

Correct Mail Addresses to Be Compiled

Collingsworth Chamber of Commerce will compile and make available a directory giving the correct mailing addresses of as many persons using Wellington Post Office as can be gathered.

This was approved by C-C directors Monday night, Jan. 10.

Help in some form by the chamber was requested by Postmaster Charles Britten, who on Monday night became a new director of the chamber.

Britten, who came here from Amarillo a few months ago, explained some of the problems the post office is having with mail deliveries. The Post Office cannot keep a list of correct mailing addresses, he said, and much mail with incomplete addresses is being delivered now because the post office clerks know where those people live.

He also pointed out many people use the telephone directory as a guide for mailing addresses. This is not accurate, as many people with post office boxes are listed in the directory by street address. Neither is it the intent of the

Board Extends Supt.'s Contract, Calls Election

Wellington School Board at regular meeting Monday, Jan. 10, extended the contracts of Supt. Kenneth McKay, business manager Tommie Watts and business assistant Judy Thomas for one year each.

McKay's contract will run through the '85-'86 school year, Watts' through the '84-'85 year and Thomas through the '83-'84 year.

The board called the trustee election for Saturday, April 2. Harold Moore and William O'Rear's terms both expire this year. Neither has yet announced whether he will run again.

Candidates for school board must file by Thursday, Mar. 3 at the Wellington ISD business office in the elementary building.

The board appointed Dot Farris, Loretta Wright and Helen Fires as election officers.

The board postponed a decision on a proposal from the County that the school district pay 1/3 of the salary of the Property Ownership Office personnel. The board earlier dropped any financing for the office effective January 1 this year.

The board adopted a 5-year plan presented by counselor Louis Graham to upgrade the school system's math curriculum. The plan calls for a revised written curriculum from grades K-12 and calls for meetings of teachers from each grade level with teachers in grade levels above and below them so that all faculty members know exactly what skills are expected at each level.

Graham said that this was the school's second 5-year plan in a subject area. Earlier tests had identified the reading of maps, charts and graphs as a problem area, and that deficiency has been eliminated by the purchase and use of new maps, Graham said.

Enrollment is currently 720, principals reported. That's up from 714 at the start of the school year. Enrollment in elementary is 325, junior high 192 and high school 203.

public demands. However, we in Wellington have a man hour and cost budget just like all other businesses. We are currently spending needless time delivering mail with incorrect and even without addresses at all. We have in the past few months been stamping this mail with a message to notify your correspondents of your proper mailing address. Some improvement has been noted, but we have a long way to go.

The only way we will correct this problem is with the support of the public. You must realize with a new Postmaster and the hiring of a new employee to replace Milburn Derryberry in the near future, the problem of delivering incorrect or incomplete addressed mail will become greater. We must work together for a better service.

"As of Feb. 28, 1983, mail with incomplete or no address will be returned according to the Domestic Mail Manual. All government checks with incorrect addresses will be retained at

Not Addressed Correctly? Post Office Will Not Deliver

Postal patrons who mail at the Wellington Post Office are urged to use correct addresses on all mail, or after Feb. 28, 1983, the local Postal Service employees will return the mail to the sender stamped "Insufficient Address" or "Returned for Better Address."

Charles E. Britten, Postmaster of the U.S. Postal Service in Wellington said:

Skyrockets, Rockettes Begin District Schedule

Wellington Skyrockets and Rockettes opened District 2-AA basketball competition at Quanah Tuesday, Jan. 11 and will follow this with their first district home game Friday, Jan. 14, when they host Shamrock teams.

Both varsity coaches, Dale Morris of the Rockettes and Gano Wilson of the Skyrockets, believe they have a good chance of getting into the playoffs.

Of the Rockettes, Coach Morris said:

"We're getting a real good team effort. All 9 of our girls played in every game of the Wheeler tournament and all did an outstanding job." Seven of the 9 lettered last year.

Morris looked at the Rockettes district competition:

"Clarendon won the district last year, but they lost four starters. However, they have come on in the last few games according to their scores.

"Panhandle and Shamrock girls both are expected to be tough and Memphis is always hard to beat," Morris continued.

"Our strong point is our depth. We do play all 9 girls in every ball game." Making up the Rockettes are 5 seniors and four juniors.

"We have had balanced scoring through our non-conference games," Morris continued. "Shanna Urban scored an average of 8.5 points per game; Belinda Crelia 8.4; Tresa Benton 7.2; Elaine Shrubs 6.6; Dee Ann Williams, 5.3; Sandie Cobb 3.6; Renee Daniel 2.8; Carla Nunnelley 2.6; and Mary Torrez 1 point per game.

Belinda, Shanna, Elaine and Sandie are forwards, Dee Ann, Tresa and Renee, post, and Carla and Mary, guards.

"We feel we've got a real good shot at getting in the playoffs if we can just keep playing good team basketball," Morris declares.

The long football season took time away from the Rockets that other district teams were using to smooth out their games.

"This bunch has not had workout time, and we're starting district play," said Coach Gano Wilson. This is the first year in Wellington High School for the veteran southeast Panhandle coach.

"Our younger boys are really playing. It doesn't show up in the score very much but they are really playing some good ball," Wilson continued.

Rodney Nash, as senior, is really playing good defense; Resendo Villanueva a junior, is playing well on both offense and defense, while Greg Outley and Wade Williams get in and hustle. They're playing hard.

"Dru Lacy is not playing up to his potential yet but is improving all the time.

"Dwayne Culpepper seems to have his shot back and is playing a lot better. Mark Hunnicutt is playing pretty good defense and Jay Warrick is coming in off the bench and plays pretty good defense and usually scores well.

