Board Opens Construction Bids

BY BECKY WERHAM

The Aransas County School Board of Trustees, in a special meeting held on Thurs., April 30, received and opened bids on the county-wide school building program funded by last September's $3.5 million bond election.

No decision was made by the board on the six bids received for the bulk of the construction work, nor on any of the six smaller alternate bids on specific areas such as kitchen equipment and auditorium seating.

The board will meet again on Thursday, May 7 and after advertisement by the representatives of the architectural firm in charge, SWHC, will make an award decision.

The bids were opened and read to the board by Lamar Womack, representative of SWHC. The companies bidding on the project were Anvil of Corpus Christi; Durden and Fulton also of Corpus Christi; Marshall of Laredo; A & A and Krueger, both of Victoria and Hill Engineering of Houston.

The method of bidding was a break-down of the entire project into four proposals. Proposal A is the auditorium bid, Proposal B includes Junior High School Alteration; C, Senior High School Alterations, and D entails all elementary school alterations.

A fifth proposal was a total bid on all work. Companies were allowed to bid on parts or the total, along with connected alternate bids for paving, lockers, a special folding cafeteria door and ditch work.

All the companies bidding presented a total for the entire project with apparent low bidder being A & A of Victoria who bid $2,960,000 with a completion date of 500 calendar days, working five days a week.

The next low bidders were Hill with $2,989,000 (See BIDS, Page 11)

Court Gives Tentative OK To Apartment Complex, Motel Development At Airport

By Becky Werham

A proposal for the renovation of seven empty and vandalized barracks and storage buildings to create an apartment complex and motel at the Aransas

County Airport was given "tentative approval" by the Aransas County Commissioners' Court on Wednesday, April 29.

The proposal, presented by independent contractor

Doug Munroe, entails plans for a 20-apartment complex and 100-room motel in what is now barracks buildings.

The apartments would be completed in one phase and the motel in another. Phase

I completion date, according to Munroe, is six months after the start of work, "hopefully, May 1," and the completion date for the motel is not yet known.

After the first two phases, "recreational facilities," including a restaurant (open 24 hours), a family center, tennis court and swimming pool are planned. Like the apartment complex and motel, these facilities would be in already existing structures.

The buildings involved are three barracks, two storage buildings, a mess hall and a garage. The structures are at present, badly in need of repair due to vandalism. The work involved in turning these buildings into livable quarters was described by Munroe as, "lots of renovation, wiring, and cosmetic changes. No structures will be torn down."

The buildings are county property and as such cannot be sold to Munroe. A lease contract will be drawn up with least cost on a ten year increasing scale, beginning at 66 cents per foot and ending up at $1.20 per foot.

Munroe said, after the courts' decision on Wednesday, that he hoped to be starting work on the project by May 1. "We'll start cleaning up then."

Reynolds Plant Layoff Is About One Week Away

GREGORY — The layoff of as many as 450 workers from the Reynolds Metals Company plant in Gregory is expected to be effective "in about a week," according to company officials.

A list of names of persons to be laid off from the San Patricio County Plant is expected to be posted at the plant sometime this coming week.

As of Thursday morning, it was not known whether any Aransas County residents would be affected by the layoff.

The layoff, resulting from suspension of production of primary aluminum at the San Patricio Reduction Plant, was announced Wednesday by Drew Lybrook, regional public relations manager for Reynolds.

Lybrook said between 400 and 450 workers are expected to be laid off from the plant, "but that figure is not in cement yet."

He said a smelting operation (See JOBS, Page 11)

Rockport Council To Hear Candlestick Subdivision Plans

By Pat Blair

Plans for the proposed new Candlestick Subdivision on North Highway 35 are scheduled for presentation in a meeting of Rockport's city council at 5 p.m. Monday, May 4.

The meeting was reset from April 27 after that regular session of the council had to be cancelled due to lack of a quorum.

In other action of the council, city aldermen are expected to consider action to fill the vacancy created by the death Tuesday, April 28, of Alderman Henry Bent.

Also on the agenda is a joint hearing between the council and the city's planning and zoning commission, to hear two zoning requests.

In addition to considering approval of plans for the proposed subdivision development, the council will also consider a request that the city of Rockport take over maintenance of the sanitary sewer lines and lift station that will be constructed to serve the development.

Installation of a lift station and transmission lines received approval from the Aransas County Conservation and Reclamation District at that board's meeting Monday, April 27.

Among requests to be considered in the joint city council-city planning and zoning hearing is a request by the Aransas County (See COUNCIL, Page 11)

Grant For Beach Funds Still Pending

Word is still pending regarding the $200,000 grant for the beach restoration work proposed by the Aransas County Beach Improvement Committee according to Charlie Augustine, president of the group.

"Everything hinges on our grant," said Augustine in an interview.

The group has applied for a matching grant of $200,000 to do restoration work in two phases on the beach.

The first phase is to be for projects that the Aransas County Beach Association committee feels is important to the Rockport Beach.

Phase two of the project is for other items that the committee would like to have if possible, Augustine said.

Augustine said that phase one would include work on restoring the beach and doing some work in the Ski Basin. Phase two would be for playground equipment, a beach pavilion and some work at the wildlife area.

"We need to mark the area and put some barriers up to keep vehicles out during the nesting season," said Augustine.

The Aransas County Beach Improvement Association has been seeking donations to use with the matching government funds. When asked how much they have received Augustine said, "We have kind of held off on fund-raising efforts until we get the grant."

When asked what he thought the chances were of getting the grant Augustine said, "Mr. Reagan hinted this would be the area where cuts would be made. I hope we get it."

"Everything depends on money. If we don't get the money we're dead in the water," said Augustine.

Augustine said that the ACBICI is working with the Aransas County Navigation District in the restoration project. The Aransas County Navigation District is presently using FEMA money to do dredging and other work on the beach.

Augustine explained that the ACBICI originally wanted to do more than they are now proposing to do. "Originally we wanted new bath houses, markers and barriers for the wildlife area and cement bulkheads for the salt water pool," said Augustine.

He also explained that the Texas Parks and Wildlife Department originally wanted to put lights around the salt water pool and place a flagpole on the end of the beach point.

The beach committee is planning to build a new slide at the salt water pool. Asked about the amount of vandalism in the area and the fact that vandals have destroyed two diving boards at the pool, Augustine said, "Anything we do is subject to vandalism. That is one of our problems."

Augustine said he is trying to get more security patrols in the area in an effort to reduce the vandalism.

Crop, Livestock Reports Being Asked From Farmers, Ranchers

SINTON — During late May and June, many Texas farmers and ranchers will receive a crop or livestock questionnaire from the Texas Crop and Livestock Reporting Service or will be personally interviewed by the Service's field staff, says midyear livestock inventories to be published in June for the state of Texas.

These crop and livestock reports give a reliable, unbiased picture of Texas' most important industry — agriculture. They also can serve as tools to help farmers and ranchers work out their planting, breeding, feeding, storing, producing and marketing plans — "in other words, to keep them informed," Rothrock said.

Rothrock said these reports are also used by farm organizations and legislatures in planning and developing farm programs; extension economists and private farm and ranch management consultants for advising farmers and ranchers; and by exporters in planning and promoting the sale of Texas agricultural products in foreign markets.

Even though response is voluntary, Rothrock urged each farmer or rancher who is contacted to cooperate in order to help the crop and livestock reports to be published as accurately and reliably as possible.

These surveys are a cooperative effort of the Texas Crop and Livestock Reporting Service and the Texas Department of Agriculture.

Blair's Corner

Della Roberts would like to talk to anybody who knows anything about a house known as the "Cabines Home" at 509 Live Oak Street.

She and her husband, Turner, bought the place recently and are in the process of restoring it. All she knows so far is that its 100 years old.

"We'd like to know more," she says. "We'd especially like to see pictures of the old house the way it looked years ago."

She asked anyone who knows anything about the place — or who has old photos of the house — to call her or her husband at 758-8226 (in Aransas Pass) "or come by the (Cabines) house any time during the day — we're always there working."

Restoring old houses happens to be a hobby for Della and Turner who just finished a year's work on restoring the old Tedford Home in Aransas Pass. But the Roberts are definitely planning to live in Rockport — in the Cabines Home — once they get it finished.

"We're using all of the old style woodwork," Della said, "and if it has to be replaced, we're trying to use the type materials that would have been used when the house was built."

Wanted: Information About Old Cabines Home

Della, whose nickname is "Kentuck", also offers a few pointers to wives who plan to help their husbands remodel a "new old house":

"Don't wear shorts the day you put on the new roofing."

"Work on the bathroom first."

"Always try to work downward off the crockpot."

"Men are not the only climbers descended from monkeys, and it's a shorter distance from the roof to pray when you mash your finger."

"Electricians never understand a woman's prerogative to change her mind."

"We do not mean your husband has a mouse in his pocket.

"Half the things you brought to work, you don't need — and everything you left at home, you do."

"The hairdo you got last week is not holding up as well as you thought it would, and you can forget the manicure."

"The Good Fairy did not come by to clean your house again, and you're beginning to wonder about Santa Claus."

Della said there were also problems with termites as it appears the house hadn't been exterminated for a long time.

"Everytime we took off a board the li'l critters were peering out at us," she said. "And you could hear the pest control man — we called one — a block away. I guess they must have been getting real bad."

