U.S., Russia Sign Pacts On Heart, Energy Plans

MOSCOW (UPI) — President Nixon reached agreement with the Kremlin leadership today on the first concrete results of his summit meeting—joint U.S.-Soviet ventures aimed at fighting heart disease, finding new energy sources and developing safer housing.

Signing of the agreements followed a two-hour, 10 minute meeting between Nixon and Soviet leaders which also included a general discussion of nuclear arms control, according to White House Press Secretary Ronald L. Ziegler.

Nixon smiled as he signed the documents and Communist party leader Leonid I. Brezhnev stood behind contentedly puffing a cigarette in an atmosphere of friendship that has prevailed since the President's arrival Thursday for his week-long summit.

"We feel the additional agreements... signed today chart a concrete course for the future and contribute to the process of making detente irreversible," Ziegler said.

Before plunging into the Nixon major business of his trip, Nixon did a bit of campaign-style handshaking with a startled group of Russians at Red Square. It was an unusual event on both sides since visiting dignitaries rarely meet the Soviet public.

Someone in the crowd shouted, "Peace is very important."

Nixon shouted back, "For everybody, the whole world, the Russian people and the American people."

An interpreter relayed his remarks in Russian to the crowd, but one occasion, Nixon himself spoke Russian: "Ochen khorosho" (very nice).

Choir Receives Invitation To Vienna Festival

Pampa High School Concert Choir, under the direction of John Woickowski, has received an official invitation to participate in the Vienna, Austria, Music Festival of 1975.

The choir was chosen as one of 10 high school choirs in the United States and one of 100 in the world to be able to perform in the festival. Chosen by a board of directors and prominent choir directors, the Concert Choir is also the only choir from Texas to be selected.

A decision concerning the trip will be made later this summer.

Recordings of selected numbers by the choir department will be on sale at Tarpley's Music Store Aug. 1, according to Woickowski.

The Booster Club reminds the public to renew their magazine subscriptions during the annual renewal drive, sponsored by the Concert Choir during the latter portion of August.

The most difficult feats nowadays (says the cynic) are swimming the English Channel, climbing Mount Everest, and putting something aside for a rainy day... You can always tell the out-of-towner in New York. He's the one who, when the sign says "Don't Walk," doesn't walk. The average man who looks under a car's hood doesn't know any more about it than the man who used to look in a horse's mouth... Sometimes a man is judged by the company he keeps waiting. (For more laughs see Earl Wilson on Page 8.)

The Russian citizens' attitude toward him obviously pleased Nixon. He remarked to newsmen, "They are happy, friendly people. They have a great desire to have friendship with America and they have asked me to return."

The first agreements of the third Nixon-Brezhnev summit in little more than two years provide for:

—Joint research over three years on development of an artificial heart, development of instruments to detect heart disease in children and extension of the operational life of cardiac pacemakers.

—Cooperation in exploration and research on oil, shale, natural gas and coal and on new methods of drilling to increase the rate of extraction of oil and gas, a five-year pact also providing for swapping technology on solar and geothermal energy and synthetic fuels.

—Development over a five-year period of new techniques of home construction in earthquake-prone areas and in extremely cold and arid regions.

There was still no agreement on nuclear arms limitation—and none was expected. U.S. officials have stressed that there probably won't be any out of this meeting.

White House sources said today, however, a partial

AID ends funding

On Abortion Plan

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Agency for International Development has ended nearly all its overseas assistance programs in the field of abortions, adopting a policy even more restrictive than Congress ordered.

The new policy, which surfaced Thursday at a State Department population conference, is more restrictive than expected because a literal interpretation of the congressional language would have left too many unanswered questions about the use of U.S. funds for abortions in developing countries, an AID spokesman said in an interview.

"It's just a matter of clean handling," said the spokesman, Harold A. Kieffer, assistant administrator for population and humanitarian assistance. "We decided to resolve doubts, get the issues settled and not get the staff all embroiled in arguments. We are not going to be in the business of touting abortions."

Some Abortions But despite the restrictiveness of the new policy, some abortions and related activities involving AID funds will continue because there is no way to trace AID dollars so finely as to eliminate all such activities, he conceded.

Congress imposed restrictions on AID spending in an amendment sponsored by Sen. Jesse Helms, R-N.C., which reads: "None of the funds made available... shall be used to pay for the performance of abortions as a method of family planning or to motivate or coerce any person to practice abortions."

underground nuclear test ban pact was being worked on. These tests have been used extensively by both sides to perfect major weapons systems.

Nixon had planned to go nearby Star City Saturday to view training by U.S. astronauts and Soviet cosmonauts for their joint 1975 space flight but Ziegler said it was canceled so that Nixon could continue his talks with Brezhnev, Premier Alexei N. Kosygin and President Nikolai V. Podgorny.

Through the Tass news agency, Brezhnev issued a statement saying the talks were "proceeding in an atmosphere of frankness and without any secret agreements whatsoever." The last remark was an apparent reference to

Policemen Asking Salary Hikes Of $100 A Month

By TEX DEWESE
Administrative officials at City Hall are faced with a request from members of the Pampa police department for an increase in salary.

Charging they have to take part time jobs to cope with increased living costs, members of the department from patrolmen through sergeants and lieutenant have filed a written request for a $100 a month pay boost in all brackets.

It was learned today the pay hike request was filed May 28. City Manager Mack Wofford has replied to the letter sent to him by Police Chief Jim Conner at the behest of other members of the department.

Wofford told Chief Conner the request would be studied in the light of other considerations relating to the city budget for fiscal 1974-75.

Wofford said today he knew of no practical way of amending the current budget in order to give salary raises in mid-year.

In the letter asking for more pay, the policemen included a comparative list of food prices now and a year ago. They cited increased costs of other necessities which have jumped in price since last year.

Starting salary of a patrolman in Pampa is $522 a month. At the end of six months it increases to $548, goes to $575 in 12 months and to $615 in 18 months. Police sergeants draw $661 a month and lieutenants, $706 monthly.

It was pointed out in the police request that a patrolman's starting salary in Amarillo is $615 a month and increases to $732 at the end of 18 months.

Pampa police are asking a starting salary of $600 a month and a $100 increase in all other brackets.

The city manager said today he had received yesterday a "Position, Classification and Pay Plan" prepared for Pampa comment because these matters are now in litigation.

"Practically all of the media stories, not only now but in the past, have been replete with inaccuracies and have been substantially misleading in many respects. Not a single one of the allegations against me has ever been proven as a fact."

According to auditors who examined the company's books, investors who lost money in the firm probably knew nothing about the oil business.

"Most people in our part of the country wouldn't invest in a program like Home-stake," Harold Rayburn, partner in Coopers & Lybrand's Tulsa office, said Thursday. "They have more geological information available to them."

But Rayburn stressed that geological information is not claims by Sen. Henry M. Jackson, D-Wash., that nuclear discussions between the two superpowers had been conducted in secret.

"The talks demonstrate to the whole world the undeviating resolve of the Soviet Union and America to proceed along this course," Brezhnev said.

At the same time, he said the two sides were only at the first stage of developing relations and lessening the danger of war, and "there is much yet to be done."

The statement expressed the desire for friendship and congeniality of the kind that marked champagne toasts between Brezhnev and Nixon at a lavish state dinner Thursday night.

In an obvious reference to Nixon critics in the United States, Brezhnev lashed out at "those who oppose international detente, who favor whipping up the arms race and returning to the methods and mores of the cold war."

"I just want to express my firm conviction that the policy of such individuals... has nothing in common with the interests of the peoples," said Brezhnev. "It is a policy that attests to the unwillingness or inability of its proponents to take a sober look at the realities of the present-day world."

Nixon answered in his toast, "We both seek peace. But we seek a peace that is more than simply absence of war... We must still do everything we can to negotiate agreements that will lessen the burden of armaments on our peoples and the dangers of war."

Wofford said there had been no opportunity yet to study findings in the report.

Similar studies, he stated, were made for the cities of Tulsa, Canyon and Perryton and for the Panhandle Regional Planning Commission.

"We are going to do our best to figure out what can be done," Wofford said, "and the salary range study will be made for all city department employees."

Wofford added that the big problem faced by the city administration is to find a fair and equitable as well as a reasonable and realistic approach to the problems and also to find where the money is coming from to pay increased salaries.

The city manager said the police department budget for the current year totals $288,211 of which $245,722 is for police personnel salaries and benefits. He said about $210,000 is for police salaries alone.

"Currently," Wofford said, "we are looking at $1.5 million a year for city employee salaries under present wage scales."

