

City Voters Warned Of Registration Deadline

By JEFF SOUTH
Avalanche-Journal Staff

Wednesday is the deadline to register to vote in Lubbock's April 1 city council-school board elections, county Tax Assessor-Collector Russell Hardin says.

"To be eligible to vote, a person must be registered at least 30 days prior to the election. That's state law," Hardin, whose office handles voter registration here, said.

How that state rule jibes with recent federal standards, however, is unclear. "That's still up in the air. There are some legal questions whether a person who is not registered to vote can be denied a ballot," said a spokesman in the elections division of Secretary of State Steven Oaks' office.

He said unregistered voters may be able to "convince the election judge" at the polls of their eligibility and thus secure a ballot.

But until the legal questions are answered, "our official position is that you must be registered 30 days prior to an election and be able to show a voter registration card in order to vote," the spokesman said.

In December, Hardin mailed new, yellow voter registration cards — in contrast to the old blue certificates — to the 79,110 persons listed on the county's voting rolls.

About 22,000 of those cards were returned to the county tax office for improper address. Since then, however, a "large number" of voters have claimed their yellow cards and given the tax office their current addresses, Hardin said.

Hardin's office is compiling two voter lists for upcoming elections — an "active roll" for those who have received new registration cards, and an "inactive roll" for those who had been registered but did not claim their yellow certificates.

Persons on both rolls will be allowed to vote April 1. And by doing so, persons on the inactive roll will be given an application for a new voter registration card so they can be put on the active roll, election officials said.

They said the inactive roll will be discontinued after June.

Hardin said persons who do not hold a yellow voter registration card should apply for one at the county tax office Wednesday to clear up any questions about eligibility for April 1 elections.

Senators Rap Lag On Canal

WASHINGTON (AP) — Senate leaders indicated today they are growing impatient with the slow pace of the Panama Canal debate and may move soon to speed the process.

"About everything that can be said, has been said," Majority Leader Robert C. Byrd, D-W.Va., told reporters before the start of the 10th day of debate.

But Byrd declined to say whether he was going to clamp down on senators who have begun going over and over the same arguments.

Byrd's Republican counterpart, Sen. Howard H. Baker Jr. of Tennessee, said he plans to try to get senators to agree to limit the time spent on each amendment.

"I'd like to finish it well before Easter," said Baker.

The Senate voted twice Monday to reject amendments offered by treaty opponents, and both leaders said they were encouraged by the results.

But many observers felt the votes demonstrated only that there are still no clear signs how undecided senators eventually will vote on the pact.

Monday's two votes came on proposals to allow the president to keep troops in Panama until the year 2020 and to have the English version of the neutrality treaty prevail over the Spanish version in any disputes over interpretation.

The vote to kill Sen. James B. Allen's troops amendment was 55 to 34. Sen. Paul Laxalt, R-Nev., a leader of the treaty opponents, said he was "delighted" that his side mustered 34 votes, the number that would block ratification by the required two-thirds majority.

But Baker noted that "a week ago we thought we might lose" on the Allen amendment. He conceded though that the 34 was "an ominous number." Sen. Alan Cranston, D-Calif., the assistant manager.

Carter Asks Hike In School Funds

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter asked Congress today to raise federal aid to education by nearly one-fourth and said U.S. dollars should help teach basic skills such as reading, writing and arithmetic.

Carter's proposal would boost federal aid to education by 24 percent to $12.9 billion annually.

The president sent Congress an educational master plan that he said "will focus our nation's resources on helping our children master the basic skills—reading, writing and arithmetic—which remain critical to their ability to function in a complex society."

In his legislative proposals to renew the Elementary and Secondary Education Act, the cornerstone of federal aid to the schools, Carter proposed funneling more aid to school districts "with large numbers of poor children—5,000 or more or large proportions of poor children—20 percent or more."

He also renewed his commitment to creating a separate Department of Education. Most of the government's spending for education now goes through the Office of Education in the Department of Health, Education and Welfare.

And he promised to seek ways to allow parochial and other private schools to participate more in the programs for the disadvantaged. But he reiterated his opposition to moves in Congress to give parents of private school children a tax credit for the tuition they pay.

Carter revealed in his fiscal 1979 budget proposals in January that he would seek to raise spending for education to $11.6 billion, up from $10.4 billion in the current year. But several weeks ago he announced a new $1.46 billion package of increased aid to college students primarily from the middle class that raised the total to $12.9 billion.

Carter said he will seek $400 million extra for his new program concentrating on schools with large numbers or large percentages of poor students. He said the money would aid 3,500 school districts and increase the number of poor children aided by the program to 6.5 million.

He said two-thirds of the extra money would go to hard-pressed center-city schools, while one-third "will flow to rural and suburban school systems which have similar needs."

On basic skills, Carter said he was proposing grants to "encourage state and local demonstration efforts to improve basic ic skills...including increased use of achievement testing and the participation by parents in teaching their children."

More efforts will be made to link school programs "with employers and other resources in the surrounding community," he said, and more emphasis will be put on basic skills in adult education programs.

Carter also proposed a new program of matching grants to encourage states to create their own compensatory education programs.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Tongson Park went before House Ethics Committee investigators today for questioning on his alleged influence-buying operations and pledged, "I'll do my best to clear the air."

The millionaire businessman, indicted for trying to bribe congressmen, said: "For the sake of both countries involved, and for my own personal sake, I hope the whole thing will be terminated as soon as possible."

Park's remarks came as he headed toward a small hearing room. His testimony, in exchange for a promise that charges against him will be dropped later, comes in the form of a deposition. Most of the committee's members sat in. The questioning was closed to newsmen.

He said he wants "to accommodate the greater consideration—that is, the interests of both countries involved."

Metal detectors were set up at both ends of the corridor leading to the hearing room. Nearly 200 reporters were allowed into the corridor, but were kept back from the entrance to the room.

Park wore a gray suit and brightly colored tie. He was surrounded by American and Korean guards when he arrived.

"I really feel the whole thing is very unfortunate," he told reporters.

"I'm going to go in there and let them ask any questions they want to, and I'll do my best to clear the air so that the Congress of this country can get back to its normal life," he said.

Twelve states — California, Connecticut, Florida, Georgia, Maryland, Michigan, New Jersey, New York, Ohio, Rhode Island, Utah and Texas — would share an extra $87.5 million next year because their programs already meet federal standards for the special matching grants.

These programs provide supplemental aid to the federal program designed to improve basic skills to poor children.

The federal grants would provide $1 in U.S. funds for each $2 spent by the states.

As he headed for the hearing room door he turned and waved and told reporters, "Try to be kind to me."

Investigators want details on alleged payments of $100,000 or more to several former congressmen, and on campaign and office account contributions to at least 24 senators and House members.

Park pleaded innocent Monday in an arraignment on 36 criminal counts of bribery and trying to buy influence in Congress with cash, gifts and parties as an agent of the South Korean government.

The Justice Department has agreed to drop those charges after he testifies against other defendants.

Wednesday Final Day For Filing

The deadline for filing as a city council or school board candidate in upcoming elections is midnight Wednesday.

Anyone interested in registering as a city candidate can do so until 5 p.m. Wednesday in the city secretary's office at City Hall. City Secy. Treva Phillips said she also will take filings at her home at 3814 58th St. until midnight, in compliance with state law.

School board aspirants can file until 5 p.m. with Marguerite Key at the school district's main offices and until midnight at her home at 4603 27th St.

To date, four people have filed for each of the two school board slots open. In Place 1, incumbent Joan Ervin will be challenged by Lynn Stafford, Dr. John Ray and Bill Warren.

The Place 2 seat, being vacated by Bob McKelvey, will be sought by Donna Muldrew, Brad Crawford, Edith O'Brien and Claude Dollins.

The two candidates campaigning for the mayor's position are current Place 1 Councilman Dirk West and Leland Kelly. Roy Bass is leaving the office after two two-year terms.

In the Place 1 race, current Place 3 Councilman Alan Henry is taking on Mike Stevens. And Bob Schmidt and M.J. "Bud" Aderton are vying for the Place 3 spot.

School and municipal candidates will draw for places on the ballot in the April 1 elections on Thursday. The municipal drawing will be held at 10:30 a.m. in council chambers. School ballot drawings also will be held that morning.

States Battle Shift In Federal Money

WASHINGTON (AP) — Spokesmen for the nation's governors said today that Carter administration plans to convert some revenue-sharing funds into incentive grants under its emerging national urban policy would be a breach of faith with the states.

"I think that would be a real breach of faith," Gov. James B. Hunt Jr. of North Carolina told a delegation of top administration officials at the annual winter conference of the National Governors Association.

"You should not use revenue sharing as a lever," Georgia Gov. George Busbee agreed.

The governors' comments were directed at chief White House domestic adviser Stuart Eizenstat, Cabinet secretary Jack Watson and Housing Secretary Patricia Roberts Harris.

Other than the disagreement over the conversion of revenue-sharing funds, Mrs. Harris told the governors, "the president already has agreed to the goals you have called for," including comprehensive state development plans and incentive funding to encourage the states to take a bigger role in rescuing the nation's ailing cities.

But a delegation of mayors, led by Lee Alexander of Syracuse, N.Y., president of the mayors' conference, said that it wants Congress to increase Carter's budget recommendations for urban programs by $11.3 billion.

The extra money requested includes $6 billion for job-producing programs, $2.3 billion for economic development projects, $1 billion for urban mass transit, $955 million for housing programs and $275 million for social service programs.

Other categories where smaller increases were recommended are crime control, the environment and programs for the aged.

Briscoe Offers Energy Program

By MILLER BONNER

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Carter Administration must move quickly to amend its national energy policy in order to "keep America from becoming an economic satellite of the OPEC nations," claims Texas Gov. Dolph Briscoe.

Briscoe said Monday that he had urged President Carter to "re-examine the facts" concerning the energy policy, and outlined proposals Briscoe says will ease the energy crisis.

Following a 90-minute energy production conference with the president as part of the National Governors' Association winter meetings, Briscoe said:

"It is the belief of many of us that the proposed plan would not work and that the plan will not meet its own production goals and will, in fact, discourage domestic energy production," Briscoe read from the statement he had delivered during the governors' meeting with the president. "Therefore, we urge you to re-examine the facts, reject policies that will not work and adopt those policies that will increase energy production."

"Lessons of the months since the (energy) plan was presented should make it clear that greater incentives for domestic production should be provided than those provided in the plan and unless the United States' production is increased dramatically, the nation could face imports of 15 million barrels a day or more by 1985, which is almost doubling the current rate of imports, and imports of this magnitude could make America an economic satellite of the OPEC nations."

The proposals Briscoe presented to Carter, Energy Secretary James Schlesinger, and Interior Secretary Cecil Andrus were:

- Deregulate natural gas prices;
- Allow newly-discovered oil to sell for world market prices and establish incentives for increased production from existing wells;
- Revise existing federal government leasing procedures "so that the federal domain can provide its fair share of the nation's oil, gas, coal, uranium and geothermal resources which it is now not doing;"
- And abolish the crude oil equalization tax and the oil and gas user's tax.

"These taxes would discourage production, have a highly regionalized impact on consumers and such taxes would increase the cost of living, the cost of doing business and therefore would be highly inflationary."

"A study by the University of Texas indicated that the national energy plan is based on unreal assumptions about oil and gas finding rates and the availability of drilling rigs," Briscoe said. "The net result is that the plan projects more oil and gas production than is realistically possible."

Briscoe said he and Oklahoma Gov. David Boren made the report on behalf of the oil and gas subcommittee of the National Governors' Association.

Briscoe noted that he had "sensed" from Carter and Schlesinger "the need to get something done right away." Briscoe also said the president indicated "the discussion is now leading to ultimate deregulation but after a number of years... but how many years, that wasn't answered."

tion that there was some property — suspected as stolen — on acreage west of Lubbock on FM 179, the builders went to the site and found the goods, much of which reportedly had engraved identification.

Two weeks ago, deputies Ernest Rector and Alton Hobbs accompanied the businessman to the location, at which Pena was building a home. Again, positive identification reportedly was made of the goods at the proposed home site.

Among the property identified as stolen was every bit of material used in an all-steel 6-by-8-foot building on the premises.

Meanwhile, after being fired from the job he had held for the past four years, Pena went to work for a competitor of his former employer.

The day he was arrested — Feb. 12 — deputies obtained search warrants for the house under construction and another home on E. 47th Street. At the latter site, they found a $450 nailgun reportedly identified as having been stolen.

Following Pena's arrest, work was begun on dismantling the house he was building on FM 179, because company officials also identified all the materials being used in the construction as stolen property. Although it took several days labor and included delays because of the recent snow, lawmen and builders finally got the last piece of construction material from the site Saturday.

They also dismantled the smaller building, construction on which had been completed.

Deputies said a 300-foot steel fence which surrounded the building site also was brought down after it was learned that it, too, had been constructed from stolen goods.

NY Mayor To Drive Chrysler

NEW YORK (AP) — First it was a "deathmobile" and now it's a "lifemobile."

That's the city-owned 1974 Chrysler sedan that Mayor Ed Koch says he will use to carry out his duties.

"We no longer refer to it as 'the death trap,'" Koch said Monday about the Chrysler which slammed into a snow-bank last month after its brakes froze on a bridge overpass. The car is a leftover from the administration of Koch's predecessor, Abe Beame.

The mayor will keep in mothballs a 1972 Cadillac limousine better suited to his 6-foot-3 frame. But as a backup, he'll use a green 1975 Plymouth Fury station wagon, with all kinds of leg room.

Koch announced he was accepting a Chrysler offer to overhaul the two cars. "Between the two of them, we'll be able to manage," Koch said. "So forget about the death trap. We now have a lifemobile."

Lear To Leave Television

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Even Archie Bunker needs to get away from it all once in a while, and now his creator is following suit.

"All in the Family" producer Norman Lear, the sad-faced king of situation comedy, says he's taking an "extended leave" from weekly television.

"I just have a real need to flex other creative muscles," said Lear, 55, who in seven years put 16 shows totaling 1,400 episodes either on the networks or in syndication to stations.

Asked Monday how long his leave may extend, he replied: "It's got to be for a couple, three years, and it could be permanent."

Lear said he'll return to writing and directing feature films and study programming for cable television, among other things.

His last film, made in 1968, was "Cold Turkey," starring Dick Van Dyke.

Dole Telegram Surprises Meany

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (AP) — AFL-CIO president George Meany says he was surprised to receive a cordial telegram from an unlikely source — Republican Sen. Robert Dole of Kansas.

"Very interesting," mused Meany. He said he received the wire during the midwinter meeting of the AFL-CIO Executive Council. The session ended Monday.

"He wished us well and said he was watching our deliberations, and when we came to our conclusions he would be very much interested in examining the results," said Meany. "I was really surprised."

Dole is not known as an enthusiastic supporter of organized labor. But he has been reported to be sizing up the possibility of seeking the 1980 GOP presidential nomination.

Asked what prompted the message from Dole, Meany grinned: "Maybe he was out late and had an extra cocktail and thought of me."

Wrong David Frost

NEW YORK (AP) — David Frost is helping Richard Nixon on his memoirs but it's not THE David Frost.

The question of which David Frost is helping Nixon with his upcoming book arose Monday when The Trib — New York's new morning newspaper — reported that David Frost, the British entertainer, was helping Nixon revise his book as a result of the publication of "The Ends of Power" by former White House aide H.R. Haldeman.

But the publisher of Nixon's memoirs said the David Frost who is working on the former president's book is a long-time copy editor with the firm, not the television personality.

An associate of David Frost — the Frost who interviewed Nixon on television, that is — said Frost hasn't been in San Clemente, Calif., for a year and that he was en route to Australia.

"We developed that story from various good sources," said Leonard Saffir, publisher of The Trib, which gave its entire front page to the account. The report carried the bylines of Saffir and Lammy B. Johnstone, a senior editor.

Grosset & Dunlap executives, including Robert Markel, the editor in chief, said the memoirs were not being revised. Other executives said the publishing company's David Frost, 41, has been working at the San Clemente Inn near Nixon's home since last summer.

Grosset & Dunlap plans to publish the Nixon memoirs at $19.95 a copy on May 15.

No Toll At Rainbow's End

BATON ROUGE, La. (AP) — New Orleans artist Emery Clark wants to transform the Interstate 10 bridge across the Mississippi River here into a

"drive-through rainbow." The city's beautification committee and mayor-president are backing Miss Clark's proposal to paint the bridge in 24 different colors.

"It's rather far out, but then when you get to thinking about it, it's unique," said Mayor-President Woody Dumas. "Sometimes when you're a little different, that's what makes you outstanding."

Approval is needed from state highway officials who said last month they planned to recommend a $2 million cleaning and painting job for the toll-free bridge.

The idea first was proposed to the City of New Orleans by Miss Clark, but officials there said they couldn't afford it because the bridge connecting the city with the West Bank had been repainted in 1976.

Gulf's Chief Says Lesson Learned

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Gulf Oil Corp.'s past transgressions have taught the firm a lesson in ethics, corporation chairman Jerry McAfee says.

"Whenever and wherever dishonesty or malfeasance or incompetence is encountered, it must be sought out and punished when warranted," McAfee said in a speech to a meeting of the American Institute of Chemical Engineers in Atlanta Monday.

"Gulf has been emphatically reminded that, with a corporation as with an individual, there is no possession more precious than one's integrity," he said.

McAfee replaced Bob R. Dorsey, who was ousted as chairman over the existence of a secret corporate slush fund that provided more than $12 million for domestic and foreign political payments.

Gulf paid a $229,500 fine for illegal political activities as a consequence of maintaining the slush fund.

Gulf also was fined $36,000 for illegally providing vacation trips for an Internal Revenue Service agent auditor in charge of the company's tax account.

Federal prosecutors said the plea was the first time a corporation acknowledged that gifts to public officials are illegal even though no favors were sought or expected.

Gulf has made "some serious past errors in judgment" in the area of ethical responsibility, McAfee said. "Tragic as Gulf's ordeal has been, I am convinced that we have gained new strength from the experience."

Pipeline Standards Undergoing Change

WASHINGTON (AP) — Federal pipeline safety programs suffered in 1976 and 1977 because so much time and manpower was devoted to inspecting the Alaska oil pipeline, a Transportation Department official says.

John J. Fearnside, acting director for research, said Monday the department now is developing tougher standards for the nation's 1.7 million miles of gas and liquid fuel pipelines.

He testified before a Senate commerce subcommittee, which also heard a congressional investigator say current regulation is inadequate.

Henry Eschwege of the General Accounting Office said the pipelines "expose large segments of the population to potentially catastrophic incidents."

Women Seeking Carter's Help

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter and the AFL-CIO are being petitioned to live up to their rhetoric and do everything possible to see that the Equal Rights Amendment is ratified.

The National Women's Commission and a new national alliance of rural women asked Carter to not hold regional meetings in the 15 states that have failed to ratify the ERA.

Presidential assistant Midge Costanza said she would recommend to Carter in a meeting today that he take a positive approach — urging agencies to schedule meetings in the 35 ERA-ratified states when possible.

The commission appeal came Monday along with criticism of the AFL-CIO for endorsing anti-ERA candidates for the Illinois state legislature.

The federation's Committee on Political Education (COPE) endorsed 95 incumbent state legislators in Illinois, including 35 who have fought the ERA. Amendment supporters had counted on labor help to defeat key anti-ERA Illinois legislators in the primary three weeks from now, but now find many of them endorsed by labor.

An aide to AFL-CIO president George Meany called the COPE action "an obvious inconsistency" with current federation policy, which includes Monday's endorsement of an extension of the ERA deadline beyond March 22, 1979.

The focus at a commission briefing for women's groups and federal executives Monday was on getting the ERA ratified.

ERAmerica chief Liz Carpenter said Carter ignored appeals to push for the ERA in his State of the Union message. He mentioned "woman" only once in the speech.

"If we are in trouble on the ERA, it is not because of what women are doing," she said. "It is because we have some mediocre people in the state legislatures and some people who are too chicken to fight them."

She said if the Rural American Women's petition had been about race rather than sex discrimination, the Carter White House already would have responded with directives not to put federal money in states that discriminate against half its population, she said.

At least one federal agency, however, already has retreated under protests from senators about a similar policy.

Last week, ACTION director Sam Brown wrote Sens. Herman Talmadge and Sam Nunn, both Democrats from Georgia, that three regional training programs in Atlanta, St. Louis and Chicago would be held as planned rather than moved to states that have ratified the ERA.

Upcoming Book Blasts Nixon

NEW YORK (AP) — Richard Nixon had visions of establishing a long line of Republican presidents, using federal agencies to dig up skeletons from opposition political closets, a convicted Watergate conspirator is quoted as saying in The Trib today.

Unidentified sources provided the newspaper a manuscript of Jeb Magruder's book, "From Power to Peace," which is to be published in May by Word Publishing Co., Trib managing editor Guy Jeffries said.

Portions of the book printed by The Trib suggest that Nixon believed his leadership style to be far better than anything the Democrats could offer.

"That meant two things: a Republican candidate had to be able to win elections — we just proved that could be done; and he had to be able to destroy opposition candidates — we were well on our way to doing that."

To do that, Magruder said, Nixon wanted to use the Federal Communications Commission, the Internal Revenue Service and other agencies to dig up "skeletons, however minor or ancient, in opposition political closets," and leak the reports to the press.

Magruder served under Nixon as special assistant to the president and as deputy director of communications for the executive branch.

Romero Says Firm Paid For Services

SAN DIEGO (AP) — Actor Cesar Romero has testified he was paid $1,000 a

The trial, with U.S. District Judge William Cople presiding, was moved here from Phoenix because of extensive pretrial news coverage.

Survey Reveals Doctors Disagree On Surgeries

NEW YORK (UPI) — Disagreement among doctors about the need for certain elective surgery was found in one of four cases during a second opinion experiment. Blue Cross and Blue Shield of Greater New York reported Sunday.

Elective surgery includes any operation that is not an emergency and that is not done to correct a life-threatening abnormality.

Simply put, the New York second opinion study came out this way: Doctor A in four of four cases said operate. Doctor B in one of those four cases, reviewing the first doctor's recommendations, said don't operate.