Since the holidays, Wilson has moved Joe Bill Munn from junior varsity to varsity. "Otis Lewis has come in for us and plays post position and has played some good ball at times," he reports.

Wilson says Memphis is "still double tough."

Looking at the Friday night game with Shamrock he points out:

Of Shamrock Wilson said: "We expect a hard game. They are playing real well. They have some height we don't have and our matchup will be in their favor."

Coach Morris pointed out that the Shamrock girls lost

Swiss Cheese Maker Visits Baumgardners

How do they get those holes in Swiss cheese? And why do they put them there?

Liselotte Schiess can tell you a lot more about Swiss cheese making. And about Switzerland.

A story of another nation's agricultural system--very different from that in the United States--unfolded around the David Baumgardner's dining room table last week as Mrs. Schiess and her son, Thomas, told about their lives in Switzerland.

The two Swiss visited for three days last week in the Texas Panhandle as guest of David, Betty, Juliana, Joe and David Baumgardner.

The Schiess's are part of Switzerland's intensive agricultural system that produces a lot of food from a small amount of arable land in an economic environment controlled by government-set prices.

Liselotte Schiess's day begins at 5:45 each morning when farmers from the countryside surrounding her village of Seelmatten, population 70, about 20 miles from Zurich, bring in the morning milk. She and her husband, Hanspeter, and a helper, begin work to transform the milk into 350 to 400 lbs. of Tilsiter cheese every day, 7 days a week.

Why work every day? Because the cows don't know it's Sunday, Mrs. Schiess grins. And the cheese must be made while the milk is fresh.

The Schiess's don't freeze or put anything into cold storage. But there's no waste. All of the residual milk products are fed to 350 hogs. And it's not a long way out to the hog pens. The hogs are kept on the ground floor of the same building that houses the cheese-making operation and the Schiess's live upstairs.

The milk is worked in big copper vats where bacteria go to work to transform the milk into tasty Swiss round of 8 to 10 lbs. each. The cheese is taken from the vats, pressed and formed, and soaked in salt water. Then it's put in a cool storage room where it cures for two months.

This is where the holes come in. The correct amount and kind of bacteria are necessary to make the correct size and number of holes in the cheese, and if the holes are right, the flavor is right. So Mrs. Schiess can cut a slice from a round, look at the size and number of holes, and tell if a batch of cheese is up to standards. The day ends at 7:30 in the evening when farmers bring in another milking.

After 2 months, it's time to sell the rounds to a large company in Bern, the Swiss capital city. The Schiess's pay farmers for their milk at government-set prices and they sell their cheese at government-set prices. If the cheese is excellent quality, there's a bonus that's split between the Schiess's and the farmers. It encourages farmers to feed their cattle only the prescribed feeds--no ensilage allowed--it changes the flavor of the milk and the cheese, Mrs. Schiess said.

Mrs. Schiess raised eyebrows when she said that pastors at the nearby

Norwood Plays in Tough District

Samnorwood Eagles and Eaglettes, playing in District 4-A this year opened conference play with a double loss to Allison Tuesday night.

Norwood will host Kelton teams Friday night at 7 p.m. and then travel to Briscoe Tuesday, Jan. 18.

The entire basketball picture was changed this year when Wheeler, a AA school, dropped to Class A and entered District 4A, (formerly 3-A).

"The addition of Wheeler will make it a lot tougher, too," commented Norwood Coach Mike Smith.

Other teams playing in the district are Mobeetie,

Briscoe, Allison and Kelton.

Mobeetie boys and girls are defending champions. Both teams lost several players from graduation, but they remain tough opponents for any other schools.

Norwood coaches Ralph Decker and Smith consider Kelton boys and girls also tough to beat.

Because of loss by graduation, Norwood has two young teams, mostly freshmen and sophomore, in contrast to some of the other schools. Nevertheless, the Eagles and Eaglettes should rank about midway among the teams this year, their coaches believe.

Samnorwood Board Renews Cavitt Contract

Samnorwood School Board renewed the contract of Supt. Garland Cavitt for one additional year, extending it to July 1986. This action was taken in the regular board meeting Monday, January 10.

In other action, the board voted to install a new exit in the gymnasium at a point remote from the present exit at the front of the building. Samnorwood Gymnasium is more than 40 years old.

It was built with WPA labor in the late 1930s or before the program expired with the coming of World War II.

The walls are solid rock, built from stone taken from the O.W. Peebles farm south of Samnorwood.

State Fire Marshal Mike Davis discussed this on a routine inspection last month. "He said it sure did need to be done," Cavitt reported.

He said the new exit probably would be in the back of the building, leading off the stage, "We'll probably do the work ourselves," he added.

Sheila Burkett of Canyon, auditor for the school, met with the board. "We got an OK on it," the superintendent reported.

Aesop Updated on Stage Jan. 20

Aesop might have some trouble adjusting to Wellington...but in the end, he'd probably love it.

That is, his interest would be piqued by "Aesop's Fables," as the Wellington Speech Department presents a rock and roll version of his familiar stories on Thursday, Jan. 20.

There will be two performances of the annual children's play, said Gay McAlister, director. The children's production will be at 1 p.m. for elementary school children and preschoolers accompanied by their mothers or some other adult. Samnorwood elementary and pre-school children will be invited. The admission charge is 25 cents each.

The 7:30 p.m. performance is for the general public, and admission will be $1.00 for students and $1.50 for adults.

The narrator who ties this spoof together is the Jack in the Box, Scott Shepard, who introduces the various characters.

"Aesop's Fables" that will proceed across the WHS auditorium stage will include "The Country Mouse and the City Mouse," "The Wolf and the Grapes," and "The Tortoise and the Hare," and "The Ant and the Grasshopper."

