107 Planes, 44 Ships And Barges Are Pounded In Widespread Pacific Blows

By RAY CRONIN
Associated Press War Editor

A THUNDERING series of American air and naval actions over the vast Pacific war front was officially reported today to have resulted in the destruction or damaging of 107 Japanese planes and 44 ships and barges.

Yank naval guns and air bombs smashed against Japan's strategic Bonin and Volcano islands, sinking 13 enemy vessels and taking a heavy toll of Nippon's air force.

Far to the south, American planes blasted shipping in southern Philippines waters. A dozen ships were sunk or damaged in the Mindanao area where a Japanese convoy was caught in Davao Gulf at night. Other surface craft were blasted in the water south of Philippines. Three went down near Celebes where Liberators unloaded 140 tons of bombs to destroy 18 grounded Japanese planes and severely damage airdrome and shipping installations.

Three-Day Assaults

For three days Yank bombers of the Central Pacific command hammered Chichi Jima and Haha Jima, in the Bonins, and Iow Jima, in the Volcanos. The Navy went into action there Aug. 31, second day of the air strike, and continued to throw hot steel against the Japanese Sept. 1. Iwo was air-raided again Saturday.

Cruisers and destroyers hit Wake island Sunday while planes blasted widely separated bases in the Marianas, the Kuriles, the Marshalls and the Carolines.

The combined naval-air offensive resulted in the destruction or damaging of 85 Japanese planes. American losses totaled five aircraft and four men.

Tokyo Shows Alarm

Intensified "home defense" was the theme of radio Tokyo as the Japanese viewed with increasing alarm the steady relentless push of Pacific warfare ever closer to their homeland.

The jittery Japanese, predicting American smashes from all diections — against the Philippines, Formosa, the Bonin islands and the Nippon mainland itself—took another step in the announced plan to arm all of the people of the empire. Tokyo ordered nationwide mobilization of the "national reservists organization" into home defense units.

Big Operations Impending

The heavy air bombardments of Davao, main Japanese stronghold in the southern Philippines, caused the Japanese to believe that "huge" operations were impending in that sector. Gen. Douglas MacArthur has said the Nippon airforce, already driven from New Guinea and Halmahera island bases, has been forced to move from the southern Philip-

Germans Fleeing From Lyon With Yanks In Pursuit

By GEORGE BRIA
Associated Press Staff Writer

ROME, Sept. 4. — French and American troops raced northward up both banks of the Saone river tonight in pursuit of German forces fleeing from the great French communications center of Lyon, in which the last enemy resistance had been stilled.

American units, slashing northeastward from France's third largest city in an effort to cut off the retreat of the main Nazi force, occupied Bourg, 35 miles from Lyon, while the French, driving up the west bank of the Saone, reached Villefranche, 15 miles north and slightly west of Lyon.

NAZIS QUITTING DENMARK

LONDON, Tuesday, Sept. 5 (AP)—The Germans are preparing to evacuate Denmark, the Stockholm radio said today. It reported they were burning documents in Copenhagen and that all German women and children had been ordered to leave by Friday.

Only Slight Contacts

"Only slight contacts were made with the withdrawing enemy," a headquarters announcement said.

Advance Yank elements engaged in a sharp fight with German tank rear guards at Montrevel, 12 miles north of Bourg, and were reported holding half the town.

Allied patrols entered Lyon from three sides yesterday and seized an airfield east of the city of 600,000 population, but it was not until today that hadquarters said the last German had been killed captured or sent fleeing beyond the big silk center.

(Capt. Ludwig Sertorious, German military commentator, said in a Monday broadcast that "this important stage of the big and difficult movement of disengagement is completed. It may be counted a considerable success that the enemy was unable to achieve an encirclement in the area between Lyon and Valence.")

Relentless Pursuit

At Montrevel the Germans still faced relentless pursuit for approximately 120 miles before they could escape through the strategic Belfort gap near the German-Swiss frontier. They were faced with the additional threat of being headed off by other American forces driving east and southeast from Paris. One Yank column last was reported within about 95 miles of Belfort.

Allied planes took a ceaseless toll of withdrawing enemy columns along the highways north of Lyon, leaving hundreds of charred vehicles to mark the flight of the Nazi 19th Army. A spokesman announced that Hellcat divebombers from the U. S. baby aircraft carriers Tulagi and Kasaan Bay alone had destroyed more than 1,000 enemy vehicles and tanks since the invasion of southern France began three weeks ago.

Nazis Frantically Appeal For Fight

By WADE WERNER
Associated Press Staff Writer

LONDON, Sept. 4.—German press and radio erupted violently today in blaring pronunciamentos designed as a last-ditch effort to rouse the Germans for a fight in every street and lane to save the fatherland from the final humiliation of invasion by British, Russians and Americans.

At the same time, reports came from neutral sources that some top-flight Nazis already were fleeing the country—and two names mentioned were highly interesting to Allied authorities.

Mysterious Plane

Lisbon dispatches reported the arrival in Barcelona of a mysterious German plane. Its male passengers remained in Spain, said this report, and the women, who may have been the wives, went on to Portugal. The report mentioned the names "Amnan and Trefoger."

A Max Anman was the first business manager of the Nazi party, who attained great wealth as a publisher of Nazi books. He is known as one of Hitler's closest associates and a trusted adviser on money matters.

There is a high executive named Trefoger in a big industrial combine controlled by Reichsmarshal Herman Goering.

Tone Almost Frenzied

In Germany the tone of the press and radio was almost frenzied. Der Angriff, newspaper of Propaganda Minister Paul Joseph Goebbels, led the parade with an appeal for a people's war in defense of the fatherland's soil.

As other newspapers reported mobilization of all 14-year-old school children in various border districts for special service, Der Angriff, in an article by Deputy Reich Press Chief Helmut Sundermann, broadcast by Berlin radio, pledged that invaders of Germany would find nothing but death, destruction and hatred in their path.

"We don't want victory to annihilate the British people or to conquer America," Sundermann wrote, "but we must be victorious to continue to live in freedom as a people as well as individuals."

Pledges His People

Thundered Sundermann: "The enemy will not find German grain or corn to feed him. Every road, every path will be destroyed to block his advance. No German

Two Columns Of Yanks Reported On German Soil

By WILLIAM F. BONI
Associated Press Staff Writer

LONDON, Sept. 4.—The British Army in a tremendous sweep seized the Belgian capital of Brussels and the great port of Antwerp today and the Dutch said these forces roared on five miles into the Netherlands.

The Lowlands appeared to be emerging from Nazi captivity faster than they fell before German armored might. The enemy, pinned between the British and the sea, faced a "Dunkerque" from which no exit was safe.

PEACE MOVE REPORTED

NEW YORK, Sept. 4 — The Paris radio quoted today what it said was a Basle, Switzerland, dispatch to the London Daily Mirror "that the German government has been making efforts to establish contact with Allied representatives in order to obtain a compromise peace."

The French broadcast, which said this was the "most serious" peace attempt yet made, was recorded by CBS.

Belgium Is Split

Splitting Belgium in half as the climax to a drive that swept 210 miles in six days, the British with the seizure of Antwerp, 10 miles from the Netherlands border, gave the Allies their first big ocean port to handle the flood of supplies needed to keep offensives rolling.

Antwerp's fall cut the last rail lines from the Belgian and French channel coasts to Germany. It is the second largest city in Belgium and lies 23 miles north of the capital, which fell earlier in the day to British arms with hardly a shot fired.

A delayed report from the Ninth Air force in France indicated that American units also might have been in the forces which Premier Pieter Gerbrandy announced to his countrymen "have crossed the Dutch frontier"—heralding the opening of the battle for the Netherlands three days after the battle for Belgium broke.

Breda Said Captured

Aneta, the Dutch news agency, first reported that the British Army had hurdled the frontier and struck five miles beyond to Breda, one of the strong points seized by the Germans in their drive through the Lowlands in 1940.

Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower called on the Dutch to save from German demolition the docks, factories and rails of Rotterdam, 25 miles north of Breda, indicating that the battle for the Netherlands was breaking with the blinding speed with which the battle for Belgium was ending.

There were sensational reports that the U. S. First and Third ar-

Troops In Italy Close On Rimini

By GEORGE TUCKER
Associated Press Staff Writer

ROME, Sept. 4.—Powerful Canadian forces of the Eighth Army had the vital Adriatic coastal city of Rimini almost within their grasp tonight after a slashing attack carried them across the Conca river and gave them a solid bridgehead two miles deep within less than seven miles of the important terminus of the Po valley highway.

Capture of Rimini, a main stronghold of the Germans' punctured Gothic line, would place the Eighth Army on a straight road 60 miles from the industrial city of Bologna. At some points, British, Canadian, Polish and Indian troops had smashed up to 12 miles through the Gothic defenses, described by Allied headquarters as the most elaborate Nazi fortifications outside the German frontiers.

Two Columns Lash Out

The Canadian attack which began two days ago sent one strong armored and infantry column straight at Pieve, which was captured. The column then by-passed another enemy strongpoint at Gradare and reached the coastal road, thence swinging around the coastal town of Cattolica to cross the Conca river at a point less than two miles from its source.

A second Canadian column overwhelmed San Giovanni on the Ventena river and raced on to the Conca, which it crossed upstream from the original crossing. Fresh armor quickly was driven between the two flanks to consolidate and exploit the bridgehead, while artillery was planted to begin hammering Rimini's defenses.

German strongpoints by-passed in the operation at daybreak this morning were completely isolated and were due to be mopped up quickly.

Fifth Army Drives On

The American Fifth Army continued its drive west of Florence, keeping pace with the Eighth's offensive near the Adriatic, and by last midnight Lt. Gen. Mark W. Clark's doughboys had occupied all high ground dominating an important lateral road running between caputred Pisa and Florence.

Captured in the Yank surge were a chain of small towns on the northern fringe of the Arno valley, including Spicchio, Lam-

LAAF Band Called For Overseas Duty

Scheduled soon for an overseas assignment, the Lubbock Army Air field band, one of the most widely known musical groups in this area, will appear on the air over station KFYO for the last time Wednesday night, officials at the field announced last night.

The band, known in military circles as the 628th Army band, under direction of CWO George P. Attridge, former member of the U. S. Military Academy band, has appeared in many neighboring communities, has played for military parades, various celebrations and recruiting activities. It was organized at Westover Field, Mass., and came to LAAF in 1942. Most of its members are from the East.

Details of the band's new assignment were not announced, but members of the band will get regular furloughs before they finally leave the field.

