

San Angelo Children Die In Fire

HOME TOWN TALK

By Beddy

Well, the Steers sort of pulled the wool off the eyes of those San Angelo folks; what got it in their heads they could beat Big Spring this year anyway?

Now we've got Ranger, Brownwood, Colorado and Sweetwater to whip. When we've done that we will have completed a good season. It will be better than last year, our first in Class A, and next year, brethren, will be better still.

Next year, at least one of the so-called "Big Four" is going to get licked by the Steers.

We hope you feel this column stands always for improving Big Spring and Howard county. We always have, we believe. We haven't changed any.

However, we believe that this particular time is not the right time for submitting a bond issue of any kind to the voters of the city.

This is said in connection with movements of the past week for a street paving issue.

We're down right ashamed of our streets, all right. We've got rougher streets than most any town our size. No use trying to hide that.

But we can provide the numerous improvements rapid growth has made needful just so fast and no faster.

We wish to be understood. We commend the spirit of those who brought the question publicly to your attention. They are seeking what we all ought to be seeking—constant, consistent improvement of the community.

This, however, we feel is not the right time for a city bond election.

Aside from the fact that we are not through the water and sewer expansion program inaugurated with issues voted last March, we remind you that last fall, when those issues were defeated, and later, when they were adopted, a proposed election to pass on a county road bond issue was postponed, to make way for city improvements.

Now, it is our opinion this county road program has waited long enough. Things are beginning to shape up well for it and it appears it will be headed off brought to a vote.

Even now, however, the wheels are moving much too slowly with the road program.

The county tax rate has been reduced nearly 50 cents in two years. Because we simply had to have better sewer and water systems we voted the city bonds last spring and, of course, the city tax rate had to be raised to care for them.

Still, both the city and county tax rates are much lower than those of most any county containing a town as large as Big Spring.

Ambition to make a town a better place in which to live is always laudable. We hope this town—our town—never gets into a rut.

And, we hope also that in the near future funds will be provided for much street paving.

For a much larger city water supply.

For a city auditorium.

For a city hall.

For more and better city parks.

Right now, folks, I've got these highways paved. When we've provided the cash for that—one third of it is the county's part—and fixed things so the traveling public can drive into town from a city center, then we'll have to get on the money on the barrel-head to pave the streets so that we can drive around in comfort and economy when they do get here.

Lomax Opens New Building

Auditorium, Gymnasium, Other Facilities Are Included

LOMAX, Oct. 25.—The new Lomax school building, housing a gymnasium and auditorium, was completed today.

The structure includes one class room, a laboratory for general science instruction and a home economics room. It is built of tile, finished in stucco and has its own lighting system, which has already been installed.

New furniture has been purchased, including 300 folding chairs for the auditorium-gymnasium.

This is the only rural school gymnasium in this section of the state and it is expected to serve as a powerful incentive to older boys and girls. Patrons expect it to be useful in keeping them in school until they have been graduated.

County Convention of Singers Today

The Howard County Singing Convention convened here tonight and will continue through Sunday. Dinner will be served at the building.

As an arena, Lomax, president of the class, expressed keen delight in being able to convene the convention in the new auditorium in his own home community.

School to Open at Lomax Monday

Lomax school will open the 1930-31 session Monday morning. Miss Arl Phillips is principal. Miss Ada McGinnis, intermediate teacher, and Miss Twila Lomax in charge of the primary department. Miss Phillips and Lomax have taught here two years. Miss McGinnis was added this season.

100 Believed Dead In New Mine Disaster

Second Subterranean Catastrophe of Week In Germany

SAARBRUECKEN, Germany, Oct. 25 (AP)—Germany's second coal mine disaster within a week was believed to have killed approximately 100 miners today in the workings of the Maybach mine at Quirschicht, heart of the Saar valley coal region.

An explosion trapped the miners deep in a shaft. The management of the mine announced at 10 p. m. that 90 men still were underground and that all probably had been lost. Late in the night the mining company announced the bodies of 38 had been recovered. Most were unrecognizable. Twenty-five injured also had been brought out of the pit.

The explosion was ascribed to fire damp, but a thorough investigation was planned.

An accurate check of the casualties was impossible early this evening, though the company made every effort in this direction while rescue workers attempted to reach from two sides the men entombed in the shaft. The mine shafts were choked with gas which hampered the rescue work.

Reports disagreed widely about the number of missing and the number of men originally in the mine.

Rumors in the nearby town of Friedrichsthal put the missing as high as 140, while the company in the evening admitted there were 50 and later that there were 90. The figure of 140, however, is believed to be exaggerated.

Clouds of smoke poured from the pit-mouth, and with gas still in the shaft below, doubt was expressed whether many of the missing would be recovered alive.

Air Mail Line Launched By T.A.T.-W.A.E.

36-Hour Service, East To West Coast, Is Accomplished

NEW YORK, Oct. 25 (AP)—The east and west coast were linked today by a new 36-hour air mail and passenger line operated by Transcontinental and Western Air, Inc., and Western Air Express, Inc., which have joined to form Transcontinental and Western Air, Inc.

Under an air mail contract recently awarded jointly to Transcontinental and Western Air, Inc., and Western Air Express, Inc., the operating subsidiary of those two and Pittsburgh Aviation Industries, known as Transcontinental and Western Air, Inc., inaugurated service on the all air route. Both T. A. T. and Western Air Express were already operating rival train plane services across the country.

Eleven multimotored planes took part in the inaugural flights. Three left New York for Los Angeles and will stay overnight at Kansas City, where they will meet two that took off in Los Angeles for New York and will also wait for daybreak to continue their journey.

Two others left Kansas City this morning, one bound for New York and the other for Los Angeles, and two more left Amarillo, Texas. There too one heading east and the other west. On the west coast two others made round trips between Los Angeles and San Francisco.

The mail today was largely of a souvenir nature, letters sent by collectors and the like, and the passengers were mostly government officials and other non-paying observers. Tomorrow the service begins its regular stride as a commercial enterprise depending on its mail and passenger revenue for its continued existence.

Col. Charles A. Lindbergh, who is technical advisor of the new operating company just as he is of T. A. T., did not fly one of the planes which started the service today, but he saw the eastward ships off at Newark Metropolitan airport, the New York terminal of the line. Yesterday he completed a personal inspection of the route between Newark and Columbus, the only leg of the course not previously flown by regular passenger planes and one of the most difficult flying areas in the country.

The cross-country airline is a "single track" between Columbus and New York and between Amarillo and Los Angeles, but "double track" between Columbus and Amarillo. On the double track section one line branches south at St. Louis and goes to Amarillo by way of Oklahoma City while the other line takes the more northerly course from Columbus to Kansas City and thence to Amarillo.

Standard Cuts Crude Oil Price In Oklahoma

TULSA, Okla., Oct. 25 (AP)—The first general reduction to be posted by a major purchaser in the current wave of crude oil price slashing in the midcontinent area came today from the Standard Oil Company of Indiana.

Under the lowered schedule effective at 7 a. m. the top price is $1.19 a barrel for oil of 44 gravity and above, a cut of 38 cents under the figure major concerns have been paying generally except in Texas areas, where prices were reduced last week. For oil of below 40 gravity, Standard's new quotation is 65 cents a barrel, a cut of about 25 cents.

In oil circles here the Standard's action was interpreted as likely to precipitate the posting of general reductions by other major companies Monday.

Concerning the company's action Ellison said the reduced schedule was made necessary by competitive conditions which had brought about the narrowest spread in several years between the price of crude oil and that of the refined product.

OKLAHOMA CITY, Oct. 25 (AP)—The Magnolia Petroleum Company posted a one cent per gallon cut in the retail price of gasoline today at its filling stations here. The new price of standard grade gasoline is 16 cents, including 4 cents state tax.

ENID, Okla., Oct. 25 (AP)—Champion Refining Company announced today it had met the new crude oil prices posted by the Standard Oil Company of Indiana, effective at 7 a. m. The Champion company led in the price cutting movement, and its action today involved only a small adjustment of prices.

Baby Boys, In House Alone, Are Victims

Mother Goes Across The Street; Gun Explodes

SAN ANGELO, Texas, Oct. 25 (AP)—Randall Duard Falls, 4, and Billie Rudolph Falls, 1, sons of C. A. Falls, were burned to death tonight while their mother was at the home of a neighbor across the street, when the Falls home was demolished by fire. Cause of fire was unknown.

The father was at work at his tile factory.

A gun left hanging on a wall inside the house exploded and gave first warning of the fire, but when the mother and neighbors reached the house, the Falls home was in flames.

CHILD KILLED

SAN ANGELO, Texas, Oct. 25 (AP)—Mildred Davidson, 9, was struck by an automobile on the street here tonight and died in a hospital soon afterward. She was reported to have run from between parked cars into the path of a machine driven by Robert Taylor. Taylor called an ambulance and reported the affair to the police.

Four Counties To Be Represented At Worm Mee

State pink bollworm commission members representing Howard, Martin, Dawson and Andrews counties will meet in Austin November 13 to consider release from seed sterilization and bait fumigation restrictions provided no worms are discovered in the meantime.

An arena embracing eleven counties in this section has been under federal and state regulation nearly three years without a worm being discovered until Tuesday of last week when one worm was discovered in the gin trash at Midland.

The commission met in Dallas Friday. It had been called for the specific purpose of releasing the entire area, but the Midland discovery prevented it.

Members of the commission present were Chairman Harris W. K. Crawford, Lamesa; W. W. Porter, Colorado; John H. Roegner, Grand Falls; D. S. Beeman, Fort Stockton; M. Del Curo, chief entomologist of the Texas Department of Agriculture and J. D. Glass, newly appointed commissioner for Midland county, who arrived shortly before the commission adjourned at noon.

Others attending were George B. Terrell, Texas Commissioner of Agriculture; F. S. Fawcett, chief entomologist after the federal department, San Antonio; and D. M. McEachern, federal inspector who found the pink bollworm at Midland.

Mr. McDonald stated that since the live worm had been found at a Midland gin through the agency of one of the new gin trash machines set up by the federal and state governments, ten scouts have been put to active work "for more worms in cotton fields surrounding Midland. It had been believed generally that, in view of the severe temperatures of last winter, that there was little likelihood of finding any pink bollworms, but it now has been established that at least one worm managed to escape and it is not unlikely that others will be found. This, of course, changes the entire attitude toward the regulations. These will continue as heretofore.

It was suggested by the commission that the Texas law governing the pink bollworm control be amended, since it specifies that what-ever quarantine measures be proclaimed must be governed by the finding of a live pink bollworm in a cotton field. The efficient new gin trash machines isolate the worms at the gins, but without any clue as to from which field the insects have come.

