For Texas Nurses Week...

Cogdell Memorial Plans Activities

(Editor's Note: Texas Nurses Week is October 25 to October 31. Each year the governor of Texas issues a special proclamation to that affect. Snyder is fortunate to have nurses employed in many capacities including the hospital, doctors offices, nursing homes, schools, public health, mental health, family planning, and the West Texas Home Health Agency, to name a few.)

By Shirley A. Gorman

Cogdell Memorial Hospital joins with other hospitals in Texas in celebrating Texas Nurses Week. Many activities are planned, including a dinner Thursday night for the nurses, a cap and poster display in a store window on the quare, and a program on community action Saturday and Sunday.

Cogdell Memorial Hospital along with the rest of the nation has been experiencing a shortage of nurses, both registered nurses and licensed vocational nurses, for several years. In order to help combat the problem, Cogdell initiated a recruitment program last year.

Nationwide some 100,000 nurses are needed this year, but at Cogdell at least 18 nurses are needed. Due to the shortage the Medical I wing of the hospital remains closed.

According to Margaret Martin, director of nurses, enrollment in nursing programs is down 18 per cent this year. One reason, she said, is that today's women have greater job choices available to them. Other reasons center around undesirable working hours and salaries. Salaries for nurses at Cogdell are comparable to Lubbock and Abilene she said.

Recent studies show that 25 per cent of today's nurses are leaving the field for other jobs.

Lou Cochran, who is the inservice education and training instructor for the hospital, is one person who actively participates in the recruitment program. Mrs. Cochran is a registered nurse.

"The philosophy, purpose, and goals of the Inservice Education and Training Department is a concern for the promotion and advancement of health care and continuing education in nursing," Mrs. Cochran said.

The programs offered are planned for the level and scope of the individual groups, and to their defined duties and responsibilities. The department also provides orientation for all levels of nursing personnel prior to being placed in a specific area of the hospital.

Mrs. Cochran also coordinates continuing education programs through the University of Texas Health Science Center at San Antonio through their Teleconference Network providing nursing personnel, ancillary department personnel and physicians with continuing education programs.

Cogdell offers its nurses several benefits including a merit system, opportunities of advancement to charge nurse and, or supervision positions, six paid yearly holidays, 10 days vacation time, one sick leave day per month up to 60 days, and a retirement plan. A nurses' residence is also available as well as insurance benefits. The hospital auxiliary also offers a scholarship program for RN (registered nurse) and BSN (bachelor of science nursing). Expenses are also paid for continuing education programs.

Many LVNs at Cogdell were trained at Western Texas College.

The Licensed Vocational Nurse (LVN) program at Western Texas College began in January of 1971. on September 1, the 10th LVN class began. Instructors are Winnie Poyner, who has begun her 9th year at the college, and Diane Beard, who has started her sixth year Both women are registered nurses with a bachelor of science degree in nursing.

When the program began in 1971 only one class registered each year, later a second class was added, but now the program will revert back to one class per year because the instructors feel it will be more managable that way. However now the enrollment accepted will be double the usual 12-15 students per year.

The LVN program is a 52 week program and includes a minimum of 600

Somehow, we never did get around to watching much major league baseball this year before the playoffs began.

We saw part of a couple of league playoff games and then watched most of the first two World Series games. About the only thing we can say about it for certain is that late October is too late for baseball, and it is amazing how the television commentators must struggle for something to talk about during a baseball game.

Ordinarily, at least in recent years, we manage to get into Arlington and see the Texas Rangers in a game or two. But this year, the strike came just a week before we planned to go, and by the time play was resumed, our interest had switched to football.

As we listened to the ABC crew during the first two World Series games---including Cosell---we wondered how they would have fared if called upon to turn in a performance like the "Old Scotsman," Gordon McLendon, did back in yesteryear. McLendon made history by broadcasting major league games without even seeing them. It was a tickertape operation. He got the terse, innning-by-inning report by telegraph and relied upon his imagination for the rest. Thus a "DiMag sgld to lft" could become a dramatic, spine-tingling event by the time the Old Scotsman embellished it.

Baseball fans throughout the country literally "ate it up." It was the closest contact most of them ever had with major league baseball, and scores of radio stations carried the McLendon play-by-play report.

One of the familiar faces at budget hearings of local taxing entities was missing this year. Howard Petty of Mobil didn't show up. But, we are advised that Howard was thinking about us. He has been kicked upstars to a supervisory position and that doesn't require him to attend the budget sessions and equalization board hearings. Mostly he seems to hang around Dallas these days.

But we have a feeling he missed making his old rounds. He called in the other day and said he just wanted to talk a little about old times and let people know that he is the same old Howard who came out of Winnsboro High School and went to work for Magnolia Petroleum Co., Mobil's predecessor, back in the early 40s.

After we brought him up to date on the local scene, we both agreed that time flies.

In Poland...

Soldiers To Quell Riots

WARSAW, Poland (AP) — Polish soldiers will be dispatched nationwide to quell riots, safeguard food distribution, and possibly break strikes in what the Communist goverment calls "indispensable actions in saving the state."

The announcement Friday came as wildcat walkouts gripped 36 of Poland's 49 provinces, the state news agency PAP said.

Only hours earlier, the independent Solidarity union, outraged over alleged police harassment and worsening food shortages, had said it would stage a one-hour strike next Wednesday to protest "a crisis in every field."

The government action, which appeared to fall short of a martial law decree, was the toughest response to Solidarity's challenge to the Communist authorities since the 9.5-million member union was formed 14 months ago.

"Damage done to the country's internal life forced the government into taking strong, if unpopular, measures," government spokesman Jerzy Urban said. "These include the suppression of street provocations and forcing people to respect the rule of law."

Urban said troops will be deployed in coming days to solve "local disputes and swelling local problems." Some Western observers considered those terms references to strikes, and noted that the soldiers could be placed in factories as strikebreakers.

"The lack of respect for the law and public order makes it difficult for the state to fulfill its function," Urban said. "The state leaning towards a fall must undertake all indispensable actions in saving the state."

Troops will stop supply disruptions, ease food buying, improve transportation and fight mismanagement and waste, he said.

"Their main duty will be signaling all negative phenomena," he said, "acting against such phenomena and granting indispensable assistance to the community and local organs of authority in securing constitutional order in respect of the law."

The announcement follows a riot in Katowice and near-riot in Wroclaw earlier this week in which Solidarity charged police roughed up union organizers.

Solidarity sources said union chief Lech Walesa would meet soon with Premier Wojciech Jaruzelski in an attempt to avoid violent showdowns between the union and government. No date was announced.

Jaruzelski is also defense minister and newly-elected Communist Party chief. He replaced party First Secretary Stanislaw Kania, who resigned last Sunday after failing to contain Solidarity protests and quell Poland's worsening economic crisis.

Ask Us

Q.—Does Texas history teach that Texas seceded from the Union and fought with the South in the Civil War?

A.—Texas history is a state-required subject taught in the 7th grade in Snyder Schools, says Dr. Thomas Scannicchio, assistant superintendent-curriculum. The state-approved text used here is titled "Texas, the Land and Its People, a History and Geography of Texas." It is noted in the text and taught in the schools that a Texas convention was called by leading Democrats on Feb. 1, 1861, without approval of Gov. Sam Houston. The convention voted 166-7 in favor of secession. This action subsequently was approved in a state-wide vote by a 3-1 margin. Texas then joined the Confederacy and its armies in the sectional struggle between the states.

On Optimistic Note...

Cancun Summit Ended Today

CANCUN, Mexico (AP) — After years of fighting for negotiations to reshape the global economy, Third World countries said today they welcomed the vaguely worded commitment that ended the Cancun summit.

Mexico's president, speaking glowingly of the "spirit of Cancun," declared at the meeting's conclusion Friday, "The dialogues are no longer at an impasse."

But there are clear signs of mixed feelings over the outcome.

"We don't know how long this will take to get started," said an Indian official, referring to the absence of a timetable for global negotiations.

Canada's Prime Minister Pierre Elliott Trudeau suggested that Third World nations were not complaining more loudly about the results of Cancun because President Reagan agreed to continue the dialogue.

For several years, the United States has resisted demands by less developed countries that major economic disputes between the industrialized and developing world — including what the Third World views as unfair trade policies, insufficient aid programs and other issues — be brought before the United Nations, where negotiations might produce a "new international economic order."

In 12½ hours of talks over two days at this Mexican Caribbean resort, Reagan and the leaders of 21 other rich and poor nations discussed the top issues and the possibility of setting up a mechanism for real bargaining among the world's more than 150 countries.

But Reagan set preconditions, and the final summary of the talks by the co-chairmen, Mexican President Jose Lopez Portillo and Trudeau, showed the conferees failed to reach specific agreement on details of future negotiations.

Their statements said the 22 leaders "confirmed that it is desirable and urgent to support at the United Nations a consensus to begin global negotiations on a mutually acceptable basis and in circumstances offering the prospect of significant progress."

Algerian U.N. Ambassador Mohammed Bedjaoui said the concluding statements meant "the United Nations has received the necessary political push in order to...no longer delay the global negotiations."

Bedjaoui, whose country currently leads the Third World alliance at the United Nations, said consultations on global talks would begin in the U.N. General Assembly next week.

The Algerian also hinted at a possible Third World showdown with the Reagan administration over international financial institutions.

One of Reagan's preconditions for global economic talks is agreement that the independence of the financial institutions — the World Bank and International Monetary Fund — will not be reduced. But many in the Third World have long wanted to overhaul the institutions to give their countries greater say in their operations.

Weekend update

Tilts Toward Recession

By The Associated Press

A double whammy of higher prices and lower take-home pay pinched Americans' pocketbooks in September.

The government reported Friday that consumer prices rose by 1.2 percent last month — a 14.8 percent annual rate — while real spendable earnings, after adjusting for taxes and inflation, dropped by 1.9 percent.

Counties Declared A Disaster

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan today declared a major disaster in four North Texas counties where heavy rains caused severe flooding last week.

The president's action allows the use of federal funds for disaster aid in Cooke, Parker, Stephens and Taylor counties, which were inundated by several inches of rain Oct. 12-16.

A hundred homes were destroyed and 1,400 others damaged in the four counties, said the Federal Emergency Management Agency.

A FEMA announcement said disaster assistance centers would be opened within a few days "to centralize the advisory and assistance programs of several federal, state and volunteer agencies."

Worst Dump Sites Listed

WASHINGTON (AP) — The government is taking the first step toward a $1.6 billion cleanup of hazardous wastes with its ranking of the nation's 114 most dangerous repositories of toxic materials.

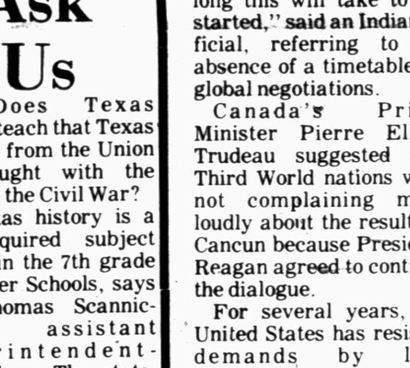

The list of sites, unveiled Friday by the Environmental Protection Agency, will be used to disburse federal money under the Superfund program that Congress adopted last year to clean up dangerous waste dumps.

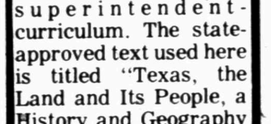

The dumps provide a mirror of America's past, from mine tailings left on California claims in the 1800s to wastes from liquid rocket fuel that sent the nation into the space age.

In between, are the leftovers from radioactive materials, chemicals, fuels, plastics, and pesticides.

To Thwart Burglars...

Man Locks Young Girl In Closet

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP) — A Phoenix man who locked his female companion's 5-year-old daughter in a 3-foot by 5-foot unlighted closet told police he did so in order to discourage burglars authorities said.

Mindy Austin was placed in a foster home by state officials after being found in the closet Wednesday by the owner and manager of the apartment complex where she lived, police said.

Phoenix police Sgt. Stan Bullard said today the case was under investigation but no charges had been filed.

The man, who identified himself to police as Michael Golden, said he had locked her in the closet Wednesday evening before he and the girl's mother left the apartment because he feared a burglar could gain access through an opening in the top of the closet.

"I figured if a burglar tried to come in from the roof he'd see Mindy in the closet and not come any further," Golden said. "If he did, I figured he wouldn't be able to get out and would just leave."