The report, based on a program launched in 1976, covered 1,500 cases in which patients took advantage of an option to get a second doctor's opinion free.

New York's pioneer program is part of the second opinion movement taking aim at the nation's operating rooms with a twin purpose — reduce costs and improve the quality of medical care by curbing unnecessary surgery.

A congressional subcommittee in 1976 said 2.4 million unnecessary operations added more than $4 billion a year to the nation's health care bill.

That figure is rising by about 17 percent a year, boosted by inflation and higher costs of hospital care.

The removal of tonsils and gynecological procedures — notably hysterectomies — are considered by authoritative surgical critics to be among the most frequent unnecessary elective operations.

In the New York study, second opinion showed the first doctor's recommendation for surgery was not confirmed in 27 percent of the cases.

In obstetrical-gynecological cases, recommendations were not confirmed in 28.6 percent of the cases; in orthopedic cases, 33.2 percent; in ear, nose and throat (tonsil), 26.6 percent.

D. Eugene Sibery, executive vice president of New York's Blue Cross-Blue Shield, the nation's largest, said each elective operation not performed saved $1,500 in hospital fees.

He regrets that so few eligible subscribers availed themselves of the option for free surgical consultation — a problem with second opinion programs across the country.

Health care consumers, reports show, are reluctant in many places to question a doctor who looks at them and says, "That ought to come out" — gall bladder, or uterus, or tonsils.

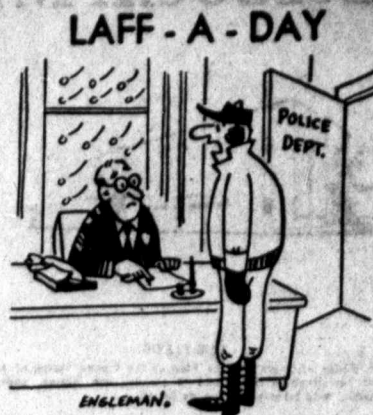

But some state governments and the federal government are betting on the second opinion strategy to reduce unnecessary surgery and ballooning hospital bills for Medicaid and Medicare recipients.

Some evidence:

— Second opinions now are mandatory for Medicaid recipients in Massachusetts for certain elective operations.

— The U.S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare, in the biggest test of second opinion as a cost-cutting tactic, has awarded grants in New York and Michigan to push "second opinion" on elective operations among millions of Medicare beneficiaries over the next three

DR. LAMB

Diuretic Results Differ

By Lawrence Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB—Why are there so many different kinds of blood pressure pills on the market? Everyone I talk to names a different kind. My husband is taking Regroton and I am taking Aldactazide. What's the difference? What's the best blood pressure pill on the market?

The Aldactazide pill and Regroton pill make you urinate a lot. Can this harm me if I am prone to phlebitis or varicose veins? Please help. I am so confused.

DEAR READER—The old saying that one man's meat is another man's poison certainly applies to all medicines used to treat high blood pressure.

There is no one pill that is better than others. You have to decide what is the best combination on an individual basis. Why? Because there are different levels of blood pressure, different causes and individual responses to the medicines involved.

Let me give you an illustration. Many of the combination medicines contain serpasil (Reserpine), in fact, Regroton does. Patients who have a tendency to develop a depression should not be given any of these medicines even though its action in controlling blood pressure is good.

Many patients with lower levels of blood pressure respond well to a treatment program designed to eliminate excess body fat. A good weight-reducing regime, often accompanied with sensible moderate exercise, may enable these people to have a normal blood pressure without taking any medicines at all. Restriction of dietary salt may help in others.

If changes in life style are not sufficient and the blood pressure is high enough to warrant it, the doctor may choose to give the patients one of the diuretics that cause the kidneys to flush out salt and water. That is what Aldactazide is and Regroton also contains a diuretic along with the Reserpine.

There are several diuretics. Some tend to increase the excretion of sodium salt and water while preventing others cause a loss of both. Some are stronger than others and they have different sites of action in the body. We have had a parade of different and, I am happy to say, better diuretics as the years have passed. At one time mercury compounds were the main diuretic available and they left a bit to be desired.

With more severe cases of high blood pressure, combinations of medicines may be needed. These include diuretics, serpasil, agents to block specific nerve pathways so that the arteries will dilate and let the pressure drop. Still other medicines are thought to increase the circulation through the kidneys.

Now you may be more confused than before but I am sending you The Health Letter number 1-8, Blood Pressure to give you a better idea of how blood pressure is controlled. Others who want this information can send 50 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it to me in care of The Lubbock Avalanche-Journal, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

No, your medicine will not affect your varicose veins nor will it cause phlebitis. It might even help prevent swelling of the feet and ankles that accompanies some cases of varicose veins. In any case follow your doctor's advice and take the medicine he has given you. Try to lose any excess fat you may have and stay lean and active.

Bone Therapy Studied

DALLAS (UPI) — A new type of electromagnetic therapy — applied from outside the body — has healed leg bones that failed to unite after surgery, according to a report to the American Academy of Orthopaedic Surgeons.

Dr. C. Andrew Bassett of the Columbia University College of Physicians and Surgeons said the new therapy, which stimulates bone growth by pulsing electromagnetic fields, averted amputation in leg bones that otherwise failed to heal.

"Although the success rate in this study exceeded 70 percent, recent changes in pulse characteristics promise even greater effectiveness in the future," Bassett said in a report Monday.

Bassett said the report stems from a 20-year attempt to understand electrical effects on skeletal tissue, and the procedure could be ready for general use by orthopaedic surgeons as early as March 1979.

The report documents for the first time that electrical energy induces beneficial cell changes in congenital or acquired fractures and those that failed to unite.

"Bones fail to heal for a variety of reasons: extensive loss of blood supply, excessive motion so reparative tissues keep breaking down, infection breaking down reparative tissue, soft tissue lodged between the fractured bones," Bassett said.

"The standard procedure has been to operate and place pins, plates or screws in the bone and do a bone graft. Since this method was new, we kept it for those who had many, many failures. Most were facing amputation," he said.

Bassett said that as the procedure was developed doctors began to use it on individuals who had not yet reached the stage where amputation had been recommended. He said the procedure had saved such patients multiple operations.

"The end result is the same — a good bony bridge that will allow them to function without further worry," he said.

Bassett said the electromagnetic energy was provided through coils embedded in epoxy and attached to the external surface of a plaster cast or plastic brace. Power is provided by a generator that plugs into a regular wall socket and sends a 10 volt signal to the coils.

TODAY'S EDITORIAL:

Hold Wallet Not Breath

WHILE THE coal strike has dominated labor news so far this year, a number of other negotiations now on the horizon are sure to grab our attention and maybe our pocket-books in coming months.

In midsummer, talks will begin on the largest single collective-bargaining agreement in the country, covering about 600,000 employees of the U.S. Postal Service, now a quasi-governmental agency.

An even bigger group of workers, some 950,000 involved in construction trades, have contracts that expire during the year. For most of them, the heaviest bargaining will take place this spring.

IN ALL, MAJOR contracts to be negotiated this year cover about 2 million workers, according to the U.S. Bureau of Labor Statistics.

While this number is far below the 1977 (5 million) and 1976 (4.4 million) levels, it holds the potential for widespread disruption in the event strikes occur.

In addition to the havoc that a postal strike might create, there is the prospect of transit strikes in several cities, including New York City where the local government is pleading impoverishment.

AMONG THE 360,000 workers under agreements that expire during the first three months of the year, more than 50,000 are in the transportation equipment industry and 43,000 in local transit—bus drivers, subway employees and so forth.

Beginning in November, several airline contracts will terminate. During that month and December, contracts expire that involve 61,000 ground service workers of Trans World, United and Eastern airlines.

Congress should remember—with distaste—that its creation of the Postal Service in 1970, replacing the old Post Office Department, stemmed from a postal strike in March of that year in 15 cities.

A major strike issue was employee dissatisfaction with uniform national pay rates, which made no allowance for higher living costs in large cities. Uniform rates, however, remain in effect.

But judging from its lack of leadership up to now, the Carter administration has neither learned from history nor plans to act on principles deduced from it.

Our Mideast Position

Paul Scott:

Treaties 'A Perpetual Rip-Off'

WASHINGTON—The economic issue has become the big sleeper in the Senate debate on ratification of the new Panama Canal treaties.

Leading opponents and supporters at this writing are saying privately that the outcome of the treaties' votes now depends more on this issue—the cost of turning over the Panama Canal and the Canal Zone to Panama—than on the more highly publicized national security issue.

Their reasoning is that most of the still uncommitted senators, who now number 20, indicate that they are more disturbed by the financial and commercial implications of the treaties than any other issue.

The economic issue was brought to the forefront of the debate by Sen. John Stennis, D-Miss., the highly respected chairman of the Senate Armed Service Committee, when he charged that the proposed transfer of the Panama Canal to Panama will cost American taxpayers up to $1 billion more than the Carter administration has estimated by the year 2000.

SEN. STENNIS REACHED that startling conclusion after quizzing administration officials and taking testimony from a number of private economic experts during a series of little publicized committee hearings earlier this month.

Should the billion dollar charge be fully documented—as Sen. Stennis claims he can—the chances of killing the treaties by amending them to death will be greatly enhanced.

The Stennis charge already has caused the State Department to admit belatedly that giving up control of the Panama Canal will cost hundreds of millions of dollars although its officials still stick to the stand that no payments to Panama will come from U.S. taxpayers' pockets.

To counter this latter claim of the State Department, opponents of the treaties are circulating to all senators a letter written by John M. Cabot, former assistant secretary of state and chief of the division of Caribbean and Central American Affairs, blasting the financial and commercial implications of the treaties.

LABELING THE ECONOMIC provisions of the treaties "a perpetual rip-off of the American consumers and taxpayers," Cabot, who also served as U.S. ambassador to Brazil and Colombia, wrote:

"Treaty supporters seem strangely silent about the financial and commercial implications of the treaties.

"By their terms we give up not only our sovereign rights (not sovereignty) in the zone, for which we paid $10,000,000 in 1903 dollars, and the canal itself (built and paid for by us without any help from Panama)—and it would and could probably not have been built by anyone else...

"But also the railway, virtually all of this land in zone (bought from its private owners with the U.S. taxpayer's money), all of the housing, other buildings, airports, wharfs and other installations, with a book value probably running into the billions and a much higher present value—all without compensation.

"Of course, Panama could not pay any substantial compensation in any case. But on top of that, we agree to pay $50 to $70 million for the use and control for 20 years of the canal that we built—as against the less than $3 million a year the Panamanians willingly accepted as recently as 1975.

ONE MAN'S OPINION

The Elephant Walks

RULING THAT young offenders can be fined and required to pay restitution under terms of a probation sentence, the Supreme Court said that a fine can be rehabilitative.

At last! A rehabilitation program with a chance for success.

U.S. Senate candidate Joe Christie thinks former Secretary of Agriculture Earl Butz is a joke. "All it takes to make Butz happy," says Christie, "is a warm place to play golf, a loose mouth and a tight belly."

An economist for the National Association of Homebuilders says mortgage interest rates may hit 10 per cent.

A man's home no longer is his castle; it's more like a money vault.

THE SIGNIFICANT point about so many Republican candidates in Texas this year is not their number but the fact that nobody takes the GOP Elephant lightly any more.

A subtle shift toward a real two-party state has been quickened by the widening philosophical gulf between conservative-to-moderate Texas Democrats and the national Democratic party.

Locally, the election of a GOP state representative two years ago—thanks partly to a gerrymandered redistricting designed to help minority Democratic candidates in the other half of the city—has encouraged candidates to fly the Republican flag.

Holmes Alexander:

Defense Secretary In Transit

WASHINGTON—Writing here recently, I offered the proposition that being secretary of defense was no longer a piece of cake.

In times well remembered the Pentagon always got the biggest hunk of the federal budget. Common sense conceded this to be right and proper.

We had powerful enemies everywhere outside of the Western hemisphere, and it was considered an honor to be a part of the services from the secretary down.

Nobody until as recently as the Nixon administration questioned the secretary's right to a long-long limousine.

But today, Defense Secretary Brown's worries begin at the bottom and work up. Would any of Brown's predecessors—say George F. Marshall—have put up with "gay" male soldiers hugging and kissing as they danced together at the beer parlors?

BUT TIMES CHANGED. Even in noncombat zones, such as Japan and West Europe, a thriving drug trade sprang up. When the fighting got hot in Vietnam a majority of the GIs turned hopheads.

Discipline became indistinguishable from mutiny as soldiers "fragged" the once-sacred Officers Quarters with live grenades.

A defense secretary can't put his head to his pillow any longer without wondering if his department has fallen down another flight of budget stairs.

High pollution of air and water have come to matter more than high explosives in ammunition.

If the trend continues, it's foreseeable that charity cases, and attendant bureaucracies will have the Pentagon taking in washing and serving as gamekeepers for endangered species of fish and wildlife.

ALL THIS SOUNDS like a world turned upside down, and so it could very well become. "Domestic tranquility," a will o' the wisp which found its way in to the Constitution, is pushing "common defense," a stern reality, off the work sheet.

I'm taking a long time to say that Brown can't count on military personnel. He must learn to think primarily in military technology and mass-destruction weapons.

This seemed to be on the secretary's mind in recent testimony before the House Armed Services Committee. His tune had changed a bit since he recently talked to Pentagon reporters.

Brown told representatives that the United States will be all the safer if it concentrates on mechanical killing.

There is no longer any hesitation in his recom-

A grassroots organizational effort has helped to recruit candidates, too.

THE RETIREMENT this year of U.S. Rep. George Mahon has focused national GOP attention on the 19th Congressional District.

Because of its conservative leaning, the 19th is a prime target for helping the Republicans narrow their minority gap in Congress.

Jim Reese of Odessa, who surprised everyone—including himself—by running Mahon a respectable race in 1976, suddenly finds he'll have to beat two challengers just to be the GOP nominee this year.

Joe Hickox, who thinks the Soviet threat is generally underrated, retired from the Air Force to seek the post. George Bush Jr., the Midland oilman whose dad has Presidential ambitions, already has been campaigning for months.

The winner of the GOP primary will take on the Democratic nominee, either state Sen. Kent Hance or Trinity Church pastor Morris Sheats.

Hance once figured to walk away with the nomination, but Sheats' conservative missionary zeal could help staunch the flow of crossover independent voters into the Republican primary.

JOE ROBBINS, the Republican maverick who broke the Democratic tradition in the state representative's race here two years ago, thinks he might pull another surprise this year.

He filed for the Senate post being vacated by Hance and will wait snugly until November to take on the winner of a five-man race for the Democratic nomination.

It is particularly noteworthy that two Republicans, Jack Chappell and Democratic refugee Nolan (Buzz) Robnett, filed for Robbins' District 75-A legislative post.

Only one Democrat, Mrs. Xen Oden, filed. Two years ago, she was one of four unsuccessful Democratic hopefuls.

By contrast, the GOP nomination then was so unappealing that Robbins was entered at the last moment after two earlier hopefuls had dropped out and other potential candidates had disdainfully declined to run.

REPUBLICANS also will field candidates locally for the other state representative's post, for district clerk and for justice of the peace in Slaton.

Elsewhere, Republican Bob Price recently won a special election to represent the Panhandle in the Texas Senate, becoming the fourth GOP member of that 31-member body.

Former state Rep. Ray Hutchison and former deputy Secretary of Defense Bill Clements, both of Dallas, think the state is ready to elect a Republican governor.

U.S. Sen. John Tower, who started the two-party idea by becoming the first Republican since Reconstruction to win a statewide race, in 1961, will be up for re-election against a Democratic challenger.

That two-party dream won't be realized this year, but it's close enough to reality to make a lot of Democrats think it's turning into a nightmare.

Customs Won't Bite Unless You Cheat

(Second Of Two Columns)

AS A WOMAN who travels overseas fairly frequently and who has an unrestrained passion for jewelry—particularly unusual pieces which may or may not be costly but which I inevitably crave when I see them abroad—I readily confess I have often been tempted to try to cheat U.S. Customs by wearing the stuff and pretending long-time ownership as I pass through my port of entry.

The only honest reason I haven't been caught and been declared guilty of deliberate fraud is that a wise companion always has talked me out of the attempt by drawing a grim picture of what the publicity would mean to me if I were caught and by scolding me for being a penny-pincher.

It's a good thing for me that I have had such upstanding companions, for—warns an acknowledged authority in the field—"foreign jewelry settings are quite distinctive and an experienced customs official will spot it in about two seconds."

JEWELRY PURCHASED abroad should always be declared at the Customs counter, even if worn by the woman, flatly states Joseph J. McLinden, president of the Frank P. Dow Companies, a subsidiary of the Myers Group, one of the nation's largest transportation service organizations.

"A great many women believe that customs officials will never know the difference if they pretend the foreign-bought piece of jewelry is something they purchased in the U.S. They couldn't be more wrong."

Not declaring an item is just as fraudulent as "making a false declaration" and could lead to a fine and even confiscation.

With record numbers of us planning to travel overseas in 1978 and to bring home a never before touched peak of more than $3 billion in personal gifts, tips on how to take your purchases through Customs with a minimum of trouble and cost become exceedingly valuable.

TODAY'S COLUMN continues yesterday's guides.

Let's say you've had a run-in with Customs and although the officials insist they have been fair in their interpretation of customs law, you feel you have been honestly overcharged.

What can you do? You have three choices:

(1) You can pay the higher duty and chalk it off as an added cost of your trip. If the amount is small, "pay it and forget it," advises McLinden.
(2) You can appeal the decision personally.
(3) You can ask a customs broker to handle your appeal and represent you before a customs court.

If the charges run into hundreds of dollars, it well may be worth the small brokerage fee involved to have an experienced professional represent you.

FEES CHARGED by the 3,000-odd licensed customs brokers in the U.S. are fairly standard.

Cost for handling a common item such as furniture or an automobile runs from about $40 to $75, based on the paperwork involved and not on the cost of the item.

A standard premium of $1 per $1,000 valuation of the merchandise is also assessed as a surety bond, a legal requirement.

An important part of the broker's job is to keep a close watch on items so that they can clear customs in a hurry. Without an experienced professional to help, your purchases may become bogged down in red tape.

This is particularly true for items too bulky to be brought back in your suitcase.

And, McLinden says, a customs broker is just about indispensable for expensive items left behind for later shipment—such as furniture, cars, stereo equipment, objects d'art.

IT IS THE BROKER who will make sure that the item has been shipped by the seller overseas, that it is properly invoiced, that all landing papers are in order, that the merchandise is not on an embargoed list, and finally that all proper duty is paid.

"We have often cleared an auto or furniture in a matter of hours," claims McLinden.

But to sum up, with or without a customs broker: you have no reason to be jittery going through customs if you have complied with the laws and have made an honest declaration.

It's merely normal to be tempted as I have confessed I have been so often with jewelry, but don't take the U.S. customs laws lightly. If you do, you might fall on your financial face with a heavy thud.

Somali Defector Claims Group Plans Overthrow

By CHARLES P. WALLACE
 NAIROBI, Kenya (UPI) — A high-ranking Somali defector to Kenya today said a secret organization has been formed to overthrow Somali President Siad Barre, whom he described as "isolated and insecure."

Hussein Haji Ali Douale, the Somali ambassador to Kenya until his abrupt removal last September, said the organization is known as the Somali Democratic Action Front and is based in Rome.

Douale defected to Kenya Jan. 25, after being forced to resign his ambassador-ship for alleged disloyalty and served four months with regular Somali forces in Ethiopia's disputed Ogaden region.

He is the first Somali officer to confirm regular Somali troops are fighting Ethiopia in the Ogaden desert. Somalia maintains that only ethnic Somali rebels are engaged in the war.

He said that while he was not a member of the group of former civilian and military officials seeking to overthrow Barre, but said he would join if asked. "I wish them the best of luck," he said.

Douale told a news conference he believed that Barre's suspicions that he sympathized with the exiles at a time when he was loyal to the president led to his fall from grace in Mogadishu.

"Barre is very isolated and very insecure," the 39-year-old Douale said. "The people are very disillusioned with his one-man rule."

He said he had heard rumors that Barre intended to resign and said he hoped this would pave the way for a "new leadership to see the nation through this trying period."

In Addis Ababa, the Ethiopian government today said it had killed 80 right-wing rebels attempting to overthrow the Marxist government while it is occupied with wars on two other fronts.

Official Addis Ababa Radio said in a broadcast monitored in Nairobi that the killings took place last week in the town of Matema, 350 miles northwest of Addis Ababa. The town lies on the border with the Sudan.

All 80 persons killed were said to be members of the Ethiopian Democratic Union, an anti-Marxist group formed in 1975 by supporters of the late Emperor Haile Selassie.

It was not known whether the rebels were executed or killed in military action.

The Democratic Union sought to open a "third front" against the Addis Ababa government, which is battling Somali-backed rebels in the southern Ogaden desert and secessionist guerrillas in northern Eritrea province on the Red Sea.

Soviet and Cuban forces are aiding Ethiopia. The U.S. State Department Monday said 10,000 to 11,000 Cuban soldiers are in Ethiopia, with more being transported by ship and plane. An estimated 2,000 are involved in combat against Somalia.

Pentagon Seeks Ban On Lobby Funding

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Pentagon is moving for the first time to stop defense firms from charging taxpayers for the cost of lobbying Congress.

The Pentagon's proposal would stop defense firms from listing lobbying costs as "government-paid expenses" under contracts to produce military equipment.

Defense contractor groups are attacking the proposal as "unwise and unnecessary."

The Pentagon action was started last year. But newsmen became aware of it only after Defense Secretary Harold Brown recently became upset by a lobbying campaign organized by Grumman Aerospace Corp. aimed at restoring Carter administration cuts in next year's F-14 fighter plane production.

Defense sources say Brown was unaware, until he ordered an investigation of the Grumman campaign, that there is no bar to such company activity under present military contracting regulations.

In a letter to contractors Dec. 12, the Pentagon said a new regulation under consideration "makes unlawful the cost of lobbying directed towards influencing members of Congress, their staffs or committee staffs to favor or oppose pending, proposed or existing federal legislation or appropriations."

