural work in Nacogdoches County, where he has a fine farm. Judge Woods has had two sons at the college, and the son of Hon. Brown F. Lee is now a member of the senior class of the college and will graduate in June next in civil engineering.

The visit of the committee is very important to the college. It will result in a strong report being made of the conditions here and it is believed that larger appropriations will be allowed.

Clark Wants a Typist.

Speaker-to-be Champ Clark is in search of a real "live wire" in the stenographic line to fill a vacancy in the official corps of shorthand reporters of the house. The place pays $6,000 a year and the successful candidate must be able to jot fast enough to record the running fire of the liveliest debate in the house. The appointee will have to work only when the house is in session, but must then be steadily on the job, even if the legislative day is spread by filibuster or other parliamentary process over a span of several ordinary calendar days. On the other hand, the appointee will not have to work when the house is not meeting, when it adjourns over from Thursday to Monday or during the summer recess between sessions, although his salary of $500 a month will go along just the same.

This vacancy was created by the sudden death of A. C. Welch, the ranking official stenographic reporter of the house, who for twenty-six years had been actively reporting its proceedings. Speaker Cannon has the power to fill the vacancy, but passes that pleasant task along to Champ Clark. When asked why he did not care to make the appointment Mr. Cannon replied, with a smile:

"I'm afraid you Democrats would fire my man out the moment you come into power."

The fact is that he did not happen to have a stenoghaphic friend to appoint and thought it would be a pleasing compliment to pass this much of the "spoils" of office along to his successor.

Mr. Clark wants to give it to the best man that can be found. When applications arrive, Mr. Clark will arrange for some sort of a competive examination and give the winner the appointment.—New York Sun.

THREE BUILDINGS BURN AT ALTUS

Altus, Okla., Feb. 16.—Fire which broke out about 8 o'clock Tuesday night in the W. S. Fuqua building on East Locust street, occupied by John Clingin's restaurant, totally destroyed that building and two others adjoining. All were old frame shacks, and burned fiercely for more than an hour, threatening the destruction of the entire block. Only by the heroic work of the fire department aided by citizens, who were helpless until a good water pressure was obtained, saved the destruction of every building in the block in which the fire started.

On one side of the burned district is a brick building occupied by the Altus State Bank. This was lightly damaged and did a great deal toward checking the flames. Adjoining the burned building on another side was a cement block building. This also stopped the fire from spreading along the street.

The three frame buildings were a total loss. They were occupied by restaurants, while the other was vacant.

The total loss is estimated at $3,000.

After all King Emanuel should not feel so badly. Most any fellow should feel all right with a life-time pension of $35,000 per annum with nohting to do but spend it.

At the rate the ears of Congressman Macon, of Arkansas, are growing just now, would indicate that Senator Jeff Davis is going to have opposition the next time he offers for the senatorship.

Former United States Senator Foraker insists that the Panama Canal should be fortified which causes an exchange to inquire if the Ohio statesman now out of a job is trying to get another one.

In Indiana the antis are exerting every influence possible to have the local option law repealed. In Texas they are doing what they can to convince the pros or state-wideers that local option is just the correct thing. "There's a reason."

The Morgan Magazine trust can't buy up all the magazines, remarks one of the number, and it might be stated right here that there are a few magazines that the Morgan trust could have but little use for, even though it could buy them.

Washingtons' birthday will be observed generally over Texas as "tree planting day," and this means that Wichita Falls will be one of the many thriving cities that will take advantage of the occasion to put out a few hundred more shade trees. This is one way of "making a city beautiful."

The rains, though not heavy are getting to be more frequent, all of which is encouraging and indicate good crops, and an average good crop in Wichita county means a million or two dollars to the farmers. On the prosperity of the farmer depends largely the prosperity of the city and her business men. Good crop will mean as much or more to Wichita Falls than any enterprise that has so far been secured, or any that are in prospect.

AN UNWISE BILL.

The proposition to remove the pre food station from the College of Industrial Arts at Denton to Austin, is a bill that should be most carefully considered, because it is one of very doubtful wisdom.

Any legislation which limits the work and lessens the scope of the activities of an institution the work of which relates peculiarly to the matter of food and its preparation, and all those things which pertain to the realm of domestic science, is legislation of the highest importance, and it should not pass unless the need of it is so clear as to make the necessity imperative.

There are something like 300 young women, drawn from the worthiest families of Texas, none of them rich, but all striving to fit themselves for teachers or for the duties of heads of households, and to promote that end the study of domestic science in its broadest scope is essential and pure foods and domestic science can not wisely be separated.

What the school at Denton needs is not to have anything taken from it, but much more given to it. It has been inexcusably neglected, and such appropriations as have been made for it have been doled out in a most niggardly manner, as if it were a troublesome pensioner on the public purse.

