Election of Charles Evans Hughes to Post Gives Nation Another Year's Participation.

(By Associated Press)

GENEVA, Switzerland, Sept 8. Assurance the United States would be represented on the world court for another two years at least was given today when the League Council unanimously and the assembly 41 to 7, elected Former Secretary of State Charles Evans Hughes to fill the unexpired term of John Bassett Moore, resigned.

The council and assembly conducted the balloting independently of each other.

Sir Eric Drummond, Secretary-General of the League of Nations, immediately dispatched a telegram to Mr. Hughes in Italy, where he is on vacation. The message was sent through the American Ambassador to Italy, Henry P. Fletcher.

Hope to Re-awaken Interest.

In the election hopes were voiced informally that the choice of Mr. Hughes would reawaken interest in the United States regarding the question of American adherence at the World Court.

There was also discussion of Guseppe Motta's (Swiss) resolution designed to remove the chief stumbling block in the way of American participation. The resolution provides the League should ask the court for a ruling on the question whether a unanimous vote of the council is required to obtain an advisory opinion or whether this action can be taken by simple Instead, however, of going straight to the campus, Walter headed for Oakdale, Long Island, where the college football squad will train. He is after a berth on the team.

Citizens to Vote On $350,000 Bond Issue On Sept. 24

Reaction Throughout City Favors Passing of Issue Survey Shows; Officials Urge Heavy Turnout.

Lubbock civic pride in the rapid growth of the city will be tested September 24 as the voters of the city decide at the polls on the proposed bonds of $350,000 which include the financing of one of the most varied and important development programs ever to be presented to the city.

Meet City's Needs

The purpose of the bonds are to meet the natural needs created by the increase of the city. Officials of the city urge Lubbock citizens to turn out and cast a heavy vote in the bond election. Other than securing the much needed improvements members of the city commission hope that Lubbockites will give the body a vote of confidence in the large expansion and development program of the city.

Passage of the bond election will mean financing of the city's part in the proposed subways under the Santa Fe tracks on Broadway and Avenue H, improvements and addition to the city's sewer and water lines, additional paving of alleys and streets, and the additional street lights.

Boll Weevils Said To Be General And Severe

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON, Sept. 8.—Forecasting a cotton crop of 14,439,000 bales, 148,000 more than the estimate a month ago, the department of agriculture today placed the condition of the crop at 60.3 per cent of normal, well above the 10-year September 1 average of 57.1 per cent.

Gain In Lint.

The indicated yield is for 183.9 pounds of lint cotton per acre, the department reported, which is a slight gain over its report as of August 1, of 152.2 pounds, but below last year's yield of 154.5 pounds and the 10-year average of 156.3 pounds.

Except for Louisiana, the department noted improved conditions in the central portion of the cotton belt but along portions of the Atlantic coast "there has been too much rain" and in Western Oklahoma the crop has deteriorated as a result of drought.

Infestation Is General.

"The weevil infestation is quite general and severe in most of the belt. In practically the entire coastal plains area and well up into the piermont they have punctured a large proportion of the small bolls, so that in these regions little can be expected beyond the moderate crop of practically mature bolls already set."

Omnious Silence Rules In Gangland Following Murder

Police Have Many Theories For Assassination of Lombardo, Capone's Man; Capone Is Hunted.

(By Associated Press)

CHICAGO, Sept. 8.—The ominous silence of gangland—aftermath of gang executions—tonight hid the direct motive for the slaying yesterday a block from "the world's busiest corner" of Tony Lombardo, gang leader and right hand man of "Scarface Al." Capone, notorius Chicago gangster.

The police had half a dozen theories, any one of which might account for the slaying of Lombardo as he walked through crowds in West Madison street, and the wounding of one of two bodyguards

Seek "Tough Tony"

The most plausible theory was that Lombardo was killed by hirelings of the powerful Aiello gang, rivals of Capone and Lombardo for the north side liquor business as well as for supremacy in Italian organizations. Anthony "Tough Tony" Calafiore, a member of the Aiello ring, was sought in belief he was one of the killers.

The other theory most often considered was that Lombardo's death was in revenge for the mysterious slying two months ago of Frankie Uale, Brooklyn gangster with whose

EL PASO, Sept. 8.—A new leader, Theodore W. Kenyon of Boston, in a Challenger plane, forged to the front today when the first of the Class A transcontinental air racers checked into El Paso for the night. Kenyon, eighth to hop off at Fort Worth this morning, landed at 12:25 p. m., Mountain time.

Second to roar across the line at El Paso's New municipal airport, dedicated by the racers today, was W. N. Emery, Jr., Bradford, Pa., 10 seconds behind Kenyon. Robert Drake, Pittsburgh, in the lead into Midland and Pecos, came in third, landing at 12:29, p. m.

Staging a neck and neck race across Texas, Drake nosed out Earl Rowland of Wichita, Kan., who had led the Class A fliers from the start, and came in first at Midland and Pecos, the second and third stops of the day. Rowland had held his lead into Abilene, the first stop, but his Cessna A monoplane developed engine trouble after that and he dropped behind. He was fourth into El Paso, landing at 12:33 p m.

Dohoney Issues Call for Records On Eve of Tech Pre-Opening Rush

With indications pointing toward the largest initial enrollment that the school has experienced, Registrar E. L. Dohoney, of the Tech, yesterday issued a request asking for the records of all students now residing in Lubbock who are planning to enter the Tech for the first time. The records should be mailed or brought to the office by September 15, he said, so that congestion and delay may be avoided in the pre-opening rush which is expected in the office after next week.

A rush to enter records in the office is certain to come, Mr. Dohoney predicts, judging from the experience of the past three years. More than 400 records of high school graduates and college transfers entering Tech for the first time have already been received in the office, it was learned.

A majority of the 1928 class of Lubbock high school are expected to enroll in the college this fall. Only a small number of the records of these students have been received at the office, Registrar Dohoney reported. The class was composed of 332 students.

A large number of graduates from high schools other than Lubbock have moved into the city during the past few weeks, Mr. Dohoney said. Their records are wanted along with the others, he said.

Officials of the college are making no predictions as to nerollment this year, but practically every one approached yesterday voiced optimism at the prospects. Between 800 and 1,000 of the old students are expected to return this year, it was said.

Youth's Death Is Aftermath of Beer Party In Dallas

Hugh Martin, 24, Is Slain By Bullet From Gun Of Clarence Carter; Was Interfering In Quarrel.

(By Associated Press)

DALLAS, Sept. 8.—Dallas' third downtown slaying within a week brought quick action today when the grand jury in special session, indicted Clarence Carter, 23, for murder two hours after he had been charged in the slaying of Hugh Martin, jr., 24, shot to death in a street affray shortly after midnight.

Laws Ordered to "Clamp Down"

Incensed at the growing display of lawlessness, district attorney, McCraw, ordered city authorities to "clamp down" on every form of law breaker or give up their jobs. He reclared any one found carrying a pistol would be prosecuted.

Martin was shot once through the heart and killed almost instantly after he was alleged to have inflicted knife wounds on Carter, treated before being taken before the grand jury.

Six Are Witnesses

Three other men and three women held as witnesses testified before the grand jury the slaying was the aftermath of a beer party. They said that the trouble arose when Carter attempted to intervene in a quarrel between Martin and his wife.

"He was slapping her." Carter told officers, "and someone told me to stop him. When I tried to interfere he pulled his knife and started cutting me. Someone handed me a gun and I fired it once, more to scare him than anything else."

Is Thrown From Car

Although the bullet wound probably would have been fatal Martin was further injured during a frantic attempt to take him to a hospital. A member of the party rushing Martin to the hospital in his automobile swerved the machine suddenly to avoid another car and the wounded man was thrown over the door and to the pavement. An ambulance was called at this point, but Martin was dead when physicians examined him.

Veteran Manager Receives Great Ovation From The Crowd In Boston After Taking Both Games.

BOSTON, Sept. 8. (AP)—After fourteen years of effort, half of it in the nethermost depths of the American league, the silver pate of the Grand Old Man was bobbing along tonight in front of all the rest. Connie Mack, the master manager—when he had Bender and Combs and Plank—was on his way once more, moving with sure-footed stride along the broad highroad that leads toward the land of pennant gold.

The dean of all the master minds drew up alongside Miller Huggins in the shadows of last evening. For a day they marched upon even terms, but this afternoon the ancient Connie succeeded in pulling away—just half stride, it is true, but nevertheless away.

The Athletics wouldn't be beaten and they couldn't be beaten. They flashed their most ferocious warspirit to pull out the first game by a score of 7 to 6 in ten innings, and then won rather peacably in the second by 7 to 4.

The Red Sox put their best foot forward in a vain effort to stay the rush of the Mackmen, but the ringing cheers of 25,000 Bostonese told Connie the home folks were glad the Sox had failed. The veteran manager was the objective of an ovation as he led his men away after the second game to make ready for a double charge upon the citadel of the Yankees on the Harlem tomorrow.

Ruth's Homer Wins For Yankees, 6 to 3

NEW YORK, Sept. 8. (AP)—The blow fell this afternoon just as many had expected. The Athletics proved it really is possible finally to shave fourteen games from a lead of thirteen and one-half between the comparatively close dates of July 1 and September 8—69 days on the calendar.

The Yankees did all they could, at this eleventh hour, to prevent it by winning their final game from Washington by 6 to 3, but since they could play only one while the Athletics romped in two, the champions of the baseball world had to stand by and see themselves succeeded, for the moment at least. The double Philadelphia victory over the Red Sox broke a previously existing tie and relegated the Yanks to second place.

The champions were lifted from the cut by Babe Ruth's forty eighth home run, hit off Garland Braxton, in the seventh with two men on. But for this resurgence of life in the King of Swat, Henry Johnson's fine pitching might have been wasted.

Big and strong, Underhill, then a youngster, did stellar work on the hill for the Hubbers, being largely responsible for the Lubbock team's victory in the Panhandle baseball tournament, at Amarillo, and the Denver Post's national tourney in Denver.

Big Games Carded For Early October Will Attract Fans

S. M. U. Will Meet Army Team On Oct. 6 and Texas Ags Will Clash With Sewanee On Same Date.

BY ALLAN CARNEY
Avalanche-Journal Sports Editor

Two intersectional games of unusual interest are to be played as early as October 6 this year. Two southwestern conference teams will meet out-of-state teams in what promises to be outstanding games of widespread interest. Texas A. and M. will meet Sewanee on that date and Southern Methodist university will make the long trip to West Point to clash with the Army eleven.

With only two exceptions, the Southwestern conference teams have always made favorable impressions in their important intersectional clashes. Baylor lost prestige for the conference in 1922 when the Bears went to Boston and again in 1925 when the same college played in Indiana. Since that time, the game in this conference has been improved and its national prestige has risen considerably.

Last year was the greatest year for the conference from that point of view. S. M. U. smothered the highly touted Missouri University Tiger eleven by a one-sided score to gain nation-wide recognition. Stars of the conference who took part in the East-West football clash were the outstanding performers in this game and were given high praise by sport scribes the nation over. A half-dozen or more were given all-American mention. Of these, Jerry Mann, of S. M. U., Joel Hunt of Texas A. and M. and Rags Mathews, of T. C. U. received a number of votes for the first team.

Ponies Have Chance

Although the Ponies have no Geraly Mann on their squad, one syndicate writer in doping the game between S. M. U. and Army predicts a 7-6 victory for the Cadets. If the Mustangs can come this close there's no reason why they shouldn't win, but they will be handicapped in more ways than one.

The annual game between the Aggies and Sewanee comes a bit earlier this year, but as usual it is the third game for the Farmers. Dopsters are giving the Purple an edge this season, but a football team is never sure of a win over a fighting Aggie machine coached by Dana X Bible.

On the following Saturday, October 13, two more intersectional games of interest will be played. The game between the Texas Longhorns and Vanderbilt Commodores, promises to be one of the hardest played contests of the year. The Longhorns, with prospects of a powerful team, will meet an eleven which has already been hailed as the best team in the south. The Commodores are coming to Austin with blood in their eyes to get revenge on the Steers for past reverses. Last year, the Texas team defeated Dan McGugin's gridsters, in the first five minutes of play. The history of the relations of the two schools, however, gives Vandy the advantage, the Commodores having won four to two for the Longhorns.

Eighteen Letter Gridsters Make Up Nearly Half of Forty Aspirants To Matador Honors; Hard Grind Is Plan

Equipment Will Be Passed Out At 8 o'Clock; First Workout Starts Just One Hour Later.

The eyes of all West Texas will be turned toward Lubbock tomorrow when the curtain rises on the 1928 Tech football season and the Matadors don the moleskins for the opening of the Freeland-Payne training camp. Forty veterans are expected to report when equipment is issued at 8 o'clock tomorrow morning. The Bull Fighters will take the field for the first workout at 9 o'clock.

Led by Captain "Handsome Ransome" Walker, eighteen lettermen will be among those present when the football togs are given out. Of this number, four will be playing their last year under the Scarlet and Black. These are: "Ox" Reed, guard; Red Carpenter, tackle; Westy Westerfelt, tackle; and Floyd Woolridge, half and quarter. The remaining letter men who will begin training are: Volney Hill, full; Chubby Dewitt, guard; Red Smith, guard; Dennis Vinsant, end; Vaughn Corley, center; Tubby Vermillion, tackle; Doc Barfoot, end; Jess Lockhart, end; Dude Lassiter, quarter; Levi Walker, half; Elect Archibald, half and Sid Knowles, tackle.

WALKER

Others May Make Team

Members of former Matador squads who are expected to be prominent contenders will also be on hand for the first party. These are Jake Alexander, half; Jack Camp, center; Red Castleberry, tackle; Glenn Coppage, end; Webb Burns, guard; Bill MacWilliams, center; Clifford Braley, tackle; Julius Bergfelt, full; R. C. Pickett, half; Doug Smythe, quarter; J. H. Tadlock, end; Prentiss Vliet, guard; J. D. Waller, quarter; Frank Emison, half; James Dallas, half; James Kerr, guard; Leon Fisher, half; Amaral Payne, end and Parker, guard.

The coaching staff headed by Ewing Freeland and Victor Payne, will remain intact, Freeland will again give the greater part of his time to the development of the forward wall, while Payne will concentrate his efforts on the backfield. Capt. Ingerton will be assisted by Payne in keeping the football men in condition.

Work On Quarters

Work has started on permanent training quarters for the Matadors. A space now occupied by lockers in the gymnasium will be equipped with surfaced tables and other equipment. Nothing will be spared to make a first class training room to take care of sore muscles and other ailments.

The new equipment on hand has many new and interesting features. A new collegiate weight Cantilever shoulder pad will be furnished each candidate for the varsity team. An extra support under the leather cover will absorb a great deal of the shock and give the wearer ample protection. The sweat shirts of pepper and salt colors are especially classy with "Tech" stencilled on the front. The backfield will be equipped with black helmits and the line with tan. The backfield helmits are the D. X. Bible make.

For the first two weeks, beginning tonite the Matadors will eat food prescribed by the coaches at the home of Mrs. Vernon Brown on 14th street. A diet consisting of broiled meats and vegetables will be furnished the men during the training period. The training table will probably be continued after this time.

Many Stars Lost To A. C. C. Squad

Coach "Buga" Morris Faces Tough Task of Building New Team With Few Letter Men Returned.

(Special To The Avalanche-Journal)

ABILENE, Sept. 8.—The 1928 football prospects for Abilene Christian college are not considered so good by Coach A. B. "Buga" Morris, who faces the task of filling the shoes of many mainstays of last year's team. Some were lost by graduation, some by marriage and others are touring the world.

The number of varsity veterans will be unusually small when Coach Morris holds the first practice session Monday. Of the 35 expected out, most of the squad will be new material. Captain Bullock, Sanders, Wortham and Hendrick, last year's letter men, have been doing preliminary training along with Hart, Watson, L. Hill, Powell, Wells, Jordon and Reese, new men. This work is preparatory to official opening of the season's practice Monday.

14,689 VISIT CAVE

Great Increase Is Seen In Carlsbad Visitors

CARLSBAD, N. M., Sept. 8. (AP) During August 14,688 visitors passed through Carlsbad Cavern, says a report by Thomas Boles, superintendent of the Cavern. This belongs the figures for the eight months of 1928 to 39,389. August alone was more than the total of the years of 1925 and 1926, when 14,194 visited the caves.

The total for the eight months of last year, including August was 21,924.

The National Park Service ascribes the large attendance to publicity which followed the visit here on August 7, of Governor Moody of Texas, Governor Dillon of New Mexico and other officials of two states at the district convention of the West Texas Chamber of Commerce.

Westerners Prepare For First Practice Game Friday

Grid Coaches Of District Begin Training For Close Race In Class B

Hi-School Squad Ready to Plunge Into Stiff Work

Sixty Candidates Working Hard for Positions Will Settle Down to Serious Conditioning Monday.

After a week's preliminary training, the Lubbock High grid squad is in readiness for the real training grind starting next week. Although handicapped by numerous interruptions during the week, the players have rounded into condition at a rapid rate. Coach Henry Frnka reports that the men will be ready for scrimmage by the latter part of this week.

For the most part, the past week has been taken with strictly preliminary training. Calisthenics, running, passing, kicking and handling the ball have each been given due time. The boys have also been drilled on several new plays, and the practice session Saturday morning indicated that the Westerners are getting their optics tuned to precision on the fast plays.

The squad has grown from the 35 men who reported on the first day to more than 60 candidates for positions on the team. This added number has increased competition and improved the spirit of the squad as a whole. A number of aspirants who failed to make the trip to Two Draw are showing promise. The presence of these new players has made it necessary to drill extensively on the plays used at the training camp.

Grer Frizzell, tackle and letterman from last year's squad, who was unable to accompany the team to the Garza county camp, has reported for practice and is rounding into form along with the rest of the squad. Robert Rich, end, is another new addition to the squad.

Coaches Frnka and Morgan plan to continue drilling the candidates on passing, punting and handling the pigskin for the first three or four days of the coming week, and by Friday hope to have the squad in condition for the first practice game. This will give the mentors a chance to determine the relative strength of the gridsters and see their performance under fire.

Two practice games have been added to the Westerner's schedule. Lamesa will come here Sept. 28 following the first game here with Post on the 21st. The Westerners go to Slaton Oct. 12, following the visit here with Quanah.

the 13th. Both teams were undefeated in 1927 and Centenary will have the same team this year. The Gentlemen will be much stronger this year and the Farmers will be hard put to win this fray.

The first conference game of the season will be played on the same date when Baylor and Arkansas meet at the half-way mark, Texarkana, for the opening clash. A special train will carry the Baylor fans to the game.

The interest in the Baylor-Centenary game on October 20, at Shreveport, hinges on the outcome of the Texas A. and M.-Centenary contest. If the Gentlemen win from the Aggies, the stadium in Shreveport won't be large enough to hold the crowd, while on the other hand, if the Farmers defeat the Centenary team, the interest will be lacking among the fans in the Louisiana city.

Then The Conference

The Centenary-Baylor game is the last intersectional clash of the year. After that, the Southwest conference teams will do little besides preparing for the conference grind. Texas asks the advantage of playing both S. M. U. and the Texas Aggies in Austin. Nevertheless, the Longhorns have a heavy schedule ahead of them. After the Vanderbilt game on October 13, the Longhorn team will take on Arkansas, Rice, S. M. U., Baylor, T. C. U. and A. and M., in rotation.

All Southwestern teams will begin practice on Monday, September 10.

Considering the strong opinons he always has expressed on the amateur question and the action he took in quitting the Olympic committee because Charley Paddock was allowed to go to Amsterdam with the Olympic team, it is quite surprising to read a recent quotation from George W. Wrightman, president of the Boston A. A. and former president of the United States Lawn Tennis Association.

In discussing the futility of trying to promote or encourage professional tennis in this country, he was good as saying: "A good amateur tennis player can make from $15,000 to $20,000 a year. The best a professional can command is about $5000 a year."

Wightman is the husband of the former Hazel Hotchkiss, one of the most brilliant players of her time. A syndicate some time ago made her a very nice offer to write on tennis subjects, but her husband refused to permit her to accept, although she would have been within the strictest definition of an amateur in so doing.

WHAT IS COMING NEXT?

The girls and ladies in the recent national tennis championship at Forest Hills caused considerable comment by appearing on the courts without stockings. Instead they had short socks turned down over the shoe tops in the fashion of boxers.

Helen Wills, however, appeared in the full regulation attire, and so did the English and Canadian entries.

Mrs. May Sutton Bundy played neutral by wearing a stocking on one leg and a sock on the other. But it was Mrs. Bundy who started the fad of no stockings in California.