The final broadcast will start at 7:15 instead of 7:30 Wednesday evening, and will continue until 8 o'clock, the announcement said. A special program has been arranged.

Reds In 50 Miles Of Slav Border

By W. W. HERCHER
Associated Press Staff Writer

LONDON, Tuesday, Sept. 5.—Russian troops racing across the Danube valley toward a junction with Marshal Tito's forces were reported last night to be less than 50 miles from the Yogoslav frontier, while Moscow announced that other Soviet units had cut through the Transylvanian Alps and captured the important stronghold of Brasov.

The swift Russian advance toward the Iron Gate pass on the road leading to Yugoslavia and southern Hungary was reported by Associated Press correspondent Joseph Morton, who flew up the Danube river from Bucharest.

Six-Way Rail Junction

Brasov, on the Transylvania side of the Carpathian mountain chain which forms a natural flank protection for the Russians speeding westward through the Danube valley, is a six-way rail junction 52 miles northwest of the Ploesti oil fields, taken last Wednesday.

In their push through the high Predeal pass into Brasov, the Russians also occupied Sinaia, Romanian summer palace town 19 miles south of Brasov.

Targoxiste, 28 miles west of Ploesti on the southern side of the mountains, also was captured, as well as Gaesti, 37 miles southwest of Ploesti and 22 miles from Pitesti on the Bucharest-Pitesti railway. A total of 150 localities was seized, the communique said.

Romanians Aid Drive

The Russians credited Allied Romanians troops with aiding them in the capture of Brasov, which controls four mountain passes, and is only 10 miles south of the Hungarian-annexed part of Transylvania which Germany took from Romania and gave to the Hungarians in 1940. In a new offensive between the Bug and Narew rivers northeast of Warsaw, Gen. G. F. Zakharov's Second White Russian Army captured 100 localities southwest of Lomza, big German stronghold 20 miles below the German East Prussian border, Moscow said.

A German broadcast also said Gen. Rodion Y. Malinovsky's Second Ukraine Army in Romania had "set up bridgeheads" on Bulgarian territory.

The Red Army now is arrayed on a 150-mile sector along Bul-

Flier, Holding To Sub's Periscope, Towed To Safety

SOMEWHERE IN THE PACIFIC, Sept. 4. (U.P.)—Ensign Donald C. Brandt, Cincinnati, O., pilot of a plane who was forced to jump at 12,000 feet while making a raid on enemy installations in the Pacific, saved his life by holding onto the periscope of a submerged U. S. submarine which towed him two miles to safety, a delayed Marine corps dispatch reported today.

Parachuting safely only two miles off a Jap-held island, Brandt saw the submarine approach him in a hail of enemy shells from shore batteries. Just before submerging his vessel, the skipper of the submarine got a good look at Brandt struggling helplessly in the water.

He kept the sub just far enough under the water so that the top of the periscope remained out. Brandt, however, was not sure whether it was a Japanese or an American submarine and did not co-operate immediately with this new rescue technique. The vessel made three passes until the pilot in desperation caught on to the periscope.

With Brandt holding tight, the submarine went out to sea until it was out of range of enemy shells. Finally after an hour of towing, the sub surfaced and took Brandt aboard.

National Income Hits New High

WASHINGTON, Sept. 4 (AP) — National income reached a new high annual rate of $158,000,000,000, and national production a new high annual rate of $196,000,000,000 in the first half of 1944, the Commerce department reported today.

While reaching new heights, however, expansion of both income and production in the first six months of 1944 was at slackened rates, the department said, the three per cent increase in gross national production over the final half of 1943 representing only about one-fourth of the average half-yearly increase recorded since 1941.

Attainment of peak production for the war period was reflected in new figures, the department said.

Downturn Possible

It predicted that if military operations continue on both fronts throughout 1944, national income and production for the entire year will be essentially the same as the annual for the first six months. On the other hand, end of the European war would lead to a downturn of economic activity, the extent of which would depend largely upon ability to deal with demobilization problems.

Consumer expenditures rose to more than $95,000,000 at annual rates, the report showed, continuing the upward trend throughout the war period. There were clear indications, however, the department added, that the wartime upsurge in demand largely had run its course. Increase in consumer expenditures over 1941 was attributed largely to price changes, "but even when allowance is made for the price rise it would appear that the overall position of civilian consumers has been favorable during the war."

Simplicity Marks Rites For Norris

McCOOK, Nebr., Sept. 4 (AP) — George William Norris was buried this afternoon on the plains of western Nebraska from which he set forth more than 40 years ago to establish national renown as a liberal and, in President Roosevelt's words, a "grand old champion of popular rights."

Simplicity, of which the 83-year-old lawmaker was a strict adherent in life, marked last rites in the First Methodist church only a few blocks from the comfortable old home where Norris returned in 1942 to spend his final years.

Finns Quit War, Nazis Leaving

By ROBERT STURDEVANT
Associated Press Staff Writer

STOCKHOLM, Sept. 4. — Finland's three years of war with Soviet Russia ended with a dramatic "cease firing" order today, and guns of both sides all along the 500-mile front from Viipuri to Salla subsided into silence.

A Finnish source here said the Germans scattered throughout south Finland from Karelia to Helsinki would begin formal evacuation Tuesday. He said there still must be roughly three divisions in southern Finland, despite reports of gradual withdrawal from the area.

Seven Divisions In North

North of Salla, where an estimated seven German divisions are holding down the front northward to the Barents Sea in the marshes and forests of tundra and Finnish lapland, the situation was obscure. Reports poured into Sweden that the Germans were evacuating voluntarily, and if this was true, it was the first time in this war they left occupied soil without a fight.

It was presumed that under terms of the negotiated armistice through which President Baron Carl Gustav Mannerheim, field marshal and commander-in-chief, was leading his country out of the bitter struggle, Finnish troops promptly began to fall back to their 1940 border, from which they launched their attack on the Russians when Hitler began his invasion in 1941.

Soviet Displeased

Tass, official Russian news agency, gave hint today that the Russians were not pleased with the Finnish attitude preliminary to the peace talks, and while this will not necessarily lead to postponement, the attitude brought cold comment from the agency.

Tass accused Finland's prime minister, Hantii Hackzell, of adopting an apologetic attitude toward the Germans in his Saturday declaration that Finland was quitting the war. In particular the agency was displeased with what it called failure of Hackzell to mention in that declaration that Finland would break relations with the Nazis, and remove German troops by Sept. 15, two essential preconditions of the peace discussions.

However, a few hours before

Defeated Nazis Start New Plot

WASHINGTON, Sept. 4. (AP) — American officials planning administration of defeated Germany said today that the Nazis may use their own concentration camps as the first stop on an underground railroad they hope will end at World war III.

Already, it is believed, the Nazis may have put some of their most trusted followers, whose names and faces are not widely known, in prison and torture camps so that occupying Allies will think they are anti-Hitler and spare them.

These Nazis would attempt to worm their way into Allied confidence as persecuted martyrs.

Have Used Technique

Before the war and in the early years of fighting, the Germans are know to have used the same technique with refugees, planting among them agents who might get a free run in host countries.

To counteract this possible Nazi move to preserve party organization and ideas, the Allies have built up extensive files.

Primarily, however, they are counting on information from Poles, Russians, Czechs, French and others who have been forced to work in Germany during the war, and from Germans them-

Truth Comes Hard To Captive Nazi Officer

By ROGER GREENE
Associated Press Staff Writer

ARRAS, France, Sept. 3. (Delayed)—A stalwart German lieutenant was deeply chagrined today when a 16-year-old French Maquis, prodding him with a rifle, led him into a British field headquarters near the Belgian frontier.

"It is useless to take me prisoner," he told the British. "I will be free again in one hour. You are surrounded. The war is over."

With a side wink at me a British officer brought out an unmarked map and said gravely, "This is serious. We did not know we were surrounded. Show us."

The Nazi captive bent over the map and pointed along the coast in the north and along the roads to the south.

The British officer then showed him a battle chart marked with the latest developments and told him something about the number of Allied tanks, troops and guns storming across France into Belgium.

The German gaped incredulously.

"If what you say is true then the war is indeed over—for us," he said glumly.

He would have been even more convinced if he had seen lone British dispatch riders "liberating" a village on the fringe of the main advance.

Medium Bombers Are Based In France

NINTH AIR FORCE HEADQUARTERS, in France, Sept. 4. (AP)—American Marauder medium bombers now are operating from base in France, it was disclosed today.

The number of groups based in France was not announced but likely will be increasing steadily as fighter fields move constantly toward the front.

LONDON, Sept. 4. (AP) — The German Transocean agency broadcast tonight that American bombers had raided Nanking, causing slight damage. The broadcast did not specify the date of the raid.

CORSICANA, Sept. 4. (AP)—R. G. (Preacher) Fields, 29, of Bazette, died here today in a hospital from injuries received Thursday when two horses collided at the fairgrounds while tournament practice was in progress.

Fields, rider of one of the horses, suffered internal injuries. R. C. Farmer of Roane, rider of the other horse in the accident, escaped injury.

HELLCATS DELIVER

ROME, Sept. 4. (U.P.)—Carrier-borne Grumman Hellcats destroyed 487 German vehicles during the invasion of southern France, and a single squadron of the same kind of planes wrecked 23 locomotives and 195 railroad cars, the Navy announced today.

Battle Of Buzz Bombs Finished

LONDON, Sept. 4 (AP) — The battle of the buzz bombs appeared to be ended in another Allied victory tonight—80 days after the announcement that the unmanned projectiles were being sent against England.

With planes now released from defense activities against the flying bombs and their launching sites, assaults on the Reich and German Army are expected to be intensified on a vast scale.

Many Planes Released

Thousands of Allied aircraft have been used against the buzz bombs, counting the great fleets of heavy and medium bombers, fighter bombers and fighters used in raiding the buzz bomb coast and robot supply depots farther inland and the hundreds assigned to shoot them down.

Following the Allied sweep to the buzz bomb coast and through areas believed to contain supply depots, there have been no reports of robots in England since Friday. Only about 370 were sent over during the past week compared with a previous weekly average of 700.

The lull of the past three days was in spite of weather which was propitious for launching robots. It was so unfavorable today over the continent for manned aircraft there were no reports of Allied air operations from British or Normandy bases.

Mines Ordered Seized Again

(By The Associated Press)

While most American working men stuck to their jobs on Labor day to help clinch a speedy victory over the Axis, the government stepped in for the second time in an effort to halt spreading soft coal mine strikes.