Such lobbying activities were described as including "personal discussions or conferences, advertising, sending telegrams, engaging in telephonic communications and letters."

Lobbying costs which the proposed regulation would rule out as contract expenses include "the applicable portion of the salaries and fees of those individuals engaged in lobbying efforts in behalf of a contractor regardless of whether or not the individuals are registered as lobbyists under any law."

The Pentagon committee that drew up the proposed rules specified that the ban would not extend to costs for such "legislative liaison activities" as attending or testifying at congressional committee hearings and "gathering information regarding pending legislation."

However, a contractor would be required to submit documentary proof that these efforts were not part of a lobbying plan or campaign. Otherwise the costs involved would not be allowed as a contract expense.

The Council of Defense and Space Industry Associations sent the Pentagon a letter earlier this month urging the Defense Department to "await the wisdom of the Congress" while lobbying control legislation is pending on Capitol Hill.

"In any event," the council said, "we consider it unwise and unnecessary for the Department of Defense to place a chilling effect on the right, responsibility and duty of corporate citizens to petition their representatives in Congress, to protect their legitimate interests, to express their views and opinions and to contribute their own wisdom to the legislative process — simply because these corporate citizens are suppliers to the Department of Defense."

The council's letter was signed by top officials of associations representing aerospace, shipbuilders, electronics, motor vehicle and other industries doing billions of dollars in business with the Defense Department.

Child-Care Groups Rap Administration

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Carter administration is under fire from child-care specialists for delaying a decision on enforcement of federal staffing requirements at day care centers.

The critics were among 36 child care specialists assembled here at government expense Monday by the Department of Health, Education and Welfare. One participant, William Pierce of the Child Welfare League, said that delays in enforcing the standards written in 1968 "have caused irreparable harm to kids." Congress has imposed a moratorium, which expires Oct. 1, on the controversial staffing standards for caring for children up to age six.

Indira Gandhi Re-Emerges As Leader

NEW DELHI, India (UPI) — Former Prime Minister Indira Gandhi, crushed in national elections only a year ago, has re-emerged as a major political force on the strength of two landslide victories by her breakaway political party.

Analysts said the poor showing of the regular Congress Party, which Mrs. Gandhi bolted last month to form the "Indira Congress," is certain to produce a realignment in Indian politics.

Mrs. Gandhi "has re-emerged as a formidable political figure" as a result of her party's election triumphs in the southern states of Karnataka and Andhra Pradesh, The Times of India newspaper said in an editorial.

It said the regular Congress "has been gravely weakened" by its poor showing. The Indira Congress won two-thirds of the seats in Karnataka, 152 of 224, to 58 for the Janata Party and only two for the regular Congress, whose dismal showing prompted the resignation of party president K.B. Reddy.

In Andhra Pradesh, with results known for 288 of the 294 seats, Mrs. Gandhi's party won 172 to take control of the state. The Janata won 59 and the regular Congress 30.

With all but six seats declared in Maharashtra, the third big state where elections were held Saturday, the Janata had won 95 of the 288 at stake to 69 for the regular Congress and 62 for Mrs. Gandhi's group.

Mrs. Gandhi, who had been prime minister for 11 years, was defeated last March by voters angered at her harsh, 19-month emergency rule and has faced a series of investigations.

FTC Takes Up Staff Proposals To Curtail Sugared Cereal Ads

By JEFFREY MILLS

WASHINGTON (AP) — After months of anticipation, the federal government is ready to take on Tony the Tiger, Cap'n Crunch and other heroes of commercials for sugar-coated cereals.

The clash between the Federal Trade Commission and television advertising aimed at children is being joined today as the FTC takes up staff proposals to sharply curtail such ads.

The commission has before it proposals to:

— Ban all television advertising directed at "very young" children.

— End advertisements aimed at children under age 12 for sugared products likely to cause tooth decay.

— Require that television advertising directed at children below that age for other sugared products be balanced by dental and nutritional messages.

Such controls are some time off, however. The staff recommended that the commission hold hearings on its proposals, a procedure that could take months.

And legal appeals from the cereal and broadcasting industries, which have been preparing legal defenses, could further delay the effect of commission action.

Commission Chairman Michael Pertschuk has said he is "convinced some action has to be taken" against commercials for products with high sugar contents aimed at young children.

The average American child watches 20,000 television commercials a year and is subjected to more ads for sugared foods than for any other product.

The staff, in recommending that all TV ads aimed at very young audiences be banned, said "the 30-second commercial is the most effective device yet invented for implanting any relatively simple idea in a child's mind."

The staff report said many young children can't differentiate between a TV program and its commercials and fail to understand that the advertisements are not part of the entertainment.

Work on the proposals has raised concern in the advertising and broadcasting industries.

Millions of advertising dollars are at stake. The Television Bureau of Advertising says 1977 advertising expenditures in two product categories most likely to be seriously affected by any FTC action totaled $487 million.

The industry group could provide no breakdown for children's advertising but reported that confectionery and soft drinks accounted for $315 million in advertising sales. Cereals, both presweetened and unsweetened, accounted for $172 million.

The staff proposals came as a result of petitions to the FTC by two non-profit groups, Action for Children's Television and the Center for Science in the Public Interest.

In a related development, Action for Children's Television has asked the Federal Communications Commission to ban all advertising from children's TV shows. The FCC in 1974 rejected a similar petition from the Boston-based group.

Either federal commission could act on its own to control advertising aimed at children.

The National Association of Broadcasters contends the TV industry should be allowed to continue self-regulation under the association's television code. The Cereal Institute says presweetened cereals offer children important nutrition at breakfast while contributing only a small amount of the sugar they consume each day.

Ellis Ratner, an FTC attorney who helped prepare the proposals, said Monday the staff left some specifics up to the commission. Among these issues that he said "will await hearings" are just how to define a highly-sugared product or a very young audience as well as how to determine what age group watches a particular commercial.

Ratner said the staff did not include a specific proposal on toys, the other major class of ads directed at children, because "we were responding to petitions on sugared products." But he said the proposed ban on TV ads directed at the very young would include commercials for toys.

Advertising totaled $174 million for games, toys and hobbies in 1977.

Reserve Association Criticizes Budget

PENSACOLA, Fla. (AP) — The Naval Reserve Association's executive committee has blasted President Carter's proposed budget for the upcoming fiscal year, calling it unacceptable and inadequate.

"If the budget is implemented it would force an unacceptable further decline in the strength of the U.S. Navy and its backup reserve," said Capt. Fred Carl, national president of the 19,000-member association.

Woman Tells Jury Of Beating

By FRANK PATRICK
Avalanche-Journal Staff

A young woman told a jury here today how she was terrorized and eventually beaten senseless by a robber who left her seriously wounded within steps of her home last winter.

Darlene Caffey, 21, told the dramatic story to an attentive 11-member jury in Judge Thomas L. Clinton's 99th District Court.

The victim was the state's first witness in the aggravated robbery trial of Freddie Lee Dedrick, 24.

Miss Caffey said she was assaulted by the robber after she had handed over her purse and after she had screamed for help from her brother who was inside her home.

"He just kept hitting and hitting and hitting," the woman said. Miss Caffey said she was returning to her home, located then near 38th Street and University Avenue, between 4 and 4:30 a.m. Jan. 15, 1977, after getting off work.

She said she noticed a car following behind hers as she pulled into the driveway of the residence.

"At first, I didn't think anything about it," the witness stated.

Miss Caffey said she opened her car door and then realized a fairly large man was walking toward her. She said she attempted to shut the car door.

"I didn't get it closed in time — he got his hand in and kept it from closing," she told assistant District Attorney Jim Darnell.

"He immediately held his hands like this," the witness said, gesturing with two clenched fists. She said the man had a gun.

The witness said she "froze" and then obeyed the gunman's order to hand over her purse, which she said contained about $30 in cash and a check, among other items.

"He told me not to say anything or he would blow my head off or beat my head off — I don't remember which," Miss Caffey testified.

Miss Caffey said the bandit told her to get out of the car, that she was going to go with him.

The witness said she screamed, shouting her brother's name.

"He hit me in the head with the gun and it knocked me to the ground," she said.

"My first reaction was to pretend I had knocked me unconscious so maybe he would go away."

"He started dragging me by my coat collar," the victim said. She said she was being dragged her assailant's car and that she could see the inside of it because the door was open.

"All of a sudden, he started hitting me with the gun again," stated Miss Caffey, who indicated her tormentor remained silent throughout that part of the episode.

"He just kept hitting and hitting and hitting..." the witness said. She estimated she was struck by the gun "at least" 10 times. She said she then passed out.

"The next thing I remember, I was up on the porch. I don't remember crawling up there, but I must have," Miss Caffey testified.

She told jurors she was unable to get up on her knees to knock at the door and finally kicked at it with her feet while lying prone.

The victim said her brother took her to a local hospital where she underwent cranial surgery the same day. The victim, who reportedly was in the intensive care unit for three or four days, remained hospitalized.

Eight Jurors Selected For Murder Trial

The number of jurors in the Samuel Christopher Hawkins III capital murder trial remained at eight shortly before noon today.

Attorneys were questioning the 94th prospective juror to be interviewed late this morning. The jury selection process began Feb. 13.

The eighth panelist — Mrs. Catheryn Jan Rogers Childs — was chosen late Monday.

Mrs. Childs, 26, is a seven-year Lubbock resident and is employed by Furr's Family Center.

Hawkins, 34, of Amarillo, is accused of stabbing a six-month pregnant Borger woman to death during an attempted aggravated rape.

Abbe Rogers Hamilton, 19, was found in the bedroom of her Panhandle home May 3, 1977. She had been tied hand and foot and stabbed about 10 times.

The trial was transferred to Lubbock on a change of venue from Hutchinson County.

If convicted of the capital murder charge, Hawkins will face either death or life imprisonment, the only punishment options under Texas' capital murder law.

In a capital case, each side is allotted 15 free strikes of potential jurors for no stated reason. Through midday, the defense had used 11 and the state had used eight preemptory challenges.

Tractorcade Rolls Into Stephenville

STEPHENVILLE (AP) — About 50 tractors and other farm vehicles rolled in from outlying areas today as farmers gathered to hear federal officials discuss peanut production.

Joe Thomas of Washington, staff assistant for the Southwest area office of the Agriculture Stabilization and Conservation Service (ASCS), presided over the program at Tarleton State's agriculture center.

Thomas said the peanut program is not designed to reduce the production of peanuts.

pitalized for about two weeks after she was attacked.

Miss Caffey, who works with donors at a local blood service center, said she returned to the hospital in October in order to have a plate put in her head.

Miss Caffey indicated she caught only glimpses of the assailant's face, and told the jury that Dedrick appeared "very much" like the man who robbed her.

She said she could not make a positive identification of the defendant as the man, however.

Phil Caffey, the victim's brother, indicated he was asleep inside the house when he realized someone was crying and calling out his name.

"She was lying there on the porch in a big puddle of blood," he said of his sister.

In an unusual occurrence, Clinton ordered the robbery trial proceed with only 11 jurors after excusing the 12th member of the panel, whose mother reportedly suffered a stroke Monday night.

Divers Searching Through Cave In Attempt To Find Spelunkers

WATERLOO, Ill. (AP) — Divers searched through swirling, icy waters in a 2-mile-long cave today for five underground explorers feared lost after failing to return from an outing Sunday.

Relatives of the missing St. Louis residents said four of the five young persons are experienced spelunkers familiar with the dangers of exposure, and two are schooled in survival techniques.

Seven divers were on the scene this morning searching through the 35-degree waters, which reach depths of up to 8 feet in the cave.

"There is very little room inside and it's very difficult to work in there," said Louise Wheat, dispatcher for the Monroe County sheriff's department. "There is a lot of water and very little space is walkable."

"We're advised the current is very swift in some areas and could actually rip your clothes off," she said. "Rescuers who started last night had to quit sometime early this morning from total exhaustion."

Miss Wheat said the shoes of a deputy were ripped off by the current Monday night after he was lowered inside 40 feet by rope.

Residents of the area said the cave has ceilings from 1 foot to 7 feet high and contains a network of underground streams.

The missing were identified as John Kloeckner, 18; Lisa Albrizzi, 18; Gregory Berry, 22; Tony Nenninger, 20; and Michael Thompson, 18. All are from St. Louis.

They were last seen Sunday afternoon when they asked permission to enter the cave through an opening on the Joseph Fruth farm.

Berry's wife said the party left Sunday morning and had been expected back that night. She said none of them had taken a change of clothes or sleeping bags.

The only food they were known to have were some dried fruit and nuts, she said.

Nenninger, particularly, is experienced in cave exploring. Mrs. Berry said, and taught a course in spelunking in St. Louis.

"Tony's pretty level-headed and I know he wouldn't panic. Neither would Greg," she said.

Hank Roth, a student at Southern Illinois University in Edwardsville, who mapped the cave, said it is popular among spelunkers. He said it has many dead-end passages and numerous entrances. Its precise length is 12,345 feet.

Smaller Waiting List Seen For Institutions

AUSTIN (AP) — In two to three years, the list of 674 adults and children waiting for vacancies in state mental institutions will be reduced to zero, predicts the departing head of the Texas Department of Mental Health and Mental Retardation.

"We cannot admit them now without compromising care of present patients and abusing federal reimbursement programs," said Dr. Kenneth Gaver at a news conference Monday.

Gaver enters the private sector today after 3½ years at his post. He would not announce Monday what his future plans are.

In addition to reducing the waiting list, he cited a future need to link services available at state centers to local agencies. The linkage would provide follow-up care for patients discharged from institutions who still need guidance.

During his tenure, reports of patient abuse at several state institutions led to the firings of two institution superintendents and a legislative inquiry.

"I don't think patient abuse will ever disappear from the face of the earth because we have people taking care of people. And people are not perfect," Gaver said. "But the mechanisms are there for it (abuse) to be reported, and double and triple reported."

The firings of superintendents at Rusk State Hospital and Mexia State School and other less drastic changes touched off resentment within the department, he acknowledged.

"Sure, there's been resentment of change. There's been resentment of the fact that people have had their feet held to the fire," he said.

In addition to inside discontent, Gaver said outside influence on departmental priority-setting ranks as a pitfall to whoever fills his job.

"Priorities almost always are imposed from outside, and that's a real frustrating problem," he said.

The department has made advances in several areas, he said. Among them is the lowering of doctor patient ratios in state hospitals from 1-to-84 in 1973 to 1-to-46 in 1977.

In 1977, 41 percent of state hospital patients spent three months or less in institutions, compared to 23 percent of all patients in 1973.

Gaver's said his administrations other advancements include establishment of patient rights, a uniform patient record system, continuing education of staff members, improved food and increased department accountability.

City Not Planning Action Against Play

By FRANK COATS
Avalanche-Journal Staff

The City of Lubbock legal department is not planning any action to halt the March 11 production of "Oh, Calcutta," a controversial play about 20 minutes of nudity, City Atty. Fred Senter said today.

"We're not planning any action at this time; I may change my mind later," Senter said.

The show, which is moving its way westward, has caused controversy and legal action to stop its performances in Louisiana and in Fort Worth.

Representatives of the production obtained a temporary restraining order in federal court at Fort Worth to leave open the dates of March 16-18 at the Tarrant County Convention Center. Tarrant County commissioners are trying to stop the production in Fort Worth, and a hearing will be held later this week.

The Louisiana Supreme Court ruled 5-2 Monday the play could be presented in Lake Charles, La., tonight.

"We've won our cases at the trial level everywhere in the United States," Dyke Spear, producer of the roadshow, said.

Jim Weston, director of public services for the City of Lubbock, said he had not mailed the contract back to the promoters and had not cashed the check sent for a rental deposit on the Auditorium-Coliseum, the site of the play.

"As far as we're concerned, it's not really a firm date," Weston said.

However, a schedule of events of the Auditorium-Coliseum lists a First Baptist Church Easter rehearsal from 1 p.m. to 4 p.m. and "Oh, Calcutta" from 5 p.m. to 11 p.m. on March 11.

The City of Lubbock tried to stop the production of "Hair" — another controversial show featuring nudity — in 1972, but U.S. Judge Halbert O. Woodward ruled that the show must be booked.

The city had tried to deny booking to "Hair," saying it created a conflict of interest with a Campus Crusade for Christ meeting being held in the auditorium.

"Hair" was scheduled for the coliseum. "Oh, Calcutta" promoters rented the coliseum for $500 or 10 percent of the gross, whichever is greater.

The students' statement said that during a movement in Tabriz, Iran, 76 banks, five hotels and seven theaters were destroyed as a reaction against economic suppression.

"Martial law took over the city with the arrival of military tanks and soldiers armed with machine-guns." Six demonstrators were killed and 125 wounded, the students say.

"The fact that the Shah had the artillery brought out against the unarmed people in Tabriz shows that he is aware of the power of the masses of the people and of their severe hatred for his government," the statement from the Iranian Student Association said.

A spokesman distributing the statements said the students' association attempts through its demonstrations to "show Americans what kind of regime is in Iran." He claims the Central Intelligence Agency and Federal Bureau of Investigation, along with President Carter, support the Shah of Iran.

The students say they plan to return to their country after graduation because "we believe in revolution."

The spokesman said the Tech ISA members support two underground organizations, the Mojahed and Fedai and "we are not going to leave them alone."

Poet To Speak At Symposium

Chad Walsh, a nationally known poet, will tell Lubbock Christian College students "How a Poet Gets Born" at 4 and 8 p.m. Thursday.

Walsh, a C.S. Lewis expert, is the sixth speaker for the college's freshman English symposium to which the public is invited. His lectures will be delivered in the Mabee American Heritage Center.

Walsh has written 22 books, including five of poetry. His sixth poetry book, "Hang Me Up My Bigger Bowl," will be published in May.

He has taught at colleges in Wisconsin and Pennsylvania. He is an ordained Episcopal priest and has served as a part-time assistant priest.

The symposium is sponsored by the Center for Business and Economic Education located on the LCC campus.

Three Students Killed In Nicaraguan Clash

MANAGUA, Nicaragua (UPI)—Nicaraguan troops stormed a university Monday night, killing three students, and battling against masked Indians beating drums and wielding machetes.

About 100 National Guardsmen attacked Managua's Autonomous University after students threw stones over the school's wall at the troops and chanted curses against President Anastasio Somoza.

When the guardsmen opened fire with rifles and machine guns, the students responded with firearms of their own and homemade bombs. Observers said several small tanks surrounded the university during the disturbances.

Radio Corporacion identified the dead students as Fidel Prado, Martin Zeledon and Jorge Arauz Hernandez. Also reported wounded were 40 students and three professors.

Nicaragua has been gripped with guerrilla skirmishes, rioting, strikes and bombings since the Jan. 10 assassination of a prominent newspaper publisher. Somoza's announcement Sunday that he would retire in 1981 as head of the military failed to stem the disorders.

In Masaya, 20 miles east of the capital, rebellious Indian workers and peasants wearing masks and beating drums battled troops.

The Indians, their water, food and electricity cut off, were reported to be fighting with sticks, stones, machetes, small arms supplied by Sandinista Liberation Front guerrillas and bombs.

Army troops on the ground and from planes and helicopters attempted to disperse the mob with tear gas bombs. There were no reports of casualties as roads continued to be blocked and telephone lines severed.

Radio reporter Leonel Delgado broadcasting from Masaya said, "The streets are full of barricades, you can hear machine gun fire, and bombs exploding everywhere. From the southern part of the city, people are fleeing."

He said that rebel residents of the Indian neighborhood of Monimbo had taken two soldiers prisoner, forced them to strip naked and were holding them in Pedro Joaquin Chamorro Plaza, named for the opposition newspaper publisher assassinated Jan. 16.

In Managua, rioters set fire to at least six buses and numerous buildings.

Radio broadcasts also reported fighting Monday in the cities of Rivas, Granada and Catarina, where demonstrators Sunday set fire to the National Guard headquarters and the City Hall.

Somoza, attempting to neutralize the insurrection, pledged Sunday that he would give up his control of the National Guard in 1981 and return to private life.

Sweden To Protest Soviet Submarines

STOCKHOLM, Sweden (AP)—Sweden will express concern to the Soviet Union about six Russian submarines that patrol the Baltic Sea carrying nuclear missiles, the Swedish Foreign Ministry said today.

"We don't like it," ministry spokesman Lars Rohmert said.

He said the flotilla was stationed permanently in the sea between Sweden and Russia about one year ago and is "significant from a point of security policy since it is a new weapon in the Baltic ... We plan to take up this question on a diplomatic level."

But Bertil Lagerwall, a spokesman for the National Defense Staff, said: "This does not alter our strategic situation. It would hardly be of any importance from military aspects."

He said it made no difference if a missile armed with a nuclear warhead was fired "from the Baltic, the North Sea or from ashore in some Eastern state."

Foreign Minister Karin Soder revealed the presence of the Russian subs in an interview published today in the Stockholm newspaper Svenska Dagbladet. The paper said the submarines carried missiles with a range of 745 miles that could reach south to Paris and north to the tip of Scandinavia.

"The range indicates the missiles are aimed at targets in Europe," she said.

"Credibility of political detente could be hurt if the superpowers do not act with efficiency to limit the armament instead of developing new nuclear weapons and spreading existing weapons to new areas," Mrs. Soder told the newspaper.

It reported that Swedish defense units have observed the submarines close to Swedish territorial limits while patrolling the southern Baltic, but Rohmert said: "They sail in Russian and international waters and there is no legal way to act as long as they do so."

Lagerwall said the submarines, of the so-called Golf class, were built in the late 1950s and early 1960s.

Both the Soviet Union and the United States deploy submarines armed with nuclear missiles in international waters throughout the world, and both powers are known to maintain a substantial submarine presence off each other's coasts.

Sweden traditionally follows an independent foreign policy and has not engaged in war since it joined the European alliance against Napoleon in 1813.

How to Pick Sleepers in Rare Plates

NORTHBROOK, Ill.—The director of a worldwide art exchange in this Chicago suburb has announced a new, easy way to start collecting rare porcelain plates with high resale potential.

According to Roderick MacArthur, director of The Bradford Exchange, one exceptional plate priced at $25 in 1965 now brings $1,750, and another selling at $9.75 in 1969 now sells for $440.