Every sphere of its activities should be enlarged—its hospital where the rudiments of medicine are taught and the young aldies are instructed in trained nursing should be better fitted up; its domestic science department and the correlated department of chemistry should be better equipped and greatly enlarged, and its building should be repaired, and the grounds, which by nature are admirably adapted to being beautified by terraces and lawns and flower beds, should be so laid out as to subject the students constantly to the suggestive and impressive influences of beautiful environment, an influence of incalculable value.

Neither that school nor any other in Texas has ever received such measure of appropriations as was necessary to keep them at the highest state of efficiency, and it is worse than poor economy, it is harmful, near-sighted parsimony, to make appropriations less than the needs of any institution demand.

If there is one department of the College of Industrial Arts which should not be severed from that school it is that relating to pure foods.

If the students of that school were boys instead of girls, it would not be thought of, and 300 earnest studious young women who are striving to fit themselves for the duties of home and domestic life should have every advantage that a great state can give them.—Houston Chronicle.

Following is the statewide prohibition amendment to the State Constitution to be voted upon by the qualified voters of Texas on July 22nd: Section 20. The manufacture, sale, barter and exchange of intoxicating liquors on and after the second Tuesday in January, 1912, is hereby prohibited within this State, except for medicinal, scientific, and sacramental purposes. The legislature of the State of Texas, shall, at noon on the second Tuesday in Jan. A. D., 1912, by authority of this section, meet in session in the city of Austin and pass efficient laws to enforce this section; but nothing in this section shall prevent any session of the legislature from passing any law to enforce the same, and all laws in force when this amendment is adopted, providing remedies, penalties or forfeitures in relation to the manufacture, sale or transportation of intoxicating liquors shall remain in full fore eand effect unless modified or repealed.

According to the way some Democratic statesmen figure it, the reapportionment bill gives to the Republican States 31 more votes in the electoral college, and to the Democratic States only 11 more. But there seems really little need to worry over a little thing like that. The Democrats have had but little use for the electoral college for the past 16 years, and unless they can come closer together on the tariff and other leading issues, the indications are that their representation in the electoral college will not gain a great deal over what it has been since the days of the two Cleveland administrations.

The Commissioners have fixed April 1 as the day upon which to hold the bridge bond election, and the proposition is to issue bonds to the amount of $15,000 for the construction of the new 16-foot bridge by the side of the present bridge spanning the Wichita River in this city, with a five-foot passage way for foot passengers between the two bridges. It is to be hoped that the people of this city, even though they were not given what was asked for through the Chamber of Commerce and leading citizens, will support the bond issue and not run the risk of antagonizing the country people by voting and talking against it. We cannot always get what we want, perhaps, but it will not help matters to refuse to accept that which is offered.

John Redmond, the great Irish leader in a speech delivered in Parliament yesterday, said he was ready and willing to accept local self-government as a full measure of the demands of Ireland and to acknowledge England's King as the ruler of his country.

Judging from the many large ads appearing in many of our exchanges, this seems to be the proper time of the year for the liquor dealers of the state to advertise their goods.

With something like 500 House bills already introduced, this does not look much like that promised "administration of peace and rest."

At the Theaters

"Three Years In Arkansas" At The Ruby.

Last night at the Ruby Theatre, Benton's comedians again scored a hit with "Three Years in Arkansas." The play tells of the mountain people of Arkansas in the moonshine days, and was enjoyed by everyone present. Mr. Benton was entrusted with the comedy, and as usual kept all in good humor.

Tonight "The Girl and the Detective," a pretty story of New York life, built upon different lines from the usual dramas, a play with plenty of heart interest and just enough thrills to make one sit up and look.

At The Colonial.

The management announces a complete change of program tonight in vaudeville and pictures.

Mr. Taylor will sing a very beautiful illustrated song, entitled "They Have Won Every Nation's Battle, but their Own." Special for Friday and Saturday night, Mr. Taylor will sing "In the Baggage Coach Ahead."

All patrons are requested to send in names of their most favorite songs and they will be rendered with pleasure by Mr. Taylor.

Our photoplay is extra good, featuring that big feature picture "The Armorer's Daughter," a reliance picture by all of the famous old Biograph actors and "Hearts of Gold" the most heart-rendering drama ever written.

"A Prince of His Race."

The attraction at the opera house Feb. 22 will be a return engagement of Oscar Graham's brilliant dramatization "A Prince of His Race." Mr. Graham has had this successful play on the road for the past three seasons and last season through Texas and Oklahoma, it was pronounced one of the very best ever seen outside of New York or Chicago. This season Mr. Graham has spent a good deal of money to make "A Prince of His Race" better than ever. The result is an absolutely new scenic production and even an improvement in the play itself, although last season, critics everywhere pronounced it a perfect literary gem. The company however, is the same as last season for Mr. Graham keeps the same people with him year in and year out. Miss Loretta Graham, the leading lady, has augmented her wardrobe with some "stunning new gowns," one of which is a handsome Battenburg creation valued at $500. "A Prince of His Race" has been pronounced one of the classiest, most artistic and best dressed attractions on the road.