Responding to the appeals of government, military and labor leaders for still greater production on the eve of victory millions gave up their traditional holiday. Navy Secretary Forrestal told them that "great campaigns" are in the offing and the flow of supplies must be maintained.

9,000 Idle In Two States

In western Pennsylvania and West Virgina coal fields, 19 mines employing approximately 9,000 miners were idle as the result of strikes by supervisory employes. Supervisors in many mines, demanding recognition of their union as a bargaining agent, have slated strike votes.

To head off these stoppages, President Roosevelt empowered Secretary of Interior Ickes to take over and operate four Pennsylvania companies operating five of the 19 idle mines and three which had not shut down. It was indicated that the seizure might be extended to a total of about 70 pits in Pennsylvania, West Virginia, and Kentucky.

The government previously had taken over 10 miles. Solid Fuels administration information was that all those which had been closed down by the supervisors' strike, went back into production yesterday.

Col. Simpson Gets News Of Nomination

ROME, Sept. 4. (AP)—Lt. Col. Gordon Simpson learned for the first time today that voters gave him almost a 75,000 vote margin in electing him Democratic nominee for the Texas Supreme court and said he hoped to get home within a month or so.

When he returns to the United States he will talk over with the judge advocate general whether he should resign his commission or whether he will be permitted to go on the inactive list, he said.

"Gosh, that's pretty good," Colonel Simpson said when he learned that he had defeated the incumbent, Justice Richard Critz, by nearly 75,000 votes.

Simpson said he didn't know whether he will have an opponent in November but explained that Republicans usually don't trouble to put up a candidate for the office. He expects to leave the Army in time to take office Jan. 1.

Butler Approves Governor's Plan In Demo Elector Scrap

By DAVE CHEAVENS
Associated Press Staff Writer

AUSTIN, Sept. 4. — Chairman George Butler of the State Democratic Executive committee today said Gov. Coke Stevenson's plan to solve Texas' elector muddle was "a step in the right direction."

Butler announced his tentative approval and at the same time said he believed the Sept. 12 convention should dispose of the issues raised in the United States Supreme court's decision under which Texas Democratic primaries were opened to negro voters.

He also announced appointment of District Judge Otis Duagan of Gilmer as chairman of the credentials sub-committee which will hear contests between rival delegations from several counties at next week's convention.

Butler said someone else might have a better plan, but that he thought the executive committee should make some recommendation to the convention under which no Democrat would be disfranchised in the November election.

"It appears to me the only way the people can decide the issue is to print two sets of electors."

Clint C. Small of Austin, floor leader of the majority at the May convention, issued a statement in which he said the nomination of the presidential electors then was an effective and conclusive as nomination of the governor and other state officials in the July primaries."

Hundreds Of Romans Slain During German Occupation

ROME, Sept. 4. (AP)—From 300 to 1,000 Romans were shot and killed or beaten to death and more than 1,000 severely injured during Nazi occupation of Rome as a direct result of orders given by the German security command, the Allied Control commission announced today.

All Germans listed on the rolls of command headquarters in the Via Tasso will be held responsible for such brutalities, the commission said. Three in particular were singled out who, the commission pledged, "will be called upon to defend themselves before a court if they ever are found alive and in Allied hands."

The report said the Germans never relaxed their terror grip on Rome, and heights of savage fury were reached with the reprisal execution of 320 hostages at the Ardeatine caves on the eve of the Allied entry into the capital, when the Germans feared risings of patriot groups.

The report also said that the Nazis seized the son of Marshal Pietro Badoglio, Mario, took him north in May and then sent him to Berlin for safekeeping as a valuable hostage.

The three singled out in the report for swift trial and punishment if caught, were described thus:

Obersturmbannfuehrer Herbert Kappler; hard, ruthless, efficient; known to the Roman population as "Col. Kappler of the SS;" 37 years old, smooth talker, ladies' man and considered the most influential German security leader in Italy.

Obergruppenfuehrer Karl Wolff: 44 years old, identified as head of the SS and German police forces in Italy; generally stationed in Vernoa.

Hauptman von Schutz: graduate of the Nazi school for saboteurs, spies and counter-espionage agents; drank a lot, consorted with women, seemed perpetually overwrought.

The Woman's Angle
By Margaret Turner

SOMETIMES you hear people say we are suffering from inflation, despite work of the OPA. But it's nothing as compared with the situation in China. For instance over there the cost of living has increased 440 times what it was before the war. Ten cigarettes cost $100 in Chinese money and a new shirts costs approximately half a month's average wage.

Fortunately China is an agricultural country with good opportunity for American investment after the war and having come this far it's unlikely that she will collapse. One road to Tokyo likely will lead through China.

STORY OF FLAG

INTERESTING details of the history of a flag the late Lt. (jg) George Zarafonetis, Lubbock, sent his father, Charlie Zarafonetis of Hillsboro, from North Africa last year, have been given in a letter written to the Hillsboro man by Warrant Officer Ralph F. B. Moore, now of Chicago, who was in Africa at the time of the Lubbock man's death.

W/O Moore says the flag is most likely the one pictured in the November 1942 issue of Life magazine. "It is further the first flag of the United States planted and raised on the port of Arzew, Alegeria, and probably the first American flag hoisted on the continent of Africa, as the port of Arzew was one of the first to be taken. At any rate it was among the first.

"It is impossible to say where the flag was hoisted first as compared to time," Moore continued, "but there was none sooner for sure. George carried that wonderful flag from Scotland to Africa and personally raised it on the port of Arzew, the first liberated spot on the African continent.

"In sincerity and humility I say you have reason to be extremely proud of that flag and so very proud of the fine officer who raised it in Arzew."

FOR OVERSEAS' BOX

ANOTHER recipe for a cooky that will be excellent for that soldiers' Christmas box to be sent overseas was telephoned to the Woman's Angle by Mrs. W. C. Rylander who says this amount will make about six dozen cookies.

"The ingredients are all available in Lubbock stores and the cookies, which are called "hermits with bran" keep well, that is if you can hide them from the family," Mrs. Rylander added.

One cup fat, 2 cups dark brown sugar, four tablespoons molasses, two eggs, four tablespoons cream, one teaspoon nutmeg one-half teaspoons cinnamon, one teaspoon cloves, one teaspoon nutmeg, one-half teaspoon salt, one cup chopped raisins, one-half cup chopped nuts, one cup bran (your favorite kind), three cups flour, one teaspoon soda.

Cream the fat and gradually, add the sugar. Add other ingredients as you would in making any other cooky. Drop on cooky tin in small amounts from a spoon, taking care not to place the cookies too close. Bake twelve minutes in a moderate oven.

COLLEGE GIRL

IF YOUR daughter is going off to college bothered by skin flareups, don't shrug these off as a phase. Sometime those recurring pimples mean nothing and sometimes they are warnings of a chronic acne condition, cause of which you must find out before you bundle her off to school.

If the trouble is acne, her complexion care at college should be directed by a medical skin specialist, not left to a youngster's hit-or-miss methods of coping with her problem.

A dermatologist will prescribe correct cleansing methods and the proper diet.

If a girl comes out of college feeling miserable because of a blemished skin, she won't be the self-assured young woman you want her to be.

FOR MEN ONLY

Scientists have now found that men who are run down, and no longer have the ability to enjoy life as they once did, may be suffering from a deficiency of certain essential vitamins and hormones. Middle-aged men especially may be the victims of this embarrassing condition. Tromone, the new medical discovery, combines the necessary vitamins and hormones that may make it possible for you to get a kick out of life again. If taken in sufficient quantities, to make up your vitamin-hormone deficiency, Tromone may stimulate your vitality, give you the verve and zest of a much younger man. Added years may no longer deprive you of desired enjoyments once you begin to use Tromone. Note: follow directions on label. Tromone for sale at Anderson's Drug Store and druggists everywhere. Adv.

Camacho Favors Reform Program

MEXICO CITY, Sept. 4. (AP) — Mexicans set out today to work toward objectives outlined in President Manuel Avila Camacho's annual message recently — intensified education, more industries, political cal, increased agricultural and mining production, improved rail and port facilities.

Meanwhile political discussion was rife over ouster of Herminit Ahumada as president of the lower house of congress after his colleagues expressed displeasure at his response to the chief executive's message.

The chief executive, in his message to the opening congressional session, said a campaign against illiteracy has begun. Government and private interests have donated nearly $11,000,000 for building new schools.

Army, Navy Enlarged

The army and navy have been reorganized and enlarged. New military industries have been established.

A $16,000,000 debit of the official Bank of Mexico was paid in four months, reflecting an improved financial position.

Highway construction was pushed, including work on the inter-American highway between Mexico City and the Guatemalan border.

Ahumada, in his response, referred to "single party" activities, called for "equal rights for all regardless of religion or creed," described war as "mass murder in cold blood," and talked of "the tragedy of the Mexican democracy." His colleagues voted to expel him from the party of the Mexican revolution, the administration party to which nearly all congressmen belong.

The Coast Guard has maintained law and order along Alaskan coasts since the acquisition of that territory.

Wichita Man To Talk At Roosevelt-Truman Meeting Here Friday

An address by Bert King, prominent Wichita Falls attorney, will highlight the area-wide Roosevelt-Truman club meeting to be held here Friday night, W. W. Campbell, president of the Lubbock club announced today.

Also feautred will be talks from various South Plains Democrats in favor of Texas electors supporting the nominees of the party in the November election.

Plans for the meeting, which will be conducted in the courthouse Friday night at 8:30 o'clock, are going forward and indications point toward an enthusiastic gathering, Campbell said today. J. O. Jones, chairman of the executive committee arranging the meeting has extended invitations to several hundred regular Democrats over the South Plains. He said an attendance of more than 500 was already indicted for the meeting.

The meeting is one of a series being conducted over the state prior to the state Democratic convention at Dallas next week. Houston Democrats have announced a similar organization there.

Getting Haircut In French Village Called Full Career

By SID FEDER
Associated Press Staff Writer

SENAS, France, Aug. 28. (Delayed)—Getting a haircut in a French village barbershop is practically a career, and certainly a liberal education in the higher art. In fact, the boys who have tried it in the course of this invasion insist they know now what killed vaudeville.

If you don't believe that, try sitting in a barber chair munching on a slice of juicy melon held in one hand and drinking a glass of wine from the other while the coiffeur sprays your locks all over the place, including (A) the melon and (B) the wine.

Later, a doughboy will inquire if that's a new type GI camouflage or a bird's nest you are wearing.

Looie, the party on the operating end of the scissors doesn't take any off the top but he takes it off the sides down to the bone, especially when he applies a razor that would have been hard put to make an impression on a roquefort cheese, and uses it without benefit of soap or other substance with which to soften the hair.

