Nichols Worth

By Nanalee Nichols
Old plumbers never die, they just remember close calls!

Roy Lee Castlebury was the first person to give us a call about our request concerning what plumber's candles were for.

Roy's brother, Elton Castlebury, is seventy-five years old and lives in Columbus, Mississippi.

Upon reading my column last week Roy called his brother, who said that plumber's candles were simply used for light in dark spots before the advent of flashlights.

He reports that they were frequently fixed to pieces of two by four lumber to give them a very stable base when crawling around under houses.

In addition, plumbers would rub the wax from these specially made candles onto a joint of lead pipe to help it slip together easier when plumbing old fashioned metal pipes.

Elton recalls that the last time he ever used a candle was in the 1940s in Paris, Texas. He had not purchased a flashlight, which were just truly becoming common.

As he crawled around under a house over on Pine Bluff in Paris he was happily using his lighted candle. He peeled a patch from a sewer line to begin work and a pocket of sewer gas ignited!

He says that "we darned near burned the house down". He also was without eyebrows for some time!

Apparently after that he decided an electric flash light would be an excellent investment. Don't blame him a bit.

On Tuesday night we had a call from a long-time subscriber, Wayne Grogan, who wanted to put a lady who lives next door to them on the phone. She was Mary Jordan De Briyn, formerly of Victoria, Texas. Her father was mayor of Victoria for 14 years, and started out working as a plumber. She confirmed what Mr. Castlebury had told us. The wife of a retired Airforce Colonel, Mary recalled that when she and her husband went to the Azores in the 40s her dad sent a number of plumber's candles with them because electricity there was so uncertain.

A number of other people agreed with the these two as to the uses of the sturdy little candle.

So, once more my plea for information has yielded the answer. I think we have more knowledge floating around out there among our readers than the internet has....after all, the internet failed to turn up anything at all on this subject.

Victory by ten votes!

Bond Issue Passes by close margin

Predictions that the nine million dollar Talco-Bogata Independent School District bond election would be close came very true Saturday, as the measure passed by 10 votes.

Six hundred fourteen votes were cast for and six hundred and four votes against the bond issue.

It is considered a record turn out for a school election in Talco-Bogata.

There is definitely the possibility of a recount since the voting was so close. It will probably be called for with a petition of twenty-five or more people who were against the proposal.

The vote was called for a $9 million dollar bond issue to put grade school and junior high school as well as the high school at the Rivercrest Campus.

This will eliminate school campuses in Talco and Bogata.

If the recount changes nothing, there will be a 20-cent yearly tax increase per $100 evaluation, with state funds expected to cover the remainder of the cost of the project.

Dr. Gary Vandeaver, Superintendent, said that "the first job is going to be to get with a finance company and get the bonds issued and work with the architect pursuing the preliminary planning to try to get production work going". He says that he believes people will work together for the good of the students now that the election is over.

"We have been told that from the time the election passes to the time the new buildings are completed will probably be about two years" Dr. VanDeaver.

Cool spell creates great weekend

If there is an Indian Summer, a brief delicious spell of warm weather right before winter, then perhaps there is an Indian Spring...for the weekend just past was as delightful a spell of cool weather as can be imagined!

A cold front broke into early June's near or over 100 degree temperatures and brought three days of incredibly cool with day time temperatures only touching 70 degrees!

In addition the storm that ushered in the cool weather added some much needed moisture to crops, pastures, yards and the world in general. Amounts of rainfall varied, as did damage from high winds, which downed trees and limbs throughout the area.

Tuesday saw the heat back again, but the "Indian Spring" residents enjoyed was unusual and welcome.

Country Cooking

By Liz Irwin

http:/www.1starnet.com/tpp

This week's cook has been around the world and back, but settled for home in Blossom, Texas. She is Martha McCaskill. She and her husband Don reside outside of Blossom in a very, spacious, beautiful home filled with their own special style of decorating. It is also filled with mementos of their travels from near and far.

They lived in Hong Kong for 3 years and Brazil for 2 years, Florida and New Jersey and other parts of the United States. Don retired from IBM after 35 years of service and is now CEO of Lamar County Cooperative.

Settling in Blossom came to mind, when they acquired their property from Martha's mother's family and have loved the area ever since.

Many of her recipes comes from special friends that they have made from their travels. They both enjoy traveling and keeping up with these friends. They enjoy their children and grandchildren. Don also enjoys fabricating and installing Corian Cabinet Tops which are made by DuPont. He went to a special school to learn this sponsored by DuPont in Pennsylvania and is now a distributor and fabricator of their products.

They have three children. Christy Wendell is the oldest and she has a son Grayson. She graduated from High School in Hong Kong. The middle daughter, Sally Stein lives in Houston and has two sons, Donald and Justin. Dean is the youngest and they have two sons, Calvin and Chase. They are currently in the process of moving from Cleveland to Miami.