The fellows who make silk stockings probably will have to spend a little money on lobby work now. By passing out two or three dozen pairs of swell hose to the style setters they might be able to stop the fad.

It is well known that some of the highest ranking girl players are outfitted by Parisian modists who consider it good advertising to have certain stars known as their patrons.

During the summer one of the swell dressmakers in Paris quarreled with Helen Wills because she would not appear in a new style tennis dress that would cost more than the plain garment she has made a vogue.

NEVER CAN TELL

With a lot of dough at his disposal to rebuild the Boston Braves, Rogers Hornsby probably will do a lot of buying and trading this winter. Among the deals he expects to make is one with the Cardinals for Tommy Thevenow.

Hornsby likes Thevenow, and he ought to know what kind of a ball player he is, but some observers, rating Eddie Farrell as a good ball player, wonder why Hornsby prefers Thevenow and his bad legs.

The reason, perhaps, is that when Hornsby and Farrell were with the Giants the Rajah made known in no uncertain manner that he considered Eddie only a very ordinary ball player, and he was partly responsible for having him traded to Boston. He didn't know at the time that he would be back on the same ball club with him soon.

Junior High Grid Starts Tomorrow

Forty Candidates Expected Out for Second String Team: Several Games Are Scheduled.

Coaches Mule Davis and George Brown will issue equipment to the Junior High gridsters tomorrow afternoon prior to the first practice session for the second string candidates. The Juniors have spent several days of light practice but the official training under the direction of the coaches starts Monday.

Forty candidates are expected out for the Junior High eleven which plays the second string teams of the district. A number of games have been matched and others are being arranged, according to Henry Frnka. Games with Brownfield and Levelland have already been scheduled and tentative arrangements for games with Lamesa, Slaton and Idalou are under way. The Levelland second string team comes here Oct. 5 to play the Juniors and on Nov. 9 the local team will meet Marlin Hayhurst's Juniors at Brownfield.

Coach Bill Stevens Whips Team Into Condition

(Special To The Avalanche-Journal)

BIG SPRING, Sept. 8.—The Big Spring High School football squad is training for the coming football season at Two Draw near Post. Coach Stevens reports the squad rounding into shape rapidly and losing most of the usual soreness accompanying early training.

The Steers are being put through two hard practice periods each day, preparing for the still schedule ahead. The first game will be played September 28, when the Steers met Brownfield.

Paul Waner Leads Hornsby In Swat Honors By 4 Points

Pittsburgh Slugger Achieves Goal Before Him All Year By Forging Ahead Boston Manager-Player.

NEW YORK, Sept. 8. (AP)—Paul Waner achieved a goal before him all season, by stepping ahead of Rogers Hornsby in the individual batting averages of the National League. Statistics issued today and including games of last Wednesday showed the Pittsburgh flash with a mark of .380 for 133 games against .378 for the Boston manager in 112.

Other leading regular batsmen are: Sisler, Boston, .347; Traynor, Pittsburgh, .345; Lindstrom, New York, .343; Roettger, St. Louis, .341; in 68 games only); Bottomley, St. Louis, .338; Grantham and Brickell, Pittsburgh, .337; and Hafey, St. Louis, Herman, Brooklyn, and Hogan, New York, .336.

Paul Waner leads the League not only in individual batting but also in runs scored, with 128; in hits, with 200; in doubles with 47, and in triples with 18.

Wilson Leads Bottomley

Hack Wilson still leads in home runs with 30, three more than the runner-up, Jim Bottomley of St. Louis.

Pitching honors remained with Larry Benton, New York. Through last Wednesday he had won 23 and lost only five for a net percentage of .821. He also topped Burleigh Grimes in complete games by 25 to 24, and in total victories where the Pittsburgh hurler for such a long time had a marked advantage. Burleigh now has only 22 against Benton's 23.

The Pirates remained far in front in team batting, still hopeful of getting favorable results in the standing of the clubs through their clubbing. The Pittsburgh average last Wednesday was .316, with New York, the second team, down around .294.

Chicago and St. Louis were in a tie for fielding honors, each with .974. The Reds were one point away in third place, and the Giants two, in fourth. The Reds still hold a marvellous lead in double plays, with [illegible] of a new ma-

Rookie Helps Cards

ERNEST ORSATTI

NEW YORK, Sept. 8. — Ernest Orsatti has proved that his batting mark of .387 in the American association was no fluke.

Brought back home to the Cardinals, August 18 to bolster their attack, Orsatti began rapping the ball harder than he did in the minor loop.

His arrival marked the peak of the Cardinals' slump, for with the aid of the young rookie's bat the Red Birds started one of their best spurts of the year and soon recovered all of the lost ground.

Texas Longhorns Begin Training For Hard Season

Coach Clyde Littlefield Is Optimistic Over Prospects For Team with 16 Letter Men Back.

AUSTIN, Sept. 8. (AP)—The second Littlefield-coached University of Texas football squad will begin training with high hopes of surpassing the indifferent record of the 1927 Longhorns.

Sixteen lettermen will return to fight for their positions against a large number of Sophmores and former squad members.

While official practicing under direction of Clyde Littlefield head coach, will not start until tomorrow several of the prospective squad members were on the field this week becoming accustomed to the feel of the pigskin and others have been conditioning for the fall grind.

Littlefield Optomistic

Littlefield is optomistic over chances for this season but not overly so. He points out that both Baylor and Southern Methodist University have better prospects than a year ago.

The quarterback and end positions are giving the Longhorn mentor chief concern. Eddie Beulan, Beaumont flash, may make a capable field general if he avoids injury which followed him last year, but he lacks experience.

"Big Un" Rose of Dalas, who performed in the backfield last season, probably will be seen this year at end, his natural position. Other promising ends are Bill Ford and Dusty Rhodes of Dallas, veterans, Harry Easterling, Temple, a member of the 1927 freshman eleven, and Rutledge Vining of Pine Bluff, Ark., who has played center but who probably will be shifted to a wing.

Strong Line

Built around Ike Sewell of Willis Point, guard and line captain the center of the Texas line may prove a nemesis for the opposing backs. Other letter guards are Tigner, Houston, Phillips, Dallas, and Beaty, Wichita Falls, while Guinn of New Braunfels, Gatoura, Austin and Mobley, Houston, may break into the lineup.

"Red" Wray, Donna veteran, appears to have the call at center with McElroy, Houston freshman center last year and Cheatham, San Antonio, and Burnett, former squad

ELECTION WAGER

Somebody Gets Pushed In Wheelbarrow

BROWNSVILLE, Sept. 8. (AP)—A republican or a democrat is to get a ride across the international bridge here to Matamoras in a wheelbarrow.

Either Volney W. Taylor, county executive chairman for the democrats, or his brother-in-law, Jesse Dennett, county republican chairman, will get to ride, while the other must push the barrow.

Taylor offered to wheel his brother-in-law across the bridge in the event Herbert Hoover is elected president. Donnett met the democrat's offer with a similar proposal in the event Alfred Smith wins.

Three Former Tech Gridiron Stars Will Meet In Rival Roles, Sending Their Youthful Charges to Battle

Schedules Incomplete Thus Far Due to Conflicts Of Arrangements; Season to Get Under Way Early.

When the curtain goes up on the 1928 football season in the class B high schools of this district the latter part of this month, the race for district honors will be watched more closely than ever before. With the majority of the games already matched and every team in training for the impending struggle, prospects for a exciting season are unusually bright.

A feature of exceeding interest to Lubbock fans is the fact that three former members of the Tech football eleven are beginning their first years as football coaches on competing teams in this district. Winfield Nicklas, who has taken over the destinies of the Tahoka high school football elevn, Marlin Hayhurst, who will coach Brownfield high and J. R. Denison, who will direct athletics at O'Donnell, will send their respective teams forth to battle on the gridiron when the season opens Sept. 14.

In a meeting held here last week, the various coaches of the district arranged their schedules for the coming season as far as possible. Because of the absense of several representative schools, a complete schedule for every team could not be arranged. The schedules below are incomplete, but the open dates are likely to be filled before the season gets under way.

Tech Housing Committee Plans To Maintain Closer Co-operation With Those Keeping Students This Year

Possibility of Largest Enrollment Forces Horne To Plan for Additional Housing Facilities.

With the approach of the fourth long session of Texas Technological college which gives prospect of having the largest initial enrollment the school has experienced, Prof. Cecil Horne, director of housing and publicity, is concerned with the details of arranging for these two phases of student life during the coming session. A visit to his office yesterday, found more than a dozen prospective students waiting to gain a conference with him and officials reported that practically the same conditions had been existing during the past ten or more days.

"The housing and employment problem looms as one of the greatest questions to be solved during the coming session," Mr. Horne said when approached regarding the situation. There is a possibility that there will be around 2,000 students in the initial enrollment, condition which would throw the housing into congestion, during the first few weeks at least."

To Maintain Closer Touch

"It is the plan of the housing committee," Mr. Horne said, "to maintain much closer co-operation this year between the officials of the college and those who keep students. Those keeping students should have good comfortable rooms with proper conditions for study and moral and social environment. They should report all cases of sickness and by all means all cases of drinking. A special effort will be made this year to curb the drinking around the campus." A large part of our disciplining can be traced to the housing, he said.

"Students who habitually fail to establish study hours should be reported to the authorities," Mr. Horne added. "We don't have a lot of rules to enforce regarding the housing but merely want the students to live natural lives while in school here."

Committee to Make Visits

He cited the fact that not more than two students are to be allowed in ordinary single rooms and that promiscuous moving will not be allowed. All cases of moving must be reported to the deans and only in exceptional cases will students be allowed to move until the end of the term. Boys and girls will not be allowed to room in the same residence. It is the plan of the housing committee to make regular official inspections of the approved boarding and rooming houses, especially the larger ones.

Bachelor quarters will be rare, he said, only a few of the working students being allowed to keep them during the term and they are to be visited regularly by the committee.

Mr. Horne spent a greater part of the summer in making investigations of the housing problems of other schools and he reported that efforts will be made to bring them above the standard here.

Prices Are Given

Referring to prices, Mr. Horne stated that the average price for room and board has been set at $32 a month. The prices range from $28 to $40, he said. The average room rent will be $10 a person.

Students will not be allowed to register this year until they are in an approved boarding place, Mr. Horne said. An official approved list is being compiled by the housing committee now and will be handed to all students before the opening of the session. All house owners wanting on the approved list should get in touch with Mr. Horne.

Veteran Tackles

Jack Cowley, Paris, and Gordy Brown, Dallas, are the veterans who will be back at tackle. Much is expected of Grover Emerson, Orange freshman captain last season. Others who are expected to compete for tackle births are Henry Mills, Pandale, Charley Hayn, Athens and Billy Hargrove, Beaumont.

Besides Beular members of the old guard in the backfield include Capt. Rufus King, Austin, out last season with a broken jaw, Tommy Hughes Texarkana, Leo Baldwin, former Wichita Falls star, and Jimmy Boyles, Houston. Boyles however, may be unable to play because of time required for his duties.

Promising Backs

Promising sophmore ball-luggers include Frank Higgins, Dallas, a younger brother of "Ox" Higgins, last years captain, Meadows, Wado Shelley, Austin, Craig, Plainview, Perkins, Bastrop, and Beard, Jacksonville, Fla.

New headgears, light but designed to give the utmost protection, new jerseys and specially made "Littlefield" pants, said to be water-proof have arrived at the gymnasium and are ready for use.

Littlefield returned last week from the north where he attended two coaching schools, one conducted by "Doc" Spears, Minnesoto mentor, and the other by Bill Roper of Princeton and Howard Jones of the University of Southern California.

Assisting Littlefield with the backfield will be Marty Karow, former Ohio State luminary, with W. N. James of Centre giving special attention to the line.

J. VELTON SPIKES

Chevrolet Salesman Here Chosen Group Official

J. V. Spikes, of the Kuykendall Chevrolet company here, received the distinction of being the second high man of a zone including Oklahoma and the Panhandle in the number of new cars sold in a year's period.

For this distinction he was selected vice-president of the zone of the 72 car club of the Chevrolet organization at a meeting of the members at Oklahoma City recently. Requirements for membership in this club is that a salesman sells as many as 72 new Chevrolet cars within a year.

Sells Many Cars

Mr. Spikes sold 149 new and 86 used cars in his alloted year. This was only one car below the leader.

Of the 98 members of the 72 car club about 85 attended. Mr. Spikes reports that all of his car sales were in Lubbock. The zone of which he sold the second highest number of cars contains several hundred agencies and numerous salesmen to each agency. Membership in the club is limited to individuals other than firms.

COME SHOP WITH EVERETTA

When I visited Hunt's Grocery last week, my fancy was taken by the numerous jars of olives which I saw on display. Olives have been featured on menus as far back as the days of the Biblical Kings, although many people have to pass through a period of training in order to eat them. Hunt's has them in every appetizing form one could imagine—large juicy, plain ones; delicious stuffed ones, stuffed with celery, almonds, and pimentos; and smaller ones, wondrously flavored. Hunt's has some cucumber rings, too, stuffed with oranges and pimentos, and a Richelieu compote for garnishing cold meats and salads that is almost certainly tempting to the palate.

In every city of an appreciable size there are a few shops which stand rather in a class to themselves. They have personality, a certain air about them which makes people feel that they are different. Now, in all my varied strolls through Lubbock's shops this summer, I have been studying them and comparing notes, and I can truly recommend the Blue Bonnett Shop as being one of the city's most interesting and distinctive. There one realizes that millinery is not so much a business as a profession. Mme. McEwen, who studied with French designers in Chicago, is an artiste. She believes in bringing out rather than submerging the personality of the wearer, and fits her hats according to the facial contours of the individual.

Sunday and Monday at the Palace Theatre, we get to see Bebe Daniels in "Hot News," a thrilling story of a woman in the newspaper game. I cannot think of a more fitting role for the vivacious, up-to-the-minute, fun-loving Bebe than that of a news reel photographer in the employ of her father, who is at the head of a famous news rele company. As dashing Pat Clancy, Bebe gets herself engaged to "Scoop" Morgan, a photographer in a rival company, then "scoops" him in his field, outwitting him on many occasions. The most adventuresome and daring of occupations, where life and limb are risked almost daily in an effort to photograph thrilling news events for theatre audiences is just the kind that Bebe Daniels would choose. During [illegible] of the filming of this picture she was suspended in mid-air from a slender cable, with nothing below her but rocks and the ocean.

The C. E. Stone company has a good selection of fall and winter dresses. Some new ones came in just last Friday. There are satins, plenty of them, in black, wood brown, blonde, and honey beige. I noticed particularly some models for stout women, in black satin with touches of lace and brilliant trims. They are extremely modish, with slender lines, and softening folds. There are some lovely satin-back crepe dresses, too, in the new Davy Jones blue. One model for a coed is two-piece, with a red waist, and skirt and popular three-quarters jacket of black faille. It has a circular skirt with a wide belt, arranged most unusually, and the sleeves have a tiny little red cuff showing. Large buttons of brilliants down the front of the waist and on the cuffs give the dress and odd touch.

Have you seen the new Sixth Series Packard, on display at the Lubbock Storage, which has been taken over by the Super Service Station? You should see its beautiful poise, the restrained symmetry of its lines, like those of some powerful animal, held dormant. There is something about a Packard, which commands admiration universally. It seems to reflect breeding; you know that it is in its proper sphere in front of an exclusive club, an elegant home, or speeding along a high road to Life's adventures. And, then, the new Packard has a number of mechanical improvements which the prospective buyer would do well to consider. For safety, ease of steering, and comfort, nothing scientific gentus could devise has been spared to make Packard foremost.

And, while we're shopping, it wouldn't do to forget bags. They are such an indispensable part of one's ensemble. The City Drug Store has in some new ones—the Meeker Made bags—of solid leather, hand-tooled, with hammered metal frames, and bakelite handles. They are quite imposing. One model, which is shown there, is the Madge Bellamy vanity purse, extensively advertised in Vogue. The purse, which is rather small and is held by a leather strap, is typical of the vivacious ultra-modern screen star for which is was named. It is replete, with coin purse, mirror, pencil, room for make-up tools, and a card case. Only a real flapper like Madge Bellamy could have inspired such a clever utility.

Soft, pretty, white hands—you want them, don't you? Well, I, too! And I know something that that will certainly go a long way toward getting us what we want. In Bowen's Drug Store, you will find for sale Dorothy Gray's preparations. Her Cleansing Cream, and Russian Astringent, when used regularly, bring gratifying results and her Eye Muscle Paste erases the fine, tight lines around the eyes which are so prevalent with Western women. Bowen's has her Acne Set, a complete treatment, which is not equalled for its thorough cure of that irritating affliction. And her chin strap does away with disfiguring double chins.

I found them unpacking a lot of interesting things at the Rix Furniture store last week — a modernistic bedroom suite, beautiful pictures, gaily-decorated lamps, and a new love-seat in green that is simply stunning. One of the choicest things is a junior breakfast room suite, consisting of a table, china closet, and four chairs. The table, which has an extension, has a mahogany top. The china closet is unique; it resembles an antique secretary, one of its best features being an unusually spacious silver drawer. The finishing is of the finest kind, and the color scheme includes a green border on a background in different shadings of brown.

THIS HAS HAPPENED

SYBIL THORNE, Boston society girl, returns from a drive in the country with CRAIG NEWHALL to find that her father has died during her absence.

In order to please her father, whom she adored, Sybil had just consented to marry Craig, the most eligible bachelor in town. His death is a fearful shock to Sybil and her frail little mother. But they rally bravely for TAD'S approaching marriage.

Tad, Sybil's handsome brother, is engaged to VALERIE WEST, an empty-headed little debutante. The wedding is three weeks off; and Sybil, fearfully apprehensive speculates grimly.

"Anything," she reasons, "can happen in three weeks. Maybe Val will elope with a count."

CHAPTER VII.

Mrs. Thorne, engrossed in preparations for the marriage, was busier than the bride's mother. She monogrammed Tad's handkerchiefs and pajamas and debated endlessly on the problem of a real "nice wedding gift."

Almost every day she made the weary rounds of shops and stores, pricing silver and glass, rugs and china—comparing values all the way from Copley Square to Scollay.

Finally, in an antique shop on Charles Street, she compromised on an ancient secretary and a high boy with a bulging front.

"But Mother," remonstrated Sybil, "Valerie doesn't like old things."

Mrs. Thorne bristled defensively. "They're extraordinarily fine pieces," she said, "and there's nothing could be in better taste than antiques."

Craig had chosen a silver cocktail shaker and many goblets. Poor Craig—he tried so hard to be one of the family. Sybil's heart went out to him, when he discussed with Valerie the advantages of a wedding breakfast as against a buffet luncheon, very solemnly, like a wise old uncle.

He listened patiently to Mrs. Thorne, who was hemming curtains for Valerie's kitchen. Did he think yellow checked gingham would be cut, or would he like plain white, banded with left blue? The blue would match any ordinary linoleum best, of course, but then, wouldn't the yellow afford a pleasing contrast?

Craig was confidant and lackey for the lot of them. He ran errands for Valerie, made reservations and bought tickets for Tad. Mrs. Thorne, when she took to weeping found his shoulder always accessible. Even Mrs. West sought his advice.

Craig was to be Tad's best man, and Valerie's cousin, Bertha Ontz, was to be maid of honor. She was dark, and rather florid,—a little easy looking, Sybil thought, with straight, oily hair and small eyes. An admirable contrast for Valerie's blond beauty.

Bertha was so dull she made Valerie positively radiant, and more exquisite than ever. Sybil had heard that beautiful girls sometimes chose ugly friends, in order to seem more beautiful themselves, but never before had she lent any credence to the notion.

It was to be a very simple ceremony at St. Margaret's-by-the-Sea, the little stone chapel where Valerie's grandmother had been married 50 years before. Not that there was anything sentimental about the West's, but only that St. Margaret's afforded such an admirable solution. It was much smarter than it had been in the days of Valerie's grandmother, and the rector was very High Church.

It was quite the thing to be churchy about a marriage. Jazz weddings were distinctly passe. Dignity had become a sacramental thing, and Valerie, who six months before had contemplated carrying a swagger stick to the altar, itched now for sublimity.

St. Margaret's was austere. It was, indeed, the very place for a "little family wedding." There seemed to be nothing even fairly disrespectful to the memory of Mr. Thorne about getting married at St. Margaret's. A city church, of course, would have been different.

Tad was beginning to wonder if he had ever really known Valerie before. He conversation was entirely exclamatory. She was either "simply furious," or "thrilled to death." She "despised" things or "adored" them, knowing no half way emotions.