Secretary Discusses Canadian Reciprocity

By Associated Press.

Chicago, Feb. 15.—Though the people of the United States and Canada are "a substantially homogeneous people" with "deep moral and arcial reciprocaties," the benefits of the proposed commercial reciprocity with Canada "ought not to be obscured by the year of relations too cordial and conceivably dangerous to the great Canadian loyality to England," in the opinion of the Secretary of State, Philander S. Knok who addressed the Chicago Association of Commerce here tonight.

Mr. Knox declared that while migrations proceeded as constantly and as freely between Canada and the United States as between two states of this country and while the two people have been welding together for two centuries, "there is not the slightest probability that this racial and moral union will involveany political change or annexation or absorption."

"It is an ethnological fact that political units of the English-speaking people never lose their autonomy," said Secretary Knox. "Like bees, they give off their swarms, who set up for themselves independently, but they do not make political combinations among themselves.

Since the revolution there has been almost undisturbed peace and amity between the two countries, and however governmental changes may have been bruited in the past, it is probable more true today than ever before that the weight of sentiment and opinion both in Canada and the United States, while desiring closer relations in all other respects, is crystallized in a belief that the present political separation is desirable and will lead to the best development of each nation and to better and more satisfactory relations between them.

"In the higher atmosphere and broader aspects of the situation it is certain that if there should be any great world movement involving this continent Canada and the United States would, as a matter of course, act in the most perfect concert in defense of the common rights of a common blood and civilization."

Declaring, however, that the reciprocity proposition was "conomic, not political," Mr. Knox asserted: "The United States recognizes with satisfaction that the Dominion of Canada is a permanent North American political unit and that her autonomy is secure. The United States appreciates the advantage to the common welfare of the continent that Canada contributes her own strength plus the strength of Great Britain."

Secretary Knox prefaced his argument allaying fears of Canadian annexation with an outline of the trade relations between the United States and Canada to the work of the present administration and then remarked that "for more than half a century the statesmen of Canada, of Great Britain, and of the United States have by repeated effort testified and reaffirmed an abiding and reciprocity belief in the principle of American-Canadian recoprocity."

Sketching briefly the negotiation between Canada and the United States from the time of the passage of the reciprocity treaty of 1854 and its abrogation in 1886, Mr. Knox spoke of the subsequent efforts on both sides of the line to promote reciprocal trade, the Canadian pilgrimages to Washington, "the cold reception given the eminent Canadians who made those pilgrimages and the appeal to imperial and political sentiment by their opponents at home."

"Our task was, despite all this," continued Mr. Knox, "to submit to the people of the United States and to the people of Canada an opportunity to cement the commercial links which it is decreed shall unite us. The agreement submitted to Congress by the President is the result. It is comprehensive in principle and avoids the objection which was one cause of the abrogation of the Elgin-Marcy treaty of 1854—that is, it is not limited to one class of commodities. It is meant for the conditions of today and the conditions of the future.

"Recognizing the condition which exists in our own country and without undertaking to define the causes that have led to the increased cost of living, the agreement seeks to give our millions of wage-earning consumers the benefit of drawing upon the surplus nearest at hand. It seeks by providing for the freest possible interchange of commodities across the political boundary which when it comes to production and commerce is an artificial boundary, to prevent those manipulations and those speculative fluctuations in prices which are harmful both to the producer and to the consumer. It may be stated as an axium that the more abundant the source of supply and the more free the movement of products the less chance there is of decreasing the legitimate profits of the producer and of increasing the cost to the consumer by artificial scarcity.

"While a reciprocity agreement limited to natural products would be beneficial, nevertheless in order that such an agreement should be really comprehensive the terms should include manufactured commodities also. This, too, is done? Rates are mutually reduced on a large variety of manufactures. The list would have been even larger had the Dominion reached the stage of industrial development in which she felt that she could include a greater number of articles."

Special regard for "the great class of agricultural producers," for the market offered by Canada to this county and the market offered by the United States to Canada, and for "the legitimate expansion of our manufacturing industries" was given during the recent negotiations, added Mr. Knox, in explaining the reductions on all classes of agricultural implements, the free admission of cottonseed oil into Canada, the exemption from duty of all fruits and vegetables and other agricultural products of which some sections have a surplus at certain seasons. The benefits are generally distributed in Mr. Knox's opinion and "no permanent injury to any producing class is apprehended."

