City Students To District League Meet

Wellington students who will participate in the district interscholastic league events at Shamrock Saturday were named this week in both literary and athletic events.

More emphasis is being put on the literary division this year than at any time in recent years, Howard Oliphint, high school principal, pointed out. These stress the fundamentals such as math, spelling, and both spoken and written English.

Athletic events have always been popular here, and contenders in these events will give those from other schools keen competition.

Schools competing will be Shamrock, Wellington, Canadian, McLean, Clarendon, Lefors, Childress and Memphis.

"I have lived among you all my life and count you my friends. Between now and the first primary election, I hope to see every voter and talk over with you my candidacy for the office of county treasurer.

"Since I must make a living for myself and my family, I want to say that if I fail to see any of you, please consider this as a solicitation for your vote and support."

I have no campaign promises to make. I will try to see each of you before the Primary Election. Should I not see you individually, I take this means of soliciting your vote.

Hunter, District Health & Safety Chairman, announced this week.

The Explorers will compete, in teams of five men, for the first, second, and third places — such status to make them the Southern District's representatives at the Adobe Walls Council Meet to be held in Pampa, April 18. At the Council Meet prizes of equipment will be given to the winning teams.

"The Explorer First Aid meet is the first of its kind to be held in the Southern District, and is an activity promoted by the District Health and Safety Committee to help train Scouts and Explorers to help others in time of emergency," Dr. Hunter said. "We have an excellent group of men working with our committee in promoting and operating this event. Ed Poole is serving as physical arrangements chairman, and we have ten judges—Dr. E. K. Jones, Dr. C. B. Jones, Dr. D. V. Watkins, Bura Handley, Bill McDonald, Russell Yates, Riley Dunson, Herman Moseley of Quail, Hiram Cudd, and Coach Maxey McKnight, who will take on the responsibility of making the decisions as to the proficiency of the Explorer in First Aid," Dr. Hunter added.

The public is invited to attend and observe this event, but will be asked to be seated in the balcony of the Community Building, as only the competing Explorers, and the officials of the meet will be allowed on the main floor.

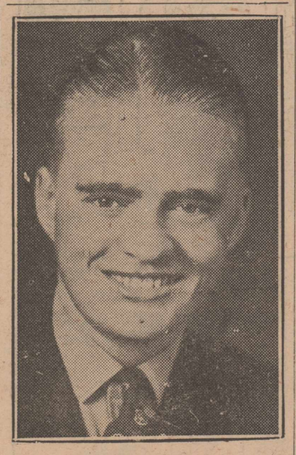

Wischkaemper to Key Post on Abilene Paper

Ed N. Wischkaemper, who grew up at Dozier, has been appointed assistant managing editor of The Abilene Reporter-News, it was announced recently by Publisher Howard McMahon. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. A. F. Wischkaemper Sr. of that community.

Wischkaemper joined the editorial staff of the Abilene paper in 1936 and has served as news editor since 1946. He will continue to handle the duties of that post in addition to assuming added managerial responsibilities under the direction of Hal Syles managing editor.

While still attending McMurry College, from which he was graduated in August of 1938, Wischkaemper worked on the night staff of the Reporter-News as a reporter.

He became night telegraph editor in 1938, a position he held at the time he volunteered for Navy service in 1941. He started as a yeoman second class and was discharged in September 1945 as a chief specialist. Most of his service was in the Seventh Naval District in Florida, where he served in public relations.

After his discharge he returned to The Reporter-News, working on the city desk. In January of 1946, he was made news editor.

Damage to Peach Crop Estimated At 85 Per Cent

The county's fruit growers suffered heavy loss in the week end freezing weather, County Agent J. W. Thomas, said this week, estimating that at least 85 per cent of the peach, apricot and plum crops may have been killed. but some of the closed buds are still alive," Mr. Thomas said Monday after inspecting a number of orchards over the county. He added, however, that the full extent of the loss could not be known until after there had been more sunshine on the buds.

It is believed the loss will pass the $30,000 mark.

Cherries, grapes, berries, pears and apples were not far enough along to be damaged.

Lubbock Family Contributes to Red Cross Drive

A Lubbock family this week remembered Collingsworth county's Red Cross Drive, and in a letter to The Wellington Leader wrote,

Dear Deck: Renew our subscription to The Leader, and will you please apply the balance of the $5.00 to the Red Cross in Collingsworth County. We shall never forget how nice the Red Cross people treated us while we lived in Wellington.

Mail Delivery Awaits Equipment

All qualifications for free city delivery have been met on the part of residents of the delivery area, and the post office is now awaiting delivery of four pieces of equipment before the service can begin, R. F. Curry, postmaster, said.

These are the three collection boxes, to be placed at points over town, and the distributing case for the post office. All are now on order.

Mr. Curry also requested those who plan to have their mail delivered to notify the post office of their street addresses and to notify friends with whom they may correspond, as well as the circulation departments of any magazines to which they may subscribe. About a month is generally required to get the mailing address on a magazine change, he reminded.

Red Cross Asked to Aid In Disaster Fnnd Work

An added appeal for Red Cross funds reached the Collingsworth County chapter this week as a result of the tornado which swept through Arkansas late last week, as workers here were already seeking to raise the regular roll call quota.

Collingsworth's share of this disaster call is $230, and it is being added to the $2500 roll call fund being raised, R. D. Wiley, county chairman said.

The county is still far short of its quota, according to C. T. Roberts, roll call chairman. Wednesday morning, only $1515 had been reported to Mrs. Dora Ryan, treasurer.

With the closing date of the drive less than a week away, workers were renewing their efforts to contact all persons in their districts, urging them to give, for the need at present is greater than at any time since the end of the war.

Workers who have not completed their work were urged to do so by the end of March.

Since it is impossible that every person be contacted, anyone who is missed is requested to leave his contribution with Mrs. Ryan in the county treasurer's office, or with Miss Katherine Boverie, home service chairman, in the county library.

"A number of people are making second contributions to the drive since the Arkansas tornado occurred," Miss Boverie said," and others say that they are giving more than they had previously planned to give. This great disaster ,the worst tornado in a decade, has placed upon the Red Cross an added burden of at least $5,000,000 for meeting human needs. Red Cross reserves have been depleted, so great have been the calls on it during the past year, and it is necessary to go to the public for this money, not as a separate appeal, but one to be combined with our annual compaign."

To meet this great emergency, thousands of chapter volunteers have been on duty in Arkansas. The national organization dispatched trained workers including doctors and nurses to the striken area. Food, clothing, shelter are being delivered by plane. Cots, blankets, emergency power generators, and water purifiers are a part of the Red Cross equipment rused to the stricken communities.

This same wholeherted and prompt response is the same that it would be in any are so hit by disaster, local Red Cross officials point out.

Five in Race

Name 3 Aldermen In Election Tuesday

Wellington voters will elect three aldermen in the municipal election Tuesday, April 1, from a slate of five candidates seeking the places.

Names appearing on the ballot are W. E. Brewster, Lester Hunter, Jones Singley, Claude Nelson and Luther Sullivan.

None of the present aldermen were candidates for re-election: Cecil Ieggitt, J. T. Slay and O. B. Raburn.

The election will be held in the city hall and the polls will be open between the hours of 7:00 a.m. and 7:00 p.m.

Election judges will be Grady Graham, Mrs. Mary Stall and Mrs. Ola Wall.

A larger than usual vote is anticipated in this election, which most years brings out less than a hundred voters.

Cemetery Association Opens Annual Drive

The annual fund-raising campaign of the Wellington Cemetery Association was launched at the second annual meeting of that group Tuesday night, March 18.

A goal of $4,000 has been set to operate the association and make planned improvements on the two Wellington cemetery plots, Zook Thomas, president of the association, said.

The Rotary Club, Kiwanis Club and Business and Professional Women's Club is co-operating with the cemetery Association and is conducting the fund drive on the square and among business houses on other streets. Other workers will be named to work in the residential section.