Then you make the mistake of offering Looie an American cigarette. This is fatal. It must be explained that American cigarettes are a delicacy in these parts like breast of guinea hen under glass.

Up to then Looie had been operating on your scalp with both hands but now the cigarette requires one, so he proceeds one-handed. Have you ever had your hair cut by a barber holding both the comb and the shears in the same hand?

The chief difference between the French village barber and the plain American variety is that the American scissor and razor specialist merely bends the ear of his customer with his chit chat about the weather and politics and the big fight last night. The French village clipper not only gives you the complete roundup; he feels it necessary to wander all around his shop to fill in everybody in the place on the local news and even goes to the front entrance and proceeds to elaborate on it in a conversation with Jacques in the butcher shop across the street.

And the only transmitter he needs are his two good lungs. The result is that although you entered the barber emporium clean shaven, wanting only a haircut, you have a full grown beard by the time he is finished clipping your locks. This is known as good business.

Of course, with Looie giving out with the free advertising it's no time at all before half the village has crowded into his place to see le American liberator, thereby necessitating additional handshakes between yourself and each villager. This is accompanied by considerable free advice concerning just what Looie should do with your hair. It also is accompanied by the aforementioned melon and wine which a kindly housewife brings in and insists you take. By that time, however, you have hair inside and out. Never mind the tonic, Looie.

Moderate Declines In Farm Prices Noted

AUSTIN, Sept. 4. (U.P.) — The mid-August price report of the U. S. Agriculture department today showed further moderate declines for most Texas grain crops and meat animals, except hogs, and significant increases for hogs, potatoes, new crop sweep potatoes and hay as compared with a month ago.

As a whole prices were above levels of Aug. 15, 1943, while livestock and livestock products were generally below a year ago.

Response Of Vets To Job Plan Heavy Here

Response to an appeal by the Texas Unemployment Compensation commission to discharged service men and women who are eligible to apply for compensation under the provision of the "GI" bill of rights, was overwhelming here, said Hunter W. Richardson, manager of the Lubbock office.

"We have had a house full all day," Richardson said Monday, first day for making applications. "Most applicants were part-time workers who have been discharged because of disability and are unable to do heavy work."

Readjustment allowances will vary in duration from 8 weeks minimum to 52 weeks maximum, according to length of service, he said. Totally unemployed veterans who are eligible and make application will receive $20 a week while those partially employed may receive the difference betwen their weekly earnings and $25.

Post-War Credit Plans Discussed By Cooper

Post-war credit plans were discussed by Wade Cooper, Lubbock banker, at the luncheon Monday of the Junior Chamber of Commerce in Hilton hotel.

When peace is once again restored, Cooper said, large expansion is expected in all lines of business and vast sums of money will be required for this expansion. The banks of the nation have the reserve to help finance the program, but a huge amount of credit will be needed and banks are the logical means of supplying this credit, there being more than $100,000,000,000 (billion) on deposit in the nation's banks and their having huge resources.

The great production in the post war period will be financed by private enterprise or the government, he said.

Cooper rapped the federal government's lending agencies by stating that government lending will lead to the government's entry into other classes of business. "Free enterprise should have the chance to do the job," he said, adding that this nation was built on free enterprise.

The speaker told of the organization meeting of the Post-War Small Business Credit commission, composed of 42 bankers representing every section of the nation. Cooper is a member of this commission.

Cooper was introduced by Walter Switzer, program chairman. Presiding was Cliff Cummings, president.

Armed Services Lose 1,607,366 Since '41

WASHINGTON, Sept. 4. (AP) — Principally through discharges, United States armed services have lost 1,607,366 officers and enlisted personnel since the war started.

The Navy reported today that separations from the naval service —including the Marines and Coast guard—since Dec. 7, 1941, total 328,366 officers and enlisted personnel.

Previously the Army had announced that its separations totaled 1,279,000 officers and men, of whom 967,000 were discharged, 74,000 are dead either from battle wounds or natural causes, 72,000 are listed as prisoners or are missing, and "other separations" total 166,000.

Discharges from the naval service likewise make up the greater part of the total separations, numbering 254,831 officers and men in the Navy and Marines. Coast guard figures were not available.

New Brick Buildings Planned In Morton

MORTON, Sept. 4. (Special) — Plans are being made here for the construction of at least 10 new brick buildings in the Morton business district as soon as war frozen materials are released.

Several business men from other sections of the country are keeping their eyes on Morton and Cochran county with keen interest. Some are buying lots with intentions to build here. New farmers continue to arrive in the county to make their home and new land is still being broken at a rapid pace — and even yet the county is not more than 40 per cent settled.

Oil development is making fast strides, with proven territory only a few miles from Morton. Many oil field workers are driving from other towns to work near Morton because of a shortage of houses here. More than 100 modern homes are needed now. Housing has become acute, with many homes and apartments over-crowded.

Court Battle Looms On Custody Of Youth

DALLAS, Sept. 4. (U.P.)—A millionaire Texas oilman and his former wife squared off today in preparation for a dramatic court battle over the custody of their 14-year-old son.

John E. Wrather of Longview charges that his former wife, Irene Wrather of Dallas, is not giving proper care of John McDonald Wrather, a student at Terrill school here.

Mrs. Wrather, in a 1942 court decree, was given custody of the boy during school months, and the father was to have him during vacation.

Young Wrather now is with his father who asks the court if he must give up the boy to his mother when school starts. Wrather says his former wife works and does not have time to devote to their son.

An investigation is proceeding, he said.

The six were Paul Manning, Mutual Broadcasting system; John Maynes, Reuters; James McGlincy, United Press; Larry Leseur, Columbia Broadcasting system, and Robin Duff and Howard Marshall, both of the British Broadcasting corporation.

Nazis May Hold Belgian King

WASHINGTON, Sept. 4. (AP) — The Germany army, now fleeing across Belgium toward the Reich, probably will take Belgium King Leopold along for "bargaining purposes," Chairman Bloom (D-NY) of the House foreign affairs committee said today.

"That has been the German idea all along," Bloom told an interviewer. "Just as they took Petain, and they will take the king of Denmark along when the time comes.

"They'll use them for bargaining purposes with the Allies."

King Leopold has been a self-styled "voluntary captive" of the Nazis since Belgium was overrun in 1940. He capitulated, declaring he could not see the Belgians slaughtered, and the British were caught at Dunkirk.

Leopold In High Regard

The Belgian cabinet in exile has been the legal government since, Rep. Corys (R-Ohio), influential member of the House foreign affairs committee, said that he spoke with some Belgian officials in Washington some months ago and they had a high opinion of Leopold.

"They seemed to feel at that time that Leopold did only what he could and that since, his behavior has been exemplary," Vorys said.

"Many times since, they told me, the Germans tried to get Leopold into the position of being a collaborator but the underground has reported that the king turned down every opportunity."

LeMaire Is Named To Direct Levelland Band

LEVELLAND, Sept. 4. (Special)—Levelland High school band will be directed this year by Harry LeMaire, who has directed numerous bands and conducted several symphony orchestras.

He was formerly bandmaster, 11th U. S. infantry; bandmaster Motor Transport corps; bandmaster of a 85-piece concert band at Fort Sam Houston. He organized and conducted "Banda Juvenile" concert band, San Antonio; was bandmaster of a 56-piece Masonic band, Fort Smith, Ark.; was directer of a symphony orchestra in Dallas, and director of Texas Tech's colorful band for more than eight years.

He was the ranking bandmaster of the United States when directing the National Guard band in Service battery, 131st Field Artillery, press accounts said.

Besides conducting the school band, he will direct a high school chorus.

CLUB BOYS AWARDED

BROWNFIELD, Sept. 4. (Special—The Lone Star Farmer degree, highest state award offered Future Farmers of America, has been presented to six boys here: Earl Sears, J. A. Chambliss, Norris Kempson, Willard Brock, Billy Winn and Leonard Ellington. Awards cited "outstanding work in vocational agriculture."

The Gallup Poll Shows:

U. S. Public Confused Over Post-War European Peace

By GEORGE GALLUP, Director American Institute of Public Opinion

PRINCETON, N. J., Sept. 4. — Once Germany is defeated, any peace arrangements must be acceptable to the majority of American citizens; yet to date leaders in this country have made no special effort to enlighten the public on peace problems.

GALLUP

For example, in a survey just completed by the Institute, the great majority of the public believe Germany should be dealt with severely, in fact, reduced to the status of a third-rate power, and that the Allies should supervise the education and training of German youth after the war.

At the same time, the American people are making the comfortable assumption that military occupation of Germany will be a matter of only two or three years.

Obviously, if peace table planners are thinking in terms of 20 or 25 years of occupation during which the youth of Germany is to be re-educated, a large task remains to be done in explaining the necessity of such action to the U. S. public.

THE attitude being taken by the public at the present time is emphasized in replies to the two following questions dealing with supervision of education and occupation:

"Do you think the Allies should supervise the education and training of German youth after this war?"

The replies:

YES	66%
NO	19
UNDECIDED	15

Comment made in connection with this question underlines the public conviction that educational supervision of German youth is necessary to wean the younger generation of Germans from the totalitarian and military philosophies of the Hitler regime. Here are some of the typical comments:

"Yes, teach them Democratic ways . . . Wean them away from Hitlerism . . . Teach them world spirit rather than national spirit . . . We've got to counteract the military teachings."

Yet replies to the following question indicate that a great many people do not appreciate fully the requirements of such a policy:

"About how long do you think we should keep some of our armed forces in Germany to maintain peace and order after the war?"

6 months and under	13%
1 year	20
2 to 3 years	18
4 to 10 years	21
Over 10 years	14

Fourteen per cent specified no particular period of time. The median average of all opinions is between two and three years.

British Casualties Set At 1,091,628

The figure includes 925,963 casualties in the armed forces, 33,573 in the Merchant marine and 132,092 civilian air raid victims. The total will increase when lists of additional casualties for merchant seamen and civilians up to July 31 are completed.

Red Raider Squad Grows As Summer Students Move In

Coach Dell Morgan began to center his attention on the offensive Monday afternoon as the Texas Tech Red Raiders began the first full week of fall practice with the squad swollen to almost full strength with the return of squadmen sent home last week for a brief vacation following the close of summer school classes.

About 70 boys took the field Monday, with one or two others expected to join the squad today.

With the squad at peak strength, Coaches Morgan and Robison began to work on the offensive and staged a rough dummy scrimmage session Monday after working on new plays and punting during the early part of the workout.