What clued them in, she said, was when she and Turner put the first couple of new timbers underneath and built a new porch. "We looked under the following day and the whole family of termites were sitting around the table giving thanks."

"It's a good thing neither one of us had a wooden leg."

"By the way," she added, "if anyone happens to see the termite man, do tell him his wife wants him to come home ..."

County Agent News

By Mike Rothrock

sprinkle irrigate, choose your own varieties, or garden without pesticides. It's your garden and you make the decisions.

For the sake of today's column, let's assume that you're one of the large number of local gardeners who will choose to control garden pests using cleared and recommended chemicals.

Proper use of chemicals poses no threat to you or the people who enjoy eating vegetables from your home garden. However, if the label on the chemical product you use says one teaspoonful per gallon of water, that's what it means.

If the label says to wait three days after spraying before harvesting, it doesn't mean you have to wait a week or more.

Follow directions on the container to the letter. If you do this, you won't have any problems with possibly dangerous chemical residues.

Using chemicals for pest control generally means "spraying" to most gardeners. Therefore, you are going to need a sprayer of some type depending on garden size, location, layout and intended use.

Sprayers used most often in local gardens are compressed air and hose-on sprayers. Compressed air sprayers are mobile, self-contained units that are pressurized by periodic pumping. They come in various sizes and are made of either plastic, galvanized steel or longer-lasting stainless steel.

An obvious advantage of compressed air sprayers is that they are completely portable. However, this portability is directly proportional to your strength. In other words, a five-gallon compressed air sprayer is heavy and unless you're physically able to lift and tote it around, don't try it.

If your garden is small, a two-gallon sprayer is probably all you'll need.

A hose-on sprayer is attached to the end of a hose, from which it receives its pressure. It's popular because it's light and doesn't need repressurizing by periodic pumping.

The main disadvantage of a hose-on sprayer is that it can only reach the length of your garden hose. Another problem arises in mixing ingredients.

Pet Talks

Dr. Lutz is a graduate of Baltimore City College and Texas A&M University. He specializes in small and exotic animal practice. He was an instructor of small animal diseases and surgery in the Veterinary School at Texas A&M and was in private practice in Waco for 25 years.

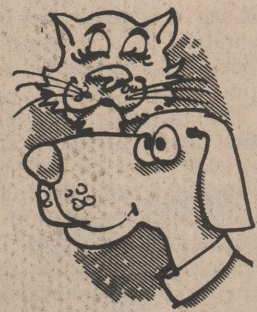

Dear Dr. Lutz,

Frequently, I walk my Yorkie along Fulton Beach. Yesterday, the dog found a dead fish. After sniffing it, he rolled over and over on the smelly thing. Can you tell me why this sudden behavior? Is there something wrong? This is not the first time he's acted this way. Recently, he did the same thing with a dead frog. — Celina

Dear Celina,

This is a natural canine instinct. They cover up their own scent with a scent much stronger so they won't frighten away their prey. We've domesticated the canine, and expect him to always act like we do. Sometimes, instinct is stronger and will exert itself, even if only momentarily.

If you have any questions concerning the health and care of your pet, mail them to the Rockport Pilot, 1002 Wharf, Rockport, Texas 78382. Dr. Lutz will answer them in the weekend edition.

Marine Lab More Than Just A Bunch Of Fishtanks

By Becky Werhan

The Texas Parks and Wildlife Marine Laboratory has been a fixture on the Rockport marina's southeast side since 1948, when the Navigation District designated the land for the structure.

Between 20,000 and 25,000 visitors — tourists and natives alike — per year come into the lab's shadowy lobby and view the marine life on display in tanks there, but few of that number realize the "inner workings" of the research facility behind the fishtanks.

Tom Heffernan, Regional Director for Coastal Fisheries in this region and head of the lab, has been working there for 23 years and provides some insight into the reason the laboratory exists.

"A lot of people would think that this is a waste of the taxpayer's money, but we provide information for the people. We feel our data is good information and of value to the coastal residents."

That "data" goes out to more than just the public. The information collected at this station and others all goes to Austin and is used in planning the commercial fishing seasons and regulations as well as in the numerous legislative procedures involving commercial and sports fishermen.

"The purpose of the whole thing," said Heffernan, "is to provide the best information to those areas. The taxpayers certainly get their money's worth. Texas is one of the best programs in the country. We're looked upon as leaders in the field."

The research work done at the lab is divided into several areas.

A fin fish survey team collects and studies some of the "larger" fish — trout, reds and other fin fish. Specimens are collected by team members on small boats using gill nets (that the teams make and repair themselves) and often some of the fish are tagged with a special abdominal tag. This allows researchers to get information on the fish's changes in location and migration habits. Tests are also done on the water where the specimens were obtained in regard to oxygen and salt content.

The region involved in these studies includes Aransas Bay, Mesquite Bay and the surrounding area and reaches down south as far as Port Isabel and a station near Brownsville.

Another operational area is the creel project which collects data regarding the volume of sports fishing in the area and what types of fish are harvested in sports fishing. Workers on this team interview sportsmen who fish off local piers, in boats or wade fish. It involves eight bay systems and was begun in 1974.

The information obtained in the large study was "of definite interest," said Heffernan. "We had no idea what recreational harvest was when we started. A lot of people were surprised. The recreational fishermen definitely constitute a user group — a group to be managed. They predominate on the spotted trout population."

"The economics involved in this group are interesting also. Between 300 and 350 million dollars in profit is generated by the sports fisherman per year."

The heads of the creel and fin fish projects are working out of the lab and much of the information is processed on the premises. The facility has 27 employees, including those who work in the maintenance shop next door.

Many of the employees have worked there for a number of years. Chemist Roy Spears, Manuel Flores, who feeds the display fish, maintenance worker Marvin Townsend and David Mejorado, a fish and wildlife technician on the "Western Gulf" (the largest boat at the lab, used for gulf research) have all been at the lab for more than 20 years.

As Heffernan explained, "The people who work here are a bunch of people who are dedicated, really dedicated; not just working for a salary."

Pesticides, Water Project Threaten Whoopers

Rockport's most celebrated winter visitors, the 77 whooping cranes that spent the months of December through April at the Aransas National Wildlife Refuge, face some extra dangers on their return trip to Canada this year.

The extensive use this year of the insecticides endrin and toxaphene in 15 Montana counties, coupled with a Corps of Engineer water diversion project that "has wiped out most of the cranes' shallow water roosting areas, could seriously endanger the 77 birds that constitute close to three-fourths of the total whooping crane population of 123."

The State Department of Agriculture of Montana said last week about 195,000 to 200,000 acres of winter wheat, alfalfa, pasture and native range infested with army cutworms have been sprayed with the pesticides since March.

Endrin and toxaphene, like DDT, do not break down rapidly in the environment, according to Lowell McEwen, a Fish and Wildlife Service biologist in Fort Collins, Colorado. McEwen also said, "The chemical (endrin) is 1,000 times more toxic than common pesticides. It is one of the most toxic pesticides to all bird species we've tested, and there is no reason to think whooping cranes would be any more resistant."

If birds are sighted in the areas sprayed, "We will probably employ aircraft or ground teams to have them out of there," Wayne Brewster of the Fish and Wildlife Service's endangered species division in Billings, Montana, said.

Steve LaBuda of the Aransas National Wildlife Refuge said, "They (cranes) face dangers just about everywhere they go. I think the Garrison Diversion Project presents more of a threat to the flock than the pesticides."