Mr. Crawford, representing Dawson county, was insistent that his county be released this fall because no infestation had been found there for nearly three years, but Mr. McDonald and Mr. Del Curo dissented from this view for the reason that, with the approach of winter weather pink bollworms become very active, seeking a place to hibernate against the cold, and are therefore easily discovered in the gin trash machines, which remove the insects from trash with the cotton.

City Tax Notices Not On Delinquent Items

Tax notices mailed last week by the City of Big Spring are not to be confused with notices of taxes grown delinquent, the city manager's office declares.

These notices list the total in taxes due by each firm or individual on the rolls and taxes listed thereon will not become delinquent until February 1, 1931.

Taxes listed on these notices are payable now and through January 31, 1931.

MISTRIAL DECLARED

AMARILLO, Texas, Oct. 25 (AP)—A mistrial was entered in federal court in the case of John Herford White, former attorney and former state representative, who was charged with forgery, the jury failing to agree yesterday. It was alleged that White signed the name of Mrs. Mary Hughes of Borger to a government compensation check for $4.

Investigations of Politics And Banking At Conroe Bring Forth Startling Series of Developments

CONROE, Texas, Oct. 25 (AP)—Developments in Montgomery county's tense political situation and the investigation of the Farmers and Merchants State bank came rapidly today.

After a day marked by frequent filing of charges in connection with the bank investigation, which included also a probe into the affairs of the First State bank, merged with the Farmers and Merchants bank a year ago, three men faced felony complaints.

Those charged included A. W. Morris, suspended county judge of Montgomery county; J. M. Griffith, cashier of the Farmers and Merchants State bank; and Leo Buddie, former assistant cashier of the First State bank of Conroe.

Griffith was charged in two cases of embezzlement and with the theft of records of the bank. The latter charge was filed in connection with the burning of the bank's ledgers on Oct. 18.

He was arrested this morning on a warrant charging him with the embezzlement of $1,000 on Feb. 27, 1929, and with the burning of the bank records. He was released after supplying bond in the amount of $500 in each case. Early tonight Griffith was re-arrested and charged in a second embezzlement case on a warrant charging misapplication of $300 on March 18, 1929. He was then taken into custody by Ranger Sergeant Wheatley and Private Aldrich.

Buddie was arrested during the afternoon on charges of embezzlement and misapplication of public money. The warrant alleged he altered a check of the Conroe Independent school district by raising the amount $100 on March 24, 1929, according to County Attorney A. A. Turner. He was subjected to a lengthy questioning by Sergeant Wheatley and Ranger Aldrich.

Wheatley, a leading figure in Montgomery county politics for 20 years, was at liberty under bond today after his arrest Friday night on charges of embezzlement and misapplication of money while he was cashier of the First State Bank of Conroe. The 56-year-old magistrate this afternoon resumed his campaign for county judge against R. H. Weatherly, democratic nominee, by addressing citizens of Montgomery at 2 p. m. and making another vigorous political speech at Dobbin at 4 p. m. assailing what he termed political enemies "who are working to have me disqualified as county judge."

During his address in the western part of the county at Montgomery, the suspended judge vehemently denied all charges set forth in two warrants charging him with embezzlement and misapplication of funds. Ten charges of official misconduct lodged against him last Saturday by a committee of citizens, which caused his temporary removal from office on an order by District Judge S. A. McFall.

He intimated he would file a general demurrer to the charges contained in the petition which caused his removal last week when the case is called for trial Monday.

Judge Morris explained he will be entitled to a hearing before a jury on the ouster proceedings during the fall session of district court. Court will open in Conroe on Nov. 3, one day before the general election, in which Judge Morris hopes to be named county judge.

"During my career in politics in this county," Judge Morris said, "I have made some warm friends and some very bitter enemies. I am now reaping the benefits of some of the favors I bestowed."

Conroe streets were crowded this afternoon as small groups of Montgomery county farmers and men from logging camps stood on corners and in back alleys discussing the situation.

9,252,011 Bales Reported Ginned During Season

WASHINGTON, Oct. 25 (AP)—Cotton ginned from the growth of 1930 prior to October 15 was announced today by the census bureau to have totaled 9,252,011 running bales, including 272,526 round bales, counted as half bales, and 7,338 bales of American Egyptian excluding lint.

To that date last year, 9,994,771 running bales, including 280,119 round bales and 7,801 bales of American Egyptian was ginned, and in 1928 ginnings to that date totaled 11,512,771 running bales, including 394,742 round bales and 9,918 bales of American Egyptian.

Ginnings by states to October 15 were: Alabama 965,245; Arizona 11,308; Arkansas 515,763; California 53,676; Florida 45,836; Georgia 1,191,423; Louisiana 532,696; Mississippi 917,409; Missouri 99,682; New Mexico 33,934; North Carolina 464,812; Oklahoma 444,246; South Carolina 667,927; Tennessee 201,065; Texas 3,051,515; Virginia 21,408; All other states, 3,246.

LUBBOCK, Oct. 25 (AP)—Creed Clements, 38, Lynn county farmer, was believed dying tonight from gunshot wounds suffered when a shotgun he was pulling through a fence was discharged and the shot struck his abdomen. He was brought here to a hospital but surgeons said he was in such serious condition they could not operate.

Paris Fetes Coste, Mate

PARIS, Oct. 25 (AP)—The welcome of France was extended today to Deudonne Coste and Maurice Bellonte, returning transatlantic fliers, in France's most hearty fashion.

President Gaston Doumergue and Premier Andre Tardieu spoke the greetings and praise of the nation for its beloved war ace and his mate. There were elaborate ceremonies at the Elysee Palace and a similar function at city hall. As a special mark of commemoration the French government also included in the honors of the day elevation of Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh to the rank of a commander in the Legion of Honor.

The valorous birdmen, taking off from Hiesville Field, Havre, shortly before midday, flew into Le Bourget, from whence their transatlantic voyage to the new world had its beginning, in their airplane, the Question Mark, in which they had planned the sea.

Thousands of enthusiastic persons greeted the heroes at the flying field and thrilled as Coste gave them a sensational exhibition of flying acrobatics just before making a landing.

France made a national holiday of the homecoming, and in Paris, hundreds of thousands of persons swarmed the streets.

In conferring upon the heroes of the sky the promotions which the government had granted them in their absence, President Doumergue said, "I want to felicitate you, how did you do it?"

"It was just like crossing the Rue de Faubourg St. Honore," Coste replied.

Mary Coste and Diana Bellonte, the latter of whom had suffered a collapse at the flying field but had recovered in a few hours, said: "Are we happy? Yes."

German Ship Shelled At Rio

BERLIN, Oct. 25 (AP)—The shelling of the German steamship Baden in Rio de Janeiro harbor yesterday, resulting in the reported death of 20 persons on board and injuries to 35, aroused German editorial opinion today to demand that a proposed Brazilian investigation be thorough.

It is felt here that the action of Brazilian gunners in the fortress Capacaaba who fired the shot almost incomprehensible, although it is said in some quarters Brazilian political figures were aboard at the time, fleeing from the military coup d'etat which overthrew the government of President Washington Luis.

The whole affair is shrouded in mystery, since no direct news dispatches have come from Rio de Janeiro. Presumably because of the strict censorship imposed by the military junta and the foreign office has had only fragmentary advices from German envoys in Brazil.

Advices from the German legation in the Brazilian capital related that a shell from fortress Capacaaba hit the Baden yesterday as it steamed out for Buenos Aires. The message gave no information as to casualties, but added that members of the legation staff immediately went aboard, and said Brazilian revolutionary authorities explained that they had intended the shot merely as a warning, hitting the vessel accidentally. The Brazilian ministry of justice claimed the ship displayed no flag.

Later the steamer itself notified its home office that 18 persons had been killed, or wounded by the shot, while still later the Brazilian legation here gave out the figures of 20 killed and 35 wounded at the same time expressing regret over the affair and promising an investigation.

The Hamburg America office tonight said they did not see how the commander of the Baden, Captain Rhin, could have been at fault. He was described as one of the most able of the line's skipper.

The Baden, outward bound from Hamburg, is a vessel of 8,800 tons. It originally was intended for the New York service.

City Manager Plan Approved At Sweetwater

SWEETWATER, Oct. 25.—Sweetwater is to retain its city manager form of government.

In a special election here yesterday, a proposed amendment to the city charter asking repeal of the city manager section was defeated by a vote of 693 to 109.

The election concluded a four weeks campaign in which those favoring and opposing the proposed amendment were equally active.

The commission-manager form of government was approved by Sweetwater citizens three years ago, by a vote of 515 to 205.

Taking Receiver In Hand, Texas Girl Marries Via 600 Miles of Wire

GALVESTON, Oct. 25 (AP)—Clutching a telephone receiver in her hand instead of the customary bridal bouquet, Mrs. Laura Cook of Galveston was married to Fred E. Dixon of Oklahoma City at noon today in the first long distance telephone wedding to be held in Texas since the three-day marriage law went into effect.

The ceremony, performed by Justice of the Peace Randolph Pierson, was held in the local telephone office before a crowd of about 30 relatives and friends of the bride and curious employees of the telephone company. A special hookup with four hand sets, one for the bride, one for the justice of the peace and one each for the two witnesses was rigged up at this end of the line. Miss Virginia Gwin and W. H. Gardner of the editorial staff of the Galveston News acted as witnesses.

Dixon's replies to the questions of Justice Pierson came clearly over the almost 600 miles of wire. The entire ceremony was completed within five minutes after the change from 8 o'clock in the time of meeting. It is urged that the full membership attend.

Immediately after the wedding the bride, who is a trained nurse, took off for Oklahoma City in a special plane. She said that as soon as her husband, who was injured recently in an automobile accident, has recovered sufficiently they will return here to live.

A telephone report from Oklahoma City tonight stated that the plane arrived there at 8:20 p. m. after an uneventful trip.

Olton Position On New Railroad Given In Detail

OLTON, Oct. 23.—In a statement issued by the Olton Chamber of Commerce publicity committee the organization endeavors to make clear in the minds of the public the attitude of the Olton railroad committee in regard to the construction of the proposed new Texas and Pacific line.

The statement follows:

As is well known, the Texas and Pacific Railway Company proposes to build a line from Big Spring through Lamesa, Brownfield, Levelland, Littlefield, Dimmitt, Hereford and Vega; also into Lubbock and Amarillo. It comes to our attention that Olton has intervened against the building of this proposed line. This is not true, but Olton has intervened in behalf of Olton, and will ask the Interstate Commerce Commission to order the road to be built through Olton.

Pioneer South Plains Town

And why should not the Texas and Pacific serve Olton? Olton is one of the pioneer towns of the South Plains and is the only county seat town of this great section that is not now served by a railroad. Many of the old settlers still live here, having patiently waited and endured the hardships of a pioneer life upon the Western prairies, looking forward to a brighter day when the coming of a railroad would bring them the conveniences and comforts that the more fortunate towns have been able to realize.

