On The BEAM

By J. W. King, Sr.

Joe Hester raised more beans in his garden than he knew what to do with. Knowing that the editor of this newspaper had no garden of his own, he brought a big sack full to our office. On top of the beans was a large white onion, one of the nicest we have ever seen.

Joe raised the onion too. And while we were talking about it, Joe remarked that he believed an onion crop on the irrigated farms here would pay well. Joe fertilized his onions.

Thank you Joe for the very nice meal you provided at our house.

I believe as Joe does that an onion crop on the irrigated land here would pay well. Then after the onion crop is harvested there would be plenty of time to raise a maize crop on the same land.

It seems to me that if a farmer goes to the expense of equipping for irrigation he would want to get the maximum of crops from his land.

Slow Down and Live Is Slogan For Month

"Keep off the gas--slow down and live!"

This life-saving advice was given to drivers today by Mr. E. C. McFadden of Dallas, Vice-President of Employers' Casualty Company and President, Texas Safety Association, Inc., which is sponsoring this month's speed control program in cooperation with the Department of Public Safety and the National Safety Council.

"The thrill that speed-minded motorists get out of demonstrating the speed potential of their cars is short lived and so, frequently, are they," Mr. McFadden warned. "Excessive speed is often a short cut to eternity!"

In 1953, nearly three out if 10 drivers in fatal accidents were violating a speed law at the time of the accident, Mr. McFadden said.

He listed three of the main dangers of driving at a speed too fast for conditions as follows:

1. If an emergency arises when you're driving at higher speeds, you have less time in which to act to avoid an accident.

2. As speed increases, braking distance increases at a greater rate. When you double your speed, you quadruple your braking distance. Average brakes can stop a car within 21 feet at 20 miles an hour, but it takes 84 feet to bring a car to a stop at 40 miles an hour.

"All of which proves," Mr. McFadden concluded, "that it's a good policy to make haste slowly on the highway. Let the other fellow be a Hurry Bug. Slow down and you'll live longer."

Sand Damages Crops In This Area

The high wind that preceded the light rain here last Wednesday evening carried sand with it that did considerable damage to crops in this area.

Cotton and feed crops suffered severe burns by the sand in some places. In some instances where the rows were running north and south crops were completely wiped out. On rows that run east and west crops were not damaged so badly.

Some farmers, where their crops were only slightly damaged, were waiting a few days before deciding to replant, while others where the damage was severe, started replanting immediately. Unseasonably cool weather followed the storm and delayed the recovery of the less damaged crops.

Some have estimated that about a third of the cotton crop had to be replanted because of the wind and sand.

Many people say that the sand and wind that came before the rain was the worst they had ever seen. It was a strong wind and had the sand continued to blow another hour or so none of the crops would have withstood the withering blast.

Foreign Cotton Competes With Texas

Austin, Texas, June 13 The Texas cotton industry, which exports most of its product, is getting stronger competition from cotton growers outside the U. S., a University of Texas study shows.

The University Cotton Economic Research Division's comparative study of U. S. and world cotton indicates foreign growers are producing larger amounts of American-type cottons.

The average annual production of American-type cotton outside this country in 1934-38 was 4,486,000 bales, the University study showed. The figure climbed to 7,759,000 bales in 1953-54.

That means foreign countries are copying the U. S. growers' polocy of supplying large amounts of American-type cotton with relatively uniform fiber properties, an important factor in mass production of textiles.

That trend coupled with lower foreign-cotton prices is one of the reasons why world-market buyers apparently are taking Texas cotton only after exhausting sources of the same varieties grown outside the U. S., Research Scientist Joel H. Hembree warned.

"The University's comparative survey of U. S. and world cottons should challenge us to improve our varieties and marketing procedures and strengthen our competitive position in the world market," Hembree declared.

Court Petitioned To Change Road

The Commissioners Court of Mitchell County voted recently three to one to ask the Highway Commission that the next designated extension of Farm Road 644 be made from Landers School straight West to Connect with Highway 208.

The Highway Commission has tentatively designated the extenios to run West from Landers to the old Spade pens, thence North one mile and West two miles to connect with 208.

Petitions were signed by a number of Colorado City men approving the route designated by the Highway Commission and presested to the Commissioners Court on Monday.

Tuesday morning a delegation of business men of Loraine met with the Commissioners Court to discuss the two routes for the road extenion. The delegation went on record as favoring the route as voted by the Commissioners Court and opposed to the one designated by the Highway Commission.

Spokesmen for the delegates pointed ont to the Court that the road as voted for by the Court will benefit the same people the other route would and at the same time cost less for right-of-way and construction. They also pointed out that the straight west road would give Loraine a better connection with the Silver oil field than would the other route.

The matter was presented to the Lions Club Tuesday at noon and that organization voted to send a telegram to Jake Roberts, District Highway Engineer, and also to the Highway Commission at Austin recommending that the Commission designate the route voted by the Commissiins Court.

Don't argue with this baby!

All Chevrolet's competitors and most of the high-priced cars tried it recently in official NASCAR* trials—and took a licking!

Meet the champ! The new Chevrolet "Turbo-Fire V8"—the most modern V8 on the road today. Here's what happened--

Daytona Beach. NASCAR Acceleration Tests Over Measured Mile From Standing Start. Chevrolet captured the 4 top positions in its class! 8 of the first 11! And on a time basis Chevrolet beat every high-priced car, too—but one! But wait!—this is just the beginning!

Daytona Beach. NASCAR Straightaway Running. Open to cars delivered in Florida for $2,500 or less. Chevrolet captured the first two places, 7 out of the first 11 places!