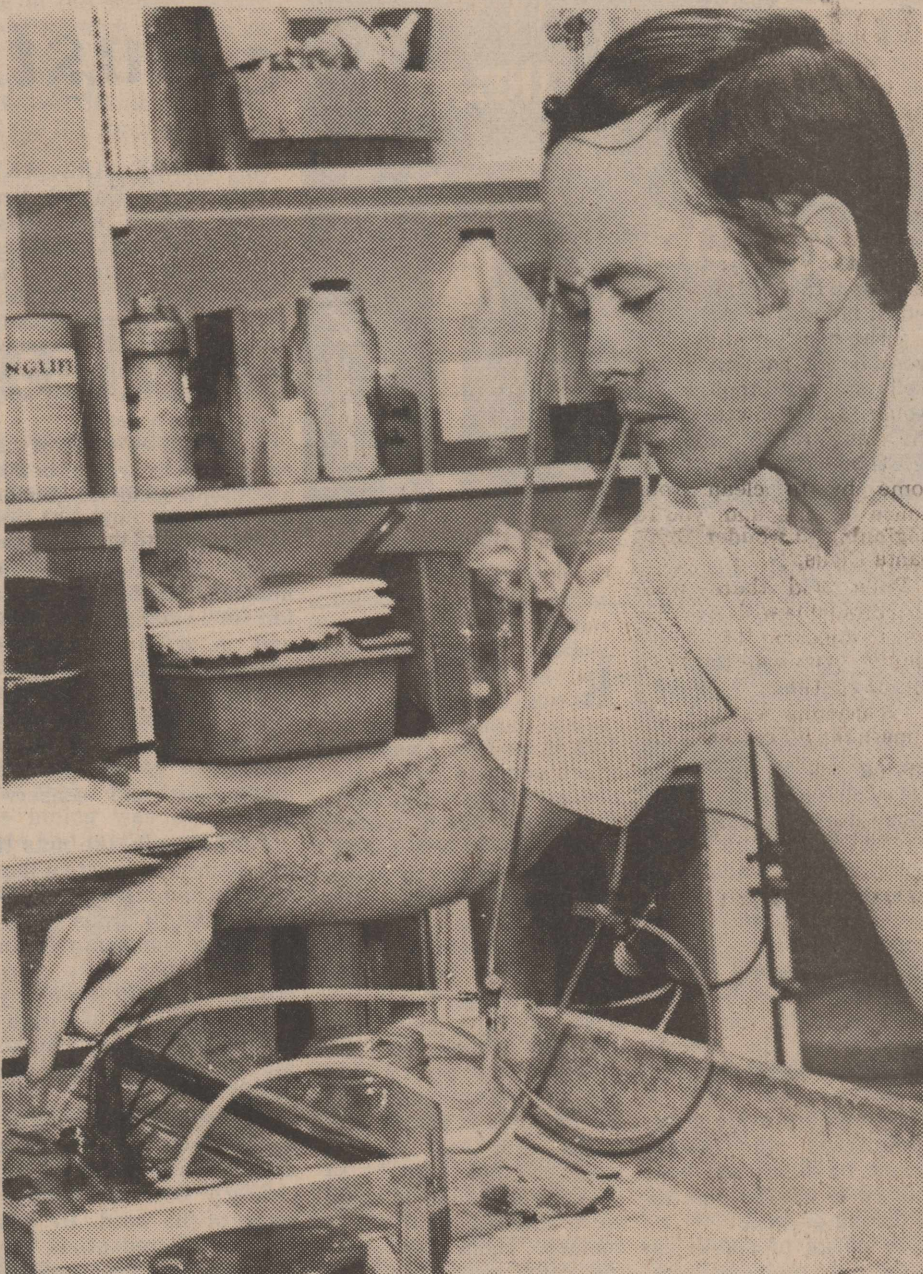

The project changes the natural stream flows from the shallow areas into larger, deeper areas to conserve water — as there has been a problem of evaporation in the shallower areas.

Said LaBuda, "The deep water areas they're creating are of no value to longlegged wading birds like the whoopers and also the sandhill cranes."

All but two of the whoopers have left the refuge, according to LaBuda, as of last Monday's, April 27, aerial census. The time they will reach Montana is uncertain.

LaBuda explained, "Down here we have all the birds in one area. When they get up there, they're scattered and are only sighted when someone out in the fields happens to see one fly by."

The refuge flock previously numbered 78, but one young bird disappeared during the winter and is presumed dead by refuge authorities.

Our Readers Write

Dear Mr. Carter:

I would like to call your attention to some inaccuracies in the article about the Lamar Cemetery in the April 25 edition of The Weekender.

First, it is the Lamar Woman's Club which is seeking the historical marker for the cemetery — not the Historical Society — the Historical Society was merely required to approve the application. Marguerite House, the Project Chairman of the Lamar Woman's Club for 1980-81, has spent countless hours researching the information necessary for the application — and the club is furnishing the $125 marker fee.

Also, your half-page article was lifted word for word from the narrative written by Mrs. House which accompanied the application for the marker.

I trust your correction as to the sponsorship of this endeavor will be given equal prominence in the newspaper and that you will acknowledge Mrs. House's authorship of the article.

Thank you for your prompt attention to this matter.

Sincerely,
s/Doris Ruttiger

Editor's note: Our apologies to Mrs. R.E. House and the Lamar Woman's Club for any inaccuracies in the Old Lamar Cemetery article. The Pilot was unable to contact Mrs. House. We appreciate all of her efforts and the efforts of the Lamar Woman's Club.

The research material was rewritten with a bite of color added to make a historical piece more interesting to the reader.

We hope that after all of their hard work the Lamar Woman's Club will receive the much-needed historical marker for the Lamar Cemetery.

Dear Mr. Carter:

Every year the first day of May is set aside by joint resolution of Congress and Presidential proclamation as a "special day of celebration by the American people in appreciation of their liberties" and as an occasion for "rededication to the ideals of equality and justice under law."

Even though Law Day is not a "lawyer's day," it is sad to note that lawyers are mostly the ones who know about it or celebrate it.

Ethically, every attorney has an obligation to see that the rendition of free legal services to those who are unable to pay a reasonable fee is available and to support all proper efforts to meet this need for legal services.

Although these ethical obligations are aspirational in character and represent the objective toward which every member of the profession should strive, we as attorneys have not been sufficiently responsive to these obligations.

If all our citizens are required to live under law, regardless of wealth or poverty, then access to our justice system is an inherent right of every American regardless of financial resources.

One has only to look at available statistics to realize that a substantial number of our citizens in Aransas County are too poor to pay for legal services, although certainly the poor are not the only ones who experience problems with accessibility. To a great extent these individuals have only one alternative insofar as legal services are concerned, and that is to seek our help.

Yet although we strive to help as many people as possible, we have not been able to serve more than a small percentage of these individuals because of the gross and shameful disparity between need and available resources to address those needs. The end result is that accessibility to the Justice system is substantially dependent upon legal aid.

If we are unable to provide the needed services to these individuals, chances are that their needs will go unmet.

This year's Law Day should have special significance to every American interested in equal protection of the law. The very existence of legal aid is being threatened by the rush for reduced government spending and a balanced budget.

While efforts to cure our economic ills are commendable, these efforts should not in the process trample on the rights of the poor. To be sure, an improved economy should work for the advantage of a poor person's well being; its real benefit, however, will be ameliorated if at the same time we deny him equal access to justice.

It is incumbent therefore, not only for us in the legal profession but for all fair-minded Americans, to stand up and be heard in defense of our legal system and its universal application to all citizens regardless of their station in life.

I sincerely hope that you and your readers will be among the voices that will speak up for the poor.

Best Regards,
s/Gilbert Rodriguez

---O---

Dear Editor:

Newspapers across our state play a large part in molding public opinion, and as a result help to pass good laws and defeat poor ones. I would like to inform you of a bill I have introduced in the Texas Senate, S.B. 951, and its companion bill H.B. 1960 which Representative Stan Schlueter is carrying in the House. Passage of either of these bills would in the first year return $75 million to cities, towns, and villages for maintenance and repair of paved streets.

Allocations of approximately $1225 per mile of paved street would be made during the first year.

Since over 80 percent of Texans live within cities, towns, and villages, they not only pay all of the costs of paving, maintaining, and repairing their own streets but also provide a substantial majority of the cost of constructing, maintaining, and repairing highways and F.M. Roads. Likewise, through their payment of county property taxes, city dwellers provide the vast majority of the support of county road construction, maintenance, and repair.

S.B. 951 addresses the inequity that residents of cities of Texas have suffered since the beginning. This bill should not be considered a spending bill but should be considered a measure of tax relief whereby a solvent state government returns funds to overburdened local taxpayers who sent the funds in the first place.

I am sending you some additional information regarding the bill along with a print out of estimated amounts cities across the state would receive. Not all cities are listed because some did not provide street mileage as requested.

I hope you will examine the information I am sending you and further hope you will support us in our efforts to provide real tax relief to city property taxpayers...without raising their taxes.

Sincerely,
s/Roy Blake
Editor's note: Information from Mr. Blake on S.B. 951 follows:

SENATE BILL 951 —

RATIONALE

Today there are over 10 million vehicles in our state and it is estimated that there will be 16 million in 20 years. These vehicles are tearing up local streets, roads, and bridges faster than they can be repaired.

Over 80 percent of Texas citizens reside in cities. These residents pay for the construction, maintenance, and repair of local streets. These residents purchase the most motor vehicles, pay the most motor vehicle sales and use tax, consume the most gasoline, and pay the most gasoline tax.

By their contribution to the gasoline tax revenues, residents of Texas cities, towns, and villages are providing a substantial majority of the support for construction, repair, and maintenance of highways and F.M. roads.

There are 61,000 miles of city streets in Texas which are used by residents and non-residents as well. Nobody would suggest or imply that our highway and F.M. program is not important to the welfare of all Texans, but one should never underestimate the importance of city streets to the welfare of all Texans.

Cities have requested to be allowed to increase the sales tax, but as a practical matter, we all know that this is not likely to happen.

Senate Bill 951, if passed, would provide a vehicle for a solvent state government to return tax dollars to cities to maintain and repair their streets. Since local citizens have contributed the funds to the Omnibus Tax Clearance Fund in the first place, this tax relief measure is not only reasonable but justifiable.

It should help cities to hold the line on property taxes. Most of the "tax relief" measures we have enacted have provided more "tax shift" than relief. Senate Bill 951 would provide genuine tax relief.

SENATE BILL 951
FACT SHEET

1. A "City Street Improvement Fund" is created which would receive its funds from the Omnibus Tax Clearance Fund. $75 million would be deposited in the City Street Clearance Fund the first year.

2. First year funding would be $75 million but the fund would be indexed in the same manner as highway funding. The first year index would be 1.00.

3. Funds would be allocated to individual cities on the basis of paved street mileage. A paved street is a street with a concrete, asphalt, or oiled surface. Streets would be required to be measured and certified under oath by a licensed engineer.

4. "City" means a city, town, or village, including a home rule city.