It was learned today that two or three policemen have qualified for and receive federal food stamps.

The city manager said all city department heads will aid in the salary range study as applied to their own departments.

"We don't know just what the outcome will be, but we're going to do our best," he said.

IN ALLEGED SWINDLE

Investors Knew Nothing About Oil

TULSA, Okla. (UPI) — The former chairman of a bankrupt oil drilling company allegedly involved in a $100 million swindle said today he acted in good faith with the company's investors.

Robert S. Trippet, 56, was named last year in a complaint filed by the Securities and Exchange Commission for allegedly masterminding a scheme to swindle 2,000 investors out of more than $100 million since 1964.

Trippet, without admitting or denying any culpability in the allegations, agreed to a permanent injunction against any further activity with the company.

"The central fact is that, when I was with Home-stake Production Co., I acted in accordance with my obligations to the company's investors," he said. "Beyond that, I cannot enough to justify heavy investing if the data comes only from the firm making the offer.

Crowd Psychology Lesson "There is nothing sacred about a drilling program," he said. "It's like buying real estate — you want to know how much it's worth and where it's located."

Wall Street analysts said Home-stake, which attracted $130 million in investments in nine years but declared bankruptcy in 1973 with less than $19 million in assets and unknown debts, was a casebook lesson in crowd psychology.

"There was a phenomenal lure in the substantial returns the early investors received on their first lay-outs to Home-stake," a Wall Street broker said.

From 1966-69 investors received not only instant tax write-offs but dividends as well. "But the dividends came from the sums procured from subsequent investors. The potential of huge profits dulled appetites for a fast return.

The Securities and Exchange Commission sued Home-stake in 1970 for publishing the reserve figures of its oil production. The oil drilling firm was then required to make refund offers to purchasers who had bought $23 million worth of the company's participation units.

Unconcerned Investors But unconcerned investors asked for only $5.6 million back.

"It's impossible to know reserves until after a well is drilled and even then you're dealing with estimates," said Victor Alhadeff, chairman of the Seattle-based ENI Corp., which researches oil and gas drilling programs.

Attorney General William Saxbe said today the Justice Department has begun "major investigations" of illegal wiretaps and sales of electronic eavesdropping equipment and asked for public help.

In a speech prepared for the City Club of Cleveland, Saxbe urged anyone who suspects his phone is being tapped to tell federal authorities.

"I am certain we all know decent, law-abiding people who have admitted a moment of uneasiness, if not a twinge of fear, when they hear clicks or suspicious background noise on their telephones," Saxbe said.

"We do not want anyone to adopt a vigilante mentality. But we do want responsible citizen efforts to report possible violations of the law. We want citizens to let us know when they suspect illegal surveillance is being conducted. We want them to tell us about the sale or advertising of electronic devices which may be illegal."

According to Saxbe, the American Telephone and Telegraph Co. reported 10,000 requests last year from customers who wanted their telephones checked for taps and turned up 163 cases either of listening devices or evidence that had been attached.

LEAP INTO SUMMER — With summer officially only one week old, many youngsters are enjoying the opportunity to cool off by a plunge into a swimming pool. Despite the milder temperatures of earlier this week, hot weather still abounds. Yesterday's high was 89, with temperatures in the 90's expected today and Saturday.

TROOPS STILL ON GUARD

No Incidents Mark Rabin's Arrival At London Airport

LONDON (UPI) — Israeli Prime Minister Itzhak Rabin arrived safely today at a London airport so choked with troops and security forces that a visiting president had trouble finding a place to park his car.

An estimated 1,000 troops and police, backed by armored cars and helicopters in Britain's biggest security operation since World War II, blanketed Heathrow Airport, London's major air terminal, for Rabin's arrival.

Security sources had said there was a 50-50 chance of a guerrilla attack, either on Rabin or other Socialist politicians arriving for a weekend meeting of the Socialist International.

But there were no incidents when Rabin arrived on a scheduled El Al commercial airliner from Tel Aviv.

The only incident earlier had come overtones. Costa Rica's ambassador to Britain went to the airport to meet Costa Rican President Daniel Oduber. So many armored cars and armed troops clustered at the VIP lounge that he barely managed to find room to park the president's car.

The army's security exercise at Heathrow Airport—the second this year—began Wednesday. By today it was so tight that armed detectives on plainclothes duty at the airport had turned in their guns for fear of being killed by mistake.

Airport sources said security chiefs ruled that with so many troops and police around, it would be impossible for a plainclothes detective to identify himself if he pulled a gun.

Having them surrender their weapons temporarily was "a clear necessity," one police officer said.

In advance of Rabin's arrival today, authorities bolstered a guard of troops in camouflage battle dress to seal off the airport's VIP lounge, airport sources said.

Troops manned roadblocks and checked the identification of everyone entering the airport. Customs searches also were intensified, but arrivals and departures at Heathrow were not affected.

But the Daily Mail newspaper reported authorities ordered the alert to foil a Palestinian guerrilla attack.

Saxbe Asking Public To Aid Wiretap Study

CLEVELAND (UPI) — Attorney General William Saxbe said today the Justice Department has begun "major investigations" of illegal wiretaps and sales of electronic eavesdropping equipment and asked for public help.

In a speech prepared for the City Club of Cleveland, Saxbe urged anyone who suspects his phone is being tapped to tell federal authorities.

"I am certain we all know decent, law-abiding people who have admitted a moment of uneasiness, if not a twinge of fear, when they hear clicks or suspicious background noise on their telephones," Saxbe said.

Your Horoscope

By Jeane Dixon

SATURDAY, JUNE 29

Your birthday today: Opens a year of promised abundance of both desired and unfamiliar experience and material progress, a year of wonders, indeed. From your deep subconscious emerges strong inspiration, an occasional clear view of what you really are and may become. Today's natives usually develop a technical specialty, master it thoroughly with a complete memory of its details.

Aries (March 21-April 19): Almost anything seems to pop up by chance—actually the expected outcome of causes long past. You have a strong streak of "luck" going for you.

Taurus (April 20-May 20): Amid today's pleasant lures of future dissension. You must spot and neutralize them now—all in stride as you make the most of a diverse, prosperous day.

Gemini (May 21-June 20): Mechanical equipment needs special care, is best left to experts if you are not one. Rounds of talk leave you well supplied with information.

Cancer (June 21-July 22): Today finds you in an up-tight mood, ready to splurge just to relieve the static situation. You'll be proud of your self-restraint.

Leo (July 23-Aug. 22): Much as disagreement may rankle, preferably tolerate and discuss it rather than let yourself in for a bout of irritation. Home life improves greatly.

Virgo (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Much is gained in candid conversation—and could be lost again in temper. Be mature in confronting reality. There's joy to be found today as well!

Libra (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Social involvement carries a cost regardless of how you conduct yourself. Stay within your own resources, make the best of a complex situation. Romance shines bright.

Scorpio (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Deal early with the special conditions posed by young people in general. Then pursue projects which are better done alone, using your utmost concentration.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Travel doesn't produce the desired results; try again on short errands, check ahead for longer journeys. Family matters are improved with just a slight extra effort.

Capricorn (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Everybody has his own opinion and, like as not, is very enthusiastic about putting it into practice. Stay out of arguments—it's easier to mind your own business.

Aquarius (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Nobody is inclined to follow your leadership or seek your opinion today. You can test your theories just as well on your own materials and resources, however.

Pisces (Feb. 19-March 20): About as busy a Saturday as you're likely to encounter! Others expect you to pitch in with their most exasperating chores. Reflect before agreeing!

Gallegly-Cagle Vows Said In White Deer

The First United Methodist Church of White Deer was the setting Saturday, June 8 at 8 p.m. for the exchange of nuptial vows by Miss Elizabeth Gail Gallegly and Rick Russell Cagle.

Mr. and Mrs. Cohen Gallegly of White Deer, are parents of the bride. Mrs. Bill Harle of Sonora, and Richard Cagle of Tulsa, are parents of the bridegroom.

Vocalist and guitarist, Brian Shuler, Kaufman, sang, "Time in a Bottle," and "Wedding Song." The background of two 15-branched spiral candelabra, flanked by white floral arrangements, candles for the altar table and greenery with candles decorated the setting for the wedding.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, with the "her mother and I" avowal, wore a formal floor length wedding gown of bridal satin and re-embroidered Venice lace designed with a high neckline and princess silhouette. The sleeveless bodice and floor length skirt of the attire were enhanced by lace inserts. Her detachable chapel length train of satin, complemented the gown.

