Libya embargo

UNITED NATIONS — The Security Council Tuesday voted to ban flights and arm sales to Libya, branding it a terrorist state for shielding six men accused of blowing up Pan Am Flight 103 and a French airliner. Wearing black for mourning, relatives of some of the 270 victims of the 1988 Pan Am bombing watched from the visitors' gallery as the council imposed the sanctions by a 10-0 vote. The United Nations sanctions are scheduled to take effect April 15, but will be withheld if Col. Moammar Gadhafi's government surrenders the six suspects./4A

2 'survivors' die

MISSION — Two survivors of a 1989 school bus crash that left 21 students dead have been killed in a single-car accident, authorities said. Efrain Cruz, 17, and Joe Vargas, 19, died Monday when a car driven by Vargas went off the road, police said. Another passenger, Lee Roy Delgado, 16, also was killed. There were no signs of skid marks or erratic driving, indicating the driver probably fell asleep while the car moved at high speeds, said police Chief Pat Dalager.

Court denies Tyson

INDIANAPOLIS — Mike Tyson's request to be freed from prison while he appeals his convictions for rape and criminal deviate conduct was denied Tuesday by the Indiana Court of Appeals. A three-judge panel rejected the former heavyweight champion's request. One of the judges expected an appeal to the Indiana Supreme Court. Tyson went to prison Thursday after being sentenced to six years for convictions for rape and criminal deviate conduct.

IRS: No fooling

WASHINGTON — An April Fool's Day reminder from the Internal Revenue Service: Don't be fooled into thinking that the way out of a tax dilemma is to avoid filing a return. "Non-filers who owe taxes face higher penalties, while those who fail to file for refunds could lose their right to the money," the IRS said Tuesday in its weekly report on the filing season. Failing to file a return by the April 15 deadline can bring a penalty of 5 percent a month of the tax due. That is 10 times the 0.5 percent penalty for late payment. In addition, any overdue tax is subject to an 8 percent annual interest charge, compounded daily.

Poll: Clinton confronts cloud of voter doubts

NEW YORK (NYT) — With only one Democratic opponent remaining on the field, Gov. Bill Clinton has gained the support of a bare majority of Democrats nationwide and his campaign continues to confront a cloud of doubts and reservations, according to the latest New York Times/CBS News Poll.

Cold front hits; possible freeze chills gardeners

By Darren J. Waggoner
Staff Writer

A cold front descending from the north was expected to create unseasonably frigid weather more reminiscent of the dead of winter than April. Area weather officials expect temperatures to drop even more tonight, causing concern among Midland's gardeners.

Sheets of rain pelted Midland for about 15 minutes early Tuesday night and a severe thunderstorm warning was issued from 6 p.m. until 7 p.m. The rain began to trail off as the night progressed, but weather officials expect more rain today.

Nearly an inch of rain and areas of pea-sized hail were reported east of Midland late Tuesday afternoon. The official rainfall total at Midland International by 6 p.m. was .63 of an inch.

Court trims racial curbs on schools

■ MISD officials caution that ruling is not an open door to change court orders.

By Dan Freedman
Reporter-Telegram Washington Bureau

WASHINGTON — The Supreme Court on Tuesday told school districts under court orders to integrate that they do not have to fix racial imbalance in classrooms if it stems from segregated residential patterns.

The 8-0 ruling, in a case from De Kalb County, an Atlanta suburb, allows school districts to win release from court control bit by bit as they achieve racial equality in various facets of their operations.

The court said that school districts should be able to escape court desegregation decrees imposed in the 1960s and 1970s if they have done their best to eliminate prior racial barriers.

But if the decision provided a road map for the return to local control, it left significant obstacles in the school districts' path. As a result, the practical impact of the ruling is less clear than its significance as legal doctrine.

Although some parents in Midland Independent School District have been questioning the district's court-ordered desegregation plan, school officials cautioned that the ruling is not an open door to change court orders.

"We need to read this decision very carefully before we venture as to where it could apply to us," said school-board trustee Gary Willis Tuesday night. "The difference between us and De Kalb County is that their housing patterns have changed and we essentially have the same housing patterns we had before desegregation."

Some school officials said that — while miniorty populations have dispersed some, and more Midland County neigh-

Symphony seeks '92-'93 pledges

By Georgia Todd Temple
Staff Writer

The Midland-Odessa Symphony & Chorale needs pledges and donations of $227,000 by April 15 to ensure its 1992-1993 season is as extensive as its 1991-1992 season.

"Next year's season is in the breech, and if we're going to have one that is comparable to what we've had in the past, we need pledges and donations for next season of $227,000 from where we are right now," said K. Michael Conaway, president-elect of the MOSC board of directors.

When the MOSC announced its "Save the Symphony: Now and For the Future" campaign, which Conaway also chairs, earlier this year, the goal was to raise $500,000. Of that, the organization has

Thoroughly modern Oscar: Year's picks signal change

By Bob Strauss
N.Y. Times News Service

■ Analysis

LOS ANGELES — Before Monday night, conventional wisdom had it that the Academy of Motion Picture Arts and Sciences would be scared off by "The Silence of the Lambs'" graphic brutality.

Instead, the voting members seemed to have been as excited as the average moviegoer was by the uncompromising intensity of this psychosexual roller-coaster ride.

It's encouraging evidence that the academy, long known for preferring films it's easy to sleep through, is finally waking up.

"The Silence of the Lambs," then, is the first Best Picture winner in some time to have actually rattled people's cages, as was the evening's biggest "surprise" — Anthony Hopkins' Best Actor Oscar for his toothsome portrayal of "Silence's" madman, Dr. Hannibal Lecter.

The smart money was on Nick Nolte to save "The Prince of Tides" from a shutout. But let's, as Dr. Lecter might say, face it: Hollywood sharks, who make up a big proportion of the academy's voting membership, would rather think of themselves as murderous geniuses than as guys with so little control that they'd actually sleep with their shrinks.

Along with Jodie Foster's Best Actress, Jonathan Demme's Best Director and Ted Tally's Best Adapted Screenplay awards, "Silence" also nailed the evening's largest trove of Oscars ("Terminator 2" was second with four of the little gold-plated guys).

More remarkable, "Silence" is the first movie to nab all five top categories it was eligible for since 1975's "One Flew Over the Cuckoo's Nest," and only the third in history to do so ("It Happened One Night," 1934, was the first).

The election of a movie as provocative, sense-assaulting and cinematically exciting as "Silence" signals a welcome move toward hipness for the traditionally stodgy academy. And talk about being essentially '90s: "Silence" is the second $100 million-plus grossing Orion Pictures release in a row to win the Best Picture

WEATHER SUMMARY

POLL: Bush's approval rating is at 41 percent

among Democratic primary voters, the national poll found. But half said they worried that "allegations about Bill Clinton's character" could cost him the election this November.

Republicans have worries of their own. President Bush's approval rating remains stuck at 41 percent and fewer than one adult in five approves of his economic stewardship. Moreover, enthusiasm seems strained even among his Republican supporters, with only a third categorizing themselves as "strongly favorable" toward the incumbent president.

The poll, a national survey that is not predictive of the primary in New York, showed an electorate that after months of campaigning remained uneasy with all of their presidential candidates and hungry for more options. Most people said that neither Bush, Clinton or former Gov. Edmund G. Brown Jr. of California had offered clear visions of what they hoped to accomplish over the next four years.

Sixty-seven percent of the Democratic primary voters said they would like to see someone else enter the race for the nomination, up from 52 percent who felt that way in late February. And when offered a trial heat that included H. Ross Perot, the Texas businessman who is considering entering the race, 31 percent of all registered voters chose Clinton, 44 percent Bush, and 16 percent Perot. Perot drew slightly more support away from Clinton than from Mr. Bush.

The survey, conducted by telephone with 1,638 adults, reflects the strangely unsettled state of the Democratic race as it heads into next Tuesday's primaries in New York, Wisconsin and Kansas. Still, the poll measures national trends, and its findings are not directly transferrable to the upcoming contests in those three states. The poll, conducted Thursday though Sunday, has a margin of sampling error of plus or minus 3 percentage points.

Clinton has clearly broken from the pack in the public's mind since his sweep of Southern primaries on March 10, followed by his big victories in Michigan and Illinois that drove former Sen. Paul E. Tsongas from the race. Clinton is now the choice of 51 percent of the Democratic primary voters, compared to 30 percent who preferred Brown.

But even as favorable opinion about Clinton grew in his party, so did the unfavorable: 33 percent of the Democratic primary voters nationally said they viewed him positively, while 28 percent held negative views.

OSCARS: Picks indicate Academy is waking up

(From 1A)

Oscar, following 1990's "Dances With Wolves."

Orion, in Chapter 11 of the bankruptcy code, is essentially out of business.

The show itself evoked the evening's fast and smart overall tone. From host Billy Crystal's mercifully minimalist (and, another Oscar tradition-breaker, genuinely funny) opening production number to the surprise guest appearance of "The Addams Family's" Thing, this year's ceremony, along with most of the awards handed out, was unusually intelligent, up-to-date and (gasp) artistically sound.

For the most part, anyway. Jack Palance's delightfully vulgar acceptance speech (and the accompanying impressive physical display) for his "City Slickers" Best Supporting Actor Oscar was an early indicator that an uncharacteristically hot night was going to be had by all.

Mercedes Ruehl's perky acceptance speech for her "Fisher King" Best Supporting Actress Oscar was admirably free of the usual maudlin "I've worked so hard for this" sentiments (although category rival Juliette Lewis stole the show with her trendy corn-row hair style).

And let's hear it for the double dose of politically incorrect gutsiness the academy displayed in its Best Screenplay choices, Callie Khouri's ballistic female buddy Original Screenplay "Thelma & Louise" and Tally's gender-blendering Adapted Screenplay thrill ride.

As if to emphasize the second most embarrassing recent Oscar trend, the Feature Documentary award went to the classical music film "In the Shadow of the Stars." Not that the winner was an unworthy choice, but this is the committee-run category that always excludes the most interesting work of the year in favor of what its members consider films about more important subjects.

Why a Bay Area chorus was deemed more important than "35 Up's" aging English folk or "Paris Is Burning's" life-loving drag queens remains a mystery. Maybe someone should make an investigative documentary about it.

It's hard to say what was more cutting-edge contemporary: the Atlantis space shuttle crew's zero-gravity greeting to Irving G. Thalberg Memorial Award winner George Lucas, or "Terminator 2's" deserved sweep of the high-tech categories, despite its traditional Oscar sin of being the year's most popular movie.

FRONT: Expect 30s tonight

(From 1A)

National Weather Service officials expect the temperature to dip to 40 degrees by early this morning.

Tonight's low is expected to reach the mid-30s — a dangerous temperature for outdoor plants. There is also a 30 percent chance of light rain, possibly mixed with snow, National Weather Service officials said.

Employees of several nurseries warned plant owners to take extra precautions with their flora to guard against the anticipated freeze.

"A lot of plants have been putting on new growth due to the recent warmer weather. That new growth is very tender and the new budding would be set back considerably with a temperature around 35 or 36 degrees," said Ray Armendariz, assistant manager at Alldredge Gardens, 3300 N. Fairgrounds Road.

"People should soak their flowerbeds the night before an expected freeze. Then, freezing will occur mostly above ground, which will keep the root protected," he said. "Also, covering plants with plastic will help guard against damage. But be careful not to let the plastic touch the plant."

Kennie Cosper, manager at Wolfe Nursery at 708 W. Scharbauer Drive, agrees that the danger level for most plants is around 35 degrees.

"Damage would be immediate to begonias, impatiens, caladiums and pepper plants. If it doesn't stay cold for long, then tomatoes should be all right. But if people water their plants beforehand it will help them avoid dehydration," she said.

Today's forecast calls for a 60 percent chance of thundershowers with a high in the mid-40s and northeast winds at 20 to 30 miles per hour and gusty. Tonight should be mostly cloudy with a 30 percent chance of light rain or snow.

Thursday should be mostly cloudy with a 30 percent chance of showers and a high near 50 degrees.

The extended forecast calls for dryer and warmer conditions Friday through Sunday.

STATE

Clouds increased over Texas on Tuesday as an upper level disturbance moved across the state in advance of a cold front.

Light rain was scattered across North and Northwest Texas. The southeast portion of North Texas enjoyed mostly sunny skies and mild temperatures.

Temperatures were generally in the 60s under the cloudy skies in the west, while readings pushed into the 70s in the sunny skies in the east.

Readings at 4 p.m. ranged from 58 degrees at Wichita Falls to 72 at Lufkin.

Winds were variable at less than 10 miles an hour.

The forecast for North Texas was for cloudy skies and lower temperatures today with showers and thunderstorms. High temperatures were to be 46 to 56. Forecasters expected a chance of showers tonight. Lows 31 to 44. Mostly cloudy Thursday with a chance of showers. Highs were to be 51 to 55.

West Texas was to have showers decreasing from the north today with some morning snow possible across the Panhandle and South Plains. There was a chance of showers in most sections tonight and Thursday, mainly in the south and Far West. Highs today were to be mostly 40s except lower 60s in the Far West and 70s in the Big Bend. Lows tonight were to be in the upper 20s in the Panhandle to mid-40s for the Big Bend. Highs Thursday were to be mostly in the 50s.

Forecasters said South Texas would be partly cloudy to cloudy through Thursday with scattered showers and a few thunderstorms. Windy and much colder today. The rain was to increase today and tonight. Highs today were to range from the 50s in the north to the 70s in the south. Lows tonight from the 30s in the Hill Country to the 50s in the south. Highs Thursday were expected in the 40s and 50s.

NATION

Springtime snow fell in the Rockies on Tuesday, and rain fell on parts of the East Coast and Southwest.

More than 9 inches of snow fell in parts of Colorado.

A winter storm watch was posted for today across central and northeast New Mexico, and advisories for freezing temperatures were posted Tuesday night in northern Missouri.

Rain and lower temperatures were to reach the Oklahoma and Texas panhandles.

Snow continued in the central Rockies Tuesday afternoon.

It also fell across parts of North Dakota, Minnesota, Wisconsin and central upper Michigan.

Snow showers changed to rain across central and southern lower Michigan and southeast Wisconsin.

Rain extended across the central Atlantic coast. Rain with occasional thundershowers hit northwest Texas, New Mexico, central Arizona, Southern California, and the panhandles of Texas and Oklahoma.

The Associated Press contributed to this report.

SYMPHONY: Next season 'must be underwritten'

(From 1A)

raised $273,000.

"We've gotten all of the money that we need to finish this season as it was scheduled, so all of our concerts will go on as planned," Conaway said.

"Both communities — Midland and Odessa — have been incredibly generous to this point in supporting what we've been trying to do, but we need next year's season underwritten completely before we commit to contracts."

The MOSC joint board of directors meets April 15, when decisions regarding the 1992-'93 season will be made.

Conaway said this much lead time is needed to contract symphony musicians and guest artists, then prepare brochures for the season's membership drive.

"Our total budget will run in the range of $650,000 to $675,000 for next year, if we do a full season," Conaway said.

"We are $227,000 short of being able to fully fund that budget. So, if we weren't able to raise another penny, then, obviously, a third of the budget would have to be cut."

Those cuts, if made, would come in the form of fewer concerts or perhaps reducing staff and musician salaries, Conaway said.

"There's a shopping list of things that you could do to reduce expenditures ... all of them are painful. They all involve people."

Conaway said the board of directors is unwilling to put itself in the same position it was in this year when the organization was short by $125,000 of finishing its season.

"We're not going to do that again," he said, referring to the scramble at the end of the year to find funding to complete the contracts for the season.

"If we have to make those harsh decisions, we're going to do it this spring and give everybody as much lead time as possible."

Another major decision the board faces is the location and scheduling of pops concerts. "We have had considerable feedback from our pops constituents about the single concerts, and a lot of it has been unfavorable, both as to location and day of the week. Again, it costs us more to do two concerts than one," Conaway said, but "We have heard those complaints and will address them."

The MOSC does not need to have $227,000 cash in hand in order to underwrite its 1992-'93 season. But it must have $227,000 in pledges.

The organization would prefer to have pledges paid by the end of the 1992 calendar year because, Conaway said, "it would allow us to do our fund raising for the '93-94 season next spring on an annual cycle."

The organization is concerned about going back to contributors who already have made donations to this spring's campaign and asking for another pledge for the 1992-'93 season, Conaway said.

To avoid these problems every season, the symphony has started an endowment fund with the Permian Basin Area Foundation.

Pledges of more than $20,000 have been earmarked for the endowment, Conaway said. The endowment represents the organization's commitment to long-range planning.