Golden said he feared burglars would steal several thousand dollars' worth of leather furniture given to the couple last weekend by the parents of the girl's mother, Janice Shields.

Golden said he and Ms. Shields only planned to be gone from the apartment for 20 to 30 minutes to buy some groceries but did not return until about three hours later because they could not get his motorcycle started after parking it at a supermarket.

He said he had used the closet for a playroom for Mindy, but never locked her in it before.

"If I was to abuse this child or hurt her in any way I'd be more afraid of God than the police," he said. "We try our best to live a Christian life."

"I realize I made a mistake," Golden said. "We haven't had much money lately and we just didn't have the dollars for a baby-sitter and maybe we were too proud to ask a neighbor to keep an eye on Mindy."

Apartment manager Steve Benitez said he and Earl Knowles, the owner of the apartment, entered the three-room unit about 7 p.m. Wednesday to check a leaking water heater.

"I heard someone say, 'Is that you, Steve?'" Benitez said. "I thought I was just hearing things and then she called me again. I looked all over for her and she said, 'I'm in my room,'" Benitez said.

Benitez said he and Knowles found Mindy in a closet secured with a small chain and a nail driven into the frame and bent over the door.

Bullard said today that reports indicated the girl was found in a locked closet that had been nailed shut.

Mindy told the men where to find a hammer to free her from the closet, Benitez said.

Standing: hard on veins

By Lawrence Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I am a lady barber and work from eight to nine hours each day — standing, of course. My legs get very tired and ache from standing so many hours. They feel swollen. I do wear support hose but that is not enough.

Can you suggest any vitamins or exercises or anything that would be helpful? I am not overweight. I am 5 feet 2 and weigh only 105 pounds and am 36 years old.

DEAR READER — You have learned that standing is harder on the veins in your legs than walking or exercising. Here's why. When you stand you have a column of blood from your heart to the bottom of your foot. The pressure at the foot level is increased, just as the water pressure is increased at the bottom of a water tower. Gravity does this to us.

Under this pressure the veins tend to swell. You can see this same effect in your hand. Be sure there is nothing around your wrist constricting the veins. Now let your hand hang down at your side. Watch the veins fill up and stretch. That is the effect of gravity. Then hold your hand up before your eyes and watch the veins in the back of your hand collapse as the blood runs downhill to your heart.

In your legs there are two sets of veins, those deep inside your muscles you can't see and those outside that affect your appearance. When you stand they both fill. When you contract your leg muscles as in taking a step the muscles compress the deep veins and push the blood toward your heart. As the muscles squeeze the blood out of your veins, the pressure in the veins drops markedly. The veins collapse. External pressure is important.

While you are standing the increased pressure inside the veins can cause swelling. Obviously if you can contract your leg muscles or take a few steps frequently that will help. Don't wear anything constricting around the leg. Pressure stockings are useful.

I am sending you The Health Letter number 5-8, Varicose Veins, that explains these points in more detail.

Others who want this issue can send 75 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it to me, in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

Anyone who must stand still should consider using support hose or other pressure stockings regularly. Also it is important to move around as much as your job will permit.

DEAR DR. LAMB — Is it OK to rest after exercise or a sauna or steam? I always want to but a friend said it is better not to have extremes of exercise then complete rest. Please settle our disagreement once and for all.

DEAR READER — Whenever the body has been stressed, by physical exercise or heat, it is good for the body to rest and allow the cells to recreate their normal chemical balance. Also rest in the right environment enables the body to eliminate the heat build-up that normally accompanies vigorous exercise.

Now, I do not approve of a sauna or a steam bath after vigorous exercise. If the body can't get rid of the heat build-up you can have a heat stroke. And people who have heart problems may not tolerate heat well. Heat works the heart; it must pump more blood to the skin to cool your body. Heat and exercise are both stresses on the circulation. It is better to cool off first and rest a bit before using the sauna or other heat exposure if you are going to use heat at all.

May Improve Hospital Care...

Acquittal Will Affect The Medical Community

FALL RIVER, Mass. (AP) — The acquittal of a nurse who had been accused of murdering her cancer patient with an injection of morphine may improve the way hospitals care for patients, a defense lawyer says.

"It will make hospitals more accountable," lawyer Pat Piscitelli said Friday after a jury found nurse Anne Capute innocent of murder and illegal distribution of morphine.

"It will make nurses careful. It will make doctors much more careful. It will, perhaps, better the whole medical profession, I'm sure," he said.

Bristol County District Attorney Ronald Pina, who contended Mrs. Capute intentionally killed Norma Leanues with a morphine overdose on May 18, 1980, at a Taunton hospital, said that during the trial, his office received numerous calls from hospitals around the country.

"This case is more than Anne Capute," Pina said. "Who decides who lives and who dies? Does a nurse do it? There are no legal answers in this state." Pina said regardless of the verdict, the "whole trial had an impact on hospitals and nursing procedures and it would help change policies around the country."

Mrs. Capute, hugged by four weeping daughters and her husband after the verdict was read, said she was grateful for the jury's decision.

"I just thanked them, what else could I do, they gave me my life," she said of the jurors, who deliberated 13 hours over two days.

Mrs. Capute had no immediate plans, but said, "I love nursing. I still think it's a great job."

Jurors said they quickly voted to acquit Mrs. Capute on their first ballot Thursday because of conflicting testimony from medical specialists on whether the victim was killed by a morphine overdose or died of cancer and other illnesses.

"We couldn't agree on what caused the death," said juror Arthur Estrella. "I don't know which killed her, but it wasn't just morphine poisoning."

Most of the deliberation, jurors said, concerned the drug charge.

Two other nurses, Judith Foley and Nancy Robbins, also face murder charges in the case, but Pina said he will have to study the evidence before deciding whether to seek trials against them.

Pina presented a string of witnesses and evidence seeking to show that Mrs. Capute gave the 51-year-old Taunton woman 195 milligrams of morphine in the six hours before her death and that the drugs killed her. Mrs. Leanues died 12 days after surgeons removed a portion of a cancer from her spine.

Piscitelli called only three witnesses, all medical specialists who said the cancer condition plus severe heart and kidney disease — and not a morphine overdose — were the cause of death. The jurors said there was little doubt Mrs. Capute was innocent of murder.

"She didn't kill her," said juror Annie Gafford.

Estrella said the fact Mrs. Capute kept careful records of the injections was another factor.

"There was no doubt," he said. "She wasn't covering up anything."

Proposed Amendment Explained...

Texas Water Critical

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Texas' first explorers and settlers spent much of their time trying to find water.

Modern Texans are still searching.

Amendment No. 4 on the Nov. 4 ballot gives Texans a chance to vote on an unusual proposition to guarantee future water supplies by socking away some of the state's surpluses caused by booming oil and gas taxes.

"Texas is already considered a water-short state," said Gov. Bill Clements, who actively supports the constitution change, "and unless we start building new reservoirs now, we will run out of water by the year 2000."

"Texas deserves a better plan for managing its water resources than this pig-in-a-poke amendment," says the Texas League of Women Voters, one of a number of member organizations in Citizens Against Water Taxes.

The amendment, authored by Speaker Bill Clayton of water-shy West Texas, got nowhere in the regular session of the 1981 Legislature but passed the following special session with Clements' support.

Every two years, at the end of the state's business period, it would dedicate half of "excess state tax revenues" to water trust funds and would let the Legislature earmark the remainder for other purposes. The water funds could be used for water development, water conservation, to improve the quality of water and flood control.

The amendment would do two other important things. If approved, the state could guarantee up to $500 million in local water or flood control bonds. And the amendment would increase to 12 percent the maximum interest rate on all state bonds authorized but not issued. Most state bond programs are limited to 6 percent interest now.

Supporters say if Texas grows from its 14.2 million population now to 22 million in 2005 and 30 million by 2030, the state cannot achieve its maximum population and economic growth without development of more water resources.

Opponents say the water developers are overestimating the amount of water needed by 2030. They said Texas can and must learn to live with its available water resources through conservation and more efficient use.

Those against the water fund program point out that about 75 percent of the water consumed in Texas is used for irrigated agriculture, most of that in West Texas.

East Texas interests, who want to be sure they have plenty of water to attract new industries and population, claim West Texans are trying to steal their water.

"I want to emphasize that water is not a West Texas problem," Clements told a group of Houston businessmen. "It is not an agriculture problem alone. It is, in fact, a metropolitan problem, first and foremost."

Clements and Clayton will join other supporters in trying to arouse voter interest for the election that is expected to produce a low turnout. Austin Mayor Carole McClellan is head of the statewide campaign.

Stuart Henry of Austin, an official of Sierra Clubs, heads the Citizens Against Water Taxes, which includes the Audobon Society and the Texas Committee on Natural Resources, in addition to the League of Women Voters and a number of individuals.

"We will stress the money issue instead of the water issue," said Monica Walden, Austin, a campaign coordinator. "Essentially they are asking for a blank check."

Sen. Lloyd Doggett, D-Austin, calls the proposal a "pay now, plan later" program.

Supporters say that Texas has surplus funds now and will have for several more years but when oil and gas revenues decline, the extra funds will be gone.

Take Precautions Now To Avoid Burglaries

(Editor's Note: The following article is A public service by the Snyder Daily News through the cooperation of Pete Greene, district attorney and the Prosecutor Council. Its purpose is to make you aware of a prosecutor's role, of your responsibility as a resident of Scurry County and how we can work together to alleviate some of society's problems.)

Three things can happen as the holiday season begins: (1) homes and apartments fill with gifts; (2) families take extended trips to visit relatives and good friends; (3) the burglary rate skyrockets.

Good locks and alarms by no means represent total security in the home, but it's a good start. The great majority of burglars are under 25 years old, with many under 18. They have little expertise in their "field". They look for risk-free opportunities and usually find them.

According to a recent study, in well over half of the nation's burglary cases the intruder usually entered through an open window, or forced an inferior lock.

Statistics also show that if you can delay a burglar from breaking into your home for just four minutes, most burglars feel they will be detected by inquisitive neighbors. Any lock can eventually be defeated.

Crime prevention experts recommend deadbolt locks to provide the security needed for exterior doors. The bolt should extend at least one inch into the door frame to provide adequate security. Many homes are equipped with spring-latch locks. Most spring-latch locks can be easily jimmied by even the most inexperienced burglar. Replace or supplement any spring-latch locks with a good dead-bolt lock.

DON'T FORGET TO LOCK UP. Even the best locks provide no protection if left unlocked. Security lock your home even if you plan to be away for only a few minutes.

Before you leave on an extended trip, cancel your milk and newspaper deliveries or arrange with a trusted neighbor to pick them up. The same friend can tend your lawn or shovel snow and change the level of your drapes once in a while.

Control front and back porch lights with an automatic timer which can vary the on and off pattern. Connect a second floor bedroom light and a first floor radio to timer switches for day and night protection. Keep a small light burning in the bathroom.

If you want to hide a key on the grounds of your house, do it anywhere but those obvious nooks every burglar checks as a matter of course under the door mat, in the mail box, the flower box, over the door. It is wiser not to leave a "hidden" key.

Don't notify the burglar of your absense by publishing plans in the social pages. Let the world know after you return.

Notify the police of your plans before you embark and leave a number where you can be reached in an emergency. If you return and there is evidence of intrusion, DO NOT ENTER. Go to a neighbor's house and call the police immediately.

Plan Visit To Ranch

Those attending a meeting of the Permian Historical Society next Saturday in Colorado City will have an opportunity to visit one of the most historic of West Texas ranches.

Mrs. Marie Bassham will tell about the Renderbrook, or the Spade Ranch as it is more popularly known, at the 10 a. m. meeting of the society. After lunch, there will be a field trip to the ranch headquarters in southern Mitchell County.

Anyone interested is invited to attend the meeting, which will be held in Colorado City's historic, restored Old Opera House. There also will be other papers about the Queen City, which came to be the premier trading and cattle-shipping point of western Texas in the early 1880s, and visits to other pioneer points.

Three Wounded In Border Clash

TEGUCIGALPA, Honduras (AP) — About 50 Nicaraguan soldiers crossed the border and seriously wounded three Honduran soldiers in a firefight, an army spokesman says.

Oriental Rug Expert Warns Of Many Fakes

The popularity of oriental rugs has started a flood of low-priced imitations, warns Larry Tadross, president of the Oriental Rug Importers Association of America.

Area residents who would like to see some fine examples of oriental rugs are invited to see the current rug exhibit in the Scurry County Museum at Western Texas College. The exhibit has attracted many visitors already, Sharon Sutton, museum director, said, and many people are returning for a second look. The exhibit was coordinated by Mrs. Gene Dulaney and is to remain in the museum through November.