She wore a six pence from England in her shoe; a blue garter, a gift from Cindy and Karen Wyatt; opal earrings, belonging to her sister, Mrs. John Spence; and a Ruby pen, a gift of her late great-grandmother.

Her fingertip veil of imported illusion fell from a Juliet bandeau of bridal satin and Venice lace daisies, and she carried a large bouquet of daisies and baby's breath with greenery.

Sicilian Salad

Salad goes with so many meals that it's a shame not to have a repertoire of recipes for various occasions. Any menu that features Italian food would be even better with Sicilian Salad.

- 4 stalks celery, diced
- 1 can (12 oz.) Progresso piccalilli peppers

KARPIN ON BRIDGE

By FRED KARPIN

Without any doubt, the primary shortcoming of the non-expert is that he tends to play mechanically (by rote, as it were), paying too little attention to the specific situation at hand. As an example, observe today's deal, in which the East defender ignored the bidding that had taken place. As a result, our South declarer fulfilled a game contract that would have been defeated had a thinking player been sitting East.

East-West vulnerable. East deals.

The bidding:

Opening lead: King of ♠.

North made the winning decision when he elected to bid five diamonds. Had East been permitted to play at four spades, he would have fulfilled that contract, losing just two hearts and one club. At the sacrificial five-diamond contract, South should have been down one trick, losing a spade, a diamond, and a club.

On West's opening lead of the spade king, East signaled encouragement by playing the nine. West next led a low spade, which South ruffed. The jack of trumps was then led and taken by East's ace. East returned the king of clubs, which was won by South's ace. After picking up East's last trump, the board's hearts were cashed. South discarding his losing club on dummy's fourth heart. His only losers were a trump and a spade.

The contract would have been defeated if, at trick one, East had overtaken his partner's king of spades and laid down the club king. Declarer would now have had to lose a club, a spade, and a trump.

Actually, even if East had possessed no strength in clubs, he should have overtaken West's spade king in order to have led a club (with the hope that a club trick might be built up for West). To have signaled for a spade continuation — as he did — had to be wrong.

Over South's two diamond overall, West had leaped to four spades. Surely West had at least four spades (if he had five spades, it wouldn't matter what East played, since South would ruff the opening lead.)

Thus South had a maximum of one spade. And so East should not have allowed West to have led another spade. As was stated, East's only correct play was to have overtaken the spade king, and shifted to the king of clubs at trick two.

Baby should not bear brunt of fulfilling goal

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1974 by Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd., Inc.

DEAR ABBY: I have discussed my problem with my two closest friends. One thought I was kidding. The other thought I was crazy. I assure you, I am neither.

I am a 38-year-old unmarried professional woman. I was married (briefly) but had no children. I am bisexual (if that makes any difference), but I prefer men. I have a very full and rewarding life and don't want for friends.

Abby, the one experience I desperately want in my life is to bear a child. To me, motherhood represents the ultimate in fulfillment. One day I may marry, but not until after I retire (at age 60). By then, my child-bearing days will be long gone.

I can always get a husband, but I can't always have a baby. I would appreciate your opinion.

WANTS MOTHERHOOD

DEAR WANTS: The biological act of bearing a child doesn't qualify a woman for motherhood. Raising a child does. After you realize your "ultimate fulfillment," what about the child? If you could be a competent mother (and maybe you can) there would be nothing wrong with fulfilling yourself, but as I see it, you'd be using an innocent child to satisfy a selfish ambition.

DEAR ABBY: I am a 36-year-old school teacher, and I've just received a proposal of marriage. My first!

Henry is 40 and has never married. We met last summer when he rented the apartment next to mine. He owns a small but thriving business, and is a man of good moral character. He is on the quiet side. Although Henry has not been aggressive (romantically) I am sure the chemistry is right, if you know what I mean.

So what is the problem? It's the way Henry proposed to me. He said: "My dog died two weeks ago, and I haven't had a good night's sleep since because the dog always slept with me. I can't get used to sleeping alone so will you marry me?"

Abby, he wasn't kidding either. What would you do?

SINCERE

DEAR SINCERE: A proposal is a proposal, and this one is just as good as if Henry got down on his knees and gave you a 30-minute pitch. So if you want to marry him, accept. But don't let Henry get another dog, or you could wind up three in a bed.

DEAR ABBY: We recently moved to the suburbs, where we didn't know a soul. I met a woman at P.T.A., and we liked each other. She invited us to her home for a 7 p.m. buffet supper. We accepted and arrived promptly.

By 8 p.m. it was so crowded we could hardly move. At 9 p.m. there was no sign of dinner—only drinks and peanuts. It was hot, smoky and noisy. You couldn't hold a conversation with anyone. My husband, who is no big drinker, found me in the crowd and said: "Let's get out of here. I'm starving!"

I asked him to wait a while longer, but he said: "I'm leaving. Are you coming or not?"

I had no choice, so we left without saying goodbye to our hostess. Since we were all dressed up, we went to a restaurant.

The next day I phoned the hostess and told her we slipped out because my husband had a terrible headache. She sounded a little cool.

My questions: When people are invited for a 7 p.m. supper, what time should the hostess serve? Do you blame us for leaving? And do we owe them a dinner invitation?

SUBURBANITE

DEAR SUB.: A one-hour cocktail session is long enough. I don't blame you for leaving. And, unfortunately, you owe them a dinner invitation.

CONFIDENTIAL TO STUART H. WALKER, MINNEAPOLIS, MINN.: Thank you for advising me that the beautiful poem, "For Friends of the Aged," was written by your mother, Esther Mary Walker.

A Watchful Newspaper

EVER STRIVING FOR THE TOP O' TEXAS
TO BE AN EVEN BETTER PLACE TO LIVE

Our Capsule Policy

The Pampa News is dedicated to furnishing information to our readers so that they can better promote and preserve their own freedom and encourage others to see its blessing. Only when man is free to control himself and all he produces can he develop to his utmost capability.

The News believes each and every person would get more satisfaction in the long run if he were permitted to spend what he earns on a volunteer basis rather than having part of it distributed involuntarily.

Sampling Public Opinion

Mobil Oil Corp. has a battle going with two television networks because the two, CBS and ABC have refused to accept a commercial message Mobil sought to distribute through the TV outlets.

NBC accepted the commercial as presented. CBS and ABC rejected the commercial on grounds that it did not advertise a product or service, but was asking the public's opinion about offshore drilling.

Mobil is buying space in the nation's newspapers to explain its position and to challenge the television policy through appeals to the public. Mobil says it realizes the networks may be concerned about having to offer equal time to opposite points of view so it offered to pay double rates to compensate for "equal time."

What is interesting in this case is that the two networks suggest there is something wrong in sampling the opinion of the public. That is strange since they do that sort of thing frequently on their own "news reports."

Another question for the reader to ponder is the value of government control over that segment of the information media. The theory of government control over the broadcast media is that such control will insure fairness and will protect the public's interest.

If time and space is given to critics of the petroleum industry, which is the case in the coverage of politicians in "news programs" and in campaign commercials, how can denial of space and time to the industry be justified?

Where is the great protector, the government, in this instance? We believe most Americans by far are fair-minded. If the government controls television to insure fairness and protect the people, it surely has an obligation to big business in this connection just as it has to John Q. Public.

What Mobil says is that "we are not trying to alter what the TV networks broadcast as news. We just want to offer a broader spectrum of information and viewpoints to the American people and are perfectly willing to take our chances in the marketplace of ideas. If our ideas are no good, the public most assuredly will shoot them down."

In a free market, a case although we think it might be a foolish and short-sighted decision. But the television networks are not operating in a free market. They are tightly regulated by an agency of the federal government.

The fact that their services can be denied one segment of the American public should suggest to the reader that the same kind of license could be provided the print media should politicians ever gain control over all the press.

OUTRIDER

The President Vs. Congress

By GARRY WILLS

Mr. Nixon's June 10 letter to House Judiciary Chairman Peter Rodino is both ominous and dangerous. It demonstrates, as well as anything could, just why this president must be impeached. If he is allowed to stay in office, not only will the impeachment clause become a dead letter; the ends it was meant to serve will have been thwarted entirely. Mr. Nixon has not only committed many impeachable offenses, from implementing the Huston Plan to defying valid subpoenas; he is trying to stay in office by a line of reasoning that basically perverts the Constitution.