"It is an eight-year campaign. Any time you start an endowment and start a campaign, you run the risk of robbing annual donations to build the endowment. So, we haven't had a lot of emphasis on the endowment.

"We just want people to know that it's in place. The board's goal is to have $2 million by the year 2000."

Endowment funds will be invested by the Permian Basin Area Foundation and not more than 75 percent of earnings in any year can be distributed to the symphony for support of the annual budget, Conaway said. "The other 25 percent of earnings will be plowed back into the endowment."

AWARD: City leaders look for a good turnout

(From 1A)

community spirit and come out," Mayor Carroll Thomas said Tuesday. The more locals, the better, especially if the weather more resembles Maine than Midland, he said.

Temperatures are expected to be in the 40s, with north winds and rain possible, according to the National Weather Service of Midland.

"It's a great opportunity for Midlanders to show their support to Bangor, as other communities showed support to Midland during the rescue of Jessica McClure," said Rick Menchaca, assistant to the city manager. The Midland Community Spirit Award is presented each year to recognize a community for a heroic effort like that of Midland during the 1987 rescue of Jessica from an abandoned water well.

Among those expected for the ceremony are Bangor Mayor William Cohen, citizen Nancy Bond, John Rohnman of the chamber of commerce and Bob Ziegelaar, director of the city's airport. Midland City Council members, Mayor Thomas, CAF and chamber representatives and little Jessica will be among West Texas well-wishers.

Bangor residents took the award from a field of 148 nominated communities for their huge welcome to troops returning from Operation Desert Storm last year. Menchaca said Newton was chosen to present the award as a representative of the military — the focus of Bangor's salute.

When they head east again, Bangor folks will take with them the engraved plaque depicting Jessica's rescue as well as other gifts from Midlanders. Three finalist communities — Coffeyville, Kan., the Kansas City area and Calhoun, Tenn. — got smaller plaques for their efforts.

The entire cost of the awards, presentations and airline travel was donated to the city by businesses again this year. Southwestern Bell Telephone Foundation gave $5,000 to pay for the plaques and some travel costs; and American Airlines gave free tickets to the travelers from Bangor.

CHEVRON: Oil giant to stay in basin, chief says

month before announcements will be made.

Rumors that Midland may take a major hit in the downsizing move have abounded since Chevron announced last month that the company would begin a rapid disposition of producing properties,.

Derr said Chevron had trimmed its producing properties from 3,500 a few years ago to 1,000 today and may eventually trim the number to 400 producing properties.

"Most of the oil fields we have sold in the U.S. have been very small, and best-suited to be operated by independents. Even if we sell 60 percent of our properties, it may only amount to 10 percent of our production."

Derr said it probably was best that the properties be sold to independents. "Big corporations just don't do small things as well. Independents can operate these properties more efficiently and profitably than major oil companies."

He sees the role of major oil companies as installing and operating major carbon dioxide recovery projects, and said oil prices in the mid-$20s might revive such high-priced recovery projects.

He said major oil companies were pulling out of the U.S., not because they want to, but because they have to go somewhere to look for oil. "They won't let us drill here, not offshore or in the Alaskan National Wildlife Refuge. It doesn't make sense," he said.

Derr said Chevron is trying to be environmentally sensitive and responsible, but is determined to resist environmental extremism. We will oppose anything that doesn't make sense.

"Even in 'green' California there are now some second thoughts about trying to balance jobs and the environment. When you spend as much to clean up the last 1 percent as it cost to clean up the first 99 percent, you have gone too far. It doesn't make sense."

RULING: High court cuts back on judges' power

(From 1A)

borhoods are integrated — if the district returned to neighborhood schools, they would be largely segregated.

MISD spokesman Ted Miller said the De Kalb schools are suburban and the district's population is largely black while Midland ISD's enrollment is largely white.

Desegregation nationally has been clouded by the exodus of whites from cities and some suburbs at the same time that minority populations have moved in.

The De Kalb district, with 73,000 students, is the largest school system in Georgia and the nation's 32nd largest school district.

In 1986, school officials went to court to get out from under the decree, arguing they had destroyed the dual system of school segregation that had existed up until the mid-1960s.

In 1986, 50 percent of the county's black students attended schools that were more than 90 percent black, and 27 percent of white students went to schools that were more than 90 percent white.

In 1969, black students made up 5.6 percent of the school population. By 1986, that figure was 47 percent.

School officials insisted this imbalance was caused by the growth since the 1960s of the black population in the northern half of the county adjacent Atlanta, and the concentration of the remaining white population in the southern half.

Christopher Hansen, a lawyer for the American Civil Liberties Union who opposed De Kalb County schools in the case, called the opinion "disappointing." Nonetheless, he said the court's opinion promulgated rules that "are not that bad."

All eight justices agreed the burden remains on school districts to prove that racial imbalances are not the result of legally mandated segregation, Hansen pointed out.

"That's the best news for all of us," he said.

Hansen and other civil rights advocates noted that in separate sections of the opinion, four justices — David Souter, Harry Blackmun, Sandra Day O'Connor and John Paul Stevens — said that in the future, lower courts should examine whether previously legal school segregation had led to racially separate housing patterns.

If such a causal relationship is found, the four justices said, the school district should remain under court supervision.

By contrast, the other four — Kennedy, Byron White, Antonin Scalia and Chief Justice William Rehnquist — appeared to accept the housing patterns as a given. The "independent factors" that cause housing segregation "are consistent with the mobility that is a distinct characteristic of our society," Kennedy wrote.

The 4-4 split on this issue makes it difficult to predict how lower courts will interpret the opinion, civil rights leaders concluded. Adding to the confusion is that while Souter authored his own concurrence suggesting that "segregated residential patterns" may well be "caused by past school segregation," he also joined Kennedy's opinion.

"It's certainly a step backward, but it's also a confusing decision to say the least," said Ralph Neas, executive director of the Leadership Conference on Civil Rights. "It doesn't set any new precedent, but it certainly seems to be a retreat from prior precedents."

Justice Clarence Thomas did not participate in the case because it was argued before he was sworn in last October.

The court also modified a 24-year-old precedent, which said that to satisfy court orders, school systems must eliminate vestiges of previous segregation "root and branch," and show schools are equal in six areas: Student assignments, faculty, staff, transportation, extra-curricular activities and facilities.

However, the court for the first time said the existence of racially segregated schools within a school district is no reason to continue court supervision if the segregation is the result of neighborhoods being predominantly white or predominantly black.

"Racial balance is not to be achieved for its own sake," Justice Anthony M. Kennedy wrote in the court's opinion in Freeman v. Pitts, involving a move by the school system of DeKalb County in suburban Atlanta, Ga. to escape a 23-year-old court decree.

"It is to be pursued when racial imbalance has been caused by a constitutional violation. Once the racial imbalance due to (legal segregation) has been remedied, the school district is under no duty to remedy imbalance that is caused by demographic factors."

Retiree gets life in girl's murder

SAN DIEGO (AP) — A retired hospital worker who pushed her son's girlfriend off a cliff a day after buying a $35,000 life insurance policy in the woman's name was sentenced to life in prison without parole.

Before getting the mandatory sentence Monday in the death of 20-year-old Deana Hubbard Wild, Virginia Rearden told Wild's mother she does not have a guilty conscience.

A Superior Court jury convicted her on March 2 of first-degree murder and later affirmed it was committed for financial gain.

U.N. bans flights, arm sales to Libya

UNITED NATIONS (AP) — The Security Council Tuesday voted to ban flights and arm sales to Libya, branding it a terrorist state for shielding six men accused of blowing up Pan Am Flight 103 and a French airliner.

Wearing black for mourning, relatives of some of the 270 victims of the 1988 Pan Am bombing watched from the visitors' gallery as the council imposed the sanctions by a 10-0 vote.

"Libya has been indicted," said George Williams, whose son Jordy died when the plane blew up over Scotland. "The finger has been pointed at them as having been deeply involved in the bombing of Pan Am 103."

The United Nations sanctions are scheduled to take effect April 15, but will be withheld if Col. Moammar Gadhafi's government surrenders the six suspects sought by France, Britain and the United States and takes steps to "cease all forms of terrorist action and all assistance to terrorist groups."

The resolution also demands compensation for the victims and calls on member states to expel most Libyan diplomats.

But its impact will be severely limited because the sanctions do not include a broad trade embargo. Libya can still earn money from oil sales, which provide 95 percent of its foreign-earned income.

"It's not nearly enough," said Susan Cohen, whose 20-year-old daughter Theodora also died in the Pan Am bombing. "We need an oil embargo. We won't get the truth unless a lot more goes into this."

"The only way to signal a real resolve to end this issue is to boycott Libyan oil exports and back that up with a naval blockade," said Henry Schuler, an analyst with the Center for Strategic and International Studies.

Russian states sign new treaty

MOSCOW (AP) — President Boris Yeltsin scored a political victory Tuesday as regional leaders from across Russia signed a treaty he said will help protect the country from "chaos, lawlessness" and disintegration.

"At this critical moment that Russia is experiencing, we found the strength, reason and responsibility to remove the danger of fragmentation looming over Russia, and to do it together," Yeltsin said at the signing ceremony in St. George's Hall in the Kremlin.

For Yeltsin, signing the pact marked the end of a winter that was milder than forecast and less tumultuous than expected.

Although consumer prices have quadrupled since Jan. 2 under Yeltsin's economic reforms, the winter passed without the widespread demonstrations or food riots that had been predicted by members of Yeltsin's own government.

No one is reported to have died of starvation or frozen to death because of the reforms, despite rising numbers of unemployed and homeless people.

Yeltsin faces plenty of political storms ahead, however, as reflected by the resignation Tuesday of a top aide, Vice Premier Sergei Shakhrai, a victim of political infighting in the days before the opening of parliament Monday.

Russian company buys door maker

GROUWE, Netherlands (AP) — In what may be the first Russian takeover of a Western firm, a timber company has paid more than $3 million to buy a Dutch firm that manufactures doors.

The Ilych company, from the Russian state of Komi, bought Halbertsma Doors B.V. last week, said Halbertsma's director, Jippe Tinga.

Most businesses in the former Soviet Union are short on cash and seeking investment from Western companies to help revamp outdated manufacturing processes or management structures.

Ilych and Halbertsma want to take advantage of the demand in Russia for good quality doors.

Halbertsma, a 101-year-old business with a work force of 75 at its plant in this northern Dutch village, has annual sales of $7 million.

Halbertsma is owned by the privately owned Dutch conglomerate Svedex. It remains under Dutch management.

Medical school killings stun Colombians

BARRANQUILLA, Colombia (AP) — Even Colombians jaded by years of drug violence were horrified to hear Oscar Hernandez's tale of escape from a medical school morgue where guards tried to kill him so his cadaver could be sold for cash.

The 24-year-old garbage dump scavenger said university watchmen lured him onto campus late the night of Feb. 29 while most people in this steamy Caribbean port were busy celebrating the city's annual carnival.

After attacking him with clubs, the guards left him amidst a row of blood-stained metal tables, each containing a body, Hernandez said.

"I was spread out on the floor. I realized that if I wanted to save myself I would have to pretend I was dead," Hernandez told reporters.

Instead, he fled and returned with police to the university morgue that had been turned into a slaughter house for the trafficking of cadavers.

Amid the bodies, police found another badly beaten man who was still alive.

They also discovered 11 bodies and the parts of 22 others. Most of the victims were garbage collectors like Hernandez.

The massacre in this city of 1 million people awakened an outcry over the killing of the poor, many by death squads financed by drug traffickers. This time the killers were employees of one of Colombia's oldest and most prestigious learning institutions, the privately run Free University.

Maria del Carmen Arias, a Barranquilla garbage recycler, was among those appalled. She and thousands like her spend their days sifting through garbage heaps for glass, metal, cardboard, plastic and other recyclable material. Some Colombians refer to them as the disposable ones.

I N S I G H T
YES, I'VE HEARD OF GLENWOOD ...

What is Glenwood?
Glenwood is a 64-bed psychiatric hospital located between Midland and Odessa providing a safe, relaxed atmosphere in which to provide psychiatric and chemical dependency services to children, adolescents, and adults.

What services are offered at Glenwood?
Glenwood offers a continuum of services ranging from identifying specific needs to providing follow-along services once a patient has been discharged. These services include:
- Outpatient diagnosis and evaluation
- Emergency psychiatric services
- Psychiatric intensive care
- Partial hospitalization
- Rapha Christ-centered therapy
- Short-term psychiatric hospitalization diagnosis and evaluation short-term treatment
- Follow-along services

A patient may enter the continuum at any level and move to more or less intensive services as the patient's condition changes. For every patient the goals of treatment include returning to a less restrictive environment eventually leading to responsible community living. This usually involves resolving emotional conflicts, developing adaptive behaviors and acquiring independent living skills.

Who are the people of Glenwood?
Glenwood's physicians are highly trained and licensed professionals who work closely with other professionals trained in the areas of psychology, nursing, social work, special education, vocational rehabilitation, activity therapy, occupational therapy, expressive arts therapy, and speech and language pathology.

How does Glenwood know what kind of treatment a patient needs?
The services provided to each patient are prescribed by the attending physician or a team of physicians and professionals who develop a treatment plan based on the patient's needs and condition.

Can I afford care at Glenwood?
While financial responsibility lies with the patient or guardian, Glenwood's psychiatric and chemical dependency treatment programs are covered by most major insurance companies. We accept Medicare, Workman's Comp and work with Employee Assistance Programs. The staff at Glenwood will carefully assist patients and their families in implementing insurance coverage and making financial arrangements.

What is the environment like at Glenwood?
The treatment environment is designed to make available the same activities and experiences encountered in everyday life to make the patient's return to the community much easier. In a monitored and supportive setting, patients are encouraged to engage in social interactions and personal activities that will help them to develop more effective behavior patterns.

What about patient rights at Glenwood?
Consistent with the patient rights standards of the Joint Commission on Accreditation of Hospitals, Glenwood supports and protects the fundamental human, civil, and statutory rights of the individual patient.

April's showers can bring death

April's showers may bring May's flowers, but the childhood rhyme doesn't tell the entire story about the weather change that the month launches.

The springtime weather that April ushers in can also bring unwanted — and deadly — weather systems in the form of tornadoes. In fact, the deadliest storms that have struck Texas since 1900 have occurred in April or May, according to an Associated Press report. And the death toll from April's storms is staggering.

With that in mind, the people of Midland and the surrounding area need to be aware that it's tornado season and what may appear to be a harmless spring thundercloud can unleash devastation on a community in a matter of minutes.

Last year was relatively mild in the incidence of tornadoes, say weather officials, but previous years saw storms that left rubble at Sweetwater, Saragosa and other nearby communities. Hardly a year passes without several tornado alerts being issued for Midland or surrounding counties.

Mankind cannot control the weather, but that doesn't mean we can't protect ourselves to a degree. There are many good tips on how individuals can protect themselves during a tornado such as staying away from glass windows, crouching in an interior room in a house, and not trying to outrun a twister in an automobile. Those and other recommendations can help save your life during a period of violent weather.

But the simplest and possibly best recommendation during this season is to merely stay aware of the danger that springtime storms can bring, listen to weather reports and be ready to react in the event that a funnel cloud appears. There isn't much time when a funnel begins descending; seconds can mean the difference between staying alive or being killed by a storm.

Yes, April showers bring May's flowers. But they also can bring death and destruction. Stay alert to the danger during this time of the year — and stay alive.

OTHER VIEWS

Closing school good move

Whenever change comes to state schools for the mentally impaired, people — client, parents, staff, others — are inconvenienced and/or hurt. Would that circumstances were such that this didn't have to happen.

Surely at this moment, Gov. Ann Richards is more painfully aware of this than anyone else in Texas. She has made the tough, anguishing call regarding state schools — which ones to close. Much as we would like to be able to say otherwise, we cannot, in all honesty, say that we disagree with her decision.

Our heart is sympathetic to the Fort Worth school. We have seen its people, its contributions. We can sense some of the pain.

But our mind tells us that this change — closing the Fort Worth school in favor of keeping the one in Mexia open — is sound and fact-based.

Client needs, parental desires, staff needs, community needs, state needs, the heavy hammer of federal court intervention, economic conditions, political realities and much more figure heavily into the complex mix of how best to care for the mentally impaired.

In the interest of the mentally impaired — which, in the final analysis as well as in the first is the one that mainly counts — let us join forces to see that they receive the care to which they are entitled in a community-based system.

— Fort Worth Star-Telegram

Perot forces issues to front

It is difficult to tell whether the excitement over a possible Perot candidacy is more media hype than reality.... But one thing that is not a figment of anybody's imagination is the great discontent of people across the country with the entire American political system. It is that discontent that Jerry Brown has been tapping to keep his candidacy alive, and that (Patrick) Buchanan has been feeding off.