5. In the first year $75 million would be divided by the total number of certified paved street miles which would give the allocation per mile. The allocation per mile would be multiplied by the number of certified paved street miles of a city to determine its allocation. The allocation would change from year to year because of the index provision.

6. Funds received by cities under this act could be used only for the maintenance, repair or reconstruction of bridges and paved streets maintained by the city.

7. Under provisions of this act, no city receiving disbursement from the City Street Improvement Fund shall expend, from its own funds, less on street and bridge repair, maintenance or reconstruction than the average amount the city expended from its own funds for such purposes during the previous five years.

8. It is estimated that cities would receive $1225 per certified paved mile the first year.

'Image Problem' Hurts Shark

By Juliet K. Wenger
Coastal Bend Council of Governments.

Sharks have an image problem. It developed over the years, and the movie "Jaws" blew it up to big-screen proportions.

Changing that image could be a matter of economic importance to the Coastal Bend. Shark fishing is one of the alternatives being studied in the fight for survival of the important fisheries industry.

Shark meat is considered a delicacy in the Orient and many other parts of the world. It is reasonable that a market can be created for it in this country. One possibility suggested is to change the name of the fish to something more appetizing. Other changes are also being considered. In northern climates, there is the rat fish, palatable if it were a fish by any other name.

Dr. Russ Miget, fisheries specialist at the Texas A&M University Research and Extension Center near Robstown, is among those looking at shark and the other possibilities.

Shark has a potential because it is in our waters in abundance and is here year around. It might provide a catch for Gulf fishing boat during January, February and March, when shrimp are not available in economical numbers.

At times of year when shrimping is good, boats might carry second crews. Shrimping could be continued at night, as is the practice, and the second crew could fish for shark in the daytime.

This would provide more product on the same amount of fuel that was required to get the boat to the fishing grounds.

The image of sharks is not the only problem to be overcome. This fish must be handled with extreme care or its quality deteriorates rapidly. The Russians, Japanese and others have developed techniques of handling that are being studied and passed on to local fishermen.

Historically, shrimp have accounted for 90 percent of the dollar value of the coastal fisheries in Texas. Last year, the shrimp landed brought $150 million into the economy.

The crunch developed when the price of fuel shot up from 40 cents to $1.10 a gallon, bringing the cost of fuel per trip up into the $10,000 range. Boat owners can no longer afford trips at seasons when catches are small, which were routine to keep crews together and provide for families.

An effort was made to increase productivity by using the by-catch, the fish which are caught in the nets with shrimp.

There are two to 10 pounds of by-catch for every pound of shrimp, and that two to 10 pounds of protein is thrown away. A plant was built at Aransas Pass.

Dr. Miget said this venture failed because fishermen could not concentrate on by-product during the time of good shrimping, so there was a production line and overhead but no product during certain seasons.

There has been more success with sword fish.

This is an East Coast fish which come to our waters during those January, February, March months when shrimp are scarce. Fishermen from the northeast followed their migration down here.

Local fishermen began rigging their boats, at a cost of about $30,000 a boat, for "long line" fishing. This is much the same process as the use of a trout line, with floats holding up the line as it is played out.

The first year it was tried, the fish brought $4 dockside and 40 to 50 boats were making profitable catches. Then, last year, the catch was poor. Dr. Miget says there need to be productivity and migration studies before it will be known whether this was an off year, or whether the year before was exceptional.

Whatever studies show, he says swordfish are not here in sufficient number and for sufficient time to provide an answer for all the fleet.

The scientist and fishermen work together to increase catches and improve handling methods. Computers are now directing boats to the fishing grounds.

Captains radio in from boats to learn from the computer whether it will be more profitable to fish where they are or to use the fuel to go further off-shore to another fishing ground.

How the catch is handled while still at sea, working in the heat, can mean a difference of as much as $2 a pound. Back in the laboratory, scientists work on the questions that the fishermen have posed.

They are developing dips which will eliminate "black spot." This gives an appearance of dark veins which does not lower the quality of the shrimp but makes it less appealing to the customer.

They are testing various gases which may be introduced into freezer areas where fish are stored in permeable containers. These may increase the shelf life from seven to 14 days.

Live Oak Peninsula Philosopher

Editor's note: The Live Oak Peninsula Philosopher on his grasshopper ranch reacts to the Pulitzer Prize Hoax, in a minor way.

Dear editor:

When the Washington Post got taken in by one of its own reporters who made up a story, got it printed on the front page and won a Pulitzer Prize for it — only to have to give it back — the paper took up over three pages of type explaining and apologizing.

This seems to set a bad precedent. If everybody who ever got taken in by a political promise or a slick salesman used that much space regretting it, no paper would have room for anything else.

I don't know what those editors were thinking about when they let the story appear without checking on it, but obviously they weren't — when they were young — among those of us who were taken in by that ad that said send 10 cents for a magical gadget you could place under your tongue and mystify your friends by throwing your voice. It didn't work and the dime was wasted but it was excellent training for being on the lookout for frauds.

As you can see, lack of a 10-cent gadget when they were young left those editors unprepared to face the realities of life in the nation's capital.

But the oddest case of being taken in occurred a few weeks ago in Iran. Some international sharpster in Paris convinced the Iranian leaders he had $50 million worth of sophisticated military equipment to sell on the black market, and they shelled out.

Then they found out he didn't even have a B-B gun, and they're out $50 million.

Nobody likes to see anybody get taken in, but if you'll recall the televised scenes of those Iranian students parading those blindfolded Americans in front of the embassy and using the American flag to haul trash in and the Ayatollah bragging about rubbing the U.S. nose in the dust, you'll have a hard time keeping from laughing over their buying $50 million worth of nothing.

Yours faithfully,
J.A.

IF THERE ARE ANY words in the English language which are least understood and misused they must certainly be "sophistication" and "liberal". Here I shall deal only with the latter. To reassure myself I look the word up in my dictionary a dozen and more times a year.

A liberal, as most of us see one, is by way of being a leftist, a social do-gooder and uplifter, one with an overabundance of sympathy for the real or imagined underdog. He is forever waving a banner and in a gross manner either advocating or protesting one cause or another, often silly in the eyes of those of us who fancy ourselves as people of moderation and conservatism.

Per example, the nuts (I call them) who create a flap over the naming a new submarine the "Corpus Christi" or go bananas over an inch-long fish once supposed to exist in some tiny river in the state of Virginia. You get the idea, I hope. My dictionary shakes its head.

FEDERAL JUDGE WILLIAM Wayne Justice is a liberal in the accepted although non-dictionary sense of the word. He has the best of credentials. He is an old-time friend of the notorious (to conservatives) "Smilin' Raf" Yarborough.

That circumstance alone is enough to give him a high place in the Blue Book or Social Register of his kind. He is closer than a kissing cousin to Ted Kennedy, Ralph Nader and a host of others among whom must be included one State Senator Carlos Truan.

IN MY SUNDAY NEWSPAPER I read a piece on Justice by J. Michael Kennedy of the Los Angeles Times. Those of you who share my views probably got no further than the first paragraph. "...Justice is a gentleman, polite to a fault, unpretentious and possibly the most hated man in Texas". Well, I read the piece in its entirety.

I am a tolerant sort of fellow, tolerant at least to the extent that I'm ready to hear the other fellow out, even though he might not convince me in the end.

Truthfully, I was seeking, hoping that Kennedy might in some way enlighten me as to the judge's reasoning with regard to prison reform and bilingual language instruction. I didn't learn much other than that Justice is a product of East Texas populism and, in my view, a misguided believer in the rights of the underdog.

In his ruling on bilingual education he said: "These children deserve, at the very least, an opportunity to achieve a productive and fulfilling place in American society. Unless they receive instruction in a language they can understand pending a time they are able to make the transition to all-English classrooms, hundreds of thousands of Mexican-American children will remain educationally crippled for life, denied the equal opportunity most Americans take for granted." Fault that? Not I.

The trouble is in Justice's typical liberal approach or solution. Unsound, impractical, unreasoned, a solution that defeats its own ends: the teaching of Tex-Mex through all secondary grades.

The end result will be that the state and eventually the nation will remain or rather become divided as a country with two national languages, a circumstance that has always been historically disastrous.

In a word, if Spanish is to be taught through the twelfth grade, those who have spoken the language from birth will never make English their first language and so suffer the very thing Justice presumes to seek to avoid — people "educationally crippled for life".

THE AMERICAN PEOPLE have always been a generous people, often notoriously so to the end that they suffer from their generosity. Only in the instance of utter bigots have I encountered people who have not supported programs to instruct foreigners in our native language (English, I hope), but Justice goes far too far, although I confess that I am not surprised.

Accepting him as a liberal I can only expect liberal reasoning.

Liberal reasoning? Here I must make a confession. I have had in my time many friends who presume to be liberals. More often than not they have been well-educated people, their arguments often difficult to refute.

I think especially of one. He wore a Phi Beta Kappa key and held a Ph.D. degree. We debated endlessly and I confess that he was the more articulate. Yet always an inner voice forever told me he was wrong, wrong.

I became silent, at least lowered my voice. Often he led himself to believe that he had convinced me, until at the end I made clear that I still held to my original stand.

NOW I WOULD OFFER a final word. I have said that we are a generous, often over-generous people, but sometimes we can be tested too far.