Her Sour Cream Pound Cake has the flavor of three extracts. . . . orange, lemon and vanilla. It makes a very large, tall, beautiful cake that is very tasteful. This recipe came from a dear friend in Hong Kong.

Pecan Sand Tarts-Martha says that this recipe is so simple and so delicious. This recipe came from a friend in Nantucket.

Burgundy Binge is a sauce that can be used on baked ham or other meats and turns a wonderful shade of burgundy color and comes from a friend in New Jersey.

Chocolate Pot de creme-Martha says that this is absolutely a very elegant dessert, but needs to be served in small portions because it is so rich! She also adds the tip for shaving the chocolate on top is to use a potato peeler. This recipe also came from Hong Kong.

Fruit Syrup serves 8 and can be made ahead with all types of fresh fruits in season comes from a friend in Sarasota.

Plantation Peach Shortcake needs no introduction--it just sounds good! It makes a beautiful dessert.

Card of Thanks

I could talk until eternity and would never be able to tell each of you how much your part meant to me on my day at Johntown Baptist Church. I feel especially honored and blessed that so many would forego services at their own church to come to visit with us. Loving family and good friends are more precious than gold. Thank you.

My kids have been asking what I want for Fathers' Day. This year I thought of giving them a gift. I've been hearing how prostate cancer affects American men, so I'm getting a PSA blood test at Titus Regional Medical Center's Lab. The test is only $10 and is being offered the week following Fathers' Day from June 22 through June 26 from 8 a.m. to 8 p.m. On Thursday, June 25th the Lab has special hours from 8 a.m. to 8 p.m. I've always told my children, "Your best defense is a good offense." So I'm giving them a gift... a health test that could save my life.

First Assembly to host singing

First Assembly of God in Bogata will be hosting a singing Friday night, June 12 at 7:00 p.m. With featured group Eddy Bolton and Flyin' High. They are from Nashville, Tennessee. First Assembly's trio, Miracle will be singing also. This group features Randy and Lorrie Lemme and Mikel Haynes.

The featured group, Flyin' High, consists of Eddy Bolton, his wife, Julie and a young man, Jerry Dean from Sayre, Oklahoma. All three began singing at a young age.

Eddy, originally from the Paris area, recorded his first album in 1972 with his mom and brother as The Bolton Trio. He went on to sing with The Master's Four who later became The Texas.

Eddy and his wife, Julie, sang in the Branson/Springfield, Missouri area until Eddy joined the famous Speer Family in 1994. With the restructuring of the Speer family, Eddy formed his own group, Flyin' High.

AS the legendary Brock Speer writes," Ever so often there comes on the Gospel Music Scene a unique sound that grabs the attention of the Gospel Music World.. Flyin" High could be that group for this time.

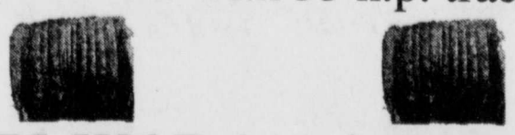

The Group, Miracle, is from Bogata. They attend First Assembly of God. Randy, Lorrie and Mikel have grown up in Gospel music. Randy and Lorrie were at one time a part of the Halyards and Mikel has been singing solo and group in her local church from her youth.

Pastor Donnie Sherrill and the congregation invites everyone to come and be a part of this great evening of gospel music.

There is no admission charge. A love offering will be received.

Aggies study El Nino effects on lightning

COLLEGE STATION - The effects of El Nino are everywhere — it has waterlogged the west coast, pummeled Florida with tornadoes and turned winter snows into winter sunshine — but scientists have yet to determine the effects of the system on thunderstorms and lightning.

By studying lightning, Texas A&M University meteorologists hope to better predict where lightning will occur next in order to protect lives and property and help power companies anticipate power outages.

The scientists will combine radar, satellite and lightning data to get a more complete picture of storms. The lightning data will come from the National Lightning Detection Network, which is run out of Tucson.

"It's going to be interesting this year to see what El Nino is doing to lightning activity," said meteorologist Richard Orville.

Lightning is classified as either positively or negatively charged with positive-charged lightning being the more dangerous. Researchers expect to see not only more lightning associated with El Nino but also more positively-charged lightning, Orville said.

"Being able to look into a storm system and see where the most dangerous lightning is occurring means you can tell what parts on the ground will be most threatened by the lightning activity," he said.

With this knowledge, power companies can deploy repair crews to areas where and when lightning is likely to cut power, he said. The companies also will be better able to predict where lightning may occur, so they can reroute power to minimize the lightning damage and power outages.

