Plan To Free Some Hostages Nixed By Iran

By The Associated Press

The Moslem militants holding the U.S. Embassy in Tehran today angrily rejected suggestions by a top Iranian official that some of their 98 hostages, including all women, be freed. They declared that only Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini and the Iranian people can tell them what to do.

In Tunisia, meanwhile, Arab League ministers rejected a Libyan demand for joint Arab diplomatic and economic reprisals against the United States for freezing Iranian assets in American banks.

Iran had appealed to other Moslem nations for diplomatic help in its confrontation with the United States. But only Libya among the 20 Arab League delegations supported such a move. Even Iraq, one of the most anti-American Arab nations, reversed its earlier stand and opposed the Libyan demand.

As the embassy impasse entered its 12th day, CBS correspondent Randy Daniels reported from Tehran that Abolhassan Bani Sadr, Iran's foreign affairs chief, told him in an interview that "all women and blacks would be freed very soon." He did not say exactly when this would take place.

Bani Sadr had told a news conference Wednesday that those who are "innocent" without a "connection with the United States," might be freed by the weekend, Tehran Radio reported.

Today, Foreign Ministry spokesman Ibrahim Mokkala told The Associated Press women and blacks "possibly" would be freed "due to the fact that Islam has got a lot of respect for women and due to the fact we consider blacks to be oppressed people."

The State Department says six or seven American women and one black U.S. Marine are among the 62 Americans. It was not clear whether Bani Sadr, in referring to "blacks," also may have meant the 36 non-American hostages, most of whom are dark-skinned Pakistani and Indian employees of the embassy.

However, the occupiers told Tehran Radio: "No. Something like this will not be considered. Our conditions are known. We do not recognize any statement except our statements as broadcast by Tehran radio and television or statements we issue during embassy press conferences.

"We denounce any negotiations concerning the hostages' release before the United States extradites the deposed shah."

Celebrities Leaders In 'Smokeout'

By The Associated Press

Led by a host of celebrities ranging from actor Ed Asner to Emily the chimpanzee, cigarette smokers who want to quit puffing joined today's "Great American Smokeout," trying to go for 24 hours without lighting up.

This is the third annual smokeout. The American Cancer Society, sponsor of the event, said that 14 million people participated in last year's program and predicted:

"This year we expect as many or more."

Among those who quit in 1978 was Asner, who is national chairman of the smokeout for the second consecutive time. Other public figures who are serving as honorary officials for this year's campaign include skater JoJo Starbuck, members of the New England Patriots football team, Surgeon General Julius B. Richmond and Emily, a 5-year-old chimp from the Columbus, Ohio, zoo who's been dressed in a T-shirt reading, "Kiss Me, I don't Smoke."

The Department of Health, Education and Welfare estimates that 54 million Americans smoke. It also says, however, that 30 million people have quit smoking since 1964 and says that total U.S. cigarette consumption fell in 1978 for the first time in 10 years.

Dr. Richmond has urged all smokers to participate in the smoke out.

"It is my hope that you will then find the will power to join the growing number of Americans who have quit smoking," he said Wednesday.

"Smokers of America are a declining minority," said HEW Secretary Patricia Harris - a former smoker.

Organizaers of the smokeout scheduled rallies, parades and other special events to focus on cigarettes.

Bostonians who quit smoking will be able to line up at two kissing booths for kisses from the Patriots and their cheerleaders as well as from other local celebrities. "It's a very lighthearted approach to helping people quit," said Karen Rouse of the local cancer society.

Meat Import Plan Moves Nearer To Law

WASHINGTON (AP)-A long-awaited new meat import plan has taken a big step in becoming law. It includes compromises said to be acceptable to the Carter administration.

The House approved the measure, 352-48, Wednesday. It would allow more foreign meat to enter the country when domestic output declines and tighten imports when production rises.

The current method, based on a 1964 law, is keyed directly to U.S. production. That means when domestic output declines as the situation is now, imports also are reduced.

President Carter vetoed similar legislation a year ago. Officials said he supports the new bill because of two compromises accepted by the sponsors.

American cattle producers after trimming herds severely, are just now beginning to rebuild breeding inventories, and it will be several more years before much impact is felt by consumers.

1st County-Wide Tax Board Named

Scurry County's first county-wide tax appraisal board has been elected.

County Clerk Beverly Ainsworth, who had the responsibility of counting the ballots submitted by the taxing agencies of the county, announced this morning that Ross Blanchard, Bill Hairston, Pete Hester, John Reed and Kenneth Wilson have been elected.

Casting ballots in the election were the school districts of Snyder, Hermleigh and Ira, along with the city of Snyder and Scurry County.

Hester lives at Ira, Hairston lives southwest of Hermleigh, Wilson lives west of Snyder, while Blanchard and Reed Live in Snyder.

The statute making provision for the new tax appraisal system decrees that these five board members will take office on Jan. 1, 1980, and serve two-year terms.

The district tax appraisal board has the responsibility of setting up a tax appraisal office and employing a staff for appraising all taxable property in the county. All taxing entities will levy their respective taxes on the basis of this appraisal.

The new system represents a radical change from the present system in which each taxing entity is responsible for making its own appraisals and setting its own valuations. Another change will be the ratio of assessment. Under the new system, all tax assessments will be based on 100 percent of the appraised values as established by the district's appraisal office. Heretofore, taxing agencies have made their individual assessments on the basis of varying percentages of the appraised value.

It will be up to the newly elected board members to set a date for their first meeting. The county clerk's duties in connection with setting up the new system come to an end when notices go out to the nominees advising them of the results of the election of board members. Mrs. Ainsworth said she planned to send these notices out promptly.

The entities casting ballots for board members were alloted votes based on their respective tax levies, which gave the Snyder Independent School District the most votes.

The district appraisal board elected today also has the responsibility of naming an appraisal review board of three members. The appraisal review board will have duties for the entire county-wide district which now are performed by the boards of tax equalization of the various taxing entities.

News Crew Released In Iran

NEW YORK (AP)-Student militants holding the U.S. Embassy in Tehran seized three members of an NBC-TV news crew at gunpoint today but released them within a few hours, NBC reported.

A network spokesman said the three apparently were detained because they had filmed scenes Wednesday from a nearby rooftop of the militants placing sandbags on the roof of the embassy, in apparent preparation for defending it against any attack.

They were freed after the State Department and the British Embassy intervened on their behalf, the spokesman said.

The newsmen, all British citizens, were correspondent Martin Fletcher, cameraman Barry Fox and technician Derek Herincx.

Carter Holding More Cards

WASHINGTON (AP)-The Carter administration still has several economic reprisal cards left to play in its war of nerves with Iran.

President Carter froze Iranian government assets Wednesday after officials in Iran threatened to withdraw more than $5 billion from U.S. banks. Other options include a freeze on privately-held Iranian assets, and a partial or complete trade embargo against Iran.

Conference Near End

LONDON (AP)-The Zimbabwe Rhodesia conference neared a successful end with announcement expected today of agreement on a new interim government.

The final plan, after 10 weeks of negotiations, called for a British governor to rule Zimbabwe Rhodesia and supervise new elections among the African nation's 7 million blacks and 230,000 whites before it is granted legal independence.

Triple Loss For Levesque

QUEBEC (AP)-Premier Rene Levesque's PARTI Quebecois suffered its worst setback since coming to power three years today by losing all three byelections to the opposition Liberal Party.

The winners called it a victory for Canadian unity, and for the "renewed federalism" of Liberal leader Claude Ryan.

The losers blamed federalist scare tactics - which played on Quebecers' fears about independence from Canada, said Premier Rene Levesque. He said division within party ranks also contributed to the loss.

50 Missing After Ships Collide

ISTANBUL, Turkey (AP)-A Romanian oil tanker and a Greek coastal freighter collided in the Bosporus early today, setting off thunderous explosions and fire, leaving 50 Romanian crew members missing and dumping nearly 30 million gallons of oil into the sea, officials said.

They said rescuers found one dead crewman and picked up three from the 150,000-ton Romanian tanker Independenta, which carried a crew of 54.

Police said the 33-member crew of the 5,298-ton Greek coaster Evria was unhurt.

Also, the results of a 10-year, $60 million federal study on guaranteed incomes conducted in Seattle, Wash., and in Denver, Colo., revealed that when people have a guaranteed annual income, they are less likely to work.

Down there in East Texas we used to have two town characters who were good examples of extremes.

One was equipped with superb physical assets but was never known to indulge in manual labor, except for a brief period each year when a carnival came to town. Then, he always managed to get a job taking up tickets on the merry-go-round.

The other was less qualified physically, but was known to do farm work during the week and he usually came into town only on Saturdays. And when he was in town, he had a habit of walking into stores, grabbing a broom and sweeping out without any charge. He just had to be working.

Both of these characters were regarded as eccentric, to put it mildly. It just goes to show you that extremism is a two-way street and the best way to travel is in the center of your lane.

Suspect In Murder Case Nabbed Here

Murder charges await a Scurry County Jail inmate when he is extradited to Tennessee.

Conrad Lewis Hovekamp of Tennessee, who was arrested here Tuesday on a drunkenness charge by sheriff's deputies, is being held until authorities from Tennessee pick him up.