Class members are doing their own backstage, props and lights and costumes. The props were built by the woodworking class of the WHS ag department, under the direction of William Flores.

Flores said these include the stage prop box and the Jack in the Box. Those working were Dwayne Culpepper, Jay Jones, Ricky Martinez, Jimmy Barber and Scott Cochran.

The "Aesop Fables" cast included: Wilfred Wolf, Todd Roberson; Sadie Sheep, Susan Barnett; Sophie Sheep, Donna Blades; Shirley Sheep, Lucy Anne Hays, Boy with

sheep: James Bergval; Horace Hare, Rodney Nash; Clorissa Crow, Camille Smith; Thadius T. Tortoise, Eugene Mote; Nurse Stork, Lisa Powell; Miss Ant, Amy Williams; Mr. Grasshopper, Dwayne Culpepper; to dues, quorums, and the date of installation of officers. The directors also voted to give $400 toward financing the Junior Livestock Show which will be held January 22.

Amelia Eagle, Vanda Wood; Hilda Mouse, Allison Neeley; Maude Mouse, Chad Hooper and Anna Ant, April Kirksey.

Payment of $100 dues to the West Texas Chamber of Commerce was voted, and Charles Darter, vice-president, announced that company which will print brochure inserts will be in Wellington around the middle of this month to sell advertising for them.

Tommy Hudson, president, announced that the chamber realized $1,001.17 from the Christmas promotion program, with several more collections to be made.

Cardwell said 120 of elementary's 325 students are reading at a level below their normal grade level. The board reviewed but took no action on proposed rules for riding school buses. Present were board members Harold Moore, Carroll Nunnelley, Kirby Campbell, Reed Souder and Bill Spillman. William O'Rear and John Barton were absent.

The term "taffeta" comes from the Persian word "taftah," meaning twisted or woven.

their first district game to Clarendon. "They do have a good team. They defeated us in the finals of the Samnorwood tournament and this is an important game for us. We're going to have to be ready to play good basketball."

"Shamrock has beaten Memphis in the Shamrock tournament, so that means they have to be good. Clarendon has not won very many games, neither has Panhandle, but we know very little more."

After meeting Shamrock

Friday, the Wellington teams will travel to Memphis Tuesday, Jan. 18. They will play another road game at Clarendon, Friday, Jan. 21.

"Memphis will still be double tough," Wilson declared. "They have beaten us twice already in tournaments, and in Kenneth Jones and Paul Richardson they have two extremely good players. They are tall, fast and just good athletes."

"Our strong points, as we go into district, are that we are quick, we play pretty good defense, but we don't score enough."

Junior Livestock Show Slated for January 22

Collingsworth County Junior Livestock Show will be held Saturday, January 22, beginning at 2 p.m. in the Bill Wilson arena a mile and a half north of Wellington.

Tracy Haynes, county extension agent for Randall County, will be the judge, according to Don Reeves, extension agent who is in charge of the show.

There will be three steer classes and hopefully one heifer class, Reeves said.

The breeds of steers include Hereford, Main Anjou, Chianina, and Brahman crosses.

The heifers are Limousines.

Wellington State Bank is providing the trophies and ribbons for the livestock show, and Collingsworth Chamber of Commerce directors voted Monday night to provide $400 for show expenses.

Two of the steers which will be in the county show were shown at the Sand Hills Junior Livestock Show, Odessa, last week. Both were Herefords.

Stan Tate's steer placed 17th in a class of 44. Patricia Fourmentin also showed her calf.

Immediately after the Wellington Show, they and other calves will be entered in the Ft. Worth Livestock Show.

"We had extremely tough competition, and we didn't have what he (the judge) was looking for," said Reeves.

the General Delivery Window for a period of ten (10) days before being returned," Mr. Britten said.

The Postal Service's Domestic Mail Manual list the following guidelines for proper addressed mail:

122.11 The name and the address on mail must be written clearly and legibly on one side only.

122.12 The address must include the name and the street and number; or post office box number; or general delivery; or rural or highway route designation and box number.

122.16 Mail should be specifically addressed to the place where the post office is to deliver it. Mail bearing both a street address and post office box number will be distributed for delivery in accordance with the address shown on the line immediately preceding the city and state of designation.

159.1 Concerns mail undeliverable as addressed. 159.11 General Provisions. Nondelivery of mail can result from anyone of the following reasons:

a. Mail does not bear postage. b. Incomplete, illegible, or incorrect address. c. Addressee not at address, moved or deceased. d. Mail unclaimed. e. Mail refused.

159.132 Notice of Change. Customers should notify their correspondents of their correct address, including Zip Code number. Form 3576, Change of Address Notices to Correspondents, Businessess, and Publishers, is available for this purpose.

Postmaster Britten explained in the announcement that these are not new regulations concerning correct addressing of mail, but because postal employees in the past have delivered mail improperly addressed, the practice of leaving box numbers and street addresses off or incomplete has grown into a major problem.

He explained that the worse offenders are the businesses sending statements with customers names and Wellington, Texas on them.

He also warned that those mailing letters need to find out the correct addresses, not just look up a street number in the phone book, because many get their mail through post office boxes and some at their businesses or place of employment.

telephone directory.

It is proposed that the chamber will work with utility companies as they are considered to have the most accurate list of mailing addresses, as well as with others having mailing lists.

Margaret Vines, chamber secretary, will be in charge of compiling the correct mailing list and additional help will be secured to assist her.

Taking office as a new director with Britten was Danny Martin, who operates Jim's OK Tire Store.

This was scheduled as an open membership meeting in which a vote would be taken on changes in the by-laws and input was requested.