"You'll be a wreck by the time I get you," he told her gently, when she came to him one evening from the dressmaker's, exhausted and in tears.

"Caveman!" she retorted, and he knew she had misunderstood.

Valerie was not as innocent as Tad had thought. She discussed their married life with a great deal of modern frankness.

"I don't propose to have any children for at least five years," she told him.

"All right, baby," he agreed.

"And if I should ever stop caring for you, I wouldn't live with you for a single minute," she went on.

"This wouldn't be anything short of legalized—"

"Valerie!"

He stopped her sternly. "I don't like to hear you talking like that, baby. You're my little girl and I'm crazy about you. I guess that doesn't leave you anything to worry about, does it?"

"Oh, well!" She dismissed the subject with elaborate nonchalance. "You can't ever tell what's going to happen these days. It's just as well to understand each other."

"Where'd you get all these ideas?" he persisted. "What's got into you, Valerie?"

"Oh, I suppose I've changed," she conceded. "One does, you know."

Valerie had forgotten to bring a gift from Paris for her maid of honor, and Tad had driven her down to find something. He cruised around the congested streets, seeking a place to park while Valerie ran into a jeweler's.

"I shan't be a minute," she promised. "Any old thing will do for Bertha. She hasn't an idea in the world what's what. It won't take me a sec."

Tad parked the car in front of a caterer's. Valerie was to leave an order there for pasteries for a luncheon she was having the next day, and Tad was to wait outside.

An hour passed. A policeman requested him to move on. He drove up West street and down Temple Place and slowly along Washington street. He was beginning to worry about Valerie. Probably they had missed each other when he had to move. Perhaps he had better go back to the jeweler's. Val would be annoyed if he kept her waiting. She had so much to do—poor kid!

He left the car at a garage in Park Square and took a taxi back. Almost two hours. Wow! Valerie'll be having a fit.

He saw her first. Hanging over a counter, where precious stones rested on velvet pillows of white and royal purple. She was holding her hand to catch the light. And on her little finger a dinner ring sparkled and gleamed. A man was bending above her. A stick hooked over his arm, and a glass in his eye. He was smiling fondly and twirling a small blond mustache.

Tad had never seen Valerie look happier, nor more beautiful. He wanted to shake her as though she were a naughty child. Yet he felt a contradictory impulse to crush her to him, and kill the rest of the men who sough ther smiles. He had an absurd desire to slap her floppish companion across his smiling crimson lips.

Then Valerie saw him, and had the grace to look guilty.

"Oh Taddy! I want you to know Lord Montford. And Monty, this is my darling fiance—don't you love him, Monty? Isn't he beautiful! Mother and I met Lord Montford in London, Tad. . . ."

The men were bowing stiffly.

"I'm sorry I kept you waiting, dear—but Monty just insisted upon buying me a wedding present. And he simply MADE me choose it myself. Wasn't it the funniest thing, running into him like this? The Leviathan is in this morning, you know, and Monty hasn't been in town an hour. I think it's just the screamingest thing!

"See my lovely present, Taddy!" Valerie held out her hand.

Gravely Tad took it, and bent to look. He must be able to control his voice before he spoke. He wondered if Valerie and her Monty had noticed how completely the dazzling thing eclipsed the solitaire on Valerie's third finger. Of course they had. No wonder the idiotic sap looked so complacent.

"You are very kind, Lort Montford," he said, and every word was barbed with the venom that choked him when he tried to speak quietly. "You are exceedingly generous. I am sure. But I cannot permit my financee to accept so valuable a gift."

"Why Tad!"

Valerie sounded like an outraged exponent of all the conventions.

"Why, Tad Thorne, what do you mean—talking like that! I will too. The very idea! Anybody'd think."

"But if Miss West wishes," began Lord Montford smoothly, "I scarcely understand . . ."

"Valerie, give Lord Montford back his ring."

The astonished clerk had melted discreetly into the background. A curious customer edged a little nearer.

"And tell him, Valerie, that you do not wish to accept such trinkets, because your husband will not be able to aford them for you."

"Is not that reason enough that Miss West SHOULD wish to accept them?" Lord Monitord settled his glass, and gave his stick a victorious little swing. "No offense intended, I assure you, my dear chap."

Valerie's face was crimson.

"But Tad . . ."

"This is no place for a scene, Valerie. Please . . ."

(To be continued)

...And what does Valerie do?—Well, what would you do? And what do you suppose Tad has to say? Read the next chapter.

Innovation Of Free Gate Coupled With Record List Of Amusement Promises Big Year For Tri-State Fair, Amarillo

Fifteen Counties Entered Early For Exhibits At Exposition — Numerous Novelty Features Planned

(Special To The Avalanche-Journal)

AMARILLO, Sept. 8.—With five years of great achievement minus profitable financial returns behind it, the Amarillo Tri-State exposition will try an innovation for big state fairs in Amarillo September 22 to 29. The innovation is a free gate and attendance of around 300,000 is expected. The attendance last year with an admission charge was 40,000 persons.

The fair owed $16,000 this spring when a decision was reached to have a free gate. Some thought the action revolutionary. Others thought it might be a valuable experiment. Many averred that the exposition could do no worse than in 1927. With a strong personnel of officers and directors and the backing of a majority of the business men fair officials adopted the plan of free gate and began making plans for the greatest fair ever staged in this section.

Indications are at this time that the innovation will be copied throughout the country. The fair has thus far taken in more money from concession space and other means that it had at the close of the fair last year. With the tremendous increase in attendance assured concessions have doubled in price and the prospects for a record breaking exposition in every respect are bright. Virtually no effort has been required to sell concession advertising and exhibit space.

Business men in Amarillo and fair supporters over the Panhandle of Oklahoma, New Mexico and Texas are enthusiastic over plans for the fair and over the big crowds that are expected. Many believe the fair will pay out of debt this fall despite the heavy deficit incurred in the past.

Twenty-nine acres of free parking space has been provided adjacent to the fair entrance and in addition to great agricultural, livestock, merchants, machinery and other exhibits, an imposing entertainment program has been arranged. Charges will be made for the entertainment features but all exhibit halls and the grounds will be free.

Winter Garden Revue

Shooley and Collins' Winter Garden revue with 80 people will play each night except Sunday, September 23, in front of the grandstand. Lackmen & Carson Carnival company, one of the biggest carnivals on the road, will play continuously.

The internationally famous Leonard Stroud rodeo show will feature the afternoon entertainment. Two interstate high school football games will be played in addition to three or more sectional grid games. The Amarillo high school, district winners last season, will meet the Norman, Okla., high school, Saturday afternoon, September 22 and the Amarillo team will play the Oklahoma City central high, 1927 state champions, on Saturday, September 29. Panhandle and Claude, Tulia and Dalhart and Pampa and Texhoma have games scheduled during the fair period. Two other grid tilts are expected to be announced.

Fifteen Counties Enter

Fifteen counties have officially entered the county agricultural exhibit and three community exhibits, one each from Perlaes and Tucumcari, N. M., and another from Groom have been assured. The counties entering are Randall, Potter, Hemphill, Armstrong, Floyd, Hale, Swisher, Hall, Donley, Collingsworth, Wheeler, Hartley, Gray, Moore and Carza. About ten more are expected. From this list of counties the first six winners at the Dallas state fair are usually found each year. The county agricultural exhibits at the Tri-State fair was among the stiffest in the world.

Entries in all departments are even now near capacity and arrangements are being made to add to the housing facilities of some departments despite the great number of large permanent buildings at fair park.

Ministers Take Hand

One outstanding feature of the fair this year in addition to the free gate and the large attendance expected is the fact that the ministers of Amarillo will have charge of the fair program on Sunday, September 23. An open air service with a chorus of 600 voices will climax the day in the evening. Heretofore there has been some opposition to the fair being operated on Sunday.

Among the entertainment features will be a tribe of New Mexico Indians who will give native dances and other rites. An auto joy ride, a permanent fixture at the fair grounds, dancing and other amusement devices are included apart from the carnival.

Amarillo is even now wearing a carnival dress in preparation for the big event. Advertising matter has been spread over three states and special trains will be run from many points including Norman, Okla., and Oklahoma City. Reduced fares in Texas, New Mexico and Oklahoma have been granted by railroads.

With a record wheat crop harvested, one of the best years for cattlemen in history and a bumper cotton and row crop assured the entire Panhandle was never in a more prosperous condition. This is contributing greatly toward the happy feeling for the success of the fair and it is believed here that the innovation in the form of a free gate, an unheard of thing for a big fair, will boost the Tri-State exposition out of debt and leave a comfortable margin for the 1929 show.

Wilbur C. Hawk, general manager of the Amarillo News-Globe, is president of the fair; Wm. F. Lampe, Amarillo, is first vice president; John B. Ollvin, Amarillo, second vice president, and R. T. (Bob) Emmett, Amarillo, is secretary-manager. The association has a directorate of 75 persons representing every county in the Tri-State territory.

Hassell Urges Big Turnout for Trips

Retail Merchants Head Is Anxious for Good Representation In Good Will Jaunts.

"Let's all go," J. D. Hassell Jr., president of the Lubbock Retail Merchants association requests the merchants of Lubbock in a letter to members of the association, referring to the four good will and fair booster trips that will be staged over the South Plains within the next three weeks.

"Your presence and assistance in making these trips are really a civic duty," he stated in the letter, "but aside from this each trip will in itself compensate you for your time. It is all too seldom that we break away from our places of business and visit and mingle with our friends in nearby towns, and these trips will provide an excellent opportunity to make and renew personal acquaintances at each stopping point."

"Irrespective of any immediate return which Lubbock merchants might expect from a large attendance at the fair, the amount of good will and general regard for Lubbock and its citizens which are created and fostered by these visits to our neighboring towns is inestimable. Due largely to the very spirit in which former trips have been made and the one in which these are to be made, Lubbock enjoys a most enviable reputation for hospitality toward the smaller towns of the South Plains, and in the opinion of the writer, nothing could be more conducive to the growth and progress of a city than the support which this feeling naturally gives us."

Home Contest
Competition Is Finished

The Home Beautiful Contest sponsored by the Civic League of this place was closed last week with the first prize going to Mrs. R. P. Parker, and second to Mrs. Baker for the large homes inhabited by owner. Mrs. Quincy Hames won first prize in the small homes inhabited by the owner. Mrs. Roy Heard won first prize for rented homes.

The Civic League pronounced the Home Beautiful contest a great success. The homes of not only the contestants have been greatly improved, but it is noticeable that a great many people who did not enter the contest have taken a greater pride in improving the appearance of their homes.

One of the judges gave Mrs. Parker a hundred per cent on her home. It is a pink stucco duplex, with a beautiful lawn striped with winding cement walks among the various varieties of flowers on the lawn.

Down Town Revue

Excitement in the air . . . activity, school, young vitality, and the feeling of the approaching college season. Nothing like the fall of the year for ambition, if it's only that of a co-ed who looks ecstatically at the fashions displayed in Broadway's shop windows. Another era of conquests for her, and, who knows, perhaps, she can rate some dates with that Byron-esque professor, with the soulful eyes!

Lubbock takes on the aspect of a real city with street beggars becoming numerous, and the inevitable street preacher on Saturday.

A girl with flagrant henna-ed hair walks boldly down the street—boldly, for why, in the name of all out pet Profs, will a girl, with obviously a brunette color scheme, try to make a gilded blonde of herself? Pressure of "gentlemen prefer blondes" or just a "suppressed desire" to play Clara Bow?

The young girl who sits at the ticket window of the movie theater, is to be envied. She sits on a tall chair, and placidly watches the people passing by. It is the whole world passing in review which she sees, for the world is no bigger than her own small sphere.

An ultra-collegiate youth strolls nonchalantly along, sporting a badge on which flash numerous medals for athletic prowess. Everybody must surely see what a truly "remarkable fellow" he is. And one wonders if Lindbergh, too, has a little badge with medals on it.

Mrs. C. G. Carpenter of Midland, and Bobby Lindsey of Abilene, are visiting in the J. A. Lindsey home.

Hutson Couch is leaving today for his home in Vernon after spending the summer in Lubbock. He was a student in the Tech during the summer session.

Record Feed Crop Is Forecast For Big Spring Region

Frequent Rains Of Growing Season Aid Both Early And Late Plantings To Produce Abundantly

(Special To The Avalanche-Journal)

BIG SPRING, Sept. 8.—Howard county will make the largest feed crop in her history, frequent rains during the growing season having helped both early and late plantings to produce abundantly. Farmers are estimating that the county will produce 75,000 tons of maize, which is the chief feed crop for West Texas. There is an inclination on the part of the conservative farmer to feed this feed to dairy cattle, hogs, and poultry in preference to shipping it in the head as in former days. More dairy cattle are being used since a local market is being offered for sweet milk by the Snow-white Creamery. Intensive rains have been detrimental to the cotton crop and insects during the past 30 days have caused estimates over West Texas to be cut as much as one-third. In some localities the worms have cut the crops as much as one-half. Early estimates for Howard county were as high as 40,000 bales but if the county produces 25,000 bales the farmers will consider themselves fortunate in the opinion of Lester Fisher, merchant and farmer.

BEGGARS WORKED

They Must Sweep Before They Eat At Houston

HOUSTON, Sept. 8. (AP)—There's one section of sidewalk in Houston which gets its share of sweeping. It is in front of the Salvation Army home.

One day Major W. A. Turner, commander of the men's social service department, said a barefooted man called and asked for shoes.

"Sweep the sidewalk," Turner told him.

"It isn't dirty," the man said, studying the walk.

"I didn't hire you as an inspector," Turner replied, "I merely asked you to sweep the sidewalk."

The sidewalk was swept and the man got his shoes.

"It wasn't dirty, because it already had been swept five times that morning," Turner said. "I make it a habit to let beggars do some thing in return for what they get. It helps their self-respect."

'DRY' CAMPAIGN

Distilleries Seized By The Wholesale

HOUSTON, Sept. 8.— (AP)—South Texas should be considerably drier in September than it was in August.

Last month, federal prohibition officers seized and destroyed 119 distilleries with a potential output of $50,000 gallons of whiskey a month, Victor J. Buthod, acting deputy prohibition administrator, in Buthod's territory, plants, announced.

Liquor and equipment and material confiscated or destroyed in August were valued at $20,000. Agents arrested 119 persons.

CORPUS BUILDING

CORPUS CHRISTI, Sept. 8. (AP) Actual building permits issued in Corpus Christi for the first eight months of 1928 totaled $4,562,935.

A survey by the Corpus Christi Chamber of Commerce shows that during the eight months 373 new homes, 150 commercial additions, and 115 new buildings were constructed. Building projects under way include a 14-story hotel, and a nine-story office building.

JENNINGS SPEAKER

Lubbock Rotarian Talks To Slaton Club

(Special To The Avalanche-Journal)

SLATON, Sept. 8.—Rev. Walter P. Jennings, now a member and formerly president of the Lubbock Rotary club, spoke at the meeting of the Slaton club here Friday at noon. His was an impromptu address, in which he stressed the importance of the work the Rotary clubs of more than forty nations are doing. He paid particular compliments to the Slaton club and its officers.

Following Rev. Jennings' address, G. C. Jones, member of the club at Post, also spoke at the meeting, using as his theme the necessity of business men and other citizens cooperating in building the city and community in which the members reside.

Many good practice matches have been staged and some players claim they are becoming experts.

Swish of Rollers Is Music to Him

Erecting Printing Presses Is Every Day Job for E. C. Larke, Now In Lubbock

Reporters and editors lean on their desks, taking it easy. The incessant clatter of the telegraph instruments is stilled. The last page has been locked in its forms and the printers are resting.

It is press time.

A man in overalls lugs a metallic cylinder and hoists it to its resting place upon the steel rollers. Then he presses a button.

With a swish and whir, the rollers and cylinders start turning—for an instant, slowly, then in a rumble.

Two minutes later one thousand complete, folded copies of the paper, bearing the latest news of the day and still damp from the ink are stacked in a pile, ready for distribution.

Di-secting and assembling printing presses has been the daily task of E. C. Larke, Duplex printing press factory representative, for some twelve years. Mr. Larke has been in Lubbock about a month in connection with installation of the Avalanche-Journal's new high speed tubular press.

Duplex presses today are to be found in every continent and in every nation which supports a newspaper of substantial proportions. The company is a pioneer in the manufacture of printing presses, having been manufacturing its machines for more than forty years.

Size of the presses produced by Duplex in its mammoth Battle Creek, Mich., factory vary from the antiquated but still serviceable type of "flat bed" such as was in use at the Avalanche-Journal until this week, up to the multiple-unit presses such as are used by the New York World, and which produce more than a million copies of that internationally known newspaper each day.

Mr. Larke personally supervised installation of the new presses in the World office. The World, founded by Joseph Pulitzer, has long been recognized as the standard of conservative journalism for America.

It took eight months to install the thirty-eight sixteen page units which now print the World. Each of these units is as large as the Avelanche-Journal's new press.

Mr. Larke installed the Avalanche-Journal press inside one week, though work of clearing the way for the installation had been going on for months before his arrival in the city.

It was by accident that Mr. Larke became associated with the Duplex factory. He started as a mechanic in the shipyards and by force of circumstances eventually applied for a job as mechanic in the Duplex plant. Within a year after joining the Duplex people he was put to work on the outside.

The press is the most important cog in the mechanical wheel which produces a daily newspaper. As long as the press is working perfectly, other mechanical mishaps may be disguised or overcome.

Break-downs to the press are accidents that are dreaded by every newspaper publisher.

Because of the imperative necessity for quick repairs when breakdowns do occur, the Duplex factory owns an airplane and keeps its own pilot constantly at hand. Spare parts for repairs are shipped via air mail if practical or by special plane convoy.

"A paper in the mid-West once suffered an accident to its matrix roller as press time was nearing press time" he said. "The forms for every page were loaded in a truck rushed to a town fourteen miles away where the paper had a similar equipment, matted there, and then brought back to the original office to be printed."

The new Duplex type of press is as nearly trouble-proof as possible One of them was operated each day for fourteen years, printing 40,000 copies of a paper daily without a single interruption due to mechanical imperfection or break-down. This was at Bloomington, Ill.

Production of the factory is now about thirty presses each year of the type such as used by the Lubbock paper. The factory has been behind in orders for years.

Mr. Larke thinks this job of making possible the printing of the day's news to be a very interesting occupation.

"I like it because you never get rusty on the job. One never knows for sure whether the press he has built will actually 'work' until he has tried it. One never knows what obstacles he must overcome to make the installation or what tough problems he will encounter. You don't have a chance to grow nonchalant on the job."

BUILD PIPE LINE

Humble Crew Work Near Big Spring

BIG SPRING, Aug. 8.—The Humble Pipe Line company, which is building a pipe and gathering line to the field, is working several crews This company is also erecting two 55,000 barrel tanks and a pumping station on section 162. The line will make connection with the west field in Howard county connecting with the Henshaw-McGinley well, and will be ready soon to care for 20,000 barrels of oil daily, thus giving a 40,000 barrel outlet to the field by the Humble and Shell lines, the Magnolia Pipe Line company taking care of their own wells.

FIRST 1928 BALE

He received a $60 premium from the merchants of Big Spring. A cash premium of $40 will be given the farmer bringing in the second bale.

DAILY MARKETS

FORT WORTH LIVESTOCK

FORT WORTH, Sept. 8. (AP)—The hog market today generally as steady. The bulk of the receipts sold from $11.15 to 12.15. Sows brought from 8.50 to 10.00.

The cattle and sheep trades were nominal affairs.

NEW ORLEANS COTTON

NEW ORLEANS, Sept. 8. (AP)—Final covering in advance of the government crop report shoved prices up 5 to 8 points today on the New Orleans cotton exchange.

Previously, the market had eased off 5 to 8 points below the previous close as a result of poor Liverpool cables and dry weather map.

Effect of the government crop report which forecast a yield of 14,439,000 bales, was not felt here, since the market closed 10 minutes before the report was issued.

Liverpool was 1 to 4 points lower than due and first trades here were unchanged to a one point decline. In early trading prices dropped to 18.35 for October and 18.40 for December, 5 to 8 points below the previous close.

In late trading, however, as the result of covering, October advanced to 18.50 and December to 18.58, 15 to 18 points above the early lows. The close was steady and a few points under the highs with October at 18.48 and December at 18.54.

Port receipts 26,548, for season 519, 956, last season 835,368. Exports 19,393, for season 422,375, last season 474,297. Port stocks 538,079, last year 1,229,2380. Combined stock at New Orleans, Galveston and Houston 86,408, last year 77,430. Spot sales at southern markets 50,264, last year 49,559.