Mr. MacArthur says, "Since many plates do not increase in value, amateurs often make serious mistakes." He offers a free report on what to look for, when to buy, what to pay and much more. It even includes special offers on eagerly-sought collector plates at modest cost.

To get your free report with no obligation, just send your name, address, and zip code to the Bradford Exchange, 65409 Bradford Place, Northbrook, Illinois 60062. A postcard will do. To be sure of receiving your free copy, mail your request before Saturday of next week.

Lubbock Police Arrest Suspect With Drugs Inside Supermarket

Lubbock police brought the city's most recent pharmacy burglary to an abrupt halt late Monday when they spotted a suspect crawling out a window.

Officers arrested the window-crawler and a suspected companion and also recovered about $100 worth of drugs and syringes allegedly stolen during the break-in at the 3701 50th St. Piggly Wiggly.

The suspected burglar reportedly complied when police told him to halt his exit from the store. Police reports said a search of the 18-year-old Lubbock man yielded the allegedly stolen goods.

A 22-year-old Lubbock man was arrested about two blocks from the scene and also booked on suspicion of burglary.

In a recent residential break-in, Thomas B. Jones III of 1912 10th St., No. 9, told officers whoever reached through an unlocked window and opened a door at his apartment made off with a guitar, amplifier and speakers. The value of the haul was set at $725.

Weekend intruders managed to finagle their way into Southwest Canvas at 1325 E. 27th St., Norma Bullard of Anton told officers after she found a $400 typewriter, four calculators valued at $420 and a $300 intercom system were missing from the office there.

Break-in artists also took $450 from the Town and Country Gas Station at 4th Street and Boston Avenue between 8 p.m. Saturday and 7 a.m. Monday, Curtis Israel of the Ince Oil Co., reported to police.

Commission Orders

Bus Fare Increase

AUSTIN (AP)—The Texas Railroad Commission ordered a 10 percent increase in intrastate bus passenger fares Monday.

The commission also boosted package express rates by 20 percent and charter bus charges by 10 percent.

Bus companies should realize a $6.5 million annual increase in revenue from the increases, which take effect 10 days after the carriers publish them.

No one appeared to contest the rate increase, which was requested by the National Bus Traffic Association on behalf of the 26 Texas carriers, the commission said.

In their application, the companies cited increasing maintenance and equipment costs and declining passenger traffic as the reason for requesting higher rates.

Comedian Gets Prison Term

LAS VEGAS (AP)—Impressionist George Kirby has been sentenced to 10 years in prison for his conviction on heroin trafficking charges.

U.S. District Judge Roger D. Foley ordered Kirby, 52, taken into custody immediately Monday and placed in the Clark County Jail. He revoked Kirby's $10,000 bond and raised bail to $100,000 pending appeal.

The comedian received two concurrent 10-year prison terms for his conviction on charges of distribution of a controlled substance, possession with intent to distribute, and aiding and abetting.

The maximum penalty for each of the felony drug charges is 15 years in prison and a $25,000 fine.

Kirby was convicted by a jury Dec. 20 of selling two ounces of heroin to an undercover agent and trying to distribute another half pound. Both incidents allegedly occurred in mid-1977.

The judge also directed federal authorities to place Kirby on special probation for three years to be added to any probationary period he might receive upon his release from prison.

Car burglars also took $85 in tools and a flashlight from a car parked outside David L. Billingsley's 2507 Ave. U home about 1:10 a.m. Sunday.

The only violent crime reported to officers was a 15-year-old school girl's complaint that she had been hit, beaten and kicked by several black male students while she walked home from school in the 1900-block of East Colgate Street about noon Friday.

Bill Authorizes Energy Funds

WASHINGTON (UPI)—President Carter has signed a bill authorizing $6.1 billion for energy research, including nuclear development, the White House announced today.

The measure, which the White House said was signed Saturday, provides the Energy Department with money for research into developing additional sources of power.

It also authorizes the department to go ahead with such programs as loan guarantees for alternative fuel demonstration, advanced automobile propulsion system research, and the use of financial incentives for using municipal waste to produce energy.

It also extends financial assistance payments to Oak Ridge, Tenn., and Richland, Wash., for maintenance of local services for federal projects.

Miners Hear Pleas To Ratify Contract

WASHINGTON (AP) — United Mine Workers officials, conceding they face a battle in winning ratification of a contract to end the 85-day coal strike, say they're prepared to spend an estimated $40,000 airing television commercials promoting the pact.

And Johnny Paycheck, whose country songs are popular on coal country radio stations, has been enlisted to make radio advertisements if leaders decide his name would be helpful.

Paycheck's latest record, ironically, is titled "Take This Job and Shove It." It was the No. 38-selling single in the nation last week, according to Variety, the entertainment trade weekly.

The half-dozen television commercials and the radio spots are planned for broadcast beginning Wednesday on nine television stations and 50 radio stations in 10 states.

The commercials reflect the union leadership's concern over persuading striking miners to ratify the contract and resume mining coal.

Nervous officials say they are counting on a "silent majority" to ratify the proposed agreement with the Bituminous Coal Operators Association.

The tentative contract calls for maximum wage hikes of $2.40 an hour and provides guaranteed health and pension benefits.

But it also calls for the miners to pay a deductible amount for health care that has been free, includes company-run medical plans for most active miners and allows companies to fire wildcat strike leaders.

"Any time you have changes you have problems," said UMW Secretary-Treasurer Willard Esselstyn as the union embarked on its complicated ratification process.

Union leader called about 250 UMW members together for an explanation of the proposed contract.

After the meeting, the group dispersed for home to explain the pact to the rank and file. The ratification vote is expected to be held Saturday and Sunday.

Esselstyn and UMW Vice President Sam Church predicted the contract would be ratified.

"I think it will go over well," said Church, who presided over the meeting in place of union President Arnold Miller.

Miller, whose leadership has come under strong attack within the union, said he spent the day continuing negotiations on a contract covering about 30,000 mine construction workers.

Those negotiations remain a potential obstacle to reopening the mines. Even if miners ratify the main agreement with the Bituminous Coal Operators Association, it is unlikely miners would cross a picket line set up by striking construction workers.

"We've never crossed a picket line before," said District President Tommy Gaston.

A UMW official said the union and the American Bituminous Contractors Association still were working on resolving "two or three" differences.

Meanwhile, the executives of BCOA member companies met to review the proposed contract, which was accepted last Friday under the threat of strong government intervention to impose a settlement.

Asked whether the coal operators were angered by the contract, association President Joseph P. Brennan said, "I'm still here. There's no blood on my blue suit."

Ratification by the coal operators is regarded as a foregone conclusion, although it is unlikely it will be announced before the union's rank and file membership votes.

The contract already has met with some criticism from the union side. The head of an association of coalfield clinics termed the proposal "a disaster as far as the clinics are concerned."

"I can think of nothing worse than putting health care in the hands of private carriers and doing away with the 1974 benefit funds," said Don Conwell.

"Many of these clinics, such as the ones in eastern Kentucky and southern West Virginia, provide the only health care available in their areas. It's simply a tragedy."

Meanwhile, local presidents of the union's District 6, covering parts of Ohio and West Virginia, met and voted informally to reject the contract. The vote has no effect on the ratification process, but may be an indication of local sentiment.

Deadly Chlorine Still Unchecked

By United Press International

Work crews were frustrated Monday in efforts to neutralize deadly chlorine gas leaking from a derailed railroad tanker in the Florida panhandle, but crews in West Tennessee finally righted an overturned tanker that was spilling noxious lye fumes.

The problem at Youngstown, Fla., where eight persons have been killed by a greenish-yellow death cloud of chlorine gas, was a lack of the right equipment.

"It's the old 'for lack of a nail' story," said cleanup supervisor Don Tullis, whose crew waited while the equipment was rushed from Virden, Ill., hopefully for use today.

At Cades, Tenn., soggy ground and a snowfall hindered efforts to right a tanker containing sodium hydroxide, whose possibly dangerous fumes caused the evacuation of around 150 persons in the area.

But late Monday night, cranes and bulldozers moved the tank car, one of 25 that derailed from an Illinois Central Gulf freight Sunday, back onto the tracks where it was to be towed away today.

"There's not any danger from now on out," said Civil Defense operations officer Don Goad at midnight. "Everything is stable now."

He said it was safe for the evacuees to return home.

Cleanup crews also were working 80 miles east of Cades, at Waverly, Tenn., where 12 persons were killed and more than 50 others injured in the explosion of a derailed propane gas tanker from a Louisville & Nashville freight Friday.

Some 1,200 Waverly residents returned to their homes Sunday and helped in the cleanup work Monday.

Tennessee Gov. Ray Blanton met in Washington Monday with Transportation Secretary Brock Adams and called for the nationalization of the nation's "decayed" railroads.

"The sad fact is that in the state of Tennessee we are averaging four derailments a week," Blanton said.

Adams said he did not support nationalization, but rather is pushing a series of proposals for more federal railroad inspectors, increased federal subsidies to railroads and stricter standards for rail shipment of hazardous materials.

The president of one of the nation's largest railroad systems said the accidents will throw "a cloud over our industry for some time."

But Prime F. Osborn, president of Seaboard Coast Line Industries, said in Jacksonville, Fla., "These accidents happen. We have rigid standards for the movement of hazardous materials. There is no way to prevent them completely. There will always be derailments."

The derailment of 43 cars of the 101-car Atlanta and St. Andrews Bay Railroad freight Sunday was the 36th train wreck in the Florida panhandle in the past 2 1/2 years.

The chlorine gas from the ruptured tanker rode the wind through the town of Youngstown, 22 miles northeast of Panama City, forcing thousands to flee for safety. Eight persons, most of them motorists, died.

Workers dug a trench Monday and planned to pump it full of caustic soda, a neutralizing agent, from one of the other derailed tankers. The ruptured tanker then was to be dipped slowly by winch into the trench.

But workers discovered they did not have the necessary pumps and piping to fill the trench, so they waited on standby while a 14-man crew from Hulcher Emergency Services, Inc., rushed the equipment from Virden, Ill.

The cause of the derailment still had not been determined Monday night. Francis McAdams, an investigator for the National Transportation Safety Board, said there was a possibility the tracks settled in the swamp, making the rails unsafe.

Time Limit On Debate Suggested majority leader and a key strategist for the pro-treaty forces, said the tally was "better than we expected."

As the treaty is now written, the U.S. military presence in the Canal Zone would end in the year 2000, when Panama would take control of the waterway.

The Senate killed the translation amendment by a 58-26 vote. Some senators who had supported the Allen amendment switched to the other side on the proposal offered by Sen. Orrin Hatch, R-Utah.

For example, Sen. John Melcher, D-Mont., listed among the undecided senators on the merits of the treaty, voted with Allen but against Hatch.

Sens. Edward W. Brooke, D-Mass., and Jennings Randolph, D-W.Va., voted against killing either amendment. But they indicated their votes were to protest a decision by the Senate leadership to have the votes taken on motions to table the amendments rather than on the proposals themselves.

Such a move keeps the action one step removed from voting on the amendments themselves. It also cuts off debate since parliamentary rules call for an immediate vote after a motion to table.

Byrd is masterminding the campaign to kill all amendments except those approved by the Democratic and Republican leadership. He said motions to table have been standard in the Senate since 1789.

Hatch argued that "minor inconsistencies permeate" the English and Spanish versions of the treaties and therefore one language should prevail.

Sen. Frank Church, D-Idaho, responded that the United States has treaties with some 125 other sovereign nations and none of those agreements carries a similar provision.

Marston Firing Haunts Carter

NEW YORK (AP) — Half the American people say President Carter has broken his promise to appoint U.S. attorneys and judges without regard for political considerations, an Associated Press-NBC News poll shows.

Carter's firing of Republican David Marston as U.S. attorney in Philadelphia appears to have been a major factor in shaping the public perception that Carter has failed to live up to his campaign pledge.

Fifty-two percent of those interviewed last week said Carter had not kept his promise. Only 20 percent said the president has kept his word, with 28 percent uncertain.

Even among members of his own party, Carter is viewed as having failed to live up to his word by a 44-29 percent margin.

Carter's pledge was outlined in a campaign position paper that said: "All federal judges and prosecutors should be appointed strictly on the basis of merit, without any consideration of political aspect or influence."

Carter says he kept his campaign promise. "I do think that our actions are compatible with my campaign statements," he said at a White House news conference Jan. 30.

Asked if they had heard or read about the firing of Marston, 53 percent of the 1,600 adults questioned by telephone said they were familiar with the case. Forty-seven percent said they had not heard or read about it.

By a 3-to-1 margin, those who knew about Marston agreed with a statement that Carter mishandled the situation. Of those who were familiar with Marston's case, 62 percent agree Carter mishandled the case, 21 percent disagreed and 17 percent were unsure.

Marston's firing has played a significant role in the public view of Carter and his promise, but it is not the only factor involved.

Of those who agreed Carter mishandled the Marston affair, two-thirds said he failed to keep his promise. Only 13 percent of those who said he mishandled the affair think he kept his word.

Even among those who did not think that Carter mishandled the Marston affair, slightly more thought he had broken his campaign promise than thought he had kept his word.

But, looking at those who said they had not heard or read about Marston, the split was 45 to 23 percent, with the majority feeling Carter has failed to keep his promise.

Examining the other side, half of those who said Carter had kept his promise had not heard of the Marston case.

Carter says he saw nothing wrong with the way Marston was fired. At the Jan. 30 news conference, he said:

"I see nothing improper in the handling of the case. I made a campaign commitment that any appointee to a position as a U.S. attorney or judgeship would be appointed on the basis of merit, and this campaign commitment will be carried out."

Carter said that when a decision was made to replace Marston as U.S. attorney in Philadelphia, he did not know Marston was investigating two Democratic congressmen from Pennsylvania, Joshua Eilberg and Daniel Flood.

Carter did say Eilberg called him in November and asked him to speed up Marston's replacement. Carter then called Attorney General Griffin Bell and told him to expedite the process.

Marston left the federal post after meeting with Bell, who told him he would be replaced.

The Carter administration has replaced 66 of 94 U.S. attorneys, selecting only one Republican.

Plains Expected To Get Showers

Court Voids Dual Counts

WASHINGTON (AP) — Persons convicted of using guns during bank robberies may not be sentenced for breaking two separate federal laws, the Supreme Court ruled today.

Voting 8-1, the justices said the two laws cannot be applied to the same bank robbery.

The court's decision means that two Kentucky brothers will face shorter sentences for a pair of 1975 armed bank robberies in Middleboro, Ky.

Michael Lee Simpson and Tommy Wayne Simpson each was sentenced to 70 years in prison by a judge who employed two federal laws dealing with bank robbery.

The Supreme Court returned the Simpsons' cases to lower courts, where it is expected the sentences for each will be reduced to 50 years.

One federal law punishes bank robbery committed "by use of a dangerous weapon or device" with a maximum prison term of 25 years. Bank robbery without a dangerous weapon may be punished with a maximum prison term of 20 years.

The second law, a gun-control statute, states that whoever "uses a firearm to commit any felony for which he may be prosecuted" in federal court may, "in addition to the punishment provided for the commission of the felony" be sentenced to a maximum of 10 years.

The Simpsons were sentenced to the maximum 35 years in prison for each of their robberies.

Speaking for the court, Justice William J. Brennan Jr. said Congress did not intend to have the two laws stacked up against a single defendant for one crime.

Justice William H. Rehnquist disagreed. He wrote in a dissenting opinion that "the plain language of the statutes involved certainly confers this sentencing authority" to federal trial courts.

The fog this morning was so dense in some parts of Texas — generally east of a line from Wichita Falls, Mineral Wells, Junction and Del Rio — that the National Weather Service issued travelers advisories.

But while visibility was cut to near zero in those areas, a day tailor-made for spring — complete with clear skies, a 40 per cent chance for rain and temperatures predicted to reach near 70 — began on the South Plains.

Westerly winds of 15-20 mph this afternoon were expected to be the only indication of an impending lion-like March, but wind speeds should drop by 10 mph tonight, forecasters reported.

The 40 per cent moisture odds are predicted to continue through Wednesday, with precipitation totals of .25 to .50 of an inch possible in the area.

Cooler temperatures are predicted for the area Wednesday, with a high in the 50s.

The cool, moist weather will accompany a strong upper level disturbance moving across the area from Arizona, where it has set off heavy rainfall and some flooding.

The week's benign weather scene marked a dramatic change from recent snowfall and ice storms that cut out electrical power and telephone communications to several Panhandle areas and to a lesser extent stymied travel and power on the South Plains.

Lubbock's work week began with light rainfall adding .01 of an inch of water to the this year's total, already more than three times last year's .61 total at this time.

By the day's end, temperatures had spanned a 44-66-degree range, and wind speeds had peaked to 28 mph.

Tonight, however, readings may dip to the lower 30s, a familiar, if not comfortable range.

At 4 a.m. today, Dalhart recorded 32 degrees, Amarillo 37 and Marfa 38, but temperatures generally ranged from the 40s in North Texas to the 60s along the Coastal Plains.

Forecasts listed a chance for top temperatures to range from the middle 50s in the Panhandle to near 80 degrees in Big Bend Country and to the mid-80s at Texas' southern tip.

Forecasts considered Southwest Texas a likely target for scattered showers, but clouds and fog elsewhere in the state probably will break up, forecasts indicated.

States Fight Change In Revenue Sharing

before a scheduled meeting at the White House.

The mayors already have expressed opposition to the provision that would give the urban incentive grants to the state governments rather than to the cities.

"The mayors are going to reject this," predicted an official at the U.S. Conference of Mayors. "They are going to be opposed to any new money for the states."

Officials of the National Governors Association have said the governors like the new grants, but don't like the idea of giving up revenue-sharing dollars in exchange.

"This is one of the real disputes in the program," the mayors' official said.

A draft of the state-urban sharing plan, a copy of which was obtained by The Associated Press, shows the Carter administration intends to ask Congress for $400 million in new money for the first year of its three-year incentive program.

In the second year, the grants would rise to $960 million, with $460 million of that coming from a 20 percent reduction in revenue-sharing payments to states. In the third year, the grant money would reach $1.5 billion, but revenue-sharing funds would be cut 50 percent.

The grant money will be competitive, going to the states that produce the best targets for applying the money to problems targeted in the new Carter urban program.

But the cities don't want state legislatures handling money that urban centers need for the pressing problems of urban decay, shrinking tax bases and rising costs for public services.

"They just question what the states already have done with the programs they are supposed to coordinate," said one mayors' conference official. "Some of them haven't done a very good job."

Sources close to the city officials say the mayors are not convinced there are enough safeguards in the Carter plan to make sure states draft good urban plans before getting grants under the incentive program.

The officials connected with the conferences of governors and mayors asked that their names not be used.

After three years of special grants, the White House plan would continue funding states for urban projects under the name of revenue sharing, but the program would be far different from current revenue sharing.

"All states would be required to demonstrate clear evidence that the state share of general revenue sharing was being used to target assistance on distressed and declining communities to retain their remaining state share of GRS," the draft says.

The governors have indicated a distaste for the new string being attached to revenue sharing, which was invented to give them more flexibility in spending their share of federal money.

The White House draft formula was drafted "to reflect the president's expressed opposition to the continuation of the state share of general revenue sharing."

"This proposal reflects the concern that federal resources are too precious and limited to permit the continuation of aid which does not advance specific national policy objectives," the paper said.

Federal Program Probed

By United Press International
The federally funded Manpower Program is being scrutinized in two border cities.

A federal grand jury will be impaneled next week to investigate misuse of federal Manpower workers by the El Paso Sheriff's Department, and a Laredo citizens watchdog committee wants a state district court to order the Webb County Manpower Program to make its records public.

U.S. Attorney Jamie Boyd said Monday he and two other federal prosecutors attended a briefing with FBI agents and Department of Labor investigators in Austin last week to plan for a statewide investigation of abuses of Comprehensive Employment and Training Act funds.

Longtime El Paso County Sheriff Mike Sullivan; chief deputy Stuart Palos, jail Capt. Everett C. Riley; former jail maintenance supervisor Eugene McDonald, and two local corporations have been indicted by an El Paso Grand Jury.

Sullivan, connected with the sheriff's department for 32 years, was charged with two felony counts of official misconduct; Palos was accused of two felony counts of official misconduct; Riley was indicted for four felony theft counts, and McDonald was charged with four felony theft counts.

A show-cause hearing is scheduled on March 13 in 171st District Court on a civil suit to remove Sullivan from office. On March 23 in 34th District Court a pre-trial hearing is scheduled on the two charges of official misconduct which allege that Sullivan used federal Manpower trainees to repair grills on windows and to build a turtle cage at his El Paso home.

In Laredo, Taxpayers Organized for Public Service said Monday Manpower officials demanded a $15,000 deposit before releasing any of the records.

TOPS last year conducted what it termed "a pencil audit" of the Laredo Streets Department and uncovered allegations of graft and corruption that resulted in numerous grand jury indictments.

Settlement Reached In Roloff Lawsuit

CORPUS CHRISTI (AP) — A tentative out-of-court settlement has been reached in a $4.2 million damage suit brought against evangelist Lester Roloff by a former resident of one of his South Texas children's homes.

"We haven't reduced it (settlement) to writing yet, but I think it's fair to both sides," Tony Pletcher, one of Roloff's attorneys, said after State District Judge Jack R. Blackmon dismissed the jury for the trial of the suit.

Pletcher said he doubted if the terms of the settlement would ever be made public.

Roloff scurried from the courtroom before reporters could interview him.

The suit was brought by Robert Grimsley, 19, who was injured in a diving accident in July 1976. The suit alleges that Roloff Enterprises was negligent in not providing a qualified water safety supervisor or adequate first aid.

Grimsley was a resident of Roloff's Lighthouse home for boys. The accident occurred in a dormitory, which was a renovated barge anchored in Laguna Madre in Kleburg County, south of Corpus Christi.

He is paralyzed from the neck down and lives in a hospital room at the Memorial Medical Center.

He asked for damages for his pain and mental anguish and for loss of his physical powers.

The Nueces County Hospital District has paid the largest share of Grimsley's medical expenses to date. A records clerk testified at an earlier trial, which ended in a mistrial, that the youth's bill totaled $177,861 since October 1977.