Besides the directors and officers, only two members appeared for the meeting: past president John Coleman and Nancy Lindsey of First Federal Savings and Loan Association.

By-laws, which were passed unanimously, relate government-supported Catholic and Protestant churches earn about the same as school teachers--$40,000 per year. But Switzerland is also a country where a good milk cow costs about $4,000 and a gallon of gasoline is more than twice as expensive as in the United States, she said.

The Schiess's are members of Servas, a program where a family opens their home to short stays by travelers in return for the same privilege when the family travels. David Baumgardner's sister, Barbara Baumgardner Gordon, and her two daughters, Ann and Carol, have stayed with the Schiess's during trips to Europe, and Ann lived with them for 8 weeks one year. And Juliana Baumgardner visited them last summer. The Schiess's came to the United States this month for Ann and Carol's double wedding in Dallas and came to Wellington as a side trip.

Mrs. Schiess said that highlights of their stay in the Panhandle were a feedlot in Wheeler, oilfields near Pampa and a beaver pond in Collingsworth County. They ate their first hamburgers in Dallas, and sampled barbecue, Mexican food, blackeyed peas and catfish while they were here.

They also got to see Southfork, the setting near Dallas for the television program "Dallas" which is seen in Switzerland with voice-overs. Mrs. Schiess mentioned another American television program popular in Switzerland, "Three Angels for Charlie."

"All these commercials," Mrs. Schiess exclaimed after watching U.S. television. In Switzerland, there are only four commercial breaks per day on television, each five minutes long.

Burial practices also are different in Switzerland, where open land is at a premium.

Wooden coffins are placed in graves in the church yard. When the yard is full, then the oldest gravestones are pulled up and discarded and the lot is available for a new burial. The average life of a gravestone is about 25 years, Mrs. Schiess said.

The board heard a report that a team of three junior high students in Wellington's gifted and talented program placed 23rd out of 340 entries from all sizes of schools in a state problem solving competition. Participants were Bradley Campbell, Steve Owens and Britt Schmidt. Frances Schmidt was their coach in the competition.

Bloodmobile Collections Pass Quota

Eighty-eight units of blood were collected from Collingsworth County volunteer donors by the Red Cross Bloodmobile Wednesday, Jan. 5.

This more than met the new quota of 80 units requested for each future bloodmobile visit.

"We were delighted to the response to our call for donors," said Mrs. Lynn Wright, president of Collingsworth General Hospital Auxiliary, which sponsors the bloodmobile visits.

"With the number of people taking antibiotics or with colds, we had not expected this response." The Red Cross staff, coming from the Red Cross bloodmobile staff praised the effort made by county people to meet the blood quota.

Six donors who have given a gallon of blood or more, were recognized. Leading the list was David Peters, who with this unit of blood, brought his total to 8½ gallons. He has type A positive blood.

Ranking second was Marshall Peters, with O positive blood, who brought his total to three gallons.

There were two-gallon donors: Edward T. Aguilar, with type O blood, and Mrs. Charles (Annese) Darter, with B negative blood.

The two one-gallon donors were Kenneth Davis, with O positive blood, and Eddie Davis, with A positive blood.

Those giving blood last Wednesday are making it possible for Collingsworth General Hospital, to receive all of the blood and blood derivatives it needs to treat its patients, Mrs. Wright pointed out.

In an agreement with the Red River Regional Red Cross Blood Service made several years ago the hospital receives blood and blood derivatives; including rare blood types, in any amount needed for patient care. In return, the hospital district, whose boundaries are contiguous with those of the county, donates blood to the Red Cross bloodmobile on its two visits here each year.

Those who offered blood Jan. 5 were:

Right of Way Acquisition Policy Changed

AUSTIN--A major policy change in the acquisition of right of way for US and State highways has been announced by the State Highway and Public Transportation Commission.

Local levels of government now may request the department to accept initially an amount equal to 10 percent of the cost of needed right of way. The department will accept the voluntary contribution and take responsibility for the acquisition of the land.

Previously, local governments were required to purchase the right of way and were later reimbursed at least 90 percent by the department. Some counties and cities have had difficulty funding the purchase prior to reimbursement thus delaying needed projects.

Commission Chairman Robert Dedman said the new procedures will take financial pressure off local governments and should speed up projects by allowing a more orderly effort in acquiring needed right of way.

Dedman emphasized the commission action was offered as an optional alternative to present procedures of right of way acquisition.

The Year That Was...1982...Conclusion

JULY—DECEMBER

The second half of 1982 opened with the ground drying enough for wheat harvest to go into full swing, but by then the cotton crop was an estimated 90% hauled out or washed out. Problems for the cotton farmer continued until the end of the year, and approximately 15,000 bales had been harvested as the year closed, about half of the crop.

The City of Wellington started the 1982 portion of airport improvement, and when it was finished the new 4,000' runway the city has needed for many years was a reality...There were other city improvements: more street paving...a street marker system installed...and a new firemen's retirement policy was adopted... work began on the new fire station, with City of Wellington employees doing much of the construction work...and the city adopted a $805,000 budget for FY 1982-83.

VA Seeks Nursing Students

DENVER--The Veterans Administration is seeking nursing-student applications from the Texas-Gulf area for its Health Professional Scholarship Program for the 1983 fall school term.

The program, authorized by Congress, provides support for baccalaureate and master's nursing students on a pay-back-in-service basis.

The scholarship provides tuition, educational expenses and a monthly stipend with participants agreeing to serve a minimum of two years as full-time registered nurses in one of VA's 172 hospitals or 226 outpatient clinics in Texas, Louisiana, Mississippi and elsewhere.