Perot cannot abolish Congress, so he'd have to learn to work with its members. Judging from his temperament, there is a question as to whether he could do that. Would he govern or simply sulk in the White House?

Nevertheless, a Perot candidacy could lead to the most interesting general election in decades. More important, he could force Bush and the Democratic nominee to begin to really address the issues that are bothering many Americans. Those issues have to do with trust and accountability, and they have to do with providing answers. And a Perot candidacy would force the other candidates to resist the temptation to resort to divisiveness and fear as their only campaign tools.

TODAY IN HISTORY

Today is Wednesday, April 1, the 92nd day of 1992. There are 274 days left in the year. This is April Fool's Day.

Today's highlight in history:

On April 1, 1789, the U.S. House of Representatives held its first full meeting, in New York City. Frederick Muhlenberg of Pennsylvania was elected the first House Speaker.

On this date:

In 1853, Cincinnati became the nation's first city to pay its firefighters a salary.

In 1873, composer Sergei Rachmaninoff was born in Novgorod Province, Russia.

In 1918, the Royal Air Force was established in Britain.

In 1933, Nazi Germany began its persecution of Jews with a boycott of Jewish-owned businesses.

In 1939, the United States recognized the Franco government in Spain following the end of the Spanish civil war.

House's most frequent kiter speaks out

WASHINGTON — When Rep. Robert Mrazek, D-N.Y., came to Washington 10 years ago, he decorated his new office to pay homage to the man he most admires, the man he even resembles — Honest Abe Lincoln. Mrazek made a long list of Lincoln's failures, just to remind himself that a man can make mistakes and still achieve greatness.

Anderson

Now Mrazek has his own list — the 972 bad checks the House Ethics Committee says he drew on the House Bank, including one to buy an island in the Bahamas.

It won't be easy to achieve greatness while being the most frequent check kiter in the rubbergate scandal. It won't even be easy to win the Senate seat he has been coveting for the past year. But Mrazek turns to Lincoln for solace. He thinks of Balls Bluff, the Civil War battle where Lincoln's close friend, Gen. Edward Baker, was killed on his white horse. The retreating Union troops plunged into the Potomac River to get away from the Confederate army and most of them drowned. Gen. Baker's body was brought back to the White House and laid out in the East Room where Lincoln wept over the open coffin.

"It was one of the stupidest battles of the Civil War because the Union forces paid such a high price for a battle that meant nothing," Mrazek told our associate Ed Henry.

Mrazek is riding high on his white horse, fighting a battle that, in the eyes of those who wrote the bad checks, means nothing. The bank rules said they could write checks up to the amount of their next paycheck, and so they did. Members of Congress have been doing it for 140 years, Mrazek said. "When Abraham Lincoln was in Congress, this policy existed."

He is confident America won't steam for long over this one. "This is not an issue like the S&L scandal where people lost their life savings," he said. "I think this issue will have a short half-life in terms of its radioactivity. This was a case where Congress had one too many privileges at a time when people are hurting."

Real-estate deals are Mrazek's hobby, so he tends to write a lot of checks — 2,700 of them during the 39 months the Ethics Committee counted. One of them was for $32,000 to make a payment on a tiny island in the Bahamas that he and some of his colleagues bought as an investment — a bad investment as it turned out.

Mrazek admits that using the House Bank as his primary checking account was a bad idea, given the volume of checks he writes. But to prove that his deals are clean, he has made public his income tax returns for the past 15 years. And, he contends that only about 800 of the checks were overdrafts, and only three exceeded the amount of his next paycheck.

If the Ethics Committee's numbers are correct, nearly one-third of the checks Mrazek wrote exceeded the amount he had in his account at the time they were written. One-third will be Mrazek's unlucky number in this election. Coincidentally, he was absent for about one-third of the votes taken in the House last year — the third worst record in the chamber that averaged a 95 percent voting record.

His constituents have longed for Mrazek to be as attentive to the daily business of the House as he has been to global issues. He is proudest of three achievements — legislation to protect the Tongas National Forest in Alaska, a law to ease immigration of Amer-Asians to America and his 1986 amendment banning aid to the Nicaraguan contras within 20 miles of Nicaragua.

THE ELVIS PROJECT — There is more behind the story of the January purge of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee staff by Sen. Jesse Helms, R-N.C. Helms dismissed the minority staff director and eight staffers, including a couple who attached themselves to "The Elvis Project."

It was the search for answers in the shootdown of Korean Airlines flight 007 by a Soviet fighter in 1983. A couple of staffers got excited about rumors that some of the passengers survived the crash and were being held prisoner in the Soviet Union. Thus, the derogatory name attached to the research by those on Helms' staff who thought it was wacky: "The Elvis Project," as in "Elvis lives."

WILLIAM SAFIRE

China's silent upheaval makes loud noise

WASHINGTON — "The word is racing gleefully through Beijing intellectual circles," reported The New York Times' Nicholas Kristof early this year, "that an impeccably reliable American political forecaster, renowned for his clairvoyance, has declared that there will be immense changes in China in 1992."

Safire

This mysterious Nostradamus (a prophet without honor in his own country) has already been proven partly right.

Chinese Communist hard-liners led by the ideologue Chen Yun, 86, saw the disintegration of the Soviet Union as proof that reform was heresy, and that decentralization was "economic warlordism." They viewed the Tiananmen crackdown as sensible precaution, and sneered at "peaceful evolution" as a sellout to capitalism.

That brought the old anti-Maoist economic reformer, Deng Xiaoping, 87, rolling out of bed for his last hurrah. "Some comrades inside the party remain muddleheaded," he charged. "Had it not been for our reform over the past 10 years, our situation could have been worse than the U.S.S.R.'s."

China-watchers tell of the cultural struggle between the rigid north and the freewheeling south; between the inward-looking Yellow-River mindset of the interior and the "blue-water" mindset of the ports of Shanghai and Guangzhou, formerly Canton. Mao and Chen Yun were Yellow-River; Zhou Enlai and Deng were blue-water.

Although Deng maintains "we cannot do without dictatorship," he sees the need for the sort of capitalism now burgeoning in the blue-water provinces. To dramatize his case, the old man went on a final campaign tour of China's southern models of free-ish enterprise.

With control of the party to be decided this fall at the 14th Congress, the battle was joined. "Whoever is opposed to reform," Deng told the Chen faction, "must leave office." That was a warning to Prime Minister Li Peng, disliked by reformers and hated by intellectuals, who tries to straddle the fence between hard-line leftists and capitalist-roaders.

Editors put in power by the crackdown crew after the Tiananmen massacre blacked out Deng's tour. We are only now getting accounts of Deng's divisive speeches (a good argument for starting Radio Free Asia). But his strange message is getting through: Communism can succeed only through an infusion of capitalism. "The main danger in thought inside the party comes from some people's refusal to admit that Marxism needs continuous development and revision."

For the paramount Communist leader to call for theoretical "revision" is a very big thing. Revisionism is counterrevolutionary, a sin ascribed by diehards to Gorbachev.

Deng is not talking about political freedom. He thinks the only way to hold together the 50 ethnic groups that make up China, not to mention Taiwan and Tibet, is to buy stability through prosperity. Deng talks of "emancipating the mind," but he means that China is more easily ruled if the people have full bellies rather than than free minds.

I think he's wrong about that: political and economic freedom are ultimately one and inseparable. But friends of mine in China who were distressed by the 1989 crackdown are now encouraged by Deng's 1992 counterattack. They say that the Soviet mistake was in putting glasnost before perestroika. They prefer a more orderly upheaval, believing that if China first puts capitalism to work, political freedom will follow.

President Bush accepts Deng's half a loaf, and refuses to apply economic pressure to win human-rights gains. (Last week, he applied such pressure to get China's vote to isolate Libya, negating what little principle undergirded his policy of placating Beijing.)

We should be publicizing Deng's campaign, reaching out to his disciple, Zhu Rongji, while freezing out Chun's followers.

As we hail most of Deng's "four modernizations," the United States should remind Beijing of what the dissenter Wei Jingsheng, still in jail after 13 years, called the fifth modernization — democracy. Hunger has different forms; freedom to think can be as nourishing as freedom to eat.

Will my off-the-wall soothsaying of "China convulses, goes democratic" come true? The timing may be optimistic, but rub the crystal ball: see how the suppressed story of Deng's tour has brought creative instability to this Year of the Monkey.

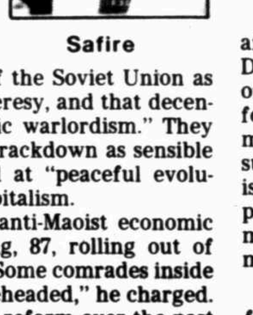
Women diffuse impact, intensity of bad news

Most company executives have not figured out how to correct their course in a dismal economic sea. But they have been smart enough to keep their distance from any bad news that could affect management. They are doing this by appointing women to be their spokespersons. I was put on to this by Raquel Holzman, a corporate headhunter who supplies upscale help to corporations.



"While male openings are down," she told me, "I'm getting many calls for females as company spokespersons."

"Why the sudden demand for women?"

"My guess is because the situation is so dismal, most company executives feel that they can soften the blow by having women announce it."

"It sounds sexist to me," I said.

"It probably is," Holzman agreed. "But I haven't met one woman who doesn't want the job. My theory is that when a woman is sent out in front of the television cameras and announces that her firm just lost the farm, the audience thinks of her as their mother or girlfriend. Instead of focusing on the bad news, they're all asking, 'What's a nice girl like her doing with a company like that?' "

"Isn't it possible that a female spokesperson is as capable as a male one when it comes to handing out bad news?"

Holzman replied, "We're not talking about merit. Whether you like it or not, news delivered by female employees of a company sounds less ominous. This is especially true if a company has just been fined for sabotaging spare parts for the Defense Department, stealing the life savings of widows and orphans and polluting a city's botanical gardens with uranium waste filings.

"I had a client, Naomi Sue Siebert, who got a job as a press secretary for a company indicted for using the employees' pension fund to bail out bad investments they made in pork belly futures."

"Naomi must have been very proud of herself," I said.

"Woman spokespersons are better than men because they use their heads. Two weeks ago I sent a client, Lynda Burnett, to fill a position with a drug company. The company had been making a tranquilizer that caused people to throw themselves in front of a truck. Lynda had hardly got her desk in order when someone told her that '60 Minutes' was at the gate.

" 'Let them in,' Lynda said, 'I'm not afraid of Mike Wallace.' Her assistant whispered, 'It's not Mike Wallace — it's Andy Rooney. Apparently they want to bring you to your knees.'

"Well, this little girl thought fast and ordered all the doors locked and the phones taken off the hooks. It was the first time that a spokesperson refused to speak to Andy Rooney. The drug company was so pleased with the way Lynda handled the matter that they made her a vice president. They put her in charge of a scandal involving a sleeping pill that made people think they were Elvis Presley."

"Where is Lynda now?"

"She's in charge of defending the company's violations of sexual harassment in the workplace. It looks so much better on television when a woman is doing it."

ANC rejects 2-house S. African congress

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (AP) — The African National Congress Tuesday rejected a government plan for a bicameral Parliament and proposed instead that a single-chamber assembly be elected to draft a new constitution.

"What we need are not two houses at each other's throats ... but a single, multifaceted body representing the nation in all its variety," said the group, South Africa's largest black political group.

The ANC said a two-house Parliament would be "a reminder that the cadaver of apartheid still rules."

Despite the disagreement, the two sides appeared to making progress on the formation of an interim government and a new constitution ending white-minority rule.

The government suggested for the first time Monday that an elected two-chamber Parliament draft the document, representing a major step toward the ANC's position. Previously, the government had said the constitution should be drafted during negotiations among political parties.

But the government's plan would give veto power to the white-dominated upper house of Parliament.

The ANC rejects special protection for minorities and wants a 400-member constitution-making body elected on the basis of one person, one vote.

In its statement Tuesday, the ANC tried to reassure nervous whites by saying all decisions would be approved by a two-thirds majority.

The proposed assembly would have four months to write a constitution. If it failed, it would be dissolved and new elections held, the ANC said.

In announcing the government's plan Monday, Constitutional Development Minister Gerrit Viljoen said: "It is clear that in accepting the principle that an elected body should be the constitution-making body, we're closing the gap with other parties."

But Viljoen warned that the government was "not married" to an elected constitution-making body and said white interests would have to be guaranteed.

The proposal came after President F.W. de Klerk gained a huge mandate from white voters in a March 17 referendum on ending apartheid and sharing power with the black majority.

Somalians starving to death, Red Cross says

NAIROBI, Kenya (AP) — People are dying of starvation in Somalia, where millions lack enough food because of shortages created by war and drought, the Red Cross said Tuesday.

"The situation is critical," said Gregoire Tavernier, a delegate for the International Committee of the Red Cross in Nairobi.

He said starvation deaths were reported around Beletwein, in the Horn of Africa nation's central region, along the coast in Merca and the capital Mogadishu, and in the southwestern Gedo region near the Kenyan border.

No death toll was available because of lack of access to most of the nation due to widespread insecurity, Tavernier said.

The Red Cross has warned that the entire population of 4.5 million is in need of food and that a third of the populace, in and around Mogadishu, are at immediate risk of starvation.

United Way Shining Stars

NAME: Michael E. Butler
OCCUPATION: Assistant Director of Engineering and Transportation for the City of Midland.
VOLUNTEER POSITION: Chairman, Funds Distribution Panel One

Mike Butler took his first steps with United Way 22 Years ago, and he's been marching to the tune ever since.

An Allocations Panel volunteer with the United Way Midland today, Butler recalled his first involvement came as a company coordinator for a battalion in 1970 while he was on active duty with the U.S. Army.

Years later, after he had signed on with the City of Midland, then- City Manager James Brown asked Butler to serve as company coordinator for the city employees. He served in that capacity four or five years before feeling the urge to step up to another level of volunteerism.

"I wanted to learn more about the mechanics of United Way," says Butler, who is chairman of Allocations Panel One. This panel reviews the Boy Scouts, Girl Scouts, Midland Boys and Girls Club and Midland/Lee Youth Centers.

This position, he says, is involved with where the money is being spent. "I have a keener awareness of the community's needs through the allocations process as the funds allow."

"I like United Way because they see problems and try to make them opportunities to succeed," Butler says.

The United Way Of Midland serves 36,000 Midlanders through the following agencies and programs: American Red Cross, Big Brothers/Big Sisters, Boy Scouts of America, Boys' and Girls' Club of Midland, Camp Fire, Casa de Amigos, Citywide Community services, Community and Senior Services of Midland, Family Services, Permian Basin Child Abuse Prevention Program, Freewill Foster Home, Midland/Lee Youth Centers, Midland Rape Crises Center, Midland Need To Read, Palmer Drug Abuse Program, Permian Basin Center for Battered Women and their Children, Permian Basin Girl Scouts, Salvation Army Corps and Day Care Center, YMCA's

Brown captures Vermont caucuses, defeating Clinton

National news/ 1D,2D

MONTPELIER, Vt. (AP) — Jerry Brown won Vermont's Democratic caucuses Tuesday night, dealing a second defeat in as many weeks to struggling presidential front-runner Bill Clinton. The skirmish set a dramatic stage for next week's showdown in New York.

Brown called it a strong showing; Clinton lamented that he had been cast in the unpopular role of insider because of his earlier victories.

The Arkansas governor said in New York he'd never considered himself "the assured nominee," even when he was riding high with big state victories two Tuesday's ago.

While Vermont Democrats chose sides — and a substantial bloc opted to stay uncommitted — Clinton and Brown argued about taxes, big-city problems and policies in two New York debates.

With 62 percent of Vermont's 246 cities and towns reporting, Brown had 41 percent of the vote, Clinton 18 percent. Uncommitted Democrats accounted for 29 percent, and Paul Tsongas, who has dropped from the campaign, had 10 percent.

With only 14 delegates to award, Vermont didn't see much of the candidates, and some Democrats thought a protest mood might lead voters to favor uncommitted delegates over either candidate.

"That's a strong showing," Brown said. "I'm very pleased but this is a very tight race. Governor Clinton is ahead in delegates and we've still got to fight."

"You may have thought two weeks ago that I was the assured nominee, but I never did," Clinton said after the evening debate. "By being the outsider and winning, you become the insider."

Clinton did not campaign in Vermont. Brown stopped by Sunday, looking for the lift of another victory over the Democratic front-runner to go with his one-point Connecticut primary upset a week ago.