NEW YORK COTTON

NEW YORK, Sept. 8. (AP)—The cotton market here was moderately active during today's shortened half session. Nervous and irregular fluctuations reflected uncertainty as to the showing of the government crop report, which was published after the close. December contracts, after selling off to 18.90 during the early trading, advanced to 19.15 and closed at 19.09. The general market closed firm, net 10 points higher to 4 points lower.

The market opened steady but 4 to 13 points off the response to relatively easy Liverpool cables. Active months showed net losses of 8 to 13 points during the first few minutes under liquidation and southern selling. Initial offerings were absorbed by covering and trade buying and the market rallied with the demand becoming more active late in the morning. October sold up from 19.05 to 19.35 and March from 18.78 to 18.95, but the close was several points below the best under realizing.

The market here closed at 11:50 o'clock, or 10 minutes before the publication of the official crop report, which consequently found no reflection in the local trading.

The government figures making the condition 60.3 and the indicated crop 14,439,000 bales, were not far from the average of recent private reports, which had pointed to an indication of about 14,508,000 bales, or of estimates by members of the New York cotton exchange.

The figures, however, came in for considerable bearish comment by local brokers after the close, and declines were reported, in the Chicago market, which was open after the report was issued.

The late buying in the market here was probably promoted by further unfavorable crop advices from the south, including reports that the crop in some eastern belt sections had suffered severely from root rot since the beginning of September. Liverpool cables said that trade calling had been supplied by hedge selling and continental liquidation in that market.

KANSAS CITY LIVESTOCK

KANSAS CITY, Sept. 8. (AP)—U. S. Department of Agriculture). Cattle receipts around the eleven market circuit this week were heavier than a year ago but failed to retard the upward swing in prices. Most all killing closed the week strong to unevenly higher with some showing extreme advances of 55 cents on the better grades of beef steers and sh stock. Country demand for replacement cattle had considerable breadth at strong to 25 cents higher values. Choice heavy steers at Chicago established a new top for the season of 18.25; only 25 cents under the year's high mark paid in January. Good heavy fed Kansas grassers at Kansas City realized 15.50 while numerous loads of wintered and fed grassers at this point brought 14.00 to 15.00. The week's total supply of around 238,900 was 3,900 less than last week, but 17,000 heavier than a year ago.

NEW YORK STOCKS

By STANLEY W. PRENOSIL
(Associated Press Financial Editor)

NEW YORK, Sept. 8. (AP)—Heavy week-end profit-taking sales and sporadic "bear" attacks checked the resumption of the upward price movement in today's stock market. Under the stimulus of pool activities and excited public speculation, nearly two score stocks were whirled upward 1 to 10 points to new high records. Bullish enthusiasm quickly cooled when persistent selling of some of the high priced industrials forced them down to nearly 9 points below yesterday's final quotations. The close was irregular.

Trading was again in enormous volume. The day's sales aggregated 2,092,500 shares, with the ticker 37 minutes late in recording the final quotation.

Outside the stock market, chief financial interest centered in the renewed heaviness of sterling exchange, which fell to a new low level for the year at $4.85 1-16 for London cables. Bankers figure that the rate is now around the point where gold imports from London would be profitable, providing fast steamers to cut down the loss of interest are available. The receipt of gold undoubtedly would do much to relieve the stringent credit situation, as Wall Street figures that $1 in gold provides the basis for $10 in credit.

In accordance with a long established custom, no loans are called on Saturday so that Friday's rate of 7 1-2 percent carries over the week-end. Time money and commercial paper rates held firm.

The Department of Agriculture's cotton report as of Sept. 1 shows an indicated crop of 14,439,000 bales, or close to trade estimates.

The New York cotton market closed 10 minutes before the report came out, with final quotations 10 points higher to 4 points lower.

In the Chicago markets, which kept open after the report was issued, prices dropped nearly $3.50 a bale.

Amusement shares gave one of the most impressive demonstrations of strength in the stock market. Warner Bros., ran up 3 points to 139 and the Common 6 points to 124, both new tops. Profittaking forced the "A" issue back to 128. Warner A sold at 22 on January 5. Fox Film ran up 5 points to a new top at 114 1-2 and then eased to 113.

The rise in American Sugar Refining to a new high at 80 1-2 revived rumors of an early resumption of dividends. Among the many other issues to move into new high ground for the year were Armour A, Associated Dry Goods, Eaton Axle, Sweets Co., of America, Kelsey wheel, Timpken Roller Bearing, Motor Wheel, Consolidated Gas, Public Service of New Jersey, Best and Company, and Tide-water Oil.

Curtiss broke from an early high of 148 3-4 to 139 and rebounded to 141 3-4 off 6 points net. Radio dipped from 220 to 212 and rallied to 215 1-2 off 3 3-4 points net. General Motors, American Can, U. S. Steel Common, Chrysler, General Electric and American Cmelting also were weak.

New Martin Baker Has Lifetime Of Experience As Foundation For His Trade; Started In Hamburg Germany

Hans Kausch Is New Boss For Local Bakery; Has Studied In Famous Laboratories Over World

Beginning the study of the baker's trade at the age of eleven in Hamburg, Germany, Hans Kausch, has spent a life time as a baker. He admits that he knows nothing else, but prides himself that he does know baking.

Mr. Kausch is superintendent of the baking department of Martin Baking company here, coming here from the Ward-Owsley company of Aberdeen, South Dakota, one of the largest and finest plants of the mid-west.

With the degree of a master baker as his only recommendation he left the Fatherland at the age of fifteen for America. To get this degree requires three years of technical training under the direction of a master baker. Rules governing apprenticeships are directed by the government of Germany.

Learned Trade Over

In America, Kausch found conditions greatly changed and had to learn the trade all over again. Arriving her in 1912 he studied in a technical school in New York City until he obtained a job in a baking establishment. He could not speak English at the time of his first job, but he understood enough of the conversation of his fellow workmen to know that they were not going to work the following day. Reporting for work the next day Kausch mixed all of the dough and did all of the work his six companions were supposed to do in less than the usual time. He was made foreman.

Kausch has studied in Fleischman's laboratory school in New York and the Siebel Institute of Technology in Chicago. He has been in charge of plants in Rochester and Aberdeen.

Particular in every detail, Kausch has his own laboratory in which he analyzes all of the ingredients which go into the bread. Although flour and climatic conditions are different here, Mr. Kausch said there was no reason why the finest bread in the world could not be made here.

Mr. Kausch take a great pride in his bread and states that he would not quit the trade at all. He is an expert chemist, and almost a "crank" about the ingredients of the bread, according to Mr. Martin, owner of the plant here.

John Coolidge Has That 'Sax Appeal'

While President Coolidge longs for his son John to settle down to some such pursuit as international banking or railroading, John keeps himself amused by attending pajama parties, singing and dancing and conducting himself altogether like any other young college man of his years would. John toots a mean saxaphone, at which the president looks askance, and also plays the piano and singgs popular songs druing dance intermissions. The young man is said to have received an offer from a Broadway musical comedy producer that ran into five figures. Meantime a special secret service man is always at John's side to see that his "sex appeal" doesn't carry him away.

M. H. Duncan, superintendent of the city schools, visited in Amarillo yesterday.

Babylonian Skeletons Discussed

Believe Bones Found Near Ruins Of Kish, In Persian Gulf, Indicate Desert Life

GLASGOW, Scotland, Sept. 8 (AP).—Two hundred skeletons from the Babylonian ruins of Kish, an island in the Persian gulf, were the center of discussion today by anthropologists of the British Association for the Advancement of Science after an address by Henry Field, assistant curator of the Field Museum of Natural History in Chicago.

The skeletons, whose aggregate age exceeds 1,000,000 years, were said to be in a remarkable state of preservation. They include the bones of men, women and children and were recently shipped to Chicago.

The American curator, one of the youngest lecturers before the association, drew the general conclusion from his Syrian expedition that the desert was well populated in past ages due to the fact that there was formerly a better water supply. He said this fact was proved by the discovery of many household implements. Psychoanalysis was the subject of a discourse by Professor William Brown of Oxford university. He told the afternoon session that reliving in memory the scenes of earliest childhood was an excellent cure for mental illness.

National Political Battle Front Spreads To South Plains Sector

night, Chas. P. O'Neall, Lubbock realtor, was selected as the chairman of the "Anti-Smith Democrats" of the Thirtieth Senatorial district. The district is composed of Lamb, Hale, Floyd, Borden, Motley, Bailey, Cottle, Terry, King, Lynn, Martin, Kent, Dickens, Crosby, Garza, Cochran, Howard, Stonewall, Lubbock, Hockley, Yoakum, Dawson, Andrews and Gaines counties.

Wheelock Vice-Chairman

Frank E. Wheelock, regularly elected chairman of the democratic executive committee of Lubbock county, and about whom raged a recent battle between the "regulars" and "bolters" over the party pledge was chosen as vice-chairman of the organization while John L. Ratliff, prominent Baptist layman, and a praticing attorney here, was chosen as chairman of the county organization.

The first meeting of the group was held in the offices of the Chas. P. O'Neall Realty company, 1215 Texas Avenue, Friday night but no announcement of the fact was made until yesterday. According to Mr. O'Neall approximately 20 men, all members of the democratic party, made up the meeting, several being from nearby towns. Although no list of the attendants at the meeting was taken Mr. O'Neall remembered ten of them, all of whom he said would serve on the executive committee of the district body. The men Mr. O'Neall remembered included W. K. Dickinson, pioneer cattleman and capitalist; Rev. E. E. White, pastor of the First Methodist church; Roscoe Wilson, attorney; C. E. Maedgen, bank president; A. H. Martin, realtor; J. A. Barton, hotel operator; W. F. Buck, Crosbyton business man; S. S. Forest, Slaton lumberman; John L. Ratliff and Frank E. Wheelock.

To Meet This Week

Mr. O'Neall announced that another meeting, at which a larger crowd was expected, would be held here this week but stated that no time had yet been set for it. He said that it was the plan of the organization to form units in every one of the 24 counties of the district and that he and his co-workers were expectant of turning many votes to the republican nominee.

"It is the hope of the 'Anti-Smith Democrats,'" he said, "to carry this district for Hoover in November. We expect to conduct an active campaign and by our votes to show to the world that the South Plains of Texas is unalterably opposed to nullification or modification of the Eighteenth Amendment to the Constitution, and that we have no desire for any Tammanyism in our brand of democracy. We want all the people who believe as we do to take their places in our ranks and work to the end that Texas my go for "Hoover".

Republicans To Help

Dr. I. E. Barr, chairman of the republican executive committee of Lubbock county, when questioned concerning the stand of his organization, said that the republicans would co-operate in every way with the group in opposition to Gov. Al Smith. He said that no plans had yet been made but that a series of speeches would likely be delivered in the county and over the district in behalf of Mr. Hoover.

Further survey of the local political situation, however, reveals that the backers of Governor Smith, regularly nominated standard-bearer for the democratic party, do not propose to allow the Hoover boom to go unchallenged but that, on the other hand, an aggressive campaign for the New York governor would be waged in Lubbock and surrounding counties.

No Plans Yet Set

Tom Garrard, local attorney and a member of the State democratic executive committee, said that while no set plans had been laid there would probably be speakers here and in the neighboring counties on behalf of the Smith campaign. Mr. Garrard, however, said that no announcement of the "Regular Democrat's" plans could be made at this time.

Pink L. Parrish, democratic nominee for the state senate from this district and Lubbock county's member of the State democratic advisory committee, said practically the same thing as Mr. Garrard in regard to the future activities of the "Regular Democrats."

Believes In Smith

"There are no set plans yet," Mr. Parrish said, "but we will have our speakers and will carry on our campaign in behalf of the party. It is my judgment that Governor Smith will carry the district and the state as is the usual custom, of democratic nominees from president to constable."

From Dallas, Associated Press dispatches to the Daily Journal on Friday reported that Lubbock, along with fifne other Texas cities, had been chosen for regional headquarters of the 'Aanti-Smith Democrats" Mr. O'Neall said yesterday, however that he and his co-workers knew nothing of the headquarters to be opened here aside from the Journal's story. The article in Friday's Journal quoted B. D. Sartain, campaign manager for the "Anti-Smith Democrats of Texas" and listed, in addition to Lubbock, El Paso, Waco, Austin, Lufkin, Corpus Christi, Sulphur Springs, Beaumont, Orange, and Laredo, as locations for regional headquarters. Each headquarters will have a manager and a stenographer, the article said.

To Co-operate

Mr. O'Neall did say, however, that if such an office was opened in Lubbock that his organization would subordinate itself to the regional headquarters and would work hand in hand with that office. The headquarters, Mr. Sartin announced in the Friday dispatch, will be opened sometime this week.

The district chairman also announced yesterday that representation on the executive committee would be given every county in the district and that the drive would be district-wide in its scope.

"We do not intend to make a personal affair,' he stated, "and it is not our aim to indulge in a political war or to deal in personalities, We do hope, though, that through our efforts this section of Texas will go into the Hoover columns in the general election."

Has Had Experience

Mr. O'Neall has had other active political experiences. He served as mayor of San Diego, California, and was chairman of San Diego county's democratic committee in 1912 when Wilson was first elected, and again in 1916 when California's unexpected shift from Hughes to Woodrow Wilson gave the Democratic party another victory. was chairman of the congressional district democratic executive committee for seven southern California counties.

Mr. Wheelock, one of the first citizens of Lubbock, is also well known in political circles here. He has filled various positions and at present is serving as the county's democratic chairman although the place was declared vacant and C. B. Powell, a "regular", was appointed to fill it two weeks ago when the county executive committee disagreed with Mr. Wheelock concerning the legality of the party pledge.

Mr. Ratliff has also been actively engaged in politics, serving in two official capacities as a member of the democratic party of Texas. Before moving here from Cooper, Texas, a few years ago he represented his home county as County judge and was senator from the old Third senatorial district in the 30 and the 31st legislatures.

Air Derby

lieved he still was first in elapsed time.

The other fliers were strung out over Texas, with all but two of the 25 starters checked through Abilene.

George W. Brill, Monterey Park, Cal., flying a Travelair, had not been heard from since he scudded Westward from Fort Worth with his fellow racers It was thought probable he had been forced to land at some point en route.

Dale G. Jackson, St. Louis, piloting a Swallow, was forced to land a mile nort hof Moran, Texas, and apparenlty was out of the race with a broken water line and broken cylinder. He was not injured. He left Fort Worth in fourth place.

An unexpected arrival at Abilene was Leslie C. Miller of Los Angeles, who dropped far behind the field when he made a forced landing in Kansas. He landed at 12:09, having left Wichita, Kan., at 5:45 a. m. After fueling his plane he continued on in pursuit of the other racers, who were three or four hours ahead of him.

Derryberry in Sixth.

Louis Derryberry, Abilene, Texas, with the benedictions of home folks still riding with him, brought his Travelair, "Miss Abilene-West Texas" in sixth. His time was 12:49:30.

Preceding Derryberry in was E. J. Detmer, Tarrytown, N. Y., flying a Travelair, with time of 12:44:30.

Other arrivals in order:

7—James S. Charles, Richmond, Va., Eagle Rock, 12:51.

Class B and Class C Group Make First Stop

TERRE HAUTE, Ind., Sept. 8. (AP)—Flying blindly out of the fog-hidden mountains of Pennsylvania, 17 of the 20 class B airplanes in the trans-continental air derby arrived here safely late today for their first night's rest. Three others cracked up enroute and apparently were out of the running, officials said.

Three of four class C planes, those of the large cabin type, also reported to the Terre Haute airport. Leaving Roosevelt field three hours after the class B contestants, they escaped the fog banks which gave to many a veteran pilot as great an air thrill as he ever has had.

John H. Livingston, Monmouth, Illinois, who started sixth from New York, was the first to report at Terre Haute in class B race. He left New York at 7:23:30 in his Waco, accompanied by M. B. Allen, of Troy, O., eastern standard time and reached the Indiana stop at 12:05:56, central standard time.

E. O. Schultze, of Pittburgh, flying a Cessna and accompanied by R. Yohner, Pittsburgh, was second in Terre Haute. J. Warren Smith of Pittsburgh, in a Cessna B, was third after having been the seventeenth to leave New York.

"Deservedly the platform will endorse the administration of state affairs as honest, faithful and decent" the statement said.

Acceptance is Postscript

"Governor Smith's telegram of acceptance added an unexpected postscript to the national platform. Raskob's prohibition deliverance came to dry democrats as an unwelcome infliction. Governor Smith's acceptance address, amplifying his prohibition views, is a challenge to the prohibition sentiment of the nation inside and outside the democratic party.

Will Texas Face It?

"How will the organized Democracy in Texas answer the bold proposal to renew the old-time partnership between the government and booze? The issue is made. To dodge it would not be brave. To be silent might mean to indorse.

seems favorable, a survey shows. Opinions of a number of local business and professional men indicate favorable action in the bond election, with the only ones not yet sold those who are not well acquainted with the issues involved.

The $350,000 is appropriated in the following manner: $180,000 for the city's part in the proposed subway construction; $60,000 for storm sewer additions to relieve the present drainage problem and the additional one created by the new subways; $25,000 for addition to the sanitary sewer system increased because of the city's growth; $20,000 for street lights, considered one of the predominate needs of the city; and $25,000 for an additional program to meet the applications which are being received by the city officials almost daily. The paving program includes the paving of various streets throughout the city. The other appropriation in the bond issue is $40,000 for extension and improvement of the city water system. In addition to extending the system the issue will care for enlarging the water mains in the business section so as to meet with the requirements of the State Fire Insurance commission.

PORTLAND, Maine, Sept. 8. (AP)—Maine's state election campaign closed tonight with oratory in almost every hub of population in the state with Senator Curtis, republican vice presidential nominee, sounding the final blast for his party in a "prosperity" address here.

death the police had made efforts to link Capone. Capone also was being sought.

There also was a theory that Lombardo's death may be linked with the bombing 12 hours earlier of the home of Capt. Luke Gharrick of the Des Plaines street police station. This theory was that Lombardo's enemies, believing he had instigated the bombing, killed him because they thought it ruined their chances for carrying on business in the district.

Bodyguards Tell Little

From Lombardo's bodyguards the police learned little, Ferraro, wounded so seriously he is expected to die, refused to talk today even when told death was near. Joseph Loiordo, who escaped unscathed and chased one of the slayers until stopped by a policeman, likewise was reticient.

KNOXVILLE, Tenn., Sept. 8. (AP) The record of the Harding and Coolidge administrations toward World war veterans was attacked here tonight by Senator Robinson, democratic vice presidential nominee, who declared "elimination of political influence" in selection of those charged with the care of veterans would improve conditions.

The democratic vice presidential nominee assailed Mr. Coolidge for vetoing the Soldiers' Bonus Bill and aid congress "to its everlasting credit" had enacted the measure into law over the objection of the chief executive.

Friendliness Of Canada And The U. S. Is Stressed

Plain Speaking On War and Peace Marks Session Of League Of Nations Assembly Session

(By Associated Press)

GENEVA, Sept. 8.—Plain speaking on the war and peace, on meaning of the Kellogg pact and on the need for disarmament characterized today's session of the assembly of the League of Nations.

Herman Mueller, socialist chancellor of Germany; Nicholas Politis, brilliant legal light of Greece, and Minetchiro Adachi, Japanese ambassador to France, led delegates of fifty nations into storms of applause as they eloquently pictured dire results that might follow acts of international injustice.

Premier MacKenzie of Canada achieved a striking personal success when, in simple but potent phrases, he held up as an example for the world the long and untroubled reign of peace between Canada and the United States.

The assembly seemed particularly impressed by the declaration that the 3,000 miles of undefended Canadian-American frontier symbolizes renunciation of war just as the Kellogg pact does.

Disarmament must come or the League of Nations will be a failure, was a sentiment expressed by Chancellor Mueller. He followed this with a warning Germany could not go on indefinitely under limitations or armaments imposed on her by the Versailles treaty while other countries permitted to build up their sea and air forces.

Philadelphia Shake-Up, As Manoeuvered By Grand Jury, Looses Out City Captain Of Sleuths

(By Associated Press)

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 8—Immediate removal of Charles Beckman, captain of the city detective force, was recommended by the grand jury today. A few minutes later Mayor Mackey ordered Beckman suspended pending trial before the civil service board.

The jury, investigating bootlegging and gangster shootings, in its second report in a week, found that Beckman "is not fit to hold any office under the municipal government."