Speaking of the provision for free wheat Mr. Knox pointed out that the transportation facilities of the United States for handling the surplus Canadian crop must be taken into account, thus preventing "the demoralization of prices which results through the dumping of larger quantities upon the European markets, where the world's supply is fixed." He declared that the free admission of grain from Canada would meet the present situation and place the control in the hands of the American grain growers.

"The principal complains against the measure," continued Mr. Knox, "come from the politicians who have been endeavoring to persuade the farmer that his interest in the protective tariff is based on the tariffs on agricultural products rather than upon the general prosperity of the country, or they are heard from some local special interest.

"It is significant how little is said about who got the best of the bargain. The geberal observation is one of gratification that the arrangement is beneficial to both countries. The breadth and unselfish nature of the agreement has surprised and gladdened the friends of good relations between the countries and disconcerted those upon both sides of the line who expected a horse trader's bargain.

"A generous measure of reciprocity between Canada and the United States is but a natural expression of their interdependence. Efforts to restrain, hamper, and interfere with its realization will be as futile and unprofitable as were the early ruinous trade wars between the States.

"The reason for reciprocity are very real and striking and ought to lift the consideration of the result of the recent negotiations to a high plane and large-minded comprehension of the greater reasons and motives of human and national relations and rise above the mere balancing of trade advantages."

National Appoints Umpires and Recommends New Rules

New York, Feb. 16.—The adoption of minor constitutional amendments and the selection of umpires were the only definite things done at a meeting of the National League of professional baseball clubs today. There was a great deal of talk of an impending struggle, but nothing tangible enough to crop out in the open. The schedule probably will be adopted tomorrow as prepared. Dissatisfaction last year disrupted it until only a small part of the original remained.

The following umpires were appointed on the staff for the coming season: Henry O. Day, William J. Clem, J. E. Johnston, Charles Rigler, William E. Brennan, Mat Eason, W. F. Finneran, Jack Doyle; substitute, Robert Emslie.

Finneran, who comes from the Eastern League, and Doyle, an old player, are the new ones. They supplant Steve Kane, who is dropped, and Emslie, who is given the new position of "sub umpire." President Lynch will have exclusive charge of all umpires.

Amendments to the constitution were adopted whereby a club can not withdraw a claim after the player so claimed had been awarded it and the penalty for the waiver rules was made $250. It was also agreed that no tied or postponed games are to be played off in the series of the season. The magnates went on record as opposed to double-headers, particularly in the early part of the season.

While there is to be no change in the playing rules because the American league failed to appoint its end of a joint committee, the National League today recommended two changes which will be submitted to the joint conference for next season. They are that the pitcher must have one foot on his slab or plate when he pitches and that it is a balk if the pitcher enters his box without the ball in his possession. That is, if the pitcher is in the box the base runner may assume, it is proposed, that he has the ball and that it is "in play."

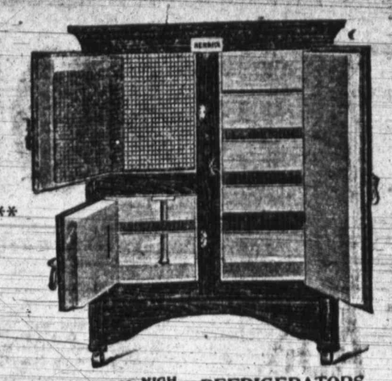

The Philadelphia and New York clubs were given permission to use a white suit with hairline stripes on their home grounds. This is an innovation.

President Lynch will inspect all dressing rooms over the league before the season opens and will insist on proper accommodations for visiting players.

E. J. Goldsmith of Cincinnati, occupied more than two hours of the league's time in explaining the merits of a baseball which he wants the league to adopt. This promises to be a hard fought issue, as powerful financial interests have already derived the revenue from that source and there is a disposition to contest the matter. It probably will come up for for further discussion tomorrow, although the contracts for the ball used at present do not expire until April, 1912.

There were many rumors today that forces are being marshaled for the fight next fall when the league may vote to continue or reject the ten-year agreement with the American League. Garry Herrman of Cincinnati, Barney Dreyfuss of Pittsburg, Stanley Robison of St. Louis and John Brush of New York are credited with a combine to renew that contract of peace. Horace Fogel of Philadelphia, Charles H. Ebbetts of Brooklyn and Charles W. Murphy of Chicago are said to desire making more favorable terms with the American League. Consequently both sides are anxious for the vote of the new Boston club. William Russell, one of the owners of the club, said he had not aligned with any faction and would vote independently on all matters.

Features of Religious Education Discussed

Providence, R. I., Feb. 16.—Making the individual home attractive as a bulwark against the despiritualizating influences of the modern city was urged by Rabbi David Philipson, D.D., of Cincinnati, in an address tonight on "The Home and the Modern City," before the convention of the Religious Education Association here. Rabbi Philipson said in part.