Judge Justice does this when he asks us, everyday citizens, to spend millions of dollars for a bilingual educational program which will spoil rather than achieve the noble ends he envisions. — ahah

Title Could Come To R-F Mariners Defeat Cubs 16-8

By Ted Norman
The Rockport - Fulton Pirates just won the District Championship at a rain-delayed and somewhat soggy meet at the new all-weather track at Sinton High School.

The Pirates dethroned the longtime champions of Gregory-Portland who have won the title for the past nine years.

And while you are reading this they will either be trying for the Regional Championship in Corpus Christi or will have won or lost it depending on when you read the paper.

The Pirates seem cautious but optimistic but concerned about the teams chances.

The coaches brag that the R-F boys have knocked off some big schools on their way to district but worry about bigger schools that stand in the way of R-F in their quest for the state title.

The coaches spoke Monday, after the Sinton meet, of boys from Kerrville who could throw the shot and discus farther, run faster and jump higher. But the looks on the team members faces at a Monday afternoon picture session didn't show any signs of any unwarranted concern.

Had the team lost in Sinton or made a poor showing almost anyone would have overlooked it because of the almost inhumane conditions the meet was held in.

The humidity was near 100 percent, it was hot and sticky and everything was wet. The warmup suits were wet, the grass was wet and the track was wet.

Officials and coaches used propane torches to try and dry the sand in the broad jump area while other helpers dug trenches along the broad jump box in an effort to get excess water to run off.

The biggest problem seemed to be with the shot put and discus events. The cement slabs were wet and the boys slipped on the pads as they attempted their toss. Towels and torches were brought into play in an effort to alleviate the problem.

The new facilities at the Sinton stadium were very nice but to use the term all-weather was an exaggeration in this case. But even under these conditions the R-F team pulled off the victory for the title of District Champions.

At starting time steam was coming from the rain soaked track and infield grass as huge black thunderstorms began to clear the area to expose a tropical caliber sun.

After getting 'up' for the event the delay in starting could only serve to take the edge off and allow the team to let their emotions slide. Then after once again pumping themselves up to another high the rains caused another delay and the teams had to run and hide in the steamy busses in wet warmup suits and sit for over a half hour and watch it rain.

But as the day progressed the R-F boys continued to collect themselves and begin a series of wins, second place and third places for their efforts. And the grimacing looks on some of the faces of the runners and jumpers gave an expression that said, 'I'm giving it everything I have.'

Several runners who were only leading by a slim margin or even running second had contorted expressions that showed they were giving 110 percent and trying to give more.

By the end of the day the humidity had dropped, the track was dry and the Rockport-Fulton Pirates had collected 148 points and brought the district 15-4A championship title home with them.

Friday, May 1, the team will go to Corpus Christi to compete in the state finals. I'm certain that everyone joins the Pilot in wishing them the best.

---0---

Congratulations are also in order to Terri Moore and Belinda Cross for their outstanding efforts in winning the 800 meter run and the discus events at the Regional meet in Corpus Christi last Saturday.

Moore tossed the discus 129 feet, three inches and earned a trip to the state meet in Austin.

Cross literally coasted to an outstanding win in the 800 meter run of 2:19.0 to win that event, get a trip to Austin and establish a new Rockport-Fulton individual record.

The R-F lady Pirates 800 meter team of Alma Dickerson, Darlene Dilworth, Cross and Julie Huff finished third to become alternates at the state meet.

We wish the Rockport-Fulton boys and girls all the best in their upcoming efforts.

By Ted Norman

With the Cubs and the Mariners both sitting on a 2-0 record and tied for first place in little league baseball the two teams met Wednesday night at Memorial Park and after two and a half hours of play the tie was broken as the Mariners beat the Cubs 16-8.

The visiting Cubs took the lead in the top of the first inning when they scored one run on one hit.

But the Mariners came back in the bottom of the inning and scored four runs on three hits to go 4-1 over the Cubs.

The top of the second saw the Mariners hold the Cubs to only one run and execute a double play from short stop to second to first.

The Mariners repeated their first inning efforts and nailed another four points on the board to take a big 8-2 lead over the Cubs.

In the top of the third the Cubs got their first batter on with a single but the next Cub batter hit to the short stop and the Mariners executed their second double play of the evening. The Cubs were hitless for the remainder of the inning.

The top of the fourth saw the Cubs get three runs on two hits with one run coming with a Cub runner stealing home and once again the visiting Cubs closed to within three runs of the Mariners in an 8-5 ballgame.

The Mariners added another run in the top of the fifth inning when a base runner made it home on a steal from third. But they left two on the bases.

In the bottom of the fifth inning the Mariners pounded out seven more runs to take the game further away from the reach of the Cubs.

Trailing by 10 but scrambling hard the Cubs managed two runs in the top of the sixth inning but it wasn't enough and the Mariners won the game 16-8 to move into first place.

Calallen Blasts R-F

By Bob Crawford
Rockport-Fulton built up a 3-0 lead before the Calallen Wildcats began to size up the Pirates' pitching and blasted three homers in a 9-3 win in Rockport Tuesday night.

The Pirates struck for three runs in the bottom half of the third inning to go ahead in the game. Dennis Hull led off the Pirates' part with a home run, and then hits by Rudy Zavala and Robert Flores, coupled with a few Cat miscues, produced another pair of runs.

Pirate pitcher Pee Wee Solis had held the Cats in check for the first three innings, but the sky caved in on him in the fourth when the Cats pushed across six big runs.

Les Brandt started Solis' downfall with a two-run homer. Two batters later, Wayne Norrell blasted a two-run blast to send the Cats ahead 4-3. By the time the inning was over, the Cats had a wide margin at

Bruce Bickman dealt the Pirates misery for the remainder of the game as he struck out seven Pirates in the final four innings.

Calallen got insurance runs in the fifth when Brandt smashed another two-run shot, this one off Bill Jennings, and then the Cats got a singleton in the sixth inning.

The loss made the Pirates 7-8, and 2-1 in the second round of district.

Richter To Retire

After eleven years as a coach at the Rockport-Fulton High School Coach Karen Richter is hanging them up and moving on but not before she takes two of her girls on the R-F girls track team to the state meet in Austin.

Richter came to Rockport eleven years ago after graduating from South West Texas College with a degree in Physical Education. While at college Richter competed in distance runs, played basketball, badminton, golf and tennis.

Originally from the Eagle Lake area Richter came to Rockport High School where she has had several very good years as a track coach.

In 1976 the R-F girls 880 relay team made it to Austin for the state finals under her leadership and the team placed first finishing under the national record.

In 1977 she had winners in the mile relay team and the triple jumpers.

"We've always finished high. We've always had a strong program," said Richter.

This year Richter has coached two girls who won at the regional meet last Saturday. Belinda Cross who won the 880 event at the Corpus Christi meet and Terri Moore who tossed the discus 129 feet three inches for a chance to compete in the state meet.

Richter also coached the girls 880 meter team and they will be the alternates to the state meet.

Richter will end her coaching career at Rockport-Fulton High School after the trip to the state meet in Austin and assume the duties of Assistant Principal at Rockport Elementary School next fall.

Record Walleye Caught

AUSTIN — Most people who catch state record-sized fish have endured long hours of discomfort, frustration and just plain hard work to earn their moment of glory.

And then there's Ray Thraikill.

Thraikill now holds the Texas record for walleye with an 11-pound, 5 3/4-pounder from Lake Meredith in the Panhandle.

The only inconvenience he suffered was a short interruption of a pinball game.

The Amarillo resident was enjoying an evening of pinball at the Fortess Cove Marina on March 3. Almost as an afterthought, he baited a rod and reel with a minnow and left the rig in his sailboat moored in a boatstall a few dozen yards from the floating marina building.

Thraikill landed the fish after a friend told him his rod and reel were about to be pulled into the lake.

Spurred by his success, Thraikill postponed further pinball action and proceeded to catch a seven-pounder and a three-pounder shortly afterward, according to biologist Joe Kraai of Canyon.

The record fish displaces another Lake Meredith walleye which weighed 10 pounds, 14 ounces and was caught in 1978. The new record fish was 33 1/2 inches long and 19 1/8 inches in girth.

New Wildlife And Fish Laws Adopted

AUSTIN — The Texas Parks and Wildlife Commission has adopted changes in the state's hunting, fishing and trapping regulations for 1981-82.

In a public hearing in Austin Wednesday, April 22, the commission reviewed comments obtained from public hearings in 241 counties and also heard testimony from individuals on various proposed changes. Some of the changes are subject to approval or disapproval by county commissioners' courts in 30 counties.

Approved were the following changes:

SALTWATER FISHING
Many of the saltwater proposals were redefinitions of existing regulations.

Perch traps must be identified and marked with buoys similar to those required for crab traps.

HUNTING

A proposal affecting a large number of regulatory counties which have the standard white-tailed deer season will fix the closing date as the first Sunday in January, which allows the season to always end on a weekend. This would apply also to the turkey season in those counties.

Another change redefined buck deer to a deer having a hardened antler protruding through the skin in Comal, Kendall, Kerr, Medina and Real Counties. This is designed to remove the special protection for spike bucks which currently are protected in these counties. Department studies have shown that spike bucks are genetically and nutritionally inferior and should not receive special protection.