Cemeteries, as well as parks and schools and public buildings, show a town's civic pride to strangers, and it is the obligaton of the residents of any community to see that they are well kept, Judge Luther Gribble, speaker of the evening, told the Association.

During the business session, plans for the coming year were announced to include evergreen hedges around both cemeteries and work to be done on the main entrance of the west cemetery.

During recent months, bulldozer work has been done on the southeast corner of the west cemetery, and grass and shrubs will be planted there, since it is not suitable for burial plots. The broken ground on the west side has been filled in so that it can be used for graves later on when the ground settles.

The attention of the group was also called to the assistance given the association by the city by T. W. Devenport, whose land adjoins the cemetery. The city has loaned it's equipment a number of times during the year, Mr. Thomas said, and has co-operated in everything. that the association has requested. Mr. Davenport has given permission for dirt from his land to be used in the bulldozer work, and for the fence on the east side of the cemetery to be set back on his land so that the hedge may be planted.

CAP Squadron Reviews Achievements As First Anniversary Observed

Wellington's Civil Air Patrol Squadron was one-year-old this past week.

On March 19, 1951, the local squadron was activated by the Texas Wing. Members of the Collingsworth County Flying Club formed the nucleus of the group and on January 19, 1951, twenty-five flying club members had met and unanimously voted to apply for admission as a unit to Texas Wing, CAP.

Bill Hughes was appointed acting commanding officer by the group for a period of ninety days, and he was later approved as the permanent commanding officer by the membership of the squadron. Following this vote of approval, Texas Wing bestowed the rank of captain upon him and later promoted him to major.

Wellington's squadron was organized for the purpose of helping with civilian defense in case of a national emergency or a natural disaster.

As part of the Civil Air Patrol, the official civilian auxiliary of the United States air Force, the local squadron can not be commanded to do anything, but it can be asked to help. This request for voluntary help comes frequently in the search for lost persons or planes or crashed planes.

The Civil Air Patrol Defense itself was founded December 1, 1941, to mobilize civil airmen of the country and their planes and ment for wartime duties. Later, a cadet program was founded. A national commander, appointed by the Chief of Staff of the U. S. A. F., with a staff civilian and Air Force officers, directs the activities of the Civil Air Patrol. Each state or territory is a Wing with the Wing Commander directing CAP activities. In turn, wings squadrons.

During this year, the Wellington Squadron set up an authorized Red Cross first aid course taught under the direction of Riley Dunson and Dr. Tom Hunter. Squadron members remodeled and painted the building at Marian Airpark, and it became headquarters for the group.

Air and ground crops participated in several search and rescue practice problems, and pilots and observers took part in the two actual missions. The group also sponsored a flight barbecue.

Co-operating with the school for cadets and other interested students. Book for every course were furnished by the squadron membership. Also five cadets, Wayne Hennard, Bobby Jack Watson, Warner Moore, Donald Green and Raymond Bradshaw, were sent to the summer encampment for cadets at Goodfellow Air Base, by the squadron.

EDITORIAL COMMENT — THE WELLINGTON LEADER

Hiding a Scared Cow

Among all the little sub-budgets which go into making the big national budget, the money requests of the armed services have held a comfortable position. While Congress has pared appropriations for other departments, the armed service requests have been relatively immune.

It has taken real courage for an individual Congressman or a group of Congressmen to flash a warning to the military and say:

"That's too much. You're asking too much money for this. Couldn't you save some money by doing that . . . ?"

This feeling has come from the universal recognition for maintaining an adequate defense system. In time, the military budget has become a "sacred cow," which none but the brave tamper with.

No lawmakers wants to be accused of stinting with "the boys over there."

Particularly have the military budgets been unopposed in times of war. It has been customary for Congress to provide the full amount of funds sought by the military leaders, and with few questions asked.

"Come and get it, boys!"

The Council of State Chambers of Commerce says there are three reasons for this change:

1. Taxes Have Reached the point where it is politically, if not economically, dangerous to increase them further. This makes it necessary to subject all federal spending to critical review.

2. Military Spending at present levels raises a serious inflationary threat unless it can be controlled.

3. Postwar Dsclosures of fantastic military bungling and waste which characterized World II are still fresh in the minds of American people.

We would like to elaborate on point 3.

To us, the increase scrutiny into military spending stems from the fact that the many millions of our citizens have seen military service in the past decade. And they have seen waste first-hand and on a scale as no other generation in history has viewed military extravagance.

It's true the average Doggie was in no position to see the top rake-off—the cutbacks, the padded contracts, the swindles, the cheating and falsifying in the big money league.

But the average service man saw food wasted when millions were starving; saw gasoline, and munitions, and all the material of war put to unproductive use. They sailed away from the Pacific islands with stories of new trucks being pushed into the ocean, and new planes being dropped, still crated into the deep blue sea.

Almost every soldier, sailor and marine who returned from the war had his favorite yarn of what he saw—and what he heard—in the waste department. We'll admit some of that heard, by scuttle-butt and latrine rumor, probably was exaggerated. But the basic facts of waste can't be disputed.

It has been easy to blame the high-ranking officers—the brass — for this waste and extravagance. But their's is not the blame alone. The lads who were just carefree boys a decade ago are now finding themselves solid taxpayers.

Some of the GI's and the swabbie's—who were so free with Uncle Sam's military sustenence—now are on the other end of the stick. They are helping pay for some of the items they so lightheartedly frittered away.

The shoe is on the other foot. And the solid taxpayer with military experience wants to be certain that the same sort of shenanigans in which he himself participated are not repeated.

Most of us are glad the 82nd Congress —while providing liberally for the needs of the military — established four "watchdog" sub-committees to keep check on expenditures. Our own Senator Johnson has gained a popular niche as chairman of one of the watchdog subcommittees, the Preparedness Sub-committee of the Senate Armed Services Committee.

For most taxpayers, it's good to see the watchdog take a little hide out of the sacred cow now and then—Amarillo News.

OTHER EDITORS SAY:—

Eisenhower Can Win

In Minnesoto, Dwight Eisenhower did not lead the Republican primary vote. But what happened in the Gopher State is much more significant in the general's favor than the results in New Hampshire where he did lead. In the latter state, the general was a ballot candidate. In Minnesoto, only Stassen's name was printed on the ticket. Every Republican who voted for Eisenhower had to write in his name, including one populous county where machines are used to vote. The ruling that write-in votes are legal was made only four days before the election, so that practically everything done for Eisenhower's candidacy had to be done in that period. Yet Eisenhower was given 39 per cent against Stassen's 42 per cent in a primary GOP vote that may finally total 200,000. In addition, Stassen is anti-Taft and almost certainly will be pro-Eisenhower in a showdown.

True, the Minnesota vote has no significance in the all-important battle for nominating delegates. But it has a powerful bearing on what is public sentiment. The close result indicates that had Eisenhower's name been printed on the ballot, he would almost certainly have led Stassen.

Time and again The News is asked: "Why do you contend that Eisenhower can win and Taft can not?" The opinion of The News is based on the sentiment of the South in general and of Texas in particular where the non-partisan general has a very good chance to defeat anybody but the best candidates on the Democratic ticket. There is no indication that Senator Taft can defeat even a weak Democratic candidate. The results in New Hampshire, extreme northeast, and in Minnesota, north mid-continent, surely record the tide of popular opinion.

Yet in our tragic political system, it is quite possible that the deluded GOP will do its nominating at the behest of the uninspired regular party political machines that have sent it to defeat in five successive presidental elections—The Dallas News.

The Buck Creek Philosopher

Editor's note. The Buck Creek Philosopher on his Johnson grass farm on Buck Creek is still hunting for the lazy way out, his letter this week reveals.

Dear editar:

As you know, for years I've been in the lead in agitatin for easier ways of farmin and ranchin, contendin that the experts have been working on the wrong end of the problem, been tryin to get me to change my ways instead of the plants and the cows changin theirs.

Well, I am happy to learn that some of the experts are finally comin around to my view point.

I read last night in a magazine I picked up in the dentist's office earlier in the day and will return if my tooth starts hurtin again where a scientist in Indiana is workin on a new way to raise corn, and if it will work on corn it ought to work on other things.