"The cities are the whirlpools of civilization into which the best and the worst elements are drawn. There life is lived at its fullest; there the prizes that pass among men as the most desirable are to be found; there human companionship in all its forms is to be had. The whole trend of our modern civilization is cityward. Possibly the most striking feature of the census of nineteen hundred and ten is the great growth of the cities and the accompanying flow from the rural districts to the urban centers. What has occurred during the first decade of the twentieth century is only the continuation of what took place during the whole nineteenth century. In 1800 only four per cent. of the people of the United States lived in cities, in 1900 thirty-nine per cent. did so. From 1900 to 1910 the increase in the population of the country was about twenty per cent., during the same period the population of the cities increased approximately forty per cent. It is especially the rising generation that is drawn to the cities; and without doubt the pleasures which the modern city offers are providing the drawing powers quite as much as the opportunities to acquire fame and fortune.

"In the hectic life of the city the spiritual element finds little place, yes, it is likely to be submerged altogether. Notably is this true of our pleasure-loving, amusement seeking generation. Now I would not for one moment be understood as decrying pleasure or denouncing amusement so long as they are clean, healthy and moderate. I believe with all my heart in the joy of life, but on the other hand pleasure may not be the end all and the be all of existence. We are spirit as well as body, soul as well as sense. The divinity of our humanity demands from us a life so lived that due attention be given to the culture of the highest whereof we are capable. The individual home must be the bulwark that withstands the onrushing tide of modern city life which threatens to materialize our aims, despiritualize our ideals. This is a large contract, but as far as I can see the home is the only institution which has the facilities for fulfilling this contract for all sorts and conditions of men and women. This involves the responsibility of the individual home for the members of the household.

"When the parents rise to their opportunities and make the home so attractive as to counteract the city's glamour, when in the quiet of the home the father, in his boy's adolescent years will explain the meaning of the rush of life that is bounding thru the youth's veins, when taking up the fiction of the necessity of sowing wild oats he will picture to the boy the results of his sowing and lay before him the harvest thereof in thousands of cases in ruined health and the ruined lives of wives and children, when the mother, because of the responsibilities that her motherhood lays upon her will be willing to forego her own selfish pleasures and give her self with all her heart and soul and mind to the rearing and the welfare of her children and not leave this altogether to paid hirelings, then will the home occupy the place it should in the complexities of our modern city life, namely, the chief agency in character training, without whose sympathetic co-operation, the work of church and school must fall short of the finest results."

Influence of Mechanical Player.

Providence, R. I., Feb. 16.—"The Influence of the Mechanical Player on the Home," was the topic of an address by the Rev. William A. Bartlett, D. D., of Hartford, Conn., before the Department of Religious Art and Music of the Religious Education Association today. Dr. Bartlett said:

"The mechanical piano player has opened up to the world of music lovers the works of the great masters. Many a youth has become a virtuoso in the interpretation of the most difficult and beautiful compositions of Chopin, who could hardly pick out a simple melody with one finger, but who longed for years to hear the best music. Only a few artists are able to play a wide repertory of music. But we cannot secure them to come into our homes; and even if we could, they would play only such selections as had been recently practiced. The concert or recital means considerable expense, late nights or an afternoon performance which few can attend. And then the selections played are those chosen by the performer and not the listener.

"The piano player becomes the home educator. I have taken children to hear a great performer, and as he played Walter's Prize Sonf, they turned to me smilingly and whispered "We play that at home." The children of our homes and chools study Shakespeare and other great masters of literature. They see pictures, and understand them, produced by masters of color and form. But music must be performed by toilsome processes, and we have few interpreters of the ideas expressed in tone. The mechanical player supplies this need. Even leading performers are appreciating the value of these instruments. It is no more mechanical than the pipe organ and by careful study and practice there can be an almost perfect reproduction of human touch and expression. No parent need feel anxious about the boys and girls at night when they are playing the piano with their friends around them.

"Ragtime pieces and light music will do as a diversion, but I have known young people to turn from them to Shubert, Schumann, Wagner, Mendelssohn and other great composers. Place the best before them and they will learn to love it."

ADOPTED WITHOUT CHANGE.

Were the Playing Dates of the American League at Chicago.

Chicago, Ill., Feb. 15.—Playing dates for the 1911 season of the American League as tentatively arranged in a schedule drafted by President Johnson several weeks ago were adopted without change at the meeting of the club owners and officials of the league held here today. The season will open April 12 with the Eastern clubs on Eastern fields and the Western clubs playing in the West.

Chicago will open the season at Detroit, Cleveland at St. Louis, New York at Philadelphia and Boston at Washington.

After a four-game series Chicago will go to St. Louis and Cleveland to Detroit, while the Eastern team remain idle.

Chicago landed the lion's share of Sunday games at home, leading the lits with seventeen, while St. Louis was awarded thirteen Sunday games and Detroit fifteen. The majority of holiday games will be played in the East.