Six million dollars of scholarship support were awarded during the first year of the program to 342 students from a pool of more than 2,000 eligible applicants. They included 25 students from Texas, Louisiana and Mississippi. Most participants are third and fourth year baccalaureate nursing students while a few awards were made to master's degree candidates.

Those master's students in nursing are pursuing clinical specialties particularly needed by the VA, including gerontology, medical/surgical and adult psychiatric/mental health. In the 1983-84 school year, master's students in Nursing Service Administration will be eligible to apply for

COLLINGSWORTH CO. EXTENSION AGENT REPORT

By Nancy Bigby

DEALING WITH ARTHRITIS

Dealing with arthritis requires a team approach and depends as much on the arthritis sufferer as on the doctor.

Arthritis is a term applied to more than 100 different diseases, each of which—in some way—affects the joints. Americans spend an estimated four billion dollars a year on arthritis care and relief, making it an extremely costly health problem.

By practicing "self management", arthritis sufferers can do much to help themselves live a normal life.

Some self-management activities include:

...Breaking the cycle of pains, depressions and stress through either medication, relaxation or just keeping your mind busy on other things.

...Exercising to keep joints flexible, but minimizing movement when a joint is red and hot.

...Protecting affected joints from injury and over-exertion by using proper lifting techniques, avoiding prolonged periods in the same position, and balancing work with rest to conserve energy and strength.

Other measures can be taken to reduce arthritis pain. Many types of heat relieve the pain, but must be used cautiously to prevent burns. Cold compresses have a numbing effect and relieve some arthritis sufferers. And good posture—whether resting, sleeping, standing or walking—is vitally important for people with any kind of arthritis.

Finally, it is important to work closely with your doctor. Since there are many types of arthritis, the first step is an accurate diagnosis. Your local Arthritis Foundation office also can help in managing arthritis.

Four Generations of Goforth Family In California for Christmas Week

Ten members of the Goforth family representing four generations were in California for the Christmas holidays. For some, this was a return to their former home; for part, a first visit in 21 years; and for the younger members of the family, the first visit ever.

They were Mr. and Mrs. Frank Goforth of Amarillo; their son Mr. and Mrs. Bob Goforth of Wellington and their children and grandchildren, Kelly Goforth, Kim and Teddy Martin with Cody and Mindy, and Karen Goforth of Amarillo.

They visited the Frank

Goforths' other two sons, Mr. and Mrs. Leroy Goforth of Hacienda Heights, CA. and Mr. and Mrs. Denny Goforth of Huntington Beach, CA.

Traveling in a Winnebago ("not to sleep in but because we needed the room") they left Wednesday, Dec. 22, drove hard all night and reached their destination at 8 a.m. Thursday. Only at Flagstaff, Arizona, did they have bad weather, and this was rain and not ice, as so often is the case in winter.

Every day they went to a different point of interest.

On Thursday, they visited the Queen Mary and along the beach; Christmas eve brought a trip to Knott's Berry Farm.

Twenty-six members of the family spent Christmas day together, "the first time we have had a reunion like that," said Bob Goforth.

Sunday found them driving through Hollywood, Central City, and Beverly Hills, to the Los Angeles Airport, where Karen Goforth left by plane for Texas. But before she left, they watched a 747 come in from Honolulu, and Karen brushed by Susan Anton and Dudley Moore. On Monday, the Goforths toured Universal Studios, and on their last day, they went to Disneyland. At night, the lights made this look like fairyland, said Bob Goforth.

The Bob Goforths and Kelly, the Martins and their children made Las Vegas their first stop on the home trip. But from there, they drove to the Panhandle, they drove on ice and snow.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Goforth remained to visit their sons until this week. The Leroy Goforths will accompany them home.

Glen Lane and Kellye Ford Wed in Lockney Church Rites

The sanctuary of First United Methodist Church in Lockney was the setting for the wedding of Kellye Kay Ford and Gilbert Glen Lane, both of Lubbock, on Saturday, January 8, at three o'clock in the afternoon.

The officiant was the Reverend Frank Olgesby of Forrest Heights United Methodist Church in Lubbock.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Gerald Ford of Route M, Lockney. She is also the granddaughter of Mrs. Wayne Parker of Wellington and the late Mr. Parker. Parents of the bridegroom are Mr. and Mrs. Bob Lane, Route F, Lockney.

Decorating the altar area was a candle arch holding ivory tapers decorated with gladiolus, China mums and purple statice, accented with gypsophila and tied with French lavender satin ribbon. At each side were candle trees holding ivory tapers, and these were decorated with tropical foliage tied with French lavender ribbon. Aisle decorations were arrangements matching the candle arch.

Presenting the wedding music were Joyce Wilson, pianist, Ann Ford, soloist and Lucy Dean Record, organist. All are from Lockney.

Mr. Ford gave his daughter in marriage.

She wore a formal gown of candlelight chiffon fashioned with a V neckline. The peplum bodice had an overlay of re-embroidered Alencon lace adorned with seed pearls. The same lace formed the cuffs of the split bishop sleeves. The skirt fell from an empire waist to floor length and swept to a chapel train. Her Victorian hat in matching color was trimmed with Alencon lace adorned with seed pearls, Kristie Tooley of Slaton was her sister's matron of honor and bridesmaids were Cyeryl Gillispie of Claude and Melissa Johnson of Lockney. Their long alderdene dresses were designed with square necklines, accordion sleeves and sash fitted waists. Each attendant carried a silk crescent arrangement of Enchantment lilies, poppies, gypsophila and leather leaf foliage, tied with French lavender streamers.

J.H. Lane of Lockney, brother of the bridegroom, was best man, and groomsmen were Phil Clayton and Ronnie Cunyus, both of Lubbock. Ushers were Curtis Ford of Lubbock and Ronnie Ford of Lockney, both brothers of the bride.