Daytona Beach. NASCAR 2-Way Straightaway Running Over Measured Mile. Open to cars from 250 to 299 cu. in. displacement. Chevrolet captured 3 of the first 5 places!

Columbia, S. C. NASCAR 100-Mile Race on half-mile track. Very tight turns. Chevrolet finished first!

Fayetteville, N. C. NASCAR Late Model Event. Chevrolet again finished first. Because of even tighter turns the driver chose to run the entire 150 laps in second gear! Yet no overheating or pit stops!

These facts you can't laugh off. Sales leader. Road leader. A crowning achievement of Chevrolet and General Motors. Try a Chevrolet . . . and live in a land of going-away where you win all the arguments! Soon, maybe?

Eradication if Khapra Beetle

A continuing battle is being waged to keep the world's worst pest of stored grain—the Khapra Beetle—out of Texas.

This Oriental-born pest, especially threatening in warm states was first discovered in southern California in November 1953. It has spread eastward across Arizona and on into New Mexico, infesting at least 172 locations in the three states.

Quarantine barriers were set up several months ago along the state borders to protect Texas grain and more recently a gigantic fumigation project was launched in states already infested.

The new fumigation-eradication program is a joint effort of state pest control agencies, property owners and chemical companies. In the unique extermination process, entire buildings are sealed over so the methyl-bromide gas fumigant will reach the crevice-seeking beetle.

More than a million feet of beetle-infested storage were cleansed in a California fumigation experiment last January by wrapping the area in a gas-tight cover of sealed tarpaulins and injecting 2½ times the normal dosage of the gas. This method proved most effective against the persistent Khapra Beetle and has been adopted in other state eradication projects.

Khopra Beetles have been found by control workers in warehouses 21 feet deep under solid masses of grain. They have worked their way through a two-foot brick warehouse wall; hence their name "Khapra" which comes from an Indian word meaning "brick".

The Texas Department of Agriculture is cooperating with the Agricultural Research Service in an extensive survey of farm storage to keep the destructive pest out of the state.

Any grain warehouseman or farmer who discovers an unfamiliar insect is urged to notify the Quarantine Division of the Texas Department of Agriculture immediately.

J. H. Boone returned Tuesday from a twi weeks vacation trip that took him to Bonham and Kansas City. At Bonham he attended a reunion of graduates of Bonham school.

Rules For Vets

A roundup of rules dealing with the three-years starting deadline for Korean GI Bill training was issued today by the Veterans Administration.

Under the law, veterans actually must start their GI courses within three years from the date of their separation from the armed forces, in order to continue afterwards.

VA said it is not sufficient for a veteran to file an application before the deadline with the intention of starting afterwards. He must enroll in and begin his course in advance of his deadline.

Furthermore, having started in time, he must be in training on his deadline date, unless his attendance has been interrupted by the summer vacation or for some other excusable reason.

Such an excusable interruption would be the up-to-12-month suspension of training allowed by the law. In some cases the uspension may last even longer, if the veteran can show VA it was impossible to have resumed training within the 12-month limit.

Special rules go into effect for veterans in Korean GI training courses after their starting deadlines, VA said.

Before the starting deadline, there is no requirements for continuous training. But after that date, there is; training must be continuous, except for the up-to-12-month suspensions that are permitted.

Also, before the deadline, the veteran-trainee has the right to make one change of course. He could switch, for example, from accounting to medicine, or from carpentry to shoemaking. After the starting deadline, however, he no longer may make free change of course.

If he has not changed courses before the deadline, he may be allowed to change afterwards only if:

1. The new course that he wants is a normal progression from the course he already is taking, or

2. He is not making satisfactory p rogress in his current course, due to no fault of his own, and vocational counseling discloses that he would make a better go of it in a different course.

MONEY AND BANKING
In Everyday Living

"RECONCILING" YOUR BUDGET — comparing expenditures with the amounts designated for each category — is fairly easy, of course, when all bills have been paid by check. Then you have complete records (checkbook stubs and cancelled checks) at hand. Here's a system some people use to make the task even easier: Each time cancelled checks are returned, they pencil identifying symbols on them according to category — "H" for household, "M" for medical, and so on. That way, they are always able to get the information they need from their records "in record time."

Veterans' News

Q I have just been discharged from the armed forces with a disability. I have applied to VA for service-connected compensation. If and when I am placed on the rolls, I intend to get a permanent GI insurance policy available to disabled Korean veterans. But in the meantime, I would like to be covered with insurance. Is there anything I can do now?

A Yes. You may obtain the special Korean GI term insurance-available to all Korean veterans if you act within 120 days following your discharge. Then, after VA rules that your disability is service-connected, you may apply for the permanent insurance. Meanwhile, you will have been covered by the special term policy.

Q I have been out of service for a year.. I am planning to apply to VA for disability compensation . Since the armed forces have medical records, will I be required to take a physical examination

A You will be required to take a VA physical evamination. VA may waive the examination, under some circumstances, only for veterans who apply for compensation within six months after their separation from service.

Q I am a "double duty" veteran with service in World War II and since Korea. I am in training under the World War II GI Bill. I Would like to switch to the Korean GI Bill, but I notice that starting deadline for Korean GI training has passed. Is it too late to switch?

A No. Even though your Korean GI Bill starting deadline has passed, you still may be permitted to switch to that training law. You may make the change either at the end of any regular entitlement period or at the time your World War II GI entitlement is exhausted.

Q Is it possible for a veteran who lives in one State to get a GI loan to buy a home in another State?

A Yes, it is possible, however, lenders generally confine their lending operations to certain specific areas. You should check your lender.