As of late June, Roloff Enterprises had paid about $11,000 and Medicaid had contributed about $4,800.

Medical Center officials also are trying to get the State of Ohio to pay for part of the expenses, claiming Grimsley was assigned to the home as terms of probation meted out by a common pleas court judge in Clermont County, Ohio. However, the judge maintains that a member of Grimsley's family volunteered to place him in the home.

Playboy Wins Court Case

SANTA CLARA, Calif. (AP) — Playboy magazine is no different than the writings of Voltaire when it comes to equality under the law, a Santa Clara County judge has ruled.

Judge Peter G. Stone granted a preliminary injunction Monday halting enforcement of a Santa Clara city ordinance that imposes additional license fees on merchants who vend adult books and magazines.

"To specially tax Playboy today is to ban Voltaire tomorrow," declared Stone in a written decision.

Voltaire was an 18th century French philosopher who advocated religious tolerance.

The ordinance, enacted Sept. 6, 1977, imposes a supplemental fee of $500 a year on adult bookstores and $250 a year on other businesses which sell any kind of adult reading material. A restraining order was issued against the law last Nov. 8.

Although the ruling serves to halt the law's enforcement only until a trial can be scheduled, Stone wrote in his decision of "the likelihood that plaintiffs will ultimately prevail."

The plaintiffs are Milligan News Co., a magazine and book distributor, a liquor store and a grocery store.

No date for the trial has been set.

Musician's Songs Winning Acclaim

By GERRY BURTON
Avalanche-Journal Staff

Musical inspiration — a gift to the composer — comes unbidden. Then solitary and secretive work begins to mold a theme into the formula for a song.

It's the way songs are born for Cary C. Banks, self-taught musician and composer, who made it to the American Song Festival's worldwide quarter-finals this year.

"Fools Like Me," Banks' offering for the professional division competition, is a country waltz, only one of the many composing facets for the Coahoma native. Music began for him when, like many of his generation, the 14-year-old Banks was "bitten by the Beatle bug."

Since giving into the call of music Banks has done a little starving for his art's sake, but in the beginning he did a lot of bleeding from blisters and callouses on fingers working out a self-taught crash course in rock and roll guitar.

It paid off four months later when he formed his own band of players to whom he had passed along musical knowledge as he worked it out.

Banks had all of a month's instruction on the guitar, quitting because the teacher wouldn't show him the rock and roll way. Arming himself with Beatle records, he set to work, sometimes whacking away from after school to midnight. Four hours a day was a short session.

Formal instruction came in his junior year in high school when the band director enlisted him into the drummer ranks. Efforts paid off the next year with the John Philip Sousa Award for outstanding bandman.

College instruction, in theory and such, didn't jell, so he soon was back to his own innovations, this time adding composing to his agenda.

"I'm not much of a hack writer," he noted, adding that at one time he had cranked out a song a day for a year, coming up with about three really good ones.

By this time, his taste had modulated to country and western combined with rock. Today, he also comes up with a little jazz and some easy listening — the fields it takes to please whatever audience his current band entertains.

He tried cracking the Nashville shell twice and twice returned to Lubbock, the last time with the conviction that this was his place from now on.

Traveling the music circuit from East Coast to West Coast, he had learned a lot from others about structure of a song and what makes one salable. That's the work part after the "hook line and melody" drift into his mind.

His only break of a Banks' solitary rule is a collaboration with Jack Tyson — his employer at a Lubbock music center, a fellow member of the band and the vocalist for "Fools Like Me" on the competition tape.

"I've been writing songs seven or eight years, but I've made more actual money with jingles and songs for commercials," Banks said.

A recording by Jerry Jordan of Brownfield on a major label netted him about $300 in royalties for "I Can't Sing a Love Song."

Most of Banks' lyrics are love songs, and 75 per cent of them are personal feelings.

"You can't teach song writing, there is no way unless it's in you."

That's the way it's been with all his music since Banks picked up a guitar to learn, then transposed that knowledge to an old upright piano before "learning a little banjo, a little this and a little that," to fit a current liking.

Applying the formula to songwriting was a natural that pays off every time an audience responds to a Banks song at a South Plains engagement.

Until something really big happens to one of his songs, they will continue to be heard mostly at engagements and on tapes available from the band.

But, to be one of 600 winners when "about a million enter the contest each year," is another milestone along the way.

Change Urged In Trading

EL PASO (AP) — The relaxation of trade barriers in the United States against Mexican products would help solve serious problems of both countries, Mexico's undersecretary for foreign affairs has told Texas newspaper editors meeting here.

Jose Juan Olloqui spoke Monday at a meeting of the Texas Daily Newspaper Association.

Olloqui urged editors and the U.S. press to create a "consciousness of vicinity" between the two countries and to emphasize similarities instead of differences. These actions, Olloqui said, would help equalize the lopsided U.S.-Mexico balance of payments and solve the lengthy problems concerning illegal aliens.

Olloqui said his nation's trade deficit with the United States represents about 5 per cent of Mexico's gross national product.

In order to solve the problem of illegal Mexican aliens holding down jobs in the United States, Olloqui said, there must be markets for the items produced in Mexico.

"Only by creating employment possibilities for the migrant in the place from where they emigrate can we give a solution to this problem. In order to solve it, there must be a market that can absorb the items produced in Mexico," Olloqui said.

Turbay Ayala Leads Colombian Returns

BOGOTA, Colombia (AP) — Julio Cesar Turbay Ayala holds a 240-1 lead over his chief rival for the Liberal Party presidential nomination in unofficial returns from Sunday's primary election. He is also expected to win the presidency on June 4.

Unofficial returns from about 60 per cent of the primary votes gave 541,136 to Turbay Ayala, a former vice president, foreign minister and ambassador to Washington. Former President Carlos Lleras Restrepo had 275,308.

Turbay Ayala's opponent from the Conservative Party in June will be Belisario Betancur, who was nominated by a party convention.

Job Challenges Police Chief

By STEVEN P. ROSENFELD
CLEVELAND (AP) — Richard Hongisto says he could have been mayor of San Francisco with relative ease. But he decided instead to leave the City by the Bay and accept the job of police chief in Cleveland, "where I get the impression that anything not nailed down is being stolen."

Hongisto resigned as sheriff of San Francisco County, where he became known as liberal and independent, and on Dec. 14 he became Cleveland's 10th police chief in 15 years.

On his first day on the job here, 80 percent of the city's 1,500 patrolmen began a two-day, sick-call walkout over the lack of progress in contract talks. Since then, a contract has been ratified, and Hongisto has been busy putting more men in patrol cars to respond to violent crime. He has even been out on patrol himself, and made two burglary arrests.

Hongisto has increased street patrols by reducing several other units, including those dealing with obscenity and traffic ticketing.

In San Francisco, Hongisto moved into the spotlight for his efforts at jail reform, including medical care and drug counseling, and for his support of the gay right's movement.

He went to jail for five days for contempt of court for refusing to evict about 70 elderly and Chinese residents of a low-rent hotel. He had said he did not have the manpower to carry out the eviction without bloodshed.

Hongisto said he demonstrated his vote-getting ability when he received nearly as many votes as the other five candidates combined in gaining a second term as sheriff in San Francisco County in a low-key campaign.

"I could have been, with relative ease, the mayor of that city," the 40-year-old Hongisto said in a recent interview. "But I wanted to be chief of police. I'm doing what I want to do."

In addition to a federal court order to increase the number of minority members of the Cleveland police force, Hongisto is faced with a high crime rate, federal investigations of municipal court corruption and organized crime activities.

"It's a challenge to see if I can stick around and straighten things out," he said. "I'm enjoying it a great deal."

Today is Tuesday, Feb. 28, the 59th day of 1978 with 306 to follow.

The moon is moving toward its last quarter.

There is no morning star.
The evening stars are Mercury, Venus, Mars, Jupiter and Saturn.

Those born on this day are under the sign of Pisces.

Mary Lyon, founder of Mount Holyoke Seminary for women in Massachusetts, was born Feb. 28, 1797.

On this day in history:
In 1849, the first shipload of gold seekers arrived in San Francisco after a five-month journey from New York City.

In 1942, Japanese forces landed in Java, the last Allied bastion in the Dutch East Indies.

In 1966, American astronauts Elliott

See and Charles Bassett were killed when their light plane crashed into a building in St. Louis.

In 1976, President Ford, at a naturalization ceremony for Cuban refugees in Miami, denounced Fidel Castro as an "international outlaw" for his intervention in Angola.

Government Aiding Topless Bar

WASHINGTON (AP) — It's not the usual job for a government lawyer, but C. William Lengacher is now dealing with a vandalized swimming pool, a sunken houseboat and a topless go-go bar that could lose its liquor license.

Lengacher is the department lawyer in charge of recovering $856,000 that was embezzled from the government last year by a Transportation Department clerk who went on a buying spree.

The department seized the clerk's property for liquidation in an effort to recover the amount he embezzled.

But to get the best price for the property seized, the department can't let the value of the items deteriorate.

As a result, department attorneys have filed an insurance claim while trying to sell the houseboat, which was partially sunk in a winter storm.

Understanding Brings Relief

By MARY MARGARET KERN
Noblesville, Ind.

The headache was there when I awoke in the morning. When I went to pick up Edith, I told her it had come because I hadn't slept well. But I knew better. It was pounding behind my eyes because I was going to drive her home that day — 250 miles.

Over the past year, since Edith's marriage to my dad, I had been avoiding her — not too hard to do since I lived with my husband and family a couple of states away. Edith and my dad had driven to this clinic for checkups two weeks ago. When dad had to have an operation, they sent for me. Now dad would fly home when released, but since Edith had an arthritic hip and walked with a cane, someone had to drive her and their car home. How I dreaded it!

I hadn't been able to accept Edith as my dad's wife. She was so different.

Unlike Mother, Edith was tiny and frail. Most people termed her vivacious. When I was feeling my worst, I translated vivacious into "talky," and today I was feeling my worst.

I helped her into the car, and she settled down beside me and began chatting.

Sheats' Use Of Photo Irks Mahon

By SYLVIA TEAGUE
Avalanche-Journal Staff

U.S. Rep. George Mahon lambasted Congressional candidate Morris Sheats Monday for using a picture of Sheats and Mahon together in a political advertisement.

"I was shocked to learn that one of the candidates for Congress in our District had, without my knowledge or consent, placed a picture of him and me in a political advertisement," Mahon said in a prepared statement.

"The picture implies my endorsement of his candidacy. I emphatically disavow this implication. I have not endorsed his candidacy."

"I had thought that citizens generally, and candidates in particular, knew of my often repeated statement that I would not seek to influence the people of our District in the selection of my successor," Mahon said.

"I deplore the unauthorized use of my picture and the implication which it suggests."

Sheats' opponent in the Democratic primary, State Sen. Kent Hance, said Monday he had called and asked Mahon if "he had authorized that type of picture in Sheats' advertising." Hance added, however, that he did not ask Mahon to take any action in response to the picture.

Although Mahon never mentioned Sheats by name, the statement apparently is in reference to a supplement Sheats placed in many South Plains newspapers Sunday.

On the next to the last page of the publication, titled "The West Texas News," was a picture of Sheats and Mahon dated Feb. 4, 1977.

Mahon had inscribed the picture, "To recall the Washington visit and extend best wishes." The photograph appears next to a story with the headline "Mahon...a shining example of leadership."

Sheats responded to Mahon's criticism with an assertion that the story and photograph were "intended only as a tribute to the honorable George Mahon."

"It was not intended to imply an endorsement. He has said repeatedly that he will not endorse any candidate."

Sheats said he understood the picture was a "common courtesy Congressman

Ordinance Worries Masseuses

(EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the last in a three-part series in which The Avalanche-Journal examines prostitution in Lubbock.)

By IRA PERRY
Avalanche-Journal Staff
Sammie gives rubdowns ... among other things.

And because of those other things, Sammie and other Lubbock masseuses have become the target of a new crackdown on prostitution in the Hub City unusually different from traditional tactics.

Months after a Lubbock divorcee first complained of having clients of her residential neighborhood's massage parlor banging on her door by mistake, Lubbock city leaders last week took heed.

With the first reading approval of a proposed ordinance regulating massage parlors, city leaders Thursday slapped clothing on loosely-attired masseuses, cut down on under-age help, stuck on a no-drinking rule and an exposure clause to find out just who patrons really are and then added provisions to make sure those persons rubbing Lubbockites don't do any rubbing the wrong way.

In fact, some massage parlor operators claim they may have just been regulated out of business, something that may not have been far from the minds of city councilmen who approved the ordinance on first go-around.

The problem, city officials say, is simply out of hand.

In less than two years, the number of massage parlors — many presumed to be houses of prostitution and others proven to be so by city policemen — has grown from a handful to more than 30 by an Avalanche-Journal count that zoning administrator Jerrell Northcutt says is "probably close to right."

Prostitution, though, can wait for now.

The most pressing problem, says Northcutt, is getting at least seven suspected businesses out of residential neighborhoods much like the 29th Street section a woman complained of earlier.

The woman, who shares her block with a massage parlor against her will, earlier in November ber told officials if they didn't stop the parlor, neighborhood residents would stop the parlor patrons by taking pictures and writing down license plate numbers, and for a while, they did.

The massage parlor closed, but like most other massage parlors closed by zoning authorities or police, it soon reopened with another name and another telephone number.

"They're all like this," Northcutt said. "Since we started trying to track some of these down (this month), some have already moved on us. It's difficult to keep track of them with them moving around like this."

Hill Claims Poll Shows Briscoe Losing Support

By ROLAND LINDSEY
United Press International

Attorney General John Hill's latest poll shows he has a slight edge over Gov. Dolph Briscoe in the campaign for the Democratic nomination for governor.

"When we began our polling in November of 1976, I had 24 percent and Briscoe had 42 percent among all voters," Hill said Monday. He said the latest poll shows him with 36 percent to Briscoe's 34 percent, with former Gov. Preston Smith capturing 7 percent of the support.

"These poll results confirm our belief that Governor Briscoe's no-doing administration cannot withstand the critical analysis it will receive from the voters, and that my candidacy attracts more support as more and more people learn about my record and my proposals," Hill said.

Hill said he expects his support to increase and Briscoe's support to drop further before the May 6 primary.

Hill said the poll was taken this month for his campaign by the firm of Louis, Bowles and Grove of Dallas.

In other campaign activity Monday, U.S. Senate candidate Joe Christie and attorney general candidate Price Daniel Jr. each announced endorsements.

Daniel, who was guest at a reception in Austin Monday, said he has been endorsed by the University of Texas Young Democrats, the Travis County Young Democrats and two other Democratic groups in Austin.

Christie was endorsed by the UT Young Democrats and South Austin Democrats.

Estes Grand Jury Requests Records

WICHITA FALLS (AP) — A federal grand jury investigating convicted swindler Billie Sol Estes convened Monday. The grand jury subpoenaed records from the Texas attorney general's office and a spokesman for Attorney General John Hill's office said Monday the office supplied the necessary documents but that no personnel were to appear.

"This shows I have the grassroots support of the Democratic party," Christie said. "I think this is largely attributable to the fact that voters know where I stand. They don't have to wonder, as they do with someone who calls himself an 'Independent Democrat.'"

State Treasurer Warren G. Harding Monday announced plans for a campaign reception March 3 in Houston.

Sam Houston Clinton, an Austin attorney who participated in the appeal of Jack Ruby's conviction for the murder of presidential assassin Lee Harvey Oswald, told an Austin news conference he could bring fresh ideas and a background in civil, constitutional and criminal law to the Court of Criminal Appeals.

Clinton is opposing Judge Jim Vollers for the Democratic nomination to a place on the court, and said he and Vollers have agreed to avoid any personal criticism of each other in their campaign.

McKelvy Files Suit Against City, LISD

By JEFF SOUTH
Avalanche-Journal Staff

Three auto dealers aren't the only ones fighting the staggered reappraisal system used by the city-school tax department here.

Among other taxpayers suing the City of Lubbock and Lubbock Independent School District on that matter is furniture retailer and school board vice president Bob McKelvy.

"I thought long and hard before I did it. I knew it would put me in a precarious position," McKelvy said Monday of his lawsuit pending in district court.

"But the way I see it, any time an appraisal changes more than 50 percent in any one year, that's unreasonable."

His suit says the property assessments placed on McKelvy's Furniture Company, 4602 Ave. Q, and a downtown furniture warehouse for the 1977-78 tax year are "discriminatorily excessive" and based on figures "grossly in excess of fair market value."

Attorneys for the city, school system and city-school tax office and tax equalization board have denied those allegations. A temporary restraining order has been granted McKelvy, stopping the allegedly unfair values from taking effect until the case can be heard.

McKelvy's action is believed to be the first time here a member of either the school board or city council has sued the joint tax department.

In 1976, his furniture store carried a tax value, a figure supposed to be 60 percent of market value, of $170,870. For 1977, See McKELVY Page 6

Salinas Returns Slice Of Budget

State Rep. Froy Salinas announced Monday he is returning about 15 percent of his legislative office budget for 1977 to the state treasury.

One of the major goals of this office during 1977 was efficiency in state government, Salinas said. In keeping with that goal, $7,446.36 of the money allotted to run his Austin and Lubbock offices for fiscal 1977 is being returned, Salinas he continued.

About $48,000 was allotted for the two offices for the year, he said.

"Through planning and a productive staff, the necessary services were provided to the people of District 75-B, while at the same time returning money to the state, creating a savings to the taxpayers of Texas," Salinas stated.

The Lubbock insurance man was elected to the Eastside District in 1976. He is running for re-election this year.

There are times when even an expert declarer is faced with a pure guess. More often, however, he can place the cards almost exactly.

Because of the fact that he had a wealth of prime controls and good intermediates, North elected to value his hand at more than the 17 HCP it contained. Accordingly, he issued a slam invitation by making a quantitative jump to four no trump. Note that this was the only intelligent slam suggestion North could make despite his unbalanced hand—his partner had denied a decent four-card major when he failed to bid it at his first turn, and if a 4-4 diamond fit existed, it still could be uncovered later in the auction. Since South was at the top of his range with only three-card diamond support, he obliged by bidding the slam in no trump.

West led the top of his club sequence and declarer won the ace perforce in dummy. A diamond finesse lost to the king, and the nine of clubs return was won by the king as a spade was discarded from the table. Before committing himself to the spade finesse for his contract, declarer set out to learn what he could about the distribution.

He cashed three rounds of diamonds, discarding a spade from his hand. On the last two diamonds, West let go of a low spade and the ten of clubs. Next, declarer played four rounds of hearts, discarding a club from his hand. West had to hold the jack of clubs to prevent declarer from taking the fulfilling trick with the eight of clubs, so he let go another spade. East sluffed a club.

There were now only four spades remaining in the defenders' hands. Declarer crossed to the ace of spades, fetching two spades from the defenders, and then led a low spade toward dummy. West followed with a low spade. Should declarer finesse?

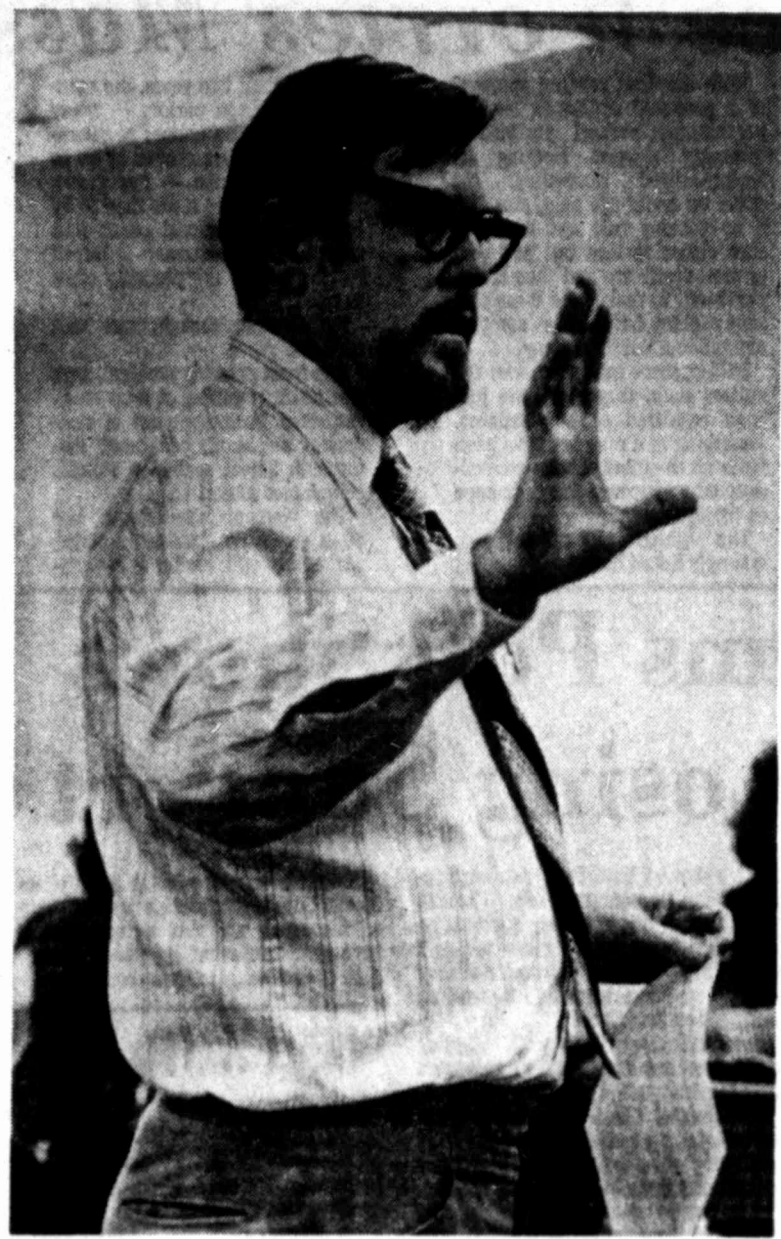

The answer is no. Declarer knows from the play to this point that West's last card is the jack of clubs. Therefore, East must hold the queen of spades, and it is bare. So declarer should go up with the king of spades, and the jack of spades becomes the twelfth trick when the queen drops.