"A genuine oriental rug is hand-woven or hand-knitted and made of natural fiber, usually wool or silk," Tadross says in an article in the current Family Circle magazine. He advises prospective buyers to examine rugs carefully, explaining that machine-made imitation orientals have ridges running lengthwise while in the handmade rugs the crosswise weaving will be seen.

The Scurry County Museum is also featuring an exhibit of photographs by Cindy McAnally, Scurry County Amateur Photographer of the Month. Sunday hours are 1-5 p.m., and there is no admission charge.

HEALTH TIP from DEAN
SLEEP COOL
Turning the thermostat down at night will do more than save energy. Sleeping in a cool room lowers the body's rate of metabolism quicker than sleeping in a warm room, so one needs less sleeping time. Sleeping in an overheated room may cause one to wake up feeling physically tired and mentally sluggish. So turn down the thermostat and wake refreshed.

Insurance FACTS by Tom Deffebach

YOUR Independent Insurance AGENT SERVES YOU FIRST

It is useful and important to prepare an inventory of all personal and household belongings in case of fire or robbery. Without an accurate listing of property, it is possible that you may not get all that you are entitled to from your insurance company. They can only pay for what is reported and claimed. Information should include a description of the object, the original cost, date purchased and the replacement cost as of the inventory date. It is really worthwhile and, once it is done, it is easy to update. Once you have a complete list, check with your insurance professional to make sure that you have sufficient coverage.

To make sure you have sufficient coverage see our trained staff at THE DEFFEBACH AGENCY, 3201 College, 573-5611. We handle many different types of policies and represent you with the best insurance companies. We're an independent agency. Farm and ranch insurance policies, as well as home owners are available through us. Open: Mon. thru Fri. 9am-5pm.

Dear Abby

Couple's Activities Pall The Second Time Around

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1981 by Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: I am writing to you about a problem that may seem trivial to you, but it is threatening to destroy my marriage. My husband does everything in twos. If we go to a restaurant once, we have to go back there a second time even if we don't like the place!

We have two children and own two homes. My husband insists that we attend every movie, ballet, opera and concert twice! Now for the reason I am ready to lose my mind:

Four years ago we took an around-the-world tour. Now my husband wants to do it again! Abby, we can't afford it. This man is driving me crazy, and I have told him that unless he gets professional help I am going to leave him. Am I wrong? Or is he in need of help? He agreed to listen to you. If you print this, no names, please. He owns two businesses.

"J" IN CHICAGO

DEAR J.: Your "two-timer" husband has a compulsive neurosis. My psychiatric consultant says it is some kind of "ritual" he's obsessed with, and he should see a therapist who practices behavioral therapy. Consult your local mental health clinic or the American Psychiatric Association for recommendations. (P.S. Better get the names of two doctors.)

DEAR ABBY: Is it fitting and proper for a woman of 64 to caress, rub or stroke the arm of her 34-year-old son while in the company of other people at a gathering?

What possible reason would she have for doing this? I told her I thought it was in poor taste, then she said I had funny ideas. What do you think?

NEW YORKER

DEAR NEW YORKER: A mother (of any age) who rubs, strokes or caresses the arm of her son either alone or in the company of others probably does so unconsciously out of warm feelings and affection. I see nothing improper about it. And if you do, I too think you have "funny" ideas.

DEAR ABBY: The other evening at a large and rather formal dinner party, I was amazed (to say the least) when, just before dessert was served, the hostess passed out toothpicks to each guest. It seems her husband (a dentist) has strong feelings about oral hygiene.

Care to comment?

GERT IN E. GREENBUSH

DEAR GERT: I'm amazed that a dentist would pass out toothpicks in his home. Picking one's teeth is a dangerous practice. A trip to the washroom is in order. Brushing is fine, and flossing is even better. But toothpicks? No! And never at the table.

DEAR ABBY: In today's paper there was another story about a child who was lost in the mountains while camping with her family. Why does this tragedy have to occur year after year?

I would like to pass on a suggestion that we have used in years gone by because we, too, were a camping family.

Each of us was equipped with a police whistle, which we wore around our necks. If one of us lost his direction or became separated from the others, he could just give a long toot to let us know where to look for him. Children being children, there was a lot of miscellaneous tooting at first, but after the novelty wore off, our whistles became as important to our camping trips as sleeping bags.

Abby, please pass this on to your camping readers.

OLD TOOTER

DEAR TOOTER: Hear, hear, all campers! Carry whistles and be prepared to give a toot!

Judge Refuses To Allow Abortion For 11-Year-Old

KALAMAZOO, Mich. (AP) — A county judge's ruling barring an abortion for an 11-year-old girl has drawn praise from the child's mother and a vow by an anti-child-abuse group to seek the judge's removal.

Kalamazoo County Probate Judge Donald Halstead said Friday an abortion would not be in the best interest of the girl, who is nearly 24 weeks pregnant by her mother's boyfriend.

Nelson Pelletier, the girl's court-appointed attorney, said he had not decided whether to appeal. Brian Caplan, attorney for the girl's father, said he would not challenge the ruling, although his client had wanted the child to undergo the abortion.

"We won," the girl's mother told the Detroit Free Press after the ruling. "We feel good about that." The newspaper did not identify the woman.

But a Kalamazoo anti-child-abuse group called Children's Help in Legal Defense issued a statement vowing to work to remove the judge from office.

"We feel Judge Halstead's decision to oppose an abortion for this 11-year-old child reflected his own personal feelings toward the issue of abortion, rather than...the best interest of the child," said Phyllis Marsh, chairwoman of the group.

"This is a prime example of how the abortion issue can overshadow the issue of child abuse."

Halstead said in his ruling that when he declined to rule on the abortion question twice earlier and granted the mother custody of the children in September, he believed he did not have the authority to rule on the abortion.

Halstead said U.S. District Judge Benjamin Gibson clarified the law Tuesday when he ordered Halstead to act by the close of court Friday. Gibson said Halstead had violated the girl's constitutional rights by not ruling whether an abortion would be in her best interest.

Halstead's ruling said "there was no dispute that psychologically it is a no-win situation for this little girl and she will require much therapy. There are no unforseen complications facing the minor child during pregnancy as she is in good health."

However, he said an abortion at this stage of her pregnancy "poses serious medical concerns offsetting the wisdom of those concerns of allowing the minor child to have the baby."

Halstead was not available for comment after the hearing.

The girl and her 9-year-old sister, who have been ruled neglected children, are in the temporary custody of their mother... but remain wards of the court.

Dodgers Edge Yankees; Trail By One In Series

LOS ANGELES (AP) - Like a card shark working with a fast shuffle and a deck full of aces, Fernando Valenzuela dealt a little magic to breathe some World Series life into the Los Angeles Dodgers.

"It was one of the gutsiest performances for a pitcher without his stuff that I have ever seen," Manager Tommy Lasorda said with a touch of admiration in his voice after Valenzuela had struggled to a 5-4 victory over the New York Yankees Friday night.

The victory left the Dodgers still trailing 2-1 in the best-of-seven Series. They send right-hander Bob Welch against New York's Rick Reuschel in today's fourth game, hoping he had more going for him than Valenzuela did in Game Three.

"He was like a poker player bluffing his way through a bad hand," Lasorda said of the 20-year-old rookie who has become the Dodgers' meal ticket this season.

The young left-hander gave a gutsy demonstration of his craft, surviving on a night when he surrended nine hits, including two home runs, and seven bases on balls. He had important help from Ron Cey, who clubbed a three-run homer and made two key fielding plays at third base.

In the bottom of the first, Cey supplied the Mexican southpaw with a quick three-run cushion. Davey Lopes opened with a double and Bill Russell beat out a bunt for a single against Yankee starter Dave Righetti, also a rookie.

It looked like the 22-year-old Righetti might escape when he got both Dusty Baker and Steve Garvey with the runners still anchored. But Cey worked the count to 3-2 and then drove a fastball into the left field seats as a record Dodger Stadium crowd of 56,236 howled.

Now Valenzuela had a three-run lead and there have been times when that would have been plenty for him. This, however, was not one of them.

In the second, Bob Watson reached him for a leadoff homer and before the inning was over, the Yankees had another run on a double by Rick Cerone, a long fly that advanced him to third, and Larry Milbourne's RBI-single to right.

An inning later, the Dodger lead had completely evaporated as Valenzuela was jolted for a single by Piniella and Cerone's home run, putting the Yankees in front, 4-3.

After being belted around in the first inning, Righetti walked Valenzuela leading off the second, but escaped without any damage. When Garvey opened the third with a single and Cey walked, Manager Bob Lemon came out to get Righetti. He thought nervousness was part of the problem.

"They're human," Lemon said. "You're not a machine. I pitched a couple like that and I still remember being nervous. You can't be human and not be nervous."

George Frazier relieved and pitched out of the jam without the Dodgers scoring. In the fifth, with the score still 4-3, the same scenario was repeated. Garvey opened with a single, bouncing the ball over the head of third baseman Aurelio Rodriguez, who replaced injured Graig Nettles in the Yankee lineup. Again, Cey followed with a walk. This time, however, the Dodgers cashed in on the opportunity.

Pedro Guerrero faked a bunt, perhaps drawing Rodriguez in a fatal step or two. Then he bounced the ball over the third baseman's head into left field for a double. "If I catch the ball, it's a double play, maybe a triple play," Rodriguez said.

Instead, Garvey dashed home with the tying run. After Rick Monday was intentionally walked, loading the bases, Rudy May relieved for the Yankees. With Mike Scioscia at bat, Lasorda sent Reggie Smith into the on-deck circle.

Scoscia hit into a double play, scoring Cey. It wasn't exactly the way Lasorda had planned it, but the run had scored and the Dodgers were ahead. So, Valenzuela stayed.

He pitched through the next two innings innings without allowing a hit, although Watson drove Baker to the fence for his long drive in the seventh.

Fishing Report

Fishing for yellow catfish at Lake J.B. Thomas has been excellent during the past week.

Best results were being obtained with live bait on trotlines. Examples of catches were from Bill and Steve Mears of Lamesa, who reported a 28-pound and a 16-pound yellow catfish, plus a pair of 8-pounders and several in the 2-4-pound class.

Channel catfishing was also good, both on trotlines and with rod and reel. All types of bait got results. More crappie were being pulled in, ranging from ½ to 1½ pounds, caught mostly with minnows. Catches of white and black bass were poor, along with walleyes.

The Scurry County Farm Bureau Board of Directors recently voted to participate in a Member-to-Member Sales Program, according to Billy Huddleson, county president.

"Through this program, producer-members throughout the state can now sell their products directly to other members," Huddleson said. "Texas Farm Bureau members will receive high quality products at a reasonable price."

Citrus will be the first commodity to be offered to members. This month, 40-pound boxes of valley oranges and ruby red grapefruit can be ordered. The cost per box will be $9.60 for oranges and $9.15 for grapefruit.

Orders and payments are now being received at the Scurry County Farm Bureau Office. Deadline for orders will be November 1. The citrus will be delivered the week of December 1.

Ira Becomes A Victim Of Red Hot Hornets

IRA--The Highland Hornets kept their tight grip on District 2-A 6-Man with a 67-22 triumph over the Ira Bulldogs here Friday night.

The Hornets extended their undefeated string to six games. In the past two seasons, Highland is 17-1.

Highland jumped off to a big 33-0 lead in the first quarter, and the Bulldogs were never able to recover.

Highland started the scoring parade with a 11-yard run by Light. This was followed with a 65-yard scamper by Hyde and Wilson booted the point after.

Light added a 42-yard scoring run and Wilson booted the point after. Hyde closed the first period offensive scoring with a 34-yard TD run. However, the defense added two more points with a safety in the opening period.

In the second quarter, Light hit paydirt two times, one a 53-yard punt return and the second a 44-yard ramble. Wilson added both extra points.

Ira got on the scoreboard in the second stanza when running back Jeff Kellner, who later fractured his wrist, plunged over from the six-yard line. The point-after try failed.

After intermission, James Crowder scored for Ira on a 21-yard run and Crowder added the extra point.

Highland countered with an 18-yard TD run by Light, but missed the extra point conversion.

Danny Denson then snagged a 21-yard pass from Crowder for the final Ira touchdown. Crowder added the point after.

Highland scored again in the third period on a 7-yard pass to Owens and Owens again was hit in the end-zone for a two-point conversion.