Reports attached to a fugitive warrant indicate the Tennessean is charged with the Oct. 30 shooting of Carl Griffin in Memphis, Tenn. The man subsequently died, reports show.

Hovekamp was detained here on the drunkeness charge when it was learned of the alleged murder in Memphis. He had also been arrested the day before, again on a drunkeness charge, but released when a check showed no outstanding warrants.

Meany Bids AFL-CIO Farewell After 24 Years

WASHINGTON (AP)-George Meany, one of the American labor movement's most durable and powerful forces, bade farewell to the AFL-CIO today, declaring that the house of labor he helped build is solid and "ready to do battle with any foe who would destroy it."

The ailing, 85-year-old Meany, who retires as AFL-CIO president on Monday, gave an emotion-filled parting speech to 1,000 delegates as the labor federation opened its convention to install its first new leader since its birth 24 years ago.

Meany's hand-picked successor, Secretary-Treasurer Lane Kirkland, is expected to be elected as second president of the giant organization.

Speaking from a wheelchair, a thin, pale Meany proclamed that the AFL-CIO "is alive and well... and ready to do battle with any foe who would destroy it."

But he said American workers face tough times ahead. "The national economy is a mess," he said in his text. "America's energy problems are growing ... inflation is unchecked and family budgets are wrecked; the recession is at hand."

Meany complained that the Carter administration's economic policies have failed to deal with the nation's problems "because they were ill-advised, ill-considered, ineffective and inequitable."

He spoke just hours before President Carter was to address the convention in his first public speech since 62 Americans were taken hostage by Iranian students at the U.S. Embassy in Tehran on Nov. 4.

As he prepared to hand the reins of the AFL-CIO over to Kirkland, Meany said each generation of trade unionists must pass the torch of stewardship to new leaders.

"It has been a torch... sometimes flickering, but never dimmed," he said. "It is now our responsibility...to pass it intact and shining to those who follow us; to carry that torch high, with pride, with honor."

Meany, who has been crippled by arthritis and other ailments since April, predicted that the labor movement "is about to embark on another period of significant growth and expansion."

"The unity in the federation itself is unmatched in our history," he said. "This federation is the house of labor. It is well built - ready to stand and to shelter workers long beyond the lifetime of everyone in this hall. And there are plenty of rooms in the house of labor to accommodate all organizations of workers."

In closing, Meany thanked God "for granting me more than one man's share of happiness and rewards and prayers for His continuing blessing on this nation, and on this movement, and on each of you."

inflation's inroads

Ironically, an employee of a branch of the very thing that is the primary cause of inflation states that inflation is further eroding the standard of living in four Southwestern metropolitan areas.

The government, all of us should know by this time, with its wasteful spending, is making available billions of cheap dollars and its excessive taxation and regulation is the prime cause of inflation.

The government employee who pointed out what inflation is doing to the Southwestern areas is Mary Grandstaff, an economist for the Federal Reserve Bank of Dallas.

She wrote in the October issue of Voice, the publication of the Federal Reserve Bank of Dallas (and El Paso, Houston and San Antonio), that in the four southwestern metropolitan areas of Austin, Baton Rouge, Dallas and Houston, inflation has reduced the standard of living for many people. For instance, Grandstaff says, inflation has pushed many people into a higher tax bracket, and as a result, taxes have risen more rapidly than expenditures on goods and services in recent years.

In addition, sharply rising costs of necessities increased expenditures on these items relative to less essential goods and services, the writer pointed out.

The conclusions were made in a recent study by the economist in analyzing U.S. Bureau of Labor Statistics figures over the period ranging from 1973 to 1978.

If the study had included 1979 to date, the picture would have been more grim.

In the analysis of the budget statistics for high, intermediate and low-budget families in the four metro areas studied, higher-budget families experienced the greatest increase in total taxes which rose at average annual rates of 3.8 to 4.1 percentage points faster than the total expenditures for goods and services. For intermediate-budget families total taxes rose at average annual rates that exceeded the growth in total expenditures for goods and services grew more rapidly than total taxes for the lower-budget families.

And just as taxes mounted in the four metro areas, so did the costs of necessities. Expenditures for necessities rose at average annual rates of almost 1.0 to 3.5 percentage points faster than less essential goods and services. (This rate has escalated sharply in 1979). In the four metro areas there was very little difference in these rates of increase among the three budget categories. The rise in expenditures on essentials was highest - relative to the rise in expenditures on non-essentials - in Dallas, and lowest in Baton Rouge.

The ones who are paying the bill - the earning, oppressed tax payers - are feeling that terrible toll, and watching their worth disappear into thin air as, on one hand the government takes more from them, and on the other hand they have to pay much more for the essentials of life.

word to the wise

The Carter White House recently distributed a handy little packet of "fact sheets" on women in government that included a none-too-subtle reminder that 21 percent of President Carter's appointments have gone to women compared with just 12 percent of President Ford's.

The dig was directed not just at the GOP but also no doubt at Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, who has never been noted for hiring women for top-level policy jobs.

The United States is importing more and more oil and paying record prices for it.

Our nation's balance of trade with other nations was unbalanced in their favor last month by another $2.83 billion.

It now appears that this year our outgo will exceed our income by $73 billion; all of it because of the higher prices we are forced to pay for foreign oil.

The United States has a vast reservoir of underground oil -- conceivably all the oil we need -- but we are refusing to use it.

The Senate Energy Committee, which you'd think should be seeking to develop more of our nation's energy reserves, instead has voted 17 to 1 to put Alaska's resources on ice.

More than a fourth of the state of Alaska -- an area as huge as California -- is off limits to developers.

Our own nation's oil, gas minerals, timber are therefore not available to us.

Alaska currently produces 1.6 million barrels of oil a day, 18 percent of our nation's total domestic production.

No telling how much oil Alaska could produce because only 18 oil rigs are at work in the entire state. In comparison, there are 317 rigs working in Louisiana, 719 in Texas.

The federal government has allowed misguided environmentalists to build a fence around Alaska's enormous reserves of oil -- as well as gas and coal and potential hydro energy.

Alaska has 250,000 square miles of onshore sedimentary basins plus another 200,000 square miles offshore.

But since 1900, while we were drilling two million oil and gas wells in the United States, only 136 were drilled in these potentially rich regions of Alaska. Just one area, the Arctic National Wildlife Range, has the greatest oil and gas potential of any area in North America.

Most of Alaska's potential oil and gas areas are unexplored; can't be explored.

The same people who were successful in delaying the Alaskan pipeline for three critical years are trying now to prevent us from even finding out how rich we are.

These environmentalists -- many or most making a profession of environmentalism -- are a very selfish minority.

Surveys show the American people are 87 percent in favor of exploring and developing Alaska.

Yet we have preservationists in key positions in Washington these days who are deliberately sabotaging our nation's economy in the name of "conservation."

There is no scientific evidence that such activity would be any threat to the area's wildlife.

Exploration of the Arctic does not have to mean exploitation. It's been proved in Prudhoe Bay that milking the cow enhances her beauty, increases her comfort and benefits everybody.

my turn

by john long

Someone once remarked that he wanted a faith, not a faith that he could embrace but one that embraced him.

My faith, I have discovered recently, is not a religious creed but belief in the doctrine of the strenuous life. The exercise of running is something that consumes me.

I know because I have had to lay off running for two days because of a case of the sniffles. For some reason, my conscience is bothering me.

My conscience is bothering me, my body feels almost bloated, my skin is slightly clammy, and I am seized by the desire to burn shoe rubber in Towle Park. I guess that pretty well settles the issue. I'm addicted to running.

In running, the body is supposed to produce something like opium or morphine. It's a naturally produced drug that in turn produces the "high" felt by people during athletic competition. Frankly, I believe it. I couldn't possibly quit running right now without suffering withdrawal symptoms.

Coming down with a case of the sniffles earlier this week, I decided it would be best for me to lay off running in the cold morning air for a few days. For two days I didn't run, and now I feel slightly hyper.

I feel the need -- the literal need -- to go out and run, sniffles not withstanding. And I will go out, too, in the morning. Even if it means a slightly worse case of the sniffles later on, I simply have to make a run. Only then will I feel comfortable.

When I heard there is going to be a Turkey Walk and Fun Run held this Saturday, I was seized with a competitive fervor that frightened me a little bit. I wanted, really wanted, to go out and beat someone.

I have been psyching myself up for the big race ever since. I'm on edge now and feel as though I could eat nails. I won't be able to rest well until after it is over.

It used to not be this way. I used to be a calm, passive soul.

Running has sparked an aggressive streak in me.

congressional comment

by charles stenholm, mc

WASHINGTON, D.C.— For many years now there has been a continuing controversy over the separation of powers between state and federal governments. Their lines of authority have been blurred as power has become centralized in Washington and local control has suffered.

Education has traditionally been an area where state and local governments have determined the allocation of resources. But in the last several years the tentacles of the federal bureaucracy have gradually increased their control over our schools.