MANGO SHORTCAKE

3 mangos, thinly sliced
3 tsp. sugar
2 cups biscuit mix
¾ cup light cream
1 cup whipping cream
Sprinkle mango slices with sugar; refrigerate while preparing biscuits. Mix biscuit mix with light cream until a soft dough forms. Beat 20 strokes; knead 8 to 10 times on floured board. Roll ¼ inch thick; cut with 3 inch biscuit cutter. Bake at 450 degrees about 10 minutes or until brown. Cool a few minutes. Split; spoon mango slices between and over layers of biscuits. Whip cream; spoon over top. Serve immediately. Makes 6 servings. Bakery shortcake biscuits or sponge cups may be used, if desired.

COUNSELOR'S WORKSHOP — A workshop sponsored for elementary school counselors by the Mental Health Clinic of the Department of Human Resources was held Thursday in the Board of Education Annex building. The workshop, the second in a series, was designed to acquaint Lubbock Independent School District counselors with the resources available to them through the Department of Human Resources. Above, Clinic Director Dan Duncan discusses various problems that the may encounter in their work with the elementary school age children. Role playing was an important part of the workshop. At top right, Marie Maxey, left, plays the part of a teacher while Ray Ham takes the part of the student and Dr. Valerie Smead, assistant clinic director, portrays the counselor. The counselors are attempting to determine why a 'smart' boy refuses to study. During the role playing, bottom right, Duncan, in background, discusses what the counselors are doing. Mrs. Maxey and Ham again assume their teacher, student roles to discuss student problems. The final session for junior and senior high school counselors is set for March 9. DEAR ABBY

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I have been married for three months and we just had our first big fight.

It all started when I mentioned to him that I had read that the longest marriage on record was 86 years! My husband then replied that 25 years is our limit—and no more.

Abby, I got married for life and I hoped that he did, too, so this really got me upset.

Then he said, "You should be pleased with a guarantee of 25 years."

V.V.

DEAR V: Nobody has a "guarantee" that he'll wake up tomorrow morning, so your husband's "guarantee" or a 25-year-long marriage doesn't mean much.

Live your life one day at a time, and if your husband tells you after 25 years that your "guarantee" has run out, write again, and if I'm still around (and I hope I am), I'll help you deal with it.

DEAR ABBY: I have a boyfriend who has three favorite sayings: "I'm starved," "I'm tired" and "I'm broke." I can't see why he should always be starved. He lives at home. And he shouldn't be tired since he sleeps every chance he gets. And he shouldn't be broke either since he has a job.

He comes over every Friday night, and when I ask him to take me to a movie, he says he's broke. When I suggest going somewhere else, he says he's too tired. I don't understand why I want to marry him, but I do. What's wrong with him?

SUZIE Q.

DEAR SUZIE Q: He needs someone who will feed him, give him an allowance, and tuck him in every night. (A mother). He's for ADOPTING—not MARRYING.

DEAR ABBY: I'm a 45-year-old widow in love with a 47-year-old widower I'll call Bill.

Bill's wife died four years ago and left him with a daughter who is now 12. (I'll call her Betsy). The problem is the way Betsy feels about me. She's insanely jealous. Bill once kissed the back of my neck while helping me on with my coat and Betsy became hysterical. She yelled and screamed and cursed me, saying "You will NEVER take my mother's place!" It took Bill an hour to calm her down.

Whenever we three drive anywhere, Betsy has to sit between us. When we three are together, Betsy sulks and looks at me with hate in her eyes. Until recently, Betsy slept with her father, but I told him I thought it was very unhealthy so he stopped it.

Bill is begging me to marry him. He says Betsy will outgrow her jealousy after we're married, and she will learn to love me, but I'm afraid to take a chance. I really love Bill and don't want to give him up. Please help me.

NEED HELP

DEAR NEEDS: Tell Bill unless (and until) he gets Betsy to a psychiatrist for some counseling, and her sick attitude changes, marriage between you would be a disaster. (he could also use some therapy). Under no circumstances should you marry Bill with the situation that now exists. If he doesn't agree to getting help for Betsy, say goodbye. And don't look back.

If you feel left out and lonely, or wish you knew how to get people to like you, my new booklet, "How To Be Popular: You're Never Too Young or Too Old," is for you. Send $1 along with a long, self-addressed, stamped (24 cents) envelope to Abby, 132 Lasky Dr., Beverly Hills, Calif. 90212.

Tomorrow's Horoscope

By Bernice Bede Osol

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Don't waste your time jousting with windmills tomorrow. Set your priorities early in the day or it could slip by with very little accomplished.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Keep your fish stories to yourself tomorrow. You'll look stupid if you try to beat at his own game someone who's already told an obvious whopper.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) You must have a good and trusted counterpart in any business dealings tomorrow. He or she has a profound effect on whether you finish in the black or red.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) The only pronouncements you should make tomorrow are those which are well thought out and calmly voiced. Say nothing quickly or with ire.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) You are the master of your fate tomorrow where pledges are concerned. No one will come to your rescue if you can't fulfill what you've promised.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) That's not an angel on your shoulder who's telling you to take high-caliber risks tomorrow. Stifle the urge to listen. You already know the outcome.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Uncharacteristically, you forget about the little things that are important tomorrow. Oddly enough for a Virgo, you don't pay enough attention to details.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Be humble and modest about your accomplishments tomorrow. You could sway those who are on the fence or against you to become a part of your team.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Consider any situation in which you're handling another's resources as a sacred trust. It behooves you to live up to their faith in you.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) It's not likely you'll sit still if anyone tries to put down your ideas and supplant them with his or her own. You'll jealously guard your own interests.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Keep your proboscis where it belongs tomorrow. In other words putting your nose into another's business could get it chopped off.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Buy only things that you really need tomorrow. In luxury items you're inclined to pay much more than they're worth.

Fate Of Cameras In Courtroom Rests With Louisiana Judge

NEW ORLEANS (UPI) — The state district judge who got his wish for cameras and recording equipment in the courtroom says the success of the one-year trial program is on his shoulders.

"I've handled some hot potato cases before," said Louisiana District Judge Guy E. Humphries of Alexandria. "I've handled every kind of case a judge can try. The only pressure on a judge is his own self-consciousness."

"You can't let public sentiment sway you."

The Louisiana Supreme Court Thursday approved the one-year pilot program for using cameras and recording equipment in Humphries' courtroom.

Humphries, who worked on ground rules for electronic coverage with three media representatives, called the decision "one of the greatest breakthroughs in the judiciary" in his 17 years as a judge.

The Humphries' committee included John Spain, news director of WBRZ-TV in Baton Rouge; Ed Borne, news director of KALB-TV in Alexandria; and Lee Huebner, photographer for the Alexandria Daily Town Talk.

"I'm just very elated, I'm really thrilled," Humphries said in a telephone interview. "We got together and took a chance. We got enough people interested. You have to give the Supreme Court all the credit for this."

Under the guidelines approved by the court, silent videotape cameras, still cameras and tape recording devices will be allowed in the courtroom. No additional lighting will be permitted. Humphries said the trial judge will position the cameras in certain areas.

Humphries said the actual videotaping and recording would be done with equipment in an adjoining room to keep the courtroom as uncluttered as possible.

The program will be evaluated by the Supreme Court in one year to determine whether it should be extended.

"We're going to take the courts to (the public)," Humphries said. "Most people don't realize they can go to court. And what you don't know about, you don't trust. We've lived in an ivory tower for so long. All we're doing is taking the courts to the public with the use of modern technology."

know, a bowl up on the bandstand, put your money in. And it was good money for those times."

As they say, Scatman has been around. At the NBC works here, where he tapes "Chico," he often bumps into guys who've been around with him. Guys like trumpeter Snookie Young of the "Tonight" band.

"He was in my band back in the '30s in Dayton, Ohio," Crothers grinned. He said they teamed up again recently when he recorded his "Mean Dog Blues" for a new jazz album starring Young.

Crothers, who lives in nearby Van Nuys with Helen, his wife of nearly 41 years, has worked nightclubs ever since his start in Indiana.

But he didn't make the movie scene until 1949, he says, when friends who caught his act at the old Oasis club here recommended him for a part in a Dan Dailey musical, "Meet Me at the Fair."

He's popped up in a few TV and film roles since. But oddly enough, it was a fellow musician, a retired jazz drummer he'd never met, to give him his biggest break in "Chico and the Man."

Said ex-drummer is James Komack, producer-creator of the show.

"I didn't know him," Crothers said. "I was in my lawyer's office one day, and Helen called, said they wanted me to come out and read a part for 'Chico and the Man.'"

"I was working clubs at night, and I said, 'What is that?' They said, 'Just come in and read.' So I did and they liked it. Simple as that."

Komack, he added, is producing the pilot of "Scatman." In it, the man who began his career in a saloon, will return to one, playing a New Orleans gambler who owns a nightclub.

Was he nervous about the risks of having his own series?

"Naw," said Crothers.

Actress Shivers In Role Of Skier

By VERNON SCOTT
HOLLYWOOD (UPI)—Deborah Raffin, the slender beauty who has starred in 10 movies, became the coldest blonde on the screen for her new role in a ski picture and she hasn't entirely thawed out yet.

Deborah plays a world class skier in "Ski-Lift To Death" which would have been fine in the old days when they shot snow movies on a Hollywood sound stage filled with bleached corn flakes and popcorn.

But in this era of realism Deborah was packed off to Banff and Lake Louise, Alberta, for a full month of location shooting during the hazy month of December in Canada.

Temperatures during the day were a cozy 30 degrees below zero.

A native of Southern California, Deborah was utterly unprepared for working in subzero temperatures, but it gave her a grand excuse for padding out her figure.

Deborah, a former model who stands 5-foot-8 and weighs 110 pounds, became a roly-poly by bundling herself in layers of clothes and still feared she would freeze to death.

"I literally wore eight layers of stuff," said the bright-eyed filly. "On the bottom I wore three pairs of thermal long john woolen drawers and a pair of tights. Over that I wore jeans and finally a pair of ski pants. Also three pairs of thermal socks."

"I wore even more on top. Every day I put on four pairs of long-sleeved woolen thermal underwear, a T-shirt, a turtle-neck blouse, pull-over sweater and a ski jacket. Plus two pairs of gloves."

"It took me 45 minutes just to put everything on. By the time I got dressed I could hardly walk. I must have weighed close to 150 pounds. You can imagine my problems when I had to go to the powder room."

Deborah plays a champion free-style ballet skier in the two-hour CBS movie scheduled for telecast March 3. She is a fair skier herself and appears in all the close-ups.

But the fancy stuff was left to Susie Chaffee, the world champion freestyle skier who doubled Deborah and devoted two weeks to teaching her the rudiments of ballet skiing.

"One day we were practicing at the top of a hill and got stranded," Deborah recalled. "Without our knowledge they closed the ski lift. It was getting dark and a blizzard came up. We both were scared to death. "Finally the company sent a sled and snowmobile up the mountain and brought us down safely. I thought I'd perish of the cold."

"And that wasn't the only little off-screen drama I had. This is sort of a disaster picture. In one shot a wind comes up and blows the gondola on which I'm riding off its tracks. I'm supposed to be suspended in the air."

"Then the director decided he wanted a good close-up of me being lowered to safety in a harness at the end of a cable. But the cable got stuck and there I was dangling 30 feet in the air with the wind and snow blowing."

"It was only 10 minutes but it seemed like a lifetime. It was embarrassing, and talk about being scared! I was petrified."

No matter how bad the weather, the cast and crew pressed on. The cameras froze so often hand warmers were taped around the lenses so shooting could proceed.

"The first day outside my fingers and toes got so cold it was all I could do to keep from weeping. It helps if you have some fat on you, but I'm skinny."

"Water taps were frozen in our dressing rooms and every morning the inside of the makeup trailer was all white with frost. I'd never seen anything like that before."

"When I wasn't actually in front of the cameras, I wore a ski mask on my face to keep my nose from freezing."

"The cold really helped us prepare our work in advance. We tried to do every scene in one take so we could run to our heated dressing rooms."

"Sometimes it got pretty serious. We had six championship skiers flown in to do the really difficult things. And several of them were badly hurt when they fell. But they kept coming back for more."

"A couple of the crew members checked into the hospital for what they thought was frostbite, but no one suffered any real harm."

Deborah is a globe-trotter who has visited Russia, Japan, South America, Africa and a dozen European countries in the past three years, but she never encountered colder weather than in Canada.

Not that she hasn't tried mind you. No sooner had the blonde beauty returned to sunny California with her husband, producer Michael Viner, than they took off by jet on vacation. Where did they go?

"Lapland!" Deborah said, laughing. "We really did. We took a reindeer sled tour up around the arctic circle. The weather was wonderful up there compared to Banff. I mean it felt comparatively warm."

"The temperature never fell below 15 or 20 below zero."

Man Offers $75,000 Loan To Area Mennonites

By PAT PATRICK
Avalanche-Journal Staff

A "Good Samaritan" apparently is willing to come to the financial aid of the Mennonites at Seminole, in danger of losing their land because of debts.

A Houston man who wishes to remain anonymous read in a newspaper article of the $75,000 the Mennonites need to meet a Wednesday loan date and offered to put up such a loan, Seminole Mayor Bob Clark said.

About 550 Mennonites, members of a 400-year-old German-speaking religious sect, immigrated last year to the Seminole area from Mexico and Canada.

They hoped to set up a church-centered, farm-oriented community there — the Mexicans escaping religious persecution and worried about possible confiscation of their lands in the Southern country, the Canadians attracted by Texas' long growing season.

They bought 6,400 acres of farmland and equipment for $1.7 million, making about a half-million dollar down payment. The rest was to be paid out over 10 years at 8 1/2 percent interest.

However, problems plagued them. Legal snags developed over their visa status, and for a long time it looked as if they might be deported. Congressional action finally solved that problem.

But in the meantime, many Mennonites decided not to plant crops because they were afraid they might have to leave the country. Others who did lost money, as did farmers across the country.

Mennonites still in Mexico, who had planned to immigrate — and help pay for the land — stayed away, worried about the legal hassles of their brethren here.

The upshot of it all, sources said, was that an interest and principal payment due Feb. 15 went unpaid. The sources said the Mennonites were given the option of paying $150,000 by Wednesday and the remaining $80,000, over a three-year period.

Late this past weekend, they still lacked $75,000 of the $150,000 due Wednesday, their attorney Harold P. "Bo" Brown Jr. of Lubbock had said.

That is where the "Good Samaritan" apparently comes in.

Clark said the man called him Sunday. "I referred him to Brown, and they met twice Sunday," the mayor said.

However, details of a $75,000 loan reportedly were worked out during the day.

the city-school tax department raised that to $318,770 — an increase of almost 87 percent.

The tax office staff hiked the assessment on the warehouse from $36,980 to $92,830, an increase of more than 150 percent.

McKelvy last year protested to the tax equalization board, which changed the assessment on the store to $294,870 and on the warehouse to $57,310, according to court documents. But even with the reductions granted by the board, the tax values are way too high, McKelvy's suit says.

The lawsuit said the assessments on the store and warehouse should have been left at $170,870 and $36,980 respectively.

At those assessments, the combined city-school tax bills on the two properties this year would be about $6,200. Under the values set by the tax equalization board, taxes would total more than $10,500.

Part of the reason McKelvy's assessments jumped so much all at once is the city-school tax department's cyclical reappraisal system — an issue three local automobile dealers have asked the Texas Supreme Court to deem illegal.

Under the staggered re-evaluation system, property here is reappraised in rotation, with one quadrant of the city revalued each year. Since it takes four years to complete the cycle, inflation and other factors in the interim can produce large increases in assessments from one appraisal to the next.

McKelvy's suit complains that the city and school district "have adopted a plan of taxation for 1977 and other years which involves selective re-evaluation of certain types of properties and certain segments of the community in different years, without a corresponding adjustment in said years in the evaluation of property in other segments of the community."

This method "results in an inherently unequal and ununiform system of taxation," the suit contends.

McKelvy's situation is further complicated because, according to city-school tax department records, the two properties in question had not been reappraised since 1970.

The assessments proposed by the tax office and revised by the tax equalization board were meant to reflect seven years' worth of inflation.

Court To Hear Antitrust Suit

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A decision by the 5th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals that federal antitrust law can apply to drug reimbursement provisions of group health insurance plans will be reviewed by the Supreme Court.

The court Monday agreed to review the suit that was decided in favor of 18 independent pharmacists in San Antonio.

The specific question was whether the agreement between numerous drug stores and Blue Shield of Texas is exempt from antitrust challenge by virtue of a federal law shielding whatever phases of the insurance business are state regulated.

The 5th Circuit ruled the agreement "not a part of the business of insurance" and therefore not shielded "even though it may have some effect upon the company's policyholders and rates."

The complaint said small, independent firms cannot profitably operate at the prices in the agreement, saying only high volume chains that sell many items other than drugs can do so.

Signers are limited to the same retail prices whether they provide home deliveries, 24-hour service, or no service.

The complaint said subscribers to Blue Shield receive reduced benefits if they buy from a non-signer store, since they would have to pay the entire bill. Later they collect 75 percent of it from Blue Shield.

In the case of a participating pharmacy, the customer pays only $2, the amount of a drug deductible provision in his policy. The store would then collect the entire amount from Blue Shield.

The policyholder must accept reduced benefits and also file a claim if he insists on the store of his choice.

In a friend-of-the-court brief, the Blue Shield Association told the Supreme Court that the Justice Department in 1967 reviewed a similar plan by the Kansas Blue Shield and said antitrust proceedings were not anticipated.

"More than 32,000 pharmacists have signed participating agreements similar to the agreements challenged ... in this case," the brief said.

Mahon extends to all his constituents visiting him in Washington.

The Trinity Church pastor said, "I feel real bad about it," and said he had tried unsuccessfully to call the congressman after learning of his disapproval.

Sheats said he would continue to try to reach Mahon to "tell him the intent" of the picture.

Assuming that Mahon had not seen the supplement, Sheats said he was certain "once he sees the copy he will understand the intent was to give honor to him."

"Maybe we just went about it the wrong way," Sheats added.

Judge Signs Order To Lower Gas Rate

AUSTIN (AP) — Attorney General John Hill said Monday the way is clear for the state utility commission to cut El Paso Electric Co.'s minimum rate to homeowners from $7 to $4.50.

He said State District Judge Herman Jones signed an order, to which the company consented, sending the minimum rate issue back to the commission.

El Paso Electric already had filed a motion with the Texas Public Utility Commission to reduce the charge for the first 50 kilowatt hours of electricity to $4.50.

The $7 charge was part of a rate order approved by the commission in October and which is being appealed by the City of El Paso. The commission granted the company higher rates amounting to $7.5 million a year.

Even though the minimum rate aspect appears settled, Hill said the appeal of the overall rate increase remains in the courts.

Joe M. Dealey Wins Journalism Award

EL PASO (AP) — Joe M. Dealey, president of The Dallas Morning News, was named Monday night as the first winner of the Pat Taggart Award for outstanding service to Texas journalism.

The award, to be presented annually by the Texas Daily Newspaper Association, is named for the retired publisher of the Waco newspapers.

phone numbers, and not giving addresses out until convinced a patron is after a massage or other service instead of a new bust to add to his undercover police career.

When inspectors announced they would begin the crackdown to close residential parlors and would ask the telephone company for addresses to match those telephone numbers if necessary, six parlors suddenly went out of business. Their phones were disconnected.

But even once parlors are found, inspectors are reluctant, and for a while were instructed, not to enter parlors because it was a police matter, Northcutt said. Police officials say closing massage parlors is not worth the time spent, because prostitution cases are difficult to make and zoning violations might keep a parlor operator out of business 24 hours at best.

Proposals in the new ordinance, however, eliminate that problem.

To begin with, masseuses couldn't advertise — their biggest source of drawing patrons — as a masseuse without first obtaining a permit from the city secretary that would cost $500 per firm, with an additional $100 fee per masseuse and by filing a detailed application.

Zoning administrators would then have the location, names of owners and operators and other data needed to make a zoning violation case.

Under the ordinance, masseuses also would have to furnish a diploma, certificate or written proof of graduation from a recognized school where massage is taught and a statement from a physician verifying the applicant is free from any communicable diseases.

Masseuses would have to be clothed, and doors inside facilities could not be capable of being locked. No persons under age 18 would be admitted.

The most disgruntling aspects of the ordinance, however, to local operators are a provision requiring each masseuse have completed at least 70 hours of course studies in a recognized school and one requiring records be kept of names of all patrons along with the service provided.

At least according to Janice Boyd of the Texas Education Agency's proprietary schools division, there are no accredited schools of massage offering 70-hour course loads in Texas other than those affiliated with medical schools.

Medical schools generally require college degrees for acceptance, and most local masseuses contacted by The Avalanche-Journal said they hadn't finished high school. Most masseuses also indicated they really weren't interested in becoming physical therapists.

At least, they said, the council didn't rule out massages between members of the opposite sex — a stand most said would drive them out of business.

The council will reconsider the ordinance March 9, and is expected to make some changes — like eliminating the possibility that massage parlors might become religious entities because the ordinance leaves practitioners of "healing arts" unregulated.

Unless several changes are made, though, Northcutt said, houses of prostitution posing as massage parlors will still have easy alternatives to closing down.

"If you'll look in the paper," Northcutt said one day after the council took that stand. "I think you'll see they've already started something new that isn't regulated."

Avalanche-Journal classified ads for that day carried an escort service ad that Northcutt said would provide an easy way out for masseuses really interested in the other line of their work — simply adopt a new name without using or advertising any type of massage.

That particular advertisement had not been checked or suspected of housing a former massage parlor service, but was used only as an example, Northcutt said.

Prostitutes formerly using the "massage parlor" could also become dating services or similar enterprises, he said, and massage parlors in residential zones could still apply for zoning board approval to operate in those residential neighborhoods.

Jury In Estes Case Returns Indictments

WICHITA FALLS (AP) — A federal grand jury investigating Billie Sol Estes will reconvene in Abilene in April after returning no indictments Monday against the convicted West Texas swindler.