Chancy Rhodes of Stratford, cousin of the bridegroom was the flower girl and Kristopher Tooley, of Slaton, nephew of the bride, was the ring bearer.

Candles were lighted by Kay Owen of Dell City cousin of the bride, and Gwen Lane, of Lockney, sister of the bridegroom.

After the ceremony, Mr. and Mrs. Ford entertained with a reception for wedding guests in the fellowship hall of the church.

The bride's table was covered with a floor length ivory lace cloth with illusion draped around the edge and caught by ivory satin bows. The tiered cake was adorned with a miniature bride and groom with nosegays of flowers and ribbons. At the sides were miniature heart shaped cakes.

A five-branched silver candelabra held an arrangement of gladiolus, chrysanthemums and silver roses with ivory tapers. Other appointments were of silver and crystal.

The groom's table was covered with a floor length grey cloth draped with alderdene satin. Silver appointments were used. Trays held fruits and hor d'oeuvres, along with a

Loose Marbles

At the Marbles household, we started the new year with a new attitude. Old Dad expressed it first, "See that Christmas tree over there, boys?" he said, pointing to the molting evergreen in the living room. "Well, that really isn't there. I know this because your mother told me yesterday that she was going to take it down this morning. Therefore, the tree that you see standing there is either a New Year's tree, or it is a figment of your imagination. Please remember this as it is a good lesson in life; your mother never lies, but occasionally a wandering time warp grabs her and you never know the results. What you see may be simply the result of advanced warping on your mother's part."

After giving the matter much thought, I decided Old Dad had more sense than I originally had given him credit for. "With that theory," I reasoned, "things can run a lot smoother around here. All those meals that never got cooked actually did, because I said I was going to cook them. The beds are always made because every morning I intend to do them, and my hair is always perfectly coiffed since every day I say to myself, 'This is the morning that I'm going to be able to fix this mess.'"

"Furthermore, the large, unsightly lumps which I thought had lodged on my hips and thighs are not there since I promised myself I would lose ten pounds several months ago. This is gonna be terrific!"

The possibilities seem unlimited. Unwashed clothes?—"Time Warp!" Moldy bread?—"Time Warp!" Mid-life crisis, dirty windows, unbalanced checkbook?—"Time Warps!"

Things were going so perfectly that I should have known the thing would turn on me. "Why didn't anyone empty this trash?" I hollered. Three voices answered back, "Time Warp!" "When are we going to finish the remodeling?" I asked. "Time Warp!" came the reply. "Isn't there anything on TV but football?" "Time Warp!" they screamed.

The final killing blow came when I asked Old Dad if he would loan me ten dollars, and he handed me a dime. "What's this?" I asked as I stared at the small silver coin in my hand. "I asked for ten dollars, not ten cents."

"It's simple," he said as he smiled at me, "that's what you call your 'Dime Warp'. It is based on the same theory as...."

I wonder if the judge will accept a plea of "Crime Warp."

Bible Gave Direction And Encouragement

"I had a cancer operation about three years ago on my throat. And when it came to making a decision about who to go to for a surgeon, I remember thinking about the verse: 'The steps of a good man are ordered by the Lord' (Psalm 37:23)."

Kevin Hanse found the strength and direction he needed during a crisis by turning to God's Word—the Bible.

"I realized that I can't say I'm a good man and that my steps are ordered by the Lord," Hanse continues, "except by Christ's cleansing of my heart. But on that basis, Christians are entitled to expect that what we do will be to quite an extent God-guided."

Kevin trusted God for guidance and found a surgeon who successfully removed the cancer. During the time of his recuperation, he again looked to the Bible. This time he wasn't looking for direction, but encouragement. He found it in the promise of Psalm 91:11:

"He will give His angels charge over thee, to keep thee in all thy ways."

If your life needs direction, or if you are looking for encouragement, why not go to the source Kevin Hanse has found—the Bible. For a no-obligation sample copy of the Bible reading guide Light Today, write the International Bible Society, 144 Tices Lane, East Brunswick, NJ 08816.

STATE CAPITAL HIGHLIGHTS

By Lyndell Williams
TEXAS PRESS ASSOCIATION

AUSTIN — The Sunset Advisory Commission pulled the big surprise of this very new year last week when it voted to recommend that the Legislature abolish the Public Utility Commission.

The commission voted to abolish the PUC after proposed reforms for utility regulation were defeated through a parliamentary maneuver by Texarkana Sen. Ed Howard, who chairs the sunset panel.

The PUC which sets rates for electric, telephone and other utilities, has come in for harsh criticism from many lawmakers and Gov-elect Mark White for handing out large rate increases on nearly an annual basis.

White also has criticized the PUC's rules allowing utilities to pass through to customers any increases in fuel costs without prior commission approval.

Few Capitol observers expect the Legislature to go along with the Sunset Commission recommendation, partly because the utility companies—who argued against the creation of the PUC in 1975—want to keep the agency now.

As one utility company attorney put it, "We haven't always gotten everything we've wanted from them, but we want to keep them around." If the PUC were abolished, the utilities would have to return to each local community for approval of their rates.

The Sunset Commission action is seen more as a warning shot to let the utility lobbyists know the reformers are serious about winning some pro-consumer changes.

However, at least one senator has indicated he'd just as soon do away with the PUC as see it continue in its present form.

Fuel Adjustment

And as the Sunset Commission was debating the PUC's future, the PUC was considering measures to partly address Gov-elect White's criticism of the fuel adjustment clause.

The three-member PUC is debating new rules that would eliminate the automatic fuel cost pass through and require prior commission approval before those costs are added to customers' bills.