"We report," the document said, "that our investigation thus far, among other things, had developed there has been and is now in this country, a direct connection between certain members of the police force and a well organized group of persistent lawbreakers who comprise the mos dangerous element in our community; desperate men, defiant even of the fundamental rules under which our citizens live.

Te report did not indicate nature of the evidence presented against Beckman. The jury, in its first report last week stated that it had evidence that high police officials had been bribed by bootleggers.

A list of books to be studied through the winter include Conrad's "Renee Mauperin;" Tolstoy's "Resurrection" and "Anna Karenina;" [illegible] Folks" by Dostoevsky; "Crime Sylvestre Bonard," France; [illegible] of Noblemen," Turgenev; [illegible]ant's "Une Vie;" Hudson's "Green Mansions;" "Far From the Maddening Crowd" by Hardy; "Way of all Flesh" by Butler; Verga's "Mastro Don Gesualdo;" Tomlinson's "Gallion's Reach;" Forster, "Passage to India," and "The Ugly Duchess" by Lionel Feuchtwanger.

Among the activities of this club, in addition to study, are child welfare work, sponsorship of the County Library and of a Tech student loan fund.

Flares Of Color Accompany Last Stand Of Summer With Late Season Waning Even In Resorts Of the Far East

MISS FREDERICA GALLATIN

MRS. HENRY STEELE ROBERTS

BY BETSY SCHUYLER
NEA Service Writer

NEW YORK, Sept 8—The summer season, like a sunset, grows more brilliant just before it disappears.

New York proper has a snap in it now, suggestive of the quickened walk of autumn. Svelte cloche turbans and irregularly brimmed fall hats are bobbing up here and there. Even fur-trimmed fall coats are coming in on all the liners.

But take a ride to the beaches. Summer still reigns supreme, with flowered chiffons, big, floppy hats, gay bathing suits and accessories that shriek of brilliant sunlight, blinding sands and the dazzling water.

Gayer Than Ever

Newport has not been so gay all summer as this last fortnight. The regatta brought out everyone. White costumes predominated, with accessories in bright red, blues of the new medium colors and orange.

The preference for pink shown at Newport promises a great popularity for that color this winter. Carol Stevenson has a stunning pink plaid silk suit, with pleated skirt and cardigan, a plain flesh colored jumper and with it she wears pink sandals and a pink felt hat.

On these days golf finals and tennis matches promise quite as much excitement as the regatta and formal dances have in the past. Not that dances are over, by any means. Gowns for these events are quite long skirted, rather beating town clothes to it for new style.

Marian Wickes looked stunning one night in a diaphanous white gown, with the deep rounded decollete, and scintillating with brilliants. Fully as enhancing, I decided, as the smart riding togs one usually finds this clever horsewoman wearing.

Turbans This Winter?

Costumes everywhere mark a decided interest in intricate cut and design. I saw Mrs. Henry Steele Roberts wearing a purple frock and hat that was intriguing. It featured pointed lines and sharp angles and yet was extremely graceful in its line. The neckline, for instance, was sharp and irregular, the skirt's yoke dipped in points and yet the double-tiered skirt, accordian pleated, flared to even length all around.

The turban headdress is particularly becoming to the young. Anyone would be convinced of its charm seeing Frederica Gallatin, with a medium blue silk kerchief wound round that fair head of hers. Judging by the skill with which many of these young women can wind up their own heads, I rather fancy the Parisian idea of using a piece of fine satin to fashion one's own turban may persist this winter. Frederica wore a wide blue suede belt with a lighter blue frock, a belt with a very wide buckle. It was very smart.

The use of soft trimmings to give a feminine touch to sports things is a new line for informal clothes to adopt. Mrs. Harold Talbot wore an extremely smart one-piece lavender silk sports frock with angora in the same shade running around the neck, on the sleeves and cuffs.

Expect Splendid Show Of Flowers

Gardens Here Are Flaunting Brilliant Array Of Late Blossoms; Fair Display To Be Enhanced

With flower gardens of Lubbock flaunting their gayest blossoms late this summer, it is thought that the flower show at the Panhandle-South Plains Fair the first of October will be more beautiful than it has been during any previous exposition, according to Mrs. W. O. Stevens, who is superintendent of this division.

Increasing interest in beautifying homes in Lubbock has led to the planting of more flowers here each year and has enhanced the splendor of this display, which occupies a place in the women's building at the fair grounds. The variety of blossoms acclimated to West Texas is increasing, Mrs. Stevens said.

Need New Bouquets.

Unless bouquets are replenished this fall, there will be some difficulty in keeping the flower show pretty throughout the week of the fair, as it is to continue through six days, according to this superintendent, who is urging those who bring cut flowers to bring other blossoms during the week.

At this time there are some particularly beautiful specimens of roses and dahlias here and unless there is some unusual weather, it is expected that these will contribute much to the flower show, Mrs. Stevens believes.

There are a few rare flowers growing here for which there are no premium lists for next year.

List Few Changes.

Only a few changes were noted in flower lists for this fall. Prizes are offered for cannas and for the best and most artistically arranged basket of flowers, these being innovations.

Among the cut flowers included in the lists are roses, zinnias, cosmos, dahlias, snapdragon, cannas, golden glow daisies, marigold, cockscomb, gladiolas, asters, nasturtiums, verbenas, petunias, phlox, sweet peas, bachelor buttons. Potted plants for which premiums are offered include ferns, geranium, begonia, rubber plant, palm, coleus, hanging baskets window boxes and the best collections of ferns or plants.

All potted plants must be entered not later than 4 o'clock on Saturday afternoon, September 29, and cut flowers will be received until noon on October 1. Premiums on the latter group will be awarded on Monday.

An exhibitor must be an amateur who raises and cultivates flowers purely for pleasure and ornament, according to regulations concerning this display.

In a quiet wedding tomorrow morning at the First Baptist church, Miss Lucille Hardberger, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. R. E. Hardberger, 1921 12th street, will become the bride of J. One-Minute Interviews

Twelve Glasses Of Water a Day Her Health Aid

While there is so much talk of the wet and dry problem in America today, Emma Roberts, famous mezzo-contralto concert singer, has a word to say for water.

"Long ago I learned that I sang much better when I consistently drank water every hour during the day and evening," said Miss Roberts. "I make it a rule to have 12 glasses a day. Sometimes a glass of hot water taken upon rising is excellent. Other times a cold drink of water seems as stimulating to the digestive track as a cold shower to the body.

EMMA ROBERTS

"I think, too, that if you make it a point to remember to drink plenty of water, you find it easier to watch all of your health habits, the kind and amount of food you eat, regularity in meals, plenty of sleep and regular exercise.

"If people would only take the same care of their bodies that they do of their expensive cars, good health would be a more universal asset. They use just the right kind of oil, gas and so on in their cars, and then think nothing of eating terrible mixtures of food. Exhileration and verve are born of good health. The first step towards them, I think, is to take at least 12 glasses of water a day."

Purely Social Activities Of Summer Will Be Supplemented By Club Study As Initial Fall Meetings Are Held

Parent-Teacher Associations To Meet Soon; Visitors Continue To Be Feted By Lubbock Women

Social and study clubs of the city, which disbanded during the summer months, are begining activities that will continue through the next nine months here. Throughout September and the first part of October there will be initial meetings.

With the opening of the public schools, the parent-teacher association members are thinking of their work for the year. First gatherings of these groups will not take place, however, until the school routine is established, according to officers in the associations.

Booths are being planned by some organizations for the South Plains fair the first week in October.

Few Parties

The lethargy of summer and the round of purely social activities which has accompanied the presence of many summer visitors will give way to more serious activities among the city women this month. During the week just past there were few parties, the most pretentious evetn of the week being a chicken supper dance at the George Boles ranch Thursday evening for members of the Dancing club. This was a gay affair, given by Mr. and Mrs. Frank Winn, Mr. and Mrs. Joe Hilton, Mr. and Mrs. Hub Jones and Mr. and Mrs. Houston Spikes.

There were a few affairs complimenting visitors, including a bridge party on Thursday morning at the E. E. Halley residence, 1619 Main street, given by Mrs. Halley and Mrs. J. B. Galland for Miss Louise Slagle of Los Angeles, and Mrs. Max Howard of Big Spring, and a swimming party early Tuesday morning, given by Mrs. Marvin Spaulding for her niece, Miss Parsalee Payton of Abilene. Miss Dorothy Rushing entertained a few friends with dancing Thursday evening, honoring Miss Payton.

Clubs Meeting

Junior Twentieth Century club members met at the Technological college on Tuesday afternon to begin a study of novels and the mother society of this organization, the Twentieth Century society, is to have its first meeting Tuesday of this week.

A session of the Child Study club was called last Wednesday with the president, Mrs. L. E. Miller, and Sorosis club members are to meet at 3:30 o'clock Tuesday afternoon with Mrs. I. F. Holland, 1920 13th street.

Two needle societies which have been disbanded for the summer will meet Wednesday. These are the Wednesday Needle club and the 1916 Needle club.

"I'll tell you what is. She has a flair for life—a spark—a zest. I have never known any situation so bad but that she made an adventure out of it."

We were discussing Beth, by long odds the most popular girl of the crowd. Everyone had a reason for Beth's talent for inspiring devotion. But I wondered if Tom's analysis concerning her flair for living, her desire for adventure, translating even hardships into adventure, did not about hit the nail on the head best of all.

Not long ago Beth and Marie and I had started off in Beth's little roadster one Saturday afternoon for a week-end at Marie's cottage, about 50 miles away.

It had rained fiercely all day. Marie had called us both to wonder if the excursion shouldn't be cancelled.

"I should say not!" Beth replied. "The rain makes it all the more fun." So with the wind howling and the rain lashing, Beth picked us up in her little roadster, sans curtains.

"The rain won't last long and it's so fresh and nice with the air coming in. Gee, don't you love rain?" she asked, immediately making something gas and welcome out of what might have been a damper on the lark.

One never plans one's occasions with Beth. One never says, "Now, we'll dine here or we'll have a picnic lunch or a roast at night." Beth is one of these creatures of impulses who thinks that things are spoiled when you plan on them.

Marie is no. Which is why Marie began fussing not only about the rain coming into the car but about stopping for dinner while yet in the city and knowing where the restaurants were.

"But it'll be such fun to find a new place," said Beth. "There must be something quaint and different and unexpected out along the way."

So we drove in wind and rain in quest of adventure. It was a lark. Beth's insistence that it was made it that to even fussy Marie.

And sure enough, there was "something quaint and different and unexpected," even if it did mean following an arrow down a mud-road which was about all that "Iris," the roadster could manage.

The arrow led to a brown-thatched, brown-shingled inn in the woods. "Robin Hood's Barn," it was aglearn with copper and irons and spit and scuttle was heaven, as was the aroma of the chickens turning on a spit in the fireplace.

It was black night when we left the inn and blacker still when, a few miles on, Beth blithely discovered that she was out of gas.

There was nothing to do but walk for it. We walked three miles through mud and rain and darkness but even then Beth's spirits didn't wane, though Marie's depression cheerfulness an effort.

It's a long tale, and journey's end was reached at dawn. A roaring fire in the kitchen stove, great cups of black coffee and thick sandwiches, "capped a glorious adventure," to quote Beth, who, tired and wet to the bone, could still find savor even in that.

We've all known such people with a flair for adventure, a making of occasions from anything. Lead me to 'em and spare me the wet blankets!

BRIDGE MADE EASY by W. W. Wentworth

(Abbreviations: A—ace; K—king; Q—queen; J—jack; X—any card lower than 10).

READING CARDS—5

Another method of conveying information through the fall of the cards is the "echo" or "high-low" signal, and an example of it follows:

Assume that you hold spades 10, 3. Your partner's opening lead is the spade king and is followed by the lead of the spade ace. You want the suit continued so that you may trump the third round of spades. You inform your partner of this desire by playing the spade 10 on the first round and the spade 3 on the second round.

The encouraging discard is another signal which will be interpreted easily. Assume that the declaration is no trump. West holds diamonds A K Q X X. He plays that suit until his partner's diamonds are exhausted. He wants his partner to signal what new suit he should open. East should discard a 7 or higher of any suit he wants led.

Discarding from weakness is also an approved method of signalling. Let us assume that in this instance east cannot afford to weaken his strong suit by discarding from it. He therefore discards a 6 or lower if possible from another suit. West learns from this discouraging discard that east does not want to have that particular suit led. This signal assists west in drawing an inference as to east's probable strong suit.

Coolidge

sounded out the chief executive regarding his willingness to lend his voice to the aid of the Hoover-Curtis ticket.

Newton said he could not reveal exact outcome of his conversation with Coolidge but stated his call had been successful.

The president is engaged in correspondence with Governor Weeks, Vermont, regarding details of his projected trip to his state, and is awaiting advice as to a suitable time to undertake the journey. It was indicated the chief executive would choose some special occasion giving him the opportunity to deliver an address to coincide with his presence in Vermont.

Newton said he expected intensive republican speaking programs to begin about September 20 and to continue until election day. For this purpose he has the whole cabinet and a large group of prominent republicans signed up, whom he will send throughout the country as circumstances may require.

Sumptious And Delicate Furs And Laces Are Back In Favor In Fall Styles

Chic dainties that add dash to the well-dressed woman; left to right: Sumptuous and flattering is the elongated, soft white fox neckpiece. A formal tailored bag of brown antelope, with modernistic tucks and a handsome fastening of carnelian, onyx and marcasite set in silver;; a bracelet matches. A scintillating evening set of kerchief and envelope purse of ombre paillettes. A diaphenous chiffon hanky of generous size is apricot chiffon with black lace. Molyneux's new costume jewelry uses with blue wooden beads alternately with clusters of small gold beads to fashion necklace and bracelet.

By JULIA BLANSHARD
NEA Service Writer.

NEW YORK, Sept. 8.—Accessories always are a barometer for the modes of the moment. In the strictly tailored era from which we have just emerged, accessories avoided dainty feminine paths and stayed as strictly tailored as the sports clothes they accompanied.

Now we see the reverse. It is essentially a feminine era in clothes. So there is a headlong rush of accessories into the delicate, the filmy, the sumptitious and the femininely beautiful. Furs are back for rich touches to costumes, hats, bags, coats and scarfs. Laces, paillettes, shimmering sequins and gold and silver laces all have their part in fashioning the richest accessories the present generation ever has worn.

Crystals' Popular

Real stones characterize new autumn jewelry, and gold and silver mount them. Crystals play a tremendous part in the decoration of this winter's smart women. The newest are the sthing-cut crystals, discs that are big in circumference but thin. Pearls are still good, in two or three strand cuts.

But costume jewelry from Paris is very ingenious and very individual. Necklace, bracelet, purse fastening and belt buckle make up some new jewelry ensemble sets. Coral, carnelian, onyx, jade cut originally andset in sterling silver or white gold, are popular types of jewelry.

Molyneux shows originality by making a stunning necklace and bracelet set of knots of small gold beads strung between big wooden beads stained bluer than sapphire. They are light, gorgeously colorful and extremely smart.

Brown and Blue

Fur belts are new this year, usually taking ornamental buckles for contrast. Cut jet is good, or some richly colored stone, like coral. Scarfs of fur range from a tiny stone marten skin to the new two-yard long white fox scarf which looks like a single, slinky, sumptuous animal, with his head about one's shoulders and his feet reaching almost to one's knees. The wrong side is padded satin.

Purses differ as much as costumes, though brown tones and medium blue shades seem likely to receive the most attention. One handsome imported set has brown antelope bag with modernistic tucks, and a rich fastening of carnelian, marcasite and onyx on sterling. A bracelet of similar stones and a necklace of jaggedly cut carnelians makes up the set.

Evening accessories are scintillating in their beauty. Dazzling shoulder pins of real stones and crystals are excellent. Lucky the woman wha has rubies or emeralds. If flowers are worn they are apt to be exquisitely made of chenille, of satin, lace or chiffon from which the gown itself is fashioned.

The evening kerchief set is fashioned of sparkling paillettes in sombre effects, perhaps shading from silver through lavender to purple. The kerchief knots on the shoulder and is rich looking and becoming. Its little envelope purse may be of gold or silver with paillettes paneled into it.

Huge evening hankies are new, too, fashioned of 18 inch squares of filmy chiffon and using contrasting lace profusely. On ties them about the wrist, when dancing. The same sized hankies, in finely patterned handkerchief linens, are tucked in the pockets of the season's smartest tilleurs, to flow gracefully over the side in a colorful wave.

Hosiery remains plain sheer chiffon, unclocked and undecorated. Shades that blend with browns are the best, at this moment, for autumn glorifies brown, if any season ever did. The mesh stockings are still excellent for sports wear and with tailleours, but the fancier the costume, the plainer the hosiery. New red and brown shoes are so decorative themselves that they need no help.

The same is true of gloves. Gauntlets of tan glazed kid, mocha, fine chamois and some new leathers are excellent. Plain stitching characterizes them. And the straps that fasten them at the wrists are apt to be plain, also, with only stiching to ornament them.

YOUR CHILDREN

by Olive Roberts Barton

©1928 by NEA Service, Inc.

There is nothing truer than that the world takes us at our own value. The child who always steps back and allows others to elbow him out of place will react to his own behavior and keep sliding down in eventually the esteem of others.

He will feel in time, certainly and surely, that he was born to take a back seat in the world. He will obsequiously kow-tow to children who are his inferiors in mental and character make-up.

I have seen many well-bred children who were brought up to consider the feelings of others before themselves sidestep to allow some ruthless companion to shove himself into their place. I have come to the conclusion that one of the first things children should be taught is the gentle are of standing up for themselves.

The creed that I speak of need not interfere one whit with generosity. It deals mire with a fine sense of justice and in showing a child that he has as much right to his own consideration as others.

A certain boy got up a little summer club for hiking, swimming and things that boys love to do. Instantly his close friend conceived the idea of organization and made himself president. The first boy did most of the work. The second boy got all the honors and "bossed" things. The first boy, loyal to a fault, allowed it to pass "because," as he explained to his parents, "Bob's smart and he can do things I can't do."

But his parents knew better.

Jane's aunt took five little girls on a picnic in her car. The glory rather reflected on Jane, who was instrumental in getting it up. Her mother put up the lunch, provided robes and swimming suits and what not for the children's comfort.

When it came time to get into the waiting sedan, Jane, expected the seat of honor beside her aunt. But there was Betty, already ensconced. Jane stayed in back with the others. Betty pointed out the places she had been to, all along the road. Betty knew this and knew that, Betty did this and that and he other thing. It was Betty's pary. Well-bred Jane never said a word.

But her aunt was not stupid.

That night she remarked to Jane's mother, "You have taught Jane everything to make other people happy, but left her out. It's high time you were giving her a lesson in spunk."

The Retinement of Service
---Applied---

Service — co-operation — mutual understanding — Helpful Suggestion and many such phrases seem to have taken on new meaning in recent years—where they once were merely words, they now are slogans and watchwords and have some part in every live-going-business of to-day and to these we apply "the Golden Rule" and live it as nearly as is possible to do and just how near we have come to the mark is evidence by our standing and growth in the community.

MRS. WINGRED DIRECTS PLAY

The "Tom Thumb" wedding sponsored by the Presbyterian ladies and presented at the Rialto Theater, Friday evening, Aug. 31, was ably directed by Mrs. Roy Wingred. The assemblage of tiny children was beautifully trained and the performance was a compliment to the directress, Mrs. Wingred, and her loyal assistants, Mrs. Stephen Hopson, Mrs. J. E. Shelton and Mrs. J. D. Miller. The vast audience gave evidence of appreciation, as the children depicted several well-known people of our local community. A remarkable resemblance was readily seen, as the children came in couples and were introduced. But the exquisite touch was reached, when the bridal party entered. Little Miss Bobbie Virginia Bowers, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. R. L. Bowers, bride, was a lovely little bride attired in true wedding finery, which included the long tulle veil, with rhinestones. The groom, Charles Baldwin, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles R. Baldwin, was indeed handsome in a tuxedo suit. Little Miss Jane Brownfield, as maid of honor, was beautiful in a rainbow costume, as were the tiny brides maides, who were Elizabeth Ann Smith, Sna Jo May, Elouise McSpadden, Bernie Marie Baldwin, Betty Virginia Shelton, and Jackie Holt. Daintily made little hats were worn by these maids. Flower girls were extremely pretty and tiny girls wearing pink and white and were all carrying baskets filled with petals. They were Jean Knight, Maxine Hunter and Ida May May. The master of ceremonies, Burdett Auburg, a young clergyman, only 8 years old, is the son of Mr. and Mrs. J. T. Auburg, performed the wonderful make-believe ceremony in true, adult style. Larry Miller, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. D. Miller, though a tiny boy, performed the part of page in a pleasing way. Little Dorothy Bynum, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Virgil Bynum, sang sweetly, preceding the ceremony, "Girl of My Dreams". Ushers on august occasion wearing tuxedos were Claude Hudgens, jr., Laddie Lynn Brownfield, Bobbie Lewis, Otis Greenfield, L. A. Greenfield, jr. Joe Hardin. The proceeds will be used in building a primary Sunday school room. The ladies appreciate the efforts of all the children and others, who were a part in making the occasion a success.