His various appeals to privilege not only confirm recent executive aberrations but go beyond them. In the June 10 letter, for instance, Mr. Nixon not only argues for "executive privilege" (the right to refuse internal documents to Congress), but extends that recent and false doctrine, adding a right to refuse things to the judicial branch of government. This is a declaration of the president's ability to defy the Supreme Court itself—a declaration of principled lawlessness that is breathtaking in its audacity. This is government by usurpation, by express undermining of the Constitution—so much so that this letter alone would be ample grounds for impeachment.

Not only is the letter wrong in law, history, and logic. It perverts the whole meaning of our government's "separation of powers." The aim of this tripartite form of government was not to make each branch autonomous, a law unto itself. Quite the opposite. The division was meant to insure responsiveness and accountability. The note of accountable stewardship is especially characteristic of the executive branch. The president is sworn to uphold the laws passed by the legislature and interpreted by the judiciary. He must report regularly to Congress on the state of the nation; and he is liable to impeachment if his stewardship is judged deficient by the legislature.

If Nixon's interpretation of the Constitution is allowed to stand, our whole system of government will have been altered. His wrongs will not only escape punishment, but will inflict further wrongs and constitutional errors on the nation, no matter who succeeds to the presidency henceforth. Mr. Nixon talks often of preserving the presidency for its future custodians, but if he has his way, it will not be the presidency that was given him at the outset of his term—and certainly not the presidency created by our constitutional framers.

So stunning is the Nixon letter's basic misreading of the concept of "separation" between branches of government that it seems almost trivial to deal with the lesser errors and distortions added to this basic assault on the Constitution.

Still, one further point in the letter begs for attention. Answering the Judiciary Committee's warning that refusal to hand over the specific evidence called for will lead to an assumption that the evidence is incriminatory, the letter recites the proposed rules of evidence not yet passed by Congress. These rules say that resort to a validly claimed privilege cannot be mentioned as grounds for an adverse inference by a jury. There are two things to be said about that. First, the aberration called "executive privilege" is not a validly established claim in law. Second, the strict rules of evidence for a petit jury in a proceeding-in-chief do not apply to preliminary proceedings in the ordinary courts of law—and certainly not to the extraordinary procedures of impeachment.

Mr. Nixon's own lawyers have raised Chief Justice John Marshall's rulings in the Burr trial as a precedent for recent presidential claims. Yet even after Marshall accepted an affidavit from the President swearing that deletions from a subpoenaed letter were (a) immaterial and (b) politically sensitive, he allowed Burr's lawyers, in preparation for a further grand jury hearing, to make adverse inferences from this withholding of material. He even said that if the case came to trial again he would probably have to demand surrender of the material or suspend the proceedings.

In Burr's arguments, said Marshall, "The accused may avail himself as much of them (the deleted parts) as if they were actually produced." The chief justice continued: "I certainly cannot exclude the inferences which gentlemen may draw from the omissions." It is safer to follow Marshall's interpretation of the law than the distortions of a desperate Richard Nixon.

CATCHING UP

INSIDE LABOR

Pro-Nixon Labor Chief Target

By VICTOR RIESEL

WASHINGTON — Since leaks spring two ways, it now can be reported that special Watergate prosecutor Leon Jaworski's staff has forced the Justice Department to investigate one of the nation's most politically influential labor leaders. He committed no crime. But he's pro-Nixon.

Jaworski's headquarters took this action when it determined that the union leader hadn't violated any electoral practices law during the 1972 presidential campaign.

The probe is one. FBI men are in the field. Witnesses, frightened by the doomsday atmosphere here, are being interrogated by Justice Department officials. Old records are being uprooted from dossiers in which they've been mildewed for years. Someone is out to get this man, Paul Hall, president of the Seafarers International Union (SIU), national vice president of the AFL-CIO, and chief of the eight million-member AFL-CIO Maritime Trades Department. And in this capricious capital's highest circles, the feeling is that someone is out to prove it doesn't pay to be pro-Nixon these days.

They point out that: On Monday, Oct. 22, 1973, during an emergency breakfast session of the AFL-CIO Executive Council, Paul Hall alone stood against the 30 other board members when they passed a resolution calling for Dick Nixon's resignation. Later that day his delegation was the only one at the federation's national convention in Bal Harbour (Fla.) to stand mute in protest against the adoption of this resolution by a laughing, applauding crowd.

On Nov. 26 Paul Hall introduced President Nixon to the international Seafarers convention in the Statler-Hilton here. Warm applause. Later that week Hall presented his old friend, Vice President Jerry Ford, and Secretary of Labor Peter Brennan. Between the October resolution and the November convention, Hall told me when I interviewed him during a broadcast he would back "Jerry" for any office, including the presidency.

In December, a few weeks later, special prosecutor Leon Jaworski subpoenaed the records of the union's "SPAD" — Seafarers Political Activity Donation. SPAD is the SIU campaign machine similar to the AFL-CIO's COPE or the United Auto Workers' CAP (Community action Program).

King Midas never examined his gold coin collection more closely than Jaworski's auditors went over those books. This went on for months. Hall's union had donated $100,000 to the Nixon campaign. To do this, the union borrowed the money from a bank and later SPAD returned it to the SIU, which repaid its loan. Finally the union's political activity records were stacked up. Jaworski's men, even those of the Kennedy — McGovern — Lindsay camp, couldn't find anything wrong. Not a misplaced penny. Reluctantly they wrapped it up. They gave up on the records. But not on Paul Hall. They went to the Justice Department. They spaded up an old (circa 1968) probe of SPAD. It had been launched by then Atty. Gen. Ramsey Clark, who believed that SPAD had muscled big sums for political action in the '60s. Clark was a Lyndon Johnson appointee, of course. And the late President's sensitivities were hurt when Hall outbid him on a maritime issue in the Congress. Johnson had admitted this during a White House meal with some labor men.

In the followup to the Ramsey Clark action, the Justice Department rounded up sailors, loaded them in buses, took them in and served them subpoenas by the score. But nothing came of this. Mass political action collections are trade unionism's traditional tactics. This is a separate issue and should be argued elsewhere.

In May 1972, the case was heaved out of the federal court. There the SPAD affair rested until Hall and his union coalition stayed on board with Nixon because of the President's vast maritime construction program. This is trade unionism — which never is simple. To Hall the vital matter always is — what makes jobs for his followers.

But recently, when Jaworski's investigators found nothing illegal in the Seafarers' 1972 political action, they went over to "Justice" and laid it on the line: Hall should be probed again on possible violations in 1968 (and earlier) of the Corrupt Practices Act.

By contrast, there appears not to have been any investigation of unions which contributed to the McGovern campaign. I don't insinuate there should have been. If I knew of any violations, I'd print the story. But the contrast is vivid.

Hall, who has been genuinely bipartisan, a friend of such Republicans as the then-Congressman Jerry Ford and such Democrats as Sen. Hubert Humphrey, has been investigated for years. In fact, ever since he angered the late Jack and Bob Kennedy.

But there are unswerving Democratic party unions, raising $500,000 a year or more, which never have been examined.

And there's the AFL-CIO vice president Al Shanker, whose New York State United Teachers VOTE — COPE now has budgeted hundreds of thousands of dollars for Democratic candidates in the state. And its target is $2 million for the 1974 campaign. That's a lot of political dollars, even in New York.

No one gives this even a glance. Yet the pro-Nixon Seafarers are getting the meat grinder treatment again. Meat is the more apt phrase. Apparently the Justice Department is a subsidiary of the special prosecutor's office.

INSIDE WASHINGTON Anti-Busing Provision Being Scuttled Again

By ROBERT S. ALLEN
WASHINGTON — That tough anti-busing provision the House decisively wrote into the $20 billion-plus elementary — secondary education bill is going down the drain.

It's being scuttled in the secret deliberations of the House-Senate conferees.

What kind of pussyfooting compromise emerges is still up in the air.

Even more uncertain is the House's reaction to the junking of its drastic student busing ban.

Twice in the past the House bowed to a compromise along the line of the relatively innocuous version favored by the Senate. But this time there is a new factor in the situation.

By an overwhelming 270 to 103 vote the House "instructed" its conferees to "insist" on retention of its forceful busing prohibition.

Such an emphatic directive is rare. It is strikingly indicative of the widespread bipartisan hostility to court-ordered school busing to "attain racial balance."

Voting for this unusual mandate were Congressmen from every section of the country, notably the north and west. Prominent among the supporters were liberals.

But there is one crucial hitch. While the exceptional "instructions" are clear and explicit, House conferees are decidedly not. Of the eight Democrats, only one is definitely for the House's stringent anti-busing provision, and the same is true of the five Republicans. Of the 13 conferees, only Reps. William Ford, D-Mich., and Edwin Forsythe, R-N.J., voted for the "stand firm" directive.