In the final period, Light scored on an 8-yard run and Wilson booted the extra point.

In addition to losing Kellner for the season, the Bulldogs also lost the services of center James Smith who broke a bone in his foot.

Ira managed 13 first downs and a total of 283 yards total offense, 183 on the ground and 100 passing. The Bulldogs completed five of 15 pass attempts and had two aerials intercepted. Ira lost one fumble and was assessed 80 yards in penalties.

Highland manged 411 yards total offense, 366 rushing and 45 via the airways. Highland also picked up 13 first downs and completed 6 of 10 passes, having one intercepted. The Hornets did not fumble and were charged 15 yards in penalties.

Ira faces Grady next Friday at 7 p.m. in another conference game.

NO RECEIVER -- Snyder's Chad Peterson - one of two quarterbacks used by the Tigers Friday night - looks for a receiver but can't find one during second-half varsity action against Pecos. Snyder managed only two yards passing against the Eagles, but were without the services of starting QB Brent Beck. Under the circumstances, Peterson and Daryl Boone did a good job. Snyder Can't Find Momentum As...

Early Errors Aid Pecos In 33-0 Victory Over Cats

By BILL MCCLELLAN

PECOS -- For George Byerly, returning to the old stomping grounds wasn't much fun. In fact, the only laughter coming from the Snyder side of the field here Friday night occured just before the second half, when some of the 50-strong Tiger fans serenaded the officials with a brief chorus of "Three Blind Mice".

Pecos took advantage of some early mistakes by the Snyder team to mount a 33-0 victory in this District 2-AAAA grid contest. The Eagles, 5-3 for the season, take on San Angelo Lake View next week while Snyder, 1-6, hosts Odessa Ector.

In other 2-4A action Friday, No. 5 Andrews made itself the only unbeaten team in the loop with a 21-14 win over Monahans and Lake View shutout Lamesa 16-0. Odessa Ector and Sweetwater played Saturday night.

Friday's game was of special interest from a coaching viewpoint because Byerly, first-year Snyder head football coach, was on the staff here just over three years ago. Though Byerly remained close to his former colleagues after his departure, it was only natural he'd want to beat them. It wasn't to be.

A pair of penalties were the key to theme of the game early. Snyder received the opening kickoff and drove it to its own 49-yard line before Pecos held. On fourth, the Tigers punted, giving the hosts the ball in only fair field position.

But a 5-yard penalty called the play back, and this time the result was disasterous. The snap was low and bounced on the ground, skidding past would-be punter Chad Peterson, who finally caught up with it and recovered it on the Tiger 9-yard line.

From there, it took Pecos just three plays to score. Jimmy Galindo took it over the goal from two yards out with 5:48 left. Dennis Moseley's PAT kick was wide, but again the penalty bug bit the Tigers. Officials had the play re-run, and this time Moseley's boot was on target, 7-0.

Snyder's next possession lasted only three plays as an attempted handoff between backup quarterback Darryl Boone and one of his runningbacks missed connections, and Pecos' Harvey Martinez fell on the ball at the Tiger 21.

This time it took the Eagles six plays to go the distance, scoring as Galindo took it over from six-inches out on fourth down with 1:38 left in the period. Moseley's kick-after was good.

Snyder, playing without the services of starting quarterback Brent Beck, had trouble moving the ball against the Eagles all evening. The Tigers were forced to kick away their next two possessions.

Pecos's third touchdown came with 6:14 left in the first half as Galindo broke free on a 31-yard scamper. His TD capped a four-play, 43-yard drive by the Eagles. Moseley's kick was no good, giving the score a 20-0 look.

Snyder continually had disagreements with the officials during the game. On one occassion, with the play apparently whistled dead, a Pecos player blindsided Snyder's Loyd Sands. That emptied the Snyder coaching staff out onto the field, but to no avail. Sands was shaken up by the blow and was unable to play in the second half.

On another occassion, it appeared quarterback Chad Peterson had been stopped by the Pecos defensive line when the ball was forced loose. Of-

Dusters Still Showing Well

ODESSA -- Western Texas College's Dusters got the best of Odessa College here in scrimmage action Thursday, as the team continues to wind down the preseason with a series of mock ballgames.

Coach Joe Cushing didn't have scoring totals available, but noted the Dusters outpointed their WJCAC rivals by "eight or nine points."

"It was a good scrimmage. I felt like we did well on the things we had been working on before the scrimmage. Our defense was outstanding and our offense played well," he said.

"There's really not much to say about a scrimmage because it's not like a game, but I'd just say I feel like we're making progress each week. We're still got some things to work on. We're not shooting the ball as well as we'd like to but I think that will come. Our leadership, execution and poise were all excellent and that's the main thing right now," he added.

"Basically, I was just real pleased with the scrimmage. Anytime you beat Odessa on their floor you've done something."

In some disappointing news, Cushing reported that Eola freshman Brenda Jameson is no longer with the team. Jameson, 6-0, had suffered a knee injury earlier. Apparently, the knee did not respond to treatment as well as had hoped.

"We're real sorry to see Brenda leave the team, but it's probably the best thing for her future health," said Cushing.

Jameson will continue her education at WTC.

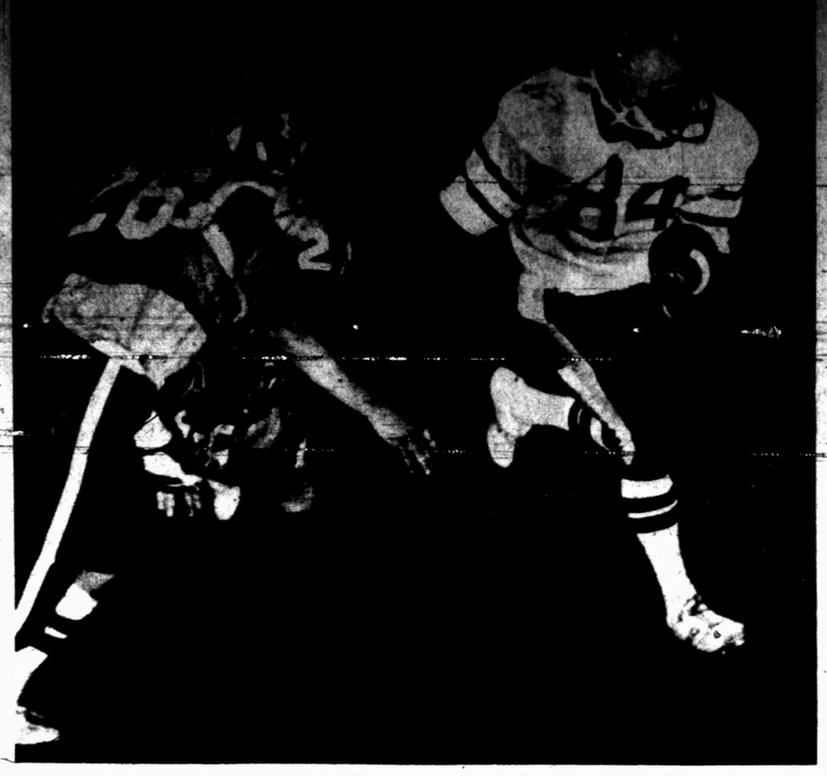

The scrimmage welcomed back 5-7 Lubbock freshman Tracey Muehlbrad, who had been out with severe shin splints. The only other Duster player sidelined at this time is 6-0 freshman Shara Fredenburg, also from Lubbock, who is recovering from an illness.

The Dusters will scrimmage again Nov. 27, inviting McMurry College to the WTC Gym at 7 p.m. The public is invited.

GAIL -- Hermleigh's Cardinals can be tough as the game wears on, but Borden County didn't give them the chance here Friday night as the Coyotes took their fifth straight victory of the season, 44-20.

The win leaves Borden County 5-2 for the season and 3-0 in District 2-A six-man play. The Coyotes face 3-0 Trent at Trent in a key showdown next week, then entertain loop favorite and undefeated Highland for what could be the district championship on the following Friday.

Hermleigh, 2-6 and 1-3, takes the week off before testing McCaulley.

The Coyotes racked up 22 first-quarter points to dispel any thoughts of an upset, ingnited as Sammy Williams took the opening kickoff 70 yards to score. Jr. Benavidez kicked the two-points conversion true, and Borden County led, 8-0.

Minutes later Mike Peterson crashed over from three yards out to make it 14-0, and before the quarter was out Jym Rinehart crossed the goal line on a two-yard plunge. Benavidez kicked one of the PATs good, making it 22-0.

Hermleigh finally came alive in the second period, trimming the totals to 22-6 as Kenny Riley scored on a three-yard run.

But Borden County bounced back also as Peterson broke free from seven yards out at Benavidez kicked the conversion; 30-6.

Hermleigh added another score as Riley plunged over on a two-yard run. Daryl Nachlinger kicked the points-after to make it 30-14 at halftime.

The second half saw less scoring, but a dominate defensive display by the Coyotes. Rinehart gave the hosts some added insurance in the third period as he scored on a four-yard run. Again Benavidez kicked the PAT.

Each team scored again in the fourth. Riley scurried free on a 16-yard scamper for the Cardinals, while Rinehart connected with Benavidez on a 24-yard pass play. Neither points-after try was good.

"Overall it was probably our best game of the season," said Coyote Coach Randy Roemisch. "Defensively Rinehart, Peterson and Williams all intercepted passes and our special teams did a fine job. Charles LaRue caused one fumble on a kickoff return and just did a great job for us, as did many of our other players."

Rineart ran for 117 yards on 21 carries, while Peterson rushed for 79 yards on 13 totes. Darrell Green was four of seven in passing for 76 yards, and Benavidez was the target on several of those occassions for 60 yards.

Chiefs Test Oakland For a Second Time

by The Associated Press

The last time the Kansas City Chiefs and Oakland met, the defending Super Bowl champion Raiders hit bottom - a 27-0 loss which extended to three games their scoreless streak.

"That was probably the best game we've played this season offensively, defensively and on special teams," Chiefs Coach Marv Levy said of the game two weeks ago in Kansas City's Arrowhead Stadium.

The Raiders got untracked last Sunday, beating Tampa Bay 18-16, while the Chiefs continued their surprisingly successful season by upending yet another divisional rival, the Denver Broncos, 28-14.

This Sunday, the Chiefs and Raiders renew acquaintances in Oakland.

Sunday's other games are Denver at Buffalo, Baltimore at Cleveland, Green Bay at Detroit, Tampa Bay at Philadelphia, Minnesota at St.Louis, New England at Washington, Cincinnati at New Orleans, San Diego at Chicago, Miami at Dallas, Seattle at the New York Jets, Los Angeles at San Francisco and the New York Giants at Atlanta.

Monday night's game is Houston at Pittsburgh.

Since the two teams were born in 1960 as part of the American Football League, the Raiders have won 23 games from the Chiefs, lost 18 and tied two. But Kansas City has taken four of the past five, including the last two in Oakland.

Despite the loss last Sunday to the Chiefs, Denver's Craig Morton remains the league's passing leader. And His favorite target this year - wide receiver Steve Watson - leads the league in yardage with 653 and is tied for first in touchdown receptions with nine. Morton's counterpart on Buffalo, Joe Ferguson, has thrown 16 touchdown passes this year, one off the league lead.

Buffalo linebacker Isiah Robertson thinks the Bills can rebound from their 33-14 loss to the Jets last Sunday. "We're a good defensive team and we're fired-up and tough to beat," he said. "If we eliminate the mistakes we've made, we'll be all right. The plus (in facing Morton) is is that you don't have to worry about him scrambling like (the Jets') Richard Todd."

Baltimore is one of five teams (the others are New Orleans, Washington, Seattle and Chicago) sharing the NFL's poorest record.

"When a team is 1-6 the coach has to feel the heat," says Colts Coach Mike McCormack.

The Lions, having unveiled Eric Hipple last Monday night against Chicago, turn their new No.1 quarterback loose on the Packers. Detroit is only one game ahead of the 2-5 Packers and is hoping to stay within striking distance of Minnesota and Tampa Bay in the National Conference Central race.

The Bucs, beaten by Oakland last Sunday on Ted Hendricks' block of a field goal attempt in the waning seconds, now visit Philadelphia, where the Eagles are out to start a new winning streak after their six-game string was cut by the Vikings. Minnesota, meanwhile, hopes quarterback Tommy Kramer can help them make it six in a row.