The grand jury returned five indictments not related to the Estes case in its six-hour session before recessing Monday.

The grand jury had subpoenaed Estes-related records from the Texas Attorney General's office. A spokesman for Attorney General John Hill said Monday the office supplied the necessary documents but that no personnel were to appear.

Hill had said earlier he would supply information obtained in the state's investigation of Estes by his economic crime unit.

The Internal Revenue Service, the FBI and Postal Service are reportedly interested in Estes' alleged business dealings since his parole from federal prison. Estes now lives Abilene.

Terms of his parole prohibit the one-time West Texas wheeler-dealer, who used phantom fertilizer tanks as collateral for multi-million dollar loans until he was caught in 1962, from engaging in any self-employed or promotional type activities.

He was sentenced in 1963 to 15 years in prison and was paroled in 1971 after serving six years.

The grand jury also investigated records of Ray Horton, a Midland businessman and longtime friend of Estes, and J.R. Patterson, a Houston real estate salesman and former Abilene businessman.

Headache Disappears With Understanding

Until recently she had been a teacher of piano and organ. "This year I'm president of our music club," she told me. But my mind drifted, and when I listened again, she had moved on to gardening.

My mother's interest had been different. Mother's fascination with history had made her in demand as a public speaker before civic and student groups. Edith and I had driven many miles when I noticed she had run down and was just sitting quietly. Then she spoke again. "As a favor..." She cleared her throat. "Could you possibly stay an extra day with me?"

I hedged, "I don't know. I've been gone from my family so long." "I wouldn't ask," she went on, "but this is special. When we moved to this smaller house this spring, there wasn't room for that big old desk of your dad's."

My head started pounding again. That desk was one my mother had bought Dad.

Edith continued. "For a while we thought there wouldn't be room for my organ either. But your dad said we had to have that, so now I'm glad we found a spot for a desk. He says he'll be happy with a compact, modern one. It would mean so much to me to have you help pick it out. I want it to be just right."

It was as though Edith had said, "Please, can't we be friends? We both love the same man."

I knew what she'd explained about the organ must be true since Dad liked her to play for him.

But even knowing all that, I just couldn't come out with an answer for Edith. Not yet.

We were driving into a town. "Your headache is still bothering you, isn't it?" she said. "Let's stop here, and grab a bit of lunch. It might help."

I was grateful for her suggestion. We walked into a bright, cheerful restaurant, and I sank down in the booth to seek relief. At the same time, Edith was looking around. When an attractive, middle-aged woman in a brown and yellow apron brought the menu, Edith spoke to her. "What a pleasant place!" she told the woman.

The woman beamed. "My husband and I only recently bought it," she said. "I've had so much fun fixing the place up."

I felt as if I were listening out of one ear, waiting for the woman to bring some water so I could take a couple aspirins. The woman left to get our food.

Suddenly we were conscious of someone talking in the booth behind us.

"What on earth did you do to this place?" a man's voice was demanding of our hostess. His voice was harsh and loud. "I've been stopping here for years, traveling through town. It's not the same any more."

"I'm sorry you don't like it," the woman replied pleasantly. "But the food is still as good as ever."

"Well, I'll take your word for that. Let me have the chili."

As the woman walked away, he said, to Edith and me, I guess, or anyone else who was listening. "I liked it better the way it was before."

His words seemed to echo in my mind.

I looked directly at Edith. For the first time, I saw only her — not my mother beside her; just her. My dad's love and mine for Mother were as deep as ever, but time had moved on. Things had changed.

Suddenly a great lump melted within me. I was near tears. Edith saw it. "You've been doing too much," she said. "Then this worry about your father's operation was added."

She reached over and touched my hand.

"Oh, but I'll be all right now," I said. "The worst is over." I hoped she understood. I looked into her eyes. "I appreciate your asking me to help pick out a desk for Dad. Of course I'll do it."

We were back in the car and had driven, oh, maybe ten miles, when I realized my headache had disappeared. And I never had taken my aspirin.

Natural Gas Hearing Set

AUSTIN (AP) — The railroad commission Monday scheduled a March 21 consolidated hearing on applications from Lone Star Gas, Garland, Greenville and Bryan for exceptions to the agency's boiler fuel rule.

The rule requires reductions in the volume of gas used to fuel boilers, such as are used to generate electricity.

Contracts between Lone Star and the three cities call for greater volumes of gas than the rule would allow.

Lone Star also seeks approval of increased rates for gas deliveries to power plants located outside Garland and Bryan. The commission has direct rate jurisdiction in rural areas.

Gas supply contracts have been approved by the parties involved but cannot take effect unless the commission allows them to exceed the boiler fuel limitations. A grid system would be established among the three cities. Gas deliveries could be increased to the most efficient generating plant. A city's loss of gas would be countered by an increase in electrical power supply from other members of the grid.

The contracts propose to increase the weighted average cost of gas from 18 cents per 1,000 cubic feet (mcf) to 30 cents per mcf.

Commission examiner James P. Grove IV said Lone Star had been charging increased rates to the cities since April 1, some 10 months before notifying the commission of its intent to raise rates.

The commission said it would insist that Lone Star refund the difference unless the gas supplier can show adequate reasons why it should not.

Ex-NCAA Field Investigator Tells Of Bribes

WASHINGTON (AP) — A former NCAA field investigator has charged that the National Collegiate Athletic Association's enforcement staff routinely cajoled — and even bribed — student-athletes to gain information from them.

J. Brent Clark, a 29-year-old attorney who worked for the NCAA for 2½ years before resigning Dec. 30, also told a House Interstate and Foreign Commerce subcommittee that the athletes are threatened with a loss of their eligibility if they do not cooperate with the investigators.

Clark was the initial witness Monday in a public Congressional probe of the NCAA, particularly the organization's enforcement procedures, which most likely will last all spring. The hearings continued today with representatives of Mississippi State University and Michigan State University and Jack Fusak, a past NCAA president, scheduled to testify. Almost as soon as the hearing got underway, the subcommittee split along political party lines with the Democrats, including chairman John Moss, D-Calif., and Rep. Jim Santini, ni, D-Nev., attacking the NCAA, while Republicans, including Norman F. Lent, R-N. Y., and Marc L. Marks, R-Ohio, closely questioning Clark.

After he read his seven page statement, Clark was asked by Marks to give specific examples of the bribery he alleged. In his statement, Clark had said: "Bribe is a strong word, Mr. Chairman, but I mean it."

He then told Marks and the panel that one of his NCAA superiors, Bill Hunt, head of the enforcement unit, once suggested that he obtain an interview with a young athlete by telling him he could get a tryout with a professional basketball team, the Kansas City Kings.

The athlete involved, he said, was a Major Jones who was then playing for Allentown in the Eastern League. He said he declined to carry out his superiors orders.

In another case, he said, an athlete at the University of Mississippi, James Jordan, had provided an investigator, Jim Delaney, "with the services of a young lady."

Delaney then went to Mississippi coach Kent Cooper and told him that he wouldn't turn in data on Jordan to his superiors because he did not want them to learn about the young lady.

Tom Hansen, an assistant NCAA executive director, attended the hearing and told newsmen "the trouble with Brent is that he is talking about things he knows little or nothing about."

The congressional probe was initiated by Santini last fall after two schools in his state, the University of Nevada at Las Vegas and at Reno, were placed on probation by the NCAA.

At the hearing, Santini said the NCAA suffered from such a "power paranoia" that after he called for the Congressional probe of the organization, the NCAA started an investigation of him.

"There is the potential for investigatory abuse, power abuse," said Santini. "It is significant of the kind of mentality we are dealing with in trying to get some changes. This is the power paranoia response against those who are seeking change."

Lent questioned Clark on his political ambitions (he has them), about whether he ever thought about writing an expose on the NCAA (he did) and his main reason for the leaving the NCAA (he tried to make changes but couldn't).

In his formal statement, Clark said, "I believe that the NCAA enforcement machinery allows NCAA personnel to inflict selective punishment upon institutions, selections based not on reports of violations so much as politics and balance sheets.

"The NCAA enforcement machinery operates through a staff-infractions committee union acting as prosecutor, judge, jury and executioner. The NCAA enforcement machinery deprives its member institutions of having the tools to defend themselves against unfounded charges in the face of an NCAA staff with almost unbridled power."

"The fact is, Mr. Chairman, something approaching a tyranny seems to exist over the members of the NCAA, and it affects not only student athletes but every American who believes in the concept of learning through participation," said Clark.

In his opening statement, Moss, noting that he is not an avid sports fan, said the world of intercollegiate sports is wholly novel to the subcommittee.

"The overriding issue we examine, however, is not novel at all," he said. "Quite simply, it is fairness. Does the organization that regulates and polices virtually all serious intercollegiate athletic activity in the country operate in a way that does not offend our sense of fair play?"

"That questions has not been asked and answered in a Congressional or any public forum in three-quarters of a century," said Moss.

Returning to the No. 1 position in The Associated Press and United Press International college basketball polls didn't have much effect on the Kentucky Wildcats, the team that resided there most of the season.

"It's nice," said Coach Joe Hall, "but it doesn't mean anything. We would just as soon not have it."

"More important is how we'll play in the tournament," Hall added.

He means the National Collegiate Athletic Association tournament that will settle college basketball's national championship. Kentucky, having wrapped up its 31st Southeastern Conference title, will open its postseason action in the Midwest Regional at Knoxville, Tenn., March 11.

The Wildcats settled their return to the top after a two-week absence by downing Georgia 78-67 Monday night for their 23rd victory in 25 games.

Kentucky received 39 first place votes and 1,044 points from AP and 27 firsts and 351 points from UPI, jumping from second to replace defending national champion Marquette, which was upset by Notre Dame Sunday.

On AP's Poll, the Wildcats had fallen to third two weeks ago after losing to Louisiana State. Arkansas bolted to the top that time, but held it only one week, losing to Houston and opening the door for Marquette.

This week UCLA, a perennial power, moved into second place with 13 first

PERKINS

Navratilova Loves Cowboys

By MICKEY HERSKOWITZ And STEVE PERKINS

Q. Martina Navratilova said in a story I read that she is in love with the Dallas Cowboys. Any particular one?

—Grace Weiner, St. Louis

A. A lot of people are in love with the Dallas Cowboys, mainly the ones who backed them against the points in the three playoff games.

Martina's best buddies on the Cowboys are Drew Pearson and Thomas Henderson since she moved to Dallas. She skipped a Virginia Slims tourney to get to Super Bowl XII. But she is a total football fan. "If I'd been a boy," she says, "I would have been a football player. Now that I know the rules, I go to all the games—high school, college, whatever."

Q. Can you tell me what are the statistics on the probability of blue chippers in high school football eventually becoming college All-American football players? If so, how many become All-Pro?

—Ron Trains, Houston

A. We relayed your query to three different NFL scouting systems and their answers were so similar it's evident that question has been debated back and forth. The best guesstimates: A little less than 5 per cent of the blue chipper make All-American in college. Again taking the top high schoolers as a whole, less than half of 1 percent go on to become All-NFL performers.

Paul Hornung, of Louisville Flaget, was one who did. Tony Dorsett of Alliquippa, Pa., and Earl Campbell of Tyler may eventually complete the parlay.

On the other hand, there are players such as Mike Kent of Cincinnati, who was offered only the last scholarship tendered by Michigan and Arizona four years ago. Kent has since started three years at tackle for Michigan and is sure to be drafted by the NFL.

Q. How would I go about getting the address of boxing manager Gil Clancy? P.S. Has there ever been a pro boxer that made it in the sport just starting out at 20 years of age?

—Jerome Banks, Toledo, Ohio

A. Several heavyweight champions got late starts: Rocky Marciano at 24, Jack Sharkey and Primo Carnera at 22, Max Baer and James Braddock at 20. The granddaddy was Jess Willard, who began at 30. And, of course, Leon Spinks was an amateur until he was 22.

We are sending you Clancy's address by mail.

Q. There was a photograph in the paper of Dean Chance, the former big league pitcher, running a ring-throw booth at the State Fair in Dallas. Is this some kind of lark or has Chance sunk that low?

—L.T. Hilliard, Little Rock

A. The one-time Cy Young Award winner now makes his living traveling the state fair circuit. Chance enjoys the life, doesn't consider himself the victim of hard times and grooves on "meeting new people." All of the money he earned in his big years with the Angels and Twins is gone, and he has little contact with baseball. He stays in touch, however, with old running mate, Bo Belinsky.

HOT LINE FEEDBACK (in response to an answer that said the "late" Oklahoma publicist Harold Keith gave the Sooners a "Big Red" label—though Cornell owned the nickname officially). —"My friends Mickey Herskowitz and Steve Perkins made two bad guesses in the enclosed item. Never had I called our Oklahoma teams the Big Red. That belonged to Gil Dobie's powerful Cornell clubs of more than 65 years ago. I've always disliked its being plagiarized by our followers. Please forward this to them." —Harold Keith

In reply, we are happy to correct another great exaggeration.

Owls Open State Meet

The Silvertown Owls, the Region I boys basketball champions, will open the state high school cage tournament in Austin against Avenger at 8:30 a.m. Thursday in the new Super Drum, according to the University Interscholastic League.

In the past, the schoolboy tournament has been held over two weekends. However, because of the size of the Super Drum, the event is slated for three days. Gregory Gym has been the site of the tournament for the more than 30 years.

Avenger (37-2) and Silvertown (24-10) will vie in the Class B semifinals.

Dimmitt (31-4) tangles with Sharyland (32-2) at 3:30 p.m. Thursday.

The finals in all classes will be played Saturday, starting at 8:30 p.m. with Class B and finishing at 8:30 p.m. with Class AAA.

AUSTIN (AP) — Following are the team pairings released by the University Interscholastic League for the 1978 state schoolboy basketball tournament March 3-4 at the Special Events Center in Austin:

THURSDAY — Class B Semifinals: Avenger (37-2) vs. Silvertown (24-10), 8:30 a.m.; Krum (36-3) vs. Weader (29-8), 10 a.m. Class 3-A Semifinals: Whitehouse (34-1) vs. Rosebud-Luff (36-10), 3 p.m.; Sharyland (32-2) vs. Dimmitt (31-4), 3:30 p.m. Class 3-B Semifinals: Mineral Wells (31-5) vs. Terrell (25-7), 3 p.m.; West Oco (33-3) vs. Huntville (25-7), 3:30 p.m.

FRIDAY — Class A Semifinals: Snook (36-1) vs. Van Horn (27-7), 8:30 a.m.; Broadus (32-3) vs. Coppell (29-4), 10 a.m. Class 4-A Semifinals: Abilene (34-4) vs. San Antonio For Tech (32-5), 4 p.m.; Houston Wheatley (34-4) vs. Cypress-Fairbanks (26-10), 6 p.m.

SATURDAY — Finals: Class B, 8:30 a.m. Class 3-A, 10 a.m. Class 4-A, 2:30 p.m. Class 3-B, 3:30 p.m.

Through the 1977 campaign, pitcher Don Sutton of the Los Angeles Dodgers had five one-hit career games.

SPC Wins; WTC Upset

Plainsmen Goal: Repeat '74 Feats

By TOM HALLIBURTON
Avalanche-Journal Sports Staff

According to the noted historian, Monterey's baseball standard of excellence has been and always may be the 1974 team.

"That team had everything. It won 30 games in a row," said the historian, Plainsmen coach Bobby Moegle.

As a rule, historians allow things to withstand the test of time before the evaluation period. But our historian begins his 18th season, hoping his present club sets its own standards and wins the school's third state class AAAA title in the past seven years.

Six fielders and two pitchers return from a 30-5 team that stampeded through 16 district games without defeat and then flopped right on its face in the first round of the playoffs. MHS traded 8-5 scores with Amarillo High in the first two games of the best-of-three series. In the finale, Monterey led 5-0 after five innings before Amarillo scored 4 in the bottom of the seventh to win 6-5.

"It was really frustrating for them. A lot of the players thought they would make it to Austin last year. Some have improved over the summer and have matured a lot," Moegle said.

The all-time winningest prep baseball coach in West Texas needs 18 victories to surpass former Houston Reagan coach Le Roy Ashmore as the state's leader.

Moegle says it's impossible for a team to go undefeated through the season but compares his latest team with the 1974 crew, his last state title team.

"If (Ron) Reeves and (Derek) Hatfield become stopper-type pitchers in 1-0 and 2-1 games and if we're able to run better than last year, then we're capable of being as good as any team we've ever had. Offensively, we should be outstanding. Our depth throughout the whole lineup is much stronger and we have the same type of leadership we had then," Moegle said.

Of course, last year's team had its strong points — a .325 team batting average and a 2.07 team earned run average. Moegle figured it lacked consistent hitting at the bottom of the lineup as well as team speed. Then in the playoffs, Reeves (14-2) and Hatfield (13-1) ran into wild streaks which aided Amarillo victories. Moegle thinks each has matured since then, though.

"They should be as good as any in this part of the country. Both throw real hard. Reeves was more of a thrower last year but he's put in a lot of time trying to become a real good pitcher. Hatfield really wants to excel. His ball has more movement to it and he's improved his control a lot," the MHS coach said.

Behind those aces are control pitcher Stan Zeller and hard-throwing sophomore Kent Potts. Zeller should receive some relief duty while Potts and Ricky Pinkerton need seasoning.

At least three positions remain unsettled because an abundance of capable bats has overcrowded the situation. Five returning starters know they have places to play but Moegle could need most of his non-district slate to settle on a lineup.

"short but quick" according to coach Jan Averitt.

Nazareth, under first-year head coach George Cox, was picked second behind Silverton in league play, but the Swiftettes have won 11 straight since losing to Canyon back on Jan. 17.

Cheryl Hartman, a 6-0 senior, heads Nazareth's scoring list with 31 a game. She gets help from 5-8 Karen Schulte (18-5), 5-8 Doretta Raemaekers (12-0) and 5-4 Glenda Gerber (10-0). Guards will be 5-10 Lenora Braddock, 5-6 Germaine Pohlmeier and 5-10 Colleen Germaine.

Sudan, Anton and Whiteface all won as coaches predicted back last October, although Anton needed a playoff to topple Three Way in 7-B.

Shallowater, which had to beat powerful Stanton twice to nab the 5-A crown, is led by 5-5 Terri Stanton, who is scoring 26 points a game. Jana Hayslip (11-0) is the only other forward about seven points and the Mustangs' guards — 5-2 Cindy Jackson, 5-4 Lindy Blumer, 5-5 Robin Truelock and 5-5 Donna Evans — are behind Muleshoe in league play, with sophomores like 5-5 Vicki Cleveland coming through, did not lose a league game.

Vega and Hale Center were both picked to win district and did so. The Owllets are led by Lou Ann Davis, Terry Henry and Kathy Rigby on the forward end and Kelly Maddin on the guard side.

"I would say it might be two or three weeks before we begin to settle on a batting order. It's just going to take awhile to get a good look at all of them," he said.

The hitters who will play for sure are 1977 all-city selections Reeves, Dana Rieger, Jeff Harp, Mike Wooten and Phil Brueidigam. Returning first baseman Bob Fannin also owns a starting spot.

Rieger hit .439 last year and Moegle "doesn't know of any better" high school hitter in these parts. Rieger could start either in left or center field.

SPRING TRAINING NOTES

Randle To Quit If Not Given Raise

TUCSON, Ariz. (AP) — Cleveland Indians' pitcher Jim Bibby gets a hearing this week in Washington on his bid to gain free agent status because of what he claims was a violation of his 1977 contract.

Hurler Tom Buskey also had an arbitration hearing scheduled for Wednesday on grounds that his salary was cut too much in 1977, but that dispute ended Monday when the Indians announced they had signed Buskey to a one-year contract. Terms were not disclosed.

Bibby's claim centers around the delay in payment of a $10,000 bonus which he earned for making 30 starts last year.

The money was paid Dec. 22, but Bibby's lawyer, Richard M. Hull, claim that that was too late under baseball rules which specify that upon filing of a written claim for payment by a player a club has 10 days to deliver.

Hull says he sent Indians General Manager Phil Seghi a letter Nov. 2 demanding payment.

Armond D. Arnsen, the Indians' lawyer, says there was no violation and that Bibby did not formally demand payment. He says the matter was only informally discussed.

The dispute will be heard by arbitrator Alexander B. Porter.

Now that Buskey has agreed to terms, 32 players are under contract, leaving seven unsigned.

The unsigned players include outfielders Jim Norris and Vassie Gardner, infielders Alfredo Griffin and Dave Oliver and pitchers Larry Andersen, Cardell Camper and Dennis Kinney.

All but Norris are rookies.

Dodgers

VERO BEACH, Fla. (AP) — There's a guy who sounds more confident than rookie manager Tommy Lasorda before the 1977 Los Angeles Dodgers blasted off with victories in 22 of their first 26 games on the way to the National League baseball championship.

It's Lasorda talking about the 1978 Dodgers.

The team opening spring training drills today is potentially stronger than the National League baseball championship team of last year, Lasorda says.

The Dodgers finished 10 games ahead of the Cincinnati Reds in the NL West Division last fall. Lasorda has heard the World Series champion Reds of 1975 and 1976 claim it is because the Reds had an off season.

"My response is that we are the better team and we earned everything we got," Lasorda says.

"Our people are talented enough and young enough to be more productive than they were in 1977. They know what the rewards are and they want it even more than before."

Lasorda doesn't, however, talk about returning to the World Series.

"The only thing we're talking about is getting ready for the National League," Lasorda says. "We'll get ready the same way we did last year and hope we can start just as fast."

Lasorda began saying the Dodgers would win the pennant on the day he was named manager in the fall of 1976.

Back again is the entire five-man starting pitcher rotation. Led by Tommy John, Don Sutton, Doug Rau, Rick Rhoden and Burt Hooton, the Dodgers had the league's lowest earned run average.

Among Lasorda's reasons for thinking the Dodgers of 1978 may be better is acquisition of relief pitcher Terry Forster from Pittsburgh to ease the lead on knuckleball specialist Charlie Hough. The Dodgers also hope to have healthier years from centerfielder Rick Monday, second baseman Dave Lopes and super-sub Teddy Martinez.