Recently $4.1 million in scholarship money for Texas students was impounded by the Office of Education because of a confrontation over the states' right to maintain their own quality standards for higher education. The federal government was pressing states to broaden their criteria for participation in the State Student Incentive Grant program. This action would have forced Texas to share grant funds with an additional 34 nonprofit postsecondary institutions which were not accredited and were not recognized as institutions of higher education by the state. The end result would have been a weakening of the standards of quality that our state officials have sought to maintain.

It was the position of our educators to resist this federal intrusion into state authority. At the risk of losing these funds, the Coordinating Board of the Texas College and University System held firm. A legislative solution was worked out. The Congress passed a provision that would exempt states from the requirement to make all nonprofit institutions eligible for the State Student Incentive Grant program. This is one small victory for local control of education.

If this action had not taken place 10,000 students attending public and private colleges and universities would not have received their scholarship aid for the spring semester. It is indeed callous of the Office of Education to threaten these students because of a bureaucratic dispute.

It is evident that most Americans are dissatisfied with the way the federal government spends our tax dollars. A recent survey done by the Opinion Research Corporation found that citizens believe the services rendered by Washington are inferior to those received by local governments. They found that only 29 percent of respondents believed the federal government is giving the taxpayers good services for the taxes collected.

Certainly most people are in agreement that funds are better spent by local authorities. These people have a knowledge of the problems and can find the answers. I hope our educators will continue to resist interference by the federal bureaucracy. It is only by local resistence that the flood of federal control can be stopped. Rest assured we will be helpful whenever we can in the Congress.

Suddenly almost everyone, with the notable exception of the Soviets, wants to get into the rescue act.

A score of international agencies are concerting efforts in an air-sea lift of emergency food.

Fifty-one of the United Nations have pledged more than $200 million for relief supplies.

The American deputy president - Rosalynn Carter - is personally on the scene.

Even the previously implacable regime in Phnom Pehn has yielded to the extent of opening the port of Kompong Som and the Mekong River to relief shipments.

This burst of activity is not only welcome, it may well be essential if Cambodians are not for all practical effect to be extinguished as a people. The magnitude of the disaster that has overtaken them is matched in recent history only by the Jewish Holocaust. By some estimates, up to half of Cambodia's pre-conflict population may already have perished and many or most of the survivors may already be beyond saving.

Who is to blame for this tragedy? Most immediately Cambodians themselves - the two regimes, both pledged to the Marxist cause, savaging each other for control of a country that could well end up without people.

Beyond these, the Vietnamese who are now the real power in Cambodia, gradually extending their own imperium over all that had once been a choice portion of the French Empire.

The Soviets, for supporting and encouraging the Vietnamese, less for what is to be gained in the Cambodian conflict itself than to strike at the Chinese. And the Chinese, supporters of the losing Cambodian side, for similar reasons of maneuver against the Soviets.

Also, for that matter, the French and the Americans. The former for their vain post-World War II effort to re-establish themselves in Indochina and, as a consequence, launching the entire region on a 30-year war. The latter, inheritors of the losing French cause, for having drawn Cambodia into full-scale warfare in the last spasms of the effort to hold on in South Vietnam.

The real villain, however, is politics, the politics of power that have motivated and manipulated all the parties to this disaster. And although relief is on the way - although it may yet prove both too late and too little - we are not done with them.

The United States and Soviet Union together might mount an effective relief operation that would assist both Cambodian camps, but are unable to coordinate efforts because of continuing divergent interests.

The quickest and most effective means of moving relief supplies in large volume into Cambodia would be by truck across the Thai border, but Phnom Pehn will not agree to this because of the likely greater benefits to its opponents whose stronghold the border region is.

The United States is reluctant to channel all aid through channels controlled by Phnom Penh because of the benefit this might represent to Vietnamese-Soviet expansionism.

And so it goes.

Politics, as Cambodia is so tragically demonstrating, can be not only hazardous but potentially fatal.

NEW YORK (AP)— Those billions of dollars of unfunded liabilities of private pension funds, about which so much concern has been expressed in the media, don't seem to worry many of the companies that run them.

In a survey of very large industrial and service companies, 74 percent of respondents said the furor had caused them to re-examine their own company's plans, but 92 percent said they saw no problem.

About plans in general, including those of other companies, however, the corporate executives were far less certain, with only 49 percent of those participating in the survey saying the issue was exaggerated.

The responses were to a questionnaire mailed to chief executives of the 2,500 largest industrial and service companies by William M. Mercer Inc., the world's largest employee benefits advisory firm.

George Faunce, a Mercer officer, explained that with 8 percent of the private sector's payrolls invested in pension funds the executives seem to believe the wherewithal exists to meet current retiree obligations.

Well-run funds, he said, follow actuarial principles, maintaining a fund sufficient for paying claims as they arise. Unless a company fails, the fund is constantly replinished by regular contributions.

A possible problem for the future, if not for now, was indicated by the 426 responses - an above average return, according to Mercer - dealing with the issue of early versus late retirement.

"There is a paradox here," Faunce conceded, with many actuaries and economists fearing the Social Security system will run into serious financial problems if workers continue to retire at age 65 or earlier.

Faunce and other Mercer officers, including Haeworth Robinson, former Social Security chief actuary, share the fear. With early retirement, and with longevity increasing, retirement sometimes exceeds 30 years.

"Right now three workers support each Social Security pensioner, but that ratio will become two workers for each pensioner at the turn of the century. It will put a severe burden on the system," Faunce said.

DECORATION DEMONSTRATION-Blanche Chisum, county extension agent and American Business Women's Association member, presented a program, "Christmas Sparkle," on how to make Christmas exciting. She showed slides and demonstrated easy-to-make decorations. Jackie Hackfeld, co-owner of Bar-H-Bar, gave the vocational talk. There were 55 members and four guests attending. ABWA's next meeting will be held Dec. 18 where Dot Stokes will present a chalk talk, "How Do You Look at Bethlehem?" (SDN Staff Photo)

NOVEMBER BIRTHDAYS-Richard Bratton left, Ollie Nicks, and Minnie George (not pictured) were paid special tribute Tuesday at Leisure Lodge as residents, staff, friends and family honored them at a party. These three residents celebrate November birthdays. A birthday cake was donated by Highland Bakery, ice cream by Gandy's, and flowers by Hinshaw's. RSVP members serving included Andy and Ruth Roe, Floyd Jennings, Lida Lane and Rita Dowdy who is shown pinning on Bratton's boutonniere. (SDN Staff Photo)

JUNIOR HONOR-Rita Eicke, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. Seabourn Eicke was named to be among those representing Oklahoma Christian College in the 1979-80 edition of Who's Who In American Colleges and Universities. She was one of eight juniors chosen by the faculty for this honor. Miss Eicke, a 1978 senior of SHS is scheduled to be a senior in OCC in December.

If the ACBL were inclined to play games with the computer-dealt charity hands, they would certainly do something with this one.

North and South have just 28 high-card points between them. South has a fine opening spade bid. North, with 14 high-card points and balanced distribution, has a book two-notrump response but many players would respond with two clubs.

Irrespective of how North starts proceedings, the final contract at most tables is going to be three notrump or four spades.

All suits break and West holds both the ace and queen of diamonds, so 12 tricks are there at either notrump or spades. Spade and notrump slams received thoroughly undeserved good scores while four-spade bidders who were in the correct final contract would receive very bad scores.

There are hundreds of ways to bid this hand. The contract of six clubs by North is the best slam contract. All it requires for sure success is 3-2 breaks in both black suits and a successful spade finesse, since North can discard two of his diamonds on South's long spades.

The few who did get there will know they bid the best slam but will get fewer points than slam bidders in spades or notrump.

Stroganoff Party Entree

By Aileen Claire
NEA Food Editor

Beef stroganoff is a favorite dish of cooking students according to members of the Association of Cooking Schools. And restaurant owners say stroganoff is very popular with customers of all ages.

This stroganoff recipe makes a perfect addition to holiday party menus. The dish uses tomatoes, cornstarch for thickening and less expensive beef chuck rather than top roung or tenderloin. Serve with rice or noodles.

BEEF STROGANOFF

2 tablespoons corn oil
2½ pounds boneless beef chuck, cut into strips 1/4-inch thick and ½-inch wide
½ pound mushrooms, sliced
1 cup finely chopped onion
2 cloves garlic, minced
1 (28-ounce) can plum tomatoes in juice
2 teaspoons salt
½ teaspoon pepper
1/3 cup cornstarch
½ cup dry white wine
1 cup dairy sour cream
cup chopped parsley

In large skillet heat corn oil over medium heat. Add meat, 1/4 at a time. Brown quickly on both sides. Remove meat.

Add mushrooms, onion and garlic. Saute 5 minutes or until tender.

Add tomatoes, salt and pepper. Simmer 10 minutes.

Stir together cornstarch and wine until smooth. Stir into tomato mixture. Stirring constantly, bring to boil over medium heat. Boil 1 minute.

Remove from heat. Stir in sour cream and parsley. Add meat.

This kitchen-tested recipe makes 6 to 8 servings.

Ministers' Group Works Toward Original Goals

The Scurry County Ministerial Alliance is continuing a community-wide service it began in 1962 when the organization was formed.

Its purpose, as outlined at the beginning, is "to promote fellowship and cooperation among the ministers of the Snyder area; to exchange ideas on the spiritual, moral and social needs of the community; and to give a united front on these matters."