Under his system, he doesn't break his land, doesn't cultivate, doesn't plow at all. Only thing he does is scratch a little furrow out and drop the corn in, and then depends on the corn to out-grow the weeds. Under the present system, weeds shade out the corn if you leave them alone, which requires plowin and choppin, but under his system the corn shades out the weeds.

Now we're gettin somewhere. It's what I've been lookin for all my life, and as soon as he gets around to findin out how you can do the same with all other crops, he can have my vote for President.

However, I am generally a few jumps ahead of even the experts, and those birds don't want to quit with a plant that can whip weeds and grow without cultivation. There's still the problem of gettin the seed in the ground.

What agriculture needs above everything else, outside of a guaranteed price, a guaranteed amount of rain, and free insurance against insects and hail, is a plant that will re-seed itself every year, or maybe a perennial variety of corn, cotton, wheat, rice, maize, etc. A corn stalk or a cotton stalk or a wheat stalk or a rice stalk that stays in place year after year, producin three or four ears or eight or ten bolls or big heads each fall, then goin dormant, comin to life again in the spring, etc., like a pecan tree, is the next step for me in agriculture. The trouble with farmin is you ain't no more than through with a crop when you have to start over again on next year's.

They talk about a stabilized agriculture but agriculture won't be stabilized for me until a man can plant his farm in his youth and harvest crops every fall from then on out from the original plants.

Bible Comment
FOR MARCH 30

Palestine Remains a Land of Contrasts

Palestine, homeland of the Bible, is still a land of great beauty, idyllic happiness, and somber terrible tragedy.

Its soil, rich with the beauty of field flowers, massive cedars and glimmering olive groves, has been drenched with the blood of centuries of cruel persecution and warfare.

All the beauty, tenderness, and goodness of that land, with all the tragedy of hate and violence, were comprised in the brief earthly life of Jesus of Nazareth.

In his life and teaching were comprised all the faith and hope, and goodness that the prophets, saints and heroes of Israel had personified.

And against him became concentrated all the hatred and persecution which had made martyrs of Israel's holiest and best.

The law of vicarious sacrifice, of suffering and of giving life for others was written deeply into the history and religion of Israel.

Among Biblical scholars there has been much controversy as to how directly and in what way the 53rd chapter of Isaiah, with its portrayal of the Suffering Servant, referred to Jesus.

What can be certain is that the writer had a prophetic vision of the Man of Nazareth, about to suffer centuries later, or some more immediate saint, in himself a prophet and a type of the One who was to come.

The writer must also have realized that glory would long be a part of Israel's turbulent history.

Comets in the early days were thought to signify the wrath of heaven.

Looking Ahead With George S. Benson

BIG SPENDING — SO WHAT?

On the front page of my daily newspaper there appears a dispatch headed: "Total Tax Load of Arkansas Citizens is $372,000,000." On Page 3 there is another dispatch, this one from Washington, D. C. It is headed: "Auditor Figures $50,000,000 Wasted at North African Base." And elsewhere in the paper there is a small item saying the President will demand Congressional approval of his full $85,000,000,000 budget for the 1952-1953 fiscal year.

Many of my acquaintances are disturbed over such news reports, but one man with whom I discussed them shrugged, and said: "Well, so what? We never had it better in this country." He had only casually glanced at the headlines. He hadn't read the substance of the dispatches. His attitude reminded me of three questions asked by a Harding College student one evening last week during a discussion group session on the dangers of big government.

DANGEROUS COMPLACENCY

The student asked: "Aren't most people slow to recognize any danger so long as they are doing okay themselves? And aren't most Americans doing all right today with so much money in circulation?" Heads around the discussion table nodded "Yes." "Well, then," the young realist asked, "how can we expect these people to get excited about big spending corrupt government, etc.?" The conclusion reached at the discussion seemed to be "We can't — unless the complacent people can somehow be persuaded to look beyond the headlines and view the full implications of what's happening.

If my acquaintance who said, "So what?" had been interested enough to read beyond the headlines he would have found that 683,000 Arkansas people now are receiving direct benefits from the expenditure of public funds — one third of the state's population! Some of these 683,000 government handouts are small — no more than 20-25 cents a day — but the disturbing fact is that, in a time of record amounts of money in circulation, and with fullest employment, the number thus receiving some form of public welfare benefits is constantly growing and no one has even the faintest idea that any of the categories of benefits will be eliminated. What else could you call this but a swing toward the Welfare State?

PATTERN OF CORRUPTION

Far down under the headline reporting $50,000,000 wasted by the U. S. government in North Africa were the sordid details — instances of failure to require competitive bids on purchases, resulting in higher costs; overcharges ranging to 110 per cent and involving "collision;" "kickbacks" on purchases of supplies; payments of "commissions;" "conspiracy" to boost prices; lack of control over workers; excessive drinking, loafing and sleeping by employees; gifts of wine, gin and jewelry as bribes for fraudulent record keeping.

This is the pattern of graft and corruption that has become all too common in a number of Fereral agencies. The wasting of $50,000,000 in tax money may not seem to be of any consequence to the man who says, "So what!" But it is. Unless those involved in the corruption and graft are subjected to the penalties of the laws the incident will breed additional corruption and further undermine the moral foundations of our nation. Can anyone say "So what!" to that?

THE DREAM-STATE

There are vitally important facts also behind the news item reporting the President's determination to enact his $85 billion budget. Taxes to cover this one-year Federal spending would amount to $560 for every man, woman and child in America, or $2,240 for a family of four. In addition the $260 billion debt breaks down to an average indebtedness of $7,000 on each family. And the billions which citizens have been paying into the social security fund for years have been spent; the money's all gone, down the drain of big spending in government.

How can any thoughtful person say, "So what!" to these facts? "We never had it better!" This phrase, when used to describe our present situation in America, reminds me of the opium smoker I once saw lying in a den in Nanking, China. He raised himself on one elbow and said to me with high animation in his voice: "I have just had dinner with the President! At the Palace!" Complacency can be like a dreamstate. Americans must be awakened to the realities of the grave situation developing within our own country. The welfare and happiness of every individual is at stake.

News of Men in Service

Undergoing recruit training at the U. S. Naval Training Center, San Diego, Calif., is Bobby T. Thomas, seaman recruit, USN, son of Mr. and Mrs. George Thomas of Box 86, Quail, Texas.

Thomas entered the Naval service on Feb. 11, 1952. Before entering the Navy, he worked for the Paymaster Gin Co. This initial training includes instruction in such fields as seamanship, firefighting, gunnery, signaling, and other courses designed to make the recruit well-versed in every phase of Navy life.

Upon completion of their 11-week training period at the training center, graduates are assigned to duty stations with the Fleet or at Navy shore stations, or are sent to service schools for advanced technical training.

Cpl. Lowell L. Sewell, formerly of Samnorwood, is at Fort Hood to prepare logistical support for Exercise Long Horn, the largest maneuver in the country since World War II.

Sewell, a member of the headquarters and service company with the 61st Engineer Construction Battalion, is assigned as company clerk.

More than 150,000 soldiers are involved in the operation, now under way at Fort Hood, and in the ranching area around Temple, Lometa and Lampasas.

Sewell graduated from Samnorwood high school, attended Texas A&M College, Texas Tech and West Texas State College, where he received his degree. He was teaching math and science at Dumas when he entered the Army in September 1950.

His parents, Mr. and Mrs. Haskell B. Sewell, now live at 3806 Northeast Twentieth, Amarillo.

Douglas Bevers, RN, who was recalled to Navy Service last year, is now stationed at San Francisco, training Korean Navy men in the use of certain type US ships. He will be there until June, when he expects to be sent to Washington, D. C. for additional training.

Bevers, the son of Mr. and Mrs. John Bevers, has made his home in Philadelphia since the close of World War II. His wife and child are remaining there while he is on Navy duty.

Cpl. Joe Simmons is home on leave visiting his mother and family, Mrs. Myrtle Simmons. He has been stationed near Straubing, Germany for 3 years.