The experimental four-day, either-sex white-tailed deer hunting season in Bosque, Erath and Tyler Counties was eliminated.

Tigers Play Sunday

Sunday afternoon the Semi-Pro Rockport-Fulton

Tigers will meet the Falfurrias Royals at 3 p.m. at Tiger

Park on Live Oak Street in Rockport.

Admission is free to the public and a concession stand will be open.

Camping Reservations Advised

AUSTIN — State park officials advise prospective campers they should reserve campsites in advance as the park system enters its peak visitation period.

Reservations for campsites, cabins or screened shelters may be made in person or by calling or writing the park to be visited.

There are several parks in the system which reach their capacity in the late spring and early summer, and reservations are necessary to be assured of a facility. These include Garner, Huntsville, Cleburne, Galveston Island, Goose Island, Inks Lake, Kerrville, Lake Whitney, Possum Kingdom and Tyler.

No cash deposits are required to reserve facilities. No reservations will be accepted more than 90 days prior to the occupancy date.

Reservation and other information on all the parks may be found in the department's free Texas State Park Information brochure. To get the brochure, write the Texas Parks and Wildlife Department, 4200 Smith School Road, Austin, TX 78744, or call toll-free 1-800-252-9327.

Not Every Fisherman Needs A License

AUSTIN — Springtime usually gives rise to questions about who must have a fishing license to fish legally in Texas.

Most Texas residents must either purchase a resident fishing or combination hunting and fishing license. However, there are exceptions.

Texans 65 or over and those under 17 need no fishing license. All non-residents, regardless of age, must purchase a non-resident license.

An exception to the resident license rule is that if you are fishing on property you or your immediate family own, you need no license. Also, you need no license if you are fishing in your county of residence with a trotline, throwline or ordinary pole and line with no reel or winding device.

You also need not purchase a license if you are license if you hold a valid Texas commercial fishing license or an exempt fishing license available to certain disabled veterans or the blind.

Resident fishing licenses cost $4.50, and resident combination hunting and fishing licenses are priced at $8.75. Both may be purchased at department offices and many retail sporting goods and tackle stores across the state.

Fishing Prospects

Fishing reports for the Gulf Coast show that Tarpon should begin to move into the area and the first week of May Tarpon fishing should be fair.

It is still too early for Sailfish but they should be arriving toward the end of May or early June.

Spanish Mackerel should be plentiful in early May but begin to leave the area toward the middle of the month.

Fishing for Sheepshead and Pompano should be good also but begin to taper off toward the middle of the month.

In April Croaker fishing was only fair but should show some improvement in the first week of May.

Black Drum has been very good and should continue to be good until the middle of the month.

Worship in Church This Week

PRECISION

With the right instruments you can calculate to a degree so infinitesimal that it defies human imagination. You can plot, you can plan and come out perfectly every time — if you are dealing with things, not people.

When people enter the picture, intangibles follow. Love, hate, fear, happiness, sorrow, jealousy, trust, envy . . . you can't measure any of those things. Nor can you measure faith, which is perhaps the biggest "commodity" of all.

Yes, men have figured out almost everything except themselves. Even the world's psychiatrists state freely that most elements of the human equation are quite obscure . . .

. . . except before God, that is! Which is another good reason for going to church.

The Shepherd's Staff

By the Rev. Walter Clark Jr.
Pastor, St. Peter's Episcopal Church

Resurrection, along with that newness of life it brings, is like entering a familiar house whose inside living spaces have been rearranged. From the outside the house looks the same, but upon entering you see that all is different. The rooms have been remodeled, and although many familiar objects are still there, they no longer occupy the same places.

Of course, you remember what the house was like before, but you can no longer relate to it in the way you used to. For instance, the garage having become a den, you can no longer park your car where you used to. Cars just don't look good in the den.

And so you have to relate to the house as it now is rather than the way it was. The memories are there, but reality says you cannot live on memories alone.

So, too, is it with people who have become resurrected beings and now live in newness of life. On the outside they look very much the same. But on the inside they have become new. Their whole outlook on life is not what it used to be.

You may remember what they were, but now you have to deal with them as they are. The difference can be both pleasant and shocking.

Peace be with you.

Nursing Home News

Activities at the Aransas Pass Nursing and Convalescent Center were plentiful and very entertaining last week.

Visitors and relatives, plus our wonderful volunteers, made our week a pleasant one.

Monday afternoon was "Blue Grass Music Time" with John Blair, Altie Lee Albers, Fannie and George Langley and Charles McDowell, who came all the way from Pennsylvania and gave us some fine music.

We appreciated this very dedicated group so much and hope they will always find time for us.

Eddie Cook, a resident who observed a birthday Monday, was feted with a big and very delicious cake by his niece, Betty Cook. Tuesday, during the lunch hour on the North side, our residents were entertained in concert by Raymond Allen and his Senior High School Choir.

Tuesday afternoon, Gary Bennett was out for Bible study and to visit our people.

Gary and his wife Brenda were out again on Wednesday to visit again.

Wednesday morning, Delma Rodgers, a volunteer, was out to do her visiting and shopping for our residents.

Wednesday evening, the Aransas Pass Chapter 636 of LULAC was out to play bingo once again with our residents.

Thursday afternoon, Sadie Flirt, another volunteer, came out to visit and bring some more foam pillows which she had made. Sadie also helped serve at a birthday party that day.

Thursday afternoon, the family and friends of Mrs. Louis Dodd, a resident, feted her with a big birthday party, serving cake, punch and mints to all in attendance. It sure was a nice party.

Friday morning was paint class time with Frankie and Mary.

Saturday night was our country-western dance with music furnished by Mary Francis Fahrenthold, Robert Mize, Bob Davis and Johnny Townsend.

Refreshments were served by the Altar Society of St. Mary's Star of the Sea Catholic Church with cake being furnished by one of Manuel Aguillar's daughters in observance of his ninetieth birthday. Everyone had a very nice time.

We had a very nice week, I would say.

National Honor Society Inducts New Members

Twelve students were initiated into the National Honor Society during a candlelight ceremony on Monday, April 27, in the RFHS auditorium.

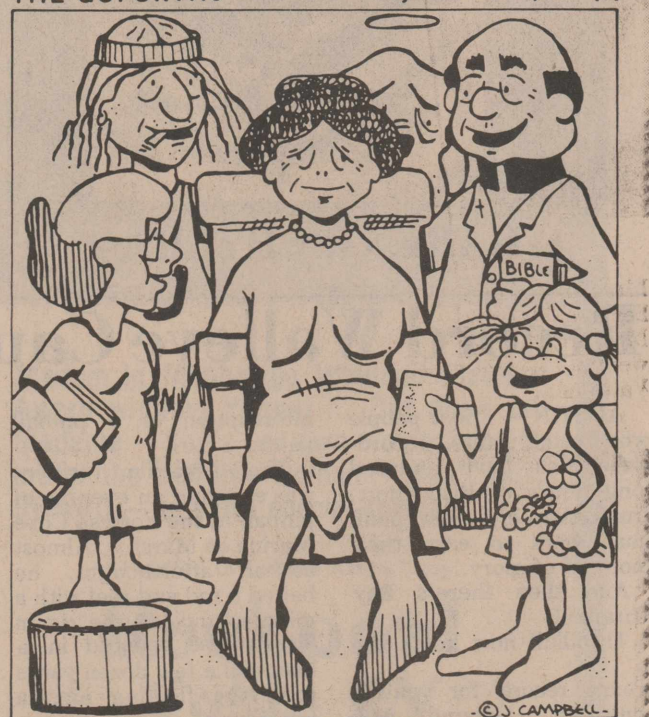

To be eligible for membership a student must display the qualities of leadership, scholarship, service and character. Those fulfilling these qualifications are: Richard Ayers, Julie Cochran, Dominic Dominguez, Justine Hopkins, John Longino, Jose Martinez, Rhea Morales, James Thomas, Scott McMillan, Billy Washko, Rebecca Ward and Hong Nguyen.

The senior members who participated in the program were Helen Pearson, Kristi Levison, Beth Randow, Terri Price, Robert Johnston, Dee Aine Rossman, Jennifer Janeczek, Meredith Montague, Diana Fake and David Williams. The junior members escorted the initiates to the stage where they were given the National Honor Society Pledge by Chester Barre, high school principal. They were given their pins and cards by the sponsors, Norman Spears and Mrs. B.J. Edens.

After the ceremony, the members, their families and guests were honored with a reception.

[Most Often-Asked Questions On Nutrition]

By Jean Glowka

Q. I've got a boil on my arm. It's the second boil I've had in a month. Maybe I'm deficient in something. What do you think? I'd really appreciate any information you could give me that might help!

A. It has been shown that a vitamin A deficiency can cause the skin to become susceptible to such infections as impetigo, carbuncles and boils.

Hot compresses are recommended to relieve pain and promote healing. It is felt also that a person who has boils should receive adequate rest, and in addition to extra vitamin A (perhaps 50,000 units daily for adults for several weeks) and an otherwise adequate nutritional regime, extra C and E should be taken. Vitamin A should also be applied locally.

lems.

A. Dandelion is said to have a high vitamin and mineral content; and, yes, it has been shown to be useful for treating liver and kidney disorders. Also, it is helpful for jaundice, skin diseases and loss of appetite. It is useful for fever, dropsy, inflammation of the bowels, infectious hepatitis, edema resulting from liver problems, rheumatism, stiff joints and gout.