By Dave Seber A Column For Those Interested In Or Learning About The Internet

Last Friday, the Clinton administration released a plan to end our government's management of the Internet and hand over control to a yet-to-be-formed international board consisting of fifteen members. This board is expected to be up and running by October 1, 1998 and total transfer of responsibilities no later than October 1, 2000.

A smooth changeover is expected and the average user of the Internet will hardly notice.

The biggest change will be a handful of new suffixes for Web addresses.

We are familiar with .com, .net, .gov, and .org. New ones will probably be .shop, and .rec. If you want to register your own Web site address, the process will likely be easier and less costly with new companies allowed to compete for that business.

At the present, registration of many Web addresses is the responsibility of Network Solutions Inc., in Herndon, Va. They have an exclusive five-year contract with the National Science Foundation that expires at the end of September. Network Solutions will retain the role of keeper of the lists of Web sites using .com, .net and .org. Other companies will probably be this monopoly

Hydroxyurea study under way

Hydroxyurea, a drug that has shown promising results in preliminary adult HIV studies, will be tested in HIV-positive children for the first time.

A phase I study enlisting 15 children ages 1 to 16 has begun at Baylor College of Medicine and Texas Children's Hospital in Houston. Inexpensive and easy to take, hydroxyurea will be given in combination with either ddI or d4T, two standard HIV medications.

When this drug was tried in HIV-positive adults, the amount of virus found in the body was dramatically reduced according to Dr. Mark Kline, professor of pediatrics at Baylor.

Hydroxyurea, a drug that works by inhibiting DNA production, has been used in the treatment of leukemia and solid tumors in children and adults. Currently, studies are also being conducted for treatment of sickle cell anemia.

In adults hydroxyurea has shown impressive results in lowering viral load. In some cases where treatment included the drug ddI, the amount of HIV was suppressed below the level of detectability. Two individuals had no detectable virus more than one year after discontinuing the study drugs. Kline hopes to see similar results in the pediatric study.

Hydroxyurea may be a good choice for children, because it is taken once a day, versus two or four times per day for other HIV medications. In addition, the drug has no taste and dissolves easily in juice or other beverages. It costs only pennies per dose, according to Kline.

Drugs such as protease inhibitors which are the accepted treatment today, don't taste good. Often kids spit out the medicine or refuse it entirely.

The Baylor study will confirm safe dosage levels, drug levels in the blood and the effect that hydroxyurea has on viral load and T-cell counts.

He who runs from God in the morning will scarcely find him the rest of the day.

Changed behavior may help swimsuit fit better

COLLEGE STATION - On New Year's Eve, you stuck a picture of Cindy Crawford on the refrigerator and made a resolution to get into shape and into your swimsuit by summer.

Well, summer is here and that swimsuit still doesn't fit. While intentions were good, old habits kept you on the couch, not in the gym.

Every year thousands of people intend to eat less and exercise more because they know they should take better care of their health, but knowledge is not enough, says Texas A&M University psychologist Wendy Wood and Judy Ouellette, a psychologist at the State University of New York-Cortland.

"One reason is that behavior is a product of both intentions and habits. To change behavior, psychologists typically try to change people's conscious beliefs and thoughts, but for everyday lifestyle-type behaviors, such as eating and exercising, changing habits may be more important," Wood says.

Wood and Ouellette investigated the role of habit by reviewing 64 earlier studies and then testing their findings on college students' frequency of TV watching and recycling. They defined habits as behavioral tendencies to repeat well-practiced behaviors in a stable context (situation), like driving a car, and intentions as cognitive commitments. Habits are performed automatically, with little thought.

THE PRESCHOOL AND PRIMARY CLASSES at Fulbright Church of Christ were recognized for their active role in helping to provide food for the Boles Home Orphanage. This is an ongoing commitment for these children who are being trained to be attentive to the needs of others.

Car Care Corner

The Intruder Is Dust

(NAPS)—The next time you're driving on an unpaved road consider this: If the surface is irregular, it's rough on your car's suspension and tires. If dust is being raised, it could get into your car's engine and cut down on your visibility.

An effective liquid dust control agent has been developed to keep the dust down and improve the road surface as well.

These are some of the reasons why many townships are using a dust control agent that can keep the dust down longer, actually improves the road surface when it's used and doesn't have to be re-applied that often. It's a clear, odorless liquid dust control agent containing calcium chloride that can be sprayed on unpaved roads. The result is less dust in the air, better driver visibility and reduced rutting and washboarding.

Users of LIQUIDOW® liquid calcium chloride, for example, report that this method not only reduces dust and improves driver safety, it also reduces lost aggregate by up to 75 to 80 percent. This translates into substantial savings in unpaved road maintenance costs.

That's why many residents are urging their township officials to use liquid calcium chloride to control excessive dust on unpaved roads.