Again we ask why this proposed line should not serve Olton? This proposed line passes through every county seat town except Olton along its route. Every other town through which it passes is already served by a railroad.

We think that it should be the purpose in the construction of railroads to serve the unserved territory. This line as now proposed does not connect with many towns between Littlefield and Dimmitt. Some say that other towns can be built. But is it right to build this line only a few miles west of Olton and to cut off all hope of a railroad? Is it right to tear down communities that are already well established in order to build up a new community? Is it right to add more burdensome taxes upon the people that are already heavily burdened?

Growth Is Anticipated

Olton, as we have already stated and as most every one knows, is the county seat of Lamb county. She has a splendid courthouse of brick, a population, according to the 1920 census, of 654; a number of brick business houses; three cotton gins; two lumber yards; and the many other business enterprises that are found in growing communities. The Olton school system is the pride of the entire community. The plant is valued at $100,000 and is caring for more than 700 boys and girls of the community. Remember that all this has been accomplished without a railroad. With the coming of a railroad, it is reasonable to expect Olton to grow to a town of two or three thousand population within a short time. The productivity of the soil in the surrounding territory can not be excelled and the tonnage furnished by this territory now would be increased tenfold by the additional truckage it would take to come this way.

Remember that Olton is not fighting against the building of this line; but Olton is fighting for its homes and firesides. Olton is not trying to pull the road from any established town. Olton is only fighting for its rights. Olton wants to show that if the proposed railroad will be routed through its territory that the best interest of the public will be served and that justice will have prevailed.

16,960 Barrels Total Crude Run To Local Plants

Tabulation of crude runs to West Texas refineries for the week ending October 18 shows that 16,960 barrels of the total of 26,279 barrels was run to the four refineries located here. Of this amount 10,797 was to the Cosden plant.

Prices Paid For Polo Horse Flesh Will Roger's Topic

Will's going to keep on playing.

Well all I know is just what I read in the papers. I was just sitting here tonight reading a very beautiful Horse Magazine called "Polo." It is the issue that tells of the great International Match played between England and America, and it gives the very detail of each play, and also tells of the sale of the horses after the match. You know I was just thinking it might be interesting to some of you to know something especially about the horses, for you don't have to be a Polo Nut to be interested in good horses.

There was $335,000 worth of horses sold at public auction after the games. The British sold 48 head for $183,400. The Americans sold 36 head for $151,600. The British averaged pretty near $4,000 a horse. The Americans only about $2,000 and the Australians $3,000. The reason the Americans didn't bring as much was the fact that most of the best horses played by the American team was private owned and was not put up for sale at all. The ones sold were just the ones that were owned by the Polo Association.

The games are pulled off under the management of the U. S. Polo Association. They guarantee the British team their transportation and expenses and all which is taken out of the Gate receipts and this year the Association had themselves bought up quite a string of Ponies for our team. Heretofore they had depended entirely on the generosity of other players loaning their best horses to the big team, but this year they bought some themselves, and sold them after the games. The Australians didn't of course play in the big matches but they had brought a great team over here who had created quite a fuss over in England. It was composed entirely of Brothers, four young men from 22 to 38 the Ashton Brothers, and their Father and Mother were with them. They had a very fine string of Ponies, were supposed to be a little smaller than our Boys have been playing. But they were very handy, and a lot of them were so well reigned that you could play them in a snaffle bit.

Of course some individuals sold their horses. Charley Wrightman a fine young Sportsman and member of our Club out here on the coast was good enough to mount Eric Pedley, the sensation of the games, and a fellow Coast Player, Eric had gone back there to try out a time or two before in International matches, but he never had a proper chance for he was not properly mounted, but this time Charley sent back twenty head just for Eric to play through the test matches on.

You know a horse is really from 60 to 70 percent of the game. That's about the ratio the Experts figure it. If you can't beat a man to the ball why there is no use going. Its speed, and more speed that counts with those big League fellows. Us Punks can leap around and have a lot of fun on a pack of old Hounds, but if we was among these fast fellows we would get run over.

Most of the Horses that make those big games are Thoroughbreds, or three quarters so. An awful lot of them are bred and raised on Western ranches, and lots of them have been a recreation or hobby of a lot of rich people, but its been a God-send to the Horse business. Its has done more to establish the breeding of good horses than even races have. Now it is a big business, and there is dozens of men just prowling all over the west buying likely "prospects" for Polo. The game is growing so fast and the demand for horses so great that its a real business now.

The Argentine has really furnished more horses to our International game than we have. They have been breeding good Horses down there for years. I was down there in 1901 and I saw well bred Horses on ranches then, while we was breeding nothing but just old range Ponies, I worked my way on a Stock boat to South Africa from Buenos Aires and we had on board a couple of hundred thoroughbred horses to restock a ranch in Africa after the Boer War.

White Slave an English bred mare played by the English brought $13,000 Bucks, that was the top price, bought by Laddie Sanford. Lady Luck, another English one, owned and played by Lewis Lacey, the great Argentine and English player brought $10,000, and an Australian mare Isabel, $10,000. Course lots of them brought 1500 and a thousand, but even at that price you are sitting on quite an expensive hunk of horseflesh. And you cant always tell the ones you give the more for may not turn out to be the best. Its sorter what suits certain men. No two humans are the same and no two horses either. Nobody can look at a horse and tell what he is worth, he is worth to you just how good he is to you and how bad you want him and how well he suits you.

Why would any horse be worth the same to any two people? All the Colleges have taken up Polo now, and thats a great boost for it, and this thing of its costing all this money is a lot of money. You can buy three or four old fifty dollar crow bates and have as much fun with the game as Jock Whitney, or Laddie Sanford, who each have perhaps from a quarter, to a half million just in their Polo Strings alone. That half million to them is just like up buying an extra bowl of Chili. The boy on the sand lot gets just as big a kick out of a home run as Babe Ruth, and the Dub Polo Player on a hired horse gets just as much kick out of making a goal as Hitchcock.

Its a great game, and it learns you to ride quicker than anything off earth for when you start hitting at the ball you forget about how you are going to stay on, you just do it unconsciously. Age don't keep you from playing it. Arthur Carey, Babes Father-in-law, Steward Carey, he is in his seventys. Plays twice a week at Meadowbrook. It was 51 Saturday and played Sunday, (after coming from Sunday School). I didnt play good, but I had as much fun missing, as the others did hitting. I am going to play till my whiskers get tangled up in the horses tail.

Highway Patrol Arrests 3,503 In 6-Month Period

AUSTIN, Texas, Oct. 25 UP—During the six-month period ending Sept. 1, the state highway patrol made 3,503 arrests and issued 60,949 warnings, according to a report by L. G. Phares, chief of the patrol. During the six months the 50 officers and men of the patrol traveled 830,507 miles, or more than 33 times around the world.

One of the interesting facts shown by the report was the number of arrests made for operating with defective lights. The report showed that 1,135 arrests were made on this charge. Phares estimating the number of accidents from this cause being reduced, in some instances, as high as 50 per cent. Four hundred and six drunken drivers were arrested.

Miscellaneous arrests totaled 639, distributed as follows: damage to highway, 10; defective brakes, 17; hit and run drivers, 22; mirror ordinance, 59; muffler ordinance, 45; overwidth, and over weight, 242; parking on highway, 82; speeding, 157.

Commenting on the small number of arrests made for overweight and over-width, Phares said the majority of arrests in cases of this nature were made by weight inspectors since the patrol did not have scales and equipment to properly weigh the trucks. The 242 arrests represented the number arrested by the patrol on suspicion and then found to be overweight, he explained.

The report said the patrol removed 6,034 obstructions from the highways and gave information to 18,445 motorists.

A total of 30,273 warnings was issued to motorists with defective lights, while 10,172 miscellaneous warnings were issued. Other warnings issued were: damage to highway, 137; drunken drivers, 359; defective brakes, 3,542; hit and run drivers, 3; mirror ordinance, 4,503; muffler ordinance, 242; over-width and over-weight, 1,984; parking on highway, 6,686; speeding, 1,687.

Imported Fruit Trees Thrive In West Texas Soil

ABILENE, Texas, Oct. 25 UP—Fruit trees imported from various countries of the world do well in West Texas, and, in some instances, produce heavier fruit and foliage than native trees, experiments conducted by J. R. Masterman, former county farm agent here, under the direction of the United States department of agriculture, reveal.

During the past summer, one of the driest on record in this part of the state, Masterman had under observation, more than 200 fruit trees, imported from China, New Zealand, Japan, England, Russia, The Isle of Pines, and other parts of the world, in addition to 24 varieties of grapes which the government brought from France and Spain.

The test, according to Masterman, was one of the most severe that could be possible by nature, and although irrigation facilities were available, no water from artificial sources was applied.

Varieties of fruit trees included apricots, new hybrid plums, hybrid berries, persimmons, peaches and the Chinese Ju-Jube, the latter of which produces a date-like fruit. The Ju-Jube grows exceptionally thrifty in this climate, and its fruit is fine, Masterman said.

The object of the experiment was to determine whether or not foreign trees are adapted to the climate in West Texas. Of the trees under the test, only five died, most of which were peaches and plums that came from countries with a heavier annual rainfall than this part of the state.

"I have found that Chinese peaches grow three times as rapidly as the American varieties, and indications are that they are well adapted to our weather conditions," Masterman said.

"From these experiments, I have come to believe that West Texas can raise a large amount of fruits by adapting those from countries with similar climatic conditions."

King Boris Weds Princess Giovanna In Quaint, Mystic Assisi, Bringing A Royal Family At Last To The Romantic Bulgar Nation

ASSISI, Italy, Oct. 25.—A queenly princess and a Democratic king were joined together in this medieval town to give romantic Bulgarians a royal couple long desired.

The marriage of the 23-year-old princess, Giovanna of Italy, and the 37-year-old king, Boris III, Oct. 25 at the sacred tomb of St. Francis of Assisi was a panoplied occasion of pomp and ceremony.

Assisi, ordinarily a quiet little city, still containing a temple to Minerva, already is imbued with the mystical spirit of one of the most fascinating characters of church history—St. Francis, who founded the Franciscan order of cowled monks and whose disciple, St. Claire, inspired a sisterhood of humble nuns.

It is cherished by the princess. For St. Francis was baptized Giovanna, the masculine form of Giovanna, and the devout princess has been a frequent visitor to the church of San Francesco where his thirteenth century tomb lies.

Once she gave it an altar cloth embroidered by her noble hands and now she will kneel with her foreign bridegroom under the famous frescoes.

The match has been four years in the making. Giovanna, third daughter of the sovereigns of Italy, was born November 13, 1907, and soon became known as the most queenly of the princesses of the House of Savoy.