Weak Resolutions
And that isn't all. Of this key conference panel, only two voted for the embattled amendment — Reps. John Ashbrook, R-O., and Forsythe. All the others opposed it.

They vigorously backed a tempering version adopted by the Labor and Education Committee — which the House flatly rejected, substituting instead the tough amendment sponsored by Rep. Marvin Esh, R-Mich., who is also author of the unusual directive.

Significantly, although Esh is a ranking member of the committee, he was carefully excluded from the conferees.

But they do include the two-party leaders of the committee and foremost advocates of a pussyfooting stand on busing (such as the Senate adopted) — Reps. Carl Perkins, D-Ky., chairman, and Albert Quie, Minn., top Republican. Both assailed Esh's "no compromise" resolution, but were disregarded by the House.

Since then, they have privately indicated belief that in the end the House will again back down and go along with the Senate. One of them disparagingly characterizes the Esh mandate as a "political charade."

Tight Deadline
Playing into the hands of the compromisers is a pressing time factor.

The existing elementary-secondary education law expires the end of this month.

This imminent deadline is being used to the hilt to high-pressure the far-from-reluctant House conferees to disregard their stern "instructions" and come to terms with the Senate.

The plan being discussed in the secret conference deliberations is as follows: Junk both the Senate and House differing anti-busing provisions, and concoct a "compromise" ostensibly based on both.

Just how that complex trick would be pulled off is still to be worked out.

In the past, the end result was anti-busing legislation that while seemingly imposing restrictions, actually didn't.

That's what the Senate's provision does, and any compromise likely to emerge from the conferees is virtually certain to be of that stripe. It will definitely be more like the Senate's innocuous version than the House's drastic limitations.

That's what has happened in the past, and is in the works backstage again. Crucial question is what the House will do — after having voted 270 to 103 directing its conferees to "insist" on its stiff prohibitions against school busing.

Unquestionably the June 30 deadline will be potentially invoked to induce the House to again back down. Whether this stratagem will work remains to be seen. It will be a battle royal with high stakes.

Rep. William Ford, D-Mich., who voted for the tough anti-busing provision and to give no ground on it, is convinced the House won't compromise. Says Ford:

"If something close to the House position doesn't emerge, the elementary and secondary education bill won't pass the House. There is very strong feeling among rank-and-file members on this issue, and I don't think there is going to be any backing down on it. If the Senate won't give ground, there is no reason the House should."

The House provision bars busing students past the second nearest school. It also explicitly declares that busing must be a last resort to attain racial balance, and highly important, the legislation permits the reopening of court-ordered busing for reconsideration under the restrictions of this provision.

While the Senate amendment bans busing past the second nearest school, it empowers courts to order such busing if "deemed necessary for racial balance." The Senate also does not include the reopening of closed busing cases.

SENATE REJECTS

By a vote of 43 to 40, the United States Senate has struck down an amendment to the latest federal aid to education bill to protect the psychological and personal privacy of school children. The amendment would have required parents to be notified when highly personal psychological tests or "behavior-alternation and value-modification" techniques were to be used on their children; it would have retained the right of parents to refuse permission for their children to take these tests or undergo these techniques in any federally funded program.

The National Education Association opposed the amendment, stating flatly that the school official has a "more fundamental right" than parents "to determine whether the child should be subject to programs of behavior-alternation and value-modification." The Nixon Administration, according to the Washington Post, opposed the amendment because it would allegedly "stifle research, questionnaires and experimental programs of real educational value."

The psychological tests at issue involve probing personal questions for children about their home life and their parents.

A few usually right-side Senators voted against the amendment, apparently unaware of its far-reaching importance. With federal funding lacking over more of public education, only action by Congress can safeguard the privacy and mental security of our children from those who seek to probe or even brainwash them without regard to the wishes of the parents.

There Is Help For Leukemia

By G.C. THOSTESON, M.D.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I would be so pleased if you could tell me why doctors said, "No help in any way for chronic leukemia." Can we expect it to just stay chronic after 15 years of 20,000 to 30,000 white-cell count?

I stay busy, have plenty to keep me happy, will soon be 70; but I do need an honest answer to my question. Have decided it's lack of knowledge about leukemia.

— Mrs. S.

I don't know of any doctors saying any such thing. I take it for granted you mean chronic lymphatic leukemia, which is more likely to attack older rather than younger folk.

There is help for it — radiation treatments and medication. But if you mean "cure" rather than "help," that's another matter.

If at 70 your white count remains between 20,000 and 30,000, I would say that you are doing well — and I would gather that this is being achieved with some sort of treatment. You are busy and happy, and it seems to me that you have been getting whatever help you need.

It is true that we do not have a cure for the various forms of leukemia, but more is constantly being learned, even about the far more dangerous acute leukemia cases.

And even there, in the acute cases, we have a steadily increasing number that are kept in remission for years at a time, whereas only a decade or two ago life expectancy was measured only in months.

There is help for chronic leukemia, and for the acute cases, too.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I have been having my period for three years. I am 15. The last six months I've been having terrible cramps. They are so bad I can't even get up or walk. What would help me? What causes these? — In Pain.

Your case sounds extreme, but the distress is not unusual.

From the beginning of menstruation, the secretion of estrogen increases steadily year to year, resulting often in the situation you describe. Part of the trouble can be laid to the hormone acting upon the uterus.

Your case sounds extreme enough to call for a visit to your doctor. Any of the aspirin products are helpful, and perhaps a diuretic would offer some relief.

And don't neglect exercise. It was shown in a study among high school girls that those who took part in gym classes had less menstrual pain than the ones who did not.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: My blood type is O-Rh negative. I have had to have several transfusions. I read somewhere that type O is common, so why do they always have trouble getting blood for me? — Mrs. A.K.

Yes, type O is common, but it is more likely to be O-Rh positive, while yours is Rh negative, which isn't that common.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Will you discuss hydrocele? I have had two hydroceles for several years, and while my doctor tells me they are nothing to be concerned about, I would appreciate your opinion. — E.P.

Hydrocele is an accumulation of fluid in the scrotum. It is not something you need worry about. But if it becomes large enough to be a nuisance or uncomfortable, the fluid can be aspirated (drawn off) through a hollow needle.

Recurrence, however, is rather likely. In that case, a surgical procedure (not very complicated) can give permanent relief.

Note to Mrs. M.F.: No, there's no urgency about having a cataract removed, so if it is more convenient to postpone the operation for a couple of months or more, tell your doctor so.

Unless properly treated, both glaucoma and cataracts can lead to blindness. If you are afflicted with either of these ailments, or know someone who is, write to Dr. Thosteson in care of Dr. George C. Thosteson at Box 1400, Elgin, Illinois 60120; for his booklet, "Cataracts and Glaucoma." Enclose a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope and 25 cents.

IT HAPPENED LAST NIGHT

Tina Louise Looking For A Guy

By EARL WILSON

NEW YORK — Richard Burton and a couple of young girls, one of whom could have been his daughter Kate, were around town and had dinner at Gallagher's — with Burton sipping a soft drink, signing a few autographs, and being so friendly and healthy-looking that everybody was pleased.

A former cop was with him in a "security" or "guard" capacity although Burton didn't need any protection as far as we could see. His limo had N.J. License plates. He was so quiet that one passerby inquired, "Are you SURE that's Burton?"

Too bad that I took beautiful Tina Louise to Gallagher's the day before — she's looking for a guy, not necessarily to marry.

She was going out on a date the other night when her beautiful daughter Caprice, 3 (her father is Les Crane) said, "Mommy, I love you don't stay out late."

"I figured," Tina Louise told me, "I won't listen to her because when I say it to her, she won't listen to me."

Tina Louise and adorable daughter are here while she's filming "The Stepford Wives" at Westport, Conn.

Liberated since she was 18, Tina'd like to have another child, though she's unmarried ("Why put yourself through all that aggravation again?"). She saw Joe Frazier win and was enthusiastic ("He didn't have a scratch on his body") and she thinks Telly Savalas is a sexy animal the way he walks and talks and he's a great actor — he's marvelous to work with.

She couldn't quite get over Joe Frazier. "I went to a party and he danced with everybody. No, I didn't get to dance with him. He had his wife and too many daughters."