Librarians to Pampa Workshop

Miss Katherine Boverie, county librarian, and Mrs. John Justice, Wellington high school librarian, were in Pampa Friday to attend the library workshop under the auspices of District 1 of the Texas Library Association.

One of the highlights of the meeting was the luncheon address by Dr. J. B. Roberts, head of the department of Education at West Texas State College.

Pointing out that librarians and teachers are largely responsible for establishing in children the love of books, he urged instilling the library habit in youngsters in the primary grades.

"We have an oversupply of teachers in public school who limit their teaching to the textbook, who do little to stimulate intellectual curiosity among pupils and who fail utterly to teach them to do research," he continued.

SALT FORK NEWS

By MRS. R. H. ISBELL

Well, we had a week of dry west Texas showers. Spring didn't last very long, but was good while it did last. Maybe Easter it will not be quite as cold.

We just had twenty-eight at Church Sunday. Several were absent because of the cold weather, and others because of the birthday dinner in the Gollihugh home. Our speaker Sunday was James Glasscock of Wellington. We enjoyed his speech and invite he and his friends back again. Jimmy Leggitt, Phil Handley, and Edward Bawcom came with James.

Bill Clifton sold his cows last week to Mr. Hiett of Independence, Oklahoma. He had been pasturing them on the Wright and Isbell land.

C. A. Wright has been helping R. H. Isbell rebuild the cellar on the Mrs. G. C. Wright farm this week.

Mr. and Mrs. Tom Bolton, Jack and Ann, visited Mr. and Mrs. C. A. Wright and family Friday night. The Boltons live at Dill, Oklahoma. Mrs. Maxwell went home with them for a visit.

Gene Bolton and Cliffa Langford also visited in the Wright home awhile Friday night.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter Sweeden were recent visitors at her parents, the Morrows. They were driving a new car.

Mr. and Mrs. Bill Clifton went to Alanreed on business one day last week. They also visited Mrs. Tacker in Wheeler and the Killingsworth near Wheeler.

Patsy Aaron, daughter of Mrs. Clyde Emmert, has been sick with pneumonia. We hope she is able to be back in school.

Mr. and Mrs. Wayne Cummings are moving to Pampa. They had planned to move last Saturday, but it was too cold.

Mr. and Mrs. C. S. Needham are home again from Amarillo.

Mr. and Mrs. Dee Harris spent the week end with the Gollihugh family. They returned home Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. Duard Harris to Lelia Lake.

Mr. and Mrs. Richard Peters, Jimmy and Linda, were dinner guests of his parents near Wellington Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Ward attended church here Sunday.

Mrs. Wischkaemper and Carl are having an electric pump installed. They have good soft water piped in their house now.

Mr. and Mrs. G. C. Isbell and Billy and R. H. Isbell visited Mr. and Mrs. Bill Clifton awhile Sunday night.

FUTURE FARMERS OF AMERICA

Samnorwood Future Farmer Of the Week

Billy Alexander

(Editor's Note: To recognize the work of outstanding Future Farmers of the Samnorwood chapter, members are selecting the Future Farmer of the Week. First to be chosen is Billy Ray Alexander. This series will continue through the coming weeks.)

Our selection of the first Future Farmer of the Week is the versatile Billy Ray Alexander. His high school days have been marked by many outstanding accomplishments. His project program started several years ago when he was given a Hereford heifer. He has worked for his Father on the home farm in exchange for the feed for his animals. From the produce of these animals he has kept the best heifer calves and sold the steers. shown in the Collingsworth County Project Show and have placed very favorably. At the present time he has 9 cows in reduction and 5 yearling heifers. This has been a good start in the ranching business.

In addition to carrying out his project program, he has found time to contribute his efforts to many other activities. He is president of the Samnorwood F. F. A. chapter, president of the Senior class, treasurer of the Area I F. F. A. organization, and has been a key figure on the Samnorwood basketball team. As a basketball team member he was on the all-tournament team at Canadian and Perryton and made all-district and all-regional teams. Last year he received the Lone Star Farmer Degree, which is the highest degree awarded by the Texas Association of the F. F. A.

At present Billy Ray's plans for the future are incomplete but he feels pretty sure that September will find him enrolled in a college majoring in physical education or agriculture.

THE FACE IS FAMILIAR—It might take a while for GI's stationed at Panmunjom, Korea to get used to seeing the spitting image of Joe Stalin walking around the UN truce team camp, but Sgt. David J. Thomas feels there's little he can do about it. He's growing accustomed to the suspicious glance and pointing finger.

Shortage of Fertilizer Due

COLLEGE STATION — The slow movement of fertilizers from manufacturing, mixing and storage plants to farms is developing into a serious situation. Word has been received from the National Fertilizer Association calling farmers' attention to this situation that threatens to curtail the industry's ability to deliver the tonnage of fertilizers that will be needed to produce the 1952 crops.

Right now fertilizer factory storage space is being taxed and is resulting in a curtailment of maximum production. Transportation problems may further complicate the situation when the heavy buying season hits. Even though no actual shortage of fertilizers may exist, farmers may not be able to get the kinds nor amounts they will need.

Fertilizers can be successfully stored on the farm, says M. K. Thornton, agricultural chemist for the Texas Agricultural Extension Service. Most any shed on the farm can be used for storage provided the roof does not leak and the fertilizer is stacked so that air can circulate around the bags, says the specialist.

Taking delivery now will help clear up the plant storage problem; ease the transportation situation and at the same time will permit farmers and others to get the kind and amounts of fertilizers needed to produce the 1952 crops.

We Are Ready to Do The State Inspection On Your Car or Truck

And if you are the average motorist there are probably some questions in your mind concerning this inspection. Here are your answers as we see them.

First, it is safe to say that the inspection is not nearly as severe as most people think it is. The items to to be checked are the ones that will save YOUR life. And probably 80% of the motorists keep these items in good condition even without an inspection. If you are worried about the inspection from the standpoint of it being too sever, come by and let us show you the check list.

Next, there is an idea prevalent that this inspection will be cancelled before the inspection date runs out. This can be done only by a special session of the legislature—and Governor Shivers says there will be no special session.

Last, the charge for the inspection is $1.00.

It is our suggestion that you have the inspection now. Not only will you avoid the rush that is inevitable for those who wait until only a short time remains before the deadline, but you will have the satisfaction and the security of knowing you are driving a safe car.

You can be assured that the inspection you get will be accurate and honest. The state holds us responsible in making these inspections. Futhermore, our mechanics are experienced in this work and will give your car every consideration. And last, but not least, you'll like our friendly way of doing business.

Thanks, and we hope to see you soon.

DOCUMENTARY FILM ON THE ORIENT AT NORWOOD SAT. NIGHT

A religious film, "The Cry of the Orient," will be shown in an area premiere at the Samnorwood high school Saturday evening, March 29, at 7:30 p.m., the Rev. Robert Webb, pastor of the Lutie Baptist Church, announced this week.

It is a feature length documentary in sound and color, photographed and produced by the members of an international Youth for Christ team to the far east. The public is urged to attend, Rev. Webb said.

The picture is being shown here by Wayland College, Plainview, and proceeds after a small deduction is made for promoting the picture throughout the area, will go to a fund which next summer will send a group of Wayland students who will visit missions in the lands featured in the picture.

Packed with human interest the film presents a most comprehensive view of post-war Japan, with revealing sidelights of its ancient culture and religions which figured prominently in plunging the Nipponese Empire into a war that resulted in military defeat and psychological dilemma. Most intriguing is the visit to the atom-bombed city of Hiroshima and a photographic interview with the ill-fated city's most famous victim. The film pays high tribute, and credits much of the success for the democratization of the militaristic nation, to General Douglas Mac Arthur's open door policy to Christian Missionary activity.

The tropical island of Formosa, labelled "Democracy's dagger aimed at the Bamboo Curtain," comes in for its share of footage.