Of medium height and stately carriage, she has thick black hair and well-formed features, with and the somewhat small, deep-set, almond shaped eyes of her mother's Montenegrin ancestors.

The intellectual of the royal family, her interests are literature and art. But she is tremendously fond of the outdoors, of tennis and of motorcycling, frequently driving her own car. She dances and she interests herself in modern things. Yet she tends in dress to be old-fashioned.

When King Boris and Princess Giovanna of Italy wed October 25 in the basilica of St. Francis of Assisi, Bulgaria will have the royal family it has so long desired.

Boris, tall and handsome, was 24 when, in 1918, his father bolted from his kingdom, aware that the Austrian and German armies, with which his troops were allied, had been beaten in the war. The accession of Boris was received with great joy by the populace. Boris, largely by his democratic ways, weathered subsequent political unrest and revolution, although narrowly escaping assassination.

Boris is said to be the lowest paid king. His allowance is a meager $43,000 a year, of which he has been giving half to charity. He has no personal fortune. The Italian royal family is reputed to be extremely wealthy.

Boris cares nothing for festivals, receptions or balls. He prefers reading, quiet physical exercises and automobile travel.

His hobby is railroading. He frequently takes the throttle of locomotives and journeys and has a narrow gauge railroad on his palace grounds.

He has, too, a menagerie at the palace and one of the finest collections of butterflies and insects. He is fond of dogs, is an expert in zoology and botany and is his own gardener. He speaks English excellently.

Intensely religious, Princess Giovanna and her sister, Mafalda, announced when Giovanna was 15 years old that they would never marry, but desired instead to enter a convent and take the veil.

Boris' name was first linked with Giovanna's in 1926. It also was mentioned in connection with the names of a dozen other eligible maidens of noble lineage.

So insistent was the search for a consort that a European tour was supposed to have been undertaken for the sole purpose of finding a wife. It was even reported that Boris was willing to marry an American girl, providing she was rich and beautiful. Finally Boris became bored with the persistence of these rumors and began to object to their repetition.

Mrs. D. E. Crouser Entertains With Hallowe'en Bridge Shower In Honor Of Mrs. R. H. Oldham

Mrs. D. E. Crouser entertained at her home on Douglas street Friday afternoon with a bridge shower in honor of Mrs. R. H. Oldham, who is leaving soon for Roswell, N. M.

Mrs. Crouser carried out Halloween colors and motif in decorations, refreshments and bridge accessories.

When the guests arrived they were told to hunt for their tallies, which were tied to Hallowe'en horns. Following this bridge was played.

Mrs. J. O. Barker won high score. Mrs. H. Miller won low and Mrs. Raymond Winn won high cut. These three women presented their prizes to Mrs. Oldham.

After the bridge each guest was given a colored ribbon streamer, which she followed to the end. On the guests' streamers the surprise was an "old witch" lollipop. Mrs. Oldham found a basket of gift tied in Hallowe'en colors, at the end of her ribbon.

Hallowe'en refreshments were served to the following guests: Mesdames Charles Davis, J. A. Magee, Bob Eubanks, Howard Vincent, Raymond Winn, C. C. Carter, A. M. Underwood, J. O. Barker, Emory Duff, M. H. Miller of Houston, Charles McCullar, T. J. Higgins, J. H. Rives, M. L. Tinsley, Jesse Seale, T. L. Danner, L. C. Knight, Charles Lozano, Jack Nall and R. H. Oldham.

Mrs. A. F. Johnson Has Progressive Sewing Club

The club will meet next with Mrs. O. L. Page, 905 East Thirtieth street.

MODIST MAIDENS

Baby Is Born With 6 Teeth In Month; Rare Case Sdy Medicos

SAN ANTONIO, Oct. 26 (INS)—John M. Winters is one proud father who will of pound the floor far into the night with a teething baby. For ten-day-old Margaret Winters was born with six teeth in the lower jaw.

The attending physician declared the case a rare one in medical history. No other San Antonio baby is ever known to have had the distinction of being born with teeth.

Little Margaret is entirely normal and healthy, the physician said. Recorded in medical annals is one case where for three generations a baby was born with teeth.

His hobby is railroading. He frequently takes the throttle of locomotives and journeys and has a narrow gauge railroad on his palace grounds.

He has, too, a menagerie at the palace and one of the finest collections of butterflies and insects. He is fond of dogs, is an expert in zoology and botany and is his own gardener. He speaks English excellently.

Miss Boyce Is Candidate For District Clerk

Miss Julia (Johnnie) Boyce, candidate for district clerk, lifelong resident of Howard county and known by most of its people through her service as a teacher in schools of Comstock, Big Spring and rural districts, Saturday issued an appeal to the voters of the county to write her name in the independent ticket on the ballot of the general election to be held November 4.

Miss Boyce has made a strenuous campaign in every voting precinct and her friends declare her reputation for unusual efficiency in whatever position she is placed assures the public that if elected to this office the interest of every resident will be well served.

This office was created automatically by the size of the vote in the primary for governor in the summer primaries. It will be necessary, therefore, for names of the voters' choices for the office to be written in on the ballot.

Interesting Features For Men And Women, Young And Old

By ONA REACAN PARSONS
"CONQUEST"
By Jack O'Connor
(Harper and Bros.)

This is put out with a blazing red, yellow and black jacket destined to catch the roving eye of any uncertain reader at the book stalls. On the cover is a paragraph that sounds like a blurb from "True and Honest Confessions"; such expressions as "dared to lift the veil," etc., etc.

So you know it is going to be an interesting book.

Well, it is.

It is a story of the settlement of early Arizona when the white man brought civilization at the point of his muzzle-loader and killed an Indian as nonchalantly as he would a prairie chicken.

We are sorry we don't know Arizona well enough to tell you what city in the state Pendleton City is. We have our own ideas; but the publishers did not know any more than we did and we haven't time to write to Alpine and ask the author about it.

"Hell-on-Wheels"

Pendleton City was named after the big boss in the story, whose better known nickname was "Hell-on-Wheels." He was just an ordinary adventurous rover of no particular connections anywhere but with a surprising social inferiority complex. (That was his only flaw.) He was a good shot; he learned to out-trick the Indians; he loved Arizona with a genuine and respectful devotion so that he saw before others did what his future would be; he had no scruples of any kind to hold him back. His was the law of the frontier, the unwritten custom of primitive settlements that might makes right. In short, he was the typical successful survivor of the frontier.

We have been so long accustomed to glorified accounts of these early frontiers of ours that such a book as this comes with a shock. It is hard for a writer of the present day to put himself in the period of an earlier age and to understand that a man who was overbearing with Indians and overbearing with women; that a man who was willing to put up with the hardships of the Southwest in the years before the Civil War had to be a man who feared neither God nor the devil nor the redskins because he had confidence in his ability to outwit them all.

No Exception

Pendleton was this kind of a man. When he wanted a wife he married the prostitute he was in love with, she was the only available material. When she left him and he found he had never been legally married he took a Mexican woman into his house without troubling to go through with a ceremony. When times became more civilized and he saw a white woman he wanted to marry, he sent away and he went through the process of law to make her his wife. What he did everyone else was doing. He was no exception in carelessness and brutality. If he had any qualms the country would have got him—or he would have left it.

This is another of those books that your friends will borrow and that will go the rounds of their acquaintances before you see it again.

"GREEN MAGIC"
By Julie Closson, Kenly D. A. Appleton and Co.

When mothers ask for something to read to their children we always wonder why they do not more often choose books about the flowers, the stars, the stones—something that they will enjoy getting information from at the same time they are imparting it.

This story, "Green Magic," is a story about flowers. Its chapter headings are seeds, roots, stems, fruit, stems. It is a simple little botany lesson that any mother and any child can easily understand.

It will give also, something worth while to return to, for children will remember the strange wonderful things they learn about the growth of flowers and trees and make use of the material every day.

These publishers, D. Appleton and Co., specialize in out of door books. They put out some very splendid books for young people about animals, both wild and domesticated, about insects, birds, trees and the names of wild flowers. Any parent can buy them and learn while she is reading. The books do not require a lot of knowledge on the part of the reader. And the child's mind is filled with worthwhile facts that he will enjoy and use the rest of his life.

"Green Magic" is especially good for the rather small child. It does not give one a lot of technical terms. Each chapter is told in a story form with the flower and the flower's favorite insects as the hero and heroine.

The book is well illustrated and the print is large on heavy paper that will not wear easily. We recommend it heartily.

Boy, 13, Builds Robot—And It Works

Bobby Lambert, 13, of Columbia, S. C., has built his own robot (shown above) which answers commands.

COLUMBIA, S. C. (AP)—In the center of a tiny workshop here stands a wooden robot, almost as tall as its master, 13-year-old Bobby Lambert.

Its arm is slowly raised to the accompaniment of whirring noises from its hollow chest. "Stop," shouts Bobby, and the arm halts instantly.

Bobby explains that it's just a shop toy he built. An ordinary dial telephone starts it.

Bobby has been experimenting since he was seven years old. He is hunting a cheap substitute for gasoline.

"People think I'm crazy to do that," he says, "but they all laughed when I told them I was building a robot."

One of his achievements is a home-made radio broadcasting station from which he transmits programs for the children of the neighborhood.

He also has built an electric fire alarm system, a burglar alarm, a protective system of charged barbed wire, a lighting system for the shop and back yard, and private telephone lines. He is making a motion picture camera to produce his own reels.

Outside the shop is his railroad, a miniature line that starts ten feet from the ground, takes a sharp decline and then goes up a steep artificial grade. Children of the neighborhood pay for rides.

Boylike, he has named his handiwork for his dog, "Bugs." The shop bears the sign "Bugs River Power and Light Company." His railroad is "The Bugville & Northern."

Dust Your Old Books; You May Have A First Edition

CHICAGO, Oct. 25 (AP)—Time was when first editions of America's "household poets"—Longfellow, Holmes, Whittier, Lowell and Bryant—were to be picked up for a pittance in the bins of every second-hand book store.

For a time it was the cry of the modernists that these American "literary immortals" were outmoded.

New, however, first editions—by the men whose life and works have been studied in every American school—have leaped into the forefront of eagerly sought Americana.

Certain famous volumes, such as "Snowbound," and "Evangeline," and "The Autocrat at the Breakfast Table," but fair to rank among the leaders in desirable American books.

A copy of a first edition of "Evangeline," published in Boston in 1847, is offered for $350 in a recent catalogue. "Ultima Thule" is listed at $150.

Whittier's "Snowbound," his famous poem, fetches in the neighborhood of $300, if it is the 1866 Boston edition, of the first issue and with the last page numbered 42.

Holmes' prose, rather than his poems, are the most valuable to first edition collectors. The green cloth edition of the "Autocrat," published in Boston in 1857, has been quoted as high as $250.