Now, after 18 years, the organization continues to work toward fulfilling these needs in Snyder.

The largest single ministry provided by the alliance is "the Good Samaritan" program. This program provides emergency financial assistance to both transients and citizens of Scurry County. The funds, administered by the alliance with the help of the police department, are used primarily for food, lodging and gasoline.

A program to encourage church growth was started last April. The theme of the program is "We Really Do Need Each Other," and is aimed at encouraging members of the community to become involved in the church of their choice.

The Ministerial Alliance serves the community at large by sponsoring three worship services during the year. During the Easter season there is an early-morning Good Friday service. During the Christmas season there is an outdoor service of worship on the town square, and during the Thanksgiving season there is a community Thanksgiving service.

The Thanksgiving service is of special importance to the alliance because an offering is taken with all of the funds going to "the Good Samaritan" program.

Officers of the Scurry County Ministerial Alliance for 1979-80 are the Rev. James Jackson of First Assembly of God, president; the Rev. Thom Jordan of Our Lady of Guadalupe Catholic Church, vice president; and the Rev. Gary West of First Presbyterian Church, secretary-treasurer.

Victims Of Plane Crash Bandito Club Members

ALBUQUERQUE, N.M. (AP)—Two men who died in a plane crash in northeast New Mexico were members of the Bandidos motorcycle club, authorities said Wednesday.

The pilot of the Cessna 310 that crashed in a rugged canyon area near Tucumcari Oct. 30 was identified as David A. Jones, 32, of Lubbock, Texas. law enforcement authorities said Jones was the national treasurer of the Bandidos and at one time was the secretary of the Nomads.

The Nomads are considered the enforcement arm of the club's leadership.

The twin-engine aircraft was registered to Jones.

The second victim, Michael O'Keefe of Bremerton, Wash., was identified as a member of the Bremerton Bandidos and the national vice president of the club.

Both men were wearing club jackets with insignia at the time of the crash.

Phil Jordan, special agent in charge of the Drug Enforcement Administration in Albuquerque, said Wednesday that three grams of cocaine were found in Jones' wallet with a street value of about $300.

"There were no additional drugs," Jordan said.

He said he had received an inquiry from his agency's public relations office in Dallas about a report of a million-dollar drug haul in connection with the plane.

"But all reports from my office indicate no such animal," he said. "If there was a million-dollars worth of drugs, they weren't there when authorities got to the scene."

The cocaine was found during a search Tuesday, 24 hours after the wreckage was spotted.

Jordan said two revolvers were found at the crash site. One weapon, he said, was in Jones' hand.

Investigating officers, he said, reported that "Jones had a microphone in one hand and a gun in the other," indicating he might have "contemplated killing himself." Another revolver was found in the plane, he said.

The plane's wreckage was spotted Monday about five miles south of Montoya by the Civil Air Patrol, and the bodies were removed by state police helicopter.

The plane, en route from Bremerton, Wash., to Lubbock, Texas, was last seen at Grand Junction, Colo., during a refueling stop Oct. 30.

'Powder Puff' Course Is Set

The Community Services department of Western Texas College will offer a powder puff mechanics course from Nov. 20-Dec. 11, with classes meeting during evening hours.

Students are to call the Community Services office at 573-8511, extension 240, to reserve space in the class. Fees are $15 per person.

The course is designed to acquaint students with the basic operation and maintenance of automobiles. Students will use their own vehicles for lab learning activities.

British Art

Desegregation In Austin Ordered By Jan. 21

FORT WORTH (AP) - The Austin Independent School District, which had been under federal court order to devise a desegregation plan by Jan. 15, now has until only Jan. 21 to put such a plan into operation.

A three-judge panel of the 5th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals Wednesday agreed with NAACP lawyers who said the district's one-race schools should be integrated as soon as possible.

The Austin School Board met in a closed session Wednesday night. The board did not release a statement when it emerged, but an attorney told the Austin American-Statesman that the members did not reach decision on how they would handle the order.

On Nov. 5, U.S. District Judge Jack Roberts of Austin told the district to come up with a desgregation plan by Jan. 15. His order gave district officials a free hand in developing the plan. Roberts suggested a minimum of busing be used to satisify his order.

Roberts had denied an NAACP motion for immediate implementation of an NAACP plan. The organization appealed and the three-judge appeals panel agreed the blacks had a right to immediate relief.

The case began in 1970 when the federal government and minority organizations filed suit against the district.

The three-judge panel ordered the parties to submit a desegregation plan by Dec. 17. The district court was told to conduct any necessary hearings on the proposed plan by Jan. 2.

The order requires the district to implement the plan on Jan. 21 - the beginning of the spring semester.

AISD lawyer Bill Bingham told the panel Tuesday it would not be "physically possible" to implement a plan by Jan. 21. The district includes 57,000 students in 80 schools.

Bingham said an NAACP plan written by a Florida university dean could not be implemented because of a lack of buses in the district.

AISD Superintendent Jack Davidson spoke with the district's principals Wednesday morning. He told them an order requiring a desgregation plan to be in operation for the next semester would be "stupid." It was not known if he knew the appeals panel had already issued such an order.

Davidson predicted attempts to integrate the schools in January could cause chaos in the district.

The Rev. Marvin C. Griffin, school board president, said the order "is going to make it somewhat difficult." He said the district is not prepared for a plan requiring "massive busing."

Your Birthday

November 16, 1979

A big change might happen in a subtle manner in the offing this coming year. The results are extremely good and can offer you a chance to acquire a few luxury items.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) When it comes to your financial picture and how to handle it, you won't need any assistance today from anyone. You already have the answers. Find out more about yourself by sending for your copy of Astro-Graph Letter which begins with your birthday. Mail $1 for each to Astro-Graph, Box 489, Radio City Station, N.Y. 10019. Be sure to specify birth date.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) A friend could be instrumental today in changing your outlook about something you weren't too sure about. He or she knows how to lift the veil.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) This could be a satisfying day. You'll be able to finally work out an agreement that's been hanging fire so as to please everybody.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) If things are in a mess, take charge and organize that large group activity that has everyone going around in circles. You'll well suited for the job.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) You'll experience an emotional lift as a result of the kind way in which you handle a situation where you have the option to satisfy the other person's needs above your own.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Being involved with others today arouses your more cooperative instincts. A change of heart in some matter could develop from your attitude.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) You have the ability today to do something different and creative in order to turn old, boring tasks into adventures. Bring it out of you.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Here are two reasons why you are fun to be around today. You let people do their own thing, and if they don't, you'll think of ways to inspire them.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Again today, you'll appreciate your home and enjoy expressing yourself, doing something creative. You know how to take the worn and make it look new.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) You'll find good cause to change a bad opinion about someone you know socially. Something nice this person will do will be the reason.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) You shouldn't have to leave home in order to find new ways to build upon what you already have. You have many valuable ingredients lying around just waiting to be utilized.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) There shouldn't be any doubt in your mind today as to who you are or where you want to go. Follow your nobler instincts. They'll keep you on the right track.

Bachelor Tires Of Carter Detail

WASHINGTON (AP) - Not all Secret Service agents aspire to protecting the president. One young agent, currently assigned to the president's detail, has asked for a transfer to protect former President Richard M. Nixon.

The agent explained that, as a bachelor, he's had it with spending most of his weekends closeted at Camp David, Md., the presidential mountain retreat Carter seems to love. He's ready to move to New York City, his hometown, where Nixon recently bought an apartment.

Mickey Walker, who held the welterweight and middleweight boxing titles, was known as the "Toy Bulldog."

Statewide Roundup Of Iranians Gets Under Way

A statewide roundup of Iranian students who are suspected of violating U.S. immigration laws was under way in Texas today.

Border patrolmen detained some Iranians at the Texas-Mexico border while other agents were sent to college campuses in the crackdown ordered by President Carter.

In Dallas, Immigration and Naturalization Service Director William Chambers said his investigators would be on all college campuses with 50 or more Iranian students to check their papers and academic records within the next two weeks.

Agents were sent to North Texas State in Denton today, where about 300 Iranians are enrolled. Chambers said agents will visit 12 other campuses within his district, which includes part of Oklahoma and 120 counties in North Texas.

The survey of Iranians at North Texas State will be repeated Friday and Monday, Chambers said. Meanwhile, a student group at North Texas slated an anti-Iranian demonstration for 1 p.m. Monday.

A 22-year-old Iranian student at the University of Texas held for three days in lieu of $40,000 bond while federal agents investigated a tip that he had made a threat against the life of the president was released Wednesday.

San Antonio INS Director Richard Casillas said "the tip apparently did not pan out" and the student, arrested because he was working as a waiter in violation of his visa, was released on a reduced bond of $5,000. He still faces possible deportation, pending a court hearing next week.

Immigration officials held three Iranian students in Juarez, Mexico, Wednesday while checking their immigration papers and student visas.

Pete A. Reyes, assistant district director of the INS in El Paso said 15 students were stopped at the American border Tuesday. Nine were allowed back into the United States, two were held at the INS district office in El Paso and three were held in Juarez for an immigration hearing.