Representatives from every city in the league attended the meeting and not a trade was made, although officials of the Washington and St. Louis clubs offered several deals. Announcement was made by R. L. Hedges, president of the St. Louis club, that he had secured First Baseman McAuley, former Chicago semi-professional star from the Green Bay Club, in the Wisconsin-Illinois League.

After the meeting the club owners and officials were the guests at a banquet given by President Shibe and Manager Mack of the Philadelphia club in celebration of the victory over Chicago in the world's championship series.

Recent negotiations for the purchase of the St. Louis club crept out again today when Jack Gleason of San Francisco, who, with Tex Rickard, promoted the Jeffries-Johnson fight, attempted to arrange to deal with President Hedges for the club. Hedges said, however, that the franchise was not for sale, although negotiations were pending for the purchase of the St. Louis team several weeks ago, a party of St. Louis capitalists offering $300,000 for the franchise.

Friends and acquaintances will regret to learn that Miss Lillian Bunse, aged 17, after an illness of short duration died Wednesday afternoon at 2:40 at the family home, corner Fifteenth and Broad Streets. Funeral services will be held at the family residence Friday afternoon at 4 o'clock. Miss Bunse was the daughter of Rev. C. Bunse, pastor of the Lutheran Church, and had many friends in the city. The Times joins other friends of the family in extending sincere condolence in the sad hour of separation.

Dr. C. R. Hatrtsook, formerly of Richmond, Va., has recently located in Wichita Falls and will practice his profession here. The doctor comes to this city highly recommended. He was at one time a member of the Medical Board of the State of Virginia; vice president of the State Medical Association and served the city of his former residence as Health Officer. The Times extends to him on behalf of the citizens of this city a hearty welcome and wishes him the fullest measure of success.

LANG AND LANGFORD PREPARING TO FIGHT

Twenty Round Bout Will Be Pulled Off In London Soon.

London, Feb. 16.—Billl Lang, champion heavyweight fighter of Australia and Sam Langford, the Canadian-born negro, who is now generally recognized as one of the best of the big fighters in America, have completed the work of preparation for their 20-round contest at McIntosh's Olympia Annex. No heavyweight battle since the Gunner Moir-Tommy Burns fight has aroused so much interest and enthusiasm among the London sporting fraternity. The advance saleof seats indicates that a record-breaking crowd will be at the ringside to see the two big fighters meet.

The fighter from America will enter the ring a favorite unless there is a sudden and unwarranted switching of the betting odds. Langford is no stranger on this side of the water and the ring critics well remember the ease with which he disposed of Tiger Smith, Jeff Thorne and Ian Hague, who were among the most prominent of the heavyweights that England has produced in late years.

Langford's greater ring experience is figured as one of his chief assets in his fight with the Australian. He never has suffered a knockout and has lost less than a dozen battles on referees' decisions.

In Lang the negro will meet a younger man who has made a remarkably good showing considering the time he has been in the ring. The Australian has nearly all the natural advantages over Langford. He has a longer reach, is many pounds heavier and is an inch taller than the man from America. He is said to be remarkably fast on his feet for a man of his size, but in this respect he will have no advantage over the negro. Which of the two can hit the harder is a matter of opinion, for both are known to have a stiff punch. Langford can stand a terrific beating, and Lang has showed in all his battles that it takes more than a love tap to put him down. The Australian is aggressive in a lumbering sort of way, and Langford is always after his man, so there should not be a slow moment in the fight as long as it lasts.

The American outclasses the Australian in only one thing, but that is the most essential in the ring. It is in the knowledge of the fighting game and ring generalship that Langford excels. And this excellence is expected to win him the fight. "Langford himself is as confident as can be over the result of the contest. He has trained faithfully since his arrival in England and appears to be in the best of condition for a match with Jack Johnson for the world's championship.

AMERICAN TO START 1911 SEASON, APRIL 12

Magnates Entertained by Mack and Shibe to Celebrate Victory.

Chicago, Feb. 16.—The schedule drafted several weeks ago by President Ban Johnson was adopted by the American League magnates Tuesday. The season will open April 12 with the Eastern clubs on Eastern fields and the Western clubs in the West.

After the meeting adjourned the club owners were the guests of Manager Mack and Owner Shibe of the Philadelphia Athletics in celebration of the victory over Chicago in the world's series.

Jack Gleason, who with "Tex" Rickard promoted the Jeffries-Johnson fight at Reno were in Chicago to make a deal for the St. Louis club. Hedges informed them the franchise was not for sale.

Minnsota Pedagogues.

Mankato, Minn., Feb. 16.—Three days of work and pleasure are in store for the members of the Southern Minnesota Teachers' Association, whose annual convention began in this city today. The attendance is unusually large. Among the noted educators to deliver addresses are President Hill of the University of Missouri, Professor C. F. Hodge of Clark University, and Miss Flora Cooke, principal of the Parker school in Chicago.