James Russell Lowell's "The Blue-elbow Papers," Cambridge, 1848, is held to be worth $175. Emerson's first editions range upward to $350; those of William Cullen Bryant to $35.

A copy of Edgar Allan Poe's first volume of verse has sold as high as $25,000. There are only five known copies, and this book, "Tamerlane" is the bedrock of all American collecting interest. Hawthorne's "Scarlet Letter" commands well over $1,000; Cooper's "Last of the Mohicans" is quoted at $1,500; Washington Irving's "History of New York" written under the pseudonym of Diedrich Knickerbocker, and published in New York in 1809, lists at $750.

Winter Styles—Chic and Saucy

Jewel Colored Silks Make Appearance; The Old Standby—The Black Velvet Comes in Again

AS WINTER puts in its appearance so does the urge for new raiment beckon our peace of mind.

Our column this week will take up the odds and ends of fashion's fancies—as we have seen them and read about them.

Mrs. Ethel Holland Little of the Women's Home Companion set out many nice hints, with which we will interperse our own kindly comments.

For Afternoon

Formal afternoon dresses to wear under the all-important black coat are easy to find in the shops just now. There are many vivid jewel colored silks, many tulle blouses of light crepe or lace and a lot of Vivienne's pastel frocks, mentioned in the Style Letter sometime ago. But all these there are still the black velvets, as old as the hills perhaps but just as becoming as ever. More becoming, in fact, because most of them have bigger and better lace trimmings.

Flared Skirts

"As a general rule the skirts are fixed toward the hem and have some form of intricate seaming. On the sleeves is placed most of the trimming. One dress with a perfectly simple neckline has wide sleeves banded with wide strips of white needle-point lace—most effective."

"On another dress the sleeves below the elbow flare into a wide expanse of cream colored Alencon lace to correspond with the cowl neckline of the same lace. Softly draped cowl necklines are almost as important a style feature as fancy sleeves. I thought a particularly charming one was of white georgette bordered with a narrow strip of ermine fur. The pointed cuffs set high on the sleeves were also of white georgette and ermine."

"Babies Bonnets"

"In Paris Reboux has come out with a collection of her newest ideas in hats designed especially for her private clientele; not for American buyers, although the styles will undoubtedly get over here in time. Some of them she calls "Bibiche" hats and Madame Revilla says they look for all the world like babies' bonnets. Narrow brims turned a little back from the face and set way back on the head so that plenty of hair shows. One of these is black felt, the brim prettily faced with pale pink panne velvet."

Every one of the new hats at Reboux carries a little feather fancy of some kind, tucked under the brim or standing out of the crown like a shaving brush. A turquoise pom-pom peeking out from under a brown felt, for instance.

Simple brimmed felts are still shown for sports wear. Although Madame Revilla writes that the smartest are not made of plain felt but of novelty felts, one of them has a sort of waffle pattern, and another looks like a diagonal striped cloth.

Astrakhan

Black and white astrakhan fur were combined in a Russian cap shape. Dull black fallie, incrustated with pale blue fallie was made for one customer to wear with a black ensemble and pale blue blouse. Many other materials appear in the collection as well. One of the most successful turbans, which has already made its debut at the Ritz, uses sheer woolen with velvet brocade polka dots—black and white with a bit of aquamarine.

Tricornees, as I said a few weeks ago, are appearing around New York in fashions they are fast becoming too popular to be exclusive. But I saw one of special appeal. It was just the wisps of a little hat perched on the back of the head in a delightful way with the slightest suggestion of a tricorne effect. Pale Linden green felt, it was, to match the suit trimmed with large cuffs and a scarf collar of heavier fur.

Last week—already—Cheney Brothers opened their collection of southern resort silks. The City Noises Louder Than Lion's Roar

The lion's roar, the loudest sound known to man, is not as loud as many modern city noises, scientists find while a modern city's ordinary sounds are a lion's roar.

BY HOWARD W. BLAKESLEE
(Associated Press Science Editor)

NEW YORK (AP)—A few scientific tests by the New York City noise abatement commission show that modern man has set up a babel worse than primitive man's.

Scientists' most terrific sound—noise—was measured. In a test of the terms, 87 decibels, 87 being the sound that can barely be heard. A Bengal tiger's roar is 110 decibels.

Southern Woman Whittles Present For Mrs. Hoover

CHARLOTTE, N. C.—All of the affection of an elderly woman, the granddaughter of a Revolutionary soldier, is contained in a gift made by her own hands and presented to Mrs. Herbert Hoover during the sequentennial exercises at King's Mountain.

Many hours of painstaking work and the experience of her long years went into the making of the lovely gift, which consists of two hand-carved candlesticks made by Mrs. Lucinda Dick Moore from red cedar wood grown near the scene of the battle 150 years ago.

Mrs. Moore, who lives at the home of her nephew, T. R. E. Oates of Gastonia, made the candlesticks herself with nothing more than a small penknife as a tool. They bear a bunch of grapes and a bunch of figs in relief and have figures of birds in a circle around the bases. Mrs. Moore developed a talent for whittling early in her childhood and uses much of her spare time with a sharp knife and pieces of soft wood.

Mrs. Moore's ancestors, the "Packs," came from Germany to Pennsylvania, and thence to Gastonia county. She still has the old family Bible, printed in German and dated 1822.

Gish Sisters Buy Twin Paris Frocks To Settle Question

PARIS (AP)—"You order it." "No, you order it."

In the end both girls ordered it—one in blue and one in brown.

The girls were Dorothy and Lillian Gish on a hopping expedition in Paris.

The dress which they liked so well that they both had one made like it, is a sport model with a hemline finished with a bow tie of the dress material.

Marion Davies will wear a nutria lined dark brown coat striped with blue this fall. It is a full-length straight model.

She bought it in Paris at a couturier's shop that specializes in clothes for active sports women.

The coat has a matching skirt and a blue cashmere jersey blouse of the same color as the stripe in the material.

Dawson County Farmer Captures Large Eagle

LAMESA, Oct. 25.—A new form of sport has been discovered in this section. Jim E. Hughes, farmer, residing 23 miles west of Lamesa sighted an eagle on his place one rainy morning recently, and gave chase in his car. After pursuing the eagle for sometime, he finally caught it. Evidently the rain had soaked the bird until he could only fly short distances, before being forced to land, then to fly again. The eagle measured six feet six inches from tip to tip of wings.

How Is Your HEALTH?

Edited by Dr. Iago Goldstein for the New York Academy of Medicine

THE B. C. G. VACCINE
The study of the cause, cure and prevention of certain diseases requires years of effort and long and repeated testings and testings of hypothesis experiments and results.

From time to time the affairs of the laboratory reach public notice and often evoke much wonder.
Such is the case with the B. C. G. vaccine against tuberculosis which recently has attracted much public attention, partly because of the controversy raging among scientists over its efficacy.

B. C. G. stands for Bacillus Calmette Guerin. This is a living tubercle bacillus which, according to Calmette, is unable to produce the disease tuberculosis, but can, when used as a vaccine, increase the body's resistance against tuberculosis.

The B. C. G. vaccine now is being experimented with abroad and in a few American cities. It is applied only to infants of tuberculous parents who run great chances of being infected by their parents.

The vaccine is fed to the infants during the first few weeks of life.
Dr. Calmette, who has conducted these experiments in France for a number of years, reports that his vaccine is effective in protecting such exposed youngsters. Their death rate from tuberculosis, he claims, is much lower than that prevailing among the unvaccinated infants of tuberculous parents.

The B. C. G. experiment still is in an inconclusive state, but it is hoped that in time, and perhaps through just such means as the B.
C. G., we may find a safe and effective method of vaccinating against tuberculosis.

WHEN THE GOING'S AT ITS WORST

by OSCAR HITT

THE ROSE IN THE DARK

BY ROY VICKERS

SYNOPSIS: Hallie Elmore, beautiful young nurse, falls in love with Saxon Grannock, nicknamed "Socks," during a chance meeting on a cliff above Long Island Sound, although she is already engaged to Lester Brown, Grannock's younger half-brother. Grannock cannot see her clearly, as he has eye trouble and is soon to undergo an operation which will either restore or ruin his sight. Hence he refuses to let her tell her name, but gives her a tiny ivory rose as a love token. Unknown to Grannock, Hallie becomes his night nurse during the treatment, and must notify Dr. Lytton when certain symptoms develop. Lester, coming home drunk, holds Hallie captive in another room until past time to call the doctor and Grannock goes blind. Disgruntled, Hallie breaks with Lester, but he refuses to give her up. Outside the house she meets Grannock by accident, and hearing her voice he recognizes her as the unknown girl he met on the cliff. She cannot bring herself to disillusion him by revealing herself as the nurse who blinded him, and evades his questions regarding her name. She pleads with Dr. Lytton to help maintain the delusion, believing it to be for Grannock's own best interest.

SILENT TALKIE
Von Sternberg tells his story much in the manner of the silent screen, the sound innovation being used for necessary dialog, all of which reveals character or furthers the plot, and for background sounds, and for music, a vital part of the background, in that it stirs the imagination of audience and actors alike.

The story is fairly simple. Miss Dietrich is the featured entertainer in a Moroccan cabaret where soldiers of the Foreign Legion amuse themselves off duty.

She is attracted to a young philandering Legionnaire (Cooper), while a gentleman of wealth (Adolphe Menjou) showers attentions on her.

INDIFFERENCE
Cooper being apparently indifferent to her, Miss Dietrich agrees to marry Menjou. But when she hears that her soldier is wounded, she goes to him, and Menjou accompanies her. Cooper, really loving Dietrich, is forgetting her with the aid of native beauties when they arrive.

She learns that he loves her, although he acts very impersonally toward her, and when his company soldiers out again, she leaves Menjou and joins the troupe of native women who follow in the company's wake with their "men."

That is all, but in the telling of the tale the audience is given, mostly through superb pantomime, a picture of what is going on in the minds of the three principals.

Miss Dietrich is an intriguing personality and fascinating. Cooper's performance is one of his best, and Menjou's reminds of his first screen triumph in "A Woman of Paris."

"Morocco" is Hollywood's first step toward a definite talking screen technic.

Senator's Son
Rhodes Scholar
AUSTIN, Texas, Oct. 25 (AP)—Ben Connally, son of United States Senator Tom Connally, and Hugh Dunlap of Cleburne have been certified as the University of Texas entries for a Rhodes scholarship. They will appear before the state Rhodes Scholarship committee Dec. 6.

Both Connally and Dunlap are graduates of the University of Texas and now are enrolled in the college of law. Both are members of Phi Beta Kappa, and Dunlap was varsity tennis captain in 1928.

The state committee will select two candidates to compete with candidates from Oklahoma, Alabama, Arkansas, Louisiana and Mississippi in the final selection. Four scholars are selected from each of the eight districts in the United States.