With San Francisco occupying first place in the NFC West, Los Angeles pays a visit to the 49ers. The Rams have never lost in Candlestick Park and have won nine in a row.

ficials saw it as a live ball and awarded Pecos a fumble recovery on the play. Coach Byerly's outrage at the call was received with a personal foul walk-off by the officials.

Those incidents and others led the some of the Snyder fans to heckle the officials, including the singing of "Three Blind Mice" just before the start of the second half.

Pecos's final TD of the first half came with just 23 seconds on the clock as quarterback Bill Weinacht hit Geno Aguilar on a 40-yard pass play. Moseley's kick-after was no good; 26-0.

Neither team could generate any offense in the second half, though Pecos did add one more touchdown with 15 seconds remaining in the third quarter. Mike Palomino carried the prize, scoring on a 39-yard run. Moseley's kick-after was good.

Snyder gained only 72 yards in the contest - only two via the airways - while Pecos rolled up 277.

The Tigers turned the ball over twice on fumbles and once by interception. Turnovers by Pecos included a fumble recovery by Steve Gressett and an interception by David Miller.

Texas Nurses Week To Be Observed October 25-31

hours in the classrooms and 1100 hours in a clinical setting such as hospitals etc. Thirteen basic areas are covered in the class during the 12 month period.

Students must have a 75 average before they can pass the course, Poyner said. Upon passing they are listed as GLV (graduate licensed nurses) until they pass the state examination in Austin to earn the LVN title. Eleven students from WTC took the state exam Oct. 19.

Students are capped after six months and graduate at the end of the 12 month period.

LVNs are qualified to do many things including giving medication, patient care, working in doctors offices, operating areas, emergency rooms, intensive care, pediatric units, etc. and in nursing and convalescent homes.

According to Poyner, many WTC LVNs go on to get their nursing degrees. The RN or registered nursing program can last from two to four years she said. After two years a student obtains an associate degree and a BS degree is earned after four years.

WTC LVN students spend time in the classroom and in the nursing lab before they begin actual hospital work etc.

WTC accepts LVN applications any time, Poyner said. The next class will begin September 1, 1982 and from 25-30 students will be accepted.

The last class to begin in March will graduate February 28, 1982 and the September class will graduate Aug. 31 of next year.

According to Poyner, there is a critical shortage of both LVNs and RNs. "Graduates can work where they want to and the profession is a very rewarding one," she said.

Staff Photos By Shirley A. Gorman

HEART CARE--Mildred Hurst, a patient at Cogdell Memorial Hospital, agreed to be the "guinea pig" as Margaret Kruger, left, and Barbara Davis, both RNs, demonstrated how a defibrillator is used to monitor a patient's heart condition. They are in the cornea care unit.

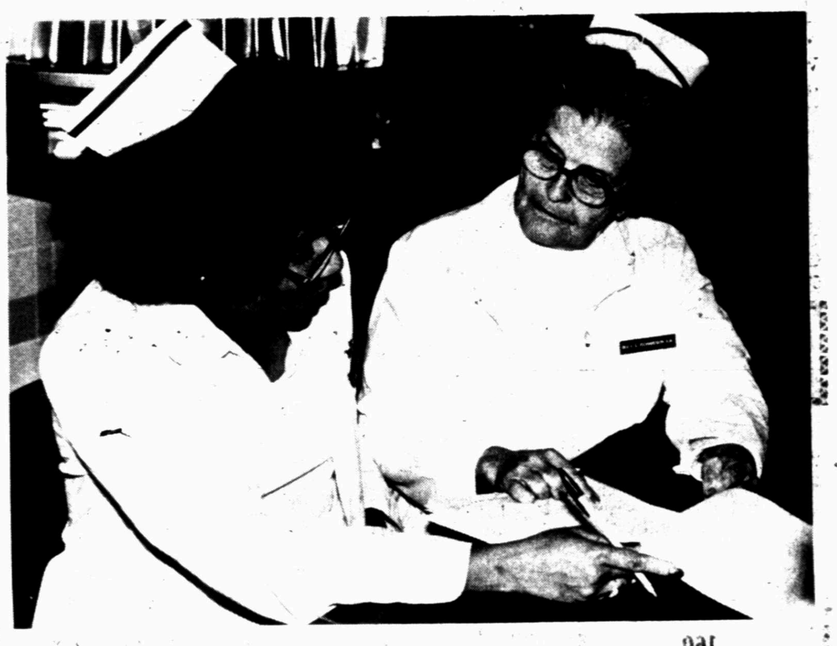

CHARTING MEDICATION--These student vocational nurses along with their instructor are dispensing medication to patients at Cogdell Memorial Hospital and properly recording it on the patient's chart. They are from left, Joann Jameson, SVN, and Brenda Proctor, SVN, and Diane Beard, instructor. They are assigned to the Medical II wing.

ANATOMY LESSON--Brushing up on the anatomy of the human body are Linda Garcia of Rotan, Rogena Castillo and Joann Jameson, both of Colorado City. They began the LVN course at WTC last march.

BLOOD PRESSURE CHECK--Checking blood pressure is just one assignment for a licensed vocational nurse. Demonstrating the correct technique are Fonda Preciado of Abilene and Steve Regalado of Snyder.

CONFERENCE--A day shift nurse and a night shift nurse are discussing pertinent business during a typical day at Cogdell Memorial Hospital. They are Elissa Clay, left, day shift, and Bula Richardson, night shift. They are assigned to the Medical II wing.

ROUTINE ASSIGNMENT--Licensed vocational nurses handle a variety of different jobs including making beds. Showing the correct way to do it are Diana Martin and Nelda Blythe. Both are from Snyder and they began the program September 1.

GETTING ACQUAINTED--A must for any licensed vocational nursing student is to study the human skeleton. Brushing up on the body parts are Benet Boswell of Snyder, Judy Cave of Hobbs, Brenda Proctor and Sylvia Martinez, both of Colorado City.

BATH TIME--Keeping patients clean who are unable to care for themselves is just another task for a licensed vocational nurse. Practicing on a dummy are Sylvia Santano of Colorado City and Melanie Sallee of Ira.

CRASH CART--When an emergency happens at Cogdell Memorial Hospital this crash cart can be invaluable since it contains emergency medicine and supplies. Pictured checking the contents are Geneva Scott, LVN, and Gail Anderson, RN supervisor. They are in the coronary care unit.

CLOCKING OUT--Shown clocking out after completing her shift is Gaylan Lemly, LVN. She is assigned to the Medical II wing.

RECRUITMENT--Recruiting has become an important program at Cogdell Memorial Hospital. Lou Cochran, inservice education and training instructor, is pictured by a bulletin board display which is utilized in recruiting. Mrs. Cochran attends job fairs and career days sponsored by area high schools and colleges.

OBSTETRICS--Grace Rodriguez is an LVN at Cogdell Memorial Hospital assigned to the obstetrics department. She is wearing the new blue uniform which all nurses in that ward will soon be wearing.

Opening lead: ♦Q

By Oswald Jacoby and Alan Sontag

South passed two diamonds to see what North would do. North had promised a bid when he redoubled. When North jumped to four hearts, South felt that he had to bid six.

A look at dummy caused South to do some real thinking. It seemed that West would need all missing black honors for his takeout double. Was there any way to handle that situation?

South won the diamond in dummy and ruffed a diamond with his ace of trumps. Then he led his queen of trumps to dummy's king and ruffed dummy's high diamond with his jack of trumps. Then he led a trump to dummy's 10, led the 10 of spades and let it ride.

West won the trick and had three ways to give South his contract. If he led his last diamond, South would discard a spade in dummy and ruff in his hand with his last trump. Then he would play ace-jack of spades and take a ruffing finesse if West failed to cover. Either way he would get to discard a club from dummy.

If either black suit is led, South wins as cheaply as possible; cashes the other black ace and runs trumps to squeeze poor West out of a black king.

...About Texas Women...

"Legendary Ladies Of Texas"

NACOGDOCHES, Texas (AP) — They may not all be as well known as rock singer Janis Joplin or outlaw Belle Starr, but women have played an important role in Texas history, according to the Texas Folklore Society, which has just published a book about some of them.

The biographical sketches in "Legendary Ladies of Texas" range from athlete Babe Didrikson to killer Bonnie Parker. The book, edited by Francis E. Abernethy, secretary-editor of the society, was produced in cooperation with the Texas Foundation for Women's Resources.

The foundation's Texas Women's History Project based the 26 articles in the volume on "scraps of historical facts, documents, records, letters and journals," says Mary Beth Rogers, project director. "For the first time this information is being organized to illustrate the nature of the female experience, a distinct and largely ignored part of our social and political heritage as Texans."

"Texas women were influential in the development of the state," she writes in the introduction to the book. They were "gun runners, cotton pickers, politicians, mothers, ranchers, bridge builders, do-gooders, capitalists, telephone operators, labor organizers, institutional fund-raisers, community leaders, military pilots, physicians, rodeo queens, rock stars and more.

"Texas women were activists. They ran ranches, branded cattle, lobbied the halls of the Texas Legislature with the most hardened 'good ole boys,' wrote books, invented products, made big money, negotiated treaties, led strikes, ran hospitals, preached the gospel, got elected to public office and built major institutions."

Among those spotlighted is Miriam "Ma" Ferguson, who in 1925 was inaugurated as the first woman governor of Texas — the second woman governor in the United States, having been beaten to the honor only 15 days before by Mrs. Nellie Tayloe Ross as Wyoming's governor.

Others whose stories are told include Angelina, the Indian interpreter; Adah Isaacs Menken, theatrical toast of Europe; Elisabet Ney, unorthodox sculptor; Sally Skull, straight-shooting rancher; Mollie Bailey, circus entrepreneur; and Emily Morgan, who is believed to have inspired "The Yellow Rose of Texas" song.

And — legends in their own time — the Dallas Cowboy Cheerleaders.

Next to the American Folklore Society, the Texas Folklore Society, founded in 1909, is the oldest folklore organization still functioning in the United States. The society's offices are on the Stephen F. Austin State University campus in Nacogdoches, where Abernethy is professor of English.

CHIFFON CAKE

This method is for cooks who like to use an electric blender.

¼ cup vegetable oil
2 large egg yolks
1 tablespoon grated orange rind
1-3rd cup orange juice
¾ cup sugar
1½ teaspoons baking powder
¼ teaspoon salt
1 cup plus 2 tablespoons sifted cake flour
½ teaspoon vanilla
4 large egg whites
¼ teaspoon cream of tartar

In an electric blender whirl together until smooth the oil, egg yolks, orange rind, orange juice, ¼ cup of the sugar, the baking powder, salt, flour and vanilla. In a large bowl, beat the egg whites and cream of tartar until soft peaks form; gradually beat in the remaining ½ cup sugar until stiff peaks form; gradually fold in the electric blender mixture. Turn into an ungreased 8 by 8 by 2-inch cake pan. Bake in a preheated 350-degree oven until a cake tester inserted in the center comes out clean — 30 minutes. Turn upside down on a wire rack to cool for an hour. Loosen sides and turn out. Cool completely. Cut into 2 or 3 crosswise layers and fill and frost as desired.

Drama Alumni Tracked Down By 'Cheerleader'

PITTSBURGH (AP) — When Bes Kimberly goes to the West Coast she sees Jack Klugman, TV's "Quincy," or William Ball, founder and director of The American Conservatory Theater.

Or she might chat at a Carnegie-Mellon University (CMU) West Coast Drama Clan meeting with Mariette Hartley, Emmy-winner for "The Incredible Hulk" and better half with James Garner in camera commercials.

If you looked in Mrs. Kimberly's ironing room-office in her home, you'd see photos signed affectionately from Klugman, Barbara Feldon, Sada Thompson, George Peppard, all CMU drama alumni. Peppard's message on his photo: "To the woman with whom I've had a love affair for 20 years."

When she travels to the Totem Pole Playhouse in Fayetteville, Pa., Mrs. Kimberly is thrilled at the "royal treatment" she receives from owner Bill Putch, a CMU alumnus, his wife Jean Stapleton, daughter Pamela Putch, a CMU honors grad in drama, and son John.

So who is Bes Kimberly? Elizabeth Schrader Kimberly is Carnegie-Mellon University's 81-year-old "cheerleader."

"She has done more than anyone else and more than we could hope to organize and strengthen ties between the university and its drama alumni," declares Linda Schorr, director of alumni relations.

Mrs. Kimberly, who taught costume design and makeup for 40 years at CMU, has edited the Drama Alumni Newsletter almost single-handedly for the past 30 years.