The many Don Imus fans will love the NBC radio star who's now starring in a comedy show at Jimmy's because he can now, as he says himself, cuss as much as he wants, and he really lets go with stories whose punchlines are about hemorrhoids,,, with a reference to a famous politician's wife and a Polish gag thrown in. He has an imaginary phone interview with Nixon and Kissinger that demonstrates a great creative imagination.

The resurgence of late, late night life in NY clubs reminds me of the remark of an old friend, Azby Chouteau, who said 35 years ago as we were going pub-crawling, "Let's go somewhere and stay longer than we should."

George Raft while publicizing his best-seller biography revealed a great Frank Sinatra generosity. When he got into tax trouble, Raft got a call from Sinatra who offered help and sent him a signed check saying, "Fill this in with any amount up to $1 million." George believes a lawyer wrote in $10,000 and took $5,000 as his fee.

THE MIDNIGHT EARL... Joe Franklin, TV Academy's honor guest, says his WOR 10 times-a-week TV show could be syndicated: "But I have no desire to break into the rhythm of its success." Producers of an incoming show are worried about the endurance of the leading lady ... Katharine Baumann, co-star of "99 And 44-100 percent Dead," and touring for 20th C-Fox promoting its 1974 movies, told us she wants most to go back to her native Ohio and do a stage show. As Miss Ohio, she was runner-up to Michigan, the Miss American winner.

Secret Stuff: The star of a hot new film admits to friends he was always "stoned" while making the picture ... Producer Jimmy Nederlander for the Uris Theater on B'way signed Bill Cosgy, The Pointer Sisters and Dionne Warwick (along with Belafonte and Andy Williams) ... Jack Dempsey reached 79 June 24.

Joe Namath's att'y-mgr. Jimmy Walsh, in a long dinner conference at The Lair, arranged $500,000 worth of TV commercials and endorsements for Joe ... Guilds, the female impressionist who does the Marlene Dietrich impersonation in the show at Shepherd's, heard that another gull'll portray Dietrich in the Persian Rm. show. He stamped his high heel and snapped, "But I'm the original Marlene Dietrich!"

Show Biz Quiz: What actor succeeded his brother in the title role of "The Falcon" film series? Ans. to yesterday's: Aristid Olt changed his name to Peter Lorre.

When Moshe Dayan saw "Scapino" last week, a special "hot line" phone was installed in the dressing room of the show's star Jim Dale ... Josephine Baker, pleading "commitments in Europe," pulled out of the Newport Jazz Festival; Thelma Carpenter'll replace her (June 29 at Carnegie Hall) ... Rod Steiger's out of the hospital; he got his back out of whack playing tennis.

I'D RATHER BE LIGHT... TODAY'S BEST LAUGH: "I'm not kidding when I say my home town is small," writes John Markus of London, Ohio. "I bought a map of the place — and it doesn't even fold."

WISH I'D SAID THAT: With new cafes always opening and closing, someone described New York as "the city where the night clubs are six months long."

REMEMBERED QUOTE: "Most of us can make ends meet. What we'd like to do is make 'em overlap a little."

EARL'S PEARLS: Peter Donald tells of the habitual lush who can't even use mouthwash in the morning unless there's an olive in the glass.

Greek shipping exec Domenikos Trikaminas thinks the day of the big spender may be over. In a Greek cafe he saw a ringsider stuff a $20 bill into a bellydancer's waistband: "And then he waited for $10 change."

Flu Affecting Peron's Larynx

BUENOS AIRES (UPI) —

The "influenza condition" that has kept 78-year-old President Juan D. Peron away from his office for the past 10 days, persists and now affects his larynx, the Argentine government announced Thursday.

The official announcement said Peron was meeting with only his closest advisers until the larynx condition clears up.

Peron, who as admitted to a heart ailment to the past, has been kept at home four times since returning to Argentina a year ago following nearly 18 years in exile.

His latest illness had been described until now as a mild case of the flu.

Peron "received only his most immediate advisers (Thursday), since his influenza condition persists and has affected his larynx," the announcement said.

Tolerance, Secular Ideas Replace Church Teaching, Study Indicates

By DAVID E. ANDERSON
UPI Religion Writer
WASHINGTON (UPI) — Tolerance for such secular ideas as abortion and other frowned-on methods of birth control has taken the place of church teaching for a significantly large number of American Catholics, according to a new study by the National Conference of Catholic Bishops.

"At the very least," the study said, "many would say that for a large number of Catholics, the influence of secular society — and all that implies, for good as well as ill — counts more heavily than the influence of the Church."

But the study, prepared for American bishops in preparation for the worldwide synod of bishops this fall at the Vatican, also stressed that the church in the United States was not collapsing. The paper was presented as an overview of trends and did not include statistics.

"American Catholicism is changing, not collapsing, and while a period of change is not a time for complacency, neither is it a time for gloom," the study said.

It added that a large community still existed in the American church "for whom Catholic beliefs and attitudes do continue to hold a position of centrality."

Yet it said the emerging question for the Catholic community in the United States is whether that community will continue to derive its fundamental beliefs from Catholic Christianity "or whether its beliefs and attitudes will be drawn more and more from the secularistic, humanistic value system of the society around it."

It said that among some Catholics, weekly Mass attendance has dropped sharply and there is evidence of assimilation of the values and attitudes of secular society.

"Many Catholics are tolerant of abortion in at least some circumstances, reject official church teaching on means of family limitation, have a divorce rate not markedly different from that of other Americans, and regard most social issues very much in their non-Catholic countymen's way."

"It would be an exaggeration at the present time to say that such Catholics have rejected the Church," the study said, but it added that it appears "Catholic beliefs and values no longer occupy the same central place in their lives that they did in the lives of their parents and grandparents — and may have done in their own lives in years gone by."

Thoughts

From The Living Bible

When the thousand years end, Satan will be let out of his prison. He will go out to deceive the nations of the world and gather them together, with Gog and Magog, for battle — a mighty host, numberless as sand along the shore. They will go up across the broad plain of the earth and surround God's people and the beloved city of Jerusalem on every side. But fire from God in heaven will flash down on the attacking armies and consume them.

Nazarenes To Hold Missionary Banquet

The Church of the Nazarene, 510 N. West St. will sponsor a missionary banquet Tuesday, July 2, at 7 p.m. to secure money for the teens of the church to take a trip this summer.

The study for this year is on the countries of South America, and this will be the theme and decorations for the banquet. The food will also be dishes which are served in these countries.

The regular monthly missionary lesson will be given by out study chairman, Virginia Ferguson, and a play will be presented by the teens.

FIRST CHILD

The average U.S. family must spend about $40,000 in direct costs from hospital delivery through college graduation to rear its first child, according to Mrs. Doris Myers, home management specialist, Texas Agricultural Extension Service, Texas A&M University System.

JUILLIARD CHAIRS

NEW YORK (UPI) — The Juilliard School has established the Lila Acheson Wallace chairs for distinguished teachers, the first chairs in Juilliard history. They are endowed from a special fund that also provides for visiting artists through the school's Institute of Special Studies. Mrs. Wallace is co-director of the Reader's Digest Association and a member of Juilliard's board of trustees.

Lutheran Church Studies Problem

DALLAS — Officials of the Lutheran Church — Missouri Synod have expressed hope that a reconciliation of dissenting views in the church may be brought about.

The Rev. Guido Merkens, representing the office of the president at the biennial convention of the Texas District of the LCMS, has noted that, for reconciliation to take place, it takes "both a reconciliator and one who wants to be reconciled."

Synodical officers, he said, have already taken some steps that would allow the ordination and installation of dissenting students at the Seminary in Exile in St. Louis.

The seminary was formed after a walk-out by students and faculty from the church's Concordia Seminary in St. Louis. Suspension of Concordia Seminary followed the suspension of its president, Dr. John Tietjen by the seminary's governing board.

Calvary Lighthouse Schedules Revival

The Pampa Calvary Lighthouse, 701 E. Campbell, will feature the appearance here of evangelists Brother and Sister E.L. Dorris of Odessa during a revival which starts Sunday, June 30.

Tentatively scheduled to run for one week, the revival will include study of the book of Revelations, and the public is invited by Brother Eddie Pell to attend.

Regular worship services are held on Wednesdays at 7:30 p.m., and on Sundays at 10 a.m. and 7:30 p.m.