The squad has been handicapped for the lack of headgears for scrimmage sessions, but coaches hope to have the Raiders butting heads before the end of the week.

Among the new additions to the squad Monday was Bobby Hayes, the third letterman of the team. T. M. Cox and Don Dudley, the other two lettermen back this season, were out last week.

Another new addition to the Red Raider squad Monday was Homer Lawson, District 1-AA All-District tackle of last season with the Lubbock Westerners. It was Lawson's first day out, and brought the total of players in the recent Texas All-Star game at Wichita Falls in the Red Raider camp to six men. The others were Billy Joe Snodgrass, Seth Murphy, Cecil Harper, Ed Orr and Don Orr.

Schoolboy Elevens Start Harder Work

With the sands of time running low before the first football game of the season, the Lubbock Westerners buckled down to real business Monday afternoon, and started working on plays to be used this season.

Coach J. Mule Davis indicated Monday afternoon that he would test the plays this afternoon in a rough and tumble scrimmage session. The Lubbock mentor has only two weeks to whip the Westerners into shape for the game here on the night of Sept. 15 with the Odessa Bronchos, one of the toughest teams in the state.

The Lubbock Cowhand squads were given a big boost in number Monday afternoon as lettermen stars from last year's Cowboy eleven reported ot Coaches Marlin "Shorty" Hayhurst and George Philbrick.

Uniforms were being issued Monday afternoon to the four junior high teams that will take the field this season. No report on the number of uniforms issued was announced.

Lufkin Panthers To Start With 2 Wins

LUFKIN Sept. 4. (U.P.)—Not a game has been played in the Texas Interscholastic League football race this fall, but one of he favorite to advance into the playoffs already has chalked up two victories.

Cheers of triumph for the two victories marked up by the Lufkin Panthers in district 12 AA have a false ring, however. The games were won by forfeit.

Two of the five other teams in the district — Jacksonville and Palestine—refused to fulfil; their scheduled games with Lufkin this fall and the league ordered the games forfeited to the Panthers who went to the state finals last year before losing to the San Angelo Bobcats.

The refusal grew out of an intradistrict squabble last year over elligibility of several Lufkin players, the result of which cost the Lufkin entry the services of their All-State back, Jitter McKinney. Jacksonville, Palestine and Henderson did not sever relations with the champions.

As a result, Lufkin's confer ice season will consist of only three games—against Henderson, Livingston and Nacogdoches.

Bill Dean's Win Junior Playoff

Bill Dean's Service was crowned champions of the National League junior baseball loop Sunday afternoon after winning a close 2 to 1 decision over the Hemphill-Wells Cats. Dean's won the first half, tied for the second half with the Cats, but lost a second half playoff, then came back to win the full season championship.

It was a great pitching duel between two of the outstanding young pitchers of the season, with Jack Vaughn winning the decision over Bob Galey as each pitcher limited the opposition to six hits.

The Cats bunched two hits in the fifth inning to take the lead, Cooper opening the round with a double and scored on Balch's single. Dean's tied the score in the seventh and won the game in the tenth when two errors by Balch allowed the only runs.

It was a heart breaker for Galey to lose. The Cats' ace moundsman threw the third strike past 16 batters, and only one time was he ever in the hole, this the fifth innning with Newsom and Murphy singled in order, then Galey retired the next three in order. Vaughn had just as great a day, and whiffed ten men.

It was perhaps one of the best games of the season, and was a true championship battle that rang down the curtain on the junior baseball play and was a suitable finale to a great year for the sport.

What has Cake Baking to do with Synthetic Tires?

Six women, starting with the same ingredients, will bake cakes of widely varying quality. Why? Because it takes more than just the ingredients for a really good cake...you've got to have THAT SPECIAL "KNACK"

General has a special "knack," too...in compounding synthetic rubber for Prewar Mileage

More important to you today, than ever, is General's famous "knack" for getting more mileage out of rubber. Because, in synthetic tires, this same "knack" now gives you a General that has proved it is as far ahead in mileage as Generals always have been.

From start to finish, General uses its own special formula to build a tire that is a Top-Quality General, in every way. A tire with the kind of extra mileage for which Generals have always been famous.

There is actually far more difference in tires now than before. Co... let us show you why.

WHEN YOU BUY... BE SURE OF LONG MILEAGE

LET US SHOW YOU THE RECORDS OF LOCAL GENERAL SYNTHETIC USERS

You must have your present tires recapped, if possible . . . but, when you get a precious new-tire certificate, use it for the tire that has proved that it gives you Top-Quality as only General knows how to build it.

GOOD NEWS FOR BUSINESS MEN

The post-war world will see a tremendous growth of small business in America. One of the major problems will be credit. The American Bankers Association, of which we are a member, has just established a new Post-War Small Business Credit Commission to mobilize the credit facilities of banks for this purpose. Business men can be sure that American banking will serve them as well in peace as in war.

OUR PLEDGE

WE pledge allegiance to the flag of the United States of America, and to the Republic for which it stands; One Nation, indivisible, with Liberty and Justice for all.

Poor Basis For Disagreement

MANY Americans may find it difficult to understand the basis for recent criticisms reported in England because of a promotion which gives U. S. Lt. Gen. Omar N. Bradley equal status with British Gen. Sir Bernard L. Montgomery as a field command.

The gist of the British reasoning, according to the reports, is that the step-up for General Bradley "amounts to a demotion for General Montgomery because he was not advanced, too." Perhaps that is sound reasoning, though many Americans may consider it far-fetched.

However, it should be emphasized that all the criticisms have come from unofficial quarters. Whether it may reflect official British opinion is not clear.

But, regardless of its cause, justifications and source, that sort of criticism is unfortunate. It invites the kind of nationalistic bickering among the masses, if not among higher-ups, which isn't good for unity.

Criticisms of that kind easily might cause Americans to ask what's wrong with giving the American field commander equal status with the British leader? Conceivably, bickering of this nature might lead Americans to turn to lists of dead, wounded and missing which consistently have shown that U. S. casualties in France have been far heavier than among the British. This means, presumably, that invasion forces are predominately American which, if true, is not surprising. Plenty of advance notice was given that, after the actual landings, Americans would have to carry the heavier invasion burden.

But to thinking people it is going to seem more than slightly petty to engage in argumentative bickering over who has what title when men are dying in France by the thousands. Certainly this is not a time for the display of nationalistic jealousies over matters that are trifling when compared with the total stakes involved.

It is unthinkable that anyone could have any thought of attempting to cast reflections upon General Montgomery, one of the truly great leaders of the war. But even an injustice to him would not be a proper subject for critical comment while all Allied leaders still are confronted with the problem of a war to win.

A Friend's Anniversary

AMERICANS everywhere most properly can and should pay tribute today to the memory of one of the truest and finest friends that any nation ever has been privileged to have.

That friend was Lafayette—or, more fully, the Marquis Marie Joseph Paul Yves Roch Gilbert du Motier de Lafayette, born 187 years ago today on Sept. 6, 1757, near Auvergne, France. Without his help, it is extremely doubful whether the War of the American Revolution could have been won.

Strangely enough, relatively few people seem to realize the youth of Lafayette when he cast his lot with the Colonists. He still was a boy of 19 years when he first came to America.

His trip was most eventful. Between the time of his decision to join with our Founding Fathers and his actual departure from France, the Colonists suffered such serious reverses that efforts were made to persuade the young Frenchman to abandon his venture. Even Benjamin Franklin joined in these efforts. Lafayette would not be dissuaded. Then his king forbade him to leave France. Lafayette boarded ship anyway, only to be arrested and removed by royal command. He escaped, made his way in disguise to Spain and took passage to America from there.

Lafayette was anything but a retiring young man. Arriving in America, he demanded that he be made second to General George Washington, the commander-in-chief. That didn't get over with the Colonists too well, so the young Frenchman proposed to enlist as a private. Thereupon, the Continental Congress made him a major general on July 31, 1777. Less than two months later, on Sept. 11, he was severely wounded at the Battle of Brandywine.

His contributions as a military commander were unimportant to the success of the Revolution. But he made other contributions without which the Revolution almost certainly would have been lost. His exploits appealed to the imagination of his countrymen. He aroused in France an enthusiastic sympathy which materialized into the assistance that provided the margin of difference between success and failure in the Revolution.

Americans owe a great deal to Lafayette. The fact that they today are a free and independent nation is due, in no small measure, to him.

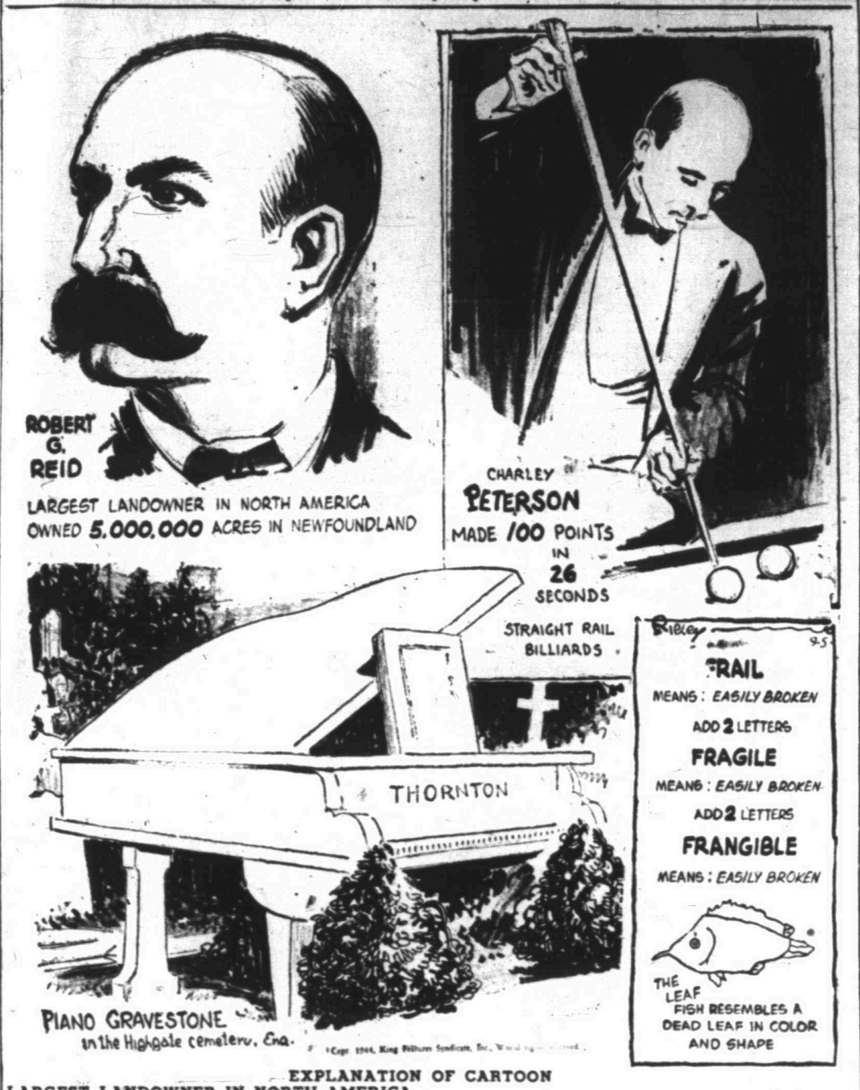

The One Minute Sermon

Let brotherly love continue.