Talking Hard Times

THE mass mind sometimes speaks slowly, but its thoughts are always unconditional and possitive.

Psychology, leading financiers, agree, has a more acute effect upon business conditions than actual economic factors.

The American mass mind, therefore, would be expected to react more violently to so spectacular a thing as last year's stock market crash than to slow up or down changes in any industry.

Speculation is more attractive than conservative trading—to many of us at any rate.

Just as we become enthusiastic and spend over our heads when things look rosy, do we go to the opposite extreme when some spectacularly unfavorable incident transpires. We begin talking incessantly of hard times instead of good times.

One extreme is as bad as the other. Today, if we all stopped talking about hard times, even though our pocketbooks may be rather flat, the psychological effect would be tremendous. The actual effect upon business would be completely noticeable.

There is nothing comforting to one's self, and certainly not to his hearers, when one finds more time to talk of hard times than to figure ways and means of doing one's part toward stimulating business.

Let's work for good times. Let's stop talking of hard times. It really doesn't help things, it hurts.

OPINIONS OF OTHERS

A Buyer's Strike?

Abilene Reporter.
TO WHAT extent is a buyer's strike responsible for the business depression? Have people quit buying because they have no money, or simply because with conditions uncertain they have determined to spend less of what they have?

Be that as it may, Muskogean, Mich., conducted an experiment a few days ago the success of which has inspired emulation in other communities.

The members of the Kiwanis club of Muskogean agreed to spend $100 each in one week. They did so. Results were immediate. Merchants reported increased sales, enabling them to send in large orders to manufacturers and jobbers. Old debts by the score were paid up.
Business came alive and kicking almost overnight.

Now the Muskogean plan is spreading. Other luncheon clubs are taking it up. It was announced yesterday from Chicago that Melvin Jones secretary of Lions International, had started a movement to have each of the 85,000 members of that organization agree to spend $100 in one week, and to induce five other persons to do the same.

That runs into real money. If the plan is adopted and carried out, it will exert a powerful influence on the nation's business. Stores will be able to increase their orders, and that will mean more jobs. Back debts will be settled and depleted sales forces can be filled out.

When people quit buying and begin to hoard, trouble results for our economic fabric. Some people can not spend, of course, but the chief reason why they cannot spend is that people who can spend have ceased to do so.

We will watch the spread of this Muskogean movement with a great deal of interest. Immediately after the World War the "war" over-movement broke the price of clothing, but started a nationwide business depression that lasted for months. That proved that buyers' strike isn't with out its influence.

Winifred Sackville Stoner Now Seeks a Third Husband

Prodigy Winifred Stoner today... married twice without making it go. . . . But her enthusiasm is undimmed . . . and she hopes her experiences will help her in a third try, and also help others.

By HAZEL CANNING

FOR many years the gifted and original Winifred Sackville Stoner, First and Second, mother and daughter, have captured the imaginations of their fellow countrymen. In fact, one commentator aptly called them "the best mother and daughter team before the American public."

Dr. Winifred Sackville Stoner, the mother, was an exceedingly wealthy woman, educated at Cambridge University, the originator of a system of education by which babes, almost in arms, could be taught to scan their Vergil.

For many years "Mother" Stoner, as the elder lady liked to be called, traveled about with Winifred II, expounding her new ideas as to child training.

Winifred II spoke in three languages at the tender age of eight, and when she was examined by Professor William James, she astounded him because of the learning resting comfortably in her childish head.

Winifred II was a prodigy. Winifred I wrote books about it. "Surely," said all the world, "this little girl will live a most brilliant and successful life."

Everybody agreed. And the years passed. Then, quite suddenly, when Winifred II was in her teens, came the news of her first sudden marriage to a French nobleman, one Count de Bruche. It was an elopement, a circumstance most surprising linked up with such a superior girl as Winifred II.

A year or two passed and then, again most suddenly, came the news of Winifred's second marriage. This was said to have been the result of a dare, flung out when a group of unchaperoned young people were taking tea at a country inn. However that might have been, many agreed that the former child prodigy had married two husbands her mother would hardly have chosen for her.

Then, when a year or two later Miss Stoner applied for an annulment of the marriage to her first husband, just a short time after she had divorced her second husband, it seemed that everything matrimonially was much at crisis in the life of Winifred Sackville Stoner II.

MANY comments followed. The clever Miss Stoner, some said, must by now be a very disillusioned young woman. Surely this gifted daughter of a gifted mother would retire to her books, deciding that marriage was a delusion.

And while half the world so believed, Winifred Junior recently spoke up, with all sweet reasonableness, to demonstrate to this same world that life had not left her at all disillusioned; that she had learned good lessons from her unfortunate marriages, and that she is preparing even now to find her ideal mate.

But let the young lady tell the story in her own words:

"Experience is the great teacher," began Miss Stoner, "and since I have had great experience with marriage and husbands, I do not intend to throw my hard-earned wisdom away. I believe that in marriage alone is a woman fulfilled.

"Happy homes make happy towns, and happy towns make happy states, and happy states make a happy country, and happy countries make a happy world. But before we can have happy homes, a man and a woman must marry successfully and found that home. "And so, in looking about for a third husband, even

America's most talked-of "child prodigy" explains why her first two marriages were failures, and why . . . and how . . . she will choose another mate

"Mother" Stoner . . . taught daughter Winifred to write on a typewriter before giving her a pencil. "Mother" is shown here illustrating her method. . . . She wrote books and lectured, using Winifred as an example of her methods.

after two failures, I believe that I shall be doing the reasonable thing and the socially helpful thing, as well as the normal thing for any marriageable woman.

"The fault with my first two marriages was lack of preparation. I do not criticize my mother, for I think she did all for me that any mother could. But if, in any respect she failed, it was in being herself, and in expecting me to be too much of an altruist. I really did get rather tired of being expected to do things for my 'forlorn brothers.' From earliest childhood I was constantly reminded that this toy I did not really need; that this dress I could well give away. And my mother continued expecting me to spend much of myself for others in social service, at a time when it is more normal for a girl to be preparing, with all her forces, for her own marriage. When I was 15, again, my father and mother opened the House of Smiles, to help ex-service men. I was, of course, expected to assist there.

"IN the House of Smiles I met many young officers who were not just the kind of men I should have met. War had not helped them to become ideals for matrimony, either physically or mentally. And certainly not financially. Sadly enough, at this time, my mother gave me too much freedom. Of course she did this with the very best intentions. I am not loved and trusted me, but she did not realize that she had no jurisdiction over the young man.

"So I was precipitated into my two marriages, the first the ruin of a young girl's ideal, the second still a puzzle and an enigma. And now it happens, in the calm interregnum, that I am trying reasonably to prepare for a third marriage, which shall be all the first two failed to be.

"Perhaps the study I am now making of what I want in a third husband, and what I, myself, hope to contribute as a wife to a third marriage, may help some other young people who are very confused over the tangled relations between marrying men and women today.

"I BELIEVE I shall only make a successful third marriage by sitting down reasonably and deciding just what I want most, in a husband. I believe any girl contemplating marriage, should do the same. When she has done this, she has surely made herself a picture of her ideal.

"Then she should modestly and intelligently try to match her ideal in a living man. You may, by now, be smiling. But, after all, isn't this just about what every woman does, who makes a good marriage? Now, I suppose, I might try to describe the particular man whom I would consider for a third husband.

HE SHOULD BE
A good provider
HE SHOULD HAVE
Self-control
Tolerance
Sympathy
I WANT TO BE
Understanding, Patient, Industrious, Economical
I WANT TO HAVE Humor
A love of the beautiful
Ideality (a word coined by my mother)

"But I wish to emphasize the truth, that while I do intend to marry only a man who has most of the qualities which I believe necessary for a happy, lasting marriage, I do by no means wish to eliminate romance. Romance, most certainly, should be the keynote of any marriage, and the fact that a sensitive girl can bring herself to contemplate a third marriage indicates to me that she cherishes in her heart this precious thing. My mother declares that she has known some women of 70 still sweetly romantic. I believe this is as it should be, smile if you will. But to go on:

"My next husband, as I see him, must be big and handsome. He must know how to swim and ride and run. He must love wild places far from weary cities, even as I love them, and he must also be a man of the world, who will like to revisit with me many interesting spots where I have been before I met him.

"AND now that I have drawn a picture of him, I suppose I might say a word as to why I believe women should bring even more of the good qualities to marriage than men should bring. You see, I have listed a few more on the feminine side. The reason for this, perhaps, lies in the truth that home and marriage are a bit more of a woman's job than a man's. Women are, I believe, in marriage what Vergil described as 'dux femina facti.' (Woman the presiding genius.)

Winifred Stoner when she first married. . . . "I believe I shall only make a successful marriage by reasonably deciding what I want in a husband."

"And this brings me to some little mention of a subject which lies very near my heart. As I said earlier, I am the keen apostle of marriage. And so I think that modern women who have married once or twice unhappily, will find new courage in taking a world-wide view of marriage. Although happiness is the goal of every impetuous pair, we should none of us allow ourselves to become forever embittered, if married unhappiness has been our portion. "Rather we should compare our lot with marriages everywhere, and learn tolerance from the comparison.

"ANOTHER fallacy of marriage all girls contemplating matrimony should recognize. That is the very false idea that people of opposite tastes and traditions are best married to each other. Never was there a greater falsehood.

"I can imagine a marriage where a wife, reared in all good manners, would suffer tortures with a husband who drank his coffee noisily or handled his fork incorrectly. I can imagine a marriage where a wife suffers so much she is entitled to a divorce from a husband who blows his nose raucously or spills his food on his waistcoat. I am sure my second marriage was ill-fated, because of dissimilar tastes. I am also sure that Jill, who likes the movies, should be mated to a movie-loving Jack; and that when Jill prefers grand opera, she should find for herself a Jack who prefers grand opera, too.

"Which brings me to the last and all practical maidens will agree—the very important question: 'How will you Miss Stoner; how will maidens find an ideal mate?'

"It is a question big as human nature, and vastly important. Upon its proper answer rests the happiness of millions of girls and young men. I sadly confess that in this day when there seems to be a 'movement' to help on almost every cause, all too little kindly help has been extended to the grand army of marriageable young people who are marrying badly or not at all because society has not arranged for the meeting of suitable prospective partners.

"HOW shall we manage so that Mary, of the motherly heart, shall find for her own true love her Samuel, who was born to be a father? I wonder if the founding of intimate little social centers, scattered all over our big cities, and managed by sensible older women, might not help?

"I wonder if some of the effort now expended upon club work might not better be spent to introduce lonely young people to each other; young people who are now wasting their youth in dreary hall bedrooms, speeding on towards the age of utter weariness and disillusion."

For Husband No. 3 the prodigy is doing nothing rash. . . . Coolly, calmly she has set down the qualities she desires . . . and now she will seek the man.