The Clinton campaign boasted a string of endorsements, including backing from Gov. Howard Dean, former Gov. Madeleine Kunin and state House Speaker Ralph Wright.

The dual New York debates were the first round in a series Clinton demanded.

Ballot requirements threaten Perot effort

N.Y. Times News Service

WASHINGTON — He's made all the talk shows and even selected a running mate. But before he becomes a presidential contender, H. Ross Perot must clear a maze of daunting eligibility requirements that have overwhelmed earlier independent candidates.

For the Dallas billionaire and his energized volunteer army, the ultimate goal is to persuade more than 760,000 voters nationwide to sign petitions that would qualify him for the Nov. 3 election ballot in all 50 states.

But deadlines and petition requirements vary widely, with some states offering easy access to the ballot and others posing formidable obstacles.

In Louisiana, for example, anyone who pays a $500 filing fee can get on the ballot. That, presumably, should be no challenge for a man worth $2.2 billion.

By contrast, California requires 134,781 signatures — the most of any state. Texas, Perot's homes state, mandates 54,275 names.

Mardis took precautions, pilot testifies

■ Williams Aviation pilot didn't operate plane in reckless manner and ice buildup resulted in loss of control, investigator says.

By Michael Kashgarian
Staff Writer

The pilot of a Mitsubishi MU-2 turboprop that crashed and killed everyone on board took reasonable precautions against bad weather, according to another pilot's analysis of what might have happened.

During testimony Tuesday in the case against the airplane manufacturer, defense attorneys raised doubts about the witness' qualifications to reach those conclusions. The defense claimed pilot error as a more valid reason for the Feb. 14, 1990, crash near Putnam.

Seven jurors, one an alternate, began hearing the case Monday in Judge Lucius Bunton's U.S. District Court.

The plaintiff, Williams Aviation, maintains Mitsubishi was negligent in the manufacture, design, and lack of testing of a de-icing system which ultimately contributed to the plane crash.

Testimony as well as the questions and opening statements by plaintiff and defense attorneys indicate the plane probably crashed because of excessive ice build-up.

But was the excessive ice accumulation the result of an inadequate de-icer or the fault of the pilot, 51-year-old Kenneth Mardis?

"He (Mardis) did not operate the airplane in a reckless manner," testified Gary Wagner, a Air Canada pilot from Montreal.

Wagner, based on his examination of documents of the airplane crash investigation and interviews, testified that he believed Mardis received acceptable information about weather conditions before takeoff and operated the plane in a normal and prudent manner.

Wagner explained what he believed was the sequence of events that led up to the plane crash.

About 7:50 a.m. when the pilot, en route to Dallas from Midland, encountered bad weather for the third time, he requested permission from traffic control to descend from 15,000 feet above sea level to 13,000 feet.

Jurors heard a tape recording of Mardis' request, an answer from control but no reply back from the pilot.

Wagner testified the plane probably accumulated ice rapidly, slowing it down, which ultimately led to loss of pilot control.

Plaintiff witnesses said Mardis, an experienced pilot, would have operated the de-icer as specified by the manufacturer.

The de-icer system is made up of pneumatic de-icer boots affixed to parts of the plane, including the wings and tail, testimony indicated. The rubber-like boots, when activated — either manually or automatically — inflate and break the ice.

Defense attorneys modeled their questions to imply that perhaps Mardis did not activate the boots at the recommended cycle. Pumping the boots too early, when the ice is thin, causes an air pocket between the aircraft and ice, susceptible to heavier de-icer resistant ice.

The defense also questioned Wagner's authority as an expert, having only worked on one investigation that involved ice accumulation.

Witnesses for the plaintiff also testified that the pilot's manual did not properly warn of hazards in known icy conditions.

Testimony begins in murder trial

By Chris Van Wagenen
Staff Writer

The trial of a local man accused in the shooting death of another resident at a southeast Midland night spot a year ago got under way Tuesday afternoon following an all-day jury selection process.

Willie Lane Jr. stands trial in 142nd District Court in the April 1991 shooting death of Melvin Burton Jr., 61, of 1315 E. Chestnut St., following a flare of tempers, according to attorneys on both sides.

The defense in the case — being heard by Judge Pat Baskin — hopes to prove the shooting was self-defense on the part of Lane.

However, Assistant District Attorney John Westbrook said the state intends to prove that Lane went back to the New Den #4 at 206 N. Lee St., with the intent to kill Burton.

"What they (witnesses) will tell you (in this trial) is about a cold-blooded murder," Westbrook said.

According to the prosecutor, Burton's bark was bigger than his bite and that people who knew him would testify to that extent. "No one took Melvin serious," Westbrook told the jury.

According to police reports, Lane re-entered the establishment following a short argument with Burton and shot him three times. Lane than drove his car to the police station, where he gave himself up to officers who had trailed him.

Late Monday, the prosecutor called four witnesses, including three police officers associated with the case and a Dallas forensic expert, who testified the .38-caliber pistol confiscated from Lane's car was the same one used in the killing.

Lane's attorney, H.W."Woody" Leverett Jr. didn't dispute that his client had used the gun and, in fact, turned himself into police immediately afterward.

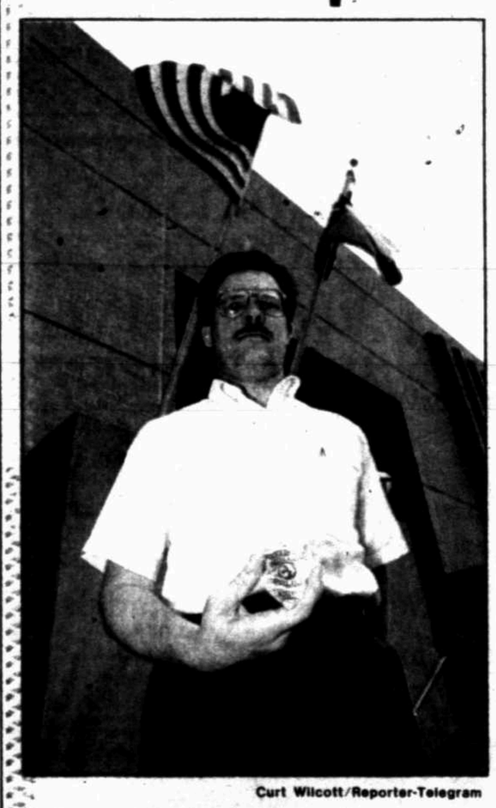
However, Leverett said he intends to prove that Lane's actions were that of man in fear of his life.

Leverett told jurors that Burton was "an accident waiting to happen," claiming the proximity of the victim, who had been flashing a knife all night long, was reason for self-defense on the part of his client.

He told jurors that Lane had earlier talks with Burton's son asking him to do something about his father, who Lane said became obnoxious to those around him when he drank.

Leverett said Burton sought out an altercation with Lane and that witnesses will testify that Burton was known to pull his knife on people on other occasions.

Czech pins first reserve officer



Curt Wilcott/Reporter-Telegram

Former Midland Police Department officer Scott Mims is the first person to be recruited for MPD's citizen volunteer force. Chief Richard Czech hopes 10 to 20 people sign up for the program.

■ Former MPD officer is first recruit in program that will use trained volunteers.

By Debbie Lincecum
Staff Writer

Midland police are hoping to round up some good citizens for a change.

The department officially kicked off its new reserve officer program Tuesday, pinning a badge on its first recruit — former paid officer Scott Mims. Police Chief Richard Czech said he hopes 10 to 20 city residents will join Mims as trained volunteers on the force.

"I think there are a lot of good citizens who would like to donate their time to the police department," Czech said. Reserve officers will ride with police, provide back-up support and eventually, could answer calls on their own, he said.

Citizen officers should be ready to give up some time — reserve recruits are expected to work at least 10 hours each month. They are not paid, but the city of Midland provides uniforms, equipment and worker's compensation coverage.

"These are hard times budget-wise, and this is one way to work with that," Czech said. The program is also hoped to be an answer to the need for more community involvement in the police department, he said.

It is not, however, a training ground for more officers, Czech said.

Eventually, training will qualify reserve officers for carrying guns and performing many of the duties of paid officers.

"We're not looking for hot dogs," Czech said.

Applicants should be high school graduates with some college work and at least 21 years old. They must meet standards for vision and physical fitness, and have valid driver's licenses.

Further screening will include a drug test and psychological exam as well as a background check — many of the same requirements for regular officers. Training courses will be offered by Midland College and are likely to be set in the evenings or on Saturdays, Czech said.

He said the program will be set up to accommodate people with full-time jobs.

"This is not a paid job. It's something they'll be doing for free," Czech said.

Mims said reserve recruits will become a respected part of the force.

"It might not be easy to accept at first, but I think the officers will have a positive attitude toward the reserves," Mims said. "I think it's a very positive program."

Like him, some reserves may be former officers, but past training is not required.

The first class of Midland police reserves may begin as early as June if enough recruits apply.

Interested persons can call the police department at 685-7141 or ask for information at headquarters, 601 N. Loraine.

Officials announce effort to raise funds for UTPB programs

By Darren J. Waggoner
Staff Writer

University of Texas Permian Basin officials Tuesday announced plans to raise $125,000 this spring to enhance various student, faculty and research programs at the college.

"We want to get the entire Permian Basin to join hands and support the university. UTPB can survive but not thrive on state appropriations. We need something extra," said Mike Barker, UTPB's director of development.

Officials hope an extensive mailing campaign combined with a limited lecture program at various area businesses will convince Permian Basin residents to open their wallets.

"We're relying on the generosity of the people," Barker said. "We're facing tough economic times, which in turn is creating a tougher time for education."

University officials unveiled the campaign — Partners for U.T. Permian Basin — at a Tuesday press conference at the Center for Energy and Economic Diversification.

Steve Late, chairman of the university's development board, spoke first encouraging the community to participate in the fund-raising effort.

Local first-graders show pride in their reading ability

■ Reading Recovery students tell MISD board about program's success.

By Myra Lee Salcedo
Staff Writer

About a dozen first-graders filed into the school board meeting, sat on trustees' laps and read to them.

The youngsters — all Reading Recovery students — were demonstrating their newly learned reading skills.

When it was discovered that there were more children than trustees, the pupils paired up with administrators and visitors.

"I'm going to read to the 'Ten Little Bears' to you," Joshua Gallegos said to a surprised adult. Then the first-grader proceeded to read the book fluently without so much as stumbling over any words, including "firehouse," which he proudly sounded out phonetically.

Trustees said the demonstration was the highlight of the Reading Recovery report given by Peggy Holland,, MISD reading coordinator.

"I got paid today," said school board president Ken Marks, referring to his young reader. "When I saw those eyes as bright as they were ... and I saw how that youngster didn't miss a word and was confident when he read, I was proud."

Several parents of children in the program — an intervention program for children who have problems reading — praised the program for its effectiveness.

"In the first-grade last year we literally saved six classrooms of sixth-graders by moving them out of the bottom reading level of their classes," Ms. Holland said. "The proof of any program is what happens to the youngsters after they leave the program. Do they continue to progress? Our reports show that they do."

Trustees unanimously approved a request from the Reporter-Telegram's Cityline to provide a homework hotline.

Cityline Manager Trish Kyle said parents and students could call the hotline from any touch-tone phone.

"Each school will have its own code and each teacher will have their own code," she said.

Ms. Kile said teachers can record messages about daily homework assignments or other information for parents and students.

The hotline could also provide information on Parent Teacher Association meetings, school lunch menus and sports activities.

"We would like to start this in the summer, during the summer school session," Ms. Kile said.

Following the meeting, the school board met in executive session to discuss candidates for principal of Greathouse Elementary School.

Trustees also met in executive session to discuss employee evaluations and contract renewals.

Ingrid Hays

Services for Ingrid Maria Hays of Midland are pending with Ellis Funeral Home.

She died Tuesday at a local hospital.

PLANE: Chief pilot testifies

(From 1B)

Aubrey Price, chief pilot and president of Williams Aviation, said the flight manual stated the plane was certified to fly in icy conditions.

Earlier testimony indicated the de-icer had never been tested in actual flight.

Price, under cross examination, said he had flown the same plane once in extreme icy conditions that lead to three-quarter to one inch ice buildup. Price said he activated the de-icer and descended so as to melt the ice.

A private meteorologist testified extensively about weather condition at the time of the crash and explained that water droplets freeze upon impact in sub-freezing temperatures.

Linda Mardis, wife of the late pilot, testified briefly that her husband did not drink the night before the flight. According to the defense during questioning, Mardis had a level of .05 alcohol in his blood. Plaintiff attorney's contend that the ethanol detected resulted from decomposition.

An aircraft crash investigator testified that both engines were operating upon impact despite defense theories that one of the engines may have "flamed out" because of intake of ice.

The trial is expected to last through Friday.

Students raise Easter Seals funds

Staff Report

Midland and Lee high school students tossed cardboard "tortillas" and put on a talent show to raise funds for the Easter Seals campaign.

The students' efforts resulted in raising more than $4,500, according to David Gray, director of development for the Permian Basin Rehabilitation Center in Odessa.

"This is the most money the Midland schools have raised for the rehabilitation center in a number of years," Gray said. "And all the money raised will be put into service right here in the Permian Basin's center."

Gray said the local Easter Seals campaign raised "a little over $223,000."

The funds will benefit the rehabilitation center's physical therapy programs. "If someone in the Permian Basin needs physical therapy and cannot afford it, they can come to us," Gray said.

LHS senior John Curfew, said he and other students formed a committee to plan the fundraising events. "We tossed cardboard tortillas into a 55-gallon drum. We presented a 40-minute tribute to music show and charged $1 admission," he said. "Students did different acts to different songs, like imitating the Village People or Jimi Hendrix. The Rebel Lee Court also raised about $800 of the money and the Lee High School Student Council pitched in."

"I've been to the rehab center and I've seen what they do with the money," John said. "It's the ultimate cause. They help everybody who needs it."

Tilton misses deadline to turn in books

DALLAS (AP) — Televangelist Robert Tilton missed a Tuesday deadline to turn in financial documents the state attorney general's office says it needs in its investigation of the Farmers Branch ministry.

An attorney for Tilton said the ministry would not provide the documents, saying Tilton already has opened records to federal investigators.

The attorney general's office disagreed with Tilton's Oklahoma attorney on whether the ministry, which recently changed its status, was now outside the state attorney's jurisdiction.

During a televised Sunday service, Tilton announced his ministry, formerly Word of Faith World Outreach Center Church Inc., had dissolved its non-profit corporate status to become a full-fledged church.

Texas Attorney General Dan Morales, in a letter two weeks ago, gave Tilton's ministry until Tuesday to produce the documents, including tax forms and ledgers. The documents were needed to determine whether the ministry was abiding by its status as a non-profit corporation.

Tilton has been under legal scrutiny since ABC-TV's PrimeTime Live broadcast a profile of his ministry in November. According to the broadcast, Tilton deposited financial donations sent with "prayer requests," but the requests didn't reach the minister.

The ministry has denied the allegation.

J.C. Joyce, a Tulsa, Okla., attorney representing Tilton, urged the Texas attorney general in a letter to withdraw his request for information.

Gray McBride, a spokesman for Morales, said the state would respond to the letter today with its next step.

"That will be entailed in our response," McBride said. "But this has transpired: They (Tilton's ministry) have now stated they will not respond to our request for records, and ask that it be withdrawn."

He said earlier that a change in the Farmers Branch-based ministry's corporation status did not derail the state's investigation.

"An alteration in the corporate structure of an organization on one day does not provide blanket protection for accountability for any actions taken the previous day," said McBride.

Joyce said he stated Word of Faith World Outreach Center Church's legal position in the letter.

"The AG's office had claimed civil authority in this case. All we have done is we don't believe civil authority should interfere in internal affairs of the church," Joyce said.

"So we changed our status to be equal with reality. It has always been a church," he said.

Joyce said Tilton has nothing to hide, and that his church opened its books to the FBI and U.S. postal inspectors just days after the ABC report.

"Those two agencies are still looking through books," Joyce said, adding that Tilton's ministry had waived its attorney-client privilege with him in regard to the inquiry.

Joyce said that move allows the FBI and postal inspectors to get more easily any information they need.

Dan Vogel, a spokesman with the FBI office in Oklahoma City said Tuesday he could not confirm or deny that the agency was examining the ministry's books.

Men caught after robbing woman

Staff Report

A 33-year-old woman was robbed early Tuesday morning as she walked into a local convenience store at 2314 E. Front St., police reports said.

Elvia Gildon, of the 400 block of Elm Street, was not injured when three men approached her and one grabbed her purse at the Kent Kwik store at 2:50 a.m., according to reports. The men fled in a 1977 Cadillac and were stopped minutes after the incident by police at Scharbauer Drive and Edwards Street.