The proposed rules also would require companies to set their fuel adjustments on a quarterly basis, which means utilities that underestimate their fuel costs would not be able to make up that undercollection for three months.

The PUC staff, which proposed the rule, says it will force utilities to exercise more scrutiny over their fuel costs and allow customers to know what their fuel charges will be each quarter.

The utilities companies, however, argued that the proposed changes will only create more red tape and negatively impact their company cash flow.

The PUC has delayed final action on the matter until Feb. 2.

Governor's Attorney

Gov-elect White has named a black woman as his general counsel—a move that will put Myra McDaniel in the history books as the highest-ranking black appointee in the history of Texas government.

McDaniel, a native of Philadelphia who is a former assistant attorney general and Railroad Commission lawyer, is giving up a position with a Midland law firm to take the general counsel's post.

McDaniel, 50, didn't realize she was making history when she accepted the post. She is taking a cut in pay to return to government service, but says people should be willing to sacrifice if they are "willing to be involved in making government work."

White also says he was unaware of the historical significance of McDaniel's appointment.

"I made this appointment because she's talented," White says. "She also happens to be black and she happens to be a woman."

Special Election

U.S. Congressman Phil Gramm made good on his threat to leave the Democratic Party and even went so far as to resign his seat in Congress to allow voters from his Central Texas district to decide if he should return to Washington, D.C. as a Republican.

Gov. Bill Clements already has set a special election for Feb. 12 to fill the seat vacated by Gramm, the former Texas A&M University professor who angered Democrats by supporting President Ronald Reagan's budget proposals.

Gramm's resignation and switch to the Republican Party followed his ouster from the powerful House Budget Committee.

Gramm will now seek reelection as a Republican, but he is already facing Democratic opposition for that post.

Former State Rep. Dan Kubiak of Rockdale is the most likely Democrat to face Gramm, although humorist John Henry Faulk was considering the race.

Kubiak, who was unsuccessful in a bid for land commissioner in 1982, was attempting to drum up support for his race only hours after Clements announced the election date.

GOP leaders welcomed Gramm into their party with open arms, praising him for his courage in switching parties.

They couldn't have been too pleased, however, at the decision that places their hopes of gaining a seat in Congress up in the air for at least a month.

While Republicans were welcoming Gramm, Democratic leaders were saying "good riddance."

Bob Slagle, Texas Democratic Party chairman, stopped short of saying he was glad to get rid of Gramm, but said he certainly wasn't "shocked or surprised."

THOMAS
ROLL CALL REPORT
Your Congressman's Votes
Reported Each Week

WASHINGTON - Here's how area members were recorded on major roll call votes in the closing days of the 97th Congress.

HOUSE

HISTORIAN By a vote of 230 for and 97 against, the House gave itself a history office to make sure the House is properly recognized during the 1989 commemoration of the 200th birthday of the U.S. government. The yet-to-be named historian and staff are to be temporary employees who would leave the government payroll after 1989. Critics noted, however, that "temporary" congressional offices have a way of becoming permanent.

This vote reversed a September vote to prevent adding a historian to the House bureaucracy. The Senate has a historian who is paid $46,655 annually. Advocates of a House historian said the office would not have a specific appropriation and would be funded out of "contingency" accounts. Critics said that still is a drain on the Treasury.

Members voting yes wanted to create the office of House historian.

Voting yes: Charles Wilson, D-2, Jack Brooks, D-9, Jake Pickle, D-10, J. Marvin Leath, D-11, James Wright, D-12, Richard White, D-16, Charles Stenholm, D-17, Mickey Leland, D-18, Kent Hance, D-19, Henry Gonzalez, D-20, Abraham Kazen, D-23, Martin Frost, D-24, Phil Gramm, D-6, Bill Archer, R-7, Jack Fields, R-8, Tom Loeffler, R-21, Ron Paul, R-22.

Not voting: Jim Mattox, D-5.

IMMIGRATION The House rejected, 110 for and 213 against, an amendment to a bill (HR 7357) aimed at stemming the flow of illegal aliens into the U.S. The amendment largely was an effort to protect the rights of U.S. citizens who can't get a seasonal farm job because an alien already has filled the position. At the same time, it placed a paperwork burden on employers. The measure was backed by the civil rights lobby and opposed by agribusiness. It required employers to keep written records of all who apply for work so that complaints of discrimination could be traced more easily.

It went beyond pending language that required records to be kept only on those individuals actually hired. HR 7357, the first major reform of U.S. immigration laws since 1952, later died with the 97th Congress.

Members voting yes wanted the immigration reform bill to require added record-keeping by employers to facilitate later checks of claims of discrimination.

Voting yes: Brooks, Leland.

Voting no: Sam Hall, Wilson, Ralph Hall, Gramm, Archer, Fields, Pickle, Leath, Hightower, Patman, De la Garza, White, Stenholm, Hance, Loeffler, Paul, Kazen.

Not voting: James Collins, Mattox, Wright, Gonzalez, Frost.

SENATE

TAXES & TRUCKS By a vote of 54 for and 33 against, the Senate passed and sent to the president a bill (HR 6211) raising the federal gasoline tax a nickel per gallon, requiring states to permit the entry of larger trucks, raising user fees for heavy trucks, and creating some 200,000 jobs via bridge and highway repairs to be financed by the higher gas tax.

Senators voting yes favored the bill.

Sen. Lloyd Bentsen, D, voted yes. Tower, R, no.

Senator Bill Sarpalius Reports

PARI-MUTUEL BETTING

The subject of pari-mutuel betting (horse racing) has been brought many times before the Texas Legislature. However, it has only recently been seen as having a strong chance of passage. It is therefore vital that we determine how the majority of the 31st District feels about this issue. This way we can vote accordingly in the Texas Senate.