Husband No. 1 . . . the French Count de Bruche, eloped with Winifred when she was 19.

Husband No. 2 . . . Louis Hyman, also eloped with Winifred . . . married her on a dare.

criticizing my mother—I never will.

"But from my knowledge of life, and my conversation with many young girls, I am sure that what our young people today need far more than freedom, is chaperons. Nature is nature, and the driving force of what some people call sex, but what my mother calls The Vital Ray, is a madness that ruins too many young people abandoned to the new freedom by their parents.

"There is less self-control in young men today than ever before, and therefore girls should be guarded more zealously. My mother had perfect faith in my powers of self-control, and so did not keep me under observation. She

Arkansas Takes Second Place In Southwest Conference

LITTLE ROCK, Oct. 25.—The Razorbacks of Arkansas (7-3) won their second conference game today by a 13-0 victory over the Texas Aggies (2-6) in the annual game between the two schools.

The Razorbacks, who were favored to win, opened the game with a punting attack. They punted for 50 yards in the first quarter, and then scored a touchdown on a play that was a punting attack. The Aggies, who were favored to win, opened the game with a punting attack. They punted for 50 yards in the first quarter, and then scored a touchdown on a play that was a punting attack.

Three line plungers failed and the whistle blew. Lebetter, Holmes and Upmoyer alternated at line smashes after the Aggies held twice and were forced to punt. Holmes, on a punting play, outkicked the Aggies and made 45 yards before being downed on the Texas 30 yard stripe. Holmes and Lebetter then hammered away at the line. Lebetter going off the line four yards for a second touchdown. Dale scored a goal.

Ned Record Dies

FORT WORTH, Texas, Oct. 25 (AP)—Ned C. Record, 29, sports editor of the Record-Telegram, died here this afternoon at 5:45 o'clock.

Record underwent an operation for appendicitis on October 15. He had been working at his desk when he was stricken. A cold which turned into pneumonia caused Record's death.

Day's Biggest Upset Is 6-0 Rice Victory

Large Houston Crowd Sees Touted Longhorns Lose Conference Game

HOUSTON, Texas, Oct. 25 (AP)—The sophomore eleven of Rice Institute smashed a tradition of defeat almost as old as the school itself and downed the powerful and favored Texas University, the institute's ancient and perennial conquerors, 6 to 0 here today. A fumble by a Texas back, Craig, on his own one-yard line, brought the Longhorns their first loss of the season and in their first conference game.

YOU'LL SIMPLY HAVE TO KEEP THEM CLEAN YOURSELF

GLENN HAS WON THE NATIONAL THREE YEARS IN SUCCESSION

It was in the fourth quarter when the blow fell upon the orange. A 45-yard punt was muffed by Craig and Lou Hansell, a Rice linebacker, snatched it up. Quarterback Seaman Squyres struck the Texas line dead at center for half a yard, and Dick Jamperson, who did not start the game, tried it. Once he failed; but then, with the ball only half a yard from what turned out to be victory's resting ground he smashed over.

Texas, stunned at the turn of fortune, resorted to a spectacular passing attack. Just as the last whistle blew the Orange was in striking distance. Bibb, a sub, having raced with a pass 60 yards before being brought down on the Institute's 15-yard stripe.

The Longhorns have been regarded as possessors of legitimate championship hopes and Rice as a rather erratic unit not affording any particular threat. It was the third time Rice had turned the trick in 16 years of meeting the orange, and it repaid Coach Jack McGehee, who had been pointing for the Steers since September.

The teams locked horns at the start, the first vicious being given over largely to punting. Texas once got well into Rice territory on the 27 yard line—but the own defense became more than right and Longhorn backs were thrown for a total loss of 15 yards in three plays.

Striking back, Texas returned in the next period to carry the ball to the Rice 11-yard line, but tries at the line and overhead failed, and an attempt at a field goal went the same way.

Back and forth they struggled in the third quarter, the yardage advantage being again with the Steers, who kept the battle going pretty well in the Rice home territory, but finished with 21 yards still to go to the goal.

The Longhorns had another fair chance at the start of the fatal fourth period, recovering a fumble on the Rice 26-yard line, but an intercepted pass cost them the opportunity.

Texas made 14 first downs; Rice four. The stands were jammed with a crowd numbering 10,000 to 12,000, said to have set a record.

The line-up:
Coker Pos Texas
Blanton
Morgan (c) Left Tackle Baumgarten
Harris Left Guard Howie
Dickey Center Gatours
McArthur Right Guard Cook
Strong Right Tackle Du Bose
V. Driscoll Right End Craig
Mueller Quarterback Shelley (c)
Wallace Left Half Perkins
Triscoll Right Half Koy
Full Back

Score by periods:
Texas 0 0 0 6-6
Rice 6 0 0 0-6
Rice scoring: T. Schowen, Jamperson (sub for Wallace).
Officials: Viner (Missouri) referee; Roach (Baylor) umpire; Proctor (T. C. U.) head linesman; Frauter (Baylor) field judge.

Now the Steers amble ahead with one big battle remaining on their card. That happens to be Ranger and it happens to be in Ranger's slush pool. The Steers will furnish the Bulldogs the best fodder they have had this year from a member of the Little Six. They will give the Bulldogs a much better brand of competition than did Sweetwater, San Angelo or Brownwood. As a matter of fact, if they can catch the poodles at the right time and the right way, it is possible they might even slip up on the one-eyed side of them and make things extremely dangerous. The Steers should now Sweetwater, Brownwood and Colorado, three of their four remaining tilts, down in a file.

Sometimes maybe we think the University of Texas has gone crazy. Getting socked by any team rather ruffles the feelings of the Longhorns, but taking it on the chin at the hands of the Owls of Rice is something to be dreamed about by those fond of nightmares. The orange and white brigade jumped into the open and smashed the

Abilene And Ranger Tie 0-0

Mountaineers Victors 7-6

(Special To The Herald)
MINERAL WELLS, Oct. 25.—After being outplayed for three periods the Mineral Wells Mountaineers scored a touchdown and kicked goal in the final stanza here this afternoon to defeat the Sweetwater Mustangs 7 to 6 in a conference game.

The local club's score came when McKeister, kept out of the game last week on account of injuries, was sent in at fullback. With Thornton he staged a comeback, Thornton going over for the touchdown and passing to Brunson for the victory point.

Sweetwater scored in the second period. Bardwell going over but failing to place kick for the extra point. Wyatt, quarterback, was a fairly and consistent ground gainer for Sweetwater. Mineral Wells appeared slower than in any game this season. Sweetwater was the lighter team, however, and played a fine game. Four local players were held out because of injuries suffered at San Angelo. Thornton and McKeister, two of these, were sent in any way after Sweetwater had held the lead for two quarters.

With the ball on San Angelo's 15 yard line, Rogers heaved the hide and it kicked gracefully into Flowers' arms. He was over the goal line. Flowers' attempted boot was unheeded.

The touchdown came in the early minutes of the fourth quarter. From then on it was more of the same, only more so. The Steers immediately took charge of the corral and did their own stampeding.

Drops Ball
A passing attack launched by the Bobcats almost proved disastrous for the Steers. With Coulton heaving, after Cobb had intercepted Rogers' pass on Big Spring's 46 yard line, the Cats went places and viewed certain things. Coulton to Cobb netted seven and one half yards. Coulton to Delker, Delker a first down and 14 yards. Resting on Big Spring's 24 yard line, Coulton passed a long one to Rogers. It dropped in his arms and on his manly chest when he was over the goal line. That was the place the Bobcats went. The thing they saw was Rogers' drop the ball. It was the final thrust of the Kittens.

Big Spring took the ball on their own 20 yard line and kept it until the game ended. They launched their running attack and hurled the inflated orb. It was Flowers to Hopper for five yards, and Flowers to Rogers for 20 yards. Flowers got loose as he was expected to and trekked 25 yards before brought down near the goal line, only to have the play called back and a fifteen yard penalty assessed against the Steers.

The penalty was reversed on the next play, San Angelo drawing a 15 yard order.

With the ball on San Angelo's 24 yard line, the drive kept driving. Rogers plowed through for a first down. Flowers picked up seven and one half yards and Mims added the remainder for a first down. Flowers shot a pass to Hopper for six yards. They did things like that all day, it seems.

With another first down in sight, after Flowers had added three yards, a five-yard penalty for remaining in the huddle too long was assessed against the Steers.

It was then that Flowers passed the ball, and Glover caught it and was downed on the six-yard line.

Eagle Aerial Falls Short

(Special To The Herald)
RANGER, Texas, Oct. 25.—Stunning the tide of a menacing passing attack in the closing minutes of the game, the Ranger Bulldogs maintained the tradition that the Abilene Eagles have never won on Lillard field and the battle between two powerful, undefeated teams of the Oil Belt ended in a scoreless tie.

A pass for 33 yards from Galbraith to Balanz placed the ball only 10 yards from Ranger's goal but the fighting Bulldogs won the ball on downs on the two-yard line to end the peril as the game was almost over. Stevens of Ranger, kicking into the wind in the first quarter, was handicapped and gains on running plays coupled with this advantage gave Abilene its first option in that period after Johnson had plowed through the line for 11 yards to the 19-yard stripe but after a first down had been made on the five-yard marker, Ranger stopped the advance.

With the wind at his back in the second quarter, Stevens kicked the ball 72 yards on the fly. After this prodigious punt, Ranger came into possession of the ball on Abilene's 17-yard line after Johnson had punted but on fourth down Weaver's pass over the goal line was incomplete each team showed a fair amount of ability to gain in its own end of the field but the drive usually spent its force before the ball began to approach the dangerous territory.

Abilene, however, outgained the Bulldogs. The game counts half a victory and half a defeat for each team. The work of Barber, tackle, and Ramsey, end, on defense for Abilene was a feature while Murray, Ranger tackle, was outstanding.

Foster and Johnson starred in the Eagle backfield while Dan McCarty, Ranger's speedster, could never get loose and it was Chuck Bird, fullback, who made the heaviest gains.

Mavericks Down Lions

(Special To The Herald)
EASTLAND, Oct. 25.—The Eastland Mavericks defeated the Brownwood Lions here this afternoon, 20 to 9.

Allen, fullback for the Mavericks, carried the ball over for the first touchdown after Clark had gained 25 yards on the first play the local team made from scrimmage.

The second touchdown came in the second quarter when Clark punted to the 12 yard line, where Brownwood fumbled and Eastland recovered. Clark carried the ball over and the pass for point was complete.

In the third quarter Pentecost, Eastland center, intercepted a pass on the 25-yard line and Clark carried the ball over on the next play. Foster kicked goal for the extra point.

Brownwood launched an air attack in the last quarter with Harrison tossing accurate passes which were knocked down by the Eastland backs. Thomas, Lion guard, started for Brownwood on defense.