In Houston, the president of the longshoreman's union ordered longshoremen from North Carolina to Texas to boycott Iranian ships and cargo until Americans being held hostage in Iran are released.

"There is a lot of Iranian cargo in Port Houston and my people won't load that cargo," said J.H. Raspberry, president of the International Longshoremen's Association for the South Atlantic and Gulf Coast District.

About 300 Texas A&M University students gathered on the College Station campus Wednesday for what officials called a "good natured" demonstration. About 70 of the school's 35,000 students are Iranians, but none was present during the protest rally.

Only about 30 protesters gathered outside the Iranian Consulate in downtown Houston Wednesday. Police cleared the 40-story Dresser Tower, where the consulate offices for about 30 minutes at noon because of a bomb scare. No bomb was found and workers were allowed to return to their offices.

A group calling itself the "American Citizens for American Citizens" has planned a march through downtown Dallas Friday morning.

Ali Suggests Shah's Return

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Former heavyweight boxing champion Muhammad Ali has indicated there is no chance he will play a role in negotiating for American hostages in Tehran, and suggested that the United States return the Shah and his money to Iran.

Ali, who announced earlier that he'd offered himself in exchange for the 60 Americans being held hostage at the U.S. embassy in Tehran, said Wednesday that his request had been turned down.

Ali, a Muslim, said Iran would not accept him in trade for the hostages because "I'm a hero there, they're my brothers."

He would not say, however, when he had made the proposal nor which Iranian officials turned it down.

Asked if he might be permitted into Iran to speak with leader Ayatollah Khomeini about the hostages, Ali answered: "I don't know. I don't think so. They want the Shah and we've said we're not going to give him to them."

The 37-year-old retired champion said he thought the U.S. should send all of Shah Mohammed Reza Pahlavi's money back to Iran, then should send the Shah himself back "when he gets well and able."

"We are holding a thief that they want back in their country," Ali said.

But then asked directly if he thought the U.S. was making a mistake by not returning the Shah to Iran, Ali replied: "I'll say 'no comment' to that. All this stuff is above me. It's between countries."

Food Sickness Investigated In Marfa

MARFA (AP) — State health officials today investigated the sickness of 62 high school students who suffered stomach aches and vomiting after attending a Future Farmers of American luncheon.

At least 24 students were hospitalized and 38 others stayed home with food poisoning symptoms, according to Elvin Burnside of the Texas Health Department.

Burnside, who was in charge of the state investigation, said there was no definite proof yet that the students suffered food poisoning, although circumstantial evidence was strong.

Tips Offered To Ease Stepfamily Problems

WASHINGTON (AP) — The steadily growing rate of divorce and remarriage in the U.S. means there are more and more stepfamilies, and adjusting to one another can be a real strain.

In the old fairy tales, step parents used to be villains. Now, on television, such families are immediately harmonious and loving.

The National Institute of Mental Health says the truth is that most stepfamilies have some clashes, but with time and effort most learn to adjust to one another.

The institute says there are a number of things both step and natural parents can do to ease the adjustment of two families into one, and these are summarized in a new booklet, "Yours, Mine and Ours."

The booklet sells for $1.30 from the Consumer Information Center, Dept. 108G, Pueblo, Colo., 81009.

The booklet urges that you carefully examine your motives and those of your future spouse for remarrying.

If you are looking for a housekeeper, hire one. And if you are only looking for an instant family, that's not enough reason to marry.

As you are getting to know your future spouse, include the children as often as possible.

And, the booklet says, discuss the changes that will be necessary to form the new family. This is particularly important in talking out ideas on raising children, particularly if you have differing lifestyles.

Also, talk to the children about the effects the remarriage will have on them. Consider the children's feelings, but don't let them make the decision on remarriage for you.

Family finances should also be discussed before the wedding. Money problems are common and can be doubly difficult with child support money going out or coming in.

Once the new family is formed, let things develop slowly. Try to be an additional parent to the stepchild, not a replacement, and don't expect too much too soon.

Less Cattle In Feedlots

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Agriculture Department says about 8.02 million cattle were being fed in the major beef states on Nov. 1, a drop of 14 percent from a year ago.

Officials also reported Wednesday a 14 percent drop in the number of new cattle placed in feedlots last month, compared with October 1978. Those totaled about 2.39 million.

Sales of feedlot cattle in October, at 1.64 million, were down 12 percent from a year earlier, the report said.

Southern Pacific Bid For Line Across Panhandle Supported

By SOLL SUSSMAN
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — A representative of a Texas Panhandle town that stands to lose its only east-west rail route has urged the Interstate Commerce Commission to approve Southern Pacific's offer to buy the track from the ailing Rock Island Line.

"We are strong supporters still of the free enterprise system," Dalhart banker Jack King said Wednesday at a hearing on the proposed purchase. "We support it (Southern Pacific's bid) wholeheartedly."

Southern Pacific is seeking the route from Santa Rosa, N.M., to St. Louis that runs through the northern Panhandle towns of Dalhart, Stratford and Texhoma.

Several railroads — including the Santa Fe — are opposing the plan, claiming it would cost them revenue and possibly prevent a reorganization of the Rock Island's system.

King said the Panhandle business and agricultural community was concerned about the lost jobs that abandonment of the route could cause as well as the potential loss of freight capacity in the heavily agricultural area.

"We have vast sources of grain from which to make delivery," he said at the hearing before an ICC administrative law judge.

King said 68 jobs would be lost in Dalhart — a town of about 6,000 people — if Rock Island shut down its route. The railroad has operated on a curtailed basis in the area since its troubles started.

The Rock Island track is Dalhart's only east-west rail route. Burlington Northern operates a north-south route through the Panhandle town.

King said he was told Southern Pacific plans to spend about $200 million to refurbish the line, known as the Golden Star Route.

Rep. Jack Hightower, D-Texas, whose district includes the Panhandle, planned to testify today in support of Southern Pacific's offer. He said his basic testimony would be "the importance of preserving rail service to that part of the country."

Testimony taken at the hearings will be presented to the full Interstate Commerce Commission, which is scheduled to make its decision by next summer.

Dennis Wilson, an attorney for the Santa Fe, said his railroad predicts it would lose one third of its net income if the Southern Pacific's purchase is approved. He said the Santa Fe would have to reduce its payroll and cut back on equipment repairs and expansion.

Both New Mexico senators and Rep. Glenn English, D-Okla., whose district includes the Oklahoma Panhandle served by the route, testified in favor of Southern Pacific's bid.

English said huge feedlots and industrial development in his district depend on the route. "I would hate to see that area suddenly be without rail service," he said.

English added that he was told Southern Pacific planned to purchase about 2,000 grain hopper cars. The shortage of hopper cars recently caused grain pileups in the area.

Sen. Pete Domenici, R-N.M., said he supported the Southern Pacific's plan "unequivocably, absolutely. ...I am here because I firmly believe this is good for New Mexico.

Sen. Harrison Schmitt, R-N.M., said improved service on the Rock Island route would promote business for competitors. "Good service breeds good service," he said.

WTC Ensembles To Play Sunday

The Western Texas College Jazz Ensemble and Vocal Ensemble will entertain visitors to the college open house Sunday afternoon with a program scheduled from 2-3 p.m. in the Student Center.

The Vocal Ensemble, under the direction of Jane Womack, consists of Lisa Anderson of Colorado City, Noel Nease of Abilene, Nancy Bowen of Sweetwater, and Sheryl Burk, Teresa Gallagher, Kathy Ward, Peggy Highfield, Margaret Sherrod, Lynn Wimmer, Kevin Young, David Brown, Gary Miller, Freddy Quiros and Rocky Youngblood of Snyder.

Guy Gamble directs the Jazz Ensemble and plays bass with the group. Other members are Land Richards, of Houston, Randy Redwine of Tahoka, and Terry Everts, Noble Young, Rocky Youngblood, Kevin Young and David Brown of Snyder.

Turkey Walk, Fun Run Set For Saturday

The American Heart Association's annual Turkey Walk and Fun Run is set for Saturday at 10 a.m. Participants should gather in front of the junior high school building on El Paso Ave. at 9:30 for instructions.

The five mile course will wind through Towle Park and return to the school. Students wishing to enter in the Turkey Walk may pick up pledge blanks at any of the elementary schools. They will be permitted to walk one-half mile for every $5 pledge.

The student who brings in the most money will win a 10-speed bicycle. Second place is a $50 savings bond and third place will be records and a coupon good for a giant pizza. The next ten places will receive turkeys. Every student who participates will get something, says Randy Perkins, one of the organizers.

The organization or class collecting the most money will receive the 1979 Turkey Walk Heart Fund trophy and an ice cream party at the Sunshine Shoppe.

Adults who enter the Fun Run race will pay a $2 entry fee and will be competing for a trophy.

WTC Classic Begins Tonight

World Games participants and a hometown star highlight the opening of the annual WTC Classic which begins tonight at 7 in Scurry County Coliseum.

A second game, at 9, pits heralded Western Texas College against Sul Ross.

Angel Gonzalez, Rafael Holguin and Francisco Lugo, all participants in the 1979 World Games, headline a team from The University of Juarez which competes against South Plains College in tonight's first game. The trio competed for Mexico, which finished fourth in World Games basketball competition.