Thirty-three-year-old David DeWayne Polk, 904 N. Weatherford St., and 25-year-old Darrell DeWayne Clemens, 1612 E. Magnolia, were arrested for robbery and taken to the Midland County jail. Bond for the charge was set at $5,000 for each man.

Polk was also charged with possession of cocaine and bond was set at $5,000 for that charge. Both men posted bond and were released later Tuesday, reports said.

A 17-year-old male juvenile was taken to juvenile detention facilities.

UTPB: Campaign goal $125,000

(From 1B)

Money raised from the campaign will go toward student scholarships, student recruitment, the development of new teaching methods, support for faculty recruitment, research support and teaching awards, according to Barker.

Donors will receive various benefits depending upon the amount of money given.

Partners and Advanced Partners — those offering between $100 and $499 and $500 to $999, respectively — will be briefed annually by the university president on the state of the university. They will also receive complimentary invitations to campus events, such as the fall celebration and homecoming.

Senior Partners — those giving $1,000 or more to the university — will be divided into three sections. Bronze members encompass those donors giving up to $2,500. Silver members will have donated at least $5,000 and citizens offering over $5,000 will receive the Gold designation.

According to interim president Ed Sharp, community support of the campaign is vital to the university's success.

"There is a lot we can achieve as the area's only four-year university if we are given the opportunity," he said.

$650 million 'vital' for SSC, backers tell House panel

WASHINGTON (AP) — Super collider supporters told members of a House appropriations subcommittee Tuesday it is vital that Congress approve $650 million for the high-energy physics project next year.

"This funding is critical in order to maintain the progress we've achieved to date," said Rep. Martin Frost, D-Dallas, in endorsing President Bush's funding request for fiscal 1993.

The $650 million would be a 34 percent increase over the $483 million obtained from the federal government this year. To date, over $1.1 billion in state and federal funds has been allocated to the Texas project.

In an era of escalating budget deficits and tougher spending decisions, proponents of the giant atom smasher are trying to frame its importance in areas beyond basic science.

Those who testified Tuesday before the appropriations energy and water development subcommittee pointed to the collider's creation of jobs, educational opportunities and possible technological spinoffs.

"Training a new generation of scientists, mathematicians and engineers is absolutely critical if America is to create jobs and compete in the global marketplace," said Frost, whose district will include a portion of the super collider after this year.

"The SSC is already paying dividends by generating new interest in these fields and by providing a laboratory for inquisitive young minds to pursue research in high energy physics."

The $8.25 billion project is expected to advance scientists' knowledge of the origins of the universe by colliding subatomic particles at near light speeds in a 54-mile underground tunnel. The collider, under construction 35 miles south of Dallas, is due to be operational by late 1999.

"This is no longer a paper project but in fact represents one of the, if not the largest construction project going on in the country today, employing directly in our laboratory something like 2,000 and indirectly something like 8,000 workers literally all over the country," said Roy Schwitters, director of the super collider laboratory.

Particle physicist and Nobel Prize-winner Jerome Friedman told committee members the collider already is spurring industry to develop new applications in magnet construction, parallel computer processing and cryogenics.

"The SSC is an investment for the future in science, technology and people," he said.

His comments were echoed by James J. Reidy, chairman of the physics department at the University of Mississippi.

"The SSC has provided the impetus for initiating high energy groups at institutions where traditionally the focus was in other areas," Reidy said. "Personally, I consider this to be one of the great spinoffs of the SSC program already."

"My department has been changed and it's been changed forever because of the SSC," he said. "We've been able to bring these bright, young, dynamic faculty members in where we couldn't have gotten them otherwise."

Tuesday's hearing was the first of the year for the super collider, which is expected to face a difficult funding fight this year.

The super collider, one of the nation's most expensive and controversial science projects, has vocal congressional opposition because of its cost and the fear it will siphon funding from other science projects.

Opponents also cite the lack of foreign contributions to the project. The Energy Department has pledged to obtain $1.7 billion in foreign commitments. To date it has less than a fourth of that. India, China, South Korea and Russia have made commitments the Energy Department values at $400 million.

Teens may face more charges in murder case

FORT WORTH (AP) — The stepdaughter of a slain Fort Worth woman and two other teen-age defendants could face additional charges later this week in the beating attack on the woman and her husband.

Kristi Ann Koslow remained in Tarrant County jail Tuesday along with her boyfriend Brian Salter and a friend, Jeffery Dillingham.

Ms. Koslow, 17, and the two 19-year-olds were held in lieu of $500,000 bonds on capital murder charges.

Additional charges could be filed later this week in the March 12 attack, said L.O. Sanchez in the records division of the Tarrant County district attorney's office.

Attempted murder charges may be filed against all three in connection with beatings that killed Caren Koslow and injured her husband, Jack, Fort Worth police Sgt. Paul Kratz said.

Defense attorneys were seeking bond reductions for Koslow's adopted daughter and the two other teen-agers, Police Lt. Burton Poe said.

However, a hearing before state District Judge Pete Perez in the case has been postponed.

Court records show Ms. Koslow is accused of offering Salter and his friend, Dillingham, $1 million to kill her adoptive father and stepmother.

Mrs. Koslow was bludgeoned to death in the pre-dawn attack in which her husband was beaten unconscious.

Dillingham told police he and Salter broke into the Koslows' house in the upscale Rivercrest neighborhood and disarmed the home security system with a code provided by Ms. Koslow, according to an arrest warrant affidavit.

The document stated that Salter and Dillingham then went to the couple's bedroom and attacked them with a crowbar.

Oscar Mayer's Honey Ham is healthy, yet still tastes good

By Linda Anderson

Remember when you didn't have to worry about things like fat, salt and cholesterol in your diet? Things have really changed, haven't they, and old habits — not to mention likes and dislikes — die hard.

Anderson

Fortunately for us "healthy" and "tastes bad" don't have to go hand-in-hand. Now food manufacturers are introducing healthier ways of eating that may actually taste good.

Oscar Mayer, well-known for its hot dogs, bologna and other lunch meats (foods that are not known for their high nutritional content), is introducing Healthy Favorites line of sandwich meats that are supposed to be low fat, low cholesterol, low salt and low calorie.

Well, with all that stuff taken out, you might wonder if there's anything left. That's why we bought a package of Healthy Favorites Honey Ham to check it out for taste, price and advertising accuracy. Other flavors available are Oven Roasted Chicken Breast, Boiled Ham, Smoked Turkey Breast, Oven Roasted Turkey Breast and Smoked Cooked Ham — but the youngest taste tester chose Honey Ham, which was fine with me.

A 6-ounce package of thin-sliced honey ham Healthy Favorites cost $1.69 and had somewhere around 15 slices in it. (I really couldn't tell because people started helping themselves before I actually counted the slices. However, the label says each package has 14-16 slices.)

According to information from the company, "The product line and packaging reflect the growing consumer interest in good tasting, healthier products. According to Oscar Mayer research, fat, cholesterol, sodium and calories — in that order — are the most important considerations for adults concerned with nutrition.

"Each of the six varieties contains less than one gram of fat and five milligrams of cholesterol per 12 gram slice. Calories range from 12 to 14 per slice and cholesterol from 115 mg to 160 mg per slice depending on the variety."

Sure enough, the nutrition label on the back of our package listed one slice of honey ham as containing 14 calories (four of them from fat), less than 1 gram fat, 5 mg cholesterol, 2 grams protein and 115 mg sodium.

In the taste test, all tasters agreed that the honey ham tasted remarkably good for something that healthy. We all like ham sandwiches (the young tasters prefer sandwiches made with croissants, while my favorite is some kind of whole-grain bread), and we all liked the Healthy Favorites.

Seemed kind of expensive, though, even for Oscar Mayer.

Price listed is from a local supermarket. Price at other locations may vary.

American Cancer Society ropes Waylon Jennings for 'Round-Up'

By Elizabeth Edwin
Lifestyle Editor

Expect toes to be tappin' and boots to be scootin' May 30 when headline entertainer Waylon Jennings takes the stage followed by the Texas dance band Asleep at the Wheel for the American Cancer Society's ninth annual "Round-Up" Gala.

"Cancer is such a frightening disease, and it seems to touch so many families. I personally have experienced this sadness within my own family," said Modesta Williams, honorary sponsor chairman of the event, at a luncheon announcing the entertainment.

"Round-Up is one of Midland's largest fund-raisers, and I am proud to be a part of this endeavor," she said.

Round-Up is the annual fund-raising effort by the American Cancer Society, and in addition to the country and western entertainers, other features of the event include casino games and midway games. The Perini Brothers of Buffalo Gap will cater a dinner featuring Texas-sized prime rib steaks.

Past entertainers for Round-Up read like a list of country and western who's who, including Crystal Gayle, Eddie Rabbitt, Marie Osmond, Charley Pride, Steve Wariner, Ronnie Milsap and Tanya Tucker.

AP Laserphoto

Country singer Waylon Jennings will be the headline entertainer for "Round-Up '92."

"The American Cancer Society has the lowest ratio of staff to volunteers of any national organization, and Round-Up is one of the most successful special events statewide for the American Cancer Society," Mrs. Williams said.

The theme for this year's event is "Pumpjacks and Petticoats — where the world of circle and crazy oil prices will meet six shooters and saloons," Mrs. Williams said. The event will be held at Petro Jet Aviation hanger, Midland Air Terminal, May 30 from 6 p.m.-1 a.m. The location has been donated by Petro-Jet Sales and Leasing.

Tickets are $125 a couple for general admission. Those interested in receiving an invitation should call the American Cancer Society office at 683-6374.

Sponsorships also are still available for Round-Up '92 by calling the American Cancer Society office.

Potato topper is quick to fix with no fuss

Associated Press

Creamy Vegetables Italiano is a no-fuss topper for baked potatoes that can be prepared in a conventional or microwave oven. All you need is a can of soup, some frozen vegetables and Parmesan cheese.

CREAMY VEGETABLES ITALIANO

4 medium baking potatoes
1 10¾-ounce can condensed cream of mushroom soup
2 cups Italian-style frozen vegetable combination
¼ cup grated Parmesan cheese
Dash pepperp

Heat oven to 400 degrees. Bake potatoes about 1 hour or until tender. Split potatoes open.

CONVENTIONAL COOKING: In a 1½-quart saucepan, combine soup, vegetables, cheese and pepper. Over medium heat, simmer 5 minutes or until vegetables are done, stirring occasionally. Spoon over potatoes. Serve with additional cheese, if desired. Makes 2 cups or 4 servings.

MICROWAVE OVEN: In a 1½-quart, microwave-safe casserole, combine soup, vegetables, cheese and pepper. Cover with lid. Cook on high (100 percent power) for 6 minutes or until vegetables are done, stirring twice during heating.

Strawberry dessert is easy to make

Associated Press

Frozen Strawberry Fool is made with just three ingredients: frozen strawberries, orange-flavored liqueur and whipping cream. It is quick to assemble and can be made in advance and frozen.

Frozen strawberries are available sliced and sweetened in 10- and 16-ounce containers, or whole and unsweetened in 16- and 20-ounce bags. Generally, frozen strawberries will keep in the freezer for about six months.

FROZEN STRAWBERRY FOOL

2 10-ounce packages frozen sliced strawberries, sugar added, partially thawed
¼ cup orange-flavored liqueur
1 cup whipping cream
Mint sprigs for garnish (optional)

Combine one package of the strawberries and their liquid with 2 tablespoons of the liqueur; set aside. Whip cream to form soft peaks; fold in berry-liqueur mixture until well blended. Pour into four stemmed glasses or dessert dishes; freeze until firm around the edges but still soft in the center, about 2 hours. Combine remaining package of strawberries and their liquid with remaining liqueur; spoon over frozen desserts, dividing equally. Garnish with mint. Serve at once. Makes 4 servings.

Note: Desserts, up to the point of adding sauce, can be completely frozen. Remove from freezer 10 to 15 minutes before adding sauce and serving.

YOUR HOROSCOPE

By Jeane Dixon

WEDNESDAY, APRIL 1, 1992

HAPPY BIRTHDAY! IN THE NEXT YEAR OF YOUR LIFE: Luck will play a key role in your attaining a career goal and turning your financial fortunes around. In summer, you gain wider public recognition and better opportunities to display your artistic talents. Do not be embarrassed or shy about promoting yourself next fall. Romance offers you a chance to start over in early 1993. Follow your heart.

CELEBRITIES BORN ON THIS DATE: actresses Debbie Reynolds and Ali MacGraw, football coach "Bo" Schembechler, baseball player Rusty Staub.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Take a practical approach to details connected with correspondence. A legal document cements an agreement, helping you secure a long-sought goal. Relax tonight with laughter and song.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Tackle routine responsibilities in a more organized way. Finish leftover business. Travel is favored. A long-distance telephone call will be appreciated.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Better relations with your co-workers lie just ahead. You can make great personal and professional gains if you play your cards right. Launch a secret plan without fanfare.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Do everything you can to promote greater teamwork. Be patient with those who have not been blessed with your talents. Deal with the root cause of tension and sleep will come more easily.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): You make surprisingly swift progress working out the details of an important project. Someone at a distance plays a major role in your love life. The events of this evening give you a new perspective.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): You have more time to concentrate on self-improvement activities now. Think about studying a foreign language. A friend or relative needs your help. Avoid romantic burnout.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Be alert to other people's moods. If contemplating a change of residence, talk it over with your friends and family. Listen to their advice. Children need praise.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): The key to improving your social life is enlarging your circle of friends. Tune in to the romantic vibrations that surround you. It is not too early to plan your summer vacation.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): New developments favor your efforts to get ahead at work. Family members understand your drive for success. If you have the money, consider a home redecorating scheme.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): A family business or property transaction may be the focus of your attention today. A lively discussion convinces you of an investment's potential. Trust your intuition.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Devote more time to the personal side of your life. You and your mate reach an agreement. Revive an old friendship that you have neglected lately.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Intellectual endeavors offer greater rewards than physical pursuits now. The emphasis is on acquiring and sharing specialized knowledge. Catch up on your reading tonight.

TODAY'S CHILDREN are born scholars to whom studying comes easily. They have tremendous curiosity about the world around them and will ask lots of questions. With encouraging support from their parents, these young Aries can achieve great things. They admire their teachers and may decide to pursue a career in the academic world. Although sensitive to criticism, these children find it impossible to hold a grudge. Easygoing and tolerant, they will have friends from all walks of life.

5 ♢	Pass	6 ♢	Pass

Opening lead: Nine of ♠

Sometimes it seems the cards are playing an April Fool's joke on you. You take a perfectly normal action and it becomes the direct cause of a disaster.

No one can fault East for overcalling one spade, no matter what the vulnerability. South brushed aside the interference and, once diamonds had been raised, drove to slam.

Not surprisingly, in view of the auction, West led a spade. The nine was covered by the jack and queen and taken by the ace, and trumps were drawn in two rounds, ending in dummy. Declarer led a spade and finessed the eight, cashed the ace of spades for a heart discard from the table, then ruffed a spade. Now the king of hearts was led to East's ace, and the poor defender was caught in an endplay.

A spade or heart return would allow declarer to discard a club from hand while ruffing on the board and a club return would eliminate declarer's loser in that suit. A stiff price to pay for bidding one spade, for without the overcall West might have led some other suit and the slam would have failed by a trick.

Although this terrible result could have been avoided had East made a Lightner double of six diamonds, calling for a lead of dummy's first-bid suit, that action wouldn't occur to us. To insist on an opening club salvo without knowing the location of the ace of clubs, or how many cards South has in the suit, could be very expensive, especially when the opponents redouble and then wrap up 12 tricks.

New musical director writes theme song for 'Tonight Show'

TULSA, Okla. — Jazz saxophonist Branford Marsalis, who takes over May 25 as musical director of "The Tonight Show," wrote a new theme song for the late-night NBC show, but he's not crazy about it.

"It's not listed in my top 20 favorite songs, but it suits the purpose," he told music students Monday at McLain High School. "The type of song it is — I don't want anybody to know I wrote it."

Marsalis, 31, replaces Doc Severinsen when Jay Leno replaces host Johnny Carson.

As he often does in cities where he's performing, Marsalis spent time the day after a performance meeting high school students.

He expected a few jazz students at McLain, but found hundreds in a school assembly expecting a concert though his band was back in Los Angeles.

He did his best to oblige, and advised students who didn't want to be there: "Just stay in the back, chew your gum and shut up. Be cool. I'm gonna try to make this as painless as possible."