Fordham Cashes On N.Y.U. Error
NEW YORK, Oct. 25 (AP)—Fordham's great team of football opponents cashed a New York University error for a touchdown in the first two minutes of play and sat on the lid the rest of the way to earn a 7 to 0 victory this afternoon before the biggest crowd that ever watched a game between metropolitan eleven.

A crowd announced officially at 18,500 saw Fordham's canvas jacketed stalwarts win. The struggle lasted hardly got underway when Jim Langany, N. Y. U. back, fumbled deep in his own territory and Adam Elwick, Fordham end, pounced on the ball on the N. Y. U. three-yard mark.

Murphy who shot through center for a touchdown on the first attempt, Henry Wisniewski rang up the extra point with a placement kick.

EVERYDAY QUESTIONS

Answered By Dr. S. Parkes Cadman

Questions from readers are answered by the Rev. Dr. S. Parkes Cadman, Radio Minister of the Federal Council of Churches of Christ in America. Dr. Cadman seeks to answer inquiries that appear to be representative of the trends of thought in the many letters which he receives.

What means would you suggest to counteract the increase in crime in this country? Should not our action be based on the real facts of the matter?

The nation has had warning enough. What it needs is a new temper toward lawlessness in all its forms. The underworld flourishes because of an unprecedented scale. Driven out of one center, its habits establish themselves in another. Mr. Alpheus Geer, founder of the Marshall Stillman movement, declares that "murder will soon be a major sport in America unless something radical is done to change the psychology toward the taking of human life."

Mr. Geer has spent fifteen years in trying to prevent crime and rehabilitate the criminal. He has authentic and original sources of information about this appalling situation. His work for social outcasts has been unusually successful. His conclusions are therefore entitled to our consideration. Crooks, gunmen and racketeers are highly organized. They are also the vicious idols of millions of boys of the slums of our great cities. Girls and women are increasingly participating in their depredations and killings, and in many instances the problem has gone beyond police solution. A most skillful network of perjury and violence is spread across the continent. It despoils the rich, harasses the poor, leaves black, small, kidnaps adults and children, corrupts officials, and too often even defies the courts.

Mr. Geer offers that the Marshall Stillman Movement, which owns and conducts the Amazon Leather Goods Inc., employs sixty convicts and has 200 more on its waiting lists. He believes that all criminals understand by the time they are thirty-four that crime does not pay. His experience prompts him to urge the industrialization of the underworld. His plan is coherent and forcible, but there are tremendous obstacles to its practical application on anything like a truly remedial scale.

The punitive system appears at present utterly insufficient. Equal and speedy justice is vital, but it is not enough. The wrongdoers must be captured before or at the threshold of their criminal careers. Playgrounds, hot police courts hollow in handling the gang, boy and girl scouts can make human material, now too often passed through the fires of Moloch of some benefit to itself and to society. The individual citizen should take his share of the responsibility by, strictly observing the law, supporting moral and religious training, actively interesting himself in exterminating slums, and providing proper facilities for youth's healthy development in mind and body.

How did the Mosaic penal code of an eye for an eye, and a tooth for a tooth, originate?

Out of the feuds of primitive society. With the advance of civilization and the stabilization of social life private vengeance became so patently injurious to the general peace that a more lawful course had to be established. The codes then formulated took it for granted that punishment should follow crime, but placed its infliction in the hands of the social groups. There was considerable difference of opinion as to the degree with which the punishment fitted the offense, and this problem faces us today. Dr. A. C. Lewis in his recent book on "The Morality of Unishment," declares that there is a peculiar fitness in the bad man being punished and the good man being rewarded, quite apart from any theoretical consequences of this policy. The instinctive feeling is that punishment should be inflicted because a man has done wrong, and so deserves what he gets, and that happiness and unhappiness ought ideally to be in proportion to moral goodness and moral badness. Many philosophers have held the same view. Kant deemed retribution due to the offender for his crime. The law of punishment, according to this great thinker, is a solemn obligation, and he predicted woe to the state which seeks to discover some alternative, which because of its promised benefits, induces the state to evade the duty of inflicting punishment.

This is a strong language, and does not command unanimous support today. But whatever may be said against the retributive theory, at least it assigns full responsibility to the lawbreaker, and treats him as an equal with no claim on patronage or pity. Here we encounter the latest view that the criminal is not a social equal, but that owing to physical or mental defects he is the ward of society, to be treated as such and not held fully responsible for his deeds.

The deterrent, educational and prohibitive effects of punishment, though not affording a complete justification for penal codes as some authorities assume, have practical relevance to the whole matter. After all nature teaches us caution and restraint by means of consequences, and insists on our being accountable for our deeds. If those who really do wrong would reflect upon the assured outcome of their conduct much evil which afflicts society would be avoided.

But about 40 per cent of automobiles rate at 101 decibels, one point even above the level with an even 100.

Subways, blasting steamboat whistles and elevated trains "all outside the law." Motor trucks hold him exactly even.

Steamships, street cars, police whistles and motor passenger automobiles, though beneath the law yet utter such the Bengal tiger.

And all of them onto thunder three miles distant.

New York's voice at Forty-eighth street and Eighth avenue runs at a steady 55 to 63, a rate typical of many cities.

Though the city noise does not inspire the terror of the lion's voice, medical men on the commission presented facts to prove that it causes some deafness, the creases blood pressure and pulmonary disease, irregular heart rhythm, increases brain pressure, accounts for some of the fatigue.

There are and shows the timgers of girl tourists and interferes seriously with development of babies and children.

There is a striking expansion for all this harm. Turn again to the scientific figures, and instead of decibel ratings read the noise in terms of intensity, as measured by electrical instruments.

The intensity leaps from 10 to 10 billion while the business in decibels is going from 10 to 100. Take the intensity for the home which rates 50 decibels. The home sound intensity is 100,000. But the noise roar is 120,000 times the intensity of the home. No wonder primitive man may have quailed.

No wonder stout headed moderns are harmed physically by the babel of voices their traffic has created. Voices beside which the home roar in intensity is but like voices that are just ten million times as intense as the sound in a home.

To reduce this racket, the commission will require a large educational campaign, but that there are numerous details which can be put into immediate practice.

Texas Public Debt Ranks In Lowest Four Of All States

AUSTIN, Oct. 25. (AP)—Statistics enough to keep the tax experts busy for several weeks were contained in a little pamphlet recently sent out by the U. S. department of commerce entitled "Financial Statistics of State Governments: 1935."

Regarding Texas, the report shows one out of every four dollars of state revenue was obtained from a general property tax; that the property tax increased 100 per cent in the decade from 1917 to 1927; and that the motorist in reality pays more tax money to the state than does the property owner.

In 1928 the Texas per capita property levy was $4.58. All revenues totaled $16.70 for every tax payer, and the Texas per capita property tax was about 70 cents greater than the average per capita property levy for all states.

In this respect Texas was about "middle" when compared to other states having a comparable assessed valuation of taxable property. The Texas assessed valuation was slightly under $1,000,000,000. Other states in the class from $2,000,000,000 to $3,000,000,000 showed per capita property levies as follows: Indiana, $3.71; Minnesota, $6.03; Missouri, $1.78; Nebraska, $8.74; Kansas, $3.38; and Kentucky, $4.21. There were some states in this class which did not assess a property tax.

The gasoline fuel tax ranked next as a source of income, bringing in $19,211,000 as compared to $25,442,000 income from the property tax; and auto licenses were the third largest source, netting $13,004,000. The auto owner, adding to that a city license and other miscellaneous taxes, might well consider himself a heavily burdened taxpayer.

Only four states in the union had a debt of less than one dollar per capita, and Texas was one of the four. They were: Wisconsin $4 cents; Indiana $5 cents; Texas $6 cents; and Kentucky $1 cent.

Now that the ruling has been passed by the attorney general's department questioning the validity of marriages where both parties are not present in body—that is, marriages by telephone—sponsors for the ruling are watching the mail apprehensively.

They feared that there may have been marriages consummated in this manner prior to this ruling, and that parties to these hypothetical unions may descend on the attorney general's office in a body to protest. For the benefit of these couples, it was made clear that the ruling only expressed "doubt" as to the validity of such a wedding, and that there are several other things beside the book and the ring which make a marriage valid.

More than two years at the desk of assistant secretary of state have convinced Watt L. Saunders that few Texans appreciate the extent of the state's resources.

Across Judge Saunders' desk passed a veritable record of the state's industrial and business activities in the form of applications for state papers of incorporation. Before taking the job, Saunders had the average conception of his state—a large state, with varied industries—but he admits that he had no conception of how large it was or how varied was its industries.

A list of the industries granted state charters is indicative of what brought about Saunders' changed viewpoint. Here are some of them, jotted down offhand—lead mining, sheep raising, oil, cotton, timber in hardwood, pine and furniture, shipping, oyster fisheries, citrus fruit, truck gardening, wheat, small grain such as kafir and maize, cattle, potato and other valuable minerals, potato being one of the newest developments of the Davis mountains; quarrying of red granite, cotton mills, sulphur, and aviation.

In several of these—and the list is by no means complete—the state excels. Judge Saunders commented that from the list of corporations chartered to engage in aviation, he believes the state is destined to be one of the outstandingly "air-minded" in the nation.

Because of these varied industries, Texas had not been so hard hit as other states in the current business depression, in Saunders' opinion.

Publicly agent her being elected as one of the few women members of a legislative house in the United States brought Mrs. Louise Snow Phinney, clerk of the Texas house of representatives, four proposals from as many states.

One of the proposals was from a young lawyer, newly graduated, who said that it was mighty hard pickings for a beginning lawyer, and if she could support both of them, to "hurry on over to Alabama."

Mrs. Phinney is running for another term as clerk. She has served as clerk during two regular and eight special sessions of the legislature.

More Fires, Less
Loss Suffered

AUSTIN, Texas, Oct. 25. (AP)—Fire losses in September totaled $576,100 with fires of undetermined causes accounting for $442,340, then were incurred during the

of this total according to a report by J. W. DeWeese, state fire insurance commissioner and fire marshal.

Fire losses in September, dropped off $507,330 from the previous month although 31 more fires were reported in September than in August.

DeWeese warned property owners to take extraordinary precautions against fires with the arrival of cold weather. He urged inspection of stoves, furnaces, boilers and pipes and gas connections. City officials and fire marshals were urged to require regular inspections in an effort to reduce fire hazards.

DeWeese said many cities and towns already have reported large fire losses for the current year.

whole year of 1929, that it would be necessary to order an increase in rates for these communities and that the only way they can be reduced was by cutting the first losses.

"It is a foregone conclusion the fire loss of this state will not be reduced until there is an awakening of the part of the people to fact the insurance companies are not paying the cost of fire losses but that it is paid by the people themselves," DeWeese said.