Be not forgetful to entertain strangers: for thereby some have entertained angles unawares.

Remember them that are in bonds, as bound with them; and them which suffer adversity, as being yourselves also in the body.—Hebrews 13: 1-3.

EXPLANATION OF CARTOON

LARGEST LANDOWNER IN NORTH AMERICA

In 1893 Sir Robert G. Reid (1840-1908), a Scotchman, signed a railroad contract with the Government of Newfoundland. This contract provided for the construction in three years of a transinsular railway from St. Johns to Port au Basque, to be paid for by a grant of land amounting to 5000 acres for each mile constructed, in addition to other valuable considerations. In 1898 this contract was amended in a manner as to place Sir Robert in possession of an aggregate of 5,000,000 acres of land, as well as most of the mines, ores, minerals, railroads, streamships, docks, telegraph lines, and timber of the country.

TANK CORPS COMMANDER

VIII

WE find Captain Eisenhower at Fort Leavenworth in Kansas, near his old boyhood home at Abilene, as Instructor of Provisional Officers at the Army Service Schools from Dec. 1, 1917, to March 1, 1918; then organizing the 65th Battalion Engineers at Camp Meade, in Maryland, and finally commander at Camp Colt, the old Gettysburg battlefield in Pennsylvania, not far from the birthplace of his father, from March 24 to Nov. 18, 1918.

This is a story told about Ike at Gettysburg. He had a junior officer who always agreed with him. Turning to the "yes man," he exclaimed, "I want you to figure out some things which are wrong with this camp. You make me uncomfortable by always agreeing with me. I feel that you either don't say what you think, or that you are as big a fool as I am!"

Ike handled privates with the same tact he uses with presidents. While stationed at a camp as C. O. he heard of a pair of privates who were constantly battling with one another. He solved the difficulty by assigning the two to a window cleaning detail. They were ordered to work on the same pane at the same time, one doing the outside, the other the inside. At the beginning of the task the two had nothing but scowls and growls for each other. They could not keep up their enmity for long as the humor of the situation began to dawn on them. Soon they bust out laughing. Harmony was restored through Ike's clever tact.

IKE, like his forefathers, was now a pioneer. The age of mechanized warfare was beginning. Fortifications on wheels, known as tanks, were to revolutionize land battles. He saw in these weird moving forts, leading the way for infantry charges, a great future and began to muster their intricacies and develop strategy and maneuvers with amazing skill. He was training and sending his Tank Corps to France where they were making notable records in battle.

The attention of the General Staff at Washington, under its Chief, Gen. Peyton C. March, and the War Department under Secretary Newton B. Baker, was directed to this young captain and made him major of infantry on June 17, 1918, while at Gettysburg. Four months later he was promoted to lieutenant colonel (temparary) of Tank Corps on Oct. 14.

Young Lieutenant-Colonel Eisenhower was in command of 6000 men at Camp Colt. It became the best organized camp in the United States and netted its commander the Distinguished Service Medal at the end of the war. The citation read, "For displaying unusual zeal, foresight, and marked administrative ability in the organization, training, and preparation for overseas service of technical troops of the Tank Corps."

This youthful commander displayed considerable omniscience when he wrote to the Infantry Journay: "The tank is in its infancy and the great strides already made in its mechanical improvement only point to the greater ones still to come. The clumsy, awkward, and snail-like progress of the old tanks must be forgotten and in their place we must picture a speedy, reliable, and efficient engine of destruction." He also became a staunch supporter of air power, visioned its future, and wanted to apply for the Air Corps in 1917, stopping only because of his young bride's objections.

DURING these months while young Eisenhower was sending his trained tankmen to the battlegrounds of France, our American forces under General Pershing were helping turn the tide of the war against the Germans. They were winning the battle at Cantigny and at Bois de Belleau. On the day that Eisenhower, back at Gettysburg, became a major, they were fighting on the front between Soissons and Chateau-Thierry, their lines advancing until they ran from the Ourcq to the Marne. They were engaged in terrific combats in the Argonne and on the roads leading to Verdun. On the day that Eisenhower was made a lieutenant-colonel, American troops were taking Grandpre and advancing along the Meuse.

Lieutenant-Colonel Eisenhower appealed to Washington to go overseas and get into action with his men. But Washington insisted that the work he was doing in training soldiers at home was of equal importance—without these trained Tank Corps men the battles in France could not be won.

General Pershing, his old commander on the Mexican border, was making history in France. Gen. Douglas MacArthur, with whom Eisenhower was later to be connected, was gaining fame. Young Lieutenant Colonel Eisenhower was pulling on the leash—his bulldog spirit was longing to get into the thick of the fight.

He heard with pride the stories that came back home about the Tank Corps in active combat—the famous 301st Battalion which was the only American heavy tank unit on the Western Front. He had trained Number four, of Chicago, at Camp Colt in Gettysburg. They were making a great record for themselves in the Second Somme Offensive.

The Stars and Stripes, the doughboys' official organ in France, featured them in headlines.

"The dangers which they confronted and the splendid spirit of heroism," says this record, "was even greater than those encountered by the men of other branches of the service on the battlefront."

Texas Fire Losses In 7 Months $6,750,000

AUSTIN, Sept. 4. (U.P.) — Fire losses in Texas for the first seven months of the year amounted to $6,750,000, state Fire Insurance Commissioner Marvin Hall said today.

"We are losing a battle on the home ground in our fight to prevent fires," Hall said. "Our losses in Texas from fires through July are within $113,000 of losses for the same time in 1943. Last year was the heaviest fire loss record in Texas since 1932."

Increasing losses were attributed to carelessness. Fires of unknown origin make up the largest classification. Most fires of known origin are caused by careless smokers with a ration of two-to-one over other causes, Hall said.

NEW QUARTERS SOUGHT

MATADOR, Sept. 4. (Special)—Quarters are being solicited for the local postoffice. Postmaster E. F. Springer said the 10-year lease on the present postoffice building will expire Dec. 9. Floor space of about 1,500 feet is desired, Springer said.

Looking At Life - - - - - - By Erich Brandeis

VERA, my secretary, became engaged last night.

When I came to the office this morning, she was very quiet and very sad. I could see there was something wrong.

"What's the matter?" I asked. "You look as if you lost your last friend?"

"I became engaged last night," she said, and there were tears in her eyes. They didn't roll down her cheeks. They just stayed there and made her eyes look very shiny—and wet.

"Good gosh," I said, "if you became engaged, you ought to look happy and full of pep."

And then Vera told me about her engagement. I guess there is a lot of that sort of thing going on these days—that's why I'm telling you about it.

About 9 o'clock the phone rang.

"California calling," said the operator.

Somewhere from California, her sweetheart was calling to tell her that he had received his orders to be ready for immediate shipment.

"Pacific theatre, that's all I know," he said, "and I may not be back for a long while, if ever."

Vera tried to be brave. She loves her captain, a pilot.

"Well, good luck to you, and I hope you'll get back safe."

From the West Coast came a rather shaky "Well, goodbye, Vera, darling,"—and then like the poscript of a letter. "Will you marry me, dear, when I get back?"

She had just about time to say "Yes," when the operator broke in with "Your five minutes are up, will you finish your call please."

That was all. So this morning Vera is engaged, while her fiance is in a plane somewhere over the Pacific, to help make the world safe for lovers and for home and children and, incidentally, for democracy.

IT seems to me that this little incident explains the whole business of war so much better than all the grandiloquent speeches and the mouthings of professional patriots and politicians.

When Vera told me about last night, I felt awfully sorry for the kid. Such anxiety, such a long wait, such torture.

But Vera said: "I guess I shouldn't feel so sad. After all, I'm only one in millions. And at least I have hope and faith that he'll come back to me.

"But look at all the mothers and wives and sweethearts whose men will never come back. It's selfish to think about yourself at a time like this, isn't it?"

And Vera smiled—and tonight and every following night Vera will pray for her captian's safe return.

I know her prayers will be answered

The News Behind The News

WASHINGTON
By Ray Tucker

UNION members' protests against what they call Sidney Hillman's "undemocratic and terroristic activities" in CIO-controlled plants have begun to flood Washington, as the presidential campaign approaches the post-Labor Day stretch.

The writers, who have described conditions to legislators, newspaper correspondents, administration aides and rival organizations like the AFL and UMW, warn that the needles trades czar may lose as many votes as he gains for FDR. Certain Democratic leaders share this fear, and would like to shove the New Yorker into the background along with such eminent exiles as Harry Hopkins, Henry Wallace, Mrs. Roosevelt and Donald M. Nelson.

The complainants report a tremendous shift of workingmen's sentiment away from the President because of his alliance with the Hillman faction. They declare that, whereas 75 or 80 per cent of their fellowmen voted for him in 1932, 1936 and 1940, only 25 per cent will do so in November.

Most observers do not anticipate so large a drop in the pro-Roosevelt union support. But they recognize that he cannot afford as little as a 20 or 30 per cent sag. Even a limited defection in this group may cost him several industrial and electorally important states.

The dissenters maintain that neither private nor public polls measure the extent and seriousness of this revolt. Anti-Hillmanites say that they dare not express their views or work openly for the GOP because non-conformity would provoke pay-roll retaliation against them in the CIO-dominated shops.

VOICE: The reasons given for widespread resentment against Mr. Hillman's arbitrary rule and fourth-term endeavors appear plausible at least. What these workers dread is politico-economic regimentation that will jeopardie their jobs if they do not go along.

Here is an excerpt from the letter of a shipbuilder in Bellingham, Washington, a state which the Democrats carried by 140,000 in 1940, and which they expect to win again:

"I work in a yard with 800 men, and I can tell you that 75 per cent will vote for Dewey. Why? Because we well know what will happen to us if Hillman, Browder and the CIO take us over . . . There is a feeling within the people that you men at Washington do not understand, but I think you will after Election Day."