Dandelion increases the activity of the pancreas, liver and spleen. It has been shown to contain insulin substitutes that are needed by diabetics.

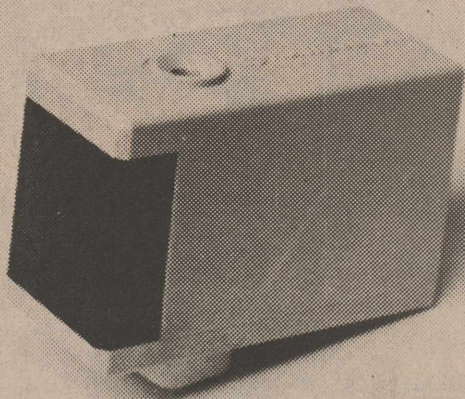

Until next week, folks, stay happy and healthy! It's a beautiful world!

Unauthorized Pay Returned To District

By Ted Norman
A total of $3,592.08 has been returned to the Aransas County Navigation District's general account in reimbursement for the unauthorized pay raise the directors voted themselves last November 4.

Jean Osborn, Navigation District secretary, said that four directors returned $718.27 each and Bobby Landrum returned $719.

The extra money from Landrum was for some extra interest he earned before returning the money.

The Aransas County Navigation District voted November 4, 1980, to give themselves a pay raise from $150 to $300 per month and to increase their travel expenses from $75 to $100 per month.

The attorney for the navigation district, Reese Rozzell, advised the directors to return the pay raise saying, "It was an honest mistake."

Rozzell explained to the directors that a law that has been on the books since 1925 makes it clear that the County Commissioners would approve or disapprove any pay raise.

Rozzell told the directors he would make a resolution to go before the commissioners court about the pay raise.

When Mrs. Osborn was asked if the pay raise issue was on the Commissioners' Court Agenda yet she said she didn't know. "You'll have to ask Mr. Rozzell," said Mrs. Osborn.

Rozzell is out of town on

Asked if he would be back in time for the navigation district meeting on Tuesday, May 5, Rozzell's secretary said "I don't think so. He told me not to expect him back in the office before Wednesday (May 6)."

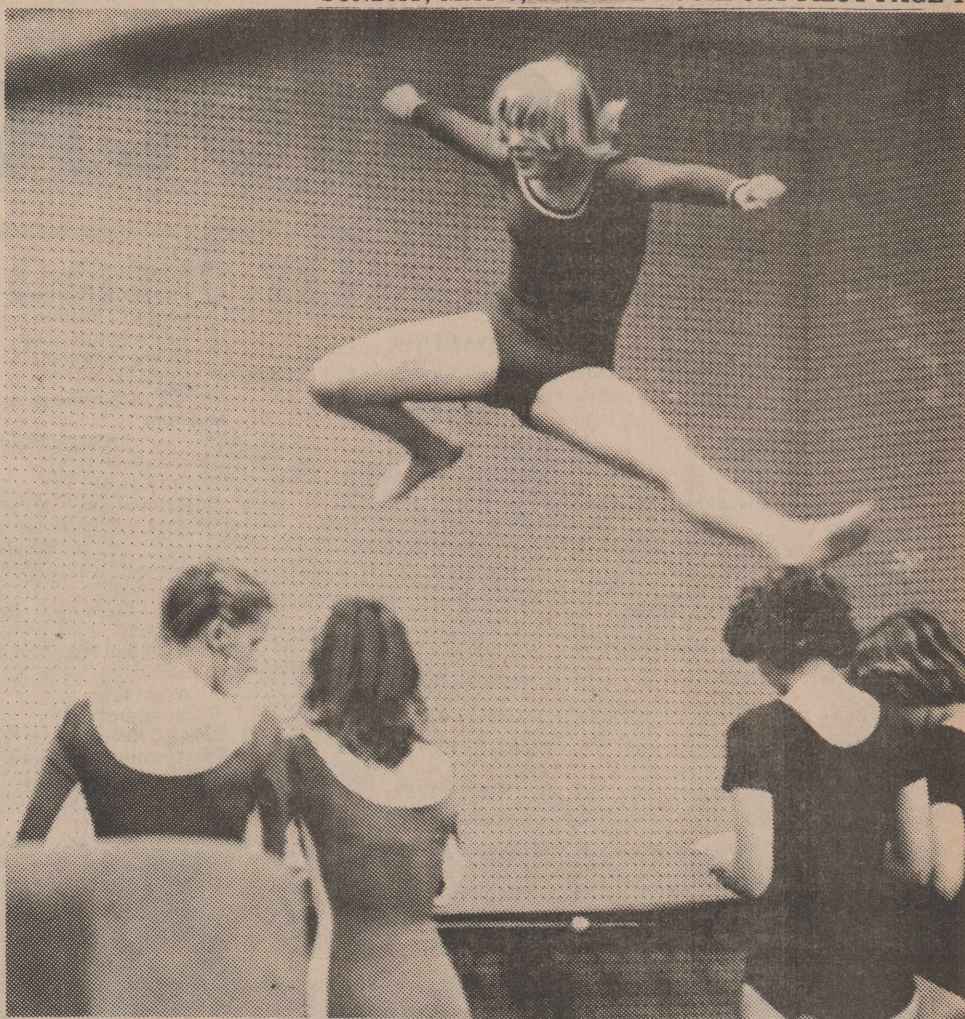

In a phone interview with Navigation District Vice Chairman Jimmy Anders it was learned that the Aransas Navigation District Directors had been advised by Rozzell in a workshop meeting that they should not try for another pay raise before election or, "If they do they should make it effective after the election," Anders said.

"In my opinion if they vote a pay raise it will be after the election," said Anders. Asked how he felt about the pay raise he added, "I really don't care, I'm not running anymore."

Anders said he was not running for re-election. "I'm tired of the old ladies trying to run things. Down here (at his garage) I don't have to put up with them."

Anders continued, "If I do a job here they pay me and I don't have to put up with anything from them."

When questioned again about his not running for re-election Anders said, "I don't want to fool with it. We all tried to do a good job down there but the little old ladies from the church want to run things down there."

She was one of 125 students from Rockport and Portland who entered the contest. Fifty-five Rockport students, 80 percent of the Rockport class, competed, and one, Laurie Thomas, achieved a perfect score of all tens. All the contestants, ranging in age from three to 21, earned ribbons in the competition and no one scored below a six (on a scale of 10-"Perfect"-down to one-"You Blew It..."). The competition centered on floor exercises, beams, bars, vault trampoline and a pentathlon that featured swing-ups, push-ups, chin-ups, pole climbing and broad jump.

Directory Of Services Available For Handicapped In Coastal Bend

CORPUS CHRISTI — A directory of services for the handicapped in the 12 Coastal Bend counties — including Aransas — is being made available at no charge to area residents.

Anyone wanting a copy of the directory can obtain one by calling 883-5743 during business hours.

The directory was compiled by members of a subcommittee of the Human Resource Council of the Coastal Bend Council of Governments which is also sponsoring a Handicapped Awareness Week starting Monday, May 4.

The weeklong observance is planned to increase public awareness of the handicapped and their needs and will feature daily events in Corpus Christi that will meet this goal.

Russell Rowley is chairman of the subcommittee which has been joined by agencies and private industry in planning for Handicapped Awareness Week.

Events will start with a forum on Individual and Environmental Accessibility, including films, speakers and presentations Monday, May 4 from 7 to 9 p.m. at the City-County Health Center, 1702 Home Road. The forum is sponsored by HOPE, an organization of physically handicapped young adults.

Throughout the week, Monday through Friday, the Nueces County Mental Health/Mental Retardation center will conduct tours, all day, of an Opportunity workshop.

On Tuesday, the Handicapped Committee will man an information booth at the May Fair in Memorial Coliseum from 10 a.m. until 6 p.m. Goodwill Industries will hold open house from 1 to 3 p.m. at 2961 South Port and the Drug Abuse Council will hold open house from 10 a.m. until 4 p.m. at 527 Gordon.

On Wednesday, the booth in May Fair will be manned for a second day. At 7 p.m., the South Texas Health Systems Agency will hold a meeting at Greenwood Senior Center, 4040 Greenwood, presenting speakers and slides on subjects including muscular dystrophy.

Thursday, tours will be conducted of the Ada Wilson Hospital orthopedic clinic, occupational therapy department, ICF-MR unit and physical therapy department from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. The hospital is at 3511 South Alameda.

From 1 to 7 p.m., Southwestern Bell Telephone Company will demonstrate special products and services for the handicapped at Corpus Christi State School Pavilion, 902 Airport Road.

Friday, an information booth will be manned from 10 a.m. to 9 p.m. in Padre-Staples Mall. From 10 a.m. to 5 p.m., a slide presentation on job training will be shown at the MH/MR Sheltered Workshop, 614 Mohawk, by Corpus Christi Citizens for the Retarded.

The booth in Padre Staples Mall will be open again on Saturday. During the same hours, 10 a.m. to 9 a.m., a booth will be manned in Sunrise Mall displaying arts and crafts made by retarded children and providing information for the handicapped.

From 7 to 10 p.m. an open house will be held by the Coastal Bend Silent Club and Corpus Christi Area Council for the Deaf at 621 Oliver.