Accomplishments Of G. O. P. Regime Are Pointed Out

Senator Curtis Details Tax Slashes, Reduction Of The Public Debt And Other Work Of Administration

(By Associated Press)

BANGOR, Me. Sept. 8.—Reductions of income taxes, government expenses and of the public debt during the seven years of republican adminstration were detailed tonight by Senator Curtis, republican vice presidential nominee, in a speech here.

The senator came to Maine to apply the finishing touch on an extensive republican campaign for state election to be held Monday.

Republicans here still make use of the old adage, "As Maine goes, so goes the nation."

Senator Curtis added his word for the state ticket in his speech tonight with a strong plea for an all-republican delegation to congress.

Discussing the government's fiscal affairs, Senator Curtis in his prepared address stated that the public debt had been slashed during the republican administration by about $6,272,000,000. Taxes have been cut four times and the total of appropriations to run the government now are about $4,000,000,000 as compared with $7,000,000,000 required in 1920 when the party was about to come into power at the close of the war.

Sequel To Great Air Film Coming

Palsce To Feature Aviation Theme Tuesday, Through Thursday; Gary Cooper Is At His Best

Characterized as the companion picture to "Wings," Paramount's great epic of the air, "The Legion of the Condemned," another story of the war from the standpoint of the aviator, comes to the Palace Theatre next Tuesday for a three days' run.

Here is a story that differs entirely in story content from the famous broadway show, but in color, romance, characterization and downright thrills, "The Legion of the condemned" has taken its place right alongside the production which is still standing them up in the larger cities.

Like "Wings" the tale is from the pen of John Monk Saunders, a member of the United States Air Corps during the War, and is directed by William Wellman, who saw service with the Lafayette Squadron and who is credited with the direction of "Wings."

The photoplay deals with an unattached flying unit at the French front, composed of men who, because of their dark pasts, wanted to die. Their daring exploits were the talk of the war. Nothing was too hazardous as an undertaking. Into this group of men who welcomed death comes Gary Cooper as the young American newspaperman, betrayed by his sweetheart. The high spot shows Cooper forced to carry his ex-sweetheart across the German lines as a spy.

Fay Wray, as the spy-sweetheart, and Cooper head the cast which includes Barry Norton, "Mother's Boy" of "What Price Glory," Lane Chandler, Francis McDonald, Voya George, Freeland Wood, E. H. Calvert, Charlot Bird.

In the flying sequences are many of the world famous pilots who participated in the making of "Wings."

another Lubbock county pioneer: F. C. Cotten, of Amarillo; Arthur Cottem, Yoakum county cattleman, and J. D. Quick, an associate of Mr. Dickinson's in various local business firms. Other Lubbock people will be associated in the project, Mr. Decker said and the ranch company will be incorporated with a capitalization of 50,000.

F. C. Cotten, an experienced fox rancher who resided in Denver prior to moving to Amarillo will be manager of the ranch and an experienced keeper, who will feed and otherwise care for the animals, will be brought here in November. Only the finest type of silver foxes will be bred, Mr. Decker says. Ten acres will comprise the ranch.

Is Grown Industry

Breeding of silver foxes has become a great industry in the sections where the busines is now being carried on and according to Mr. Decker the climatic conditions of this area are admirably adapted to the work. A ranch is now in operation at Amarillo.

Mr. Dickinson, who has made a study of the business, is optimistic concerning it and especially of the future of the local ranch. Breeding of the foxes has reached the point of success where various universities have added its study to their courses offered and those engaged in the work se it as a big business in the future, he says.

Announcement of officials will be made soon, it was stated yesterday.

Lubbock Theatres Offer Varied Program For Week

Bebe Daniels, Richard Barthelmess And Mildred Harris Are Headliners In Outstanding Movies Booked Here

"Hot News" Will Open This Afternoon For Two Days; "The Little Shepherd Of Kingdom Come" Coming

Lubbock's leading theatres are offering varied and interesting programs for the coming week with high class attractions featuring each day, managers announced yesterday. Bebe Daniels, Richard Barthelmess, Tom Santchi, Mildred Harris and other favorites of the silver screen will be featured. Chief among the attractions are "Hot News", "The Legion of the Condemned" and "The Little Shepherd of Kingdom Come."

At the Palace Theatre today and Monday, Bebe Daniels will be shown in "Hot News", an absorbing, swift-moving story of a girl reporter on a newspaper. In it, Miss Daniels plays a role which is perfectly suited to her vivacious personality. Her experiences as a reporter take her into many exciting situations which require initiative and fearlessness.

In one case, she has to resort to a disguise in order to gain entrance into an exclusive lawn fete, and she has prepared for her a gorgeous blonde wig. When she wears it, the change in her appearance is striking, for Bebe Daniels is habitually referred to as "the raven-haired star of the screen." She is supported in "Hot News" by Neil Hamilton and Paul Lukas.

Air Story Tuesday

On Tuesday, the Palace Theatre, is showing Paramount's epic of the air, "The Legion of the Condemned" another war story by John Monk Saunders, the author of "Wings".

Like "Wings", this picture is a reproduction of the romance and horrors of the Great War as seen by the aviator. "The Legion of the Condemned" tells of an unattached flying unit of the French front, made up of men who wanted to die, because they had dark pasts to remember. They were daredevils; they stopped at nothing. Their hazardous undertakings made them the talk of the war. An into this vagabond group of men comes Gary Cooper as a young American newspaperman, who has been betrayed by his sweetheart. There follows a series of thrilling exploits, the climax of which is the instance when Cooper is forced to carry his ex-sweetheart across the German lines as a spy.

Mystery At Lindsey

The Lindsey Theatre brings to Lubbock next Monday a story of mystery and intrigue in "The Haunted Ship", suggested from "White and Yellow", a poular Jack London story. The cast includes Dorothy Sebastian, Montagu Love, Tom Santchi, Pat Harmon, Ray Hallor, and Alice Lake. "The Haunted Ship" the scene of many dreadful happenings in the story, seemed really to be hoodooed during the filming. When the company left its studio in Hollywood, things began to happen. Ray Hallor had an automobile accident, barely escaping with his life; the schooner which was to take the members to "The Haunted Ship" became lost in a fog and got caught in a terrific storm before it arrived; and during the mutiny scene, the boats which were to pick up the men who jumped overboard, got lost in a thick fog and had to grope blindly for the men as they swam in the cold water. Because of these incidents, "The Haunted Ship" has a big touch of reality to it.

Barthelmess Coming Soon

Next Friday and Saturday at the Palace, John Fox's widely read romance of the Kentucky hills, "The Little Shepherd of Kingdom Come" will be shown, with Richard Barthelmess as the little shepherd.

Richard Barthelmess is especially well adapted to play the part of Chad Buford, the Kentucky mountain lad, who read every book he could get hold of and dreamed of the grand people in "the settlements". Chad, the little orphan, who wanted a chance to do big things, gets his big opportunity and one day goes down to "the settlements" on a raft, with his dog, Jack. There he meets a lovable old Southern colonel, who takes him into his heart and home, and Chad learns what it is to know "quality folks" and to love a young Southern belle, forgetting his little mountain sweetheart. Then, the Civil War comes on, and a break follows with the old Colonel. The ending is satisfactory, though full of pathos. Richard Barthelmess makes of the whole story a masterpiece of characterization.

Bright Theme At Lyric

"Husband Hunters" is the name of the picture which the Lyric Theatre will show Monday and Tuesday. Among the cast are Robert Cain, Mae Busch, Mildred Harris, Walter Hiers, Duane Thompson, and Jimmy Harrison. "Husband Hunters" is the rollicking story of a group of chorus girls who are desperate for husbands. In every man they see a potential husband and use all their feminine wiles to get them to declare themselves. Jean Arthur, a new screen star, shows great promise as an actress in her portrayal of the role of Letty Crane, a small town girl who seeks her fortune on the New York stage.

Plan Improvement At Lyric And Rex

New Furnishings Are To Be Added To Lyric; Painting Of Lobby Will Also Help To Please Customers

Several improvements are being made at the Lyric and Rex Theatres, according to G. T. Scales, owner. Those at the Lyric include a number of new furnishings; a new motor generator set, peerless lamps, tearproof "silversheets" screen, opera chairs, and new music. Besides, the front and lobby will be repainted, completing a renovation which will make the Lyric one of the most modern and up-to-date theatres in Lubbock.

At the Rex Theatre, re-calcimising and painting, both inside and out, is being done. The floor will have a 26 inch slope and two hundred new opera chairs will be installed. New music will be furnished, also. This theatre will be open every day, starting September 24th.

Picture Players Jinxed As Movie Is Made At Sea

"The Haunted Ship", Which Comes To Lindsey, Filmed Under Adverse Conditions On The Pacific

The cast of the Tiffany-Stahl Production "The Haunted Ship" suggested from the Jack London story "White and Yellow" will always remember their life on board the good ship "Billings" the oldest five-masted scooner, put into commission shortly after the Civil War. The location for the scenes of the picture being directed by Forest Sheldon, was thirty miles off the coast of California in the supposedly mild Pacific. Beside the crew the cast included Dorothy Sebastian, Montagu Love, Tom Santchi, Pat Harmon, Ray Hallor, Alice Lake, and the members of the production unit.

From the time the company left the Tiffany-Stahl studios in Hollywood a hoodoo seemed to follow in their wake. First Ray Hallor did not arrive on time due to a misunderstanding. Jumping into his speed roadster he started for San Pedro, ran into a fog, hit a road undergoing repairs, jumped a chasm in the road, skidded, and landed in a ploughed field. The front wheels were smashed and with his back wrenched, he got to the road, hopped a passing machine and reached the pier.

The "Billings" out on the bounding main was enshrouded in fog. One of the company's motor boats was lost in the fog and after scouting around for several hours finally reached the ship. About three in the morning a terrific storm arose, tore into the old boat, shaking it from stern to stern and doing likewise to the frightened passengers. The schooner was shipping high seas and as Miss Sebastian exclaimed between gasps "It was like being locked in a trunk and knowing the key was lost."

To make the company members more nervous they all knew that several large kegs of gunpowder had been stored aboard the ship for the explosion which was to be staged, and anyone found smoking anywhere near the hatchways where the powder had been placed, was given the opposite direction rather hurriedly.

During the mutiny scene several men jumped overboard and the boats that were placed to pick them up in many instances became lost in the thick fog, and had to grope blindly for the men swimming in the water which was none too warm.

When the boat finally tied up at the dock in San Pedro the members heaved a sigh of relief and scurried to their homes to take a rest without being rolled out of their berths.

"The Haunted Ship" will be the feature picture attraction coming to the Lindsey theatre starting next Monday for a 2 day's run.

HURRICANE AT SEA

Steamer Bucks Gale In The Gulf Of Mexico

HOUSTON, Sept. 8 (AP).—The Weather Bureau here said today that it received a wireless message from a steamer 150 miles from Brownsville, in the Gulf of Mexico that the steamer was in a mild hurricane. The vessel was the Harry F. Parnum.

The weather bureau said the disturbance might be the storm reported near Yucatan several days ago and which, it was believed, until today, had turned inland.

Another 'Tol'able David' Role For Barthelmess To Be Feature Of "Little Shepherd Of Kingdom Come" Friday

"Tol'able David" has been re-incarnated—reborn under the magic touch of Richard Barthelmess, who once again has created a barefoot boy, in "The Little Sheperd of Kingdom Come," the idyllic film-drama, feature attraction at the Palace Theatre next Friday and Saturday.

As Chad Buford, the Kentucky mountain lad, who dreamed of "the settlement's" books and grand persons, Dick Barthelmess has added another lovable and unforgettable portrait to his already brilliant gallery.

Throughout the last few years Barthelmess has grown to be more than a name or even a personality, merely incidental designations. He has become a symbol—Romance to everygirl and son to everymother—the man-boy. A very real Peter Pan, refusing to grow up. A mirror reflecting the boyhood days of everyman.

If these United States ever decided to erect a monument to American youth, then this self-same Tol'able David and Little Shepherd

LOOK OUT NOW, WHERE WOULD IT STOP?

The Denison Herald is all up in the air, and is afraid the Supreme court is going to start something that there will be no end to. It says should the Supreme court uphold the plea of the Nevada woman in her suit against a private club for depriving her of her husband's companionship and, incidentally, his earnings, the precedent may lead to complications. If private clubs where husbands sometimes, or even frequently, resort to while away the time are responsible in damages to an aggrieved spouse, why wouldn't the principle extend to golf clubs and other places of amusement and recreation which serve as counter-attractions to the home circle?

It is our understanding that all members of the supreme tribunal not under the handicap of old age's infirmities sometimes forsake the daily grind and seek forgetfulness in chasing the elusive pill around one of Washington's classy courses. Chief Justice Taft, according to report, is a devotee of the pastime, finding therein surcease from the arduous labor of keeping the scales of justice evenly balanced. Should he hold that the lady's petition states a cause of action and if sustained by proof entitled to damages, he might awaken some morning to find a court bailiff waiting at his door to serve him with a summons to answer a similar complaint lodged by Mrs. Taft. And then the chief justice would be up against it.

Certainly the court in determining the case will take into consideration the consternation announcement of the principle would cause in countless American households. Such a disturbing element in our homes would be calculated to wreck the entire social fabric. Of course, gambling clubs are wrong and should not be tolerated. Furthermore, a man ought not to spend all his spare moments in such places in vain endeavors to court smiles from the goddess of fortune—or luck. He at least should be willing to divide his time between his club and his wife—say, on a fifty-fifty basis. But, if the law holds him responsible or the place where he resorts responsible in damages for neglect of marital duties golf clubs will have to go out of business. They can not afford to take chances.

The golf widow brigade is numerically strong now. From what we have seen and heard they only await an opening to strike; and when they do let the hammer fall the thud will be heard around the world. In truth, we know of but two in this broad land of the free who would escape visitation of outraged wrath—President Coolidge and this writer.

INCREASED PRODUCTION

A recent review of the nation's business issued by the Department of Commerce pointed out that industrial conditions are good and production is high, then said: "In manufacturing the output per worker averaged about 43 per cent higher in 1927 than in 1919." One wonders how the 1927 output would compare with that of 1909 or 1910.

The reason for the increased output per man in manufacturing is easily discovered, of course. This is an age of machinery, and men are less necessary in manufacturing now than they were a few years ago. A friend was discussing the development of The Bulletin's plant a few days ago, and during the conversation the fact was recalled that there were as many men employed in the mechanical department of this paper twenty-five years ago as there are today, although the present volume of work is ten times that of a quarter of a century ago. The reason is the development of machinery which increases and improves the daily output of the worker.

As the process of replacing men with machinery has gone forward it has been accompanied by a distinct improvement in the character of workers employed in industrial plants all over the country. The plodding laborer of a few years ago has been replaced by the skilled operator of an expensive and highly complicated piece of machinery, and his earnings have increased as emphasis has been placed upon his intelligence and initiative. It is this fact, in large measure, which accounts for the great wage advantage enjoyed by the American worker as compared with workers of other countries. The American worker operates machines which do the work, while workers in other countries are tre machines themselves.

There has been a sound reason for the great development of industrial machinery, other than the desire to speed up production. The number of actual industrial workers has not been increasing in this country as rapidly as the demand for manufactured products has increased. The labor unions have discouraged the apprentice system, or, at least, have restricted it, so that it is more or less difficult for a youth to learn any of the major trades employed in the country's manufacturing. At the same time, so many new phases of commercial and professional work have been developed that the average youth is looking to them rather than to industrial employment for his career in life; so that comparatively few are following the footsteps of their fathers and going into the industrial plants with the view of remaining there.

Whether these conditions are good or bad is one of the important questions that have been receiving consideration by the national leaders of industry. The time may come when there will not be workers to man all the industrial plants, but it is far distant, to say the least; and in the meantime the American worker is enjoying a prosperity that was unknown a few decades ago, and is the envy of his fellow worker elsewhere all over the world.

WOMAN VOTER PROBLEM

Owing to the widespread interest in the prohibition question, persons addicted to political speculation naturally are trying to gauge the influence of the woman voter in the campaign. "What will she do?" is a question put by some newspapers, especially in Southern cities. The answers are not very definite.

American women who voted in 1920 and in 1924 did not greatly influence the results of the national elections of those years. Only about 40 per cent of the women who were legally entitled to vote went to the polls—a phenomenon not at all strange, considering the remarkable ease which equal suffrage had been obtained in the United States and the difficulty of getting out the full vote of the ruder sex. Most of the women divided politically, exactly as did their husbands, fathers and brothers and cousins. That they would do so might have been foreseen.

In some circles, however, the idea persists that so-called moral and welfare issues unite women to a much greater extent than they do men. Since prohibition is regarded by them as a moral issue, it is claimed by some of the drys that four-fifths of the women will cast their ballots for the Republican ticket this year if Mr. Hoover explicitly commits himself to the status quo and opposes repeal or amendment of the Volstead law. It is true that the great national organizations of women stand for law enforcement and for a longer and more effective trial of prohibition. Whether in this view they represent the mass of the unorganized women of the urban centers is a question yet to be determined.

Psychologists and sociologists formerly contended that women were too conservative, too emotional, too disposed to put their trust in law and authority to be given the ballot. Equal suffrage, it was asserted, would lead to paternalism and overlegislation, and hence to the destruction of civil and personal liberty. This view has not been entirely abandoned, but experience thus far has not lent it much support. The November election may shed light on the interesting question.

Meantime, it may be noted that in Germany, where women's votes are tabulated separately, an analysis in seven leading cities has shown that the women, at the recent general election, voted mainly for the center parties, particularly for the Nationalists. Few of them indicated by their votes that they were either radicals or reactionaries.

A POLICE SERGEANT'S BRAVE FIGHT

Now and then we read of police deeds of heroism, the saving of a drowning persons, disarming a bandit, or a thrilling rescue from a burning building. But the brave fight of Sergeant Arthur Roth of Cleveland has been carried on in a different way—the saving of children in the rushing traffic of the city streets—and the sergeant lies seriously ill as the result of his struggle.

Three youngsters were killed in four consecutive days on the streets and Sergeant Roth's nerves left him. He lies seriously ill from a nervous breakdown as Cleveland's traffic toll for 1928 mounts past 140 lives. For eighteen hours a day Sergeant Roth has carried on a campaign of education—showing his films and giving lectures in the schools by day and putting on the same show for the truck drivers of big companies by night. The sergeant, a lover of children, put his whole heart into his work, and after automobile wheels during the first half of August had crushed out the lives of more than half a dozen little ones, he fell stricken.

If those who drive automobiles recklessly, who step on the gas in an effort to beat signal lights, who pursue the "right-of-way" ruthlessly, oblivious of others—if those drivers had only half the heart of a Sergeant Roth!

W-W-Who's A-Afraid?

SO THINK WE

We think the voters of this county have some very important matters before them for consideration in the next few months, and they should be studying them out. Every person who has a vote should exercise the privilege of using it, but they should do so intelligently. The road question will be up, and the bond issues in the city will be to consider. The proposed amendments to the state constitution, all of which are very important should have your consideration. Prepare yourselves for the vote, and know what you are doing when you vote.

We think Lubbock people will be mighty glad to see the Tech students back again. Every year we enjoy them more and more. They are a live bunch of youngsters, and they are the source of a great deal of pleasure to many of the people of Lubbock, who have them in their homes, and who have them in the churches and the social functions. Lubbock appreciates the presence of the student body, and they are always anxious that these young people be made to feel perfectly at ease and know that they are among friends.

We think that after all Gene Tunney is a pretty good sport. His to-be bride does not want him to remain in the ring after they are married, and he is gotten out. He possibly wanted to be safe, for sometimes the married men get floored pretty soon anyway.

We think the way we are going now that candidates for president forty years from now will be telling the people how they had to make their campaigns in six cylinder automobiles. We do not know just what they will be riding in then, but it won't be automobiles we guess. Of course if we had said they would be running all over the country in six cylinder automobile at this time no body would have believed us, and they may doubt this, but some of you folks who expect to live that long just mark it down, what we say.

We think what the poor working man is interested in these days is a place to park his car after work hours, when he goes home and drives back to town with his family for a few hours shopping and sight seeing in the city.