Thoughts

From The Living Bible
Young man, obey your father and your mother. Tie their instructions around your finger so you won't forget. Take to heart all of their advice. Every day and all night long their counsel will lead you and save you from harm; when you wake up in the morning, let their instructions guide you into the new day. For their advice is a beam of light directed into the dark corners of your mind to warn you of danger and to give you a good life.
Proverbs 6:20-23

The Weekly Message Of Inspiration

First United Methodist Church

REV. L.V. HAMILTON
Pastor

Next Thursday this country will observe its greatest national holiday. It is possible it will be more of an observance than a celebration. I talked to one man who told me that he just was not in a celebrative mood. Of course, we have been polarized by the flag wavers and the flag burners. I may not want to wave a flag and say, "My country, right or wrong." But I am certainly not very impressed with somebody literally burning the flag or turning it upside down. I have to celebrate a bit because I see it as an achievement of over five thousand years of Judeo-Christian civilization and almost two hundred years of United States national history, much of which I have to appreciate.

Being a preacher I feel like I need a text, so I choose one out of the eighth chapter of John's Gospel at the thirty first verse, where Jesus says to some Jews who had come to believe in him, "If you continue in my word, you are truly my disciples, and you will know the truth, and the truth will make you free."

I guess I am a spiritualist seeing God in all of our freedoms long before Moses lived, Abraham, Isaac and Jacob operated with a great deal of freedom. No boundaries, no problems. But Moses came on the scene when the children of Israel were in bondage in Egypt. Moses heard the call of God to lead these people from bondage to freedom and for five thousand years, every time God can get a crack through which his light can shine, freedom is being born some place. Freedom has not come anywhere easily or automatically. When the Christ was born, there was little freedom for the common man.

When America came into being it was a brand new thing in the earth. A free people and a free land who had shaken the tyrannies of the old world. They set up a government by the consent of those to be governed. They wrote strange and new laws safeguarding the rights of common people. At this very moment, there has never been a political document stating so clearly the ideal of human dignity as did the Declaration of Independence, the Constitution and its Bill of Rights.

For more than a quarter of a century we have seen nation after nation give up what freedom it had gained. I know this is an impatient generation. We want things now. We do not want to wait for anything. We want to push and we want something to happen, now. We dream of flying from coast to coast in two hours. We like to have our clothes cleaned in an hour's time, our car washed in two minutes, and instant food is a big seller.

I may never be able to understand why God has consistently made people pay for their freedom. I took the Hebrew people forty years in the wilderness before they were capable of handling it. This might be part of the temptation scene of Jesus. He was tempted to take the shortcut and win the world in a hurry. "Cast thyself down," righten people, dazzle them, do something mysterious, but get it now. The last temptation was, "Bow down to the devil," that is, do whatever seems necessary, just get it done. But the great spirit of God said through his Son, no. Instead he let his Son carry a cross up Calvary's Hill.

As I think about my freedoms, I'm going to be in a little more celebrative spirit than some of my peers, because God is still at work. I'm not kidding myself. I don't expect Him to just give it to us but I'm not ready to throw in the towel. I may be hurting enough to go to the polls and vote intelligently. Some of my frustrations may turn out to be burning bushes and I may hear again the great voice of God saying, "Let my people go."

Williams Taking Manager's Post

ANAHEIM (UPI) — Dick Williams thinks Bobby Winkles is a good manager, but not as good as Dick Williams.

That's not how Williams modestly put it, but that was the gist of his comments after succeeding Winkles as manager of the last place California Angels Thursday.

"No reflection on Bobby Winkles, who I think is a good manager, but the club is better than its record indicates," Williams said.

Angels' General Manager Harry Dalton obviously concurs with that statement.

Williams will try to start proving it Monday night against his former ball club, the Oakland A's, who he guided to world championships the past two years.

Goalby, Beard, McCord Western Open Favorites

CHICAGO (UPI) — Veterans Bob Goalby and Frank Beard, each seeking his first tournament win in three years, and youthful Gary McCord, after his first major victory ever, led the field into the second round of the Western Open today, challenging a course that everybody called "tough."

The trio deadlocked for the first round lead with one under par 70s at Butler National Golf Club and none of them believed that straight rounds would be necessary to win the $40,000 first prize in the $200,000 event.

"I think I played about as good as I can play," McCord said of Thursday's round. "I wasn't prepared for all of those tough shots. I haven't played in two weeks and I think the players who were in the National Open and the American Classic on those tough golf courses have got to be fatigued. But maybe it sharpened their game too."

Sharing the lead was not new to McCord since he was the first-round leader in the Crosby and tied for the lead midway through the event.

"But then," he said, "they overtook me."

McCord lost his chance for the undisputed lead when he flew a six-iron over the green into a grandstand on his last hole to set up a bogie, which he said he was thankful to get.

Goalby, 43, who won the Masters title in 1968, lost his chance to take the lead alone on the 17th hole when he knocked his second shot into a bunker and failed to get out on his first try, going one over par on the hole.

Beard, 35, declaring he "didn't play very well," said he was "fortunate to get out with what I got out of it. But I had no chances to make any more birdies than I did."

Coaches Game Slated Saturday
Little League coaches and managers will have a chance to display their own baseball skills during a benefit game at 6:30 p.m. Saturday at Optimist Park.

They will provide a slight assist to the women's lib movement by using several women to umpire the game.

Admission of 50 cents for adults and 25 cents for students will be charged to raise funds for the Little League baseball program.

BORG SAYS HE'S TIRED

Chris Shows Top-Flight Play To Defeat Lesley

WIMBLEDON, England (UPI) — There were few flashes of tennis brilliance to lighten the gloom of the 23,500 spectators at rainy Wimbledon Thursday, but second-seeded Chris Evert of Ft. Lauderdale, Fla., provided seven minutes of top-flight play to defeat Australia's Lesley Hunt.

After the epic two hours and 40 minutes Evert-Hunt struggle Wednesday night which was halted by darkness with the score 9-9 in the third set, the last two games today were anticlimactic. All the steam seemed to have left the flat forehand and overhead smash with which the Australian had troubled Miss Evert the night before and the American teenager needed only seven minutes to advance to the final 32 women, 8-6, 5-7, 11-9.

Chris was in devastating form. She broke service to 10-9 and served out the match at love.

"It's the closest match I've ever played," Chris said.

There was one curiosity for which she had no ready explanation. The crowd was for Miss Hunt as it had been for the Australian when they played in Dallas last winter. Not to have crowd support is a fairly new experience for 19-year-old Chris.

The only other match to be completed before rain again halted the Wimbledon program was more a subject for psychologists than sports writers.

Bjorn Borg, the Swedish 18-year-old fifth seed, had to have a police escort to keep his clothes from being torn from his back by an army of screaming teen and sub-teenagers.

Borg played Ross Case of Australia 3-6, 6-1, 8-6, 7-5 in another match carried over from Wednesday night, when the Swede threatened to leave the court unless play was called because of the poor light. Play started Thursday at 1-4 in the fourth set.

Wednesday night Borg asked that the match be postponed with a score 1-3 in the fourth set, but was forced to play another game in the dim light. He responded angrily by purposely smashing a couple of shots into the stands.

After pulling out the fourth set for the match victory Thursday, Borg repeated he is mentally and physically tired. Borg said he is in the tournament to win, but thinks it will be difficult because he finds his concentration going after the first set.

"I'm going to find a sunny beach and just lie there," he said of his future plans.

Miss Evert and Borg are both coming off championship victories in the Italian and French Opens.

Western Mission Ventures Remain Uncertain Due To Turmoil

United Press International
Remember the missionaries?

They used to appear, while on home leave, at Sunday evening church basement suppers with slides, stories and artifacts—spears, shields, sometimes even a shrunken head—to detail their often little-noted and always ill-rewarded efforts to bring the Christian Gospel to the world's unchurched.

Many of those missionaries were successful and out of that success the mission effort—historically one of American and European churches sending missionaries to Africa, Asia and Latin America—has been thrown into turmoil.

The turmoil is occasioned in part by the growth of the churches in the mission fields to the point where they no longer feel the need for missionaries and in part by a changing social and political consciousness of Third World countries and their churches, which understand mission to be as much social action as personal conversion to Christ.

Five-Year Moratorium

As long ago as 1971, for example, Dr. John Gatu, general secretary of the Presbyterian Church of East Africa, suggested a five-year moratorium on sending missionaries. The moratorium would withdraw all mission efforts and allow both sending and receiving churches to rethink and reformulate the basis for future relationships.

At a recent seminar at the Overseas Ministries Study Center, Ventnor, N.J., which brought together representatives of Roman Catholic mission agencies, mainstream Protestant denominational mission boards and conservative evangelicals, Third World spokesmen were unanimous in insisting that there could be no middle ground on the moratorium issue.