Others kick because the rank and file have no voice in deciding on union and individual contributions to the fourth-term fund or for other purposes. Here is a typical grievance from a shipyard worker in New Jersey:

SCAB: "If a man does not subscribe to the CIO's financial demands, he is immediately classed as not a good union worker, and he is discriminated against. I have seen them do it. And it makes no difference to them whether he is the most efficient man in a plant working for the Navy.

"I know of a case where a man has been on a large milling machine for seven years. He is still held down as a helper on account of union rules, although for three years the man he was helper to was going blind, and he had to do all the work without getting the pay. He does not go to union meetings, and belongs only because he has to if he wants to keep his job.

"They say that maintenance of membership does not make a closed shop. But let a man get a job at New York Ship, and see how long he lasts if he doesn't join the union . . .

"We also object to the Shipworkers' union giving Camden City $40,000 for the Child Delinquency program, when 60 per cent of the membership live outside. Also the union officials have their pictures taken giving $50,000 to the Red Cross, and $100,000 for something else, although the members had no say about it.

"When they have a meeting about these things, only 600 or 700 of a 25,000 membership can get in the hall, but what they do binds everybody. If you find fault with anything the union does, you are a scab and they put the pressure on you. If you say that you don't favor the administration, and will not vote for it, you don't last long."

LIQUOR: Uncle Sam appears to be growing mellow and tolerant in several sectors on the home front. "Old Mister Whiskers" makes no attempt to enforce laws that interfere with certain "personal liberties." It seems almost as if prohibition were here again.

Every state except Nevada, for instance, bans coin gambling machines known as "one-armed bandits." But in the 1944 fiscal year the Treasury collected $100 each on nearly 78,000 of these devices—an income of approximately $8,000,000.

Payment of the levy gives no immunity from state and local laws. It does protect the operators from tax-dodging charges.

Kansas, Mississippi and Oklahoma forbid the sale of liquor. But 18 inhabitants of the Sunflower State paid $110 each, as wholesalers, and 546 forked over $27.50 each as retailers. Mississippi had 62 wholesalers and 1,300 retailers, while Oklahoma had seven of the former and about 500 of the latter.

In Virginia it is illegal to buy the hard stuff except through state-operated outlets. But some 4,000 paid the retail liquor tax!

CADWAY: The Army's inauguration of overseas symposiums for free discussion of "Postwar America" has caused almost as bitter tumult as the battles themselves. If the ulterior motive was to create a hands-across-the-sea sentiment, the experiment threatens to be a flop.

The most extensive sessions so far have been held in the back areas in Italy, but they will be staged whenever and wherever a real lull in the fighting occurs. Colonels down to privates participate without regard to rank, and there seems to be no attempt to propagandize the troops one way or the other.

The GIs divide on the question of "isolationism" and "internationalism" almost as do the folks back home, although they do not use those terms. The two factions are known as the "me for me" and the "help the conquered" groups, after the fashion of Army slang.

In Italy, according to private and official reports, the so-called "America First" crowd appears to be in the majority. This is attributed to their unhappy experiences in poverty-stricken North Africa and in Mussolini's former empire.

They have been sickened by the squalor in Sicily and southern Italy, which apparently reaped few benefits from the Fascist regime. In those areas not even the trains "ran on time." Consequently, the people in that region were grateful for Allied deliverance and food supplies.

Incidentally, soldiers returning from other parts of the world, notably China and India, also wonder how Uncle Sam can undertake the assignment of raising their living standards with the expectation of making any appreciable headway.

BITTERNESS: The populace north of Rome is definitely hostile to our invaders and still unbelievably Fascist-minded. Their behavior suggests why Il Duce fled there after his arrest in the anticipation that they would rally around him.

The farms in this section are laden with fruits and vegetables; the cellars are bulging with wine. But they overcharge our boys for everything, and will rarely part with their rich beverages. They offer the excuse that the Nazis looted their barns and pantries.

In short, conditions are so bad that superior officers have ordered their commands not to place too much trust in the inhabitants lest they "have an enemy in their rear."

In the last conflict Uncle Sam's doughboys were frequently shortchanged by the French, especially after the Armistice. The natives were not entirely blameworthy. They were weary of war, and they wanted the strangers to get off their property.

But one unfortunate result was the wave of bitterness toward France which swept the United States in the early twenties.

No Peace In Sight In This Home Front War

Farmers' Fight On Bugs Is Annually Costing Fortune

By ERNEST WARREN
Associated Press Staff Writer

WASHINGTON, Sept. 4. — War or no war, the home front battle against bugs, which costs the farmers at least three billion dollars annually, goes on without armistice.

More than 80,000 varieties of insect saboteurs, such as boll weevils, Hessian flies, grasshoppers and crickets, continue their destructive ways, finding new and larger fields to conquer as the nation presses for more and more food in the war effort.

Shortages in insecticides and manpower to make them effective obviously are a detriment. Yet despite these handicaps, experts of the Agriculture Department's bureau of entomology and plant quarantine report that country-wide depredations are no more than usual. And there are no immediate indications of such grasshopper plagues as harassed the middle and far west a decade ago.

Weather Man Savior

This condition, however, is not dependable and is far from the solution the experts would like. The saving agent was the weather man. The current hot, dry season has cut losses from cotton boll weevils and Hessian flies, although it has worked no hardship on grasshoppers and crickets.

Ask an insect expert whether the over-all picture is good and he'll reply:

"Take cotton. The boll weevil, averaged over a ten-year period, destroys the equivalent of 1,824,000 bales of cotton annually, valued at about $118,083,000. This doesn't take into account the damage done by the cotton flea hopper, stinkbug or the leaf hopper.

"This year the early planting weather was unfavorable in most cotton areas and all the crop didn't get in as planned. Full planting was completed later, so actually there are two crops—early and late."

The experts believe the early crop, thanks to dryness and temperatures which "cook" the weevils, is safe. If August passes without too much rain, experts predict the late crop will reach the gins intact.

Wheat's Enemy No. 1

BOLL WEEVIL trouble thus far has been spotted and light, with some concentration in south Texas, around Brownsville. There appears to be enough calcium arsenate and duster planes to cope with the situation.

In wheat, the Hessian fly — so named because it supposedly arrived in the straw bedding of Revolutionary marcenaries — is the greatest enemy. This winged insect, prevalent in winter-wheat regions, has been known to cause damage of $100,000,000 in a single year.

Hot, dry weather and control methods recommended by the bureau have been effective for the past few seasons, and the fly is not as abundant as formerly. The harvest this year is so great that large quantities are being stored in open bins. The Hessians are expected to take full advantage of this opportunity.

Danger from the flies is about past for the wheat now maturing and less serious for the fall plantings. The entomologists warn, however, that fall plantings must be delayed until the fly disappears or the winter crop will be hurt and spring planting endangered.

Grasshopper Is Big Eater

The grasshopper, one of agriculture's chief insect enemies, costs the nation an annual average of $25,243,000 and has been known to run up a toll of $200,000,000 in a single year.

Spring rains delayed spreading of poisoned bait along highway margins, origin of a lareg portion of the grasshoppers. But the rains also checked their moving into fields, so that control, when started, tended to head off major trouble. There is expected to be some damage in South Dakota this year, largely to sorghum and corn.

The chinch bug, whose natural food is small grains and grass crops, is doing more damage than expected this season, centering principally in Illinois, Indiana and Missouri.

"In times of good crops and high prices, as at present," insect experts say, "farmers go for fertilizers and insecticides in a big way. But let the returns fall off and they'll stint on fertilizer and forget control work altogether."

War Aids The Insects

THE war, even before this country got into it, has plagued the experts seeking new, better and cheaper methods of controlling all types of pests affecting men, animals and plants.

For example, Japan and the Orient were the principal source of the base for rotenone, an excellent poison spray or dust. The demands of the armed forces for poisons need for sanitation and disease carrier control also take chemicals which are essential to farmers and stockmen.

The entomologists say there is enough rotenone, for instance, if it is used wisely and they have discovered diluting, or stretching, agents which make the available supply go farther.

But this has not been enough. In order to know where trouble is likely to hit and to "be there first with the most," the bureau has enlisted the aid of all state agricultural agencies and thousands of 4-H Club boys and girls in a never-ending "insect survey."

WATCH YOUR EATING

AUSTIN, Sept. 4. (U.P.)—Gov. Coke R. Stevenson today designated September as "nutrition month," the proclamation suggesting that "all persons and groups improve their eating habits so they will have the health and strength necessary to meet the demands of war."

Woman Injured In Three-Car Accident

Mrs. J. C. Plemons, 24, of 1516 Twenty-third street, received a fractured pelvis and cuts on the forehead when the car which she was driving was involved in a traffic mishap with two other vehicles Monday night about a half mile outside the city limits on the Slaton highway.

Also injured were M. J. Groom, 23, a soldier stationed at South Plains Army Air field, and L. G. Carlock, who lives at a nursery near the site of the accident. Groom, who was a passenger in the Plemons car, received first aid treatment along with Mrs. Plemons at West Texas hospital. He sustained minor cuts and bruises. He was released. Carlock was merely "shaken up" and bruised according to Lubbock General hospital.

Officers said the accident occurred when a car driven by Roy Edwards Lambright, Lubbock route 2, was being pushed to a start by a car driven by Carlock. The Plemons car rammed the rear end of Carlock's car.

No others were reported injured.

Mrs. Plemons and Groom were taken to West Texas hospital in a Rix ambulance.

garia's frontier, and Moscow dispatches said there were possibilities—with Bulgaria's consent—of sealing off German troops caught in Greece or lower Yugoslavia.

One Trap Liquidated

In the trap sprung weeks ago on 12 German divisions southwest of Chisinau, 210 miles northeast of Buchares, the Russians finally liquidated the last Nazi resistance, killing 3,000 Germans and capturing 3,500, the bulletin said. Among the captives was the commander of the 370th German Infantry division.

This mop-up occurred Saturday and Sunday, making a total of 431,100 Axis troops killed or captured since Aug. 20 when the overwhelming Romanian campaign began, Moscow disclosed.

In ruined Warsaw, meanwhile, Polish underground warriors apparently had given up their costly struggle against the Germans, withdrawing from the city because of a lack of weapons and food after a 34-day battle.

Order Of Day To Patriots

Gen. Kazimierz Sosnkowski, Polish commander-in-chief whom Moscow's press has declared responsible for a premature uprising in Warsaw as part of a political maneuver of the exile government, issued an order of the day to the patriot home Army led by "General Bor."