President Coolidge finds that his say nothing program comes in pretty handy after all. He hardly ever has to take back anything he says.

PUBLIC OPINION

FINDS MANY ARE FOR HERBERT HOOVER.

A short driving trip into the Davis Mountains and through the oil fields brought us some interesting experiences. There were crowded, hurtling towns, and others overbuilt, once having had an enormous oil-center population. It is plain that some are over building at present.

Everyone seems interested in Lubbock and loud in her praises. No one doubts her great future. At Big Spring I ran on our friend Garland Woodward, who is doing a flourishing law business there in partnership with Judge Brooks. But he is ever homesick for Lubbock, and I expect to see him back here some day.

Passing through thirteen counties, I took occasion, as a matter of curiosity, now and then to ask whether the majority of the people were for Hoover or Smith, usually asked persons in touch with the public, such as hotel men. The results are not offered as reliable, as others might have given different answers:

Lamesa, Dawson county, ten to one for Hoover.

Midland, Midland county, divided, but majority for Hoover.

Odessa, Ector county, Democratic and hence for Smith.

Monahans, Ward county, Smith. (Center of oil field).

Pecos, Reeves county, Smith, because Democratic. "Thousands of us are going to vote for Hoover, but we are not saying much about it."

Fort Davis, Jeff Davis county, five to one for Hoover.

Alpine, Brewster county, majority do not like Smith, but will probably vote for him because on Democratic ticket.

Fort Stockton, Pecos county, about evenly divided.

Two persons traveling constantly through different states expressed themselves as finding the race very close. One of them thought that the question of religion was not going to enter to an perceptible extent. A hotel man said most of the traveling men who came to his place were for Hoover.

YOUR HEALTH

BY DR. MORRIS FISHBEIN

Editor Journal of the American Medical Association and of Hygeia the Health Magazine

All sorts of tests have been developed to show whether or not a child is developing normally from the mental point of view.

If the child is to be feebleminded, it is important to know this as soon as possible so that the greatest advantage can be taken of the early years in proper training.

Many tests have been worked out to indicate whether or not the mentality is up to what it should be for a child of that age.

In the Binet-Simon tests, which are a standard, the child of three years is asked to show its mouth, nose and eyes; it is asked to repeat two numbers which are not consecutive, and it is given three opportunities to repeat numbers in this way. If it succeeds once out of three times it is considered as not below normal intelligence.

Easy Test

A simple test is to show the child a picture in which there are four or five objects of importance and to ask it to name the important objects. A child of three years, if normal mentally, is usually able to do this. A common picture will show a boy, a dog, a tree, a car or some similar subject.

By the time the child is four years old it should know whether it is a boy or girl, it should be able to name successively three familiar objects shown to it, such as a spoon, a blade and a pencil, and to repeat three nonconsecutive numbers.

The six-year-old child should be able to tell whether or not any particular time of the day is noon or evening; it should be able to define the use of a fork, a chair, a knife or a table.

The eight-year-old child should be able to count from 20 to zero backward in 20 seconds, and to give the date of the month or some similar information.

A nine-year-old child should be able to distinguish pieces of money and to enumerate the months.

Test Foundation

The tests that have been developed will seem to the adult relatively simple, but each of them constitutes for the child a certain amount of definite brain activity.

These tests represent the results of careful observations of thousands of children.

Certainly conspicuous failure in their performance should demand special attention by the parents to the question of the child's education.

IT IS REPORTED

It is reported that some of the very prominent property owners of Lubbock have not yet trimmed the weeds off their premises. This is a mighty bad example and keeps the town from being 100 per cent weedless.

—o—

It is reported that the scholastic enrollment of the Lubbock county rural schools will show a marked increase this year over any previous year. That is a mighty good indication that the rural communities are keeping pace with the developments in the city, and that makes a mighty healthy condition? The city that takes all of the development and the surrounding communities do not go along with it, is in danger of overgrowing, but when the rural communities come trailing behind them it is betting in a bad plight.

—o—

It is reported that there is a better crop in West Texas, or on the plains at least than there ever has been, and the yield is estimated at as high as forty bushels to the acre in many farms.

—o—

It is reported that several thousand people in Kansas City who own automobiles claimed to the tax assessor of that state that they were too poor to pay taxes, but at the same time they keep on buying gas and oil, and automobile casings.

—o—

It is reported that though the Hobbs well is producing about 500 barrels of oil per day, the owners well are still wanting to know what is below that strata, and are going down. They want to make a thorough test, and their findings will no doubt determine the amount of development that will be made in the future.

It is reported that Hobbs has a newspaper now. The Hobbs Oil Driller by Ray B. McCorkle. This is one of the necessary things in the building of a town, and Ray will be a mighty good man at the head of it.

—o—

It is reported that the good roads question is receiving much encouragement throughout the country, and it is believed that Lubbock will fall in line with other progressive counties when the election is called, and will vote the bonds necessary for the building of the roads.

LAUGHS

To a Jewish ex-service man an acquaintance remarked: "So you were in the army, Ikey?"

"Oh, I vas in the army," was the proud response.

"Did you get a commission?"

"No; only my vages!"

"Meyer, you are a swindler—you took a day off yesterday to bury your mother-in-law and today I met her in the park."

"Pardon me, I did not say she was dead, I only said I would like to go to her funeral."

Jeffry: "By mistake I entered that actress' room today and she tried to shoot me."

Melvin: "Thought you were a burglar, eh?"

Jeffry: "No, she thought I was her husband!"—Roger Hinman.

Smiff: "Old Harrison has suffered more than most men."

Bjones: "In what way?"

Smiff: "Four of his daughters sing and his only son plays the saxophone."—The Pathfinder.

"Sundries, eh? Et ceteras—hum. Items — ugh!" the man was muttering.

"What's up?" asked the handy interlocutor.

"I'm auditing my wife's budget."—Louisville Courier-Journal.

What Education Really Is

BY M. H. DUNCAN
Superintendent Of Lubbock City Schools

Education As Mind Training

When some of the studies pursued in the schools began to lose their practical value as a means to better living, in order to justify their having a place in the schools, the educators of the day said that they helped to train the mind. They said that education is not a matter of information or of adjustment, but of disciplining the mental faculties, of sharpening the wits, of teaching to think. They presented a bad philosophy to justify an evil practice and this bad philosophy has done more to lower the tone of the schools and the efficiency of their work than any other one thing in the history of education. Even today nine people out of every ten you meet will tell you that algebra, geometry, and Latin have value in training people to think, and the schools and colleges of the country base their work largely on this false philosophy. They do this in spite of the fact that there is not a psychologist in the country who believes in the doctrine of general discipline. There is not one who believes that there is any subject that can give the mind general training, as that term is ordinarily used. All alike teach us that all training is special and that there is no subject or process of education by which we may give the child general training. We must learn to use our minds in connection with the materials on which we use them and we can never separate our thinking from the content of that thinking. We must learn to think in each separate sphere of our lives.

Thinking is a matter of building meanings. I see the cloud yonder and, because of my previous experiences, I say it is going to rain. I have, by my experience with clouds, built a meaning around them and when I see them I recall that meaning. I see here a chair. It is meaningful to me. It is the one in which my grandmother used to sit by the old fireside in the old home of my boyhood. When I see this old chair, I think of grandmother. I think of my father and my mother, of sisters and brothers, of the family altar, the Bible, the evening reading, the prayer, and the voice of my father. All the things with which I come in contact have meaning to me because I have had some experience with them. Education is, in fact, a matter of building meanings, and thinking is a going from the thing to its meaning. It is a going from the cloud to its meaning, from the chair to its meaning, from the watch to its meaning. When I see the watch, I think that my father gave it to me a good many years ago and there are many other rich meanings built around it.

We used to think that thinking was a matter of studying books, but we have found that it is a matter of experiencing things, of rubbing up against our practical environment and building meanings around the things with which we come in contact.

In dealing with books, we are dealing with second hand experiences and with second hand or vicarious meanings. Such experiences are not as meaningful as those we ourselves have and the thinner they become the further they get away from us. They tend to lose their meaning altogether and to be for us mere words. Much of the study children are supposed to be doing in school is not study at all. It deals with the experiences of others which are so far away that they have lost their meaning and have become mere words. Real education must be built around meaningful experiences, and, for this reason, we should let the child have as many first hand experiences as we can, and thus build a basis for his thinking. Books should be used only when the child has had sufficent first hand experiences to interpret their meaning. If they get beyond the child's experiences, they have for him no meaning, hence no value.

Our Sunday Morning Sermon

THE MIRAGE SHALL BECOME A LAKE
By REV. WILLIAM C. TOOLE, Ph.D. LL.D.
Minister Christs Church, Westminster Bridge Road, London

Text—"The glowing sands shall become springs of water and the uncharted wilderness a highway."—Isaiah 35.

"The mirage shall become a lake." That is to say, the mocking mirage with its maddening mimicry shall one day have an objective value. The thing that hovered before our eyes only to retreat and dissipate as we advanced shall one day be overtaken. The elusive thing thing will be captured and the tantalizing thing will be mastered. In every truth the gleaming ideal shall become everlasting real.

"The mirage shall become a lake—the uncharted wilderness a highway." These prophetic words that come to us with freshness unspoiled by twenty five centuries, were spoken to God's captive host in Babylon. They are a magnificent appeal and a challenge to a listless and a pathetic people. By an amazing incursion on the field of history God has overthrown the old Babylonian empire. The gates are open, the way is clear, a return to the land of their fathers is possible, but strangely disappointing as it all reads, no one responded. When their sluggishness was stirred they were bitter in their complainis and mournful in their wailings.

They said in their discouraged and disloyal mood: "It's a splendid challenge, but between Babylon and Jerusalem there is the wilderness—bleak, bare and inhospitable; the wilderness—lonely, silent and companionless. Moreover, these days of servitude have broken our morale. Neglect has wasted our people. Infirmity has bereaved them of their senses and the years press heavily upon them. Furthermore, the perils are great and in the journey, pre-adventure, many will fall by the way. The mirage will mock us; thrist will torture us; ravenous beasts will affright us; and over the uncharted wastes the weary will miss their way."

Here is the indestructible idealism of the prophet, nurtured on the truth of an unwearying and undefeatable God, billows forth like a flaming beacon. He sings with vibrant pulsing faith of an intervening God. God's matchless sovereignty is put over against the discepting the mournful facts as they are outlined to him, the prophet transfigures them.

There is a quality of faith which is at once creative and redemptive. It is not deluded as to what actually is, but it lives courageously and serenely in the great persuasion of what is going to be.

It is the function of religion to restore the lost poetry of life. It girds men for the ethical struggle of life. It supplies life with lifting hopes and kindling enthusiasms. It furnishes a raison d'etre for moral persistence. No question is asked more intently than this: "Are the ethical and social resources of religion available for the moral problems of modern civilization?" Some quite frankly doubt the existence of adequate resources, and many who admit their existence doubt their availability.

Prophets with spiritual insight, social sensitiveness, world vision, serene faith and perhaps just a touch of impatience are needed now. We all so easily fall under the spell of the material. The sheer brick and noise of things bewilder us. Mammon is so boastful, blustering and bullying that after a little show of resistance we capitulate. The shrines that are crowded with devotees today are those which have altars to compromise, opportunism and expediency.

What we call the adjustment of our religious outlook to the practical demands of life can easily become an ignoble surrender of all that is worth while keeping. What a fatal facility for fumbling most of us have! Take our relation to the Kingdom of for instance. All would readily admit that we are bound to have some place in our thinking and acting for this concept. But it turns out that the place we give it is determined by our scale of loyalties. If we regard personal loyalty to Jesus Christ as Saviour and Lord as our supreme superloyalty then all the lesser loyalties of life are acknowledged and rendered fruitful. All our group loyalties such as nationalism or denominationalism become serviceable and Kingdom building. But if on the contrary we put nationalism, denominationalism, our theory of internationalism first, the significance of the Kingdom of God as a focusing principle of life and our relation to it, becomes warped and vitiated.

The mirage seems so real. The hot, blistering sun so palpable. The heat smitten, waterless wilderness is

Today's Poems

A CINCH

Young man, if you're eager to shine in finance
Or make a career at the bar,
If you deeply and earnestly long for a chance
To become a great cinema star,
And you don't want to follow the long winding trails
Through which millions of youngsters must grope
Or weary your mind with annoying details
Till you're lost to ambition or hope,
Just become the chief champ in the prize fighting game
And your way will be open to fortune and fame.

Jack Dempsey has wasted few days in his life
In pursuit of a deep erudition.
His favorite pastime was physical strife
And keping his punch in condition.
He never played trifling and underpaid parts
Nor learned, till a rather ripe age,
How to practice the subtle and manifold arts
Of a star of the photoply stage.
Yet now, if the box office sheet is a test,
Among reigning attractions, he's one of the best.

Gene Tunney has never, as far as I've found,
Spent a great deal of time in the street,
I never have heard of him sticking around
Where the men of the money-mart meet,
But now he is weary of life in the ring,
And has thrust its great honors away,
If he wants to be known as a Financial King
He can get a position today.
So why read dull books by a flickering lamp?
The way to succeed is to start as a champ!

so obvious. The logic seems to be on the side of those who contend that it is sheer folly to talk about transformation. "That's that," is the current superficial philosophy. "This is that," is always the language of the Seer. Likewise the brutalities of the economic conflict, the disillusioning realities of international relations, the monstrous avarice of nations, the arrogance of races and the corroding hate in so many quarters in so inescapably real and dominant that that Christian enterprise of transforming it appears criminal. Added to this biting realism, we are reminded of those who once dreamed but who now have ceased to dream that we are caught up in a vicious circle and that there is no escape. O! disillusioned world! O sighing saint; hear the prophet sing. Amid the wavering some one must stand steadfast and amid the stark realism some one must courageously declare the ideal values of life which are worth working for.

The thought of a highway is a familiar figure in divine revelation but here it stands for something [illegible] encouraging. Perhaps no [illegible] fascinated the human mind more than the building of highways. In the lifetime of some people still living half a dozen or more epoch making highways have been built. It is just a little more than a hundred years ago since George Stephenson built the first steel highway or as we think of it, the modern railroad system. Later came Morse with the dot-and-dash highway that we call the telegraph. Then came Alexander Graham Bell introducing the telephonic highway. He was followed by Cyrus W. Field who laid a gutta-percha highway along the bed of the ocean.

Following these came Roetgen and others who built highways of light through opaque substances, and now in our day we own the wizard skill of Marconi, building highways of sound through the uncharted spaces.

The urge behind the casting up of all these highways was to create added facilities for the distribution of commodities. George Stephenson's railroad was the answer to the challenge of depending industry in the early part of the nineteenth century. Similarly, Marconi and his associates have wrought out a plan in answer to the demand of the twentieth century for adequate means of communicating what the world is desirous of sharing.

The point is that in the last hundred years six great arterial highways have been built. An no one doubts but what the needs of the growing twentieth century will be met. In the realm of the material no limit is set upon human possibilities. No one cares to be skeptical in listing the possibilities of tomorrow. Our great need is a similar faith in the realm of the spiritual. What the world needs is a re-exploration of the resources of the spirit of God in drawing mankind together into effective fellowship. Across the chasms of misunderstanding and hate we must build bridges of brotherhood and co-operation. The Sunday school movement comprising thirty three million is a great international highway. The enterprise of Christian missions is another magnificent highway. Many other splendid groupings of peace and good will are likewise building in the same direction.

Hupmobile Will Add New Unit To Plant At Detroit

Double Capacity for Shipping To Be Provided In Remodeled Quarters of Company

To keep pace with the continued heavy demand for Hupmobile cars which has been causing unbroken series of new records for production and shipments every since the Century Sixes and Eights were introduced last winter, the Hupp Motor Car corporation announces that contracts have been let for a new unit of its Detroit plant, which, it is stated, will double the shipping capacity of the company.

Operations on the new building are to be pushed as rapidly as contractors can carry on the work, and it is predicted by company officials the the structure will be ready for occupancy by the first of the year. Ground has already been broken and excavation is well under way.

The additional unit, which is to be of concrete slab construction, is conveniently located on property recently acquired by the company just east of its main plant. Designs show liberal provision for storage of new cars while awaiting shipment after they come off the production line, as well as adequate space for the Hupmobile engineering division, which will be quartered in the new building.

The plans provide for an eight story building, fronting a little more than 200 feet on Mt. Elliott Avenue and running back to a depth of approximately 150 feet. Seven of the eight floors will be devoted to car storage purposes, the top floor being given over to offices of the Engineering Department and the basement housing the Engineering Laboratory. Shipping docks and tracks are included in the project. A bridge across Mt. Elliott avenue will provide means for transportating finished cars from the main plant to the new storage unit.

The record breaking demand which has led to the Hupmobile plant expansion now announced set in with the introduction of the new Century Six last October. It was enhanced materially with the appearance of the Century Eight model in January, and the popularity of the two lines was still further simulated by the enthusiastic reception extended to the 1929 Century cars when they were presented early in August. As a result, the sales of Century cars in their first nine months reached a volume considerably larger than any ever yet attained by the company in an entire year of its twenty year history, and indications now are that the year of 1928 will roll up a total of 75,000 cars produced and shipped, compared with a previous high mark of barely 45,000.

HOW'S SHE HITTIN'

By ISRAEL KLEIN

By ISRAEL KLEIN
Science Editor, NEA Service.

Due to the overheated condition of the motor, in summer, the cooling system requires close attention.

Water has to be put up to the top of the radiator, especially on a long trip. The fan belt should be right. The rubber hose connections should be in good condition and the pump packing should be secure.

These, however are comparatively unimportant while the condition of the interior of the cooling system remains unattended. It is here that trouble might start, if no attention is given it.

Water, with its impurities, isn't at all beneficial to the metal casing that contains it. Rust accumulates easily, in the radiator and in the cooling jacket. Lime, in some parts of the country, collects along the walls of the jacket and in the radiator pipes.

It is essential that these be cleaned out, or the motorist will face the hazard of holes being eaten through the metal and of leaks resulting.

The cooling system, therefore, should be flushed out about once a month, especially after a long trip. The old water should be drained out and fresh water poured in slowly through the top, while the engine is kept running. It is advisable to let the water run from a hose, with the engine running, while the petcock below is open. The water can be kept flushing the radiator until there is a semblance of clearer water than what first came out of the system.

Sometimes no end of flushing will clear all the rust out of the cooling system. Then, a solution of ordinary baking soda—about half of a cupful to a gallon of water—should be poured into the radiator, the petcock below shut, and the engine kept running for about fifteen minutes, after which the solution in the cooling system should be drained off.

Then the system should be flushed, as described, and filled with fresh water.

When lime accumulates in the radiator or water jacket, or rust is so thick even for the baking soda to wash out, pure muriatic acid may be used—about a quart to three gallons of water. The engine should be run, with the spark retarded, until the solution boils. Then the spark should be advanced and the engine kept running for about 15 or 20 minutes.

After this, the system should be drained and flushed thoroughly with fresh water. It is good practice, in this case, to repeat this process with the use of baking soda, in order that he acid may be neuralized. The baking soda solution then should be drained, the system flushed and new water put in.

Never use liquid solder or other automotive "nostrum" to cure radiator leaks. There is considerable possibility of plugging up the entire radiator with such cure and preventing circulation of the water.

If there is a leak in the radiator, no matter how slight, it is best to have the hole soldered from the outside. Often soldering alone won't do, and a new pipe must be inserted. This isn't much of a job, but it requires the work of a radiator repair man.

If there is a leak in the water jacket, sometimes letting rust accumulate at the leak is enough to stop it. If there is a crack in the wall, however, the only way to fix this is to have the jacket welded. The crack might have resulted from overheating the engine.

DETROIT, Sept. 8.—A proud father, with an automotive turn of mind, announces the coming of his new born son as follows:

"Weight, 8 pounds 7 ounces; wheel base, 21 inches; lighting equipment, bright blue head lamps with automatic dimmers; frame, well balanced, strong, flexible, well reinforced; body, rubber mounting for safety, well insulated; will not rattle or squeak; finish, shell pink; horn, high frequency vibrator type—loudest when fuel tank is empty; top, well rounded front and back, golden glint covering; fuel, gravity feed, 4-ounce tank, centrally located; clutch, easy slip type, positive release, improves with age; circulating system, self-cooling, water-jacket self-contained; special equipment, kiddy-koop, safety pins, Q-tips, talcum and many standard extras."

will be its model—idealistic—composite—the culmination of the great American crucible.