Musembi Kasiera of the Kenya Pentecostal Assemblies summed up much of the feeling of Third World sentiment, scoring Americans "who talk about their own cultural paganism and civil religion yet do nothing about it while insisting that Third World churches need help to deal with these issues in their own countries."

The split which the turmoil has caused is most readily seen in the United Methodist Church where a group unhappy with the denomination's Board of Global Ministries has formed the "Evangelical Missions Council" to challenge board policies and actions. At the spring meeting of the Global Ministries agency, representatives of the EMC challenged what it said was the lopsided social action emphasis to the virtual exclusion of evangelism.

Rev. David Seamands, Wilmore, Ky., chairman of the EMC, told the board that his group was "for the great sociopolitical liberation concerns of the Board of Global Ministries."

But he added that his group felt "the board is losing its primary purpose for existence—to proclaim the gospel by word and deed, proclaim Jesus Christ as man's only savior and lord with the express aim being conversion."

Seamands alleged for development of a concept of a "Fourth World—areas of the globe where the gospel of Jesus Christ has not been proclaimed—to reach the 2 billion people unreached, untouched by the gospel."

The EMC has been challenged by United Methodist Bishop R.D. Joshi of Bombay, India—a country that has been one of the most intense fields of mission activity. Joshi called the EMC "paternalistic, irrelevant and out of touch with the mission field."

The turmoil shows no sign of subsiding and the nature of Western—especially American—mission ventures remains uncertain.

Today is Friday, June 28th the 179th day of 1974 with 186 to follow.

The moon is between its first quarter and full phase. The morning stars are Venus and Jupiter.

The evening stars are Mercury, Mars and Saturn. Those born on this date are under the sign of Cancer.

American composer Richard Rodgers was born June 28, 1902.

On this day in history: In 1894, Congress declared Labor Day—the first Monday in September—as a holiday.

In 1919, the Treaty of Versailles was signed, officially ending World War I.

In 1971, the U.S. Supreme Court ruled that the use of public funds for parochial schools was unconstitutional.

In 1972, President Nixon announced that no more draftees would be sent to Vietnam unless they volunteered.

A thought for the day: General of the Army, Douglas MacArthur said, "In war, there is no substitute for victory."

POPULAR GUIDE

NEW YORK (UPI)—One of the most popular books for leaders of the Episcopal Church is a 64-page publication, "A Vestryman's Guide," which describes duties of the vestry, explains parish structure, programs, administration, excerpts from canon law and other information on church organization and statistics.

The manual, sponsored by the Episcopal Church Foundation and published by The Seabury Press, official publishing house of the Episcopal Church, is now in its fourth printing. Since its initial publication in 1972, more than 33,000 copies have been placed in the hands of vestrymen and other interested persons in more than 7,000 parish vestries in the United States.

WORRY CLINIC

Homer was standing under that famous "Sword of Damocles" while on the golf course. Yet he didn't even know it! Nor did his doctor who put an O.K. on golfing. You housewives and employers should also use the tests below!

CASE A-671: Homer F., aged 47, had a heart attack. "Dr. Crane," his devoted wife began, "Homer got to the hospital within 30 minutes."

"But we used your suggestion about rapid, deep breathing to help him bring in an extra supply of oxygen for his heart till the ambulance arrived."

"So the pain had grown dull and he wasn't nearly as apprehensive when the ambulance reached our house."

"Now he seems to be recovered quite satisfactorily."

"And he'd like to go out to play a little golf."

"The physician told him not to overdo, but to stop at least with 9 holes."

"Dr. Crane, is golf too strenuous exercise for a recent cardiac case?"

CORONARY FACTS

After former President Eisenhower had recovered from a heart attack, he was soon permitted to play golf.

But Dr. Edward E. Gordon's data on "Exercise Equivalents" (reported on Page 736 of my college textbook "Psychology Applied") contrasts the strain of golf vs. laying bricks!

At the left you will find various tasks while at the right are the calories per minute required for such physical activity.

Task	Cal. Per Min.
Lying abed	1.0
Fast typewriting	1.8
Playing piano	2.5
Average walking	3.6
Laying bricks	4.0
Ironing clothes	4.2
Playing golf	5.0
Riding horse	8.0
Playing tennis	10.2

Merely walking downstairs requires 5.2 calories per minute, which is over 25% more rigorous exercise than laying bricks!

Dr. Gordon thus warns us medical colleagues about letting patients perform many supposedly light chores when the latter are actually far more exhausting than laying bricks.

For example, wouldn't there have been a furore if President Eisenhower had retired to his summer home following his heart attack and started laying bricks?

Yet how many thought to protest his playing golf?

The modern mechanized golf carts may reduce the physical strain on convalescent coronary patients, but they need to realize that the load on the heart is indicated by the calories per minute on that chart.

Space limitations don't permit me to cite a dozen other typical tasks, so go to your local library and read page 736 of my psychology textbook.

You housewives will be delighted to see that hanging up wet laundry or even taking a shower bath are much more rigorous tasks than laying bricks!

So don't let your husbands belittle the physical strain of operating your household!

By George W. Crane, Ph.D., M.D.

The average husband would be so exhausted, if he changed places with you housewives if you also have children to look after, that he'd never be able to stay awake during the first TV program after the evening meal!

Remember, too, that the mental strain and worry about the children wear you out even faster than mere physical exertion!

That's also why executives, like mothers and bosses in factories or stores, get tension headaches and peptic ulcers.

Ditch diggers and manual laborers seldom have ulcers!

So send for my "Tests for Employers and Employees," enclosing a long stamped, return envelope, plus 25 cents.

(Always write to Dr. Crane in care of The Worry Clinic, Hopkins Bldg., Walnut, Indiana 47388. Enclose a long stamped, addressed envelope and 25 cents to cover typing and printing costs when you send for one of his booklets.)

NEW YORK (UPI) —

What is entertainment?

There is no universal definition because people's tastes differ, but back in the days before television came dependent on radio and the movies for entertainment.

The early "talking pictures" changed the movie industry and during the first decade of sight and sound cinema tremendous progress was made and many new stars were born,

among them Judy Garland and Fred Astaire.

Film clips from those early shows as well as those unreel during and after

World War II have been made into a nostalgic

movie, "That's Entertain-

The sound track of

"That's Entertainment"

(MCA2-11002) fills up an excellent two-record album,

one that can be played repeatedly.

Gable Sings

Cary Grant and James

Stewart rose to stardom in the 1930's and most people remember them as actors.

But they also had singing parts. In "Easy to Love,"

Stewart sings a duet with

Eleanor Powell and comes off quite nicely. And Cary

Grant sings "Did I

Remember" in "Suzy,"

made in 1933.

Clark Gable had a brief singing role in "Putting on the Ritz" and if you listen closely you can hear the voices of Norma Shearer and Edward Arnold.

"Singing in the Rain" was one of the most popular songs of the 1930's and there are several versions in this album — by Cliff Edwards,

Jimmy Durante, Judy

Garland, and Gene Kelly.

Debbie Reynolds and

Donald O'Connor — the latter trio singing in a 1952

musical.

Before Joan Crawford

became a dramatic actress,

she was a singer and dancer and two of her

performances are recorded,

"I've Got a Feeling for You"

from "Hollywood Review of 1929" and "Heigh Ho, The

Gang's All Here" with Fred

Astaire in "Dancing Lady,"

made in 1933.

Triumph in Nostalgia

Judy Garland's best known songs, "Over the

Rainbow" and "You Made

Me Love You," are

standouts of the film and album. And Judy also sings with Mickey Rooney and Margaret O'Brien as well

in a medley with Bert Lahr,

Jack Haley and Ray Bolger

in a clip from "The Wizard of Oz."

Other voices heard in the album include Maurice

Chevalier, Tony Martin, Vic

Damone, Peter Lawford,

Kathryn Grayson and

Howard Keel, Jean Harlow,

June Allyson, Gene Kelly,

Louis Jourdan and Charles

King.

Another triumph in nostalgia is a current

Broadway hit musical,

"Over Here," starring the two remaining Andrews, Sisters, Patty and Maxene.

TV In Review

By FRANK SWERTLOW

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) —

CBS announced today that it was dropping two situation

comedies and a series

children's specials from its fall primetime television

schedule.

CBS also disclosed a series of time changes for several programs.

The network said the decision to revise next season's schedule stemmed from a June 18 federal court ruling cutting the number of hours the three commercial networks can use in the prime viewing hours

between 7 p.m. and 11 p.m.

A spokesman for the network in Los Angeles said dropped, "Love Nest,"