South Plains, a team which will meet Western Texas in WJCAC conference play later this season, boasts Snyder's own Randy Courtney.

Courtney, an all-star basketball player and high jumper at Snyder High School two years ago, was recruited by Westerner coach Nolan Richardson, but the 6-4 athlete chose South Plains because of his love for track, which WTC does not offer.

At halftime of the game, a twirling act will perform.

At 9 a.m., Western Texas and Sul Ross take the floor.

Friday's action also begins at 7, with South Plains taking on Sul Ross. At 9, Juarez and WTC vie. The Western Texas College dance class has a show lined up for Friday night spectators as well.

The action climaxes Saturday as Juarez and Sul Ross tip off at 6, followed by WTC and South Plains at 8 o'clock. Also Saturday, an Anniversary Queen will be crowned, and ex-students and athletes will be recognized.

Tickets are $5 for an adult three-day pass and $3 for a student three-day pass. Single-day passes are $2 for adults and $1 for students.

Richardson Gets Another Award; What Else Is New?

By BILL McCLELLAN

Like Coach Nolan Richardson would say, "The Lord has been good to me."

We know that's what Richardson would say, because that's exactly what he did say after receiving yet another (YAWN) award.

Another one?

Yep, the WTC athletic director who has been WJCAC, Region 5 and Texas Junior College Basketball Coach of the Year, MVP and All-State in high school, named to the El Paso Hall of Fame and God knows what else, has been given another award.

"I got a phone call about midnight the other night," he says. "This guy, a former basketball player for me, said I had just been chosen this year's Outstanding Ex at Bowie High School. I figured he was just putting me on, so I said, 'sure, uh-huh.' He said, 'No, really, Coach, they just elected you Outstanding Ex.' I couldn't believe it."

But it was true.

"I got into El Paso Wednesday night by plane and they had a band playing and everything! You'd have thought I was President Carter or something. It was unreal," says the coach. "They took me to a restaurant, one of those kind of places where water costs 10 bucks, you know? It was unbelievable."

Being named this year's Outstanding Ex Student from Bowie High School is no small honor. Some 2,500 people showed up to give their respects to the coach, who graduated and later taught at Bowie. Apparently, Richardson was the first coach Bowie High School has ever produced that has received the honor. In the past, Outstanding Ex has been reserved for doctors, lawyers and an actor or actress that Bowie produced.

"I can remember when I was at Bowie watching thos presentations and thinking that I'd like to be one of those people someday," says Richardson. "But I never thought they'd give it to a coach."

In addition to the personal mention, Richardson was awarded with a watch. It's one of those do-everything type timepieces, and even Richardson, with all his past awards and achievements, is having trouble figuring it out.

"I told them just set it and give it to me," he laughed. "I don't know what all its got on it. It's got an alarm that can wake me up at night, in the morning or in the middle of a basketball game. It's got a stopwatch in it, a calendar and all kinds of things."

This latest honor completed, Richardson is busy getting back to more pressing matters. It involves wouldn't you know it another award.

"Now all I want is a national championship. That's the one I want. We've been close. Maybe this year we'll make it. We've got a long way to go through."

Well Coach, all-stater, Hall of Famer, Outstanding Ex, JC Coach of the Year - you've got one believer right here. Just hand me the dust mop and I'll start clearing a space.

And by the way, congratulations - seriously - on your latest award.

NOLAN RICHARDSON

Area Gridders Ready For Final Contests

AREA--District 2-B six-man football comes to a close in this area Friday night as Ira travels to Highland, Hermleigh entertains Southland and Hobbs goes to McCaulley. Trent, the loop champion, is idle.

Ira, 3-6 for the season and 2-3 in loop play, will be looking to get back on the winning track after falling to Trent 63-16 last Friday. A 4-6, 3-3 record would be a sign of better things to come for the Bulldogs, who were winless over the 1978 campaign. Game time is 7 p.m.

Hermleigh also felt the effects of Trent, and later Highland, in back-to-back losses, but rallied last week to defeat McCaulley 55-48. The Cardinals, 4-5 on the season, can salvage a .500 season by downing winless Southland at home this Friday at 7.

Hobbs also dropped a decision to Trent, but the Panthers didn't secumb to Highland last week. The Panthers, 7-2 and 4-1, defeated the Hornets 24-14. This time around Coach Mickey Early's crew will be looking to clip McCaulley's Eagles. The game is at 7, in McCaulley.

Borden County closed out its season last week, losing to Roby 33-28. The Loss left the Coyotes at 4-6 and 2-3 for the year.

Cats Face 7-AA Champ

ANDREWS--The District 3-AAA champion Snyder Tigers are scheduled to play 7AA title holder Kermit in volleyball action at 7:30 here tonight.

Both teams have won respectively loop titles and are waiting to play either bi-district (Kermit) or regional (Snyder) games.

Snyder, 27-6 after zipping up the conference crown with 15-3 and 15-4 victories over Lamesa on Tuesday, will play in the Region I Tournament, Dec. 1 in Lubbock.

Felines Open Cage Play

BIG SPRING--Snyder High School's varsity girls basketball team opens the 1979-80 season here this evening.

The Felines, 14-15 last year, will take on the Steers at 8 o'clock. A junior varsity game will start at 6.

In Snyder tonight, the Tiger eighth and ninth grade teams play host to Big Spring at 5 and 7:30 in the high school gym.

Coach Ken Housden is pleased with his girls "attitude and desire" this season, and, barring unseen injury, feels the Tigers have a legitimate shot at the District 3-3A title.

Saturday Snyder girls host San Angelo at 5 and 6:30.

Pfister Upsets Vilas In Three

WEMBLEY, England (AP)—Hank Pfister upset Guillermo Vilas 3-6, 6-3, 6-2 in the second round of a men's Grand Prix tournament.

In other matches, John McEnroe defeated John Lloyd of Britain 6-4, 6-1; Richard Lewis of Britain defeated Tom Okker of the Netherlands 2-6, 6-4, 7-5; Sherwood Stewart downed Scott Carnahan 7-5, 6-2; Ferdi Taygan beat Britain's Andrew Jarrett, 6-1, 6-4 and Italy's Gianni Ocleppo downed Peter Fleming, 6-4, 7-6.

Gene Mayer and Brian Gottfried both pulled out of the tournament, Mayer with a strained groin muscle and Gottfried with a back injury.

Temple, Tyler Also There...

Dusters Enter Hawk Meet

BIG SPRING--Some of the best women's junior college basketball teams in the nation will be here this weekend, as Howard College hosts the Hawk Queens Classic at Dorothy Garrett Coliseum.

According to Hawk Queens head coach Don Stevens, the level of competition can't get much higher.

"We really want to stress the caliber of these teams. This is a very prestigious tournament with tremendously strong teams that are recognized nationally," said Steyens.

The tournament begins 6 p.m. Thursday as the Hawk Queens begin play against McLennon College. The second game of the night, at 8, will pit Temple Junior College against Odessa.

Friday morning at 8:30, the Western Texas College Dusters play Schriener Junior College of Kerrville. Winner of the game will play a UTEP-Tyler victor at 8 p.m. Losers vie at 4 p.m.

McLennon, of Waco, is one of Region 5's top powers and continually ranked in the nation's top 10. Temple has a long history of national championships. The Leopards hold their own against some of the top teams in the country, including Stephen F. Austin and The University of Texas.

Tyler JC posted a 33-3 record last year and were NJCAA National Tournament runners-up. They were also Region 14 champions.

Western Texas College, 4-0 going into the tournament, returns some of the best talent in the conference. The Dusters, which nipped Temple JC 76-74 earlier this season, have shared or won the conference title every year except one.

Howard College features all-region player Jo Ann LeFridge, among others, and said Stevens, "I think we really are one of the six teams with a real shot at taking home the trophy."

Tickets for the event are $2.50 per session for adults and $1.25 for students.

Frosh, JV Try Cubs Tonight

Snyder and Brownfield clash tonight in freshmen and junior varsity battles, setting the stage for Friday's District 3-AAA varsity matchup between the two schools.

At home, Snyder's freshmen, 6-0-2 on the season, play host to the Cubs at 5 o'clock. The game will be held at Travis Field.

Meanwhile, also at 5, the Cub and Tiger junior varsities confront each other in Brownfield. Snyder JV boasts an eight-game winning streak and a 8-1 record.

The games had originally been set for 7 o'clock, but were changed this week.

Tomorrow's varsity game completes the grid season for both Snyder and Brownfield. Snyder goes into the contest 8 p.m. at Tiger Stadium here with a 5-4 record. Brownfield, having won two straight, is 3-6. Both are 2-1 in district play.

When Bob Feller of Cleveland pitched a no-hitter against the New York Yankees in 1946, his center fielder was Bob Lemon, who years later pitched a no-hitter himself.

Firemen Called

A cotton bale fire was doused Wednesday by city firefighters.
The fire occurred in the 2700 block of 21st St. and was reported at 4 p.m. The cotton was owned by Ralph Trevey.