The customs and costumes of the peoples of India comprise a colorful backdrop in the plight of "the largest free nation in a world already over half enslaved by Communism." The analysis of Russia's designs on India in relation to the rest of the world is startling. Humor, tragedy and drama are through out.

There is no admission charge, but a free will offering will be taken.

BEE LINES

By JOHN THOMAS, Sec'y.

Collingsworth County Beekeepers Association

EARLY SPRING MANAGEMENT

All colonies should be given a quick examination as early as possible. It is not necessary to wait until bees fly freely every day. If the colonies are in two or more full-depth bodies, or if they are in one hive body with a food chamber, separate the top body and tip it back without removing the cover on top. Look closely among the combs to see if there is brood present. If there is no brood, the colony is most likely queenless. If the queen has failed and has become a drone layer, that will be shown by the predominance of drone brood.

A colony with a strong cluster of bees and a normal amount of worker brood needs little attention unless it is light in stores. This may be determined by lifting the hive at the back. If it is light in weight, the colony should be opened and the combs examined for stores of honey and pollen. If lacking in honey stores, the colony will need to be fed sugar syrup or given combs of honey. If there is little stored pollen, the colony should be fed pollen substitute or pollen supplement, especially if early spring sources are not available or weather is not satisfactory for daily flights.

Hives in which bees have died in the winter should be removed from the yard; the combs should be examined carefully for the possible presence of disease. If the combs are free of disease, the livers should be cleaned and made ready for future use. Weak or indifferent colonies may be removed from the yard to a convenient place to be managed with less expenses or disposed of later. If a queenless colony has an abundance of bees, it should either be given a new queen obtained from a southern breeder or should be given a comb containing eggs or very young brood, with the hope that the bees will raise a new queen which will mate and provide the colony with a laying queen.

Any work in early spring must be done quickly and with care, stopping if robbing becomes apparent. See that the entrances of the colonies are clean of obstructions so the bees will have free flight, and reduce all entrances so that the colonies will be able to guard against intrusion by robber bees. The bee yard should be cleaned of rubbish and trash ahead of the working season, and all hives that are out of position should be lined up and leveled. Bees have greater need for water for brood rearing in spring than any other time; if an abundance natural source is not at hand, watering places will have to be provided.

City Men Fly To Storm Area

C. E. Francis flew Roy Horn to Searcy, Arkansas, Sunday for the latter to see about his brother, Orien Horn, from whom he had not heard since cyclones levelled part of that town.

Mr. Horn reported that his brother's chicken ranch was located about two miles west of Searcy, while the tornado struck in the east part of town. The Orien Horn family was in St. Louis at the time of the disaster.

"That country looked just like the papers said it did," Mr. Horn said. "We flew over Judsonia, northeast of Searcy, and there were only a few buildings standing, and I doubt if they were whole. Trees were broken off like matches and houses and barns thrown all over the country."

The two men returned to Wellington Monday.

'BASIC' BONNET CAN TOP VARIETY OF COSTUMES

BY EDNA MILES

One Hat, Plus "Wardrobe" Of Trims Does the Trick

For spring, basic hat gets brilliant red flowers and matching band for trim. Hat is a sailor in checked black-and-white straw. With change of trim, hat will look . . .

A SPRING bonnet that's a hat wardrobe in miniature is the signature of the spring collection of Tatiana of Saks Fifth Avenue. It's a sailor in checked black-and-white straw that takes on a totally different look each time the trim is changed.

This idea, one that could be adapted for other hats already in a wardrobe, is carried out through use of a neat black velvet band for casual wear, a veil and vivid blue velvet band for afternoon, and brilliant red band and flowers for late day.

Another quick-change hat is a side-curved pillbox of gray-and-black shadow plaided organdy. This had a self-fabric bow that may be detached and worn at the neck or shoulder of a suit or dress.

Generally, this designer favors a small silhouette for spring. She likes ear-to-ear shapes, sometimes manipulated into a figure eight. Many of these small hats completely cover one ear, though others bare the ear lobe only.

There's an emphasis on trimming, some of it clever and practical, the rest of it merely pretty. Fruit is foremost. There are clusters of frosted, pale pink grapes, bunches of white chenille currants, natural-colored straw nuts and shiny black berries.

Color balances the number of hats in black-and-white. Shades of beige appear in straws, ranging from champagne to mocha. Glowing color is shaded, in one hat, from pale pink to a jewel-toned deep red. Other colors for spring are blue, purple and green.

Emphasis on Most Hats Is In the Trimming

. . . entirely different, as this picture shows. This trim is a vivid blue velvet band and matching cockade. Numerous other changes make it right from morning until dark.

Plant Shade Trees with Care

COLLEGE STATION — Comfort can be added to home grounds by planting trees for shade, suggests Sadie Hatfield, homestead improvement specialist for the Texas Agricultural Extension Service. She points out, however, that careful planning should precede planting so that there will be both convenience and attractiveness without crowding.

Miss Hatfield says when planting trees, place some for shade, while others can be used to screen barns and other outbuildings and make windbreaks.

For appearance at least two trees are needed on the front lawn or side front for framing the house. Remember to keep the front lawn smooth and unbroken. Trees with trimmed trunks will not break the contour of the lawn, says Miss Hatfield.

For a background, plant at least one large tree to show above the roof so the long hard lines will be softened. Use two, four, six, eight or even more trees in the back. If the house faces the north, the framing trees may be mimosa or others that give scant shade but are attractive. Shade is not needed on the north side of the house. If the house faces south or west, plant trees that will make heavy shade.

Plant trees close enough to the enough away so that the limbs of the trees will not scrape. Large trees should be 20 to 30 or more feet away from the building. Small trees may be 10 to 15 feet away. Again, it is important to prune the trees so that the limbs will not scrape the roof.

Trees are the most important and most permament of all plants used in the landscape. Even though they require the most room and crowd out more plants and shrubs, they more than pay for themselves in shade and beauty.

With good care, which includes watering and fertilizing, trees will grow and be a pleasure forever.

Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Taylor of Quanah and Mr. and Mrs. M. S. DeGaish of the United States Marine Corps, San Diego, Calif., and his family visited Mr. and Mrs. Mack Saied Sunday.

Waste in Defense Buying Cited

WASHINGTON — Waste in defense buying is cited by the Chamber of Commerce of the United States as evidence that the proposed $50 billion military budget can be cut. The Chamber calls for a $5 billion slash.

That sum could easily be saved, according to the Chamber, if those responsible made certain that every defense dollar spent buys a dollar's worth of defense. The Chamber points to admissions that one military branch frequently buys materials already in surplus storage under a different name in warehouses of some other branch.

Also, it calls attention to the startling variations in prices paid by different military agencies for identical items.

The Chamber sees plenty of opportunities to cut expenses also in the government's non-military spending. It proposes cuts in foreign aid, curbing new socialization programs and other savings that would be accomplished by adoption of the Hoover Commission government reorganization program.

"We must recognize," says the Chamber, "that we are in for long years of 'near war.' Like a long-distance runner, we must conserve our strength now for we will need it later."

One of the big reasons, they will tell you, is they can always get a GMC that's exactly "engined" for their particular kind of work.

That's because GMC builds the widest range of truck engines in the industry—valve-in-head gas engines from 100 to 200 H.P.—exclusive 2-cycle Diesels from 110 to 225 H.P.

And it's the kind of power you don't have to pamper!

Each GMC engine is specially lubricated against wear, specially ventilated against acid-forming fumes even when idling — specially designed for truck duty!

Why not let us recommend the GMC truck, tractor or six-wheeler perfectly powered for your job? It will be a real truck all the way—exactly the right combination of engine, axle, transmission and frame blended by the world's largest exclusive manufacturer of commercial vehicles!

Private Pilots To Be Registered For Disaster

Private pilots and their airplanes in Disaster District 5, comprising 26 counties, soon will be registered and organized into a standby "civilian air force," ready to go into action on a moment's notice in event of disaster.