DESPONDENT PAIR DIE BY EACH OTHER'S SIDE

New York, Feb. 16.—Joesph Barrett, on his way up the stairs of the apartment house at 750 Fulton Street, Brooklyn, this morning stumbled against a man. Barrett struck out with his right hand.

"What are you doing here?" he said. "It's you, Bernard, is it? What are you doing here?"

"Oh, it's you, Barrett, is it?" said the man on the stairs. "I don't know what to do. I've got 50 cents between my family and starvation. What would you do?"

"I think," said Joe Barrett, "I would go to bed and look for a job in the morning. Go, that's a good fellow."

Some hours late, at getting-up time, Barrett smelled gas. For a time the odor was hard to locate. He went up a flight of stairs and made sure it came from the Bernard flat.

In the bedroom of the Bernard apartment, Mr. Barrett later found Frank Bernard, his wife and two small children dead on the bed. Gas was rushing from opened cocks in the ceiling chandelier.

It seemed that Mr. and Mrs. Bernard had agreed to die together and take their children with them. There was no indication of a struggle. The father and mother lay clasped in each other's arms with the children, George, 4 years old, and Daniel 2 year old, in their arms.

Frank Bernard was a well-known athletic trainer. He was a member of the old Union Athletic Club, and was known all over the country as an amateur athlete.

He was the athletic trainer of the Twenty-Third Regiment for ten years, and then became instructor at the Polytechnic Institute and at the Pratt Institute. Afterwards he went to Hamilton College for a short time as director of athletics.

He lost his place last August and was unable, the police learned, to obtain another.

Last week Bernard was ill with the grip, but he left his bed to look for a job. He could not find anything to do, and this, the police believe, is responsible for the death of himself and wife and children. A bank book found in the room showed that since last August Bernard had been draining his account at the People's Trust Company.

SUNFLOWER PHILOSOPHY.

When it comes to hindering work, the hookworm isn't any worse than love.

Occasionaly a man has some trouble sticking to his friends when he needs them most.

What has become of the old-fashioned man who used the lapel of his coat for a pin cushion?

Nearly every man 40 years old thinks he looks younger than the fellows he grew up with.

The funny paper in the barber shop doesn't overcome the grouch a man develops because he has to wait to read it.

People may not take you very seriously, but at that you probably make a more lasting impression than mother's threats do on the children.

A Sermon on Advertising

The Rev. Dr. Frank Crane contributed to the Chicago Evening Post a most scholarly and philosophical analysis of the Chapman-Alexander revival. There was not a line in Dr. Crane's article which was not valuable to the one who read it. The particular paragraphs which we marked for comment were these:

"He aims at the Religious Feeling. But there is nothing wild or theoretic nor haphazard about his aim. He goes at it as a man goes about running for office. He knows every element that enters into the matter. He profits from the evangelistic experiments of a hundred and fifty years. He makes no mistakes. Every move, every word, every detail is calculated.

Before he comes to town the affair must be carefully planned. All the churches of the evangelistic order are enlisted. Committees are appointed. Finances are concisely figured. There are captains of tens and of fifties. The battle host is a disciplined army, not a mob.

Advertising is liberally provided for. Signs and banners are painted. The newspapers are enlisted. There is not an advertising agency in Chicago or elsewhere that could not learn something from J. Wilbur Chapman."

Further along in his article, Dr. Crane says of Rev. Mr. Chapman: "He organizes his meetings as a gigantic piece of machinery, all adjusted to bear upon one point, the Will, as influenced by the Religious Feeling."

Now let your eyes go back and re-read the paragraphs we quoted first, and when you come to the line: "There is not an advertising agency in Chicago or elsewhere that can not learn something from J. Wilbur Chapman," you, with us, will say, "Amen."

The thought that came to us, moreover, is that there is not an advertiser who can not profit by the study of ways and means of this wonderful revival. The marshaling of the forces, the awakening of public interest, the attracting of crowds and the convincing of the hearers—all this wonderfully complete system is recognizing human nature and its wants and needs and then appealing to men from those vantage points—all this is, if we may be permitted to say so, the highest type of advertising. It is the science of advertising put upon the noblest plane. It is not only advertising happiness in the life to come, but advertising peace and content in this, is it not?

So! Well, then, let us agree with you that there is a difference between business and religion. All right. But there isn't any difference in the right way of convincing a man of the merits of goods and the right way of convincing him of the merits of right living. Chapman knows humanity, because he has studied it on the spiritual side and not on the financial side. He knows that when you appeal to a man's reason, to his impulse, to his hope, you are going a long ways toward convincing him.