"When I started the Drama Alumni Newsletter," she said, "it was six purple mimeographed sheets telling about what the 'dramats' were up to." Today, the newsletter, still compiled by Mrs. Kimberly, is close to 60 pages with about 800 items.

Readers of Mrs. Kimberly's newsletter will discover not all the alumni are working in the theater, which is just as well since about 75 percent of the nation's professional actors make $2,500 or less a year at their craft.

The late David J. McDonald, president of the United Steelworkers of America, was a CMU drama alumnus as is James Beard, the "passionate pasha of food," author of some 20 cookbooks.

Many teach. Robert Casey owns and operates a newspaper in Kingston, Mass. Some sell insurance, wait tables and wait "call backs" from auditions. One is even a Florida farmer.

Mrs. Kimberly has tracked down records of every noted theater person who has ever even cut across the campus on his or her way to fame and fortune. For the past 25 years, she has hosted a Christmas party in New York City for the large Drama Clan there.

Leafing through the New York Times one Sunday, Mrs. Kimberly was struck by the theater directory.

"We had a couple of dozen dramats working in Broadway and off-Broadway shows," she observed. "Acting or writing, doing the lights, dancing, designing costumes, producing, directing, criticizing."

Mrs. Kimberly cut out the directory, drew lines out showing who was working in what, toted it all over campus until she arrived at the public relations department where it quickly became a poster. The admissions office mailed thousands of the posters out to high schools, and drama department applications shot up.

Now, Mrs. Kimberly is writing a history of the drama department. Except for the first 12 years, she has experienced that history first-hand.

She met and married her husband, the late George Byron Kimberly, there. Together they worked on some 400 plays put on by the department. She was in charge of costumes; he, the lighting. The students found a home-away-from-home at the Kimberlys, where they congregated after late night "crew" calls. She still lives at the edge of campus.

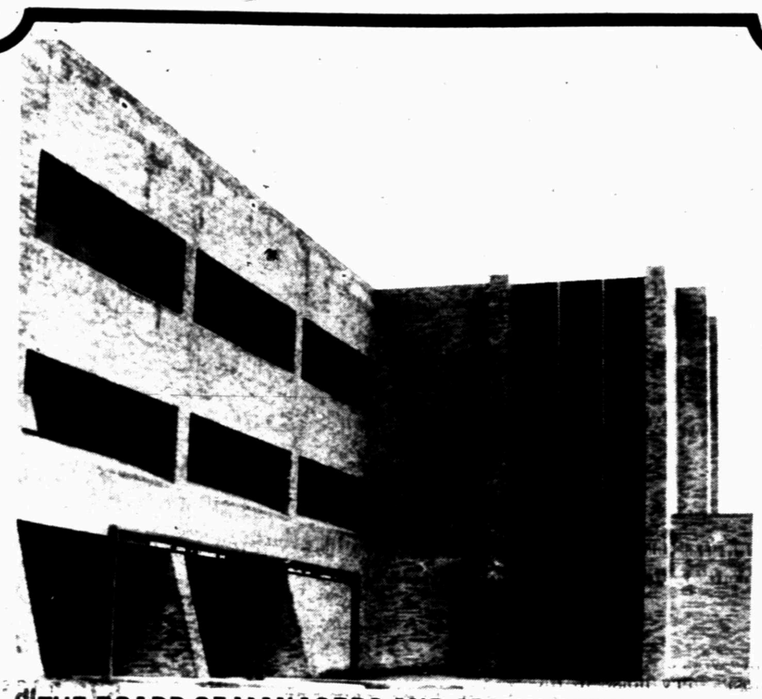

Mrs. Kimberly, who began her teaching career in the country schools near her hometown of Massillon, Ohio, accumulated two years' worth of credits at Kent State University before coming to Carnegie-Mellon.

"I did four years of a production major (in costumes, sets, lights) at Carnegie-Mellon in two years, and then they offered me a job doing costumes," Mrs. Kimberly said.

After she retired in 1968, "The West Coast Clan kept writing to the powers," she says, still a little embarrassed. "They told them they wanted me kept on to help with the drama alumni." She became a special assistant to the vce president for development.

ALUMNI BOOSTER—Bes Kimberly, former associate professor of drama at Carnegie-Mellon University in Pittsburgh, looks over a Broadway poster she inspired, which spotlights alumni working in Broadway and off-Broadway shows.

Weeders Guide

By EARL ARONSON
AP Newsfeatures

In most places in this big U.S.A., autumn is the best season to get your lawn in shape, especially if it is built on Kentucky bluegrass, perennial ryegrass, fine fescues or bentgrass. Lawn grasses used in the South, including Bermuda, zoysia, centipede, St. Augustine and bahia, also reap the benefits of good fall fertilization and weed control.

Actually, spring lawn feeding begins in the autumn, advises our expert, Dr. Robert Schery of the Lawn Institute in Marysville, Ohio. You just have to take advantage of herbicides this fall, he says, noting that "winter annuals (weeds) may be inconspicuous now, hidden deep in the grass. But they blossom quickly into untidy turf come warm weather next spring."

Schery says selective herbicides of the 2,4-D type take broadleaf weeds out of turf in warmer weather. For chilly spells 2,4-D is best "fortified" with dicamba or something similar. He noted that in his area, October treatments proved effective for cleaning up broadleaf weeds at a season when little favorable weather lies ahead for further sprouting.

"As dramatic as selective weeding is, overseeding and fertilization must accompany it to hold the gain," he advised. "Seeding and feeding are key autumn measures for making lawngrasses competitive. Dense grass is a lawnsman's best ally in the fight against all kinds of weeds. Seedling grass had best not be subjected to herbicides until old enough to grow."

Sometimes it is not convenient to remake an old lawn entirely, turning the soil and cultivating in conventional fashion. You can chemically set back the unwanted, competing vegetation before scratching good seed into the soil.

Even without chemical treatment, a very close mowing of the old turf, and vigorous raking up of all debris, generally exposes soil enough so that at least some grass seeds will find lodging sites. A powered scarifier (also called dethatcher) rentable in garden and hardware centers is more thorough. The machine slices shallowly into the soil, lifting old vegetation, and kicking a scattering of soil to the surface.

There are herbicides, such as glyphosate, to help kill old sod before scarification.

Fresh seed is then spread, and scratched into the ground. You can expedite this by another pass with the scarifier, or vigorous raking.

Schery recommends some of the named cultivars of Kentucky bluegrass, perennial ryegrass, or fine fescue. He says low-mowed lawns in rainy climates might best be sown to bentgrass; or for moist shade Sabra Poa trivialis. About two pounds of seed per 1,000 square feet should be ample for refurbishment.

A thin scattering of straw or other mulch helps prevent rapid drying after watering. Steady moisture is needed for quick sprouting after seeding.

If you use herbicides this autumn, you'll get less chickweed and fewer dandelions later.

Mowing Height

Mow Colonial bentgrass such as Highland below an inch (2.5 cm). These bents grow erectly. Creeping bentgrasses such as Emerald and Prominent need only be mowed 1 cm. high, Schery says. Bentgrasses should be clipped often.

Constant defoliation of stem tips releases branch buds on the runners, encouraging dense growth of attractive texture. We like to mow our Kentucky bluegrass to about 5 cm. (2 in.)

(Any queries about gardening problems must be accompanied by a stamped, self-addressed envelope.)

Copycat Cooking...

Nantucket Carrot Cake

By Cecily Brownstone
AP Food Editor

When a young friend told me that for her wedding she had a tiered and frosted carrot cake, I almost fell off my kitchen stool. Yes, I had encountered a Genoise (the French butter sponge) and a chocolate torte (the Viennese cake-style dessert) used for wedding cakes. But I had no inkling that a vegetable concoction might some day rival the fruited or white cakes traditional for weddings.

So be it. Recently I heard that visitors to Nantucket were flocking to a harborside cafe to enjoy the carrot cake served there. I hied myself to that Massachusetts island to ferret out the recipe.

Yes, I was lucky. Through a friend, I met the generous young baker of the cake who gave me her formula. Here it is, reduced in my test kitchen to a family-size proportion.

This carrot cake is high in sugar and oil, which helps account for its special flavor, moist texture and the fact that it slices beautifully. Its bottom surface looks slightly caramelized; right side up, it has a sugar-top crust. Most of my tasters sang the frosted cake's praises. But for several of them, it was too sweet. My own reaction? Truly worth baking when you know a sweet dessert will be appreciated by your guests.

NANTUCKET CARROT CAKE

1 cup all-purpose flour
1 cup sugar
1 teaspoon baking powder
1 teaspoon baking soda
½ teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon ground cinnamon
2 large eggs
¾ cup oil
1 teaspoon vanilla
1½ cups tightly packed thinly shredded pared carrots, see Note
1 cup chopped pecans (the size of tiny peas)
Frosting, recipe follows

Line the bottom of a loaf pan (about 8½ by 4½ by 2½ inches) with wax paper; grease paper and sides of pan. On wax paper or in a bowl thoroughly stir together the flour, sugar, baking powder, baking soda, salt and cinnamon. In a medium bowl, with a wooden spoon, beat the eggs enough to blend yolks and whites; add oil and vanilla and beat to blend; add the flour mixture; stir until smooth; stir in the carrots and ½ cup of the pecans. Turn into the prepared pan. Bake in a preheated 325-degree oven until a cake tester inserted in the center comes out clean — 1 hour. Let stand on a wire rack for 10 minutes; loosen edges and turn out on a wire rack; with another rack turn right side up; let cool completely. Cover top and sides with the Frosting; sprinkle with the remaining pecans.

Note: One-half pound carrots minus green tops and pared will, after shredding thinly, give the amount called for.

Frosting: Beat until blended ¼ cup butter, 4 ounces cream cheese and 1 teaspoon vanilla. Gradually beat in 1¾ cups confectioners' sugar or enough to make a good spreading consistency.

"Without A Trace"...

Intelligently Written Book

WITHOUT A TRACE. By John Harris. Atheneum. 244 Pages. $14.95.

"Truth is stranger than fiction" may be a well-worn phrase, but books like "Without a Trace" testify to its validity.

This latest work by John Harris, sailor and author of several books about the sea, documents the tales of eight ships that met with baffling ends.

The most familiar accounts here are probably those of the "Mary Celeste" and the "Maine." The "Mary Celeste," when found bobbing in the Atlantic a century ago, was minus crew and passengers. No sign of fire, explosion or other violence could be found, nor any indication of the fate of those aboard.

The "Maine" was a U.S. Navy battleship that exploded in Cuba in 1898. The Spanish were suspected of having mined or torpedoed her, and the resulting Spanish-American War was fueled by the cry, "Remember the 'Maine!'" Lengthy investigation, however, failed to prove the Spanish were responsible for the incident, and even showed that the explosion could have come from within the ship.

Other vessels, though lesserknown, have equally puzzling stories. The liner "Waratah" completely disappeared, as did the U.S. Navy ship "Cyclops," and neither left debris or wreckage to provide even the faintest clue. The "Teignmouth Electron" involved in an around-the-world race, instead wandered the Atlantic for months before she was found without her captain, who left behind reams of gibberish writings, but no clue to his whereabouts.

"Without a Trace" offers possible logical solutions to mysteries which may remain forever unsolved. It is an intelligently written and thought-provoking book whose chills are all the eerier because it all really happened.

ON THE HOUSE

By ANDY LANG
AP Newsfeatures

Q. — We have an old dining room chair that I would like to refinish. Is it better to put on a clear finish or paint?

A. — No way to answer that unless some questions are answered. What kind of chair is it? What kind of finish does it have? Is the wood of good quality and appearance? What about the other chairs in the room? What is the general decor?

Q. — My husband's father says that the reason we and other people have so much trouble with humidity these days is because houses have too much insulation in them. He says there was never any such problem years ago when houses had little or no insulation in them. Is he right?

A. — Yes. The installation of insulation, weatherstripping and other devices to keep heat in and cold out has resulted in so-called "tight" houses. When moisture has no place to go, it condenses on cold surfaces. Sure, this means problems, but with the price of heating fuels and air conditioning being what they are, most of us could not afford to heat or cool our houses if they were not well insulated and weatherproofed. There are many steps we can take to keep a house airtight (reasonably airtight, that is) and yet provide enough ventilation to enable moisture to escape. One of these is a sufficient amount of sizable vents in the attic.

Q. — I live in an apartment where I can hear almost every noise in the apartment next door. If I attach panels of an absorbent material to the wall, will that help to keep out the noise?