He said Bor had been blamed because he "did not foresee a sudden halt of the Soviet offensive at the gates of Warsaw" and also that the Poles were "being blamed for a lack of coordination of their uprising with the whole of operational plans in eastern Europe."

"But if needed, we will prove how many times our attempts to achieve such coordination failed completely," said General Sosnkowski.

The commander-in-chief's statement, issued by the Polish press bureau, said the unavailing sruggle inside Warsaw was a "ghastly and tragic riddle" which the Poles were unable to solve, especially in view of the great strength of the Allies on the threshhold of the sixth year of war.

Allies Plunging Toward Reich

miles had broken into Germany along the historic invasion path at Aachen and 100 miles to the south at Perl, but headquarters once more was hiding these armies' operations from the enemy.

Adds To Enemy Confusion

This silence confused an enemy already so bewildered that rearguards were stranded all the way back to Abbeville and Compiegne and other forces fleeing the robot bomb coast were coralled in western Belgium.

But a drive into Luxembourg was presaged by Eisenhower's declaration that the day of liberation for the little duchy had dawned along with Belgium's and asked citizens of both countries "to serve in the battle."

Aneta attributed the report that the British were at Breda, midway between Antwerp and Rotterdam, to sources it considered reliable.

(The Brussels radio, reporting that the capital was entered with a minimum of short skirmishes, said other transmitters would be operating at Antwerp, Gent, Courtrai, and Liege and Namur—indicating wide advances by both the British and American armies.

Dutch Broadcast

(Liege, for example, is less than 25 miles from the Prussian border, well beyond last officially reported American positions. The Brussels broadcast was recorded by the Federal Communications commission.)

"The hour has struck," the Dutch minister said jubilantly in a broadcast to the Netherlands. "Soon the moment will come when the queen will return to your midst to govern in justice and peace.

"Now the Allied armies in their irresistible advance have crossed the Dutch frontier I wish to extend a hearty welcome to them on behalf of you all . . . you will prepare for them a reception they have earned as soldiers in the cause of freedom and as destroyers of the most terrible tyranny the world has ever known."

Already the wealthy industrial regions of southern Belgium and northern France had been freed, and it appeared that the battle for Germany and the Netherlands was about to break three days after the battle for Belgium began.

Message From Eisenhower

Eisenhower sent a message to the people of the Netherlands and Norway to be patient for "your day of liberation approaches."

A British column rolling through the Lowlands of Belgium along the route where Britons fought a bitter rearguard action in 1940 to Dunkerque reached Aalst, 15 miles west of Brussels and midway bettwen the capital and Gent.

Far to the south, the British entered the French industrial city of Lille—population 200,000—and were pounding vengefully down the last 25 miles to Dunkerque and the other channel ports of Calais and Boulogne after capturing Aire.

Another force, sweeping through Armentieres, closed on Yyres, Belgium, where Britons of another generation stood in a thin line and held back the might of the Kaiser's armies.

pines.

Meanwhile, the German Transocean agency reported American airmen operating in a new sector. It said Yank bombers hit Nanking, China, seat of the Japanese-puppet government, causing slight damage.

The military situation in China's strategic Hunan province continued favorable to the Japanese as the fierce fighting in that sector expanded.

With the airbase at Lingling their objective, three Nippon columns were nearing Kyang, 50 miles south of Hengyang, in Japanese-held railway junction. The Chinese offered bitter resistance.

The battle for the Burma road was intensified as the Japanese threw 1,000 men against a Chinese roadblock near the besieged Nippon Lungling base in western Yunnan province.

The all-out mobilization for defense of what Goebbels calls the "sacred soil" of the Reich reached even to gentle poets.

A decree ordered all but 20 of Germany's professional poets to quit their versifying and begin bearing or making arms. The propaganda agency Transocean, reporting this order, said 4,000 poets were working at their trade at the beginning of the war and during the victory years, when there was a brisk demand for victory verse.

Cap Moore Resigns As Deputy Sheriff

Cap Moore is laying aside his gun and badge after 18 years of law enforcement work in Lubbock.

Moore, who was defeated by Grady Harrist for sheriff in the recent runoff primary election, turned in his resignation Monday, effective immediately, it was announced last night by Sheriff Tom Abel.

Moore, who had been chief deputy since last December, said he was quitting to devote full-time to an auto glass business in which he purchased half interest Sept. 1.

Sheriff Abel said he had not yet selected Moore's successor, but that he had received "two or three" applications for the place.

Moore had been a member of Abel's force since the retiring sheriff took office in January, 1933. Moore's first law enforcement job was with the Lubbock police department in 1926. Later he was associated with a local constable's office and served two years as deputy under former Sheriff Bud Johnston.

Finns Quit War

Mannerheim's government announced the armistice, an official government declaration said diplomatic relations with Germany would be broken, and Germany was told that German troops remaining in Finland after Sept. 15 would be disarmed or interned as Allied war prisoners.

Road To Norway Clogged

Unconfirmed Stockholm press reports said that for the past 24 hours a stream of German vehicles moved north toward Norway, and the chief all-weather road in northern Finland had been clogged for the past two days.

German morale in Finland has been known to be low, and it was believed many would prefer to be disarmed rather than traverse the rigorous road back to Norway and more war.

In Berlin, Wilhelmstrasses comment was guarded and non-committal. A spokesman bemoaned the discarding by Finland of the "ideal value" of the Finnish-Nazi partnership, and said not only the people of Germany but "political circles" were surprised at the manner "in which the importance of the German-Finnish relations has been attempted to be minimized."

Final Communique

The final Finnish communique of the war detailed patrol and air activity, and concluded with the word: "In accordance with the agreement made, hostilities ceased Sept. 4 at 8 a. m."

The order was transmitted to Finnish troops before dawn and spread swiftly along the front. The announcement first was broadcast to the people at 5 a. m. (11 p. m. Sunday, eastern war time) and an hour later leaflets told the story to the Helsinki population on its way to work. The people were not particularly happy, but they were obviously relieved. "Thank God—at last," summed up the reaction of many.

porecchio, Stabbia and Psanate. By-passing the huge mass of Mt. Pisano, the Americans advanced more than halfway to the road junction of Pistoia and were more than eight miles north of Empoli.

Driving Rainstorms

Both Allied armies had to contend with driving rainstorms as they strove to destroy the last German resistance in Italy and send the enemy in headlong retreat through the Alps into Germany.

Polish troops tightened their hold on the coastal town of Pisaro, 20 miles below Rimini, inflicting serious casualties on the German First Parachute division and capturing many prisoners, including a battalion commander. Germans in the coastal area, though dazed by the terrific battering of Allied artillery and planes, were reported fighting doggedly to save Rimini, an important funnel for war supplies.

selves.

Some Nazis, officials figure, will be anxious to inform on their countrymen in the hope of saving their own skins. Others, who may or may not have been active in the party themselves, are bound to have built up grudges—Gestapo terrorism has hit many German families.

Will Take Long Time

Officials admit that the task of weeding out Nazi leaders and breaking up any underground organizations which they may form in preparation for another attempt to conquer the world will take a long time.

American planners are confident, however, that the top Nazi leaders can be brought to justice if they live.

They paved their own last mile during the years when they spread their own names and pictures around the world in boastful propaganda. Now, officials doubt there is anywhere on earth that they could find a refuge of anonymity.

It has been estimated that 14,975 Allied airmen were lost by death or capture in the first 70 days of the invasion, ending Aug. 15. This was based on an average of five men to a plane, of which 2,959 were lost. During the same period the Allies downed 2,990 enemy craft and destroyed an additional 651 on the ground.

WPB Aides Told To Finish Job

WASHINGTON, Sept. 4. (AP) — Crush the enemy with an "endless flow" of munitions and then stay on until the job of restoring American industry to civilian production is finished—that's the message of J. A. Krug to his top aides in the War Production board.

The new chief of the agency told his 150 key officials they should continue to hammer away at production programs behind schedule and at the same time "keep constant vigil" to eliminate wartime controls over industry as soon as possible.

Given charge of WPB a week ago when dissention split the top command wide apart as Chairman Donald Nelson was leaving for China, Krug asserted the WPB vice chairman, division heads and bureau chiefs that he had no intention of making widespread staff changes.

Appeals To Executives

Instead he appealed to the executives to stay on the job, saying "we have the men" who can finish it.

Krug, who invited newsmen to a session, said that as soon as the war permits "we must loosen the screws" on manufacturer of civilian goods.

He said that WPB owed this to American industry and labor, and added:

"You men who put the screws on should be the ones to take them off."

When that is done, the acting chairman said, WPB can close up shop, send its records to the national archives, "and we'll all go back to the jobs we had before the war."

BY, OF, and FOR THE PEOPLE

WAGGING TONGUES

Editor, The Avalanche: For many years I have been convinced that most people (including myself) talk too much.

Often when some wise guy is busily talking he should be listening. In fact from my observations of the average man or woman for a period of 50 years I conclude they talk when they should be listening. The majority of the human race are by far too wise in their own estimation. Many a man and woman have actually destroyed their once usefulness by letting their tongues wag in public.

I believe we have some men in high office who have given the public an inside X-ray glimpse into their lives by their talk. When you study it out for yourself, you will agree that the average person of today talks himself into trouble day by day.

When I was a young man living among the pioneer settlers of this state I listened to those gray haired mothers and dads relate stories that sounded very unreasonable. Many of those stories were true while others were more talk, and had been memorized and handed down from generation to generation. How I discovered that most of said stories were not true was by reading and studying history and georaphy.

I am not writing this merely to refute the stories I have heard over a long period of years. Here is the point—when you listen to someone spinning a yarn, ask him to prove his story. No fair-minded man or woman will be offended if asked to prove what they are telling you. On the other hand, I have heard many very unreasonable stories which I know were true. Later I investigated and was happy to know I was actually listening to a true story. So many people in this world today are clamoring for wealth and power they stoop very low to impress their untruths upon the public. However, a lie is a lie if the story-teller can not substantiate it satisfactory to the public.

Talk in reality is a very cheap commodity at best. For the benefit of our fellowman and our country as a whole let's all talk less and do more listening and thinking.

J. L. Lane,
Lubbock.

Owners To Get Back Big Polish Estates

MOSCOW, Sept. 4. (AP)—Andre Vitos, vice-president of the Polish Committee of Liberation, was quoted by the Soviet press today as declaring in Lublin that if big estate owners come back to Poland their estates will be returned to them, providing they were not traitors.