With the recent passage of the Oklahoma pari-mutuel law, Texas is now surrounded by states that allow wagering on horse races. It is estimated that over 50% of the bettors at neighboring states' horse tracks come from Texas, taking with them hundreds of millions of dollars annually. Texas has a multi-million dollar thoroughbred and quarterhorse breeding industry, but they must go out of state in order to race profitably.

Proponents of legalized horse betting, which are led by the Texas Horse Racing Association, are confident that the legislation they seek will be passed in the upcoming 68th or 69th Legislative Sessions. In past sessions, these measures have died quickly without receiving serious attention.

The majority of the proposed laws would allow pari-mutuel wagering on a local option basis and set strict state laws regulating them. In the last session the Legislative Budget Board projected that Texas would receive $40 million a year in state revenue from track proceeds. This accounts for the recent increases in support for these measures as this revenue would somewhat postpone the initiation of new state taxes.

There is also strong, well-founded opposition to pari-mutuel betting.

We want to represent the 31st Senatorial District by expressing the beliefs of the majority of our constituents in the Texas Senate. Therefore we ask your opinion upon whether Texas should legalize pari-mutuel betting or refuse it once again. Please write Senator Bill Sarpalius, P. O. Box 12068, Austin, Texas 78711 or call (512) 475-3222.

Tornados and Floods for Christmas

Flash floods and tornados threatened the Merry Christmas celebrations of Mr. and Mrs. Cicero Gulley. They were in Little Rock, Ark., for the holiday with their son and his family, Gary Mike and Nancy Gulley, and their twins, Matthew and Miranda.

"The afternoon we got there, Dec. 23, tornado warnings were out for Little Rock," said Mrs. Gulley.

"Before 6 o'clock, we decided we'd better find shelter," she said of herself, her daughter-in-law and the two children. "We went to University shopping mall because they have a fallout shelter."

"We were no more than in it than they began announcing over the intercom for people to go to the shelter. We stayed until the all-clear signal was given."

Gulley, in the meantime, was at the K-Mart Store on University Street where his son is merchandising manager. They stood outside the building and watched a tornado pass overhead, but it did not dip down.

It was the second that Gary Mike Gulley had seen pass over the store within the month. The first tornado stayed in the air until it was beyond the store, then touched ground with considerable damage.

The group endured part of Christmas eve under tornado warnings, then in the evening drove to Muskogee, Okla. for Christmas with Nancy Gulley's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Harold Sanders.

Christmas day was calm, but as the group left Muskogee a cold front blew in. Weather was still hot when they reached Little Rock.

Enroute home, the Cicero Gulleys visited with her sister and brother-in-law, Hollis and Estelle Rainey, in Fairris, Okla.

"We're glad to be back home," declares Mrs. Gulley.

QUALITY IMPORTANT WHEN BUYING PLANTS

Winter is an ideal time for landscape planning and planting. But if you're planning to buy landscape plants, a good rule of thumb is: consider quality rather than price.

Plants, like all goods and services, come in many sizes, shapes and qualities. Because they do, it's just as important to evaluate a plant before purchase as it is to carefully inspect a garment or a home appliance.

"You get what you pay for" is a common expression that can often be applied to buying landscape plants. Unfortunately, many homeowners are unaware of the importance of quality when shopping for plants and continue to look for bargains.

Nursery stock offered at the bargain counter is usually undersized, of poor quality, or has been damaged in some way. Occasionally you may find a good "bargain" plant, but even then you usually get what you pay for.

A cheap plant, in most instances, is exactly what the name implies. You pay little, but you will probably get little in return.

For years, container-grown plants have traditionally been available in one-and five-gallon size containers. However, due to a lack of uniform standards in the nursery industry, all plants offered for sale are not alike. There can be, and often are, vast differences in plant size as well as appearance and quality. So shop around and compare before you buy.

What constitutes a quality plant? Growing plants, whether container-grown or balled-and-burlapped, should be well shaped and have many vigorous, sturdy and well placed branches. Their color, foliage, stem and twig structure should be characteristic of the species and variety.

Examine the individual plant. Often single stem, poorly shaped plants can be made to appear better than they are by crowding them close together in the sales area.

For a container-grown plant, make sure the root system is well established but not root-bound or growing out of the container. Roots should be firmly incorporated throughout the soil but not protruding outside or penetrating into the ground.

Before purchasing any plant, check it carefully for signs of disease or insect

Alexanders Home From Arkansas

Mr. and Mrs. Clyde Alexander left for Arkansas on December 13, to visit with their son and daughter-in-law, Dr. and Mrs. Fred Alexander and family of Searcy, Ark.

Their granddaughter, Beverly Alexander, was married at the College Church of Christ in Searcy on the evening of December 16.

En route to Arkansas, they drove to Henryetta, Okla., the first day, in rain all the way. Parts of I-40 over which they traveled had been closed by high water only a few days earlier, and between Clarksville and Russellville, Ark., only the tops of fence posts could be seen.

"We had only a few days of sunshine while we were there, as so much rain fell, and also tornadoes dropped down near Searcy. It gives you a queer feeling to get a call by telephone saying to stay in the hallway or a closet and be sure to crack a door or window to release the vacuum. We went through one little town near Searcy that had been wiped out over a wide area," said Mrs. Alexander.

While they were at Searcy, Mr. and Mrs. Alexander were guests in the W.C. Harris home and had dinner in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Jack Harris.

Their return trip was delayed due to the icy highways around Oklahoma City.

Mr. and Mrs. Alexander reached their home near Dodson just in time to be isolated by bad roads due to rain and snow, and for one week they were mud-bound, Mrs. Alexander said.