TOKYO — Evangelist Billy Graham arrived Tuesday in North Korea, the nation's official news agency reported.

The Korean Central News Agency, monitored in Tokyo, gave no details about whom Graham would meet in the hard-line Communist nation, which keeps tight reins on religion.

The news agency identified Graham as "a religious leader of the United States," and said he was met at the airport by "officials concerned."

NEW YORK — Actress Mariska Hargitay, daughter of late Hollywood glamour goddess Jayne Mansfield, says her mother's death when she was just 3 taught her to value every moment in life.

Hargitay

"I don't want to spend my life defending her," says the 28-year-old Hargitay, who plays Detective Angela Garcia on CBS-TV's "Tequila & Bonetti." "I just think she was really beautiful and soft."

Hargitay doesn't remember the gruesome crash that killed her mother and injured her and her two brothers.

"I blocked all that out," she says this week's People magazine.

It wasn't until she was 22 that she felt the full impact of the loss.

"I'd wake up crying," she said. "I went through months of depression. I knew the pain had to be exorcised."

She credits her father, Mickey Hargitay, the Hungarian-born former Mr. Universe, for keeping the family strong. "He taught us never to give up," she said.

PERTH, Australia — Country music star Tammy Wynette was discharged from a hospital Tuesday, three days after collapsing for the second time on her Australian tour.

Ms. Wynette, 49, left Royal Perth Hospital with a doctor who was to accompany her on a flight Wednesday to Sydney and possibly to her home in Nashville.

Wally Bishop, her Australian tour coordinator, said he didn't know her exact condition, but that she still was not well.

Ms. Wynette's husband-manager, George Richey, said Sunday his wife had been weak for a couple of days as she neared the end of her 37-concert, 45-day Australian tour.

She collapsed from exhaustion in her hotel room early Saturday, hours after performing a concert in Perth.

Ms. Wynette, who has a current chart-topping hit "Justified and Ancient" with British funk group The KLF, also collapsed minutes before she was to go on stage Feb. 29 in Mackay. She was hospitalized for three days. Doctors said tests showed she had a blocked bile duct.

MINNEAPOLIS — Leonette Scott, who played Tisha in the movie "Boyz N the Hood," has been placed on probation for carrying cocaine on a flight from Los Angeles to the Twin Cities.

U.S. District Judge Robert Renner on Monday put Scott, 28, of Los Angeles, on probation for four years and ordered her to perform 300 hours of community service.

Scott was arrested May 16 at Minneapolis-St. Paul International Airport and pleaded guilty in October to conspiring to distribute cocaine. Police said she had about 2 pounds of cocaine taped to her armpits.

Also indicted were Shannon Lee of Los Angeles, the alleged pickup man, and Lennon Hunter Jr., the alleged Los Angeles supplier.

"Boyz N the Hood," is a critically acclaimed parable that portrays how violence among black teen-agers in Los Angeles leads nowhere.

GREENSBORO, N.C. — Sean Patrick Flanery, star of "The Young Indiana Jones Chronicles" ABC-TV series, made a pit stop to visit his 1973 BMW 2002 at the Korman Autoworks, where the sportscar is getting a $30,000 overhaul.

Now that Flanery is making piles of money, he can afford fixing up his first car, purchased for $2,600 when he was a student at the University of St. Thomas in Houston.

A longtime car enthusiast, Flanery raced and attended race driving schools when he wasn't acting.

DEAR ABBY

Health may hang in balance for patient resisting scales

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: I just read the letter from the woman signed "I'm Just Right in Sacramento," who decided not to be weighed in her physician's office because she cannot maintain the unrealistic weight demanded of her.

Van Buren

As a registered nurse, I feel compelled to tell this woman that she needs to rethink her decision. She should not be subjected to a lecture on weight control each time she is weighed and is not the ideal weight.

However, in some cases, the dosages of prescribed medication are based on the patient's weight; therefore, an "educated guess" may not be adequate. — CONCERNED R.N. IN MODESTO, CALIF.

DEAR CONCERNED: Many readers identified with "I'm Just Right." Read on:

DEAR ABBY: Three cheers for "I'm Just Right in Sacramento." I, too, have sworn off scales. I was either on a diet, or failing, and the number on the bathroom scale in the morning would determine whether I liked myself that day.

Finally, I began to realize that it wasn't hunger, my body size, or some defect in me that triggered my overeating. It was the constant dieting and worrying about my weight that made me focus on food.

I haven't been on a scale for five years, and I'm probably a few pounds heavier than I used to be, but I'm many pounds lighter than I was after my last diet failed.

Now, I eat whatever I want, and I don't spend every waking moment thinking about food and diets. — FREE FROM FOOD FRIGHT IN MAINE

DEAR ABBY: In response to "I'm Just Right in Sacramento," who refused to be weighed in the doctor's office:

She should be informed that sometimes it's necessary for the doctor to know a patient's weight. It could be important when prescribing medication in which the dosage varies according to the patient's weight.

Also, it is the physician's responsibility to make sure the patient realizes the dangers of being overweight with conditions such as high blood pressure and diabetes.

Perhaps doctors should consider allowing the patients to weigh themselves rather than being weighed by some skinny little nurse who looks like she runs 10 miles every morning before daybreak. — M.L.S. IN ORANGEVALE, CALIF.

DEAR ABBY: Concerning "I'm Just Right": I had a good friend who went to her doctor about a medical problem. He bluntly said, "You're too fat!"

She promptly replied, "You're not so skinny yourself, Doctor!"

When she returned for her next checkup, she noticed that the doctor was noticeably thinner. So I guess the moral of that story is, "Physician, heal thyself." — HAZEL IN OCEAN SHORES, WASH.

Shopping tips can make best ground beef buys easier to find

By Nancy Byal
Associated Press

Whether you're making meatballs, burgers or a casserole, you need to know that all ground beef is not created equal, especially when you're trying to curb fat.

Most ground beef products are labeled according to meat industry and government guidelines. The distinction between types of ground beef is indicated on the label. (Ground beef cannot be less than 70 percent lean.)

For the least number of calories, look for low-fat ground beef (90 percent lean), which contains about 149 calories and 7 grams of fat for a 3-ounce broiled serving. Lean ground beef (80 percent lean) contains about 228 calories and 15 grams of fat for a 3-ounce broiled serving.

As a rule of thumb, remember — the higher the fat content, the higher the calories, so choose the leanest meat suitable.

Sometimes the fat content of the beef is less critical, such as when you're broiling, grilling or browning the ground beef in such a way that you can drain off all the excess fat. For example, even though it may be higher in fat, you can consider buying ground chuck or regular ground beef when you know you can drain the fat. It costs less, and because you drain it, the fat content of cooked ground chuck is about the same as ground round after cooking.

No-fuss pizzas go from stove top to table

By Nancy Byal
Associated Press

Come to my house and it's a sure bet you'll see dinners like these stuffed sandwiches on my table. They are both easy to fix and easy to serve (serve yourself, in fact). Single-serve rounds of refrigerated pizza dough are cooked in a skillet on your stove top while the five-ingredient meat filling simmers alongside.

GREEK-STYLE PIZZA POCKETS

1 pound lean ground beef or turkey
1 14½-ounce can stewed tomatoes
½ teaspoon ground allspice or cinnamon
¼ teaspoon garlic salt
¼ teaspoon pepper
1 10-ounce package refrigerated pizza dough
Non-stick spray coating
½ cup plain yogurt
2 tablespoons thinly sliced green onion
Paprika (optional)

For filling, in a large saucepan cook beef or turkey until no longer pink. Drain off fat. Stir in undrained tomatoes, allspice or cinnamon, garlic salt and pepper. Bring to boiling; reduce heat. Cover and simmer for 15 minutes, stirring often. Uncover and simmer for 10 minutes more or until most of the liquid has evaporated, stirring often.

Meanwhile, cut pizza dough crosswise into four equal portions. On a lightly floured surface, roll each piece into a 7-inch round from center to edge. Spray a cold large skillet with non-stick coating. Cook dough rounds, one at a time, over low heat for 2 minutes on each side or until light brown (they may shrink).

Stir together yogurt and green onion. Spoon meat filling onto each dough round. Top with yogurt mixture and paprika, if desired. Wrap and secure with toothpicks, if desired. Makes 4 main-dish servings.

Dravecky's dream

NEW YORK (AP) — Dave Dravecky has not lost his passion for pitching despite losing his left arm and shoulder to cancer last year.

Dravecky

"My dream is to get my fastball down well enough to strike out (former San Francisco Giants tremmate) Will Clark in batting practice," Dravecky said Tuesday before the world premier of the full length documentary "Dravecky: A Story of Courage and Grace" at the Memorial Sloan-Kettering Cancer Center.

Dravecky had a 2½-half hour operation at Memorial Sloan-Kettering on June 18 last year due to chronic infection and nerve damage in his pitching arm since a cancerous tumor was diagnosed in 1988.

The left-hander had never attempted to throw right-handed prior to the surgery and presently is practicing on his 7-year-old son Jonathan.

"I'm looking forward to striking him out," Dravecky said.

Mutombo downed

DENVER (AP) — Rookie Dikembe Mutombo will miss the Nuggets' 10 remaining games because of a left thumb injury, the Denver Nuggets said Tuesday.

Mutombo, who has a torn ulnar collateral ligament, was placed on the injured list. The Nuggets activated Steve Scheffler from the injured list to take the rookie's place.

"Dikembe has had a terrific season and has surpassed all hopes we had for him as a rookie," said Bernie Bickerstaff, general manager.

NJCAA opens meeting

Proposed changes could hurt Texas athletes

By Jimmy Patterson
Assistant Sports Editor

With the opening of its annual meeting today in Colorado Springs, the National Junior College Athletic Association is scheduled to discuss two items that would greatly affect junior college athletics in the state of Texas by changing eligibility requirements for athletes.

Raymond Yell, dean of planning and development at Midland College, said this week if the NJCAA regional directors vote to enact the two proposals, MC and other JUCOs in Texas would "walk away" from the NJCAA and form their own alliance.

The point of question is Article V, Section 4 of the NJCAA by-laws, the first proposal scheduled for discussion at today's meeting, which reads: "During a second season of participation, remedial/developmental courses cannot count towards eligibility.

The additional proposal states: "Students who earn an A, B, C, CR (credit), or P (passing) in a remedial/developmental course cannot repeat that course and have it count toward eligibility."

Texas JUCO athletes who do not pass the Texas Assessment Skills Program (TASP) are required to take remedial courses as part of their curriculum. Under the NJCAA's proposal, the Texas athlete would be forced to take a full class load, plus remedial courses, should he or she not pass the TASP test. Texas regional directors say this would result in an undue academic load on the student athlete.

Also according to the NJCAA's proposal, students who require more than one unit to successfully complete a certain remedial subject can only have the first unit count towards eligibility. This, too, would create an undue workload on the remedial student and possibly force a delay in his or her transfer to a senior college because of an extra remedial workload required at the completion of the sophomore year.

A remedial course is designed to bring a student up to the level where they can enter basic college courses.

Odessa High's Steve Gilpin (5) slides safely into second base for a steal while Eric Benavidez (4) of Midland Lee takes the late throw from the plate in the Rebels' 16-6 win Tuesday.

Lee sends OHS packing early

■ Odessa High is 10-run ruled for the third time in four games, this time by a Rebel team that moves to within one game of second-place in District 4-5A.

By Bill Price
Staff Writer

Midland Lee's 16-6, five-inning District 4-5A baseball win Tuesday at Johnson Field showed just exactly what the Rebels are capable of doing offensively.

But it also comes with an important caveat — the victory was over the Odessa High Bronchos, they of the 0-5 district record, 2-11 overall mark and three 10-run rule losses in their last four games.

If anyone expected Lee to rest on its laurels for this game, though, it was a mistake. The Rebels went to batting practice against Broncho starter Nate Patton, as junior shortstop Paul Fuentes put the Rebs ahead first and for good with a two-run home run in the first inning.

That was just the beginning, and if it weren't for the fact that the 10-run rule doesn't go into effect until the fifth inning, this game would have been over in four.

Lee, now 8-7 and 2-2 in 4-5A, pulled within one game of the playoff-qualifying second place spot, as Odessa Permian (3-1) fell to Midland High (3-2), 2-1. The other 4-5A game Tuesday saw San Angelo (1-3) take Abilene Cooper, unbeaten in district at 4-0, to nine innings before falling 6-5.

For Fuentes, it was his first power shot since playing in a 13-year-old league, and gives Lee four homers in its last four games.

"I'm not much of a power hitter. I've just been trying to make good contact," said the 5-6, 145-pound Fuentes, who was hitting .250 through the Rebs' first three district games but drove in four runs Tuesday.

"We worked as a team today. We got our hits, moved base runners around and made our pitcher feel good."

Indeed. Lee punched out 13 hits as the Rebels were 10-for-20 with runners on base. In addition to Fuentes' 2-for-4 effort, designated hitter Allen Chase went 3-for-3 with a triple, a

Rodriguez throws gem in first outing

By Joe Wyatt
Staff Writer

ODESSA — If Midland High pitcher Mario Rodriguez was surprised to get the starting nod for the Bulldogs' District 4-5A game Tuesday at Odessa Permian, the Panthers were downright baffled by the move.

Rodriguez, a senior making his varsity pitching debut, defied the Panthers with a package of off-speed curves that produced nine strikeouts and allowed just two hits as the Bulldogs captured their second road win in as many days, 2-1.

"I found out I was going to throw just before we took infield (practice). It surprised me a little bit, but I was ready just in case," Rodriguez said after out-dueling Permian ace Brian Bavousett (5-3), who faced the minimum number of batters after the Bulldogs' two-run second inning.

"It was a pretty big game. We needed to win to stay in the race," Rodriguez said.

The Bulldogs, who just two days before sat mired in a tie for fifth place in the 4-5A standings, not only stayed in the race, they re-directed it. MHS, which downed San Angelo 8-5 on Monday in a make-up of a weekend rainout, lifted its league mark to 3-2 Tuesday, while handing the Panthers (3-1) their first loop loss. It leaves the Bulldogs in sole possession of third place, just a half game behind Permian and 1½ behind Abilene Cooper (4-0).

"The rainout put us in a bind with back-to-back games on the road, but I thought our kids came through like champs," MHS head coach Rick Wood said.

"Today's game was a great baseball game. I thought both pitchers did an excellent job. It's a shame that either one of those kids had to lose a game like this."

Bavousett, who retired the Bulldogs on four pitches in the first inning and never did walk a batter in going the distance, was tagged for three hits — including RBI doubles by Adrian Mills and Justin Duffield — as the 'Dogs grabbed a 2-0 lead in the second inning.

But while MHS never had a base runner after that frame, all Permian could manage against Rodriguez was a single Shortstop Gary DiSarcina makes a play in 1989 against the San Antonio Missions.

■ Infielders Gary DiSarcina and Bobby Rose supplant veterans in the California Angels' starting lineup.

New York Times News Service

PALM SPRINGS, Calif. — After eight years, Dick Schofield's reign as shortstop for the California Angels is over. He was officially unseated Monday by Gary DiSarcina, the former Midland Angel who has had his eye on Schofield's job since 1986.

In a simultaneous announcement, Bobby Rose, another Midland Angels graduate, will replace Luis Sojo, last year's starter at second base.

"We're gambling on two aggressive personalities," Angels manager Buck Rodgers said. "That's why I think the gamble is at a minimum."

Rodgers, beginning his first full season as manager, made the announcement early Monday morning. He said the decision to start DiSarcina, 23, over Schofield, 29, had to do with Schofield's declining offensive numbers and the nature of his contract.

"I think the fact that Dick is coming off a poor year and the fact he's here for one year is part of it," Rodgers said. "DiSarcina, we feel, is a young man on the way up. If he proves out, he'll be here for a few years."

The Angels have been clear in their intention to trade Schofield since the start of camp. Whitey Herzog, the club's director of player personnel, said Monday that there seems to be no market for Schofield.

"The Mets are going with (Kevin Elster)," he said. "The Dodgers are going with (Jose) Offerman. I don't know who Milwaukee's going with. Kansas City's going to go with the kid, I guess."

Until a trade can be made, Schofield will be used as a utility infielder, as will Sojo. "I know Scho wants to play everyday," Herzog said. "And I know if he can't play here he wants out. But I'm not going to give him away. If we keep him all year,

Local kickers honored

■ Midland Lee's Tim Tucker and Tommy Tipton receive offensive, defensive MVP laurels to head up local talent.

Staff Report

The Midland Lee soccer team capped its best season ever by placing four players on the All-District 3 Soccer Team, including the Most Valuable Players on both offense and defense.