L. A. Pitt, of Amarillo, is the newly-named District 5 Coordinator of Aviation under a statewide program for Civil Air Mobilization in Disaster Relief and Civil Defense and is in charge of plans and registration in 26 Districts 5 counties. His appointment has been announced by Cliff Green of Austin, Coordinator of Civil Air Mobilization and Director of the Texas Aeronautics Commission, and approved by the State Civil Defense and Disaster Relief Headquarters at Austin.

Counties in Pitt's District 5 include Potter, Carson, Randall, Oldham, Deaf Smith, Parmer, Castro, Swisher, Armstrong, Donley, Roberts, Gray Hemphill, Lipscomb, Ochiltree, Hutchinson, Dallam, Sherman, Honsford, Moore, Hartley, Childress, Hall, Briscoe, Collingsworth and Wheeler.

A county-wide meeting will be called for each county in the near future by Pitt or by an appointed member of his District 5 Aviation Advisory Council, at which details and objectives of the program will be outlined. Pilots, plane owners, and airport service operators in the area will recommend a County Chief of Aviation who will be in charge of inventorying the county's civil airpower. His appointment will be formalized by Green in Austin. Such data from each District 5 county will be forwarded to Pitt's District Headquarters. Copies will go to State Headquarters in Austin.

In revealing plans for the approaching meetings, Pitt urged all airmen and airport operators in each of the counties in his district to be on the alert for an announcement of a time, date and place, and to make every possible effort to attend.

In an emergency, Pitt pointed out, a county's private planes and airports may well provide the only available means to carry disaster personnel, evacuate the wounded, decontaminate ground areas, survey and control congested ground areas, provide communication, security patrol, reconnaisance, search and rescue, deliver parts, and meet threats on farms and in forests.

In inventorying planes and pilots in this vicinity, the County Chief of Aviation, who will be recommended at the forthcoming meeting, will keep a file card on each flyer and his aircraft, with its type, capacity, equipment, and adaptability to various jobs, such as litter-carrying or reconnaissance. This listing will be restricted to Civil Defense use only. Requests to this area for planes needed in a disaster center will originate at Pitt's District Headquarters in Amarillo where the complete 26-county file will be kept. The file at State Headquarters in Austin will be an indexed master for all of Texas.

Pitt, himself a private pilot, is the owner of a 1949 Stinson Station Wagon. His flying career started in 1930 and he has been in the Electrical Contracting Business almost that long. He is the owner of Pitt Electric Company in Amarillo. He is past commander of Hanson Post No. 44, American Legion, the largest post in Texas.

Pitt already has set up for emergency operation a portable generator and light plant which will provide for flood lighting of over 10,000 watts. In addition to its possible emergency use for runway lighting, the generator pumps, radio and other electrical also made his personal bus trailer available to serve as coordinating headquarters for radio and personnel during emergencies. Texas Aeronautics Commission Director Green said all District Coordinators of Aviation for Civil Defense were serving without remuneration and urged all pilots in this area to give Pitt every cooperation in mobilizing aviation. "He is devoting his own time and energy to this tremendous task of inventorying aviation facilities in Disaster District 5," Green stated. "If every airman will contact his nearest airport manager or operator and register on the Civil Air Mobilization roster and attend the meetings as they are held, it will speed up his job considerably."

This Is Worth Reading A Second Time

To hear a real Hudson "booster" in action, just stop any member of the Montana Highway Patrol and ask him what he thinks of the Hudson he's driving.

He'll likely tell you (A) that his Hudson can overtake any American made stock car on the highway (B) that his Hudson "corners" better on sharp mountain curves at high speeds than any other car (C) that his Hudson covers more miles with less maintenance cost than any car ever used for patrol duty (D) that the vast territory he patrols requires long hours behind the wheel of a car and that Hudson riding comfort reduces fatigue and strain to a minimum.

And if you've got time to spare, Montana's finest will talk on Hudson performance until you're convinced, as he is convinced, that Hudson offers everything desired in a motor car.

Listen to Jack England, Montana Highway Patrol Chief, who recently retired:

"We use 70 Hudson Super Sixes and five Hudson Hornets to patrol Montana, the third largest state in the union. With a relatively small force of 83 men, this means that each man must patrol an average of 1,200 highway miles.

"Patrol efficiency depends to a great extent on our cars. Before we began using Hudsons, our cars were frequently in the repair shop. Every car off the road means a corresponding decrease in patrol strength. Hudson durability solved this problem for us. Since our first Hudsons were delivered in October, 1949, the patrol's law enforcement efficiency rating has risen 22 per cent."

England stresses Hudson economy in fleet operation.

"Average mileage for the light cars previously used was 13 plus miles per gallon. Our Hudsons deliver an average of 18 minus miles per gallon. To date, fuel operation cost for Hudson cars is 1.12 cents per mile as compared to 1.53 cents per mile for the lighter car. As each car averages 60,000 miles per year, the savings to our rather limited operating budget can be appreciated."

Hudson gasoline economy, the Patrol has equipped 47 cars with new two-way FM radios for which no funds had been allotted, according to England. New firearms for the entire Patrol have also been purchased with these savings.

Members of the Patrol tell of Hudson durability with glowing enthusiasm. They cite many cases where Hudsons have been driven over 100,000 miles without major repairs.

A Hudson used by a patrolman stationed at Harden showed more than 118,000 miles when turned in. The motor was still in excellent condition and oil consumption negligible. Another Hudson driven by a Great Falls patrolman had rolled up 112,000 miles when traded. But Patrolman Glenn Stevens stationed at Whitehall, Montana, probably set a mileage record when he drove his Hudson 143,000 miles without major repairs.

"Maintenance costs for our Hudsons averages less than $50 per car for the first 55,000 miles," says England.

With the heavy increase in tourist travel through Montana in recent years and the increase in highway miles to patrol, the Patrol is more than ever dependent on the durability of its cars to maintain its efficiency.

The state of Montana covers more than 146,000 square miles of rugged terrain. Hudson's ability to "take it" is demonstrated daily from the tortuous plateaus of the Big Hole area in the southwest to the Bad Lands in the southeast and north to Flat Head Valley and the mountainous mining and lumbering country.

Hudson roadability was an important factor in its selection as a patrol car. Competitive tests with nine cars of other makes were made on mountain passes at altitudes over 6,000 feet and over winding roads with sharp 30 to 40 degree turns. Hudson's "step-down" design, low center of gravity and ease of handling on sharp curves walked off with top honors. No other car came close to Hudson's hug-the-road performance.

Economy and speed runs on a 104 mile course on Highway 87 further convinced England that Hudson was the ideal car for patrol duty. Gasoline consumption for the Hudson ran 3 to 5 quarts less than any other car tested.

As for Hudson speed and power, the Highway Patrol members are almost fanatical in their praise. They speak of Hudson's in-line, high compression engines in the manner a horseman speaks of a brilliantly performing thoroughbred.

England tells of one wealthy Montana rancher who tried several makes of cars in an effort to outrun the Patrol's Hudsons. He finally gave up on American cars and bought himself a foreign sports car.

The reputation of the Hudson fleet has been the cause of many unscheduled road races on Montana's highways. England himself once overtook a speeding car in a race that hit 100 miles per hour. The driver identified himself as police chief from a neighboring state who had heard that Montana's patrol cars were the fastest in the country and he was only testing them out.

"He still got a ticket," England said.

Hudson riding comfort also comes in for its share of praise from patrolmen. With such vast areas to cover, many frequently spend twenty hours at a stretch at the wheel. When speaking of the pre-Hudson days in a light car, the patrolmen groan in unison.

England cites Hudson riding comfort as an important factor in Patrol morale. With the light cars driving fatigue was a major problem. The switch to Hudsons stopped these complaints.

"Long distance driving in a Hudson is like sitting in an easy chair in your own living room," is the way one patrolman summed it up.

England tells of three "bad back" cases assigned to light duty because they could not take long hours in a lighter car. The men are now back on full patrol duty in Hudsons and never miss the opportunity to tell anyone who will listen about Hudson riding comfort.

Needless to say, many patrol members own Hudsons as their personal cars. England estimates that some 20 troopers are Hudson owners. His charming wife, Lee, drives a Hudson convertible which was borrowed for her to drive in a civic celebration. So impressed was she with Hudson ease-of-handling that she persuaded England to buy the car for her personal use.