A. — Not very much. You would have to build a separate wall away from the present one in order to provide a space for the noise to dissipate, an impractical idea for an apartment. Such a wall on the other side would do more good. So would some draperies or other absorbent material placed on the neighbor's wall. It's a lot easier to keep noise within an area than it is to keep it out.

Q. — I have to put some fence posts into the ground. I intend to set them into concrete. How can I keep the posts from rotting over a period of time?

A. — You can buy what is called pressure-treated wood or a wood that has been treated with a wood preservative in some other way. Or you can simply buy a wood preservative and apply it to the posts by soaking them in the liquid for a day or two. By the way, when you place the concrete mixture in the soil, slope it so that rain drains away from the post rather then settling alongside it.

Q. — I expect to apply latex paint to my shingled house after taking off all the old oil paint, which is in pretty bad condition. I have been told that an oil-based primer should be applied to the bare wood before putting on the latex. What is the reason for this?

A. — No good one. You are better off to apply a coat of latex primer before putting on the latex paint. Whatever you do, be certain all the old paint has been removed, since any later peeling will also take off the new paint.

The horned lark of North America got its name from the small tufts of feathers which look like horns above and behind the bird's eye.

recovering a dream

Once upon a time there was a thing called the American Dream.

Part of that dream was owning a home and raising a family.

But these two goals now are on a collision course, according to urban researchers.

Many young couples are being forced to choose between one or the other — kids or a house.

Research by Dr. Dowell Myers, an urban planner at the University of Texas, shows that many young couples are postponing or deciding not to have children in order to buy homes.

Dr. Myers discovered this trend after he noticed a paradox of the 1970s revealed by U. S. Census data: Even though houses were becoming more and more unaffordable, home ownership was reaching record heights.

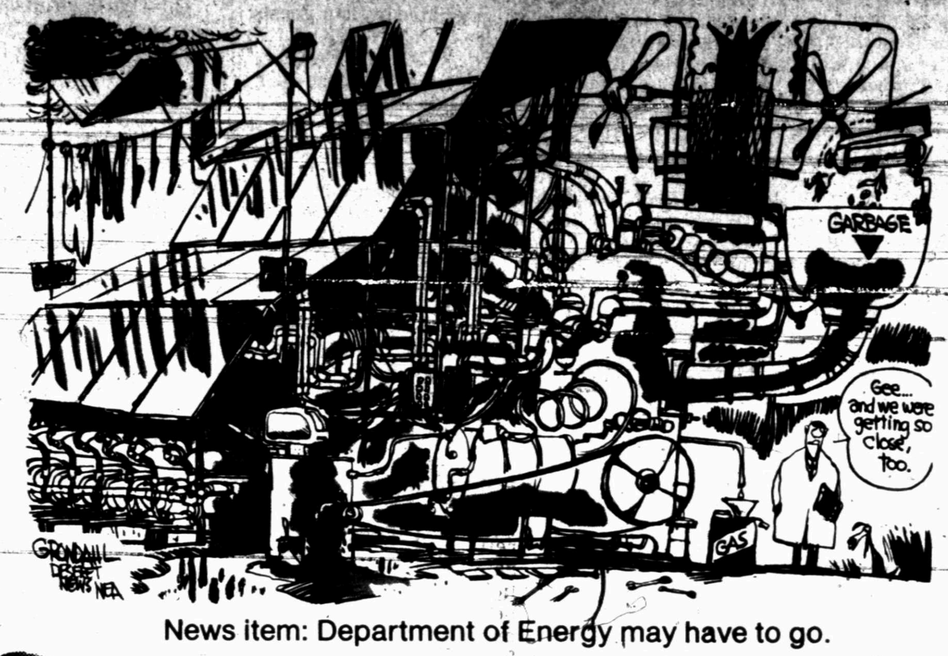

Why? Because more couples were delaying childbearing and more wives were working in order to buy a home. Not having children is a strategy for home purchasers that has been spreading over time and across population, Dr. Myers says.

It's too bad that people who can afford their own large homes can't afford kids, while families with kids can't afford homes.

Unforunately, the economy is getting to the point that couples can't have homes or familes. Housing starts have plunged to a standstill in the face of persisting high interest rates. The nation's home builders are fighting for survival and the lumber industry is reported in dire straits.

That is why it is important now for us as a nation to suck in our gut and give President Reagan's economic recovery program a chance. For too long the federal government has overspent and overtaxed, landing us in the worst economic mess since the "great depression."

Reagan's plans to cut taxes and reduce federal spending are vital steps on the long road toward recovering the American Dream. And we should remember that it likely will be a step-by-step process--no magic overnight cure is available. It requires determination and we are the ones who will make it happen.

The feller on Deep Creek says, "If you know the score, someone will get you for point-fixing."

At best this has been an unusual football season, and we suspect those folks who enjoy letting a few bucks ride on their favorite team have gotten burned this season.

We have never understood how a person could enjoy risking green stuff on a bunch of kids, and we wouldn't feel any more comfortable with the pros.

This year, for certain, there is no sure winner.

Two weekends ago should have taught any gambler his lesson. Southern Cal was in the top spot in the nation and then got knocked off by Arizona.

That same weekend was a terrible one for local sports fans. Snyder, Texas Tech and the Dallas Cowboys all were beaten.

The following weekend was much better. Snyder and Dallas came away with victories, but Texas Tech remained a victim.

Nevertheless, the Texas Longhorns proved that being number one is a jinx. The nation's top-ranked grid team was clobbered by SWC foe Arkansas.

Being on top of the pack often means that folks try harder to unseat you. It happens at all levels. In Snyder's pee wee football league, the undefeated Oilers were knocked off by the Rams.

Also unpredictable are those in government.

Sen. William Proximire gives the Golden Fleese Award to the agency in government who has the most ridiculous use of tax dollars.

Last month, the award went to the Economic Development Commission for spending $200,000 to build an 800-foot limestone replica of the Great Wall of China in Bedford, Indiana.

This is the same city that was awarded $500,000 to build a ten-story replica of the Great Pyramid of Egypt.

With all of the necessary budget cuts going on these days, we ask how such a thing can happen.

There doesn't seem to be a great deal of communication going on in Washington between government and the agencies.

letter to editor

It seems that almost every part of the United States has been faced with water shortages, calling for voluntary and sometimes mandatory water conservation.

However, even during our most dire water emergencies our situation has never approached the terrible drought conditions that still grip Africa. Since 1974, diminished rainfall in countries like Somalia and Ethiopia has turned an already bone-dry area into a desolate wasteland.

UNICEF, the United Nations Children's Fund, is working hard to bring safe, clean water to people of this barren area. UNICEF assists in the drilling of wells, supplies pipe, installation, maintenance for pumps, and trains villagers in the importance of clean water to good health.

We can all help UNICEF provide adequate supplies of clean water where it's needed most by giving generously to UNICEF collectors and supporting UNICEF benefit activities this Halloween, which is National UNICEF Day. Our support is most important this year, at the beginning of the United Nations Water Decade.

Safe water means a healthy start in life. Let's all give that to children this Halloween.

Every time a manufacturer of appliances comes out with a new feature on their product, they call it a "Scientific breakthrough."

We have seen the coming of the see-through oven, the talking refrigerator, the thinking woman's computerized stove top and the sweeper that does everything but dance backwards.

One more scientific breakthrough and I'm going to have a scientific breakdown.

Who wants to see their oven under glass? Why would a manufacturer consider corrosion a turn-on? It was always enough for me to open the door, grope through the darkness and be cheered when I still had room for a small casserole.

The "breakthroughs" will never give you a break. The newest accessory for refrigerators is a signal light that lets you know when it needs vacuuming underneath.

I don't know when it needs vacuuming underneath.

I don't know how it works but I can only suspect instead of the dust growing up through the refrigerator until it reaches the top under the phone book, it reaches a level and shorts a light which goes on, signaling it is ready to be hauled away.

Let us be practical. If God had meant for us to clean under refrigerators, He would have given us yardstick hands.

I do not know anyone personally who does it, nor do I want to establish a relationship. They're probably people who wash their hands after they play with the dog and change the baking soda every year or so.

Frankly, I clean under my refrigerator every time we move and I've never found anything under there worth getting a hernia over. The last time we moved from the farm to the West, I uncovered a pencil stub, an iced teaspoon, two marbles, a cold tablet, a cluster of black globs that had been grapes in another life, two nails, a coat hanger, a skeleton (possibly mammal) and a note reminding me of an appointment with my obstetrician. The kid was 14 years old.

I suspect there are talking stoves in our future, mixers that whimper, "Clean me," and washers that will flash OVERLOAD and give us a lecture.

I don't know about you, but if I wanted guilt, I'd call my mother.

The expression "sit at meat" for "to eat a meal" is interesting as it suggests that meat was the important food of the meal as many consider it today.

"There came unto him (Jesus) a woman having an alabaster box of very precious ointment, and poured it on his head, as he sat at meat." — Matt. 26:7

the wagman file

DES MOINES, Iowa (NEA)—When moderate Republicans are asked where their future candidates for national office will come from, they often point to several attractive governors currently residing in statehouses around the country.

But two of these governors are likely to be fighting for their political lives next year against some old Democratic names. Their own futures and those of the moderate wing of their party may hinge on the outcome of their re-election races.

One of them is "Big Jim" Thompson, who is nearing the end of his second term as governor of Illinois. He is one of his state's most popular governors in recent memory and he has recently assumed a higher profile on the national scene; for example, he headed President Reagan's commission on violent crime. Thompson has long been expected to become a major factor in national GOP politics.

Now it appears that Thompson will be challenged for re-election next year by former U.S. Sen. Adlai Stevenson III, whose name still carries some magic in Illinois politics. Stevenson, who has practiced law in Chicago since his return from Washington in January, has not formally expressed interest in the race, but knowledgeable insiders say that he is under great pressure from his party to oppose Thompson. Early polls show that Stevenson could do very well in such a contest.

Although Stevenson has not announced his intentions, Thompson is already running hard against him. "I can't think of a single dollar Adlai Stevenson ever brought to Illinois," the govenor remarked in a recent speech.

Daniel Walker, who was the state's Democratic governor from 1973 to 1977, is also talking about challenging Thompson. Walker was defeated in his party's 1976 primary by Secretary of State Michael Howlett, who was subsequently crushed in the general election by Thompson.

Thompson's political aides are quietly "leaking" polls purporting to show Walker to be a stronger potential candidate than Stevenson; they are saying that Thompson fears Walker more than he does Stevenson. But Democrats are not much taken in by all of this and appear ready to give Stevenson their nomination if he wants it.

Much the same situation is developing in Iowa. Moderate Republican Robert Ray, who has been governor since 1969, would be in a position to compete for national office after winning re-election next year. But looming on the horizon is a figure from out of the past: Harold Hughes.

Hughes, a former truck driver and recovered alcoholic, was elected governor of Iowa in 1962. He moved on to the U.S. Senate in 1969 and made a brief try for the presidency before retiring from public life in 1975 to become a Christian lay missionary.

For the past five years Hughes has run a religious retreat on Maryland's Eastern Shore. But now he is back in Iowa and under tremendous pressure to run for the office that he held so many years ago. Hughes remains a very popular figure in Iowa; he is perhaps even more popular today because of his recent religious activities.

Several polls commissioned by Decmocrats here show Hughes to be running only about 15 percent behind Ray. That is a tremendous showing against a well-regarded governor who has held office for a longer continuous period than any of his colleagues.

Hughes, like Stevenson, is playing things close to the vest. He has not said whether he will run, but a campaign committee made up of his old supporters has started to solicit money on his behalf. Unlike Thompson, Ray has nothing to say about his potential challenger. "It's Hughes' decision whether or not he wants to run and it's a bridge I will cross when I come to it," he says. "All I can say is that I will be a candidate for re-election and I think that the voters of Iowa will return me to office."

Police Arrest 330 Gangsters

TOKYO (AP) — Police arrested 330 suspected gangsters today in a national crackdown two days before the scheduled memorial for the godfather of Japan's largest underground organization.

Thousands of underground leaders are expected to gather in Kobe on Sunday to commemorate Kazuo Taoka, who died in July. He was boss of the Yamaguchi-Gumi organization in western Japan.

A National Police Agency spokesman said the arrests on charges of blackmail, intimidation, fraud and violence took place in Tokyo, Osaka and 34 other districts.