And Lee coach Eddie Bull was named District 3 Coach of the Year after directing the Rebels to their first league title, a 15-1 record and the area round of the state playoffs.

Lee forward Tim Tucker was named MVP on offense, and teammate Tommy Tipton received the MVP award on defense. Additionally, Lee keeper Freddie Silva was a first-team goalkeeper, and Rebel Mattt Perkins made the first team as a midfielder.

Midland High midfielder Mario Rodriguez also earned first-team honors, while teammate Jeremy Hernandez got second-team keeper honors.

Making the second team for Lee were forward Todd Meade and midfielder Jason Brown.

Tucker, a senior, led the Rebel offense with 11 goals.

NBA says it won't ground Air Jordan

N.Y. Times News Service

NEW YORK — After meeting here with Michael Jordan and his attorneys Tuesday, Commissioner David Stern said the National Basketball Association had found no cause for disciplining the Chicago Bulls star following an investigation into recent reports linking him to high-stakes wagering on golf matches and poker games in Hilton Head, S.C., where Jordan has a vacation home.

Jordan

Saying there was "no evidence that Michael has ever gambled on NBA games," Stern indicated that Jordan understood "the gravity of the situation" and would be more careful about his associations.

Stern added that Jordan had cooperated fully with the NBA investigation.

Jordan acknowledged that he had shown poor judgment, not only by wagering large sums on golf and poker, but also in choosing some of his off-court company.

run in the bottom of the third when Jeff Thomason's tapper in front of the plate scored Kyle Johnson from third base. Johnson, who had drawn a leadoff walk, stole second, was sacrificed to third and scored under the tag of MHS catcher Mike Melzer.

Johnson did not get under Melzer's tag in the fifth, however. The Bulldogs thwarted Permian's attempt to tie the game when MHS first baseman Jimmy Stanton made an unassisted put-out on Jason Cotton, then gunned down Johnson at the plate for a double play. Johnson had tried to score from second on the ground ball.

Rodriguez gave up a lead-off single to Bavousett in the sixth, but Melzer caught courtesy runner Mac Cohlmia attempting to swipe third base and Rodriguez got Eric Louvin and Efrain Moreno to look at called third strikes to end the inning. Rodriguez retired the Panthers in order in the seventh.

"The pitcher (Rodriguez) kept us off balance," Permian coach Bob Highley said. "He wasn't overpowering, but he was effective. It's a good lesson. You don't have to throw 90.

"Midland High is a good baseball team. I knew it at the beginning of the season and I'm very much convinced of it now."

MHS got untracked in the second inning when Todd Tredaway bounced a bad-hop single over third base. Tredaway was forced out at second on Richie Greth's grounder, but Greth stole second and scored when Mills laced a line-drive double down the right-field line.

Mills scored on Duffield's double just over the first-base bag.

The 'Dogs return to action Saturday when they host league leading Cooper at 2 p.m. at Angels Stadium.

ANGELS: Opening day to be 'awesome', Rose says

(From 1C)

we'd give him away anyway."

Of Schofield's $1.5 million base salary, Herzog said, "That's pretty cheap today for a guy who's an everyday shortstop."

At his locker before Monday's 3-0 loss to the San Diego Padres, Schofield managed the occasional smile. But he clearly was upset by the news.

"I don't think you're ever prepared for it," said Schofield, a lifetime .232 hitter. "I think if I leave or get traded, I'll have to sit back and think about it."

For sure, a difficult off-season followed Schofield into spring training. He filed for free agency and received little interest. Then, on agent Dan Grigsby's advice, he turned down a three-year offer by the Angels.

He did finally settle for his current one-year deal. By then, however, the Angels had prepared themselves for the transition from Schofield to DiSarcina.

"We really thought Scho was gone," Herzog said.

Several lockers to Schofield's left sat DiSarcina and Rose, who have grown up together in the Angels' organization. And, six years ago, DiSarcina, a Boston Red Sox fan, in his Billerica, Mass. living room, sat astounded at Schofield.

The Angels were playing the Red Sox in the American League Championship Series, in which Schofield batted .300.

"I thought, 'Who is that guy?'" DiSarcina said Monday.

That guy, of course, is the second-string shortstop.

"It's so hard to accept," DiSarcina said. "It's been so long, it's hard to see that I've climbed this high. I must have gotten better. All of a sudden, all that work you did pays off. When Buck came in and told me, I just flashed back to all those times."

In the same breath, Rodgers broke the same kind of good news to Rose — and the bad news to Sojo.

"The second base situation is a pleasant thing," Herzog said. "I'm impressed by Rose. He can hit. I hope he can play there. I hope he can become a good offensive player."

Rose has hit .267 in 116 previous major-league at-bats and has a history of hitting in the minors.

He has spent the better parts of the past seven years in the minor leagues.

"Opening Day, that's going to be awesome," Rose said. "I wish everybody who ever plays this game can experience that feeling. I'm really one of the fortunate ones."

For the first time Monday, Rodgers spoke freely of the possibility of releasing catcher Lance Parrish. He was asked if John Orton's sore shoulder might eventually decide Parrish's fate. There is a good chance that Orton, another player to spend time in Midland, will begin the season on the disabled list.

"I think it depends more on Lance than it does John Orton," Rodgers said. "If Lance Parrish is going to catch, it will be up to him."

Rodgers added that if Parrish is not the starter, he might not be on the club at all.

"I would not particularly like to carry Lance as a backup catcher," he said. "I don't think it's good for Lance Parrish, I don't think it's good for us.

"It's not up to me whether we eat his contract."

Medalist race heats up on girl's 4-5A golf tour

Staff Report

ODESSA — The girl's medalist race remained a heated one Tuesday after the second round of the District 4-5A Tour at the Club at Mission Dorado, where San Angelo's Tiffany Ashley saw her two-stroke lead over Abilene Cooper's April DeVries halved.

Midland Lee's Paula King entered the round tied with DeVries and Odessa Permian's Kristin Kight for second place, just two strokes behind Ashley. King added an 81 to her first-round 86, matching Ashley's Tuesday effort and staying two strokes back at 167.

But DeVries used an 80 to slip into sole ownership of second place at 185, while Kight fell back a notch with an 82 for a 168 total that leaves the three hopefuls spaced out evenly behind Ashley's 164.

Permian used the round to increase its lead in team play, tacking the day's best round of 350 to its opening-round 368 to stands at 718 with two rounds to play.

Cooper is second at 725 and Lee is third at 748, after a 363 effort on Tuesday.

Midland High is in fourth place with 795 total strokes.

Here are the scores after the second round of the District 4-5A girl's golf tour at the Club at Mission Dorado.

Team Totals

1. Odessa Permian I 368-350—718; 2. Abilene Cooper I 367-358—725; 3. Midland Lee 385-363—748; 4. San Angelo I 391-379—770; 5. Midland High 397-398—795; 6. Permian II 393-403—796; 7. Abilene High I 408-396—804; 8. Cooper II 410-449—859; 9. San Angelo II 495-448—943; 10. Abilene High II 496-489—985.

Medalist Leaders

1. Tiffany Ashley, San Angelo, 84-81—165; 2. April DeVries, Cooper, 86-80—166; 3. Paula King, Lee, 86-81—167; 4. Kristin Kight, Permian, 86-82—168; 5. April Scarbrough, Permian, 85-87—172; 6. Marcie Edwards, Cooper 91-87—178; 7. Brittany Bawcom, Cooper, 93-86—179.

Midland Lee

Paula King 86-81—167; Kaimi Fuller 99-93—192; Jennifer Dickson 98-95—193; Kim Fisher 102-94—196; Heather Albright 104-98—202.

REBELS: Urquidez breezes despite 10 days of inactivity double and two RBI, and right fielder Jake Krautsch was 3-for-4 with a pair of runs driven home. Leadoff man David Galvan also drove in two runs with a triple.

And as if junior right-handed pitcher Julian Urquidez didn't do enough by going the distance on the mound to make his season record 4-0, his two-run single in the third inning put Lee up 10-2 and on cruise control.

But it was on the hill where Urquidez, who had not thrown in a game in 10 days, was most useful.

"I felt kind of winded after the second inning because I hadn't thrown in so long," Urquidez said. "I wanted to get more than five innings' work in today, but I'll just throw tomorrow. Our guys did a great job of hitting the ball."

The loss also left OHS coach Milton Thompson shaking his head in wonder.

"We have some good kids, and they will compete," Thompson said. "I just don't see how Cooper beat Lee like they did (24-7 on March 21). Urquidez threw well and they're a strong ball club. They make things happen with the bat."

Lee head coach Jesse Benavidez did see improvement from his squad, but also said there was more where that came from.

"I still think we are capable of providing more, but we got our runs today. Odessa High is having their problems, but we had some kids who had a good game, Allen Chase and Paul Fuentes especially," said Benavidez, an OHS alumnus.

The Rebels return to play Saturday, when they travel to Abilene High for a 2 p.m. game.

Lakers defuse Rockets, spoil Olajuwon's return

Associated Press

HOUSTON — A.C. Green got 16 rebounds and scored 22 points, including a game-breaker with five seconds to play, helping Los Angeles win their fifth-straight game with a 107-101 victory over Houston.

The Rockets lost despite the return of Hakeem Olajuwon from a three-game suspension. It was their sixth-straight loss and they fell three games behind the Lakers in the race for the No. 8 and final Western Division playoff spot.

After the Rockets scored seven points, cutting Los Angeles' lead to 103-101, Green tipped in his final points with five seconds to go and Terry Teagle added two free throws with one second remaining.

Elden Campbell also scored 22 points for the Lakers.

Sonics 122, Jazz 103

SEATTLE — Gary Payton had 15 points, 13 assists and 10 rebounds and Dana Barros came off the bench for 18 points, leading the Seattle SuperSonics to a rout of the Utah Jazz.

Barros, the fourth-ranked 3-point shooter in the NBA, hit consecutive 3-pointers when the SuperSonics broke the game open in the fourth quarter.

NBA Roundup

Cavaliers 123, Heat 114

RICHFIELD, Ohio — The Cleveland Cavaliers, picking up where they left off against Miami in December, beat the Heat behind Brad Daugherty's 23 points and 14 rebounds.

Cleveland ended Miami's team-record four-game winning streak while winning for the 10th straight time at home. The Heat is 0-7 at Cleveland, including an NBA-record 68-point drubbing in its last visit in December.

The Cavaliers continued the beating in the first half as Daugherty exploited the absence of center Rony Seikaly, out because his hand was bruised when a car door was slammed on it Sunday.

Bulls 96, Knicks 90

NEW YORK — Michael Jordan scored 16 of his 36 points in the fourth quarter and combined with Scottie Pippen to defuse a 3-point shooting show by John Starks as the Chicago Bulls ended the New York Knicks' seven-game winning streak.

Starks scored 28 points with eight 3-point goals, breaking the Knicks' record of six held by Trent Tucker and Gerald Wilkins.

Clippers 97, Pistons 81

AUBURN HILLS, Mich. — Charles Smith scored 19 points and Danny Manning had 18 as the Los Angeles Clippers defeated the Detroit Pistons for their sixth straight victory.

The Clippers, seemingly bound for the playoffs for the first time in 16 seasons, swept the two-game season series from Detroit for the first time since 1979-80. They also won their 14th road game of the season, tying the franchise record set when the team played in San Diego in 1980-81.

Suns 128, Trail Blazers 111

PHOENIX — Jeff Hornacek scored 17 points and Kevin Johnson added 10 during a 44-point third quarter that boosted the Phoenix Suns to a 128-111 victory over the Portland Trail Blazers.

Hornacek finished with 34 points, while Johnson had 27 points and a season-high 20 assists.

Timberwolves 121, Nuggets 114,

DENVER — Minnesota snapped a 16-game losing streak as Sam Mitchell's 3-point basket put the Timberwolves ahead at 4:04 of overtime in a victory over the Denver Nuggets.

Denver rookie center Dikembe Mutombo sat out the game with a left thumb injury, and is expected to be out 10 games in all.

NJCAA: Items may be tabled

(From 1C)

director for the past five years, said he believes that either a compromise or a tabling of the items at the meeting will prevent passage of the proposals.

"I have assurance from the (NJCAA) president that they will table it," Speegle said.

Leigh Plarski, a physical education professor at St. Louis Community College, and president-elect of the NJCAA, could not be reached for comment.

Speegle said after the NJCAA became fully aware of the stringent eligibility requirements placed on Texas JUCO athletes, it was more receptive to a compromise, rather than forcing Texas colleges to abide by the new academic guidelines.

"The particular point we were concerned with is you couldn't count remedial courses for eligibility for sophomores," Speegle said. "We think it is particularly hard on Texas, and (the rule change) would make it more difficult on the student athlete."

Yell agrees with Speegle's assessment of the academic hardship that would be created, but was more to the point.

"The feeling in the state is that they (the NJCAA) are doing this to discriminate against Texas schools," Yell said. "Not just Texas, but any other states where you have remedial type courses.

"Some student athletes haven't had the opportunity to attend a quality high school, and they (the NJCAA) are going to overburden a student that's already deficient. If they don't advance out of the class, they're not going to get credit for it, and that's discriminatory to me."

Speegle remains optimistic after talking with Ms. Plarski.

"I'm hoping that they either don't do anything, or a compromise can be reached that will not hurt Texas," the OC president said.

Yell said if a break-off from the NJCAA ever did occur, three possible alliances have been discussed.

One would group Texas, New Mexico, Kansas, Oklahoma, Arkansas, Louisiana and Missouri; the second would consist of Texas, New Mexico and California, and the third would comprise Texas, California, Arkansas and New Mexico.

In a related development, Speegle said Texas JUCO presidents and athletic directors voted as a group to return to Waco for the 1992-93 Region V basketball tournament next March.

Speegle said, "Although there was a little dissatisfaction from a couple of coaches, the presidents are pretty happy with it. The group as a whole voted unanimously to go back to Waco."

SOCCER: MHS' Rodriguez chosen

(From 1C)

Tipton, a junior sweeper, helped guide a defense that posted a total of 10 shutouts, including a 2-0 victory over Burkburnett in the bi-district round of the playoffs. Silva started all 10 of the Lee shutouts, while Perkins chipped in the winning goal against Burkburnett.

Rodriguez helped MHS to an 8-8 overall mark. The Bulldogs were 6-6 in league play.

Prices climb

NEW YORK — Energy prices rose Tuesday, boosted in part by a United Nations vote to impose sanctions on Libya and by technical factors.

West Texas Intermediate for delivery in May settled at $19.44 per barrel, up 19 cents from Monday, on the New York Mercantile Exchange.

Local crude purchasers such as Navajo Refining and Texaco Trading and Transportation raised their posted price 25 cents to $18.25.

The weekly American Petroleum Institute report, released after the close of trading, showed that home heating oil demand has risen, apparently due to the recent cold weather.

Elsewhere, natural gas prices rose, with contracts for delivery in May settling at $1.357 per 1,000 cubic feet, up 2.5 cents.

At the New York Mercantile Exchange, lower-grade sour crude for delivery in May settled at $16.84 per barrel, up 19 cents.

RRC vote

AUSTIN — The Railroad Commission has scheduled an April 27 vote on major changes in the system for determining natural gas production limits.

Commissioner Lena Guerrero said four blue-ribbon committees have examined the rules over the past 17 years and the time now has come for the commission to make changes and work toward finding more markets for natural gas.

In general, the new rules would simplify the present system and base the amount of gas produced each month more closely to market demand.

Market holds

NEW YORK — Prices closed narrowly mixed on Wall Street Tuesday in a session marked by sharp swings in blue chip issues and little movement in other stocks.

The Dow Jones industrial average was up 0.23 at 3,235.47 after giving up more than 20 points in a selloff late in the afternoon.

Advancing issues outnumbered decliners by a margin of about 9 to 8 on the New York Stock Exchange.

Dollar mixed

NEW YORK — The dollar was mixed in moderate trading Tuesday, with analysts saying the latest batch of economic data wasn't enough to propel the greenback to new highs.

In Tokyo, the dollar rose 0.12 yen to a closing 133.05 yen.

In London, the British pound rose to $1.7365 from $1.7320 late Monday.

Gauges, consumer confidence rise

■ Increase is based mainly on expectations of the future, shows many consumers have lingering fears about employment.

Associated Press

WASHINGTON — The needle on the government's main economic barometer rose 0.8 percent in February, pointing toward a renewed revival but one that analysts agree will be weaker than normal.

Analysts said the second straight increase in the Commerce Department's Index of Leading Economic Indicators, released Tuesday, suggested the recovery was under way again after virtually stalling out late last year.

But they cautioned that the index also had risen in the first half of 1991 and could falter — as it did last year.