Shortly after, England was glad that she had "sold" him on the convertible. He was following his wife on the highway when her convertible blew a tire. "At the speed she was traveling, a lighter car would have rolled over," England declared. "But she brought the Hudson to a stop with no trouble — a most convincing demonstration of Hudson's perfect balance."

England has answered many inquiries from police officials of other states on the subject of Hudson performance.

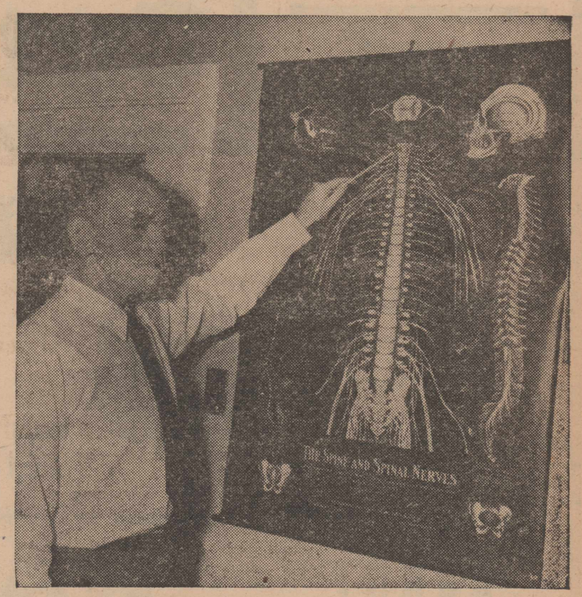

"Hudson performance and economy is a matter of record with the Montana Highway Patrol," he states. "I make no reservations in recommending Hudsons as the ideal cars for all law enforcement agencies or any big fleet operation where superior performance and low operating costs are required."

Dr. Green explaining spinal nerves and their part in the function of various organs and glands throughout the body.

Neuritis Causes

Neuritis is one of the most painful and nerve wrocking experiences known to mankind. The pain is boring and stabbing. The victim is unable to get any rest or sleep. Every moment means suffering. There is loss of power and feeling.

A local inflammation of a nerve is called simple neuritis. It is localized in one spot and is usually caused by pressure on a nerve at a point of exit from the spine. Pressure on a nerve near the surface of the body, such as the shoulder or elbow will result in numbness and tingling.

Repeated constriction and pressure may result in inflammation of the affected nerve. The nerve shealth or neurolemma may squeeze the sensitive nerve fibers and form adhesions. This will aggravate the neuritis and develop in a chornic stage. Blows, falls, contusions and long exposure to cold will result in a similar way. The spine should be checked in all cases.

4-th Grade Hears Laurence Skylstad

One of the highlights of the year, to the Fourth Grades of Wellington Elementary School, was a visit to the class last Tuesday by Lawerence Skylstad, Samnorwood English teacher.

The group had been studying Norway in geography and since Mr. Skylstad was born there, they felt he could give them much first hand information on life in that Scandinavian country.

Mr. Skylstad told how he had been born in Norway and lived there until he was 17. He told about the schools, the homes, clothes, cities and answered many questions as to customs and habits of the Norwegians. He assured the children that he had learned to ski at a very early age although he'd not been "born with skiis on" as one might think. He showed loved pictures of this "land of fiords."

The climax to his talk was when he sang in Norwegian and showed the group a Norwegian dance.

Mrs. Sam McGill and Sidney spent last week in Odessa taking care of her brother's baby and wife, Mr. and Mrs. Don Beard and Pamela Ruth. They formerly lived here.

IT'S THE LAW in Texas

A public service feature of the State Bar of Texas

WRONG SIGNATUE ON LEGAL PAPERS MAY COST TIME, MONEY

Should a married woman sign important documents with her own given name or use her husband's first name? It "Junior" or "Senior" legally part of your name? Should you sign your middle name or initial? Is "Mr." or "Mrs." part of a legal signature? Lawyers find that people are often at a loss to know how to sign their names to legal documents. And, while signature discrepancies ultimately may be straightened out, the process can be expensive.

In legal effect, name is used merely as one method of distinguishing one person from another. Under the Common Law, since very early times, a legal name has consisted of one Christion or given name, and one surname which is the family name. Generally, use of both such names is necessary for legal identification.

The law does not pay too much attention to the middle name or initial. However, although the use of the middle name or initial is not required, it is wise to use it since it may be important for identification in some cases.

According to attorneys, married women have more difficulty with their signatures than most other people. When a girl marries she, of course takes her husband's surname. Thus Mary Lou Jones legally becomes Mary Lou Brown when she marries James E. Brown. But, in practice, she usually does not stop there—she uses his full name as her own, signing herself as Mrs. James E .Brown, instead of Mary L. Brown (or Mary Lou Brown) which is correct.

Can this apparently minor error in Mrs. Brown's signature cause any trouble? Let us assume that the Browns decide to sell their home, which they have owned fifteen years, and move to Oregon. Five years pass, and their former home is now owned by George Smith, who has made a deal to sell it at a nice profit. In checking the title of the property, the name "Mrs. James E. Brown" turns up in Smith's abstract, as it appears on the deed by which James and Mary sold their home.

For the title to be clear, the land records must show that Mrs. James E. Brown who sold the house and lot was the same identical person as the Mary L. Brown or Mrs. James E. Brown whose name appears on the deed conveying the property to the Browns many years before.

In order that the purchaser may be safe, lawyers and courts must not overlook the possibility that they may be two different persons. If so, the first Mrs. Brown may have died leaving heirs who have not yet relinquished their interest in the home. Other possibilities would present serious implications also.

Proof of identity in this case could involve tracing the Browns through several states, or other methods equally or more expensive and time consuming. While waiting for this proof, George Smith might lose his chance to take a profit. The intended purchaser may have to begin a new search for a suitable family shelter. The Browns may be out time and money in correcting the discrepancy.

In this situation, the "minor" variation in Mary's signature has resulted in trouble for everyone involved.

Perversely enough, other married women feel that their maiden surname is still legal and continue to use it. For instance, a wife may register her automobile in her maiden name instead of her married name. This is not in compliance with the law requiring a car to be registered in the name of the owner. Her maiden surname is gone for good, unless she is divorced and wants to resume the use of her maiden name. Then it may be returned to her by court order.

The law does not consider "Junior" or "Senior" a significant part of the name, as regards identification. However, it will not be incorrect to add such terms to your signature, if you wish. Similarly, "Mr." or "Mrs." are not legally important or necessary.

(This column, based on Texas law, is written to inform—not to advise. No person should ever apply or interpret any law without the aid of an attorney who knows the facts, because the facts may change the application o fthe law.)

Their misery ended by the rifles of Royal Mounted police, the beasts were buried in a mass grave covered with lime, Among the animals destroyed was a herd of 45 cattle at a farm near the heart of the Ontario cheese-producing industry. Authorities believe that Bruntjen's arrest and the slaughter program have licked the epidemic which resulted in a U. S. embargo on the imports of Canadian livestock, meat, straw, and hay.

Top Quality Chicks Best

COLLEGE STATION — The first cost may be higher for top quality chicks, but the profits usually will be greater. Chick quality, says W. J. Moore, poultry husbandman for the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, is measured in terms of low mortality, efficient use of feed, rapid growth, fast and complete feathering and uniform size. Then adds Moore, buy chicks that are bred to do the job that you want done — either to make meat or to produce eggs.

High death losses among baby chicks can quickly wipe out any chance for profits. Buying from hatcheries that participate in the National Poultry Improvement Plan, points out the specialist, is good insurance. Cooperating hatcherymen and poultry breeders under the plan must meet prescribed standards in their operations that include testing for pullorum and good flock sanitation. Thus, buyers are assured of getting quality chicks.

Losses among the older birds are even more expensive than chick losses. The death of a two pound bird means the loss of time and labor as well as about six pounds of feed and the original cost of the chick. The use of strict sanitation practices and vaccination against diseases that are known to exist in the area will help prevent these latter losses, says Moore.