He knows, also, that the mere appeal isn't enough. There must be concerted effort, organized work. A comulative influence must be exerted—so that one man tells another and the other tells another, and so on till there is a wave of interest.

One word more, Mr. Advertiser. Chapman believes in what he advertises. There is nothing so contagious as belief. Enthusiasm is catching, but enthusiasm wilts. Curiosity may be aroused, but curiosity is fickle. Belief grows.

So this is our little sermon on advertising, using the Chapman revival as a text: Study the field, deploy your forces, be ready to care for the inquiries, be sure you satisfy the inquiries, be prepared to meet the bills, instruct your lieutenants, be ready when you begin—and show by every word and action that you believe in your campaign. And, first, last, and all the time, believe, for belief makes believers.

GOULD'S FIANCE NOT OF ROYAL BLOOD

However, Miss Graham Stands High in New York Social Circles.

New York, Feb. 16.—With the expected confirmation today of the engagement of young Jay Gould, and Miss Annie Douglass Graham public interest in the bride-elect has greatly increased. Though Miss Graham enjoys an exceptionally high position in society both in this country and abroad she is little known to the public at large, probably because she has never gone in for athletics or indulged in other pastimes that would bring her into the limelight.

The report that Miss Graham is the last of a royal line, which once held the reins of government in Hawaii is erroneous. Neither was she born in the islands. She is the only daughter of the late Douglas Graham, a man of social and business prominence in New York, and she was born in this city. The rumor of her royal connections possibly originated in the fact that her mother was a Miss Coney of Hawaii. Mr. Graham married Miss Coney in the islands, but after a brief stay there came to New York. Following the death of her husband Mrs. Graham was married to Hubert Vos, the well known portrait painter. Miss Graham was educated in a convent in Uaris. Following her graduation she traveled with her parents over a large part of Europe and subsequently visited the Hawaiian Islands. It was soon after her return from this trip that Miss Graham first met Jay Gould.

Germany has a bullet that glows while hurtling through the air. If we can't have universal peace we might arrange so that an enemy be given his choice of being shot with a dum-dum, soft-nose, noiseless or singing bullet or an illuminated one carrying fireworks.

ALL THE WRITING ALWAYS IN SIGHT
(The biggest order ever placed by any firm or corporation for typewriters for their own use) because their own mechanical experts, sitting as a jury, said it was unquestionably the best.
They examined all competing makes, tested them under every condition of stress and strain, and voted unanimously in favor of the L. C. Smith & Bros. The DuPonts thus rendered you an invaluable service. Lacking mechanical experts of your own you can safely rely upon the decision of these five engineers, at the height of their calling, who were willing to stake their professional reputation on the L. C. Smith & Bros. Typewriter.
Many large concerns have already been guided by this expert opinion and have standardized, as the DuPonts did, with their typewriter that stood the test. There could be no test more thorough, or more unbaised decisions.

Whether seriously sick, or simply ailing, take Cardui, the woman's tonic. As a general tonic for women, to improve the appetite and build up the constitution, Cardui is in a class by itself. Those who have used it say it does the work; it relieves, it cures. Try it. Your druggist has it.

testified that Hard's appearance and acts immediately following his arrest indicated that he was sober and not intoxicated.

Afternoon Session.

The State unexpectedly brought its case to a close on the resumption of the court after the noon recess, without introducing any expert testimony in an effort to contradict the evidence of Dr. Darnell, who testified for the defense yesterday.

The defense then put Mrs. Harry Brown back upon the stand and she testified that she did not see B. D. Donnell in her house following the killing.

The defense then announced that they had closed.

At 2:30 o'clock this afternoon Attorney Dan Boone is speaking for the State. District Attorney Spencer and Attorney Harry Mason will also speak for the State, while Attorneys Taylor and Walker will present arguments in behalf of the defense. It is expected that the case will go to the jury tonight, and the outcome depends almost entirely on the jury's consideration of the testimony as to Hard's insanity.

No arrangement has yet been made for Hard's trial for the killing of Harry Brown and it is probable that he will not be placed on trial in this case until a verdict is rendered in the Staley case.

IT HAPPENED

Once that a prosperous looking speciman of the human race who had on everything carried by the best gents furnishers in town, and a shiner in his happy shirt front that looked like an arc light on the dark of the moon blew into a pill plant and asked the editor of the phiz department for a Coca Cola poured it into his gills and said charge it. As soon as the tired foam builder got time he charged it. Next day it was passed along to the slave who kept the books and was posted to the ledger. The first of the next month the slave took it from the ledger to an itemized statement and it was handed to the collector, who went to see he of the glad rags and the thirst for foam, but he was out. Three days later he called on him again and he said he'd be around. A week later the collector showed up again and he got as mad as a hen in a bath tub and paid the bill. The collector lugged the coin back to the store and the book-keeper gave him credit. Everything at our fountain will be cash after March the first.