Analysts also were heartened by a report Tuesday that showed a large rebound in consumer confidence last month.

The Conference Board, a New York-based business organization, said its Consumer Confidence Index soared to 54 in March, up seven points from February and the biggest increase in a year.

Still, the increase was based mainly on expectations of the future and showed many consumers had lingering fears about employment and did not plan any surge in big-ticket purchases.

Consumer spending represents about two-thirds of the nation's economic activity and thus is vital to a continued recovery.

The Bush administration hailed the new reports as fresh evidence of a strengthening economy.

"The economy clearly has been improving since the start of the year," Michael Boskin, the chairman of the president's Council of Economic Advisers, said in a speech to the National Economists Club in Washington.

The Commerce Department report showed a broad-based increase in the leading indicators, with seven of the 11 forward-looking calculations pointing up.

The index had risen 1.0 percent in January. Taken together, the last two months represent the first back-to-back gains since a string of six advances that ended in July.

"But the increases are not of the typical post-recession size," said Robert G. Dederick, economist with the Northern Trust Co. in Chicago. "Typically, in a recovery, the leading indicators rise more rapidly than in the last two months."

Many analysts also contend the increases overstate the economy's strength.

"January and February probably were distorted by weather and other factors," said Larry Meyer, a St. Louis economic forecaster.

Economist Lawrence A. Hunter of the U.S. Chamber of Commerce concurred. "The euphoria over early 1992 data will be dashed in April and May, when seasonal adjustment factors will show some significant setbacks," he said. "The recovery will be very slow."

Indeed, the administration and most private analysts project the recovery will be only half as strong as others since World War II. Previous turnarounds averaged 6 percent growth in their first year.

Administration officials have urged the Federal Reserve to lower interest rates further to stimulate a stronger revival in a year that will culminate with a presidential election.

The Federal Open Market Committee, the central bank's monetary policy-making body, met privately Tuesday to map directions for the next several weeks. It will not announce its decisions until mid-May.

Because of recent improvements in much of the economy, however, most analysts expected the Fed to decide against any immediate change in interest rates. It has not acted to lower borrowing costs since Dec. 20.

Boskin said that last year's recovery was derailed because the Federal Reserve failed to keep the nation's money supply growing at adequate levels.

"The Fed has to stand ready to make sure we have sustainable money growth," Boskin said. "We don't want to have the problem we had last year."

The leading indicators showed that consumer confidence was beginning to improve in February. A measure of consumer expectations was one of the seven components contributing to the increase in the index.

Other positive indicators were a longer average workweek, a growing monetary supply, an increase in building permits, rising prices for raw materials, rising orders for consumer goods and slower delivery times, which indicated increased orders.

The four negative contributors were fewer unfilled factory orders, falling stock prices, a decrease in orders for new plants and equipment and rising first-time claims for unemployment insurance.

Laz Financial sets Sterling, Faco merger

■ Oil and gas producer receives secured line of credit, to drill as many as 600 wells under program.

Staff Report

Laz Financial Corp., a former Midland company, has arranged for the merger between Faco Energy Inc., a private Texas oil and gas producer, and Sterling Investments Ltd., a public company.

Laz Financial, formerly Natura Energy of Midland, is a shareholder in Faco, and will receive common stock in Sterling equal to 13.7 percent of the total post-transaction outstanding shares of Sterlng and a $500,000 fee for arranging the merger at the closing today.

Faco received a $250,000 secured line of credit for a subsidiary from Laz and a $9,487,500 drilling fund was arranged through Penrod Oil Co. of Denver, for drilling on leases in Milam County, Texas. Drilling started under the program on March 22 and will continue throughout the year.

Faco will be drilling as many as 600 wells under the program. The first well was completed on March 24 and initial production was 144 barrels per day. The well was drilled to a depth of 800 feet and is producing out of the Olmos Sand formation. The lease covered by the drilling program covers 3,500 acres, with the 600 wells covering approximately 1,500 acres of the total lease.

Faco Energy Inc. is headquartered in Somerset, Texas, and operated 536 of its own wells and 250 wells for other producers. Faco, through its subsidary REO, has offices in Rockdale, Milam County, and employs approximately 40 people.

Laz Financial Corp., formed from the corporate shell of Natura Energy Corp., was purchased from Chapter 11 in 1991 and renamed. The company recently moved its offices from Midland to Dallas and now has five full-time employees. Laz will continue to arrange mergers between public and private companies, and has formed a subsidiary to manage entertainment-type clubs and restaurants.

First discloses holding-company sale details

HOUSTON (AP) — First City Bancorporation of Texas said today it expects to reach an agreement in April to sell the bank holding company.

The Houston-based company said the deal should not require a cash infusion from the Federal Deposit and Insurance Corp., but the FDIC would cap any loss by the acquirer.

However, First City spokesman James Day said the company does not expect the buyer to suffer any loss.

The potential deal would be structured as a so-called "open-bank transaction," meaning the bank would be sold as a going concern.

First City said in a statement that several potential buyers are in the process of reviewing the bank's books. Day would not release the names of the companies.

"First City management anticipates that any agreement for a transaction resulting from such efforts would be entered into during April," a First City statement said today.

The company's plans also were discussed in a 10-K filing Monday.

"What we're saying is it (a sale) should not require any cash infusion by the FDIC," Day said. "For the acquirer, the FDIC would cap their losses, but they shouldn't lose anything."

"We don't anticipate that this will cost the FDIC anything," he said.

First City lost $224.8 million in 1991, compared with a $158.3 million loss in 1990.

The bank said today it anticipated a first quarter and that losses probably will continue until some sort of transaction is completes.

First City said without a capital transaction, the company's independent public accountants believe that "substantial doubt exists as to the ability of First City to continue as a going concern."

Fender Group buys two shopping centers

By Mella McEwen

The FENDER INVESTMENT GROUP has purchased two Midland shopping centers.

The purchase of B&J Plaza at 206 N. Midkiff Road and Fairmont Park at 3323 N. Midland Drive marks the company's first venture into the retail area, according to Kevin Fender, who adds the centers were bought from out-of-town owners.

He said he is "aggressively seeking tenants" for the two centers.

MIDLAND PARK MALL will welcome the Easter Bunny Saturday with a special breakfast at the mall.

The Midland Northside Lions will help greet the Easter Bunny with a special sausage-and-biscuit breakfast from 8 to 10 a.m. in the Food Court. Cost is $1 per person. Proceeds will help fund the club's charitable activities.

There will be a small parade after the breakfast accompanying the Easter Bunny to his home in Center Court.

The Easter Bunny will then hold court until Easter and children of all ages can have a picture taken with him.

The mall also is hosting the PAINT DAUBERS arts and crafts show this weekend. The show opens Friday and ends Sunday.

On the move is THE BARGAIN BARN, which is opening its doors today in its new location at 2420 W. Front St.

Owner Judy Jackson, said Bargain Barn "is a consignment store. I carry quality clothing, furniture, household goods and decorative items." She said the new location will let her add antiques and American collectibles to her inventory.

The store was formerly located at 702 S. Main St.

Also on the move is MR. KEY, which is now located at 2507 W. Illinois Ave.

The locksmith was previously located at 406 Kent St.

TERRY'S TRAILERS is now-open in its new location at 1403 Garden City Highway. The 4-year-old company had been located at 1310 Rankin Highway.

Owner Terry Johnson said the move will allow him to expand his business to include horse and stock trailers, enclosed cargo vans and a full line of parts.

Terry's Trailers sells utility and equipment trailers and also does a heavy business in rentals, which Johnson said he hopes will continue on a larger scale.

Hours are from 8 a.m. to 6 p.m. Monday through Friday, 8 a.m. to 3 p.m. Saturdays.

Officer says he feared for his life while beating motorist

SIMI VALLEY, Calif. (AP) — A policeman accused of striking the most blows against Rodney King defended himself on the witness stand Tuesday, saying, "I was completely in fear for my life."

Laurence Powell, 29, the youngest of four Los Angeles police officers charged with assault in the videotaped beating, told jurors he had been attacked by King and thought the motorist was under the influence of the hallucinogenic drug PCP.

"He had very powerful arms. This was a big man," said Powell.

He said he tried to handcuff King only to be thrown off his back.

"I was completely in fear for my life, scared to death that if the guy got up again he was going to take my gun and there would be a shooting and I did everything I could to keep him down on the ground," said Powell.

At his lawyer's direction, Powell lay down on the courtroom floor to demonstrate the position King was in when he tried to rise again. At another point he demonstrated King's groan when hit with a stun gun and his laugh when he first got out of his car to face officers.

In nearly three hours of questioning by his attorney, Michael Stone, Powell defended his behavior as following police training and answered accusations of other witnesses by suggesting they were wrong.

King, who is black, was beaten by four white officers on March 3, 1991, after a traffic stop. A videotape made by a nearby resident was broadcast repeatedly on television, heightening racial tensions in Los Angeles and igniting a nationwide furor over police brutality.

Before going out on patrol the night King was beaten, Powell said, he was tutored to use his baton "with all the force you can muster to break the bone."

He said he did not laugh after the beating, but merely was breathless from exertion. An audio tape of Powell calling for an ambulance contains hard breathing and laughter.

"I was absolutely exhausted, fatigued, at the end of my energy," Powell said. "I was trying to catch my breath. I was hyperventilating."

"Were you laughing?" asked the lawyer.

"No," said Powell.

"Did you think anything was funny?" asked the lawyer.

"No," said Powell. "I was breathing very heavy trying to catch my breath."

He conceded he used the words "numerous head wounds" to describe the injuries but said that was because he saw blood on King's face.

On trial with Powell are Sgt. Stacey Koon, 41, and Officers Theodore Briseno, 39, and Timothy Wind, 31.

Audit reveals woes in House Post Office

WASHINGTON (AP) — A surprise audit of the troubled House Post Office last week found an unlocked vault stacked with $100 money orders, personal and public money mixed together and employees ill-equipped to handle stamps and cash.

The preliminary findings of the General Accounting Office audit, an account of which was obtained by The Associated Press, also said there were money shortages and a House member's $580 expense account with an unexplained "Do not process" note attached.

No written findings were issued, but key House officials were briefed by the GAO Monday. The AP obtained the results from the detailed written notes of a staff member who attended the session. A second congressional source confirmed the findings.

Mismanagement at the House mail faciiity has become a major embarrassment for the House Democratic leadership, along with bad checks written at the chamber's former bank.

Three former post office employees have pleaded guilty to embezzlement and a fourth — who has admitted selling drugs — is awaiting trial on an embezzlement charge.

There have been published allegations of illegal loans using postal funds, and separate investigations are under way by a federal grand jury and the House Administration Committee.

A House source, speaking only on condition of anonymity, said 16 GAO employees conducted the new audit, with the assistance of a half-dozen Capitol Police officers.

The auditors, according to the notes, found that errors were common in daily sales reports and there were money shortages at stamp counters. The notes said the unlocked vault, with the keys in the lock, had stacks of $100 money orders that may have totaled as much as $75,000.

A chief clerk at one branch resigned last Friday, and duplicate keys could not be found to the worker's cash and stamp drawer.

The surprise audit was ordered by House Clerk Donnald K. Anderson, who was asked by Speaker Thomas S. Foley to take control of the post office pending the naming of a new postmaster.

Late in the day Foley, D-Wash., formally swore in Michael J. Shinay as a replacement for Robert V. Rota, who resigned.

USS Missouri put in storage

LONG BEACH, Calif. (AP) — Taps were sounded and Old Glory brought down and veterans of three wars paid tribute Tuesday to "Mighty Mo," the USS Missouri, as America's last active battleship was retired.

The ship where Japan formally surrendered in 1945, and which pounded Iraqi forces with one-ton shells during the Persian Gulf War was decommissioned because of defense cuts and a diminished Soviet threat.

Rep. Ike Skelton, D-Mo., spoke from the deck. He warned that too much disarmament was dangerous, and expressed regret that the Navy didn't ask for the money to keep the ship battle-ready.

"Those who would slash our military even further than the planned 25 percent reduction ... lack an understanding of history's lessons," said Skelton, a member of the House Armed Services Committee.

"Time and time again, in this century we have followed the dangerous and costly path of demobilization, disarmament, and unpreparedness, only to regret that course of action a few short years later," he said.

Threatening skies cleared for the ceremony at the Long Beach Naval Station. Hundreds of Missouri seamen and veterans of World War II and the Korean and Persian Gulf wars stood at attention as a cannon fired 19 shots.

Red, white and blue bunting draped the battleship's rails. A yellow Operation Desert Storm flag flew high above.

Its 16-inch guns were capped and hatches shut, ready for storage.

The ship's captain, Cmdr. Albert L. Kaiss, thanked the crew. "Stand tall and always be proud," he advised them.

Kaiss, who also retired Tuesday, read the formal decommissioning order and ordered the ship's pennant lowered. The ship chaplain read a benediction, and Kaiss ordered the colors hauled down. The American flag was lowered, taps sounded, and the crew marched off.

The Missouri was the last of four Iowa-class battleships mothballed by Pentagon cuts.

NIE Midland Reporter-Telegram NEWSPAPER IN EDUCATION

Throughout the week we use the newspaper in various ways. The newspaper lends itself to many curriculum areas. For example we are studying maps in Social Studies. The students look for maps in the paper. We then look for cities mentioned in the paper and find them on our large maps. We also look for neighboring states and cities to expand their outlook of the world.

My students have become so familiar with the newspaper that during their free time I quite often see them reading the paper.

Thank you Steel-Co Investment Company, Inc. for making this year challenging and rewarding for my students.

NASA wants asteroid scan

N.Y. Times News Service

A NASA team called Tuesday for an international effort to save Earth from killer asteroids.

In the plan, ground-based telescopes would scan the heavens to warn of impending danger as work began on interceptors that would deflect a doomsday rock headed for the planet.

The team, which studied the issue at the request of Congress, called the odds of a major collision in the next century "extremely small."

But it added that asteroid impacts posed "a significant hazard to life and property" and called for an international effort "to provide insurance for our planet against the ultimate catastrophe."

It gave no cost estimates for the endeavor but said that if construction began soon, a worldwide network of warning telescopes could be operating by 1997.

Asteroids are the rubble of creation, hurtling through the solar system on courses that sometimes cross Earth's path. The field of asteroid avoidance, once considered laughably paranoid, has grown in size and respectability in the last decade.

A killer asteroid is now seen as one large enough to severely disrupt life on impact, scattering enough pulverized rock and dust to block most of the Sun's light.

Agriculture would virtually end, and civilization could wither and die, just as the dinosaurs and many other forms of life are thought by some experts to have been annihilated by the effects of a massive object from space 65 million years ago.

Sci-Fi Channel set

NEW YORK (AP) — Dr. Who, Luke Skywalker and Capt. James T. Kirk will be appearing on the Sci-Fi Channel, a 24-hour cable TV service starting this fall and devoted to science fiction, horror and fantasy, executives said Tuesday.

The Sci-Fi Channel will be a mix of movies, "classic" TV series and animation aimed at 12- to 34-year-olds as well as hard-core fans, said Kay Koplovitz, president of cable's USA Network.

"I hope that we will be able to meet the expectations of these fans and their constituencies," she said.

USA Network, a basic cable service in 58 million households nationwide, expects the new channel to have 10 million households in more than 100 affiliate systems for its fall start.

"The average postal employee gets $41,588 a year in wages and benefits..." THE WALL STREET JOURNAL (March, 1990)

Excellent benefits, job security and salary! Hiring is based on your exam score and competition is keen. You will be given difficult tests and you will need to score 95% or better to be hired the quickest. Candidates with the highest scores are hired first. This exam is only given about every three years, so don't miss this opportunity!

SCORE 95-100% OR YOUR MONEY REFUNDED
3 1/2-HOUR EXAM WORKSHOP
ATTENDED BY THOUSANDS, CAREER SEMINARS' POSTAL WORKSHOP IS THE MOST COMPREHENSIVE AND EASIEST WAY TO PREPARE.

You will be trained by a certified Postal Exam instructor and you won't find better materials, a better workshop or a better guarantee anywhere. Training includes: exam preparation manuals, home-study program, practice tests, secrets from actual postal exams, dozens of test taking strategies, essential problem solving skills, plus much more.

GUARANTEE: IF AT THE END OF THE WORKSHOP YOU DON'T FEEL YOUR SCORE WILL IMPROVE OR IF YOU DO NOT SCORE 95-100% ON THE ACTUAL POSTAL EXAM, YOUR MONEY WILL BE REFUNDED.

TUITION IS $59 for the workshop, all materials and guaranteed high score, Bring two #2 pencils.