Pumps Made For Woman

PEKING (AP) — When Ma Delan went shopping recently, she took her 5-year-old daughter, rode all day and night on a train, walked eight miles — and found that what she wanted was sold out.

The Communist Party newspaper People's Daily reported Wednesday that Miss Ma wanted three small water pumps advertised on the radio. But they weren't sold in her county in Hebei province, so she went to the factory in neighboring Liaoning province, only to discover all its pumps had been sold under contract, the paper said.

It said factory leaders moved by Miss Ma's plight had workers assemble three pumps, teach her how to use them and help get them to the railroad station. Miss Ma returned home without having slept in three days and two nights, the paper added.

The year 1941 saw two outstanding performances in baseball: Joe DiMaggio's 56-game hitting streak for the Yankees and Ted Williams' .406 batting average for the Boston Red Sox.

10 Percent Of Texas Oil Could Be 'Hot'

FLORESVILLE, Texas (AP) — Cattle stealing used to be a hanging offense on the Great Plains, but there's no way to stamp a brand on Texas crude, and modern-day rustlers are making off with thousands of dollars in "hot oil."

Some state regulatory officials estimate that 10 percent of all Texas oil being sold to refineries is stolen.

Other officials do not believe thievery is that widespread.

Willie Steed, director of regulatory enforcement for the Texas Railroad Commission, which regulates the oil and gas industry, said the 10 percent estimate "seems like a high figure."

"We pump a quarter million barrels a day. I just don't believe it's that high," he said.

Crude oil sits invitingly in unlocked tanks on remote ranches all over Texas, awaiting truck transport to refineries. Usually no one is on guard or even suspicious that oil is being stolen.

Authorities say much of the oil may be disappearing in water trucks which regularly drive on and off the oil leases to pick up the salt water that's pumped from the wells along with the crude. The trucks would find it easy to simply fill up at the oil tank instead of the water tank.

"One man can drive a 40-barrel vacuum truck right up to a battery (of tanks)," said Gene Wright, chairman of the theft control task force for the Texas Independent Producers and Royalties Owners Association, commonly called TIPROA. "He can walk right up the ladder and drop that thing (a vacuum hose) right into the tank and in 10 minutes, 15 at the most, he can have that 40 barrels loaded — and not spill one drop of oil."

Rail commission and oil industry officials say oil theft has become rampant. The Texas Rangers — who boasted "one riot, one Ranger" in early oil boom days — admit they have neither the manpower nor expertise to stop it.

State Rep. Tommy Atkisson, D-San Antonio, has called for a statewide investigation of the oil rustling and says the rangers and other investigators "are out there chasing bull elephants with fly swatters. The petro pirates are running over them with impunity."

Last May, 24 producers from 11 counties in south central Texas set up their own five-man private police force, the Giddings Oil Field Security Association.

The North Texas Oil and Gas Association at Wichita Falls is paying for special prosecutors to help district attorneys go after the thieves, executive vice president Tom Haywood said.

"This is the only way you're going to get anything done. This is where law enforcement is breaking down," Haywood said. "Over the years officers have gone out and they bring the evidence in and nobody gets prosecuted.

"So we're putting our money where our mouth is," he said. "We'll pay the bill for an attorney to come in and support (the district attorney) to frankly throw the guys in jail."

In addition, several Texas petroleum associations have set up a "hot line" to take reports of stolen oil and equipment.

A 1980 TIPROA study estimated anywhere from $10 million to $50 million worth of equipment and oil are stolen in Texas each year, but Haywood said those figures were way off.

"That estimate is a year old," he said. "Since that time, the number of calls coming on the hotline have made it clear that the theft of crude oil...is much, much more than anyone would have imagined six months ago....We're beginning to realize that many, many millions of dollars worth is being stolen."

There are just 91 Texas Rangers. The railroad commission has 120 field investigators. Its district office in San Antonio has six field men for 43 counties.

These are reasons why rancher Jimmy Van Winkle of Wilson County spent $30,000 to hire Pinkerton detectives and attorneys last year when he suspected his oil was being heisted.

Van Winkle, 36, said he never suspected theft until some potential buyers from Maryland suggested his four wells should be producing more than the 80 barrels a day he claimed.

Van Winkle now is suing Petrolia Oil Co. of Birmingham, Mich., and Associated Services Inc. of Pearsall, Texas, for $360,000 worth of oil he alleges was stolen over three years.

He has check stubs showing how his production and royalty payments doubled last year, from 80 barrels a day and about $9,000 a month to 160-200 barrels a day and more than $20,000 a month, after he pressured Petrolia to fire a worker who kept the pumping records and to get rid of Associated.

Nixes Mom-Law-Day

ST. CLOUD, Minn. (AP) — Vin Weber's mother-in-law was a bit taken aback when she learned the 6th District congressman voted against a national Mother-in-Law Day.

"I'm sure there must be a reason because I know he loves me," Weber's mother-in-law, Irma Lorenz of Waseca, reasoned Wednesday.

Weber, a Republican, was among the dissenters in the 305-66 roll call Tuesday by which the House voted in favor of declaring the fourth Sunday in October to honor spouses' mothers.

Dan Griswold, Weber's press secretary, said many congressmen opposed the resolution because they felt adding another observance to the calendar was a bit much.

But Mrs. Lorenz doesn't see it that way. If she were in Congress, would she vote against national son-in-law day?

"I should say not," she said.

Weber eased his mother-in-law's concern later with an official statement.

"My mother-in-law is too special to be recognized on the same day as all those other mothers-in-law," he said. "If they proposed an Irma Lorenz day then I would vote for it."

"Isn't that sweet? Oh, that makes my whole day," said a relieved Mrs. Lorenz, "I knew there was a real good reason."

CHAS. STENHOLM

Oilmen Honor Congressman

Congressman Charles Stenholm of Stamford has received a special award from an association of independent oil and gas producers and royalty owners.

The Energy Consumers and Producers Association award to Stenholm salutes him "for service beyond the call of duty to the independent oil producers and royalty owners of America in the big tax fight of the summer of 1981."

According to ECPA, Stenholm was a key figure in reducing or eliminating many provisions of the "windfall profits" tax on oil producers and owners.

Conservationists Going To Amarillo Convention

A delegation from the Upper Colorado Soil and Water Conservation District will be in Amarillo on Monday to attend the 41st annual state meeting of the Texas Soil and Water Conservation District Directors.

District directors, Leon Sterling, Walter Stirl, W. L. Wilson Jr., Burl Belew and Charlie Henderson will attend. Others who will make the trip are Viola Stirl, Nell Wilson and District Conservationist Erwin A. Pavlik and Mrs. Pavlik.

Purpose of the meeting is to review developments affecting Texas conservation programs and to plan future conservation district programs and activities.

Speakers will include State Sen. Bill Sarpalius of Hereford, State Rep. Gibson Lewis of Fort Worth; Milton E. "Bud" Mekelburg of Yuma, Colo, who is vice president of the National Association of Conservation Districts, Norm Berg, chief of USDA's Soil Conservation Services, Washington, D. C., and Don Strickland, businessman and civic leader of Liberty.

Workshops will feature discussions on oil and gas leases, conservation legislation, district operations and a session on recent technological developments in conservation tillage in Texas.

A president and vice president of the state association will be elected, and three districts will elect directors.

Directors of the Upper Colorado SWCD will be presented a medallion as an honor district in the Goodyear Conservation Awards Program for their continuing resource conservation achievements. Since the district has won first place within the last five years, it is ineligible to repeat as a winner this year.

Commission Records In Big Demand

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — The recent Texas oil boom has forced the Railroad Commission to revise a generous but risky policy of allowing the industry and others to check out original documents from commission files for business.

The demand for the valuable documents — some possibly leading to oil and gas fortunes — has become so great that on Nov. 1 the commission will start to phase in a program to prohibit the removal of original records.

"People are coming in here by the tons," said Railroad Commissioner Mack Wallace.

Applications for permits to drill, known as W-1s, are most in demand and will be the first original documents placed off-limits.

Instead of allowing people to check out drilling permits and return them the same day, the commission will offer a subscription service to copies of W-1s that would cost as much as $12,624 a year.

"New permits are an indication of where people are willing to gamble their money ... ," said David Garlick, assistant director of planning and administration. "It's the first indication there may be oil somewhere near.

"Land men are interested (in drilling permits) in terms of acquiring leases, industry people are interested in terms of are they falling behind in their competitive posture, and landowners are interested in it to see where the rig's going in."

As many as 50,000 drilling permits could be filed this year — "that's up dramatically," Garlick said.

"In places like Abilene, for example, you can almost drill an oil well with a water well rig," he said.

For years only three consulting firms removed papers for copying, Garlick said in an interview, but "with the recent boom just the demand for our information from the public has skyrocketed to the point now that we have over 60 people on our list to check out original documents."

Consultants claim private individuals who come in to check on their "mom and pop" wells have clogged the process, often knowing nothing more about the location of a well than "it's right over there behind a barn."

"What do you want?" the commission staff might ask.

"I want everything," often is the reply.

Garlick says, "The Austin Chalk formation is close by, and quite a few from the Giddings area come in and want to see their well on a map, or want to see their lease or want to see their production figures and, of course, they are as entitled to it as anybody else."

Garlick said some consultants have been so frantic to get file folders that they have pulled them out of the hands of commission employees. He recalled one folder being returned so late that it was merely shoved under the door after the records office had closed.

As he stated in a Sept. 25 letter, "old mechanisms for distributing this information have been stressed to the point of collapse," and these methods in some cases "inadvertently grant a competitive advantage to one firm over another."

He also mentioned what gives the commission nightmares — the possibility of losing records out of the office in fires, car accidents or by theft.

Asked if the old method had resulted in the loss of documents, Garlick said, "I've never come across a concrete situation ... " He added, however, consultants had told of checking out a record and finding something missing when they rechecked it.

"Nobody has run off with anything," insists Wallace. "There's no flim-flam or whim-wham."

Meeting with consultants, Garlick stated, "If you say you must have an original document, I'm afraid in the future the answer will have to be no."

"It's a reasonable solution based on the means we have to correct the problem," said Wallace.

Revenues, Expenses Of CRMWD Up

Revenues are exceeding estimates for the first nine months of the year for the Colorado River Municipal Water District, but not at the rate of increase for expenses.

For this period, income of $6,670,750 is $255,680 more than estimated. On the other hand, operating disbursements of $4,186,523 were $498,332 more than budgeted for the first three quarters of the year. Most of this was due to an unexpected increase in electric energy charges, which have overshot the budgeted mark by $455,525. O. H. Ivie, general manager for CRMWD, said he is confident the district will be in the black at the end of the fiscal year because the heaviest of the energy use months are past.

For September, the power bill was $416,178, which was $174,079 more than for the same month in 1980. For the nine months, the total energy bill was $2,779,184, which is $941,397 or 52.30 percent greater than for the same time last year. The increase of actual over budget for the same period has been $455,595, or 19.65 per cent.

Of the total revenues, $5,274,595 came from cities, up $109,304 over estimates. Another $1,238,461 came from oil companies, or $131,193 more than estimated.

The energy charges this year would have been even greater had not CRMWD been able to pump more water from Lake J. B. Thomas, which costs substantially less to deliver than from Lake E. V. Spence. Through the first nine months of 1981, Lake Thomas furnished 29.52 percent of the total deliveries. For the same time last year, this percentage was 16.08.

Nancy Reagan Has Laid Rumors To Rest

NEW YORK (AP) — Nancy Reagan has laid to rest any rumors that might have arisen up after Washington gift shops started selling postcards showing the first lady dressed as a queen.

"I never wear a crown," Mrs. Reagan joked Thursday at a dinner in New York City. "It messes up my hair."

During brief remarks at the annual Alfred E. Smith memorial dinner honoring the late New York governor, Mrs. Reagan said she wanted to tell the 1,000 guests about some of her activities, such as fighting drug abuse and supporting the Girl Scouts.

"And then, of course, the Nancy Reagan home for wayward china," she quipped.

Referring to criticism of the $209,000 set of state china purchased through private donations, Mrs. Reagan said she was just glad to be able to "make as much money as I did for the White House."

Merchants Coffee Is Slated

A coffee session for local merchants interested in participating in a customer development seminar has been scheduled for 10:30 a. m. Thursday by the Snyder Chamber of Commerce.

It will be held in the Reddy Room of the Texas Electric Service Co. office building.

Under consideration is a seminar to be conducted by Joel R. Combs, which those attending a merchants committee meeting the past week approved. A similar seminar was conducted here several years ago and met with good response.