In terms of power hitting, the 1977 Dodgers made baseball history with four men hitting 30 or more homers — Steve Garvey, Ron Cey, Reggie Smith and Dusty Baker.

Monday had back spasms and was often out of the lineup after he was injured trying to make a catch. That may have kept him from being a Dodger fifth in the 30-homer club, coming off his 32-homer season with the Chicago Cubs in 1976.

Lopes, with leg muscle problems, didn't get his third straight National League base-stealing title, and will be a greater threat on the bases in 1978. Martinez won several games with his hitting as the infield relief man for the Dodgers until he was lost to a broken leg in mid-season.

Indians

TUCSON, Ariz. (AP) — Former Detroit Tigers shortstop Tom Verzyer has a chance at unseating veteran Frank Duffy, although Duffy is still on top as spring training gets under way. Manager Jeff Torborg of the Cleveland Indians has indicated.

"I like him," Torborg said Monday, referring to Verzyer. "He's experienced. He has a good arm. He has some power. He's had some weight problems but he came (to camp) in shape."

Verzyer started playing regularly with Detroit in 1975 and was traded to Cleveland last December in a deal that sent outfielder Charlie Spikes to the Motor City.

Also looking at the shortstop job are former Chicago Cubs player Dave Rosello and rookie Alfredo Griffin.

"Of course, I'd like to think that," Verzyer said of the feeling that he may out Duffy. "But I really don't know where I stand. They said I'd get a shot at playing. I'm just going to try to do the best I can."

"I was happy with the trade," the 25-year-old Verzyer said. "I really didn't think my future was in Detroit. They had a young shortstop (Phil Mankowski).

ki). I'd rather go someplace new and start over."

Verzyer hit .252 in 1975, driving in 48 runs, a definite plus to Duffy's last two seasons of .212 and .201. But Verzyer slipped to .197 last year.

"I know I can hit better than that," he said.

Verzyer has a history of injury troubles, however, having missed about 13 weeks of play in his big league career.

Only Buddy Bell, Rico Carty, rookie Vassie Gardner, Griffin and Duffy have not yet reported to camp.

Team president Gabe Paul told the players Monday they were not to take complaints beyond Torborg to General Manager Phil Seghi and that each player will be expected to cooperate with the press and "help the publicity."

CLEVELAND (AP) — Gene Dusan has been named to manage the Portland Beavers, the Cleveland Indians' new Pacific Coast League affiliate.

The 28-year-old Dusan led the Indians' Batavia club to a New York-Penn League Western Division title in his first year at Batavia last year.

Indians' vice president and general manager Phil Seghi said Monday Dusan's "managerial success last season at Batavia is indicative of his ability to teach and communicate with championship results."

The Indians also announced the signing of veteran outfielder Bill Sharp, a native of Lima, to a Portland contract. Sharp formerly played for the Chicago White Sox and the Milwaukee brewers but was sidelined most of last season with a knee injury.

Dusan, a catcher, was a player-coach at Cleveland's Oklahoma City affiliate in 1975 and at San Jose in 1976.

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla. (AP) — Lenny Randle, signed by the New York Mets last April after being suspended by the Texas Rangers, has threatened to quit baseball if the Mets don't renegotiate his contract, it was reported in today's edition of the New York Daily News.

Randle was suspended by the Rangers after attacking and severely beating Texas Manager Frank Lucchesi. Randle was miffed after losing his starting second base job to rookie Bump Wills.

The Mets signed Randle on April 29 to a five-year contract, and he went on to hit .304 and steal 33 bases.

"I got a verbal promise of more money after the great season I had last year," Randle said, "but so far I've been offered nothing more than a token raise."

Randle quoted a Major League Baseball Players Association report indicating the average player makes $90,000 and, "I'm making less than $100,000." The Mets set a firm precedent against contract renegotiation in the Tom Seaver affair last spring.

Randle is due to report to the Mets' camp today, but has indicated he will retire and go into the real estate business in Arizona unless he gets more money.

"I give 150 percent, all the time. I'm not going to report," the News quoted Randle as saying.

Randle not only was suspended by the Rangers but also arrested on an assault charge. In mid-summer Randle answered that charge and was placed on probation. But Lucchesi, eventually fired by Texas, brought a civil suit against Randle that still is pending.

Meanwhile, the Mets are taking a look at 27-year-old free agent pitcher Bill Greif, who is attempting a comeback after sitting out the 1977 season.

Greif, who claimed he made more money in real estate last year than he will in baseball this year, said, "I just missed the game so much I had to give it another try."

"I proved to myself I had something I could fall back on after baseball. I've never been a success in baseball and I felt I owed it to myself to try again."

Greif has a lifetime 31-67 record pitcher.

WJCC Berths Up For Grabs

ABILENE (Special) — Although the Region V Junior College Tournament doesn't officially kick off until Thursday, four teams will vie today for the remaining two berths in that eight-team meet.

Sandwiched around the Region V Women's semifinals today will be games matching Grayson and Howard (19-12) and Amarillo (19-12)-Ranger.

When Thursday's opening round rolls around, Hill College meets New Mexico Military (24-7) at 2 p.m. and McLennan tackles Odessa (22-9) at four.

Hill, which is seeded No. 1, will play at seven p.m. and Western Texas (24-7), seeded No. 2, will play at nine, but their opponents won't be known until after today's games.

The team with the best conference record will play WTC and the other team will play Hill.

Drury Nabs Final NAIA No. 1 Spot

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — Drury College of Springfield was ranked No. 1 in the final basketball poll of the National Association of Intercollegiate Athletics today.

The ranking gives Drury an automatic berth in the NAIA's national basketball tournament March 13-18 in Kansas City.

Drury, 25-2, collected 22 of 31 first-place votes in the final coaches poll and had 346 points. Two North Carolina colleges — Winston-Salem and Gardner-Webb — finished in a tie for second in the final poll with 275 points each.

ing for Houston, San Diego and St. Louis. Pitcher Nino Espinosa and second baseman Doug Flynn also reported to the Mets' camp Monday.

Angels

HOLTVILLE, Calif. (AP) — Bobby Grich, four times winner of a gold glove as the best fielder among American League second basemen, bent down to grab baseballs hit by California Angels Manager Dave Garcia Monday.

For most of 1977 after leaving Baltimore to sign a five year $1.5 million contract with California, Grich couldn't bend at all. Garcia says Grich's apparent recovery after spinal disc surgery "is the most encouraging thing" about the start of Angel spring training.

"It's the first time he's taken infield practice since last spring. He's really going to help Rance Mulliniks," Garcia said of Grich. Mulliniks, a rookie last season, took over at shortstop for the injured Grich last year and now has the job fulltime.

The winter trade of Jerry Remy to Boston paved the way for the Angels to bring Grich back to second base, where he was an American League All-Star team member in 1972, 1974 and 1976.

The herniated disc was traced to his picking up an air conditioning unit while moving into his new California home. Grich missed most of spring training and played just 52 games for the Angels in 1977. He batted just .243 and had just 13 extra-base hits before he was sent off to the surgeon.

"I feel I'll be back to 100 percent," says Grich, who has gone through an extensive rehabilitation program since the operation July 3.

Pitcher Nolan Ryan, who had a sore arm throughout last September but still led the 1977 Angels with a 19-16 record, made his first appearance in camp Monday and threw for five minutes.

Most of the 41 Angels began drills Sunday. Still absent Monday was Joe Rudi, who missed more than half of the 1977 season with a broken right wrist suffered when hit by a pitch. He was in Los Angeles for an examination of the wrist by a specialist.

Rangers

POMPAÑO BEACH, Fla. (AP) — Newly-acquired lefthander Jon Matlack says he doesn't see any weakness in the 1978 Texas Rangers.

Matlack, who came to Texas last December in a four-team, 11-player blockbuster deal, said "When I look at the players we've got, I know I won't have to be picture-perfect every day to win."

Matlack, who had injury problems last year, was 7-15 with the New York Mets and posted a 4.21 earned run average. In 1976, he was 17-10 with a 2.95 ERA.

Manager Billy Hunter said of Matlack: "He's got great stuff. With the stuff he has I don't see how he had the kind of year he did a year ago. And I hope I don't find out this year."

Hunter said Matlack's arm is sound. Matlack said "The important thing right now is just to get off on a good foot. Last year I got behind the eight-ball early and could never get out from behind it."

The full Ranger squad was scheduled to report today.

Pirates

PITTSBURGH (AP) — The Pittsburgh Pirates of baseball's National League have announced the signing of outfielders John Milner and Mike Easler.

Milner, 28, acquired with pitcher Bert Blyleven from Texas, played with the Mets last year, batting .255 with 12 home runs and 57 RBI, the club announced Monday.

Milner also plays first base. Easler, 27, played last season with the Pirates' Columbus farm club, batting .302 with 18 home runs and 75 RBI. He played 10 games for the Pirates last September.

Giants

CASA GRANDE, Ariz. (AP) — The San Francisco Giants and first baseman Willie McCovey are near agreement on a contract which could make McCovey a rare four-decade major leaguer.

General Manager Spec Richardson said the contract would guarantee McCovey two more years with an option for a third. Salary would be in the $100,000 range.

McCovey said the signing would be a formality. "There are a few minor adjustments to be made. No big deal.

"I have no reason to play into a third year, I don't have to," said McCovey, who broke in in 1959. "But if I can, I will, because not many players have a career covering four decades."

Among non-pitchers, in fact, there are only four: Ted Williams, Eddie Collins, James "Deacon" McGuire and Minnie Minoso, who was activated at age 55 last year specifically for the four-decade angle.

Richardson said McCovey's contract would include arrangements for long-term personal services, possibly in public relations, ticket sales or as a coach.

Cardinals

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Versatility and economics may become the bottom line at the St. Louis Cardinals' training camp at St. Petersburg, Fla., this spring.

General Manager Bing Devine indicated Monday his team and other National League teams are considering carrying only 24 players during the upcoming season.

"We're all evaluating the situation. Economic reasons would be part of it," said Devine.

Considering that the major league minimum salary will jump to $21,000 this season, plus room, board and travel, each club stands to realize a substantial chunk of money with one less performer.

"All the clubs I've talked to said they're evaluating their situations and planning — just considering — going with 24," Devine said.

Cavs End Skid, Topple Rockets

HOUSTON (AP) — Campy Russell says he felt good Monday night and his fourth quarter shooting exhibition made the entire Cleveland team feel good as the Cavaliers broke a four-game losing streak with a 110-97 victory over the hobbled Houston Rockets.

"I didn't do anything out of the framework of our offense, I was just hitting my shots," said Russell who led the Cavs with 25 points, including three key baskets late in the third quarter when the Rockets made their only challenge of the game.

"We were dominating them in the first half but at the start of the third quarter we got to standing around and not doing anything. So I just decided to try to make some of those baskets."

The Rockets, playing without starters Rudy Tomjanovich and Moses Malone, fell behind 57-43 at the half and after their brief third quarter surge, faded to lose for the third time in four games.

"People will just have to realize that we are not at full strength," Rockets Coach Tom Nissalke said. "We're just not getting the rebounding from the young kids that we had with Mo in there.

But they are trying hard. That's all I can ask."

The Cavs took charge in the first quarter when Russell and Austin Carr fueled a 15-2 spurt. The Rockets cut the lead to six points during their third period surge before another 10-2 Cleveland rally in the fourth quarter cooled them off again.

"What is this, Thanksgiving?" Cavs Coach Bill Fitch asked, referring the breaking the four-game losing streak. "We've been on the road five days and we've only got 14 more days to go."

The Cavs, led by Jim Chones with 15 and Elmore Smith with 14, dominated the Rockets on the boards, 52-32.

"We hurt them where they are hurting," Fitch said of the Rockets' loss of Malone. "But we had to do it. This Rockets team can win even with the lineup they've got."

CLEVELAND — Chones 5-2-12, Russell 10-5-25, E. Smith 8-5-21, Carr 3-2-8, Walker 7-0-14, Furlow 5-3-13, Lambert 2-0-4, B. Smith 2-2-4, Brewer 0-0-0. Totals 45-20-26-110.
HOUSTON — Jones 4-0-8, Battle 0-0-0, Kunnert 4-2-10, Lucas 9-0-18, Murphy 12-2-26, Kupec 4-1-2-9, Newlin 9-2-20, Reid 1-0-2, Bradley 2-0-4. Totals 45-7-13-97.
Cleveland 21 22 30 24—97
Houston 25. Technical—Walker, A—8,250.

Texas Sports Briefs

SWC-TV

DALLAS (UPI) — Southwest Conference commissioner Cliff Speegle said Monday the league had voted not to have any games in the SWC's post-season tournament televised.

"We think a monetary return would only be nominal," said Speegle. "Our conference has decided against television."

Speegle admitted the televising of the tournament's championship game and other tournament games from the Summit Arena in Houston could add interest among fans.

"But our main concern is the fan who makes the long trip from Lubbock or Fayetteville to see the game," said Speegle. "If we continue to have good crowds for five years then we might consider the highest bidder."

Schramm Honored

ST. LOUIS (UPI) — Tex Schramm, president of the Dallas Cowboys, today was named the Sporting News' 1977 National Football League executive of the year.

In a ballot of 48 top executives of NFL teams, Schramm received 22 votes and his nearest competitor, Fred Gehrke, general manager of the Denver Broncos, was named on five ballots. Fourteen executives received votes.

Schramm was honored for his work in building the Cowboys, who won the Super Bowl in January.

Oiler Aide

HOUSTON (UPI) — John Paul Young, an assistant coach at Texas A&M University for the past seven years, Monday was named special teams coach for the Houston Oilers, Coach Bum Phillips announced.

Young, 38, of Dallas, was an all-conference player three years at the University of Texas at El Paso and began his coaching career there in 1962-63.

He coached at Jacksonville High School, Southern Methodist University and Oklahoma State before joining the Aggies.

UT Surgery

AUSTIN (UPI) — Texas guard Steve Timmons underwent knee surgery Monday to repair damage suffered in a scrimmage Saturday, Texas officials said. Limmons, a junior from Baytown, Sterling, will miss the remainder of spring drills, but may be able to return to practice in the fall.

District 4 Team

COMMERCE (UPI) — Big State Conference co-champions East Texas Baptist and St. Mary's each placed two players on the 1978 NAIA District 4 all-star basketball team.

They were 6-3 senior forward Marvin Graham and 6-1 senior guard James Rogers of East Texas Baptist and 6-9 senior center Mike Cunningham and 6-1 junior guard Leon Walls of St. Mary's. Graham led the Big State Conference in scoring with a 20.4 average.

James Hall, a 6-5 senior forward from Howard Payne, led the team in voting. Hall averaged 27.2 points for the Lone Star Conference champion Yellow Jackets.

Making up the rest of the team were guards Larry McGhee of East Texas State and Mike Jones of Texas Lutheran, forward Rick Dowdle of Stephen F. Austin and center Carl Belcher of Southwestern.

Jim Webb of East Texas Baptist, who coached his team to a season record of 20-9, was named the district's coach of the year.

TCU Football

FORT WORTH (AP) — Texas Christian Coach F. A. Dry said Monday the Horned Frogs will open spring training March 29.

Dry recently signed 13 junior college recruits to help the depleted TCU football program.

NTSU Football

DENTON (AP) — North Texas State announced its 1978 football schedule Monday and it includes an Oct. 14 joust in Austin against Southwest Conference champion Texas.

The Mean Green travels out of Texas for only two games. NTSU has seven home games, including three in Texas Stadium.

The schedule: Sept. 2, Texas-El Paso, Fouts Field; Sept. 9, Mississippi State, Texas Stadium; Sept. 16, Texas-Arlington, Texas Stadium; Sept. 23, New Mexico State, Las Cruces, N.M.; Sept. 30, Oklahoma State, Texas Stadium; Oct. 7, West Texas State, Canyon; Oct. 14, Texas, Austin; Oct. 28, Louisiana Tech, Shreveport; Nov. 4, Southern Mississippi, Fouts Field; Nov. 11, Northeast Louisiana, Fouts Field; Nov. 18, Memphis State, Fouts Field.

"40" Golf

HARLINGEN (AP) — Curtis Person, the nation's top-ranked senior amateur golfer, said his loss in the Life Begins at 40 Tournament here was just a matter of not being able to make up for lost strokes.

The Memphis, Tenn., golfer was upset

Monday by Andy Manning of Richardson in 2 and 1 match play score.

"He made three deuces and I just couldn't catch up," Person, a four-time winner here, said.

Also in opening day competition, defending champ Jack Williams of Plainview shot even par over 16 holes to beat Bill St. Clair of Muleshoe by 3 and 2.

The field for the 26th annual event includes 256 golfers over 40. The championship field includes 32 4-handicap or better players.

In other Monday results, Maurice Wilson of Dallas, a three-time winner here, beat 1972 champ Jim Cason of Harlingen 1-up; Billy Bob Coffey of Fort Worth, a two-time winner, took a 1-up decision from Bill Lowe of Corpus Christi; and 1976 champ Roy Peden of Kermit advanced by beating Ace Ellis of Chicago, 4 and 3.

Today's pairings included Peden and Coffey, Williams and Glen Detmore of Longview, and Manning and local golfer George Bennet.

Baylor Football

WACO (AP) — Coach Grant Teaff announced Monday that the Baylor Bears will open spring football practice Wednesday, March 8.

The Bears will windup spring drills with the annual Green-White game at 7:30 p.m. April 22.

Teaff has 16 starters and 43 lettermen returning.

LSC Tourney

BROWNWOOD (AP) — It will be a rematch of last year's Lone Star Conference tournament finals tonight when East Texas State and Howard Payne clash for the LSC post-season basketball tourney crown.

East Texas, now 20-8, won last year's finals meeting 66-64.

Pete Patterson scored 16 points as Howard Payne whipped Texas A&I 70-60 in the other semifinal.

Batty's game-winner was his only basket of the night and gave the Lions their fourth consecutive 20-win season.

The Lions were down 39-29 at halftime after trailing by as many as 14 points in the first half. The Rams got off only five shots in the first eight minutes of the second half and ETSU tied the score at 41-41 with 13:10 remaining.

Billy Roberson and Jeff Granger paced ETSU with 18 points each, while Robert Criner led the Rams with 16.

The game ended a 29-year coaching career at ASU for Phil George, who compiled a 512-273 record for the Rams on the junior college and senior college level.

"We leave this dressing room with our heads up, but with a lot of hurt in our hearts," said George, whose team finished its season at 9-19.

Texas A&I, the darkhorse in the seven-team LSC tournament, came from 14 points down to forge a 31-31 tie at halftime. Patterson's basket early in the second half gave Howard Payne a 33-31 lead and the Yellow Jackets never trailed.

Texas A&I's James Johnson finished with 19 points, 15 in the first half.

Howard Payne, the LSC's regular-season champion, ran its season mark to 21-5, while Texas A&I finished at 13-15.

Border Olympic

LAREDO (AP) — Thirty Border Olympics points are up for grab again as officials here have said the University of Texas' Johnny Jones will not run in the weekend track meet.

Jones, an Olympic gold medal sprinter who would have been favored to help the Horns garner 30 points, is still nursing a pulled hamstring, UT Coach Cleburne Price told officials.

The Lampassas native injured his leg in the Longhorns' Cotton Bowl loss to Notre Dame.

Meet officials also said Monday that Southern Methodist sprinter Cole Doty will also miss the meet. Doty, who won the 220-yard run here last year, will return to his native Canada this weekend to take dental school exams.

Jones' withdrawal leaves Texas A&M and Baylor as co-favorites in the university division. His absence also prevents a possible confrontation with the Aggies' Curtis Dickey, a griddy-sprinter who zipped to an impressive 60-yard dash win at the recent Southwest Conference indoor meet.

Mo Valley Indoor

COLUMBIA, Mo. (AP) — Joseph Kemei won the mile, the 1,000-yard and two-mile runs, but it wasn't enough.

Southern Illinois beat Kemei's West Texas State team 166-111 Monday to claim its third straight Missouri Valley Indoor Track and Field title.

Wichita State was third with 89, Drake had 58, Indiana State 49, Bradley 15 and New Mexico State eight.

Horizontal jumper Ken Lorraway, sprinter Mike Kee and hurdler Andy Roberts, all double winners from Southern Illinois, paced the Saluki charge.

Kemei first captured the mile in 4:07.4, won the 1,000 in 2:09.6 and finished with the two-mile in 8:59.9.

Lyle Says King, ABC 'Perjudging' Him

DENVER (AP) — Heavyweight boxer Ron Lyle has charged promoter Don King and the American Broadcasting Co. with violating his constitutional rights by canceling a fight with Larry Holmes last Saturday in Las Vegas, Nev.

Lyle, who is awaiting a preliminary hearing on a murder charge relating to the shooting death of a former associate New Year's Eve, suggested at a press conference Monday that King and ABC were "prejudging" him.

Lyle and his attorney, Walter Gerash of Denver, said they were seeking a temporary injunction in U.S. District Court in the southern district of New York to stop Holmes from fighting Earnie Shavers next month. Their request for the injunction was to be heard today.

Lyle and Gerash added that regardless of the outcome of the injunction request, they will file a multi-million dollar lawsuit against King and ABC.

"The only reason I can think of for their actions is my upcoming trial," said Lyle. "I have not pleaded guilty to any crime, nor have I been found guilty of any crime."

"If this is the reason for Mr. King's default on my contract, it is clearly a case of prejudging before the facts have been presented and makes a mockery of the concept that in the United States a person is presumed innocent until proven guilty."

Lyle signed with King last August for three fights which would bring the boxer a total of $750,000.

The first of the three fights was held last September, with Lyle winning a decision over Stan Ward and earning $250,000. The fight against Holmes would have been worth another $250,000, and a victory would have increased his purse to $270,000 for a subsequent fight against an opponent selected by King.

Gerash noted that Lyle was free on bond, had no restrictions against his leaving Colorado for a fight, and that Lyle had been "ready, willing and able to meet Holmes, as scheduled."

ABC was to carry the Lyle-Holmes fight on national television but apparently decided to withdraw its commitment, which in turn caused King to back out, Gerash said.

Gerash added that there was no "morality clause" in Lyle's contract which would have enabled the promoter to cancel or postpone the fight.