Producers should keep in mind these points, emphasizes the specialist, when buying chicks. Buy for quality and from hatcheries that carry on a good pullorus eradication and sanitation program and buy chicks bred specifically for either meat or egg production whichever fits your needs. Chicks with this kind of a background when given proper care will usually return a nice profit to the producer, says Moore.

Mr. and Mrs. Ben Ratliff and children, Ben Ray, Mai Nell and Dale, of Wildorado, where here during the week end to visit friends and look after business. They were guests in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Langford. Mrs. Ratliff, who formerly taught at Quail, is teaching the first and second grades at Wildorado, while Mr. Ratliff is in charge of maintenance and drives a bus. Their older son, Ben Ray, attends Vega high school, where he played football and is out of track. The family is looking forward to the time, however, when they can move back to Collingsworth county, Mrs. Ratliff said.

High Incidence Of Dysentery

AUSTIN — Commenting on the unusually high incidence of dysentery in Texas at the present time, Dr. Geo. W. Cox, State Health Officer, described dysentery as being an infectious disease characterized by diarrhea, pain in the abdomen, and toxemia. It is caused by a specific bacteria or germ. These germs cause inflammation of the lining of the intestinal tract which produces pain throughout the abdomen and the discharge of many loose stools that frequently contain blood and mucous. Toxemia results from absorption of the poisonous substances produced by the germs.

"The germs gain entrance to the body through the mouth," Dr. Cox said, "and then make their way to the intestines in the same manner in which food does. When they reach the intestines they find conditions favorable to their growth, and there they establish themselves at the expense of the person infected and produce their harmful effects."

Dr. Cox warned that dysentery affects young children more often and more seriously than adults, frequently resulting fatally; however, he said, it may occur at any age. It is usually more prevalent during the summer season, and the great number of cases now being reported are unusual for spring.

"The germ is always expelled with the excreta of persons sick with dysentery and may continue to be expelled for some time after the patient recovers from the disease. These persons who still discharge the germs after they recover are called carriers, and they occur more frequently in this disease than in the majority of other infectious diseases.

"Food protection and adequate sanitary measures are more urgently needed now than ever before if we control the potential possibilities of epidemic dysentery in this State."

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Allen spent Monday in Shamrock attending the St. Patrick's Day celebration. They formerly lived there.

Florence Hayes of Vinson, Oklahoma, a surgical patient in St. Joseph's Hospital, was dismissed Friday.

Mr. and Mrs. Gene Lewis returned Friday from Wilcox, Arizona where they spent a month.

Tribute to a neighbor

We'd like you to meet a neighbor on whom both of us depend.

He's the man who operates the service station in your neighborhood.

You depend on him to take care of your car, to supply you with products of high quality at reasonable prices. You expect, and get, from him more free service than from any other merchant with whom you do business: whatever you spend, he cheerfully cleans your windshield, checks your oil and tires, furnishes you with free battery water, and renders special services as you need them.

The oil companies depend on him as the independent merchant who distributes their products. He demands, and receives, continuously improved products with which to compete with his business rivals. He insists on reasonable prices that will move his merchandise in volume. His progressive attitude is one of the chief reasons why the oil industry has supplied you with better products at about the same prices over a long period of years.

It's a pleasure to pay this tribute to a neighbor, to thank him publicly for being such a friendly, dependable contact between the oil industry and its millions of customers. He is not on our payroll, but we couldn't do business without him.

Non-Defense Spending Can Be Cut, Says C-C

WASHINGTON — Everybody government expenditures, but much more needs to be done about it.

The Chamber of Commerce of the United States comes forward with the suggestion that if the Hoover Commission recommendations were put into effect large savings could be accomplished.

In a communication to its membership, the Chamber supplies a box-score of progress on the Hoover proposals.

Roughly, the score is 20-20 in legislative enactment. Congress has enacted 20 laws implementing the commission's proposals, with 20 still pending.

Of the 20 not yet acted on, seven are held to be supremely important. They would make enormous savings possible by eliminating waste, overlapping and duplication.

The question is asked: What actually would be saved? The original Hoover estimates were $4 billion, based on the then $40 billion budget. Meanwhile the budget has doubled, and estimates are consequently increased.

Briefed, the seven major Hoover proposals are:

1. Give greater flexibility to Civil Service operations.
2. Modernize and centralize Post Office Department operations, and eliminate politics from the service.
3. Give centralized direction to the government's overseas programs.
4. Eliminate money and manpower waste in the administration of veterans' affairs.
5. Eliminate conflicts between Army engineers and the Interior Department in water resources development and flood control.
6. Reorganize the sprawling Department of Agriculture.
7. Create a united federal medical administration.

Pointing out that 1952 presents the nation's biggest peacetime spending budget, the Chamber says:

"Thus, more than any previous year, 1952 sharpens the need for government operating economies which could be effected through the Hoover program."

Among those who were flue victims last week were Mr. and Mrs. Conn Hall, Mr. Elmer Harralson and Mr. and Mrs. G. D. Thomas.

Hinkle Writes Journalism Book

AUSTIN — The grass-roots newspaper column takes a bow in a new book by a University of Texas journalism professor, Olin E. Hinkle.

"How to Write Columns" is a joint product of Hinkle, a former editor and columnist, and John M. Henry of the Des Moines (Iowa) Register and Tribune. Cartoons by Harry E. Walsh of Omaha, Neb., add a light touch to a printing job that features generous spacing, marginal quotes, and color blocks. Excerpts from scores of small newspapers were selected for the book.

The Iowa State College Press published the 288-page book, which will go on sale soon in bookstores and through state press organizations, including the Texas Press Association. Price is $3.95.

Hinkle's dedication is to the late J. J. Taylor, who wrote the "State Press" column in the Dallas Morning News for many years. "His memory endures as a benediction on the small-town press which he loved," Hinkle wrote.

The co-authors met in 1949 at a TPA convention in Fort Worth and decided to pool materials they had gathered. They exchanged about 150 letters in the process of putting the book together, Hinkle estimates, but they haven't seen each other since the original chance meeting.

Hinkle did newspaper work at Blackwell, Okla., Pampa and Sweetwater, Texas, and Lexington, Ky. He was journalism and publicity director at West Texas State College before becoming associate professor of journalism at the University of Texas in 1946. He served 29 months in the U. S. Army Air Forces in World War II.

SIGN OF PROGRESS in the Gulf South

7,000 MILES OF LINES ADDED TO THE UNITED GAS SYSTEM

Anything that helps build the Gulf South . . . helps YOU

Dependable natural gas service is one of the most important factors in the growth and development of the Gulf South. To assure dependable service to United Gas customers, our company has built some 7,000 miles of lines since 1941—to gather gas in the fields, to transport it to markets, and to distribute it within those markets. That's a lot of pipe . . . and every foot of it was laid right here in the Gulf South.

Our company's expansion is a reflection of the growth of the Gulf South, and it is our desire, like that of every good citizen of this progressive area, to accept the responsibilities which are logically ours to help assure a continuation of this growth.

Wellington FFA Has Grass Drill

One of the grass seed drills owned by the Salt Fork Soil Conservation District was turned over last week to the Wellington Future Farmers, to be in their care. Bennett Goodloe, vocational agriculture instructor, will be in charge.

This is in line with the policy of the district to turn over its drills to the three vocational agriculture departments in the county. Farmers wishing to rent these may contact ag instructors.

Two Wellington farmers have used the drill here during the past week. L. W. Hartman seeded approximately 50 acres to a mixture of blue gramma, side oats gramma and sand love grass. Kelly Pigg is now planting approximately 70 acres using about the same mixture. Part of the land planted had been in cultivation previously, but on the remainder the owners simply wanted a better stand of grass.

"If there is plenty of rain, these men can probably graze their grass next year," Mr. Goodloe said. "We feel there is enough moisture in the ground to get the grass up, and it should do all right if there isn't too much sand to whip the young grass down."