Conviction In Post Case Overturned

The two-year-old conviction of Post attorney Pat Walker, who was tried here in Scurry County, has been overturned by the Texas Court of Criminal Appeals.
Walker was charged with the theft of approximately 6,000 pounds of oilfield scrap iron. His trial was held here on a change of venue. The theft is alleged to have occurred during June 1975.
Walker was tried for the offense twice, his first ended in October 1977, with Walker receiving a three-year probated sentence.
Walker receiving a three-year probated sentence.
District Attorney Pete Greene said initial reports he had received indicate the case was overturned for insufficiency of evidence.

Among American institutions of higher education, the University of Michigan was the first to establish a professorship in zoology and botany - it did so in 1842.

Woman Put On Probation In Shooting

The county court trial of Lorena Burleson ended Wednesday afternoon with the Hermleigh woman receiving a 30-day jail sentence that was probated 180 days.
She was charged with reckless conduct. Court records show she is alleged to have fired three gunshots in the direction of her exhusband, Travis Burleson, on Sept. 25.
The jury of three men and three women deliberated approximately one hour and 40 minutes before finding the defendant guilty. Punishment was assessed by presiding county court judge Preston Wilson.
The trial began Tuesday morning. Ms. Burleson was represented by James Wilks, a Sweetwater attorney.
Serving on the jury were R.W. Hammock, Beverly A. Clements, Mrs. Irving Martin, Bill Sullenger, Wilson Howell, and Sue Parham.

Guilty Plea Heard

A Plainview man, Antonio Garcia Velasquez, pleaded guilty yesterday in 132nd District Court to a charge of driving while intoxicated.
He received a two-year probation.
He had been arrested Oct. 15.

90% Say It's OK In Some Cases, According To Survey...

Americans Becoming Less Staunch On Abortion

HOUSTON (AP)—A survey prepared for the Planned Parenthood Federation of America reveals that Americans are becoming less staunch in their opinions on abortion to the point that 90 percent now favor abortion under some circumstances.

"People are beginning to realize this is not a one-dimensional issue," said Dr. Michael Rappeport, who conducted the survey along with Patricia Labaw. "There are circumstances where they would approve of abortion."

The survey, presented Wednesday at a session of Planned Parenthood's annual meeting, also revealed 80 percent of those qualified favored sex education in schools for students under the age of 12.

The survey included 1,500 adults living in the 48 contiguous states who were reached by telephone.

Rappeport said the study was the first he has seen that goes beyond asking for a simple yes or no response on the issue of abortion. He said the subject could not be reduced to such simple terms.

"If we simply asked people do you favor abortion, yes or no, we'd get about the same 60 percent response in favor that others have received," Rappeport said.

"But you ask them about the 45-year-old woman with three children whose contraception did not work or the 16-year-old rape victim and suddenly they favor abortion."

Rappeport said his study showed only eight percent of the population would be opposed to abortion under any circumstances with the other two percent undecided.

"We are pleased that public opinion suggests the aims of our organization, which include providing information about contraception, supporting sex education in schools and providing birth control counseling and abortion services," said Ms. Faye Wattleton, president of Planned Parenthood.

The survey asked for responses ranging from "agree strongly" to "no opinion" on a wide range of questions related to abortion.

Asked for an opinion to the statement "I don't really approve of abortion, but I don't think I should tell other people what they should do," 45 percent answered "agree strongly."

"Most people are not willing to make absolute judgments about abortion," Ms. Wattleton said. "They realize that options must be available, and that outlawing legal abortion is contrary to popular convictions that moral choices are essentially private choices which should not be ruled by public law."

When asked to agree or disagree with the statement "abortion is a form of 'killing,'" 45 percent agreed strongly.

Other findings of the survey included: 31 percent said only a woman and her doctor should decide on an abortion; 27 percent agreed strongly and 32 percent agreed somewhat that an abortion makes a woman very unhappy and upset; and 28 pecent said abortion leads to severe sexual immorality.

Robot Plant Forecast For Glass Industry

WASHINGTON (AP)-A Swiss engineer forecasts that the long-heralded "automatic factory" complete with robots doing the dirty work for humans will be common within the glass industry by the year 2000.

Technological, social, environmental, regulatory, economic and conservation pressures are combining to accelerate its development, says Michel Cornaz.

He told a recent American Management Association seminar he believes the automatic plant will come first to the glass bottle-making industry because its straight-line production is ideal for automation and process control.

Cornaz described a plant operating at production efficiencies of 95 percent while using up to 50 percent less energy than today. It would also use a substantial amount of recycled glass as raw material. Each production line would be capable of producing 700 bottles per minute, each stronger and lighter than those being produced today.

The robots will replace worn or defective components according to programmed computer instructions, explained Cornaz, an engineer with Emhart Corp.

Amateur Detective Coming Thing

By PETER J. BOYER
AP Television Writer

LOS ANGELES (AP)—A couple of publicity sheets arrived from NBC the other day announcing the development of two new shows for the network. "Momma" and "Allison Sydney Harrison," they were called.

So what? Well, the subject matter of these planned shoes seems noteworthy, perhaps even telling. "Momma," a pilot starring Esther Rolle, is about a housemaid "with an abiding passion for murder mysteries."

"Allison Sydney Harrison" is about a 14-year-old kid, daughter of a high-priced detective, who has "an insatiable curiosity and a terrific nose for trouble." And, no doubt, an abiding passion for mysteries.

Yes, I smell a trend here. The amateur detective is the coming thing. Cops or professional private detectives have become passe on TV. Having an amateur solve crimes allows for much more ludicrous situations.

NBC already has a housewife-detective with a passion for mystery "Kate Loves a Mystery" and soon it will have a housemaid-detective and a precocious kid-detective.

ABC has a show about a rich couple with an abiding passion for mysteries, "Hart to Hart." There are bound to be more. In fact, a quick bit of checking surfaced several amateur detective pilots that may soon appear on a network schedule:

—"Nemo of the North," about an Eskimo sled driver with an abiding passion for mysteries. In the pilot, Nemo stumbles across plans by a group of sinister condominium developers to melt entire neighborhoods and then buy up the land cheap.

—"Mr. President," about a U.S. chief executive who has an abiding passion for mysteries. In the pilot, Mr. President tries to solve the disappearance of his personal pollster, while a nation goes to pot.

—"Leo," about a Pope with an abiding passion for mysteries. In the pilot, Pope Leo investigates the theft of Rome's last Nash Rambler.

—"Abdul," about a jet-setting Arab oil sheik with an abiding passion for mysteries. In the pilot, Abdul investigates the swindling of a countryman, who bought 10,000 acres of Georgia swampland believing it to be Newark.

—"Benny the Wino," about a down-and-outer with an abiding passion for mysteries. In the pilot, Benny drinks milk and becomes ill. He tries to find out why.

—"Emergency Mystery," about a private detective who does NOT have an abiding passion for mysteries. So, he goes to medical school and becomes a noted surgeon. Then he develops an abiding passion for mysteries.

—"Mo," about Morris Sibbitz, a TV executive with an abiding passion for mysteries. In the pilot caper, Mo tries to solve the disappearance of a new idea from a major network. When he can't solve the mystery, he tries to pass off a hackneyed, old idea as the missing new idea. He is declared a genius and made president of the network.

Pat Nixon Has Pneumonia

SAN CLEMENTE, Calif. (AP)-Former first lady Pat Nixon, who fought her way back to health after a stroke three years ago, is back in the hospital, this time with bronchial pneumonia.

Mrs. Nixon, 66, was reported in good condition and resting comfortably at San Clemente General Hospital where she was brought by her daughter, Julie Nixon Eisenhower, just before noon Tuesday.

"Mrs. Nixon walked in," said hospital administrator Malcolm Johnson. "She was examined by her doctor and was X-rayed. It was determined that she has bronchial pneumonia."

Soul-Saver Is a Heel

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1979 by Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd. Inc.

DEAR ABBY: Last summer I overheard my clergyman talking to a young woman who is a member of his congregation. He told her it was all over between them, and that if his wife hadn't been in the hospital it never would have happened. He said they should go on as though nothing had happened.

I was so shocked I could hardly believe my ears. This minister has done much for the community and is loved and respected by all who know him. He also has a lovely wife and family.

I told my husband about it. He said we all make mistakes and that I should keep quiet because if this ever got out it might hurt the church.

Now I can't even look at that worthless man without thinking what a hypocrite he is to preach "honor and fidelity." I would like to be able to forgive and forget, but I just can't.

I have lost all faith in him. What should I do?

NO NAME, SMALL TOWN

DEAR NO NAME: Your husband has the right attitude. Clergymen are not saints. They are men with all the frailties men are heir to. One swallow does not a summer make. Nor does one transgression make a man "worthless." Judge not. Let the Lord do the judging.

DEAR ABBY: My husband is very good-looking and is on the lying side of 50. He doesn't look like the swinging type, but I wouldn't put a thing past him. He gives a rather attractive, youngish divorcee, who works in his office building, a ride home nearly every evening. He doesn't accept any pay, but he does sometimes stop at her apartment for a drink (he says) now and then.

He's never more than half an hour late in getting home. Do you think he could be unfaithful to me in half an hour?

CAL'S WIFE

DEAR WIFE: I don't know. He's your husband, lady. Could he?