Goals for the handicapped Rowley said, include employment that can make them independent, housing that will enable them to live with the least possible assistance and transportation that will give them the freedom to get to work and take care of their essential business and amenities of life.

May Is Busy Month At RFHS

The month of May will be a hectic time for the students and faculty at Rockport-Fulton High School, with end-of-school activity accelerating.

On May 1, graduating seniors receive their graduation apparel and investigations and the next day, Friday, May 2 is the Junior-Senior Prom. The prom theme this year is "Nights In Vegas" and the event will take place in the Paws and Taws Building.

Prom-goers will receive a gold coin with their prom invitation and when the coin is presented at the dance, they will win a door prize. Attendance at the prom is expected to be high as usual and student participation in prom preparation has been outstanding, says Larue Hatfield, faculty sponsor. She adds that all prom-goers are urged to bring a camera with them to the dance for an undisclosed surprise.

Tuesday, May 12 is the date set for the High School Band's Spring Concert. The concert and symphonic band will present a program at 7 p.m. in the High Auditorium.

The next day, May 13 is Student Awards day in the gym and Senior Awards Day will be held on May 21 in the auditorium. At these awards ceremonies outstanding students will be honored by their faculty and fellow students for various achievements.

The "big event" — graduation will be on Tuesday, May 28 and will be preceded on May 24 with a Baccalaureate service.

Navigation District for a special use permit that would allow the District to grant temporary permits to businesses, civic groups or associations or individuals on Navigation District property.

Such a permit would be granted on condition that the applicants comply with all existing city ordinances.

Also scheduled in the joint hearing is a request by Donald Kelley for rezoning of a part of a lot on the corner of Concho and Bronte from B-1 to B-2 business.

In other action Monday, the council will open bids on two police cars and a sewer cleaning machine. Council members are also expected to take action on a request by Aransas County

There's at least a month's worth of clean up work out there."

Munroe continued, "There's tremendous potential out there. I feel that it will be a great attribute to the county as the airport grows."

After the court's decision, County Judge John Wendell told the commissioners, "If I hadn't been county judge and if I had the money, I'd have hit you two or three years ago and done the exact same thing that this boy's doing out there."

In other action, the court accepted a contract from Coastal Bend Cablevision Corporation to extend their service north into City-By-The-Sea and Palm Harbor. The company had appeared before the court earlier asking permission to extend, but the court had requested that a contract be drawn up.

The contract specifies that "poles, conduits, manholes and other facilities be fixed in such a manner as to not reasonably interfere with public travel." The county would not be held responsible for any repairs necessitated by the cable extension, as the company would be expected to fully repair any damage to streets or other public property incurred during their installation routine.

After approval, the contract was signed by each commissioner. At press time, the exact date of cable availability to the areas mentioned was not yet known.

Wednesday's court also included the reviewing and discussion of the county employees' insurance plan as the anniversary date for all employees' coverage is approaching. Representatives from Metropolitan, the present company used by the county, and Blue Cross-Blue Shield appeared before the group and explained their policies and rates.

No decision was made by the court on either company. As Commissioner J.M. Sprigle said, "I don't feel that I'm capable of making this kind of decision in one day without sitting down and looking at these things." All the commissioners expressed concern over the rising cost of insurance to county employees with dependents.

In other action Judge Wendell informed the court of a House Joint Resolution (HR 119) now pending that would allow the counties of Bee, Bexar and Tarrant to abolish the office of county treasurer in light of the fact that the office and that of county auditor often overlap and the tasks involved could be efficiently handled by one office, that of the auditor.

Counties interested in such a plan are able to ask the Legislature for permission to hold a constitutional amendment election to determine the public consensus on the matter.

Noting that present county treasurer Etoile Eller is retiring next year, Judge Wendell asked the court what their wishes were on the matter. The court voted for the inclusion of Aransas County on such a bill as HJR 119 and the judge agreed to send notice of the court's decision to Representative Leroy Wieting.

If such an arrangement was voted in by Aransas County citizens, county auditor Gussie Dean would assume the responsibilities now handled by Eller.

In other matters, the court passed a resolution that allows their group to set the salaries of judges serving on the Juvenile board in Aransas County, pending passage of a bill sponsored in the legislature by J.H. Reynolds. The bill would allow commissioners' courts to set the salaries for juvenile court judges as long as the amount was not less than $200. Judges involved are District Judge Ronald Yeager and County Judge John Wendell.

In other action, the court accepted a bid from Drozd Construction Company for the painting of the administration building, electric building and hangar at the county airport. Drozd outbid John D. Dipollo from San Antonio with a figure of $13,426. Dipollo's bid was $13,840. Work on the project is set to begin next week.

After bidding was completed, Board President Otis Mundine suggested to the board, "let them (architects and Randow) take it and make us a firm suggestion before we do anything."

Womack said of the bidding, "everything was real close, as you can tell. Extremely competitive bids Fenner & Smith investment firm in New York, said prospects for the aluminum industry do not look good for the remainder of the year.

The last shut-down of the Reynolds plant, in May, 1975, lasted for four years, until May, 1979. Some 900 workers lost their jobs in that layoff although most were rehired when production resumed.

are good bids. By next week, we should be able to make a solid recommendation to you."

Representatives of the architectural firm plans to "meet with at least A & A and Hill, and most likely Krueger" to discuss adjustments to the bid prices by the omission of alternates, if need be.

The project is expected to go over the $3.5 million budget which includes work already done on the high school roof and the new administration office.

High prices for natural gas, 50 million cubic feet of which are needed daily for the San Patricio Reynolds operation, were blamed for the current layoff.

The plant uses the natural gas to fuel the generators that produce electricity. The electricity in turns runs the two 57,000-tons-per-year potlines that turn alumina into aluminum ingots.

The alumina comes from Reynolds' Sherwin Alumina Plant next door to the San Patricio plant. As in 1975, the current shutdown will not affect the Sherwin plant which will continue to operate at full capacity.

One of the plant's potlines was shutdown last July in a move also blamed on high energy costs, resulting in the layoff of 150 workers.

SOLAR FACTS

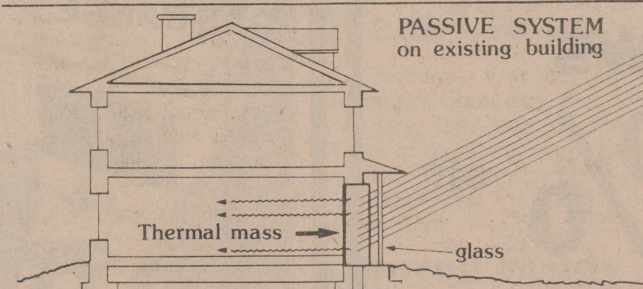

by Robert E. Lewis

PASSIVE HEATING OFFERS ADVANTAGES, DIFFERENCES

There are many advantages in using passive solar energy to heat our homes and commercial buildings. Any disadvantages are few and minor, and more aptly termed "differences" from conventional heating methods.

The most obvious advantage of a passive solar heating system is its capacity to save fuel. It is currently estimated that at least 80 percent of the average home's heating requirements can be met by a passive solar energy system. As fuel costs continue to escalate, the prospect of reducing fuel consumption by relying on the sun's energy becomes highly attractive.

In addition, passive heating systems can be inexpensive to build. When included in the original design and construction of a building, a passive system adds surprisingly little to the cost. Existing buildings are also adaptable to passive design. In fact, the cost of a retrofit passive system is often offset by the increase in the building's market value.

Perhaps the greatest attraction of a passive heating system is its simplicity. Since most passive systems are free of mechanical equipment, there are no fans, pumps, compressors, ducts or moving parts to break down. And because they use common construction materials - such as masonry, glass, brick, etc. - passive systems usually have long, maintenance-free lives.

Finally, passive solar systems offer a great degree of architectural flexibility. A common misconception is that solar homes must, by necessity, be futuristic-looking.

While solar dwellings are the homes of the future by virtue of the way they are heated (and in some cases cooled), designs by some of the leading homebuilders have as much appeal to the traditional as to the contemporary eye. In fact, passive systems are being installed around the country in Cape Cod, colonial and ranch-style homes without any loss of architectural integrity.

But passive heating systems still remain different from conventional heating methods. First, temperature control is not as easy in solar buildings as in structures with conventional heating systems. Since a passive system is an integral part of the building's structure, space temperature fluctuations can result from changes in the temperature of the system's storage mass. But there are relatively simple solutions to these situations.

For residential applications, temperature control can be achieved through operable windows, shading devices, venting and back-up heating systems. In large scale applications, the solution to control lies in choosing a back-up system that can respond effectively to the comfort requirements of its occupants.

In addition, the temperature in a passive solar area is usually lower than that of a conventionally heated one. While this slightly lower temperature range requires some attitude adjustment on the part of solar users, many people think solar-heated buildings are actually more comfortable than conventional types.

As Americans look for ways to conserve energy, more and more are turning to passive solar heating systems. While passive heating offers many advantages, living in a passive solar home will definitely be different. Many knowledgeable people say it will be better.

For a description of some of the differences between passive and conventional heating methods, send a stamped, self-addressed envelope to: Robert E. Lewis, (#6-A) P.O. Box 3680, Grand Central Station, New York, N.Y. 10017.