Dick, they call him—all of them! And that's significant. It's boyish and yet manly. Only chums and buddies call a man named Richard by the more intimate and friendly Dick. Girls, too. It's irresistible.

There may be a reason for this aura of friendliness and warm intimacy. The realists and romanticists would have various and sundry reasons, but the simple fact is that Dick is a man-boy at heart. A man-boy in his outlook on life, his philosophy and dreams.

A man-boy who steals away from his make-believe world whenever he can and loses himself on his yacht at sea or traveling in strange countrysides. A man-boy who thinks young and lives young. A man-boy with man-reasoning and boy-irresponsibilities, whose moods are those of a boy of fourteen still dreaming of conquering worlds and whose love of life is that of a man of thirty, enjoying the full-grown fruits of experience and values.

Dick Barthelmess as Chad Buford is a revelation, startling and breathtaking. It is uncanny that a man should be able to etch a delicate character such as Chad after the six year interval since David.

"The little Shepherd of Kingdom Come" will long occupy the deepest recesses of the American heart because Dick Barthelmess has given it flesh and blood and soul; because only the screens' man-boy could have imbued it with feeling and understanding.

Chevrolet Makes Millionth Car Of The Present Year

Production Since January First Has Averaged More Than One Every Ten Seconds of the Day

Further entrenching itself in its position the the world's foremost automobile producer, the Chevrolet Motor company last week reached a new mile-stone in its manufacturing history. With production and sales continuing at a record September clip, the millionth car of 1928 came off the assembly line at Flint last Tuesday afternoon.

Due to the high September production schedule necessary to meet an unusually heavy demand, no formal ceremonies marked the occasion although W. S. Knudsen, president of the Chevrolet Motor company, R. H. Grant, vice president in charge of sales, C. F. Barth, vice president in charge of manufacturing and other Chevrolet officials were present.

The record making car was a coach, one of the most popular models in the line. It was a standard model in every respect. Like hundreds of thousands of Chevrolet coaches it was finished in avenue green Duco, with Tartan tan wheels, black beading and striping in gold.

After a brief informal ceremony the millionth car passed through the usual channels of distribution and was shipped a few hours after it came off the line to a dealer in the middle west.

One Every 10 Seconds

An idea can be grasped of the intensity of the task of building 1,000,000 cars in less than eight months when it is borne in mind that to achieve this record it was necessary that a Chevrolet be built approximately every 10 seconds of every working day. Computing on the basis that there are 25 working days a month, it means that one million cars were built in a little more than 200 working days.

Mr. Knudsen pointed out that the building of 1,000,000 cars since Jan. 1 would not have been possible without strict adherence to precision methods. "Chevrolet knows that inaccuracies in manufacture and assemblage slow down the line with a consequent lowering of output and increase of cost," Mr. Knudsen said. "In Chevrolet's scheme of volume production the highest standards of quality and accuracy must be maintained in order that costly delays in production caused by breakage and poor fitting parts may be avoided."

The sensational production of the million cars in less that eight months reflects the remarkable public acceptance accorded the "Bigger and Better" model since its introduction January first. Never in the history of the automobile business has this record been approached by any other manufacturer of four shaft cars.

Buick Increases Power Of Motor

More Horsepower But Motor Consumes No More Gasoline; Engineers Winners In Hard Problem

Increase in horsepower without a consequent increase in fuel consumption—

That was the problem Buick Motor company engineers faced in development of the Silver Anniversary Six, which has proved a sensation since its initial presentation.

How well this problem was solved already has been demonstrated to the thousands who purchased the luxurious new cars in the first few days after their announcement. For Buick's six-cylinder valve-in-head engine is almost one-fifth more powerful than heretofore and the entire chassis has undergone commensurate enlargement.

Change Explained

This power increase, according to A. DeWaters, chief engineer, has been accomplished through an 11 per cent increase in the piston displacement of the larger engine and an increase of 12 per cent in the smaller. But changes in the carburetor and manifold system, redesigning of the camshaft and provision of a new muffler, in which back pressure is reduced to a minimum, have kept the fuel consumption virtually unchanged, DeWaters pointed out.

Marked improvement in the automatic heat control unit built into the fuel intake system was cited by the engineering chief.

"This device, which is exclusively Buick's is responsible for the quick start in the coldest weather," DeWaters declared.

Newest Motor Coaches Rival Pullmans And Are Veritable Rollin Hotels

By NEA Service.

LOS ANGELES, Sept. 8.—The "Pullman car bus," with sleeping accommodations for 26 passengers, has arrived.

A veritable hotel-on-wheels, the first of its kind ever built, has just been completed and exhibited at the Pacific-Southwest Exhibition at Long Beach, Calif., prior to being placed in service between Los Angeles and San Francisco. Its owners, the Pickwick Stages System, say that similar luxurious busses will be built and the service gradually extended over the United States.

The "Nitecoach," as it is known, is 34 feet long, eight feet wide, ten feet high, weighs 14,000 pounds and cost $30,000. It is built of duralumin —lighter than aluminum and stronger than steel.

Convertible Berths.

There are 13 compartments with double berths, accommodating 26 sleeping passengers. In day time these berths are converted into seats, just like those on a Pullman coach. The beds are six feet four inches long and of ample width.

Each compartment has a dressing space with full headroom and draw curtains for privacy. Each also has five electric lights, a thermos jug for ice water, a wash basin with running water, an extra seat for convenience in dressing, two large drawers and storage space for suitcases.

For ventilation there are three windows and two portholes in each compartment. Fan ventilation supplies warm or cold aid to individual compartments as desired.

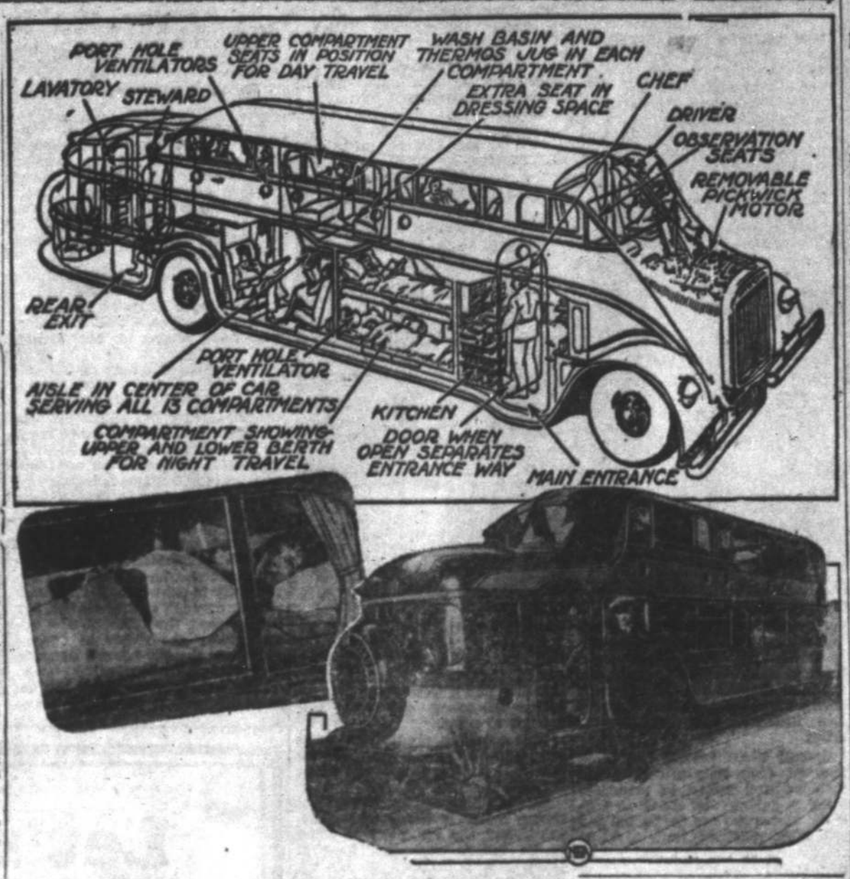

For dining facilities, the bus carries a range, percolator, ice box and tableware for 26 persons. Meals will be served on tables in the compartments.

The lavatory, in the rear of the car, is equipped with flushing toilet, chemical tank for collection of waste, washstand with running water and full length plate glass mirror.

The crew consists of a steward who cares for the car and makes up berths, a cook and a driver.

The bus is propelled by a six-cylinder engine of 110 horsepower. A feature is that the engine can be removed bodily merely by loosening four bolts and disconnecting wires, oil and gas lines. Reserve motors will be kept at terminals, ready for substitution on short notice. This will avoid delays due to motor trouble.

The big bus was designed by Dwight Austin, Pickwick engineer, on a specially constructed 30-foot drawing board.

An idea of the spaciousness of the giant "Pullman stage" now in operation in California can be gained from the diagram at the top. A view of one of the berths, fro mthe outside, is shown at the lower left. Lower right: A view of the exterior.

German youths are not so fall now as in the pre-war days. The general decrease is about 1 1-2 inches.

EVENING TRIFLES.

Evening accessories are apt to be gleaming, this fall. Tiny caps of sequins, crystals and pearls, little purses of cut stones and crystals, and fans of feather, polka dotted with crystal all testify to the gleaming era it is.

Fuel Pump Cuts Auto Fire Hazard

Employmeint Of New Pump On Oakland-Pontiac Is Seen As Useful Safety Measure After Trial

Reduction of fire hazard to a minimum on Oakland and Pontiac Sixes through use of the AC fuel pump was claimed in a recent statement by B. H. Anibal, vice president in charge of engineering of the Oakland Motor Car company. The increased safety of the pump, he asserted, was due to the absence of any fuel stored beneath the hood or in close proximity to the engine where a leak in the gas line might result disastrously.

The fuel pump, Mr. Anibal said, represents the newest advance in the evolution of fuel feeds through four distinct stages. First, he said, was the gravity feed, in which the gas flowed directly from the tank to the carburetor. This necessitated backing a car up a steep grade.

The next step was the pressure system in which the tank carried at the rear and air or some other form of pressure forced the gas to the engine. This method was too expensive for the moderate-priced car.

The third stage consisted in splitting the gas tank into two units—the major tank at the rear and the vacuum tank beneath the hood on the dash. Here the suction power of the engine drew gas to the smaller tank, from which it flowed to the carburetor by gravity.

Lastly came the AC pump operating on a cam in unison with the engine and delivering the exact amount required to insure unfaltering performance at any speed.

More than 600,000 people flew in British aircraft during 1927, and only five lives were lost in accidents to civil machines, including testing and racing.

New "75" and "65"— a glorious escape from obsolete fashions

New Chrysler "75" Roadster (with rumble seat), $1353 (Wire wheels extra)

AFTER nearly four years of imitation and emulation Chrysler now brings to the price groups of the new "75" and "65" a lavishness of beauty which was never there before.

The style of yesterday, still living in many new cars, is rendered obsolete because it is succeeded today by Chrysler cars so completely new in design that they establish new measures of beauty and style.

New slender-profile, chromium-plated radiator, arched-window silhouette, the grace and sweep of its "air-wing" fenders, the luxury of fitting and appointment single these new Chryslers instantly as the new style that re-styles all motor cars.

Surely the mere evidence of the eye—because performance is assuredly the very name of Chrysler—proves at once that both the new "75" and the "65" have been lifted up to an intrinsic value which hundreds of dollars—yes, even a thousand—more than their selling price could not have secured before.

Reopening Of Schools Will Create Traffic Hazards And Greater Care On Part of Automobilists Is Urged

Prevention Of Accidents To School Children Is Largely Up To Motorist, A. A. A. Asserts

(Special to the Avalanche-Journal)

WASHINGTON, D. C., Sept. 8.—Reopening of public, private and parochial schools in all parts of the country will create definite traffic hazards in every municipality and rural district, and it is distinctly up to every motorist to drive in such a way as to overcome these hazards.

This is the keynote of a warning issued today by national headquarters of the American Automobile Association, in which it is pointed out that the prevention of accidents involving school children is largely within the province of the individual motorist.

"School days are here again," says the statement, "bringing millions of children upon the streets and highways. Among these millions are little ones of four five and six years of age who for the first time are leaving the protection and safety of their homes to venture forth into an entirely new world. This new world will have problems enough for these children without that of the recklessly driven automobile.

"While the teaching of safety in the schools throughout the country and the effective work of the school boy patrols has done much to protect these tiny tots, the problem still remains as a challenge to the nation," the statement declared. It continued:

"If every motor car owner always kept in mind the enormous difference his care and consideration would mean in keeping these children safe from physical harm as well as from a fear that may mar the rest of their lives, there is no question but that a mighty stride would be taken toward street and highway safety in so far as it affects the younger pedestrians."

In connection with the teaching of safety in the schools, now a part of the curiculum in many states, the A. A. A. said that while those children who have had one or several years in school have been taught the rudiments of safety they cannot always be expected to exercise the utmost care. After playing during the summer on safe playgrounds, there is always a tendency toward a let-down in their safety sense when they first return to the streets.

"This let-down will result in many fatalities unless the drivers of all motor vehicles are one hundred per cent on their guard every second of their driving time."

Discussing the school-boy patrols which was organized by the A. A. A. motor clubs in cooperation with school authorities in scores of cities, the national motoring body says:

"The reduction of acidents that is traceable to the establishment of these patrols in hundreds of schools throughout the country is evidence that the courteous helpfulness of motor car drivers has been extended to these youngsters whose white belts and arm bands identify them as safety crusaders. There is every reason to believe that still greater cooperation will be given during this school year.

"The motor car operators have learned that when the boy patrolman holds up his hand or sets the stop sign against him that it is not an order but a plea for assistance. Who could resist such a plea when behind it is the calm, confident trust of a child?

Many more schools will have patrols this year, the A. A. A. leaders declare. Three is no question but that they will result in the saving of many lives because the patrolman is respected not only by the motorist but by the children whom he is trying to aid.

Larger Bodies In Victory Six

Closed Models of Popular Dodge Car To Be Offered In Additional Height And Length

Larger and roomier bodies affording greater vision in all closed models of the Victory Six line have been announced by Dodge Brothers. The new type bodies now in the hands of all dealers are available in the sedan, sport sedan, coupe and coupe-brougham. In designing the chanes, engineers have retained the Victory Six roadability featured by its low center of gravity and sweeping, graceful appearance.

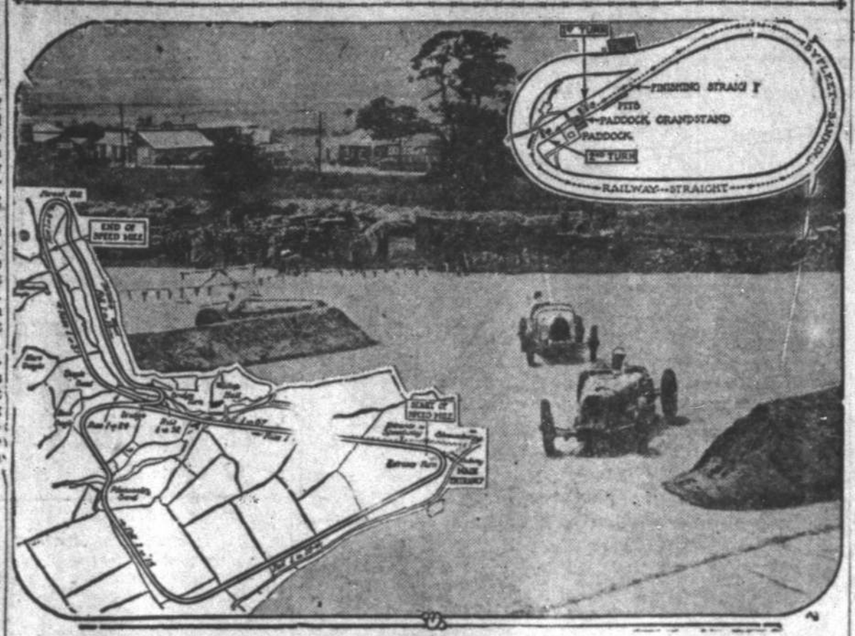

Mechanical changes of the improved Victory Six models include an engine temperature indicator on the dash board, grouped under the glass panel with gas gauge, oil pressure indicator, speedometer and ammeter, and the location of the starting button on the dash board within easy reach of the driver.

Maximum vision for the driver and occupants of the front seat has been effected by an increase of 76 square inches in the area of the windshield. The height and length of the sedan models and coupe-brougham have been increased to the greatest head and leg room for all passengers.

Doors of the sedans have been widened approximately three inches, and are built higher. Glass area of each front door window has been increased by 80 square inches. In each rear door window, the glass area has been increased 52 square inches.

Improved interior appointments of all bodies have been matched with additional attractive color combinations and trimmings. No change in prices will be made.

Automobile Racing Has Its Hazards In England

LONDON, Sept. 8—When it comes to automobile racing, America is a tame country.

Leave it to the British and the French to provide the excitement in this game, which goes on almost constantly the year round on this side of the Atlantic.

There are race tracks here, with long straightaways and banked turns, similar to those on American tracks. But these are only mild reliefs in an otherwise strenuous course in this country.

For no race is a race in England unless physical hazards have been put up that try the stamina and skill of the best drivers. Hairpin turns are one of these hazards. Bunkers, like those on golf courses, but set at such angles to one another and so close together as to demand the utmost care and skill on the part of drivers, are another.

Few "Easy" Races.

The Brooklands race course is the most popular and most commonly used of all in the British Isles and Europe. Both British and European cars compete, and races of all sorts are run almost the year round. Hardly a race, however, is straight around the track.

There's a long straightaway and a banked turn but the home stretch is the most difficult piece to maneuver.

As the cars come down the stretch from the banked turn, thy may either meet a series of posts and bunkers, through which they must weave their way cautiously and still as spedily as possible, or they might have to make a hairpin turn the width of the track itself and come back around another short turn before meeting the straightaway again.

Several times around the track they go, each time meeting these obstacles and forced to maneuver them as quickly and safely as possible. Races are run for 50, 100 and 200 miles, requiring from 20 to 75 revolutions of the two and a half mile track.

It's a dizzy job which only the best drivers can survive. Many a time, there's danger of a serious collision, at the bunkers, where drivers take short turns and come close together.

Even more hazardous are the natural courses set up in England and in parts of the continent. The Le Mans course, over which the races for the French Grand Prix are run annually, is especially dangerous, for it includes bad roads, steep inclines, difficult turns and narrow by-passes.

About eight miles outside of Shrewsbury, in England, a new course is being laid out that will be the equal of the LeMans course if not superior. Here the road, of ordinary asphalt, rises and falls, makes sharp turns and has long straight stretches, to test the abilities of the drivers.

At one point there's an incline up Forest Hill of from one foot in six, to one in three, and at the steepest part, there's a dangerous hairpin curve just as the road begins to wind downward.

Farther on along this course, after a fall of one foot in 13, there's another sharp turn over a bridge that crosses the first part of the course, then a slight rise, another left-turn and a treacherous S-curve before the racer can feel safe enough to relax.

This course is about three miles long, and looks like a figure 8 with one end flattened and the other bulged out at the bottom.

By such preparations, the skill of racing driver is tested to the utmost, and the car itself is taxed to its fullest resources. Ease of steering and firmness of control, flexibility of the motor, sturdiness of the axles and springs, and power of the engine come in for their share of the test.

The result, say racing advocates in this country, is a much more exciting event here than any put forth in America.

New Chryslers Break Records

Receptions Surpass Any Welcome Ever Given To Models of Company Says Sales Manager

A reception surpassing in enthusiasm anything ever previously experienced, even by the popular cars Chrysler has produced in the past, is greeting the new models the company has introduced in the last several weeks, according to J. W. Frazier, Chrysler and Plymouth sales manager.

Ever since the appearance of the new "75" the "65" and the Chrysler Plymouth, Chrysler has been unable to keep pace with the orders that have poured in, Mr. Frazier says.

The enhanced beauty of the new cars' contours and colors, their mechanical refinements, and the increased luxury by artistic touches in interior furnishings, have made an instantaneous appeal to the buying public as soon as the cars have been displayed. The favorable impression, according to dealers from all parts of the United States and Canada, is always increased when the cars' unbelievable smooth and powerful performance is experienced by those who have had an opportunity to drive them. The statemen is common among dealers, Mr. Frazier says, that visitors who enter dealers' showrooms as curious spectators speedily become admirers and enthusiastic buyers.

This widespread approval has not been confined to the larger towns and metropolitan cities, he adds. Reports indicate that in small towns and rural communities the cars are meeting with equally heavy demand. Farmers in all parts of the country are reported to be buying the new Plymouth in particularly large numbers. Officials predict that this car's sales in rural territory will continue to surpass all records of Chrysler sales in the past.