DEAR ABBY: A guy who works with us has given up cigarettes. Not SMOKING them — just BUYING them.

He has bummed at least one cigarette a day from each of the six guys who work with him, and since he never carries any of his own, there is no chance of getting one back.

We can't say we don't have any when he asks, since he knows we do, but please tell us how to cure him of this chintzy trick?

GARY AND FRANK

DEAR G AND F: Next time he asks for a cigarette, offer to SELL him a pack.

DEAR ABBY: I read with interest the letter in which a woman physician described her happy sexless marriage. I discovered too late that my first wife had a strong aversion to sex. (She thought sex was filthy and disgusting.) Consequently, we developed a meaningful mutual interest in bird-watching, music, bowling and tournament bridge.

We finally found the ultimate solution: DIVORCE.

My present wife likes to quote the slogan of the rent-a-car agency that claims, "When you're No. 2, you try harder."

She sure does!

HAPPY IN CASA GRANDE

DEAR HAPPY: You lucked out. Some folks have to get a lemon first to appreciate a peach.

First Food Stamp Recipients Recall Fling With Fame

BEARTOWN, W.Va. (AP)-Now that their 15 kids are grown, Chloe and Alderson Muncy have plenty of time to sit on the porch of their remote mountaintop home and watch the coal trucks roar past.

And sometimes, between trucks, they recall their one, brief fling with fame.

"I don't know why they picked us," Chloe Muncy, a friendly, gray-haired woman, says. "We heard about the program and went down to Welch and signed up. Then, a few days later, they came around and started asking us questions."

"That's right," adds Alderson Muncy, known as "Poodle" to his friends. "I 'd been cut off at the mine and we were getting commodities. After we signed up, they asked us if we'd be willing to come down to Welch for a celebration."

The Muncys went to Welch on May 29, 1961. John Kennedy, stunned by the poverty he found while campaigning in southern West Virginia a year earlier, was the president of the United States.

When the Muncys and their children - 13 of whom were still at home - arrived at Welch, they were greeted by Orville Freeman, Kennedy's secretary of agriculture, and a host of reporters.

Freeman was in Welch to give a boost to a pilot food stamp program, one of eight such programs sponsored by the Kennedy Administration. The Muncy were the country's first food stamp recipients.

"Since my husband wasn't working we got our stamps for free," recalls Mrs. Muncy. "After Mr. Freeman handed us our stamps, they took us over to a grocery. The reporters and television people went along and watched us spend them."

The Muncys still have vivid memories of that 1961 shopping trip.

"We got $95 worth of stamps and I spent $20 even," says Chloe Muncy. "I can remember buying a gallon jar of apple butter for the kids."

Mary Hale of nearby Darby also remembers.

Mrs. Hale's family, which included her late husband, Elbert, and their eight children, were the nation's second food stamp recipients. And, they were the first family to pay for the stamps they received.

"My husband was working once in a while at a strip mine near here so we did have some income," she recalls. "We paid $40 for $110 worth of stamps. Mr. Freeman gave the Muncys their stamps and we got ours from Gov. W.W. Barron."

Plan To Help Poor Pay. Summer Cooling Cost

WASHINGTON (AP)- The Senate, working on legislation to help people pay their heating bills, has come up with a plan to assist the poor and elderly with their summer air conditioning costs.

The Senate approved an amendment Tuesday that would allow some poor and elderly persons to use emergency fuel aid for the cooling bills if high temperatures could cause health problems. The overall legislation would provide $8.6 billion for a fixed program of aid to persons unable to pay high fuel and utility bills over the next three years.

Acne treatment

By Lawrence Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB - I'm an 18-year-old female and I have a very bad acne problem. I've had it now for two or three years. It's all over my back. Could this have something to do with my diet? Other than a dermatologist or drug prescription, is there any way I could get rid of it? Would zinc help?

DEAR READER - Acne, which includes pimples, blackheads and whiteheads, is caused by an overproduction of oily secretions from the skin. The substance is called sebum. The sebum may form a plug in the pores of the skin which can be white as a whitehead or the top can turn black which is a blackhead.

The black discoloration is thought to be either from skin pigment or from the effect of oxygen on the waxy plug itself. Many people make the mistake of thinking this is dirt and can be washed off. It can't. The little plug is usually just below the surface of the skin.

I'm sending you The Health Letter number 8-2, Acne Can Be Treated. It will give you more information about these problems and what can be done about them. Other readers who want this issue can send 75 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it. Send your request to me, in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

I'm afraid neither zinc nor vitamins will help you with your problem. Most dermatologists today do not believe that the diet has much to do with acne either.

About the best aid you can have is to do everything you can to prevent oily secretions to the skin. If you happen to have long hair and particularly if it's oily, you might do well to change your hairstyle.

Sunlight on the affected area helps in some people.

Warm moist soaks to remove the excess oil and grease two or three times a day help. You may want to use a soap that helps particularly to remove oily material.

Some people also benefit from cleansing the area with ordinary alcohol two or three times a day or at any time that the skin looks or feels oily. I think if your home project doesn't work well, you really should see a doctor and let him prescribe a skin treatment program for you. And he may wish to prescribe an antibiotic if you're having lots of pimples.

The red pustules are usually caused from the breakdown of the sebum from bacterial action. The antibiotics eliminate the bacteria and, in the course of time, significantly decrease the pustule formation.

People taking medicines to treat acne need to be careful about sun exposure. Antibiotics markedly increase the sensitivity of the skin to the sun and you can get a bad burn very easily. Retin-A, sometimes called vitamin A acid, is used to peel the skin and is good medicine but may increase the skin's sensitivity to the sun - including skin cancer over a period of time. The combination of antibiotics and skin peeling agents may create so much sensitivity that it is well to avoid the sun when taking such a combined treatment.

In Europe...

1979 Year Of Woman

PARIS (AP)- For Europe, 1979 is The Year of the Woman.

Britain and Portugal have female premiers, six women serve in the Swedish Cabinet, and the newly elected European Parliament has a woman president.

And few symbolize better than Simone Veil of France how far Europe has evolved toward liberal democracy.

It was little more than a generation ago that Adolf Hitler tried to unite Europe by force - a quest which, under Nazi doctrine, called for putting Mrs. Veil and her fellow Jews in concentration camps.

Today, Mrs. Veil is the Grande Dame of Europe, France's most popular politician, and president of the 410-member European Parliament.

"Being a woman did not play a role in getting me this position," says Mrs. Veil, 52. "But it didn't work agianst me either, and that's something too."

That's quite a change from what she said when she entered politics in 1974 as France's health minister: "I am a minister only because I am a woman."

Today, if Mrs. Veil is any yardstick, France no longer needs tokens.

Far from being a feminist militant, the graceful and matronly Mrs. Veil seems surrounded by paradoxes.

A woman who achieved in five years what would take most politicians a lifetime is a political novice whose only experience is a term at the relatively mipor post of health minister.

This mother of three pushed a liberal abortion law through her country's Parliament in 1975.

This unabashedly heavy smoker championed a government program to curb smoking.

Simone Jacob was born in Nice in 1927, daughter of an architect. At the age of 17 she and her family were rounded up by French police under Nazi orders and sent to Bergen-Belsen concentration camp, and then to Auschwitz. Her parents and brother died there.

After the war, she went back to France to rebuild her life. She studied law and took a succession of jobs at the Justice Ministry, ultimately becoming a magistrate.

In 1946 she married Antoine Veil, a businessman who now runs UTA, a French international airline.

Veil's connections with Valery Giscard d'Estaing, who become president of France in 1974, brought his wife into contact with France's top officialdom.

When Giscard d'Estaing became president he wanted a woman in his Cabinet.

The French, who invented the word chauvinism, gaped at the phenomenon of the femme politique. Nothing Mrs. Veil did or said went unnoticed. The press called her Simone.

The high point of her career was the victory in Parliament of a law she sponsored legalizing abortion in the first 10 weeks of pregnancy.

Many were outraged. Anti-abortion activists played a recording of a fetus' heartbeat in the Parliament chamber, and a deputy shouted: "Madame le ministre, do you want to send children to the ovens?"

Mrs. Veil, stunned by the allusion to Nazi crematoria, slumped on the podium in tears. It was a rare loss of self-control.

Court Upholds Diggs Conviction

WASHINGTON (AP)-A federal appeals court on Wednesday upheld the conviction of Rep. Charles C. Diggs Jr., on charges he inflated the salaries of employees to pay his personal and congressional expenses.

The 2-1 ruling by a U.S. Court of Appeals panel affirmed the decision of a U.S. District Court jury that found Diggs, D-Mich., guilty of 11 counts of mail fraud and 18 counts of making false statements to a government agency.

Diggs was sentenced to con-current prison terms of three years on each count, but he has continued to serve in the House while he appeals his conviction.

In his appeal, Diggs contended that he did not intend to defraud the government and he acted properly in setting the salaries of his congressional employees.

William And Mary

NEW YORK (AP)-An exhibition devoted to the Dutch Royal Collections from William I of Orange to Queen Juliana is scheduled for the Pierpont Morgan Library, Dec. 12 through March 15.

The exhibition, covering the period from the 16th century to thue present, is entitled "William and Mary and their House."
